No Vietnam-like involvement

Reagan says U.S. will stay out of El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said today the United States had "no intention" of becoming involved in a Vietnam-like conflict in El Salvador.

At the same time, the president told reporters at an impromptu news conference that "we are in support of the government there against those who are attempting a violent overthrow."

He noted that the Soviet Union has denied involvement in supplying arms to the anti-government guerrillas opposing the military and civilian junta ruling El Salvador. However, he said, "the evidence we have and have made public ... makes it evident they are involved."

Asked whether the United States risked becoming involved in a conflict from which it would be difficult to extricate itself, the president replied that such questions represented "part of the Vietnam syndrome."

He added: "We have no intention of that kind of involvement."

Reagan spoke as a Defense

Department spokesman, Col. Jerry Gronowski, disclosed that the administration is actively considering sending additional military advisers to El Salvador to train government troops.

The United States already has about 20 military advisers stationed in the strife-torn Central American nation.

Reagan linked Soviet behavior to the possibility of a future U.S.-Soviet summit. He said Soviet ties to the arms shipments "would be one of the things that should be straightened out" in connection with a summit.

A summit meeting was suggested Monday by Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The Washington Star reported today that the United States may send up to 50 Army specialists to El Salvador. But Gronowski said nothing definite has been decided on numbers.

"There are all kinds of options," he said.

U.S. officials, meanwhile, said a recent lull in arms shipments through Cuba to rebels in El Salvador has diminished the possibility of swift retaliatory action by the United States against the Havana government.

Some officials speculate that Cuba and other countries have curbed arms deliveries in recent weeks out of fear the United States may respond with military force.

But others say the cessation may simply be a sign that the Salvadoran insurgents have enough weaponry for the time being.

Either way, acting assistant secretary of state John Bushnell said Monday, the American response to alleged Soviet-bloc support of the Salvadoran insurgents will depend on whether the weapons shipments are resumed.

Captured documents released Monday by the State Department say nearly 200 tons of arms and other equipment were sent to the Salvadoran guerrillas late last year for use against the U.S.-backed government in a military offensive that got under way in January.

The documents were said to have been captured during raids on guerrilla hideouts by Salvadoran security forces in November and January.

As caretaker Premier Adolfo Suarez left the building he was embraced by members of his family and the crowd.

Tejero Molina and a hard core of his guardsmen remained briefly inside the building, then gave up. One of the freed hostages quoted Tejero Molina as telling the captives just before the ordeal ended: "You can leave quietly. Nothing will happen here. The only thing that will happen is that I will have to pay with 30 or 40 years in prison."

Authorities said Tejero Molina, who plotted a similar takeover more than two years ago but got only a seven-month sentence, accepted full responsibility for the latest coup attempt but insisted that all non-commissioned officers and enlisted men involved in the takeover be given a guarantee against reprisals.

The hostages were freed after military authorities announced that Tejero Molina accepted conditions for a "face saving surrender."

Tejero Molina at first demanded he be allowed to surrender in the office of the late dictator Francisco Franco. He also insisted that no army officers

Ministers, deputies unharmed

Spanish Civil Guard revolts end

MADRID, Spain (AP) — More than 300 deputies and ministers held hostage in the Spanish Parliament left the building today after most of their 200 right-wing Civil Guard captors deserted, many jumping from windows with the submachine guns they fired at the beginning of the takeover.

The Civil Guard officer who led the attempt to resurrect the Franco dictatorship, Lt. Col. Antonio Tejero Molina, surrendered inside the Parliament building, then was whisked away in a black official car with a motorcycle escort.

The ministers and deputies emerged one by one from their all-night ordeal in the Parliament building. As they stepped into the bright winter sunshine, they shouted to crowd of several thousand, "Long Live Freedom!" "Long Live Democracy!"

As caretaker Premier Adolfo Suarez left the building he was embraced by members of his family and the crowd.

Bill calling for teacher tests passes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate wants future teachers to take tests to prove they can read, write and do arithmetic in a "satisfactory" manner. Veteran classroom teachers apparently would make up the tests.

Sen. Ray Farabee described his proposal Monday as "one tool" for improving public school education.

The bill was sent to the House on a 27-1 vote, with Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, the lone dissenter.

It would require college students wanting to become teachers to perform satisfactorily on a competency examination before being accepted in a teacher education program. The testing would begin in 1982, said Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

"It would be unfair and unjust" to allow students to go through the entire program and then inform them they did not measure up, he said.

After graduation, a prospective teacher would again have to turn in a satisfactory performance on a "comprehensive examination" in his or her teaching field before being certified as a teacher.

Farabee said the Texas Education Agency, in conjunction with classroom teachers, would devise the basic skills exams and determine what would be a satisfactory performance on them.

Summit hinges on Soviet supplies in El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan indicated today the American response to the Soviet Union's proposal for a summit conference may hinge on Russian involvement in supplying arms to guerrillas in El Salvador.

Speaking at an impromptu news conference, the president said the Soviet proposal was "interesting" but added that the Soviet role in arming the anti-government forces in the Central American nation "would be one of the things that should be straightened out" before a summit could proceed.

The president's remarks represented his first public response optimistic stance than several other U.S. officials, said the United States is "very interested" in a Soviet overture for a summit meeting.

Brezhnev, in a speech opening the 26th Congress of the Soviet Communist Party in Moscow, had said the Soviet Union is willing to renegotiate the SALT II treaty, which was derailed after the Soviet military move into Afghanistan.

He also proposed limits on submarine fleets and said his country would be willing to discuss at a summit meeting the Soviet role in Afghanistan, but only as part of talks about the demilitarization of the Persian Gulf area.

Reagan, asked at a press briefing on budget cuts whether he would accept Brezhnev's proposal for a summit, and under what conditions, replied:

"The only answer to that question is I was most interested in his suggestion and it is something now we will discuss, discuss it with the State Department, the Cabinet in general, and very particularly discuss it in the days ahead with the leaders of our allies."

Reagan said it would be a subject of his talks here later this week with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Great Britain.

Clayton will not seek re-election

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clayton says he won't seek a fifth term as House speaker after all and, in fact, plans to make this term his last as state representative.

His choices include political retirement or a race for a statewide office in 1982, Clayton told reporters Monday.

"I will not be seeking another term in the Legislature," he said.

He had indicated early this year he was thinking about parlaying his unprecedented fourth term as speaker into a bid for a fifth term in 1983. But he said Monday that 20 years in the House, including eight as speaker, were enough.

"It's time to move on and let somebody else represent that district," said Clayton, who represents a rural district northwest of Lubbock. His hometown is Springlake, where he runs a large irrigated farm.

The speaker said he has not "quite decided yet" about his political future.

Two polling places approved for city, trustee elections

Big Spring voters have been given official permission to cast ballots at consolidated polling places in the April 4 city and school board elections.

The city council, early this year, approved a plan to consolidate all city voting precincts at two locations instead of five. The precinct located at the Northside Fire Station was to remain intact, while the other four precincts were to be relocated at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

In order to implement the plan, however, the city required official approval from the Federal Attorney General's Office. In a last ditch attempt to secure that approval before the election, city officials, Mayor Clyde Angel and other councilmen contacted representatives in Congress to urge the Attorney General's Office to step on it.

As a result, approval was received in the form of a letter from that office to City Secretary Tom Ferguson on Monday. The first reading of an ordinance calling for a city election as the council first envisioned it will be considered by members at 6:30 p.m. today.

Farabee wants to declare war on Texas ripoff artists

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. Ray Farabee wants to strike a blow for Texans who answer advertisements for "business opportunities."

Many of them are ripoffs, he told the Senate State Affairs Committee Monday. A few minutes later the committee approved his "worm bill."

The problem is increasing in Texas, the Wichita Falls Democrat said. "Everywhere you turn someone is offering you a 'business opportunity' to get rich quick from worm farms or chinchilla ranches."

Farabee handed the committee a list of more than 700 Texans who invested more than $400,000 in a scheme to raise fishing worms and sell them back to a Houston firm for $2.50.

The firm refused to buy back the worms and there was no market for the surplus wigglers. Every investor lost everything, he said.

In another scheme, 250 Texans lost $350,000 from offers to raise chinchillas in their spare room or garage. Others lost $103,910 in a make-money plans to manufacture coasters from beer cans.

"These people are not those out for a fast buck but mostly retired people wanting to earn some extra income," said David Bragg, chief of the attorney general's Consumer Protection Division.

"Thousands of these things (business opportunities) are in Texas now," Bragg said. "It is a serious thing."

State Securities Commissioner Richard Latham said "most of these are nothing but ripoffs and the people hurt most are usually those who cannot afford to lose the money."

Farabee's bill would require sellers of "business opportunities" to register with the secretary of state and file a disclosure statement giving full background of those involved. A seller would have to post a $25,000 bond or trust account to protect purchasers if he guaranteed a profit or promised to buy back products. The bill would give the attorney general power to obtain injunctions for violation of any of the disclosure provisions.

Weather Looking like spring all across Texas

By the Associated Press

Clear skies and unseasonably warm temperatures made it seem more like May or June than February across Texas today.

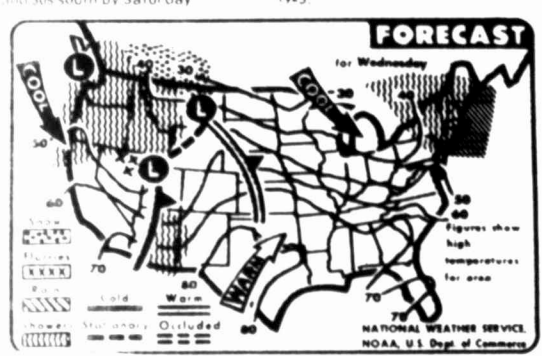

Forecasters called for clear skies and unseasonably warm temperatures statewide. Highs were to be in the 70s except along the Rio Grande where readings were to be in the 80s.

Skies were clear over most of the state early today although a few low clouds were reported over the central coastal plains and along the Rio Grande near Laredo.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s. Extremes ranged from 33 at Amarillo to 56 at Galveston.

Haynes questions morals of slain Daniel

ANAHUAC, Texas (AP) — Houston attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes said he was not being frivolous when he asked in open court whether former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., killed by his wife last month, used marijuana and preferred the company of young boys.

Haynes raised the questions during a pretrial hearing Monday in a lawsuit Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, has filed seeking custody of Daniel's two small children, Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1.

Haynes represents Daniel's widow, Vickie, 33, charged with murdering her husband in their spacious, ranch-style home near Liberty last Jan. 19. She has admitted shooting him with a rifle but said it was self-defense.

Mrs. Murph filed the custody suit claiming her sister-in-law is not a fit mother, and testified that Mrs. Daniel had paid for mental counseling last April. "She told me she was mixed up and Price had suggested it," Mrs. Murph told the court during cross-examination by Haynes.

The attorney then broke in to ask if Mrs. Daniel ever confided in her about problems involving marijuana or "young boys... bringing black boys around who stayed there."

Mrs. Murph denied any knowledge of such information and presiding judge W.G. "Dub" Wood ordered Haynes to abandon that line of questioning after Mrs. Murph's attorney, J.C. "Zeke" Zbrank, objected strenuously.

However, Haynes later told reporters he had a serious purpose in mind and was not just questioning Mrs. Murph at random. He refused to elaborate.

During further cross-examination, Haynes asked Mrs. Murph if she knew whether Daniel had "compelled" his wife to have an abortion.

She replied Mrs. Daniel had told her she had undergone an abortion but that it had "killed Price."

At the end of the five-hour hearing, Wood granted Mrs. Murph's request that Mrs. Daniel and the two children undergo psychiatric examinations today, naming one Houston psychiatrist to examine Mrs. Daniel and another to examine the children.

"The scope of the examination of Vickie Daniel shall be limited to inquire into her mental state and emotional stability as it relates to the physical and emotional well-being of the children," Woods said.

Mrs. Murph said she would undergo examination if requested by Daniel's attorneys.

"Mrs. Daniel is in Tyler and will have to stay there until somebody sends her bus fare or money for gasoline," Haynes said.

Woods responded by ordering Zbrank to give the widow and children $125 for transportation to Houston.

The children and Mrs. Daniel did not attend Monday's hearing.

A hearing has been set for 1 p.m. Wednesday on change of venue out of Liberty for the murder charge. The child custody hearing was scheduled to continue at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

Why the rush to resume trade with Iran?

All too often, when American companies start doing business on an international basis, their officials promote the idea among foreign nations that they are truly 'citizens of the world,' that, deep down, they do not claim allegiance to any one country.

Their agents pass the word along that, although their employers are citizens of the United States they invariably have no stomach for American politics. They adopt that stance even though, in many instances, they help shape foreign policy by promoting the image of a strong man in one country or the other rather than a party or an idea — operating on the theory that it is far easier to do business with an individual, even though he might be ruthless, rather than with a group.

THE HOSTAGES ARE not long out of Iran, but already some of the oil companies are champing at the bits, eager to resume trade with the tyrant Khomeini and the lackeys who temporarily happen to be in his favor.

A lot of Americans, who know this nation suffered mightily while the 52 Americans were confined in Iran, are wondering how the heads of such firms can be quite ready to forgive the Iranians of their sins and work to resume trade with the Middle Easterners. President Reagan was correct when he referred to the Iranians as barbarians those who were defying international law by holding the Americans. If the chiefs of American industry are willing to get on with business, the average American may not soon be ready to forgive those zealots who trampled and degraded the U.S. flag and suggested that all of its citizens were in league with Satan.

Does making an extra buck mean that much to people?

KNOWLEDGEABLE PERSONS

say we no longer need Iranian oil and we have discovered we can exist without Iranian trade. Why, then, should there be any rush to resume business with a country as long as it is ruled by a despot who prefers living in the Fourth Century to the 20th Century?

There, no doubt, will eventually be a resumption of some trade with the troubled Middle Eastern country but let Iran know that its holy crusades simply did not rally any support beyond its borders and, that whether it admits it or not, it needs to clean up its act.

City to enjoy

Around the rim

Richard Horn

Compared to large American cities, Moscow is a remarkably clean place. A portion of the Soviet work force—usually an older portion—is employed in the business of sweeping streets, using large, long-strawed brooms, like the ones wicked witches ride. They'll be out in full force this week (sweepers, not witches—well, perhaps witches too) for the 26th Soviet Communist Party Congress. Moscow must look like the capital of a socialist paradise.

Moscow set out to make the best subway in the world. The problem is that something else has to suffer.

Russian consumers take on (most of) the burden. Moscow's GUM (initials for "State Department Store") is like a giant shopping mall; it's impressive on the outside, but the merchandise is a joke. Grocery stores are filled with vodka, but sugar, flour, and other necessities are hard to find. Russia does have fine ice cream, though.

SINCE YOU CAN'T wear ice cream, Russians turn to the black market. That presents the biggest problem for the Soviet officials. It is very embarrassing to have tourists and visiting dignitaries accosted by marketeers wanting to buy glasses off their faces and blue jeans off their bodies. There is little the officials can do about it though, especially since many of them have to resort to buying off the market occasionally.

Westerners love going to Russia and taking along a few extra pair of Levis. Every government official concerned would probably rather they didn't, but there's something exciting about contributing to an economic institution that the Communist Party hates so much. Almost every one in our group was able to get 10 Russian army belts for a pair of Levis. No doubt delegates from other Communist countries will check out the markets in Moscow this week to get some needed housewares, or maybe a little something for the wife.

Moscow will have its best face on this week, but it's doubtful it will put any of the delegates to the Congress in a better mood. Nobody likes the Soviet Union these days, not even some of the people who live there. It's "put on a happy face" time.

Actually we had no idea what was going on. We had guides that drove us around Moscow, pointing out non-political aspects of the city. The teacher who bravely led our group told us, among other things, to not drink the water, and not ask stupid questions (like, "how many people do you torture each year?"). We obliged, but we were still determined to leave our mark on the U.S.S.R.

MOSCOW IS A beautiful city, and was long before the 1917 revolution. There is a great deal to enjoy there, despite what you may think of the country's politics. The subway stations are amazing, with marble pillars throughout and chandeliers hanging from the ceilings. It's a shame trains have to come through and spoil it.

The Soviet economy is capable of placing enormous emphasis on one or two projects. Since Western subways are famous for their poor appearance,

Double standard

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — This is the story of two disparate swindlers, one street-wise, the other worldly-wise, both skilled at flimflamming, who were recruited by the Justice Department to ensnare errant politicians.

The first lured congressmen into the ABCAM net; he was rewarded with high pay and lucrative contracts. The second implicated some White House biggies in a bribery plot; he is being railroaded into prison.

MEL WEINBERG, the government's star witness in the ABCAM case, set up the congressmen who were caught on videotape pocketing bribe money. Flamboyant and foppish, with a taste for flashy three-piece suits and pinky rings, he may be unscrupulous in the social graces, but he is gifted with a raw genius for finagling.

He has grown a full beard to camouflage his puss from the ABCAM notoriety. But behind the gray-streaked beard and all the foppery, traces of The Bronx show through. He is brash and booming, with a half-chewed cigar thrust at the world.

Weinberg was the master strategist who largely planned and executed the ABCAM operation. His intuitive audacity and investigative techniques represented a quantum jump beyond the cautious methods that heretofore had been used to pursue congressional cheats.

Indeed, the Justice Department had to restrain him from dangling government greenbacks before such worthies as House Speaker Tip O'Neill, D-Mass., and House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., in an attempt to entice them into the ABCAM trap.

If justice was served, Weinberg also made out. The FBI hailed him as one of the good guys, paid him a reported $3,000 a month and excused him from a $200,000 embezzlement charge. His take from the ABCAM caper, according to Justice Department sources, has already surpassed $130,000. This doesn't count another $450,000 that he is expected to make from movie and book contracts.

In contrast, James Feeney shelled out $30,000 from his own pocket in the service of the Justice Department. He was promised immunity from fraud charges but was hit with a 52-count fraud indictment just one week before he was scheduled to appear before a Senate hearing. This effectively stopped him from testifying against associates of then-President Jimmy Carter.

FEENEY MOVES IN the conspiratorial world of multimillion-dollar stakes, high rollers and slick con men. He is polished, pressed and pomaded, with a sophisticated air about him. He is handsome in a rugged, chiseled way like a football quarterback, too old for the game, whose muscles are beginning to turn to flab. His diction is patrician, his syntax literary.

He now lives in a 25th-floor Manhattan apartment, tastefully decorated, with Chinese scrolls on the walls and oriental rugs on the floor. Among the photos on his shelf is one showing Feeney sipping champagne on the French Riviera, shirt open to the navel, with a beautiful blonde by his side.

It would take a finagler of his class, the Justice Department agreed, to penetrate the innermost circle of the renegade financier, Robert Vesco.

The smooth Feeney not only succeeded in endearing himself to Vesco but amassed a cabinet full of evidence implicating Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi in a $300 million bribery scheme.

Feeney passed on details information about Qaddafi's plan to lure the president's brother, Billy Carter, to Libya in return for an oil deal that would have made Billy a millionaire.

According to a Justice Department report, the Libyans offered Billy an "oil allocation" that would bring him fat commissions. "During the course of these discussions (about the oil payoff)," stated the report, "Billy Carter personally requested a $500,000 loan from the Libyans." This was partially granted.

Under the supervision of a U.S. attorney, Feeney also secretly taped conversations with Libyan diplomats who wanted to influence White House officials. He led federal agents to a secret rendezvous between Democratic National Chairman John White and Libya's United Nations ambassador, Monsur Kikka.

But as the investigation focused tighter on the White House, the Justice Department inexplicably called it off. Then Feeney, who had been promised immunity, was indicted in an apparent effort to keep him from testifying before the Senate. Now he is broke and bitter, awaiting trial.

"They bled me dry of every piece of information I could give them," he told my associate Indy Badhwar. "I risked my life. They used me. They used my talent and then threw me out like I was dirt."

Breaking a long press silence, Feeney went on: "When you go into a deal like this, you can't get to the Vescos of this world without using people who deal in that world. They used me because they know FBI agents can be smelled out in no time..."

"My advice is that anyone who makes a deal with a U.S. attorney better watch it. Make it in triple writing and put it in a safe-deposit box."

SOVIET UFO SIGHTINGS: After 10 years of exhaustive investigation, the U.S. Air Force gave up its search for Unidentified Flying Objects — even when then-President Carter claimed he had seen a UFO several years ago. Now, intelligence sources report, the Russians are taking UFO sightings seriously. They call them "atmospheric anomalies," but they seem convinced there's something going on out there. Maybe President Brezhnev reported a personal close encounter.

All-out war

Art Buchwald,

WASHINGTON — There is no doubt in anyone's mind that the military is going to get everything it asks for in the new Reagan budget. But it's easier to give money to the Pentagon than it is to spend it. All the services want their mitts on the new funds, and once it's been okayed, we may see inter-service battles between the armed forces, the likes of which this country has never witnessed before.

As soon as Congress appropriates the money, it will be delivered in a Brink's truck to the doorstep of the Pentagon, where high-ranking officers of the four branches of services will be waiting for it.

AN ADMIRAL will say to the Brink's employees, "OK, men, bring the money up to the safe in the Navy procurement office."

"The hell you say," an Air Force general will shout. "That money is going for our MX missile program. The Air Force needs every penny of it, and more."

An Army four-star general will chip in, "Keep your hands off those bags. They've been set aside to build up our conventional forces."

"In a pig's ear," the admiral says. "Every cent has been allotted for new nuclear carriers and anti-submarine ships."

"What about me?" a Marine Corps general says.

"Oh, shut up," the Army general says.

The Brink's driver is annoyed. "Will you guys make up your minds? We have to go to lunch."

"I talked to the Senate Armed Services Committee and they said we could build a new bomber with this money," the Air Force general says, trying to grab one of the bags.

The Army general pushes him: "Keep your hands off that bag. That's going for our M-60 tank."

"President Reagan says he wants a Rapid Deployment Force," the Marine Corps general says. "And the Marines are the only ones who can do the job."

"You stay out of this," the admiral warns. "We'll give you what's left over, once we build our missile cruiser ships."

The Air Force general says to the Army general, "Don't ever push me again or we'll bomb Fort Bragg back to the Stone Age."

WHILE THE TWO are arguing, the admiral is heaving bags of money behind a bush. The Air Force general and Army general start beating up on him. The admiral shouts to the Marine general for help, and the Marine says, "Not until you promise me enough for 1,000 helicopters."

The Brink's guard separates the officers. The admiral, dusting himself off, says, "That does it. We attack Langley Air Force Base tomorrow morning."

"Listen," the Brink's guard says, "if you guys don't want the money, I know a lot of people in the government who do."

By this time, someone has notified Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, who rushes down.

"What's going on?" he asks angrily.

"Did you promise the Air Force this money for an MX system and a new bomber?"

"Yes, I did," Weinberger says.

"And did you give me your solemn word it would go for new aircraft carriers and submarines?" the admiral asks.

"Of course."

"And didn't you swear," the Army general says, "that we would get the bulk of the new appropriations to modernize our equipment?"

"I recall saying that."

"So which service gets the money?"

"None of you," Weinberger replies. "I just got a call from Al Haig and he says the $8 billion has to go for military equipment we're giving to El Salvador."

Wryneck: When muscles get 'turned on'

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you comment on a condition I've been fighting for four years? It is torticollis. I had never had any severe problems until this. I have always worked, and now my neck is so drawn that it is very hard even to write this letter. Can you offer any hope? — Mrs. C.M.

In torticollis (wryneck) the head turns to one side because the neck muscles on that side have been "turned on" involuntarily and remain on. No one knows precisely why this happens to some people. It is more common in women, and most common after age 40.

Many drugs have been tried for it, but I am sorry to say, as you probably know, that the results have been inconsistent. I'll give you a list; perhaps there is one your doctor has not tried — L-Dopa, carbide, carbamazepine, haloperidol. Biofeedback has been tried, and there are even surgical procedures used in severe cases. The nerves to the neck muscles are cut to stop them from turning the head to the side.

You have had many doctors, you tell me. Why not return to one of them and ask for an evaluation of the appropriateness of any of the methods I mention if they have not already been considered and ruled out? Torticollis can leave as mysteriously as it comes.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have what I believe is known as a pilonidal cyst. It is at the base of my tailbone and is constantly draining. I am 20 years old and have had it for almost two years, not knowing how to get rid of it. The draining is very annoying. I would like to know if there is a cure for it and what type of doctor handles the treatment. — S.B.

A pilonidal (hair nest) cyst may be seen only as a little dimple of the skin between the buttocks. Or it may open onto the surface, where it becomes infected and drains. It is a common developmental abnormality cured by surgical removal. What you report may or may not be a pilonidal cyst.

Your first step is to find out what it is you have, and your family doctor can do that for you. Until you do that you should take steps to keep the area clean. There is a brief discussion of pilonidal cyst in the booklet "Good Health For Your Hair." For a copy, write me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Salve! That's Latin for hello.

I am a Latin student in high school. The reason I am writing you is an assignment for the upcoming foreign language week. We were allowed to write anyone we wished and ask some questions. I am interested in becoming a doctor and I heard to become a doctor you should have some background in Latin. I love Latin, but would still like to know if it is necessary? — K.M.

Salve et tu. That's Latin for "hello to you too."

Latin is a big help in understanding most medical words. The names of almost all the bones, muscles and nerves are Latin words; femur, tibia, peroneus. Many illnesses are Latin words or derivatives of Latin words.

But those are not the most important reasons for studying Latin. Latin will give you a command of your own English language that the study of no other language will. It is not absolutely necessary to study Latin to be a doctor. Prescriptions today, for example, are not written in Latin. But study is for the command of English it will give you and for the pleasure of learning about a civilization that still influences us, and not just medically.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I need information regarding cbinibic acid used to increase appetite and gain weight. What about this? — F.J.W.

I don't know. I have never heard of it. Sorry.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our hearts are heavy because our 17-year-old son has run away from home and is living with his girlfriend. He won't have anything to do with us. Is there any way to help him? — Mrs. L.C.

DEAR MRS. L.C.: The most important thing you can do for your son is to pray for him. At the present time he has turned his back on you, and also on God. Only God can bring him to himself, and that is one reason why it is so important for you to pray for him. The Bible says that God "is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine" (Ephesians 3:20). Situations which seem impossible from a human point of view can still be changed by God.

Your son also needs to know that, although you do not approve of his behavior, you still love him. It is, I know, sometimes difficult to get this across to someone when there is little communication with them, but you need to pray that God will give you wisdom in how you can do this. Remember how God loves us. We have sinned against him and openly rebelled against his pattern for our lives, and yet he still loves us and stands ready to receive us if we will but turn to him in repentance and faith in Christ. "This is how God showed his love among us: he sent his one and only Son into the world that we might live through him... Dear friends, since God so loves us, we also ought to love one another" (1 John 4:9,11).

There is one other thing I would like to add about your situation. Your primary concern is understandably for your son, that he will get his life straightened out. But have you ever considered that possibly God also has things to teach as well to you and your husband? Perhaps you have never truly given your lives to God and opened your hearts to Jesus Christ. Or perhaps you have trusted Christ, but have not been as close to him as you should have been. Whatever your spiritual condition, I pray that God will draw you closer to himself — not just at this time of difficulty, but for the rest of your lives. Turn to him, and let Christ be Lord and Savior of your lives.

Essay contest planned

The Big Spring Civitan Club met Feb. 18, at 5:30 p.m. at Furr's Cafeteria. Micki Potter, president, presided. Special guest was Mike Cowley, representing the Howard County Association for Retarded Citizens.

The club has placed boxes at College Park Safeway store and Howard County Library to collect Proctor and Gamble proof-of-purchase labels. These labels will be turned in to Proctor and Gamble who will pay 3 cents per label to Civitan Sponsored Special Olympics in Stowe, Vermont in March featuring skiing and skating events. The labels will be collected March 18 and sent in soon afterwards.

The club is again sponsoring the annual Citizenship Essay Contest. Participation is encouraged from students in grades 11 and 12 at Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan High Schools. Local winners will receive cash prizes of 1st, $25; 2nd, $15 and 3rd, $10. The first place entry will be passed onto the District Essay Chairman and have opportunity for additional prizes and, if a winner there, will have a chance at scholarship prizes in the International Competition.

The theme is, "Forecasting the 80's: The role of the individual citizen."

Mike Cowley presented information on the local Special Olympics and Area Special Olympics which will both be held in Big Spring on March 14 and April 11 respectively. These events provide successes for retarded individuals who seldom find success in other areas of life. "Often this success and attitude carries over to their classroom work," said Cowley. Concerned and caring citizens who wish to help make these events better for the participants may volunteer to help by calling Cowley at 267-8073 or the Special Education Department, 267-5584.

The next meeting will be March 4.

Dear Abby

If You Already Have A Dining Room Set...

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the 72-year-old man who says he cannot marry because he had a prostate operation 10 years ago that ended his sex life.

Abby, there is a new surgical procedure that will restore a man's sexual capabilities if the nerves are still intact. It is known as a "penile implant," and is now being done at Baylor University Hospital in Houston. Friends of mine who have had this operation tell me that it has been a godsend.

When I had bladder cancer eight years ago, I was offered this type of operation, but I didn't have it done because my wife assured me that she preferred a new dining room set. Sincerely yours,

NICK IN CANOGA PARK, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I need to know how to handle a very obnoxious 27-year-old Australian who recently joined the same company as myself. I am a 42-year-old Englishman, single and a very private person. Because I never discuss my personal affairs, or invite any of my friends (male or female) to visit me at work, this rude Aussie keeps asking me if I am "gay."

He boasts constantly about his sexual conquests and claims that most of the women who are chasing him are married, as he has more to offer them than their husbands. He came to work with a new gold watch, claiming it was a gift from one of his married ladyfriends. More recently he came to work with a new car, claiming it was a gift from another of his "women." I find this difficult to believe. However, true or false, it is none of my business and I am not one bit interested.

Since I have to work with this man, I prefer to be on good terms with him, so I would appreciate a few tips on how to keep him in his place without offending him.

I read you in the Rome Daily American.

AN ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY

DEAR ENGLISHMAN: I would not worry about offending anyone who makes a practice of asking offensive questions. Simply tell him that your personal life is none of his business. Keep him at arm's length, and when he starts boasting about the women in his life, absent yourself from his company.

DEAR ABBY: I've been wanting to get this off my chest for a long time. Why do people let young children answer the telephone? I get so annoyed when tots answer the phone and in a whining voice say, "Who is this?"

They're unable to take a message or telephone number — they just keep whining. "Who is this?"

Please print this, Abby. I'm sure others feel as I do.

IRKED IN EDEN, N.C.

DEAR IRKED: Most busy mothers ask their little ones to answer the phone, and, of course, youngsters enjoy being "helpful." But no child should be allowed to answer the telephone before he is old enough to do it properly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO F. IN LA FOLLETTE, TENN.: The man who is forever talking about what a big man he is with the ladies is usually doing what he does best. Talking.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

BURR SETTLES — Entertains members and guests of the Sign Language Club with his mime of a man who has had a little to much to drink. The man attempts to drive but problems develop when he fails to locate the steering wheel.

Club hosts evening of food and entertainment

The Sign Language Club held their annual banquet Feb. 13 in the fellowship hall of St. Mary's Episcopal Church. All sign language clubs from Big Spring were invited and approximately 70 people attended the event which featured a buffet style meal followed by entertainment. Decorations followed a Valentine theme.

Entertainment was provided in sign language by club members Stephanie Kimble, with her version of "Great Balls of Fire", Yvonne Kimble, singing "Candy Man", Daniel Campbell, "If", Lillian McGary and Deidra Fuller with "Hello Again" and Burr Settles, doing a mime. Club president Dr. John Marshall stated that the current membership was approximately 25, most of whom are hearing people. "The purpose of the club is to give people a chance to learn and practice sign language as well as have a good time," said Marshall. "Our membership is open to anyone who is interested in sign language. Our members are on various levels of sign language skills, and range in age from children to retired persons."

The Sign Language Club is currently making plans for a melodrama and variety show. These are scheduled for sometime in the summer.

Anyone interested in joining the Sign Language Club may contact Yvonne Kimble at 263-6376.

'Square Foot' system can make your garden grow

How does your garden grow once spring has turned into summer? Do you find the weeding and the tilling too much to do by yourself? Do you frequently give up and by September find the plot of earth you so lovingly and carefully planted in the spring is an overgrown mess of weeds and sprawling plants?

If you find yourself answering, yes, then you share a problem common to gardeners. Typically, spring brings high hopes, great ambition and energy for a really big terrestrial success. But when other warm weather activities get in the way of the garden work, that field of green soon becomes a field of footprints and neglect.

Less can be more, says Mel Bartholomew, author of the new "Square Foot Gardening," published by Rodale Press. With only a patio, a terrace or a few feet of backyard, you can have a successful and productive garden.

The system is square-foot gardening, a new way to garden in less space with less work that produces a maximum amount of vegetables, flowers or herbs. Based on a grid of 1-foot by 1-foot squares instead of rows, each square holds plants the same distance apart in all directions.

Crawling and sprawling crops like cucumbers, pole beans, squash and tomatoes are grown vertically to save space. Your garden may consist of one square-foot or squares grouped together.

The square-foot system lets you make the most of your garden space to conserve the amounts of water, soil conditioners and labor needed to produce a maximum amount of food in that space.

Bartholomew, who describes the square-foot gardening system as "common sense," says the need for thinning is eliminated as is most of the weeding and a lot of watering. A square-foot garden takes only one-fifth the space and work of a conventional single-row garden to produce the same harvest. Easy to maintain, it stays neat, weedless and uncluttered all season.

The Rodale book, "Square Foot Gardening," is 360 pages and available at book stores or by writing to Rodale Press, Emmaus, Pa. 18049. The suggested retail price is $13.95.

Head of San Antonio School District named

Alleged madam says publication of brothel list vicious, unfair

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An attorney for accused brothel madam Theresa Brown considers the publication of 19 names from an alleged "trick list" of her customers as "viciously" unfair.

"She is terribly, terribly worried about the families of these poor men," Mrs. Brown's attorney, Pat Maloney Sr., said. "Theresa Brown is not a kiss-and-tell person. This is vicious and tragically unfair."

Maloney lashed out at publication of the 19 names by the monthly newspaper El Pueblo, but the columnist who said she gave the list to the newspaper said all 3,000 names should be published.

In fact, Armandina Saldivar was threatening Monday to publicly burn the index cards from which the list was made, if the rest of the names are not printed.

"There are much more important names," Mrs.

Saldivar said.

Mrs. Saldivar said she would ask El Pueblo's 42-member editorial board to publish all the names. The board was scheduled to meet this week and determine whether to publish any additional names after limiting the first publication to 19 of the most well known names on advice of its attorney, Jesse Botello.

"If they do not, I will ask for the box (of index cards) back, and if I can't get it published somewhere else, I will burn it publicly," said Mrs. Saldivar.

Of the 19 people whose names El Pueblo published Friday — in 40,000 copies which sold "like hotcakes" — only two have made public statements.

Dr. William Elizondo, president of the San Antonio School District, told a PTA dinner Friday night that his name was listed in the paper.

"It's unfortunate he (Elizondo) used the PTA for his own political means," said Charlotte Travis, outgoing PTA president after Elizondo received loud applause by announcing his name was in the newspaper. "I guess he thought his announcement would deflate the balloon before it blew up in his face." Elizondo was not available to comment.

And attorney Jack Pytel, attorney for city councilman Gene Canavan, said his client may sue El Pueblo for libel because Canavan's name was published.

Editors of El Pueblo have said if they are sued for libel, they will bring out in open court the price the men paid, their sexual preferences and who recommended them, information allegedly contained on each of the index cards.

The list of names has been in controversy since Oct. 2 when vice squad officers raided Mrs. Brown's house, confiscated a "trick book" and arrested Mrs. Brown and two other women. Mrs. Saldivar said Mrs. Brown later turned over to her for publication the index file Mrs. Brown kept under her bed.

Maloney, the second attorney to represent Mrs. Brown, plans to go to court Thursday seeking a new trial on a charge of aggravated promotion of prostitution.

Earlier this month, Mrs. Brown pleaded no contest before District Judge James Barlow. She was convicted and sentenced to three years in prison, a sentence that was likely to be probated at Thursday's hearing.

But two weeks ago she fired attorney Rick Woods and retained Maloney, alleging she was pressured into entering into the plea bargain.

Demos, GOP head off in South Texas race

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Both political parties have a lot riding today on a South Texas state senate election that has involved Republican Gov. Bill Clements, numerous high-ranking Democrats and even President Reagan.

A runoff victory by Rep. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, would mean that Republican organizing and fundraising have not cracked the traditionally Democratic stronghold of the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

If Republican Ricardo Hinojosa of McAllen wins, the Democrats will have lost despite an 11th hour saturation campaign by top-ranking state officials and legislators.

It's being billed as the biggest political horse race South Texas has seen in years.

Hinojosa polled the most votes in a Feb. 10 election that threw him in the runoff with Uribe. A second Republican, Joe Summers of Mission, barely missed the runoff by 20 votes.

The official recount showed Hinojosa with 9,073 votes, Uribe with 7,052 and Summers at 7,032. Four other Democrats split the remaining votes. The district includes Brooks, Cameron, Hidalgo and Jim Wells counties.

Summers said he was appalled before the runoff that Clements endorsed Hinojosa while there were two Republicans in the race. The Mission businessman has refused to endorse either candidate in today's election and had bitter words for the governor.

"I cannot endorse the governor's choice for he represents a brand of politics I have spent my life fighting. And I cannot support the other candidate for he represents a political philosophy I cannot condone," Summers said after the recount.

Summers' failure to make an endorsement puts him in the minority.

President Reagan and Vice President George Bush have taped broadcast spots for Hinojosa. U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, has done likewise for Uribe.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, and more than a dozen state legislators have traveled the district since Friday campaigning.

The sides have exchanged pot shots.

Hinojosa, a 31-year-old graduate of Harvard law school, told voters he has an open door to Clements and the Reagan administration.

More. For that extra measure of satisfaction.

Coahoma girls win bi-district

CRANE — The Coahoma Bulldogs girls basketball team dominated play here Monday night in taking an impressive 53-31 win over Alpine in a Class AAA bi-district battle.

The Coahoma win, achieved without one of their leading players, boosts Coach Billy Gordon's crew into the regional tournament on Friday. They will play the winner of the Spearman-Dimmitt game, which is slated for tonight.

The Coahoma girls jumped out to a 20-4 lead over the outclassed Alpine crew, and increased that margin to 34-10 by the intermission. From that point, everybody played, and the Bulldogs girls cruised on for the triumph.

Coahoma actually only outscored their foes by six points from the field, but it was the free throw line that proved to put the decisive kill to Alpine. Coahoma hit on 19 free throws, compared to only three for Alpine.

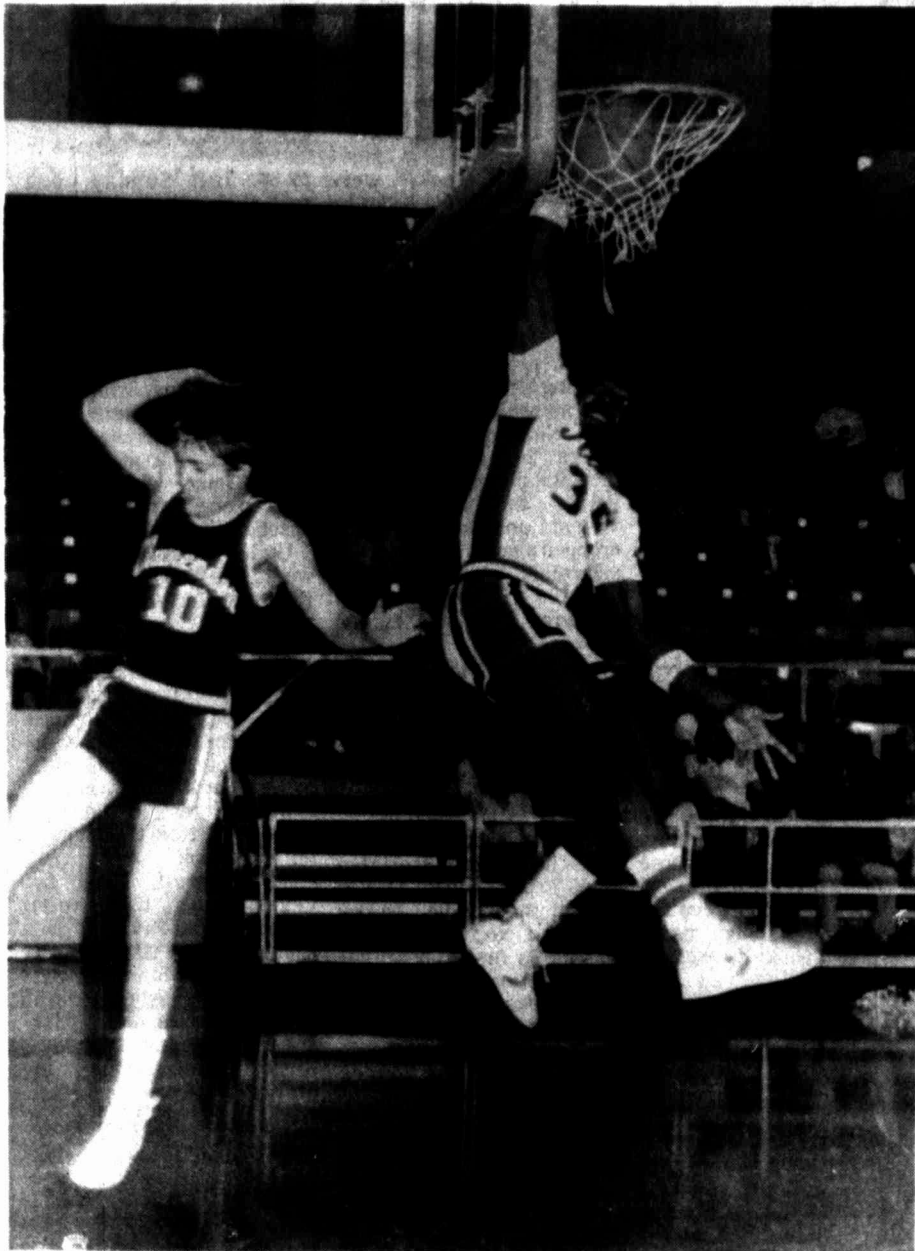

Kari Robinson led the Coahoma team in the bi-district win with 16 points, with 10 of those coming from the charity stripes. Gayla Paige added 10 points.

Gordon praised both Robinson and Paige in the contest, as well as citing the defensive performance of Karen Spears.

The win gave the Coahoma girls a season record of 23-6.

Coahoma was playing without the services of Andrea Fowler, one of their key performers. Fowler burned herself on Saturday when she stayed under a sun-lamp for what proved to be too long. Gordon said that she is expected back for the regional tournament, however.

By quarters:
Coahoma 20 34 41 53
Alpine 4 10 22 31
COAHOMA (53) — Henry 13.5; Rindard 4.8; Spears 0.1; Woolvorton 1.3; Burchett 0.4; Paige 5.0; Richey 2.0; Robinson 3.0; TOTALS 17.6.53

Hawks get revenge win; keep 2nd place in WJC

By NATHAN POSS

The Howard College Hawks gained some sweet revenge here Monday night over the Clarendon Bulldogs, and in the process stayed even with Frank Phillips in the important race for second place in the final WJC standings, scoring an 88-73 triumph.

Clarendon was the first team to deal the Hawks a loss in WJC play, taking a 66-63 win in January after the Howard men had reeled off seven straight league victories.

But in this game that started sleepily slow and finished on the run, the Hawks never trailed.

The early slowness was the fault of Clarendon, who came out intent on working the ball around until the Hawks went to sleep. It didn't work, however, as the Howard College men were not to be distracted.

With Randy Corker scoring the first four points of the game, the Hawks moved out for an 11-4 advantage. Clarendon rallied to 11-9, setting the tone for the first half.

Howard would increase their lead to nine and 11 points in the first half, only to see Clarendon rally in the manner that they did in their upset win.

But when they came close, the Hawks would pull away, seeming to only tease the Clarendon team.

Kenneth Jones was the biggest teaser for the Hawks, scoring 13 of his game high 24 points in the first half. It was by far one of the slender high jumper's better offensive nights.

The Hawks finally managed a 36-27 lead by the intermission, and gradually began increasing it in the second half.

The Clarendon team was smaller in the second half, and the Hawks used the inside play of Corker, Jones and Atkins in stretching that margin comfortably and quickly in the second half.

With 10 minutes left, the Hawks had a healthy 60-45 lead.

Shortly later, they all but salted the game away, moving on to a 72-53 lead. From there, it was simply a matter of playing out the clock.

While the score was not close, there were some points of interest for the fans in the contest, mainly in the form of technicals.

A total of four were called in the contest, and for a variety of reasons, although three of them were a direct result of dunk shots.

Two were on Corker, with the first coming early in the game. It was issued because "Chief" was wearing a necklace. His second T came with 10:55 left for hanging on the rim after dunking the ball.

Jones also received a technical, and it was also for an indirect result of a slam dunk. After slamming the ball hard through the hoop, Jones knocked the ball out of bounds, much to the chagrin of official Spunky Speegle.

Clarendon also received a technical when Valentine Underwood grabbed the rim.

The win set up the Hawks final game with NMJC on the road on Thursday. A win would put the Hawks as the number two WJC team in the Region V Tournament next week, regardless of what Frank Phillips does Thursday. That is because even if the two teams are tied, the Hawks have a better power rating than Frank Phillips.

The win over NMJC won't come easy, however, as the Thunderbirds will be playing for their season. If NMJC wins, they will qualify for the Region V affair as the fifth place WJC team. But a loss could throw them into a tie with Amarillo College.

The Hawks received a more balanced scoring attack than usual in the win. Besides Jones' 24 points, Corker added 19, and Crushon, Loving and Atkins 14 each.

Barry Kirk had 20 for Clarendon, now 5-12 in WJC play.

Hawk Queens stay in WJC title race with tough win

By NATHAN POSS

The Howard College Hawk Queens retained their hopes of repeating as the Western Conference women's champion here Monday evening, taking a 78-71 triumph over the surprisingly tough Clarendon Bulldogs.

The Hawk Queens, rated 17th nationally, were thought by many to be heavy favorites over Clarendon, a team that entered the contest with a misleading conference record of 4-6 and a season mark of 9-12.

But the Clarendon team proved to be more than that, playing the Hawk Queens on even terms before freshman Cynthia Robinson took control in the final minutes to break a tie and give the Hawk Queens their eighth conference win in 11 starts, and set the stage for their showdown with league leading Amarillo on the road Thursday night.

The close contest didn't surprise a relieved Howard Coach Don Stevens, however. "I didn't think we played that sharp, but I'm very happy to win over Clarendon," Stevens stated. "They can be as tough as anybody in the conference."

Before the game, Stevens had related that Clarendon's

Cassandra Crumpton was as good a player as there is in the WJC women's league, and she did nothing to disprove that in the opening half.

With both teams hitting nearly everything they threw toward the bucket, it was a see-saw battle of hot shooting teams. Crumpton was the hottest, however, hitting 17 first half points as the two teams were knotted at 45-45 at the intermission.

All of Howard's points in the first half were balanced between five players — Robinson, Melissa Luna, Kelly Lyons, Carrie Lee Lutrick and Carol Wasserman.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS: Howard 78, Clarendon 71; Amarillo 74, South Plains 61.

The teams stayed close in the second half, and with Lyons, the Hawk Queens sure fire All-American candidate resting some on the bench, the Howard women held a 62-61 lead with just over 10 minutes remaining in the game.

Stevens reinserted the 6'3" Lyons back in the line-up, and the repercussions were immediate. Lyons scored five points in the next two minutes to give the hosts a 67-61 advantage and seemingly gave the Howard team some momentum.

But Clarendon paid no attention, battling back to stay close, and finally tying the game at 71-71 with 4:23 to play on a bucket by Lisa Freeman.

It was to be the last point of the game for the spunky Clarendon women.

For a while, it didn't appear Howard would, either, but Luna finally put in a field goal under heavy pressure inside with 3:18 to play to give the Hawk Queens the lead for good.

From this point, the offense belonged to Robinson, the freshman from Slaton.

She added two field goals and a free throw through the rest of the game, and the Hawk Queens defense was rugged when it counted the most.

Lyons was especially tough, blocking three shots in the final minutes.

Howard College, now 26-6 on the year, must win their contest at Amarillo on Thursday to claim at least a share of the WJC title. But a win there might only produce a share with three other teams, as Amarillo has only two losses, and Western Texas and Odessa only three each with one game left.

Midland clinches WJC

MIDLAND — The Midland College Chaparrals clinched the Western Conference men's basketball title here Monday night, racing to a 96-80 win over Odessa College.

The WJC title was the first ever for the successful Midland College team, although they have been able to advance to the Region V title twice in their eight-year history.

Midland, now 15-2 in conference with one game remaining and 27-2 on the year, jumped out to a 39-30 halftime lead and then extended it in the second half.

Puntus Wilson had 24 points to pace the balanced Chaparral attack which saw five performers hit in double figures. Others in double figures were Charles Johnson with 15, Ernie Tate with 13, Virgil Slay with 12 and Lance McCain with 10.

Odessa, now 5-12 in conference play and 14-15 on the year, was led by Sterling Williams' 23 points.

A crowd of 2,300 watched the game in Chaparral Center, as Midland continued drawing the largest crowds in the WJC.

Steers host OHS tonight

The Big Spring Steers boys basketball team, fresh from a win over the Abilene Cooper Cougars that knocked that team out of the District 5-AAAAA race, make their final home appearance of the year here tonight when they play host to the Odessa High Bronchos. The game is slated for an eight o'clock tipoff in Steer Gym, with a JV game between the two schools set for 6:15 p.m.

The Steers handed Abilene Cooper a 57-56 loss on Friday night with an excellent effort. That loss to Cooper knocked the Cougars out of a chance at catching Midland High in the 5-AAAAA race.

Big Spring is now 2-3 in the second half and 12-18 on the year. They won their first decision over Odessa, taking a 50-41 triumph.

Astro arms still gone

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Houston Astros pitchers and catchers continued workouts here today minus starting pitchers Don Sutton, Nolan Ryan and Ken Forsch and reliever Joaquín Andujar.

Under baseball rules, players are not required to be in camp until March 1.

Ryan told friends he likely would arrive Wednesday. For the second year in a row, Andujar was having visa problems in the Dominican Republic.

Forsch's plans were unknown. The Astros' veteran has asked to be traded and the Astros still are trying to make a deal.

Virdon said he might suggest that General Manager Al Rosen seek a right-handed hitting shortstop to relieve Craig Reynolds.

"I'm not trying to short-change Craig," Virdon said. "He's our starting shortstop and I believe he'll have a better year offensively than he did last season. But Craig bats left handed and he could use occasional rest anyway."

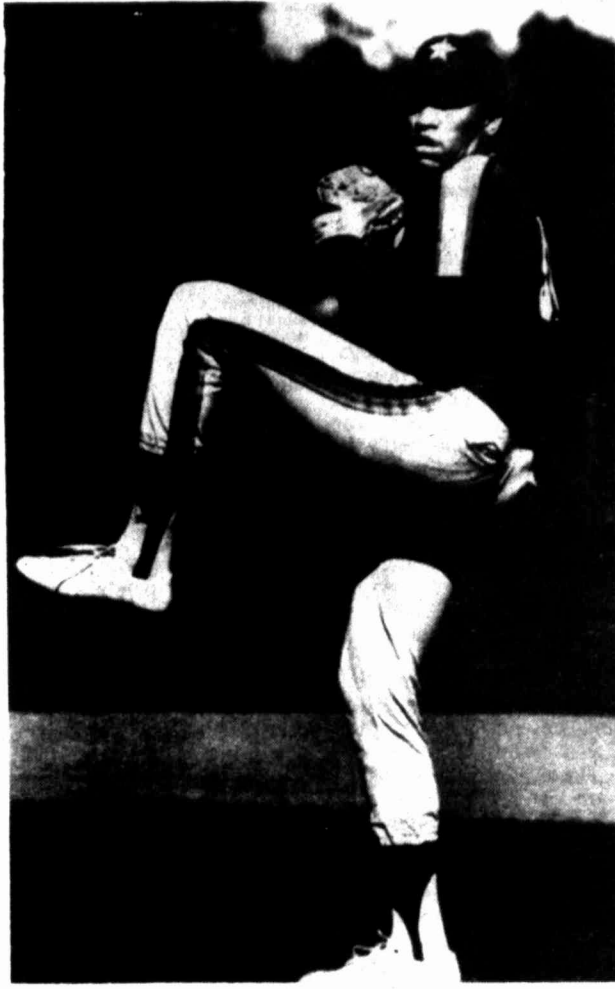

Those who have arrived early aren't loafing said Virdon, intent on squashing any complacency.

"It's a new season and what we accomplished last year won't help us win games now," Virdon said.

Recent roundball point shavings has college grid mentors worried

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The tremors emanating from college basketball's latest point-shaving episode are sending shock waves through the nation's football coaches, aware that their sport is not immune from the possibility of fixed games.

Just because college football has never been publicly embarrassed by such a scandal doesn't mean it can't happen.

"Certainly it can. All coaches worry about it," says Florida State's Bobby Bowden.

"Yes, easy," echoes Grant Teaff of Baylor.

"It's been attempted, no question about it," adds Georgia's Vince Dooley.

"Why not?" asks Bo Schembechler of Michigan.

"I think it could happen if you read about something like the basketball thing, it kind of shakes you up."

The coaches were among those attending the National Collegiate Athletic Association's fifth annual College Football Preview, which winds up today.

"I think these basketball stories will make us more aware," said Bowden. "It scares me."

When Bowden coached at West Virginia, he "read the riot act" to his team in a closed meeting early one week after it had lost several games in a row.

"We went down to Miami on Thursday for a game and someone showed me an ad for a San Francisco gambling service that said, 'Look out for this game. Bobby Bowden called a meeting and came down hard...."

Gamblers have tried to fix college football games. If anyone succeeded, it remains a well-kept secret. A gambler involved in basketball fixes approached a University of Florida footballer before a game with Florida State 20 years ago, but the player turned him in and he was subsequently apprehended.

Coaches have different methods of warning their players about the pitfalls, but there is no end to people seeking information that could be useful to bettors.

"We talk to them every fall about gamblers," said Missouri's Warren Powers. "We talk to them about people who want inside information about injuries. I'm sure every campus has some guy like that around."

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A new interest presents itself today and it would be wise to study it carefully. Plan to make more money.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Discuss mutual plans for the days ahead with associates and come to a fine agreement. Sidelstep a troublemaker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Monetary affairs are clear to you now and you can handle them well. Don't permit family ties to upset you tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Go after some personal aims early in the day and gain them easily. Show increased loyalty to associates.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go to a trusted adviser and gain the information you need to solve a difficult problem you have. Maintain a cheerful outlook.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Look to a good friend for assistance in some personal aims of importance to you. Engage in social activities tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Outside affairs can be successful in the morning, but safeguard your credit and good name. Strive for increased happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can now get a clearer picture of where you are headed and can develop it well. Avoid an argument with a friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have an excellent chance to get ahead in your line of endeavor at this time. Gain the cooperation of associates.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Express appreciation to those who have been loyal to you in the past. You can benefit from new ideas at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your environment and make needed changes. New situations arise from which you can gain benefits.

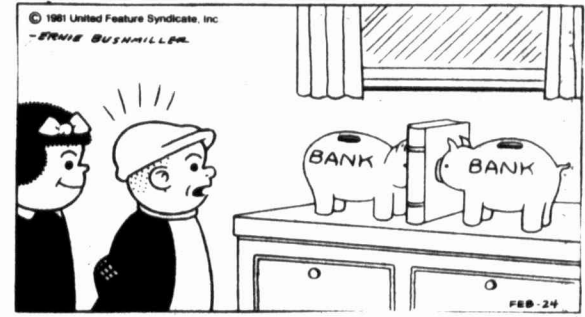

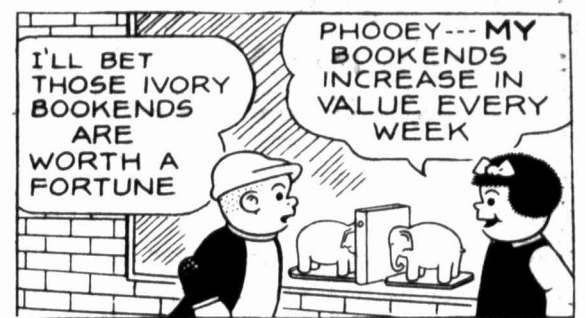

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be alert in all your business dealings at this time. Evening is fine for improving your personal and social life.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who has much ability at solving difficult problems, so give as fine an education as you can and direct it towards business matters for best results. Don't neglect ethical and religious studies.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Clements in favor Reagan economics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with billions in lost federal aid, the nation's governors appear ready to tell President Reagan they can bear their share of budget cuts only if they get relief from federal laws dictating such things as how much health and welfare aid they give the poor.

A draft resolution for today's closing session of the National Governors' Association winter meeting would endorse Reagan's economic recovery program in principle while demanding less federal red tape and more power for the states.

Reagan's economic measures disclosed so far would cut government spending for the states by about $1.3 billion in the current fiscal year and by $12.5 billion in fiscal 1982.

To support that, the draft resolution said, Reagan must meet certain conditions, including sufficient lead time to allow them to adjust to the cuts and immediate flexibility in administering federal programs once the cuts are made.

Some states already are drafting their own fiscal 1982 budgets with no definite idea of what will be in Reagan's detailed spending blueprint, which is due March 10. Even when the states know the full extent of Reagan's austerity measures, it will take them a year or more to adjust their own finances, most governors agree.
