In Brief

Ace SAT

AUSTIN (AP) — Brennan Griffin is one of the few, the proud, and the lucky.

Griffin, 17, is among probably a dozen students who, out of nearly 2 million nationwide, took the SAT test and scored a perfect 1,600.

"I just think the difference between 1,600 and 1,550 is probably not that large," he said.

"I'm almost sure there's going to be some luck involved. There are always a few questions — especially in the reading comprehension — you are not sure about. You narrow the answer down to two and guess from there."

"Shock, surprise," is how Griffin described his emotions when he received his score in the mail last week. "My parents were pretty happy."

"He's certainly joining an elite club," said Kevin Gonzalez, a spokesman for the Educational Testing Service, which administers the SAT.

Simpson case...

Blood types said to match

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson's blood type matches that of blood found outside his ex-wife's condominium, where she and a friend were stabbed to death in a fierce struggle with their attacker, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

A more exact DNA test to determine whether the blood is in fact Simpson's has not been concluded, the newspaper said, citing unidentified sources. Such tests can take two months or more.

Simpson's blood type is different from those of the two victims, the newspaper said. The story did not specify what blood type he has. Blood types are shared by many people.

A lawyer for the 46-year-old former football star said Simpson was at home waiting for a limousine to the airport when Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were killed Sunday night.

But a police source, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press on Wednesday that Simpson would be arrested in the slayings, perhaps within days.

The Times previously reported that Simpson had scratches on his body when police questioned him Monday. Mrs. Simpson's throat was slashed, and Goldman's wounds indicate he put up a fierce struggle before he died, investigators said.

Police were also reported to have found bloodstains in his driveway and his vehicle, and a bloody glove at his mansion and another at the crime scene. But tests on the blood on the gloves have not been completed, the newspaper said.

Simpson's attorney, Robert L. Shapiro, did not immediately return a call for comment early today.

On Wednesday, Simpson slipped past reporters ringing his house to attend a private visitation service at a funeral home Wednesday for Mrs. Simpson. Her family was said to have treated him cordially.

"It was all friendly," Denise Brown, Mrs. Simpson's sister, told the Daily News of Los Angeles.

Earlier in the day, Shapiro told reporters that the former NFL star was at home in the city's Brentwood section at the time of the slaying two miles away.

"O.J. was at home waiting to get into a limousine to take him to the airport on a trip that had been planned well in advance for a promotional event in Chicago," Shapiro said.

Cause for concern...

Juvenile crime on the rise

Juvenile crime is climbing rapidly, a fact which, if not cause for alarm, is certainly a cause for concern, says Police Chief Lannie Lee.

"It's a real concern because the increase reflects a much more aggressive behavior pattern among juveniles," said Lee.

At the current rate, the number of juveniles arrested this year will be double that of two years ago, according to statistics released by Snyder Police Department.

There were 97 arrests involving juveniles in the first four months of 1994. In comparison, there were 155 juvenile arrests for all of 1992.

The trend isn't new, though; arrests increased from 155 to 277 in 1993, a jump of almost 80 percent.

What is most alarming is the rise in two categories of arrests — alcohol and assault.

In 1992, there were eight alcohol-related arrests among juveniles in Snyder. There were 22 through the first quarter of 1994.

Arrests for assault jumped from 17 in 1992 to 31 in 1993. There were 14 from January through April of this year.

"More involvement with alcohol is the key factor, I think," said Chief Lee. "The alcohol prompts a lot of the assaults and misconduct."

In cases where the juvenile is taken into custody for an alcohol-related offense, he or she is detained at the police department until parents or a guardian can be located.

Alcohol is made available to juveniles from a number of sources, police say. Many "bootleggers" — and in some cases, clerks in counties where the sale of alcohol is legal — have no scruples about selling alcohol to minors. Frequently, juveniles have friends or relatives who will purchase alcohol for them. And, there are some parents who also make alcohol available to their children, believing there is no harm in it.

Police department statistics don't just show an increase in misdemeanor crimes, however. The number of burglaries committed by juveniles has escalated rapidly — from 11 in 1992 to 24 last year and already 11 in the first four months of 1994.

"Burglaries are up 41 percent over the same period last year. And most of our burglaries are being done by kids. That's scary," said Lee.

Police are working with other agencies and through the school system to try to curb the rise in

DCOS meets at 5 o'clock

In a meeting set for 5 o'clock today, Development Corporation of Snyder board members will discuss a possible contract between the corporation and the Board of County Development.

The meeting will be held in the DCOS board room at American State Bank. It follows a meeting of the BCD at noon, during which contract discussions were also to be held.

Also on the agenda for the DCOS board are consideration of a health insurance package, bills payable, an application for Mastercard/VISA, membership to Dun & Bradstreet and the purchase of literature racks.

The contract discussion between the DCOS and BCD is expected to help define an exchange of funds between the two entities, as well as the responsibilities and functions of each group as they relate to each other.

Strategic workshop series set

Following up on a strategic planning meeting held recently, the Development Corporation of Snyder has scheduled four evening workshops to set priorities and develop working plans for goals.

The public is encouraged to attend any or all of the meetings. The first will be held June 23 at Towle Park Barn and will concentrate on recreation, arts and culture, and on safety and security.

The second, dealing with business development and physical assets, will be held June 30 at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

A July 7 meeting at Lincoln Community Center will focus on the topics of education and youth.

The fourth workshop will be held July 14 at East Elementary and will concentrate on basic needs and health care.

All four meetings will begin at 7 p.m.

Packets with issues, identified strengths, weaknesses and goals from the first public meeting are now available at the DCOS office.

The DCOS has also scheduled a final workshop for 7 p.m. July 28 in the park barn to present findings from the four workshops to the public.

"We wish that all points of view, cultural bounds, income levels and interests be represented at these meetings," said Doug Hutchinson, DCOS executive director. "Your input, vision and information is vital to making this effort workable. Please feel free to contact the DCOS office with any questions you might have."

The DCOS office, located in the American State Bank building, is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The telephone number is 573-1544.

Ira trustees to meet at 8

Ira public school trustees will consider a personnel request and bids when they convene at 8 this evening.

The board is expected to accept the resignation of Jane Matlock, principal. Matlock has announced her resignation, effective July 1, in order to pursue a position as an elementary principal.

Trustees will also consider bids for construction of a concession stand and restroom facility, playground equipment and computers.

Also on the agenda is consideration of an agreement with Borden County for the education of two transfer students from Ira. The students reside within Ira's district but attend school in Gail.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Never engage in a battle of wits — especially if either party is unarmed."

The following, source unknown, is especially good if read aloud. It is entitled, "The Prodigal Son in the Key of F."

"Feeling footloose and frisky, a feather-brained fellow forced his fond father to fork over the farthings, and flew to foreign fields and frittered his fortune feasting fabulously with faithless friends.

"Fleeced by his fellows in folly, and facing famine, he found himself a feed-flinger in a filthy farmyard. Fairly famishing, he fain would have filled his frame with foraged foods from fodder fragments.

"'Fooey, my father's flunkies fare far finer,' the frazzled fugitive forlornly fumbled, frankly facing facts. Frustrated by failure and filled with foreboding, he fled forthwith to his faraway family.

"Falling at his father's feet, he forlornly fumbled, 'Father, I've flunked and fruitlessly forfeited family favor.'

"The farsighted father, forestalling further flinching, frantically flagged the flunkies to fetch a fatling from the flock and fix a feast for family and friends.

"The fugitive's fault-finding brother frowned on fickle forgiveness of former folderol. But the faithful father figured, 'Filial fidelity is fine, but the fugitive is found. What forbids fervent festivity? Let flags be unfurled. Let fanfares flare.'

"And the father's forgiveness formed the foundation for the former fugitive's future fortitude."

The above item also underscores the progress made in electronic typesetting, when there is no limit to the number of characters.

We can remember some old lineotype machines that would require stealing "F" matixes from another machine just to complete a single line of type in that story.

Progress gets an A instead of a F.

Pentagon arranged 26 flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department arranged 26 flights to Europe for members of Congress, Pentagon officials, their spouses, staff and others who attended the D-Day anniversary celebrations, the Pentagon says.

No cost breakdown for the flights was made available, nor did the Pentagon account for aircraft devoted to President Clinton's entourage and other White House support staff in figures released Wednesday.

The Pentagon flights also carried members of the Cabinet, World War II veterans and high-ranking military officers to the D-Day observance in Normandy, France, the Pentagon said.

Its statement called World War II "the defining event of the 20th century," and argued that observance of the 50th anniversary of the Allied invasion on June 6, 1944, which broke through Hitler's Atlantic Wall, "deserves Department of Defense support."

"The anniversary falls at a time when there is more hope for the global spread of democracy than there has been in many decades, in no small part due to Allied success in World War II," the statement said.

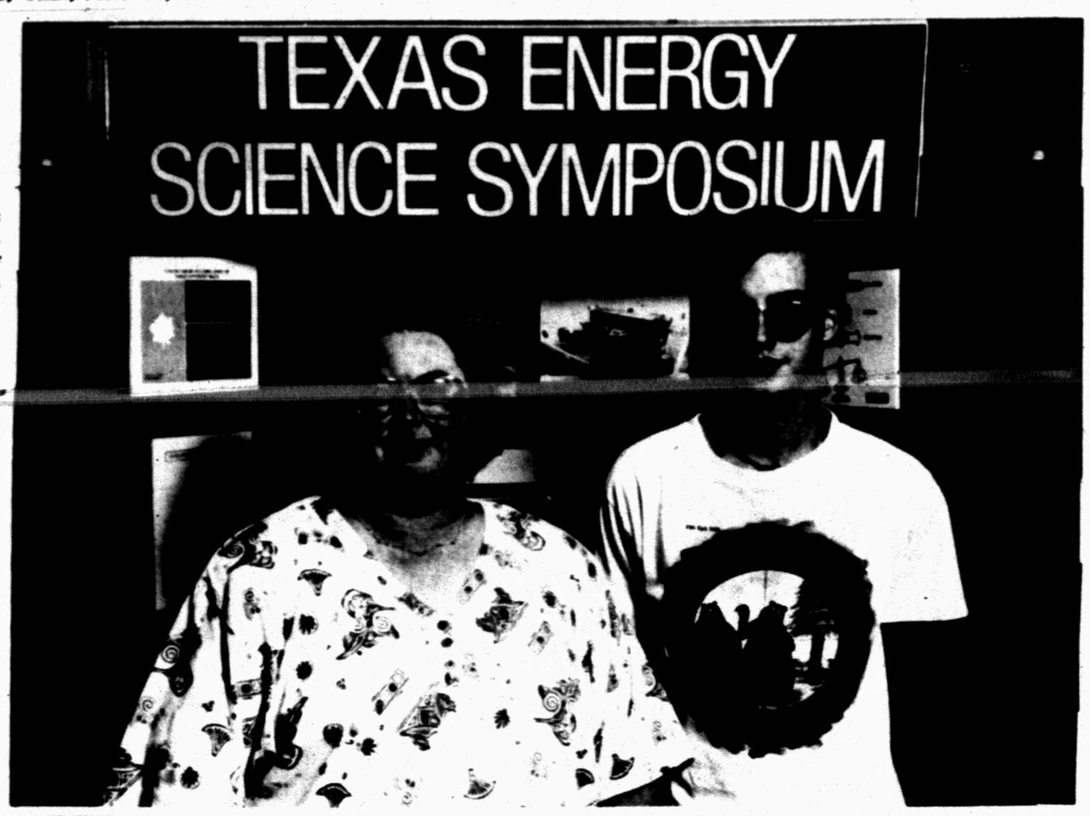

Since the celebrations, Republican Rep. Dan Burton of Indiana has hit the TV talk-show circuit to complain about the size and cost of the administration's D-Day delegation. He said the air travel bill alone may have topped $6 million.

On Wednesday night, the House defeated, 287-147, a proposal by Burton to trim the White House budget by $5 million because the White House has not provided full information on Clinton's entourage to Normandy.

The White House said over the weekend that both it and the Pentagon would provide information to Congress on the eight-day trip to Europe.

The Pentagon statement said there were eight flights for Pentagon officials, five flights for congressional delegations and 13 flights for ceremonial participants, such as the bands, military paratroopers and other military support staff.

One entire KC-135 Boeing 707 transported "a Mississippi state delegation" from Capitol Hill, the statement said, while another similar aircraft carried the 70-member House delegation headed by House Veteran Affairs Committee Chairman G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss. On board were 32 members of Congress, 23 spouses, five staff members and 10 military escorts.

Whitewater shuts down U.S. senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a game of political chicken over Senate Whitewater hearings that could embarrass President Clinton. Republicans are filibustering to win an extensive inquiry. Democrats are threatening marathon sessions to wear them down.

And senators might as well shackle themselves to their desks until somebody blinks to break the stalemate.

The mood is downright gloomy, because the Senate can't get anything else done. Even more frustrating, the bill held hostage by the gridlock is one that lawmakers love — a measure to authorize airport construction projects across the country.

"I hope sometime soon the shackles can be taken off this piece of legislation," the bill's frustrated sponsor, Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said Wednesday as the session droned on into the night.

Both sides agreed to a temporary truce at 10:30 p.m. after Majority Leader George Mitchell threatened to keep the Senate in session all night.

Republicans don't have the votes to expand the limited hearings that Democrats pushed through the chamber on Tuesday. And Democrats cannot stop Republicans from offering Whitewater amendments to the airport bill, all designed to expand the coverage of the hearings.

Every time the Republicans introduced such an amendment, Democrats countered with a superseding proposal that wiped it out. Republicans lost every time on a party-line vote.

"Manufactured gridlock is what it is," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., of the Republican tactics. "I've never seen anything like this. We ought to stop this baloney."

Countered Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss: "We are not going to give up on this issue."

The Senate has been stuck on Whitewater since last Thursday, when Republicans began carrying out their threat to tie up the chamber.

Under the Democratic language, Whitewater hearings will begin no later than July 29 in the Senate, perhaps sooner. The hearings would focus only on contacts between administration officials and savings and loan regulators; on the suicide of White House lawyer Vincent Foster, who was handling Whitewater legal work for the president; and on the removal of files from Foster's office.

"Only 1 percent of the United States Senate is in the chamber at this time," said David Pryor, D-Ark., as he stood alone on the floor, scanning the room for the leader of the GOP forces, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, D-N.Y. "He's AWOL. He's gone. He's fled."

Lott said, "We are not going to agree to hearings that will not be hearings. We are using this vehicle because we have no other. There are a lot of people who want to know what really is going on."

At mid-year...

Report card not good for Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — With health care, crime and now welfare reform on the agenda, the second half of the year looks to be a busy stretch for President Clinton and Congress. But what happened to the first half?

It may well be remembered as the wasted months.

"We replaced drift and deadlock with renewal and reform," Clinton boasted in his State of the Union address five months ago, promising to use this year to continue "our journey of renewal."

At the time, there was little reason to doubt this would be the most productive year of Clinton's first term.

He had momentum from his North American Free Trade Agreement victory, and a strong economy that gave Americans something to cheer about.

And Clinton was turning to things he cares about most, health care, welfare and education reform. To top it off, he promised a tough anticrime package, something paramount to his effort to nudge the Democratic Party to the political center.

But November's elections are virtually certain to bring more Republicans to Congress, making it imperative that Clinton and Democrats make this a productive year.

It may yet prove to be so. But at midyear, the report for Clinton is hardly positive.

He did win passage of an education bill, as well as an expansion of the Head Start program for children, although the funding for that is in question. And the economy has shown steady, if not overwhelming, strength.

But the public has taken little note of these accomplishments and gives Clinton little credit for the improved economy. In fact, many Americans remain jittery about their own economic circumstances, and the debate over rising interest rates has not reassured them.

"People had very high expectations at the beginning of 1993 about change," said Andy Kohut, who polls for the Times Mirror Center on People & The Press. "But they don't see that change occurring, and it's frustrating them."

Add to that frustration a series of foreign policy problems that have raised doubts about Clinton's global leadership. And a litany of personal questions about the president, from his Whitewater investment to allegations, denied by Clinton, that he sexually harassed a state employee when he was Arkansas governor.

"The whole thing about morals and values is driving a negative feeling about him, and about the direction of the country," said Ed Sarpolus, a Michigan pollster who says Clinton's standing has dropped precipitously in the past few months. "People now believe he is spending more time dealing with personal problems than he is dealing with their problems."

That's a damning verdict on a president whose campaign manifesto was "Putting People First."

"He's got a credibility problem, no question," says Senate Republican leader Bob Dole. "He's got time on his side in terms of 1996, but you have to be careful about these things. Sometimes you get people turned off, whether you're a Democrat or a Republican, and you can never get them turned on again."

Dole, of course, already is laying the groundwork to run in 1996 himself and is in no mood to help Clinton rebound. If the president is going to do that, he's going to need more help from Democrats in Congress than he's received in the past few months.

Clinton wanted to sign the crime bill by Memorial Day, but House and Senate conferees have yet to reconcile the two versions, in part because of liberal opposition to tougher death penalty provisions.

Campaign finance reform is another issue that could help Clinton at a time of high voter cynicism about politics and politicians. But the Democratic House leadership is fighting proposed reductions in political action committee giving, leaving that issue in limbo.

Dear Abby

Dog's Bark Is Big Enough For Mom to Fear His Bite

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother has a dog, Sparky, who is part German shepherd. When we go over to his house, Sparky barks and snaps at our children (ages 9 months and 2 years old).

The hair on Sparky's back stands up and, as our child and the other children in the family are running and playing, Sparky goes after them, barking and snapping.

I tell our children to stay away from the dog, as he is not comfortable with people he does not know very well.

Perhaps I am overreacting, but when I was 11 years old, I was attacked by a dog and had to have 37 stitches and plastic surgery on my face.

I once asked my brother-in-law to please lock Sparky up when he knew we were coming, and he acted like we were asking him to lock up one of his children. He even pleaded with my husband to let them have their dog included in the festivities, since he is part of the family.

When we arrived, the dog ran down the stairs, unannounced, loudly barking at everyone. His owners were nowhere in sight.

Abby, my in-laws think I am paranoid, but I don't want one of my children to be bitten. I would appreciate any suggestions you have.

ONCE BITTEN, TWICE SHY

DEAR ONCE BITTEN: I consulted my animal expert, Dr. Erwin David, at Parker Pet Hospital, Studio City, Calif. He said:

"Sparky has a serious behavior problem, one of territorial aggression. His owner should acknowledge this and seek the help of an animal behavior specialist. (Their veterinarian should be able to refer them to one.) Until then, they should make their guests feel more comfortable and secure in their home by confining Sparky while they are visiting. It is only common courtesy."

DEAR ABBY: I received an engraved invitation to a wedding I will not be attending. My cousin's son is getting married in a formal wedding; everything will be first class.

When responding to this invitation, should I write a little note explaining why I will not be attending? Or will a plain "regret" be sufficient?

Also, should I send a gift before or after the wedding? And if I send a check, should I make it out to both the bride and groom, or just the groom? I hardly know the bride.

Should I mail my check in the same envelope with my response?

I am a 26-year-old unmarried woman, and I searched through three etiquette books in my public library and couldn't find the answer to any of these questions. Thank you.

FEELING STUPID

DEAR FEELING STUPID: Please don't "feel stupid." Stupid people don't ask questions; they go on not knowing — and that's stupid.

To answer your questions: Write "no" where it asks, "Attending?"

Since you are not attending the wedding, you are under no obligation to send a gift, but if you do so, mail it before the wedding.

Make the check out to "Mr. and Mrs.," but do not send the check in the response envelope; it may imply that you perceived the wedding invitation to be a "bill" — and your check is the remittance.

How to improve the odds

By Phillip Alder

You are in your car, waiting to turn right. The car coming down the road to your left is signaling a right turn, implying it is safe for you to proceed. Do you pull out immediately? Or do you wait until the other driver slows to make the turn? If the former, you are relying totally on the other driver. In the latter, you are taking a safety-play, ensuring that you arrive safely, if more slowly.

A new bridge book has been published by Gollancz that works on the safety-play principle. In "The Extra Edge in Play" ($15.45, The Bridge World, 39 West 94th Street, New York, NY 10025-7124), the authors, Englishmen Terence Reese and Julian Pottage, want you to hunt for that extra chance to make your contract.

Today's deal from the book is representative of the 50 problems. Look only at the North-South hands. Against your contract of three no-trump, West leads the heart four: eight, nine, jack. How do you continue?

You must assume the opponents will run their hearts if you lose a trick. However, winning five club tricks will give you nine in all. There is no problem if the opponents' clubs are 2-2 or 3-1. But what if they are 4-0? This is no problem either — as long as you start with the right honor first.

Did you begin with the club king, on the basis that if West has heart length, East has club length? That is reasonable; but why not cash the ace and king of spades first? Here West discards a diamond on the second round. Taking the hint, you play the club ace next, picking up the whole suit and making your contract.

NY pulls even with 91-82 win

NEW YORK (AP) — While Patrick Ewing continued to misfire, the New York Knicks found a way to win, thanks to Charles Oakley, Derek Harper and John Starks.

Ewing averaged 23 points and led the Knicks in scoring for 15 of 18 playoff games before the NBA Finals. But he has made just one-third of his 102 shots in the championship series.

While he went 8-for-28 Wednesday night, however, his three less-celebrated teammates led the way in the second half as New York defeated Houston 91-82 for a 2-2 tie in the best-of-7 finals.

The Knicks started Game 4 with a 17-2 run as the Rockets missed eight of nine shots and turned the ball over seven times in the first 71/2 minutes. Then New York spent most of the rest of the half squandering the margin before settling for a 40-33 halftime lead.

That set the stage for a brilliant second half by Oakley, Starks and Harper, who each played a vital role despite a Houston rally.

To summarize their performances:

— Oakley scored nine of his 16 points, grabbed 14 of his 20 rebounds and deflected the ball into a teammate's hands four times in the second half. He had nine rebounds in the fourth quarter alone, and his nine offensive rebounds was two more than the entire Houston team managed.

— Starks scored 11 of his 20 points in the final 5:03, hitting two 3-pointers in that span as the Knicks extended a slim lead.

— Harper scored 14 of his 21 points and made four of his five 3-pointers in the second half.

"The supporting cast for Patrick had to step up," said Harper, who has 21 points in each of the last two games.

"It's up to me and Harp to play big," said Starks, who has consecutive 20-point games. "It's the guards that will determine who is going to win. The centers are basically going to neutralize each other. So we have to step up."

Hakeem Olajuwon outscored Ewing 32-16 in Game 4, but Ewing's 15 rebounds, along with Oakley's 20, helped New York outrebound the Rockets 50-33.

"We knew coming into the series that this was the NBA's top rebounding team, and they came out and played like they wanted it more than we did," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "Getting beat 21-7 on the offensive boards, it's amazing that we even had a basketball game."

Harper made five of his 10 3-point attempts and is now 14-for-27 from long range in the series.

"They're giving us a lot of comfortable 3s that let us get in a rhythm," Harper said. "Once you get in a rhythm and the ball is going in for you, you can stroke the ball and not worry about it. The important thing is to make the play."

Much of Oakley's success in the second half came after rugged Houston forward Robert Horry fell hard to the floor after a flagrant foul on Anthony Mason. Horry played just two minutes after the injury late in the third quarter.

"I have a bruised wrist, hand and lower back," Horry said. "Hopefully, everything will loosen up and I'll be able to come back. I'm going to ice it down, then go for X-rays in the morning."

"Oak was all over the place," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "He dug out some big ones. He's back to his old self. We would not have been in the game without that rebounding."

Oakley's biggest play came with the Knicks nursing a 77-74 lead with less than four minutes remaining. Ewing missed two free throws, but when the rebound bounced toward the sideline, Oakley outfought three Rockets, then saved the ball before it went out of bounds.

The ball was passed around the perimeter to Starks, whose 3-pointer gave New York an 80-74 lead. Olajuwon's four free throws closed Houston to 85-82, but Starks' four free throws and two by Harper in the final minute finished the scoring.

Olajuwon, who scored 22 of his 32 points in the second half and made 14 of 20 shots for the game, said, "I said before the game I would rather score 21 and win than score 50 and lose. This is a classic example of that."

Wednesday night's outcome guaranteed that the 1994 championship will be won at Houston, either in Game 6 on Sunday night or a Game 7 on Wednesday night. The fifth game is Friday night at Madison Square Garden, where the Knicks are now 10-2 in the postseason.

"We're one win away at home from playing for the title," Riley said.

Montana State bull rider nabs top spot with Wednesday 84

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Montana State's Jason Jackson saved the best for last, riding the last bull of the evening to a score of 84 and winning the first go-round of the event at the College National Finals Rodeo here Wednesday night.

The first round of bull riding and saddle bronc riding is now over, while the first round of bareback riding continues tonight. All the timed events are now into the second go-round.

Jackson, riding in front of the hometown fans at MSU's Brick Breeden Fieldhouse, was the last rider of the night and his score eclipsed the 82 that was turned in by Beau Gillespie of Nevada-Las Vegas on Tuesday.

Also winning a go-round title on Wednesday was Ryan Carey of the College of Southern Idaho, who marked a 78 to win saddle bronc riding.

The rough-stock riders were two of three contestants to vault into first place during Wednesday's performance.

Stefanie Duby of Albertson's College of Caldwell, Idaho, had a run of 3.1 seconds in breakaway roping to move ahead of Amanda Harsh of Western Texas College in the second round of the event. Harsh had a 3.3-seconds time on Tuesday.

Leslie Lewis of WTC carries a 7.8 in the average, good for fifth place prior to today's performance.

Western Texas College bull rider Fletcher Tigner, who scored a 71 on Tuesday, was bumped to 10th place as the first go-round ended.

Tigner was also in 10th at the end of the go-round in saddle bronc riding with his 67 on Wednesday.

The top 10 in the average after Saturday night's rodeo will advance to Sunday's championship go-round that will determine the national event champions.

In barrel racing, Tori Woodard of Southwestern Oklahoma State continues to lead the second go-round at 13.91-seconds and the average at 28.23. However, Heather Hart of Western Montana made a big move on Wednesday, pulling into second in the round with a 14.08-seconds time and into third in the average at 28.66.

Travis Whiteside of Western Texas slipped to fourth in bareback riding after Wednesday's run. Whiteside sports a 72 from Tuesday. The event lead is shared by former WTC cowboy Eric Mouton of Southwest Oklahoma State, who scored a Tuesday 76 to tie Vernon Regional JC's Pete Hawkins.

Also, WTC bull rider Trey Griffin scored a 65 on Wednesday for 17th as the go-round drew to a close; Dusti Beaton of the Western Texas' womens' team was clocked at a 15th-place 4.6 in the second go-round of breakaway roping; and WTC's Leddy Lewis remained near the top of the calf-roping standings, resting in fourth with his two-head 23.5.

Drabek handcuffs S.F. in 7-2 Houston victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With plenty of run support and the NL's second-best defense, Doug Drabek is proving his 18-loss 1993 season was an aberration.

Backed up by both Wednesday, Drabek (9-3) made the most of them, holding the San Francisco Giants to one earned run in a complete-game 7-2 victory.

Drabek benefitted from 12 Houston hits — he had two himself — and two double plays. Catcher Scott Servais cut down two would-be base stealers, and the heart of the Astros' order drove in six runs.

At the plate, Jeff Bagwell, Ken Caminiti and Luis Gonzalez did most of the damage against the Giants for the second day in a row.

Bagwell doubled twice and got his 63rd RBI, best in the NL. Caminiti, who had two RBIs, gave the Astros a 4-1 lead in the sixth with his 12th homer, a solo shot off John Burkett (4-5).

Gonzalez followed with a double and scored on Servais' perfect squeeze bunt to give Houston a 5-1 lead.

In the seventh, Craig Biggio's double and an intentional walk to Jeff Bagwell ended Burkett's day. Left-hander Pat Gomez then threw a wild pitch that moved up the runners, and Gonzalez hit a two-run single.

Griffey, M's top Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — For the second straight day, Ken Griffey Jr. had the home run derby all to himself in The Ballpark at Arlington.

Griffey maintained his feverish homer pace Wednesday, hitting the upper deck in right field with his 29th home run of the season during a 3-for-4 day at the plate, leading the Seattle Mariners to a 5-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Left-hander Randy Johnson (8-3) allowed six hits over eight innings for his sixth consecutive victory as the Mariners defeated the Rangers for the sixth time in their seven meetings this season.

Open begins at Oakmont

OAKMONT, Pa. — (AP) — Nostalgia, which to this point has played a greater part than usual in a U.S. Open, gives way to reality today in the first round of the American national championship.

But the greens of Oakmont, the determining factor in those long-ago Opens that form such a large part of golf's history, remain the same. They are fast, hard and undulating.

They are treacherous and so difficult as to be intimidating to the field of 159 of the world's greatest players.

U.S. Ryder Cup star Jim Gallagher provided one of the more colorful descriptions: "I practice for Oakmont's greens by putting in my bathtub."

Fred Couples, recently returned to competition after a four-month absence with a back injury, likened them in speed and slope to the famous putting surfaces of Augusta National and the Masters.

"Except that these have rough around them," Couples said. He noted that the penal rough and narrow fairways traditionally found in Open courses are in evidence here.

"But Oakmont begins when you get to the greens," he said. And long-hitter John Daly goes back into history to find a comparison.

"I read that Jack (Nicklaus) three-putted only once in 90 holes" in his Open playoff victory over Arnold Palmer on this course in 1962, Daly said.

"Well, I can promise you nobody will do that this week. There'll be lots of three-putts. There'll be four-putts and you might even see a five-putt," Daly predicted.

In the practice rounds, Nicklaus, 54, played with Palmer, 64, just as they did in their epic confrontation 32 years ago and provided the gallery a glimpse of what once was.

The exercise in nostalgia continued today with the grouping of a threesome of the most recent U.S. Open winners at Oakmont. Going off the first tee at 8:40 a.m. EDT were Nicklaus, 1973 winner Johnny Miller and 1983 winner Larry Nelson.

In North Korea...

Carter says agreement to ease tension

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Former President Carter said today that North Korea has agreed not to expel international inspectors from the country as long as "good-faith efforts" are made by the United States and North Korea to resolve their dispute over the North's nuclear facilities.

"President Kim Il Sung has committed himself to maintain the inspectors on site and the disputed nuclear reactor positions and also to guarantee that the surveillance equipment would stay in good operating order," Carter said in an interview with the Cable News Network.

"I look on this commitment of President Kim Il Sung as being a very important and positive step toward the resolution of this crisis," Carter said, adding that he relayed Kim's comments to the White House.

In addition, Carter said, Kim expressed a desire for a nuclear-free Korean Peninsula. Carter said talks between the United States and North Korea were necessary for more progress.

Earlier, Carter met with Kim for three hours today at a presidential palace on the outskirts of the North Korea capital of Pyongyang. The two men covered a wide range of issues but U.S. fears that North Korea is building a nuclear arsenal dominated the talks. Another meeting was scheduled for Friday morning.

Washington has said Carter, who is on a private trip, was carrying no formal message from the Clinton administration. But he is making unofficial overtures to the hard-line Communist government.

Kim told Carter through an interpreter: "What is important between us is trust, confidence in each other."

"The meeting between us is the starting point for the first confidence in each other," he said, as translated on CNN. CNN was the only Western news organization allowed into North Korea to cover Carter's visit.

Upon arriving in Pyongyang on Wednesday, Carter held out the possibility of full diplomatic ties with Washington if North Korea permits full inspections of its nuclear projects.

"The time has come to establish full friendship and understanding, open trade, exchange of visits and full diplomatic relations between our two countries," the former president said at a welcoming banquet.

But that will not happen until North Korea opens its nuclear facilities to inspections, he was cited by CNN as saying.

North Korea has indicated it wants out of its political and economic isolation. Yet for the past 15 months the Communist state has refused to open its nuclear sites to full U.N. inspections.

Crime

juvenile crime. More officers are on the streets when drinking is most prevalent — from 7 p.m. until 1 a.m. on weekends. But the primary problem with juvenile crime is lack of control at home.

"A lot of kids roam at night. You have some parents who either don't care or who are not in a position to control where their kids are," he said.

Citizens can help by reporting suspicious activity and by realizing that the days of leaving doors unlocked are past.

Citizens should secure their homes when they are out, being sure too, to close up the garage where bicycles, golf clubs, lawn mowers are other items are viewed as easy targets.

When going on a trip, residents should place a hold on their newspaper delivery, have a friend to pick up their mail and ask police or a neighbor to keep a close watch on the residence.

Jury pondering teen's fate

LUBBOCK (AP) — Jurors began deciding the fate today of a Levelland boy depicted as driven-to-kill by sexual abuse.

The trial from Hockley County, which started Monday in Lubbock, included graphic testimony of sex acts between the murdered man's widow and the 15-year-old suspect.

The boy and a 13-year-old friend are accused of breaking into Jackie Condren's home and shooting their neighbor in the back Sept. 19.

Defense attorney Ray Lopez contends that his client suffered from a mental illness caused by Johnell Condren, who faces charges she sexually assaulted the boy several years ago.

"I'm not here to sugar-coat anything," Lopez told the jury in closing arguments this morning. The abuse "so messed up his mind that he could not appreciate the wrongfulness of his actions."

But prosecutors say the boys killed 54-year-old Condren for his car.

"Right there is who killed Jackie Condren," Hockley County District Attorney Gary Goff said, pointing. "Right there is who blew him away with a .45-caliber pistol. That's where the responsibility lies."

Evidence presented by the state included a statement in which the defendant told police he shot Condren with a .45-caliber automatic pistol.

"We decided we were going to wait for him to come back, then we would kill him," the statement said.

The Condrens weren't living together at the time he was killed.

Mrs. Condren, 40, took the stand Tuesday but declined to testify, exercising her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Teen-age friends of the 15-year-old testified that they watched him and Mrs. Condren have sex. Neighbors testified that the teen killed cats and peeped in bedroom windows.

Third body found in Hidalgo County

HARLINGEN (AP) — A third body has been found in a remote area where investigators already were looking into two homicides, authorities said today.

The latest body, found Wednesday night, had been weighed down with tractor equipment and thrown in an irrigation ditch near the northern Hidalgo County site where a body was discovered one day earlier.

"They are probably going to have to drag the canal to see if there's anything else in there," said Henry Escalon, chief of enforcement for the sheriff's investigations unit.

Escalon said investigators no longer are focusing on a Mexican press card found on the first victim, whose body was discovered late Sunday in Delta Lake, about 10 miles away from where the other bodies turned up.

Investigators have yet to identify the remains of the third man, whose body was found northeast of La Villa.

"This guy appears to be also a Mexican national. He may also turn out to be from Mexico City," Escalon said.

Investigators were looking for possible links in the three slayings, he said.

The unidentified man suffered gunshot wounds. The second body found near the site also had been shot to death. He was identified Wednesday as Fernando Barragan Torres, 42, believed to be from Mexico City.

Sheriff's investigators identified the man pulled from Delta Lake as Juan Manuel Villavicencio, also 42, of Mexico City. Investigators believe Villavicencio was beaten to death; a set of handcuffs were attached to his wrist.

Contradicting an earlier report that both Barragan and Villavicencio were carrying Mexican press cards, authorities said Wednesday that only Villavicencio had a card saying "La Prensa."

La Prensa — a generic term meaning "the press" — also is the proper name for many Mexican newspapers.

Freedom Newspapers reported today that Maria Magdelena Villavicencio said her husband had worked three months for a Mexico City newspaper, although she didn't know what his job was.

Mrs. Villavicencio said her husband visited McAllen three or four days each month to buy used cars and machinery. She said she last saw him June 5. Villavicencio had a Texas driver's license with a McAllen address.

Peace officers make 2 arrests

Snyder area peace officers made two arrests and investigated reports of family violence and criminal mischief Wednesday.

Sylvia Fletcher contacted police at 1:19 p.m. in reference to someone slashing two tires on her 1994 Chevrolet pickup. A report for Class A criminal mischief was filed.

Police were notified of a family disturbance at 3:50 p.m. in the 3000 block of Avenue C. Officers took a 24-year-old man into custody for Class C assault/family violence.

A 49-year-old man called police from the Busy Bee convenience store at 5:23 p.m. threatening to commit suicide. The man was taken into custody for public intoxication. An offense report for threatening to commit suicide was also filed.

Employees of Don's Value King contacted police at 6:12 p.m. in reference to having a shoplifter in custody. The subject was issued a citation and released at the scene with her small child. A report for Class C theft was filed.

Phil Gramm will tour South Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concerned that the Clinton administration is sending mixed messages to North Korea's hard-line Communist leadership, Republican Sen. Phil Gramm is traveling to the tense region.

The Texan and another Republican, Sen. John McCain of Arizona, said they will make their own assessment of U.S. military needs during their five-day trip, which begins today.

Gramm and McCain said they will talk with Kim Young-sam, president of South Korea, and military officials of both the United States and South Korea.

The trip comes among rising friction over North Korea's refusal to accept inspection of its nuclear facilities, which it says are dedicated to peaceful research.

North Korea's blocking of international inspections has heightened suspicions the country is trying to build nuclear bombs in violation of treaty obligations.

The United States announced Wednesday that it would seek a mandatory arms embargo against North Korea as a first phase of United Nations sanctions. The North Korean government has denounced sanctions as tantamount to an act of war.

"We're going to be very deliberate. Very firm," President Clinton said.

But Gramm, a frequent Clinton critic who is eyeing a run for the White House in 1996, criticized the administration for sending "conflicting messages" to North Korea.

He wasn't alone.

Several former Bush administration officials also faulted the White House. Former Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger assailed the administration policy as confused and lacking leadership.

Former Bush national security adviser Brent Scowcroft urged bombing North Korea's nuclear reprocessing facility if international inspectors are evicted.

Gramm told reporters at a Capitol news conference on Wednesday that he is "increasingly concerned that we are putting Americans at risk by not doing what has to be done to deter a North Korean attack and to turn that attack back if it does occur."

Noting that 38,000 U.S. troops are stationed in South Korea, with 80,000 U.S. dependents, Gramm called for a beefed-up U.S. military presence there. He said he favors more airpower, missile defense, and ships deployed to the region.

Former President Carter is in North Korea on a mission of his own, seeking to calm the rising strife.

Gramm said he, McCain and Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole have discussed offering a Senate resolution calling on the administration to increase U.S. military might in South Korea.

"I thought before we offered that resolution that we should go to South Korea," Gramm said.

FELICIA PERRY

Perry earns RPI degree

Felicia Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James (Louise) Morris of Henrietta, received a bachelor of science degree in interdisciplinary science from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y. in ceremonies on May 20, 1994. She is a 1990 graduate of Snyder High School. All are former residents of Snyder.

Perry is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clistus (Mae) Addison and the late Frank Kerby of Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Frances) Perry of Colleyville, and Gladys Morris and the late Howard Morris of Welch.

While attending Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Perry was consistently named to the Dean's honor roll, chosen for "Who's Who Of American Colleges and Universities," active as a member and officer of Psi Upsilon, co-ed fraternity, and Youth Action, a service group that performed volunteer work with underprivileged children.

She plans to attend the University of Texas at Austin to receive her teaching certification and master's degree in the fall.

Administrative upheaval felt as A&M probe continues

AUSTIN (AP) — First, the chairman of the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents resigns after becoming the focus of news accounts about an ongoing criminal investigation.

Then, the A&M System chancellor steps down. Now, the man charged with overseeing some of the business deals that have cast a dark cloud over the nation's third-largest university has been demoted.

School officials have downplayed the link between the upheaval in College Station and a probe by federal and state authorities. But most agree that with a new school president and a new chairwoman of the board of regents, a fresh outlook is welcome.

"I would hope that at some point we can hit the high road. That certainly is my aim," said Mary Nan West, a rancher from Batesville who was recently elected to head the regents board.

Mrs. West, the first woman ever to serve as chair, replaced Ross D. Margraves Jr., a Houston lawyer who resigned in late April.

"We need to move on," Mrs. West said Wednesday. "But if there is a problem, let's face it head on, solve it and get on with our business. A&M is a fine institution, but right now the public is being inundated with bad things."

Texas Comptroller John Sharp, a prominent A&M alum, said the institution's recent problems are the result of too much control being possessed by only a handful of people.

"I don't know who all the culprits are for this deal, but I have felt over the past 10 years there are some who considered A&M their own private playpen," he said Wednesday.

"It happens sometimes in state business, and I think it's moving away from that now. I think the things that are happening now are happening for the best."

In the past year, A&M has grappled with an investigation by the Texas Rangers and FBI, controversy over a chemistry professor's effort to turn mercury into gold, and the Aggies' football program was placed on probation.

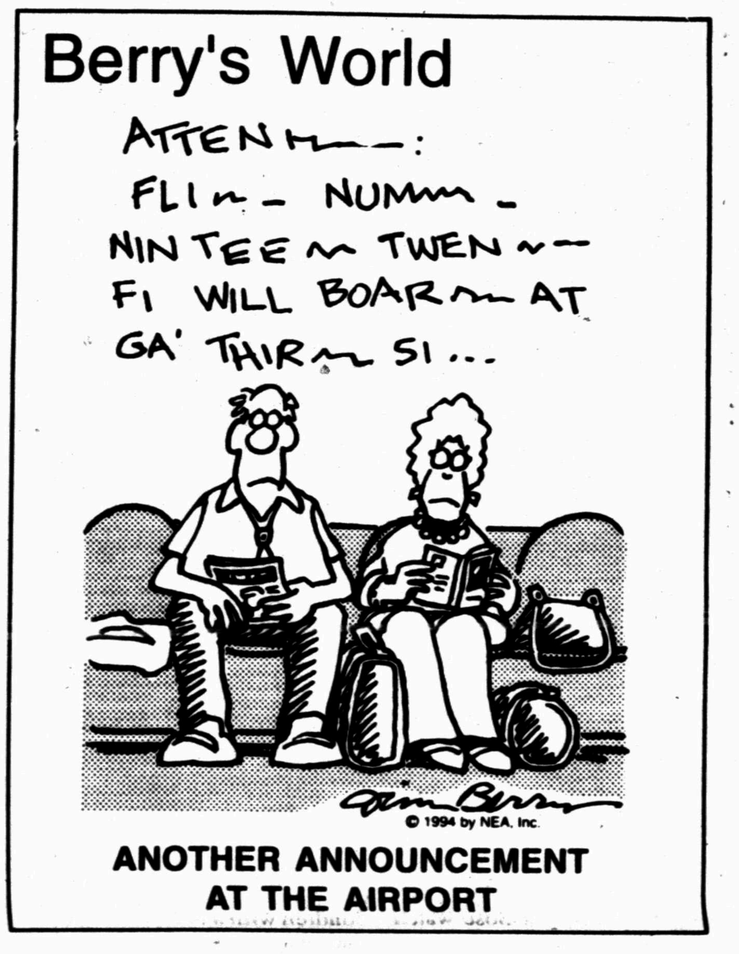

The seven-university A&M System has had two chancellors; A&M university has had three presidents; and two highly regarded presidents of two other A&M universities have announced their retirements in that same period.

Last September, the Texas Rangers began investigating a widely-distributed anonymous letter accusing Margraves of orchestrating school business so he could personally profit.

Margraves denied the allegations and welcomed the probe, saying it would vindicate him. He said his resignation was meant to draw negative attention away from the school.

On Monday, A&M System Chancellor William H. Mobley stepped down effective Aug. 31, saying he had grown tired of being an administrator and wanted to go back to teaching. He denied feeling any pressure to resign as a result of A&M's recent turmoil.

On Tuesday, Ray M. Bowen, who took over as president at A&M two weeks ago, reassigned A&M Vice President for Finance and Administration Robert Smith to the position of executive director of special projects. Bowen said the move allows him to install his own staff.

ANOTHER ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE AIRPORT

Boy finally gets money he found

FORT WORTH (AP) — A man whose nephew found $19,670 during a family outing at a park tried to do the right thing. He knew he should turn the money over to authorities.

David Warner of Little Elm turned it in, aware that if it went unclaimed he might get it back.

A few days later, however, a Denton County sheriff's deputy called his wife and told her it was "probably drug money."

Since the April 7 discovery was probably drug-related, the deputy said, the family shouldn't claim the money at the end of a 90-day waiting period.

"She felt like he was threatening her, in a way, because he mentioned that drug people have been known to hurt people and their horses and such," Warner said.

That was the first hint that the sheriff's department might try to seize the money as drug proceeds under the state's forfeiture law, Warner said.

On April 28, Warner got a call from the district attorney's office saying officials were filing suit to seize the money.

Warner, manager of an auto shop in Dallas, hired attorney Michael L. Nelson to help him.

"They had not listed a single thing in that affidavit the forfeiture law requires them to list for them to be entitled to that money," Nelson said, "including Warner's name as the person who found the money and had an interest in its return."

Sheriff Weldon Lucas said Warner's name was intentionally omitted to protect him and his family from possible retribution.

"We have his name on our internal records, but to put it on a public record, such as an affidavit, would have meant that the people who hid the money could possibly have found out who he was and hurt him or his family," the sheriff said.

District Attorney Bruce Isaacks decided to drop the forfeiture suit on June 6.

"I am convinced that it is drug money," Isaacks said Tuesday. "In fact, we ran it by a drug dog and he alerted on it. But, in my opinion, this was a case of a guy doing the right thing and following the law, and it just wasn't appropriate for us to seize that money."

On June 9, Isaacks returned the money plus interest — $19,740 — to Warner's attorney.

When he finally got the money that the county tried to keep, Warner didn't get greedy.

"We divided it with the (three) other families out there that day," Warner said. "Our family came out with about $4,400 and change."

Warner said he gave $500 to Matt, the nephew who found the $19,670 in $100s, $50s and $20s, tightly wrapped in plastic bags.

"The rest of it I put into a trust fund for his college education," Warner said.

What is aspiration pneumonia?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss aspiration pneumonia.

DEAR READER: The inhalation of foreign material causes lung inflammation. Such foreign material includes objects such as peanuts, various vapors and fumes (especially hydrocarbons), and gastric acid. It's this last factor that presents such a challenge, because stomach acid, when it enters the lung, digests pulmonary tissue, as well as causing pneumonia.

Aspiration of gastric contents commonly occurs when an unconscious patient vomits. Therefore, aspiration pneumonia is a frequent complication of serious injuries, coma, heart attack, stroke — and surgery. (This is the reason why anesthesiologists customarily place airway tubes in the throats of patients undergoing surgery.)

Aspiration pneumonia is diagnosed by X-ray tests and is treated with a combination of antibiotics and steroid drugs. As with many avoidable medical conditions, doctors and other health care workers prefer to prevent this complication, rather than to treat it once it develops. Thus, laymen are encouraged to turn unconscious patients on their stomachs, rather than keeping them on their backs.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a heart patient and would like to know the effect of blood thinner medication on my ability to obtain an erection.

DEAR READER: Anticoagulant drugs, such as Coumadin, often mistermed "blood thinners" (they do not "thin" the blood), are useful in preventing repeated strokes, heart attacks and other disorders marked by inappropriate clotting of blood within arteries or veins. The medicines do not affect potency.

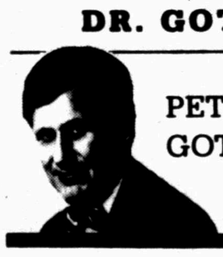

Rather, I'd be more concerned that the disorder for which you require anti-coagulation might be to blame. For example, impotence is often caused by arteriosclerotic plaque lining the arteries that are essential for normal erections. In such cases, therapy for the underlying problem (balloon angioplasty or arterial bypass grafting, for example) might reduce symptoms.

Also, as you know, many medicines used for heart afflictions and high blood pressure will cause impotence. I mention this because anticoagulants are often administered with other drugs. I encourage you to review the problem of erectile dysfunction with your physician — or, if necessary, with a urologist.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Impotence." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

City hires first black cop

CORSICANA (AP) — A year after a black man died while in the custody of white police officers and this East Texas town was torn by racial tension, Corsicana has hired its first black officers.

The three officers, along with a white woman officer, reported to work Wednesday for the department's orientation.

Until Wednesday, the department had no blacks and three women.

"I'm extremely pleased. We did a great deal of recruiting to get minorities to take the test," said City Manager Jim Dunaway, who said recruiting efforts extended throughout the Southwest.

"I'm just elated," said National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Navarro County spokesman Robert Sanders. "I was just glad that it happened, and that it happened as soon as it did."

DWI checkpoints unconstitutional

AUSTIN (AP) — Mothers Against Drunk Driving will push for legislative procedures on sobriety checkpoints in light of a Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruling that says the way the roadblocks are set up is unconstitutional.

"I guess we should be glad that the Court of Criminal Appeals has given us a path here to go and fix the problem," Bill Lewis, public policy liaison for the Texas chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, said Wednesday.

He added, "Most people would rather not share the road with drunk drivers, and most polls show that people think police should have all the tools available to keep drunk drivers off the road."

The court ruled 6-3 that the checkpoints violate the constitutional prohibition against unreasonable search and seizure.

"Because a governing body in Texas has not authorized a statewide procedure for DWI roadblocks, such roadblocks are unreasonable and unconstitutional under the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution," Judge Chuck Miller wrote in the majority opinion.

'Legitimate' Home Schools OK

AUSTIN (AP) — A home school advocate is praising a Texas Supreme Court ruling that children taught in "legitimate" home schools are exempt from public school attendance.

Lawyer Chris Klicka of the Washington-based Home School Legal Defense Association, a plaintiff in the case, said Wednesday's ruling "seems to be a complete victory."

"Home schools are recognized as private schools in the state of Texas," he said.

While the court said the state can ask for achievement test results, Klicka said, "Testing is not mandatory (in home schools) ... The school districts are free to request the test scores, and the parents are free to give them or not to give them."

Texas Education Agency chief counsel David Anderson said the Supreme Court's decision affirmed a lower court ruling that has been agency policy since being handed down in 1986.

Carter in North Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Former President Carter, in North Korea to try to ease nuclear tensions, has held out a carrot: the possibility of full diplomatic ties with Washington.

Carter met with North Korean President Kim Il Sung for three hours today at a presidential palace on the outskirts of the North Korea capital of Pyongyang. The two men covered a wide range of issues but U.S. fears that North Korea is building a nuclear arsenal dominated the talks. Another meeting was scheduled for Friday morning.

Washington has said Carter, who is on a private trip, was carrying no formal message from the Clinton administration. But he is making unofficial overtures to the hard-line Communist government.

President Kim Il Sung told Carter through an interpreter: "What is important between us is trust, confidence in each other."

Breast implants, illness not linked

BOSTON (AP) — A major study paid for in part by a plastic surgeons group turned up no connection between breast implants and serious illnesses.

Leaking implants have been blamed for arthritis, lupus, scleroderma and other connective tissue disorders. But much of the evidence came from people who got sick after getting implants.

In the largest study of its kind, Mayo Clinic researchers found that women who enlarge or reconstruct their breasts with implants are no more likely than anybody else to develop connective tissue disorders.

"It's my hope the results can reduce some of the questions that a lot of women with breast implants feel about the future, that there is some bad disease around the corner," said Dr. Sherine E. Gabriel, principal author of the study, published in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

Abortions on decrease

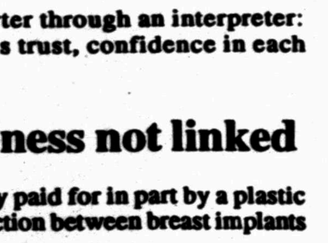

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of American women getting abortions has dropped to its lowest level since 1979, a decline researchers say shows no sign of ending.

"I think it's not a blip on the screen," said Stanley Henshaw of the Alan Guttmacher Institute.

U.S. women received 1.53 million abortions in 1992, the lowest number recorded since the 1.49 million counted in 1979, according to an institute survey released Wednesday.

The numbers had been inching down since the late 1980s, but the new data, the latest available, confirm a clear trend, Henshaw said.

Owner calls dog shining hero

AMARILLO — "Help, I've fallen, and I can't get up," — a saying satirized by thousands — is no joke for Hali Hart of Amarillo. But Hart's salvation on a cold, March morning was a four-legged friend not an electronic device.

The minister found herself at the mercy of her canine companion, a Samoyed named Rainbow, after a fall left her with a broken arm.

Mrs. Hart said she arose early on March 28 and went outside to see if her pet had water. She picked up the metal water pail by the handle, she said, and the water inside was partially frozen.

"As I picked it up, I stepped on a pebble or something," Mrs. Hart said.

When she slipped, she used her left hand to catch her fall and broke her arm. Ice water from the dog's water bucket spattered all over her body.

"I couldn't get up," Mrs. Hart said. "It was freezing. That ice water was all over me. I didn't know (my arm) was hurt so badly."

She tried removing her shoes to improve her traction as she slipped in the icy puddle but had no success.

Rainbow, only 1-year-old, instinctively knew something was wrong. He came to Mrs. Hart and began licking her on the face.

"I said, 'Let's go inside,'" Mrs. Hart said.

He grabbed Mrs. Hart by her T-shirt and bra strap and began dragging his master to the back door of her home about 10 feet away.

She clung to Rainbow's fur. When he reached his appointed destination, he put his nose by the doorknob. Mrs. Hart let go of his fur and grabbed the doorknob.

Once inside, she could reach the telephone and call her sister, Polly Yarbrough, who helped Mrs. Hart get medical assistance.

But Rainbow is the hero in this story.

"He rescued me," Mrs. Hart said. "I couldn't have gotten in the house, honey. I know I couldn't."

And from her structurally covered back patio, even her neighbors wouldn't have been able to see her. Privacy fences in her backyard also would obstruct the view of anyone from the alley.

"If I had been here alone, I don't know how long I would have lain out there before anybody came," Mrs. Hart said.

Mrs. Hart, now recuperating at home, says that the incident with Rainbow reinforces her love for and belief in the intelligence of Samoyeds.

The dog can turn on the backyard faucet with his mouth. He enjoys playing in the water.

"He also stands on the water hose, lifts up the end of it with his paw and drinks from it," Mrs. Hart said.

She never taught him that trick but wishes that she could teach him not to do it.

"I think they're beautiful, too," Mrs. Hart said.

Mrs. Hart had two Samoyeds before she got Rainbow. And the animal lover also has had a poodle and a cat. She provides food and water for the neighborhood birds and squirrels.

Animals steal your heart away, Mrs. Hart said.

"It's wonderful to have animals," Mrs. Hart said. "I guess I'd have a whole kingdom of them if I had the room."

And her kingdom would include not only dogs and cats, but also horses, sheep, goats and donkeys.

Mrs. Hart, who holds a doctor of divinity from California Christian College, has a small, private chapel in her home.

She was born in Texas and moved to California with her late husband who also was a minister. Mrs. Hart worked for a telephone company in Los Angeles.

She moved back to Amarillo 22 years ago. She is retired, but still conducts spiritual law classes and does weddings, funerals and baptisms. In retrospect, Mrs. Hart realizes that she could have been more prepared to deal with her fall.

"I guess you should carry a whistle or something, but you don't think about that," Mrs. Hart said. "I watch every step I take now."

Dallas to study new sports arena

DALLAS (AP) — The City Council Wednesday approved spending $550,000 to study the feasibility of building a new sports and entertainment arena and to have a general design drafted.

The study by architects, engineers and financial analysts will look at a $184 million complex proposed by a group of business and city officials.

A majority of council members have said they would rather build a new arena than renovate or expand Reunion Arena, currently used by both the Dallas Mavericks of the NBA and the Dallas Stars of the NHL.

However, a number of council members have expressed concerns about how to pay for a new complex.

"I don't think that there's any doubt that a new arena is necessary," said council member Glenn Box. "Reunion Arena, by the end of this decade, will be in the lower echelon of stadiums."

Although Reunion is only 14 years old, it lacks revenue-generating luxury suites and other amenities typical of modern sports arenas.

The Mavericks and the Stars have also complained about the limited seating at Reunion: 16,914 for hockey and 17,502 for basketball.

The Dallas Sports and Entertainment Assessment Group, the committee pushing a new facility, has identified several potential arena sites around Dallas.

The surrounding cities of Irving, Arlington, Plano, Grand Prairie and Lewisville have also expressed an interest in building an arena.

With the suburbs making overtures at the Mavericks and Stars, Dallas officials indicated they might try to lure the Dallas Cowboys away from Irving when the club's lease runs out in 20 years.

A preliminary report on a state-of-the-art basketball and hockey arena also calls for a new domed football stadium, City Manager John Ware told the council during the briefing on the arena.

Despite discussion about luring the Cowboys back to Dallas, City Council members agreed Wednesday that their immediate concern is to keep the Stars and Mavericks. And if that takes building a new home rather than renovating 14-year-old Reunion Arena, then the council is behind a new arena.

"Dallas does need to seize the moment. We can't afford to let other cities be bidding on our teams," City Councilman Domingo Garcia said.

In Lewisville, which is trying to lure the Mavericks to a new arena next to Vista Ridge Mall, City Manager Charles Owens said his feasibility study is expected to be finished in about a month.

The Dallas Sports and Entertainment Assessment Group consisting of business and city leaders has suggested the new arena. The group was formed several months ago to assess the arena question because of fears that the Stars and Mavericks would desert downtown for the suburbs.

Ware said that if all goes as planned, the arena would be completed in time for the 1997 basketball season.

Boyfriend is charged in shooting

CROSBY (AP) — A man has been taken into custody in the shooting death of his former girlfriend's sister, authorities say.

Shekythe Carrier, 16, was fatally shot and her mother, Mary Carrier, was wounded twice Wednesday afternoon at their home. The slain youth's 5-year-old sister, Ashley Carrier, was beaten in the attack.

Late Wednesday night, Harris County Sheriff's deputies arrested a man who is the ex-boyfriend of the slain youth's 22-year-old sister. She was not at home at the time of the attack.

Police say the 22-year-old suspect, whose name was not immediately released, was shot as he tried to flee an apartment complex. His condition was not immediately known, said sheriff's detective A.F. Rossi.

The shootings occurred at the family's home in Crosby, a small town in the eastern part of the county.

Sheriff's Sgt. Bruce Williams said the gunman forced his way into the home when the 40-year-old mother answered a knock at the door.

He shot the mother, went to another room and fatally shot Shekythe and then beat Ashley in the head, Rossi said. As he was leaving, he shot the mother again.

The mother and 5-year-old were taken by Life Flight helicopter to Hermann Hospital in nearby Houston where Mary Carrier was in serious condition.
