U.S. Deficit May Smash All Records

Power Realignment After Sutherland's Resignation Seen

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Associate Justice George Sutherland announced his retirement from the supreme court today, giving President Roosevelt a long-awaited opportunity to increase the court's "liberal" faction to a dependable majority.

Four of the remaining members—Stone, Brandeis, Cardozo, and Black—have habitually espoused a liberal interpretation of the constitution, tending to confer wide powers on the federal government instead of restricting them to the letter of that document.

Now, one more follower of that school is expected to be appointed by the president, who has engaged in repeated battles with the court about the way in which the constitution should be interpreted. This appointment would give the liberal group five of the court's nine members

Would Realign Strength

Aside from these five, Chief Justice Hughes and associate Justice Roberts have occasionally supported the liberal and occasionally the conservative side. They thus held a balance of power, which, as Washington sees it, will end with the new appointment.

SUTHERLAND

Of course, the new alignment would not reverse the court's historic decision outlawing the NRA as unconstitutional, a verdict which touched off the long administration battle against the courts. The vote in that case was uanimous.

But it could reverse the decision by which the AAA was invalidated, to Mr. Roosevelt's expressed annoyance. That decision was six to three. Among the six were associate Justice van Devanter, who retired last spring and was replaced by Justice Black, and Sutherland.

If Black and Sutherland's successor voted for the validation of such legislation and the others voted as before, the line-up would be five to four in favor of holding it constitutional.

Successor? Speculation Rife

As always, when an important governmental post becomes vacant, Washington was abuzz tonight with speculation as to who would be appointed. Several names stood at or near the top of each.

These were Solicitor General Stanley Reed, Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana and former Senator Sam

Great National Defense Sums Asked By FDR

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.— President Roosevelt asked congress today for record peacetime national defense appropriations of $991,300,000, and simultaneously began shaping a request for even greater funds.

While his annual budget message, asking nearly a billion dollars for the army and navy in the 1939 fiscal year, was being read to the senate and house, he conferred at the White House with legislators and naval officials about a special message asking a supplemental outlay for a bigger navy.

Chairman Taylor (D-Colo) of the house appropriations committee, one of the conferees, said the message would be dispatched "as soon as convenient."

More May Be Asked

From others at the conference came hints the message would ask a basic new warship building program for several years to come.

Thus the United States would follow the lead of Great Britain and Japan in abandoning the yardstick of the expired Washington and London naval limitation treaties.

The president's budget message advised congress that "world conditions over which this nation has no control" and "future events which today cannot definitely be foretold," might make it necessary for him to ask additional defense funds.

Pending such action, he recommended allotting $569,827,000 to the navy and $418,796,000 to the army, plus emergency funds which would sweep the defense total to $991,000,000. This total was 98 per cent higher than that of the budget five years removed—1934.

The budget provided for a start during the fiscal year opening July 1 on the construction of two battleships, two light cruisers, eight destroyers, six submarines and four auxiliary vessels in addition to 70 craft, including two battleships, already building or contracted for.

"Branch Dentistry" Hearing Jan. 13

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 5. (AP) —The opening engagement in the challenge of the recently enacted state law against "branch dentistry" and dental advertising as "unprofessional" was postponed to Thursday morning, Jan. 13, by Judge John F. Onion of the 73rd district court here today.

The first hearing on the suit for permanent injunction against the state board of dental examiners, filed by five dentists, had been set for Saturday morning before Judge Onion.

The suit granted temporarily on New Year's Eve, would forbid the state board from enforcing the law against the plaintiffs who include the Mayo brothers, O. K. and J. E. Mayo, G. W. Sherman, L. H. Hamman and J. D. Robinson.

In their petition, which won a temporary restraining order from Judge Harry L. Howard of the 37th district court, acting for Judge Onion, the dentists attacked the law as unconstitutional on three main grounds—interference with freedom of speech and press, violation of the constitution's "due process" clause with their dental license named as their vested right, and on judicial procedure.

Troop Slaughter Said Enormous

(By The Associated Press)

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 5.—A renewed struggle for strategic Teruel in eastern Spain raged today in the height of the Aragon winter.

The two armies were described by both sides as one of the greatest concentrations of the civil war. They fought on the outskirts of Teruel while within the city government forces still tried to wipe out a bitterly-resisting insurgent garrison.

Insurgents said their soldiers in an effort to capture the city "within three days," pushed forward more than a mile, through snow that was sometimes three feet deep.

Both Admit Losses

Government dispatches reported a heavy fog over the Corbalan mountains, east of the main combat zone, covered a score of government field-guns which, they declared, "annihilated" one-fourth of the Navarrese and foreign legionnaires of the attacking insurgents.

A government communique announced the result was "a slaughter" and complete collapse of the insurgent attack.

Dispatches from the government side reported machine-gunners left in pits behind the government's first line "mowed down the enemy" as they struggled to return to their trenches.

Both insurgents and the government agreed the sector southwest of Teruel was the scene of heavy fighting but the general position apparently was unchanged.

Chinese Reorganize For War With Japanese

Chiang Kai-Shek Renews Power Of Air Force

Bombing From Skies Resumed; Chinese Expect To Have 80 Divisions In Field

By JAMES A. MILLS
Associated Press Writer

HANKOW, Jan. 5.—China's deep resolve to fight Japan to the uttermost was exemplified today by the government's decision to strengthen the national military council and by renewed activity of Madame Chiang Kai-Shek's reorganized air force.

The government announced Chinese bombs sank two Japanese gunboats in the Yangtze river near Wuhu Jan. 3 and destroyed the airfield and six Japanese planes at Wuhu today.

(In Shanghai, Japanese said six Chinese bombers were intercepted at Wuhu by a fleet of Japanese pursuit planes and forced to dump their loads of bombs in the Yangtze and flee. They reported no damage."

Great Shakeup Effected

In the reorganization move Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, who recently resigned the presidency of the executive yuan—corresponding to the premiership—so he could devote his entire time to prosecution of the war, remains as head of the military council.

General Ho Ying-Chin, present minister of war, will be chief of the general staff.

Economic affairs and heavy industries, formerly under the national military council, have been transferred to the executive yuan, where Dr. H. H. Kung, the generalissimo's brother-in-law, has succeeded to the presidency.

In his capacity as head of the supreme war council and commander-in-chief of the armies, Chiang will exercise plenary powers not only over military affairs but civil matters.

To Increase Army Strength

These readjustments in the national military council and recent changes in the executive branches of the government, Chinese officials say, disprove reports former communist leaders are now playing an important part in the national government.

Meanwhile, extensive recruiting continues. By spring China expects to have 80 full divisions in the field. Officials insist the government has sufficient money and munitions to carry on a protracted war.

A Shanghai dispatch said the naval yacht Isabel arrived to become the new headquarters for Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, and that his flagship, the Augusta, would sail Thursday for Manila. The Augusta

Two Shot By Trio In $25,000 Robbery

GUTHRIE, Ky., Jan. 5. (AP)—Fatally wounding a 65-year-old negro postoffice messenger and shooting down the chief of police, three masked bandits escaped late today with a mail bag containing $25,000.

The bandit trio opened fire with a sub-machine gun as Arthur Mimms, 62, negro messenger, walked through an open space about 100 yards from the depot where the money was to be put on a train for Louisville.

Mimms, fatally wounded was taken to a Clarksville, Tenn., hospital, where he died several hours later.

Mimms, shot in the forehead, fell trying to draw his pistol.

Oil Field Race Trouble Nipped

(By The Associated Press)

GOLDSMITH, Jan. 5.—"Punk" Burns, constable at Goldsmith, said tonight he believed that, with the aid of Constable Clyde Ray of Odessa, he had quelled a threatened race riot in this Ector county oil town, located 35 miles north of Odessa.

The threatened riot came when white citizens warned negroes to be moved from here by 8 o'clock Thursday morning, after Mrs. Billy Crowell, waitress, had been shot in a cafe last night, allegedly by a negro.

Negro Shot At Man

Mrs. Crowell was shot in the left arm when the negro entered the front door of Curley Davis' cafe brandishing a pistol.

He fired at Davis, but Davis ducked behind a counter, and the bullet struck Mrs. Crowell in her left arm, breaking it. After first aid treatment at Goldsmith, she was taken to an Odessa hospital.

The negro ran, but constable Burns said he believed him to be hiding in Midland and said he has asked officers there to search for him.

Burns said: "Today there were some 'smart alecs' here who were trying to scare the negroes, but I telephoned to Odessa and got some help, and I don't think anything will happen now. They had told the negroes to be out of town by 8 o'clock Thursday morning, but I don't guess they'll have to leave. I think I've got it under control now."

Effect Of CCC Announcement On Lubbock Not Learned

Officials of Lubbock CCC camps still were without information Wednesday night as to how the proposed reduction of CCC personnel will effect Lubbock sub-district.

According to plans announced in Washington, CCC enrollment will be reduced from 300,000 to a maximum of 225,000. Lubbock sub-district now consists of six camps. This proposed reduction of membership may effect the enrollment here to the extent of the dismissal of one entire camp, it was indicated.

Judicial Chin Massaged By Pencil-Hardened Fist Of Editor, Who Is Jailed

(By The Associated Press)

EL PASO, Jan. 5.—E. M. Pooley, editor of the El Paso Herald-Post, was jailed late this afternoon after he struck Justice of Peace C. M. Wilchar when testifying at a court of inquiry into asserted vice conditions.

Pooley was charged with contempt of court, fined $100 and ordered held in jail until he would answer questions.

Question Resented

Pooley became angered when Wilchar asked him "how much" he had been paid by a gambler for "covering him up."

Pooley leaped to his feet and struck Wilchar.

The justice hit back.

Several blows were exchanged before courtroom attendants separated them.

Pooley later was freed under $200 bond by District Judge P. R. Price who notified Pooley to appear at a habeas corpus hearing Saturday morning.

"The man, taking advantage of his position as a justice of the peace, insulted me in the vilest manner," Pooley said. "I could do nothing but hit him."

The inquiry, an outgrowth of a police raid on the city's restricted district last week, has featured a daily parade of witnesses, including Mayor M. A. Harlan and Night Chief of Police Leonard Butchofsky. Wilchar was the target of two Herald-Post editorials. Pooley came to El Paso 10 months ago from Houston, where he was managing editor of the Houston Press.

Wichita Holding Man For Lamesa

(Special To The Avalanche)

LAMESA, Jan. 5. — Sheriff Gus White of Dawson county tonight said two arrests had been made in connection with investigation into the hijacking of a haberdashery here the night of Dec. 11 and the fatal shooting of Maxie Woodruff, a clerk in the store.

Additional arrests were expected "at any time," he said.

A report from Wichita Falls tonight said a man who gave his address as Lamesa had been picked up by authorities on strength of a circular from the Dawson county sheriff's office.

Another Held At Lamesa

White said the man arrested at Wichita Falls was wanted here in connection with theft but did not indicate definitely that he was associated with the hijacking.

A man who was arrested here Saturday by E. P. Anderson, deputy sheriff, Jack Phinizy, city marshal, and another city officer in connection with the shooting is being held, but no charges had been filed, White said.

Several hundred dollars was taken in the hijacking.

Girl Beaten By Robbers Of Union City, Okla., Bank

(By The Associated Press)

UNION CITY, Okla., Jan. 5. Two swaggering young gunmen who beat Miss Monteye Kilgore, cashier, then locked her and four other persons in the vault, robbed the bank of Union City of about $302 in cash today.

While one robber wearing smoked glasses brandished two pistols, his similarly-disguised companion scooped up all the money in the cash drawer.

Then, after bullying and beating Miss Kilgore in a futile effort to force her to open the time lock on a safe in the vault, they slammed shut the door on Miss Kilgore, Assistant Cashier Kenton A. Petree and three customers.

They fled westward in a grey-colored automobile before a swiftly-gathering posse of sheriff's deputies and state highway patrolmen. The automobile later was found abandoned four miles north of Union City. The automobile was stolen at noon today from an Oklahoma City street, officers reported.

In the bank with Miss Kilgore at the time, she said, was Petree and two customers, Fred Kuhlman, Minco, and Homer Sangler, Pocasset. C. R. Neeley, a third customer, walked into the bank while the robbery was in progress.

The imprisoned persons freed themselves by opening the vault door from the inside.

Mrs. H. H. Littrell, 18, of 1710 Avenue F, died at a hospital here about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon a short while after the birth of a daughter weighing 4 pounds 15 ounces.

The mother's death was attributed to pneumonia. She had been admitted to the hospital Tuesday night. The infant, according to attaches of the hospital, was in satisfactory condition.

Last rites for Mrs. Littrell will be conducted at 10 o'clock Friday morning at the Avenue G Church of Christ with Elder Albert Smith of that church officiating, according to Sanders Funeral home. Burial will be in a cemetery here.

Mrs. Littrell is survived by her husband; their infant daughter; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Pilbirton of Lubbock; four brothers, Homer, Randall, Clyde, and Odis Pilbirton, all of Lubbock; and three sisters, Mrs. H. P. Davis, Mrs. L. V. Littrell, and Miss Ruby Pilbirton, all of Lubbock.

Lubbock Boy Accidentally Is Shot In Hand By Rifle

Earl Green, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Green of Lubbock, was given emergency treatment at West Texas hospital late Wednesday for a gunshot wound in the right hand suffered at Ralls.

The rifle, of .22 calibre, accidentally was discharged when the boy was attempting to put it in a trailer. The slug entered the palm of his hand.

Banking Records Set In Lubbock

LUBBOCK'S banks, in setting up a series of all-time records for the report of bank conditions as of Dec. 31, showed a gain of approximately 20 per cent over the similar report for 1936, a summary of the statements of the three institutions here shows.

That much of an increase in a year is something bank leaders have reason to be proud of. Resources were up a small fraction under 20 per cent; deposits, 18 per cent; loans, 17.4 per cent, and cash on hand and sight exchange just under 20 per cent.

Bankers See Improved Conditions

Improved general conditions were indicated by bankers in commenting on the replies to the bank call issued by the federal comptroller of the currency.

In spite of adverse general conditions over the nation during more than half a decade, Lubbock banks have gone steadily forward in service to the area. To show approximately a million and a half more in deposits, total resources and cash, is indication of a prosperous territory.

Increase Of $1,557,508.59

Deposits lacked less than $7,000 of reaching the $10,000,000 mark, the figure being $9,993,757.61, an increase of $1,557,508.59 over the same report for the close of the 1936 calendar year.

Total resources were $10,625,742.21 an increase over the previous all-time figure of $8,946,844.25 of $1,778,897.96.

Loans and discounts showed a good increase of $261,356.81; loans being $1,754,511.91 compared to a year ago of $1,493,155.10.

Cash and sight exchange, quickly convertible into ready money was

Child No. 12 Born To Derby Contender

TORONTO, Jan. 5. (Canadian Press)—Mrs. John Nagle, one of the contenders for Charles Vance Millar's $500,000 "stork derby" bequests last night gave birth to her 12th child—a girl.

Mrs. Nagle, 35, and married 18 years, claims nine children eligible for the money left by Millar for the Toronto mother who bore the most children in the 10 years following his death. The period ended Oct. 31, 1936.

(The supreme court of Canada Dec. 22 declared Millar's will valid and left to the Ontario courts the task of determining the mother or mothers entitled to the money.)

Surplus Money Exhaustion To Affect Destitute, Forecast

AUSTIN, Jan. 5. (AP)—Texas' destitute may be without $1,000,000 worth of surplus commodities they receive monthly after July.

The prediction was made by Adam Johnson, director of relief under the board of control, who said the department had been operating on a surplus, saved from federal-state funds, which would be exhausted next summer. The legislature has appropriated no money for its continuance.

Billion Dollars May Represent 1939 Figure

President Intimates Greater Total Possible Because Of Variety Of Conditions

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Roosevelt sent to congress today a budget calling for a $539,000,000 cut in government spending next fiscal year, but estimated nevertheless there would be a billion dollar deficit.

At the same time he gave notice that because of two grave uncertainties—foreign troubles and the relief needs of the unemployed—the deficit may be even greater.

Congress received the message with mixed comment. Some said there should be greater cuts in spending. Others objected to some recommended cuts.

Relief Sum Pared

Chairman O'Connor (D.-N.Y.) of the house rules committee said he regretted "very much to see this irreducible minimum of a requirement of about $7,000,000,000" for federal expenses.

Mr. Roosevelt's estimate of total expenditures was $6,869,000,000, compared with estimated expenditures for this year, closing next June 30, of $7,408,000,000.

He estimated revenues for the 1939 year would be $5,919,000,000 compared with an estimate of $6,279,000,000 for this year.

The greater part of the proposed cut in spending was accounted for by the total suggested for relief. The budget figure was $1,266,000,000 as against $1,759,000,000 this year.

Farm Aid Figure Protested

Failure of Mr. Roosevelt's figures to allow all that some had hoped for farm benefits brought quick protests.

Noting that the budget called for a $330,000,000 direct appropriation for soil conservation payments and use of $110,000,000 of other funds for this purpose, Senator McGill (D.-Kan.) co-author with Senator Pope (D.-Idaho) of the senate farm bill, commented:

"The sum is entirely inadequate. It has been our understanding all along that we could count on $500,-

Texas Kidnaper Suicide Victim

(By The Associated Press)

RICHMOND, Ind., Jan. 5.—Harry C. Walter, 52, unemployed carpenter and father of five children, chose suicide today rather than legal punishment for the Christmas Eve kidnaping of 3-year-old John Bryan, Jr., Centerville banker's son, and three other persons.

Walter, who with William Chester Marcum, 30, confessed the kidnaping shortly after their arrest last night, dived 15 feet from a balcony to a concrete floor in the county jail here. He suffered multiple skull fractures from which he died several hours later in a hospital.

Wanted Money "To Live On"

State Police Superintendent Don Stiver said the men told him they planned the crime "to get money to live on."

Fifty-Two Register At Faculty Women's Tea On Wednesday Afternoon

SOFTENING INFLUENCE

OUR psychology may be wrong, but we believe snow has a softening effect on pedestrians, dispositions. For instance, coming to work Wednesday morning we were amazed to discover every one speaking and in high spirits. Even when we slipped along obliquely for a few moments in attempting to jump a puddle—and we did steps you haven't seen Sonja Henie execute—no one laughed.

Perhaps it's because the snow is unusual, perhaps because it means the sandstorms won't be so fierce next spring if the snow is deep enough, at any rate the past few days have seemed to cause light heartedness.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

BROWNIE AKERS tells of a funny incident that happened during a visit of Jean Hersholt the movie actor to Oklahoma City last year. Seeing several friends who he knew would be delighted to meet the character player, Mr. Akers approached them, first cautioning one to tell a doctor in the party (who never goes to the movies) they were to meet the man who played the role of Dr. A. R. Dafoe in the quintuplets' picture.

The doctor got Mr. Hersholt off to himself as soon as possible and began to ask him technical questions concerning the birth of the famous Callander five. Suddenly the actor laughed and said, "Just a minute, I'm not a doctor, I'm an actor and I don't know any of those answers."

The Oklahoma doctor had thought they said the noted man was the real Doctor Dafoe.

ON WOMEN'S HATS

C. M. Scates of Memphis, Tenn., has written a little poem which he terms "Depressed Fashion Note." Says Mr. Scates:

"I am fed up with looking at
Women in black hats,
Blacker than the blackest cats—
Blacker than the ace of spades,
Or midnight's darkest shades;
Hats of such ebon hue
A Cereberus never knew,
That would make Poe's raven, melancholy,
Look hilarious and jolly.
Black hats of models screwy—
Hats one-sided, balmy, flooey,
Hats that have towers and spires,
Hats that look like non-skid tires;
Hats steamrollers have mashed
Hats that a brick had smashed,
Hats that have been stepped on
Hats that can scarce be kept on
And hats that cling like bats—
Black hats, black hats, black hats."

In case you didn't get it, the man doesn't like black hats.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

TEST your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should a person who plays only auction bridge accept an invitation to a contract party?

2. Should one compliment his bridge partner if he plays a hand especially well?

3. Is it all right for one to mention for his partner's benefit that certain cards in the dummy are good?

4. Should one accept an invitation for a bridge party if he cannot stay until the game is finished?

5. Is it permissible to repay an invitation to a bridge party with an invitation to a tea?

What would you do if—

You are at a bridge party where there is competition between tables and a beginner asks for assistance of you as a partner or opponent?

(a) Tell him to inquire from another table?

He recommended also appropriation of $296,800 for control and prevention of the spread of the pink bollworm, including establishment of such cotton free areas as may be necessary to stamp out any infestation, and for necessary surveys and control operations in Mexico in cooperation with Mexican authorities.

Appropriation of $160,460 was recommended for control and prevention of spread of the Mexican fruit fly which infests citrus fruits, and $13,485 for citrus canker eradication, all work to be done in cooperation with Mexican officials.

Recreational Schoo! Will Be Concluded In Lubbock Today

A chorus of "ohs," and "ahs" when players erred, and applause for a good score in competitive games were features of the Wednesday afternoon session of the district recration training school in Lubbock hotel ballroom. The school, which began Tuesday, will be closed today.

Under the direction of Miss Madeline Stevens of the National Recreation association, New York, county home demonstration agents and club members learned how to play all kinds of games including "tit-tat-to" with chairs and people instead of crosses and circles. They ran relays which called for back-stepping or what-have-you. The school is for the purpose of training leaders to direct the same games in club meetings, and they learn to play by playing.

Inquiry Into Policy Of Leasing State Lands By General Land Office Is Called

Cancellation Of Lease Results

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 5. — Scope of the controversy over policies of the general land office broadened today as Senator T. J. Holbrook, chairman, announced a committee of the senate would inquire into the leasing of state lands.

Land commissioner William H. McDonald cancelled renewal of a lease in the Wichita river bed near the KMA oil field granted the Venmex Oil company last December.

Allred Requests Suit

Attorney General William McCraw filed suit in Travis county district court, at the request of Governor James V. Allred, the latter said, to establish title to the lease.

Holbrook said the committee, empowered to investigate anything in the state government, would meet Jan. 17 primarily to study conditions in the state game department and would take up the land leasing matter as soon as possible.

He recalled the committee interrogated McDonald about such leasing last summer when it was questioning heads of major state departments in efforts to promote economy and efficiency in government.

Would Cancel Renewal

The game department inquiry was ordered by the senate at the last session of the legislature at the department's request.

McDonald said he had cancelled the lease renewal because his authority to issue it had been questioned by the governor and C. V. Terrell, who, with McDonald, compose the state mineral development board.

There were numerous precedents on which he based the renewal, he added, including one by Governor Allred himself. He said he referred to a Brazos river bed lease granted in 1921 and expiring in 1931.

Charges Irregularity

"Six days short of three years after expiration of the lease, a renewal was granted by J. H. Walker, then land commissioner," McDonald said. "At that time Mr. Allred was attorney general and as such was chief legal adviser for state departments, but he made no objection to the renewal of a lease three years after its term had expired, though now he is objecting to a renewal some months after the expiration of the term of the Venmex lease."

The commissioner asserted the law was silent as to who should issue renewals of leases existing before creation of the board of mineral development in 1931.

Says Renewal Is Legal

There is oil production on the Venmex lease and has been since the lease was issued in 1926, McDonald continued, stating it was the universal practice in oil fields that a lease continue in force as long as there is production and royalty is paid.

"Further the statutes say the operator holding a riverbed lease shall have the option of a renewal or renewals and in view of this language the renewal would seem to be simply a ministerial act, whether the authority rests with the land commissioner or the board of mineral development," he said.

Previously McDonald had said his office acts were strictly in accord with the law and its records were open to inspection to anyone.

How To K. O. The H. C. L.

Don't let the business recession fool you—it still costs plenty to live. It costs so much in fact that the President has ordered the federal trade commission to search out the reasons why prices have increased. There are, however, ways to cut the costs through everyday economies. Many are listed by Ray Giles of New York in his new book ('How to beat the High Cost of living"; Simon & Schuster).

SLIM MEN, or those with a youthful build, can save a tidy sum by getting young men's clothes. They usually are priced about 20 per cent under men's models of the same quality and sometimes fit better.

EAT FISH often for it nearly always is cheaper than meat. Besides, all fish contain iodine, an important element in physical welfare and many fish contain more protein than is found in animals.

MODERATE DRIVING SPEEDS save gasoline as well as accidents. A stock car test proved that a car which gave 20 miles to the gallon at 30 miles an hour gave only 19 at 40 and 17.3 at 60 miles an hour.

IN BUYING LIFE INSURANCE, try to avoid being "rated up," that is, charged a premium ordinarily asked older men because you have some physical impairment. Try other companies with other medical examiners.

Man Charged In Dallas Killing

DALLAS, Jan. 5. (AP)—Joe Alford, 39, was charged with murder today in the killing last night of Fred W. Simmons, his 40-year-old apartment neighbor.

Mrs. Alford, a waitress, told police Simmons met her after work yesterday, forced her into his car and insulted her when she insisted on going home.

Alford told officers he shot Simmons because he had "mistreated the best woman in the world." His bond was set at $5,000.

Simmons was struck with blasts from a shotgun and a pistol.

Fire Loss Total Is $3,000 Over 1936

An increase of over $3,000 in 1937 Lubbock fire loss above that of 1936 was reflected in information prepared at the chamber of commerce for submission to the fire prevention committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Loss last year approximated $115,000, as compared with $8,212.

The figures were tabulated after preparations of the annual report of the city fire department showing that 94 more alarms were answered in 1937 than in 1936. The exact figures were 269 and 175.

Majority In Two Fires

Of the 1937 loss, more than $100,000 was sustained in two fires, the damage in one being approximately $75,000, according to the figures.

The fire department report revealed that work of city firemen was increased in 1937 by almost every type of fire cause. Indicating the increased volume of work was the fact that 13,750 feet of hose was laid as compared with 7,600 the year before.

The number of alarms from various causes included, with 1937 figures being listed first followed by 1936:

Gasoline, 13 and 5; automobiles, 46 and 25; unknown, 45 and 16; trash, 23 and 27; wiring, 11 and 6; grass, 22 and 3; oil stoves, 9 and 8; gas stoves, 14 and 8; smoking, 9 and 5; fireworks, 2 and 2; and incendiary, 2 and 2.

Lightning caused six alarms last year and none in 1936. Likewise there were four fires due to gas lines, three due to matches and one due to dust explosion in 1937. None of those was listed as a cause of an alarm the year before.

The report related further that Lubbock's facilities for fighting fires were improved somewhat with the laying of 2,582 feet of 8-inch and 762 feet of 6-inch water mains. No new equipment was purchased for the fire department.

Recruiting Officer Debunks Rumors Regarding Enlistment

Taylor said there are "many vacancies to be filled."

Seven men who attempted to enlist were rejected Tuesday and Wednesday because of physical imperfections or for other reasons. Some may correct their troubles and later get into the army, Taylor added.

"Favorable Comparison" Reflected In Tax Collections Last Quarter Of 1937

Three Agencies Report Totals

By DAN TARPLEY
Avalanche Staff Writer

Total tax collections for October, November, and December, the first three months of the tax-paying period, "compare favorably" with collections for corresponding periods for 1936, according to assessor-collectors for the public schools of Lubbock, City of Lubbock, and county and state.

Although final tabulations from the office of the county collector's office were not available immediately, indications were that county collections would be about the same as last year and that state collections in Lubbock county would be slightly less in view of a reduction in the rate of 13 cents from 62 cents to 49 cents.

December Gains Chalked

Collections at the three offices, for schools, city, and county and state, showed decreases in October and November of 1937 in comparisons with the same months of 1936, but December collections at the offices showed substantial gains.

Reason contributing to those facts, according to H. B. Bryan, county assessor-collector; A. C. Jackson, assessor-collector for Lubbock Independent School district; and E. C. Young, city assessor-collector, was the late harvest of cotton this year. Crops in 1936, they pointed out, were earlier thus putting money into circulation a "month or two" earlier than this season.

"New Records" Possible

All three collectors are expecting rushing business this month, "possibly with new records."

Total collections at the office of the county assessor-collector for the first three months of the current tax-paying season were $91,028.75 as compared with $104,815.81 for the preceding season. Most of the decrease, however, was in state tax collections and was attributed to reduction in rate of 13 cents per hundred dollars valuations.

With completion of cotton harvest close at hand, collections have begun to increase, the total at that office being $47,177.27 in December as compared with $38,036.76 for December 1936. The first two months of the season, however, showed decreases for two reasons, as pointed out by Bryan. In October and November only a small portion of cotton had been gathered, and landowners were busy with harvest postponing payment of taxes.

Figures Tabulated

Total collections at that office, including county and state taxes, were:

	1937	1936
October	$ 8,596.49	$20,061.05
November	35,254.99	46,718.00
December	47,177.27	38,036.76
Total	$91,028.75	$104,815.81

Total tax collections for the County of Lubbock, according to figures at the office of Bryan, in October, November, and December, amounted to $91,12.79 as compared with $52,058.52 for the same three months of 1936. It was estimated by Bryan, however, that enough taxes were received through the mail before Dec. 31 and which had not been opened to boost this season's total to equal that of the last quarter of 1936.

Only $4,702.37 in county taxes was collected in October as compared with $10,067.55 for the same month of the preceding year and $18,926.03 this November as compared with $22,984.22 for November of 1936, but the December totals exceeded by more than $6,500 the total for the same month of the preceding year.

County Collections Fall Off

County tax collections for October, November, and December of 1936 and 1937 were:

	1937	1936
October	$ 4,702.37	$10,067.55
November	18,926.03	22,984.22
December	25,784.39	19,006.75
Total	$49,412.79	$52,058.52

State tax collections for the first three months of this season showed a decrease of $11,141.33, or approximately 27 per cent, which is accounted for by a reduction of approximately 27 per cent in the rate. However, after tabulation of payments in the mail, officials said, that decrease probably will be diminished by several thousands of dollars.

Monthly comparisons are approximately the same as in collection of county taxes, the figures for the three months of 1936 and 1937 being:

	1937	1936
October	$ 3,894.12	$ 9,993.50
November	16,328.96	23,733.78
December	21,392.88	19,030.01
Total	$41,615.96	$52,757.29

City Shows Increase

After one of the largest December collections of taxes at the city tax office, totals there for the three-month period were boosted to $5,897.57 more than for the same period of 1936, according to figures released by Young. December's total was $39,885.97 as compared with $20,372.06 for the same month of the preceding year. Totals for the three months were $48,917.87 and $43,020.30, respectively. The first two months at that office were quiet with collections of $2,122.48 and $6,909.42, respectively, as compared with 1936's figures of $9,004.96 and $13,643.28, respectively.

It was pointed out that only delinquent taxes were collected in October 1937 and much of November since the tax roll was not completed until later than usual.

Comparative figures show:

	1937	1936
October	$ 2,122.48	$ 9,004.96
November	6,909.42	13,643.28
December	39,885.97	20,372.06
Total	$48,917.87	$43,020.30

Schools 4 Per Cent Up

An increase in collections the last quarter of 1937 at the Lubbock Independent School district assessor-collector's office, amounting to $3,430.18, or 4 per cent more than for the same period of 1936, was shown in spite of an extensive and successful campaign of collection of delinquent taxes in 1936, according to figures released by Jackson.

The increase of collection of current taxes this season amounted to several times the 4 per cent increase in the totals which included both delinquent and current tax collections. There has been a decrease in collection of delinquent taxes because there are not so many delinquent as in 1936, it was explained.

As in the case of the other two offices, the first two months of this tax-paying season showed smaller totals than the two months of the preceding year. December's aggregate, however, showed an extensive gain.

Both Current And Delinquent

After totals of $10,414.18 and $32,501.05 for October and November as compared with $17,686.72 and $35,833.79 for the same months of 1936, December 1937's $48,075.43 as compared with $34,039.91 for the same month of 1936, the aggregate climbed to $90,990.66 to exceed the 1936 corresponding period's total of $87,560.42.

Comparative figures:

	1937	1936
October	$10,414.18	$17,686.72
November	32,501.05	35,833.79
December	48,075.43	34,039.91
Total	$90,990.66	$87,560.42

All figures included collection of both current and delinquent taxes.

Moisture Gladdens Plains Farmers

Farmers smiled in appreciation for snow and ensuing sunshine Wednesday giving them high hopes for good underground seasoning.

Wheat, only winter crop in the territory, was reported benefitted by the precipitation. It was indicated that spring plowing would be aided by snow.

The sun came from behind clouds shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, and by night only sheltered places held any signs of Tuesday's snow. Precipitation in Lubbock, including snow, sleet and rain, amounted to about .41 of an inch of moisture, according to state experiment station reports.

SHIELD EXPERT HERE

H. M. SHEVNAN, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Hilton Hotel, Lubbock, Friday, only, January 7, from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Mr. Shevnan says: The Zoetic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increase the circulation, strengthens the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume no matter the size or location. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.

Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge.

No Information At Lubbock In Regard To More Patrolmen

Despite an Associated Press announcement from Austin that the Texas Department of Public Safety commission would discuss placing 50 to 60 recruits in a training school for highway patrolmen and drivers license bureau inspectors in a campaign against highway slaughter, Capt. W. W. Legge of the Lubbock district headquarters of the patrol said he had not been informed of examinations to be given soon.

He also said he had not received any official notice relative to the number, if any, of the new officers who would be placed in this district.

The Austin dispatch, quoting Col. H. H. Carmichael, director of the public safety department, said the patrol suffered a loss in personnel when a detail of officers was transferred to the recently organized drivers license bureau.

Col. Carmichael said the department's campaign for safety needed more men. He also said a training school could be put into operation in about 15 days after selection of best applicants who would submit to oral and written examination.

Shriners Plan Entertainment And Business Tuesday Night

V. Ellison, secretary.

L. D. Thomas is president of the club.

Several important matters of business also are scheduled at the meeting, one of them being consideration for final adoption of the constitution and bylaws of the club, which was organized last May.

LIKE that of a tree, the growth of an individual, or business or a city must be healthy. Deep rooting, careful pruning, proper nourishment . . . all are necessary.

NATURE, in the case of a tree, can be counted on to care for adequate growth . . . but nature alone cannot provide for groups of individuals. Individual effort is needed; cooperation and careful planning play a part.

FOR over 33 years Lubbock has turned to the First National Bank for the solution of financial questions, and we are proud to have played a part in successful development of the business of Lubbock and the South Plains territory.

Lubbock Is Awarded School And All-Star Game Of Texas Coaches Association

Lynn Waldorf And Harry Stuhldreher To Serve As Instructors Here

Lubbock and Texas Tech, which have seen and served host to the largest and most popular coaching schools in anybody's athletic history, re-enter the industry this year after two summers of inactivity.

Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and the Texas Tech athletic department yesterday agreed to requirements and guarantee necessary to bring here next August the fourth annual coaching school and all-star football game of the Texas High School Football Coaches association.

The school and the game last summer were conducted at Baylor university, Waco. Baylor made a strong bid for the 1938 event, but the board of directors of the coaches association, convening last Saturday in Dallas, heard Lubbock's bid and voted to accept it if Lubbock would equal that offered by Baylor and Waco.

Acceptance Is Wired

The Waco bid was equalled at a meeting here yesterday attended by A. B. Davis of the Chamber of Commerce, Head Coach Pete Cawthon, Athletic Council Chairman W. L. Stangel and Business Manager W. T. Gaston, of Texas Tech, and Head Coach Weldon Chapman of Lubbock High school.

L. C. Wood of Cameron, president of the state coaches association, verified the selection of Lubbock in a telegram of acceptance to Davis last night. "You can say definitely," Wood asserted, "that the coaching school will be staged in Lubbock, and that we are grateful to Lubbock and to the chamber of commerce and Texas Tech for the invitation and their attitudes."

Chapman is vice-president of the association and member of the board of directors.

The school will start on Monday, August 1, at the Texas Tech athletic campus, and be climaxed the following Saturday night by the fourth annual all-star football game between picked teams representing the Northern and Southern districts of the Texas Interscholastic league.

Instructors Selected

Instructors at the school will be Lynn Waldorf, head coach at Northwestern university; Harry Stuhldreher, University of Wisconsin head coach, and "Ox" DeGrosa, line coach of the Philadelphia team of the National Professional football league.

Previous schools have been conducted at Dallas, Fort Worth and Waco, where some of the nation's outstanding coaches served as instructors.

Waldorf and Stuhldreher will coach the 44 senior high school football players who will be selected by special committees to represent their sections in the ball game.

"Students" at the school will absorb the teachings of the instructors, to a certain degree, by watching Waldorf and Stuhldreher apply their technique in actual coaching of the athletes.

The 1937 school at Waco attracted a few over 250 Texas high school coaches.

Expect Big Attendance

Weldon Chapman, former secretary of the association, predicted last night that the Lubbock school would attract more than 300 coaches. These, with the 44 athletes, the instructors and the college coaches who pay special "tuition" to attend the schools, are expected to swell the attendance to around 400, which would compare with the great Texas Tech coaching schools conducted from 1931 through 1935.

Texas Tech officials already had decided not to resume the Tech coaching school this summer, although there had been considerable agitation for it.

Because of Lubbock's summer climate, its cooler weather in August and the advantages offered at Texas Tech, the majority of coaches prefer this city for the coaching school, it was decided by members of the board of directors in Dallas last Saturday. The directors voted to accept Lubbock's bid provided dormitory space and accommodations could be obtained at Texas Tech and provided a cash guarantee be underwritten.

Chamber Makes Guarantee

Lubbock Chamber of Commerce underwrote expenses of the game to the tune of $1,200, then sought cooperation of Texas Tech's athletic department.

Coach Pete Cawthon, a great believer in coaching schools and successful promoter, along with Line Coach Dutchy Smith, of five great national schools here, voiced his gratitude and offered the use of the Tech athletic plant for the school.

Business Manager W. T. Gaston and W. L. Stangel, athletic council chairman, obligingly cooperated to the extent of offering use of a dormitory for visiting coaches and players.

Presence of the 44 senior high school players, cream of the 1937 interscholastic crop, and the game they are to play are expected to give Lubbock more than state-wide publicity and importance.

Coach Chapman recalled last night that Lubbock High school had had representatives in each of the previous three all-star games, each of whom played sufficiently to receive the regular team trophy, a handsome wrist watch.

Morris White, scintillating backfield star of 1934, played a fine game in the first all-star contest at Dallas in 1935. White now is a star with Tulsa university. Dixie White and Othie Upton, Lubbock stars in 1935, played in the all-star game the following summer at Fort Worth. At Waco last year, C. L. Storrs, Lubbock captain of 1936, was one of the game's heroes. Dixie White and Storrs are Texas Tech gridders now.

Officials of the Texas High School Football Coaches association, sponsor of the school and the game, are L. C. Wood of Cameron, president; Weldon Chapman of Lubbock, vice-president; Bryan Schley of Teague, secretary-treasurer, and Bobo Nelson of Athens, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Coaches Select Players

The board of directors includes Dewey Mayhew of Abilene, Swede McMurry of Gainesville, Herman Clark of Fort Worth North Side, Jack Riley of Garland, Ted Jefferies of Wichita Falls, Shirley DaCamera of Laredo, Robert Berry of Corpus Christi and O. M. (Red) Moore of Sinton.

A committee of six coaches, three of the North and three of the Southern parts of the Interscholastic league, has been appointed to select the senior players for the all-star game.

Coaches who will do the selecting for the northern division, which includes Lubbock in the first eight districts, are Howard "Bull" Lynch of Amarillo, Harry Taylor of San Angelo and Bill Meyer of Fort Worth Paschall.

President Wood will determine which of the two instructors, Stuhldreher or Waldorf, will coach the Northern team.

Eastern Sports Under One Man Rulership Now

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. (AP)—Asa S. Bushnell today plunged into duties that eventually may make the 37-year-old Princeton graduate the most powerful figure in intercollegiate athletics.

Officially he is the executive director of Eastern Inter-collegiate athletics. He has been hired to serve a gigantic but loosely woven federation in which 55 colleges, eleven associations and seven sports are involved.

Each association will keep its entity, but Bushnell will be the administrative officer of each. Whether he will be strictly an administrative officer or will be called upon to settle disputes depends on the federated organizations themselves.

"I have some definite ideas on the running of such events as the I. C. A. A. A. A. track and field meets but would rather not say just what they are until after I have talked them over with the directors," he said.

That Isn't All

In addition to the Eastern Intercollegiate association and the I. C. A. A. A., the new setup includes the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball and Basketball leagues, Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball conference, Eastern Intercollegiate Golf association, Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming league, Heptagonal Games association, Intercollegiate Ice Hockey association, American division of the International Intercollegiate Ice Hockey league, and the Quadrangular Hockey league.

It is Bushnell's hope that eventually his office will prove so helpful that other sports' associations will want to join.

Bushnell's first experiment will come Friday. He has invited all of the cooperating schools to send representatives to a general forum, at which schedules for all sports, including lacrosse, soccer, cross country, boxing, gymnastics and fencing, will be discussed.

CONFERENCE HELD

AUSTIN, Jan. 5. (AP)—Secretary of State Charles Terry and Tax Commissioner J. P. Truss of Delaware conferred with Edward Clark, Texas secretary of state, today on Clark's recent edit that "tramp corporations" must cooperate under Texas laws by May 1 or cease to do business in the state.

BAYLOR CAGER HURT

WACO, Jan. 5. (AP)—Wilson White, the Baylor Bears' tall basketball forward, may be lost for the season because of an injured leg.

He was hurt in last night's game at San Marcos against the Southwest State Teachers and had to be carried from the floor.

White is one of four lettermen who returned to the squad.

Morgan To Coach Georgia

(By The Associated Press)

ATLANTA, Jan. 5.—The Constitution will say tomorrow that Dell Morgan, Alabama Polytechnic institute (Auburn) line coach for the last four years, will be the University of Georgia's new head football coach.

Morgan, whose Auburn lines have attracted attention for their exceptional defensive ability, conferred here today with Harold Hirsch, Atlanta lawyer and member of a five-man subcommittee delegated to recommend a coaching setup to Georgia's athletic board.

Neither Hirsch nor Morgan would comment on the situation following their conference.

Joel Hunt To Help

The story will say that Mervin (Chick) Shiver, All-America end at Georgia in 1927 and now athletic director of Armstrong Junior college at Savannah, Ga., will be brought in as end coach, with Joel Hunt, Louisiana State backfield coach and former star quarterback at Texas A. and M., coming from the Baton Rouge school in the same capacity.

Harry J. Mehre, for 10 years the Georgia head coach, resigned early in December. His chief lieutenant, Rex Enright, has accepted a four-year contract as head coach at the University of South Carolina. It has been rumored that Enright will take with him End Coach Vernon Smith and Line Coach Ted Twomey.

The five-man subcommittee's recommendation will be given to the 19-man athletic board, which is expected to meet sometime before the middle of the month to pass upon the new coaching setup.

Sun Bowl Stadium May Be Enlarged

Plans for a stadium with a seating capacity of at least 18,000 and a Pageant of Legends as the theme for the 1939 Sun Carnival Parade, have been announced by Dr. C. M. Hendricks, director general of the Southwestern Sun Carnival association, according to word received by Lubbock participants in the Jan. 1 celebration.

"The 1938 superb Sun Bowl game between Texas Tech and West Virginia clearly demonstrated that we must have a larger stadium," said Dr. Hendricks. "We are working on that project. We are considering an enlarged College of Mines Stadium for the annual Sun Bowl game with a seating capacity of not less than 18,000 and plans could be so worked out that additional seats could be installed as they were needed."

The Pageant of Legends, which is being considered for 1939, would be a presentation of legendary tales and fables, and would, according to Dr. Hendricks, provide a larger scope and field for more attractive and beautiful floats than those in the Pageant of the World.

The first Sun Carnival parade, 1936, was a Pageant of History, the second, 1937, was a Pageant of Beauty.

Meyer To Stay At TCU For 5 Years

FORT WORTH, Jan. 5. (AP)—It's all settled. Dutch Meyer won't go to the University of Mississippi and Texas Christian university won't try to get some one to replace him—for at least five years.

Furthermore, for the next five years the head football coach must stick with the Frogs.

That was the outcome today of a meeting attended by Meyer and the TCU athletic committee of the board of trustees. Dan D. Rogers, Dallas banker who is chairman of the committee, issued the statement tonight before the annual Frog banquet.

Although the new contract has not been drawn up Rogers said "everything was agreed upon," that it was "satisfactory to all" and that the "papers would be signed soon."

It was understood Meyer would be given a substantial raise in salary over the amount called for in the three-year contract he signed last year. Meyer's salary was believed to have been $6,000 per year.

Old Dell Moves Up

If today's edition of the Atlanta Constitution carries the correct dope on its sports page, the gentleman pictured above, well known to Lubbock and West Texas as well as to Alabama fans, is the new head man of football at University of Georgia. Dell Morgan, former Lubbock High and Texas Tech coach and one of the most popular citizens of Lubbock until he went to Auburn four years ago, started at Texas Tech under the Pete Cawthon regime as line coach in 1930. He was later made head freshman football coach and varsity basketball mentor, serving in these capacities until 1934. He has visited here every summer since then.

Here's How The Ballyhoo Boys Get The Dope

By PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. (AP) — For some unaccountable reason, the many "lying championship" tournaments conducted around the country each New Year's Day fail to include the fight camp inspectors, hangers-on from yesterday's gory glory whose tall stories get the public all excited about the industry's second rate bums.

Perhaps it's self protection for the amateur fibbers. If so, a special class should be organized to give the "pros" a chance for greater fame.

This is how the tall tale tooters work. The promoter, realizing his gigantic task in building up an ordinary fighter for a match against a good one, invites all the ex-fighters he can find to visit the rival camps. They arrive in Elmer Dump's camp. As the experts, hard up for copy, take notes the inspectors utter words of great wisdom. In a few minutes, they predict a great victory for Elmer, picturing him as a "fine specimen of an athlete" instead of a tumble down guy who should be home trying to read a book, or at least a pulp magazine.

Free Tickets Passed Out

The next day, the inspectors go to the camp of the favorite. "He'll be lucky to beat Elmer," say they. "It'll be the fight of the century."

Strangely, though, the inspectors laugh off their testimonials later when they get free ducats for the show. They sometimes happen to be correct. Max Schmeling, Bob Pastor and Tommy Farr made them look good. However, most of them are the reverse. They said Harry Thomas might lick Schmeling, though in fairness they qualified their rash statements with "if Thomas can hit Max and Max can't hit Thomas."

Jack Dempsey, James J. Braddock, Tony Canzoneri, Benny Leonard, Lew Tendler, Dumb Dan Morgan and even Gene Tunney of late are among the chorus boys who do the inspecting. But my favorites are Harlem Tommy Murphy, Professor Billy McCarney and Walter Monohan. They're tops in the profession.

The Buckshot Expert

Harlem Tommy is a mischievous soul. The gray-haired old master of the ring buys buckshot by the pocketful. He'll get an innocent victim into a huddle and spit buckshot at him. Errorless as he is sly, Harlem Tommy will have his victim accusing everyone of squirting him with buckshot except the real offender.

Monohan, who seconded Jess Willard in his fight against Jack Johnson in Havana, is the long distance stooge. Walter thinks nothing of coming 2,000 miles to put the official eye on the fighters in camp.

Professor McCarney is a suave, slick man of the world but of late hasn't been much good in the buildup business. He's got fighters of his own and has had a lot of tough luck.

Actually, however, few of the experts are fooled. At a recent fight camp, several cornered Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, another grand character, and said:

"Jack, why don't you get your name in the papers big by saying this fighter is a big bum?"

Philadelphia Jack thought over the proposal and said:

"Why, boys, don't you know there's a little bum in each one of us? Just wait'll I look at this other bum tomorrow."

Plenty Of Fast Fisticuffing Promised In Golden Gloves Tourney Monday Night

If their sparring practice at the Tech gymnasium this week is any indication of their ability and willingness to sling leather—and there is no reason to believe otherwise—there'll be some old fashioned, right and left handed scrapping down at the Auditorium Monday night, and for two Monday nights to follow, when amateur boxers of the section clash in the second annual Golden Gloves tournament.

They are really going after each other, hammer and tongs, in workouts under the direction of Milton "Killer" Coffey, former state and AAU champ in two weight divisions and now boxing instructor at Tech. Coffey, who has charge of boxers at the Golden Gloves tournaments, forecasts the best series of fight nights, from both numerical and artistic standpoints, in the history of West Texas boxing.

Middle Divisions Full

Tough competition is assured in practically every weight division, especially in the light heavyweight, middleweight, welterweight and lightweight groups.

And for a change, there should be some tough going in the heavyweight division. Five heavyweights are entered, or about four more than ever entered before. Babe Ritchie, giant Lubbock High school heavyweight, romped off with the district Golden Gloves title last year but without much competition within the district. He sailed on through the state tournament, and represented Texas in Chicago's big event before being eliminated.

Expected to give Ritchie some trouble this time is Bob Bryant, a 220-pound giant from Olton, former all-around high school performer there and a potential power in Texas Tech athletics. George Collins of O'Donnell and Herbert Lamb of Wilson are others listed in the heavyweight division who have been looking good in workouts.

Entries have been slow in the bantam and featherweight classes. Only Lewis Terrell, who won the division in both district and state tournaments last year and went up to the national event from Lubbock with Ritchie, is entered in the bantamweight division. There is a possibility, however, that Tommy Coats, Texas Tech featherweight who looked so good in the recent Wichita, Kansas amateur tournament, will train down to the bantam class. He lacks about two pounds. With him now in the feather division are Elton Terrell and two others.

Four are entered in the 112-pound or flyweight class, with Rudy Russell, formerly of Lubbock High, now of Tech, showing the way to Darrell Carpenter and Clifford Duke in workouts. The latter two are improving steadily, however.

An even dozen are listed in the lightweight class, and here's where there'll be some real scrapping. Pete Nachlinger, Jack Lovin, Sigle Tomlin, Jack Cole and others are looking good in workouts.

The welterweight division lists eleven boxers at present, with more expected. Half a dozen middleweights and a like number of light heavyweights promise exciting times in those divisions. Bob Ritchie, brother of Babe, and James Hawthorne of Post have made impressionable showings in the light heavy class.

Boxers Report Monday

All entries are expected to report at the Auditorium before 5 o'clock Monday afternoon for weighing in and final physical examinations before starting at 7:30 o'clock in the first of a four-night Golden Gloves program.

Monday night's show will be the first of two nights of city Golden Gloves fighting, although all boxers who plan to compete in the district tournament, scheduled for the nights of Feb. 7 and 8, are invited to compete in the city tournaments. Finals in the city tournament will be held on Monday night, Jan. 17.

TICKETS ARE MOVING!

Boxing fans who like to see their fighting at close range are advised that ringside tickets for Monday night's opening event in the Golden Gloves tournament are on sale now at three downtown places—and are beginning to move. Choice seats, while they last, may be reserved or purchased at the Hilton Hotel lobby desk, Sam Rosenthal's Hub Clothiers or Hotel Lubbock Drug. The price is $1.10, including tax.

Season tickets, at $4.00, will remain on sale at the Avalanche-Journal office until noon Monday. A season ticket entitles the holder to the same ringside seat for the entire four nights of fighting.

California Fans Turn Out 209,000 Strong For 3 New Year's Events

By EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. (AP)—Official attendance figures for New Year's sports activities in California show: 90,000 at Pasadena for the Rose Bowl; 60,000 at Santa Anita for the hoss race, and 59,000 at San Francisco for East vs. West . . . My goodness, didn't anybody in California stay home with a hangover? . . . Leonard Dodson, the golfer who recently beat Horton Smith in that Hollywood, Fla., tournament, never has lost a play-off and calls himself the Dizzy Dean of the golfers. . . . Jack Doyle, the bookmaker, who retired recently from the billiard parlor biz to rest, says he hasn't been so busy in the last 30 years.

Stuhldreher Picks 'Em

One of our Southwest correspondents claims he has found Dizzy Dean's birthplace and swears it is the real one. . . . He has discovered Dizzy came into the world at Havana, Ark., which is a small town in Yell county. . . . What! . . . War Admiral's winter address is Barn G, Stall 59, Hialeah Park, Fla., if you are looking for tips. . . . New York fight writers gave the air to the Frankie Blair-Vittorio Venturi fight in the Hippodrome last night to go over to Orange, N. J., to see the redoubtable Tony Galento in action against Charlie Massera . . . Larry Kelley, the ex-Yale football star, has formed a professional basketball team.

Of ten visiting coaches who picked "Bowl" winners for the Los Angeles Times, only one — Harry Stuhldreher—named Santa Clara over Louisiana State and only one —Harry Stuhldreher—picked West Virginia over Texas Tech.

IT'S OKAY, TOMMY

AUSTIN, Jan. 5. (AP)—The Texas Interscholastic league executive committee today ruled Tommy Proctor, Abilene High school tackle, was eligible for play last football season.

Stephenville had protested Proctor's eligibility, claiming him over age.

Abilene won the District three championship.

Jap Lays Injun In The Daisies In Two Falls

It took an airplane squadron to sink the Panay, but it only took one Jap to sink the Mayflower with Indian Bill Cazzell at the helm last night in the main event at the Auditorium.

Tetsura Higami, head professor of advanced wrestling at the local grunt and groan emporium, dug in his thumbs—hard like—into the upper part of Cazzell's anatomy to which the Amarillo toughie succumbed after 25 minutes of the first fall. Will Bill had time to dream a peaceful vision of bursting bombs during the interim between conscious moments.

Injun Has Pain

It required but 11 minutes for the Nippon to conclude the match in the second fall. A toe hold turned the trick and Cazzell's legs into contortions at the same time. The Injun was in intense pain as his shoulders were being pinioned to the resin.

The match got just a wee bit rough at times with the loser threatening the Jap's limbs with dismemberment, although doing little about it when he finally grabbed a handful. The Jap's blood-curdling war cry gave the big crowd some sidesplitters.

Sailor Moran Wins

Jack Mandell, the wiry Bostonian, was not as Vulnerable to Sailor Moran's rough tactics as the extar expected. He countered with some good punching of his own in their thirty-minute semi-final draw. Mandell got his dander up towards the end and was challenging the Sailor with his dukes when the bell rang.

In the curtain raiser, Cyclone Mackey's airplane spin got the best of Andy Tremaine. The Arizonan held his own most of the way, but got his legs in the wrong place—under Cy's arms. Mackey pinned him after 18 minutes.

Louisiana Stars May Battle Washington Professionals

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 5. (AP)—The Louisiana State university athletic council was called this afternoon to consider a proposed football game between the Washington Redskins, National Professional football champions, and an all-star team composed of Louisiana players.

Decision of the athletic council will be submitted to James Monroe Smith, president of L. S. U., for final approval.

The exhibition game will be played Sunday, Feb. 6, in L. S. U. stadium if plans for the contest are approved by University authorities.

Such a game probably would see Sammy Baugh, Redskin passing star, and Gaynell Tinsley, brilliant pass-catching end of the Chicago Cardinals professional team, on opposing sides. Tinsley twice won all-America honors while at L. S. U.

Secretary Ickes Dodges Controversy With Press; Interpretation Offered

Recent Speech Rouses Paper

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. — Secretary Ickes said today he had "too much respect" for many newspapers to make a "general indictment" of them.

His statement was made in reply to a telegram Jan. 1 from the publishers of the Wichita, (Kas.) Beach, which said:

"In your radio address of Thursday night you urged that business 'call off newspapers and commentators.' These expressions are a general indictment of the entire newspaper profession and eminently unfair to those newspapers in which was printed all the news, regardless of political policy. If you have specific evidence of 'kept newspapers' let us have their names and clear the others of suspicion."

Speech Recalled

That portion of Ickes speech, entitled "It Is Happening Here," to which the publishers took exception, said:

"To speak bluntly and realistically, the first requirement for a better understanding between business and government is for big business to call off its lobbyists, call off its newspapers and commentators . . ."

In his reply today, Ickes said:

"I made no general indictment of newspapers. I have too much respect for many of them to do such a thing. If I indicted any newspapers in my speech it was only such as my indictment fitted.

"Generally speaking, as it is unfortunately true that the fairness of newspapers is a matter of which there are sincere personal differences of opinion, I think that we may best look to qualified newspapermen themselves for the best evidence on the subject."

Fight On Mishaps Slated To Begin

AUSTIN, Jan. 5. (AP)—The "go ahead" signal for a new offensive against mounting highway mishaps will be given here tomorrow.

The Public Safety commission, convinced the safety department's finances can meet the added expense, will discuss the addition of possibly 50 or 60 new highway patrolmen and driver's license bureau inspectors to existing forces.

Col. H. H. Carmichael, public safety director, said all commissioners had expressed the opinion more officers were needed and all that remained before applicants could be selected and placed in training was formal action of the group.

Applicants will be given oral and written examinations by boards of citizens in various communities and the grades, to be given by impartial University of Texas instructors, when checked against physical qualifications will determine successful applicants.

Total Of 2,667 Ask Unemployment Aid

AUSTIN, Jan. 5. (AP)—Claims for unemployment benefits reached 2,667 today.

The unemployment compensation commission reported that many applications from 19 of 112 offices over the state.

They said no benefit checks would be issued before Jan. 21, pending a study of works records and other qualifications of applicants who in the meantime may be placed in new jobs secured through the state employment service, a division of the commission.

Officials have estimated approximately 300,000 claims would be filed this year but believe not more than 60 per cent will be eligible for compensation which varies in accordance with the jobless person's work record and reaches a maximum of $15 weekly for 16 weeks.

Death Penalty Is Upheld By Court

AUSTIN, Jan. 5. (AP) — Death in the electric chair faced Selanes Canedo today as the court of criminal appeals upheld the extreme penalty assessed him for killing Joseph W. Daly, Bexar county garage owner, Nov. 25, 1936.

The highest criminal court ruled there was no evidence of error in the trial although the defense claimed Caedo was coerced into a confession by two officers who whipped him on a lonely country road at night.

"When the confession was offered by the state there was no evidence of mistreatment by the officers," the court said.

It held that although Canedo later testified he was whipped his confession was in substance a "true statement of how the homicide occurred."

CLAIMS UPHELD

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 5. (AP)—Attorney General Jack Holt today won a two months fight against payment of $7,000 by the state claims commission to Reynolds and Sutton, Tyler, Texas, highway contractors, after an hour's debate, voted three to two to rescind its November action allowing the claim, and to disallow it on reconsideration.

The buying and selling of girls and women is still a legalized and licensed business in Tokio.

The Black Widow Flirts With Death---And Loses

ROUND 1
The spider ran along the twig until directly beneath one foot of the mantis, then paused . . .

ROUND 2
The mantis, feeling a touch, sprang back with wings spread and its spiked forelegs extended . . .

ROUND 3
One foreleg darted out and snapped shut over the spider before she could use her poison . . .

THE WINNAH!
And the mantis dined on its victime, smiling the while its victory smile.

(By Associated Press Feature Service)

The Black Widow spider, with a venom said to be deadlier, drop for drop, than the rattlesnake's, is so tough that sometimes she gobbles her mate when tired of him.

The praying mantis, long as a man's hand, is another cannibal of the bug world, warring mercilessly on other insects. The female, like the black widow, often eats her undersized mate.

So it was a championship fight when Edwin Way Teale found a black widow and a praying mantis in his garden, placed them on the same twig and photographed the encounter for his book, "Grassroot Jungles." (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

Famous Trainer Of Centre's Praying Colonels Is Dead

ASHLAND, Ky., Jan. 5. (AP)—Roscoe Brumfield, 55, negro football trainer and rubber, whose day of glory came in 1921 when he entertained Cambridge fans after Centre's "Praying Colonels" had downed mighty Harvard, 6 to 0, is dead here, victim of an automobile accident.

Roscoe, in checkered pants, yellow vest, cut-away coat and silk hat, sat on the bench with "Uncle Charlie" Moran, the coach, and out yelled everybody else when "Bo" McMillin scored the winning touchdown. His dress and antics attracted a crowd after the game and while the Harvard band played he cake-walked to the delight of thousands.

In 1927 Roscoe followed "Red" Roberts, another Centre star, to Ashland when Roberts joined a pro team here. Since then had been trainer for the team.

Lubbock's Bank Statements

LUBBOCK should be proud of its financial institutions and the remarkable gains made during 1937 as evidenced by a summary of the report made to the comptroller of the currency at Washington on the status at the end of business December 31.

In general, our banking showed a 20 per cent increase at the start of the new year over the start of 1937. Deposits, total resources and cash on hand were greater by approximately that amount, than a year ago.

Bankers, commenting on the fact that the ten million dollar mark in deposits was missed by less than seven thousand dollars, indicated if they had known it would be that close they would have made extra efforts to get in additional deposits to pass the mark. It would have been easy to do, they said.

One thing to remember about Lubbock and its banks is that there are no extremely wealthy men or corporations here, carrying huge deposits. In other towns comparable to Lubbock, large concerns frequently carry hundreds of thousands of dollars on deposit; or wealthy land or property owners have much on deposits. There are few men here whose net wealth approaches anywhere near a million dollars.

A sign of health is the statement of bankers that credit is in much better condition now than a year ago, or for some years. Farmers will not need much to start their crop year on, they having had more money left over from the past season than before. Business men's borrowing limits are higher.

All in all, the bank statements appearing today reflect a most assuring and satisfactory situation.

We Should Improve Some

THE immense and increasing sums Texas has been spending for education should mean improvement in her rank among the states in point of literacy when the next federal census is taken in 1940.

Latest available comparisons in that regard are from 1930 figures which showed, to the distress of many Texans, that the state ranked 39th among the 48 of the nation in illiteracy. It revealed that more than 300,000 of the Texas population could neither read nor write.

States lower on the educational scale were Alabama, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, New Mexico, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia. The extreme range of the scale were South Carolina, where 14.9 persons out of each 100 could neither read nor write, and Iowa, where the ratio was eight-tenths of one per cent. In Texas, the percentage was 6.8, an illiterate being, according to the federal standard, a person 10 years of age or older who can neither read nor write in any language.

Texas, no doubt, has improved her ranking since the last official figures became available nearly eight years ago, with every expectation that it will not be satisfied unless that is the case.

Lubbock county has been an exception to the rule and ranks near the top of all Texas counties with a percentage of 1.3. In spite of the high ranking then, our own city and county without question have been among the most progressive in the entire nation in its educational advancement and the probabilities are the citizens will have added reason to be proud of their record when the next census has been completed.

The One-Minute Sermon

Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord; that walketh in his ways.

For thou shalt eat the labour of thine hands: happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee.

Thou wife shall be as a fruitful vine by the sides of thine house: thy children like olive plants round about thy table.

Behold, that thus shall the man be blessed that feareth the Lord.

The Lord shall bless thee out of Zion: and thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life.

Yea, thou shalt see thy children's children, and peace upon Israel.—Psalm 128, 1 through 6.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

WELLINGTON'S LONG TROUSERS

It is hard for us to realize what a drastic innovation long pants were in men's attire. As recently as 1820, certain churches barred from their pulpits, preachers wearing long trousers. It is recorded of President Madison that he was the first United States president to wear long trousers.

Though by 1825 trousers were accepted as suitable for day-time street wear, it took longer to establish them as correct for evening. In England the Duke of Wellington pioneered for the new garb, appearing at his club one evening in a pair of tight fitting trousers reaching to his ankles. Fellow members were amazed at his "impudence", and ejected him from his club.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Investigating the murder of BOLITHO BLANE, British financier, aboard CARLTON ROCKSAVAGE'S yacht, Detective Officer KETTERING runs into a maze of conflicting clews.

As the investigation progresses he charts the possible motives for each of the ship's passenger's; MRS. REGINALD JOCELYN, none, so far as known; COUNT POSODINI, grudge motive against Blane; Rocksavage, strong motive of financial gain; BISHOP OF BUDE, strong motive since Blane knew of his unsavory past.

LADY WELTER, strong motive of financial gain; INOSUKE HAYASHI, strong motive of financial gain; REGINALD JOCELYN, strong motive of financial gain;—MISS ROCKSAVAGE, none, apparently. Only the ship's crew and NICHOLAS STODART, Blane's secretary, are conclusively ruled out on sound alibis. Stodart was in the ship's lounge all during the period in which Blane obviously was murdered.

As Kettering rounds out his deductions, Rocksavage appears with his physician, offering proof of his presence in his cabin when the crime was committed. The lounge steward corroborated this testimony.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

I then examined the contents of the wastepaper baskets, which had been removed from each of the parties' cabins on the morning following the crime, and three items of interest emerged from this examination.

In the refuse from Count Posodini's cabin I found 31 cigaret ends, 25 of these are Chesterfieds, but the other are an English brand called Players, and four out of these six have obvious traces of lipstick on them.

In the refuse from Miss Rocksavage's cabin I found a twist of hair which had obviously been removed from a comb. Most of this was golden hair, which undoubtedly comes from the head of Miss Ferri Rocksavage, but mingled with it there are a few short, black curly hairs, which definitely suggest that a man had used that comb after her.

Among the refuse from the Bishop of Bude's cabin I found one match torn out of a booklet of matches, upon which is printed in block letters the words "Adlon-Claridge."

I then re-examined various members of the party.

DETECTIVE OFFICER NEAME'S SHORTHAND NOTES OF DETECTIVE OFFICER KETTERING'S THIRD EXAMINATION OF THE HONORABLE MRS. JOCELYN.

K.: Come in, Mrs. Jocelyn. Sit down, do.

P. J.: What, more questions, already?

K.: Yes. Sorry I've got to trouble you again, but let's make it as pleasant as we can. Have a cigaret?

P. J.: No thanks, I only smoke my own.

K.: Right, then. May I have one of yours so we can be sociable?

P. J.: Certainly.

K.: I see you smoke Players. Very popular brand in England?

P. J.: Very.

K.: That's a charming shade of lipstick you use, Mrs. Jocelyn.

P. J.: Need we go into that?

K.: I'm afraid we've got to. I'm going to trouble you for the lipstick you have in your bag at the moment.

P. J.: But—I don't understand.

K.: Never mind. Just hand it over, will you. It'll save all sorts of trouble in the end if you'll oblige me now.

P. J.: All right. There's nothing very exciting about my lipstick, but I'm sure I don't want to be searched. Here it is.

K.: Thanks. You won't mind if I keep it will you? We shall need it later to prove that it matches the lipstick on these cigaret ends which I've got in this little tin box—see?

P. J.: Why—yes. But . . .

K.: Players, all of them. Mrs. Jocelyn, smoked by you and found the morning after Blane's death in Count Posodini's cabin. Now, don't get me all wrong. I'm not trying to fix you for murder, and I'm not trying to raise any nasty scandal about you. The point is that some time between the morning of the 7th and the morning of the 8th you smoked these cigarets in Posodini's cabin.

* *

If it was, as I have reason to believe, between 7:45 and 8:10 p. m. that lets you out of any suggestion that you were doing anything with the Count that you shouldn't have.

On the other hand, if you didn't smoke them at that time, it might suggest that you were there for a very much longer period and then—no offense—but it might be suggested that you and the Count were up to the sort of thing your husband wouldn't care to hear about.

P. J.: I have nothing to add to my previous statement.

K.: All right, Mrs. Jocelyn. Then the presumption is that you were in the Count's cabin at some other, and probably a much longer, period during that 24 hours. If that comes out, as it may quite well have to in a case like this, what will your husband have to say?

P. J.: A lot I expect.

K.: That doesn't appear to worry you over much?

P. J.: As a matter of fact it's just the sort of little lesson I've been meaning to give him for some time.

K.: So he's been playing you up with Ferri, eh? I guessed as much.

P. J.: I did not say so.

K.: Wait a minute, though. I'm going to put you wise to something which may make you think differently before you burn your boats. The bird you know as Count Posodini is actually "Slick" Daniels; con man and card sharp. Here's his police record. Take a look. Now, what about it when the press get hold of that? Can't you see the headlines in the news sheets. "Society dame becomes moll of well known crook." That's not going to be so funny for you, is it? You'll sure be ruined socially and that's a high price to pay just to get your own back on your husband.

P. J.: Yes—yes, it would be horrible.

K.: All right, then why not tell me the truth.

P. J.: I have nothing to add to my previous statement.

K.: Oh, Lordy! Let me put it to you another way, then. Mr. Rocksavage and the ship's doctor both saw your husband still unchanged in the passage at 8:10. So your bluff about his being in his bath at 7:45 is now quite useless. Get that?

P. J.: Yes.

K.: On the other hand there is very strong presumptive evidence that Posodini did in Blane. As "Slick" is a known criminal that makes the presumption doubly strong. Now, you seem a decent sort of girl. Just because a man has a criminal record behind him you're surely not going to see him sent to the chair for a murder he didn't do, if you can stop it, are you?

P. J.: I see. Yes, that does make a big difference, doesn't it? All right, then. I was in the Count's cabin. When we came below at a quarter to eight I went in to borrow a book and I sat there talking to him for the best part of half an hour.

K.: Then, why the heck didn't you say so to begin with?

P. J.: Isn't that obvious?

K.: Yes, because your husband told you not to. Did he know where you'd been.

P. J.: I intended that he should. I suppose I might as well tell you everything now. My husband and I haven't been getting on very well lately and this trip has brought matters to a head. I don't worry much about his having an occasional affair, because he's the type of man who's never quite grown up, and it seems that sort of thing is absolutely necessary to him. You see I try to persuade myself that he never really goes off the rails, but this business with Ferri Rocksavage has been a bit too much.

I jib at being made a fool of in public and, of course, he considers that I'm as safe as houses, because I'm very very fond of him and I've never looked at another man. I thought that it might bring him to his senses if I did, so when he and Ferri started throwing eyes at each other on the first day out from New York I decided to start a party of my own with the Count.

I knew quite well that I could take care of myself and I thought that, if I spent half an hour alone with the Count in his cabin, before changing that night, Reggie would be certain to ask why I was so late. As it was I had all my trouble for nothing. He was so occupied himself that he never even thought to ask where I had been.

K.: I understand.

P. J.: I wouldn't have told you this unless you'd had proof already that he didn't come down till ten past eight, but now, as there's no object in keeping up my original story, at least I can get the Count out of trouble. I'm glad to do that because, whether he's a jailbird or not, he's a very amusing and kind-hearted person.

K.: Thank you, Mrs. Jocelyn. I really am grateful to you for having cleared this matter up.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

SIGNS of Brain Truster Tommy Corcoran's inspired touch in the Jackson-Ickes blasts against bigness supply telltale evidence that F. D. R. himself directs the flank attack on the sit-down strike of the "60 money kings". Tommy operated as liaison man so secretly that nobody photographed him, but his fingerprints show.

Assistant Attorney-General Jackson is a fluent orator, but he abhors verbal bludgeons and provocative phrases. He invariably elides striking superlatives from drafts submitted for his approval by subordinates. His style is limpid, subtle, polished. His previous speeches on the monopoly issue had provoked so few headlines that the services of the excitable Irishman were drafted.

"Tommy" may not have done Friend Jackson a good turn, however; he has induced the New Deal's 1940 hope to deposit all his eggs in a single basket. If the omelet doesn't scramble on the party griddle between now and the next election, both cook and chef may walk the political bread lines.

* * *

WEAPON: The timing of the monopoly hunt raises doubt in informed circles as to the purpose of the bush-beaters. Not until the business slump assumed political proportions did presidential aides tom-tom the trust issue.

Early last April Mr. Roosevelt received private warning—the famous Henderson memo—that prices were rising so high as to threaten a buyers' strike, curtailment of purchases and a falling-off of production. He immediately met the problem by closing down P. W. A. and R. F. C. loans, but he said no word about monopolistic practices being responsible for the ascending price levels. And not until his press conference mentioned it did he remember he had asked Attorney-General Cummings to investigate charges of collusive bidding on government steel. The A. G. received those instructions in April, 1936, but for a year had not taken the trouble to report any results to F. D. R.

Three weeks after the presidential prodding Mr. Cummings informed the White House that he had unearthed no conclusive evidence of collusive bidding. He did, however, urge appointment of a committee to study the need for sharpening and clarifying the anti-trust acts. So far his advice has not been followed. Mr. Roosevelt apparently prefers speeches.

* * *

PROPHETIC: The newspaper photographs of the Panay bombing have transformed three of Washington's most noted peace lovers into skeptics. They still abjure war as a means of settling current or future disputes, but they are keeping their fingers crossed.

Twenty years ago Senator George Norris voted against a declaration of war on Germany, and was hung in effigy, ostracized in his home community. On the tenth anniversary he said solemnly that he would vote the same way again—dubious of the democracy which the war to save it had bequeathed. Today he tells friends that he might vote differently, though reluctantly. Cordell Hull can't express his views publicly, but his dinner table comments make his notes to Tokyo read like Sunday school lessons.

Rep. Edward J. Taylor, as a member from a state a thousand miles from the coast, would generally be slow to support a huge navy problem. But the House Appropriations chairman from Colorado gave three silent cheers when F. D. R. warned him that the need for more battleships might unbalance the budget. It is not a war spirit—yet. But it may be prophetic unless certain nations mend their manners.

* * *

FLAVORED: Bernard M. Baruch should be credited with at least an assist for the few kind words President Roosevelt said to—and about—business in his message to Congress. Though their views differ radically, the silver-haired member of the elder-statesman school exerts a deep effect on F. D. R.—sometimes.

An incident which may be significant occurred as the financier departed from the White House. Normally a sprightly and willing conversationalist on such visits, Mr. Baruch seemed unusually somber as the presidential door swung behind him. He declined to discuss his talk with the President or to comment on business conditions when accosted by reporters. But after he had walked 20 feet out the driveway, he turned quietly and returned.

Then he uttered the words which F. D. R. subsequently endorsed as "a good way to put it". Said Mr. Baruch in effect: "We face no problems which cannot be solved with intelligence—and forbearance." The President swallowed only a small dose of the advice—about 10 per cent—but the bad medicine might have been more distasteful except for Doctor Baruch.

* * *

SYSTEM: First practical administration move to check price increases may be the herding of various federal agencies dealing with production and consumption (both industrial and agricultural) under a single tent. The idea behind it would be to furnish a closer and more consolidated watch over discrepancies, sudden unexplainable increases and illegal controls.

The price experts are now scattered in a dozen different departments—Labor, Agriculture, Commerce, Federal Trade commission, W. P. A., etc. Each has its economists, and they conduct detailed but dissociated studies of the trends, especially in necessities. Often, however, they disagree violently, and never except informally do they assemble to dovetail their findings. There is no unity in a field vital to the New Deal's system of planned or managed economy.

The official proposal will arouse fierce jealousies and precipitate strife, for each group has its backers on Capitol Hill. But some of the President's "plan men" are whipping the idea into shape for formal submission to him. It may necessitate amendment of the government reorganization bill passed by the House but stymied in the Senate. It also may make further trouble for the measure.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

THERE'S more behind the sudden and heavy cannonade against big business by New Dealers Jackson, Ickes, Henderson, etc., than meets the eye. The obvious objective is to pass the buck for the slump from the administration to the "economic royalists". But there's another and equally important objective that doesn't appear on the surface—to bring Congress to heel.

Many solons spent the holidays among their constituents. The idea was to impress it anew on the home folks that the New Deal is on the job to protect them from the machinations of the wicked princes of privilege, and thus stir them up to bring pressure on their Senators and Congressmen to do the bidding of the Great White Father in Washington as of yore.

It remains to be seen whether this strategy will get results. The timing was neat, at any rate. The barrage began after Congress adjourned, so the other side was out of position to return the fire promptly. Further, the abruptness of the attack caught the opposition napping—totally unprepared to respond in kind.

* * *

WALLOP: Financial insiders get word that a fancy tax formula is being concocted behind the New Deal scenes for presentation to the current session of Congress.

It will tie into the drive on bigness. The plan would give small corporations a large measure of exemption from the undistributed profits tax, but corporate giants would continue to pay and pay and pay. Even among the titans, however, distinctions would be drawn. Companies with a majority of their stock in the hands of the public would be given a much better tax break than those in which a controlling interest is vested in a small group or is a family proposition. If the tentative program is carried out, the latter will be soaked harder than ever.

The outstanding target of this ingenious scheme is of course Henry Ford. But it would also be a terrific wallop to Mellon and duPont interests and to the Hartfords who own the A & P grocery chain. The neat angle from the New Deal viewpoint is that not many Congressmen are likely to stand up in defense of Fords and duPonts provided the rest of industry is given some relief. Watch for spectacular developments along this line.

After 5,000 years of civilization, we now reserve our greatest honors for the young man who can throw a football the best.

* * *

MR. C. W. GUNN, of 1628 10th street, dropped in yesterday with a poem headed "The Governors' Bet" that's just too good to overlook.

For the benefit of those who didn't read Sunday's paper, Governor James V. Allred, of Texas, and Governor Teller Ammons, of Colorado, were so steamed up about the Rice-Colorado U. Cotton Bowl football game on New Year's day that they made a bet. Governor Allred wagered the Big Bend park against Governor Ammons' famed Pike's Peak and, of course, won when Ernie Lain beat Whizzer White.

Since then there's been a lot of razzing about how "Jimmie" can collect.

Among those who have gotten a lot of kick out of the situation is Mr. Gunn, who penned the following verse in Walt Mason style:

We noted by many a paper this week, and it struck us most like a tornado, that the governor of Texas had won Pike's Peak from the governor of Colorado. If we recall rightly, 'twas only last spring Mister Allred expressed his regrets that a former legislature would do such a thing as officially legalize bets. So he calls up a session of both House and Senate and to them this message he sends: "Repeal racetrack gambling — and put some teeth in it — or I shall not call you my friends." Now if dear, old Will Rogers were living today (though we all know the gov'nors were joking) I'm sure I can guess almost just what he'd say: there would certainly be some fun-poking! Methinks he'd get busy on a great broadcast (oh, the fun he would have would be ample!) and take Messrs. Allred and Ammons to task for the setting of such an example. I can hear him remark to the gov'nor of Texas, "Now Jim you've kicked over the traces. I'd sure like to learn from our wise college prexies the difference 'twixt football and races. What's good for the gander is good for the goose—it's only the truth that I seek. Is it really more pleasure to win than to lose? You should know, since you've just won Pike's Peak!" Then to Governor Ammons, I fear he would say "You needn't pay that obligation. For had Jim lost the bet he'd soon find a way to outlaw it by legislation!" Then to Governor Allred again he would speak: "Now, Jimmie, you have a young boy. And even if you could move Pike's Peak, would you always find it such a joy to hear your young son planning to bet, or perchance, hear him boasting he'd won it? And isn't it true that you'd always regret to hear him say 'well, my dad done it!'

We'll say Mr. Gunn "has got something there!"

THE newsreel pictures of the Panay bombing are being shown all over the country and millions of Americans are packing theaters to see them.

The Plainsman saw them at the Palace here, before their two-day run ended last night.

* * *

The pictures are interesting. Remarkably clear and steady, despite the trying conditions under which they were ground out, they are worth anyone's time and contemplation.

They are not as "hot", however, as most people might expect. Of the actual bombing there is little, although there is considerable on the rescue, of the wounded men, and of the flight down the Yangtze to Shanghai.

* * *

PARTICULARLY will the first part of the film make the patriotic temperature of the onlooker hit a new high.

The natural reaction to the bombing and to other pictured bullying by Japanese troops in Shanghai is the thought:

"Somebody ought to wipe those yellow so-and-sos off the map."

Undoubtedly, showing of the pictures to millions the nation over will result in continued growth of hostility toward Japan. And a lot of that hostility will come from the way the Nipponese are shown to be causing untold sorrow, suffering and destruction in China.

* * *

At a dinner party the other night, subject of the Panay pictures came up for conversation.

* * *

pro and con.

While The Plainsman, personally, was and still is in favor of the American public's being shown just what happened—and is happening—in the Orient, he was impressed by an opposite view.

Several thoughtful and highly intelligent men and women of mature years argued that the pictures will do a great deal of harm; that they may help whip up a pro-war feeling; that they cannot do any good at all.

And there is a good deal of logic in that view.

* * *

PERHAPS his feeling can be traced directly to the principles of the newsroom—the principles that the public is entitled to the facts in any case touching upon public good or harm. But at any rate, The Plainsman is still for letting the people see the pictures—and for letting the people feel about them as they individually choose.

This much is certain.

The bombing movies will to a great extent solidify the people behind President Roosevelt in his plan to increase armaments, build a bigger and better navy, and generally increase the preparedness of all our fighting arms.

And that is something The Plainsman is for, 100 per cent.

This column favors a big army and a big navy—and the best armaments in the world for the United States of America.

TARZAN'S QUEST. No. 154 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

From afar, Tarzan and Brown heard the sound of babbling voices in some remote part of the temple. Guided by his keen ears, the Jungle Lord threaded his way through the corridors in the direction of those sounds, ignoring the danger of sudden ambush.

Now, in the great throne room of Kavandavanda, was gathered a great concourse of warriors and slaves. The high priest trembled on his throne. The girls of the temple, those poor creatures who were awaiting sacrifice, crouched in terror near the dais.

A warrior pushed his way toward the throne, an angry scowl darkening his hideous face. Many human teeth lay in necklaces upon his breast, marks of his prowess as a hunter of girls. He pointed a finger at Tarzan's mate and shrieked to Kavandavanda,

"Our troubles have been upon us since she came among us. She is a witch. It is she who brought the dead men back. Destroy her! Kill her with your own hands that we may be saved!" And a hundred voices took up that awful refrain. "Kill her! Kill her!"

Ask The Master Psychologist
DR. LA ROSE, Ps. D.

How to obtain Love, Happiness, Success, being loved and admired for yourself alone, capturing the hearts and friendship of all about you, can bring you more happiness than all the jewels and fine clothes you could wear . . . than all the wealth you could spend in a lifetime. Without friendship and love, life would not be worth living, for admiration and affection are the breath and heart beat of all human happiness. Within you is a power that controls your destiny. It is in every woman and man, but few discover it. Those who do are blessed with the key to Life's Happiness. With all my heart I urge you to bring forth this innate charm that is yours. Develop it, and you will attract to yourself those things that make life worth while. You are helpless in the hands of women who have learned how to use their hidden powers of attraction. You have these powers. You can discover and develop them and swiftly make yourself irresistible to men . . . even in competition with women far more attractive-looking. You can win and hold the love of the one you want. So if in doubt, ask the man who knows.

MODERATE TRADING

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. (AP)—Rail issues retreated under selling pressure in the stock market today and many leaders of other groups likewise fell behind for losses of fractions to a point or more.

Profit taking, brokers said affected the list after an early rally had sprinkled modest gains throughout. At the finish there were numerous plus signs among the less active issues.

Brokers said the president's budget message, transmitted to congress just after noon, had little effect other than to cause a brief flurry among the armament shares.

Baltimore and Ohio was a particular target for the attack on the carriers which came after the market had digested the day's news and settled down to a session of only narrow variations. The movement spread from carriers to other groups.

Trading was at a moderate pace, with transactions running to 1,150,840 shares compared with 942,180 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .2 of a point to 44.0, while that for 15 rails dipped .7 of a point to 18.7, the lowest since March 28, 1935.

Secondary carrier liens were under sharp attack in the bond market and losses ranging to several points were frequent. U. S. government issues, on the other hand, pushed ahead for good advances.

Principal losers in the stock market included U. S. Steel, down 1⅞ at 56½, Bethlehem, off ¾ at 60⅞, Chrysler, down 1¼ at 49½ and Westinghouse Electric, which lost 3½ at 100⅛. In the rails, Baltimore and Ohio, 8⅛, was off 1⅝ to a new low for 1937-38, and New York Central, 16¼ and Southern Pacific 17⅞, each lost more than a point.

There are three times as many parts in a piano as in an automobile.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5. (AP) — Cotton pushed upward in early trading on the exchange here today under better foreign markets, encouraging textile reports and better spot demand for export, but reacted to hedging and profit taking and closed at net declines of two points.

Jan. closed at 8.40-bid to 8.43-asked, March at 8.48, May at 8.57@8.58, July at 8.62@8.63; Oct. at 8.67 and Dec. at 8.70. The advance at one time during the morning, was almost 50 cents a bale.

The continued large export movement had a sustaining effect. Foreign markets were strong, as the American price favors them, and exports today totaled 38,622 bales, bringing the total since last Friday to 118,022 bales. Secretary Henry Plauche of the exchange released figures showing the December exports totaled 783,805 bales compared with 638,174 bales last December. Exports for the season thus far are 3,500,622 bales.

Probability of an early agreement on the farm bill had a beneficial effect on the market and talk of inflation served to strengthen prices.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at ten southern spot markets was 8.43 cents a pound; for the past 30 market days 8.20 cents a pound.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. (AP)—Further rallies into new high ground for the movement in cotton today were not fully maintained. March reacted from 8.46@8.47 and closed at 8.38, with final prices 1 to 4 points higher.

The market opened 6 to 10 points higher on foreign, commission house and trade buying. As prices advanced beyond the December 21 highs, and above 8½ cents for May, there was a little more realizing and southern selling. Early trading was considerably more active than in recent sessions but the market later became quieter.

Oil Field Highway Being Considered

AUSTIN, Jan. 5. (AP) — Highway commissioners today promised a West Texas delegation consideration of a highway from Friona to intersect highway 51, about 10 miles southwest of Seagraves when funds are available.

Harry Hines, a member, said the officials recognized the need of the highway through the rapidly developing agriculture and oil area.

The thoroughfare sought by the West Texans would be a designation of highway 214 via Muleshoe, Morton and Plains.

Greater Splash Of Red Ink Seen

000,000. Surely the congress will insist on it."

"We must have at least $500,000,-000," Pope said.

Assent, Dissent Heard

There were many general comments of approval, however, such as that of Senator Sheppard (D.-Tex.) who said the budget was "an honest and logical effort to bring expenditures and income into balance at the earliest possible date."

Several indicated they could not agree to the president's proposed halving of the present $280,000,000 for public roads.

Chairman McKellar (D.-Tenn.) of the senate roads committee said he believed road appropriations could be "reduced some."

"The message," he added, "was a splendid step forward towards reduced expenditures. Congress, wherever it can, ought to add to those reductions."

Representative Rich (R.-Pa.) struck the general note of Republican criticism when he commented: "The budget presents a deplorable situation."

Greater Navy To Be Asked

Representative Fish (R.-N.Y.) said: "It doesn't make any difference any longer what the president says in his budget messages. Why should anyone believe in them?"

At almost the same time his message was being read to the senate and house, the president began a conference with high naval officials and legislative leaders on a message he proposes to send congress, asking supplemental naval appropriations.

Those attending the conference hinted afterwards the president had in mind scrapping the present Vinson-Trammell naval bill, based on the Washington and London naval treaties, and asking a far larger navy than congress now has authorized.

In telling congress he might find it necessary to ask additional sums for relief and national defense the president said:

"I refer specifically," he said in his annual message transmitting the budget to congress, "to the possibility that due to world conditions over which this nation has no control, I may find it necessary to request additional appropriations for national defense.

FDR Voices Some Doubt

"Furthermore, the economic situation may not improve—and if it does not, I expect the approval of congress and the public for additional appropriations if they become necessary to save thousands of American families from dire need."

He told congress, the budget, so far as can be foreseen now, will not be balanced next year.

Although contemplated government spending will be less, he said, the effect of the current depression will be to offset these savings because of smaller revenues from corporation and individual income taxes, and other sources of receipts.

Business was good during the first 10 months of 1937, he said, and there was "every reason" to expect the government's income would show successive increases in the last, present and next fiscal years. At the same time, the administration was counting on decreased relief needs to reduce total expenditures.

'Recession . . . Changed . . . Outlook'

"That," Mr. Roosevelt said, "was the basis for our expectation of a balanced budget for the fiscal year 1939.

"The recent recession in business has changed that outlook. Today, it is necessary to revise the estimates of revenues. They will be less than we anticipated. They will, as far as we can tell, remain below our estimated necessary expenditures.

"We hope the calendar year 1938 will bring an improvement in business conditions and, therefore, in tax receipts. The treasury, leaning to the conservative side, predicts some improvement over the present level but does not assume in its figures that business in the calendar year 1938 will reach as high a level as in the calendar year 1937."

However, the president obviously drew satisfaction from the fact that (omitting the uncertainties of national defense and relief) the deficit expected for next year will be smaller than that now estimated for the current year and the latter below the actual figures for 1937.

"In other words," Mr. Roosevelt said, "for the third year in succession we would continue to decrease the deficit."

New Debt Record Rears

The public debt of $38,528,000,000 predicted for next year would set a new record.

Mr. Roosevelt said the "most important fact of this budget is the reduction of $529,000,000 in the estimated expenditures" for the coming fiscal year.

An attached "breakdown" of the expenditure estimates showed where the president expected the savings to be made.

Under the heading unemployment relief, and including direct relief, work relief and the Civilian Conservation corps, it disclosed he had planned to reduce relief spending from $1,759,000,000 this year to $1,-266,000,000 next year, a cut of nearly a half billion dollars. It now depends upon the extent of the increase in unemployment.

The other conditional figures, that for national defense, were set down at $991,000,000, or $34,000,000 more than is planned for the current year. However, even before today's message, Mr. Roosevelt had informed congress that he might send to it a supplemental estimate covering the cost of building warships over and above those now in mind.

But, he lopped this year's figure of $280,000,000 for public highways in half, cut the Tennessee Valley authority from $46,000,000 to $41,-000,000, reclamation projects from $69,500,000 to $60,400,000, river and harbor improvements from $81,000,-000 to $60,000,000 flood control from $71,000,000 to $64,000,000, the construction of public buildings from $74,000,000 to $53,000,000, grants to public bodies from $190,000,000 to $153,000,000 and other public works from $66,000,000 to $47,000,000.

Of the growth of the public debt, he said "it should be pointed out that the increase in the debt by reason of the deficit does not mean that the treasury will borrow that additional sum on the market." In explanation of this statement, he added:

"There will be available during the fiscal year for investment in special issues of government obligations, the net sum of approximately $1,163,000,000, which represents investments of $60,000,000 from the old age reserve account and the railroad and government employes retirement funds and $573,000,000 from the unemployment trust fund and a reduction of $10,000,000 in investments held for account of the adjusted service certificate fund."

Veto Power Referred To

Under the heading of recommendations, the president brought up an old subject, proposed power for the president to veto individual items in appropriation bills. Under present practice he can veto only an entire bill. Noting that "a respectable difference of opinion exists" he asked simply that congress "adopt whichever course seems to it to be the correct one."

His only other "recommendation" was for an annual appraisal of the assets of the Commodity Credit corporation, but he dwelt at such length upon the difficulty of estimating government receipts and expenditures 6 to 18 months in advance that some wondered if he might not be considering some fundamental change in the system of drawing up the budget.

Sutherland Resigns

G. Bratton, now a judge of the tenth circuit court of appeals. These three were known to have been among those under consideration when Black was appointed.

Other names mentioned included: Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general; Felix Frankfurter and James M. Landis of the Harvard law school; Senator Wagner (D-NY), and Ferdinand Pecora, a judge of the New York state supreme court.

Sutherland, for years a bulwark of the court's dwindling conservative bloc, announced his retirement at a brief press conference. Affable and apparently well-pleased, he handed reporters copies of a brief letter addressed to President Roosevelt.

Affable Statement Issued

"Having reached the age of more than 75 years, and having held my commission as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, and served in that court for 15 years, and thus being eligible for retirement under the Sumners act of March 1, 1937, entitled 'an act for the retirement of justices of the supreme court,' I desire to avail myself of the rights, privileges and judicial service specified in that act, and to that end, I hereby retire from regular active service on the bench, this retirement to be effective on and after Tuesday, the eighteenth of January, 1938."

Among the "rights and privileges" to which he referred is a guaranteed income of $20,000 annually for the rest of his life. The Sumners act, permitting retirement at full pay, was passed, some said, to encourage older judges to leave the bench.

Hidalgo Commissioners Held In Contempt By Atwell

BROWNSVILLE, Jan. 5. (AP)—Federal Judge W. H. Atwell today ruled Hidalgo county commissioners were in contempt of a federal court order in not levying sufficiently high road taxes.

Judge Atwell assessed costs of the contempt hearing against the commissioners individually and ordered road taxes inreased to figures representing a compromise between bondholders and commissioners.

The taxes were for eight road districts and ranged from $1.02 to $2.51 per hundred dollars valuation.

Value of bank buildings was approximately the same, as was the value of furniture and fixtures.

Credit Conditions Better

General credit conditions in Lubbock, among both business men and farmers, are generally higher than a year ago, bankers pointed out. Business men have a larger borrowing credit, because of volume of business and income of the past year.

Farmers, apparently on the face of conditions, will not need to borrow as much money for operations and planting the 1938 crop as they did to start the 1937 crop, it was said. Not all of the cotton has been sold and there is yet a considerable income to be had from grain sorghums, unsold. Likewise, cattle on feed will be sold in the months to come, bringing in a good return, it is expected.

Deposits In Texas Showing Increase

(By The Associated Press)

Responses from the larger cities of Texas to the state and national bank calls Wednesday indicated the state's total of deposits was far above that of 12 months ago.

At Corpus Christi, the figure — $17,617,438—was the highest in the city's history and represented a gain of more than three million dollars in the past year.

Wichita Falls showed the highest amount since 1929. Deposits there were $21,200,998, more than two million dollars above the 1936 figure.

San Antonio's total jumped almost 40 million dollars. The figure for Dec. 31, 1937, was $91,430,570, compared to $53,131,852 for the year before.

Conditions Generally Excellent

Zeta Gossett, state banking commissioner, said conditions generally were excellent.

The state's two largest cities, Houston and Dallas, showed declines, but not in amounts sufficiently large to be startling.

Deposits at Houston were $241,-938,633, compared to $248,503,461 in 1936. At Dallas the fall was from $236,782,359 as of Dec. 31 and $256,-035,496 a year ago. In the latter city the trend was upward, the present deposits total being higher than for any other month this year.

Handling Of Labor News Gets Newspapers Pat On Back

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. (AP)—The Labor Relations board complimented the newspapers today for their recent handling of labor news.

In its annual report to congress, the board said "inadequate reporting of labor disputes" had been "chronic for decades" before 1935.

Before that year, the board said, "the great mass of the public drew its opinion on strikes from scare headlines and blow by blow descriptions of strike violence."

Since 1935, the board added, "labor news is no longer an unwanted orphan in the city room."

Mild Temperatures Reported Generally Thoroughout State

(By The Associated Press)

Mild temperatures and occasional rains marked the Texas weather map Thursday.

Rainy conditions, which had prevailed for several days in the coastal area, the border country and extreme West Texas, moved into the interior, with precipitation at Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio, Austin, and San Angelo.

Lubbock reported sunshine, which melted the snow of the day before, bringing moisture to wheat and pasturage.

Additional rain fell in the Corpus Christi area where heavy rainfall recently prevented plowing.

Temperatures throughout the state were reported moderate, with no indication of sleet or snow.

Savings, Loan Association Here Reflects Growth

A 10 per cent increase in growth of the First Federal Savings and Loan association of Lubbock in the past six months was shown by the Dec. 31 report of conditions, made public by Knox T. Thomas, secretary-treasurer. The report was called for by the comptroller of currency.

Loans are now in effect on 415 properties here, Thomas said. This is a gain of 51 homes over the June 30 report. The association has 325 savings accounts. Thomas said he hoped to see 1,000 before the end of the year.

Much Growth Reflected

Loans on 415 homes are $766,-099.44, or $67,291.68 over the $698,-807.80 total of June 30. Stock in the Federal Farm Loan bank increased from $4,400 to $6,400; furniture and fixtures decreased to $1,233.30 from $1,315.61, and cash on hand and in banks was $10,446.38 compared with but $4,836.13 last June. Total resources are $784,179.12, an increase of $74,819.52 over those last June.

Investment share accounts were $635,556.61, or $83,627.97 more than the $552,928.64 of last June. Loans in process of adjustment, with commitments were cut from $76,260.50 to $49,527.83; advances from the Federal Home Loan bank were $57,-000, an increase of $49,375 over June; undivided profits were $5,568.45, compared to $3,171.57 last June; reserve for federal insurance, $993.48 and $359.83; reserve for contingencies, the same, $10,945.45; other reserve, $837.90 and $91.41; reserve for dividends, $10,127.54 and $9,306.17; borrowers' tax and insurance accounts, $12,621.86 and $6,921.03.

Lamesa's Two Banks Show Increases Over 1936

LAMESA, Jan. 5. (Special) — Figures obtained from Lamesa's two banks, the Lamesa National and the First National, showed deposits of $2,713,469, loans of $228,861, and resources of $2,921,617 on Dec. 31 of 1937.

Those figures compare with deposits of $1,636,075, loans of $289,145, and resources of $1,812,964 for the same date of the previous year.

Deposits showed an increase of $1,077,394; resources increased by $1,108,653; and loans decreased by $60,284.

National Defense

by the president would be provided in a deficiency appropriation later this session, Representative Taylor said.

Though the president's conferees said no decision was reached on types and numbers of additional vessels, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of operations, indicated the navy favored one or more battleships beyond the four building or projected, two aircraft carriers, and numerous small cruisers.

Other Defenses Proposed

Significant of the times was the provision made in the budget for strengthening defenses in continental United States, Panama and Hawaii.

No mention was made of the island of Guam, fortification of which was forbidden under the nine-power treaty, now denounced by Japan.

During the fiscal year 1939, beginning July 1 of this year, two battleships, two light cruisers, eight destroyers, six submarines and four auxiliary vessels are to be built.

Increases to the army provided principally for augmenting the personnel of the regular army, national guard and reserve.

Mystery Woman Photo Identified

MOSCOW, Jan. 5. (AP)—An American today identified a passport photograph of Ruth Marie Rubens of New York as that of the woman who gave her name as "Mrs. Donald L. Robinson" before disappearing in Moscow early last month.

The person making the identification interviewed the woman at her Moscow hotel before she vanished Dec. 9. She is now reported under arrest.

The identification was telegraphed to the state department in Washington. The United States embassy is awaiting instructions from Washington before reopening its inquiries into the case.

A photograph of Adolph Arnold Rubens could not be identified. The man who was known here as "Donald L. Robinson" and who disappeared Dec. 2, never visited the American embassy and was not seen by any Americans, as far as could be learned.

Secure Fraudulent Passports

If Rubens is the man who posed as "Robinson" and was a communist, as some reports indicated, his disappearance and strong implications by the government organ Izvestia that he has been arrested, could be explained by the Soviet purge within communist ranks.

The couple, bearing American passports since found to have been obtained fraudulently and calling themselves Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Robinson of New York reached Moscow Nov. 6 and lived at the National hotel. The man vanished first. His wife told inquirers she had been informed he was in a hospital suffering from pneumonia, but she did not know where the hospital was. The next day she too disappeared.

Several On Program Of Rotary Club

New Rotary club members were in charge of the program at the weekly luncheon at Lubbock hotel Wednesday which was enlivened by challenges to older members to name those seated at the head table. Only W. O. Daniels named them all.

Ray Farmer was program chairman and John Powers, a resident of Lubbock about six months, said his first impression of the city was as "one of the livest in the state." He was warm in his praise of the chamber of commerce. Chas. A. Guy, a member for 14 years and for several years the youngest on the rolls, said that constant infusion of new blood is necessary if the club is to grow and progress.

Co-chairman R. E. McDonald of the membership committee reported a net gain of nine members last year, increasing the total to 96. W. P. Clement was named as the first to pay his 1938 dues.

Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Technological college, announced that an opinion of the Texas attorney general is awaited on how the college can meet Reconstruction Finance corp. for a loan for new dormitories. He expressed hope that the endeavor to finance new buildings will be successful.

President James Kilpatrick called a meeting of officers, directors, committee chairmen and vice chairmen at the home of Roy Furr, 3120 Twentieth street, for tonight.

Coach Pete Cawthon of Texas Technological college spoke briefly concerning the recent Sun Bowl game at El Paso which Tech lost to the West Virginia Mountaineers, 7-6.

M. L. Kelly, president of the convention and superintendent of schools at Roosevelt, is in charge of all arrangements.

Bonds To Extend Utilities Voted

SEAGRAVES, Jan. 5.—Residents of Seagraves Tuesday, by a vote of 63 to 10, approved issuance of $100,000 in revenue bonds for construction of a modern sewage system and for extension of present water mains to serve this rapidly growing oil community.

Major C. M. Armstrong announced the vote. The city commission recently called the election on presentation of petitions.

Of the issue, $65,000 will be used to build the sewage system and a disposal plant, the remainder to extend water mains.

Plans have been drawn. Bids are to be asked as soon as the city can clear legal steps.

It is estimated there are more than 2,600 people who get their mail at the Seagraves postoffice.

Many new houses, as well as business locations, have been built in the past year. Indications are that oil development during 1938 will increase the population more than during the past year.

Oil field supply houses are beginning to be located here, as are retail concerns.

Kansas City Seeks Tip From Lubbock On Show Conduct

Kansas City, one of the world's greatest inland jobbing centers, is seeking tips from Lubbock on how to conduct a successful market week.

C. M. Woodard, recently appointed trade commissioner of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce succeeding Jim Burke, communicated with officials of West-Texas New-Mex Wholesale Clothing Market association Wednesday seeking information on the system followed in staging spring and autumn clothing markets and fashion revues here for the Plains region.

Woodard's letter explained that numerous leaders in the wholesale industry had praised the Lubbock show, particularly that of last autumn, as one of the finest held in the smaller cities of the nation.

Crosbyton Man Slightly Hurt In Collision; Charge Filed

George Crump of Crosbyton suffered bruises and shock when the light pickup in which he was riding was in a collision at a road intersection in South Ralls about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The two machines involved were pickups. W. M. Wooley, about 60, of Caprock was driving north on a crossroad and C. L. Russell, 24, of Tarzan was driving west on highway 24.

The two pickups were damaged about $250, according to investigating officers.

Russell was fined on a charge of speeding, officers said. Slippery road figured in the mishap, according to a Texas highway patrolman's report.

Investigating officers were Thomas C. Laws and B. L. Wooddell, both of the highway patrol.

Fletcher Valentine knows tobacco values... like so many other independent experts he smokes Luckies!

"I've bought 4,000,000 pounds of tobacco at auctions in the past ten years," says Mr. Valentine, independent buyer of Westfield, N. C., "and my bread and butter depends on making the right bids. That's why I have to know tobacco values.

"Now I've smoked Luckies ever since 1918, and the reason is, they suit my taste to a 'T'. Nobody knows better than we tobacco men that Luckies are made of the finest center-leaf tobacco."

Yes—and that isn't all... Luckies' exclusive process, "It's Toasted" takes out certain irritants naturally present in all tobacco—even the finest! The result is that you will find Luckies not only taste good but are easy on your throat.

Surely, independent experts like Mr. Valentine make good judges of cigarettes... Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes combined!
