'Much Ado' slated in Snyder Tuesday

This Tuesday will mark the appearance here of the Acting Company, the "touring arm" of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The troupe of professional touring actors will be presenting an updated version of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing."

Instead of its original setting, the play has been updated to 1930s Cuba, a concept hailed by critics.

Tuesday's show will be at 8 p.m. in Worsham Auditorium. Since block ticket sales have been secured by some out-of-county school groups, reservations are encouraged.

Tickets are expected to be on sale at the door also. They are priced at $10 for reserved seats and $5 general admission. Patron tickets are available also for $25, which includes a reserved parking spot and valet parking.

The Snyder performance has been secured through grant monies obtained by the fine arts committee of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce headed by Marci Dennis.

The current production of "Much Ado" is called a "sparkling comedy" which uses such devices as tango dances and Latin rhythms to portray Shakespeare's basic premise of morality in romance. Its background of conspiracy and court intrigue has been updated to Cuba in the 1930s, with its "possibility of violence and machismo code of honor," wrote critic Clive Barnes in his New York review.

The Acting Company was founded in 1972 and now is in its 16th national tour. In addition to communities the size of Snyder, it has annual dates scheduled in such cities as Houston, Los Angeles and New York. Its home base is New York, where it offers also an extended season of plays in its own theatre named for the company's founder, John Houseman.

Fed policies 'killing' rural hospitals

Cogdell officials charge plan is deliberate

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

The contention that the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare is deliberately trying to drive rural hospitals out of business by setting low payment rates on Medicare cases has been broached here by Cogdell Memorial Hospital's administrator and medical chief of staff.

Administrator Cy Miller said the DRG or diagnosis-related group scales under Medicare have been the principal factor in Cogdell's budget deficits in recent years.

He said the hospital has already had to charge off $383,000 because of the "terribly too low" rates and probably will have to charge off $500,000 for the calendar year.

Miller said the contention that the federal government wants to drive smaller hospitals out of business "has never been put out in print, but that's basically the way we feel about it."

Dr. Bid Cooper, Cogdell chief of staff, said he also believes that there is an unstated policy to force hospitals in rural areas out of existence in favor of regional medical centers in bigger towns.

"The fewer hospitals there are, the fewer hospitals they have to deal with," Cooper said. "It's easier for the bureaucracy to deal with one 500-bed hospital than three or four 100-bed hospitals.

"They feel that it would be more cost-effective and less of an administrative burden."

Miller notes as an example of a "too-low" DRG payment a $5,000 medical case. The Medicare patient would pay a $520 deductible charge and Medicare might pay only about $1,600. The hospital is prohibited by law from trying to collect any more and so is obliged to write off the rest.

There are 472 different DRGs, with a different pay scale for each type of illness, ailment or disease. The gist of it is that

Locals bank on 'Lights'

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Two Snyder men say they are now on the verge of a nationwide marketing campaign to sell a product which is basically a simple safety idea--one which they now have protected under a design patent application.

They call the idea Custom Wheel Lights and its future is in the hands of a Fort Worth-based marketing expert who himself is expected to invest up to $1 million to "sell" the idea to a wide range of customers.

The product is the brain child of Ruben Martinez and Terry Williams, who both operate local businesses independent of the other--Martinez with Kalko Oil Field Services and Williams with Independence Propane.

For Custom Wheel Lights, they formed a 50-50 partnership called TREM Enterprises. "Terry and I are just on the same wavelength," said Martinez. "We can sit down and hash out an idea and come up with the answers."

The concept of their reflective wheel light product first occurred to Martinez, who holds the right for two other patents as an inventor for equipment related to his oil field business.

He remembers he was driving back to Snyder after dark, watching the oncoming traffic as it moved toward him. It struck him, he noted, how large 18-wheelers were well lit around the cab and trailer, but completely dark at the level of the wheels.

"I started working out how you'd get some kind of moving lights on those wheels," he said. Then, he began to notice the reflective material on road signs beside the highway.

From these two observations, the concept of Custom Wheel Lights was born.

Martinez first made application for a design patent on the product. "I've been down this road before, and I know that's the first thing you do."

He then contacted his friend Williams about the idea--seeking a second mind to help "work out the bugs."

The idea first occurred to him in April of last spring. The following months were taken up with the pair's research--primarily into what type of reflective material is now available.

Through trial and error and "a million phone calls," they learned of a prismatic-type material which they say is more than 100-times as reflective as material used on highway signs.

By obtaining samples of the material, they began working out

St. Mary officials to meet with court

Representatives of St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock will meet at 2 p.m. Monday with Scurry County commissioners, the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board of Managers and Cogdell medical staff members to offer a management proposal.

The meeting will convene at 12:30 p.m. in the commissioners courtroom after the court deals with a short 10 a.m. agenda.

The session will mark the second time hospital board members have heard such a proposal. In September, they met with Dallas representatives of the Hospital Corporation of America.

County Judge Bobby Goodwin said Friday that the court is not proposing that Cogdell be turned over to a management company or a larger hospital, only that its board of managers listen to various ideas on management alternatives.

Events to profile dangers of drugs

Events related to drug awareness are scheduled in Snyder this week to include a film to be shown at each elementary campus Monday and a community-wide "rally" against drugs slated Thursday.

The rally will be in Worsham Auditorium at 7 p.m. and will feature local and area speakers familiar with the dangers of drug use.

It is sponsored by McDonald's, the Snyder Daily News and Snyder Drug Health Mart.

The film, entitled "Dick and Jane," is being sponsored by a new parents group here, Rambo for Kids. It will be shown at each elementary campus Monday at 7 p.m. It traces the lives of the characters "Dick and Jane" to what is described as a "disturbing conclusion."

Absentee has 36 votes cast

Thirty-six Scurry County residents had voted absentee at mid-afternoon Friday and another 13 had been sent mail-in ballots for the Nov. 3 statewide constitutional amendments election.

Absentee balloting will continue through Friday and Tuesday is the last day for written applications to be received in the county clerk's office for mail-in ballots to be sent to absentee voters.

Although the absentee turnout so far has not been large, County Clerk Jenna Vee Miller said it is running ahead of absentee totals in past constitutional amendment elections.

Texans will decide on 25 amendments and two special issues.

It happened recently out at the Texaco office north of Snyder. A night pumper, Morris Smith, left a note for Scarberry that a headlight on his pickup was burned out and needed to be replaced.

Scarberry checked Smith's vehicle and found both lights to be burning. Thinking that Smith might have used a different vehicle, Scarberry proceeded to check all company pickups. All the headlights worked.

The next night, Smith again noticed the light out on his pickup. Again, he left a repair request. Scarberry again checked, and failed to find a headlamp burned out.

The next day, a third request was left with instructions to check the headlamp on both bright and low-beam. Scarberry located the burned out headlamp and went for a replacement.

When the mechanic returned, co-workers were already razing him about the flap. Someone asked if he was sure which light was burned out.

"Sure, this one right here," as Scarberry took a hammer and popped the headlamp. You guessed it. Scarberry cracked the wrong one, and then had two headlights to replace.

Wall St. shakeup does not rattle average consumer

DALLAS (AP) — The week's wild stock-market ride rattled Wall Street and swiped billions from investors, but the average Texas consumer apparently ignored the madness with another week of spending as usual.

Experts suggest the state's middle-class consumers, few of whom are heavy market investors, reacted more to the week's lower interest rates than to the lower stock prices. Fixed-rate loans are no longer popular among buyers convinced rates will keep dropping.

Sales of big-ticket items such as new homes and automobiles have shown no sign of decline since the Dow Jones average recorded its biggest one-day loss in history Monday. And shopping mall crowds are still cruising stores with the same pre-crash fervor, store managers said.

Stock brokers interviewed around the state, meanwhile, say they're hearing more from people looking for blue-chip bargains than from worried investors seeking advice.

And despite a slow recovery for the state's oil industry, analysts were optimistic that prices will hold and development will continue.

"I don't know how many people are involved in the market or whether it has an effect on business, but here on the front lines, there are tons of customers and they are going on as if nothing is happening," said George Singer, manager of Foley's department store in Austin's Barton Creek Mall.

At the state comptroller's office, experts downplayed any link between money lost on Wall Street and money spent in Texas.

"Most consumer spending is done by the middle class, and the middle class does not have a lot of money in the stock market," said Dr. Thomas Plaut, senior economist at the comptroller's officer.

While the state's consumer market showed little reaction this week to the market drop, there were subtle signals everywhere that adjustments were being made, particularly among those Texans who do own stock.

Some home buyers who planned to sell stocks for downpayment delayed their purchases this week, and employees called company headquarters to check the security of their retirement accounts.

Book stores owners said they saw increased interest in financial titles.

Reagan says he'll nominate Bork-like substitute for Supreme Court position

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, his plan to place Robert H. Bork on the Supreme Court foiled by the Senate, is promising to nominate a Bork-like substitute.

"My next nominee for the court will share Judge Bork's belief in judicial restraint — that a judge is bound by the Constitution to interpret laws, not make them," Reagan said after the Senate rejected Bork's nomination by a 58-42 vote Friday.

But Senate Democrats warned that – a hardline conservative nominee could meet the same fate as Bork.

"The president would be far wiser to send someone who is more moderate and less extreme" than Bork, said Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

"I'm sure the Senate does not want to go through the trauma of another Bork-type confirmation proceeding but if we have to, we most assuredly will," Cranston said.

White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. said the president could name a new nominee as soon as Monday, but added, "The president will not make a decision on the nomination ... until after there has been an opportunity to consult with the leadership and the relevant jurisdictional Republicans."

Bork, a 60-year-old judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, became the 26th nominee in history to be denied confirmation to the high court. He was the 11th candidate defeated by a vote of the full Senate.

Six Republicans joined 52 Democrats in the largest negative vote ever recorded for a Supreme Court nominee. Forty Republicans and two Democrats voted for confirmation.

About his defeat, Bork said, "A time will come when I will speak to the question of the process due in these matters, but that time is not now."

His supporters had complained bitterly that the confirmation process was distorted by an aggressive anti-Bork campaign by liberal groups.

Bork's critics attacked what they said was his narrow reading of constitutional protections, calling him anti-civil rights, anti-consumer and against equal rights for women.

But Bork's backers accused opponents of distorting his record, and painted the nominee as a compassionate man who fervently believed that judicial rulings should track the intent of the Constitution's framers.

Senate sources said the administration is giving the closest consideration to four potential nominees, all federal appeals court judges.

They are Clifford J. Wallace of San Diego and Anthony M. Kennedy of Sacramento, Calif., both on the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; Pasco M. Bowman II of Kansas City, Mo., who is on the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and Ralph K. Winter Jr. of New Haven, Conn., who is on the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The sources, who agreed to speak only if they were not identified by name, said Laurence H. Silberman, like Bork a federal appellate judge in Washington, was considered a dark horse.

Senators from both parties said Friday they expect the president to nominate another conservative. "I would think the next nominee probably will not be as controversial ... as conservative but maybe not as controversial."

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, another Bork supporter, said he was "saddened by what I call a 'deBorkle.'"

Hatch decried the anti-Bork lobbying campaign, adding, "If the same groups try to pull this on the next one, there's going to be outright warfare."

Vanna White is honorary Texan

AUSTIN (AP) — Can you spell T-E-X-A-S? "Wheel of Fortune" letter-turner Vanna White can.

Ms. White became an honorary Texan Friday at the H.E.B. grocery store in south Austin, applauded by a thousand fans.

Wearing red shoes, a red ruffled dress and diamond earrings, Ms. White told the crowd that she had been signing autographs on the plane as she traveled to Austin from Tampa, Fla., where the "Wheel of Fortune" entourage had been conducting a contestant search.

"I have been signing so many autographs on the plane that I can hardly hold my right hand up," she said, flashing a smile toward a group of photographers.

As he helped a friend climb into the basket of a shopping cart to get a better view, Glenn Stanley said came to take a gander at Ms. White.

"I see her on TV, and I just wanted to see how she looks in person," Stanley said. "I think she's pretty attractive. I don't think it's fair that people say she's stupid or boring. That's just their opinions."

As H.E.B. cashiers checked out groceries, hordes of shoppers checked out the game-show star.

"I wanted to see what she looks like in person, and she looks just like she looks on TV," game show fan Thera Mason told the Austin American-Statesman. "She looks just like the girl next door. She's an attractive girl, but she's not beautiful."

Administration puzzled by Gorbachev's refusal to set date for next summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials are puzzled by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's sudden refusal to fix a date for a summit meeting.

After two days of talks, Shultz left Moscow on Friday without a summit date, but saying the two sides were "virtually there" on an arms accord on intermediate-range nuclear force weapons, known as INF.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said an arms agreement could be signed in "some other less visible fashion" than a full-blown summit.

Speaking of Gorbachev, Fitzwater said, "Maybe he wants an arms agreement but doesn't want to come to the United States. That would be OK. The most important thing is the arms control agreement.

"They know full well we're not going to give on SDI," Fitzwater added. "Maybe he's just getting cold feet on coming to the United States."

Reagan did not learn about the snag until he saw Shultz's news conference, which was televised live in the United States. White House chief of staff Howard Baker also was caught by surprise.

Just moments before Shultz came on television, Baker was in his office at the White House, telling reporters that the most likely summit time was the second or third week of November.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the INF agreement "is really on track" despite setbacks in other areas.

He said the latest friction is due to typical "hot and cold" behavior on the part of the Soviets. Pell said he wouldn't be surprised to see a reversal of the situation shortly.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, called the outcome the result of "a typical Soviet endgame."

"They are trying to hurt the process by upping the ante at the end," Aspin told reporters. "They want to raise new issues and try to get more in the deal."

Reagan, in an interview with foreign journalists two hours after Shultz disclosed that there had been no agreement on a summit date, still expressed optimism at prospects for a summit but said he was "disappointed" there was no date set, according to reports in two of the publications represented, the Financial Times of London, Britain's leading business daily, and La Repubblica, a moderate Rome daily.

"Well, yes, I am disappointed. We had agreed in 1985 (at the Geneva summit) that there would be two more summits — one in Washington in 1986 and one in Moscow in 1987."

Candidate took contributions from lawyers before court

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Supreme Court Justice Robert Campbell, who pledged in his campaign for chief justice not to accept contributions from lawyers practicing in the state's high court, received a third of his 1986 campaign contributions from lawyers and firms with docketed cases.

A comparison of court records with Campbell's campaign finance reports shows he received $212,868 in contributions from firms and lawyers whose cases awaited Supreme Court action, the Texas Lawyer weekly magazine reported in a copyright story in its Oct. 26 editions.

The donations amount to 33 percent of Campbell's total contributions during the period. In some cases, the donations came just before a case reached the court, or just before a decision was handed down, the Lawyer reported. The magazine's analysis did not examine Campbell's votes in the cases.

Overall, attorneys contributed 65 percent of Campbell's total campaign purse for 1986.

Campbell, reached at his Waco home Friday night, told The Associated Press he had not intended for his statements at a Sept. 1 press conference to suggest he would be aware of every docketed attorney or firm who contributed to his campaign.

"The one thing that somehow never gets out in the press is that we don't know who the lawyers are until they get to the court," he said, adding that his campaign statements referred to cases in which a conflict of interest was obvious.

"I'm not going down to search the docket every morning to see who's filed a case. That's impossible," said Campbell, 52.

At the press conference in which he announced his 1988 bid for chief justice, Campbell said he would not take money from lawyers and firms with pending cases, a practice he said he followed in his 1986 re-election bid. In past campaigns, he said, his staff had screened contributions.

He told reporters he would return money from lawyers with cases "that are presently pending and those we know are coming," and those that are "in the pipeline" and headed for the court.

Of the contributions documented, Campbell received at least $45,200 in 1986 from lawyers who contributed after the court had accepted their cases for review.

A July 15 campaign report by Campbell's opponent, meanwhile, shows that Justice Ted Robertson has received more than half of his contributions from lawyers and firms with pending cases, the Texas Lawyer reported.

Robertson's report shows that such lawyers contributed $27,400, or 52 percent, of his total $52,050 in contributions. Overall, 94 percent of Robertson's campaign purse, or $49,030, came from lawyers.

Reformers maintain that almost exclusive funding of judicial races by lawyers, many of whom have a direct stake in how judges rule, has helped scar the image of the state's judiciary.

John Hildreth, executive director of Common Cause of Texas, said he appreciates the "heightened awareness" by judges who try to avoid contributions from lawyers practicing in their courts.

Hazing continues to be a problem at some colleges

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite laws aimed at erasing it and deaths that have resulted from it, hazing continues on Texas college campuses, according to school officials.

"It's something we have to keep hammering away at year after year," said Michael Schardein, Texas Tech University's assistant dean of students.

At Texas A&M, some students have difficulty distinguishing between "good college fun" and hazing, said Bill Kilber, the Aggies' associate director of student affairs.

At Southern Methodist University, Dean of Students Jim Caswell said there have been no recent reports of serious, potentially injurious hazing.

"But I'm not Pollyannaish about this. I'm not suggesting it doesn't occur," he said.

A state senator whose new, tougher anti-hazing law went into effect at the start of the school year said he fears hazing will continue.

"You are always going to have dummies doing dumb things, unfortunately," said Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin.

The secret world of hazing made its periodic trip to the headlines a few days ago when a special panel reported that hazing, in some of its most brutal forms, still goes on among some University of Texas student organizations.

The abuse, sometimes with two-handed paddles and sometimes with cattle prods, continued despite the UT commission's well-publicized, year-long investigation, according to John Ratliff, the law professor who chaired the panel.

The commission went to work after the September 1986 death of Mark Seeberger, a Richardson freshman who drank up to 20 ounces of rum in an hour or two during a fraternity event.

At Texas A&M, sophomore Bruce Goodrich died after an August 1984 hazing episode supervised by members of the school's Corps of Cadets.

Kibler said hazing is still a problem at A&M today. "It's not any greater a problem now than it has been in recent years. But to say it's not a continuing problem on our campus would be inaccurate. Students are involved in various things that clearly violate our hazing regulations."

Three disciplinary hearings on hazing have been held this school year at A&M, involving "physical kinds of things," such as tying people up or dumping them in water, Kibler said. There were no injuries but, "We had some potential for it," he said.

Stephen F. Austin State University officials are wrapping up an investigation of a sorority "clue hunt" in which new members under the legal drinking age of 21 were encouraged to drink alcoholic beverages, according to Dan Wallace, dean of student development at the Nacogdoches school.

In 1980, an SFA student was paralyzed after falling from a cliff during a fraternity social function. Wallace said school officials have not heard much about "serious hazing" at their campus in recent years. Like many Texas schools, SFA sponsored an "awareness" campaign to tell students about the new anti-hazing law, which, among other things, makes it illegal to fail to report hazing incidents.

At SMU, the awareness effort included a mock trial of a hypothetical hazing-related death.

"It's quite vivid. It certainly gets their attention," said Caswell, the SMU dean of students, adding that all fraternity members and pledges must sign a statement that they understand the anti-hazing law.

The new law was explained to Texas Tech fraternity officials last week.

"I think hazing is a problem to a degree on just about any campus. At Texas Tech, we feel like a lot of the real dangerous type of activity ended a few years back. But we are also concerned anything could pop up at any time," said Schardein, Tech's assistant dean of students.

"We still think there's a lot of silliness in some of the programs as far as making people do personal errands," he said. "It's hard to get them to understand things that are not harmful are still hazing."

Carl Bradley, Baylor University's dean for disciplinary affairs, said hazing is "definitely a concern." But he said officials at the Waco school have had no reports of serious hazing abuse.

Sheila Hyde, Baylor University's dean of student life, said more and more students are rejecting hazing.

FDA decision is declared unlawful by federal court

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court on Friday declared unlawful the Food and Drug Administration's decision allowing the use in cosmetics of two dyes that contain traces of cancer-causing chemicals.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here ruled that the FDA had violated what is known as the Delaney Clause that bars cancer-causing substances in dyes and food additives, even though the judges agreed with the agency's determination that the risk posed by dyes Orange No. 17 and Red No. 19 was extremely minimal.

The three-judge panel rejected the Reagan administration's argument that the FDA could allow the use of dyes that had virtually no risk because they contained only barely detectable traces of cancer-causing substances.

"Congress, and the nation in general (at least as perceived by Congress) appear to have been truly alarmed about the risks of cancer," the court said.

"This concern resulted in a close focus on substances increasing cancer threats and a willingness to take extreme steps to lessen even small risks," the court said in an opinion by Judge Stephen Williams.

The court invalidated a 1986 ruling by FDA that Orange No. 17 and Red No. 19 could be used in cosmetics because the cancer risk was "so trivial as to be effectively no risk."

The FDA had cited a scientific panel's finding that the lifetime risk for cancer was one in 19 billion for the orange dye and one in 9 million for the red dye.

Despite those findings, the court ruled that the Delaney Clause, however rigid, was a clear expression of Congress' intent to bar all cancer-causing substances from color additives.

"This is probably the most important food and drug case in many years," said William B. Schultz, an attorney for Public Citizen Litigation Group, a consumer-advocacy organization founded by Ralph Nader.

Schultz said the decision thwarts the Reagan administration's attempt to do away with the Delaney Clause. "The administration had tried to repeal it legislatively. When they couldn't do that they tried to do it administratively," he said.

"If the FDA could have adopted this interpretation of the Delaney Clause, they would have virtually unlimited flexibility in interpreting the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act," he said.

FDA spokesman Emil Corwin said agency officials had no immediate comment on the decision.

"Although disappointing this is not the end of judicial review of this matter," said Bernadette Toomey, spokeswoman for the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association. The trade group may appeal the decision to the Supreme Court, she said.

CYO elects new officers

The Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church held its first meeting on Oct. 4. Officers elected included Christi Quintela, president; Annette Ramos, vice-president; and Abel Garza, secretary-treasurer.

The CYO consists of people in grades 7-12. It has been organized for the purpose of bringing youth into the church. Activities will include fund raisers such as bake sales and dances. The money raised will be used for activities such as searches and retreats.

The CYO is both fun and a learning experience. The next meeting will be at noon this Sunday at the Guadalupe Center. The week of October 25 is Youth Proclamation Week.

Businessman gets reprieve in private bridge battle

WACO, Texas (AP) — A Carrollton businessman who was found in contempt of court for failing to remove the remnants of a private bridge from the Brazos River was won a three-week extension to comply with the court order.

State District Judge Derwood Johnson found John Trice in contempt of court two weeks ago and sentenced him to six months in jail and a $500 fine. The sentence was waived, however, and Johnson gave Trice two weeks to finish removing large concrete chunks from the river bottom.

Trice told Johnson Friday that water being released daily from Lake Whitney dam has increased the depth of the river recently and made it difficult for his work crews to complete the job.

Ragin' Tigers are victorious...

San Angelo Chiefs blocked, 22-19

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO -- Snyder's offense had its usual trouble hitting on all cylinders...so the defense took over.

Scoring off of two blocked punts, Snyder's Ragin' Tigers posted their first victory of the 1987 season here Friday night, shocking a heavily-favored San Angelo Lake View team 22-19.

Needless to say, there was bedlam among Snyder players and the small but loyal group of Tiger fans gathered at Lake View Stadium.

"Can you believe it. Two blocked punts and Randy Morris catches both of them in the air and runs them in for touchdowns," said an elated Snyder Coach Dennis Tomlin, who hugged more mommas and babies than a politician at election time after the victory. "It was great. Just great."

The defense was the key, but we shouldn't dismiss Snyder's offensive unit, in all honesty. Though the squad only produced 208 total yards, it did provide a first-half touchdown that kept the game close, and this time - when the Tigers absolutely had to have it - came through at the end of the game.

"The blocked punts were a major key, but so was running out the clock at the end of the game," said Tomlin. "Our guys gutted it out out there tonight."

Snyder took over with 4:50 left and managed three first downs to run out the clock. An injured Michael Riggins - who never played until the fourth quarter - came in for two of the first downs, including one on a fourth-and-one situation at the Lake View 34.

"Michael came to me earlier in the day and said 'I can play, Coach.' He hadn't practiced all week. We held him out until the fourth quarter but by then our other backs were almost out of gas. They had been starting both ways," Tomlin explained.

On the fourth-and-one play with 1:03 left, Riggins, who suffered a broken nose in last week's game with Andrews, followed Craig Watkins, Billy Nix, Thance Springer, Tim Beauchamp and Scott Lanier over the right side for a three-yard gain and the first down.

There were a jillion individual efforts like Riggins'. Fullback Roy Gutierrez bulled, shoved and fought for 103 yards on 19 carries. Morris ran in two blocked punts and intercepted a pass which led to Snyder's other scoring drive. Quarterback Lee Fletcher ran over two two-point conversions. Benny Miller blocked a punt and an extra point try. The list could go on and on.

"We had a lot of great individual plays, but this was a team effort all the way," Tomlin said. "All the credit goes to the kids. They overcame so much."

Lake View scored first. The Chiefs stopped Snyder's opening drive and came out showing why they were the second-rated offensive team in District 2-4A. They drove 68 yards in 11 plays. The TD was a 9-yard pass from quarterback Eric Dumas to Davey Cortez. Lance Coe kicked the point-after with 5:03 left.

Snyder's second possession ended in an interception as Sean Choate picked off quarterback Roland Romo at the Lake View 31.

It could have been all too familiar.

This time, however, the Tiger defense stopped Dumas and company. The senior quarterback did complete a 47-yard pass to Coe, but four plays later Lake View ran out of downs at the 14-yard line.

Snyder began to show some offensive spark after that. Gutierrez ran for 16 yards on one play and 8 on another. A Vyron Clay run for 8 more yards put the ball at the 38, and Snyder marched all the way to the Lake View 18 before the drive fell apart. Keying the effort was a fine 18-yard reception by Watkins of a Fletcher pass.

But from the 18, Snyder was knocked backwards. The Tigers were pushed all the way to the 31 - in part by a delay penalty - and finally gave the ball up there.

Any cheers by Lake View were short-lived, however. Five plays later, Morris made a perfectly timed interception of a Dumas pass at the Tiger 38 to set the visitors on their way again.

This time, Snyder made good on the effort. Though a Clay run of 52 yards was negated by offsetting penalties, the Tigers shook it off and began a 62-yard, seven-play drive. A 15-yard penalty following a 9-yard run by Clay didn't hurt any. But the big play on the march was a 25-yard scamper by Gutierrez, who followed good blocking into the Chief secondary, then broke three tackles before being hauled down at the Lake View 6-yard line. Fletcher took in the scoring run from the 3-yard line moments later, and with 48 seconds left in the half, Snyder trailed only 7-6.

The score stayed that way after a bobbled PAT snap.

The Tigers had one other chance to get on the board after Trey Tippens recovered a Kevin McKerley fumble with seven seconds to go before intermission. Snyder tried a 37-yard field goal, but Watkins' effort was just left of the mark.

Snyder's defense took over in the second half, mainly in the form of a great effort against the Lake View punt team.

With 8:37 left in the third quarter, Tommy Lane raced in and blocked a Hector Silva punt

Mustangs defeat Monahans, 23-7

And then there was one.

Sweetwater stands alone atop the District 2-4A football standings today after a somewhat surprising 23-7 victory over ninth-ranked Monahans.

The Mustangs are 5-0 in the district while Monahans slips into second place with a 4-1 record.

The loser of the Sweetwater-Monahans game figured to be tied for second place with Fort Stockton, but the Panthers didn't figure on Lamesa. In just one of several stunning outcomes in 2-4A Friday, Lamesa tripped up Fort Stockton 27-26.

The loss left the Panthers with a 4-2 loop mark, a half-game in front of Big Spring. The Steers improved to 3-2 in the district with a 28-15 victory over Pecos.

In the district's only other game, Snyder earned its first win of the season by shocking San Angelo Lake View 22-19.

Andrews was idle.

Fort Stockton gets next Friday off to ponder the situation while Sweetwater is at Snyder, Lake view is at Andrews and Big Spring is at Monahans. Big Spring could force a three-way tie for second place with a victory over the Loboes.

When Joe Adcock of Milwaukee hit four home runs in one game against Brooklyn in 1954 he also connected for a double, giving him a major league record of 18 total bases in one game.

Cowboys divisiveness fatal, think Philadelphia Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - If you've been listening to the week-long rhetoric of the Philadelphia Eagles, powerful athletes and coaching personalities will be a sidelight of Sunday's game against the Dallas Cowboys.

The action won't center on Philadelphia's Buddy Ryan trying to outcoach Tom Landry, or Randall Cunningham trying to outpass Danny White, or Reggie White trying to outblock Randy White.

The Eagles have convinced themselves that a team that sticks together, wins together.

It's all part of the post-strike scene. The Eagles stood together during the 24-day players' strike against the NFL. The Cowboys had 20 players, including stars Danny and Randy White, Tony Dorsett, Ed "Too Tall" Jones, Mike Renfro and Don Smerek cross their teammates' picket line.

The Eagles think the Dallas divisiveness will be fatal. They not only resent Cowboys players for breaking the strike, but include Dallas owner Tex Schramm in their disenchantment.

Cunningham views Schramm as the spearhead of the NFL management team that broke the strike.

"Tex Schramm had a game plan," said Cunningham. "Schramm said, 'I'm going to go on strike. I'm going to get the best (replacement) players in here (Dallas) and try to get in front of everybody, because we know we're going to have an off year.'"

Cunningham observed that Landry had said this was a rebuilding year for the Cowboys.

"So, in the long run Schramm knew the Cowboys would fall apart. Down the road they're going to lose a lot of games."

Reggie White, the 285-pound defensive end who is among the more militant Eagles, expressed his feelings toward Dallas.

"There is definitely more motivation this week," White said. "Those guys crossed the line and hurt our cause. That doesn't sit too well with our team where everyone stuck together and sacrificed.

"We want to send the Cowboys home sad. We want to send their quarterback home REAL sad. I'm not going out to hurt the man but I'm gonna do everything I can to intimidate him and mess up his game."

Cunningham said he expects the Cowboys to have some problems because of the players who crossed the picket line.

"I think they're going to be having their frustrations because of the guys who went in ... I'd be kind of upset. And I think that's where we'll have an edge."

"You may read that it (strike problems) doesn't bother them. But we know better."

Dallas running back Herschel Walker disagreed with Cunningham on the effect of strike differences in the Cowboys' performance on the field.

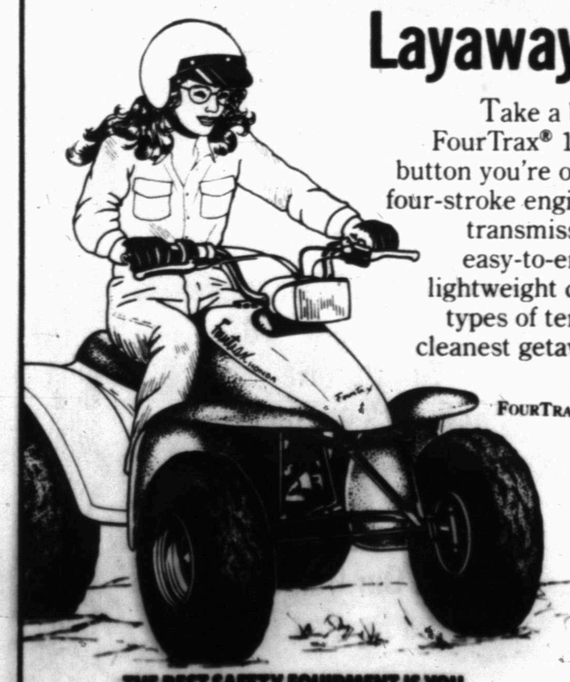

"You don't have to like each other," Walker said during a telephone interview this week. "You can hate each other. All you have to do is do your job."

Landry agreed.

Twins hope to 'steal' series

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - The Minnesota Twins were home at the Dome with the DH, the Homer Hankies and the noise, hoping to steal the World Series from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The roof fell in on the Twins at Busch Stadium, where the Cardinals ran to a three-game sweep. St. Louis was one victory from its 10th championship, while Minnesota needed to win twice for its first title.

"It's the only place to go," Twins Manager Tom Kelly said of the Metrodome, where raucous, hanky waving crowds helped Minnesota to a 60-25 record, the best home mark in baseball.

Game 6 was Saturday with John Tudor opposing Minnesota's Les Straker in a matchup of third-game starters. Straker pitched shutout ball for six innings and got a no-decision when St. Louis rallied against reliever Juan Berenguer, giving Tudor the victory.

"No pressure," said Straker, a rookie who spent 10 years in the minors. "If we lose, we're out. If we win, then we're happy."

If there is a seventh game, Danny Cox may start for the Cardinals on two days' rest. Manager Whitey Herzog indicated he would let Cox go as long as possible and then use his bullpen.

Cox, whose shutout in the seventh game of the playoffs put St. Louis into the World Series, won Game 5 Thursday night. He shut out Minnesota on three hits for seven innings and left in the eighth as St. Louis won 4-2.

"I've never pitched in a game with two days' rest," Cox said. "That's up to Whitey. If he says in Game 7, 'Danny, the ball is yours,' I'll go out and do my best."

"But there are nine other guys who all want the ball, too. We're not looking at Game 7 right now. We're looking at Game 6. John is going out there for us."

Frank Viola, the winner in Game 1 and loser in Game 4, would pitch the seventh game for the Twins.

So far, the power-verus-speed World Series has gone according to form. The Twins scored 18 runs on 21 hits and won the first two games, and then the Cardinals ran loose at home. St. Louis tied a Series record last accomplished in 1907 by stealing five bases Thursday night.

There has never been a World Series in which the home team won every game.

The Cardinals became the seventh team to lose the first two away and win the next three at home. All six of the previous clubs, including the New York Mets last year, went on to win the Series.

In 1965, in their only other World Series, the Twins beat Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax in the first two games in Minnesota and lost the next three in Los Angeles. The Twins won Game 6 but lost to Koufax in the seventh game at Metropolitan Stadium.

Minnesota managed just five runs on 18 hits at Busch Stadium. The Twins hope the addition of their designated hitter and the smaller Metrodome will get them back on track.

"I think they hit four balls here that would have been home runs there," Herzog said.

Jayton zips around Ira

IRA – Jayton's Jaybirds turned off the clock with almost 10 minutes left to play when they beat Ira by the 45-point rule here Friday, 47-0, in a District 4-1A East Zone ballgame.

Jayton improved to 6-0 overall and 3-0 in zone play with the victory while Ira fell to 2-5 and 1-3.

Next Friday, Ira is at Highland and Jayton entertains Trent.

Jayton got TD runs of 52, 30 and 11 yards from Steven Morales, who ran for 174 yards in the contest.

Others scores included a 7-yard TD run from Paul Morales and a 5-yard pass from Paul Morales to Marc Morales. Marc Morales also found Doug Smith on a scoring toss.

'Dogs blast Cards, 53-8

HERMLEIGH – Hermleigh's Cardinals got a 15-yard TD pass from Rodney Foster to Eddie Whitehead but it wasn't near enough to hold back Loraine here Friday night.

The Cardinals dropped to 1-5-1 with the 53-8 loss.

Loraine got two scoring runs from Charles Alavarez and one from Jossell Williams. Williams also tallied on a pass from Casey Cooper.

Another Bulldog TD came as David Sanchez scored on a blocked punt return.

The game ended in the third quarter via the 45-point rule.

Hermleigh returns to District 4-1A East Zone action next week as the Cardinals play in Blackwell.

Giants need victory to have playoff hope

by The Associated Press

The defending Super Bowl champion New York Giants face an early end to their reign.

With the regular teams returning Sunday after the 24-day strike, the Giants have an 0-5 record and are the only winless team in the NFL. Coach Bill Parcells says his club must win its final 10 games to make the playoffs.

The regulars can't blame just the replacement players, either, since they lost the two games before the strike.

On Sunday, the Giants will play host to the St. Louis Cardinals, and the home team will be 10-point favorites over the 2-3 visitors.

In other games Sunday, it will be Atlanta at Houston, Buffalo at Miami, Chicago at Tampa Bay, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh, Dallas at Philadelphia, Denver at Minnesota, Green Bay at Detroit, New England at Indianapolis, the New York Jets at Washington, San Francisco at New Orleans, Seattle at the Los Angeles Raiders, and Kansas City at San Diego.

Monday night's contest will have the Los Angeles Rams at Cleveland.

One game - Denver at Minnesota - was to depend on the World Series. The game will be played Sunday if the St. Louis Cardinals won the Series in Saturday's Game 6. But if the Minnesota Twins won, Game 7 will be played at the Metrodome on Sunday and the football game will be moved to Monday night.

Cardinals Coach Gene Stallings says the fact that St. Louis had 21 regulars cross the picket line and play during the strike won't help against the Giants, who had only four regulars suit up with the replacements.

"If you lined up Carl Banks, Lawrence Taylor, Pepper Johnson and Harry Carson against what I got, would you call that an advantage?" Stallings asked.

And Stallings agrees that quarterback Neil Lomax is a key to the Cardinals' chances. Lomax completed 49 of 94 passes for 727 yards and five touchdowns in the two games before the strike.

The strike actually was beneficial for the Washington Redskins, the only team not to have a single player cross the line. Not only did the replacements win all three games, the time allowed many of their injured players to heal.

The Jets were 2-0 before the strike, but they share first place in the AFC East with the New England Patriots.

"Under the circumstances, we couldn't ask for a better position," said Jets running back Freeman McNeil. "We're just going to have to go out there and add a few more wins to that."

Making his first appearance of the season will be Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon. Right shoulder problems have kept him out of the lineup since the 12th game of last season.

McMahon won't start Sunday at Tampa - Mike Tomczak, who guided the Bears to two pre-strike victories, will. But McMahon is expected to see action against the Buccaneers.

The 49ers have won their last four games and lead the NFC West. Crossing the line, San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana completed 31 of 39 passes for 334 yards and four touchdowns with two interceptions.

New Orleans quarterback John Fourcade was 16 of 34 passing for 198 yards, one interception and one TD as the Saints handed Chicago its first loss of the season last Sunday.

The Green Bay Packers, facing Detroit for the second time this season, hope to shed their overtime habit. The Packers have played three overtime games already this season, tying Denver in the season's second week, losing to Detroit two weeks ago and defeating Philadelphia last Sunday.

Bulls 112, Mavs 109

DALLAS (AP) - Michael Jordan scored 34 points, including the go-ahead free throw with 3:18 to play, to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 112-109 victory over the Dallas Mavericks Friday night in an NBA exhibition game.

Dallas, led by Mark Aguirre's 34 points, overcame a nine-point fourth-quarter deficit to take a 99-97 lead with 4:17 to play.

But Chicago scored seven straight points for a 105-99 edge with 2:07 left. The Mavericks crept to within 110-109 on Aguirre's layup with 29 seconds remaining, but Charles Oakley's pair of free throws with five seconds remaining and Tony White's steal closed out the Mavericks.

Scholarship recipients

Nancy Bals and Walter Martin have been named recipients of the Wallace and Celia Jones and the Virginia Whitson basketball scholarships for the 1987-88 season at Western Texas College.

Bals is a sophomore guard from Lubbock. Martin is a freshman post-forward from Snook.

The Wallace and Celia Jones scholarship was given by the Jones family in their memory. Both were basketball fans and attended many WTC games. Wallace Jones served as honorary director of the Region V Tournament, played in Snyder in 1986.

Virginia Whitson was known as WTC's No. 1 basketball fan when she lived in Snyder. A retired teacher, she gave many hours of volunteer work to the Senior Center and also made time to attend WTC basketball games. She now lives in Mineral Wells.

Donations to WTC's athletic scholarships can be made at any time and designated for the Booster Club scholarship, the Whitson or Jones scholarships, the Yvonne Richardson scholarship or the Judge Wayland G. Holt scholarship.

Anyone wishing information should contact Dr. Jim Tully, WTC financial aid officer.

SWC grade report not so hot according to AP's Freeman

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - It's a good thing the Southwest Conference doesn't have a no-pass, no-play rule because the Freeman File mid-season football grade report isn't a pretty picture.

For the first time since 1967, the Southwest Conference doesn't have a team in The Associated Press Top Twenty. It can be interpreted as a sign of poor coaching or poor recruiting.

Southern Methodist University picked a good year to sit out the season. The Mustangs get an incomplete.

Here's the report card for the rest:

- David McWilliams, Texas, C-minus. A loss to Brigham Young at home and a pure bludgeon job by Oklahoma hardly deserves a grade out of the 70 percent range. However, McWilliams is leading the SWC thanks to a miracle catch by a 5-foot-7 receiver with three Hogs pounding him on the last play of the Arkansas game.

- Jack Pardee, Houston, C-minus. Aside from the opening 35-0 flogging by Oklahoma State, new coach Pardee has played everyone tough and close. Just his luck for his starting quarterback to break an arm against Wyoming. Welcome back to the SWC, Jack.

- Grant Teaff, Baylor, C-minus. The 34-10 blowout by Texas A&M indicates Teaff might not have a Cotton Bowl team. He's done pretty good with what he's got except for the loss to a bad Missouri team.

- Jackie Sherrill, Texas A&M, D. Victories over Washington and Baylor are offset by a loss to Texas Tech because Sherrill couldn't decide on one of three quarterbacks. Bucky Richardson could turn Jackie's D into an A by the time the season ends. Ask Baylor.

- Spike Dykes, Texas Tech, D. An upset victory over A&M is offset by losses to Baylor and Arkansas. A potential B dropped to a D when Dykes' Raiders were shut out at home 31-0 by Arkansas. They were also strummed in Waco by Baylor.

- Jim Wacker, Texas Christian, D. The Horned Frogs have been struggling with some of the best talent in the SWC on hand. The Frogs have yet to be the offensive powerhouse they were built up to be. They've beat Rice for the first time in three years. That hardly rates a certificate of excellence.

- Jerry Berndt, Rice, D. If you have the heart to give Jerry an F with the lack of talent he has on hand, go ahead. I don't have the gall. Besides, he scared Texas.

- Ken Hatfield, Arkansas, F. A superior Razorback team let Texas hang around long enough to call down a collegiate football version of Roger Staubach's "Hail Mary" pass. Even the 51-7 slaughter to Miami can be excused. But sitting on the ball against the 'Horns gets Hatfield an F. However, he's still eligible to coach the rest of the semester. Extra tutoring by Athleitc Director Frank Broyles could bring the final grade to a B.

SPORTS

Sutton plays best round; takes the lead at Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Hal Sutton played the best round of his career, a 10-under-par 62, and took a one-shot lead Friday after the second round of the $600,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

"Today was the best I've ever played," Sutton said after completing two rounds in 131, 13 under par. "It could have been better. It could have been a lot better.

"Easily, it could have been in the 50's," said Sutton, who had eight birdies, an eagle and either hit the hole or left the ball on the lip on six other putts.

Had half of those dropped, he could have matched the PGA Tour single-round scoring record of 59.

"The weather was perfect. There was little or no wind. The greens were soft. It was very conducive to shooting low numbers. And that's what a lot of the guys did," Sutton said.

Golf's touring pros took advantage of ideal conditions to ravage the new, 7,010 yard, par-72 TPC course at Star Pass.

Payne Stewart and Paul Azinger both shot 63s, with Stewart sinking seven consecutive birdies, one short of the all-time record.

Journeyman Bill Sander, who hasn't finished higher than fourth in a 10-year Tour career, added a 64 and was second at 132, 12 under par.

TIGERS

attempt. Morris caught it at about the 39, and raced the distance to score. The play covered 49 yards.

"We knew he (Silva) was a good punter so we just wanted to pressure him," said Kevin Wiseman, Snyder defensive coordinator. "After we blocked him the first time, we knew we could do it again. It's not easy to block a punt. You have to have perfect execution, don't jump offsides, don't run into the kicker. The kids did a great job."

Snyder went for two on the conversion and Fletcher kept it around right end to score and put the Tigers on top, 14-7.

San Angelo was able to come back on a big play of its own. With 2:09 left in the quarter, Choate stepped in front of a Romo pass that was aimed at Gutierrez, and sprinted 34 yards for a Chief touchdown. The PAT was blocked by Miller and Pete Madrid.

San Angelo took the lead on its next offensive series. Snyder appeared to have the hosts stopped, but on a third down play Dumas connected with Coe for a 42-yard toss to the Tiger 27. Four plays later Eddie Gonzales scored from a yard out.

The Chiefs went for another two-point conversion, but Dumas was stopped short. With 11:10 left in the game, Lake View led 19-14.

Snyder's next two offensive possessions ended in a punt and a Mitch McAda interception. It began to appear as if the Tigers would extend their losing streak to seven games. But the Tiger defense wouldn't give in.

After holding the Chiefs to no-gain on three consecutive pass plays, the Tigers pulled off the blocked-punt routine again. This time Miller slammed into Silva's effort at the Lake View 31-yard line. The ball spiraled backwards to about the 5, where Lane caught it in mid-air and ran across for the touchdown.

With 5:38 left, Fletcher ran over the PAT again, and Snyder enjoyed a 22-19 lead.

Lake View took the ensuing kickoff but ran only one play before Snyder's Scott Lanier intercepted a deep pass into triple-coverage. From there, the Tigers ran the clock out to preserve the victory.

Bedlam. Nutsville. Sweet victory.

While Gutierrez managed 103 yards, Snyder held Lake View's Gonzales - the third leading rusher in the district - to just 63 steps on 17 carries. And Dumas, who was four-of-seven for 98 yards in the first half, was just one-of-eight in the second for 52.

The future may still not be bright - Snyder hosts Sweetwater next Friday. But the Tigers may have learned something. Good things happen to those who never quit. And on this night in San Angelo, the Tigers never did.

Let the PUREFLOW System Help Clear the Air

Air pollution is no longer just a lingering cloud of dust hanging over factories and big cities. It's a problem that has moved indoors.

Now, there's the PUREFLOW™ Air Treatment System to help reduce the level of unwanted contaminants in the air.

The PUREFLOW Air Treatment System is a programmable air-filtration system that offers you more filters, programs, fan speeds, and features than other comparable systems on the market.

Available only from your Amway distributor.

Thomas Rinehart

Services for Thomas Oddist Rinehart, 76, of Route 3, Snyder were to be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Chapel with the Rev. Danny Williams, pastor of Lighthouse Assembly of God, officiating. Burial was to follow at Snyder Cemetery.

He died at 9 p.m. Thursday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. He was born Oct. 28, 1910 in Comanche County, Tex. He was retired from the Scurry County Parks Department.

He married Velora Williams Feb. 24, 1929 in Snyder. She survives.

He is survived by three daughters, MayBelle Whitehead and Dorothy Francis, both of Houston, and Margie Massarello of San Antonio; two sons, Charles of Houston and Kenneth of Snyder; 18 grandchildren; 24 great-grandchildren; two great-great-grandchildren; and one sister, Mrs. Carl Woods of Snyder.

Pallbearers were to be Neil Rinehart, Daryl Woods, Van Meador, Billy Rinehart, Dan Laster, Patrick Reed, Don Cheek and Donnie Davis.

Henry Flournoy

Services for Henry Abb Flournoy, 77, of Arah Route will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at Fluvanna Methodist Church with Thomas Hall and Don Campbell officiating. Burial will follow at Fluvanna Cemetery under the direction of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

Lunch will be served at noon Sunday at the Fluvanna Community Center.

He died at 4:10 p.m. Thursday. He was born May 1, 1910 in Tyler, Tex. He was a retired farmer and had lived in Scurry County most of his life. He had served on the board of directors of the Plains Cotton Growers Association, had been a member of the Fluvanna School Board and had served as president of the Scurry County Farmers Union.

He married Clellia Davenport in September of 1935 in Ira. She survives.

He is survived by a son, Silas of Crosbyton; two grandchildren, Stacy of Lubbock and Stephen of Center Point; one sister, Abbie Griffin of Hobbs, N. M.; and one brother, Pres of Coalinga, Calif.

Pallbearers will be Freddy Mena, Dee Pylant, Loyd Ainsworth, Orville Mathis, J. D. Patterson, Don Jones, James Beaver, and Pete Beaver.

Biddie Slaughter

LOOP--Services are set for 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Loop Church of Christ for Biddie Amanda Slaughter, 74, who died Friday in a Longview hospital after a brief illness. Burial was to follow in the Loop Cemetery.

She was the mother of Bill Slaughter of Snyder.

Born in Cardiff, Ark., she moved to Ashmore in 1925. She married Robert Slaughter on Aug. 27, 1929 in Ashmore. He died in 1986.

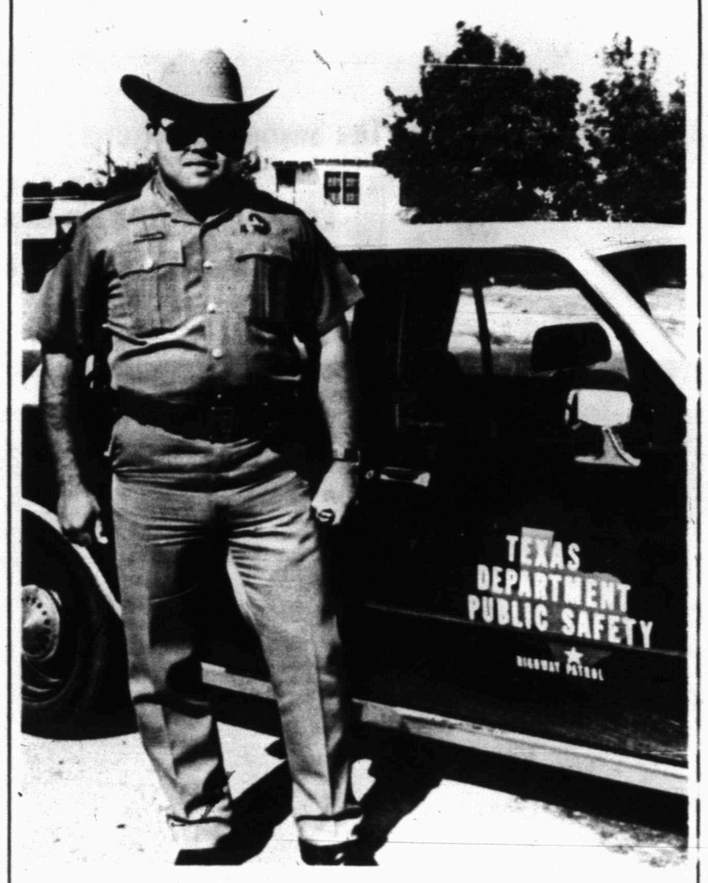

Other survivors include three daughters, Ella Shirley of White Oak, Bobbie Crowson of Balch Springs and Linda Owens of Loop; a brother, Cad Bingham of Atoka, Okla.; 11 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Grass ignites

Burning trash turned into a grass fire that firemen were called to at 4:30 p.m. Friday a mile south of Snyder off Highway 208.

A fire department spokesman said the fire, on property owned by Moody Thomason, took about 30 minutes to extinguish.

Attendance mark still near 97 percent level

Attendance for Snyder schools during the third full week of October slipped slightly, although it continues to run almost 4 percentage points above normal.

The latest report has it at 96.3 percent, slightly below last week's average of 96.7 percent.

School officials have set as a goal a 98 percent attendance average for the month--the period when all Texas school districts are monitored by the Texas Education Agency for average daily attendance (ADA) figures.

ADA figures are used at the end of the year for the basis of state funding.

Increasing Snyder ISD's average percentage can equal thousands of extra state dollars, school officials say. In line with this, parents are urged to keep their children in school unless illness prevents it.

The normal ADA for Snyder equals some 93 percent, a high figure for district's statewide, officials say.

Carnival set

The annual Halloween Carnival will be held from 6-9 p.m. Thursday at the Hermleigh High School gym. Many events will return and there will be new games for adults and children. The food booths will be serving chili and other food items.

Plan carnival

The Stanfield Parent Council is sponsoring a Halloween Carnival next Saturday, Oct. 31, from 6-10 p.m. at the coliseum ag annex.

A costume contest will be held from 7-7:30 p.m. Prizes will be awarded. Games will also be played.

Concession items will include barbecue sandwiches, Frito Pie, and desserts.

Union Baptists slate revival

Union Baptist Church will have a revival Sunday through Wednesday. Jerry Speers of Ranger, former Snyder resident, will be the guest preacher. Bob Cavit of Lampasas will be the singer.

Sunday morning's service will begin at 11 a.m. with lunch to follow.

Services Monday through Wednesday will begin at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A nursery will be provided. Everyone is invited to attend.

Two bank on 'light' idea

the logistics of cutting it into strips suitable for mounting onto wheel hubs.

The design they favored is a 1 by 5 inch strip with a self-adhesive backing. For a normal-sized truck tire, they say, four strips placed opposite each other is sufficient.

When a wheel in motion is struck by oncoming lights, the illusion is of a ring of fire flickering from the wheel rim. "It's beautiful," said Martinez.

They then moved toward "marketing" the product. "We quickly found out that this part was just too big for us right now," said Williams.

Two months ago, they contacted a Fort Worth marketing specialist. "We took him everything we had, laid out everything we'd done, and he called us back in two weeks and said, 'Fellows, I think we've got something,'" said Martinez.

A deal was made to purchase the marketing rights for the product with Martinez and Williams retaining royalty rights for future sales.

Now, they said, the firm is contacting a wide range of markets with plans to launch a sales campaign by the first of the year.

This would be a blanket effort, hoping to sell the safety device to industry, the government as well as to retail outlets.

As envisioned, a set of Custom Wheel Lights can be packaged into a product to be sold for under $10. The applications are to any two-wheel and four-wheel vehicle, they note, ranging from motorcycles to motor homes. The main target at the moment is the trucking industry.

The two estimate they've invested from $7,000 to $8,000 of their own money into their product at present. They hope the opportunity for recovering this investment might reach into the millions.

"A guy I know once drove up to my house and asked me, 'What kind of idiot is going to buy wheel lights?'" Martinez remembers. "I looked at his car, and he had one of those 'Baby on Board' cards hanging in his window. I told him, 'The same kind of idiot who bought that card.'"

Congress passed the Sedition Act in 1798, making it a federal crime to publish false, scandalous or malicious writing about the U.S. government.

Retirement portfolio loses $1 billion

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The Texas Teacher Retirement System's investment portfolio lost about $1 billion in value in last week's stock-market plunge, officials said.

But "we haven't lost any money because we haven't sold anything," said Gary Thompson, a former Abilene state representative and the TTRS's legislative liaison.

But he said the system's stock, which had earned $4 billion in the last few years, dropped about $1 billion Monday when the Dow Industrials average plunged more than 500 points.

"We did just about like every other institutional investor," he said Friday. "I think everybody here was concerned."

The money would have been lost had the system sold its investments. Thompson said the $16 billion retirement system's investments are largely in long-term, low-risk bonds and stock.

"The fund is still very stable," Thompson said. "There isn't anybody who is going to miss their annuity payment."

Drug programs slated locally

Thursday will have an address from Marilyn Golightly, regional director for "Texans' War on Drugs." It will feature also local speakers to include District Attorney Ernie Armstrong, Dr. Tom Scannicchio, assistant superintendent for Snyder ISD, and Troy Williamson, Snyder mayor.

A performance by the high school band is scheduled also as well as the film "Get It Straight," which stars former "Saturday Night Live" performer Tim Kazurinsky.

As incentives for attendance, drawings will be held for those attending. Items to be given away include tickets to the Dallas Cowboy-Miami Dolphin game, gift certificates from McDonald's and a Ronald McDonald desktop telephone.

Robert Patterson, owner of Snyder Drug, will also present the prize winners in the "Health Smart" contest he recently sponsored.

Both activities are outgrowths of the recent organization here of the Scurry County Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

Hospital plan called threat

Medicare will pay only a certain amount for each type of problem, regardless of how many days of hospitalization or what type of treatment were required.

Larger hospitals get higher rates because they have higher room rates and other fees, and they generally have a smaller percentage of Medicare patients than rural hospitals do.

He said the hospital has been hurt more each year by the DRG policies which were put into effect in January of 1984.

They replaced previous Medicare policies that usually paid most of Medicare patients' bills. About 35 percent of Cogdell's patients are hospitalized under Medicare.

The situation before 1984 "is what brought it all about," Miller said, because Medicare "was paying for everything."

This system created abuses, Miller admits, noting such extremes as people placing their elderly parents in the hospital each time they had to be out of town.

But in reforming the system, he said, HEW went too far, a situation which now threatens the existence of rural hospitals.

A list of recent Medicare cases at the $7.4-million hospital showed write-offs from several hundred to several thousand dollars per case.

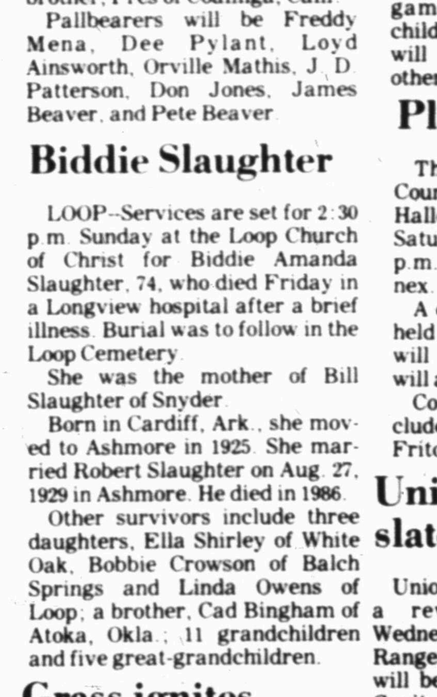

These included one in which a woman was hospitalized from May 1 to June 29 for a major small and large bowel procedure, ringing up total charges of $62,326. Medicare paid only $10,620, leaving the hospital, after the patient's $520 deductible payment, to write off more than $50,000.

In another example, Miller cited a respiratory infection and inflamation case in which a man was hospitalized from Aug. 3 to Aug. 19 with total charges of $12,178. Medicare paid only $2,135.

Miller said some political leaders of rural counties, including U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford, have recognized the situation.

As yet, however, he said they "have not had any effect" in trying to get the policies changed.

Listed in the caption above are delinquent tax suits in which Judgments of Foreclosure have been rendered and Orders of Sale have been issued. The listing for each suit sets out: (1) the Cause Number; (2) the Plaintiff Tax Unit; (3) the Defendants; (4) the date of the Judgment; (5) the date of Levy; and (6) the property description.

Under the Order of Sale issued pursuant to each Judgment above listed, I did at the time specified for each suit levy upon each Property in such suit as described above as the property of the Defendants named or designated in such suit. On the sale date specified above, which is the first Tuesday of said month, I will offer and sell at public auction, for cash, each property described above, and all the right, title, interest and estate in and to each such property owned or claimed by the Defendants named in connection with each such property; PROVIDED, however, that no property shall be sold directly or indirectly to anyone other than a Tax Unit which is a party to that specific suit for less than the total amount of taxes, penalties, interest and costs due against that particular property or any adjudged value decreed, whichever is lower.

The Foreclosure Sales under this Notice will be held on the first Tuesday of said month, at the Courthouse door of said County, at the time set out above, by and through the LAW OFFICES OF GATES STEEN, 3001 N. Lamar Blvd., Suite 306, Austin, Texas 78705 (Area Code 512) 476-4688, my authorized representative.

The sale of each property shall be subject to the rights of the Defendants named in connection with each particular property, and any successors in title, to redeem such specified property in the time and manner provided by law; and subject also to the rights of any defendants to have each particular property owned or claimed by such defendants divided and sold in less divisions than the whole as provided by law. The sale as to each property is to be made to satisfy the Judgment rendered against that particular property and the Defendants named in connection with that particular property. The proceeds of the sale of each property are to be applied to the satisfaction of the Judgment against that particular property, and the remainder of the sale proceeds, if any, are to be applied as the law directs.

Dated at Snyder, Texas, this the 7th day of October, 1987.

Market storm shows signs of dying down

NEW YORK (AP) — After a week of wrenching activity, Wall Street showed some signs of calming Friday. Or maybe it was just exhaustion.

Stock prices hovered in a narrow range in trading that remained heavy by historical standards, but was well off the pace of earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished the day with a 0.33 gain at 1,950.76. That left the average, the most familiar gauge of trends in stock prices, with a record loss of 295.98 points, or 13.7 percent, in its busiest week ever.

AP analysis

Stock exchanges, brokerage firms and mutual fund organizations still grappled with a barrage of orders, inquiries from customers and a backlog of business that left many people in the securities industry facing a long working weekend.

But many analysts said they were pleased, or relieved, to see that investors took the decision to close the markets early for three business days in stride.

"It looks like a more normal market," said Larry Wachtel at Prudential-Bache Securities. "I think we began to see the heat and the emotion come out of it Thursday."

The New York and American Stock Exchanges and the over-the-counter market closed at 2 p.m. EDT, two hours earlier than usual, to give the financial community extra time to catch up on the processing of unprecedented numbers of orders executed in recent days.

The same schedule is to be followed Monday and Tuesday.

Informal restrictions remained in effect to curtail computer-program trading strategies that have often swollen the volume of activity in the past few years.

In addition, brokers said many investors apparently decided to take a step back and appraise the new environment in which they and the markets found themselves after the recent collapse.

Some observers regarded the early closings as a potentially sensitive point for investors' confidence in the market.

But the verdict rendered by investors seemed to be that it was a good choice.

Hoax makes rounds again

A GI insurance dividend hoax which has plagued the Veterans Administration for more than 25 years sometimes brings calls to the office of Scurry County Veterans Service Officer E. H. (Dan) Dever at Western Texas College.

This hoax promises dividends to veterans who let their GI insurance lapse. It has primarily targeted World War II veterans in the past and is now attracting the attention of Vietnam vets. People who have heard about the non-existent dividend sometimes call Dever's office at Western Texas College for information about how to apply or to confirm that such a dividend is available.

The VA reports it is getting nearly 15,000 applications a week for the bogus dividend, Dever said. The VA must bear the expense in labor and mailing costs to reply to the inquiries.

The VA does pay annual dividends to policyholders and no applications are required for these dividends. This year, more than three million veterans will share a distribution of nearly $935 million.

Veterans who have questions about benefits available to them may call Dever's office at 573-8511 for information and assistance in securing and filling out the required forms. The office is in the WTC Adminsitration Buidling and is open each weekday.

'Promiscuous' inmates to be segregated if they test AIDS positive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bureau of Prisons will immediately begin segregating federal inmates displaying "predatory or promiscuous behavior" who test positive for the AIDS virus, the Justice Department announced Friday.

The announcement was made simultaneously with the release of statistics showing that nearly 500 prison inmates, about 3 percent of those tested under a pilot program in the federal prison system, have tested positive for the AIDS virus.

As of this week, 16,372 federal prisoners had been tested for the AIDS virus under a program that began June 15. Of that number 494, or 3 percent, tested positive, the government reported. There currently are 31 cases of AIDS in the federal prison system, out of a population of more than 44,000.

In a news release, the Justice Department said that the government will launch a new five-part, mandatory AIDS-testing program effective immediately.

Among those who will be tested under the program are those "who have exhibited predatory or promiscuous behavior," said the statement.

Inmates in that category "who test positive for the AIDS virus will be separated from the general inmate population," the statement added.

Inmates who are segregated will be housed in single-person cells and won't eat, work or have recreation activities with the prison's general population, said Patricia Sledge, a Bureau of Prisons spokeswoman.

"At this point we estimate that this group of inmates would represent less than 1 percent of the federal prison population," Ms. Sledge said.

Predatory behavior involves someone who has been known to rape other inmates, she said.

The plan was immediately questioned by the National Prison Project of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Other federal inmates who will be tested for AIDS include those who are going to be involved in community activities.

Reform plans set for public okay

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Parliament on Friday unanimously approved Communist Poland's first referendum in 41 years. It will ask the public to accept up to three years of belt-tightening for the sake of reviving the economy.

The scheduled Nov. 29 referendum also will seek an endorsement of greater participatory democracy, although in the form of non-threatening "socialist opposition."

After three hours of discussion, a resolution on the referendum passed the Sejm, or parliament, by a 387-0 vote with three abstentions.

The government proposed the referendum two weeks ago to marshal public support for a wide-ranging program to breathe life into a moribund economy. Poland's foreign debt is $35.5 billion and growing because it cannot keep up with interest payments.

The Sejm also approved drafts of plans to streamline the government. It meets again Saturday to consider specific changes in the government structure.

"The future of Poland is in our hands. The referendum will be a breakthrough moment in the task of modernizing Polish life," senior Sejm Deputy Jerzy Ozdowski told the assembly as Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski looked on.

Ozdowski had presented the resolution, which he said puts "to society two simple and communicative questions awaiting an unambiguous reply."

The first will ask Poles if they favor full implementation of a proposed radical program of economic reform, explaining the consequences and asking them to accept a "difficult period" of up to three years.

The second question asks the public to approve a "Polish model" of democratization of political life.

Leaders of the ruling Communist Party are expected at a late November plenum to consider political reforms that said to allow for greater democracy.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

T.O. Upshaw, senior adult minister at First Baptist Church, did not know what he was getting into 10 years ago when he decided to help some Baptists in Dillon, Mont. build a church.

He was living in Stamford then and was the director of missions for the Double Mountain area. He became involved with a project to buy some land somewhere in the United States for a Baptist church to be built on.

It turned out they bought two pieces of land, one in Dillon and another in Duboise, Miss., money provided through a loan from the Home Missions Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Originally, Upshaw said they had thought it would take three years to raise the needed $40,000 to build the church. However, within six months the total sum had been acquired through donations, some as much as $1,800.

When Upshaw contacted Dillon to given them the go-ahead to hire a contractor, he received "quite a surprise." The man he talked to said they had the plans but no contractor and, in short, Upshaw was invited to "come and build the church himself." The man then hung up, leaving Upshaw to figure out what to do next.

"I prayed to the Lord about it. Finally, I thought of Carl Mathis (now deceased) who then lived in Roby. He was willing to help out and within a short time Church Builders was organized.

Upshaw said he knew that such organizations existed but he had no idea how they worked. "Everything we did was by trial and error at first. It was a new experience for us."

Upshaw and Mathis started contacting people and in June of 1978, 57 people in all traveled to Dillion to build the church.

Upshaw said it was planned as a one time venture, but he admits that "something happened to us all while we were there and we started asking ourselves where we would build a church next year."

News of their efforts began to spread by word of mouth and today, some 10 years later, Church Builders is still going strong. In fact, they have more requests than they can handle. Since 1978 they have built 23 churches in all, averaging two a year. As many as 235 people have belonged to one project. This past summer, 126 people were involved with Church Builders.

In 1981, people from Snyder and Scurry County became involved with Church Builders and according to Upshaw, "Church Builders would have folded long ago if not for their participation and dedication."

The first church that Scurry County residents helped build was in Polson, Mont. Upshaw said they pick pioneer areas where no church exists. They also build mission churches in Texas.

As of this month, Upshaw said they have requests from Minnesota, Kansas and two from Texas. "We get together and discuss them and try to decide which one the Lord wants us to build," Upshaw said.

When deciding on a project, Upshaw said they figure how much money is involved and then they challenge the people to raise part of that amount. The rest is raised through donations from other Baptist churches and individuals both from the state of Texas and outside of the state.

Since Church Builders began in 1978, almost $250,000 has been raised for various churches.

He said they have raised from $25,000 to $80,000 for individual church projects. On an average, they estimate a church will cost $60,000 to build.

People in Church Builders pay their own way to the site of the church to be built. During the summer, whole families participate. Everyone from age 12 up is assessed $25 which is used to buy supplies. Resources are pooled together and the members eat two meals a day together.

Upshaw said they usually end up having money left over when they are through.

Upshaw's wife, Georgie, heads up the kitchen usually. She is now assisted by Clarence Cummings, whom Upshaw describes as someone who "knows how much to cook."

While the men build the church, the women usually conduct a Vacation Bible School or assist the women of the church with other projects.

In the winter time the men travel alone and room and board is provided by the people whose church they are building.

Members usually arrange to take their vacation when a church needs to be built.

It takes from five to 10 days to build a church, according to Upshaw. When they arrive, the foundation has already been laid and they are ready to start working.

He said they have found it helpful to visit the site before beginning construction because "the pastors are usually young and they have never built a church before. They don't know what to expect."

However, the church is responsible for drawing up the plans and essentially Upshaw said they endeavor to give them what they want.

Wilson Howell is the head electrician for Church Builders and Norman Mathis, son of Carl Mathis, is the head man. "He has taken over for his father and I think he will do us a fine job," Upshaw said.

However, people in Church Builders don't have to know any special skills. All they have to do is be willing to work hard and know how to hold a hammer and drive a nail, Upshaw said.

Upshaw said Church Builders provides "some real wonderful experiences. When we all get together it's like we're long, lost friends."

He pointed to one man who commented it was the only time he had spent money on a vacation that he did not regret.

The men in Church Builders have also become involved with other projects. They have been devoting some Saturdays in helping to rebuild Baptist churches in Sweetwater that were destroyed by the tornado. Upshaw said they had also planned to go to Saragosa to help with the rebuilding of that town following the tornado, but the plans did not work out. However, he said when they next build in Saragosa they plan to be there.

Since First Baptist has recently bought the old Furrs building, he said they will likely rennovate it as soon as plans are finalized.

"I never thought it would last," Upshaw said, "But after 10 years it is still growing. I have definitely seen the Lord's hand in it, especially the way the finances have been raised and people keep volunteering their services."

Besides Texas, Church Builders has built churches in Wyoming, Minnesota, California, Kansas, Colorado and Montana.

In 1986, they completed two church projects back-to-back, but Upshaw said they won't do that again because there is "too much work involved."

They have built churches in Bovina and Abernathy, to name a few sites in Texas.

Upshaw moved to Snyder in January of this year. "I wanted to retire in Snyder because I wanted to be a part of people who love the Lord and believe in missions," he said.

Before retiring, Upshaw was the Director of Missions for the Double Mountain Area for 17 years. Prior to that, he had been a pastor in Pampa and Lefors for 18 years and in Hobbs for four years.

He provided the following list of people involved with Church Builders projects: Wayne Monroney, Roy and Rita Carter, Clarence and Jimmie Cummings, Jimmie and Patsy Cornett, Fred and Ann Cross, Albert and Billie Canon, Weldon and LaVonda Foreman, Homer and Jean Godair, Ted and Renee Floyd, Rev. and Mrs. Miller Robinson,

Halloween party is set

A "safe Halloween" party is planned for Friday evening from 6:30 to 9 p.m. by the American Legion Ladies Auxiliary at the American Legion, 1800 Ave. R.

All local children are invited and President Dessie Harvel urges parents to drop their children off for refreshments, fun and games to celebrate the holiday in safety.

One of the hazards of Halloween includes crossing dark streets which results in many injured or killed children during the holiday.

Other types of catastrophies have happened such as candles igniting flammable costumes, tripping and falling due to cumbersome, long costumes as well as the problems of poisoned or damaged treats.

Parents are reminded to go with their children, taking them out before dark. All treats should be checked carefully before giving them to the child. Halloween costumes should be of flame-resistant material, short enough to allow safe movement and eyes in the masks large enough to allow safe vision.

Reflective costumes or tape should be used for after-dark excursions and parents should accompany their children at all times.

Food bar gives fiber

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Fiber fans may want to take time to try a "Meal on the Go," a nutritious food bar which provides a light meal containing close to 50 percent of the U.S. recommended daily allowance for dietary fiber.

This helps lower sugar and cholesterol blood levels and is believed to reduce cancer of the colon, says Dave Dreisker, general manager of the company that developed the food bar.

CRAFTS FOR SALE — "Santa's Holiday Bazaar" will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in the Scurry County Coliseum. Sponsored by all the Extension Homemakers Clubs of the area, handcrafted items of all kinds will be for sale as well as special Christmas items. A concession stand and candy shop with homemade goodies will also be offered. The public is invited with no admission charge. (SDN Staff Photo)

U.S. leads world in wood production

JARRATT, Va. (AP) — Although America's timberlands make up only 6 percent of the world's forests, the United States is the world's leading producer of raw wood material.

The U.S. accounts for 20 percent of the total timber harvest, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp., a forest products company.

It says the U.S. is the leading producer of pulp and paper, and the second leading producer of solid wood products such as lumber, plywood and particleboard. The country is also the world's top consumer of paper and wood products.

An offer like this only comes once a year.

For just $18.50 with any purchase, we have a special Christmas offer for you. You'll receive six eyeshadows, two foundations, two lipsticks, two blushers, makeup applicators, concealing cream, and a small flacon of our exclusive new French parfum, Décolleté—all in a bright red compact.

HOLIDAY BAZAAR

Scurry County Extension Homemakers will host "Santa's Holiday Bazaar" from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in the Scurry County Coliseum. Five extension clubs and one 4-H club will participate with all types of handcrafted gift items, a shop with homemade candy and a concession stand.

SEWING SEMINAR

Clotilde, author, nationally known sewing consultant and TV host will present a six-hour "Sew Smart" seminar sponsored by District II Association of Extension Home Economists from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 4 at the Texas A&M Extension Center Auditorium near New Deal. Registration is $10.

"People are too label conscious," explains Clotilde. "They look at a Calvin Klein and think it's an act of God. I'm trying to make women realize that they can produce the same quality, the same expensive look at home."

In the morning session, Clotilde shows how to produce this expensive look in her three hour seminar, "Sewing for the $500 Look." She will teach her students manufacturer's tricks of the trade, designer techniques not shown on pattern instruction sheets, as well as many practical sewing tips that she has accumulated in over 40 years of sewing experience.

"Everyone can learn to sew like I do," said Clotilde. "The secret is simply paying attention to the right details."

Clotilde will explain these while giving helpful advice on fabric care, layout, marking and cutting procedures, designer seam and facing finishes, zipper applications, collar constructions, plus ease. She will also demonstrate many time and money saving notions that really do work.

In the afternoon session, Clotilde will give her three hour "Smart Tailoring" seminar.

"A perfect collar, lapel and collar notch is the most critical part of a jacket," said Clotilde. "This is the most important part of a jacket whether it's a tailored, lined jacket or an unlined jacket made of velveteen or corduroy. Why? Because this is the area people look at as they are talking with you.

Clotilde will share home decorating ideas and new aids for creating interesting new window treatments.

Registration will be held from 8:30 to 9 a.m. at the Extension Center. The $10 fee will include six hours of instruction.

Emotional reations complicate living

NEW YORK (AP) — Some people, psychologists observe, get overly emotional even in reacting to mundane events. Others, however, remain unperturbed even under the most trying of circumstances.

These levels of feeling characterize a person's emotional life. People who live with deep emotional intensity seem to have a more complex sense of themselves and lead lives that are more complicated than do those whose emotions are less strong. People who experience the deepest lows also have the loftiest highs.

At the other end of the spectrum are people who seem to have no emotions at all. Some of these may have "alexthymia," a term applied to those who say they have no feelings at all — or who cannot find the words to describe their feelings.

Dance course to be offered

Due to popular demand, the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars will again offer western dance lessons.

Dances taught will include the cowboy shuffle, also called western two-step, schottische, waltz, polka, cotton-eyed Joe, put-your-little-foot, rag and jitterbug.

Ten sessions will meet Tuesday evenings in the VFW Hall at 7:30 beginning Oct. 27 and will move to Thursdays beginning Dec. 3. Fees are $18 for the whole course or $2.50 per person per lesson.

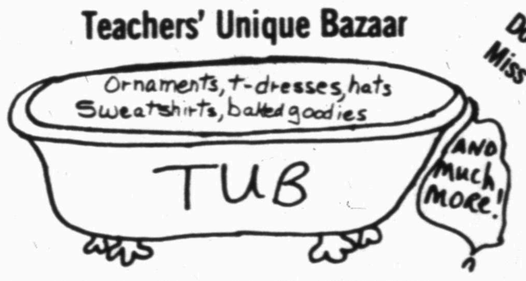

For more information, call Jan Johnson at 573-9314 or Kay Willis at 573-3432. All proceeds will go toward the projects of the Auxiliary.

Gift shop full of new Christmas gift items

The gift shop at Cogdell Memorial Hospital is full of handmade crafts, stuffed animals, baby gifts, Christmas specialty items, flower arrangements and personal grooming needs.

Operated by the Ladies Auxiliary, the shop is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and makes a perfect place to stop off for a gift or special memento to take to a friend.

Teddie Hatcher, previously coowner of White's Auto with her husband Loyd, has done Christmas buying for years and continues using her expertise in finding unique items for the gift shop.

Some special things offered this year include Christmas sachets embroidered in Spanish; Santa on a skateboard that moves around objects; a walking Rudolph; tree decorations; Christmas plaques for babies; Christmas cards.

Regular items stocked are handcrafted houseshoes, afghans, pillow cases and baby items. An autograph stork, football or baseball give a place for visitors' names.

The auxiliary was formed in 1958 with four charter members still active. They are Ruby Anderson, Inez Brown, Ena Carroll and Lucille Joyce.

In 1968 the auxiliary purchased 64 TV sets for patients' rooms at a cost of $23,687.

There are presently four working doctors who received aid through the auxiliary scholarship program.

The group has raised some $60,000 in the recent drive to pay for the xero-mammography unit which is currently serving an average of five per day.

In its 29 years, volunteers have served a total of 271,000 hours. There are 65 members at the present time with more volunteers needed. A minimum of three hours a week is asked with many opportunities for service available.

Volunteers work as a floor walker, at the information desk, the snack bar and gift shop, blood drive and fair booths. Craft items may be contributed to the gift shop or money given for scholarship and memorial funds.

Interested individuals may call the hospital at 573-6374 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. to sign up for the auxiliary.

A 1936 heat wave climaxed five years of Dust Bowl, making it one of history's most destructive. That half-decade of excruciating temperatures and drought killed nearly 15,000 people. It hit worst in Minnesota, where, on some days, Minneapolis' General Hospital took in three heat cases a minute.

BASEBALL BY THE RULES. By Glen Waggoner.

With wit and a keen appreciation of the game, the authors entertain as they instruct, telling stories about everything from Charlie Finley's orange ball, Rickey Henderson's strike zone, and the rudest protest ever filed by a major league manager.

And there's much more — about rain delays, foul balls and at least two umpires who reversed their decisions. There's history too, including a comprehensive, never-before-published listing of all important major league rule changes since 1845. If you want to understand baseball, you need this book. If you love baseball, you'll love this book.

Wrong strain is a pain

North was silly to open one no-trump. Since all his points except for one jack were bunched in the minor suits, he should have opened one of a minor. A one-diamond bid and a rebid in clubs would get the ball rolling.

Over North's one no-trump, East bid three hearts only because of the favorable vulnerability. South then bid what he thought he could make — four spades. He ruffed the opening lead, played a diamond to the ace and a spade to his nine. West casually played low. Declarer next played a club to dummy's nine, and another spade. When the jack appeared, he put in the queen. West now won and continued hearts. Declarer discarded on a heart, then ruffed, hoping that West had started with only three hearts. West ruffed in on the third club to beat the contract one trick. Had West taken the first spade with the king, declarer would have succeeded by simply discarding on the next two hearts. The fourth heart could then be ruffed in dummy, and declarer could return to his hand with a diamond to pull trumps.

After West ducks the spade, declarer can still succeed if he refuses to take a second spade finesse. He should play the spade ace and then run his minor-suit winners. Eventually West will win a small spade and the king, but that will be all. Although this play loses two overtricks when East started with K-J-2 of spades, declarer should realize that West may be setting a trap.

Need I point out that it's easier to make game (with an overtrick) in either minor?

What makes a real gumbo — okra or file powder? You can start an argument anywhere in Louisiana with that question. Regardless of which is used, real gumbo is always made with a roux — a mixture of flour and oil cooked until it's toasted a dark red-brown color. To serve gumbo like a Louisiana native, put a big scoop of hot cooked rice in a shallow bowl or plate with a rim and spoon the gumbo over it.

SEAFOOD GUMBO

1 pound frozen shelled shrimp
6-ounce package frozen crabmeat
½ cup all-purpose flour
½ cup cooking oil
2 cups chopped onion
1 cup chopped green pepper
5 or 6 cloves garlic, minced
6 cups hot water
10-ounce package frozen cut okra, thawed
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon ground red pepper
1 bay leaf

Thaw seafood. In a heavy 4-quart Dutch oven combine flour and oil. Cook over medium heat, stirring often, 35 minutes or until a dark reddish-brown roux is formed. Add onion, green pepper and garlic; cook and stir over medium heat for 10 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Stir in hot water. Stir in okra, salt, black pepper, red pepper and bay leaf. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover; simmer 1 hour. Add seafood; simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes or until shrimp turn pink. Remove bay leaf. Serve with hot cooked rice. Makes 6 servings.

Your Birthday

Oct. 25, 1987

A career opportunity will develop for you in the year ahead, but it will only be a door opener. What you make of it will depend on how competently you respond and how well you've prepared yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Financial conditions are a mixed bag for you today. It's likely more will go out than comes in because of your extravagance or poor management. Major changes are ahead for Scorpios in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your sense of timing may not be up to par today. There's a chance you might be pushing when you should be still; or you might be still when you should be pushing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against tendencies today to prejudge events or conditions negatively. If your attitude is dismal, you'll fulfill your prophecy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your checkbook will have to be treated with respect, or it won't tally in the the black at the end of the day. Try to live within your means.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take care today — you're a trifle too vunerable when your ego is concerned. Try not to take yourself or what others say too seriously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're not the type of person who lets others do your thinking for you, but today could be an exception. Unfortunately, their suggestions may not be sound.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A considerate friend who is usually quite helpful may resent being imposed upon today if you try to burden her with your problems. Back off.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Stick with decisions today that you have previously taken time to think through. Last minute revisions might not work out as well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to champion an unpopular cause today regardless of how intense you feel about the issue. What's important to you may be a bore to your listener.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to take involvements with others that should be fun too seriously today. If you get uptight, it will make everyone else feel uncomfortable as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Keep outsiders out of your domestic squabbles today. You could put a friend in a very awkward position if she feels that she has to choose a side.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't attempt tasks today where you lack expertise, nor do something on your own that requires an extra pair of hands. Use your common sense.

Oct. 26, 1987

Good times are in the offing for you in the year ahead. In several areas where you previously met defeat, you will now achieve victory.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Friends are prepared to do nice things for you today, provided they don't feel it's something you expect from them. Be grateful, not grabby. Major changes are ahead for Scorpios in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In your commerical dealings today, something may be offered to you that could have strings attached. Don't be afraid to look a gift horse in the mouth.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Detach yourself from associates today who are not in complete harmony with your aims and purposes. You're capable of getting what you want on your own.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This can be a very productive day for you, provided you don't do important assignments hastily. Be patient and thorough with each task you undertake.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Benefits from a shared venture are possible today. Just make sure that everyone involved protects the other guy's interests and not just his or her own.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your second thoughts might not be your best ones today, so don't discount your early conclusions. It would be a shame to water down good ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before farming out work today to costly repair people, re-examine the problem to see if it's something you can do yourself and save the expense.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Financial conditions are rather unusual today. Your earning potential is quite good, but, on the other hand, your extravagant impulses are equally strong.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Early in the day there's a possibility you might have a disagreement with someone you like. Patch it up promptly so it doesn't have a chance to fester.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Before filing a complaint today about something that is disturbing you, give the matter a little more time to see if it works itself out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A friend who is usually supportive might not be in total accord with your views today. Don't interpret that as an indication this person no longer likes you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to let side issues distract you from your primary objective today. Once you zero in on your target, be sure to put your blinders on.

Concho water snakes counted

ALONG THE COLORADO RIVER, Texas (AP) — Down on his knees in the rapids, John Page sticks his hand under a rock and comes up with three angry and squirming Concho water snakes.

Two of them are feverishly biting his hand. All three are emptying their bowels upon his wet and muddy blue jeans.

"A couple of them got me there," he tells his comrades as he inspects the tiny wounds. Then, with the snakes in a sack and a chaw of chewing tobacco in his jaw, he resumes poking around the riverbed and the banks, turning over rocks with a garden hoe and looking for the flick of a tail or a small head peering out.

Page and his colleagues — biologist Okla Thornton and four other snake hunters — were in high spirits. Who could blame them? The sun was warm. They were surrounded by nature. And they were on their final snake hunt of the year.

A year ago the Concho water snake, a non-poisonous creature considered a threatened species, was the topic of a wild West Texas debate.

Environmentalists feared construction of Stacy Dam would wipe it out. Many people who wanted Stacy Dam thought that was a fine idea. Jokes about "Concho snake burgers" abounded.

But now, with the dam under construction, the snake has become a subject of research. The Colorado River Municipal Water District, which is building the lake, has been ordered by the federal government to find the best way to protect the species.

So they've hired Thornton to study the snake for 10 years: to learn how it lives, what it likes, how it survives.

True, this is an academic exercise. But Thornton's project must be one of the weirdest happenings ever staged on the banks of the Concho and Colorado rivers.

For months, Thornton and his crew have been counting snakes. They capture the creatures and inject them with tiny electronic circuits, each with its own number that can be read by an electronic wand Thornton hauls around in the back of a pickup truck.

Then the snakes are returned to the river unharmed. If caught again, Thornton can read their numbers. Eventually he'll have an idea of how many Concho water snakes there are.

"Each snake has its own license plate," Thornton says matter-of-factly. But from his faint smile and the look in his eyes, one can guess that two ironies are not lost on him:

Concho water snakes, which became a passionate cause for people who love nature, are swimming around with little electronic gadgets in their bellies.

The Stacy Dam project, which some people thought would destroy the snake, may turn out to be the best thing that ever happened to it and other species of water snake.

As a youngster, Okla Thornton was "deathly afraid of snakes." But today he calls this project his "dream come true."

He overcame his fear when he drifted toward herpetology while a student at Texas A&M University. But when he graduated he found that wildlife biologists were not in heavy demand in West Texas.

So he moved to Clyde and took a job at Texas Instruments in Abilene. He kept his hand in biology by providing some consulting services.

He also kept an eye on the Stacy Dam project. And when he heard the water district needed a biologist, he offered his support and got a 10-year job.

"If I had sat down while I was in school and written out a job description, it would have been this," he said during a break while hunting in southern Coleman County.

Special grand jury set to probe S&Ls

DALLAS (AP) — Cases developed by a federal task force investigation into the dealings of savings and loan businesses in North Texas will be heard by a special federal grand jury, a federal prosecutor says.

U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins said Thursday the special grand jury will be formed in November.

"At the beginning of November here in Dallas, we are impaneling a special grand jury that will be dealing exclusively with these bank fraud cases and savings and loan fraud cases, and they will be hearing from these investigators on a regular basis," Collins said.

Collins said that he expects the grand jury to meet more often than normal grand juries, though its term will be standard: 18 months, with an optional six-month extension.

The panel is being formed because of the large volume of evidence and number of witnesses expected, Collins said.

"I expect this will be an investigative-type grand jury," he said.

The S&L task force was formed Aug. 3 to investigate criminal referrals from lending institutions and federal regulators and has subpoenaed the financial records of at least 402 developers, lenders and other business people.

The 55-member special task force includes investigators and prosecutors from the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Justice Department, Collins said.

"They are here to deal with literally billions and billions of losses that have occurred," he said.

"Today, there are more federally insured institutions failing than at any time during the Depression," Collins said. "There are 17 S&Ls that are identified as being at risk of failure or to have already failed as a result of suspected criminal fraud."

The Dallas investigation has been by far the largest of its kind, though similar investigations are under way in other areas of the nation, Collins said. Not all of the 22 S&Ls and nine banks being investigated by the task force are based in Dallas, but all of them are based within the Northern Texas District, which includes Dallas, he said.

"Those who steal with the stroke of a pen can be just as dangerous and more costly than those who steal with a gun," Collins said. "It's hard for the little guy to go out and cheat in borrowing money, but no one questions the big guy. No one tells him to stop, hold on, wait a minute.

"To those who have access to large sums of money, we want the message to be clear: Those persons have to play by the same rules as the rest of us," he added.

Texas and across the country, county government is the most important unit of grass-roots government available to the people. County government in the United States is local government. This is extremely important. The office of county treasurer was set up by the constitution. It is a position elected by the people. A few counties have chosen to have an appointed official do the treasurer's duties. In voting for this proposition you are relinquishing your right to choose your county officials. The duties of county treasurer must be done by someone, and this is your chance to retain your right to choose.

If Gregg, Fayette and Nueces counties have a problem with an elected official not performing the duties that they have been elected to do, then it should be resolved by the voters of those counties in the next election, and not by removing the position. An amendment to abolish an elected position does not solve the problem.

Recently at our county treasurer's annual conference held in Odessa, we were honored to have seven out of 11 presidents of the Texas Association of Counties to speak. Not one was in favor of the abolishment of any county treasurer. Attorney General Jim Mattox stated at the conference he could not support the abolishment of any elected position and that he and his committee were working on an attorney general opinion.

In closing I professionally and personally ask the voters of Scurry County and all counties to strongly consider their decision on all the proposed amendments.

President praises 3 involved in rescue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan Friday praised three Labor Department employees involved in getting 18-month-old Jessica McClure out of a Midland, Texas, well shaft, saying, "We're all very proud of you."

"Recently the country was riveted, as you know, all of us, to the story of tiny Jessica McClure, and I think that we all said prayers of thanks when that story had a happy ending," Reagan told a labor conference.

Sitting in the front row, as Reagan spoke, were the three men who were among those who rescued Jessica — Wayne Kanack, Dave Lilly and Sid Kirk.

All three men are employees of the Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration.

"I think we're all thankful in our hearts for the generous people who worked around the clock, through fatique, past exhaustion, to save little Jessica," the president said. "And of course, that's why I'm happy, and I think we are, that three employees of the Department of Labor ... are here with us today, having done their job so well."

"Wayne Kanack is the manager of the southwestern division (of the Mine Safety Health Administration). When he heard of Jessica's plight, he called on the two best people he could think of — Dave Lilly and Sid Kirk — both experienced hard-rock miners," Reagan said, adding:

"Working closely together, they directed the rescue operation, drilling a hole parallel to the well and then digging a shaft across to reach Jessica. In fact, Dave Lilly chipped away by hand the last few inches of rock to make the first physical contact with little Jessica."

Reagan noted that Vice President George Bush had visited Midland and presented the men with certificates of recognition following the rescue last Friday night.

The president had a private, brief visit with the three men just before he entered the Great Hall of the Labor Department for the jobs seminar.

Lilly, who lives in Carlsbad, N.M., is a special investigator with the mine safety agency's Carlsbad office. He began his career in the mining industry as a coal miner in 1955, and has worked as an inspector and later as supervisor in the Carlsbad office since 1975.

Drug's effects cause concern

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 46 and started taking Plaquenil about three years ago. Within three months of starting this medication, my eyebrows and eyelashes became white. My menstrual cycle went wacky and I've lost all interest in sex. Any connection?

DEAR READER — Plaquenil (hydroychloroquine) is used to treat malaria, as well as two diseases of connective tissue: lupus erythematosis and rheumatoid arthritis. Because malaria is a rarity in the United States, most patients are prescribed Plaquenil for lupus or rheumatoid arthritis.

Although the drug is effective in many people, it does have serious side effects, the most devastating of which affect vision. Plaquenil-treated patients must be closely monitored for eye damage. Other complications of therapy include emotional changes, irritability, headache, weakness, anemia, abdominal cramps, vomiting, diarrhea, lassitude and bleaching of the hair. The manufacturer of Plaquenil does not list menstrual irregularities or sexual dysfunction as adverse reactions to the drug.

Your hair changes are probably directly attributable to Plaquenil. Your menstrual problems and loss of sexual interests are probably not. At age 46, you are more likely to be experiencing the consequences of menopause. In some women, alteration in sexual interest seems to result from hormonal imbalances that are common during the change of life.

Express your concerns to your doctor. In particular I think you should review the situation with a gynecologist. The doctors, working together, will be able to define the causes of your symptoms. If they agree that Plaquenil is not the cause of your sexual problems, perhaps hormone replacement would help you.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on MENOPAUSE. Others who want information on the subject should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Menopause.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have controlled the pain from my mild arthritis and tendinitis with Chinese herbs, taken as pills under the name of Chuifong Toukuwan. My doctor says they will kill me. What do you think?

DEAR READER — I am skeptical of cures from herbal remedies. Most don't work and some can be dangerous. Nevertheless, I try to keep an open mind about this issue. If an herbal drug produces improvement in symptoms, if it doesn't get in the way of a patient receiving more appropriate and traditional (Western) treatment and if it doesn't cause harm, I see no reason why it shouldn't be used.

Chuifong Toukuwan contains, among other things, root of peony, angelica, gentian, ginseng, honey and myrrh. I am not aware that these substances are hazardous in small quantities. However, your doctor may have specific objections to using the preparation. Ask him or her exactly why you should avoid it.

Support your local rescue workers

On a hot August afternoon many years ago, several families were luxuriating in the cool respite of a bathing beach. Boisterous, healthy children played in the water of the sandy beach. No rain clouds threatened this picture-perfect weekend holiday.

Suddenly, the bucolic hubbub was punctuated by a chilling cry of alarm. A 12-year-old boy, who was playing in the shallow water, had bumped up against a small child floating face down. Immediately, an adult lifted the little girl from the water, carried her to the beach and placed her on the sand. She looked to be about 6; no one knew how long she had been immersed. She was not breathing. Her lips and fingers were blue; she had no heartbeat.

A member of the local ambulance squad began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. After 15 minutes, the child remained pulseless and unconscious. A bathing-suited physician examined the little girl. As he slowly stood up, he frowned, looked down, and shook his head. The child was dead. At that point, she seemed destined to become another tragic and accidental drowning, one of many that occur in similar circumstances at swimming areas throughout the country every summer.

However, the ambulance crew did not give up as readily as the doctor did. In rotation, they continued what seemed to be a futile endeavor to regain a lost life. They blew breath into the limp body and gently applied synchronized cardiac compression to the frail ribcage.

Time slipped by. The crowd thinned. Dazed parents walked away, thankful that the drowned child was not their own.

Eventually, an ambulance arrived and the emergency medical team gingerly lifted the girl's body into the vehicle, all the while applying cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Artificial respiration continued during the ride to the hospital, and afterward, in the emergency room. The situation seemed hopeless.

After more than an hour of uninterrupted resuscitative efforts, a remarkable event occurred: The drowned girl suddenly took a sharp breath, coughed and began to cry. She revived. After a few days of hospital observation, she returned home. During the following years, she grew normally and became a bright, attractive and healthy adult, a credit to her community, a source of pleasure to those who knew her, a living testimonial to the unflagging efforts of dedicated volunteers who, on a midsummer afternoon, refused to abandon hope.

I will never forget that experience. I was the 12-year-old boy who bumped against the girl.

In the ensuing years, I have come to appreciate that emergency medical technicians, the fully trained professionals who staff the ambulances in most of our communities, are long overdue for recognition and thanks from the the citizens they serve. In many towns, EMTs are volunteers. They hold full-time jobs but, when on call, will reorient their priorities to the more important goal of saving life. For this dedication, they are unpaid. Such rural ambulance services are usually supported by private contributions.

In most cities, EMTs are salaried, either as part of a police/fire/hospital network or as employees of commercial ambulance companies.

In either case, these men and women play an invaluable role in delivering health care. Their acts are carried out almost always without regard for the social position or net worth of their patients: EMTs respond to need, not to ability to pay. This means that in most areas of the country, emergency medical care is available to anyone in trouble.

Think of that. When you need help, EMTs are as far away as your nearest telephone, no questions asked.

Furthermore, ambulance personnel often must function in situations that are both unattractive and dangerous. The EMT doesn't ask if the unconscious patient has a communicable disease. At the scene of an accident, the EMT has to act fast to save life; this can mean almost total disregard of blood, vomit and other body fluids.

Our communities are better and safer because of EMTs. These unselfish people have ably proven their worth. In thousands of situations, they have made the difference between life and death. All of us — doctors and laypeople alike — owe them our gratitude, support and respect.

Planning for your community...

PROGRESS

Tuesday, Nov. 3
Texas State Constitutional Amendment Election

Proposition 8 on the ballot may have a direct impact on Scurry County and efforts to locate a Texas Department of Corrections facility here. The proposition calls for the issuance of up to $500 million in general obligation bonds to finance projects for three state agencies--including the TDC.

This is the most economical method of financing for the state. Prisons will be built in Texas because of federal court orders. Scurry County citizens should again show their support for prisons by voting Yes on Proposition 8.

Members of the Economic Development Committee of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce believes that a big turnout of votes in favor of Proposition 8 will once again be a signal to TDC officials of local citizens' interest in the prison system.

Student kept out of school

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A capital murder indictment will keep a former candidate for senior class president out of Lubbock's regular high schools until his case is tried, school officials say.

Rodney Childress, 17, was named in a capital murder indictment returned last month, but the case hasn't been scheduled for trial yet. He and two others are accused in the Sept. 10 execution-style slayings of three people at a city residence.

"We just don't think it is a healthy situation for him to be on a regular campus where just anyone could walk up and do him harm," Gib Weaver, assistant superintendent for secondary schools, said Thursday.

Instead, said Weaver, Childress will be allowed to attend Project Intercept, the Lubbock Independent School District's alternative school.

Childress was released last week on $50,000 bond after spending five weeks in the Lubbock County Jail. Bail was raised by family, friends and supporters.

Sonic Drive In

The Sonic Drive-In offers delicious, fresh, and hot food, cooked to order. The food is not made ahead of time where it sits and waits until someone orders it, in fact, their slogan is "we don't start cooking 'till we hear from you."

The Sonic, located at 4100 College Ave, is getting ready to celebrate it's 17th birthday in Snyder. Mac and Virginia Humphrey are the owners and Barry Lee is the local manager. These folks have worked hard to build a reputation for the Snyder Sonic as being a favorite hangout for fun and good food.

One of the best features of the Sonic Drive-In besides the food is that you don't have to get out of your car, You can sit back and enjoy your own kind of music while you enjoy your favorite foods. There's no need to dress up; no need to make reservations. You can even call ahead if you want your order to be ready when you get there.

The wide variety of food the Sonic offers includes sandwiches, burgers, fries, basket dinners, conies, ice cream and soft drinks.

The Sonic offers a different special each day of the week at reduced prices so you can eat at bargain prices every day.

President Reagan...

Tax increase talks planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took a 500-point drop in the stock market, but a reluctant President Reagan finally agreed to talk about a tax increase in his budget negotiations with Congress.

"I'm putting everything on the table," he said during a news conference Thursday night, "with the exception of Social Security, with no other preconditions."

The reporters gathered for Reagan's first White House news conference in seven months jumped at this new tack by the man who in 1985 challenged Congress to "make my day" by passing a tax increase which he could veto.

Questioner after questioner pressed the president on just how far he was ready to go on the matter of taxes.

No tough talk this time. Just the Reagan smile and a demurrer:

AP analysis

"You're all trying to get me into saying what am I going to do when I sit down at the table with the other fellows."

But then Reagan may have tipped his hand in his response to a question on another subject — arms control negotiations.

He was asked why he had instructed U.S. negotiators not to discuss his missile defense plan with their Soviet counterparts.

"Because if you put it on the table as a bargaining chip, then it becomes a bargaining chip," he replied.

Might what is true for "Star Wars" also be true of taxes?

Texas Tacos

Texas Tacos invites you to wake up your taste buds with a tantalizing breakfast burrito. Their breakfast burritos are a real treat for you and your family. Something really unique is their apple burrito. You've got to try it!

If you're not an early riser then they offer delicious menu selections, hot or mild burritos, fries, tacos, hamburgers and taco burgers just to name a few. A favorite menu item is steak fajitas. With fajitas you enjoy tender marinated steak and sauteed onions wrapped in a delicious flour tortilla. Add fresh guacamole and spicy Pico de-gallo sauce if you dare! Sounds delicious and it is.

One of the newest items at Texas Tacos is the steak finger dinner which includes: 5 steak fingers, French fries, Texas toast, salad with dressing and gravy.

Teamsters union seeks to return to fold

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Teamsters union, facing an unprecedented takeover attempt by government prosecutors, wants to rejoin the AFL-CIO 30 years after being expelled for refusing to answer charges of corruption.

Teamsters President Jackie Presser sent a formal request Thursday to AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland asking to bring the nation's largest union, with 1.6 million members, back into the House of Labor.

Kirkland said the request will be considered formally by the federation's 35-member executive council Saturday. But several council members Thursday night described that action as a mere formality and said there is no opposition to the Teamsters rejoining.

John Sweeney, a member of the AFL-CIO council and president of its fastest growing affiliate, the 762,000-member Service Employees International Union, described the merger as "an historic event in the American labor movement."

Sweeney said he had heard of no opposition to re-admitting the Teamsters.

"I assume the council will approve it and everything will fall into place," he said. "There's some waiting period, but it's just a matter of weeks."

Duke Zeller, a Teamsters spokesman, said its 21-member executive board voted unanimously Tuesday in Orlando to seek re-affiliation with the AFL-CIO, which is holding its convention here.

Zeller did not offer specific reasons for the Teamsters' move. But he called the AFL-CIO's statement in August condemning the Justice Department's contemplation of a takeover suit against the Teamsters a factor.

Sources in the Justice Department, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said earlier this year that it was preparing a racketeering suit against the Teamsters alleging a pattern of corrupt practices dating back to the early 1950s and seeking to have the union placed under control of a government-appointed trustee.

Despite past rivalries and often bitter fights with the Teamsters, the AFL-CIO in August pledged to help in any way possible to thwart any such takeover.

In 1985 the White House Commission on Organized Crime identified the Teamsters as one of four unions either controlled or heavily influenced by organized crime figures. The three others identified were all AFL-CIO affiliates.

Last year, a federal grand jury in Presser's hometown, Cleveland, indicted him on charges of embezzlement in connection with an alleged payroll-padding scheme at a Teamsters local there that he heads.

Presser has denied the charges, along with allegations that mob figures control the union. He is awaiting trial.

The Teamsters union was one of four unions expelled from the AFL-CIO in 1957 for refusing to appear before an AFL-CIO committee.

Oil well named for Jessica

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The world watched and waited last week while rescue workers in Midland, Texas, tried desperately to get 18-month-old Jessica McClure out of a dry well.

Now there's another well in her future after a Texas company said Thursday that it plans to drill the Jessica McClure No. 1 in Oklahoma's Seminole County.

United Petroleum Resources Inc. of Dallas said it also plans to give the girl a 1-percent interest in the well that bears her name.

Sheryl Pratt, president of the oil company, said the gesture "is my gift to them." She said the family will be able to use the money "any way they see fit."

Ms. Pratt said she could not say how much money will go to Jessica.

Sweet's Shop

Sweet's Shop, located at 2505 Ave. G, is one of Snyder's oldest continuously operating restaurants.

Owned and operated by the Hatfield family, Sweet's Shop was the first in Snyder with an electronic ordering system. The system now features a computerized order taker that prints in detail what you order and the price on your ticket.

Food is always cooked to order while you wait or you may call ahead and pick up your order when you get there.

Sweet's Shop is open Monday through Saturday from 10:30 a.m. until 10:00 p.m.

One of the most requested orders at the restaurant is the Chicken Strip Dinner which includes chicken strips, fries gravy and toast.

A Catfish Nugget Dinner is available, consisting of farm raised catfish nuggets, cole slaw, French fries and biscuit puffs for only $3.50.

A new item on the menu is Chimchangas consisting of shredded beef, green chilies and cheese in a fried flour tortilla.

Jerry, Mrs. Hatfield and all the staff at Sweet's Shop invite you to come to their establishment, where food is still delivered to your car.

Golden Corral

"Our steaks taste better because they are better" is the slogan of Golden Corral Family Steakhouse, 3206 College Ave.

Voted America's favorite steakhouse by Restaurants and Institutions Magazine in 1987, Golden Corral features USDA choice steaks, cut fresh daily by Eddie Titus. Also available are delicious seafood and chicken entrees as well as a fabulous 120 item super salad bar, featuring hot vegetables, meats, casseroles, and dessert items. Golden Corral also offers a super ice cream sundae bar, at which guests may help themselves to their own ice cream creations.

"Our mission is to make pleasurable dining affordable," said Jon Knoke, partner/manager. "We start with USDA choice steaks, huge Idaho potatoes, and the best produce and groceries we can buy. We are very proud of our quality. We pride ourselves on 10 minute service, and to top it off, we offer the largest salad bar in West Texas, and the best ice cream sundae bar that I've ever seen."

Golden Corral offers daily lunch specials, special children's and senior menus, and very reasonable prices on their regular menu. Banquet facilities are available at no charge for parties of up to 60 people.

Golden Corral opened its doors to Snyder on October 2, 1986 and has enjoyed a very successful first year.

"Our newest addition, is a television set in the dining room so our guests don't have to miss a Dallas game or the World Series. We are always looking for ways to better serve the people who have been so good to us over the last year," Knoke said.

Federal agents have smashed Soviet plot

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Federal agents say they've smashed a plot involving the Soviet Union's top space official to sell Moscow stolen U.S. supercomputer technology that would have enabled the Soviets to destroy incoming missiles.

A Frenchman, a California software designer and a third man were arrested Thursday after agents recovered plans for a supercomputer developed by Saxpy Computer Corp. of Sunnyvale and capable of 1 billion computations a second, officials said.

The plans were to have been sold for $4 million, officials said.

"The Soviets wanted to use it in a 'Star Wars' role," said an expert for the Defense Intelligence Agency in Washington who spoke on condition of anonymity. "It was very significant for them."

The plot involved meetings between Soviet space agency chief Roald Sagbeyez and a fourth man, Charles McVey, a former fugitive being held in a Canadian jail, said Quint Villanueva, Pacific regional commissioner of the U.S. Customs Service.

Sagbeyez is Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's chief adviser on the U.S. Star Wars program, Villanueva said.

"The technology would have given the Soviet Union the capability to develop a supercomputer, which, in the event of war, could anticipate American missile strikes, allowing the Soviets to neutralize them," Villanueva said.

McVey, 57, who has not been charged in the case, was arrested in Canada earlier this year on a 1983 indictment charging him with export violations. He is being held in Vancouver.

Authorities arrested Ivan-Pierre Batinic, a 29-year-old Frenchman and former Saxpy engineer; his 30-year-old brother, Stevan, and Kevin E. Anderson, a 36-year-old software designer. He did not work for Saxpy, officials said.

The three were arrested in Fremont, a city about 10 miles north of San Jose where Ivan-Pierre Batinic and Anderson live.

More arrests are expected, said Rollin B. Klink, chief Customs agent in San Francisco.

A phone call to the Soviet consulate in San Francisco for comment reached an answering machine, and the call was not returned.

U.S. Magistrate Patricia Trumbull on Thursday ordered Anderson held without bail on a charge of conspiracy to violate export laws. If convicted, he could be sentenced to up to 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

The Batinics were each held on one count of conspiracy and one count of interstate transport of stolen property. Bail was set at $100,000 each. Trumbull set a preliminary hearing for them Nov. 5.

Polynesian Garden

The Polynesian Garden is very well known for the fine Polynesian and Chinese food that they serve. But what a lot of people don't know is that they also serve American food and seafood.

Something new is the, all you can eat, noon buffet Monday thru Friday for just $3.99. We are also offering an all day special Monday thru Saturday.

The whole family will be able to select whatever menu item fits their taste. The Polynesian Garden delights in offering you a wide range of food. Such selections as Waikiki chicken, and king crab legs to filet of sole and boiled shrimp.

Well known Chinese dishes include sweet and sour pork or chicken, egg foo young, pepper steak, and delicious egg rolls. International dishes include T-bone steaks, sirloin steaks, hamburgers and fries.

Manager Savoir Buoy invites you to come and try the Polynesian Garden specialties. The Polynesian Garden, located in the Varsity Square Shopping Center, will prove to be something new and different for your dining pleasure.

Screenings leave lawmakers unhappy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airlines are under fire in Congress following release of airport security test results showing that one out of every five mock weapons concealed by government inspectors slipped through detection systems.

Rep. Howard C. Nielson, R-Utah, says the government should consider publicizing individual airlines' track records if they don't improve their airport security efforts.

Nielson made the suggestion Thursday after a federal official told Congress that 20 percent of the mock weapons slipped through airport security systems during 10 months of tests at airports across the country.

Referring to legislation passed by the House recently that would force airlines to publicize the quality of their service, such as how frequently they lose passengers' luggage, Nielson said, "I'd be more concerned about safety than I would about my baggage."

Tests were conducted from September 1986 through last June. Federal Aviation Administration inspectors tried sneaking concealed mock weapons through passenger screening systems at 136 U.S. airports, the House government activities and transportation subcommittee was told.

Of 6,024 attempts, 1,251, or 20 percent, were not detected. Airlines are responsible for setting up the airport detection checkpoints, which are staffed either by airline employees or contractors hired to do the job.

In a smaller sample of tests conducted during the last four months of 1986, airport screening devices failed to detect 496 out of 2,419 test weapons, also a 20 percent failure rate, at 28 major American airports.

"Because passenger screening is the most important component of an airport security program, I find these results particularly disturbing," said Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., chairwoman of the subcommittee.

Spanish Inn

The Spanish Inn, operated in Snyder by the Rodriguez family, is proud of the fact that their business has become a "family tradition."

The Rodriguez' came to Snyder from Big Spring to help Chon Rodriguez, founder of Spanish Inn, operate his business as a family. With the knowledge they acquired from Chon, Sr. and experience of growing up in the food business, many of the Rodriguez family members now own their own restaurants.

Dorothy Rodriguez, co-owner of the Spanish Inn here in Snyder, along with Chon Rodriguez II and Joni Gonzales, are proud to be a part of Snyder and credit their success to the customers they serve and the late Concepcion (Chon) Rodriguez.

The Spanish Inn, specializes in that spicy Mexican food loved by many folks in our area of the country. In addition to their delicious Mexican food, they offer American food including steaks and hamburgers.

Located at 2212 College, the Spanish Inn is open from 6 a.m. until 9 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday for breakfast, lunch and dinner traffic.

For your entertainment the Spanish Inn also has a private club with memberships available at the front desk.

Above the Fold

By Donny Brown

It's fall, and we're supposed to roll "Octooooooober" around in our mouths like fine wine. Right?

Wrong. Our mouths are too busy being engaged in the paroxysm of sneezing--twisiting lips into ugly-shaped, upside down wedges.

Breathing is labored as our lungs try to suck air from the bottom of our gullets like overworked sump pumps pulling water from a flooded basement.

The roof of our mouth, when inspected by the tongue, seems to have developed a mountain range of irregular bumps, each asking to be scratched by a handful of fingers or, better yet, some blunt object.

Our eyes are swollen into slanty strips--making those who see us first in the morning suspicious of our late night activity the previous evening.

Not to mention red-ringed noses and wrung-out hankerchiefs or untidy piles of tissue paper dropped beside our evening chair.

Fall brings its annual seige of hay fever symptoms, but this year seems to have wrougnt an all out attack on sinuses, tear ducts and throats.

Everyone we see answers in a raspy voice that "yes" their hay fever is acting up and "no" the allergy medicine seems to have stopped working two days ago.

A change in name brands might bring the much heralded "temporary relief," then the hay fever bacilli or anti-bodies or white blood cells or whatever in the heck they are seems to mutate into a stronger, more dominant gene.

The symptoms come back full force, this time with the realization that your bill at the drug store is rising into three figures and your options of medicine are, like the warm days of autumn, dwindling to a precious few.

Visions begin to trouble your sleep of turning into a poor, wasted victim, begging for antihistamine "fixes" from passing strangers.

"Please mister, I gotta have a Triminacin. I'll swap this gold framed picture of my family for a Sudafed. Or how 'bout this gold watch "To Daddy" for a Bendadryl?"

Hay fever sufferers, when they're not trying to decide between nose drops or allergy sprays, must ponder the infinite question--why is man visited with such afflictions during what is otherwise the best time of year?

It seems to be one of those cosmic practical jokes played on humans, like having toes too small for grasping and suitable only for being stepped on.

It is truly insufferable for West Texans. To live in a region pointed to by the rest of the world as "barren" and "treeless." To equate this so-called lack of vegetation with the high pollen count we enjoy is only a double whammy of frustration.

In the end, hay fever sufferers accept their plight. Like the lepers of old, they learn not to love but at least to live with their disease.

And with this comes a bittersweet peace. An inner realization that comes only to those tormented.

That such afflictions are only a means of keeping us in our place. To remind the poor human that perfection is, to borrow from another writer, "a toy balloon among children armed with pins."

Bless you, brother, and pass the Actifed.

By Deanie Francis Mills

It's a glorious October day, and I'm sitting here alone in my own private world. There's a Chinaberry grove on our place. You can see it from the house. It floats like an island in a frothy pasture sea of broomweed, catclaw and yucca. If a tumbledown house and rickety barn ever gave us pause in buying this farm, the Chinaberry grove made up our minds.

A gully runs through the Chinaberry grove which becomes a raging river in a rainstorm, providing the moisture that keeps the trees growing strong and sure. In dry weather, the gully acts as a magic entryway. Step into it and you have entered the enchanted forest.

Chinaberry trees turn gold in the fall. During the mellow month of October, all the world glitters gold in the Chinaberry grove. Golden light filters down through a green-and-gold speckled ceiling (with patches of blue peeping through). Beneath your feet, the ground crunches gold. All around are walls of green and gold and brown. Connecting the dark tree trunks are delicate silver threads that glint in the sunlight, spun by spider-weavers in the night. Occasionally you'll see a brilliant flash of scarlet — a cardinal family makes its home here year-round, brightening up the grayest winter day.

In the spring, the floor of the Chinaberry grove is carpeted with flowers of all colors, and if you visit at just the right time of day, slanting sunlight turns the leaves on the trees and the blades of grass emerald.

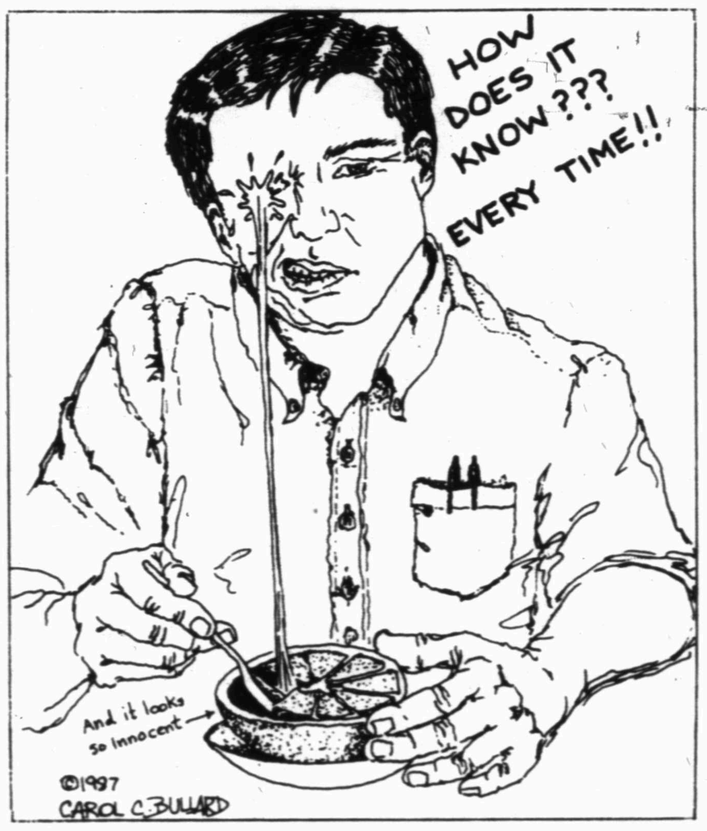

The Chinaberry grove is a noisy place. Right now I can hear woodpeckers knocking, crows cackling, dove murmering, quail calling, at least one mockingbird mocking — birds of all shapes and sizes chattering and arguing. (Sometimes, if I'm lucky, I'll hear the high cry of a hawk as it circles above, or the spine-tingling song of the coyote.) Through it all, insects drone on about their business. My dogs rummage about in the undergrowth, seeking a high game of rabbit-chase.

When I leave the Chinaberry grove, I can climb a nearby ridge to the east that overlooks a craggy valley, or twine my way along a dry streambed north to its source, hidden away in a rocky, tree-filled spot that must have once provided valuable water to camping Indians. Or I can follow a cow-trail west until I can see my old rock farmhouse clinging determinedly to the crest of a hill. When the day is drawing to a close, yellow light always spills from the windows, and as I draw near, the dogs bound ahead of me, and I can hear the shouts and squeals of my children and the laughter of my husband as he wrestles with one of the dogs.

Like everyone reading this, I have my own stresses and strains; worries over loved ones, professional frustrations, financial obligations, the agonies and ecstacies of raising children and maintaining marital harmony. I too, get sucked into the rush and tumble of life, the cram-packed appointment calendars, the regretted commitments. Sometimes I cuss and fuss about living so far out of the mainstream, having to adjust life to the hassles of living 20 miles away from anywhere.

But whenever I find myself coiled into knots, forgetting why I even choose to exist on this planet, I pull on my boots, sock a gimme cap down over my eyes, and take off for my own private world. There, I am restored and renewed, reminded, I guess, of who I am and what my purpose is in life. (Which is, I hope, the same as everyone's: to try and leave the world a little better place than I found it.)

Those of us who struggle with land payments, high vet bills, livestock feed costs, farm equipment expenses, fencing and barn repairs know that, in life, you lays your money down, you pays your price: but the return on that investment is oh, so sweet.

Hermleigh Water Works officials are upset over an out-of-county company's foray into town, leaving water sampling bottles and, the officials say, the false impression that something is wrong with the local water supply.

Bobbie Mason, who with her husband, Harold, manages the county-maintained water department, said the company left plastic bottles on people's lawns in Hermleigh with no explanation other than some writing on the bottles, "making it seem like it's for health reasons."

For the second month in a row, Snyder's 1 percent sales tax return has exceeded last year's monthly total, the most recent by a plus 6 percent, it was reported Sunday.

The latest figures reflect sales made in August. The report for July indicated also an improved total of some 11 percent.

The two monthly figures helped offset the deficit year-to-date figure which had risen as high as a minus 25 percent. With August's total now in, the deficit for Snyder now equals a minus 16 percent or, in actual dollars, some $111,000 less than in 1986.

MONDAY
October 19

Plans were announced Monday to open a Wal-Mart Discount department store in Snyder.

The 50,968 sq. ft. store will be located at the former site of the Tiger Drive-In theatre in the 4600 Block of College Ave.

Construction on the site is now scheduled to begin this summer and the projected opening is the spring of 1989.

After hearing details regarding how so-called "unscheduled" teacher appraisals are currently being conducted on Snyder school campuses, members of the board of trustees Monday voted unanimously to endorse the current system.

The board was told that a more accurate description of the method now in place might be, in the words of administrators, "semi-scheduled."

They indicated that teachers, who must receive either two or four such appraisals during the year, are currently informed two to five days ahead of time that their "unscheduled" appraisal is upcoming.

The Chamber of Commerce Monday issued a plea for local support of Proposition 8, an amendment for the issuance of $500 million in bonds for Texas Department of Correction, Texas Youth Commission and Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation building projects.

In a noon chamber board meeting at The Shack restaurant, Bill Moss, chamber manager, said support for the proposed amendment in Scurry County would prove to TDC officials that there is strong local support for the establishment of a TDC unit here.

TUESDAY
October 20

Western Texas College trustees heard Tuesday morning a contractor's report that numerous campus buildings have roofs in a serious state of disrepair.

It was estimated the total roof repairs on campus might cost in the neighborhood of $300,000.

Bill Adams, president of New Shield Roofing Systems in Spur, elaborated on the survey his company made of campus buildings and recommended that a polyester membrane, instead of asphalt-coated paper, be used for the re-roofing project on which the trustees subsequently decided to let bids.

WEDNESDAY
October 21

Economic Development Committee members were told today that two Scurry County bids--proposals for both two 2,250-bed maximum security prisons and four 1,000-bed units to be built by the state--have made the final cut announced Wednesday morning by Texas Department of Correction officials.

A TDC spokesman told the SDN this would be the case for each of the 10 finalists. The county now remains in the running along with five Texas cities and five counties. The cities are Amarillo, Childress, Dallas, Gatesville and Houston; and the counties are Falls, Johnson, Liberty, Tyler and Scurry.

Scurry County's United Way campaign was declared 50 percent complete Wednesday on its way to a goal of $80,000.

Drive officials said donations were "running about like last year," an effort which saw United Way raise in excess of $75,000 for its nine agencies but fall short of its hoped for goal of $85,000.

THURSDAY
October 22

Officials with the TDC indicated Thursday the selection of Houston and Dallas as two of 10 finalists for state-built prisons was linked to land owned by the state in or near the two cities rather than bid proposals submitted by them.

Neither were listed among the 33 communities originally submitting bids to TDC.

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board members were told Thursday night that 514 persons have been enrolled in the hospital's Senior Class program and 24 have been admitted to the hospital under it since it was inaugurated about two months ago.

Board members indicated that they were impressed with the rapid expansion of the program, which offers pre-registration, reduced prices, insurance counseling and other benefits to senior citizens.

FRIDAY
October 23

A Crossbred steer shown by Scurry County 4-H Club member Melissa Williams has won grand champion honors at the State Fair of Texas, it was reported Friday.

Her animal, a Crossbred Chianina, was judged the top entry of some 400 steers at the one-day show Thursday. Friday morning, it went on the auction block at the steer sale and sold for $12,000 to Hi Pro Seeds of Dallas.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

Let the terrible accident of little Jessica McClure be a lesson to everyone everywhere.

If you have an abandoned well or cess pool on your property or vacant land PLEASE fill it up immediately.

Thank the Lord little Jessica was saved but another child may not be as fortunate. Others have died in such accidents.

Praise to all of the men and women who worked so hard in little Jessica's rescue.

Hermleigh, Tx.

To the editor,

On behalf of the Tarleton State University Band, I would like to thank the citizens of Snyder for the support that they gave our band last Friday night after the Andrews football game.

We really appreciated Mr. Reneau's allowing us to perform for you. It was a cold night, but an extremely warm reception and I felt very proud to be performing for my hometown crowd.

It really felt good being there with you. Thank you for staying to watch us.

To the editor,

We will be voting on numerous amendments to the Texas Constitution on Nov. 3. These 25 propositions are major decisions.

Centering my attention to Proposition 15--the constitutional amendment to provide for the abolition of the office of county treasurer in Gregg, Fayette and Neuces Counties.

This amendment was proposed from joint resolutions passed by the Texas Legislature during the 1987 regular session.

Today, in the rural areas of

Dry-Mouth Sufferers Whistle With Joy for Newfound Relief

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago you had some articles in your column about "dry mouth" and recommended a product that brought instant relief. At the time it didn't concern me, so I didn't save the items. But I've recently had radiation treatments and now I have a dry-mouth problem. Will you please repeat those letters? There must be others who would appreciate it, too.

MR. L. IN BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR MR. L.: Curiously, I've received many letters in the last few weeks from readers asking me to repeat the earlier letters on dry mouth. Here they are:

DEAR ABBY: A while back you recommended a "saliva substitute" for people who suffer from dry mouth. Having suffered from that condition for two years, I went immediately to the pharmacy and asked for a saliva substitute. The pharmacist said she had never heard of such a product and told me to ask my dentist what the brand name was.

I called my dentist and he had never heard of a saliva substitute either. Abby, can you tell me the name of this product and where it can be purchased?

NEEDS IT IN ILLINOIS

DEAR NEEDS: I had no idea that the problem of "dry mouth" was so widespread until I mentioned it in my column and was promptly deluged with letters from readers seeking relief from that condition.

There are at least four brands of saliva substitutes on the market today. Ask your pharmacist to check the "Annual Pharmacists' Reference Red Book," "Facts and Comparisons" or "Physicians' Desk Reference for Non-Prescription Drugs" under "Saliva Substitutes."

Readers, for your information, "xerostomia" (dry mouth) can be caused by disease, medication, radiation therapy or the normal aging process. This condition can cause acute discomfort, tooth decay, inability to eat, swallow or talk, as well as difficulty in wearing dentures.

If your pharmacist has never heard of it and doesn't know where to get saliva substitutes, find another pharmacist.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to thank you for an article that you ran recently that has given me more relief and comfort than I can describe.

I am 83, male and reasonably healthy, but in recent years I've been terribly troubled with a dry mouth — especially at night. I complained to my doctor. He just shrugged his shoulders. Then I read your column in the San Francisco Chronicle, and my prayers were answered! In response to a letter asking why a person would use a mouth spray in public, you quoted a dentist who said that as a result of disease, medication, radiation therapy or simply aging, a number of people suffer from "xerostomia" (dry mouth).

I immediately phoned my druggist, and he had never heard of a "saliva substitute," so I told him to call his supplier and order it. He did, and the next day I picked it up and used it. Abby, I will be eternally grateful to you and that dentist. No more dry mouth! God bless you.

GRATEFUL IN PARADISE, CALIF.

DEAR GRATEFUL: I'll print your letter for the benefit of others who suffer from dry mouth and are not aware of saliva substitutes.

• • •

(Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about a married man's former girlfriend sending the man's wife all the intimate love letters he wrote to that girlfriend during a long-distance affair?

The married man lied to the girlfriend during the whole affair — saying he was not married. Would it be too harsh to notify the wife in this manner? The evidence is overwhelming. The man could never talk his way out of it in a million years.

CONSIDERING IT

DEAR CONSIDERING: Although the man doesn't deserve to be let off lightly, I would not send his wife the damning evidence. It would punish her more cruelly than him — and she didn't wrong you.

Let the good Lord do the judging and handle the punishment.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: This concerns a 25-year-old man who wears a partial plate consisting of a retainer and two front teeth. Regardless of where he eats, he takes this retainer out of his mouth and places it on the table in front of him — then proceeds to eat. Needless to say, I think this is disgusting, and it ruins my appetite.

Granted, he probably can't eat with this retainer in his mouth, but why should the rest of us have to put up with his bad manners? Since he eats at my table quite often, would it be proper to suggest that he put it out of sight during the meal? I am embarrassed having friends for meals when he is here.

He is my daughter's boyfriend. Abby, I have asked her to speak to him about this, but she says she can't hurt his feelings.

REPULSED IN CANADA

DEAR REPULSED: Feelings, schmeelings, this is no job for you. Assign it to your daughter; he's her boyfriend. It's time he learned that this is not acceptable, and she's the one to teach him.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two small children and am separated from my husband. I was very lonely after I got on my own, and I entered into a relationship with a man who became so possessive and jealous that I stopped seeing him. Then he started circling the block around my house and slowing up when he passed my place to get a good look. After a while, he started to pull into my driveway and park there, waiting for me to come out. If I didn't come out, he'd sleep in his car all night! Abby, he doesn't leave me alone.

I feel like a prisoner in my own home, as I don't want to come out while he's there. I went down to the police station and made out a report, but they said there is nothing they can do until this man commits some kind of crime.

I am afraid of him. Can you help me?

DESPERATE IN DETROIT

DEAR DESPERATE: This man is harassing you. Furthermore, when he drives into your driveway and stays there for hours, he is invading your privacy. Call the police again when he is parked in the driveway, and let them deal with him.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Didn't you once compare people who dominate every conversation with pigs? And if so, what was the exact quote?

D.J. IN TULSA

DEAR D.J.: "The person who makes a habit of hogging every conversation is no better than a pig who comes to the table and eats all the food."

SS benefits are to be increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 38 million Social Security beneficiaries will receive a 4.2 percent benefit increase in January, the highest in 5½ years, the government said Friday.

In a week of financial nightmares for many, the Social Security Administration said the increase promises an extra $21 a month in the check of the average retired worker, who now gets $492 a month from the huge pension and disability insurance program.

It said the maximum monthly benefit for a worker retiring in 1987 at age 65 will rise $33, from $789 to $822.

The exact size of the increase became official Friday when the Labor Department announced a Consumer Price Index of 339.1 for September. The increase of 4.2 percent is the same as the inflation rate for urban wage earners and clerical workers from the third quarter of 1986 through the third quarter of 1987.

For the elderly and disabled, the increase will be partially offset by an extra $6.90 a month in Medicare premiums, which are rising to $24.80 starting in January. They are deducted directly from the benefits.

And workers and employers face higher payroll taxes in 1988. A previously scheduled increase will boost the tax on Jan. 1 from 7.15 to 7.51 percent.

Social Security spokesman John Trollinger said beneficiaries will actually receive their checks on Thursday Dec. 31 instead of the customary Jan. 3, because that day is a Sunday.

Nearly 4 million recipients of Supplemental Security Income, a welfare program for the aged, blind or disabled, will also get a 4.2 percent increase.

The agency gave the following examples of how the 4.2 percent increase will affect average monthly benefits:

— All retired workers, up $21, from $492 to $513.

— Aged couple, both getting benefits, up $35, from $841 to $876.

— Widowed mother and two children, up $43, from $1,034 to $1,077.

— Disabled worker, spouse and children, up $37, from $882 to $919.

The maximum federal SSI payment will rise by $14, from $340 to $354, for an individual, and by $22, from $510 to $532, for a poor couple.
