Ask Us

Q. — Were any of the old downtown Christmas decorations hung this year and, if not, what happened to them?

A. — All of the decorations hung on light poles around the square and along College Ave. are new. Regarding the old ones, they were used as trade-ins for the new decorations.

Physicist is national security adviser

WASHINGTON (AP) — John M. Poindexter, the publicity-shy nuclear physicist picked as President Reagan's new national security adviser, says he is not worried about White House power struggles because of assurances of unchallenged access to the Oval Office.

Poindexter, No. 2 man on the National Security Council staff, moved up Wednesday with the resignation of his boss, Robert C. McFarlane.

Despite well-publicized friction with White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan, McFarlane denied he was leaving because of any feud. "That's nonsense," he replied.

Reagan also dismissed reports of tension between the two top aides. "You have all been misinformed about that," the president told reporters during an appearance in the White House press briefing room with McFarlane and Poindexter.

A 27-year Navy officer with the rank of vice admiral, Poindexter was virtually unknown outside the realm of foreign policy and defense.

During the brief appearance with the president and McFarlane, Poindexter said he was not concerned that he will face a power struggle with Regan.

Escapee returned to jail

John Fitzgerald Davis of Midland was returned to the Scurry County Jail shortly after 4 p.m. Wednesday — ending a 19-hour manhunt that had occupied law enforcment officers from three counties since Tuesday evening.

The 20-year-old Davis was captured in a storage building on a farm southeast of the old city landfill by Scurry County Sheriff Keith Collier along with Department of Public Safety highway patrolmen Pat Alexander and Larry Brown.

A woman who lives alone at the farm had called the sheriff's office shortly before 3:30 p.m. Wednesday and reported seeing a black man with no shirt looking in her window.

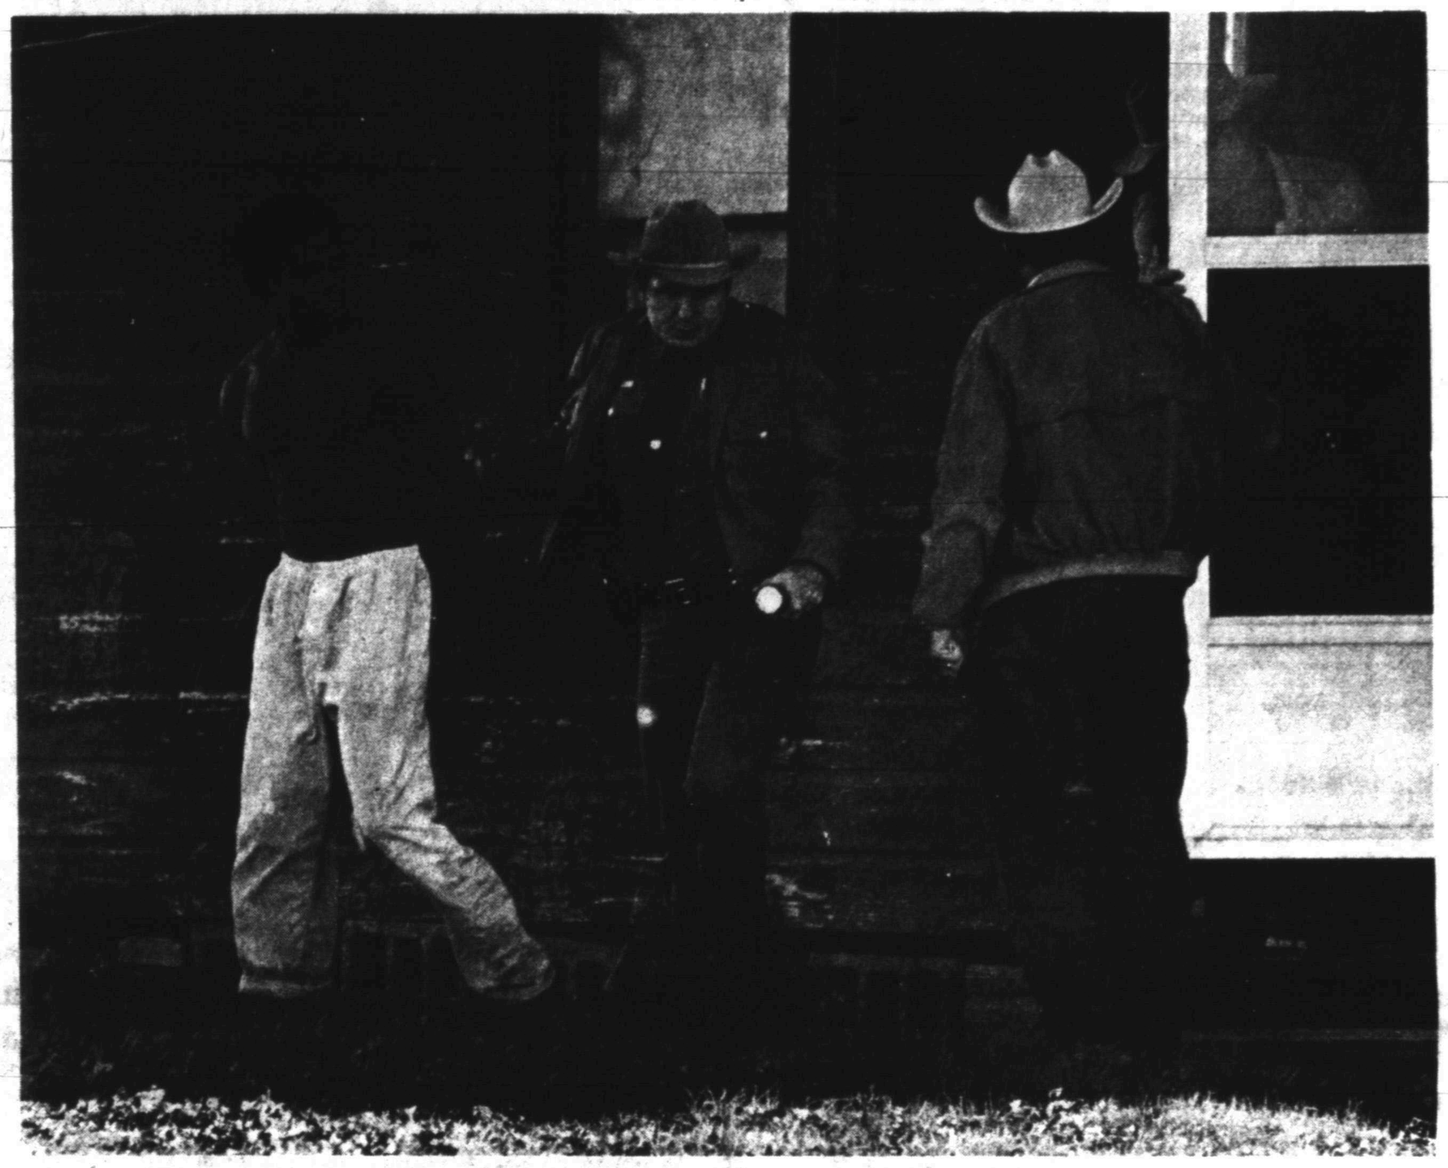

When that report came in, Collier, Scurry County deputies, highway patrolmen and sheriff's personnel from Nolan and Mitchell Counties were still searching the area surrounding Deep Creek south of Snyder.

By the time officers arrived at the rural residence, however, the man had disappeared.

A jail shirt found stuffed under the storage building led officers to believe the suspect was nearby, however.

The searchers began walking the fields surrounding the house when Collier said he heard a noise inside the storage building.

Decorations sought for community tree

A community Christmas tree — one which Scurry County families are encouraged to bring ornaments for — will be erected on the south side of the Scurry County Courthouse Friday.

"We want it to be a way of saying Merry Christmas to the community," said Donna Fowler, a chamber committee member heading up the tree idea.

Its decoration will be part of the second visit from Santa Claus planned through the chamber Friday night. He is scheduled to arrive at 6:30 p.m. on the square.

Regarding the ornaments, Fowler noted, "we hope county families will put their names on the ornament somewhere, keeping in mind that it will have to be out in the winter weather until Christmas."

She added it is hoped most of the decorations can be placed on the tree Friday night, but individuals may bring these to the chamber office until Christmas or simply place the ornament on the tree themselves. There is no limit to the number of ornaments per family.

The chamber notes it cannot be responsible for returning these, however.

The tree itself will be donated to the chamber courtesy of the Snyder Rotary Club.

Assuming ISD vote passes July 1 ending date in effect

Assuming Hermleigh voters approved a proposal next Jan. 18 to abolish their school district, it appears the actual date of shutting down school operations would be effective July 1.

State education officials contacted in Austin last week said they interpreted the law to indicate the district's abolishment would be "immediate."

They noted with this, however, that county commissioners — the elected body which would assume responsibility for the abolished district — would have considerable leeway setting a time frame for the annexation of the district with another.

Hermleigh Superintendent Jerry Church noted this week, however, his understanding was that July 1 would be the effective date.

A further check with attorneys for both the Texas Association of School Boards and the Texas Education Agency indicated state law apparently does not directly address this issue regarding a district's "abolishment."

Regarding the "annexation" of a district, however, the law states this must occur on the first July 1 following a 30 day period after the canvassing of such votes by the county commissioners.

Pat Whalen, an attorney with the general counselor's office for the Texas Education Agency, said, "While it's not specifically addressed, I think you could argue that the rule applying to annexation spills over into other areas like abolishment."

In referring to a district's attempt to abolish itself, an attorney with TASB noted, "No one is really an expert in this area of the law, mainly because it just hasn't happened that often. An attorney specializing in it would starve to death."

The district would be abolished "immediately," both noted. The July 1 date could then be applied.

Despite the fact that Stinson Drug had edged out football experts from two other coffee shops in the season football picks, the armchair quarterbacks were angry Monday morning.

The group's attitude was like that of the Aggie defense against UT last Thursday. And the fact that Stinson grid forecasters had nudged out Bell-Cypert-Seale by one game and the Spanish Inn by two games did not calm the crowd's surly mood.

Monday traditionally is not one of the better days at the drug store, but this past Monday was worse.

"Did you see Sewell's picture in the paper?" one fellow asked.

"Yeah, he had his foot hiked up on on an apple crate," said another.

"He should have to buy the coffee," exclaimed another.

Sewell was a volunteer model for last Monday's style show which benefitted "Meals on Wheels."

It really wasn't Morris Sewell they were miffed at. "Why didn't they ask us?" inquired another Stinson regular.

It wasn't long before peace was restored. There was a call from Howard Limmer, manager of Anthony's, who wanted the entire group as models–for ski masks.

Regan has post at oval office door

Ap Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Reagan announced he was changing national security advisers, White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan was conspicuously absent from his usual place just off stage.

But he was no less the center of attention.

There were widespread reports that it was friction between Regan and outgoing National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane — particularly over access to the president — that led to McFarlane's decision to resign.

McFarlane dismissed the reports as nonsense on Wednesday, and his successor, Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, assured reporters Regan had promised him direct access to the president.

But the latest White House personnel change nonetheless was interpreted in many quarters as yet another case in which the chief of staff had cemented his own position as gatekeeper to the president.

"I know there are those who are attributing this to a power grab," said one senior official who has contact with all three presidential aides. "It goes with the carpet in the corner office."

But Regan's corner office, just down the hall from Reagan's oval one, has drawn more fire since Regan's been in it than it has in a long time.

"There used to be three to take the various lightning bolts aimed at this place," said the aide, recalling Reagan's first term when James A. Baker III, Michael K. Deaver and Edwin Meese III shared power just beneath Reagan. "Now, there's just one."

But that explanation, by an aide who with others inside the White House discussed the McFarlane departure and Regan's role in it on condition they not be named, doesn't fully explain the controversy that dogs Reagan's second-term chief of staff.

Regan's brusque, impatient style and his perceived tendency — one he vociferously denies — to surround himself with faceless, loyal followers have made him a prime target of critics inside the administration and on Capitol Hill who prefer not to challenge Regan's more amiable and much more popular boss.

Congressional Republicans question Regan's political savvy. And there were cries of outrage from members of both parties during last month's summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev when Regan was quoted as saying women were less interested in substantive issues than in the two leaders' wives.

One observer who served on the senior staff in a previous administration says of Regan, the former Treasury secretary and chairman of Merrill Lynch & Co., "He thinks he's in the executive suite of his old company, where he says, 'Jump!' and everybody jumps. But the White House isn't that kind of place. It's a collegial environment, not a fiefdom."

There is, indeed, hardly anyone left at the top strata of the White House who doesn't owe his job to Don Regan. McFarlane was among the last to go.

Actress Anne Baxter said hospitalized

NEW YORK (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Anne Baxter remained hospitalized in critical condition early today, authorities said. She reportedly had suffered a stroke.

Miss Baxter, 62, was in the Lenox Hill Hospital intensive care unit, and her condition had remained unchanged since Wednesday, Beulah Corrigan, a hospital spokeswoman, said this morning.

The actress collapsed on the street and was admitted to the hospital at 10:15 a.m. Wednesday, Ms. Corrigan said, but would not discuss the actress's ailment.

Miss Baxter's Los Angeles publicist, Joyce Wagner, told the New York Post, "She's had a serious stroke."

"We don't know yet what damage has been done. The next 48 hours will tell," she said.

The actress, granddaughter of architect Frank Lloyd Wright, currently appears on ABC-TV's "Hotel" in the role of Victoria Cabot, the wealthy widow who runs the hotel.

She joined the series after Bette Davis, who starred as hotel owner Laura Trent, was taken ill in 1983.

Bill Barron, the press agent for "Hotel," said the television show is currently in production and he doesn't know what will happen as a result of Miss Baxter's illness.

"We are all praying for her," said Douglas Cramer, executive producer of the "Hotel" series.

Miss Baxter made her feature film debut in "Twenty Mule Team" in 1940, and followed with such films as "The Magnificent Ambersons," "The Pied Piper" and "Five Graves to Cairo" while under contract with 20th Century-Fox Studios.

She won an Academy Award in 1946 for best supporting actress in the hit movie, "The Razor's Edge." She later received another nomination for her portrayal of the scheming young actress Eve Harrington in the 1950 film "All About Eve," in which Miss Davis played the aging star Margo Channing.

Other film credits include "The Luck of the Irish," "Full House," "The Ten Commandments," "Cimmaron" and "Fool's Parade."

She starred on Broadway and toured the country in Noel Coward's "In Two Keys." In 1971, she assumed the role of Margo Channing in the Broadway production of "Applause," the musical based on "All About Eve."

Her television roles include the miniseries "East of Eden," and "The Money Changers," the TV movies "Little Mo" and the BBC's "Masks of Death." She also has appeared in "The Love Boat."

Miss Baxter also wrote "Intermission: A True Story," a critically acclaimed, best-selling book about her life as the wife of cattle rancher Randolph Galt in Australia after she left Hollywood.

Researchers predict vaccine development

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Researchers attending a conference on vaccine research predict that a successful vaccine against AIDS will be created by 1987.

"I think enough people are trying enough different things that by 1987 we should have an effective vaccine," Dr. Gordon Dreesman, head of virology and immunology at Southwest Foundation for Biomedical Research, told the San Antonio Light on Wednesday.

Dreesman spoke at "Vaccine 85," a conference on new techniques to bolster natural defenses to such diseases as cancer, hepatitis, schistosomiasis and arthritis.

Sponsored by the foundation, the conference attracted 150 researchers from universities, drug companies and private institutions.

Dreesman and other researchers discounted difficulties involved in finding a vaccine against acquired immune deficiency syndrome, including the still-puzzling question of what parts of the AIDS virus, when injected in a person, would prompt immunity to the disease without causing damaging side effects.

"There are all these questions that aren't yet answered, but I think we will make a vaccine and it will work," said Dr. Eric J. Patzer, senior scientist at Genentech Inc. of California.

The company, which pioneered gene splicing as a method of making large quantities of rare substances, such as human growth hormones, already has developed an AIDS diagnostic kit.

"Since we have a protein to make a diagnostic kit," Patzer said, "the next step would be to make the vaccine."

Dreesman said AIDS vaccines made using four techniques were expected to be tested in primates at the Southwest Foundation during 1986.

Here are two good "don'ts" to remember when it comes to doubling. First, don't make a close double when the opponents freely bid a game that they expect to make. Second, don't double when you may be alerting the declarer to the best way to play the hand. In today's deal, West forgot both rules.

After the double, declarer knew he was running into a stack of trumps behind him. Rather than lead out trumps, he embarked on a different tack. After trumping the opening diamond lead, he played the A-K of spades and trumped a spade in dummy. He trumped another diamond, and then played king of clubs and a club toward dummy. West, who could not gain by ruffing in, discarded a diamond. Declarer took dummy's club ace, ruffed a third diamond in his hand and played the jack of spades.

At this point declarer had eight tricks in, and West had to be careful or South would score an overtrick. (If West discards a diamond on the fourth spade, declarer can ruff in dummy and then lead clubs to end play West in the trump suit.) It's certainly not clear that West would have avoided all these problems by quietly passing, but it is more likely that declarer, to his detriment, would have played trumps earlier if West had not made a precipitous penalty double.

Fads won't help arthritis

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have osteoarthritis in my knees and feet. My doctor has me taking eight to 10 Ascriptin a day and riding an exercise bike, with no tension, two to four hours a day. I have been doing this for six months, and it has definitely helped, but I still can't walk without pain. Is it safe to use DMSO on my knees? Also, someone suggested I use WD-40. I would like your opinion on both.

DEAR READER — Ask your doctor about nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory agents (NSAIDS), new medicines for arthritis. They contain no aspirin, work better than acetominophen and are less dangerous than cortisone. DMSO, a product applied to the skin, hasn't withstood the test of time for effectiveness; it doesn't work. Keep exercising and stay active. Forget WD-40, the spray-can lubricant. It will be of far more use on your bicycle chain than on your joints, and you won't have that greasy look.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a rare disease known as neurofibromatosis. I know it's hereditary and there is no cure for it. I can't find any material on what causes it and wondered if you could help.

DEAR READER — To my knowledge, no one has discovered the cause of neurofibromatosis, a disease characterized by multiple tumors of nerves. The disease affected the Elephant Man; fortunately, it does not affect all of its victims to that extent. If you are interested in learning more about the disorder, I suggest you read the appropriate sections in any of the medical textbooks that are available from your doctor or through the courtesy of the library at your local hospital.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What could cause bleeding from the urinary tract? It's like I have to keep urinating, but all that happened was bleeding bad. I went to three M.D.s and back to the surgeon who did a hysterectomy, and all I got was some big green pills. I had an operation on my bladder because I could not control urination, and I have had trouble ever since.

DEAR READER — Bleeding from the urinary tract is always abnormal and can reflect tumors, infection or severe inflammation. I don't know whether your problem is the consequence of your surgery — it's possible. You certainly cannot rely on big green pills for the rest of your life.

Your best choice at this time is, I think, to ask one of your doctors for a referral to a urologist. In my opinion, you need a cystoscopic exam, during which the specialist examines your lower urinary tract with a lighted instrument. X-rays of your kidneys may be in order, as may a urine culture (to rule out infection) and a coagulation profile (to make sure you do not have a bleeding tendency). A urologist can organize the evaluation and, I hope, treat your problem.

U.S. Navy drops bidding deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Dynamics Corp. may have been suspended from receiving new government contracts, but the Navy also is suspending a bidding deadline on a major submarine contract so the firm can participate.

The step was taken, despite General Dyanmics' indictment on fraud charges earlier this week, "to preserve competition and therefore lower prices in shipbuilding," Navy Secretary John F. Lehman said.

Lehman confirmed Wednesday the service had suspended "indefinitely" a Friday deadline for bids on construction of four nuclear-powered attack submarines.

Only two companies can make the Los Angeles-class submarines — the Electric Boat division of General Dynamics in Groton, Conn., and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. in Newport News, Va. The Navy has emphasized annual competitions between the two since the program started in the 1970s.

"This is not an action to protect General Dynamics," Lehman added. "This is an action to protect the public interest. ... It would be foolish of us to award a sole-source contract just to spite another contractor."

General Dynamics was suspended from receiving any new government contracts on Tuesday, just one day after the company and four of its current or former executives were indicted on fraud charges. The charges involve alleged mischarging of cost overruns in producing prototypes of the Army's Sgt. York air-defense gun.

General Dynamics spokesman Alvin Spivak declined to discuss the Navy's decision to suspend the bidding deadline. The company has denied any criminal wrongdoing in connection with the Sgt. York contract.

Jack Schnaedter, a spokesman for Newport News, also declined comment Wednesday.

The Navy's decision, made by Assistant Secretary Everett Pyatt and endorsed by Lehman, was described by another Navy source as "ironic" but necessary.

"Obviously if the suspension goes for an extended period, the situation might change," the source said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"But the problem we're faced with is if we don't extend the deadline, we're facing a sole-source bid. And they've been suspended because of misconduct on an Army contract.

"We don't want another Trident situation," the source concluded, referring to the fact that General Dynamics is the country's only source for Trident ballistic missile submarines.

The suspension is for an indefinite period. General Dynamics has 30 days to contest the action or to propose corrective actions that might convince the Pentagon to lift or limit the contract freeze.

When the freeze was announced, Pentagon sources warned it could have a major impact on the firm if not resolved quickly because of the approaching Friday deadline for bids on the attack submarines. Thanks to Pyatt's decision, the St. Louis-based defense giant for the time being may concentrate on getting the suspension lifted.

Judge sets date for murder trial

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) — A junior high school principal accused of killing a coach over a love triangle involving the school secretary is scheduled to stand trial Jan. 6.

State District Judge John Martin on Wednesday set the starting date for the murder trial of Woodson Junior High School principal Hurley Fontenot, 48, of Raywood.

Fontenot is charged in the shooting death of coach Billy Mac Fleming, 36, of Hull, who disappeared April 12 from the school. Fleming's body was found 10 days later in an isolated area.

Prosecutors contend Fontenot killed Fleming after learning the coach planned to marry the school secretary.

Fontenot has pleaded innocent to the murder charge and is free on $50,000 bond.

Defense material said sold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The classified documents Navy analyst Jonathan Jay Pollard is accused of selling to Israel included information on the radar-jamming techniques and electronic capabilities of Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Egypt and other moderate Arab governments, according to an informed U.S. official.

Some of the material dealt with counterterrorism, but the concentration was on electronic equipment as well as the overall military postures of the "friendly" countries, the official said Wednesday.

While the United States shares counterintelligence information on Libya and other radical regimes with Israel under the strategic cooperation and other agreements, it withholds data on technical equipment provided to Arab countries considered to be pro-American.

Through Pollard, arrested Nov. 21 as he sought asylum in the Israeli embassy, Israel thus was able to obtain information not available through regular U.S. channels, said the official, who insisted on anonymity.

Pollard has been charged with espionage and is being held without bond. His wife, Anne Henderson-Pollard, also is being held without bail pending grand jury action on charges of unauthorized possession of classified documents.

Israel has apologized publicly for the alleged espionage "to the extent that it did take place," and said if espionage is confirmed by investigators, any spy unit involved would be disbanded. Such a unit is believed to operate out of the Defense Ministry.

An Israeli source here said, meanwhile, "No one was spying on the United States. If there was anything it was to gather information on others."

As part of a deal worked out in a lengthy telephone exchange last weekend between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres, the documents are to be returned to the United States and the FBI will be permitted to interview two Israeli diplomats recalled in the scandal.

By retrieving the material, intelligence experts can determine how U.S. secrets are evaluated and used by even a friendly country, the official said. Israel's cooperation now also will provide clues on the leaks in a U.S. intelligence system shaken by disclosure of its vulnerability to spying.

Preliminary discussions began Monday when two senior Israeli officials, Menachem Meron, the director of the defense ministry, and Hanon Bar-On, deputy director of the foreign ministry, called at the State Department for a semi-annual review of the strategic cooperation agreement

Europeans still welcome in SDI

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Caspar Weinberger, the U.S. defense secretary, said today that the United States still would welcome European participation in "Star Wars" research, and that there are several billion dollars worth of contracts available.

Weinberger spoke to a German-American NATO policy seminar before meeting with the West German chancellor, Helmut Kohl. Some of West Germany's top government officials attended the seminar.

A government spokesman refused to comment on the meeting between Kohl and Weinberger, but said details would be released later today. Weinberger left Bonn for London after the meeting.

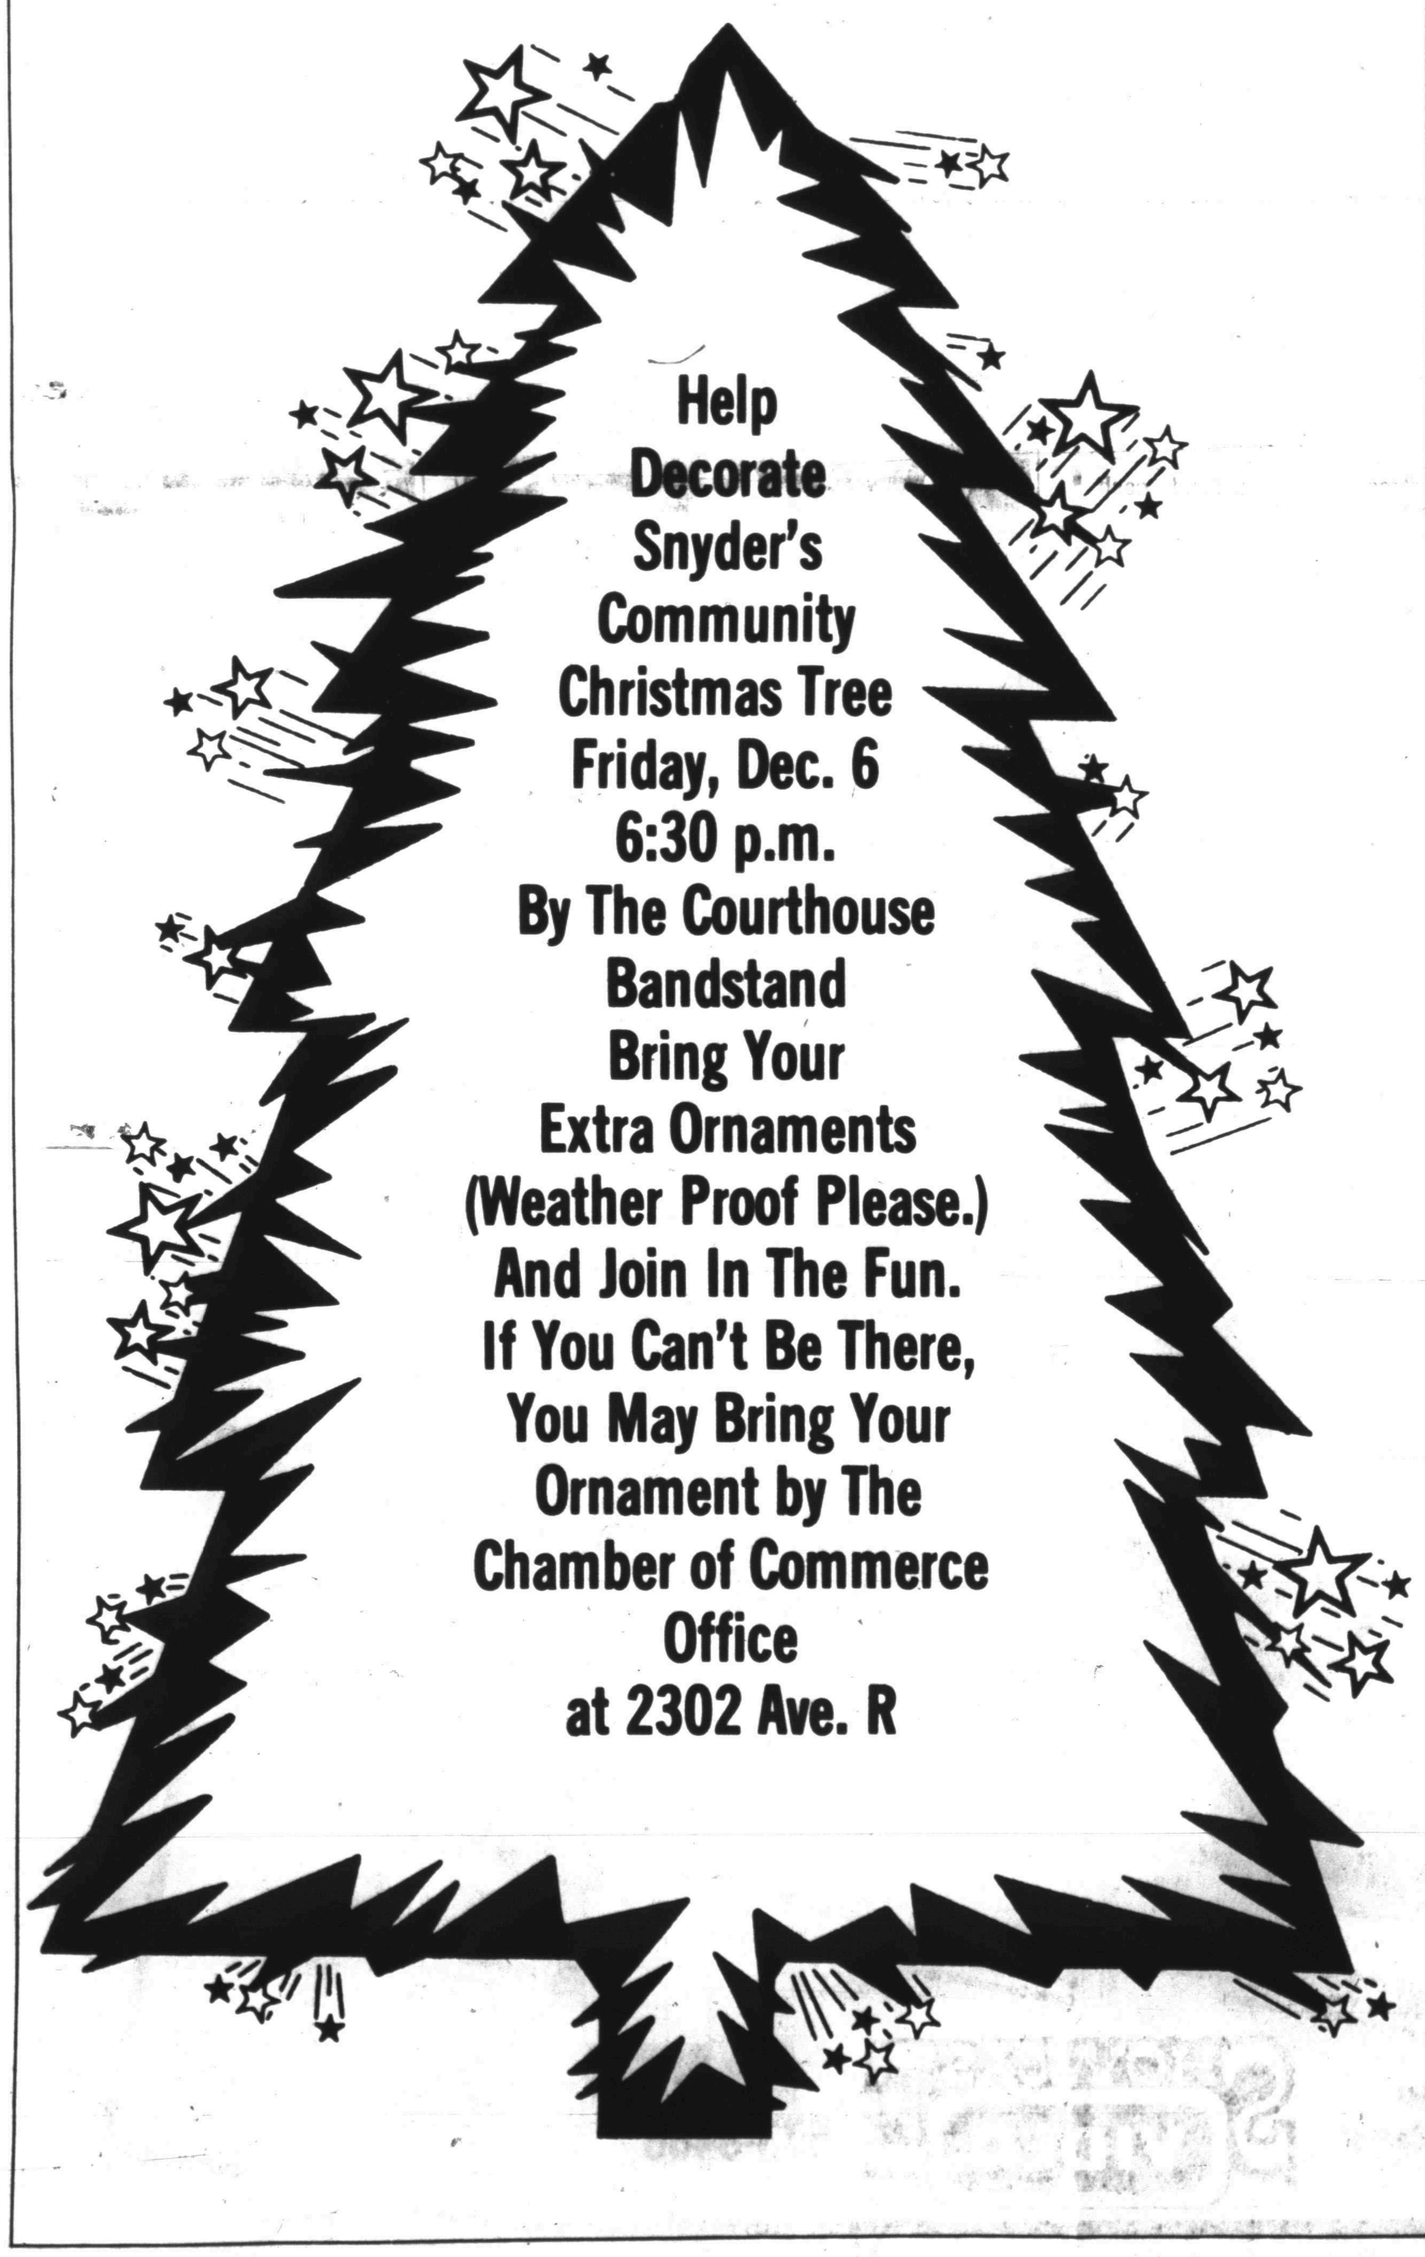

Only Britain has responded positively to a U.S. invitation to participate in research on the Strategic Defense Initiative, a plan for a space-based anti-missile system that popularly is known as "Star Wars." Kohl's government has been debating for months whether and how it should participate.

Dear Abby

Blind Classmate Overlooked At 35th High School Reunion

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended my 35th high school class reunion. It was the first reunion I had ever attended and I could hardly wait to get there.

Unfortunately, it was a big disappointment. Very few people spoke to me. When the class picture was taken, even the people standing next to me ignored me.

I learned later that they were embarrassed because they didn't know what to say to a blind man. Abby, if they had just said, "Hello, my name is So-and-So," believe me, I would have kept the conversation going.

I enjoy talking to people. My mind and hearing are not impaired, but a blind person can't walk around a room, patting shoulders and getting chummy like a sighted person. We just sit in our chairs and wait for people to come to us. I wanted so much to talk to some of my classmates, but very few would speak to me.

Please print this to let sighted people know that it is up to them to initiate a conversation with a blind person.

MR. ANONYMOUS

DEAR MR. ANONYMOUS: I'm glad you wrote. Your letter gives me an ideal opportunity to share some helpful hints on how to interact with a blind person. I quote a booklet provided as a public service by the Braille Institute:

"When you enter a room, please speak to me so I will know that you are there, and tell me your name immediately. Also introduce me to everyone else in the room; otherwise I may not know that they are there. If possible, let me know that 'Mr. Brown' is across the table, and 'Mr. Smith' is seated at my left, etc.

"Also tell me if there is a dog or cat in the room, then guide my hand to a chair. Describe the furniture placement and objects I might be apt to bump into, such as a door left ajar, a footstool, or a child's toy on the floor.

"If we go to a restaurant, please read the menu to me, including prices. I may ask for help cutting my meat. Describe the food placement to me as on a clock face. Potatoes at 12, carrots at 3, steak at 6, a tomato at 9, etc. Then I'll do just fine.

"Are you curious to know if I was born blind, or did I have some kind of accident? Don't be shy, ask me. I may be just as anxious to tell you as you are to ask.

"Don't avoid words like 'see.' I use them, too. Don't stumble over words like 'visually handicapped' or 'partially sighted.' I am blind. I know it. You know it. Be comfortable with it.

"Don't give me undeserved compliments or make patronizing remarks about accomplishments that are commonplace for a sighted person.

"If I have a Seeing Eye dog, remember he is not my 'pet'—he is trained to guide and protect me, so please don't pet him or try to play with him—he's on duty, doing the job for which he was trained.

"Please don't raise your voice to me. I am not hard of hearing; I'm only blind. If you are accompanying me to a store or restaurant, please encourage the clerks and waiters to speak directly to me, not through you. I am able to think, make decisions and talk. I just can't see.

"I am really the same as a sighted person, so please don't treat me as though I'm 'special.' Just walk beside me and be my friend."

Agents of ABC raid still in Elysian Fields, Texas

ELYSIAN FIELDS, Texas (AP) — Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission officials stopped an illegal whiskey-making operation by smashing 55-gallon drums and chopping copper tubing and glass jars full of whiskey with an ax.

TABC agents made the raid Wednesday afternoon.

Officials from Harrison, Gregg and Upshur counties discovered the "moonshine operation" last week, said TABC agent Jim Hays.

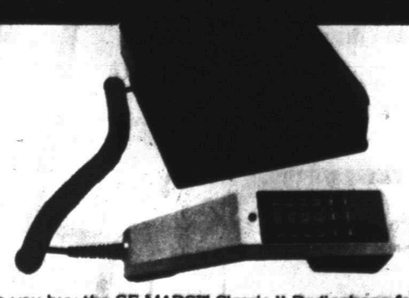

"Like with anything of this nature, we received information that the still was operating, and we located it and watched it until the old man got it brewing good. We try to catch the people in the act and that usually takes a lot of walking through the woods and staking out places. But it pays off," Hays said.

He said that agents planned later to investigate a report of another still north of Marshall. He said the raid was the first of the year.

The East Texas still consisted of two 55-gallon oil drums full of fermenting corn mash and water buried halfway in the ground with pine straw piled around the barrels for insulation.

"We don't find as many stills nowadays as we use to," TABC agent James Mathison said as he and fellow agents James Jantz, Ken Tullos and Hays began taking the still apart and chopping holes in the barrels so they couldn't be used again.

Intruder handcuffs Corpus Christi officer

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A Nueces County correctional officer who was handcuffed to her bed by an intruder says she waited more than 2½ hours for police after dialing the 9-1-1 emergency number.

Officer Rosandra Rene Williams told police a man entered her apartment about 5 a.m. Saturday and handcuffed her to her bed, taped her mouth and taped her feet together.

Miss Williams, 20, told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times she made one telephone call to the 9-1-1 emergency telephone number at about 6 a.m. but a police patrol unit did not respond until 8:46 a.m.

Police records, which would show the time the call was logged and the time a patrol unit was dispatched, were not available to the newspaper Wednesday.

Police Chief William C. Banner said an internal investigation has started on the incident.

"We are in the process of determining the cause of the delay and should have an answer tomorrow. It appears at this time it was a communication problem involving two or three people in the department," Banner said Wednesday.

He said that there was no problem with the city's relatively new 9-1-1 emergency telephone system.

Miss Williams told police that she heard a noise at the front door of her home. She did not see anyone when she opened the door, but as she turned to close the door a man entered.

She said the intruder placed what felt like a knife to her back and told her to go to the bedroom.

Miss Williams said when she tried to struggle, the man took her handcuffs and handcuffed her hands to the headboard of her bed and taped her feet together. He placed tape over her mouth.

She said she managed to turn her head and pull some of the tape from her mouth, then pick up a cordless telephone with her feet and toss it near her head.

Dallas to ban smoking

DALLAS (AP) — Cigarette smokers who give in to a nicotine fit in a Dallas restaurant, grocery store or bank could face prosecution and a $200 fine.

The Dallas City Council unanimously approved Wednesday an ordinance making smoking illegal in retail establishments with 500 or more square feet of floor space.

Individuals who violate the law could be fined up to $200 and could be prosecuted in municipal court, but only after a complaint is filed with the city attorney's office.

The city will not "police" retail establishments looking for violations, officials said.

The ordinance, which relies on voluntary compliance, survived six attempts by several council members to weaken it and ended more than a year of debate on the issue.

"This ordinance changes the presumption that smoking is okay when you walk into a public building," said Dallas attorney Joe Guida, chairman of the city subcommittee that developed the ordinance.

More than 20 speakers from both groups appeared before the council Wednesday to present their positions.

"I believe we have a good ordinance that will help protect the health of our citizens but still will not be an administrative burden to the businesses it affects nor create them any economic problems," Mayor Pro Tem Annette Strauss said.

Smoking was formerly considered legal in banks, grocery and other retail stores unless it was restricted by a sign.

The new ordinance, which takes effect on Feb. 6 and will make Dallas among dozens with similar restrictions, requires restaurants with 50 or more seats (about 80 percent of the city's total) to set aside an unspecified number of tables for nonsmokers and to prohibit smoking in common areas, such as restrooms and around cash registers.

Representatives of tobacco, hotel, restaurant and retail interests and non-smoking advocates ultimately agreed that they could live with the law.

Dallas attorney Ron Kessler, who represents a coalition of Dallas hotel, retail and restaurant owners and national tobacco interests, said the ordinance was "much better" than earlier, stricter proposals.

The restrictions also apply to city-owned public buildings.

City Council members — acknowledging that they are relying on voluntary compliance — agreed to evaluate the effectiveness of the law in six months.

Retail businesses could be fined up to $500 for failing to post signs designating smoking and non-smoking sections. They also can be fined for failing to have a written smoking policy on file.

Sakharov's wife said likely to seek extension of visa

SIENA, Italy (AP) — The eye doctor treating Soviet dissident Yelena Bonner says he believes she will seek an extension of her three-month stay in the West so she can undergo a cataract operation.

Dr. Renato Frezzotti examined Mrs. Bonner, wife of dissident and Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei D. Sakharov, for about three hours at his office Wednesday and sent her to a nearby laboratory for a specialized field-of-vision test.

Frezzotti said the cataract operation could wait until Mrs. Bonner returns from the United States. She plans to visit the United States for treatment of a heart condition that could require coronary by-pass surgery.

"I think she will ask for an extension" of the visa, the Italian eye specialist said, adding that he believes her eye condition cannot be corrected before her three-month visa expires.

"It's not the moment to consider an (eye) operation," he said.

Relatives have said they believe Soviet authorities would grant a visa extension for medical reasons.

After the exam, Mrs. Bonner, 62, went from this Tuscan hilltop city to nearby Florence to spend the night with Russian friends. Her future travel plans were not made public.

Frezzotti treated Mrs. Bonner for glaucoma in 1975 and 1977, and examined her again in 1979 during her last visit to the West.

She needs to be examined "every three or four months, not every six years," he said, adding that her eye condition dates to wounds suffered during German bombing of the Soviet Union during World War II.

Glaucoma, which can lead to blindness, is a buildup of fluid that puts pressure on the optic nerve. Damage caused by glaucoma is incurable, Frezzotti said.

He said Mrs. Bonner's glaucoma was serious but stable and an operation to remove a cataract from her left eye would be "routine."

When she left the doctor's office, Mrs. Bonner made brief remarks in Russian thanking the city of Siena and the Italian people for their hospitality.

Scores of reporters jammed the alley in front of the doctor's office, and Mrs. Bonner's son, Alexei Semyonov, said his mother "was really frightened by the crowd."

Mrs. Bonner came to Italy on Monday. Her son said no date has been set for her trip to the United States.

WTC entertains Howard at 6 and 8

Home again, home again, dancing a jig.

They may not be dancing, but Western Texas College's Westerners are certainly happy to be back in Scurry County Coliseum for tonight's conference game with Howard College. Tonight's 8 o'clock contest will be only the third home contest for the Westerners who spent almost all of November on a winding trail across the state.

"It's going to be good to play at home. We've been on the road so long," said Coach Phil Spradling. "We're 10-4 right now and we feel like we're a better team than that, but it's tough playing on the road all the time."

Tonight's action gets underway at 6, when Coach Kelly Chadwick's Dusters entertain the Hawk Queens.

"We're glad to be starting conference," said Chadwick. "I think we're playing about as well as we can play right now."

Westerners vs Hawks

Spradling said he expects the Hawks to be tough.

"They've got a great shooter in Bruce Kimble. We've got to come out and try to stop him. There's a little bit of revenge factor in the ballgame because Howard is the team that knocked us out of the regional playoffs last year," he said.

Howard's men are 5-7 for the season. The game will be the Hawks' conference opener.

Coach Ed Sparling's squad is averaging 69.5 points, led by Kimble's 19.6. He also averages 4.8 rebounds a game.

Walt Reynolds is another top player for the Hawks. The 6-8 sophomore averages 9.6 points and has over 20 blocks this season.

Western and Howard are 1-2 in field goal shooting in the conference. WTC is averaging .555 from the field while Howard is averaging .530.

The Westerners, who average a league-leading 96.8 points, boast five players in double figures. Alvin Lee averages 21.1, Alvin Hicks 17.9, James Dawn 16.3, Cliff Langford 12.4 and Wally Manns 12.2. Dawn, a 6-5 sophomore who was all-conference last season, leads on the boards with 8.4 rebounds a game. Manns averages 8.1.

Dusters vs Hawk Queens

Tonight's women's game will be the conference tip-off battle for both WTC's Dusters and Howard's Hawk Queens.

The Dusters are 11-4 under Coach Kelly Chadwick. Don Stevens' Queens are 5-7.

Howard is led offensively by sophomore Lorri French, a .667 field goal shooter who is averaging 17 points a game - mostly from long range. Terri Powell averages 13.4 points while Carolyn Willandt, 6-1, is the Queens' leading rebounder with a 6.3 average.

Top scorers for WTC are Pam Cox, a 5-8 sophomore transfer from Amarillo, averaging 18.4, and 5-11 freshman Brenda Welch, who averages 17.4. Welch is averaging 7.6 rebounds a game.

WTC's ladies lead the conference in field goal shooting with a .503 average through 15 games. The also lead in team defense, allowing only 55 points a game.

Howard has struggled offensively in some games this season and is shooting just .376 from the field. The Queens average 67 points and are giving up 65.1.

Duke sprints to 7-0 record

by The Associated Press

A little bedraggled but none the worse for wear, the Duke Blue Devils have built a 7-0 record that can't help but enhance their No. 3 national ranking.

Duke, which has played four games in the past six days, defeated Vanderbilt 84-74 at Nashville, Tenn., Wednesday night with 21 points from guard Johnny Dawkins and 16 from forward Mark Alarie.

"Our whole team is tired," Alarie said after the latest of the Duke victories, "but in the second half, our experience showed. We were able to overcome the crowd advantage and the Vanderbilt enthusiasm. ... A few years ago, we wouldn't have comeback as well as we did tonight."

Other Top Twenty scores: No. 2 Michigan 56, Youngstown State 42; No. 5 Georgia Tech 94, Tennessee-Chattanooga 74; No. 7 Kansas 101, Western Carolina 79; No. 12 Illinois 84, Wisconsin-Green Bay 34, and No. 17 Alabama-Birmingham 63, East Tennessee State 44.

With two minutes left in the first half, Duke and Vanderbilt were tied 30-30. Duke scored the final six points of the half, then outscored the Commodores 12-6 in the opening minutes of the second half to build a 48-36 lead. Dawkins and Alarie each had four points in the second-half burst.

Top Ten

Unbeaten Michigan, using substitutes much of the game, got 12 points from starting guard Gary Grant to beat Youngstwon State. Michigan Coach Bill Frieder took out all of his starters except Grant with 12:03 gone in the first half, allowing Youngstown State to creep within a point, 25-24. Frieder went back to his starting lineup, and the 5-0 Wolverines scored the last seven points of the half to lead 32-24 at intermission. Youngstown State could get no closer the rest of the way.

Georgia Tech, playing its third road game in five days, got 25 points from guard Mark Price and 21 from forward Duane Ferrell to beat UT-Chattanooga. The Yellow Jackets, 3-1, led 49-47 when they went on an 11-2 run to lead 60-49 with 1½ minutes left. Price had six points during the spurt. UT-Chattanooga never got closer than nine points after that.

Kansas led by 13 points at halftime and outscored Western Carolina 13-6 to start the second half, taking a 57-37 lead with 16:14 to play. Danny Manning and Greg Dreiling had 21 points apiece for the 5-1 Jayhawks. Kansas took its biggest lead of the game, 79-51, on a jumper by Ron Kellogg with 8:42 to play. After that, Western Carolina got no closer than 18 points.

Second Ten

Illinois held winless Wis.-Green Bay, a Division II school, to just 14 first-half points en route to a 50-point victory. Bruce Douglas scored 14 points, Ken Norman had 11 and Efrem Winters 10 for Illinois, 3-1. The victory was Illinois's 25th straight at home, while Douglas became the 19th Illini player to top 1,000 points, entering the game with 999.

Jerome Mincy scored 17 points, and Alabama-Birmingham pulled away from East Tennessee State in the second half to win easily. The Blazers led 29-23 at halftime but outscored the Buccaneers 12-6 in the first 10 minutes of the second half. UAB, now 3-1, took their biggest lead of the game, 61-35, on a short jumper by Steve Mitchell with 2:33 to go.

In 1938 and 1939, Joe Louis knocked out seven straight challengers for the heavyweight championship and three of them went down in one round.

SMU, Baylor conquer basketball opponents

by The Associated Press

Southern Methodist coach Dave Bliss says it took the Mustangs time to make a dent in Prairie View's defense, but persistence paid off.

"The start of the second half was the key for us," said Bliss on Wednesday after SMU grabbed an 83-56 nonconference college basketball victory over the Panthers.

"They did a great job against us defensively the first half but our depth begin to wear them down in the second," said Bliss. "Johnny Fuller and John Colborne had excellent games coming off the bench for us tonight."

In other SWC games on Wednesday, Baylor whipped Texas Lutheran 84-53.

Kevin Lewis contributed 18 points to lead the Mustangs. Butch Moore added 15 points.

SMU held a slim six-point lead at halftime, 34-28, but outscored the Panthers 15-4 in the first five minutes of the second half to turn the game into a rout.

The Mustangs remained unbeaten after three games as 3,183 fans watched the contest at Moody Coliseum. Prairie View dropped to 0-5.

In Waco, Bears forward Darryl Middleton scored 18 points and pulled down 15 rebounds to lead undefeated Baylor to its nonconference victory.

The Bears, with 12:20 left in the first period, took a 16-3 lead when Michael Williams hit a seven-footer. Carlos Briggs, who added 11 points, scored on a layup that increased Baylor's lead to 26-11 with 6:41 remaining in the first period, and the Bears stretched that into a 46-23 halftime lead.

Adios gridiron, hello court

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Well, last week wasn't too terrible for the sideline picker; 20 right 8 wrong for .714. Much better than the season figures of 252-133 for .655.

And now, a moment of silence while we bury my football forecast for another season.

Thank you.

Bounce, bounce, bounce bounce.

Somewhere along about this time each year I write a column that begins sorta' like thumpity, thumpity, thumpity, thumpity.

I changed it around this season. Truth is, I'm not sure I know much about the local basketball teams, but I think I'm qualified to speak for the ball itself.

This habit of scheduling the girls over in the high school gum and the boys in the coliseum on the same night has me bouncing back and forth. Ask me what the Tigers are like this season and I'll have to admit I really don't know. 'Don't know a lot about the girl's team either.

Tuesday, for instance, the sound effects went something kinda' like this:

Bounce, bounce, click, bounce, scribble, scribble, bounce, bounce, click, bounce, scribble, click, click, bounce, bounce, zip, creeeaaak, zroom, honk, honk, creeeaak, zip, bounce, bounce, click, scribble, bounce, bounce.

And so on.

The click is the camera shutter, the scribble is me making notes and stuff and the bounce is, of course, the basketball. The zip is the camera bag being zipped shut (or open) and the creeaaak is my car door opening. The zroom is the engine of the car, and is one sound effect which really is better than the real thing, if you know what I mean.

The honk, honk is me making a mad dash to get over to the coliseum in time to catch the final couple of quarters of the boy's varsity game. And so on.

I was in Austin when the boys played Abilene Cooper and Lubbock High. I've seen 'em play Colorado City, caught the final four minutes of the contest with Levelland, cringed at the last half of the fiasco with Big Spring.

As I said, I'm not really qualified to speak on the Tigers.

One team I have seen enough of to form an opinion of is the Western Texas College women's team. The Dusters are an enjoyable team to watch - especially for a squad that wasn't supposed to be much above average this season.

Though shorter than almost every opponent they've faced, the Dusters have managed to win with defense. They can put the ball in the hole, too, as coaches like to say.

Meanwhile, folks are saying this Westerner team could be the best since Nolan Richardson's national championship squad. While I'm not ready to make that statement myself yet, it's obvious that the Westerners are indeed a talented group.

South Plains Coach Ron Mayberry said he believes the Westerner first five is the best in the conference.

Tonight's Westerner game here with Howard College marks only the third time this season Spradling's troops have been at home. They'll tip off at 8, and you'll want to be there if you can make it.

Don't forget the Duster game at 6. Bring a sandwich or eat from the consession stand.

Zroom, zroom.

Another UT assistant joins McWilliams at Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - It appears that Texas Tech's Red Raiders may become the "Orange" Raiders with the acquisition of the Longhorns' top West Texas recruiter.

John Mize, a University of Texas assistant coach who recruited in Texas Tech's backyard for the Longhorns, was added to the Red Raider football coaching staff Wednesday by new Head Coach David McWilliams, who is fresh from Austin himself.

McWilliams - who was Texas' defensive coordinator before being hired Monday by Athletic Direcor T. Jones, an ex-associate athletic director at Texas - also announced that Dean Slayton had agreed to stay at Texas Tech.

Slayton was a defensive coach on the staff of Jerry Moore, who was fired as Tech coach in late November.

Mize, 39, was a member of Fred Akers' Texas orange-shirted staff for the past nine seasons. As West Texas recruiter, he lured such players as Jerry Gray and Tony Degrate to the UT campus. He coached the offensive line before moving to defensive tackles this past season.

Mize was a high school coach in Arkansas and was on the coaching staffs of Texas A&M and West Texas State before going to UT.

"I am happy we can get the caliber of coaches we are getting," McWilliams said. "John Mize is impressive both on the field and in the recruiting arena, and everybody knows what kind of job Dean Slayton has done with the Raider defense the past few years."

Slayton, 49, who has also coached at Texas-El Paso, Howard Payne and North Texas State, became the sixth member of Moore's staff to join the new regime.

McWilliams announced on Tuesday that Tech assistants Spike Dykes, Dick Winder and Clarence James had agreed to remain. McWilliams said shortly after his hiring on Monday that Carlos Mainord and Clovis Hale had agreed to join his staff.

Dykes coached with McWilliams at Texas for five years before becoming head coach at Midland Lee High School, a job he left to join the Texas Tech staff.

McWilliams said specific coaching duties of his new staff have not been assigned.

No decision made on Vanderbilt job

HOUSTON (AP) - Members of the Rice football team are trying to understand the interest shown by Vanderbilt in Owl head coach Watson Brown.

"When you have something good, other people are going to want it," Rice senior kicker James Hamrick said Wednesday, complimenting his head coach for the past two seasons.

"The rumors went on for most of the season. I don't think it bothered us too much. I just hope we get good news that he's going to stay."

Brown, who has posted a 4-18 record in two seasons at the Southwest Conference school, confirmed Tuesday that he had been contacted by officials at Vanderbilt, his alma mater.

Despite posting only four victories in two seasons, the Owls showed improvement in Brown's second year of a six-year contract that will pay him $1 million.

Brown planned to meet with Vanderbilt Athletic Director Roy Kramer.

Brown said whatever decision was made would be done quickly.

"I'll either be in or out but it's going to happen as quickly as I can get it done," Brown said. "I don't think it's fair to anybody, to Rice, to Vanderbilt or to me, to let it drag on any longer than it has to."

Commodore Coach George MacIntyre resigned on Monday, heating up rumors that had simmered all season that Brown, who grew up in Nashville and played at Vanderbilt, would be returning to his alma mater.

Brown, 34, was offensive coordinator at Vanderbilt under MacIntyre in 1981-82. Brown's offense set 30 school records in 1981 and broke 27 more school marks in 1982 and the Commodores were 8-4 in 1982, including a trip to the Hall of Fame Bowl.

After posting a 1-10 record in Brown's first season, the Owls improved to 3-8 this season and lost only 13 players and three starters from the team.

The Owls broke a Southwest Conference record 26 straight league defeats this season and won back to back games for the first time since 1981.

Rice hasn't had a winning season since 1963 and Brown said earlier this week that was the next goal of the youthful Owls.

Brown resigned as offensive coordinator at Vanderbilt after the 1982 season and spent one season as head coach at Cincinnati before accepting the job at Rice, where he also is athletic director.

At Jayton...

Birds have good thing going

JAYTON (AP) – The Jayton Jaybirds won the state championship last year in Texas six-man football and have had only one problem in rolling past all 12 opponents this fall to earn a spot against Weinert in Friday night's semifinal round of the state playoffs.

Because of the 45-point rule used in six-man football, Coach Phil Mitchell's West Texas powerhouse team has had a problem getting enough playing time. Eleven of Jayton's 12 games were called prematurely after turning into routs.

Seven games were shutouts. For the year, Jayton has scored 639 points while allowing only 70.

"We're unbeaten and haven't been challenged by anybody yet," admits Mitchell, 26, a former Tarleton State track athlete who is in his fifth year in the Jayton program and third as head coach.

Jayton is a town of about 700 people in Kent County, about halfway between Abilene and Lubbock. There are 53 students in high school, including 31 boys, and 24 of them play football.

The Jaybirds have now won 26 games without a loss since dwindling enrollment forced the school last year into wide-open six-man play, in which all three backs and all three linemen, even the center, are eligible to receive a pass. The field is 80 yards long and 40 yards wide.

The biggest difference Mitchell sees between six-man football and 11-man football is on defense.

"In six-man football, you have to make 15 yards to get a first down. You can give up six yards and not give up as much, so it's more of a contain type of strategy," said Mitchell, who played six-man football in high school at May.

This season, the Jaybirds beat Whitharral 48-0, Trent 56-0, Woodson 46-0, Grady 53-7, Lueders-Avoca 52-6, Rochester 46-0, Paint Creek 61-14, Weinert 78-30, Rule 52-0, Grady 51-13, Sierra Blanca 50-0 in bi-district and Silverton 46-0 in region.

The only game in which Jayton hasn't led by at least 45 points was in its zone playoff game against Grady, a team the Jaybirds had beaten 53-7 earlier in the season.

"It was 46-6 at halftime, but we put our little kids in the second half and let them play the whole game," Mitchell said of the contest, which Jayton won 51-13. "We had been playing a junior varsity schedule for the younger kids, but their season had ended, so we let them play."

Jack Pardee, one of the best players in Texas high school history, was a product of six-man ball at Christoval. Pardee went on to win all-America honors at Texas A&M and all-pro honors with the Washington Redskins and coached in both the National Football League and the United States Football League.

If the Jaybirds win their semifinal game Friday night at Stamford against Weinert, a team in its own district that it has beaten once already this season, they'll play for the state championship next week against Christoval or May, both 12-0, who play Friday night in Ballinger.

It was May, Mitchell' high school alma mater, that Jayton defeated, 44-28, for the state championship last year.

Jayton is led by 5-11, 165-pound running back Trey Richey, who Mitchell said "carries the ball probably 90 percent of the time. He also is an outstanding passer. We'll pitch to him to sweep right or sweep left, and he'll pull up and throw a halfback pass."

Despite Jayton's lopsided 48-point victory over Weinert earlier in the year, Mitchell said the game should be interesting. Weinert has won its 11 other games this season, and its best player - running back-linebacker Louis Perez - was out with an injury in the earlier meeting, Mitchell said.

"We think they may have been the best team we've played either this year or last. They couldn't handle us defensively in the first game, but that probably will be different this time," Mitchell added.

Smoking ban is urged

HOUSTON (AP) — Saying it is time to clear the air, Houston City Council members are considering imposing restrictions against smoking in enclosed sporting arenas and offices.

Councilman Jim Westmoreland, a former smoker, proposed a ban Wednesday on smoking during sports events in the stands of enclosed arenas such as the Summit and Astrodome. The move to ban smoking is bound to ignite controversy, said Councilman Frank Mancuso, a cigar-smoker and former professional baseball player.

"It is just like popcorn and beer at a ballgame — a lot of people won't want to do without it," he argued.

The Dallas City Council unanimously approved an ordinance Wednesday making smoking illegal in retail establishments with 500 or more square feet of floor space. The new ordinance, which takes effect Feb.6, requires restaurants with 50 or more seats to set aside an unspecified number of tables for non-smokers and to prohibit smoking in common areas, such as restrooms and around cash registers.

Westmoreland wants Houston employers to either accomodate non-smokers in their offices or ban smoking altogether for the sake of public health. He said a similar ordinance passed in 1983 in San Francisco has been effective.

The San Francisco ordinance requires employers to provide a work area for non-smoking employees if they ask for such accomodations. There have been 160 complaints since the rule was implemented and none have gone to court, said Bruce Tsutsui, an environmental health inspector in San Francisco.

Houston ordinances currently prohibit smoking in the baggage claim areas of public airports and in elevators, grocery stores, theaters and hospitals.

Westmoreland said a recent survey shows only 28 percent of all Texans are smokers.

"If that's true, we ought to have the support of the vast majority of the people," Westmoreland said.

He said he does not think the ordinance would hurt sports ticket sales since the smokers who might be discouraged from attending could be offset by non-smokers who would start attending.

Block sees new hope for farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many farmers are going through the worst financial bind since the Great Depression of the 1930s, but Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says things may improve in the latter part of next year.

"There are some positive signs on the horizon," Block said Wednesday. "First of all, the interest rates are down quite a bit from what they were. I think they will come down some more."

Further, he told a news conference, the move in Congress to help the beleagured Farm Credit System will mean improved service for many farmers. And new farm legislation awaiting final action by Congress "should make us more competitive in international trade" and help agriculture generally.

Meanwhile, he said, the Reagan administration will continue to oppose several features in the 1985 farm bill that could drive up government costs over the next few years, including attempts to delay reductions in crop payments.

Block said the administration is working very hard to hold crop program costs to $50 billion over the next three years. He said the Senate's bill would cost around $58 billion.

Arrest follows escape from jail

Collier — coincidentally the renter-operator of the farm where the suspect was found — obtained a key to the building, unlocked it and entered with Alexander and Brown.

They found Davis hiding under a blanket inside a closet. According to Collier, he had apparently gained entry to the building by prying open the west window.

Davis was taken from the scene of the arrest to the Scurry County Courthouse where he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway on charges of felony escape.

Callaway set bond on that charge at $2,500.

The search for Davis — being held in the local jail as one of several prisoners routinely kept here for Midland County — began around 9 p.m. Tuesday when he was noticed missing from the jail.

He was serving a sentence for violating the terms of a previously granted probationary prison term assessed for burglary.

After his escape, it was speculated he had managed to hide in the front area of the jail after being allowed to go to the front office to get medication he was taking.

As jail trusties routinely check out the trash, it is suspected he slipped out the unlocked door behind them.

During the day Wednesday, there were several reported sightings of the suspect, but none were apparently bonafide until the 3:30 p.m. call.

Tuesday night around 11 o'clock, students at Western Texas College reported encountering a man asking for directions to Midland.

Officers searching for him converged on the college campus and he was sighted on the golf driving range at that time.

When officers gave chase on foot, Davis fled into a heavily wooded area on the old Cogdell Ranch east of the college campus.

Where he was ultimately captured was only approximately one mile north of the college campus.

During the remainder of the night Tuesday, roadblocks were set up on Texas Highways 208 and 350 at the Scurry County line.

During the day Wednesday, officers used an airplane and riders on horseback to continue the search.

Shoplifting, trespass case reported here

Police arrested a misdemeanor theft suspect Tuesday afternoon and began investigating a criminal trespass report filed by Snyder High School officials.

The theft suspect — a 15-year-old male juvenile — was taken into custody after employees of the Kwik Grocery on the Lamesa Highway called police at 7:36 p.m. and repoted having a shoplifter in their custody.

He was later released to his parents.

SHS administrators called police at 12:07 p.m. Wednesday and filed the trespass complaint against two young men.

The two individuals — both former SHS students — have reportedly been asked to stay away from the school on several occasions.

In other action, city officers arrested three individuals on warrants for unpaid fines.

One wreck here

A single minor traffic accident was reported in Snyder Wednesday.

Involved in the 2:04 p.m. mishap in the 2500 Block of Ave. U was a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Michael David Redman of the Oasis Mobile Home Park which struck a parked 1985 Nissan pickup owned by Horace L. Loper of 3101 Ave. U.

Rookie takes over at space agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — In only his second week on the job as the No. 2 man of the nation's space agency, William R. Graham takes over today for administrator James M. Beggs, who is going on leave of absence to fight fraud charges.

Graham, 48, who until becoming Beggs' deputy had no experience with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will have the title of acting administrator. He will be assisted in running the $8 billion-a-year agency by a new general manager, veteran NASA hand Philip E. Culbertson.

In stepping aside Wednesday, Beggs said he would assist Graham through a transition period. He added, "For the record, I do not intend to leave the agency. This is not an interim step to a resignation."

Beggs' unpaid leave was first announced by the White House, which said President Reagan was "reluctantly acceding" to his request.

Later, Reagan himself spoke about Beggs at a news conference called to announce the resignation of another top government official, Robert McFarlane, the president's national security adviser.

"I don't know of anyone who could have done a finer job than he has done and is doing at NASA," Reagan said.

Beggs, who had been executive vice president and a director of General Dynamics Corp. in St. Louis before taking the NASA post on July 10, 1981, was indicted Monday in Los Angeles along with three other present or former officers of the firm in connection with events alleged to have happened between Jan. 1, 1978, and Aug. 1, 1981.

The defendants, including the corporation itself, are charged with illegally billing the government for cost overruns on a prototype of the Sgt. York anti-aircraft gun.

If convicted, Beggs and the others could be sentenced to five years in prison for each of seven counts and fined a maximum $70,000.

"The charges against me, involving a best effort, fixed-price development contract, contain allegations that expenses that should have been charged to the contract as a cost overrun were charged to company overhead and thus to the Department of the Army," Beggs said, adding:

"I have carefully reviewed these very complex issues and the charges. I have concluded there is nothing I did then that I would not do again. I have not been involved in any criminal wrongdoing or, in fact, in wrongdoing of any kind. I am totally confident that I will be exonerated."

Graham was nominated for deputy administrator by President Reagan in September, and came on the job Nov. 25 after being confirmed by the Senate. He is a founder and head of R&D Associates of Maria Del Rey, Calif., and served for three years as chairman of a presidential advisory committee on arms control and disarmament.

He has been a consultant to the secretary of defense and served on many boards and advisory groups on defense and nuclear matters. He was born in San Antonio, Texas, and earned several degrees.

Break-in incident leads to 3 arrests Wednesday

Police jailed two local men on burglary charges Wednesday afternoon in connection with a suspected Tuesday night break-in at The Galaxy at 3105 Ave. M.

Now free after posting bonds of $1,750 each on charges of burglary of a business are 22-year-old Fernando Cisneros and 18-year-old Joe Zamora, both of 1201 36th Pl.

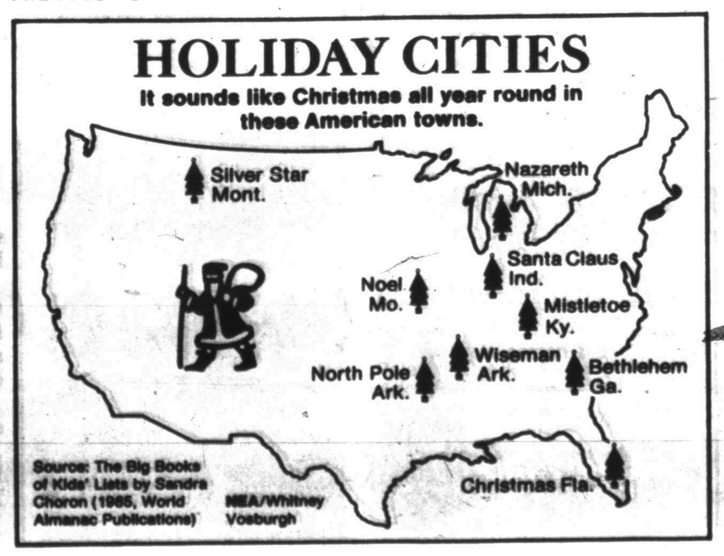

Also detained in connection with incident was a 16-year-old male juvenile who was released to the custody of his parents Wednesday evening.

Cisneros and Zamora are alleged to have entered the business — owned by Mary Davis — sometime Tuesday night by breaking out a front window.

A television set and a cooler full of beer were taken. The TV and cooler were recovered with Wednesday's arrests around 2 p.m.

The burglary was initially discovered by police on routine patrol Tuesday night.

West Texas native among first to fly

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — As a pilot of the B-1 Bomber, Air Force Maj. Larry Jordan understands that duty may one day force him to drop nuclear weapons on an enemy of the United States.

And the 39-year-old Kermit-reared Jordan harbors no doubts about his ability to complete the mission.

"Yeah, I'm going to push that button," Jordan said recently as he sat in the snug, instrument-packed confines of the bomber's cockpit at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene.

"But I'm also going to think about why I'm pushing that button," he said.

Speaking in a soft, slightly drawling voice, Jordan offered a short lesson in the theory of nuclear deterrence, a cornerstone in American foreign policy.

The B-1 Bombers — and the B-52 that the B-1 will replace — are a third of the "triad" of land, sea and air-based weapons that comprise the U.S. nuclear strike capability, he said.

The B-1 and the B-52 have strategic positions as the only "air-breathing" part of the triad, he said. "It's the only part that's controlled by a man," after the initial decision to launch.

"If the president wanted the show the national will by launching a B-1, he could pull it back later," Jordan explained. "If they change their minds, they can say, 'C'mon home.'"

But if political necessity calls for the bomb to drop, "That's what I'm supposed to do," Jordan said. "It's my fate or destiny or something."

Since his transfer to Dyess from Edwards Air Force Base in California, the 1969 Texas A&M University graduate has taken advantage of his close proximity to his hometown of Kermit, 45 miles northwest of Odessa.

"Now, I'm getting a chance to go back and re-establish those ties," he said, recalling in particular his 20-year high school class reunion last year.

Diana Hampton, Jordan's accounting teacher while he was a student at the school, remembered Jordan as "someone kind of special."

"At first he thought he didn't have to work," she said, "but then he found that he did and he buckled down for me. He learned some discipline and some facts and that you have to follow instructions."

Despite the accolades, Jordan said the folks back home may have a hard time relating to his job.

"They're too busy fighting the battles of their own little budgets," he said.

A veteran of nearly 100 bombing missions over Southeast Asia, including North Vietnam, Jordan acknowledged his role as a "tool" of politicians.

"The military is the scalpel of the politician," he said. "And if he sees a cancer he can't remove by political means, then he'll take his scalpel and go in and cut it out."

Jordan said the B-52 is "1960 technology. It was designed to do a different mission. It's a high altitude bomber."

A major advantage the B-1 has over the B-52, he said, is that it can fly at high speeds at altitudes of 500 to 1,000 feet, which helps the plane to elude enemy radar scopes.

"We're sitting in 1975 technology now," he said, surveying the cockpit and referring to the plane's original design during the administration of President Jimmy Carter.

Carter killed the B-1 program, deciding the country could save money by concentrating research on a new generation of airplane — the Stealth Bomber, Jordan said.

But designers of the current B-1, called the B-1B after President Reagan revived the program, incorporated much of the Stealth's advanced technology.

"The smooth design — no square corners — that's all a part of what they call Stealth technology," Jordan said.

The plane also features wing sections that mechanically change position and sweep backward, thereby removing the plane's "signature" from enemy radar, he said.

The effect produces an image "like the head of a pin" on a radar screen, he said.

Inside, the plane carries a crew of four: pilot, copilot and offensive and defensive "systems coordinators," he said.

Jordan compared the offensive coordinator to the bombardier on older World War II-model airplanes. "He operates the computer that can release weapons or launch missiles," he said.

"The defense coordinator primarily is charged with keeping us from getting shot down," he said. "He has jammers or electronic transmitters that will send signals to confuse a radar screen. We don't have any guns or what you might call an active defense.

"We just try to hide, and we use electronics to do that."

Jordan called his work on the B-1 project, "the highlight of my career."

He is the plane's only designated flight instructor in the Strategic Air Command — the military command center in Omaha, Neb., that coordinates U.S. air and missile operations.

Court okays rape victim shield law

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has upheld lower court rulings that evidence of prior sexual activity of a rape victim did not have to be submitted to a Collin County jury.

The jury's verdict that Virgil Dean Allen should serve 30 years in prison for aggravated rape was upheld Wednesday, as it had been appoved by the Dallas court of appeals.

Judges of the state's highest criminal court not only were divided in making the decision but were at odds over the wording of the decision.

Judge Sam Houston Clinton dissented with the majority, saying the majority opinion "would have this court lay down a rule which pierces our own rape victim shield law."

Judges Marvin Teague and Chuck Miller wrote concurring opinions but said they had some differences with the majority opinion written by Presiding Judge John Onion.

Miller said he differed only with the majority opinion because Onion used the term "prosecutrix" instead of "victim."

"The term 'prosecutrix' should be relegated to the attic trunk, along with corsets and pantaloons, and the term 'victim' placed in its stead," Miller said. He said the use of "prosecutrix" was "blatantly sexist."

"My, oh my, how Judge Miller fulminates over Presiding Judge Onion's use ... of the age-old legal word 'prosecutrix'," said Teague. He said he was deeply concerned "that to make of this cause a feminist issue will seriously detract from the importance of what is before us."

The decision affirmed the 30-year sentence a jury gave Allen upon conviction of the rape of a 17-year-old department store employee the night of Feb. 1, 1982. The girl testified a man approached her in the Collin Creek Mall in Plano and made her, at gunpoint, get in a pickup truck and was driven to a rural spot in Collin County. She said the man raped her, then drove her back to the mall parking lot.

She testified on direct examination that the man asked her if she was a virgin, and she said "No."

On cross-examination, defense attorneys attempted to show the girl has said, outside the hearing of the jury, that she had a Baylor College boyfriend and they had had sex several times.

The trial court refused to admit the testimony before the jury, which was the main point of the defense's appeal.

SDN correction

Wednesday's SDN story about a UPG-Falco Inc. truck accident in the Chevron North Field incorrectly identified Noah Bilano as the driver of the vehicle and Howard Clines as the co-worker who freed him from the wreck.

In fact, Clines was the driver of the vehicle and Bilano the passenger and co-worker.

Plane trapped in wind shear

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — There was nothing the pilot of Delta Air Lines Flight 191 could do to recover from wind shear the plane encountered before an Aug. 2 crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, a Delta pilot said at a seminar on the weather phenomenon.

The pilot, Bill Melvin, said Wednesday that anybody who thinks extensive flight training can overcome wind shear is "whistling past the graveyard."

A government study conducted by a NASA researcher concluded the flight crew of Delta 191, whose crash killed 137, could have flown the L-1011 out of a wind shear, a violent downburst of air from a thunderstorm.

But Melvin, head of the Air Line Pilots Association's airworthiness committee who was among the speakers, said people greatly underestimate the power of wind shears.

"We've shown that analysis to a number of professors," Melvin said, "and we feel it will not stand the test of time."

In another presentantion at the seminar sponsored by the National Weather Service and the Federal Aviation Administration, a physicist said improved pilot training and better detection equipment are the answer to windshear hazards to airliners.

"Pilots have come a long way in the last 10 years," said Dr. Fernando Caracena, a physicist with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"But still a lot are not sufficiently concerned or not well informed about the microburst (windshear) problem. I'd like the number to be zero," Caracena said.

Caracena said there is no general forecasting technique for windshears.

And there is no storm too small to cause windshear.

Another speaker, United Air Lines pilot David Simmon, said 40 percent of airline disasters in the past 40 years were windshear related.

Asked if windshear is the greatest danger or fear in the airline industry today, Simmon said, "I think it probably is."

Simmon has been a United pilot 29 years and has been involved in pilot training.

The problem of windshear, he said, "will be generally solved when we can put into service the advances made by improvements in aviation safety. It will be achievable in the next five to 10 years."

Detection hardware for providing warnings to pilots are not available now, he said, although the Doppler radar system shows some promise for early warnings.

Lubbock man robs S&L, shoots self

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A man who shot and killed himself when police cornered him after he robbed a savings and loan of $60,000 was a 29-year-old Texas Tech graduate student studying philosophy, a university spokeswoman said.

According to police, a man robbed the First Federal Savings and Loan about 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Brandishing a .45 caliber pistol, he forced three employees and two customers to lie down on the floor and took the contents of two cash drawers and the bank safe.

When confronted by troopers an hour later the man put the gun to his head and killed himself, Texas Department of Public Safety officers said.

DPS Trooper Burt Sinclair identified the man as Monte Lee Martin, 29.

After the robbery, state troopers spotted a car fitting the description of the robber's vehicle and stopped him on a farm road in Hockley County southwest of Lubbock, Sinclair said.

"The troopers shot out a tire on the car. He pulled over. There were three (DPS) units there. They asked him to get out of the car, in a very polite way. ... He pulled the gun out and shot himself in the head," Sinclair said.

Martin was working on his master's degree in philosophy at Texas Tech, said Bea Zeeck, director of university news and publications. Martin graduated from the school with honors in 1978, receiving a bachelor's degree in philosophy, Zeeck said.

Amarillo authorities suspect Martin may have been the same man who held up an Amarillo savings and loan last week.

Officials described the suspect in the Amarillo robbery as a "clean-cut" white male in his late 20s or early 30s who used a .45-caliber pistol.

Amarillo police Capt. Kenneth Fahnert told the Amarillo Globe-News investigators probably would travel to Lubbock to determine if the two robberies may have been committed by the same man.

Authorities have suspect in mother-son slayings

BRENHAM, Texas (AP) — Authorities say they have a suspect in the slayings four months ago of a schoolteacher and her son, a crime that shook this usually quiet Washington County community of about 11,000.

Sheriff Elwood Goldberg said in a statement Wednesday that a suspect in the August murders of Kathy Coppedge, 36, and her son Casey, came to light after an arrest in another county in a case unrelated to the slayings.

Authorities declined to identify the suspect or release any further details until after the case is presented to a county grand jury today.

Mrs. Coppedge and her son disappeared about noon Aug. 11 after attending services at a Brenham church. The bodies of the mother and son were found later that night in the trunk of Mrs. Coppedge's car on the shoulder of U.S. 290 near Burton.

Mrs. Coppedge had been strangled and her son had suffocated.

An unnamed source told the Bryan-College Station Eagle the suspect in custody was in the Fayette County Jail.
