CAPTIVE AIRCRAFTS UNDER GUERRILLA GUARD IN JORDANIAN DESERT

British Plane Skyjacked

By The Associated Press

A British jetliner with 76 persons aboard was hijacked in the Middle East today. Palestinian guerrillas threatened to blow up the aircraft when it landed at Beirut airport unless it was provided with fuel to fly on to another destination.

The plane later left Beirut amid speculation it was headed for the Jordanian desert airstrip where two other captive planes were under guerrilla guard.

This was the fifth hijacking attack this week by Palestine guerrillas. The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine assumed responsibility for today's incident, as it had for the others.

76 ABOARD

British Overseas Airways Corp. VC10 airliner was hijacked and ordered to fly to Beirut shortly after it took off from Bahrein in the Persian Gulf. The airline said 66 passengers and 10 crew members were aboard.

Representatives of the International Red Cross were negotiating for the freeing of two other Western airliners and 178 hostages held by guerrillas on a desert airstrip in Jordan.

BOAC officials said Arab guerrillas captured the control tower of Beirut airport and instructed the British jet "to land, refuel and fly on to a further destination."

MORE PRESSURE

Later a fuel truck drove up to the plane, which had been on a Bombay-London flight.

It was believed in Beirut that the Popular Front grabbed the British plane to put pressure on the British government for the release of Leila Khaled, the 24-year-old guerrilla held in London since she and a male companion failed in their attempt to take over an Israeli airliner Sunday. The man was killed by Israeli security agents aboard the plane.

Before the BOAC hijacking, the British government had appeared to be preparing to release Miss Khaled, joining Switzerland and West Germany in meeting the demands of the hijackers holding the planes in Jordan.

NO BLOW UP

Political sources in London said the girl would be shipped out of Britain as soon as the Popular Front released the two planeloads of hostages held at the El Khana airstrip 25 miles northeast of Amman.

The Popular Front had said it would blow up the two planes at 10 p.m. EDT today unless the British released Miss Khaled and the Swiss and West German governments freed six other guerrillas arrested for terrorist attacks involving planes.

A spokesman in Amman for the Front said today that his organization was demanding that all seven captive guerrillas arrive in Jordan together on a chartered plane before the ultimatum expires. He said the Red Cross had asked for an extension of the deadline and the Front was studying the request.

Switzerland agreed to release the three serving prison terms in Zurich, and the Bonn government said it would free three others awaiting trial in Munich. Britain at first refused to consider releasing Miss Khaled, but the British Cabinet met in emergency session Tuesday and gave the demand for more study.

PLANE WRECKAGE — The three crewmen of two Webb AFB jets met a happier fate than did their planes. Two of the tail sections of the engines are all that show above ground when one aircraft nosed into the earth scattering debris over a ¼-mile area. The other plane made a crash landing and burned.

Training Jets Crash, Three Airmen Escape

Three airmen from Webb AFB escaped serious injury Tuesday afternoon when their two T-38 Talon training jets collided in air near Mertzon.

One of the aircrafts was being piloted by 2nd Lt. Thomas J. Heiting, who was on a solo routine formation training mission. Piloting the second jet was 1st Lt. Stephen F. Paige, an instructor pilot, and 2nd Lt. Langdon T. Ramsay, a student.

"We were rejoining, then there was a violent shock," said one of the men as the trio was being questioned by Goodfellow AFB officials while awaiting evacuation to Big Spring by an Aero Space Rescue and Recovery helicopter.

All three men parachuted safely to the ground as Lt. Heiting's plane nosed into the earth and all but disintegrated, scattering wreckage over a ¼ mile area. The second plane crashed in belly first and burned. No exact cause for the accident has been determined, however a complete investigation is in progress.

The pilots were found by ranch workers who apparently saw the collision.

Small grass fires broke out around the two downed aircraft but quickly burned out due to recent rains. What remained of the jets was doused with foam by a fire unit from Goodfellow AFB.

Sight-seers flocked to the site of the crash about a mile from a ranch home. The crowd was orderly and caused no confusion, officials said.

Webb AFB had maintained a four-year record without a T-38 accident until Tuesday. Two men died in a T-37 crash Dec. 17, 1969.

Sgt. Torres Hearing Set

FORT McPHERSON, Ga. (AP)—A hearing was set for today on motions filed by attorneys for Sgt. Esequiel Torres of Brownsville, Tex., one of 10 soldiers charged in the alleged massacre at My Lai.

Defense lawyer Charles Weltner, who has charged that command influence would deny Torres a fair trial, has asked a military judge to allow testimony from Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor.

Watson Drops 14-0 Decision

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals denied Tuesday a rehearing of the extradition appeal of Charles Watson, charged in the Sharon Tate killings.

The court met en banc, which means that all 14 judges took part in Tuesday's decision.

Watson has been fighting extradition for about nine months. He is held in the Collin County jail at McKinney, Tex.

Bill Boyd, Watson's chief counsel, has said that he would take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

The 5th Circuit Court previously set Sept. 11 as the date that Watson must be extradited to California.

SCREWY HEIST

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Police searched Tuesday for a gunman who used a new twist in a holdup that netted $470 in cash and checks at a drive-in grocery store.

The new twist: until the last moment, he kept his pistol hidden in a pretzel box.

School Buses Arrive Empty

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Classes began peacefully today in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County school system, but attendance in the system — threatened by a boycott of parents opposed to busing to achieve desegregation — appeared below normal.

No official attendance figures were available shortly after the opening bells rang, but some school buses arrived empty and others rolled onto the school grounds with only a few pupils.

Some pupils, however, were expected to have been brought to school on opening day by their parents.

Nixon's New Tax-Boosting Proposals Win Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy appealed to Congress today for $2.6 billion worth of new taxes to narrow the looming deficit for fiscal 1971. His proposals included President Nixon's plan for an antipollution tax on lead additives in gasoline.

The lead tax, described by Kennedy as a vital element in the administration's program to reduce dangerous air pollution, would raise $1.1 billion in new revenue in the remaining portion of fiscal 1971 if made effective as requested on Oct. 1. The additional revenue would amount to an estimated $1.6 billion over a full year.

GIFT COLLECTIONS

Kennedy also urged a Nixon-sponsored speed-up in estate and gift tax collections, to provide a $1.5 billion one-time tax windfall in the 1971 fiscal year.

Kennedy was the lead-off witness for the administration as the House Ways and Means Committee opened hearing on the revenue-raising proposals.

The two new revenue measures fall far short of the deficit now generally predicted for this fiscal year and in today's testimony Kennedy emphasized the antipollution benefits of the lead-additive levy instead of the revenue raising aspect.

By discouraging the use of lead, the tax would facilitate the federal program to require the auto industry to redesign automobiles to eliminate noxious elements in the exhaust.

AFTER DEATH

The treasury has revised considerably its proposal for its speed-up in estate tax payments, Kennedy disclosed. It still is urging that the gift tax be payable at the end of the month following the calendar quarter in which the gift was made instead of at the end of the year as now required.

But Nixon's original proposal of an estimated estate tax seven months after death, subject to later adjustment upon final determination of the estate final value has been superseded by a different plan drafted by the American Bar Association and the American Bankers Association.

MAHON WARNS

Under this plan, now endorsed by the Treasury, the time for filing an estate tax return would be changed from 15 months after death to nine months. Other speed-ups in the procedure would produce the same revenue, Kennedy said, as in the original Nixon proposal.

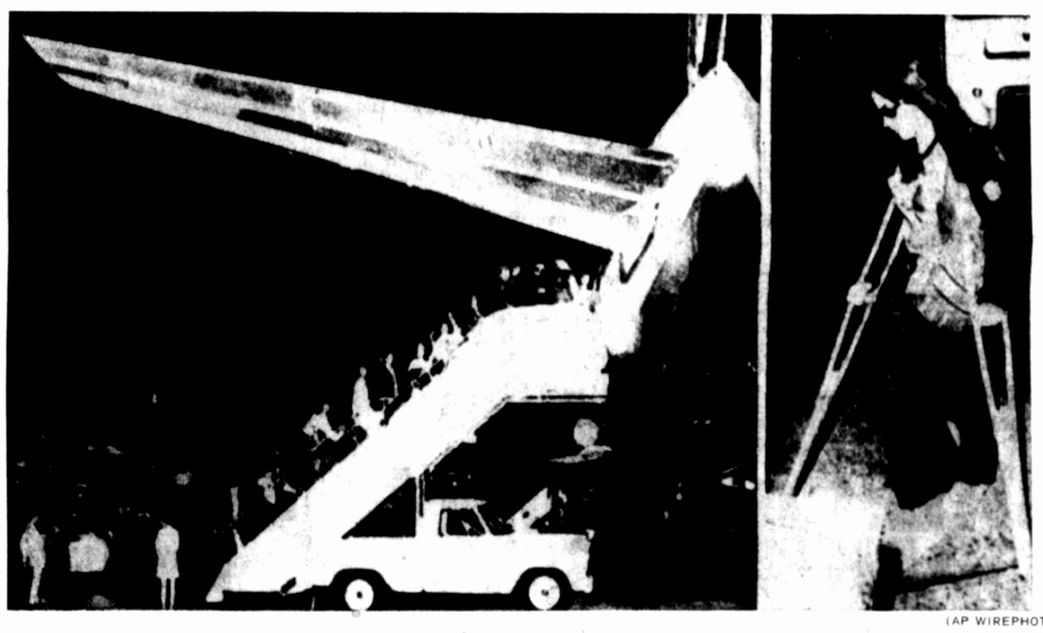

Kennedy himself has acknowledged the deficit will exceed the official administration estimate of $1.3 billion. Most experts use much higher red-ink figures, and Rep. George P. Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, has warned that it will reach $13 billion to $20 billion "unless revenues are materially increased or spending drastically reduced."

Nevertheless Nixon's lead tax proposal has stirred little enthusiasm in Congress, either as a revenue-raiser or as an antipollution weapon.

The White House in announcing the proposal months ago said the tax would discourage the use of lead in high-performance motor fuel; and thus curb the output of pollutants from automotive exhausts.

Critics have argued that it would either be inflationary—adding about 2.3 cents to the average cost of each gallon of gasoline--or, if it eliminated the use of lead additives, would fail as a revenue-raiser.

The Ways and Means Committee also will consider Nixon's request for another extension of the excise taxes on telephone service until Jan. 1, 1972.

STUDENTS TAKE OFF AFTER FIERY CRASH — Boarding another plane, this time at Philadelphia's International Airport, about 250 European students leave for home early today after the plane they originally intended taking crashed and burned at New York's John F. Kennedy Airport. That plane's entire crew died in the crash. The students, including the young girl on crutches at right, were bused from Washington. They had spent the summer working at various jobs in the United States. (See photo, page 2-A).

Claims Jordanian Troops Parade Bodies Of Enemy

By The Associated Press

The Jordanian army chief of of staff, Maj. Gen. Mashour Haditha, announced today he has assumed full powers under King Hussein, and ordered an immediate cease-fire between guerrillas and Jordanian troops.

In a statement broadcast by Amman radio, the general said he had taken "all powers" in Jordan at the request of Hussein.

STOP NOW

"In my new position I order all army units throughout the country to cease fire at once," he said. "I will mete out the severest punishment on violators."

Palestinian commandos and Jordanian soldiers earlier were reported battling for a second day in northern Jordan, following the collapse of a brief cease-fire concluded Tuesday between the Amman government and guerrilla leaders.

The Central Committee of the Palestine Guerrilla Organizations repudiated the cease-fire early today, charging that after it was supposed to have taken effect, Jordanian troops attacked commando outposts near Irbid, killed 40 guerrillas and wounded many more.

SLASH VICTIMS

In retaliation, sources in Amman said, the guerrillas laid siege to the Jordanian army garrison at Irbid. Heavy fighting raged through the night and continued this morning, the informants said.

Tanks and heavy artillery of the Jordanian army's 40th Brigade intervened at dawn to relieve the besieged garrison.

Headquarters of four guerrilla groups in Irbid were put under heavy bombardment, the sources reported.

The Guerrillas' central committee claimed Jordanian troops mutilated the bodies of commandos killed in the fighting. Sources in Amman said the guerrillas paraded the bodies through the streets of Irbid sparking wild public demonstrations.

One group of demonstrators reportedly stormed into the city's police headquarters and killed the police chief.

Scattered shooting also was heard in downtown Amman and in the area of the Jordan Intercontinental Hotel, the temporary home of the 122 women and children released by the guerrillas holding two hijacked airliners and 178 hostages at a desert airstrip northeast of the capital.

Guerrillas set up scores of street barricades in Amman. Shops and government offices closed, and by midmorning half of the city was shut down. Schools, shops and offices that had reopened two days ago closed again.

CONGRESSIONAL HEARING NEXT WEEK

'70 Census Count Short?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Complaints of several hundred cities that the 1970 census count is short—particularly in the slums—will get an extensive congressional hearing next week.

Leadoff witnesses are New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, who says a sixth of the New Yorkers spot checked were not counted, and Census Director George H. Brown, who says he thinks the census will prove to be the most accurate in U.S. history.

Chairman Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., announced Tuesday his House census subcommittee hearing on the nationwide count last April 15 will begin Tuesday.

HIDING OUT

Wilson has asked the Census Bureau to be ready to answer complaints of New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Birmingham that their inner cities were undercounted and to complaints of several hundred smaller cities that their tallies were short.

Some officials of the major cities attribute the alleged slum undercount to people hiding from census takers because they were violating housing ordinances or welfare laws or evading the draft.

Some small cities stated their evidence indicates a larger population. Others contended blocks of citizens were credited to the surrounding county rather than to the city.

But Census Director Brown told newsmen last week that in all cases in which a city has conducted its own count it found even fewer residents than the census takers.

LINDSAY SLAPS

He said the Census Bureau's own rechecks, involving 6.5 million persons, discovered only 4,200 who had been missed the first time around.

House subcommittee investigators who recently toured eight major cities said officials of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Boston and Dallas agreed with the bureau's tally.

The most specific complaint so far is from Lindsay.

The plane, which carried no passengers, was bound for Washington to pick up 250 young trans-Atlantic voyagers.

Houston Schools Boycott Growing

HOUSTON (AP) — Mexican-Americans continued a boycott of public schools today while the school board president said they must look to the courts for relief.

The boycott grew Tuesday as kud more huelga (strike) schools, including the first high school, opened. That made the total 14.

About 3,000 of the city's 31,000 Mexican-American pupils have been boycotting classes, school officials said.

The Mexican-American Education Council, which has pushed the strike, met Tuesday with Dr. G. C. Carver, superintendent of schools.

About 50 persons continued to picket the school administration building.

Mexican-Americans are angry at court-ordered integration which they say mixes Negro and Chicano pupils while largely exempting Anglos. They want the school board to designate Meyican-Americans as a separate ethnic group and not lump them with whites.

Integration plans thus would have to work with three instead of two races.

But Dr. Leonard Robbins, the board president, said Tuesday, "The courts have classified the Mexican-American as white for the purpose of desegregation. This can only be changed by the courts."

Robbins said the Houston desegregation case has been before the U. S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

A lower court decision that the Mexican-American is an identifiable racial minority in the Corpus Christi school district is not germane to Houston, Robbins said.

Castillo, after meeting with Garver, said he was told that any such desegnation was board policy and would have to come from the board.

"We are going to meet with the board," Castillo said. "We want a policy decision. After that we can go into the details of tri-ethnic desegregation."

Three Of Bing's Children Pained

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — Bing Crosby's three youngest children and their maternal grandparents were shaken up in a two-car accident en route to the airport in this Northern California town.

The children, grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Emery Grandstaff and the driver of the other car, Lila Tahti, 40, were treated for cuts and bruises Tuesday at Mercy Hospital. Mrs. Grandstaff, 68, also suffered broken ribs.

The children — Harry, 11; Mary Frances, 10 and Nathaniel, 9—are the children of the singer's second marriage, to the former Kathryn Grant. Crosby, 66, also has four grown sons.

Mrs. Crosby flew to Redding from Beverly Hills after the accident. Crosby was in Vermont, making a movie.

C-City Ranch Experiment Produces Fatter Calves

COLORADO CITY — A $40 bonus under current market prices appears assured for crossbred Hereford-Simmental calves resulting from experiments at the Spade ranch south of here.

The bonus comes in the form of an average 16 per cent weight gain in the crossbred calves over straight line calves, according to Dr. Dub Waldrip of the Renderbrook (Spade) ranch.

Records show that Hereford calves averaged 140 pounds more for heifers and 170 more for bulls. The crossbred calves lived off the range with no feed supplement except salt mineral, whereas supplements were fed to the registered Hereford cows producing Herefords. The best calf in the first generation of crossbreed weighed 680 pounds at 205 days.

"That's almost unbelievable considering the kind of country they came off," Dr. Waldrip told the Colorado City Record. "These calves came off this old dry country. This has been a dry summer, so it has been a pretty fair test."

The program is only in its inception, which Spade officials readily point out, moreover it is on a comparatively small scale for there are only 20 of the crossbreeds at the ranch.

"But we would like to have 1,000," added Dr. Waldrip.

The Simmental was chosen for the experiment, which is accomplished by artificial insemination, because of stable characteristics reflected in 164-years of record keeping on the breed.

A European breed which has flourished especially in Switzerland, the Simmental has strong legs and is a good forager because of its mountainous background. The Hereford cross seems to overcome some of its tendency toward extra-strong bone structure and rear legginess.

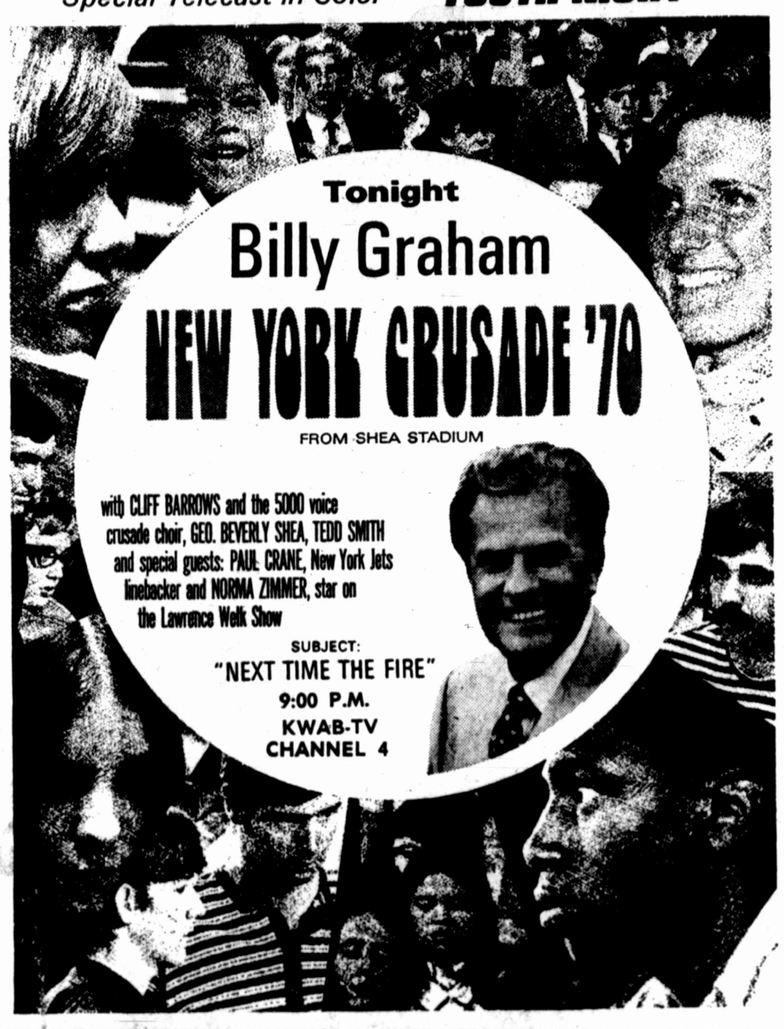

Quarantine regulations have kept Simmental cattle out of this country, but now the first bull has been admitted to the United States from Canada, which is possible after three years residence in Canada. Bob Northcutt and Bubba Swann have been the technicians for the Simmental artificial insemination program, and Dr. Waldrip credited them with much of the program's success. He pointed to some economic problems, including the $15 cost for a vial of Simmental semen, which, if the cow fails to become pregnant, must be replaced by another $15 vial.

However, the cross seems to promise great potential. In his statement with the Record, Dr. Waldrip said that the weight differential would run from $40 to $50 a calf, and that could mean as much as $140,000 per annum if applied to the county's entire calf crop. That's like picking up an extra calf in every six.

CHEVY'S NEW LITTLE CAR IS OPEN FOR BUSINESS.

We call it Vega.

We also call it "the little car that does everything well."

Because it does.

Everything? Everything.

Vega moves well, stops well, steers well, rides well, handles well, responds well, passes well, travels well, parks well, wears well, and is priced well under what you'd expect to pay for such a talented little car.

In our highway tests, Vega has been getting gas mileage in the neighborhood of the little imports, which isn't a bad neighborhood.

Yet unlike your average little car, ours steps right out when you step on the gas.

The engine is a specially designed overhead cam four with a lightweight aluminum alloy block. It turns slowly and quietly at turnpike speeds, with power to spare.

Disc brakes are standard in the front. So are bucket seats, except on the truck.

How we doing so far?

Numbers speak louder than words.

The wheelbase is 97 inches.

Total length is just under 170 inches, or nearly four feet shorter than a full-size Chevrolet.

Height of the coupe is just 50 inches, nine inches lower than the leading import.

Width: a nice stable 5½ feet.

Weight: 2,190 lbs. for the sedan.

Engine displacement: 140 cubic inches.

Fuel economy: about 25 mpg, with the standard engine and transmission, in our highway tests.

Horsepower: 90. You can order 110. (80 and 93 hp, SAE Net.)

Seating capacity: 4 adults.

What it all adds up to is a lot of little car.

Three cars and a truck.

Vega turned out so well that we couldn't turn out just one.

So we're turning out four: the sporty little hatchback coupe shown open and closed in the foreground below; the sedan, on the right; the Kammback wagon, on the left; and the little panel truck, in the rear.

Oh, and a special GT version of the coupe and wagon which we'll show you later on.

September 10th is Opening Day.

All 6,300 Chevrolet dealers are handling Vega, so you shouldn't have to go very far to see and drive one.

Chevy's new little car is open for business. Look into it.

Compulsory Immunization Of All Students Proposed

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A legislator from this diphtheria-stricken city says he will sponsor a bill requiring Texas school districts to set uniform immunization policies.

"We provide protection for cattle threatened with disease," Rep. James Nowlin said Tuesday. "We probably take better care of our cattle than our children."

School age children have been the prime targets of a growing diphtheria epidemic, which has claimed two children's lives.

Health officials said 86 diphtheria cases have been confirmed this year. Fourteen more patients were listed as suspects Tuesday.

Many of those afflicted with the throat infection have now recovered, but others are still under care.

Nowlin said he will introduce a bill requiring Texas school districts to make sure their pupils undergo certain "uniform, basic immunizations."

There is no state law requiring immunizations for school children.

Nowlin proposed immunization programs financed by both the state and school districts.

Another San Antonio legislator, Rep. Jake Johnson, called Tuesday for the resignation of Dr. William Ross, local health district director.

Johnson said Ross should have moved more quickly to contain the outbreak, echoing criticism voiced recently by key faculty members of the University of Texas medical school here.

Ross has denied that he waited too long to seek outside help. He declined comment on Johnson's remarks, except to say he had "much more important problems to tackle now than to fight with politicans and ivory towers.

The Bexar County Medical Society went on record Tuesday night in favor of a state law making immunizations against such diseases as diphtheria mandatory for all children entering school.

The society also gave Ross a vote of confidence for his efforts to curb the epidemic.

In Eagle Pass, a Mexican border town about 140 miles from here, officials reported a second suspected diphtheria case was admitted to a hospital.

Four students from the University of Texas public health school in Houston have arrived in San Antonio to help track down those exposed to diphtheria.

A federal epidemic expert has been here to advise local health officers for the past week, and he was joined over the weekend by two others.

The second phase in a mass immunization campaign will start next Monday, aimed at those needing the second, or third shot in the diphtheria immunization series.

—CARROLL RIGHTER

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) See what it is that higher-up wants of you and follow through conscientiously. Don't permit your associate to pressure you so much. Smile.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Getting dull routines out of the way early releases time for more interesting matters and recreation. Those talents you have failed to express of late should be brought out for airing now. Be active and you are happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are ingenious and resourceful and can et much done now that has been impossible to you for some time. Doing something to tone up your whole system is wise. Steer clear of danger of any kind tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Getting together with very business-like serious associates is your best bet today. Make your talks brief but to the point. Try being as polite at home as you are with customers.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are full of ginger today and can get at all those tasks ahead of you with dynamic enthusiasm. Being more alert while driving is important — be especially watchful of others on the road.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22). Forget activities. Bolstering the ego of associate financial worries by enjoying social is very wise at this time. You can take it easier later on.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The ambitions you have now are just not for you, so listen to what kin have to say and consider their wishes. Avoid making radical changes in your social life. You have a good set-up. Just work harder at it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make certain that all is operating properly at home, office, or elsewhere. Cement better relations with regular associates. Go more into detail with them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You think you need a larger income. True, but you must plan now to do something to attain it. Don't neglect necessary payments and collections. Moderation is the keynote now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Not a good day to take any risks whatever where job, business, home are concerned. Joining efforts with close ties brings about fine results. Take that chip off your shoulder — you put it there yourself, you know.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Give thought to a puzzling situation and all will work out to your advantage. Await a better time for the recreation you want. See that you have more money to spend.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Look for the highly experienced pals who can assist you in gaining personal aims and follow their ideas pretty much. Mingle socially with others like yourself. Do not be a fuss budget.

Highway Engineer Sees 40 Years Of Road Paving

J. C. (Jake) Roberts, District 8 engineer for the Texas Highway Department, last week celebrated his 40th year with the department.

Since 1934 he has been associated with the Abilene district and has seen a tremendous development in roads take place. There were only 800 miles of paved state road in the district when he came from Memphis where he had started Sept. 1, 1930, as an instrument man; today the total is almost 3,500.

The staff then consisted of about 12 engineers with a $250,000 construction budget and $88,000 for maintenance. When the interstate and other highway programs peaked a few years ago, Roberts' district maintained a $25 million level month by month.

Despite the unprecedented expansion of highway systems during the past 25 years, Roberts says the need is greater than before because travel increases faster than roads. He can see the need for another $200 million to improve all the roads needed for prompt, safe movement of people and goods.

He had high praise for his staff in Abilene and the various counties, and for "the supporters of the highway department . . . community leaders, Chambers of Commerce, government and news media."

A graduate of Texas A&M, he was made assistant resident engineer in 1935, moving up in 1942 to assistant district engineer. He became district engineer in 1952. Roberts is due to attend the Western Association of Highway Officers in Achorage, Alaska, Oct. 8.

Say They've Got Lots Of Good Races In Them

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Harness racers Clarence Hansen, 76, and Andy Van Vanten, 69, say they've got lots of good races in them yet and are asking Superior Court to order Hollywood Park to permit them to drive during its next harness racing season.

In a suit filed Tuesday, they asked for an injunction forbidding Western Harness Racing Inc. from enforcing its policy of barring drivers over 65 from competition. The suit contends such a policy violates equal protection provisions of the U.S. Constitution.

A spokesman for Western Harness Manager Preston H. Jenuine said the new policy was formulated because "this is a strenuous business in which you have to handle a horse weighing 1,300-1,400 pounds.

"Just like when you're driving on a freeway, you have to be quick," the spokesman said. "And we feel it's very difficult for drivers over 65 to compete with the younger, more agile ones."

Nixon Cruising

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, who had spent much of the day dealing with the problem of airliner hijackings by Palestinian guerrillas, relaxed with a Tuesday evening cruise on the Potomac River aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia.

Opening lead: King of ♡ South, declarer at four spades, was unwilling to rely on mere percentages to locate the queen of clubs in today's hand, and he devised a campaign that reduced the issue to a certainty.

West opened the king of hearts and continued with the ace and queen, declarer ruffing the third round as East discarded a club. South crossed over to the queen diamonds to put the jack of spades thru for a finesse. West won the trick with the king and got out with a trump. South drew West's remaining spade as East parted with another club.

Inasmuch as the defenders had their book in, declarer's objective was to avoid losing a club trick. If the diamond suit divided evenly, he could obtain a discard on North's long diamonds. If that failed to materialize, then he must locate the queen of clubs.

Declarer tested diamonds first by cashing the king and then returning to his hand with the ace. If both opponents followed to each round, he could reenter dummy with the ace of clubs and cash the long diamond. However, when West showed out on the third round of diamonds, South was obliged to fall back on the club suit.

East had shown up with two spades, two hearts and four diamonds by actual count. He was therefore known to have started with five clubs. The odds favored his holding the queen. However, South observed a surer method for resolving his problem. By playing off his last trump first. He could force his opponent to make a revealing discard.

The ten of spades was led and the six of clubs was discarded from dummy. East was obliged to keep his jack of diamonds as protection against North's remaining card in that suit, the eight. East therefore parted with the four of clubs. With both opponents down to two clubs, it became routine for declarer to lead a club to dummy's ace and then return to the king in his hand, dropping the queen and establishing the jack of clubs for the game fulfilling trick.

MRS. GAYLON ODOM

Couple United In Marriage

Miss Debora Sue Chapman and Gaylon Frank Odom were united in marriage Sept. 3 in the Rockdale Baptist Church at Sulphur Springs. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ennis Ray Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Odom, all of Sulphur Springs.

The Rev. Bill Strickland of Mesquite performed the ceremony before an arch of greenery flanked by baskets of white mums and gladioli. Wrought iron candelabra held white tapers.

Mrs. Jimmy Albright was pianist, and Marvin Duvall played the steel guitar. Larry Neal sang "Walk Through This World With Me."

The bride was attired in a full-skirted gown of Chantilly lace styled with molded bodice and long sleeves ending in petal points. The skirt extended into a train, and her shoulder-length veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of seed pearls and iridescent crystals. Her bouquet was a cascade of carnations encircling a white orchid and tied with satin streamers.

Mrs. Gary Odom attended her sister as matron of honor, while Miss Brenda Chapman, younger sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. Mrs. John Kennedy was bridesmaid. The attendants were attired in full-length, blue cotton pique princess styled gowns with blue lace overskirt tied with a bow and streamers at the back. They wore short veils of blue tulle attached to a cluster of blue daisies and puffs of tulle. Each carried a nosegay of daisies tied with blue satin streamers.

Robin Webb was flower girl, and Mitzi Sheedy, lighted altar candles. They were attired identically to the other attendants. Darrin Harred was the ring bearer.

Jerry Knight served as best man, while Gary Odom, brother of the bridegroom, and Phil Gamblin were groomsmen. Ushers were Billy Flippin and Randy Melton.

The reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. The serving table was laid in white crocheted lace over blue centered with the attendants' bouquets flanked by silver candelabra holding blue tapers. Silver appointments were used to serve the tiered cake and punch. Miss Betty Mays and Mrs. Phil Therwhanger presided at the serving table, and guests were registered by Miss Debbie Mattison.

When the couple left for a trip to Nashville, Tenn., the bride was wearing a navy blue knit dress with matching long vest and red accessories. They will reside on Rt. 5, Sulphur Springs.

The bride is a graduate of Como-Pickton High School, and the bridegroom graduated from Sulphur Springs High School. He plans to attend Paris Junior College.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. A. K. Turner Sr. of Coahoma and the late Mr. Turner. Her parents are former residents of Coahoma where the bride attended grade school.

Charter Undraped By Rebekah 284

Mrs. E. V. Cockerham, noble grand, presided at the Big Spring Rebekah Lodge 284 meeting Tuesday, and Mrs. J. R. Petty conducted the undraping of the charter. Mrs. Melvin Newton worded the prayers as the charter was undraped for the late Mrs. Amanda Hughes, Mrs. Maude Lloyd and Mrs. Bertha Bell. The 21 members reported 28 visits to the sick. The next meeting will be Tuesday.

Instruction Given By Rebekah 153

Mrs. Everett Hood conducted lodge instruction at the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge 153 meeting Tuesday in the IOOF Hall. Mrs. Grady C. Beck, noble grand, presided. The 17 present reported 35 visits to the sick. A guest was Mrs. Maggie Gillespie, Alpha Rebekah Lodge 69, Delano, Calif.

Center Board To Meet Thursday

The board of directors for Westside Recreation Center will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in St. Paul Presbyterian Church. Plans for the year's activities will be discussed.

B&PW Club Group Attending Conference

A covered-dish patio dinner was held by the Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday in the home of Mrs. A. G. Eitzen, 2601 Carol. Following the supper, Miss Movelda Rhine announced plans for the District 8 B&PW conference to be held in El Paso this weekend. The Big Spring club is in charge of the world affairs workshop with Mrs. Cass Hill as chairman. Miss Rhine will serve on the rules committee at the convention.

The Big Spring club was invited to attend the District 7 convention Sept. 26-27 by their "mother club" in Colorado City.

Mrs. Mamie Roberts, Big Spring State Hospital chairman, told members that they will hold a picnic Tuesday in Comanche Trail Park for ward 3 patients of the hospital. Members adopted another fund-raising project, selling utilitarian hammers.

The next meeting will be Sept. 22 at Coker's Restaurant with the civil participation committee in charge of a program on "Environmental Quality." Mrs. Ray Nichols is the committee chairman and members are Mrs. Fred McGowan and Mrs. John Hardy.

Fora Club Starts Year

Spoudazio Fora Study Club held its first meeting of the fall season Tuesday evening when Mrs. Dudley Jenkins, president, was hostess for a salad supper in her home at 1705 Settles.

Serving with Mrs. Jenkins will be Mrs. Hulan Harris, vice president; Mrs. Bob Clark, secretary; Mrs. W. W. Lansing, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Don Farley, treasurer.

A garage sale was planned for Oct. 2-3 to raise funds to continue sponsoring a teenager at Big Spring State Hospital.

Mrs. Kirk Hubbard was introduced as a guest.

The next meeting will be Sept. 22 at the home of Mrs. Harris, 2608 Cindy.

New Leaders For Church Circle

New chairman of the Lalla Baird Circle, Wesley United Methodist Church, is Mrs. M. O. Hamby. Officers were elected Tuesday during a meeting in the home of Mrs. J. E. Peters, 1806 Runnels. Serving with Mrs. Hamby will be Mrs. Peters as vice chairman; Mrs. Ray Anderson, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. J. B. Hollis, telephone chairman.

The devotion was given by Mrs. David Pohl and the prayer by Mrs. S. L. Thurman. Miss Sue Pohl was a guest. Secret pals were chosen. The circle will serve as hostess for the general meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service Oct. 6. The next circle meeting will be Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Dub Bryant, 1602 Tucson.

A LOVELIER YOU

Strenthen Muscles For 'Curvy' Ankles

By MARY SUE MILLER

A Lovely writes: My ankle bones stick out like doorknobs, even when I wear heavy socks or boots. Is there any way of building up skinny ankles? Midi skirts won't help. It would take a floor sweeper.

The Answer: Knobby ankles can be plumped. The job is done with spot-increasing exercises — routines designed to attract flesh by providing a strong network of muscles. Houseroom, in other words!

For the purpose these routines are most effective:

A. Stand with feet together. Center weight on heels and lift soles of feet off floor, so that toes point straight up. Hold position for five slow counts. Then relax and repeat 10 times.

B. Sit with left knee crossed over right knee. Leading with big toe, very slowly rotate foot from left to right 10 times. Recross knees and perform with right foot, being sure to circle from right to left. Work for maximum stretch.

Perform every day, exactly as instructed, and results will begin to show in about two months. More perseverance is needed to increase than to reduce a measurement. So stick with it; don't work in spurts and never overdo. Strenuous workouts would only defeat your purpose.

One more point: Bony ankles often indicate a substantial frame. In that instance one must try for normal weight. Those big bones are sure to protrude in a case of underweight.

YOUR GAIN

Are you too, too thin? And you never can gain an ounce? Send for my leaflet, "Your Gain." It shows you how to gain a pound a week by eating the right foods, working with spot increasing routines and having fun. Plus tips on your most flattering fashion styles. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller, in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin.

Inch, Pound Loss Tallied By Club

Mrs. Ray Anderson won prizes for losing the most inches and pounds at Tuesday's meeting of the Inch Pinchers. Mrs. LeRoy Dolan was hostess. The next meeting will be Monday in the home of Mrs. R. P. Morton, 2303 Austin.

Hayride To Moss Lake Scheduled

An Oct. 3 hayride to Moss Creek Lake was planned when the Letter Carriers Auxiliary met Tuesday evening in the First Federal Community Room. Mrs. Myles Enelow led prayer.

In other business, it was announced that $5 will be donated to the Bible Fund. Cakes for the Veterans Administration will be provided this month by Mrs. Wade Bledsoe and Mrs. Wayne Beene.

Mrs. Jesse Crane Jr., hostess, served refreshments.

Mrs. Enelow will be hostess for the Oct. 13 meeting at the same place.

Mrs. Mitchell Says 'Vietnam War Stinks'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martha Mitchell, wife of the attorney general, said early today "the Vietnam war stinks" and "if it weren't for Fulbright we'd be out of it."

Mrs. Mitchell, who has feuded in the past with Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., was asked what she thought the senator's motive is.

"He wants to promote himself," she said. "The war would have been over 16 months ago if it hadn't been for Fulbright."

The Cabinet wife volunteered her views on the war and the senator to reporters on Air Force One while it was flying President Nixon, Atty. Gen. and Mrs. John Mitchell and other officials back to Washington from the Western White House.

Mrs. Mitchell came back to the press section of the aircraft, sat down and chatted, played a bit of gin rummy and bridge, and said along the way there was something she would like to say. And she wanted newsmen to take it down.

"If we could stick together as we used to," she said, "we would have been out of the war a helluva long time ago. What we need is a united America . . . We have no reason to go to Paris and try to find a common ground when they realize over there we're not in agreement."

This was a reference to the Paris Peace negotiations.

Mrs. Mitchell said we shouldn't have gotten into the war in the first place.

When asked whose fault it was that we got into the war, she replied:

"The Nixon administration is not at fault. The Nixon administration inherited it and they're trying their best to get out of the war."

When a reporter said Nixon had backed former President Lyndon B. Johnson's actions and decisions on the war, Mrs. Mitchell replied:

"The only thing I know, the thing I feel most seriously about, is that if this country were wise enough to get together and feel we were a united country and not a divided country, this is the most important thing in the history of the country."

She added that she knows nothing about the statistics and the military background of the war, but went on to say:

MRS. MARTHA MITCHELL

"But this is an unpopular war, an extremely unpopular war. But if somebody would only take a few months off in Congress and say let's get together, this should not be a political operation—we need something that would bring us together, not separate us."

Asked what she would suggest, she replied:

"I suggest that Congress say to the American people we're in a very horrible state of war which the American people do not subscribe to . . . consequently, we should try our very best to get out."

When the attorney general later walked back to the press section, a reporter asked him if he would like to hear what his wife had to say.

"Heavens no," Mitchell replied. "I might jump out the window."

OES Unit Celebrates Birthdays

The Past Matrons Club of Chapter 67, Order of Eastern Star, celebrated the birthdays of Mrs. Dalton Mitchell and Mrs. H. F. Williamson Tuesday evening in the Downtown Tea Room.

The U-shaped tables were decorated by Mrs. Albert Davis with arrangements of red roses. Other hostesses were Mrs. R. E. Stringfellow and Mrs. T. F Sefton.

Mrs. G. W. Dabney brought the invocation, and the presiding officer was Mrs. Carl T. McGlothlin. Reports of the sick were made and 47 visits were reported. The visiting committee for September is comprised of Mrs. Hayes Stripling Sr., Mrs. Lois Peters and Mrs. Glen Cantrell.

A travel program was given by Mrs. Fred Eakers who showed pictures of a trip to the Northwest. Star Sister gifts were exchanged, and the meeting closed with the Mizpah.

The Oct. 13 meeting will have Mrs. G. W. Hall, Mrs. Eugene Gross and Mrs. W. O. Graham as hostesses.

Society To Hear Guest Speaker

Mrs. James Orbeck of Odessa will be guest speaker Thursday for the Genealogical Society of the Big Spring when it meets at 7:30 p.m. in the Pioneer Gas Flame Room. She will discuss researching for genealogical information in church records.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I've found a neat way to patch the knees in permanent-press pants. My boys prefer the dress jeans to those which have double knees, and the dress jeans look so much nicer on them.

When the boys outgrow or wear out a pair I save them until I need to patch another pair.

When patching time is inevitable, I get out the old pants that match the color of the one needing patching and cut out a patch the size that is needed.

Now this is where I think my idea is kinda EXTRA special. I make sure there is a crease line in the patch that I cut from the old worn-out or outgrown pair and that it will correspond to the crease line in the pant leg that is being patched.

In this way the patch folds nicely with the rest of the leg and isn't so noticeable. I then go ahead and secure the patch with iron-on fabric mender.

The results are really amazing — the jeans look good and are certainly servicable. . . . A Mother

* * *

What you call "EXTRA special" is the understatement of the year . . . I think it's a doozy of an idea. There's certainly not going to be any tears shed over wearing patched pants at your house . . . who's to know?

I can't imagine why someone hasn't come up with that idea before. . . . Heloise

* * *

Dear Heloise:

The last time I made fudge I happened upon a great idea.

I'm sure that I'm not the only one who has problems when cutting fudge. My fudge always seems to stick to my knife and crumbles.

But then I tried my pizza cutter (the round, roller type), and my problem was solved. Straight lines were a cinch and it's a real time saver. Best of all, my fudge didn't crumble. . . . Mrs. Jerry Frabry

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I have made a real great broom holder for my hall closet by using a wooden soft drink case (the 24-bottle variety).

I took the bottom out of the case, then nailed four pieces of boards approximately two feet long (one at each corner of the case) forming legs for the case.

Now it's possible to just stick the mop and broom handles into the little partitions and they will remain upright.

If desired, you could paint it or even cover with adhesive-backed paper. That would add a little "zing" to your closet. . . . Mrs. B.K.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

My husband asked that I pass this little tip along to you.

When hanging up his pants at night, he pulls out the top drawer of his chest of drawers, fits the bottoms of the pants legs very neatly, making sure the creases correspond, then closes the drawer.

The drawer then holds the pants like a hanger and they stay perfectly creased. He says it's better by far than throwing them over the back of a chair.

This is a good idea to remember when traveling and staying in motels or hotels . . . will also work on women's skirts and slacks. . . . Mrs. Lenna Lindsey

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I know that many, many people store little things like curtain hooks, paper clips, rubber bands, and other small items that are used periodically in small baby food jars in their drawers.

But I wonder if they ever thought of placing them lid-side down in the drawer.

In this way it is so much easier to see what is in each jar at a glance and saves endless time opening each one and still not finding the particular item you wanted. It has really been a big help to me. . . . Mary Palmer

* * *

Dear Heloise:

When we go camping, we find it easier to put each person's pajamas inside his or her own sleeping bag.

As they are only needed at night the pajamas are easily located in this manner. . . . Beverly

'ROUND TOWN

BY LUCILLE PICKLE

Another well-loved citizen of Big Spring joined the retired list last week when MISS ROSA TIMMERMAN took her retirement from a long and interesting career in nursing and as an anesthetist.

Miss Timmerman has worked at Malone-Hogan Hospital, now Medical Center Hospital for 18½ years. She took her nursing training at Scott and White in Temple and after working there five or six years decided to study in Chicago to become an anesthetist. She had been in the profession for 47 years.

To mark the occasion of their friend and associate's retirement the OR nurses, and other surgical crew members honored Miss Timmerman with a reception in the doctors' dining room at the hospital. From 1:30 until 2.30 all those on the staff at both the hospital and the clinic called and were served from two large decorated cakes with punch.

Of course, Rosa isn't going to stop working or move away. She is managing the Alta Vista Apartments as she has done for at least 11 years for Mrs. Jessie Thomas who lives in Dallas. Also, there are a number of cook books which the excellent gourmet cook has compiled, and she is planning to rework them. Also, she plans to enjoy the nice gifts her fellow workers gave her and also spend time in the many shops where she has gift certificates to spend at her leisure . . . which she hasn't had much of in her working career.

In Lubbock Monday night for the Lawrence Welk show were MR. and MRS. OLLIE ANDERSON, MR. and MRS. ROSS BOYKIN and MR. and MRS. L. B. EDWARDS. No one of the thousands at the show enjoyed it more than MRS. ED SETTLES and MRS. LUCY BAUER. Not only did they see the show but they got to talk to Welk, Joe Finney, the excellent dancer, Bobby Burgess, and that super organist, Bob Ralston.

MR. and MRS. RAYMOND MOORE, Gary and Gail, were in San Angelo for the holiday weekend with MRS. WAYLAND YATES and her children. They spent the time at Lake Nasworthy at the San Angelo State University facilities.

When DOUG LOWE was named stated agronomist for the Soil Conservation Service in Missouri, the family had to make the move almost overnight. He put an ad in The Herald to sell his home and two days later had closed the deal and had his money. In addition to that they sold a lot of other things to avoid moving them . . . in fact, he unloaded everything but their two season Texas Tech football tickets. But he left them in the good hands of Aggie W. S. GOODLETT who, up until now, is convinced that nobody ever buys season tickets to Tech games. He has always thought Tech paid people to come to their games.

Dinner Served To Commandery Men

The Social Order of the Beauceant served dinner during a District 9 School of Instruction hosted by Big Spring Commandery No. 31. Attending were men from San Angelo, Sweetwater, Midland and Odessa.

Two grand officers, Sam Hilburn, Midland, grand junior warden; and Charles Westbrook of Abilene, grand captain of the guard, were among the 47 attending.

Women who served the dinner were Mrs. O. L. Nabors, Mrs. J. B. Langston, Mrs. Lee Porter, Mrs. Jerry Spencer, Mrs. R. L. Lee, Mrs. Alan Hull and Mrs. Bert Shive.

Methodists Name Circle Chairman

Miss Helen Ewing was named chairman of the Martha Foster Circle, Wesley United Methodist Church, during a meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. C. Richardson.

Other new officers are Mrs. Richardson, vice chairman; Mrs. E. R. Cawthron, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Victor Sharp, telephone chairman.

Mrs. Richardson brought the devotion, which was a lesson on faith. The group said the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Next Tuesday's meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. in the home of Miss Ewing, 709 E. 15th.

Matter Of Communication

The generation gap is a communications gap.

Young people are, after all, people. They have all the various degrees of intelligence, honor, morality and so on that older people have.

Added to these universal traits are a lack of experience in the social and political processes and a background of unparalleled affluence.

And it is of this lack and this background that many student grievances are born, regardless of the inherent worth of the complaints.

And many adults, who have experience in the social and political processes and who have had to struggle for their material gains, are incensed.

It is these same adults, however, who will have to sacrifice if anything good comes out of the current student disillusionment with the "system."

Adults have the benefits of the perspective of time and have little, if anything, to lose by listening to those who protest what they consider to be injustices.

Adults can afford the luxury of flexibility, and they are sorely needed now to bend an ear to young people.

Listening is the first step in the creation of dialogue, and many young people want only to know that somebody cares about them and their concerns.

Our colleges — indeed, our country — cannot afford to insult the majority of young people because they are identified with a sensational and often irrational peer group.

If creative, genuine young people are shown now that someone will at least listen, there is hope they will not cop out on the legal, effective avenues to needed social change.

The first step, however, must be made by those who can afford to be flexible. And the first step is listening.

Penalties On Poor Drivers

By the first of the year, we are told in press dispatches from Austin, sharp increases in auto insurance rates will go into effect for Texans with poor driving records.

A new rate structure has been announced by the State Board of Insurance, which changes the provision on "assigned risk" drivers.

When the new order becomes effective, insurance rates for assigned risk drivers will be increased 20 per cent for which accident in which they are at fault, and 60 per cent for each conviction of drunk driving, failure to stop and render aid, negligent homicide, driving while license suspended, or other offenses punishable as a felony under state motor vehicle laws.

Extra charges currently are assessed on the basis of 15 per cent for each accident and 25 per cent for each major traffic violation conviction.

These assigned risk drivers, then, will be paying higher premiums, and may, if past record is a criterion, may find it more and more difficult to get insurance.

The insurance board has indicated that the present assigned risk plan has not been carrying its own share of premium loads for its losses, resulting in higher rates generally.

A question many people might ask is why some premium credit system could not be worked out for the careful drivers — those with no record of accidents of any kind. There is no indication at the moment that this will come about.

Quiet Landing

Everyone Expecting Jap Trouble

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — Twenty-five years ago the U.S. Marines landed at this naval base with, as one who was with them recalls, "some trepidation."

It was Aug. 28, 1945, and the Pacific War officially was over. The Japanese emperor had announced the surrender. Still, the Americans weren't sure what they would find in the homeland of the enemy.

Yokosuka was, and is, a major naval installation 30 miles south of Tokyo. Because of its strategic location at the mouth of Tokyo Bay and its facilities, it had been selected by the U.S. commanders as one of the sites of the first landing of American forces in Japan.

ONE OF THE American officers who was here on that day 25 years ago and is here again with the U.S. Navy is Capt. George William Stroud of Fort Worth, Tex., chief-of-staff at the Yokosuka base. On L for Landing Day in 1945 he was a lieutenant in charge of the boat group that put the Marines ashore.

Seated at his desk in the headquarters compound, Stroud remembers there was "absolutely no trouble when the troops landed. Just our Marines were around because the place was empty. There were no Japanese in sight."

Stroud said in an interview that his group had sat around for two weeks at sea "waiting for the Army to get ready to come in. We had been in Guam and that's where we loaded out in a hurry."

Stroud's ship carried 1,500 Marines. As for the size of the total force that came in here, "We must have had about 20 transports and that's probably 20 times 1,500."

THE SHIPS MOVED up through a narrow channel swept free of mines.

"They gave us a Japanese naval officer, a captain, as a pilot," he added. "My skipper said, 'Put him in the brig. I don't need any help getting in here and I don't want one of those blankety blank guys on the bridge of my ship.'

"We were pretty mad at the Japanese in those days," Stroud said with a laugh.

Calling the landing on the main Japanese island "one of the highlights" of his career, Stroud said: "I do remember when we came ashore it didn't look like there had been a war on. There was no damage, of course, here. We didn't know that the U.S. had purposely not bombed this place.

"There was no damage, but, frankly, everything looked so rundown that you wondered how the Japanese had continued to fight as long as they did. It really looked third rate."

ANOTHER VETERAN of the landing here 25 years ago was Associated Press photographer Max Desfor, now Asia photo editor based in Tokyo. He recalled the waiting around at sea for the actual move and the rumors as to the reason, ranging from one that Japan had not really surrendered, to Gen. Douglas MacArthur didn't want the Marines to land first.

But L Day finally came and the Marines were to make it an assault landing with full combat gear.

"They lined the rails of the attack transport, went over the side and climbed down the rope ladders into the landing craft," Desfor said. "As each smaller boat got filled, it joined the others in a circle pattern until the beachmaster gave the signal and the boats formed a line and headed for the beach.

"There was some trepidation about going in. The men stood quietly and kept their heads down, only occasionally some would sneak a look toward the shore. As soon as we got to the beachline, the ramps went down and the men spewed out. They jumped into the water and ran ashore. In real combat style, they took up positions, dispersing to set up machine guns and with riflemen hitting the sand.

Billy Graham

I see where crime among juveniles has risen over 100 per cent in the last few years. This is alarming to me, for I have young children. What, in your estimation is the chief reason for this climbing rate of crime among our children? O.C.

I would give as the first reason for the rise of juvenile crime the creeping permissivism which has grown to alarming proportions. Children, even young children, do not know the meaning of the word obedience, and it they don't learn to obey at home, they are going to be lawless citizens when they get away from home.

Another reason is the overdose of crime and violence on television. There are TV sets in 95 per cent of American homes, and 12 million preschoolers between three and five years of age watch television for 25 hours per week. What do they see? They see murder, sex, burglaries, rape and prostitution — and many other things. A leading child psychologist has said that adults and children tend to change their ethical standards according to what they see other people doing — in real life, or on film.

This marvelous educational tool is being squandered in the U.S.A., and simply because sponsors want programs, any kind of programs, with high ratings. Programs and shows of violence and crime are not allowed in many countries, for their leaders try to curb violence, and they recognize television as a prime creator of the public mood. I believe that some day this powerful medium will be harnessed as the educational tool it can be. But, not until the public voices a protest against the present waste of this great medium.

Girls, Wine, Buckles And Bows

By RAY KOHN
(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Men's shoe stores where gals make the sales pitch, music skirls through the boutique and you can sip wine while resting your aching feet?

They exist.

One manufacturer started selling men's shoes and "all that jazz" (that, and rock, and soul is part of what comes out of the loudspeakers) in Beverly Hills, Calif., a year ago.

So far it's a success. They've installed outlets—with girls and wine—in New York and Denver. They've got a foot in the door in San Francisco, and plan a place in Chicago.

You walk into their Manhattan establishment on Lexington Avenue and are greeted by a young lady attired in sweater, blue jeans and sandals.

"Mind if I look around?" "Of course not," the gal replies. She backs off a bit so you can browse among the sleek bluchers, buckled slip-ons and half-boots. Aaaah, a male bulwark —a man sitting at a desk. He's the manager.

As you doubtless know, buckles and bows for gents are really "in" this season. I spot a buckle job which interests me, I give the girl, whose first name is Beverly, my size. She brings me a pair and hands them to me, along with an elongated shoe horn.

The usual foot-stand for trying on shoes just isn't there. I am wiggling my sock-clad toes on the plush rug while relaxing on a two-seater black leather sofa. Then I wield the shoe horn.

"Kind of a self-help idea?" I ask.

Beverly smiles. "We bring 'em out and you put 'em on."

While parading the rug, peering at the pristine footwear (burnished brown), my glance wanders toward two giant glass carafes.

On the ball, the saleslady asks, "Some red or white wine?"

I chose red and get a goblet of it.

Back to the sofa, shod feet stretched out, sipping and thinking, thinking and sipping.

The music blares. It is raining outside. Inside, it is all kind of informal. Then I remember: I am a customer. I ease out of the footwear and ponder, still sipping the wine. I drain the glass.

"Nice place you have here," I say. "But these aren't exactly what I had in mind."

"No sweat," says Beverly, "drop in any time."

I leave the shop to meet the wet world of hurrying umbrellas, followed by the beat, from the boutique, of some groovy ballad completely alien to my "square" ears.

Risky Rascals

By LINDA RUBEY
(Substituting for John Cunniff)

NEW YORK (AP)— One of the riskier occupations on Wall Street these days is that of the profit-taker.

Simply put, the profit-taker is the short-term trader. He's the one who buys a stock one day and sells it right away or as soon as the stock has gone up enough for him to cash in at a profit.

The job takes patience, a strong set of nerves and a sense of adventure.

"They're in it for the excitement, not for the long pull. It's like betting at a lot of $2 windows rather than at the $50 window," says one long-time Wall Street observer.

The profit-taker is an elusive creature. But some brokers and analysts credit him with quite a punch. Over the past weeks some brokers were saying it was the profit-takers who were keeping the closely watched Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks from rallying much beyond the 760 level. Before that they maintained it was the profit-takers who kept the market from penetrating the 740 level after the Dow had made some sweeping advances.

Analysts say the profit-takers are generally professional board room traders with seats on the exchanges who trade for their own accounts. These include some fast-pace mutual funds.

They say if the public is involved to any extent, it's probably retired people who have the time to follow the intricacies of the market's activities continuously.

According to Newton Zinder, an analyst with E. F. Huton, the profit-taker is wiling to accept a 10 per cent profit and equally willing to accept a loss to maintain a flexible cash position.

"They're just trying to get the cream of a stock's gain rather than the whole bottle. They don't worry about the first or last 20 per cent of a gain, and so they usually don't buy a stock until after an upward move has started," Zinder explains.

The reverse is also true. A profit-taker doesn't need a rising, or bull, market to make money. He can also ride the waves of a falling, or bear, market like the one of the past two years and do just as well, analysts say.

The technique is called short selling. Selling short refers to the practice of borrowing stock and selling it immediately.

The seller hopes then the value of the stock will decline so he can buy it back later at a lower price and replace it.

To Your Good Health

He Has To Be Both Father And Mother

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a widower and have to act as both father and mother to my daughters, aged 9 and 12. It would be most helpful if you would give some information on adolescent breast development.

What is the oldest age at which parents should be concerned if a young daughter is completely flat-chested? My older daughter has asked several times when she will develop and start wearing a bra. She still has a flat chest with tiny nipples, and is very slim but a healthy girl. She has not had her first menstruation yet.

I thought exercise might help (push-ups, sit-ups). Well, her posture is now very good and I think her entire rib cage lifted. However, the nipples have not risen a fraction of an inch. This was a bit of a disappointment to her. — T.C.

Countless girls (and women) are plagued with "breast-consciousness." It is true that a well-formed bust adds to the figure and lets clothes hang better, but unless this comes naturally, there isn't a great deal to do about it. On the average, the first sign of breast development becomes noticeable at about the age of 10 or 11, but it takes the next four or five years (again, an average) to reach full development.

But remember — and remind your daughter — that maturing varies considerably in both boys and girls. Some are late-bloomers. They just have to wait somewhat longer.

The amount of fat is a factor. Lean girls will be smaller than plump ones, which may disappoint them in the early teens but will be blessing to them later in life when some of the early bloomers already are struggling with reducing diets to keep their figures.

Posture is extremely important. While exercise will not directly affect the breast tissue itself, a girl with small breasts and good posture will appear to be bigger than a girl with larger breasts and a slouch. The exercises you mentioned are excellent for developing chest muscles.

Incidentally having small breasts does not detract from ability to nurse babies when the time comes.

Your daughter needs reassurance. I guess you do, too. But there is no way to accelerate breast development. Tell you daughter to bide her time, and you stop worrying about it. Some girls in fact, reach 20 or so and are still developing.

Around The Rim

A Marvel Of Accomplishment

In 1916 the Federal Aid Road Act adopted the principle of support by the national government of the primary system of roads from the general funds. With refinements, this stood until the Federal Highway Act of 1956 created the highway trust fund to support class A, B and C roads and to develop what will become a 42,500-mile interstate highway system.

THE INTERSTATE SYSTEM is one of the marvels of history, both from the point of engineering as well as financing. Since 1956, there has been $38.83 billion set aside for this work ($28.2 of it complete and the balance under development and planning). Every mile of it has been paid for as it was built from the proceeds to the trust fund. This policy probably has saved $4 billion or more, earning $191 million in interest on funds in the trust.

THE INTERSTATE SYSTEM has more than paid for itself in many ways. If a value of $1.50 per hour is placed on time saved by the system, then the first 20 years will mean a saving of $273 billion; put $3 an hour to that and the figure grows to $438 billion.

The savings on fuel, maintenance, etc. alone are estimated at $107 billion for the period.

Moreover, the reduced need for changing travel speeds, has sharply cut down on exhaust emissions and noise. The highway beautification act has contributed to making the interstate system one with a sense of esthetics, just as the philosophy of compensation for highway displacees has given it a sense of responsibility.

ASIDE FROM MOVING an unprecedented volume of traffic, interstate highways have proven a great boon to safety. While highways in general are (believe it or not) three times as safe as 45 years ago, the interstate system is twice as safe as other highways. Statistics indicate that each five miles of interstate avoids one fatality per year. When the 42,500-mile system is complete, this will represent 850 lives per year. Indeed, some authorities figure that the total lives saved on the interstate by 1970 will be 8,000 per annum. It also is estimated that the heavily-travelled federal-aid roads will result in saving of 131,000 lives and 3.3 million personal injuries from 1956 to 1970. And none of this puts any value on the property damage saved — which alone would exceed the cost of the system.

THE VAST BULK of travel today is by highway. In urban centers 98 per cent of the person miles are by motor vehicle; of the interstate flow of 1,130 billion passenger miles, 977 billion (or 96 per cent) is by automobile, plus another two per cent by bus. Of the 1,850 billion ton miles of goods moved, annually 430 billion or 23 per cent moves by truck.

Travel on the interstate alone has exceeded 11 trillion vehicle miles to date, equal to 23 million round trips to the moon.

Small wonder then that 3,144 miles of presently complete interstate highway will need additional improvement to bring it up to ultimate standards of indicated need, or that there is an urgent plea to enlarge the system.

THERE'S NO ARGUING that a marvelous job has been accomplished in the interstate and other programs under the 1956 Highway Act and its trust fund. But the signs are unmistakable that great pressure will be exerted this year to change this, to perhaps divert more of the user-tax from roads to such things as urban mass transit systems. That could be bad news for the interstate system, and for the safe, efficient and economical flow of inter-city traffic. It would be a tragedy to penalize the trust fund and interstate system for succeeding.

A Fighter Against Prejudice

The sound and fury of the Women's Liberation Movement is likely to be hardly more than a footnote in the history books, recognizing another fragment of protest in a fragmented and turbulent time. For a remarkable woman who fought all her life to liberate the unliberated from ancient prejudice and inhibition, there must have been wry laughter in the flamboyant attempt to deny the differences between the sexes.

FOR ALL the driving force she put into a variety of causes, including the rights of women, Mrs. Agnes Ernst Meyer kept throughout her career a fundamental common sense. She was a liberated woman who nevertheless understood the delicate balance between liberty and discipline, restraint and license, and, above all, what this balance means in the relationship between the sexes.

SHE WOULD not have been unsympathetic to certain of the goals of the Women's Lib movement, such as the sharing by husband and wife of household tasks. But she was too sensible to believe that anything a man can do a woman can do as well or better. Over the years, she helped put on the statute books laws protecting women from the exploitation common only a few decades ago.

IN THE RANGE of her interests, the arts, music, literature, painting and sculpture as well as public causes, and her ability to gratify these interests, Mrs. Meyer was exceedingly fortunate. Her husband, the late Eugene Myer, publisher and owner of the Washington Post, encouraged her in every opportunity to enlarge not only her horizons but those of the world around her. Forming with her husband the Agnes and Eugene Meyer Foundation, she helped to direct the gift of millions of dollars over the years to a wide variety of projects in public health and civic reform.

MRS. MEYER needed little encouragement. She was a self-starter, a force of nature that overrode all obstacles. It was a hazard to stand in her way, whether friend or foe, when she was in pursuit of a cause or striking out at one of the injustices about which she felt passionately.

The daughter of a Lutheran pastor in New York who inculcated in his family a reverence for learning, Mrs. Meyer gave unflagging time, effort and money to the betterment of the public schools. In 1962 she created the National Committee for the Support of the Public Schools. This was her personal endeavor, and she worked tirelessly in spite of illnesses that beset her in late years to arouse interest in the public school system.

AN EARLY champion of equal rights for Negroes, she had many lifelong friends among the black community. But here again, with her realism, her common sense, she could see the peril in far-out trends such as separatism that would inevitably set a large part of the white community against the blacks.

She would be the last person to say it, but in a sense her death marks the end of an era.

Law And Order Now Acceptable?

WASHINGTON — The returned vacationer long ago learned to be thankful for small favors, among which survival of the holiday interlude ranks high. This year he can be grateful for signs that extremism and violence may be losing their chic, and that even the phrase "law and order" could be emerging from disgrace.

There is, for example, Larry O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. O'Brien, one of our more decent citizens, has agreed with AFL-CIO President George Meany that extremists within the Democratic Party tend to alienate voters.

AND HUBERT Humphrey, bless his big, warm heart, finally has announced publicly that he is in favor of law and order.

Now O'Brien and Humphrey have always been opposed to extremism and cop-killing. But in the past they have seemed chary of admitting it, perhaps because the more fashionable politicians, complete with long sideburns and a penchant for sympathizing with campus brawlers, regarded such sentiments as square and Republican-like.

THEIR POSITION is significant mostly because — give or take a John Lindsay or a Teddy Kennedy — a bipartisan united front seems to be building up against the armed revolution that is upon us.

At any rate, one reflection of the national awakening was the raids by Philadelphia police on assorted headquarters of the Black Panthers in which three cops were wounded. That qualified as preventive medicine. The Panthers were planning a national convention in Philadelphia and there were indications they were arming for the occasion.

THE INDICATIONS proved accurate. Police confiscated 13 guns and 1,000 rounds of ammunition. Some of the weapons and ammunition were seized at a house used to register delegates to the convention. Your guess is as good as mine as to why a registration center should be so well stocked with arms — and barricaded with sand bags and cement blocks. Perhaps the relevancy, to use a with-it word, was explained by the fact that the walls were scrawled with the slogan, "Death to the Pigs."

MEANWHILE, back at J. Edgar Hoover's ranch, the name of Angela Davis was added to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted suspects. Allegedly, Miss Davis bought the guns used by militant blacks to bust up a trial in San Rafael, Calif., in which four human beings, including the presiding judge, were killed.

MISS DAVIS, an avowed Communist, taught at the University of California until the regents gave her the sack for advocating violent revolution. Although her lectures frankly politicized the university, a crime the academic liberals so bitterly assail, a bunch of faculty members raised a fund to pay her salary as a free-lance campus lecturer — to "preserve academic freedom" Today's good news is that by their silence Miss Davis' supporters seem to be having second thoughts about their fugitive.

And so it goes. That is to say, a kind of rude sanity seems to be returning to the land. Not all of us — not even the more hysterical among our intellectual masters on and off campus — are willing to stand still for armed revolution.

Commies Reported Waiting For Chance

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces have stepped up their attacks in the northern sector of South Vietnam, and the South Vietnamese commander for the area said today that up to 15 enemy regiments are waiting for a chance to advance into the populous coastal lowlands.

In three attacks southeast of Da Nang Tuesday and one to the north, enemy forces killed 38 South Vietnamese troops, three South Vietnamese civilians and one American, and wounded 16 Americans and 49 South Vietnamese. A total of 53 North Vietnamese were reported killed.

HEAD FOR CITY LIGHTS

The attacks indicated that some North Vietnamese units already had pushed out from the mountains toward the populated region.

The fighting began before dawn when about 200 North Vietnamese overran the Tra Bong District headquarters and a neighboring South Vietnamese Ranger camp 60 miles southeast of Dan Nang.

Fifteen hours later and 13 miles to the southeast, North Vietnamese troops fired about 85 mortar shells at an American artillery base called Stinson, then followed up with a ground assault that helicopter gunships and artillery helped beat back.

Enemy troops also attacked a militia outpost less than a mile east of Mo Duc, a district town 18 miles southeast of Quang Ngai City.

PUSHED BACK

North of Da Nang, North Vietnamese troops moving under cover of a mortar barrage attacked a South Vietnamese infantry battalion a mile southwest of embattled Fire Base O'Reilly. But South Vietnamese headquarters said government forces counteracted and repulsed the enemy.

The South Vietnamese commander of the 1st Military Region, Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, said up to 15 North Vietnamese regiments have been spotted in the sector waiting for opportunities to advance into the 200-mile stretch of coastal lowlands running from the demilitarized zone southward past Quang Ngai City.

Such a force would total more than 43,000 men at full strength, according to allied intelligence estimates, but informed sources said it is unlikely that all these regiments would be at full strength.

PRESTIGE PITCH

Lam predicted that the enemy troops would step up terrorist attacks to "bolster their lowering prestige." He claimed the Communist Command has failed in attempts to force South Vietnamese forces out of Fire Base O'Reilly and other bases in the region. He said the North Vietnamese 304th Division suffered heavy losses and pulled back to the Laotian border, while the 324B Division had been able to launch only "insignificant' shelling' attacks on O'Reilly and other bases in the region guarding the approaches to the coastal lowlands.

In Cambodia, the biggest government offensive of the war there, a drive to lift the siege of Kompong Thom, was reported stalled by cuts in the road to the provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh.

The government force left Skoun, about 50 miles south of Kompong Thom, on Monday, and was reported to have advanced only about six miles by today. "We will take our time and not hurry," a government spokesman said.

COMING HOME

A Cambodian patrol moved out of Kompong Thom Tuesday and clashed with some of the North Vietnamese encircling the town, the Cambodian Command said, but there were no reports of casualties.

The Cambodian Command also reported that an enemy battalion attacked a unit of Cambodian paratroopers Tuesday between Siem Reap and the town's airport, in northwest Cambodia near the Angkor Wat ruins. A spokesman said nine paratroopers and nine of the enemy were killed in a 9½-hour fight.

The reduction in American troop strength in Vietnam continued today as the U.S. Command announced inactivation of two Army units totaling about 1,000 men, the 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, and Company M, 75th Infantry. Both are part of the 199th Infantry Brigade, which is being deactivated.

CRACKED PLANE — This Delta Airlines DC9 cracked behind its wings on landing Tuesday night at Standiford Field, near Louisville, Ky. Fifteen of 94 aboard received minor injuries, the most serious a badly cut thumb. Airline officials had no immediate explanation for the mishap. Passengers said the plane's tires apparently burst on landing, the craft bounced into the air and then hit the runway hard.

Discrimination Here Charged

Without elaborating, Henry Munoz Jr., director of the human resources department of the Texas AFL-CIO, has cited "many abuses of Mexican-Americans in Big Spring, Abilene, Lubbock and other areas."

He did this in a telegram to Gov. Preston Smith to take the lead in doing away with what he called discrimination against minorities.

He challenged the governor's Aug 27 statement that the state makes no discrimination against Mexican - Americans and Negroes in jobs, education and administration of justice. Munoz contended that minorities got the crudest job opportunities and that they were "relegated to the mop and broom brigade."

Posse Schedules Open Playdate

Howard County Sheriff's Posse is having the first of three open playdays beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday in the new posse arena three miles west of Big Spring on the Andrews Highway.

The board of directors met Tuesday night to firm up plans for the events to be run. They will be poles, barrels, rings, potato and flags. Ribbons will be given through fifth place. Entry fee is 50 cents per event. American Association of Sheriff's Posses and Riding Clubs rules will be followed.

Five high point buckles will be given, one for each age group, at the end of the third playday. Dates for the second and third playdate have not been set. Buckles will be donated by Mr. and Mrs. T. Willard Neel, T. H. McCann, Gamble Bros. Paint Co., Cecial Allred, Ed Cherry, C. E. Airhart and A. G. Mitchell. All area clubs are invited to participate.

Easy Prey For Rustlers

CHICAGO (AP) — Truck-mounted cattle thieves are rustling millions of dollars worth of livestock each year in the Plains states, the Journal of American Insurance reports.

Usually, the publication says, thieves steal fewer than a dozen cattle at a time. But, it says, some insurance companies have reported policyholder losses of as many as 40 head.

The magazine says Iowa has the biggest cattle thief problem. The Iowa Department of Agriculture and Sheriffs Association estimate livestock theft losses at $3 million to $4 million a year.

Iowa, the nation's top cattle feeder, falls easy prey to rustlers because of its shrinking farm population. It is not unusual for one owner in the state to operate two or three scattered farms, it says.

It says understaffed law enforcement agencies in rural Iowa make it difficult to adequately patrol isolated herds.

Modern day rustlers have fast cars and trucks equipped with radios tuned to police networks.

Miles of four-lane interstate highways often enable the rustlers to make a quick-get away and out of the state before police even hear of a theft, the Journal says.

Free 'Pills' In Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The State of Alabama bought almost four million birth control pills last year and gave them free to women who could not afford to buy their own.

The pills were part of a $68,000 expenditure for contraceptive devices to help the medically indigent control the size of their families. The state less than six weeks ago ordered 50,000 more birth control pill dispensers — each one containing 28 pills — from a major drug manufacturer, paying 43 cents for each unit.

Distribution of the pill is a part of the state's family planning program, administered by the State Health Department's Bureau of Maternal and Child Health. The family planning program was begun in 1938 and now reaches about 65,000 indigent mothers or mothers-to-be. Both married and unmarried women are eligible.

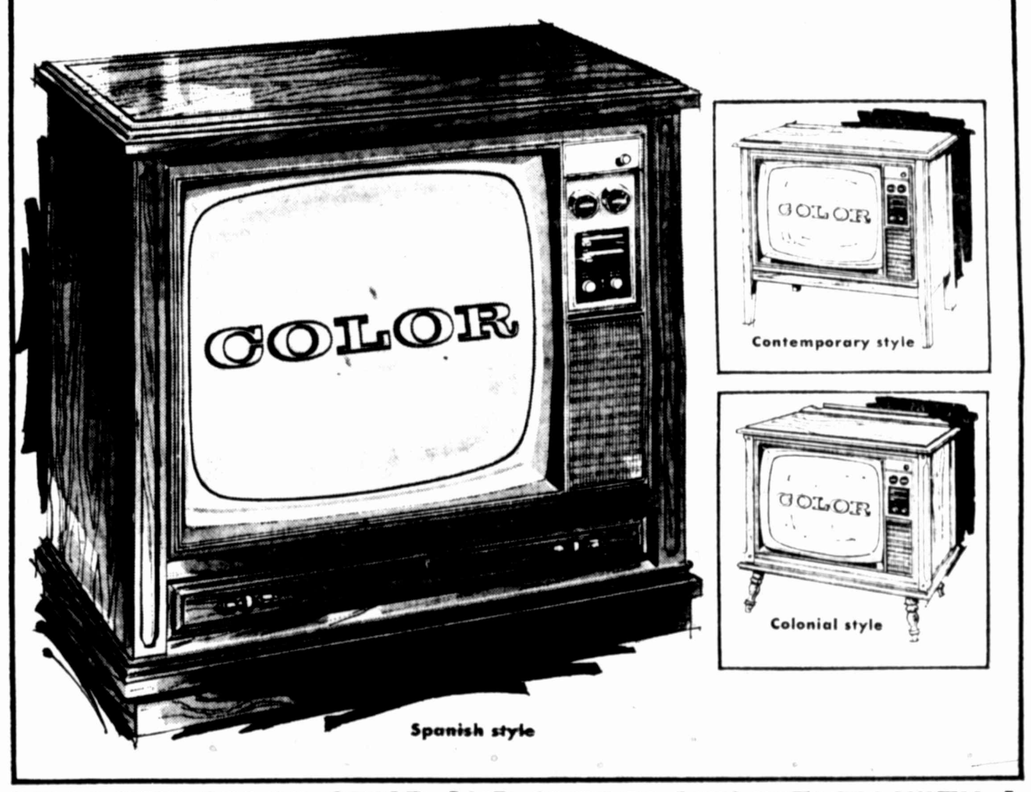

The bureau, under Dr. H. H. Klingler, is funded by the federal government. Klinger says it offers one of the most far-reaching family planning programs in the nation.

"We're not interested in population control," Klingler says.

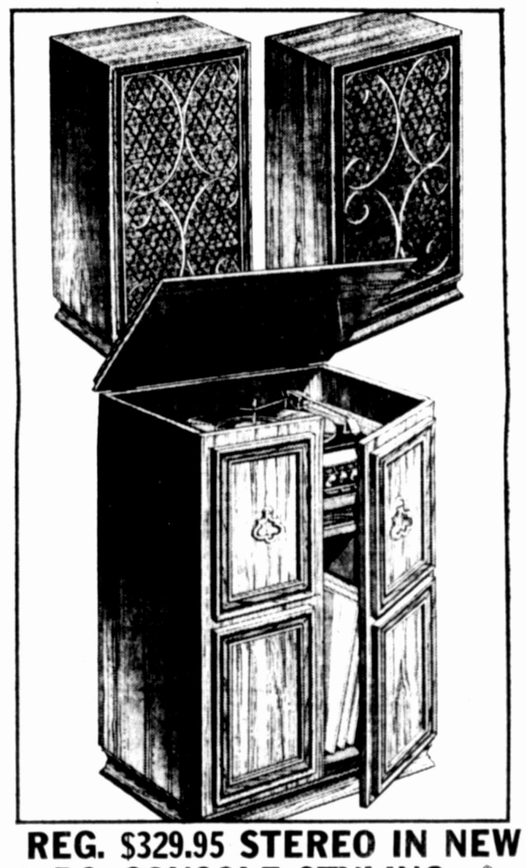

"We're thinking only of the health and well-being of the mother and child."

BUMPERS BUMPS FAUBUS IN ARKANSAS RACE

Cramer 'Creams' Carswell

By The Associated Press

Dale Bumpers, who emerged from the political obscurity of a country law practice, has won the Democratic nomination for governor of Arkansas, crushing the comeback campaign of former governor Orval E. Faubus.

And in Florida, Rep William C. Cramer captured the Republican nomination to the Senate, ending the bitter quest by G. Harrold Carswell for a seat in the chamber that denied him a place on the Supreme Court.

Carswell, whose defeat was expected, and Faubus, loser in a startling upset, were the big-name political casualties as eight states held primary elections Tuesday.

DOGPATCH MANAGER

The Arkansas runoff was surprising not only for the outcome, but for the towering proportions of the Bumpers victory.

With virtually all precincts counted, Bumpers had 257,385 votes to 181,089 for Faubus, who served six terms as governor, retired undefeated four years ago, and became manager of an amusement park called Dogpatch USA.

Bumpers campaigned with a promise of fresh, aggressive leadership—he seldom got more specific—and said Faubus had nothing new to offer Arkansas.

Bumpers, 45, and making his first bid for state office, will challenge Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller in the Nov. 3 election.

SURPRISING RACE

Nobody paid much attention to Bumpers, a lawyer from Charlestown, population 1,350, until he staged a surprising race and emerged second to Faubus in the first, eight-way primary. Faubus got 36 per cent of the vote in that one, far short of the majority required for nomination.

In other key races:

—Florida's flamboyant Republican Gov. Claude R. Kirk fell short of a majority in his renomination bid, and was forced into a Sept. 29 runoff against millionaire druggist Jack Eckerd. Kirk had 48 per cent of the vote, Eckerd 37 per cent, in a three-man field.

Atty. Gen. Earl Faircloth and Reubin Askew, a state senator, will meet in a runoff for the Democratic nomination for governor.

HOFF HUFFS, PUFFS

—Vermont Democrats nominated Philip H. Hoff, 46, a former governor, to run for the Senate against Republican Sen. Winston L. Prouty. Hoff had 22,530 votes, Fiore L. Beve, a conservative state senator, had 7,695 and William H. Meyer, a former congressman, had 3,932. Meyer also is running as the candidate of a liberal Democratic faction, and that could pry votes away from Hoff in November.

Prouty was unopposed for renomination, but he got more votes than anybody else on either primary ballot, and appears certain of the favorite's role in his race against Hoff.

—Gov. Walter Peterson of New Hampshire appeared to have narrowly withstood the renomination challenge of conservative Meldrim Thompson, a lawbook publisher. Roger Crowley Jr., a former state resources commissioner, won the Democratic nomination for governor.

—Patrick J. Lucey, a political associate of the Kennedys, captured the Democratic nomination for governor of Wisconsin, defeating Donald Peterson, once the national chairman of the liberal New Democratic Coalition.

SEAT AT STAKE

—Florida Democrats gave the Senate primary edge to former Gov. Farris Bryant, who had 220,070 votes, but Lawton Chiles, a state senator, got 177,919, and forced a Sept. 29 runoff for nomination to run against Cramer.

The Florida Senate seat at stake is being vacated by Sen. Spessard L. Holland, a Democrat, who is retiring. While Democrats outnumber Republicans 3 to 1 in Florida, the GOP is counting on capturing the seat in November.

Cramer heads into the general election campaign with a solid 63 per cent primary showing to bolster his standing.

He had 198,671 votes, with the tally nearly completed, Carswell had 109,156.

"I will never regret having made the fight," said Carswell, who resigned his lifetime tenure as a federal appeals judge for a campaign in which he charged the Senate put him through an inquisition before rejecting his nomination to the Supreme Court.

FANNIN IS CINCH

Elsewhere, Vermont's Republican Gov. Deane C. Davis swept to renomination with 80 per cent of the vote. Leo O'Brien Jr., a state senator, won the Democratic nomination to oppose him.

In Arizona, Sam Grossman, a Phoenix shopping center executive, won easily in a three-way race for the Democratic nomination to oppose Republican Sen. Paul J. Fannin. Grossman, 41, had a lead of better than 2-to-1 over nearest contender John Kruglick, a Phoenix pediatrician. Fannin, meanwhile, was unopposed for renomination.

Raul Castro, a Tucson attorney and former ambassador to Bolivia, also toppled two opponents en route to the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Arizona. He will face Republican Gov. Jack Williams, who was unchallenged in the primary.

There were no major nomination contests in Colorado and Utah, the day's other primary states.

CONCESSION — Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus, with his wife, Elizabeth, at his side, conceded defeat Tuesday night after falling hopelessly behind Dale Bumpers of Charleston in the runoff for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Seek 11th Hour Pay Pact To Avert Railroad Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration pressed today for an 11th hour wage settlement to avert a scheduled nationwide strike of some 500,000 railroad workers one minute after midnight tonight.

"We could have a strike," said Assistant Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery of the dispute between the nation's rail industry and four AFL-CIO unions.

"But they've each said they could postpone it if there is some meaningful progress," Usery said of the union negotiators.

He declined to say whether President Nixon would invoke his power under federal labor law to delay any strike for 60 days.

NO PROGRESS

Usery conceded there was no progress in four hours of government sponsored talks Tuesday, but added "that meeting was very worthwhile. I think it cleared the air."

He called both sides back into negotiations today.

But Harold Crotty, president of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, said after Tuesday's fruitless talks "We're further apart than when we started."

Retorted chief industry negotiator John P. Hiltz: "No, we couldn't be."

Hiltz said the unions' demands for three-year wage hikes of 40 per cent or more would bankrupt the industry. The workers now average about $3.50 per hour.

"I'd be putting my name to the liquidation of the railroad industry" by signing such wage agreements, Hiltz snapped.

He declined to say whether the railroads had made a counter offer, but union officials said there had been no industry wage offer.

300,000 WORKERS

In addition to Crotty's approximately 100,000 rail maintenance workers, the talks involve approximately 200,000 workers each in the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks headed by C. L. Dennis and the United Transportation Union headed by Charles Luna, and another 2,000 dining car workers represented by Vice President Richard Smith of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes.

"The talks are going nowhere," said Smith, who joined Dennis and Luna in reaffirming the strike deadline at 12:01 a.m. Thursday unless "meaningful" negotiations take place. Crotty has indicated a willingness to postpone the deadline, but also only if there are "meaningful" talks.

NIXON'S MOVE

Hiltz said the unions' wage demands alone would cost $2.2 billion over three years, compared with what he said was the entire industry's net operating revenue of $600 million in 1969 and only an annual rate of $350 million so far in 1970.

Usery said no decision had been made on whether Nixon would invoke a 60-day strike delay under the National Railway Labor Act in the latest dispute, but added that such a move could be made in a few hours if necessary to prevent a strike.

Rail Strike Background

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here in brief are the facts behind the threatened nationwide railroad strike:

When—the strike is scheduled at 12:01 a.m. local time Thursday by four AFL-CIO unions representing some 500,000 workers.

The issues—the unions are demanding a three-year wage hike of 40 per cent or more, plus cost-of-living pay and other benefits to put them on a par with increases won by other workers this year in trucking and airline industries. The rail workers now average about $3.50 an hour, have no cost-of-living pay.

Outlook for peaceful settlement—Assistant Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery said an agreement is possible if "meaningful" negotiations develop in talks called by the government.

Chances of a strike—slim; Congress has stepped in three times in the past seven years to impose settlement terms and there has been only one nationwide strike in the past 25 years—a two-day walkout in 1967. The White House, courts and Congress have frequently held the nation cannot endure a nationwide rail walkout. President Nixon still can invoke a 60-day strike delay under the Railway Labor Act.

City Budget Public Hearing Set Sept. 30

The city commission set Sept. 30 as the date for the public budget hearing on the city budget, but postponed action on the municipal employe retirement plan Tuesday night.

Commissioners will adopt a budget and formally approve the tax rolls for the 1970-71 fiscal year at the close of the public hearing.

The proposed budget includes general fund expenditures of $1,964,464. Available resources amount to $1,864,719 after addition of water and sewer revenues and subtraction of $80,000 for bond retirement and interest. This would give the city a negative balance of $99,745 at the end of the year, putting the city $62,164 farther into the red than it is this year.

The budget will not be printed this year until all figures are formally approved. The city commission voted to have the city manager make copies of the proposed budget already filed with the city secretary available at the hearing after George Zachariah pointed out that printing the budget now would give the impression that the budget cannot be changed.

The city commission tabled plans for increased retirement benefits for city employes when Zachariah asked for more time to study new sets of figures on city cost involved. He said agreement reached during budget planning sessions was based on much lower cost estimates.

David Brazel, former union official, urged a studious approach to changing the pension plan. Citing his own experience with pension negotiations, Brazel told the commissioners that proper re-funding of a retirement plan takes "a chunk of money" and calls for serious planning of desired benefit improvements.

Insists County Forced To Buy Unnecessary Insurance

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Sen. Oscar Mauzy says 16 counties were forced to buy unnecessary insurance coverage as a condition for getting liability insurance they needed under a new state law.

More than $27,000 in premiums for unneeded property damage policies had been paid.

The Texas Tort Claims Act of 1969 makes government bodies liable for death and injuries caused by careless use of motor-powered equipment.

There is no liability for property damage, and insurance board rules prohibit tie-ins, Mauzy said.

He mailed the State Insurance Board replies which the Senate committee to study the Texas Tort Claims Act had received to questions it asked county governments.

"In my opinion, the taxpayers of these counties are being required to 'pay tribute' to an insurance company in direct violation of your regulation and state law," Mauzy told the board.

Counties which reported they had been required to buy property damage policies as a condition to obtaining other liability coverage were Anderson, Denton, Ellis, Howard, Kerr, Nolan, Swisher, Yoakum, Wood, Sherman, Victoria, Johnson, Coke, Goliad, Kendall and Taylor.

Mauzy complained recently about similar charges made to school districts.

Not So Says Judge Porter

Howard County acquired property damage as well as liability insurance under the Texas Tort Claims Act of 1969 as a matter of precaution, not coercion, County Judge Lee Porter said Tuesday.

When the act became effective, the commissioners court called in the Big Spring Insurance Association, which handles county insurance business and asked for recommendations.

Responsibility was uncertain, said Judge Porter, and the association recommended property damage coverage as well as that for liability just to be on the safe side. The court concurred because there had been no rulings.

The course was so uncharted that rates had not been published. Howard County later received a $5,000 refund on premiums when the final rates were established. This had nothing to do with the property damage protection, which continues in force.

Rulings since have indicated that governmental units do not have to have the property damage insurance, certainly not as a condition for obtaining liability protection. Whether the commissioners court will want to continue the property damage in subsequent years is a matter to be decided, but Judge Porter said he doubted it would.

One Diphtheria Case Reported

A clinical diagnosis of one case of diphtheria has been made here, but a culture has been sent for laboratory study.

Health officials said they are watching the situation closely but awaited confirmation in lab reports before considering steps other than accepted precautions.

Dr. Henry Butler, director of the city-county health unit, saw no reason to push the panic button. "At this stage," he said, "something like a program of mass immunization doesn't seem to be indicated. Of course, as a matter of good public health, everyone ought to have his or her diphtheria immunization."

Fingerprints May Lead To Suspects

Fingerprints left at the scene of Sunday's armed robbery of a Coahoma cafe were sent to the Department of Public Safety Laboratories in Austin today for testing. According to Sheriff A. N. Standard, the test may establish evidence against three possible suspects.

The prints were flown to Austin this morning on the regular run of the DPS plane. Sheriff Standard expects to have the test results soon.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 50 and I am 66. Leonard looks his age, but thanks to good health, exercise and proper diet, I look younger than Leonard. We are still happy together after 30 years of marriage, and nobody knows my real age. (They assume I'm about Leonard's age.) Now my husband wants to reveal my real age in order to help his beloved nephew, who is 20 and wants to marry a 30-year-old woman. The family is strongly opposed to this marriage because of the woman's age, and they're telling him the marriage is doomed to failure. Leonard wants to point to our successful marriage to show them how wrong they can be. I do not wish to disclose my real age after 30 years. I would feel embarrassed and humiliated, especially before my 68-year-old mother-in-law who would suddenly learn that this devoted daughter-in-law is practically her own age.

I love our nephew and respect his lady friend who is a fine person, but I feel the cost to me for such a revelation would be too high. What do you think?

DAZED

DEAR DAZED: Feeling as you do, stick to your guns. To reveal your true age at this stage of the game probably wouldn't help your nephew's cause anyway. The family would probably say, "Yours is the exception to the rule" — which it very well could be.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My two sisters and one sister-in-law have eight kids among them, which is fine. I haven't any, which is also fine, since that's the way my husband and I want it.

I've got a great marriage and do lots of things the other girls can't do because of their kids, such as volunteer work in a hospital.

The problem is, they keep trying to stick me with their kids. I've told them that in case of an emergency (I don't consider an appointment at the beauty shop an emergency) I would baby-sit for them gladly. Today one of the girls dragged her two youngest over here, knowing I was home, and she asked me to watch them for an "hour." (Her hours have turned into whole afternoons.) It so happened I had plans of my own that day, and she was plenty put out when I turned her and her kids away.

I've suggested that the girls put their kids together, and take turns sitting for each other, but my suggestion fell on deaf ears. Their excuse, "Our kids don't get along with each other."

Abby, the girls read your column faithfully. Will you please inform them that some couples choose a childless lifestyle because they don't want to be tied down with children, and certainly not with somebody else's.

HARD HEARTED HANNAH

DEAR HANNAH: You've put it very well. Now all you need is the continued toughness to stick with your lifestyle.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Who, Me? A Mob Boss!

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Carlos Marcello denied Tuesday that he is a mob boss, a gambler, or anything else illegal.

The portly Metairie, La., millionaire, known to various law enforcement agencies as "the Little Man," testified tersely but freely before a state legislature committee invesigating organized crime.

Marcello specifically denied a Life magazine report that he had wielded a lot of influence in state government, particularly the State Revenue Department.

"No sir," he replied when asked if he knew Ashton Moulton, the state tax collector who was shifted to another job after the political uproar caused by the magazine article.

Marcello said he had made no political contributions to any candidate for governor.

Asked if he ever contacted the State Revenue Department about his own or any of his companies' taxes, he replied:

"I had my attorney or my accountant . . . probably he did—I never."

Asked if he had ever bribed any state official or officer to engage in any illegal acts, Marcello said, "No sir, absolutely not."

Earlier, Marcello had told the committee he was never paid a penny for land used in the construction of a levee across his 6,000-acre Churchill Farm in Jefferson Parish.

TML Executive Dies In El Paso

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The executive director of the Texas Municipal League, Stephen J. Matthews, 57, of Austin, died Monday while playing golf here.

Matthews dropped dead on the 16th green of the golf course of Coronado Country Club. He was pronounced dead at a local hospital.

The Texas Municipal League is made up of 653 Texas cities and towns and recommends its desires to the state legislature.

Matthews had been city manager at Pampa, Borger, Lubbock and San Antonio. He had held the TML post since 1958.

Funeral services are scheduled today in Austin.

SERVES HIM RIGHT — Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. gets service from his wife "Cubby" at their home near Washington despite his vote against constitutional amendment that would provide equal legal rights for women. The California Republican was one of 15 men in the House to vote against the measure.

To Pay $400 For Outhouses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says it will pay up to $400 per family to replace outhouses, destroyed by Hurricane Celia, with septic tanks or sewer lines.

The installations will be made at temporary trailer homes offered as shelter for persons whose homes were destroyed when the storm raked Corpus Christi.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., called the action by the Office of Emergency Planning a victory for the people.

The office's publicity chief, John Coleman, says the policy is not new in the government's disaster-related housing assistance program.

Raza Unida Party Seeks Spot On November Ballot

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Arguments were due before an appeals court today on a request seeking to force three county judges to place a Mexican-American third party on the November general election ballot.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

ADVOCATES EDUCATION PURGE — Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., advocated Wednesday that professors be purged from educational institutions if they "advocate the overthrow of our system of government" and "distort the perspective of young minds." Byrd's remarks were contained in a statement to the President's Commission on Campus Unrest.

A lawyer said today's hearing could provide a test of conflicting opinions issued in connection with the party by the Texas secretary of state and the attorney general.

The Raza Unida Party filed the mandamus action in the 4th Court of Civil Appeals here against the judges of Zavala, La Salle and Dimmit counties.

Mexican-American organized Raza Unida—united race—parties in the three Southwest Texas counties last spring, saying the Democratic and Republican parties there traditionally field only Anglo candidates.

SUBMIT PETITION

The groups said they submitted signed petitions to officials in each county asking that their candidates be listed on the November ballot.

Richard Clarkson of Odessa, lawyer for the Raza Unida group, said court action was sought after the three county judges delayed in deciding whether to place the party on the ballot in their respective counties.

In briefs filed with the appeals court, however, lawyers for the judges contended such decisions rest with the county clerk—not the county judge.

The clerks of the three counties involved are not named in the Raza Unida case.

The three judges' lawyers also challenged the mechanics of the parties' activities in nominating candidates and filing their petitions.

NO ELECTIONS HELD

Attorneys for La Salle County (Cotulla) Judge Robert Coquat argued that no precinct elections were held to elect delegates to the party's county nominating convention, although this is required by the state election code.

The other judges named in the case are Harold Dean, Dimmit County (Carrizo Springs) and Irl Taylor, Zavala County (Crystal City).

Attorneys for Judge Dean argued there were not enough signatures on the party's petition to be placed on the ballot in Dimmit County. They also contended that the party held precinct conventions in only two of the county's seven election precincts.

Clarkson, the Raza Unida lawyer, based most of his case on opinions issued by the secretary of state and the attorney general on similar third party efforts in Hidalgo County.

FIRST TIME

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin ruled that the petition asking that the party be placed on the November ballot was prematurely signed and filed before the current voting year, which began March 1, 1970.

The Hidalgo Party filed the petitions first on Jan. 29, then withdrew and refiled them May 1.

Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. disagreed with Martin's opinion, ruling that the petition should be accepted.

Hidalgo County Judge Milton Richardson accepted Dies' ruling.

"This might be the first time the court has been called on to decide between two different opposing viewpoints of the heads of two state agencies," Clarkson said.

Rotarians Induct Four Members

Four members were formally inducted into the Rotary club at the noon luncheon Tuesday.

The new members are Bharat Patel, Clarence Peters, Robert P. Patterson and Lanny Hamby. The induction was by Curtis Mullins.

Members of the Steer football squad were on hand and made brief remarks about the team and expressed optimisim about its chances this fall. Those speaking were Roddy Caffey, Mike Adams, Joe Chavez and James Miller. Coach Clovis Hale was unable to attend the meeting, and the team members were introduced by Ralph McLaughlin.

F. H. Talbott, president, announced a club assembly for 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Settles Hotel. There will be no noon meeting that day.

Mrs. Charles Beil provided dining music.

38 INCHES OF RAIN FELL IN THRALL, BIG CONTRAST

By The Associated Press

It was a lot drier everywhere in Texas today than over the central part of the state on this date 49 years ago.

Dusty records of the Weather Bureau yield the information that "the most intense rain in the continental United States" occurred Sept. 9, 1921, at Thrall, in Williamson County northeast of Austin.

The rainfall measurement then at the village of Thrall was 36.40 inches in 18 hours and 38.20 in 24 hours.

In sharp contrast, it was dry and hot throughout the state this morning with no big change in prospect.

There were a few showers and thunderstorms Tuesday from the Panhandle into West Central Texas. Occasional showers dotted some other areas, but the only measureable rains for the day were 1.04 inches at Wichita Falls and .20 at Alpine.

Tuesday's top temperatures ranged from 102 degrees at Laredo and 101 at San Angelo down to 87 at Galveston.

Forecasts call for a little cooler air to spread into the northern half of the state by Thursday and scattered showers to fall in most sections.

Couple Face Murder Raps

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — A Houston man and his wife were charged with murder in the Tuesday slaying of Clyde R. Rhoads, 46, of Tulsa, Okla.

Police said that Orlando P. Harp, 50, and his wife, Linda, 37, were charged in the motel room shooting. Rhoads was killed by five shotgun blasts fired at close range.

Also arrested was Bob Huff, who was charged with operating a gaming table in the motel. A companion, Eddie McNeely, also of El Paso, was charged as an accessory to murder.

Active Instructor Pilot Gets Viet Assignment

A T-38 Talon instructor pilot and section chief in academics at Webb AFB will be leaving this week to prepare for a tour in Southeast Asia.

Capt. Owen Wormser will attend water survival training at Holmstead AFB, Fla., before going to Vietnam. He began his military career in 1961 when he left the University of California to attend Navigational Aviation Cadet School at Harlingen AFB. He went to Electronic Warfare Officers School at Mather AFB, Calif., and was assigned as an instructor there for three years.

He joined Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 67-H, at Webb AFB in 1966 graduating in June 1967. He attended Pilot Instructor School at Randolph AFB and joined the instructor ranks at Webb.

Capt. Wormser has served as the wing information officer, military affiliate radio station officer, and has attended the squadron officers school while at Webb.

He has had artciles published in many service-oriented magazines, such as The Navigator Magazine, and most recently one of his articles was printed in the summer issue of the Air Force Instructor's Journal.

He was a project officer along with Maj. Phil Adams for Big Spring's recent Go-Kart races.

Mrs. Wormser is a teacher at St. Mary's Episcopal School and is president of the Officer's Wives Club at Webb. She is a past president of the Mu Zeta chapter of the Sigma Phi social sorority.

Local Woman Faces Abilene Drug Charges

Donna Anderson, 19, of 1211 Lloyd, is in custody in Taylor County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond. She was arrested and charged with possession of narcotics Saturday near Merkel in Taylor County.

Bond on Miss Anderson and a companion, Warren David Harrington, 36, Los Angeles, Calif., was orginally set at $10,000 each by Justice of the Peace Roy Buchanan. Miss Anderson's bond was lowered to $5,000 Tuesday by Justice of the Peace Roland Dunwoody.

Highway patrolmen stopped the pair for a routine traffic violation on IS 20, three miles west of Merkel. After stopping the car, patrolmen Kel Davis and Charles Poe found a quantity of pills and liquid drugs in the car.

Poe and Davis said they began a search of the car because Miss Anderson and Harrington "acted suspiciously." The officers also spotted several capsules on the front seat of the car.

A search of the car's trunk turned up a sack containing 51 syringes, small hospital bottles containing what Davis identified as demerol and nisentil, 300 capsules of amobarbital secobarbital, 400 capsules of sodium phenobarbital, one bottle of dilaudid sulfate and some unidentified yellow capsules.

Howard County grand jurors last Wednesday indicted Miss Anderson on two charges of narcotics violations. She is under indictment for conspiracy to possess a narcotic drug and possession of a narcotic drug.

Politicians Prospecting Where Voters Thickest

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Vote-hungry politicians spent Tuesday prospecting in Houston, where they are thickest.

Campaigning here were Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, his opponent, U.S. Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., and GOP gubernatorial candidate Paul Eggers.

Bentsen spoke at a downtown meeting where he said he opposes a proposal by the staff of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence that marijuana be legalized.

"We do not have all the information we should have about the effects of marijuana but we do know that they are harmful," Bentsen said.

"We need to know much more about the relationship of marijuana to hard narcotics since marijuana frequently is a stepping stone to use of the more dangerous drugs," he said.

Tuesday night Bentsen told the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Deer Park, a Houston suburb, that he favors "guaranteed opportunities" instead of a guaranteed income.

"I think we ought to guarantee all Americans the opportunity for a good education, the opportunity for a good job and the opportunity to go into business for themselves," he said. "We should guarantee them the opportunity to make a profit in any legitimate business."

Bush, speaking at a kickoff rally at his southeast district Harris County headquarters said the election of Republican candidates, such as himself, would help clean up what he called the nation's "fiscal mess."

"We now have an administration that wants to have the government live within its means," Bush said.

Divers Search

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Royal navy trainee divers plan a seabed search for the wreck of one of the world's first submarine disasters — in 1773.

The craft was built by a carpenter called J. Day who wagered he could spend 12 hours at a depth of 100 feet in the Plymouth sound.

Neither he nor the vessel, which should have resurfaced when ballast was jettisoned from a special false bottom, were seen again.

The divers, from the school of nautical archeology here, expect to find the submarine under a layer of silt.

A WAGON IN THE VEGA LINE — This is the "Kammback" wagon, one of four styles in the new Vega 2300 economy car line introduced by Chevrolet. Better handling than usual economy cars, Vega has a new domestic-built lightweight overhead cam engine to fill performance needs of American drivers. It gives impressive fuel economy with low exhaust emissions.

Vega Unveiled Thursday As Chevy's New Economy Car

Chevrolet puts on public display tomorrow the Vega 2300 — the small car it expects to become a leader in the economy market. The new mini-Chevy is presented at Pollard Chevrolet, 1501 E. 4th.

There is a full line of four models. They include a 2-door sedan, a 2-door hatchback coupe and a sporty 2-door "Kammback" wagon — all four-passenger models. There is also a unique one-passenger Vega panel express truck available with a second passenger seat.

With a wheelbase of 97 inches, an over-all length under 170 inches and a sedan weight of 2,190 pounds, the Vega is generally the same size as other economy cars but offers significant differences.

It is nearly eight inches lower and over four inches wider than the best selling foreign car. It has greater passenger room and trunk space. Its lower center of gravity and wider tread helps the Vega hug the road in American freeway driving.

Some of the Vega features:

Steel side-guard beams in the doors. Vega also has the other Chevrolet safety features for occupant protection, accident prevention and anti-theft.

Advanced double-panel roof construction for added strength and greater sound isolation.

New, more comfortable full foam molded seats front and rear with all-vinyl trim.

Flush, lift-up door handles and a radio antenna in the windshield add to Vega's aerodynamic body design.

A wide selection of transmissions is available with Vega's standard 90 horsepower and optional 110 horsepower engines. All transmission controls are floor mounted.

A 3-speed manual is standard and 4-speed manual is optional. Also available are Chevrolet's thrifty no-clutch Torque-Drive and the long proven Powerglide automatic transmission

The roomy Vega interior has vinyl-trimmed foam front bucket seats with built-in head restraints and bucket-styled foam rear seats on all models except the one-seat panel express truck.

Deeply sculptured door and sidewall trim panels are molded of durable, soil resistant plastic. Pull-out door handles are recessed in the panels.

FEM BREAKS SEX BARRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. Y., has broken the sec barrier — among its faculty at least.

Isobel Milligan Kelly, a professor of computer science, has become the academy's first female professor.

Alan Berg's Dad Reveals Death Threat

ANGLETON, Tex. (AP)—One of Alan Berg's employes threatened to kill Berg shortly before Berg disappeared in 1968, the slain man's father testified here Tuesday.

He goes back on the stand today for the third day of testimony.

Charles V. Harrelson, 32, of Houston is on trial, charged with murdering Berg in 1968, then dumping his body in Brazoria County where it was found five months later.

Harrelson's lawyer, Percy Foreman of Houston, has tired to prove that several other persons are better suspects in the case.

Sandra Sue Attaway, Harrelson's one-time mistress, has testified she saw Harrelson kill the 32-year-old executive.

Berg's father, Nathan S. Berg, 58, said he was not present when the death threat was made but was told of it by other employes of the carpet firm in which he and his son were partners.

"He threatened to kill Alan," Berg said of the incident. "He threw a carpet sample completely across the room when Alan told him he was fired."

Under questioning Berg said a split had occurred between father and son at one time. Berg said he and his son often quarrelled in loud tones and sometimes hung up telephones on each other but said there was never any violence between them or throwing of objects.

BLACK SKIPPER IS NO 'SANTA'

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Navy's senior Negro line officer, Capt. Sam Gravely Jr., says, "I command a ship, not manage it. That's what the sailors want."

Gravely, 47, commands a mostly white crew aboard the missile frigate USS Jouett, now at Long Beach. He says all his crewmen "have a good idea what will happen on mast court-martial cases and a 'Santa Claus' skipper can lose respect in a hurry."

Radioman Seaman Ed Reyes of Wilmington, Calif., said he was "curious to see what would happen when Capt. Gravely took over." The crew soon found out the skipper "treated everyone the same" and now, three months after assuming command, the Jouett is "a happy ship," Reyes said.

"My job is being a naval officer," Gravely said in a recent interview. "If I could not live up to it, I would not be here today. People on the ship can be vitally affected by what I do. That is what I think about every day."

'Georgie' Next For Bob Hope

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hope has been named "Entertainer of the Year" by the 10,000 members of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

He will be presented with a "Georgie," a golden statuette named for the late entertainer George M. Cohan, on a special Ed Sullivan television show Sept. 20, AGVA president Danny Thomas said Monday.

Other winners: Male musical star, Tom Jones; female musical star, Barbra Streisand; male comedy star, Flip Wilson; female comedy star, Carol Burnett; musical group, Blood Sweat and Tears; rising star, Melba Moore; novelty or circus act, the Flying Alexanders; animal act, Tanya the Elephant; outstanding production, Radio City Music Hall.

'THE NAMES I'VE BEEN CALLED'

Poor Man's Bishop Tied To Militant Factions

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Bishop Humberto S. Medeiros, appointed to succeed Richard Cardinal Cushing as Archbishop of Boston, is a poor man's bishop who only wants to be a better priest.

Wearing a simple black cassock, with no hint of purple to denote his bishop's rank, he said Tuesday:

"I'm nothing but a priest, a simple priest. I want to be a better one."

Medeiros, 54, lives like the humblest in his poverty-stricken South Texas diocese of Brownsville. Each summer some 50,000 among nearly a quarter-million in his flock leave home to follow the harvests. The bishop goes along too. He travels five Midwestern states, visiting the migrant workers, holding field masses in the open air.

BEGS FOR POOR

He returned from just such a trip two weeks ago. Then, as in other years, he was off again—this time to Cape Cod, "begging for the poor of my diocese."

"Every year I go back to New England and beg at Sunday masses for the diocese," he says "Usually, Catholics there give $8,000 or $9,000."

The Portuguese-born Medeiros lives like a monk in a single room of what used to be the Brownsville bishop's palace. The rest of the building, now called Bethany House, is converted to a dormitory for visiting priests.

Three mornings a week the bishop's door stands wide to visitors. The first thing they glimpse on the wall, among pictures of Our Lady of Guadalupe and a Black Madonna, is a Peanuts poster saying: "The man whose sickness is Jesus can never be cured."

SOLD LIMOUSINE

He sold the bishop's limousine and uses a three-year old sedan to drive around.

The Brownsville area is overwhelmingly Mexican-American and the Bishop has openly identified with militant factions.

"If Christ lived today, do you think he would cut himself off from the MAYOs (Mexican-American Youth Organization) or the Black Panthers?" he said. "He might not approve of everything they were doing, but he wouldn't isolate himself from them."

The latest storm Medeiros raised was when he recently wrote a welcoming letter to Cesar Chavez of the United Farm Workers, who announced plans to visit the Rio Grande Valley.

"Santos Dios, the names I've been called," the Bishop said, running a hand through his graying dark hair. "But these are well-meaning people. . .They just don't know any better."

PAID 62 CENTS A DAY

Humberto Medeiros was born in 1916 in the Azores, a mid-Atlantic group of Portuguese islands. In 1931, at the age of 15, he came to the United States.

He spoke no English and, while he learned it, worked as sweeper in a textile factory for 62 cents a day. But when he got to high school, he finished the four year course in two. After a spell in a design school, he decided to become a priest. University education followed in Washington and Rome. After serving as parish priest in Falls River, Mass., he became bishop of Brownsville in 1966.

Today the bishop speaks seven languages. He was listed in last January's edition of The Critic as one of 12 bishops who are "the hope of the Catholic Church in the United States."

He didn't like being described that way.

"How can one man or 12 men be the hope of the Church?" he asked. "We are all the hope of the Church."

Crude Bombing Leads Vanish

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Police said they had no leads on a crude bombing which damaged a restaurant Monday which caters to Houston's hippie community.

A bomb, which firemen said was black powder stuffed into a piece of pipe was set off early Monday and blew the front door off the Family Hand cafe here.

The manager of the cooperative restaurant, Mike Combray, was sleeping in an apartment above the cafe when the explosion rocked the building.

Mets In Position To Assume Charge

By The Associated Press

It was one year ago today that the New York Mets swept a twi-night doubleheader and, for the first time in their adventurous young lives, moved into first place in the National League's East Division.

A combination of circumstances, some of it their own doing and much of it Pittsburgh's and Chicago's, has placed the Mets in a position to celebrate that anniversary on top of the heap again—provided they can sweep another twi-nighter.

New York moved to within one-half game of the first place Pirates Tuesday, whipping Montreal 10-5 while third place Chicago, only one game behind, walloped Pittsburgh 10-3.

TWO IN PHILLY

The Mets, who've won four straight and seven of the last nine, play a twi-night doubleheader against Philadelphia tonight while the Pirates entertain St. Louis. A sweep by the Mets would assure them of at least a share of the lead, regardless of what the Pirates do. Chicago played an afternoon game against Montreal.

Elsewhere in the National League Tuesday, St. Louis whipped Philadelphia 6-3, Houston outlasted San Diego 8-7, Atlanta edged Los Angeles 3-2 and Cincinnati tripped San Francisco 5-2.

In the American League, Kansas City bombed California 12-0, Milwaukee nipped Minnesota 3-2, Baltimore downed Detroit 6-3, New York took Washington 7-3 and Boston nipped Cleveland 4-3. Chicago and Oakland had the day off.

The Mets exploded for six runs in the eighth inning against the Expos with Ken Boswell's bases-loaded double driving home three and reliever Tug McGraw's bases-loaded single producing three more.

McGraw worked five strong innings of relief to nail down the victory but needed ninth inning help from Ron Herbel after Bob Bailey tagged a three-run homer for Montreal.

The Pirates, meanwhile, who've been out of first place only two days since July 11, absorbed another whipping from the Cubs.

Bill Hands scattered eight hits and Chicago collected 15 including three each by Randy Hundley, who drove in three runs, and Ron Santo, who drove in two. Joe Pepitone had a two-run triple and the Cubs also took advantage of 10 bases on balls issued by Pittsburgh pitchers.

The Pirates have dropped nine of the last 14 while Chicago has soared into contention by winning eight of the last 11.

CARLTON ON BEAM

Steve Carlton pitched a four-hitter and contributed two timely hits to St. Louis' attack as the Cardinals hung on to third place in the East by whipping Philadelphia.

Carlton doubled and scored the Cards' go-ahead run in the seventh and then singled home an insurance run in the ninth. Rich Allen homered for St. Louis while Deron Johnson and Joe Lis connected for the Phillies.

Doug Rader and Bob Watson drove in three runs apiece as Houston hung on to beat San Diego. Rader had two singles and his 21st homer and Watson ripped two singles.

Nate Colbert and Clarence Gaston on each tagged two-run homers for the Padres.

Orlando Cepeda ripped a three-run homer in the first inning and that was all George Stone needed as Atlanta bested Los Angeles.

Cepeda's homer was his 34th of the season and Stone made the runs stand up with a seven-hitter for his 11th victory. Bill Grabarkewitz homered for LA.

Bobby Tolan's bases-loaded double drove in three runs in the second inning, leading the Reds past the Dodgers.

Ray Washburn picked up the victory with seven innings of sharp relief after taking over for Jim Merritt, who strained his pitching elbow in the first inning. Merritt is not expected to miss a pitching turn.

OOPS — Dennis Ralston, of Bakersfield, Calif., is either wiping his mouth after taking soft drink or he can't contain his pleasure after defeating top-seeded Rod Laver, of Australia, at Forest Hills, N.Y., Tuesday. Ralston beat Laver 7-6, 7-6, 6-7, 4-6, 6-3, to advance to quarterfinals of the U.S. Open championship where he will meet Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex.

Dizzy Dean never felt it hurt his bargaining power to be a motor mouth. In times of strife, too, he talked a good fight but he didn't relish the thought of being at odds with Joe Medwick.

Dean thought Medwick fought unfairly.

"Durndest guy I ever seen," Diz recalled, long after his playing days were over. "Before you even got to do enough talking to get really mad enough to fight, Medwick would pop you and it'd all be over."

Warren Woodson, a man long noted for his explosive offensive machines in football, this summer promised Trinity University buffs a team long on fire power.

The manner in which Trinity has been performing in workouts had led observers to believe that they can cash in Woodson's IOU's. The Tigers look capable of scoring from any point combat takes place during the 100-yard war.

Gene Offield, the former Big Springer, in name is the head coach of Trinity but there's no doubt but that Woodson will be the master puppeteer. Apparently Warren doesn't want the fuss and feathers that go along with the job.

The one-time Hardin-Simmons coach gave New Mexico State its greatest and most colorful clubs. He may yet do the same for Trinity.

If the New York Yankees keep retiring numbers of famous players, they'll one day have to use a combination of numbers and letters to identify their players.

They've already made untouchable the numerals worn by Babe Ruth (3), Lou Gehrig (4), Joe DiMaggio (5), Mickey Mantle (7) and Casey Stengel (37).

Cut Paul Petterson's veins and he'd bleed green and gold. A mortician by trade, he lives and dies with Baylor's Bears, who have been romancing defeat for all too long now.

Petterson wanted to sue for peace one day recently. At a time he was trying to rationalize the defeat of the Dallas Cowboys at the hands of Houston, he was jolted with news that Baylor had lost one of its most valued linebackers (Tom Bambrick) and Big Spring had been staggered by the departure of two quarterbacks (Dave Duncan and Alan Davis).

With some people, misfortunes come as single anarchists. With Paul they arrive in battalions.

"Baylor won't lose 10 games this season," Paul is now saying. What could be regarded as a utopian outlook is in fact a new coating of Petterson cynicism, however. His beloved Bears have booked 11 opponents.

Cuppers Play Australians In U.S. Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — It's the U.S. Davis Cup team —coach and players—against Australia leading into the quarter finals of the U.S. Open Championships, and there's a hint the pendulum may be swinging away from Aussie monopoly of the big time tennis.

Among the last eight survivors in the men's singles, there are four Yanks. There are only three Australians, menacing as they are, and a lone New Zealander, unseeded, unnoticed and unfeared.

"Training for the Davis Cup helped us all," said Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., the U.S. coach. "We worked hard. We hit a lot of balls. We shipped ourselves into top physical shape and tuned our games."

LAVER OUSTED

It was Ralston, 28, contract pro, once the boy wonder of tennis, who pulled off the greatest coup Tuesday when he ousted Rod Laver of Australia, the defending champion and top-seeded favorite, 7-6, 7-5, 3-7, 4-6, 6-3.

"It was my biggest win ever," said Ralston, who ranked No. 1 nationally for three straight years from 1964 through 1966 yet never won a major title.

Ralston was joined later in the quarter-finals by tough, scrappy Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., who was voted the most valuable player in America's Davis Cup victory over West Germany at Cleveland 10 days ago. They play next.

Richey overcame some early rustiness and beat Manuel Santana of Spain, former Wimbledon and U.S. winner, 2-6, 7-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Already in the quarter-finals waiting for them were two other Davis Cup members, Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., who upset Australia's Roy Emerson, and Arthur Ashe Jr. of Richmond, Va., who won the inaugural U.S. Open in 1968.

Today Smith plays Rosewall, the 35-year-old Australian, who once was the best player in the world, and Ashe goes against Wimbledon champion John Newcombe. Newcombe is seeded No. 2 and Rosewall No. 3.

Oklahoma Sooners Face Stern Test Saturday

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma's new-look Sooners, long on talent but short on experience, are hoping to grow up in a hurry in Dallas' Cotton Bowl Saturday night.

The Sooners will pit their new triple-option offense and their new pro-type defense against Southern Methodist and Chuck Hixson. It promises to be a stern test for the fuzzy-cheeked Oklahomans.

The depth chart at the beginning of practice this week listed a total of only four seniors on the top offensive and defensive units. There were 10 juniors, six sophomores and two junior college transfers.

But the youngsters are big and fast, and Oklahoma fans are beginning to get excited about them.

"We have some great talent," says Coach Chuck Fairbanks, "the best and the most speed we have had. It's just a question of getting it all together.

Heading the list is junior quarterback Jack Mildren. A schoolboy star at Abilene, Tex., Mildren started every game as a sophomore and rolled up 1,004 yards running and passing. He threw 10,000 passes this summer to strengthen his arm, and looks to be on the verge of stardom.

A host of fleet running backs and receivers will be taking the handoffs and throws from Mildren. Among them are Roy Bell, Everett Marshall, Joe Wylie, Jon Harrison and Greg Pruitt. All have outstanding speed.

The defensive standout is 240-pound senior tackle Kevin Grady, who made 16 tackles against Texas last year.

But the Sooners' defense was their weak spot last year, giving up nearly 30 points a game. Fairbanks is optimistic some of the problems have been solved.

"I don't think we will have a great defense," he says, "but I think it will be much better than last year."

Few Breathers Noted In College Openers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Where, oh where, have the breathers gone? Not for the big-time football schools—for the forecasters.

Things have reached a fine state when a fearless forecaster, still keeping one eye on the baseball scene, is faced with an early opening of the college football scene that lists such standout attractions as Stanford-Arkansas, Southern California-Alabama, etc.

The first major game is set for Friday night in St. Louis between Baylor, winless in 10 games a year ago and doormats of the Southwest Conference, and Missouri, defending co-champions of the Big Eight. Saturday, Sept. 12, lists almost 40 more major games. Sept. 12. Where have you gone, Joe DiMaggio?

Missouri was rated 11th in The Associated Press preseason poll and 11 other ranking teams — there was a three-way tie for 20th — will be in action Saturday. Top-ranked Ohio State takes things easy until Sept. 26 while No. 2 Texas, the 1969 national champs, kicks off its season Sept. 19.

A NATURAL

Stanford vs. Arkansas at Little Rock — This is the first national TV game of the season and matches two super quarterbacks in Stanford's Jim Plunkett and Arkansas' Bill Montgomery. Plunkett is rated the equal of No. 1 pro draft pick Terry Bradshaw as a passer and they don't come any more poised than Montgomery.

Both QBs have good supporting casts — tight end Bob Moore, center John Sande and defensive tackle Dan Tipton of Stanford; split end Chuck Dicus, tailback Bill Burnett and defensive end Bruce James of Arkansas.

In the preseason poll, Montgomery's Razorbacks were fourth, Plunkett's Indians 10th. Coach Frank Broyles jokes that he put Stanford on the schedule as Arkansas' 11th game so his players wouldn't look ahead to Texas. A flip of the coin discloses that Rick Kersey, Arkansas' fine defensive lineman, is hurt and the pick is. . . Stanford.

Southern California vs. Alabama at Birmingham — The third-ranked Trojans are bidding for a fifth consecutive trip to the Rose Bowl while 'Bama is trying to bounce back from a miserable — for them — 6-5 season. Look for USC's rugged defense to harass Alabama quarterback Scott Hunter just enough for the winner to be. . . Southern Cal.

Wake Forest at Nebraska — Bob Devaney's Cornhuskers have two good quarterbacks and look solid everywhere. With room to spare. . . Nebraska.

EIGHTEEN NAMES PROJECTED FOR STEER HALL OF HONOR

Eighteen persons have been nominated for places in the Steer Hall of Honor, president Glenn Whittington of Hurst, president of the Big Spring Ex-Lettermen's association, announced this morning.

No more than four likely will be enshrined in this year's ceremony, which will take place at a football game here sometime in October.

The 18 whose names have been projected for the Hall of Honor are Frank Barton, Obie Bristow, Arlis Davis, Tack Dennis, Jim (Tiny) Ellison, Bobby Jack Gross, Amos Jones, B. B. Lees, Jan Loudermilk, Tommy McAdams, Emmett McKenzie, Dickie Milam, Cliff Patton, Athol Porter, Frank Segal, Charley Warren, Charley West and Lou Burchett Wright.

Voting by the membership will take place later this month.

Rooker Cools It, Wins For Royals

By The Associated Press

Pitching a no-hitter crossed Jim Rooker's mind for a brief instant but the Kansas City lefthander quickly dismissed any such notion when he remembered the night of June 4.

The 27year-old fireballer retired the first 16 California batters before Joe Azcue snapped the string with a single and Rooker had to settle for a neat three-hitter as the Royals trounced the Angels 12-0 Tuesday night.

"The no-hitter came to my mind but I didn't let myself get concerned by it," said the Royals' second-year man.

"I had a no-hitter for eight innings on June 4 and not only didn't I get it, I wound up losing the game. Tonight I wasn't going to worry about it." said the 6-foot, 190-pounder, who upped his record to 9-15.

On June 4th at New York, Rooker held the Yankees hitless until Horace Clarke opened the ninth with a single. The Yankees tied it in that inning and eventually won it 2-1 in 12 innings.

Rooker, in his last start, dropped a 1-0 decision to the Angels but said the difference this time was his control. "Everything was working."

He didn't walk a batter and struck out seven.

The Royals backed him with a 17-hit attack, including four hits apiece for Bob Oliver and Lou Piniella as the Angels fell to their fifth straight loss.

In other American League contests, Baltimore topped Detroit 6-3, Milwaukee edged Minnesota 3-2, New York tripped Washington 7-3 and Boston nipped Cleveland 4-3. The Oakland A's and Chicago White Sox were idle.

Boog Powell drove in three runs with a two-run homer and single and Frank Robinson slugged a homer in the Orioles' triumph, sending Mickey Lolich to his 17th defeat. The left-hander has won 12.

Phil Roof clubbed a two-run, two-out homer in the ninth inning, giving the Brewers their victory and stopping the Twins winning streak at five. Tony Oliva had his 21st homer for the Twins.

The Yankees drilled 16 hits, including three by Roy White and Ron Hansen as the New Yorker's took their fifth straight. White drove in three runs with a pair of triples and a single and scored twice.

Pitcher Ken Brett slammed a solo homer in the eighth inning, snapping a 3-3 tie in the Red Sox victory. Rico Petrocelli and Joe Lahoud also homered for Boston while Buddy Bradford had a three-run shot for the Indians.

Fans Can Buy Game Tickets

Season ticket holders had first chance at reserve seat tickets for the Big Spring-Lubbock Monterey football opener, which takes place in Lubbock's Lowery Field at 8 o'clock Friday night.

The ducats, priced at $2 each, went on sale at the school business office this morning.

Those not sold today will be made available to the general public at 8:30 a.m. Thursday. They will remain on sale until Friday afternoon.

The seat locations are on the east side of Lowery Field, which is located at the south edge of Lubbock not far off US Highway 87.

Student tickets for the game, available at the high school, cost 50 cents each, if purchased in advance.

City Tournament Opens This Week

QUARTERBACK CLUB OFFERS IT FRIDAY

How About Breakfast For Quarter A Pop?

Breakfast at depression-day prices will be offered Friday to adults who follow the fortunes of the Big Spring Steers.

The Quarterback Club is trying to get a good representation of football buffs to break bread with the gridders the morning of the Big Spring-Lubbock Monterey game. It plans to prepare the meal in the kitchen at the Wesley Methodist Church, 1206 Owens, at a cost of 25 cents per plate.

The QBC certainly doesn't expect to make any money with those kind of prices but it hopes not to lose too much.

The doors to the dining hall will open at 7 a.m. and will remain open for an hour.

QBC co-captains Harroll Jones and Paul Shaffer said they hoped to stage the breakfasts throughout the season. The players under Texas Interscholastic League rules will be required to pay the 25 cents, too.

"We're expecting 40 players there," Shaffer said at last night's meeting of the QBC, "we hope to have at least that many adults. Women, of course, will be welcome. Some of our own members will prepare the food. We want the fans to get to know the players and the players to know the fans."

* * *

A brief scouting report on Monterey was offered by Glenn Petty to QBC members Monday night.

Petty said Monterey had one of the biggest clubs he'd seen, a hard-to-contain fullback in the 215-pound Randy Barnett, an able quarterback in Billy Sorrels and a defense that is hard to run against.

Monterey has a 205-pound center in Jim Upshaw and a 220-pound guard in Jim Webb. He expressed some doubt that the weights were true, that the boys appeared to be bigger.

Sorrels is a runner very adept at pulling out quickly and going around end, doubly deadly because he can also throw the ball.

Barnett is not only a fine runner but a good blocker, Petty stated.

* * *

Clovis Hale, head coach of the Steers, appeared only briefly at the meeting. His wife had given birth earlier to a seven pound, seven ounce boy who has been named Dustin Ray.

Hale did have time to pay tribute to the effort the Steers put up against Sweetwater in last week's scrimmage and lauded the scouts for putting in long hours in preparing their reports.

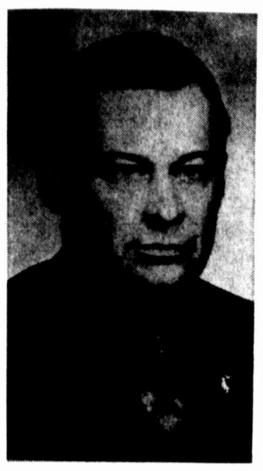

"Without them," Hale stated, "we wouldn't know what to expect."

* * *

It was announced by QBC officers that the Steers would start attending church in a group at College Baptist church, 11th and Birdwell Lane, at 11 a.m. Sunday and would visit a different house of worship each Sunday.

Attendance, Shaffer emphasized, was strictly on a voluntary basis.

Bold Gold and Gold Rush 70 stickers are available here at all the banks and at radio station KBST.

DALE MARCY

Famed Archer In Show Here

Dale K. Marcy, archery representative for the Shakespeare Sporting Goods Division, Kalamazoo, Mich. will be on hand at Gibson's Discount Store, Friday and Saturday.

Marcy, one of the world's leading archery trick shot artists will talk, answer questions and show his company's products along with his trick shot demonstrations.

Dale became interested in archery while serving with the Navy in Japan and started to shoot seriously when he returned to the States. Making his advocation his vocation, Marcy continued his archery career by working for several different manufacturers as a bowyer, assistant supply manager for a manufacturer of automatic lanes, a lane operator and as a sales representative.

Dale has several championships to his credit and bowhunted for many types of wild game. In 1963 through 1965 he held first place for his caribou in the Pope & Young records.

Oilers Cut Seven To Meet Deadline

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Today the Houston Oilers will be saying goodby to seven of their players as the National Football League team cuts down to 44 players.

Actually, the team cut the players Tuesday, but no public announcement of who was cut was made by the organization.

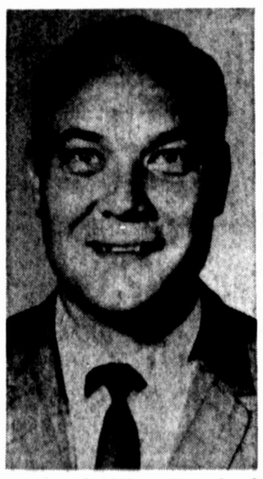

"We are waiting for waivers to clear before we announce them," a club official said.

The Oilers plan another workout today in preparation for their last pre-season game of the year this weekend with the Eagles at Philadelphia.

Two Sign Pacts

BOSTON (AP) — Right winger John McKenzie and goalie Ed Johnston are the first members of the Boston Bruins to sign new contracts for the 1970-71 National Hockey League season.

The Stanley Cup champions announced the signings Tuesday, adding that several other players have also agreed to terms, with only the formality of the actual signing remaining.

HEAD COACH — New head coach of the Stanton Buffaloes this season is Bill Young (above), formerly of Van Horn. The Buffaloes open play at home Friday night against Tahoka.

Kapp, Vikes Not Talking

By The Associated Press

The music goes on and on between Joe Kapp and the Minnesota Vikings.

Kapp still is looking for the silver lining . . . and the Vikings continue to make their gold line stand.

"No developments" is the reported situation in Kapp's prolonged contract dispute with the club.

"I haven't had one word, direct or indirect, since the Vikings' general manager, Jim Finks, sent his ultimatum telegram six or eight weeks ago," said Kapp's attorney, John Elliot Cook,

Kapp, 33, whose quarterbacking led Minnesota to the National Football League championship in 1969, reportedly has been asking for a $1.25 million contract over five years. But the Vikings have steadfastly refused his demands.

Kapp played out his option last year and is free to deal with any pro team. Cook confirmed Tuesday that Kapp has been in Vancouver, B.C., but said the trip had no significance. Kapp formerly played in the Canadian Football League.

"At present, Joe is sort of gypsying around, sometimes in Vancouver, sometimes in Los Angeles, sometimes in Lake Tahoe, Nev. There's not a great deal to occupy him at the moment."

Cook said he would meet soon in San Francisco with the free-wheeling quarterback, but declined elaboration.

Elsewhere in football, the Buffalo Bills placed quarterback James Harris on waivers and the 6-foot-4 signal caller apparently decided he was through as a professional.

Harris, a Grambling product, failed to show up for the Bills' regular practice Tuesday. He had been counted on to take over for Jack Kemp, who quit football to run for Congress.

The Green Bay Packers traded Francis Winkler, a three-year offensive lineman, to the Atlanta Falcons for Ken Mendenhall, a rookie center.

Cleveland swapped defensive tackle Marvin Upshaw to Kansas City for an undisclosed high draft choice.

Running back Les Josephson of Los Angeles suffered a broken jaw in practice Tuesday and will be sidelined indefinitely.

Packer Ex Set For His Debut

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Cornerback Herb Adderley, acquired two weeks ago in a trade from the Green Bay Packers, sees his first action as a Dallas Cowboy Sunday night in a National Football League preseason game with the New York Jets in the Cotton Bowl.

The 31-year-old Adderley will fill the left corner while rookie Mark Washington, beaten on a touchdown bomb in the 13-0 loss to Kansas City last week, will anchor the right corner.

Veteran Mel Renfro will move from cornerback to his old job at free safety and former cornerback Cornell Green will stay at strong safety for the second consecutive week.

Coach Tom Landry said "I want to see this group work together this week" but added the Cowboys would not necessarily open the season Sept. 20 in Philadelphia with the same secondary.

Other changes include Ron East at Defensive tackle for Jethro Pugh, Dennis Homan at wide receiver for Bob Hayes and Walt Garrison at fullback for Les Shy.

Landry said Craig Morton will start at quarterback.

John Disosway Is First In Webb Club Tourney

John Disosway fired rounds of 77 and 69 for a 36-hole score of 146 to capture championship flight honors in the Club Championship tournament at Webb during the Labor Day weekend.

Fifty-eight golfers participated in the two-day tourney, which was divided into five flights. Competition was divided into the championship flight (playing scratch) and four other flights (playing handicaps).

The tournament concluded Monday night with a buffet and awards presentation at the Noncommissioned Officers Open Mess. Colonel Anderson W. Atkinson, presented awards to the winner and runner-up in each flight, with a special award going to the individual who carded the lowest net score in each flight.

Jerry Clements, who hold the Webb course record with a 65, finished second to Disosway with a 36-hole score of 152. Disosway took low round honors in the top flight with his second round 69.

Mike Corcoran won first flight honors with 75-72 for a 147. His round of 72 was good for low round honors. John Kroczka shot 80-73 to finish second in the first flight.

Second flight honors went to Dilmer Austin with a 71-70 for 141. Austin shared the low round honor with Mark Trewhella. Both men shot a net 70 round. Randolp Leber took second place with two rounds of 74.

Winner in the third flight was Joel Alford with a 75-71 for 146. Ray white finished one stroke behind with a 76-71. They tied for flight low net honors with 71.

Fourth flight winner was Mike Whiteneck with a 77-67 for 144, followed by Bob Lauer with a 74-71 for 145. Whiteneck's 67 garnered low net honors in his flight.

PROUDLY PRESENT 'FOCUS ON ENTERTAINMENT,' THE

1970-71 CONCERT SERIES

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1970 8:15 P.M.

DOROTHY WARENSKJOLD'S MUSICAL THEATER

The World of Music from Opera to Musical Comedy

An exciting concept in "idea" programming for the concert stage, perhaps best described as scenarios in music. In planning and producing this program of opera and musical comedy, the celebrated soprano has aimed at presenting an evening of music that would cover the range of America's musical heritage — a heritage so rich that we sometimes take it for granted. She has achieved her aim admirably. The presentation features a vocal ensemble of eight (six men and two women) headed by Miss Warenskjold. The program is tastefully staged to suggest dramatic situations.

WHITTEMORE AND LOWE

Pre-eminent Duo-Pianists

"No matter the competition, Whittemore and Lowe continue to impress me as the best two-piano team of our generation."

Roger Dettmer, Critic, Chicago's American

During the course of their remarkable career, Arthur Whittemore and Jack Lowe have run up a record of achievement in all media open to duo-pianists, an achievement that has brought them to the pinnacle of prestige and popularity. They are universally acknowledged as music's pre-eminent two-piano team.

LOS INDIOS TABAJARAS

Guitarists

Captivating the public with everything from primitive tribal music, Latin American favorites, and popular songs, to the familiar and beloved classics, Los Indios Tabajaras cast their own personal spell with breath-taking virtuosity, radiant tone, and incomparable artistry. Their unique and inspired interpretrations communicate the heart of the music to the heart of the listener. The experience is unforgettable.

The Miami Herald reports, "They are both fine musicians and superior guitarists — technically among the best . . . everything they tackle turns out to be a small masterpiece."

ROBERT MERRILL

Metropolitan Opera Star

"The prince of American baritones"

The celebrated star of opera, television, and recordings in Big Spring in person! "Mr. Merrill has one of the most beautiful natural baritones that the generation has produced and the sheer command of his singing and his unforced production combine to make him one of the great baritones.

"His blooming, velvety baritone sounded simply magnificent, and . . . he poured forth a sustained example of legato singing that any singer in the world would envy. Mr. Merrill is one of the great natural baritones of the century."

'Lax Policy' Charge May Result In New Committee

By HOWARD SIMMS

A standing committee to review and revise city policy may be formed as the result of allegations at the Aug. 25, city commission meeting that control over employes and equipment has been too lax.

A "committee on administrative policy" was suggested by Wade Choate at Tuesday's commission meeting to overcome "confusion and misunderstanding" over proper purchasing and other procedures.

The mayor appointed Wade Choate, Eddie Acri and Larry Crow to look into setting up such a committee.

The idea was proposed after City Manager Larry Crow presented two statements on situations called to attention by Eddie Acri at the Aug. 25 meeting.

On the sale of junk vehicles, Crow said his inquiry showed that city policy rules were "followed in spirit, if not in detail." The detail referred to is apparently the verbal rather than written authorization of sale, informality of the bid-taking, and sale without commission action.

Eddie Acri pointed out that the city did not own title to some of the vehicles sold for junk, so that $650 from the sale had to be turned over to the Department of Civil Defense.

On private use of city vehicles, Crow quoted the vague personnel policy prohibiting use of a city vehicle for personal business except when the employe must be available by two-way radio. City policy further states that "such use must be with discretion and good judgment on the part of the employe."

Crow added that the supervisor accused of violating the policy is subject to emergency call 24 hours a day and felt justified in taking a city truck to perform minor repairs on the porch of a rent house. Questions remain as to the amount of time spent doing the work and the propriety of taking another city employe along on the errand, and to whether the employe was already in the vicinity of the rent house on city business.

Crow said that the policy may be vague or inadequate, but if controls on private use of city vehicles were tightened, city employes could not be expected to answer midnight service calls without some compensation. This, he said, would affect the efficiency and economy of public service operation.

HCJC Signup Still Growing

Last day of registration today found Howard County Junior College at about the 1,180 mark.

Several signed up Monday and some Tuesday. Those desiring to enroll in evening classes may still do so before the classes convene this evening.

An extension class in plastics technology which may be organized this evening would further increase the head count to near the 1,200 mark.

The full-time student signup now stands at 749, which is 117 more than a year ago, or about 18.5 per cent. The head count is up from the previous record by more than 10 per cent.

Hamilton Field Annexation First Reading Is Approved

City commissioners Tuesday approved the first reading of an annexation ordinance for the 80-acre Hamilton airstrip property between IS 20 and Hilltop Road where Harroll Jones and Paul Shaffer plan a mobile home development.

Omar Jones registered objection to city "subsidy" of the downtown area in the form of colored sidewalks and parking lot maintenance while his outlying property remains without sewers, noting that downtown tax valuations had decreased as his tax valuations increased.

He then withdrew his objection made at the Aug. 25, meeting concerning the Harroll Jones annexation after hearing from City Manager Larry Crow that the mobile home development will not cost the city.

The commission also authorized taking of bids on a car and radio for the city manager. The car is to be available for unrestricted use by the city manager, who is subject to 24-hour call. Crow's monthly car allowance is to be discontinued.

A request from 35 people living near Skateland Roller Rink, Andree and West Eighth, asking that dancing be prohibited at the business, was tabled on a motion by George Zachariah, who thanked the people for sending the petition, but said action would have to be initiated with the planning and zoning board first.

The final reading of the Intech annexation ordinance was again postponed to let the county complete work on the extension of West Seventh, delayed because of rain.

Jim Baum, parks and recreation board chairman, said he did not remember the board approving the increase of weekend golf course fees to $2 and decrease of weekday fees to $1 as written in [illegible] minutes. He agreed to call another meeting to go over the proposals again and meet with the Golf Association.

Bob Waters appeared to speak for the golfers, urging better control over freeloading golfers. He also said that since the golf course was the only city recreation facility that comes close to paying for itself, the city should put more into improving the course.

SIDEBURN RULE APPEALED

Trustees Back School's Grooming Regulations

The first appeal this year on high school dress and grooming regulations was heard by trustees of the Big Spring Independent School District Tuesday night.

A 15-year-old student and his parents appeared before the board seeking clarification of the regulations and the resultant disciplinary actions regarding the length of sideburns. "Acceptable" sideburns, according to the regulations, should be no wider at the bottom than at the top and should not extend below the ear lobes.

David Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erven Fisher, 2410 E. 24th, appeared before the board to protest that one of his instructors had told him to trim his sideburns or he would not be allowed to participate in the band.

David's hair, board members agreed, was neatly trimmed and groomed, but his sideburns extended below his ear lobes, which is an infraction of the rule. David and his parents were informed by the board that David would have to comply with the ruling or be suspended from school until he did. If David did not wish to comply, Joe Moss, board president, told the Fishers that they had two routes of appeal.

TWO ROUTES

The case can be taken to the state superintendent of schools and the state school board for action, or it can be taken through district court. Moss pointed out that David would have to remain out of school while the appeal to the higher board was made, but that the district court could grant a temporary restraining order to allow him to remain in school until a ruling was made.

Delnor Poss, trustee, said that although there was nothing wrong with the boy's appearance, the rule existed and had to apply to all students and teachers as well. David was given the choice of complying with the rule or facing suspension and appealing his case.

Trustees amended the 1969-70 budget to include the changes made during the fiscal year. The changes consisted of a reclassification of expenditures and revenues.

AMEND BUDGET

An amendment to include the Title I grant of $81,050 to the 1970-71 budget was passed. The funds are made available to schools through the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which was recently passed on a bill of continuance over President Nixon's veto.

The act provides funds for the operational costs of the school food service and salaries for librarians, librarian aides and teacher aides. The school nurse's salary and travel expenses are funded through the Title I grant also.

No action was taken on the appointment of someone to fill the board vacancy left by the resignation this summer of Grant Boardman. Anyone appointed by the board will have to be a candidate in the next school board election to retain the position. In the election, the appointee will run only for the unexpired portion of Boardman's term.

Don Crockett, business manager, explained to the board student eligibility for school transportation. Questions had been raised because some of the pickup points for the school buses are within a two mile radius of the schools. Crockett pointed out that a student must live two miles or more from the school he attends to be eligible. The student must also live on "commonly traveled roads that have been approved as bus routes."

APPROVED ROUTES

The routes are set up by the district and must be approved by the transportation division of the Texas Education Agency. Representatives of TFA measure the distance of the routes and drive them before approved. These steps are necessary before TFA will fund the school's transportation program, Crockett said.

There are six to eight pickup points along the various routes. Crockett said most of these points are beyond the two-mile limit, but a few are within the limit because of convenience to the students and to the drivers. According to Crockett, points are designated that are convenient to the students, and are practical from the driver's standpoint as well. The driver must be able to get to these points and continue on the route with as little loss of time as possible, according to Crockett.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sept. 22.

Thieves Think Big, Take Diesel Truck

Thieves stole a tandem diesel truck Tuesday night from the yard at Halliburton Service Company, U.S. 80 West. The truck bears the company decals on both doors.

James Dixon reported the theft to the Howard County Sheriff's Office this morning. Two deputies were dispatched to conduct investigations at the scene.

According to Sheriff A. N. Standard, if the truck was stolen to be stripped, his officers should find it abandoned somewhere in the county.

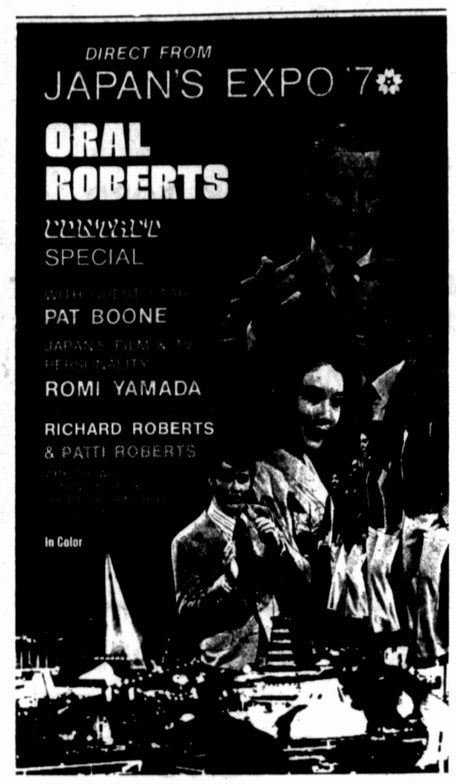

If the truck was stolen for transportation, it will probably be found either in El Paso or Odessa, said Sheriff Standard. The local office has sent a bulletin describing the truck and its license and registration numbers to law enforcement officers in the surrounding area.

HCJC President Meets With Board

Dr. W. A. Hunt, president of Howard County Junior College, is in Abilene today where the Coordinating Board for Texas Colleges and Universities is meeting.

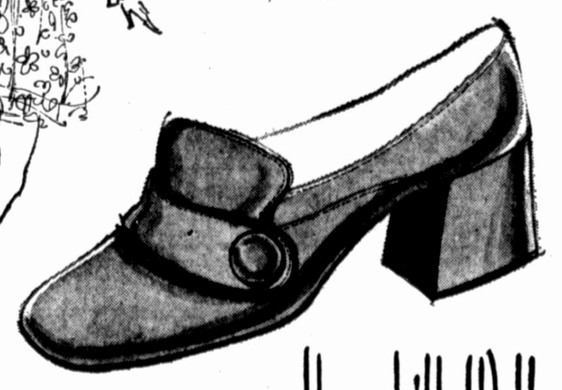

He will present plans for the proposed HCJC vocational-technical building and ask the board's approval.

This may not be necessary, but within the spirit of the board's functions, it should give its blessing to new facilities, said Dr. Hunt.
