The English Bible
By George Lemon

The first translations of the Bible in English were by the illustrious reformer, John Wickliffe, previous to the invention of printing. Wickliffe conceived the idea of giving to his countrymen the whole Bible in the English tongue. He together with other scholars completed a translation of the old and new Testaments in 1384 which was taken from the Latin vulgate, which was the celebrated translation made by Jerome in the Fourth Century of the Christian era.

The first printed edition of the entire scriptures in the English language by Miles Coverdale appeared in the year 1535, which was dedicated to King Henry, VIII. It was published at Zurich, Switzerland in the year of our Lord, 1535 and finished on the 4th day of October.

The first Bible in America was in native Indian, the new Testament in 1661 and the old in 1663. Both were by Rev. John Eliott and published in Cambridge, Mass.

The second Bible published in America was published by Christopher Sower in 1676, printed in German. The first Bible printed in English (in America) was printed in Boston, Mass. in 1772 by Kneeland and Green.

Your writer is indebted to the Jones Brothers of Philadelphia, Pa., publishers of the pictorial family Bible printed in 1879. Containing two thousand fine scripture illustrations.

This Bible, an anniversary gift to Willis F. Zetsche of Okawville, Ill., in Jan. 1882, was taken to the west coast by Prairie Schooner. From a newspaper clipping I have. A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Zetsche celebrated their sixty-fourth wedding anniversary at Chico, Calif.

You can easily see what Pat's job is. Yes, she a beautician. Beauty work is becoming popular and so many people are entering this occupation that you simply must be "good" if you want to succeed. Mrs. Wenger is employed at Jackie's Beauty Shop.

Art Malone to Present Program In Burk High

Art Malone of Tampa, Fla., a youthful veteran of automobile racing, and a two-time competitor at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will present the nationally recognized and award-winning Champion Highway Safety Program in Burkburnett

ART MALONE

High School on Feb. 12, 1965. Arrangements for Mr. Malone's appearance were made by Casey Logan Auto Supply.

On three occasions the National Safety Council has presented its Public Service Award to the Champion Spark Plug Company for developing and maintaining the program. This spring the Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. Award for outstanding service to highway safety was given the company which also has been recognized by the United States Auto Club, the Continental Casualty Co. and the Public Relations Society of America for meritorious contributions in the interest of safety.

Mr. Malone is one of eight Indianapolis veterans who appear daily in the high schools throughout the nation. Since 1954, more than eight million teen agers have heard the safety message which compares the controlled speed at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to its opposite on the highway.

"We point to attitude as the biggest factor in driving," Mr. Malone says. "We skip the usual do's and don'ts of driving and maintain that by keeping a car in good operating condition, being mentally alert and practicing common courtesy we could come up with a sizeable decrease in our annual traffic tolls."

"Our business of racing," he continues, "is the matter of recognizing the calculated risk we take and preparing for it. On the other hand, most motorists don't even take into consideration the calculated risk which confronts them when they get behind the wheel of a car. This can lead only to trouble."

Mr. Malone gained his reputation in automobile racing in the drag racing field. He has broken the world's record six times and at present, his 200.88 miles per hour stands as the mark to be beaten. In 1963 he won titles at Bakersfield, Calif., the national meet of the American Hot Rod Association at Green Valley, Tex and the northern California championships.

He began his career in 1954 at the age of 18 but was unable to compete in sanctioned automobile racing on the nation's tracks until three years later. In 1961 he became the first driver to average 180 miles an hour on the two and a half mile Daytona International Speedway.

In 1963 he made his first appearance as a rookie at Indianapolis. Mechanical difficulties forced him from the race early. Last May he again qualified a Novi and drove it to 12th place in a skillful exhibition that has put a premium on his services. He is one of the first drivers to be contracted for next year's race when again he will be behind the wheel of a Novi.

Representatives Maurice Doke and Vernon Stewart, both of Wichita Falls, have been named to standing committees of the Texas Legislature this week by Speaker Ben Barnes.

Doke has been named to the following committees: Agriculture, Banks and Banking, Highways and roads, Insurance, Military and Veterans' Affairs.

Stewart will serve on the following: Oil, Gas, and Mining, vice chairman; Municipal and private Corporations, Privileges, Suffrage and Elections; Public Printing, State Hospitals and Special Schools.

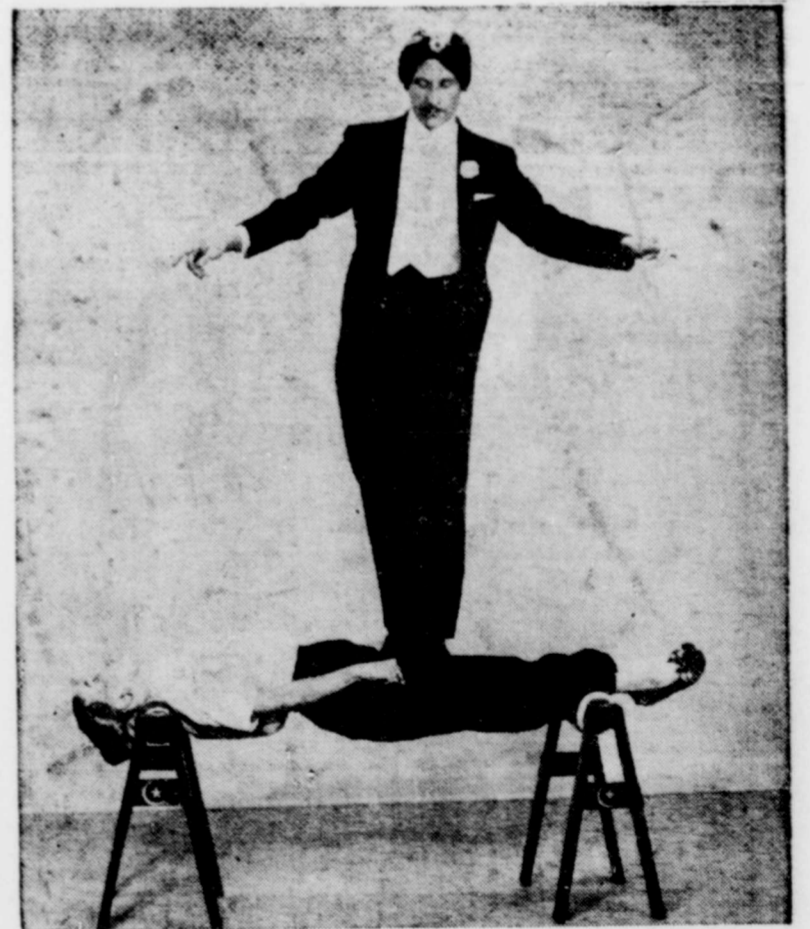

The 26 year old Barnes, youngest Speaker to serve in this century, said: "Many long hours of study have gone into the make up of these committees, and I trust the two members from Wichita Falls will be pleased with their assignments. They have a rare opportunity of playing a vital role in the future of Texas by participating in the great decisions which will be made in the 59th Legislature."

Burk Booster Club Sponsoring Merlin The Great Feb. 5th and 6th

The Bulldog Booster club announced this week, as a club project, they would present THE GREAT MERLIN at the Junior High School Auditorium Feb. 5th and 6th. There will be one performance nightly starting at 8:00 p. m.

Joe Salter, president of the Booster Club, stated, "The reason we selected THE GREAT MERLIN to appear in Burkburnett, is because it is an all family show. Each performance will last approximately two hours, and ticket prices are reasonable."

Merlin is one of the few magicians who has mastered mass hypnosis, which is generally considered to be the most difficult of all the magicians' accomplishments. A number of willing volunteers will be called from the audience. While under hypnosis, they will shiver with cold, see a motion picture and other uncanny demonstrations, which Merlin achieves through the power of suggestion.

Instead of escaping from a thoroughly examined and padlocked box, as the Great Houdini used to, Merlin locks a in a matter of seconds, the lady young lady in the box, and then is out and Merlin is in. The box is unlocked, the lid removed, and out jumps Merlin.

Tickets can be purchased at the door for $1.25 for adults, 75 cents for students* However, advance adult tickets can be bought from Booster Club members for $1.00.

AN ILLUSORY ATTRACTION

Natural gas is one of those industries whose progress in recent years can honestly be called spectacular. It has carried on, and continues to carry on, a vast expansion program to meet the needs of the millions of consumers who want this versatile and economical fuel.

Along with this, there has been strong pressure in many areas for the establishment of municipal gas systems. Where there were 451 of these systems in existence on December 31, 1956; there were 715 on June 30, 1963. Various arguments are offered on behalf of municipal ownership, of which the principal one is that it can provide service at lower cost.

That has an attractive sound to the consumer — but in the great majority of instances it is illusory. A municipal system enjoys no advantages in its gas purchases; it must buy from a pipeline supplier at prevailing rates, exactly as does an investor-owned distribution system. Its operation is often politically-dominated, and then service standards fall far below those of investor-owned companies. It rarely is staffed with the ablest types of employees. So the low rates, if they are established, generally result from two factors which, in reality work to the community's lasting disadvantage. One is freedom from taxation without which the illusory attraction vanishes. All the taxpayers, gas user or not, must make up the loss. The other may be a deficit operation — and again the taxpayers, all of them, are penalized.

The investor-owned gas industry pays annual taxes of more than a billion dollars. It provides the most dependable and efficient service at reasonable, regulated rates. A municipal operation, all costs and considerations taken into account, has small chance of rivaling it.

HEADED FOR A LET-DOWN?

Despite its enormous cost — estimated at anywhere from $1.5 billion to $3 billion annually in the early years — the Medicare plan under Social Security could prove a keen disappointment to the very elderly people it is supposed to help.

The authority for that statement is Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which has primary jurisdiction over legislation of the type in question. He has pointed out that the provisions of the plan have been exaggerated to the point where the benefits are wrongfully pictured.

"Contrary to the widespread assumption on the part of many elderly people," said Chairman Mills, "the bill DOES NOT cover such items as doctors' visits to the home, visits to doctors' offices, surgical devices, drugs which many elderly people require, private nursing services, except when the patient has come out of a hospital and goes to a hospital-affiliated nursing home." The heavy volume of mail he has received, the Congressman added, indicates that many elderly people mistakenly believe that Medicare will take care of all their hospital and medical requirements.

"This simply is not true," he said. "Unfortunately, 'Medicare under Social Security' has become an all-embracing slogan which in my opinion has not advanced the cause of those who need it."

It seems to us that the evident confusion over the extent of the benefits provides another good reason why both houses of Congress should carefully examine every facet of the Medicare proposal before taking action that would impose added burdens on taxpayers and yet disappoint the elderly.

Mr. Merchant:
YOU LOSE 3 OUT OF 10 Customers Every Year

... AND THIRTY PER CENT OF YOUR BUSINESS GOES WITH THEM. HARD TO BELIEVE, BUT TRUE. IF YOURS IS AN AVERAGE BUSINESS, YOU NORMALLY LOSE APPROXIMATELY THIRTY PER CENT OF YOUR CUSTOMERS EVERY YEAR. IF YOU DON'T BELIEVE IT, LOOK THROUGH LAST YEAR'S ACCOUNTS AND SEE HOW MANY ARE NO LONGER ACTIVE.

Why do you lose them?

Through death, hard feelings, moving to another community or through the efforts of hard-driving competitors . . . a variety of reasons . . . some of them beyond your control.

AT THE SAME TIME THERE IS A NORMAL BUSINESS INCREASE OF ONLY FOUR PER CENT EVERY YEAR. THAT LEAVES YOU FACING A TWENTY-SIX PER CENT HANDICAP EVERY YEAR . . . A HANDICAP YOU MUST OVERCOME IF YOUR BUSINESS IS TO REMAIN HEALTHY AND PROFITABLE.

What to do about it:

The answer lies in better merchandising, better planning and more vigorous promotion of fast selling goods and services.

Clara - Fairview HD Club

Mrs. R. C. Gilbow was the hostess for the Clara-Fairview Home Demonstration club Friday, Jan. 22nd at 2 p. m. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. W. Ray Stimpson. The members repeated a prayer and sang two songs. Mrs. Stimpson read a poem "Recipe for Courtesy". The thought for today is "Read the best books first, or you may not have a chance to read them at all." Roll call was answered with "I Do or Do not use Boxed Mixes."

The standing committee chairmen reported on their work. Mrs. E. J. Simons gave the Council Delegate report.

Mrs. E. J. Simons brought the program on Variety in Mixes. With so many mixes on the market, it is possible now to fix meals in a minute and have a well balanced meal with a minimum amount of time and energy. Some rules to follow for the busy homemaker are: Keep mixes on the shelf for emergencies. Keep shelves in order. Make casseroles, plan your meals, and keep mixes for quick meals. She prepared a casserole using a spaghetti mix, noodles and frankfurters, which was served with the refreshments.

Mrs. R. C. Gilbow showed the members how to make beautiful chrysanthemum flowers and supplied all the necessary equipment. Each member made a flower.

Mrs. Rose Griffith won the door prize.

Refreshments were served to one visitor, Mrs. Griffith and Mesdames Blannar, J. H. Bentley, R. C. Gilbow, Elmer Klinkerman, E. J. Simons, Joe Slama, W. Ray Stimpson and Frank Kelley.

Next meeting will be Feb. 2nd at the home of Mrs. Newt Crane.

4-H Dog Care Group Met Thurs., Jan. 21

The 4-H Dog Care meeting was held Thursday, Jan. 21st at 7 p. m. in the Community Room of the Burkburnett Bank.

Sergeant Riley and Airman King told us about feeding and grooming of dogs. They told about diets for dogs and said dogs need protein, carbohydrate fats, vitamins and minerals in their diets. Also told how much to feed dogs and gave several do's and don'ts in feeding dogs.

Airman King showed us how to groom a dog and demonstrated on a greyhound dog named Teddy. He showed us how to check a dog's eyes, ears, nose, mouth, skin, limbs and feet. He told us what to look for in checking the dog. When grooming your dog your hand is your best instrument and a brush can be used. When a dog is groomed regularly, he needs not be bathed.

Sgt. Riley gave some rules to follow in administering first aid to your dog when he has been cut, burned or bitten by a snake. He said to muzzle your dog first, then make it comfortable, get help and take dog to veterinarian, as soon as possible.

Those attending the meeting were Dee Ellen and Mark Adams, John, James and Louise Bentley, Brady and Deborah Underwood, Judy Stubblefield, Verna Elliott, Cynthia Sands, Diane Gainey, Betty Schuman, Pam Airndon, Jackie and Billy Key, Judy, Charles and Griff Klinkerman, Carolyn Farris, Jackie Coons, Rodney and Kenney Bob Roberts, Mrs. Wilson and Adult leaders Mrs. E. Modern Colonial interior door, left, suits traditional, provincial, or contemporary homes. Exterior door, right, is authentic copy of ancestral panel door. Both are stock units of ponderosa pine.

If yours is an average home, it has 11 doors. This makes decisions about doors for a new home important. They should be attractive and sturdy. And, if you want to keep on-the-job carpentry costs down, they should be stock doors that come from your local building supply dealer ready to be painted, stained, or varnished.

Panel doors of ponderosa pine meet all these requirements. They are attractive, with the natural, warm look of wood. Both interior and exterior panel doors are available in many standard sizes and in a wide variety of traditional and contemporary designs that add an individual decorative note to a house.

Authentic copies of Colonial patterns are factory made in ready-to-hang units. There are also modern adaptations of Colonial doors with curved crossrails that blend well with all kinds of decor—early American, Provincial, and contemporary. There are even more exterior door designs to choose from, some with gridded glass inserts in rectangular or diamond shapes, some with small cathedral windowlights at the top and panels below.

Ponderosa pine exterior doors in contemporary styling may be obtained with a choice of inserts—louvers, grilles, glass, or wood panels—for individual door designs.

Adding to the variety are the Dutch doors. With at least eight interchangeable top and bottom sections to choose from, 16 or more Dutch door designs are available to fit your particular needs.

Wood panel doors not only have a warmth and charm that's hard to imitate; efficiently weatherstripped, they actually help keep the heat in the house in winter and out in summer. Stock doors of ponderosa pine are precision made and equipped with quality hardware. Exterior doors are chemically treated to last for the lifetime of the house.

HOW TO GET MORE FUN OUT OF HOME MOVIES

by Skip Miller

THE STORY: HEART OF HOME MOVIES

Mark Twain was a great story-teller. Most of his stories were about people. The greatest stories usually are. Hollywood capitalizes on this, reaping millions of dollars annually by telling human-interest stories on that magical silver screen. Everyone loves a good story.

Why, then, not apply this common sense to our personal movie-making? Why not teach our camera to tell a story?

It's easy. We start by doing what our parents did at home when we were youngsters. Say . . . "once upon a time there was . . ."

A little girl: She gets her first pair of roller skates. Puts them on. Nervously, hanging onto the garden gate, she tries taking her first strides. Slowly but surely she gains confidence. Finally, letting go of the garden gates, she takes her first full glide.

Alas! Plop! The inevitable happens. Just then a little neighbor boy dashes over, gallantly helps the little girl to get up, and patiently teaches her how to skate. It's fun to watch. It's more fun to record on film.

The ending of our movie shows the little girl and little boy, hand-in-hand, going down the sidewalk toward the candy store. Where are the little girl's skates? Over her shoulder, of course. Where else?

We've used this illustration to let you see how easy it can be to evolve a story format for even the simplest of movies. All stories, no matter whether short gags or an evening-long theater play, must have a beginning, a middle and an end. Decide which elements will serve for each of those three. Now connect them. Add some details. Throw in an interruption or two. Your story is taking shape. Next, make some notes on how you will photograph each one of these elements. Number each of the proposed scenes, just as any good story teller changes the tone of his voice as he changes the dialogue.

We're ready for the movie-shooting itself. Select all the outdoor scenes for outdoor shooting sessions, scheduling the shooting so we don't have to retrace our steps. Doesn't matter whether we shoot the first scene now, or in the middle or at the end . . . we'll splice that first scene into its proper position after all filming is completed. This is true of any scene, of course.

While shooting, include all the interesting action. Omit that which isn't. Ask yourself, constantly, whether what you are shooting actually helps to tell the story.

Don't forget close-ups. A close-up of a child's hand, reaching through the playpen spindles, groping for that toy just out of reach, emphasizes a momentary complication in the child's life. No need to shoot such a scene from half-way across the living room. No, indeed; a close-up is much more effective. Such movie-making makes you a much better story-teller. So use this technique.

Next week, in this column, we'll suggest ways of letting your camera's eye take over many of the story-telling functions. Doesn't matter whether your movie-camera is a veteran of many years, or a new electric-eye, zoom-lens-equipped camera, we can teach it some story-telling tricks.

Meantime, between now and next week, we hope you'll give yourself one tiny story-telling assignment, then pick up your camera and shoot it. Prove to yourself, with one roll of color film, that you are capable of being your own Cecil B. DeMille. We're certain you'll make good.

NEXT WEEK: LET YOUR CAMERA'S EYE WORK FOR YOU

Family Reunion Held In Home Of Mrs. Mary Jo McDonald

A family reunion was held in the home of Mrs. Mary Jo McDonald in Memphis, Tenn. during the New Years holidays. The occasion for the reunion was that her daughter, Cathy Jean McDonald, a student at Randolph Macon College in North Carolina, was home for the holidays.

Many relatives attended. Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Henson of Burkburnett were invited to the affair, but were unable to attend. Mrs. McDonald is their daughter.

Portable Pier

Here's how to make a fishing pier for your camp. Collect old auto tires until you have piers enough to reach deep water. Stack tires up and fill with iron rod of any and all kind. In each case, leave a piece of heavy pipe sticking up. Fill tire with cement. Roll to position and bolt together with planks.

ORGANIZING THE HARDY PIONEERS

I finally found the pioneer about 200 miles from the nearest town, out in the wilderness. He was a hardy fellow and he was just entering the house he had built with wood he had chopped from the forest.

I introduced myself as the local union organizer for the BHP—the Brotherhood of Hardy Pioneers. I told him that I was organizing all the pioneers into a union so that they could make higher wages.

"I don't understand," he said. "How can you raise my wages? My wages are what I earn by my own effort here in the wilderness. The only things I can have are what I produce for myself."

"You just wait and see," I reassured him. "You'll have more of everything. You'll live in a better house, you'll have a 35 hour week, you'll have more to eat. All you need is a union to bargain for you."

"Exploitation"

"Bargain with whom? he asked.

"Bargain with whomever is exploiting you — whomever is making you live in such substandard conditions."

"But my life is of my own making. How can you help me to earn more, unless I produce more?"

"Well," I said, "Perhaps you can't visualize it now—but wait until we get all the pioneers organized. Then you'll see. We've done this in the city—and all the workers make more now."

Do they produce more than they did before?" he asked.

"No, of course not. But we get higher wages for them by taking money away from their employers."

It Follows

He thought for a moment and then asked, "But if you take money away from the employers, then the employers aren't going to work for nothing—and pretty soon there'll be no more jobs."

I checked my union manual and couldn't find an answer to his remark; so he continued talking. "If the employees are not making what they're worth, then some other employer would bid for their services by offering them more. But if they're unable to get more elsewhere, this means they are earning what they're producing. To raise their pay means that the employer will have to charge more for his product and the consumers won't pay it. Then everyone will be out of work."

"You just don't understand," I countered. "It may seem that way, but whenever you get a whole bunch of people organized into a union, the economic laws change. You don't have to produce more in order to have more."

"But how can you have what hasn't been produced?" he asked. "I think you're nuts. I may not know much about 'economics' but living out here has taught me that I can only have what's been produced."

Those hardy pioneers—they don't seem to understand anything.

LENNOX, S. D., INDEPENDENT: "The final figures are in and it's now clear that after three years and an expenditure of $2.5 billion, the Department of Agriculture's feed grain program, intended to cut production and reduce surplus, has backfired. The 1963 corn crop was the largest in history . . . The government managers of the farm economy used every conceivable interventionist scheme to cut production: higher price supports, increased subsidies, direct income payments, food stamps, multiple price certificates, and severe penalties for over-planting. So, what did the farmer do? He utilized all the improved techniques and new fertilizers that industry could supply him, and made his permitted acreage produce more."

Take a Second Look

On your first look, you may think that this little girl is riding a rocking horse, but look again. It is not a rocking horse but a little donkey.

About animals now, and children. Donkeys were one of the first animals to be tamed by man, and are gentle animals when they are not practicing the quality of being stubborn.

The quality of gentleness somehow reminds us of our Saviour, the Wonderful One.

Parents, teach your children about Jesus, who admonished us to let the little children come unto Him. Our Lord would remind us that the little ones are precious to the Father. We invite you to take the children to church this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Mrs. R. P. Thaxton
Hostess Of Blanche Groves Circle Jan. 27

Mrs. Frank Parrish began the study of the new mission book, "Winds of Change" for the members of the Blanche Groves Circle of the First Baptist Church. Mrs. R. P. Thaxton was the hostess to this group in her lovely home, Jan. 27th.

Mrs. Parrish stated that Americans are beginning to look at foreigners in a different way. Though our Christian Campaign with Latin America, we are able to reach them and communicate with them better.

She also stated that the reason the foreigners desire to come to America is because they may have freedom and more opportunities. Many of them are very successful after residing here.

Mildred Dodd brought the prayer meditation reading from Rev. 7: 9-17.

Mae Welborn led in prayer. Refreshments were served to Margaret Parrish, Sue Vaughn, Marie Hinkle, Frances England, Sue Cantwell, Mae Welborn, Mildred Dodd, Mae Van Deren, Gail Butts, Dorothy McCandless, Mrs. Frank Parrish and Mrs. R. P. Thaxton.

Frances Cleveland was the first presidential wife to campaign openly for her husband's reelection.
