Return of 'lost' $2,000 reaffirms man's belief

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Almost 30 years ago, Desi Sholz says he saw the world as he knew it destroyed.

But during this terrible time, he said he witnessed benevolent acts from people who were strangers to those they helped.

Recently, only months after moving to Snyder, he said he again encountered this level of kindness from a man he did not know and who refused to be rewarded for his act.

The county resident continues to seek anonymity and asked that his name not be used with this story.

Sholz and his wife, Ily, are Hungarian refugees who fled to America nearly 30 years ago. Living in Snyder slightly less than six months, he said he and his wife began to realize soon after arriving just how "special Snyder and its people were."

Sholz is manager of the American Motor Inn and part of this responsibility involves making daily bank deposits.

Several weeks ago, Sholz and his wife stopped at Furrs and, while attending to the family dog, he said he inadvertently set the bank bag on top of the car.

It contained some $2,000 in cash plus assorted checks.

He had returned to the motel before he missed the bank bag. After "driving like crazy" back to Furrs, they found the bank bag was gone.

They returned to the motel and called police to report the incident. But about the same time police arrived to take a report, Sholz received a call.

It was a county resident who had found the bag. It was returned with nothing disturbed. And even though Sholz offered a reward, the finder of the bank bag declined.

Sholz said the act of kindness — though separated by time and distance — put him in mind of the terrible events nearly 30 years ago which caused him and his wife to flee Hungary.

Sholz was referring to 1956, when the people of Hungary briefly revolted against Communist rule.

During that ill-fated revolution, many Hungarians were killed or wounded. Families were separated and property lost.

In response to this, Sholtz remembers the kindness of many who tried to help those less fortunate. He said baskets were placed on street corners in which donations were dropped.

Sholz said that even with the confusion, the contents of those baskets weren't disturbed as individuals left the money for the poor.

As the tanks rumbled through the streets of Budapest, opening their deadly fire, many of the businesses were laid open, the windows shattered.

But, even with these store goods unprotected, there was no looting.

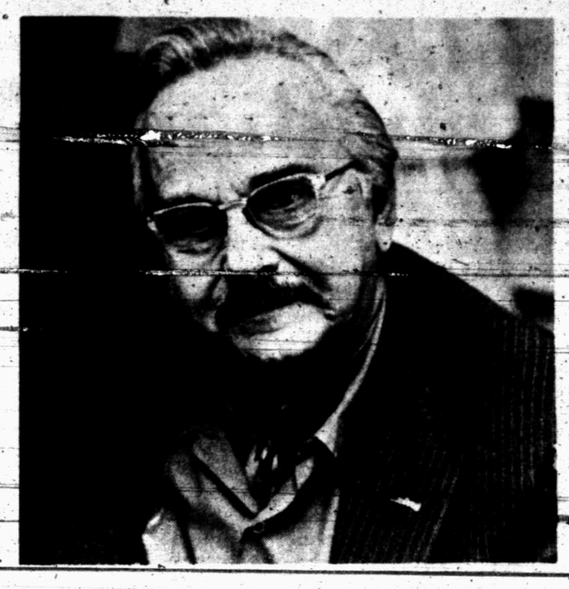

In spite of the chaos, the destruction of their dream of freedom and the ultimate horror of Communist reprisals, Sholz said he was left with a good feeling.

And that good feeling was rekindled in Snyder when in a matter of hours he had lost a "small fortune" and had it returned to him in total.

Remembering his experiences, Sholz says he feels strongly that freedom is too often taken for granted by those who have never known anything but freedom.

He makes a comparison with the Hungarian people then and the people in Snyder today. And he said it feels good being in America and living in

Candidates out of race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina today abandoned his two-year quest for the Democratic presidential nomination, saying "it's plain that my candidacy didn't get through to enough people."

"Well, nothing happened to me on the way to the White House," Hollings told a news conference in a Senate committee hearing room.

Hollings thus became the second Democrat to drop out of the race. Sen. Alan Cranston withdrew Wednesday.

Citing his sixth place finish in the New Hampshire primary Tuesday, Hollings said, "I announce today that I will be stepping aside as an active candidate in this presidential contest."

"It was one of the best educations I've ever had," he added.

"I leave with satisfaction that my message has gotten through to the other candidates."

As greuling as the race had been for him, he said, "it wasn't difficult for the voters. They got me back to reality."

Hollings had said early in the campaign that the New Hampshire primary would make or break him. As it approached, though, he had said he would continue no matter how he finished.

Gary Hart, trying to capitalize on his New Hampshire victory, heads south today seeking delegates as Walter Mondale challenged him to campaign head-to-head in the region where the next big round of Democratic presidential primaries loom.

Hart was making a quick tour of Alabama, Georgia and Florida, three of the states holding primaries on Super Tuesday, March 13, and where he has trailed the former vice president in local polls.

Mondale, holding the organizational edge in the South, campaigned in Dixie a day ahead of Hart. And struggling to regain his front-runner's title, Mondale threw down a challenge to Hart to battle him for the region's convention delegates.

"I challenge Mr. Hart to bring his campaign to the whole South," Mondale said in Atlanta. "I challenge him to compete with me here head-to-head."

On the Republican side, President Reagan's partisans say they are delighted by Hart's win in New Hampshire because it means Democrats must continue fighting amongst themselves.

"That'll stir things up," said Reagan.

Officers named for foster home project

The first slate of officers has been named for an organization now working towards establishing a group foster home for abused and neglected girls in the Scurry County area.

The name chosen for the non-profit organization sposoring the home is SCOOP (Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People).

Officers for the group are Becky Robinson, president; Carol Miller, vice president; Karan Wilkins, recording secretary and publicity; Melinda Drum, corresponding secretary; and Bo Robinson, treasurer.

Members of the group are investigating sources of funds, visiting area group homes, setting up policies, and checking out available housing.

The facility will have to be licensed through the Department of Human Resources.

As proposed, the facility would house six to 12 teenage girls on a long term basis.

A residence which meets the size requirements for such a facility has been located. These requirements include a four bedroom, two bath house.

SCOOP volunteers note that the home for girls is

Probation revoked in 132nd

A Scurry County man had his probation revoked Wednesday, an action in response to a motion filed by Scurry County probation officer Bill Zimmerman.

Lelton Neal Hoyle now faces a three-year term in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Hoyle had been serving a three-year probationary term since pleading guilty to a charge of burglary of a vehicle in Februray of 1983. This was revoked in light of Hoyle's arrest Jan. 24 for charges of driving while intoxicated.

Damage heavy after 30th, College wreck

A Snyder woman was examined and released from Cogdell Memorial Hospital Wednesday night following a two-vehicle collision at the intersection of 30th St. and College Ave. around 8 p.m.

According to police reports, Barbara Duckworth of 1111 26th St. was northbound on College when she struck the rear of a 1968 Chevrolet stopped for the light.

She was driving a 1964 Chevrolet and struck a vehicle driven by William Jackson Rylant III of 2612 Ave. U.

After the impact, the Duckworth vehicle veered from the roadway and continued across the Varsity Square parking lot. It finally came to rest on the east side of the Elizabeth Potts realty office.

According to personnel with Aid Ambulance-Snyder, who transported Mrs. Duckworth to the hospital, she had no apparent injuries from the mishap and was released after examination.

Both vehicles had to be towed from the scene.

The SDN Column

by Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The average American has two TV's, two cars in the garage, and two dollars in the wallet."

We try to make this a "good news" column, and we have some positive information to pass along about two Snyder citizens.

The Rev. Ken Branam, popular minister of the First Baptist Church, is back on the job on a part-time basis following recent surgery. Branam preached last Sunday and is spending about a half day on the job.

Branam has some additional treatment ahead, but he is optimistic and in good spirits.

Carl Whitfield, long-time Snyder merchant, is also making remarkable progress following a stroke suffered either during surgery or right after surgery.

Carl, retired fabric shop owner, would certainly be a finalist if citizens were to pick the town's "nicest guys." His wife, Kathryn, reports that Carl is making progress every day and is taking therapy.

For more than 16 years, Carl played the organ and piano at the Colonial Hill Baptist Church. Since his retirement a couple of years ago, Carl has had more time to enjoy his music at home. Carl is in Room 404 West of Lubbock's Methodist Hospital.

Leaving the coliseum the other night after a WTC basketball game, we overheard a conversation between two college-age students.

The gal obviously was not a women's libber as she told her date, "Since we've been going dutch all evening, you kiss yourself and I'll kiss myself."

Ask Us

Q. — Why doesn't the Snyder junior high and high school have a swimming team?

A. — School officials say primarily due to the lack of an indoor pool. While the college has such a facility — and theoretically the school could contract for its use — it is used during the afternoon when team practices would have to be scheduled.

Canadian PM is ready to quit

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who rode to power 16 years ago on a wave of "Trudeaumania" and dominated Canadian politics even as his popularity waned, is stepping down.

Trudeau, 64, said Wednesday he will resign as soon as his Liberal Party can choose a new leader, probably in June. The new party leader will become prime minister automatically but will have to call nationwide elections by next February.

Trudeau's resignation had been expected for weeks — mostly because his standing in the polls is so low that political analysts believe he could not win another election. Still, the suddenness of the announcement came as a surprise.

Meeting reporters outside his office, Trudeau said he made his decision during "a great walk in the snow" Tuesday night during Ottawa's heaviest blizzard in years followed by 1½ hours in the sauna.

"I listened to my heart and saw if there were any signs in my destiny in the sky and there were none; there were just snowflakes," Trudeau said.

Asked why he chose the day for his announcement, the prime minister replied, "Well, because it is a good day, it is the first day of the rest of my life."

Trudeau, a lawyer, essayist and world traveler, won election to Parliament in 1965. He became justice minister in 1967, and was noted for eccentric habits such as wearing sandals and an Ascot tie into the House of Commons.

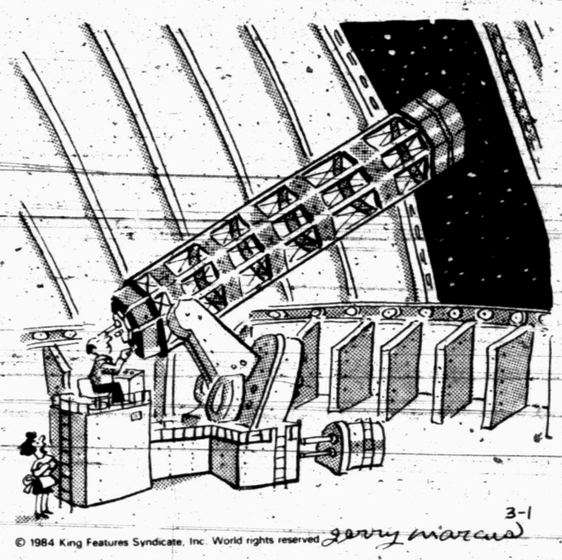

He was picked as Liberal Party leader in April 1968, taking over as prime minister from Lester B. Pearson. He immediately called an election and won on a surge of "Trudeaumania" assisted by a charismatic campaign style — tossing off witty remarks and kissing dozens of women at each stop.

Trudeau was re-elected in 1972 and 1974, defeated in 1979, then made a stunning return in 1980 after the Progressive Conservative government of Joe Clark stumbled. His tenure as prime minister is longer than that of any other current leader of a major Western nation.

His most lasting legacies are likely to be the enactment of a new constitution in 1982 that broke the last colonial ties with Britain and the establishment of French as an official language of government.

His final months in office were devoted to a peace initiative aimed at reducing East-West tensions. Since November he has visited Washington, Moscow, Peking, Paris, London and more than a dozen other capitals for talks with world leaders.

Helicopter looking for pellets

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Officials say a government helicopter's flight over the El Paso area has failed to detect radioactive pellets that might have been brought into the country from a Juarez junkyard.

Federal, Texas and New Mexico officials said at a news conference Wednesday that the aerial survey began earlier in the day.

The pinhead-sized pellets came from a cancer treatment machine stored in a Juarez hospital warehouse since 1977. In November, a hospital electrician broke open the machine, stole a 44-pound, steel-and-lead cylinder that contained a capsule of cobalt 60 pellets and sold it to a junkyard for $10, authorities said.

The pellets were accidentally mixed with scrap metal at the junkyard.

David Lacker, head of the Bureau of Radiation Control at the Texas Department of Health, said Mexican officials found a few of the pellets on a highway between Juarez and Chihuahua City, about 220 miles to the south. He said health officials fear the pellets might have adhered to the tires of a car and been carried away.

The helicopter will prepare a map highlighting areas with radiation readings above the natural background level, the officials said. Those areas will then be examined by Texas and New Mexico health officials for the possible presence of one or more pellets.

One of the pellets gives off about 22 rems of radiation an hour at a distance of about five centimeters, said Bob Free, administrator for incident investigation and emergency planning of the radiation control bureau.

That's more than 1,000 times as much radiation admitted by an average chest X-ray, which gives off a brief exposure of 10 to 20 millirems an hour of radiation, said Dr. John Bradley, director of the regional state health department office in El Paso. There are a thousand millirems in a rem.

"If you had it (a pellet) in your pocket several hours, it definitely would be a hazard, if you carried it around with you," Lacker said of the pellet.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A young reader in Omaha who acknowledges that I do not give advice has asked me to explain the actions of her "weird" mother.

"Don't get me wrong," she wrote, "Mom's come a long way since the days she listened to 'Young Dr. Malone' on the radio, wore cotton housedresses, and a PTA meeting was the highlight of her month. She learned how to drive at age 50, got her degree at 58 and now teaches handicapped children, but the way she lives is positively PRIMITIVE!

"She doesn't have a microwave, a dishwasher or a garbage disposal. They have a bathtub, but no shower! How can you wash your hair without a shower? She oohs and aahs over my matched stoneware, but there's not more than three plates in the woman's kitchen that match. Imagine, they've been married 38 years and they're still drinking out of jelly glasses.

"She launders foil and plastic bags and uses them again and I'm embarrassed to tell you what she does with paper towels."

Paula

Paula, you have just described not only my mother but an entire generation who never throw away a rubber band or a brown paper bag, who chew gum half a stick at a time and chase the last bean around the plate for as long as it takes to catch it.

Women who never burn the fireplace because it makes the brick black, who still have heels replaced on their shoes, still soak dish towels in bleach and never throw away the necks of chickens.

For a long time I thought they were cheap. They didn't know how to live life to its fullest. They cut corners and deprived themselves of life's conveniences.

And then something happened to make me take a second look. I got married and with it came austerity, not of my own choosing. If we were to survive at all, I had to make it by hand, make it from scratch and make it last or I'd never make it to the end of the month. I complained and vowed that someday I'd never have to live like that again.

But, with the struggle, came a certain pride that nothing else matched.

I can explain your mother, Paula; I know her very well. She's a wise lady who is not depriving herself of anything she needs or wants. She knows something about herself that few of us are privileged to know. She has learned that she can live "without." When you know that, somehow living "with" just doesn't seem to be very important.

Woman tells council police beat grandson

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman says one of several police officers allegedly beating her grandson in her front yard had a ready answer for her when she begged him to stop.

"Lady, he ran from us, and we don't like it," Beulah Shepard reported the officer told her.

Mrs. Shepard, a 62-year-old aide to Harris County Commissioner E.A. "Squatty" Lyons, told Houston city council members Wednesday she opened her front door about 2 a.m. Saturday to find five officers "beating the living daylights" out of her grandson.

The men were joined by as many as six more squad cars of officers who continued to pound 25-year-old Charles Dwayne Hamilton with fists and flashlights, Mrs. Shepard said.

A Houston Police Department spokesman said Wednesday that the internal affairs division is investigating the incident, but he declined further comment.

Author turns hobo to research book

ROLLING NOWHERE. By Ted Conover. Viking. 274 Pages. $15.95.

Many years ago, especially during the 1930s Depression, tens of thousands of "hoboes" roamed America by way of freight trains.

To learn if any still do so, the 23-year-old author of this book turned hobo himself for a college research project. Ted Conover hopped freights for 12,000 miles of travel in 15 Western states.

He found a good many still hoboing. A few were women, mostly in company of male companions. The author mingled with all he could to gain the "tough, sawy outlook necessary for survival in the tramp world, a world with its own rules and few second chances."

Those he met were mostly helpful and willing to share what they had but were closemouthed about personal matters. Some were vicious.

Why do they wander aimlessly about? For many reasons: domestic problems, weariness of workaday life, laziness, wanderlust...

How do they live? By church charity and government aid, such as food stamps. Often they scrounge materials to fashion makeshift dwellings in "jungles" near rail freight yards. They raid garbage containers behind fast-food restaurants. A few work a day now and then.

Railroad deteetives give them a hard time. Oddly, though, most train crews seem sympathetic and even let the wanderers ride in locomotives during bad weather.

The book is an exeellent, straightforward report on the author's experiences. It also offers many touching observations on a lifestyle that few "normal" people even know about.

Jim: "It seems that a large part of our team's victory in the Reisinger came from four-spade contracts that they made while their opponents didn't.

"Here is Edgar Kaplan at work on one of those contracts.

"At trick two he ruffed a club and made the normal play of cashing one high spade. Then he led a heart to dummy's queen and East's king. Back came another club. Edgar ruffed and cashed two spades to pluck West's trumps. Then he led another heart and stuck in dummy's nine. East took his 10 and shifted to a low diamond. A club lead would have been better, but the diamond lead gave Edgar a real problem. Who had the queen of diamonds? With his usual skill in locating honors, Edgar had no problem. He played West for either a doubleton or a tripleton queen. So he let the diamond ride to dummy's ace and cashed his king, ruffed a third diamond to pick up West's queen, and his jack of diamonds became the contract trick.

"How did the other South go wrong? He didn't. Bill Root and Dick Pavlicek competed to five clubs. They went down one, so needless to say our team won the board."

¼ cup unbleached all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoon butter, melted

Into an electric blender turn the eggs, cottage cheese, flour, salt and butter. Whirl until smooth. Onto a well-greased hot (360 degrees) electric griddle, pour the batter by 3 tablespoonfuls (a very scant ¼ cup), well apart. Bake until golden on the bottom and the top is no longer soft in the center; turn and bake until moist sides are golden. As pancakes are made, keep hot in a warm oven. Makes about 14 thin pancakes. Serve with strawberry jam.

Holsinger addresses Art Guild

The Art Guild Study Club met Feb. 17 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club for their regular monthly meeting.

Twenty-one members and three guests, Mmes. Jean Querry, Wayland Holt and Willard Gladson, attended. Hostesses and program leaders were Hattie Gatlin, Delia McPherson, and Vera Holsinger.

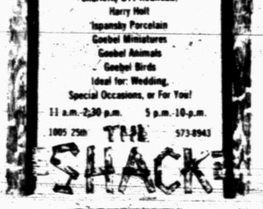

The invocation was given by Lida Rhoades. Dinner was served buffet style.

Vera Holsinger shared with the group her impressions, concerns and highlights of her eight day tour of China. The final part of the program was a slide presentation depicting the museums, palaces, government buildings, stores, commune living, ancient farming procedures, the simple way of life and women working beside men in the fields.

The business session conducted by president Virginia Grove closed the meeting.

Mormon leader Brigham Young was arrested in 1871 for polygamy in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Officials fear arrests will threaten workers

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Lutheran leaders fear that the arrests of three Americans and three Salvadorans in South Texas could lead to more arrests of Americans involved in the underground railroad and endanger the lives of Lutheran Church members in El Salvador.

An investigator for the church, who asked not to be named, has been in the Valley since Monday piecing together the circumstances surrounding the arrests of Dallas Times-Herald reporter Jack Fischer, nun Dianne Muehlenkamp, social worker Stacey Lynn Merkt and three Salvadorans, Mauricio Valle, Brenda Sanchez-Galan and her 18-month-old child.

The six were arrested at dawn on Feb. 17 on a rural road near Rio Grande City.

U.S. Magistrate Susan Rees Williams will decide Friday whether or not to dismiss charges against Ms. Merkt and Fischer, who, along with Miss Muehlenkamp, are accused of transporting illegal aliens. The preliminary hearing was conducted Feb. 24.

Ms. Merkt and Miss Muehlenkamp were part of an "underground railroad" which helps resettle Central American refugees fleeing their war-torn homelands, refugee assistance workers said.

Fischer said he was working on a story when he was arrested.

Church officials this week have been meeting in New York, Minneapolis and Texas, preparing a national church "strategy statement" that will outline proposed actions in assisting the defendants. The statement is expected to be released sometime this week.

Ms. Sanchez was a nurse and Valle was a driver in a refugee camp run by the Resurrection Lutheran Church in San Salvador, church officials said. The refugee camp, funded largely by Lutheran congregations in Norway, provides assistance to about 600 people, most of whom have fled guerrilla-controlled regions.

"For that reason, the government is suspicious of the Lutheran Church, which is really quite small in El Salvador," said Charles Lutz, director of the office of church and society of the American Lutheran Church in Minneapolis.

During World War II, the Russian city of Stalingrad was attacked by German armies in 1942.

Uric acid and gout

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have gout and wonder if there are any foods or drinks I should avoid. Is there a special diet I should be on?

My uric acid is high. What can be done to bring it down? The doctor gave me tablets, but these nauseated me so I had to quit.

Where does the uric acid come from?

DEAR READER — To start with, your uric acid is manufactured by your cells. Some people inherit a tendency to produce too much. There's some indication that high uric acid levels are associated with achievement or high intelligence, because of the many famous people who have had gout.

One of the best approaches to gout is to take medicine that prevents your own cells from producing an excess of uric acid. That stops the problem at its source.

Another approach is to encourage the elimination of excess uric acid through the kidneys. This is great, but it won't protect the kidneys from developing uric acid stones, which can be a complication of gout.

Then there are medicines that relieve acute attacks. Colchicine, which Ben Franklin brought to this country, is a good medicine for this. It won't help lower your uric acid, but will control inflammation during acute attacks.

Diet also is useful, although not as effective as new medicines, particularly medicines to stop the overproduction of uric acids by your cells. It's important not to go on a crash diet as rapid weight loss can cause an acute attack of gout. The usual approach is to limit purines, the substance from which uric acid is made.

I've included the usual recommendations about diet and beverages in the Health Letter 16-10, Gout, The Uric Acid Disease, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I think you should see your doctor to see if you can be put on another program. It's important to control your problem to prevent acute attacks and gouty arthritis.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've had a skip problem for about two years. Whenever I scratch myself or rub my skin against objects, such as when I move furniture or even change clothes, the scratch marks swell up with little bumps. What would cause this and how can I possibly get rid of it?

I'm 24 and have had skin allergies ever since I was young — but nothing this serious. I've changed detergents, soaps and lotions. My skin feels perfectly fine until it gets scratched or rubbed.

DEAR READER — You probably have a condition called dermographism. It's an allergic response to mechanical stimulation. It's not surprising you have other allergies. In some people, you can trace letters over the skin, and when the skin reaction occurs, the letters will be outlined.

The condition is usually transitory. It's harmless. If it really bothers you, you might be able to take antihistamines regularly. The next time you see your allergist talk to him about this.

Mexican curanderos, or folk healers, prescribe roadrunner meat as a medicine in recognition of the bird's formidable ability to digest poisonous animals. Curanderos believe tuberculosis can be cured by eating a stew of roadrunner meat, onions, tomatoes, and garlic. The elixir is also considered good for backaches, itches, boils, lung problems, and leprosy, according to National Geographic.

Condemned inmate still hopes he'll be spared

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Death Row inmate James David Autry, who lay strapped to a gurney with needles in his arms for 90 minutes last October, says he still hopes his life will be spared so he doesn't have to go through the ordeal again.

"I haven't given up. I still believe I have a chance," said Autry who has been ordered put to death by lethal injection before sunrise March 14.

The 29-year-old inmate was sentenced to death for the April 1980 slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk.

He was strapped to a gurney with intravenous needles in both arms when U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White granted a reprieve less than 30 minutes before Autry was to be executed at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 5.

Facing that prospect again, Autry on Wednesday described his feelings. "It's more of a dread this time. It was all fear last time," he said.

The March 14 execution date is the fourth one given Autry. He was granted stays from the three previous dates.

Autry, nicknamed "Cowboy" by fellow inmates, is the first of four Texas death row inmates scheduled to die within an 18-day period in March.

Autry's attorney, Stefan Presser, wants the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to block the execution, claiming it would be cruel and unusual punishment to make the inmate endure the agony again.

An attorney for the Autry's mother, Shirley Stucker of Florence, Colo., is asking the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles to recommend that Texas Gov. Mark White commute the sentence to life in prison.

Autry said he has written a letter to the parole board.

"I told them I want to live. I love my family very much and they love me. We've become closer in the past year. I don't want to be taken from them," he said.

His narrow brush with execution, Autry said, has affected his feeling toward life and toward the death sentence.

"That just made me want to live that much more. And it made me think that the public doesn't really know what executions are," Autry said.

If this execution is to be carried out, Autry said he wants it to be televised.

"If you read about it in the newspaper, it really doesn't sink in," he said.

Kindness recalls events

Snyder.

Sholz was a lawyer in Hungary when the revolt began. He says the events are forever framed in his mind, heart and memory and no passage of time will dim these or lessen the impact.

On Oct. 23, 1956, the revolt began. Sholz said when the initial takeover was a success, he was elected manager of the state-owned company where he was employed.

For a brief time the Hungarian people enjoyed their freedom. But it soon ended as 6,000 Russian tanks rolled into the city, crushing everything in their path. The entire city was ringed with tanks.

Sholz said he was at home when the tanks arrived. He lived in the same building where many of the other members of the provisional government lived. The tanks found the building and began firing at the third through the fifth floors.

The Sholz family was lucky since they lived on the first floor.

According to Sholz, the rest of the world offered "praise but no help."

"It was the perfect revolution until the tanks arrived," he said. The only weapons the Hungarian people had were Molotov cocktails, their only satisfaction during that brief revolutionary period was tearing down the statue of Stalin and destroying the hammer and sickle emblem where they found it.

Sholz kept his job with the provisional government for 30 days after the revolution was crushed.

But, he said, he knew he would ultimately be a victim of the Communist reprisal.

Finally he and his wife decided to flee. Because of the danger, they were forced to leave their two sons, then aged 13 and 14, with other family members.

"We fled for our lives," Sholz said. "We wanted to come to America to be free and for no other reason."

The Sholzes walked to the border. While waiting for the guards to leave, they lay in the snow for hours. Finally, he said, they managed to flee across.

Sholz will never forget that time and today he says he would be just as willing to fight for his new country — America.

Sholz's father had been a general in the Hungarian Army during World War I. When the Allies gave Hungary to the Soviets following the Potsdam/Yalta Summits in 1945, the Russians moved in.

Sholz and his father were imprisoned. After five years, Sholz was released during a liberalization period, but his father died in prison.

Sholz said he was never really free until the revolution.

For the first 10 years after arriving in America, he worked as a engineer section chief in Warren, Ohio. Eventually he acquired and sold businesses in Ohio and moved to California where he opened an electronics firm. He became involved in the hotel/motel business during the 1970s.

"My wife could not see our sons for 11 years," Sholz said. "But eventually she was able to return to Hungary to visit them."

Sholz himself can never go back. To this day he is still considered an enemy of the state. He had an opportunity to see his oldest son for the first time five years ago, when he and his family were able to move to Phoenix. This past Christmas they had a holiday reunion in Snyder.

Sholz said the youngest son would love to come to America to live but that he will probably never be given permission since too many of his family members are already living here.

Sholz has not seen his youngest son since he was 13 years old and he has never seen his son's children.

Sholz has nothing but praise and good feelings for America and the second chance this country has offered him, his wife and other members of his family.

"We aren't interested in making lots of money," he said. "That is not why we came to America. We appreciate the smile we get and we are happy. Ninety-nine percent of the people are friendly. If you smile they smile back at you."

The first manned flight took place Nov. 21, 1783, near Paris' Bois de Boulogne, says National Geographic. It was a 23-minute trip in a hot-air balloon by two young Frenchmen. The Montgolfier brothers, designers of the balloon, believed that smoke, not hot air, provided lift, so they chose such smoke-producing fuels as rotten meat, old shoes and wet straw for their early flights.

Braniff...

Reorganized airline flies again

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The first flight of the reorganized Braniff Inc. took off today a few minutes late, ending nearly 22 months in mothballs for the formerly bankrupt carrier and beginning a new chapter in airline history.

"Only in America could something like this take place. Only the American economic system allows people a second chance," Braniff president William Slattery said at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

Braniff collapsed in 1982 under a $1 billion debt. The nation's eighth largest airline reorganized in bankruptcy court and resumed service as a carrier one-third its previous size with significantly lower costs.

Braniff officials said the first flight pushed off from the gate about 10 minutes late because flight attendants couldn't get reporters off the aircraft.

"We have to prove ourselves 152 times today," Slattery said.

Braniff executives staged a ribbon-cutting in the jetway leading to Flight 200 to New Orleans, which was scheduled to depart at 6:50 a.m. A crowd of several hundred people, most of them either employees or passengers, cheered as the boarding announcement for the inaugural flight was made.

The New Orleans flight arrived about 15 minutes late at 8:15 a.m.

Retired pilot Glenn Shoop was instrumental in putting Braniff back in the air, but he's an unlikely savior.

He's not wealthy enough to pump millions into a failed airline, not expertly trained in business or bankruptcy, not a lawyer and not even looking for work.

Yet when Braniff took off today and resumed service after its two-year grounding, Shoop was sitting on the board of directors.

"How could I feel any better? Somebody will probably have to pull me down off cloud nine," Shoop said on the eve of Braniff's first flight since 1982.

Trade deficit to top $100 billion

By The Associated Press

With the nation's trade deficit in January a monthly record $9.5 billion, economists warn that the red ink for all of 1984 may swell to an unprecedented $100 billion or more.

The U.S. foreign trade account last year hit a record $69.4 billion, in part because exports sagged while demand for imported goods increased as the U.S. economy gained strength. Imports are expected to continue rising this year.

"While the domestic economy continues to be strong, the trade deficit is an economic disaster," said Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers. "We are hemorrhaging internationally because the dollar is too high and our strong domestic growth is sucking in imports at an unprecedented rate."

The $9.5 billion January deficit reported Wednesday broke the monthly record of $8.4 billion set in October.

Imports in January jumped 15.7 percent while exports, hurt by the dollar's high value in relation to the currencies of its major trading partners, rose 5.9 percent.

Chief White House economist Martin Feldstein said Wednesday night that the robust U.S. dollar, though still attractive to investors worldwide, is bound to decline, bringing both good and bad effects for Americans. In remarks to the World Affairs Council in Philadelphia, he said a lower-valued dollar would help U.S. exporters sell their wares overseas and would help domestic companies compete with imports. But he added that it would also tend to push up inflation in this country.

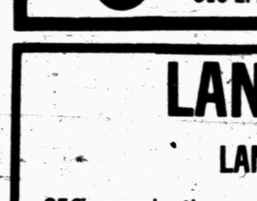

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige predicted the deficit will surpass $100 billion and said relief will not come until 1985 when "faster growth abroad and some decline in the dollar should begin to reduce the trade shortfall."

There was, however, some bright economic news Wednesday as the government's main gauge of future economic activity showed a strong increase.

Cougs wrap up crown but want Hogs again

by The Associated Press

Although the University of Houston has wrapped up the Southwest Conference basketball championship, Cougars coach Guy Lewis said it's important his No. 2-ranked team finish its business with a victory Sunday at Arkansas.

"I've never gotten anything good out of a loss. I'll feel much better going into the tournament if we can win up there Sunday. It's going to be rough," Lewis said after Houston's 80-65 victory over last-place Baylor Wednesday night.

The win was the 39th straight in conference play for Houston, 26-3, and Lewis would like to make it 40. But the Razorbacks are unbeaten in 14 games at home this season.

"You know, we didn't exactly run Arkansas out of the stadium down here," he said, referring to the Cougars' come-from-behind 64-61 triumph last Sunday before a national television audience. "Arkansas is so quick, a lot quicker than we are."

Houston is 15-0 in SWC play, while Arkansas improved to 13-2 with a 79-54 victory over Rice Wednesday night. In the other SWC game played, Southern Methodist embarrassed Texas 103-72. Texas Tech is at Texas A&M tonight.

Arkansas' victory avenged a 65-62 loss to Rice in Houston earlier in the season - the Razorbacks' only other loss in SWC play. For the year, 12th-ranked Arkansas is 23-5.

Alvin Robertson went on a slam dunk binge to lead Arkansas. Robertson had three dunks within 2½ minutes midway through the second half, with the final coming on a missed free throw by teammate Leroy Sutton. Robertson finished 12-15 from the free throw line and led his team with 26 points.

SMU clinched at least a tie for third place with its victory over Texas. The Mustangs, despite a 23-6 record, aren't in the nation's top 20.

A victory by Texas A&M over Texas Tech tonight would clinch third place for SMU. Should Tech win, the Red Raiders could tie SMU for third by beating the Ponies in the regular season finale for both clubs Saturday night in Lubbock.

Third place in the SWC is good for a bye into the post-season tournament.

WTC-FPC to battle in Borger

BORGER -- Western Texas College concludes regular play - but not the season - with Western Junior College Athletic Conference games here tonight.

Tipoffs are set for 6 and 8 p.m. as the Dusters and Westerners take on Frank Phillips College.

WTC's Dusters need a victory tonight to claim second place in the WJCAC standings. The Dusters are already assured of the second seed in the March 6-8 Regional Tournament.

A victory tonight would also tie the women's school record for most wins in a season for the Dusters, who are currently 25-7 for the campaign. WTC is 10-3 in conference play.

Frank Phillips' women are 5-12 and 0-13.

The Dusters are averaging 71.7 points and giving up 63.1 (4th in the WJCAC) while shooting .418 from the field and .688 (2nd) from the line. Frank Phillips is averaging 57.7 points and allowing 72.8 (6th) while shooting .414 from the field and .694 (1st) from the stripe.

Western's Westerners will be battling for playoff position in the nightcap. The Westerners, 18-10 on the season and tied for fourth place in the conference with a 10-7 record, are already assured of a host role when the WJCAC playoffs begin Saturday. Frank Phillips is 9-21 and 4-14.

Western's men are averaging 73.8 points and allowing 67.6 (3rd), shooting .488 from the field and .647 from the line. FPC averages 74.2 and gives up 84.3 (10th) while shooting .508 from the field and .689 (2nd) from the charity stripe.

This will be the second meeting between the two schools. Western won both earlier games as its women took an 81-53 victory and its men triumphed 68-53.

Other WJCAC men's games Thursday pit 15-2 Howard at 5-12 Clarendon, 10-7 South Plains at 11-6 Amarillo, 10-7 Midland at 12-5 Odessa and 1-16 NMMI at 7-10 New Mexico Junior College.

In the other women's contests, 9-4 Howard is at 6-7 Clarendon and 6-7 South Plains is at 8-5 Amarillo.

Bracket is completed for women's regional

MIDLAND -- The bracket for the Women's Region V Tournament has been drawn up, pitting Western Texas College against the Northern Conference's No. 3 seeded team in first round action when the three-day affair tips off here next Tuesday.

Tonight's conference games could alter tournament seeding in the Northern Junior College Athletic Conference but it appears Western Texas' Dusters will be facing Cisco at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Chaparral Center.

Regardless of tonight's games, the Western Junior College Athletic Conference (WJCAC) teams appear to be firm. Odessa will be seeded No. 1, Western Texas No. 2, Howard No. 3 and Amarillo No. 4.

Expected results in the Northern Junior College Athletic Conference (NJCAC) would leave Cooke County No. 1, McLennan No. 2, Cisco No. 3 and Ranger No. 4.

The time schedule (listed below) differs slightly from one released earlier this week, and fans planning to attend the March 6-7-8 tournament should take note.

Tickets for the women's tournament will be $4 for adults and $2 for students per day with the exception of Thursday. The Men's Region V Tournament begins on that date with a session at 12 noon and 2 p.m. The center will be emptied at that time and another session will begin later, featuring men's games at 5 and 9 and the women's championship game at 7.

A tournament package, good for all 14 women's and men's games, will be available for $20 to both adults and students. Fans purchasing the package will sit in the reserved section at center court.

Here is the schedule for the women's tournament (The men's tournament bracket is not compete at this time.):

Tuesday, March 6

2 p.m., No. 1 NJCAC vs No. 4 WJCAC, presumably Cooke vs Amarillo.
4 p.m., No. 2 WJCAC vs No. 3 NJCAC, presumably Western Texas vs Cisco
7 p.m., No. 2 NJCAC vs No. 3 WJCAC, presumably McLennan vs Howard.
9 p.m., No. 1 WJCAC vs No. 4 NJCAC, presumably Odessa vs Ranger

Wednesday, March 7

7 p.m., winner of Tuesday's 2 p.m. game vs winner of 4 p.m. game.
9 p.m., winner of Tuesday's 7 p.m. game vs winner of 9 p.m. game.

Thursday, March 8

7 p.m., championship game, winners of Wednesday's 7 and 9 p.m. games.

Westerners to host playoff on Saturday

Western Texas College's Westerners, win or lose in their final game with Frank Phillips tonight, will host a Western Junior College Athletic Conference playoff game here Saturday.

Tickets for all college basketball playoff games are $2 for adults and $1 for students. Prices were set by the WJCAC and no passes can be honored, according to WTC Athletic Director Dave Foster.

Students and Senior Citizens, who are admitted free during the regular season, will also be required to purchase tickets for the playoff because of the WJCAC ruling.

Time and specific opponent will not be learned until after tonight's final conference games.

Tigers begin season Friday in tournament

FREDRICKSBURG -- Snyder varsity baseball team opens the 1984 season with a stacked field in the Fredricksburg Tournament here Friday.

The three day tournament actually began this morning as Fredricksburg took on Kerrville Tivy at 9:30 and New Braunfels Canyon played Austin Anderson at 11:45.

Snyder takes on Austin Lanier junior varsity at 9:30 a.m. Friday. Austin Reagan plays San Antonio Southside at 11:45 Friday.

Southside is a perennial state tournament club while Snyder, Canyon, Fredricksburg and Tivy are frequent post-season contenders.

Snyder Coach Albert Lewis said a late schedule change probably resulted in Lanier junior varsity entering the tournament, but added, "We're going to go against them just as if they were any other team. We don't know anything about them so we'll play it just like we would any other tournament."

That means the Tigers will likely start junior Charles Bollinger on the mound if he is able. Bollinger, 6-1 last year, has had a sore arm recently.

Other members of the team are pitcher Paul Tate, catcher-outfielder Bobby Velasquez, pitcher Jimmy Velasquez, dh Jimmy Hunter, infielder Jay Mayo, dh Tim Derryberry, squadsman Paul Thompson, pitcher-shortstop William Cotton, pitcher-dh-right fielder Jimmy Cain and pitcher Darren Fletcher.

Winner of the Snyder-Lanier game will play the Reagan-Southside victor at 4:15 Friday. Losers battle at 2.

The championship game is scheduled for 4:15 Saturday.

BIG SPRING -- Snyder shaved 20 strokes off of its first-round score to finish with a total 800 in the Big Spring Tournament here Wednesday.

Ueberroth could take post as commissioner

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball's 15-month search for a new commissioner apparently will end Saturday when Peter V. Ueberroth, head of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, will be named to succeed Bowie Kuhn.

According to published reports, later confirmed by two sources close to baseball, Ueberroth was selected by a search committee to replace Kuhn, whose 15-year term expired today.

Another source told The Associated Press that all 26 club owners have been called secretly to meet on Saturday in Tampa, Fla., at which time the committee, headed by Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, will "name their man."

Ueberroth is 46. He gained prominence by building his travel agency, First Travel Corp., from one employee in 1963 to the second-largest such business in North America before his Olympic appointment on April 1, 1979.

Sideline glances...

Out of context

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

This week's column will be shorter than usual, but longer than the past two weeks, if you know what I mean.

First, an apology of sorts. The headline on Wednesday's sports page read "Lewis - 'We'll be a contender'." I can imagine what Lewis thought of me when he opened the paper and read that. Well, maybe it was a little out of context. What the Tiger baseball coach actually said was, "I think if we don't get anybody hurt we'll surprise some people. We'll be a contender."

Coaches are like that, you know. They always have to protect themselves. They qualify statements like "We could be good" with "if we play to our potential" or "if we don't have any injuries" or "if we come together quickly."

Just once I like to hear a coach say, "Bill, we're going to go out there and beat the dog out of them. We could beat this team by a thousand or so points but we'll probably go easy on them and pull our starters five minutes into the game. Heck, I've even got the managers suited up for this one."

As long as I'm sticking words in coaches mouths, Coach Joe Cushing could probably say the above about his Dusters' game with Frank Phillips tonight. He won't, of course. Forget the fact that Frank Phillips is 5-21 on the season. Ignore the 0-13 conference record.

Incidentally, a win tonight would give the Dusters a 26-7 record, equalling the the program's most wins in a season (also set by a Cushing coached team in the 1979-80 season).

Speaking of Western Texas, I'd have to applaud Coach Barry Davis, too. After a 10-21 record a year ago, his Westerners are already 18-10 and have a legitimate shot at a 20-game win season. That's a heck of a turnaround in one year, especially considering the Westerners lost in overtime to Howard here, and dropped two games to Amarillo by a point apiece. Take away a total of about 20-30 seconds and Western would be 21-7 right now and in solid second place in the conference with a 13-4 mark. Of Western's seven conference losses, one was in overtime, two were by one point and two others were by four points.

Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox played in a record 3,308 games during his career.

Dear Abby

Daughter Doesn't Accept Parents' 2 Cents' Worth

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984, Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old woman, happily married for eight years, with two children and a wonderful husband.

I work part time to help with the expenses. My husband has always worked full time. Ever since our marriage my parents have concerned themselves with the way we spend our money. We aren't "rich," but we manage to live comfortably and have never missed a payment of any kind.

We recently bought two snowmobiles for family recreation. Needless to say, Mom and Dad had plenty to say about how "foolishly" we spent our money.

No matter what we buy, they ask, "How much did it cost?" Or, "How much are the payments?" When I get a birthday or anniversary gift from my husband, my mother never says, "How lovely." She says, "How much did it cost?"

We have never asked my parents for a dime. They are in their 70s now, and we'd like to enjoy a good relationship with them. My husband and I are not irresponsible children, Abby. How can we tell them to "butt out" without being disrespectful?

RESPONSIBLE AND FED UP

DEAR RESPONSIBLE: You can't. Your parents still regard you as their "child," but there is nothing you can do about it. You can't change anyone else; you can change only yourself. So, brush off their prying questions with a good-humored, "Don't worry, we haven't missed a payment yet." And smile until your face breaks.

DEAR ABBY: You are mistaken when you say that if a man forces his wife to have sex with him he is guilty of rape. He should not have to "force" her; the Bible says it is a wife's duty to submit to her husband.

A wife who isn't willing to submit to her husband should not have gotten married in the first place. It is little enough to pay for the protection, security and life-long-partnership the marriage license provides.

Most women should take a good, long look at themselves after about 10 years of marriage, and thank God their husbands still feel like having sex with them at all! If they've had one or more children, they're probably 20 to 30 pounds heavier than when they married. Who wants to make love to a blob?

Let's face it, Abby. Women probably invented marriage because what they have to sell fades fast, and they know they had better market it before it spoils.

FED UP IN SMITHTOWN, N.Y.

DEAR FED UP: If you are married, my condolences to your wife. And if you're single, please stay that way.

DEAR ABBY: Don't be so quick to condemn the husband who came home reeking of another woman's perfume. He was not necessarily guilty of fooling around with another woman.

I also came home "reeking" of perfume, and had not been with another woman. However, I had been in a department store to buy a Valentine's Day gift for my wife, when a pretty girl sprayed me (without my permission) with some new fragrance she was trying to promote. Sign me ...

Candy Man gets execution date

HOUSTON (AP) — Within minutes of being sentenced to a March 31 execution, Ronald Clark O'Bryan was on the telephone asking his father to make funeral arrangements.

O'Bryan, a 38-year-old Deer Park man who was convicted of murdering his own son in 1974 with poisoned Halloween candy, was ordered to die "before sunrise" on March 31 by state District Court Judge Michael P. McSpadden. The judge set the date in a Wednesday hearing that lasted only two minutes.

The condemned man immediately asked McSpadden if he could telephone his father to make funeral arrangements. The judge let him use the courtroom phone.

O'Bryan leaned against a wall and dialed.

"Pop, this is Ron," he said. "I'm at the courthouse. They brought me up this morning and I've got to go back right away."

He talked quietly and then was heard to say, "Be sure to take someone with you."

McSpadden said later that O'Bryan was calling to arrange for his own funeral services.

O'Bryan, nicknamed "the Candy Man" by other death row inmates, replied "No" when McSpadden asked if he wanted to comment before the sentence was announced.
