Crash Of Mammoth Foshay Company Rocks Financial Interests Of Northwest

GIANT CONCERN GOES IN HANDS OF RECEIVERS

Vast Organization Built by Wizardry of Wilbur B. Foshay

OTHER FIRMS FAIL

Subsidiaries in 30 States, Canada, Mexico, Central America Hit

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 1. (AP)—An organization valued at more than $20,000,000 built up through the financial wizardry of Wilbur B. Foshay, crashed today when a voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the W. B. Foshay company, holder of public utility, industrial, banking and real estate properties.

Collapse of the parent company carried with its subsidiaries in 30 states and in Alaska, Canada, and Central America, and marked one of the greatest financial disasters in the Northwest.

Other Firms Named

Named with the Foshay company in the receivership action were the Public Utilities Consolidated corporation, the utility operating subsidiary of the concern, and the W. B. Foshay Building corporation, which owns the company's office structures in various cities, including the 32-story Foshay tower here.

Joseph Chapman, Minneapolis banker and merchant, was named receiver of the vast interests in the proceedings brought before Federal Judge Johnson B. Sanborn. Foshay filed only a brief answer agreeing to the receivership and declined to comment afterward.

Over-expansion of business and lack of a market for securities of the Foshay companies were given as reasons for the receivership proceedings in the petition. Three companies were specifically named in suits filed today on which total judgments of $867,000 were ordered by Judge Sanborn.

Three Petitions Filed

Three petitions were filed in the action, one by H. H. Henly, a vice

Tom Walton's Letters   To Theresa   Read To Jury

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Nov. 1 (AP)—Letters written by Tom Walton Jr., and intended for Theresa Hamilton at Austin but which were intercepted by Mrs. Hamilton, the girl's mother, were introduced in evidence in Judge Hamilton's murder trial today. Mrs. Hamilton sent the letters to her husband in Amarillo, the testimony Friday disclosed.

Tom

Walton's letter, written from Amarillo, in part:

"Dearest Theresa:

"I hope I don't have to pay another five cents a letter like you last. I am sorry for your part.

"As for the will and all—I can't say. Money wasn't on my mind Feb. 10—so thats up to you. If you had rather make sure of your education—you had better abide by it.

"As for coming up here well—I dunno—but I think he is making things impossible for you. Won't he listen to reason? I think I'll pull the wool over his eyes. I may have to use a hammer, but I can do it. x x x

"Now x x if you don't care about going to school this year you can make it harder on them than they can on you. Tell 'em you are nervous and sick and when you don't get your way—just jump on them before they can act. No matter how impossible your cause may be. Then you can relax and catch them off guard again—you will soon wear down their resistance. I am going to talk with your dad tomorrow and find out what he says about a uneducated guy marrying one of his daughters. As far as I am concerned—I think I've got enuff of them—all. And if this is kept up and we are going to get in hot water anyway—I've got an idea— x x x that Theresa and Tommie are going to disappear till July 29.

"If they would lay off dictating what you have to do it might be different—but they are impossible x x. "They will give you a musiced"—bunk—! Why don't they let you pick your own course?. They have no sympathy and they use yours x x x.

"I am going to poke a stick in that about "you making a miserable mess of yourself"—that's a damned lie, x x x you know better than that—just as I know better—about me being the cause of the trouble between dad and mother. I won't love anyone who has made a miserable mess of themselves and I refuse to stop loving you—so you are and always will be the most wonderful girl in the world—for ever and ever.

"If you are going to show 'em, what 'bad' is—please don't do anything rash; stay the sweet girl that you are. As far the 'outbursts'—I wouldn't love you unless you would fly off the handle x x.

"Please sweetheart don't be so blue. It is too darned hard to know you are that way. I don't know of a thing to do without just being me and x x x but I don't think that will remedy the hell of being apart—like we are. I will say this in consolation of the present matters—we are not disagreeing with each other—and that is our main faith and future. x x x please brace up for a few days. x x x as for the poison please don't you know we don't wan't to give up a struggle that is just beginning. It is true we are handicapped till July 29—; but oh, boy! We can be open and aboveboard all the way.

Theresa

"I think it best—if you would destroy my letters or put them where they won't be found. We have 120 days before we are free—won't that be great! Theresa—please know—I'm in love with you—whatever you do—is perfect with me. I promise I won't say another cross word to you—never. Except when you say 'yes' too much to your folks x x. Our throats will be cut after July anyway—(by him)—cause he is going to fume and rage. And he can't be much worse. Our hell is sitting and having to take it—without fighting back—like sitting in dentist's chair. It's easier to fight.

"I'll write tomorrow night and I think I'll know what I can do by then. Please know that I love you, sweetheart—and honest—I'll be a slave for you the rest of my life. There may be a lotta faults in me, but I can say this—you have all my heart—a true and total love for the most wonderful sweetheart in all the world.

"It's wonderful to be able to trust one person in this world—to have a secure faith in you—that is what I am thriving and living on now. Babe—tell Mrs. Devil that.

"Tommie June

"Is in love with Theresa (the good girl)"

LAWYER SAYS HE ASKED BOY TO GO TO WORK

Defendant Claims Marriage Was Agreeable if Tom Made His Mark

NUMEROUS THREATS

Harry Bishop Relates Conversation With Victim; Girls Testify

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Nov. 1. (UP)—Disagreements between a young man and a middle aged one, one wanting to marry without waiting and the other anxious for his daughter's education and future welfare formed the plot of a story told from the witness stand here today at the murder trial of Judge R. H. Hamilton, charged with the death of Tom Walton Jr., his son-in-law.

It was Judge Hamilton himself talking, chronologically outlining his entire life, and the incidents leading up to that tragedy in his law office at Amarillo on last May 4 for which he is on trial for his life.

Harry D. Bishop, Amarillo attorney formerly of Wichita Falls, gave testimony ranking next to Hamilton's story in importance to the cause of the defense.

All of the Hamilton family seemed in better spirits today. They were more cordial and at times even jovial. Mrs. Hamilton smiled encouragingly at her husband at intervals while he was on the stand.

The state is asking for the judge's life, in payment for the homicide; the judge is pleading self-defense, and accounting for it by saying he felt his life was in danger.

The judge went back to his birthplace and reviewed his life, and remembered how he sent his daughter, Theresa, to college and how Tom Walton went to him one day last winter and asked permission to marry her.

Delay Suggested

Walton told Hamilton he was studying to be an engineer, and the judge suggested postponement of the marriage until he had launched his career.

What Hamilton considered an accession to his suggestion turned into a broken agreement later, with Walton declaring he would marry the girl anyhow, with or without consent.

"If you and my little girl ever marry, blessings on you," the judge said he told Walton after their first

PRANK PLAYER FACES CHARGE OF HOMICIDE

Grayback Oil Field Man Killed as Friend Shoots in Fun

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Nov. 1.—A charge of negligent homicide was filed here tonight against John Puyear, 35, in connection with the fatal shooting this morning of Haskell Means, 25, in the course of what Puyear described as "a prank" he played on his friend as he worked in the Grayback oil field southeast of here.

Fired 'Over' Head

Puyear had returned to the field to work after an absence of about two weeks, caused by his injury in a traffic accident. Puyear said that as he entered the room where Means was working he fired a shot over Means' head, intending this as "a prank" by which to startle his companion. Just as the shot was fired, Puyear said, Means arose. The bullet struck Means in the forehead.

Puyear said he rushed Means to an Electra hospital, where for three hours the wounded man lived with a bullet in his brain.

Inquiry Conducted

After Means' death a court of inquiry was held in Electra before Justice of the Peace W. H. Coffman. Thereafter Puyear was taken in custody by County Attorney R. R. Donaghey and Sheriff R. L. Rheay of Wilbarger county, the shooting having occurred within the jurisdiction of that county.

Puyear was still in custody tonight, no preliminary hearing having been arranged.

The trial Dec. 16 will involve a robbery indictment charging the former peace officer with the holdup of J. B. Early in the Jefferson hotel in Electra in June, 1928.

FALL'S ILLNESS CUTS PENALTY

Briber Gets Freedom Until He Recoups Health

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—Albert B. Fall was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $100,000 today for accepting a bribe of $100,000 as secretary of the interior for awarding a lease to the Elk Hills Naval Oil reserve to his California friend, Edward L. Doheny.

The sentence was tempered with mercy as recommended by the jury. Justice William Hitz permitted Fall his freedom on $5,000 bond pending appeal, and announced that if the jail sentence were to be carried out at this time he would have suspended it because of Fall's ill health.

A short while later at his hotel, Fall issued his first public statement concerning his part in the oil leases. He asked the American people not to "believe me guilty of the damnable crime of which I am innocent."

The lengthy statement said he was moved to break his long silence "by a deep desire to vindicate the faith of those who have loved, honored or trusted me."

MRS. HAMILTON WROTE JUDGE ABOUT LOVERS

Letters Sent Defendant by His Wife Shed Light On Affair

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Nov. 1. (AP)—The first letter introduced as evidence in the murder trial of Judge R. H. Hamilton today was one written to him by Mrs. Hamilton from Austin.

The letter had been introduced with others allegedly written by Tom Walton Jr., to Theresa Hamilton which Mrs. Hamilton had intercepted.

The first letter written by Mrs. Hamilton:

"Dearest: . . . I have just come to the hospital to see Theresa.

"Dr. Shipp told me yesterday he believed her appendicitis would burst in 24 hours more.

Reveals Problem

"But, dear, we have another problem facing us—old Tom Walton came into Austin last night. I had suspected he would come and had instructed the nurses to admit no young men callers. Well, they were true to promise and did not let him see Theresa.

"However, he seems to have left a note outside the door of her room and she learned that he was in town. I told her I did not want him to go into her room at all. I also told her it was forbidden by the university rules.

"As I was leaving the hospital just a little while ago I saw Tom Walton just across the street. . . . He hurried up to me and said:

"'Mrs. Hamilton, I want to see Theresa.' I said, 'she is not receiving callers; she is sick.' He said, 'But I have come here to see her and I am gonna see her.' I said, 'Well, I didn't invite you to come, and I have given strict orders that you are not to be allowed to go into Theresa's room.' Then he looked very angry and said, 'I will get into her room if I have to shoot my way in.'

Believed Him Dangerous

"Dear, I wish you were here; I don't know what to do. I don't want to let him in, but I am afraid to try to keep him out. I think he is dangerous. . . .

"I do not know what to do if he comes again to the hospital. . . . I am doing the best I can, but this is an awful load. Lovingly, Myrtle."

The second leter in part from Mrs. Hamilton:

"Dearest:

"I was looking in Theresa's trunk this morning and found the enclosed from Tom Walton to her. . . . "I don't like the tone of the letter at all . . .

"It is heart-breaking to know Theresa persists in going with one who has absolutely no character. . . .

"Lovingly,

"Myrtle."

Ferne fell from the bank of a pool in the Arroyo Bonita into water eight feet deep. Laura jumped in after Ferne and reached her. Morris swam 10 feet to the girls and grasped one of them. Airport Notes

Jack Broday, 2504 Ninth street, made his first solo flight at the Municipal airport Friday afternoon about 5 o'clock after a course of flying instruction under Pilot Fred Ridenour, instructor for the Lone Star Aviation company. The student made a perfect three-point landing and handled his ship with ease while in the air, his instructor said. He was at the controls of the Lone Star training ship, a Travel-air 0X5.

R. E. Spake of the Wichita Falls Window Glass company, took off for Tulsa, Okla., in the company's Monocoupe about 9:15 o'clock Friday morning. He spent several hours in that city on business and returned, landing at the Municipal port about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon.

A total of 18 passengers were reported in transit through the Municipal airport Friday on the morning and afternoon schedules of the Braniff, and Safeway airlines, according to C. P. Logan, manager of the port. The bad weather reported over wide areas in the United States has cut down the passenger lists of the local lines only to a small degree, it was said.

The Travelair cabin monoplane, Conoco II, carrying the Continental Oil company's flying sales squadron, has been forced down in Montana by the same weather conditions which have forced grounding of transcontinental airlines ships and those of other lines and will not reach Wichita Falls until Saturday or later, it was learned Friday. State Brings Habitual Criminal Charge in Akers Trial Set Nov. 11

Trial of Otis Akers, under four robbery indictments which carry second offense allegations, was set, Friday afternoon for Nov. 11 in the 89th district court, according to a tentative schedule prepared by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney. The criminal docket for the week, including 13 cases, has been set subject to the approval of Judge P. A. Martin, the attorney said.

Akers is under indictment for robbery with firearms in connection with the holdup of the Elevnth street pharmacy here and with the Roszell cafe on the Iowa Park road on the night of July 17, last year. Three of the charges grow out of the Roszell hijacking. Each bill specifically charges an earlier conviction for robbery in Dallas county. Mr. Anglin announced that the state will push the cases under the terms of the habitual criminal act and will ask for the maximum 99 year term of imprisonment in case of a second conviction on robbery charges.

Akers was taken from the custody of a hospital for the insane by Oklahoma officials several months ago and brought to Wichita Falls on the authority of the robbery complaints filed here.

The trials set for the week of Nov. 11 include that of R. E. Brewster, former school superintendent at Iowa Park, who is indicted on charges of embezzling school funds on three separate occasions last spring. Brewster is at the head of the school system at Port Neches during the present term.

The docket as set for the weeks also calls for the trial of Earl Freeman, charged with the burglary of the Loma Walker shop at Electra several months ago. Other settings were listed by Mr. Anglin as follows: Annie Houser, driving while intoxicated; Alfred Jennings, driving while intoxicated; Raymond Lewis, murder; Bailey Craig, attampt to rape; Jesse Byrd, transportation of whisky; Douglas Harvill, theft over $50; Larry Kilroy, possession whisky; Barney Riley, whisky; Lee Hudspeth, possession of still; Herbert van Huss, possession of still.

order to be present at the scheduled sales convention and will continue over the route previously planned until weather conditions allow the ship to catch up with them, possibly Saturday in Wichita Falls. The plans was scheduled to reach here Saturday evening. The purpose of the trip is to introduce a new Conoco germ processed motor oil. The party is headed by J. E. Moorehead, sales promotion manager of the company.

president of the W. B. Foshay company, the second by the G. M. Spratt Insurance company against the Public Utilities company the third by Chapman against the Foshay Building company.

Assets of the Public Utilities corporation were listed at $20,000,000. It was said they may be higher. Assets of the other two concerns were not estimated as it was explained that they will depend on stock values.

Liabilities of $12,000,000 are charged against the Foshay interests by the petitions, which recite that Foshay "finds himself with a large amount of stocks, bonds and notes which he finds difficulty in selling and faces the necessity of paying large amounts of the obligations with no ready money to do so."

Foshay's Third Venture

The business thrown into receivership today is the third built up by Wilbur B. Foshay since 1917, when he started operations here. Twice Foshay sold out to Eastern interests only to start welding another business chain. The third group of utilities companies, involved in today's receivership, was formed in 1927.

Records show that the Foshay Utilities serve 192 communities in the United States, Alaska and Central America. Gross income in 1928 was announced as $2,589,653.

When he began his operations here Foshay was 36 years of age and had had experience in railroading in the East besides having worked for public utility concerns in the Middle-West and on the Pacific coast.

Properties owned by the Foshay company include telephone, electric light, water, street railway and gas companies. Within the past few years he also purchased three banks in the twin cities, two in Minneapolis and one in St. Paul, which are involved in the crash.

None of the depositors in the Minneapolis banks will lose their money, however, as both were taken over today, one by the Northwest Bank corporation, and the other by the First Bank Stock corporation. No action was announced, however, relating to the St. Paul bank which was closed today by the state banking department. The St. Paul bank has deposits of about $250,000.

GRUNDY SEEKS LOWER BOND

Habeas Corpus Hearing to Attack $10,000 Bail

In an effort to obtain a reduction of the $10,000 bond set for Roy Grundy, under a murder indictment for the shooting of June Hilburn here several weeks ago, defense attorneys will file an application for a habeas corpus hearing before Judge P. A. Martin on Saturday or Monday of next week. Cedric Taylor of the law firm of Taylor, Muse and Taylor, counsel for the defense, announced Friday evening that definite plans for a fight for a lower bond had been completed.

In a statement to the district attorney's office after Hilburn had died from three shotgun wounds received on the streets of business district, Grundy said that the shooting had grown out of "family" troubles. Hilburn had been a neighbor of the Grundy family for 12 years. Mr. and Mrs. Grundy were granted a divorce here less than two weeks before the shooting. Mrs. Grundy has declared that her former husband had no reason for jealousy.

"BACK TO SANITY"

Daily Editorial

THE stock market has again collapsed, and for the same reason that all structures totter when undue weight is placed upon a foundation which wasn't designed for it.

Speculation simply piled its anticipations too high for their underpinning.

Too many persons unacquainted with the relation of price to value were dabbling in Wall street.

Millions of amateurs had crowded their hopes upon a bridge which wasn't stressed to stand the strain.

Conservatism and Federal Reserve warnings attempted to establish order, safeguard traffic, and protect incautious cash from disaster.

Charts, graphs and statistics vainly pointed the disparity between dividend rates and ticker quotations, but savings bank withdrawals and income surpluses were in no mood to take counsel.

Consequently, the country is today filled with penniless widowhood, impoverished age, and shattered nest eggs.

Little of the loss falls upon productive units of national wealth.

"Black Monday" did not revise commercial balance sheets, or plunge a pen in industrial red ink wells.

The Brobdingnagian decline, which in a single day, depreciated Telephone shares by some $450,000,000, reduced the listed worth of General Electric by $342,000,000 and the trading basis of General Motors shares by approximately $300,000,000, has neither dipped into the ready-cash till nor rainy-day reserves of these sound projects, diminished their earning capacity nor altered a phase of their immediate programs.

THEY command the same funds and employ the same number of workers as before. And so do all the other concerns whose securities have been as unseasonably mangled under bear attack as they had previously been inflated by bull optimism. Which metaphor, however, inaccurately interprets the situation.

Neither group strategy nor Machiavellian craft can be blamed for the debacle.

The market has crumbled because its supporters failed to invest the funds and faith to arrest its downward trend.

A new lot of margain gamblers, unimpressed by the drubbing which millions of their fellows had just received, rushed in where seasoned operators feared to tread, overspread themselves and were unable to cover commitments when hastily applied emergency brakes started to slip.

Whereupon, thousands of outright buyers, dazed by the wiping out of paper gains, and not yet convinced that their holdings are out of the danger zone, throw commonsense and investments into the maelstrom and provoke a stampede just when the grand marshals of finance are deploying their stabilizing forces.

Banks and investment trusts now control the field.

Legitimate business inherits the fiscal kingdom again. Prosperity won't lack for needed promotion resources, and majority attention will revert to regular jobs instead of blowing golden bubbles and philandering with Jade Fortune at the Sign of the Ticker.

Meanwhile, the storm has strewn the ground with juicy plums which opportunity and thrift advise shrewdness to gather.

It's a fool dollar that hesitates to take advantage of the windfall.

Every exchange is offering prime, SOUND goods at less than they're ever apt to sell again—thanks to fools who wouldn't take reasonable profits and joy-riders who undercalculated the distance their half-finished ambitions could go.

CAPTURE SUSPECT

DENVER, Nov. 1. (UP)—Following a downtown battle with police during which dozens of shots were fired and pedestrians scurried for cover and the windshield of a passing automobile was shattered, fatally cutting two girl passengers, Jennie King, 18, a holdup suspect, was captured and under arrest today.

Jane Cowl says the theater is on its last legs. There seems to be plenty of 'em, anyway.

If you lost anything in the recent drop of the stock market, you probably had lots of fun reading stories about the "healthy reaction."

The Case of Mr. Fall

IT STILL may be impossible to convict a million dollars, but the Washington jury that finally found Albert B. Fall guilty of accepting a bribe has at least demonstrated that good sized fractions of a million can be convicted, at any rate.

The verdict in this case was both surprising and salutary.

Surprising, because in all the years that had elapsed since Tom Walsh ripped the lid off the oil scandals it had seemed impossible to find a jury that would believe what practically everybody else in the nation believed.

Salutary, because it helps to restore our faith in our processes of law—a faith that the last half dozen years have shaken rather badly.

Fall was undoubtedly a pitiable figure when the verdict was announced. There is no denying that he is in ill health. There is no denying that his recent years have not been particularly happy. There is no denying that bluff old ex-prospector Doheny made an effective gesture in shaking his fists to heaven and stomping out of the courtroom.

Yet the former secretary of the interior doesn't deserve an oversupply of public sympathy.

The supreme court of the country has branded him as a faithless public servant, and it has been a long time since anybody outside of Fall's immedite entourage disagreed with this decision. The Elk Hills oil reserve went to private interests for a price, and so did the Teapot Dome field; and all of Mr. Doheny's ranting about patriotism and the menace of the Japanese cannot make either of these transactions smell sweet.

And the ill health part of it? Well, it is hard to see an aged invalid facing a possible prison term. But you might cast your mind back a matter of 10 years, to the time when Woodrow Wilson lay desperately ill in the White House, and the senate sent three of its members over to see if by any chance he were too sick to carry on his duties as president.

The senators went to the bedroom, you may recall, chatted with Wilson, talked with his doctors and observed the man's mental and physical condition. But one senator, boorish and savage, was not satisfied. He went to the bedside and brutally ripped the covers back, exposing the president's wasted body. How much that told him about Wilson's condition is not known; it at least showed the senator to the country in his true light.

That senator, if you remember, was Albert B. Fall.

Nobody wants to see him persecuted; but he doesn't deserve any too much sympathy, either. His present plight is his own fault. One can only hope that he gets more consideration than he himself once showed to a sick man who was immeasurably his mental and moral superior.

Hoover on the Nation's Business

"IN THE MIDST of the turbulent stock market situation President Hoover issued a statement describing the fundamental business of the nation as being on a sound and prosperous basis," reads a Washington dispatch.

In other words, the stock gamblers of Wall street and their clients are not the American people, not the American wealth makers, not the growers or producers of staples and manufactured goods, which are sold on the bargain counters of the seven seas of the world.

Wheat growers should be gratified. They were told by the president that a 500,000,000 bushel decrease in the world wheat crop for this year below that of 1928 "will result in a very low carry-over at the end of the harvest."

There should be a very low carry-over of cotton at the close of the season. It is a question of supply and demand. Wheat and cotton growers should be taking down fancy prices for the staples which they offer to the consumers of the world.

Cost of Prison Farming

PRISON FARM cotton figures as given by General Manager W. H. Mead should appeal to the Texas taxpayer. Cotton yield of the farms will drop from 8,700 bales in 1928 to approximately 3,000 bales this year. This will mean at 16½ cents the cotton crop will yield the system about $247,500, as compared with $783,000 for the crop of 1928, or less than one-third the revenue of that year.

In 1928 the prison system ran approximately $200,000 behind its cost of operation. This despite the excellent cotton crop of the year and the higher prices than will be obtained for the crop of 1929.

Manager Mead credited the two-thirds failure of the cotton crops to spring floods that overflow much of the prison land. Now why should the prison farms be continued in the overflow districts.

Why should the farmers of Texas be taxed for the upkeep of a system that has been a disastrous failure for years and years?

This for the lawmakers and this for the people who pay the freight.

Acheson's Dream of Red River

FIFTY YEARS AGO Dr. Alec W. Acheson of Denison began a study of the possibility of making the Red river navigable. Representatives of Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas held a session and discussed flood control for the Red river valley.

These empire builders have a plan. They hope the lawmakers of all four states will cooperate in the work of harnessing the river. They are talking of a flood control dam six miles northwest of Denison, to hold back water of the river, thus dissipating a flood menace and at the same time providing unlimited power as well as waters for orrigation and navigation purposes.

Dr. Acheson may live to see Red river harnessed, the Red river navigable and the flood waters conserved for irrigation purposes in a valley as rich as that watered by the Nile. Texans are coming out of their trance.

Quotations Worth Noting

"Marriage, like all other arts, is infested by too many quacks and bunglers."—H. L. Mencken.

The Merry Magdalens

Among those American institutions that have been grossly misrepresented to the public is the chorus girl, that invariably enticing young lady who serves—and occasionally stands and waits—in the ensembles of the musical comedies. Perhaps no other person has contributed so gracefully as she to the fascination of the theatrical profession and to the legend of that variously known New York street, called Broadway.

Yet she has been weighed in the balance, by the narrow-minded, and found wanton, as someone has said before in a Vanity Fair. Newspaper editors of less conservative journals contend that she is "front page news interest" and emblazon her misfortune and misdeeds where all may read as they run, while, on the other hand, the prima donna or the misleading lady of the same troupe, who may be involved in as sensational a crisis, will find the account of her misadventures buried elsewhere in the chronicles.

Why? Perhaps because the chorus girl has become one of America's most glamorous figures. There is a certain aura about her. She definitely is not as scarlet as she is painted. And because she is usually a quite young person, literate, industrious, clever, calculating and capricious, she has been loved and wooed by poets, heroes and statesmen. She has married into the nobility, and the files of Mr. Ziegfeld's "Follies" will reveal press notices of chorus and show girls who have wedded supreme court judges, millionaires, dukes, bank presidents, Broadway reporters and so on. But it is not sentiment that inspires this de-glamoring defense of the chorus girl.

Chorus girls supposedly—and I believe this is true—go into the chorus for two reasons: The first, that they like the stage and want to progress there; the second, that marriage arena. This fact has not been accorded much notice in the papers, but it is undoubtedly true, because there must be hundreds of girls who read the stories about wealthy marriages and size up the stage for the "happy ending" route. Many of these girls come from extremely poor families and obscure homes. They begin on the stage (especially the stages controlled by the better class producers), and then elevate themselves.

Concrete examples include the marriages of Peggy Fears, an erstwhile member of the merry-merry, who rose to the heights of a Ziegfeld prima donna and wedded a millionaire; Helen Henderson, another chorus girl, succumbed to a jazz band musician, divorced him and later married a rich man whom she eventually "aired;" Anastasia Reilly, who also wedded a "money" man, and then retired; Lucita Mendez, who served in the background of musical comedies, married Ralph Ince, a prominent cinema director, and Louise Brooks, who did the same, even if hers didn't "take." Other former chorus ladies who were wedded to "big money" at one time include; Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Billie Burke, Jessica Brown, Evelyn Nesbit and several other nationally known beauties.

Joan Crawford started in the ensemble and is now enticing crowds to witness her films, as are Billie Dove and Rubye De Remer. Zelma O'Neal, a musical comedienne, started in the chorus; Helen Morgan, "Sally;" and Barbara Stanwyck, the heroine of "Burlesque," also "warbed and hoofed" in the choruses of shows and cabarets.

Not a great many of them, of course, promote successful marriages. Often they wed the "first man they love;" sometimes an obscure home town sweetheart. Many of them marry clerks, actors and chorus boys and some of them drift into second rate productions and go downhill.

The extraordinary thing about the American chorus girl is her elasticity. She is an out-and-out individualist, working as hard as she can work for what she wants. She can adapt herself with the facility of a comedienne to any circumstances without batting an eyelash. She may discover that the men with her are underworld characters, carrying guns and blackjacks, but she never lets on.

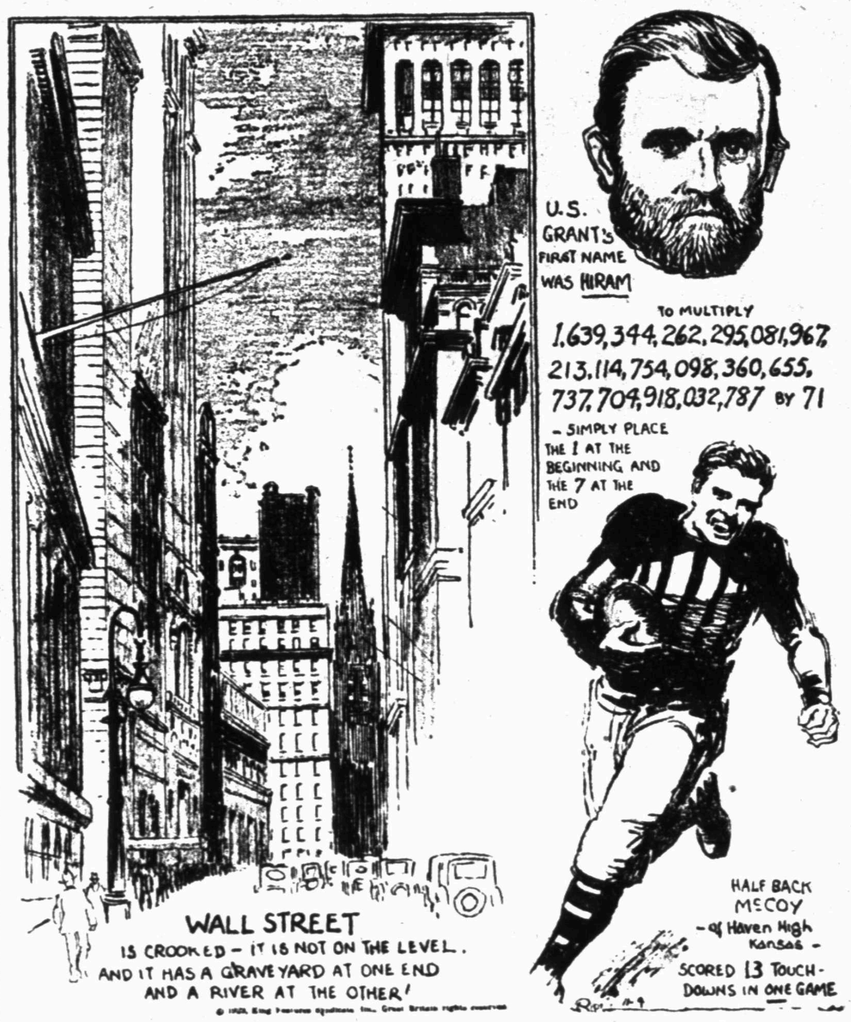

She meets rich men, producers, newspapermen, novelists and celebrities, all with a poise and assurance that is modern in a superlative sense of the word. I do not believe that any other branch of society contains women whose ingenuity, skill and self-possession can rival hers. And the remarkable thing is that she frequently has not had the breeding that other women, in similar situations, can fall back upon. Together with her versatile ingenuity is her baffling stupidity. If an outsider steps in and watches her at rehearsal, her chief concern is apparently her lips and her face, for she is continually fingering her vanity case and daubing her features.

The modern chorus girl is more of an asset to the modern producers than the girls were of a decade ago. In the Weber and Fields-"Florodora Sextette"-mauve decade days, the girls merely served as another "prop." They made pretty formations or carried parasols or spears, and otherwise "dressed up" the stage. Today, however, the chorus girl is a specialist. She sings, dances in the routine numbers, and must be able to step out of the line and dash off a hair-raising speciality, be it high kicks, turn-overs, cartwheels, or a buck-and-wing dance or acrobatic stepping. Often she must "clown" with the comedian or serve as his foil.

Of course, their youth is the great requisite, but no matter what people say about their stupidity, a chorus girl can't be very stupid nowadays and still do all the things we see her doing in the shows. A chorus girl really has more brains than she is given credit for having. Her struggle for recognition is rewarded only after tediously long rehearsals (sometimes for five weeks without pay). She pays her own way for tuition at the various dancing schools and limbering up places and certainly has a more arduous regime than had her 1899 sisters, who were just a piece of stage scenery. In the "Gingham Girl" and "Americana," for instance, these musical shows reduced their choruses from 50 to 60 to an ensemble of eight or 10, each one of whom had to do a distinctive thing in the show—acrobatics, all sorts of splits, ballads, jazzy songs and even playing on instruments.

Without getting into the involved question of morality, which is perhaps a secondary matter so far as the worldly achievements of individual women are concerned, whether it be Cleopatra or a chorus woman—the chorus girl represents the concentrated and intensified ambition that makes this, our own country, so noteworthy.

'EASY' The Love Story of a Modern Girl

By BEATRICE BURTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy is the "easy" type of girl who is continually imposed upon. Young and pretty, she dreams of a future as an artist, saving from her earnings by painting cards and working in her father's bookstore, but, as her selfish, flapper sisters, Alice and Jeanie, borrow her dresses for their own ends, so her brother, Howard, borrows her savings. The art course plan is shelved when Ann Marie uses the money in extricating Howard from an entangling alliance with Leota Ingram, the town's bad girl. Even her mother's pendant is pawned to pay Howard's fare to the West when he loses his bank job. Neal Forsythe, dashing Don Juan, visiting the wealthy Lawlers, wins Ann Marie's heart. Mrs. Lawler forbids her son to further accompany the Macy girls, calling them "night-time friends." Alice evens accounts by getting herself engaged to John Lawler. To celebrate, Johnny, Alice, Ann Marie, Neal, Jeanie and Brookie have a party at a roadhouse. Neal proposes to Ann Marie. Ann Marie goes on a Dutch-treat party with Neal, who forgets to return her change. Instead he steals a coffee pot for her from the roadhouse. He returns to New York and Ann Marie begins to save to join him there. Late at night she is aroused by a noise outside her door. It is Howard, her brother, who has returned with a wife.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XXVIII

"I'd take you out to dinner," Neal said, "but I seem to be dead broke. All but this—" He laughed and held out a few silver coins on the palm of his hand.

Ann Marie shook her head at him gravely. "I wouldn't let you take me out to dinner if you had a twenty-dollar bill," she answered. "I'm going to pay my way, just as we planned. Everything is going to be 'Dutch treat.' Now you go home and let me get my things unpacked."

But when he was gone, she made no move to unpack her trunk and bags.

She opened her own door without a sound. On tiptoe she crossed the landing and went down the stairs to the street.

It was getting dark and far down the street she could see the lighted front of a store.

When she got to it she saw it was a delicatessen and fruit stand. It was a very good one. Its shelves were loaded with all kinds of things to eat and drink.

Ann Marie bought recklessly for once. She felt reckless and happy that night.

She went home with a bag under one arm and a long, crusty loaf of French bread under the other.

Neal was knocking on the panels of her door when she reached the top floor of the apartment.

"Nobody's at home in that flat," she called to him gaily. "The lady who lives there is having dinner with Mr. Neal Forythe, the famous portrait painter."

The words "portrait painter" made her think, for an instant, of Leota again, but she pushed the thought into the back of her mind. . . . She wasn't going to be jealous or suspicious any more. She was here with the man she loved and she was going to trust him.

"Open your door for me," she said. "I'm going to show you how I can cook."

She stood still for a second on the threshold of his big studio room.

She had never dreamed that a room could be so untidy.

All around the edge of the floor, propped against the wall, were big sheets of cardboard and canvas-covered frames.

There were more of them piled on the window seat, and at one end of the long, narrow table that stood in the middle of the room. On another table stood a vase filled with dead, dried-up roses. There was a smoking jacket flung over one end of the screen that hid the kitchen table and the sink.

And, oh! that sink! It was furry with rust and coated with gray slime. It was filled with dirty dishes and on the drainboard was the saddest looking dish cloth that Ann Marie had ever seen.

"Your Leota doesn't seem to have been much of a dishwasher—" Ann Marie began, and then remembered that she was never going to speak of Leota again.

"She wasn't supposed to wash dishes," Neal said dryly. "You didn't believe me when I told you she came here simply as a model, did you? You still think I've been having a love affair with her, don't you?"

"Oh, no! no! no! I was just teasing you," said Ann Marie, afraid that they might have another quarrel.

She took off her hat and coat, tied the only clean dishtowel she could find about her waist, and set to work.

"You go into my flat and bring some clean towels," she ordered, handing Neal her key. "I'm going to clean this place up. I'm going to keep house for you for about an hour, you poor thing."

If anyone had told Ann Marie that it was fun to do dishes, she wouldn't have believed it.

But she enjoyed the washing of every one of the dozens and dozens of dirty plates and cups and saucers that she washed and put away that night.

While she was busy with them she boiled water for a pot of tea and heated a steakpan on the tiny electric stove that stood on the table.

She washed a head of lettuce, put it into a bowl of cold water, and set it out on the window sill beside the tiny bottle of cream and the half pound of butter that she had bought.

"I'm having the time of my life," she said to Neal, as they worked. "It's like working in a doll's house."

"It was like being married," she told herself, as she flew around the studio, plumping up the flattened cushions on the window-seat, and burning up the old papers that were piled in the fire place.

"I'm going out for some cigarets and a paper," Neal said, clapping his hat on his head.

When he came back 20 minutes late, the studio room looked more like a home to him than ever it had looked before.

Ann Marie had begged an old soap box from the janitor and it was burning brightly in the fireplace.

The daffodils were in the vase where the withered roses had been, and there was a clean cloth on the little table in front of the fire.

A steak was broiling on the tiny electric stove, and bread was toasting on the toaster that stood on the little dinner table.

"Home, sweet home," said Neal, tossing his hat down on the big center table. Ann Marie, this is the life, and don't you forget it."

It was the life.

For three days Ann Marie did nothing but keep house for Neal, and never had she known that life could be so wonderful.

Every morning she put her own room to rights and then she hurried across the hall and knocked on Neal's door.

She got breakfast for him.

While she was cleaning up the table, washing the dishes and making his bed—it was a day-bed like her own—Neal read the morning papers and smoked many cigarets.

"I don't feel like working lately," he told her on Sunday morning. "I'm so happy having you here that I just want to moon around and look at you."

A little shadow ran across Ann Marie's face.

"I ought to be finding some work," she said unhappily. "In fact, I've just got to find something to do, that's all."

"Tuck up ends of your work and bring it over here tonight," Neal suggested, lazily, throwing his cigaret end into the grate. "You remember John Goodwin His folks have a publishing house—they bring out books, you know, of all kinds—and he might be able to give you some work, doing the illustrations for some book. Ever do pictures for children's books?"

Ann Marie shook her head.

"Of course not. I've never known any people who wrote books or printed books or had anything to do with books, except to sell them," she said. "But I've done loads of pictures of children for valentines and Christmas cards—oh, do you think he would have some work for me?"

She spoke quickly, almost harshly, as she always did when she was stirred or excited over anything.

"Well, we can soon find out," said Neal. "We'll telephone him and ask him to come for supper tonight. You'll have to run across the street and use the telepehone in the drug store. I had one, but they took it out. I owed the company some money."

"You phone him," pleaded Ann Marie. "I hate to. I hardly know him."

Neal shook his head without raising his eyes from his paper.

"You call him. He'll be sure to come them," he said shortly. "He's gone absolutely 'hay-wire' over you."

Ann Marie stared at him, wide-eyed.

"And yet you want me to telephone him?" she asked. "Aren't you afraid I might go 'hay-wire' over him, as you call it? Aren't you jealous of me at all, Neal?"

He shook his head once more.

"Nope," he said, grinning up at her in his boyish way, "not the least bit. I know you like me, Ann Marie."

Before and After

Scene: Many an American home.

Before

He: Of course, if you prefer a five-passenger, all right, but I think a seven is the thing. It costs quite a lot more, but what's the difference? I don't think I'll trade in the old car. Why not keep it? We can build a larger garage.

She (languidly): We really should have room for three cars in case of visitors.

He: Incidentally, dear, I am thinking of buying the Meevich place . . . 160 acres with a 15-room house and a garage as big as the average home. I taked with the agent about it today.

Etc., etc.

After

He (desperately): Where can we dig up $500?

She: I haven't the slightest idea.

He: I've got to get it somewhere. Couldn't we sell the player-piano?

She: We only just bought it.

He: I know, but I'm in a terrible position. What about that guy that wanted to buy the old car?

She: You mean the butcher?

He: Yes. Get him on the wire. He can have it for $300 cash. I'm going to phone the dealer and stop delivery on the new one.

She: The wire's busy. What did you ever get all mixed up in the stock market for, anyhow?

He (flying off the handle): Now don't pull that stuff. Who kept gloating over our paper profits all summer? Who got me to buy Affiliated Prune Fork at 87? Who urged me to hang on a little longer when I had $5,000 in National Pretzel Bending? Who . . .

She: Oh, stop hoo-booing me!

He: Didn't you get me to buy North American Buggy Whip on the tip you got at that bridge party?

She: Didn't you have any mind of your own? Are you a minor or something?

He: How about that Eastern Pie Plate stock? What did you say when I wanted to get out of it six months ago?

She: I didn't say a word. I always told you not to fool around the market.

He (fiercely): You stood right there by the radiator and told me Mrs. Minnix's husband had said it was good for $300 a share.

She: There you go playing the baby cat. You're a full grown man. You should've known what you were doing. We had no business in the stock market, anyhow. I always said so.

He: I suppose you never wanted we to buy a single stock, eh?

She: I certainly didn't. I always knew there'd be a crash.

He: Now, listen, woman. I gotta get $500 quick. How about those jewels?

She (evasively): What jewels?

He: The ones I bought last month for your birthday.

She (clearly alarmed): They're over at my mother's.

He: I'm in danger of being wiped out, I tell you. How about that $1,000 I put in the bank in your name? You'll have to let me have it.

She: I can't.

He: I tell you you must. Unless I get . . .

She (bursting into tears): Oh, there's no use lying to you. I haven't any jewels and I haven't the thousand dollars.

He (dazed): What did you do with them?

She (through her sobs): I got a good tip on an oil stock from Mrs. Pootle and I bought it with the idea of surprising you . . .

He (swooning): Gurgle-gurgle-glug-glug.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

In spite of the fact that it is out of fashion to grow old, some of the most poignantly beautiful of all lines are:

"Grow old along with me;
The best is yet to be—
The last of life,
For which the first was made."

The loneliness of one man brought this to our minds. He is not a Wichitan, though often in Wichita. He has passed the top of life's hill and he is lonely.

Never a word does he say in criticism of his wife. But one hears that she is in this city or at that seashore or in one or another sanitarium or rest cure. He has accumulated a livelihood and now he wants companionship.

Young people feel the first wild thrill of love and believe that never can they be so happy as in their early marriage.

But early marriage is all a time of adjustment. In a successful married life, each must give up so much. With all its happiness, there is so much of pain mixed with the ecstasy of love.

When the autumn of love comes, memories have made it a sacred and tender thing. Men and women can look into the years when they may have to part, and their heart strings grow into one another.

Real love is in its autumn, so beautiful thing. But there can be no loneliness more anguishing than the loneliness of one who has given his or her all, and then, when children are married and settled in homes of their own, the two who have suffered in their children's pains and rejoiced in their children's happiness, are not "growing old together."

It may be sentimental, but to us "Darby and Joan" is a lovely song, and we have wept over "Ride a'wee." To a normal healthy man or woman, with the world so full of pleasure adapted to all ages, there must be a sweet and tender loveliness in going a downward path, hand in hand with one who has shared sorrow and suffering and joy and laughter.

Books and music and a bright fireside with glowing lamps may not appeal to youth. But they do appeal to the heart that cries out for companionship.

In simplest form, here lay the tragedy of King Lear.

And the thing that makes it so relentlessly tragic is that only as people begin to near middle age, can they see the sadness of age without companionship.

Ideal Wife Must Have Interests In Addition to Home

Is the Ideal Mother Wrapped Up In Her Home?—Shall a Bachelor Of 40 Give Up Marriage to Please His Mother?—A Few Flings Before 40.

Dear Dorothy Dix—My sister and I have good husbands, nice homes and each have two children. I keep my home orderly, give my family excellent food and my children good care and my husband and I are happy. But I also have interests outside of my home. I belong to a couple of clubs and we have a host of friends whose companionship we enjoy.

My sister devotes her entire time to her family. She goes nowhere. Has no friends. And she claims that the ideal mother should have no interests outside of her home and that she needs no association besides her husband and children and that if they do not fill her life completely there is something wrong with her. Which of us is right?—MRS. E. J. C.

Answer—You are, as your sister will find out to her sorrow when her children grow up and leave her and when she will be a lucky woman if she has even her husband left to her in her empty house, for there is nothing that drives a man out of a home as quickly and surely as having a wife who has grown dull from staying in it too much.

Your sister thinks that in absorbing herself in her family she is binding her husband and her children to her with hoops of steel. In reality she is taking the surest way of alienating them from her, because she is not keeping step with them and she does not go with them in the world in which they live. The women who keep close to their husbands and children are not those who stay at home all the time and wash and scrub for them. They are those who trot along with them to ball games and who have read the last new novel and seen the newest movie and can dance the latest jazz step.

Your sister thinks that her children and husband will be filled with gratitude toward her and remember how she was always waiting for them when they came home and how hard she worked for them and how she picked up after them, but they won't remember that and show her the appreciation that she craves. They will remember that she never had on anything but bungalow aprons. They won't think of her as a self-abnegating angel. They will think of her as a drudge.

For, after all, husbands and children are human, and it is very human to take people at their own valuation and to look up to and respect the wife and mother who puts herself on a pedestal and to look down on the wife and mother who makes herself nothing but a doormat. Also it is human and natural to wipe your feet on a doormat. And husbands and children always do it after a woman has taught them to do so.

The woman who counts it unto herself for righteousness because she has narrowed her interests down to the four walls of her house and who boasts that she never goes anywhere and has given up all her old friends since she married makes a fatal mistake.

She makes a mistake because she grows dull and narrow and bores her husband and children to extinction. Every detail of their lives may be of absorbing interest to her, but they don't want to hear over and over again about how much she paid for the roast and how the baby nearly swallowed a button and how she cleaned out the kitchen cabinet.

There are dniner tables at which the food is gobbled down in dead silence and from which husband and children flee as quickly as they can because the wife and mother is one of those dear domestic women whose gamut of conversation runs from the vacuum cleaner to the cook stove and back again.

And there are other homes where there is laughter and gay talk and where mother keeps the conversational ball rolling because she is full of pep and she has been downtown and picked up a dozen funny little stories or she has attended a club and is full of gossip or she has done a dozen other things that keep her abreast of the times and make her the best of good company.

There may have been a time when husbands and children were satisfied with a wife and mother who was nothing but a wife and mother, but that time is past. A wife and mother has to be a pal and comrade and able to go all the gaits to satisfy the modern demand of a family.

Furthermore, the woman who stays put in her own house and has no social contacts does her husband and children a great injustice because she does not make for them the place in the sun they have a right to expect her to make. A popular wife is one of the best business assets a man can have. She makes clients and customers for him and sings his praises where they do him good. And a mother who has kept her friends and her place in society can open the right doors to her children when they are grown.

Furthermore, the woman is bound to be a burden on her own children when they marry unless she has kept up with her friends and has other interests than them. Half of the women who hang the millstones about their children's necks are those misguided women who have been so absorbed in their families that they have no other interest in life and have to go and live with their married sons and daughters, no matter how unwanted they are.

Believe me the wise, woman is the one who lives as full and broad a life as she can and who keeps many anchors to the windward.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a bachelor of 40 living with an invalid mother for whom I have an attendant, but I believe that love is the only one thing in life that really counts and I crave the companionship of a good woman and children. I have met the girl who I think cares for me, but I don't know what to do about asking her to marry me, for my mother will not her of it, although I would always faithfully care for her. I am amply able to provide for all of us. Do you think I should give up this girl for the sake of my mother?

—CHARLES.

In marrying you do your mother no harm. You can still give her every physical comfort, still provide her with the same nurse and you will deprive her of no affection, because the love a man gives his wife has nothing to do with the love he gives his mother.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Active People want and need sugar

The "Fuel of Preference" in the body

AN EMINENT food authority recently stated that any person who has a very active body is likely to be always on the edge of the sugar reserve in his body (glycogen). "That is why," he said, "the soldier and athlete wants and needs sugar. That is why the active child wants and needs sugar." He went on to explain that sugar is the fuel of preference in the body, that sugar can be more easily and quickly converted into energy than any other food. He emphasized the fact that sugar should form a part of the regular diet of every family and that any reducing diet, as well as any other diet, should contain sugar.

The best way for sugar to be eaten is as a flavorer of other foods. In that way, it serves the double purpose of furnishing energy to the body and also of adding appetizing delight to other healthful foods. Sugar added to healthful grain cereals makes them welcome and enjoyable to growing children. Think of how many health-giving fruits are objectionable to the taste without sugar. Scientists tell us that we need the daily roughage of salads as well as cooked fruits and vegetables. Any good cook knows that adding sugar makes all of these welcome and pleasant to the palate. In addition to being the best and cheapest fuel for the body, sugar is nature's perfect flavor. It makes nearly all other foods more enjoyable. For health and enjoyment, there is no substitute for sugar. The Sugar Institute. (Adv.)

Secret is the blend of this Southern coffee — but widely known its goodness!

MANY years ago, a young man of the Old South, caring more for coffee than for the wines of Ravenna, set himself the task of discovering a new coffee blend far more delicious than any then known. Years passed, and still he had not found the dreamed-of flavor. At last, after he had created thousands of blends, he discovered the rich and smooth coffee which today is known as Maxwell House and which is waiting for you now in a friendly blue tin.

Try it—without risk of disappointment—your grocer will return your money if you are not entirely enthusiastic with the rare and mellow flavor which has made Maxwell House the largest selling packaged coffee in the world.

NEW YORKERS VOTE TUESDAY

Mayoralty Contest Waxes Bitter

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (UP)—New York City has had many bizarre political campaigns, but probably it has nothing in its past history quite the parallel of the one which will reach its climax in the election on Tuesday.

Voters will have before them seven candidates for mayor and a full ticket of borough offices to pass upon. But, as ever, chief interest centers upon the mayoralty contest.

Jimmy Is Favorite

Mayor James J. Walker, a favorite son of Tammany, rules a 15 to 1 favorite in the betting to be returned to the city hall. But he is not winning by default, as such odds might seem to indicate.

First, he has against him Fiorello La Guardia, Italian, Harvard graduate, war veteran and congressman, who is going up and down the five boroughs of great New York ridiculing Walker harping upon the failure to solve the Rothstein murder mystery and almost every day tossing into the arena new charges of misgovernment.

"The Mammy Singer," La Guardia has called the mayor, having in mind the fact that in younger days Walker perpetrated upon the public the popular song "Will You Love Me in December As You Did in May."

He has told the voters of Walker's 30-odd suits of clothes and has dwelt so strongly upon Walker's love of "good, clean fun" that the mayor found it necessary at one time to deny that he was a frequenter of night clubs and such.

Thomas and Socialism

After La Guardia has fired his broadsides at the mayor, there has come rapidly to the forefront Norman Thomas, Socialist, often candidate for mayor and even the presidency, a man highly regarded by most thinking people in New York for his personal character. It has suddenly become almost fashionable to proclaim allegiance to Thomas—although carefully separating it from socialism.

Then there is the candidacy of Richard E. Enright, under the banner of the built to order "Square Deal Party." Enright was police commissioner of New York under the regime of Mayor John F. Hylan. He entered the mayoralty race early and is campaigning with all the vigor of his old chief, Hylan.

As still more minor candidates come Laurence W. Tracey who is the nominee of the Commonwealth Land party; William W. Weinstone, Communist, and Olive M. Johnson, the lone woman candidate for the mayoralty, who carries the banner of the Social Labor party.

Country Doctor Amazes City-Bred Medics With 'Tuning Fork Diagnosis'

Veteran West Virginia Physician, Once Mourned as Dead, Writes Queer Treatise on Tuberculosis

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (UP)—Music was invoked today to aid science in its fight against tuberculosis and the prestidigitator was not some owl-eyed young theorist of one of the great medical centers, but a country doctor so old that when his death was erroneously reported two years ago he was mourned formally and without question by a state medical association.

The paper on "Relation of Musical Sounds to Physical Diagnosis," to which Fleming Howell, M. C., of Buckhannon, W. Va., has devoted the past 15 years of his life, will reach his colleagues this week through the medium of the West Virginia Medical Journal.

Logic "Startling"

While its publication will be no surprise to old Doctor Howell, since he presented it through the usual channels and no doubt expected eventually to see it in print, its reception may give him a shock. The simplicity and logic of Doctor Howell's suggestion that a tuning fork be employed to determine the progress of diseases of the lungs and abdominal cavities is said by physicians already cognizant of his treatise to be "startling."

Not only tuberculosis, but suspected cases of pneumonia, can be spotted, it will be said, and their development or retrogression noted by the physician employing the tuning fork idea advanced—somewhat timidly, according to his associates—by the West Virginia country doctor, now in his 80th year.

The first 1,500 words of Doctor Howell's contribution to his profession are devoted to an explanatory essay on the origins and history of all music, for which Doctor Howell admitted he had never had any ear. But as he went about thumping his patients in the usual manner, he conceived an idea.

Cultivates Ear

"I secured a tuning fork with the object of cultivating my ear," said Doctor Howell, "and from persistently practicing and estimating the differences of pitch in the different sounds especially during my long professional trips into the country, I gradually grew more and more interested and proficient."

It appears that while Doctor Howell was sitting in his top buggy en route to a patient of dubious financial background suffering in some creek hollow, he grew into the habit of wrapping the reins around the whip-socket and practicing with his tuning fork.

In the autumn—undoubtedly—the shag bark hickory leaves would float down on Doctor Howell, and the top buggy would screak in the off front axle and the boy mare would take it easy and steady and Doctor Howell would commune with his tuning fork to the astonishment of the chipmunks. But he doesn't say so. He continues meticulously:

"It eventually dawned upon me that I could record these differences in pitch by means of the tuning fork I had been using and thus retain them to compare the condition of any one day with that of the next, or that of the next week, or next month."

"Control" Note Important

Doctor Howell's treatise explains carefully a method for obtaining the "control" note of a patient's healthy tissue and recording it for comparison later with the ascending or descending scale resulting from future percussions. When the patient's note ascended the musical scale from visit to visit, Doctor Howell found that he was getting worse, invariably, no matter what his non-musical symptoms might be.

"It is not necessary for me to go further into the details of the procedure I have described and explained, as it applies to all diseases and conditions involving consolidations or portions of the lungs, or effusions into the pleural or abdominal cavities," he concludes. "The experienced and even the less experienced diagnostician, when he has acquired the principles of the method, can readily apply them to the different conditions."

Doctor Howell, it was learned incidentally from officials of the West Virginia State Medical association, has never taken the trouble to correct the organization's report of his death two years ago. He was president of the association back in 1908, when he was comparatively spry.

Barrister's Divorce Papers Anger Couple; Gets Beat Up

DALLAS, Nov. 1. (AP)—A Dallas lawyer nursed his bruises tonight and meditated the hazards of his profession.

Police rescued him from a Bellicose couple today as the woman was beating the lawyer's head with her pointed slipper while the man held him. The lawyer had drawn a divorce petition for one of the couple, but in the meantime they made up and returned to "jump" him because of some of the allegations in his petition.

"Well! Anyway," he reflected, "I can send them a bill."

GALLANT REB DEFENDS FLAG

Sneed Won't March Under 'Yankee' Colors

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 1. (AP)—Declaring that Edwin J. Foster, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic had "completely blown himself out of water" by a proposal that the Confederate veterans march with the Union veterans without displaying the Confederate flag, Gen. R. A. Sneed, commander of the United Confederate Veterans, said here Thursday he would reject the invitation.

The invitation was contained in a letter from the Bostonian to Sneed.

"So far as I know," it said, "there can be but one condition which stands in the way of our coming together, and that is for you, as head of your organization, to pledge to us that the stars and bars, your Confederate flag, shall have no place in the parade . . . but that you will march under the stars and stripes."

The tall, white-haired confederate commander, who also is state treasurer, asserted he would take his time in replying, and would tell the G. A. R. chief that the South did not propose to be dictated to.

General Sneed sent a message to the national encampment of the G. A. R. at Portland, Maine, proposing a joint meeting with the union veterans. The proposal was rejected.

Besides making known his condition, Foster said in his letter:

"In regard to the action of the Grand Army of the Republic regarding a reunion of the blue and the gray, which has caused so much criticism from our southern friends, I believe such a reunion is possible.

"The boys in blue always have been ready to extend the hand of fellowship to our southern friends and never more than now.

"To the end that a happy result may be obtained, I will say I shall be glad to meet you in Washington, or Boston, and confer with you on the question of a joint parade."

Piano Program By Bomar Cramer Wins Critic's High Praise

By FRIEDA van EMDEN
(Written Especially for The Record News)

Bomar Cramer, who played at the Woman's Forum last night, under the auspices of the Musicians club, possesses the supreme requisite for a concert-pianist, namely such a facile manner of playing, that he keeps his audience in complete repose. His audience remains unaware of difficulties conquered by the artist.

It is a far cry from Beethoven to Debussy and it is astounding to watch Cramer's perfect transition of style. He conforms to the best tradition of each period in music and no matter, what period one prefers, Bomar Cramer seems its chosen interpreter. Listening to his limpid, transparent tone in Debussy's "Reflections in the Water," one forgets, that he but a brief moment before had given us the more definite melodies of a Beethoven with such precision.

Fresh Interpretation

He started his well-chosen program with the "Waldstein Sonata," by Beethoven and it is pleasant to note respect for Beethoven in the younger generation, which so easily scorns him in this day and time, and if the truth must be told, Beethoven can be made to sound stodgy. But Cramer brought it to us with such a fresh and youthful interpretation, that even a dyed in the wool Beethoven scorner, admitted after the concert, that this young man had really made him "like" Beethoven.

Throughout Bomar Cramer's playing one admired his clearness, his delicacy of touch, his nice balance, never over-peddling, never being rough, even in his most virile fortissimo.

His clearness is remarkable, his cadenzas free from any trace of muddiness.

Chopin's "Nocturne," with its breathless ending held the audience spellbound. In the "Valse" he displayed his perfect sense of rhythm, the "Prelude" showed his highly developed technic to full advantage.

Chopin at His Best

In the "Fantasie" he gave us Chopin at his best, a tragic, Slavic melody, whenever recurring, artistically underscored.

"The Muledriver's Complaint" was again stark tragedy and very impressive, stirring intense pity in the hearts of his listeners. "Fountains" was cleverly done and as a climax to his program, he crystallized for us the frivolous and vivid spirit of pre-war Vienna, the Vienna of waltzes and romance, the Vienna of Johann Strauss in his rendition of the Strauss "Nachtfalter" waltz in the difficult Tausig arrangement.

He chose his two encores from the Russian school and we wished we could hear him some day in an all Russian program. They were "Gopak" by Moussorgski and "The Lark," by Balakiref-Glinka.

Bomar Cramer is by far the best pianist, we have enjoyed here in a long time.

Oklahoma and Texas Governors To Attend Shrine Ceremonial

Two state executives, Gov. Dan Moody of Texas and Gov. W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma, will be guests of Wichita Falls on Nov. 21, on the occasion of the fall ceremonial of Maskat temple, it was announced Friday by Al Ellis, recorder of the temple.

Word of acceptance of the invitations was received Friday and plans were begun immediately for special entertainments for the governors during their stay. The two executives will be featured on the program for the ceremonial, Mr. Ellis said.

Church World's Greatest Fraternity, Says Finnell in Address Here

"The greatest fraternity in the world was established 50 days after the resurrection of Jesus Christ, when the disciples were gathered together in one place on the day of Pentecost, and through their perception of Christ's mission established the church of the living God," declared Dr. J. L. Finnell, evangelist now engaged in a revival campaign at the First Christian church, to a large audience Friday night.

"This great fraternity had its real beginning when Jesus asked Peter 'Whom sayest thou that I am?' and Peter replied 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.'" continued Dr. Finnell, "for faith is the foundation stone of religion, just as it is the rock upon which all our business institutions stand."

Following their being "chartered" by the Holy Spirit as a fraternity for the evangelization of mankind, the speaker said, the disciples and other early Christians naturally inquired what they should do, and Peter replied in the words of John the Baptist, "Repent, and be baptized." That process still is the only adequate and proper initiation ceremony for admission to the fraternity of Christianity, the evangelist stated.

"For 300 years after the day of Pentecost there was but one church," continued Dr. Finnell. "For 1300 years there was but one form of baptism. When Christians learn that the circumstances which prompt divisions are not worth their cost, the day will see us all using the same forms of worship again. When we do that, we shall have little difficulty in getting together in all things."

References to New Testament writings were given to portray the relationship between Christ and the church. Paul said, "Christ is the head of the church," and "Christ is the husband of the church," and "Christ is the Saviour of the church." Matthew called Christ the builder of the church.

"You may not think of the church as needing a Saviour, but it needs constantly to be saved from becoming efficiently institutionalized. It needs to be saved from becoming too respectable, from falling as it often does into a social clique, an exclusive Sunday club," declared the speaker.

Alvin Roper, brother of Mrs. Wayne J. Holmes, played two piano numbers Friday evening, and Mr. Shepherd sang, by request, "When They Ring the Golden Bells," with Mr. Roper at the piano. Services will be held Saturday night and throughout the coming week through Friday night.

DOG WITNESS IRRITATES COURT

CHICAGO, Nov. 1. (AP)—An ordinary witness would have gone to jail for the grave breach of court etiquette that Prince committed today. But because of his extreme youth, (Prince is just four months old) Judge Frederick Elliott condoned his sin and waived a contempt of court citation.

Prince, a police dog, was summoned into court as a witness in a dispute over his ownership.

The rival masters were stationed in opposite corners of the courtroom. The witness, somewhat bewildered by the proceedings and perturbed by the barrenness of the place as a potential hunting ground or bone-yard, was led forward. At a signal he was released.

From one corner came a shrill whistle. From the other "Hyah, Prince, hyah."

Prince sniffed judiciously, then bounded up to the bench and affably licked the court's hand.

Case continued.

Suspect Held In Kidnaping

Pampa Man Jailed After Mailman's Abduction

LAWTON, Okla., Nov. 1. (UP)—A man giving his name as Lee Roberts, Pampa, Texas, was held today by officers in Hobart in connection with the kidnaping Wednesday of C. E. Griffith, Comanche county rural mail carrier.

According to information obtained from Griffith today by Federal Postal Inspector J. C. Curly and county officers, whisky runners who held him and three other persons had overturned their liquor-laden truck near Mountain Park.

In detailing the story Griffith said he and Mr. and Mrs. Fonce Fisher and Fred Fisher were chained to a tree in northwestern Comanche county, west of Cold Springs.

Notes dropped by the party were picked up by an oil truck driver who notified Mountain Park residents Griffith said. They soon came out and released the four prisoners, according to the postman.

Officers today were still searching for the other two men, Griffith said were in the truck.

HARRY BISHOP, FORMER WICHITAN, IS HAMILTON WITNESS

THREATS MADE BY YOUTH TOLD

Former State Attorney Here Relates Conversation

conversation on the subject. "I never spoke an unkind word to him."

Cites Dr. Brooks' Career

Hamilton reminded the young man that Dr. S. P. Brooks once worked for $1.25 a day on a railroad, and used other means of trying to discourage a hasty marriage, but Tom Walton wouldn't listen to any of them, he said.

The strained relations between them became more so when the judge began to receive letters from his wife warning him of Walton's alleged threats.

"I wish you were here— I think he is very dangerous," she said in one of them that the judge read from the stand. In one letter accompanied by a note from Walton to Theresa she had intercepted, Mrs. Walton wrote: "What I don't like is his statement that he is going to pull the wool over your eyes, and that he might use a hammer if necessary."

Disappearance Urged

Tommy suggested in another letter that he and Theresa disappear until July 29 her 18th birthday, so they could get married on a proper marriage license.

"You were and always will be the most wonderful girl in the world," the judge read from the slain boy's love letter. "Theresa I love you. I'll be your slave for the rest of my life," it read in another passage.

The judge had been on the stand for an hour when court recessed, and had not gotten as far as the fatal shooting. That will draw a crowd that will overtax the courthouse tomorrow.

Spectators throughout the day had heard repeated testimony by defense witnesses that Tom Walton made death threats against the judge.

Theresa's college friends declared from the stand that the boy told them he would not let Hamilton or Theresa's mother stand in the way of his marriage to the girl.

Defense Case Built

Hamilton's attorneys were driving hard at the prosecution case in an effort to build up a self-defense plea. In testimony which climaxed their case, the eight attorneys who are defending the quiet, self-controlled Texas judge, brought out a claim that Tom had threatened even to have Mrs. Hamilton declared incapable of managing the family estate so that he might fall heir to it after disposal of the judge.

He was even quoted as bragging and professing to belong to "Scarface Al" Capone's gang, of having hijacked girls on the streets of Chicago, and of employing two gunmen to trail the judge and kill him if he made a false step.

Judge Learns Threats

The defense brought out through Mrs. Hamilton and her 21-year-old daughter, Helen, that those threats had come to their ears, and that they conveyed them to the judge, fearing they would be carried out.

"I told him," Mrs. Hamilton said, "that he was threatening his life and that he would shoot him like a rattlesnake."

Helen Hamilton had those fears, too. Christine Campbell, one of Theresa's sorority sisters who lived at the Gamma Phi Beta house in Austin, had tearfully told Helen that Tommy Walton was threatening to kill the judge and of raising a big scandal about her (Helen), and she told all that to her father a few weeks before the killing.

Three Girls Called

The defense used three girls from the Gamma Phi Beta house and the house mother, Grace Sanderson, all to tell what they had heard Walton say about the Hamilton family. Jeannette Carter was the first. It was she who said that Walton was drunk on the night he made threats against the judge to her.

Alice Pierson and Christine Campbell, and finally Helen Hamilton and Mrs. Hamilton took the stand during the long day, all indicating that they didn't like Tommy Walton but that they treated him respectfully out of deference to Theresa.

It was a story of domestic friction such as might come out of thousands of homes. Mrs. Hamilton admitted that she had discouraged Walton in seeing her daughter oftener than once a week, but that he did it anyhow.

The most violent words attributed to the slain youth were sworn to late today by Harry Bishop, Amarillo attorney, who has an office in the same building as Judge Hamilton's in Amarillo.

Tom Saw Attorney

Tommy went to his office about two weeks before the homicide, he said, to inquire about the possibility of prosecution for making a false affidavit to get a marriage license. He said that he intended to marry Judge Hamilton's daughter, not revealing that he had already married her, and that he had been to see the judge and that the judge was mad at him.

Tommy said that he was on his way to Judge Hamilton's office then to "rile the old —— up," and Bishop said he warned him to be careful—the judge was a large man and he might get hurt.

"I can take care of that," Bishop said Walton told him. "He said I'll put him out of the way or put him under,' or something like that."

Tommy was sneering as he got up and walked out of the door, Bishop said. As he closed it, he said: "I'm going to see that old —— right now," the witness testified.

"He was angry or unresponsible, worked up," Bishop continued. "I don't know how to describe it. Yes I consider the threats serious, and that Hamilton's life was in danger." He then recalled how he saw the judge the next evening and told him about it.

The Gamma Phi girls who testified that they heard his threatening remarks, most of which were to the effect that if Hamilton interferred with his romance with Theresa he would kill the judge or have him killed.

Two Gunmen Mentioned

"I have a way of doing it without getting my hands or feet dirtied," he was quoted as saying by Jeannette Carter. When she asked him how he told her he was in with Al Capone and had to gunmen trailing the judge at the minute.

Mrs. Hamilton believed that when it was told to her, she said, so she didn't wait for a letter she had written to the judge to get there but telephoned him over long distance instead and told him about it.

Sensation followed sensation throughout the day in that fashion. The state's story of deliberate murder, told through its witnesses on Wednesday, were challenged in the right-about-face maneuver that caused Tommy Walton to be pictured as a vicious, impulsive youth who said that he could get as high-tempered as the judge was reputed to be.

With testimony still being taken at the end of the day, and many hours of argument to hear besides the preparation and agreement on the court's charges, it seemed impossible for the case to be given to the jury by Saturday night. The 12 men must spend all day Sunday locked up.

Two character witnesses, Fort Worth men, W. A. Hanger, lawyer and a former state senator, and Hal Lattimore, district judge and a former pupil of Hamilton's at Baylor university, testified first. They said Hamilton's reputation was good.

Then Miss Janet Carter of Dallas, sorority sister of Helen and Theresa Hamilton, the defendant's daughters, told of spoken threats by Walton.

After preliminary questions, A. E. Simpson of Amarillo, defense lawyer, asked:

"Miss Janet, did Walton ever say anything to you in the way of threats? If he did, tell the jury what he said."

"He said that if any member of the Hamilton family tried to come between him and Theresa he had means to get them out of the way without getting his own hands and feet dirty," Miss Carter said. "He said that if I doubted that, I could write to a Chicago address and ask about the boy from Oklahoma. He said a rattlesnake was a gentleman because it rattles before it strikes. He said he wouldn't be a gentleman."

"Did he show any unusual feeling at the time?"

"Yes, he was angry. He was drunk."

Cross-Examination

On cross-examination, E. H. Grindstaff attempted to get the witness to say there was ill feeling between sorority members and "barbs," or non-fraternity men. Walton was not a fraternity man. Miss Carter declared she was engaged to a "barb" at that time.

Grindstaff asked whether Theresa and Walton were very friendly, and the witness said after the date of their marriage, Feb. 10, Theresa did not have dates with anyone else.

"What was the first thing Walton said to you?"

"I don't remember."

"What was the second?"

"I don't remember."

"At any time during the conversation did he say anything about being married to Theresa?"

"No, he didn't."

"Every time he made a threatening statement he said 'if' anyone interfered with him and Theresa?"

"Yes."

Miss Carter said she went to the office of W. A. Keeling, one of the character witnesses for Hamilton, and told him what she knew of the threats after Helen Hamilton had talked with her.

Grindstaff quizzed Miss Carter on her statement to the grand jury in Amarillo where she said she gave only the substance of Walton's statement.

"Why did you give the grand jury the substance of Walton's statement and testify here to his exact words?"

"Because I'm a defense witness."

Miss Pierson Testifies

Miss Carter was excused, and Alice Pierson of Austin, daughter of Wm. Pierson, associate justice of the Texas supreme court, with whom Theresa stayed, took the stand.

She said Walton took her to the hospital, where Theresa was recovering from an appendicitis operation.

"What, if anything, did he say about Theresa?" Simpson asked.

"He said he was going to have Theresa at all costs."

"How did he say he was going to do that?"

"He said he would 'kill old man Hamilton' and have Mrs. Hamilton proved mentally incapable of caring for the three girls, and he had friends in Amarillo who would help him."

The third daughter is Mary Gail, 9.

Miss Pierson declared she told Hamilton of those statements.

Grindstaff, with this witness, also attempted to show that sorority girls rarely had engagements with non-fraternity men. She said there was no feeling in her sorority against "Barbs."

On the way to the hospital Walton told her he was going to see Theresa "if he had to shoot his way in," Miss Pierson declared.

When she visited Theresa the girl suggested that Miss Piereson get Mrs. Hamilton and have Mrs. Hamilton take Walton to the hospital, the witness said. Miss Pierson declared she found Mrs. Hamilton, but Walton was not taken to the hospital.

Pampa Teacher on Stand

Christie Campbell of Pampa, a school teacher at Groom, said she knew Helen, Theresa and Tom Walton at the University of Texas, where she was a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, to which Theresa had been pledged.

While Theresa was in the hospital Miss Campbell said she went riding with Walton, and he said he was on Hamilton's trail and had had him shadowed for three days, and if he made a false move he would kill him.

"I asked Tommy if he meant that, and he said: 'Yes, I am serious.'"

As she stood on the steps of the sorority house, Walton said, the witness declared: "I haven't been able to get into the hospital, but things are going to change . I have two gunmen on Hamilton's trail and if he makes a false move I'll shoot him."

Questioned by Grindstaff, Miss Campbell said she had made a statement to W. A. Keeling in Austin. She had read the statement twice since she came to Weatherford, she declared. At the time Walton made the threats she knew Theresa and Walton were married, Miss Campbell added.

"After you learned of that marriage, did you ever reveal, that knowledge to a living soul after the killing?" Defense Counsel Simpson asked.

"No."

Judge Carter, at the request of Simpson, instructed the jury not to consider Miss Campbell's knowledge of the marriage.

Another Schoolmate Testifies

Another schoolmate of Walton's, Mary Helen Cockrum of Goldthwaite, also a Gamma Phi Beta, said Theresa had an operation performed last April 3 for appendicitis.

On April 4, she said, Walton had dinner at the Gamma Phi Beta house, and after dinner she went riding with Howard Dees, Walton and Christine Campbell. When they returned from the ride, Walton and Miss Campbell stopped on the front steps and talked.

While Miss Cockrum was testifying, the Weatherford college band began playing near the fair grounds. The beat of the bass drum carried into the courtroom until Judge Carter ordered all windows closed and told all spectators who wished, they might leave the courtroom to watch the parade. Nearly half the crowd left.

Miss Cockrum said she got out of the car and walked to the steps where she joined Walton and Miss Campbell.

"Walton said he had been to Judge Hamilton's office and had talked with him, but if Judge Hamilton was high tempered he could be just as hot-headed," the witness said.

Walton was preparing to go to Amarillo and asking someone at the sorority house to telephone him if Theresa became more ill. When he was told one of the sorority girls did not know whether he should be telephoned, Walton said, according to Miss Cockrum:

"You tell her she had better stay out of this or she'll take a long ride and not come back."

He then added: "And tell Helen to stay out, too, or I'll start some scandal on her."

"How was he going to start the scandal?"

"He said he would follow Helen and her date around some night and if nothing happened he would meet the date later and say: 'Well, nothing happened tonight for a change, did it?'"

Kansas Girl Witness

She was excused and Grace Sanderson of Mankato, Kan., a student at the university, took the stand.

She said she was in the Gamma Phi Beta house when Janet Carter came upstairs crying after she had talked with Walton.

"Please tell the jury the substance of what Janet Carter said Walton had told her about Judge Hamilton."

"She told me Walton had threatened Hamilton and said he could do what he threatened if he wanted to as he had been a member of Al (Scarface) Capone's Chicago gang and had hijacked girls there and thrown them out of cars."

Miss Sanderson said she told Helen Hamilton about the threat.

Helen Hamilton Called

Helen Hamilton, Hamilton's elder daughter, then was called to the stand. She said she had just passed her 21st birthday and is working on a master of arts degree.

Helen said Theresa first entered the university in the fall of 1928 and they stayed at the Pierson home.

"Grace Sanderson told me that Janet had told her that Tom Walton had said that he had known Al Capone in Chicago and that if we doubted it we could write to Chicago. He also said he could dispose of my father without getting his hands or feet dirty," Helen declared. She told her mother of that statement on April 17, Helen said.

Helen also testified to having been told of Walton's alleged threat to "have Judge Hamilton killed and Mrs. Hamilton declared mentally incompetent."

Helen testified to dates on which she told her mother of Walton's alleged threats and at the same time identified letters previously mentioned in the case. Some of the letters then were marked for identification and introduction later as evidence.

She said she was told Walton had informed some of his friends he had "two Chicago gunmen shagging" Hamilton and told her mother about it.

Afternoon Testimony

After noon recess Helen Hamilton returned to the stand.

"Miss Hamilton, tell the jury whether at any time prior to the killing of Tom Walton you learned Tom Walton had married your sister, Theresa?" Simpson asked before the cross-examination began.

"I did not."

"Did you have any intimation they were married?"

"Absolutely no."

"Prior to the killing did you convey to your father in any way the intimation they had been married?"

"I certainly did not."

Grindstaff conducted the cross-examination.

In answer to a question, Miss Hamilton said the term "barbarian," or "barb," for a non-fraternity member was not universal at the university.

"Who informed you of the threats?" Grindstaff asked.

"Grace Sanderson and Christine Campbell."

"And they are both members of your sorority?"

"Yes."

The witness said she wrote her father only one letter about the threats, on April 17, but that Hamilton did not reply directly to her.

"Did you know your mother was intercepting letters from Tom to Theresa and sending them to your father?"

"No, I did not."

As Grindstaff was attempting to get the witness to say some of the letters she mailed for her mother were "abnormal" in size, defense Counsel R. B. Hood interfered with the remark:

"If your honor please, I suggest the counsel be instructed to get on with his examination. He has been questioning her for 40 minutes and has not made his point."

Judge Carter said to Grindstaff: "Please get on with it, Mr. Grindstaff."

"After you heard that Walton was a member of a Chicago gang and known as the Oklahoma Kid, did you ever convey that information to your father?" Grindstaff asked.

"I did not."

Only Told Her Mother

One more question brought out that although Helen did not tell her father about Walton's claimed connection with Capone she did tell her mother and "leave to mother's judgment as to whether she should tell father."

Mrs. Hamilton then returned to the stand. She said Helen had told her of Walton's reputed statements about the Chicago gang and rattlesnake and she wrote that information to Hamilton.

Mrs. Hamilton declared she wrote other letters in which she told her husband to be careful, that Walton had said he had gunmen shadowing Hamilton.

"Mrs. Hamilton, at any time prior to the homicide on May 4 had you heard anything to let you know Walton was married to Theresa?" Simpson queried.

"No."

Intimations in Walton's letters to Theresa made her ask Theresa whether she was married to Walton, Mrs. Hamilton said.

"Did the questioning ever get you anything but a denial prior to the homicide?"

"They did not."

Mrs. Hamilton declared she sent some of Walton's letters to her husband on April 8, 19 and 25.

Defense examination concluded, C. B. Reeder of defense counsel ordered the letters to state attorneys for use in cross-examination and there was an argument as to whether the state could cross-examine without reading the letters. Judge Carter granted a 15-minute recess so the letters could be examined.

New Defense Lawyer

During the recess Rip C. Underwood, lawyer, son of Judge R. E. Underwood and a member of the firm of Underwood, Johnson Dooley and Simpson was added to the list of defense counsel. He was the thirteenth member of the defendant's counsel array.

After the recess Mrs. Hamilton testified that she went to Austin on Feb. 18 of this year and that she met Tom Walton a day or so later. She declared she tried to limit his visits to one a week but had difficulty in doing it. Throughout the cross-examination of Mrs. Hamilton, Attorney Grindstaff objected to much of the testimony and many bills of exception were taken by the defense.

After Mrs. Hamilton left the stand, Dr. O. R. Chambers was recalled to the stand but he was not cross examined and all witnesses testifying as to handwriting were excused.

H. D. Bishop on Stand

Harry D. Bishop, Amarillo lawyer, testified that he had lived in and about Amarillo for many years and first met Tom Walton while he was running for county attorney in 1928. He said he saw Walton once more in a casual meeting before he came to his office for advice some two weeks before the homicide and asked him some questions. Walton first asked if it was a violation of the law to make a false affidavit as to a girl's age in applying for a marriage license. He also asked Bishop if he was tried for such an offense what court he would be tried in and if the case was appealed if Judge Pierson would have anything to do with it.

Mr. Bishop also testified that Walton asked what could be done about annulling a marriage and what could be done about taking a 17-year-old girl away from her parents on the grounds of cruelty. Walton had talked to Hamilton and the judge was mad at him, Bishop said the youth told him, and Walton told him he wanted "to rile the old——"

Cautions Youth

Bishop said he reminded Walton that Hamilton was a large man and that he might get hurt. He declared the youth then replied that he would either put him out of the way or he would handle him or something like that in the nature of a threat. Walton said Hamilton had picked out a million dollar son-in-law for his daughter and he was going up there and see the old ——right now. The boy was unnatural and worked up. Bishop considered the statements serious and thought Hamilton's life was in danger.

Bishop Sees Hamilton

"I saw Hamilton the next evening after supper by appointment at the Roberts home," said Bishop. "Bill Evans was there and his windows were open. I told Hamilton substantially the same thing the boy told me and that I have testified to here now."

Bishop repeated his earlier testimony at the request of the state attorneys. He then stated that he told Hamilton the young man had threatened his life.

"I also told him he ought to keep those shades down and he pulled the shades down. I had thought it over that day and felt it would be terrible if Hamilton should be killed and I had not told him about it. He declared Hamilton was very much excited. He said he visited Hamilton the next day, telling him he was not certain as to the exact language the boy used in making the alleged threat.

He was cross examined in detail about the previous statements he had made in the case.

There was some confusion about the exact amount of time which Bishop said lapsed between the date that he told Judge Hamilton of Young Walton's visit and the day of the fatal shooting. Mr. Bishop said he believed the time about two weeks. The witness also corrected his testimony that Bill Evans was there with the explanation that Evans was in the sitting room but did not go into Hamilton's room.

He described Walton as being between 20 and 25 years of age, about five feet, eight inches tall, and weighing between 125 and 150 pounds.

Former Wichitan

Bishop also admittted on cross-examination that he was a former partner of Lloyd Fletcher, former district attorney of Potter county, member of the defense counsel. The partnership was dissolved some months ago but they still occupy the same office and are listed as Fletcher and Bishop in the Telephone directory, Mr. Bishop explained.

Mr. Bishop is a former assistant district attorney of Wichita Falls district and for about 10 years was an investigator for the department of justice. A portion of the time that he served in that capacity was also spent in Wichita Falls.

The defendant was called to the stand about 4:10 o'clock. He had taken his seat, when Judge Carter called a short recess before a question was asked. His testimony started about 4:15.

The letters, which Mrs. Hamilton testified yesterday that she had sent to Judge Hamilton at Amarillo, were introduced in evidence by the defense before the defendant started.

Mrs. Hamilton's Letter

Following is the letter written by Mrs. Hamilton to Judge Hamilton and mailed at Austin on April 8, 1929.

Dearest:

I was looking through Theresa's trunk this morning and found the enclosed from Tom Walton to her.

ACCUSED MAN LAST WITNESS

Recess Comes as Hamilton Unfolds Story

You wrote us of his visit to your office on March 30.

This letter seems to have been written the day before he went to see you.

I don't like the tone of the letter at all—any of it, but what I want to call your attention to specially is his statement that he was going into your office and try "to pull the wool over your eyes." You see he adds: "I may have to use a hammer, but I can do it."

Dear, you know I came here hoping to be able to help Theresa get back into line of duty with her school work, but I cannot see that I have helped. In fact, I have spent much of the time weeping over my failure.

It is heart-breaking to know that she persists in going with one who has absolutely no character.

I am not saying anything to Theresa now, nor shall I until she is entirely well of her appendicitis operation.

Lovingly,
Myrtle.

Tom Walton's Letter

Walton's letter to Theresa:

Dear Theresa:

I hope I don't have to pay another five cents for a letter like you last. I am sorry for your part. As for the will and all—I can't say. Money wasn't on my mind Feb. 10—so that's up to you. If you had rather make sure of your education—you had better abide by it. As for coming up here well—I dunno—I think he is making things impossible for you. Won't he listen to reason?

I think I'll pull the wool over his eyes. I may have to use a hammer but I can do it. I am going to try to beat it down there for a few days—if I can get off.

As for the business course—it is only for your protection. Now, let me ask this—if you don't care about going to school this year you can make it harder on them than they can on you. Tell 'em you are nervous and sick when you don't get your way—just jump on them before they can act. No matter how impossible your cause may be. Then you can relax and catch them off their guard again—you will soon wear down their resistance. I am going to talk with your dad tomorrow and find out what he says about a uneducated guy marrying one of his daughters. As far as I am concerned—I think I've got enuff of them—all. And if this is kept up and we are going to get in hot water anyway—I've got an idea—if you are willing—that Theresa and Tommie are going to disappear til July 29—we are not helpless in that way.

"They Have No Sympathy"

If they would lay off dictating what you have to do it might be different—but they are impossible—alway, too. "They will give you a music ed.—" Bunk! Why don't they let you pick your own course? They have no sympathy and they use yours. Well, I can't say until I know what you are willing to do—but I can be as hard headed as the best of them. We both are human—and I think if we are animal to—then we can do as we damned please with ourselves. Your dad will go so far and then his pride will ride him. As far as I am concerned—it does not end the idea that you can come home. You can come home and you are under 19 and you can make him let you stay at home unless your dad is unable to support you—and then you can go to the orphans home. And then insistence is another good weapon—I use it a lot.

I am going to poke a stick about "you making a miserable mess of yourself"—that's a damned lie. And you know it, too! You know better than that—just as I know better—about me being the cause of the trouble between dad and mother. I won't love anyone who has made a miserable mess of themselves and I refuse to stop loving you—so—you are and always will be the most wonderful girl in the world—forever and ever.

If you are going to show 'em, what "dad" is—please don't do anything rash; stay the sweet girl that you are. As for the "outbursts"—I wouldn't love you unless you would fly off the handle.

Trip Planned

I just talked to you and —please, sweetheart don't be so blue. It is too darned hard to know you are that way. I don't know of a thing to do without being mean—but I don't think that will remedy the hell of being apart—like we are.

I will say this in consolation of the present matters—we are not disagreeing with each other—and that is our main faith and future.

Howard and I may go down there about April 7 or 8—if our filling station job goes through—have to wait til we are sure of a job before he quits the one he has got.

Mother was raising cain about me wanting to go down there—but I can't help it a bit not one bit. Please brace up for a few days. I could not talk for everyone came around so rudely. As for the poison please don't you know we don't want to give up a struggle that is just beginning. It is true we are handicapped til July 29, but oh, Boy! We can be open and above board all the way. I have found a second wind—due to the fact I am going to be free of promises to your dad tomorrow. I think it best—if you would destroy my leters or put them where they won't be found. We have 120 days before we are free—won't that be great! Theresa—please know—I'm in love with you—and whatever you do is perfect with me. I promise I won't say another cross word to you—never. Except when you say "yes" too much to your folks.

If nothing else you might just try coming on the train to Amarillo and tell your dad you just wanted to see him—that way he couldn't get too mad and you would be in Amarillo—and if he sent you away—well you might try it again—you see he is responsible for all your actions till July 29, as long as he is Boss until then—let him accept the obligations that go with it. Then a few things like that then he will know what a sweet, good ill obedient daughter you have been and can be.

"My name is R. H. Hamilton," he announced in a clear firm voice in opening his testimony.

"I was born in Smith county, 53 years ago and lived there until 1879, when my father moved to Navarro county where I lived, with

Coronation Ends Cotton Carnival; Frederick to Repeat Fete in 1930

By R. H. WESSEL
Record News Correspondent

FREDERICK, Okla., Nov. 1.—With the coronation tonight of Miss Lois Patterson, Grandfield girl editor, as queen of Oklahoma's first Cotton Carnival, officials who have been in charge of the festivities since they began last Monday announced that its success had assured the repetition of the event in 1930.

Miss Patterson, announced as carnival queen at a program held Thursday night, was formally presented the crown tonight by Luther M. Wagnon, secretary of the chamber of commerce, who has been active in promoting the carnival. Miss Patterson won the honor over six other girls, entered by as many towns in this section. Miss Patterson is city editor of the Grandfield Enterprise.

The ceremonies Friday night opened with selections from the Frederick high school band. A Kansas City quartet gave a number of renditions. Dance specialties were given by Jane Anne Slaughter of Altus, Ruth Mathews of Altus, and Charles Collins of New York City, who is visiting his parents here. Miss Pansy Robertson gave a vocal solo.

Friday afternoon the queen and her attendants were guests at a luncheon given at the home of Mrs. J. B. Cunningham.

The Cotton Carnival opened last Monday. Huge crowds were in attendance each day of the event.

one year. As a boy of 16 I taught the country school at Aiken just north of Spanish Fort," Judge Hamilton said.

It was Judge Hamilton's first experience at school teaching, a profession which he followed for a number of years at Corsicana, Baylor university and later at Howard Payne college.

Judge Hamilton said his residence in Montague county was brief and he recalled only a few incidents of his life in that section of the country.

Ratliff's Hearing Still Undecided

EASTLAND, Texas, Nov. 1. (AP)—No decision was made today by Judge George L. Davenport in district court here, on making permanent a temporary writ enjoining Judge P. H. Singletary of Walker county from having any further connection with a sanity hearing for Marshall Ratliff, sentenced to death for participation in a Cisco bank robbery.

Judge Davenport returned late today from Fort Worth. It was said that the writ will probably be made permanent unless some action is filed here by Judge Singletary, which had not been filed at the time the courthouse offices were closed this afternoon.

The motion for the sanity hearing for Ratliff was filed in the Walker county court but Eastland county officials maintain the hearing should be held in this county. County Attorney Joe H. Jones is now in Huntsville in connection with the case.

Pen Sentence Given Alleged Texas Smuggler

HOUSTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—George Musey, described by government attorneys as "director" of a huge rum smuggling syndicate at Galveston and adjacent territory, was sentenced to 18 months in the Atlanta prison and fined $1,000 by Federal Judge William L. Grubb here today.

Edgar Cantrell, convicted with Musey, was given a 90-day term in the Galveston jail.

Hidalgo and Cameron County Bonds Approved

AUSTIN, Nov. 1. (INS)—The attorney general's department today approved the issuance of $3,500,000 water improvement bonds for Hidalgo and Cameron counties, located in improvement district No. 9.

The bonds, issued for construction purposes, bear six per cent interest and mature serially.

Attacker of Borger Nurse Is Sought

BORGER, Texas, Nov. 1. (AP)—County and city police tonight were combing Borger and vicinity for suspects following the slugging of Miss Pearl Throckmorton, a special nurse, here late tonight. From her incoherent statements at the hospital, it was believed her attacker was a negro.

WAURIKA BRIDE MAY RECOVER

Daughter of Tulia Couple Suffers From Bullet

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., Nov. 1.—At 9 p m. tonight physicians announced Mrs. H. V. Melton, 23, suffering from a bullet wound in the head, had successfully undergone a blood transfusion, and that she had a chance for recovery.

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., Nov. 1.—Physicians attending Mrs. H. V. Melton, 23-year-old bride of a year suffering from a bullet wound in the head, were awaiting her recovery of sufficient strength to withstand a blood transfusion early tonight. The patient has shown some improvement, doctors said.

Physicians said should the patient gain enough strength a transfusion will be made. Should this not come about, they said, Mrs. Melton's recovery is doubtful.

The young bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stark, of Tulia, Texas, was discovered critically wounded in her home here this morning by her sister-in-law, Miss Grace Melton. The latter said Mrs. Melton had complained of being faint, and had asked her, Miss Melton, to call a physician. Shortly after she left the room, Miss Melton said, she heard a shot.

Her husband, who had been previously married, and who is a railroad employe, arrived here late today. At the time of the shooting he was out of the city. Mrs. Melton has three sisters at Tulia in addition to her parents. They are Misses Geneva, Eva, and Roberta Stark.

Sloan Cannot Fathom Slump

Business Sound, Says Head Of General Motors

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (INS)—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, came back from a month in Europe today "unable to see any logical reason for the downward trend in values."

"Business is sound," he said. "I can't understand it."

He declined to make any statement on the announcement by the Ford Motor company of a $15 to $200 cut in prices.

He was asked whether there is any possibility of General Motors declaring an extra dividend as have other large corporations as a stimulant to public confidence in the market.

"The board of directors is to hold a meeting early this month," he said. "I don't know what action they will take.

"The quarterly earnings of General Motors are much ahead of the same period of last year," he continued.

"I think that our report at the close of the year's business will be very satisfactory to the stockholders. The earnings during 1929 will not, however, be as large as they were last year."

Mr. Sloan revealed that during the passage from Europe he had bought stocks by radio, as did other passengers on the vessel. Though there is no brokerage office on the Mauretania, frequent radio quotations were furnished by M. J. Meehan and company, a member of that firm, J. P. McKenna, being on board.

During his trip abroad Mr. Sloan visited the General Motors plants in England and Germany.

J. Frank Norfleet Sued by Actress

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (AP)—Suit for $4,000 damages, alleging breach of contract, was filed today against J. F. Norfleet famous detective, of Hale Center, Texas, by Jackie Dola, dancer.

The girl charged the sheriff contracted to star her in a motion picture depicting his roundup of the Jim Furey band of confidence men. She said she was to receive $125 a week for 32 weeks, but after two weeks "on location" activities on the picture were suspended and she wasn't paid a cent.

U. S. 'Still in Dark, Being Dry,' He Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (US)—With Nova Scotia's abandonment of prohibition, "only Finland, Prince Edward Island and the United States are left groping in the dark," said Henry H. Curran, president of the association against the prohibition amendment today.

In 1789 there were only 75 post offices in the United States. In 1929 there were more than 49,400. The postoffice revenue in 1789 was about $28,000. In 1929 it will exceed $709,000,000.

There are between 400,000 and 500,000 miles of cable lying on the sea floor—enough, if joined together, to circle the globe some 17 times.

One Moment..

Had you forgotten that winter is almost upon us . . . and had you forgotten to call us to overhaul or repair that dripping tap, weak flushing toilet or maybe a noisy radiator?

Plumbing defects like human ailments usually give warning of "something wrong" before trouble gets real serious, and should be acted upon at once to save more costly repairs.

Of course the cheapest and most practical way in the long run is to have old plumbing supplanted by the more modern and efficient installations.

Where the Wheat and Cotton Grow and the Oil Flows

Presented below are a representative number of progressive Wichita Falls industries, business and professional men. The energies of these firms and individuals are devoted to the upbuilding, not alone of their own businesses, but helping to make Wichita Falls a bigger and better city in which to live. They are interested in the growth and prosperity of the city as well as in their own fortunes.

Experiences of other cities have proved that no city can make continued progress by failing to encourage and develop the industries and talents of its own citizens. These Wichita Falls firms do not appeal for custom, however, on the ground that they are Wichita Falls firms, but on the common ground that here in Wichita Falls we have facilities equal to any in the state, which through our patronage, we may encourage and expand, thereby adding so much to the general prosperity and well-being of our town. The dollar spent at home travels through many hands; aids and enriches many men, and to the original purchaser, brings as much value as the dollar spent abroad while materially aiding in maintaining the general prosperity of the community.

The firms mentioned on this page are recommended for your favorable consideration when their service or merchandise is required by you. Consult this list frequently; become acquainted with the concerns, their lines, their location and telephone numbers. They merit and will appreciate your patronage. They are all boosters for a greater Wichita Falls.

KICK FOR POINT COSTS INDIANS GAME TO GAINESVILLE, 7 TO 6

VERNON LIONS MEET COYOTES HERE TODAY

The Sportlight

By GRANTLAND RICE

Today's Round-Up

Yale-Dartmouth—At New Haven

When Booth and Marsters start to running,
As Booth and Marsters surely will,
The whole effect should be quite stunning,
With raw nerves leaping to the thrill;
But while I know young Booth can scurry,
One of the best the game has seen,
The Blue will also have to worry
About a Thunderbolt in Green.
And while the battle tide is shifting,
As rushing backs come storming through,
Before the shades of night are drifting
The Green should wave about the Blue.

Harvard-Florida—At Cambridge

The Alligator is no pet
That one should bother, poke or fret;
With spike-like teeth he makes you quail,
And then he socks you with his tail.
And yet he's come a long, long way
From where the palms and pine trees sway,
Where orange blossoms light the hedge,
So I think Harvard has the edge.

Pennsylvania-Navy — At Philadelphia

The Navy ought to cop this bid,
But there will be a squawk
Unless they watch this Masters kid,
And watch him like a hawk.
I rather think Bill Ingram's men
Have too much for the Sons of Penn—
But maybe I am wrong again.

Notre Dame-Georgia Tech—At Atlanta.

The South Bend cyclone's on its way,
And so I would suggest
The Ramblin' Wreck from Georgia Tech
Is in for quite a test;
Though Thomason and Misell still
May flash and flare and shine.
Moon Mullins, Elder and fleet Brill
Are even harder guys to spill
Behind that Irish line.

Southern California-California — At Los Angeles

I rather think the Golden Bear
Will lose a patch of hide and hair,
For any team that has the drop
Upon that outfit coached by Pop.
Yes, old Pop Warner's Stanford bunch
Must have its share of speed and punch.
So U. S. C. looks good to me,
Which you can grab or let it be.

Princeton-Chicago—At Princeton

The Tiger at this season's feast
Has been no wild, man-eating beast;
The jungle, unlike days of yore,
Has yet to tremble at his roar;
And yet I think the Tiger's due
To turn at last and scramble through,
I think his claws will be too keen
For Dr. Stagg's Maroon machine.

Texas-Southern Methodist—At Dallas

Texas should win out by a spurt,
But I would not advise
That you put up your final shirt—
There might be a surprise.

Columbia-Cornell—At New York

Columbia has a good, stout chance
To stop the Big Red Team's advance
But when the battle's one—pell mell!—
The safer bet will be Cornell.

Pittsburgh-Ohio State—At Pittsburgh

Here we have two unbeaten teams,
But when the day grows late
There'll be one left—just one—and it
Won't be Ohio State.

Georgia-Tulane—At Columbus, Ga.

Tulane beat Georgia Tech, and yet
The best tip here's an even bet.

Vanderbilt-Alabama—At Nashville

The Crimson Tide is pretty nifty,
And may yet turn the trick,
But I believe it's fifty-fifty,
And you can take your pick.

N. Y. U.-Georgetown—At New York

The Violet of N. Y. U.
By just a purple shade is due.

In the West

Purdue has too much speed to show
Against Wisconsin's hardest blow,
And Dr. Supple's rugged crew
Has too much for Northwestern U.

Crowell Aerial Attack Beats Matador by 21-0

Special to The Record News

CROWELL, Texas, Nov. 1.—The Crowell high school eleven marched to three touchdowns over Matador and downed them 21 to 0 in one hard fought game here Friday afternoon.

Crowell's first touchdown came in the second quarter when Spears intercepted a forward pass on Matador's 25 yard line and raced across the goal line. When the half ended Crowell had the ball on Matador's five yard line. Early in the third quarter a pass from Todd to Oswalt for 40 yards placed the ball on the one yard line. Todd then plunged over for the second marker of the game. Bell made the extra point on a pass from Todd. The third and last touchdown of the game was shoved across when Spears got on the receiving end of a pass that netted 20 yards and took the ball to Matador's three yard line. Oswald bucked the ball over and then drop kicked for extra point.

Thomas completed a pass for 40 yards and put the ball on the 25 yard line as the game ended.

Crowell's aerial game was especially potent and they gained most of their ground with this weapon. Crowell completed six out of eight passes attempts and Matador completed two out of eight which they attempted.

Lamesa Tornado Sweeps Tahoka Eleven by 23-3

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Nov. 1.—In the hardest fought game of the season Lamesa Golden Tornadoes defeated the Tahoka Bulldogs here Friday afternoon by a score of 21 to 3. Tahoka taking her counter from a drop kick in the second quarter. The Torpadoes were able to put over three touchdowns but failed to add the extra points kicking. The other three points came from a field goal in the early first period.

The Bulldogs were able to hold the Tornadoes when in striking distance of the goal and showed the best defense. Lamesa showed stronger on offense. The next game for the locals is with Slaton at Slaton Nov. 11. The plains of the local chamber of commerce is to run a special train to Slaton for the holiday annual affray and it is expected that 500 people from here will go on the special train.

COX RACES 77 YARDS MARKER

Muddy Field Slows Down Aerial Game

By R. O. JONAS

Record News Special Correspondent

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Nov. 1.—By the bare margin of a kick for point after a touchdown, the Wichita Falls Junior college Indians were defeated here today by the Gainesville Junior college Tigers, 7 to 6. The game was played on a slippery field which placed each team at a disadvantage and which ruined a determined and threatening attack by the Indians. At offensive, the Wichita Falls team had a margin which would have given them the game but for the mud and the inability of the players to move swiftly over the slimy field.

Brilliant Dash

The most brilliant play of the game was made when Cox, Indian half, dashed through tackle on a cut back play and raced 77 yards for the Wichita Falls touchdown in the fourth period. Again and again, Cox made long gains and more than once Perkins' flashing punts placed the ball out of danger to the Indian goal. One of his punts sailed down the field for a total of 60 yards.

In each period the Indians opened with an attack which slowly, due to the hazards of the mud, but surely took the ball down the field. At defense the Indian line performed like a veteran wall, breaking up and holding the Gainesville offense time and again.

Indians Receive Kick Off

In the first quarter the Indians received the kick off in the muddy end of the field. They carried the ball to the 30 yard line and there the two elevens battled fiercely for the entire period, neither being able to advance. Near the end of the period, an Indian punt was blocked and recovered by Gainesville, but the Wichita Falls line held them for downs and Perkins punted safely out of the hole.

The Indians opened up with an apparently invincible attack in the second period and carried the ball to the Gainesville 10 yard line before halting. A series of sensational passes, Cox to Davis, kept the stands on their feet almost for the entire quarter. The half ended with the Indian line forcing the Tigers back bit by bit on the 10 yard line.

Tribe Threaten

Again in the third quarter, the Indians began with a strong attack which took the ball to the 19 yard line, only to have a pass intercepted by Phillips for Gainesville. The break ended a series of threatening plunges and passes on the part of the Indians and the two elevens battled out the remainder of the period with no large gains.

Indians Hold Tigers

In the closing quarter, Gainesville took the ball from midfield to the 20 yard line where Wichita Falls held on downs and took the ball. On the last down, the Tigers tried a long pass which sailed over the goal line without finding a receiver. Then Allred made a three yard gain on a line plunge for the Indians and on the next play Cox cut back through tackle and with splendid defense raced 77 yards and across the goal. His kick for point went low and the score stood 6 to 0 for Wichita Falls.

Gainesville took the ball on the kick off and made its first serious attack, plunging down the field almost to the line. A quick lateral pass to Phillips tied the score when he made a short run across the goal. On a fake play after the touchdown, Daniels made the point necessary to win the game by receiving a short pass. The game ended before either team had an opportunity to open another attack.

Davis played brilliantly in the backfield. Allred was perhaps the best line plunger for the Indians. The absence of Ramee and Waggoner in the line during the greater part of the game proved costly for the Wichita Falls eleven, their injuries preventing their use at many critical points.

Phillips, who will be regretfully remembered by many Wichita Falls fans as the man who defeated the Indians almost single-handed last year, was again the outstanding player in the Tiger lineup. His threats constantly kept the Indians on their toes, the memory of his brilliant plays last year when he was captain of his team rankling in their hearts. Daniel and Priddy were also brilliant players for the Tigers.

The Indians made 10 first downs to nine for the Tigers and outdistanced them on punting, averaging 31 yards on 12 punts to the Tiger average of 27 yards on 11 punts. On passing, the two teams were about evenly matched, each having tried 24 passes, the Indians gaining 96 yards by the aerial route and the Tigers 100 yards.

11 Men and 'Ole Man Jinx' Line Up Oppose Texas U. When S. M. U. Plays

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 1. (AP)—Southern Methodist university, using a 12-man lineup, will attempt to check the headlong career of one of Texas university's greatest gridiron units in tomorrow's featured Southwest conference battle here.

But for the presence of that extra warrior in the Mustangs' starting array the powerful Longhorns, unscored upon in five games, would be heavy favorites to capture their third conference decision. But this jinx, or what have you, that backs up the Methodist line and generally makes his presence felt against Texas elevens, renders the battle a toss-up.

Ten Years Since Texas Won

Not since the year 1919 has a Texas team been able to overcome the Red and Blue. Even last season, when the Longhorns won the crown, they were branded by the up-staters, 6 to 2. In 1925 a Texas eleven gained a tie with the Mustangs, but that has been their best effort. There have been Orange teams that their supporters will swear were more powerful than Methodist units of the same year, but none has been able to prove it on the field of battle.

24,000 Fans Will Attend

Twenty-four thousand fans are expected to wedge themselves in Ownby stadium tomorrow to see if the spell which the Ponies have held over the Steers still exists. There is little doubt that Coach Clyde Littlefield's mobile machine, on the face of its record, has a decided edge. It is regarded by many as Texas university's greatest team. But the critics are wary of predicting it will overrun Will Ray Morrison and his performing Ponies. Morrison has never lost a game to Texas, and he has indicated he has no intention of starting the practice at this late date.

Ponies Let Cat Out

Had the game been played a week ago, Texas would have been a pronounced favorite, regardless of the jinx. Up to the time of their 52 to 0 victory over Mississippi, the Mustangs had shown nothing to stamp them title contenders. But they let the cat out of the bag that day. Uncovered, among other things, was an attack that left "Ole Miss" spellbound. The Ponies used perhaps 10 plays in that game, and they are reported to have at least 60 to show the Longhorns tomorrow. It also was revealed that in Weldon "Speedy" Mason, sophomore flash, the Methodists have one of the most dangerous ball-carriers in the conference. He is the team's mainspring.

From an offensive standpoint, the game promises to be one of the season's best. In Dexter Shelley, driving halfback, Texas has an outstanding star to match Mason. There are five or six other Longhorn backs almost on a par, including Nona Rees, a brilliant quarterback. Rees' generalship is expected to be a big factor. He received much of the credit for the Steers' victories over Arkansas, Oklahoma university and Centenary.

Iowa Park Wins Contest Off Vernon Marines 13-12

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas Nov. 1.—The Hawks won a very hard fought battle on the local gridiron with the Vernon Marines, 13 to 12. Line plugs and forward passes were the principal means of combat. Eight first downs were made by each side. The game was in doubt until the final whistle. Golden made a sensational 80-yard run for a touchdown and W. Burney plowed the line for the second score for the Hawks and made the extra point. Williams was the outstanding player for Vernon, scoring both touchdowns, one on a run of 25 yards, an intercepted pass the other by plunging the line. The Hawks' next game is with Archer City Nov. 11 at Archer City.

In spite of the one-sided score, both teams appeared evenly matched on the offense, each side making five first downs. Two of the touchdowns for Chillicothe were scored by E. C. Creighton. Rule High School Crushes Sagerton Eleven by 36-0

SAGERTON, Texas, Nov. 1.—The Rule High school eleven crushed the Sagerton high team here today under a score of 36 to 0. Captain Stine was easily the outstanding player for the losers while Edwards, Eaton and Foote were stars for Rule. The game marked the third ever played by the Sagerton High school, which has had a team for the first time this year. Rule has had a team only for the past two seasons.

First it's the Tigers and now it's the Lions, king of all beast, that invade the haunts of the Coyote Pack. The Vernon Lions blow into town here early Saturday morning to renew in the afternoon at 3 o'clock, Spudder park, their ancient but honorable feud with the Wichita Falls football Coyotes.

Both elevens are set and ready for the fray which will send them flying at each other with all their fury and ferocity. Like superbly and skillfully trained boxers, the two teams are on edge for the contest. They have been groomed for a solid week with one thought uppermost in their minds: Beat Vernon and win that game, and keep the honors here, and beat Wichita Falls and take that game home in a sack.

Intense Rivalry Between Schools

So intense is the rivalry between the schools and keyed up are the teams that a great battle is bound to result. The records of the history of the memorial feud show that always there have been great football battles when the Coyotes and the Lions have met.

Vernon team will come here as slight favorites to win over the Wichita Falls team. Only one direct line of comparison or dope exists between the teams. Vernon beat Quanah 51 to 0, while Wichita Falls beat the same team only 37 to 0. Such a comparison between the two teams will show the Vernon eleven to be 14 points better than Wichita Falls. Comparative scores, or dope, as the boys are wont to call it, usually mean little and this angle of the game is not giving the Holtonites any worry.

Regulars Back on Team

One item in favor of the Coyotes this week is the fact that they have regained by eligibility rulings several of their regulars who have been out of the lineup for the last two weeks. Chick Holden, left tackle and punter extraordinary, will be ready to be back in the starting lineup against Vernon. This return of Holden will add untold strength to the Pack defense and punch to the offense. The team was worsted in the punting last Saturday and many fans believe that the kicking deficiency added materially to the cause of the Coyote defeat. In the backfield Harlan Ray and Raymond Allen are back to bolster the reserve strength.

The Vernon Lions have worked hard all week and for the most part behind closed gates. Undoubtedly Coach Weir has been slipping cards up his sleeve during the time and will try to pull a few "fast ones" on the local mentor and team. Beck Lawrence, sensational ball toter, has been kept out of the practice sessions most of the week for fear of injuring his tricky knee but it is almost a certainty that he will play in the game Saturday. Richards, one of the Lion's best bets as a receiver of passes at the wing position, will be in the starting lineup after recovering from an attack of influenza. Only Rodman of all the regulars is on the casualty list and will not be able to play.

Many Fans Coming

Practically the entire student body of the Vernon High school and many of the fans of the town will follow the team here to see the game. A giant rally and pep meeting was staged Friday at the Vernon courthouse in which students and citizens of the town took part.

Not to be outdone, the Vernonites will hold a big parade of their own in Wichita Falls Saturday morning.

Students to Parade

Friday night the Coyote followers put on a stupendous pep and cheering demonstration. The high school band played with the director, Leo Underwood, in charge of the music. The girls have got up a "take-off" stunt, as they call it, and were seen in a few entertaining capers and demonstrations. Doctor Grafton of the Presbyterian church made a short talk before the student body. At 11 o'clock in the morning the students will form a huge parade and drive through the streets of the city in their gaily bedecked cars, headed by the playing band and the cheer leaders.

Bowie High Rides to 13-0 Triumph Over Bellevue

Special to The Record News.

BOWIE, Texas, Nov. 1.—In spite of a determined and at times threatening defense, the Bellevue High school eleven suffered a 13 to 0 defeat here today at the hands of the Bowie high team. The game had little or no effect on the standings of the teams in the conference, both Bowie and Bellevue having been defeated previously.

Almost all of Bowie's plays were straight football, their gains having been confined to line plunges and end runs. Bellevue had a large advantage over them at passing and the aerial attack launched by Bowie proved futile, the Bellevue defense functioning perfectly at breaking up passes. The Bellevue eleven also proved its worth at straight defense, holding Bowie twice when the line had advanced into the shadow of the goal.

The first tally for Bowie came in the first period when Durham carried the pigskin over the line and McDonald made an end run for the extra point. Wesson made the other Bowie score in the third quarter. Huntley and Murphy also were outstanding for the victors. Clothlin at left tackle and Swim at quarter played a brilliant defensive game for the visitors.

Tulane's Mighty Green Wave Surges Over Georgia U. by 21-15

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 1 (AP)—Tulane's mighty Green Wave continued its surge toward the Southern conference championship here today by winning a hard fought battle from the University of Georgia 21 to 15. The Greenies twice came from behind to lead after Georgia's terrible sophomores had pushed out in front.

A crowd of 15,000 was kept on tiptoes as Tulane's flashy combination of Armstrong and Banker ripped off gains and Georgia's sophomore aces, Smith and Roberts, flashed across the field in the see-saw battle.

Georgia took the lead on a safety that Tulane offset with a touchdown and then Tulane added another touchdown, only to have Georgia come back with two touchdowns in the second period and lead 15 to 14 at the half.

An eight yard march on straight football, with two short passes, gave Tulane the winning touchdown in the third period.

Georgia threatened several times again, but was never able to muster the scoring punch.

Special to The Record News

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Nov. 1.—The Grandfield high school eleven and the Ryan Cowboys battled a solid hour here Friday afternoon to a scoreless tie. The game was of championship caliber as the southwest district title was at stake.

As seen from a statistical standpoint the Grandfield eleven outplayed the Ryan outfit but they did not have the punch to shove across a touchdown. Grandfield made 11 first downs while Ryan rolled up only five first downs.

Lawson, McLain and Kinzer were the shining lights for the Grandfield team and Gilchrist was outstanding for Ryan.

Seymour High Team Slams Knox City for 25-13 Win

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Nov. 1.—In a game in which, strangely, the second string players were outstanding the Seymour high eleven defeated the Knox City team here today by a score of 25 to 13. Coach Dobson of Seymour sent his second string men in for the last half and Knox City likewise sent in second string players toward the close of the game, both of their tallies coming after the first string men had been removed from several important positions.

Captain Morris made three of the Seymour touchdowns and Lee recovered a blocked punt for the other. A passing attack launched by Knox City in the closing period gave them their two scores, one having been made by Parks on a long and brilliant run and the other made just before the final whistle sounded. A stiff north wind aided on punting during the greater part of the game. Seymour made 23 first downs and two passes to two first downs and six passes for Knox City.

ELECTRA BEATS PLAINVIEW 18-0

A. Smith Runs 93 Yards For Marker

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 1.—All stores in Electra closed Friday afternoon which accounted for the large crowd that saw the Tigers defeat the Plainview Bulldogs by the score of 18-0. Electra completely outclassed the Plainview eleven in every department of the game, being only rivaled in passing. At several times during the affray the Tigers advanced the ball within a few yards of the goal line, but overconfidence would halt the advance.

The Bulldogs threatened at only one time during the game when in the first period they launched an aerial attack that halted on the seven-yard line when A. Smith intercepted a short pass and evaded a broken field to run 93 yards for a touchdown.

A Smith and H. White were the outstanding performers of both teams, netting the majority of Electra's yardage from scrimmage. Pierce was the only Plainview backfield man that could pierce the Electra defense, breaking through several times for neat gains and his accurate passing was another main factor of the Bulldogs. Electra scored their first touchdown on the initial kick off when Smith received the ball on the 16 yard line and ran the remaining yardage behind excellent interference. The second touchdown came in the same period when Smith intercepted a pass on the seven yard line and raced 93 yards for another counter; but the Tigers failed to kick goal after both touchdowns. The final counter came in the second quarter of the game when, after a series of line plays with Smtih and White carrying the bulk of the attack, the ball was advanced within four yards of the goal and Crass carried it over in the first try.

Offsides were numerous during the game, Electra drawing 75 yards in penalties and Plainview 35 yards. Electra netted 12 first downs while Plainview earned 5. The game ended with the Tiger squad in fine condition, there not being a man going out with injuries. Plainview's right halfback was taken from the game in the second quarter due to a misplaced shoulder.

Childress High Wins 13-0 Contest From Estelline

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Nov. 1.—Childress high school football team defeated the Estelline Cubs here Friday afternoon by the score of 13-0. The Bobcats were evenly matched but scored upon the visitors in the first few minutes of the game when Johnson ran for a touchdown. McCollum starred for the Estelline club, while Goff, Johnson and Williams were the outstanding players on the Childress club. The game is considered to have been one of the best played during the conference season, with both teams showing up to a good advantage. The Childress aggregation has lost only one game and are now in the tilt for district championship.

More than 40,000 acres of public lands in North Dakota, Utah, Nevada and Oregon have been made subject to entry as homesteads.

Chewing Gum

The original chewing gum industry is said to have begun on a capital of $55. Now, every month in the United States, more than $7,000,000 is spent for chewing gum alone. In 1927 we exported over $1,500,000 worth of gum to foreign countries. This is one of the unlooked for results of war, since the American doughboy spread the habit to other soldiers who took it home with them and thus, in a roundabout way caused the modern chewing gum manufacturer to have his labels printed in eighteen different languages.

The first chewing gum was spruce gum. After that came the paraffin wax, and then the chicle gum which is now chewed from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand.

Chicle is the sap drawn from the bark of the sapodilla tree. Mexico and Central America are the chief sources. The trees are tapped during the rainy season by slashing the bark in great crisscross patterns. After once being tapped, the tree does not yield again for five years. If the tapping is continued up into the branches, the tree will be destroyed.

When the milky juice runs down the crisscross channels, it is gathered into a canvas sack hung at the bottom. The bag is taken to camp where the milk juice is boiled down until the milkiness disappears. What is left is a brownish cream-colored, and is molded into the large brown blocks of crude chicle used commercially.

In this crude form it is loaded into ships and brought to American chewing gum factories where the blocks are ground up into meal. It is reduced to syrup, refined and sterilized and is then ready for sweetening and flavoring. Many flavors such as mint, double mint, peppermint, grape, licorice, etc., are added. It is also sometimes medicated as a laxative.

After being flavored the gum is rolled into large sheets and then cut into stick size and sold to little Johnny's mamma, who would rather buy him gum than allow him to eat too much candy.

The moderate use of chewing gum stimulates secretion of the saliva and also tends to cleanse the teeth. It is also used to relieve nervous tension and sometimes as an aid to giving up chewing tobacco. In small amounts it is an aid to stimulating the digestive juices, especially after a meal and is used by ball players and men who work in steel foundries over red-hot metals as a preventive of excessive thirst.

I sometimes allow fasting patients to chew a small amount, as this relieves their sense of hunger and makes their breaths more pleasant. About one package daily, taken in small bits, is sufficient for this purpose.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What Foods After Operation

Question—Mrs. N. J. writes: "I have recently undergone an operation for the removal of a stone in the bladder. Would be grateful if you would advise me as to a diet to guard against a recurrence of this trouble."

Answer—No special diet is needed except to cut down the quantity of food, use good combinations, and then exercise enough so the body will use up the food elements.

Ice Plant

Question—T. R. writes: "I am sending you a sample of ice plant which grows profusely in this section and is said to be valuable for greens, as containing iodine for goiter, etc. Would be pleased, if you are familiar with the weed, to know if it could be used commercially on the market, as it seems to be very palatable."

Answer—The sample of ice plant leaves which you mailed to me appear to be what is known botanically as mesembryanthemum crystallinum. This plant is sometimes used medicinally as a stimulant of the kidneys, the most active principal apparently being soda. I would be unable to determine the actual iodine content without rather expensive laboratory experiment, and I do not know of anyone who has previously made this experiment with the ice plant. The leaves are edible and can be used either raw as lettuce leaves or cooked as spinach greens.

Pus in Ear

Question—W. R. G. writes: "A severe sore throat developed into a mastoid in the left ear. A specialist lanced my ear drum, and now for four months that ear has been draining pus. I have taken two orange juice fasts, and although I feel fine, this drainage has not stopped.

Answer—Do not be discouraged if the pus from your ear does not stop draining immediately, as many times in such cases it is necessary to repeat the fast two or three times. As this seems necessary in your case I would suggest that you take another fast of ten days, then be careful to adhere to the diet as outlined in the article I am sending you. If you are persistent in your efforts, I feel sure you will have satisfactory results. Local ultra violet light treatments applied to the ear will often produce immediate and startlingly good results because of the sterilizing effect of the light rays.

Chooses Prison Rather Than Go Back to Wife

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1. (AP)—Tony Noto, 27-year-old waiter and paroled bigamist, today chose to go to prison for two years rather than return to his first wife.

"I'd rather go to prison than back to my first wife," Noto said, and forthwith Circuit Judge Taylor revoked his parole on a two-year sentence for bigamy. He had been paroled on condition that he return to wife No. 1, Mrs. Elizabeth Wingron Noto, and stay away from wife No. 2, Mrs. Sybilla Noto. However, he returned to wife No. 2 and wife No. 1 caused his arrest. She again offered to take him back, but he chose prison.

Dissolution Of Frederick Ice Company Asked

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Nov. 1.—Dissolution of the Testerman Brothers Bottling company and sale of the bottling and ice plant owned by the company is asked in a suit filed in district court by J. E. Testerman and others, naming Flynn Testerman as defendant in the case.

According to the petition, seven Testerman brothers and Rebecca Testerman formed a company in July, 1925, for bottling beverages and manufacturing ice in the city of Tipton. Each brother put $4,000 into the company and Rebecca Testerman put $8,000 into the business, the petition says.

Flynn Testerman was named manager of the company at a stipulated salary of $125 per month and was furnished a house, for which he was to pay rent, the petition continues. The plaintiffs allege that since that time he has transferred the bank account of the company into his own personal account and has been using money belonging to the company for his own personal use. He is also alleged to have ordered his brothers, partners in the business, to stay away from the bottling and ice plant.

The plaintiffs are seeking judgment against him for the sum he is alleged to have appropriated from the business for his own affairs, with interest, and for house rent alleged to be due.

The sale value of the property is alleged to be $49,500. The plaintiffs seek to have the plant appraised, sold and the money distributed according to their holdings.

E. B. Reeser Pleased At New Petroleum Outlook

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (AP)—E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum institute, said today that "with California flush fields cutting down their production we now have for the first time all flush producing oil fields of the United States prorating their yields to the requirement of the market." Mr. Reeser explained that it would take California operators several days to make necessary mechanical and other changes to bring actual yields to the required amounts of around 200,000 barrels a day, which contrasts with the maximum yield of 650,000 barrels.

DAIRIES HERE GRADE HIGH

Wichita Area Ranks With State Leaders

An increase of between 25 and 30 per cent in general sanitation rating has been accomplished during the past year by the 160 dairies in operation in and near Wichita Falls, according to Friday's announcement of the results of inspections recently completed here by Milton M. Miller, milk specialist of the U. S. public health service.

Wichita Falls was grouped with Amarillo and Fort Worth as the trio of cities representing the greatest percentage of total milk production being pasteurized.

In the inspection made here by Mr. Miller, Wichita Falls was given a rating of 85 per cent. According to city officials, practically all of the cities shown in the report as having higher rating than this have only a small number of dairies, and have from two to six times as many inspectors as the number used here.

Inspection of dairies is performed regularly by Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief sanitary inspector for the city. Scoring its done on condition of floors, walls and ceilings of barns, maximum cleanliness being required. These surfaces also must be painted. Milkrooms, milking utensils and all equipment which comes in contact with the product must be clean. Blood tests and health certificates are required of persons handling milk for commercial purposes, and clothing must be kept clean. Udders of milk cows must be washed with chlorine solution before milking.

The cooperation now being given by milk producers in this community with the efforts to make "Grade A" conditions prevalent will bring the sanitary test percentage up to 95 per cent perfect within the coming year, Doctor Farrell declared.

As a result of the unusual increase in Grade A production in the Wichita Falls area during the past weeks, J. C. Anderson, state health officer, has written to George D. Fairtrace, city manager here, asking for a report on methods, prices, etc., for the benefit of the Guadalupe County Dairymen's association, which holds its annual convention on Nov. 4. Attention of members of that association had been called to the rapid development in the Wichita Falls community, the letter stated, and Mr. Anderson was asked to obtain the report from this city. It will be furnished by Doctor Farrell.

Wichita county cotton ginnings moved into practically a tie with the total production for 1928, 305 bales ginned during the day raising the harvest to 15,211 bales. Burkburnett regained the lead in daily results, turning out 92 bales, with Electra reporting 76 for the day. According to estimates made by ginners, the crop around Burkburnett and that in the Kemp City district are about 75 per cent in.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (AP)—Cotton was quiet today and prices fluctuated within a range of 8 or 10 points. Early advances on unfavorable features in the weather news were followed by reactions with January selling off from 18.09 to 18.00 and closing at 18.02. The general market closed steady not unchanged to 2 points lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 2 points. A little buying on relatively steady Liverpool cables and unfavorable weather reports, appeared to be supplied by some southern selling and local realizing at the start. The offerings were light, however, and the market soon steadied up on buying accompanied by reports that there were trade buying orders in the market slightly below prevailing prices.

December contracts sold up to 17.98 and March to 18.37, making net gains of about 5 to 7 points, but the demand tapered off at these figures and the market was very quiet later in the day with prices sagging under a little realizing and southern selling.

Hedging was very little in evidence except for some selling at the opening and again at the close when it became somewhat more active and seemed largely responsible for the decline to 17.99 for October and 18.30 for March. Last prices were a point or two up from the lowest on the winter and early spring months.

With New York securities closed and with holidays in New Orleans and Havre, tracing locally was restricted and traders seemed to be waiting for further developments with some uncertainty expressed as to the showing of approaching ginning and crop figures.

Up to the close of business tonight none of the private "so-called" end-month reports had been issued but it is expected that some of them will soon begin to appear. The government report on crop indications and ginnings is scheduled for publication on Nov. 8. Private cables said that liquidation and hedge selling had been absorbed by covering and continental buying in the Liverpool market.

Port receipts today, 74,000 bales. U. S. port stocks, 2,319,539 bales. Exports, 86,554, making 2,177,362 so far this season.

PLANTING TIME IS HERE
We, as nurserymen, have kept pace with the advancing years. The old idea that Nov. 15 is the exact date on which to begin fall planting is as antiquated as some of the old methods and prophecies in the medical profession and other lines of business. Our experiments have been masterful teachers. Some of the largest and most successful nurseries of the South are advocating the summer planting, and especially do we recommend the early fall planting. Do not let the fellow who is behind the time influence you. What is being done in other localities can be done successfully here. John H. Kerr Nursery company, O. L. 'Land of Soviets' Ends Journey of 12,500 Miles

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Nov. 1. (AP)—Completing a hazardous journey of 12,500 miles, the globe trotting Russian plane, Land of the Soviets, landed here at 4:13 p. m. today.

When the airmen landed 3,000 persons had gathered at the field to welcome them at the end of their flight, started at Moscow on Aug. 23. A detail of 25 motorcycle policemen and 50 patrolmen were on hand to preserve order.

COTTON RATES CASE ARGUED

Texas Compresses Fight Federal Body

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—The right of waterfront compresses and warehouses at Houston and Galveston to challenge orders of the Interstate Commerce commission in the fixing of cotton rates from fields to ports was raised today during the conclusion of an argument of a case in the supreme court.

As rates and commission orders, which are basis of the complaint, are now in effect, with railroads acquiescing, members of the court suggested there was doubt whether the companies had a right to appeal. Briefs on that point will be submitted by counsel for companies and by the government within the next two weeks.

J. Stanley Payne, counsel for the commission, continued his argument begun yesterday, insisting that the order of the commission putting into effect the present 81c rate on both export and local cotton was aimed to remove discrimination found to exist in the old rates.

He asserted that under the old rates it often happened that cotton on railroad cars at shipside on 83½c export rate had to compete with cotton beside it which had been shipped in on an 80c local rate. The commission took the position, he explains, that this was discriminatory against cotton shipped on export rate and that its order making flat the 81c rate on all cotton was justified.

He insisted the commission was within its right in making certain allowances for drayage in getting the cotton from uptown compresses and warehouses to shipside.

A. L. Reed, counsel for those supporting the order, reviewed testimony given before the commission to sustain his contention that it was sufficient to sustain order.

CANON PRISON BREAK NIPPED

Plot to Tunnel Out Of Walls Bared

CANON CITY, Colo., Nov. 1. (AP)—A plot on the part of three convicts to tunnel their way out of the state penitentiary here, was nipped yesterday after they had already tunneled seven feet under the wall of cell house No. 1.

The prisoners, Frank Lester and Russel Sterling, and Ernest Laverne, Denver, had taken advantage of the extra supply of picks and shovels in the penitentiary for the purpose of reparing damage caused during the recent riot. It would have been necessary for them to tunnel from 20 to 30 feet further to escape.

Guards on a tour of the prison discovered the three men at work.

Railroad Extension In Louisiana Granted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—The Morgan's Louisiana and Texas Railroad and Steamship company and the Texas and New Orleans railroad were authorized today by the Interstate Commerce commission to construct and operate an extension of their branch line in Terrebonne parish, Louisiana. A request by the board for permission to retain excess earnings was denied.

HAMILTON OUTLINES WEST TEXAS C-C PROGRAM IN ADDRESS

LAWTON ROAD BOOSTERS HERE

Junior C.-C. Has Crowded Program at Meet

Importance of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in the development of West Texas was stressed by W. B. Hamilton, newly elected president of the organization, in a speech before the weekly meeting of the Junior chamber of commerce at the Kemp hotel Friday noon, at which the speaker was guest of honor.

"The first great regional chamber of commerce to be organized in the country, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has contributed materially to the growth of our state already," Mr. Hamilton said. "Conspicuous among its past accomplishments is the establishment of the West Texas Technological institute at Lubbock, and the passage of laws during the past year validating titles to land in so-called navigable river beds.

"One of the major purposes of the organization during the coming months will be to tie up all local chambers of commerce with the major chamber, and to organize the membership of more than 8,000 persons that we can obtain their opinion promptly on any issue which may arise," the speaker said. "For this purpose we hope to perfect a system of referendum."

State Bonds Urged

A second objective, Mr. Hamilton said, will be to cement together a great regional "West Texas feeling" with which to foster more unanimous support for projects which the prosperous development of this area demands.

Committees from East Texas, South Texas and West Texas, working jointly under Mr. Hamilton's chairmanship, it was said, have adopted a statewide bond issue project for highway construction. The importance of more intensive road building as a unifying influence and a factor in industrial development was stressed by the speaker.

"This matter of statewide bonds for highway construction is not a political question," urged Mr. Hamilton. 'So far as we are concerned, it never will be a political question. It is purely economic. In this, as in other matters, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will work hand in hand with those of East and South Texas."

Restraining control on the development of the Yates oil field in Pecos county was cited by Mr. Hamilton as one of the great services resulting from West Texas Chamber of Commerce activities in the past two years. Without conservation, a large part of the oil in that area would have been dissipated, the speaker said, while under the plan which is being followed, he predicted that more than 90 per cent of the total deposit will be realized.

"A man performs a real service to his community when he does well whatever job has been assigned him to do," the speaker said. "For that reason, let me remind you young men that each of you is an example to some youngster in this community. You have an opportunity to do things worth while in their present effect, and immensely more worth while because they furnish guidance and inspiration to the boys who are watching you."

Lawton Delegation

Mr. Hamilton was introduced by Sam Spence, district attorney, who said: "The directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce selected Mr. Hamilton as their president not merely because he is the man they needed, but because they were confident that the Wichita Falls district would stand wholeheartedly behind him in any undertaking he might launch. Remember our greatest trade territory is to the west of us, and that no city ever grew except by virtue of its neighbors. Of itself, any city would disappear."

Harry Stroud, manager of the Senior chamber of commerce at Lawton and secretary of the Junior organization there; Owen Black of Lawton, state representative; Rex Smith, chamber of commerce secretary, and E. J. Williams of Burkburnett, were present at the luncheon in the interest of better highways between Lawton and Eastland, Texas.

Mr. Stroud explained the plans now under way to provide hard-surface roads from Lawton to Eastland by way of Wichita Falls as a connection with state highway No. 1 (Fort Worth to El Paso) at Eastland. Diversion of north and south traffic over an Eastland-Wichita Falls route is the principal objective sought, Mr. Stroud said.

"Bonds already have been voted in our county (Comanche) to pave from Lawton to the Cotton county line," said Mr. Stroud, "and we are petitioning the state highway commission now to pave two miles north of the Burkburnett bridge. Completion of a modern highway between Lawton and Wichita Falls will mark the breaking down, and complete the elimination of a traditional separation between Texans and Oklahomans."

Mr. Black Mr. Smith and Mr. Williams spoke very briefly, commending the plan outlined by Mr. Stroud and pledging support of their communities to the project.

Harry Hines, director-advisor of the Junior chamber of commerce, and chairman of the finance committee of the recently formed deep oil drilling company, reported briefly on the progress of that movement.

Deep Drilling Wins Favor

"In addition to the $300,000 worth of stock placed with leaders of these communities, in a meeting held Wednesday morning, other large blocks have been sold since then. Already this morning the campaign among a small number of local citizens has netted two sales of $25,000 each, and one of $5,000. In a few days we are going to ask you men to help us put over the second $500,000 of capitalization in a short campaign," said Mr. Hines.

Announcement of "Buy-at-Home" week, to be conducted on Nov. 18-25, was made by Jerry Vinson. R. L. Mercer and Dan Cutworth were introduced by Walter Nelson Jr., president, as new members. Visitors present included Walter Ellis, H. C. Voelcker, O. K. Barnes, E. P. Cook and numerous members of the Senior chamber of commerce.

A. D. Lightsey and Bill McKemie will have charge of organizing a Wichita Falls delegation to the golden jubilee celebration at Archer City on Nov. 11 and 12, it was announced by Mr. Nelson.

Luncheon music was furnished by a trio of piano, violin and xylophone from the Frank Bird Bluebird orchestra of station KGKO.

HEFLIN WANTS PROBE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (INS)—The federal trade commission would be directed to investigate to determine whether cottonseed mills are obtaining control of gins to destroy competitive buying of cottonseed, under a resolution introduced today by Senator Heflin, Democrat, of Alabama.

Halloween Pranksters Take Valuable Sign From Art School

At least one Halloween prank proved costly to a property owner in Wichita Falls, according to reports at police headquarters Friday. A large gold-lettered sign, valued at about $50, was removed from its place at 2168 Avenue H some time Thursday night during the activities of Halloween vandals. The sign belonged to the Tucker School of Fine Arts and bore lettering signifying that music, dancing, piano and other subjects were taught at the school. Police had found no trace of the sign late Friday night and Chief of Police Frank Burns has asked that the department be notified of its whereabouts.

Small Fire Losses Here in October

October proved to be an unusually light month for the Wichita Falls fire department, only 35 runs having been made, according to the monthly report issued Friday by Clyde Gold, secretary of the department. The total fire loss during the month was $23,700, the report indicated.

The total value of the property involved in the fires was approximately $100,000, with about $85,000 insurance coverage, according to the report. Probably the largest fire during the month resulted in a loss of $10,000 when the Stucco hotel at 409 Lee street was gutted by flames.

CHEST TOTAL NEARS $55,000

Negro Workers Complete Quota for First Time

With the total slowly climbing toward the $55,000 mark, the community chest campaign was entering on its last rally Friday, officials said. A number of first-of-the-month checks will come in throughout the next four or five days and will help boost the total, it was said.

Jubilance over having raised their entire quota was being expressed by the negro community chest workers Friday. At no other time in the history of the chest have the negroes been able to raise their full quota in cash before the close of the drive.

"The success of the drive was due largely to the splendid organization, teamwork and fine spirit of the workers themselves and the healthy sentiment that had been created among the folk preparatory to launching the drive," said one of the leaders. "The city was divided into small units, each with a definite quota assigned, and a reliable worker placed in charge with instructions to report to the general committee at intervals until his goal was attained." The drive among the negroes was sponsored by the Negro Community club.

Second Shipment Of Street Signs Received

A second shipment of the new street signs for Wichita Falls streets was received Friday, almost completing the total of about 5,200 signs ordered by the city, it was announced by W. B. Ward, city purchasing agent.

Assembling of the signs will begin Monday and their installation at street intersections will begin immediately upon shipment of the pipe for the sign posts, which is expected to arrive before the end of the week, Mr. Ward said. The signs will be mounted crosswise at an angle corresponding with the angle of the streets at the crossing. They will indicate the block number as well as the name of the street.

Shriners Train for Big Minstrel

Hodgins Works Over Gags for Fans

Members of Maskat temple are clearing up their windpipes and limbering up ankles nightly under the direction of George Hodgins, Dr. L. D. Parnell, and Dr. R. H. Fletcher in preparation for the annual fall Shrine minstrel to be given at the Memorial auditorium on Nov. 6 and 7, according to those in charge.

General direction of plans for the show is in the hands of J. T. Yeargin, while Mr. Hodgins is assigned the job of putting the Al White touch to the minstrel proper. Doctor Parnell has charge of the musical features, and Doctor Fletcher is engaged largely in preparing other elements planned for the evening's entertainment. With Kendall Paulk in charge of properties, and Ray Wilhite handling the sale of tickets, the organization is complete.

Ed Peterson, erstwhile oil operator and business man, will make his bow as interlocutor in the coming performance, supported by a circle of 60 persons and an imposing array of endmen.

A variety program of vaudeville numbers and short playlets will comprise the first half of the bill being prepared by the Shriners, it was announced.

STATE GIVES PATROL TESTS

17 From Wichita Section Take Examinations

Seventeen candidates for service in the newly authorized state highway patrol, three of them members of the Wichita Falls police department now, took state civil service examinations here Friday under the direction of D. M. Puckett, division engineer, and S. O. Hamm, state highway officer. Two are expected to be chosen for the Wichita Falls district. They will be authorized to patrol state highways, not in the sense of speed cops but as a part of a detective and patrol system to work with the other law enforcement organizations within the state.
