Prices cut for West Texas Intermediate

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

Exxon Corp. said Friday it had cut the price it is willing to pay for the top grade of domestic crude oil by $1 a barrel, and Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), the remaining big holdout from price cutting, also lowered the price of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark blend, to $29 a barrel from $30.

Marathon Oil Co., a unit of U.S. Steel Corp., announced its second round of price cuts in as many weeks, dropping the price of West Texas Intermediate another 25 cents, to match the $29 price.

A cut of $1 a barrel would bring down the price of refined petroleum products, such as gasoline and heating oil, by about 2½ cents a gallon if entirely passed on to consumers.

In commodity trading Friday on the New York Mercantile Exchange, crude oil for December delivery fell 15 cents to $28.53 a barrel. The exchange trades South Louisiana Sweet crude, another light grade. It said that gasoline for December delivery edged up to 71.15 cents a gallon from 71.13 Thursday and that heating oil fell to 78.71 cents a gallon from 79.38.

Exxon's move "is very significant because it is the biggest producer in the United States and by far the biggest oil company," said William Randol, an analyst who follows the oil industry for the investment firm of First Boston Corp. "It is a major domino in the whole domestic oil pricing scheme."

The price cutting reflects a shift in preference away from light crude oils by refiners. Ever since the explosive rise in oil prices, especially for the light grades produced in the Middle East, refiners have spent billions of dollars remodeling to handle cheaper and lower-quality heavy oils for the production of gasoline, jet fuel and heating oil.

The continuing oversupply of oil on world markets led Norway, Britain and Nigeria to cut their prices for light grades by up to $2 a barrel last month.

In an attempt to defend its benchmark price of $29 a barrel for Arabian Light crude oil, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed last week to reduce its production ceiling to 16 million barrels a day from 17.5 million. OPEC ministers said they hoped that with the onset of winter and the seasonal increase in demand for oil that accompanies cooler weather, oil supplies would become scarcer and prices would level off.

Iran, an OPEC member that depends heavily on oil revenue to finance its more than 4-year-old war with Iraq, threatened Friday to try to disrupt oil shipments in the Persian Gulf if a price-cutting war erupts.

Iran made similar threats to gulf shipping earlier this year, when its Kharg Island oil terminal was threatened by Iraqi attacks. But so far it has not stopped the flow of petroleum from a region that meets 20 percent of the non-communist world's oil needs.

Following the 1978 revolution in Iran, the flow of oil from OPEC's second-largest producer was disrupted.

Vietnam veterans unveil statue at memorial site

By GENE GRABOWSKI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Vietnam war veterans on Friday unveiled "Three Servicemen," a seven-foot bronze statue that completes their two-acre memorial to both the dead and the living who served in the Southeast Asia conflict.

The statue, depicting three weary GIs in combat gear, stands 80 yards from the 2-year-old black granite monument on which the names of the 58,022 who died in the war are etched — and where hundreds of veterans and family members wept on this crisp, sunny day.

"The statue unveiled today brings to fulfillment the purpose of the memorial in paying respect to all Americans who accepted the responsibilities of their citizenship," said retired Army Gen. Michael S. Davidson, the ceremony's keynote speaker and the original proponent of the statue.

"This memorial says to those who served in Vietnam, both those who returned and those who did not: we respect you, we admire you, we honor you, and we offer you our profound gratitude," said Davidson, who was a field commander in Vietnam.

About 4,000 people crowded around at the grassy memorial site to watch the 40-minute ceremony. Vietnam veterans wearing rumpled camouflage uniforms stood with public officials, sightseers and reporters to watch the event.

Both the bronze statue and granite wall, located near the Lincoln Memorial, were paid for by private funds.

On Sunday, the entire memorial will be dedicated and formally handed over to the National Park Service for perpetual government maintenance. President Reagan is scheduled to fly from Santa Barbara, Calif., to accept the memorial and take part in a wreath-laying ceremony.

The statue, created by Washington, D.C., sculptor Frederick R. Hart, is designed so that the GIs — a black, a white and one representing other minorities — appear to be looking for names on the granite walls.

It was added to the site after some veterans complained that the memorial's design failed to honor those who fought and survived.

But others, including the wall's designer, Maya Ying Lin of Athens, Ohio, opposed the sculpture, saying its addition imposed a militaristic stamp on the memorial.

"The idea of putting the statue there came from people who wanted to politicize the memorial, to give it a John Wayne image," Ms. Lin said in an interview last week.

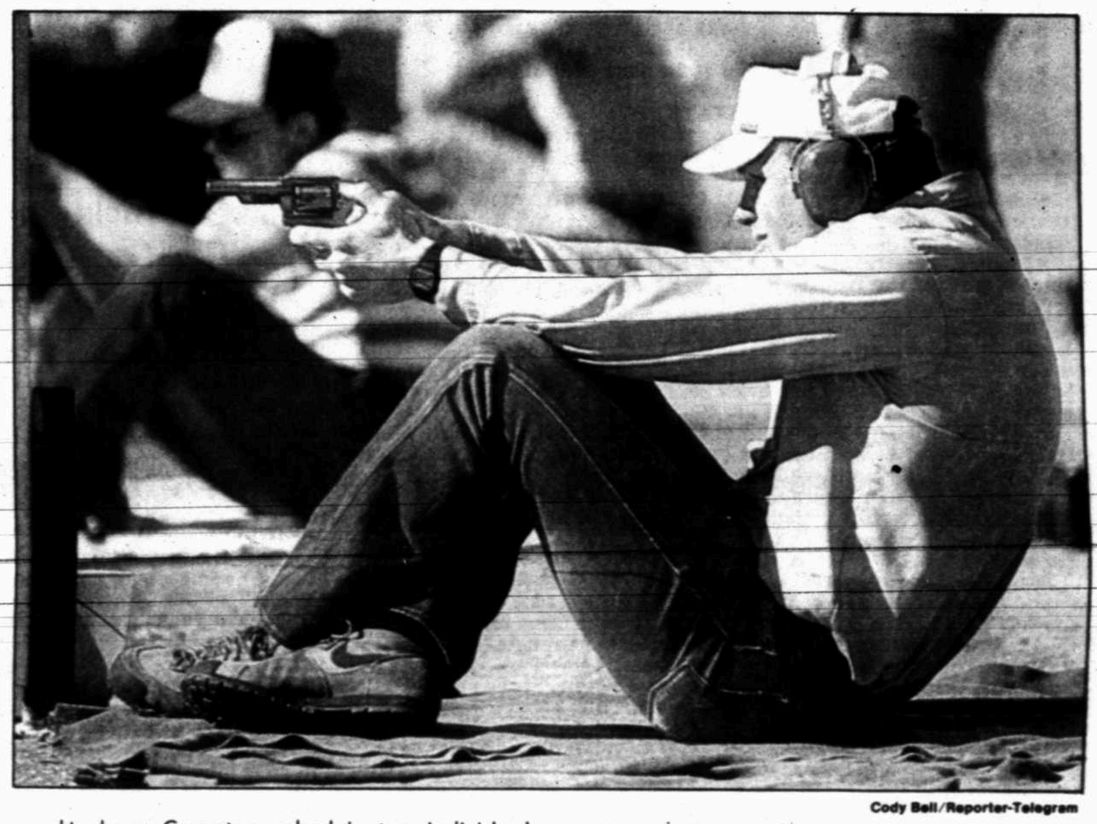

"I wanted to make the point that there were no heroes or villains in this war, that it was unlike any other major war in our history," added Ms. Lin, who is studying for a master's degree in architecture at Yale University and did not plan to attend the weekend events in Washington.

George Sullivan, director of the National Salute II Committee, which is conducting a weekend program of Veterans Day events in tandem with the memorial ceremonies, said alteration of the site was a necessary compromise.

"The wall is very abstract and was a great shock to the veterans and public who contributed $9 million for the memorial," said Sullivan, a former Army Ranger in Vietnam.

On Saturday, Sullivan's committee will sponsor a day-long concert on the Mall near the foot of Capitol Hill. The performers will include Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons, The Festival Band, and Chris Noel, a disc jockey who entertained troops in Vietnam over the Armed Forces Network.

Other events include a Saturday night candlelight service honoring those still listed as missing in the war zone; an interdenominational service with military chaplains at the Lincoln Memorial on Sunday morning and the traditional Veterans Day ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Lt. Jerry Compton raked in top individual honors and paired up with Sgt. Jeff Haile to take team honors Friday in the Midland Police Department Service Revolver Match.

Local officers compete at police pistol range

From Staff Reports

It was a cool, crisp morning at the Midland Police Department Pistol Range. The sound of gunfire shot through the rustling of a westerly wind which blew the strong smell of the city's landfill through Cole Park.

"It's not that bad," said Sgt. Bob Miller, range master. "At least the wind keeps the flies away."

Fourteen of the top 17 pistol shooters participated Friday in the first MPD service revolver match held since 1977.

Using their four-inch Smith and Wesson revolvers, the officers shot at targets from seven, 25 and 50 feet in four different positions.

Tryouts began at the first of October with the top two shooters from each division and shift advancing to Friday's competition.

Represented were Shifts A, B, C and D; and traffic, air terminal, crime prevention, identification and detective divisions.

Many of the officers had not practiced during the past two weeks because they were attending a defensive baton training school in Houston, Miller said. High winds kept some of the scores down, he added.

Individual honors went once again to Lt. Jerry Compton, who also captured first place during the last intra-departmental pistol matches in 1976 and 1977. Compton scored 572 points of a possible 600 and he hit 19 Xs in his 60 rounds.

The X, used as a tie-breaker, is a small area within the 3-inch by 3-inch 10-point bull's-eye.

Officer Jack Driggs won second place with a score of 559 and 12 Xs and Officer David Scardino placed third with a score of 536 amd nine Xs.

Receiving the Lt. Gordon Smith Trophy, honoring a Midland police officer killed in 1965 in the line of duty, were Compton and Sgt. Jeff Haile of the detectives division. The pair shot a 1,091 of a possible score of 1,200. They fired 30 Xs in 120 rounds.

"The wind came up and dropped everyone's score," Miller said. Compton dropped 20 points from his individual round.

Sgt. John Urby and Officer David McNair came in second, scoring 1,055 and 31 Xs and Officer Joey Heineman and Officer Jeff Marugg placed third with a score of 1,009 and 13 Xs.

Other participating in the match were Officers Bobby Sanders, Ricardo Candelaria, Jimmy Sevey and Ron Benton, and Sgt. Ed Nicks.

Capt. Roger Meurer, Sgt. Lalo Camarillo and Officer Shirley Letourneau qualified for the competition but were unable to participate.

Miller, who with Compton, Haile and Lt. Jim Colburn once formed the police department's traveling pistol team, said he is trying to restructure and interest more officers in the competitions.

Soviet ship may carry helicopters

By JUAN MALTES
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — A Soviet freighter may have brought three military transort helicopters to Nicaragua, a source said Friday, as the Sandinista government readied its defenses against what it said was a threat of a U.S. invasion.

The leftist government issued urgent calls for blood donations, and Nicaraguans held neighborhood meetings to assign war duties, care for children, prepare trenches and harvest the coffee crop in case of attack.

But the capital was calm and no actual military preparations were evident on the streets or outskirts. At about 8:30 a.m. a loud boom was heard in Managua, like others that the government has blamed on U.S. planes breaking the sound barrier in flights through Nicaraguan airspace.

The Nicaraguan government, filing another protest to the United States, alleged that the boom heard on Friday was caused by a U.S. spy plane.

Relations between the Sandinista and the U.S. government grew more tense this week after the Soviet freighter docked at the Pacific port of Corinto. The Reagan administration said the ship's cargo might include Soviet MiG-21 fighter planes, but the Soviet Union denied that the jets were being delivered to Nicaragua.

Nicaragua's foreign minister also denied the Soviet vessel was carrying aircraft.

A source who spoke on condition of he remain anonymous said large wooden and metal crates at Managua's Sandino International Airport contained one or two Soviet-made Mi8 helicopters and perhaps one Mi24 helicopter. There were also some smaller crates at the airport, he said.

"It is my understanding that the larger crates that were in the ship ended up at the Sandino Airport," he said, adding that the crates were probably taken to the airport on Thursday.

He said identification of the crates' possible contents was based on their shape and size.

Mi8s and Mi24s form the standard equipment of Soviet tactical helicopter regiments, some of them carrying extremely heavy weapon loads, according to Jane's All The World's Aircraft.

The source said the Sandinistas already have up to a dozen Mi8s but that many have been sidelined because of lack of spare parts.

The source also said there were reports that a Bulgarian freighter had been unloading helicopters at the Caribbean port of El Bluff, about 170 miles east of Managua. The government has refused to let journalists into that area.

Combest says he'll support Nicaragua action

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

ODESSA — Newly elected Republican congressman Larry Combest said Friday he would support President Reagan in any action concerning Nicaragua, even if it means sending in U.S. troops.

Combest, who was elected Tuesday to the 19th District Congressional seat, was in Odessa Friday afternoon to announce he would be opening an office in the city. He also talked of building a bipartisan coalition that would be strong enough to oust Tip O'Neill as Speaker of the House.

Reports are stating that intelligence data indicate a Soviet freighter which docked at the port of Corinto in Nicaragua may have been carrying MiG warplanes or lesser sophisticated trainer planes.

"Nicaragua gives me some concern," said Combest, adding that he preferred to leave decisions concerning internal affairs in other countries to the president.

"I'm supportive of our actions in Central America. We must do whatever is necessary to solve the problem. I hope it does not get to the point of sending in troops. We should try diligently to negotiate."

It's not Nicaragua that the Soviet Union wants, but Mexico, according to Combest. "We have got to stop the Marxists from taking hold in Central America."

Ector County played a significant role in Combest's election by giving him 58 percent of the vote against Democratic challenger Don Richards. Lubbock gave Combest 60 percent of the vote. Richards had been an aide to the former congressman, Kent Hance, who resigned to try for the U.S. Senate.

Combest said he lost in only two counties — one by six votes and the other by 18. "I feel it was a philosophical coattail effect — they wanted to deliver a message. This has never been a Republican seat. If one is conservative he has got to vote Republican sometime."

Combest said the numbers had not been figured yet in how many Republicans and conservative Democrats would be in the 99th session of Congress, but he was optimistic there would be enough to release O'Neill's stranglehold.

Acknowledging that if O'Neill is ousted as Speaker he must be replaced by a Democrat, Combest said it could be someone that is more moderate or conservative than the Massachusetts congressman.

"We want proportionate representation on committees, and Tip is not doing that now. With Democratic incumbents looking at political survivability," they might tend to side with the conservatives.

Major issues facing Congress when it convenes in January will be balancing the budget, cutting the deficit, continuing economic recovery, keeping the inflation rate down, writing a new Farm Bill, repealing the Windfall Profits Tax and decontrolling natural gas.

Although he will be a freshman congressman, Combest said he is confident he can be effective by working with other members who have been in office longer, such as U.S. Reps. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, and Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

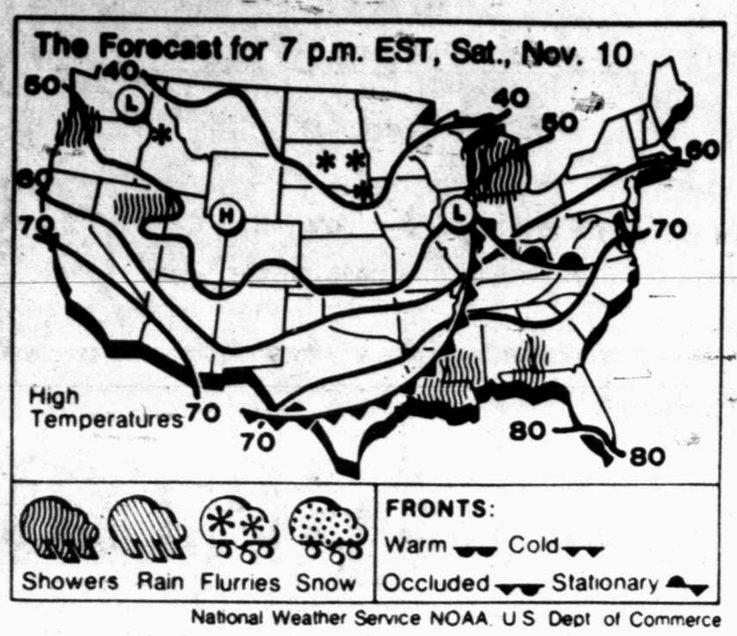

'One man' casts one vote

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — One man, one vote. It's one of the principles of U.S. democracy. It was also the entire Election Day offering from the 3rd Precinct in Mankato.

The mostly industrial precinct was home to nine people for the 1980 census but has only one registered voter. That meant that Tuesday afternoon, when Jay Utter walked into the polling place at the Prime Rate Motel, he gave the precinct a 100 percent voter-participation rate.

Utter, 28, a resident of the precinct for about two years, said, "When I was finished I asked them, 'Pretty good turnout today?' It was kind of a joke the whole way around, it seemed."

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecast showers Saturday for Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Oregon, Washington, Nevada and the Great Lakes. Snow flurries are expected in Idaho, South Dakota and Nebraska.

Cool conditions due back in Basin area

From Staff and Wire Reports

Fall is once again poking its head above the horizon and driving down the temperatures to remind Midlanders that winter is just around the corner.

Temperatures in the Midland area will remain cool today and tonight, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Today's high is expected to reach the mid-60's with winds northwesterly at 5-15 mph. The low tonight should drop into the mid-30s with winds switching to a northeast or easterly direction at 5-10 mph, according to the NWS.

Sunday will be fair and warmer with highs expected to be near 70.

High on Friday was 77 degrees and the low was 48.

Precipitation for the year remains at the mark of 13.31 inches.

STATE

Skies were partly cloudy over the eastern half of the state Friday while widely scattered thunderstorms hit regions of East Texas as a weak cold front moved in from the south.

Skies were sunny west of the cold front, where west winds were gusting to more than 30 mph from the Midland area northward through the Panhandle.

Afternoon temperatures were in the 80s east of the front and dropped to the 70s west of the trough. But in the Panhandle and West Texas, the mercury reached only into the 60s.

Both McAllen and Kingsville registered the high for the state Friday with a reading of 88 degrees.

The forecast for the weekend calls for fair weather in North Texas. Highs Saturday will be 62 in the northwest to 75 in the southeast. Lows Saturday night will dip to the mid 30s and low 40s.

Mostly fair weather is expected to continue in West Texas, where highs Saturday will vary from 55 in the Panhandle to 76 in the Big Bend. Lows will sink to 32 in the northern Panhandle to 48 in the Big Bend.

Clear and cooler temperatures will dominate the weather picture in South Texas and highs will generally be in the 70s. Lows will be in the 30s and 40s, climbing to the 50s along the coast.

NATION

Heavy snows pummelled the mountains of Colorado, Nevada and the Northwest on Friday, dumping more than 2 feet in some areas, while high winds, showers and freezing rain punished parts of the nation's midsection.

The National Weather Service posted a heavy snow warning for the Oregon mountains, and travelers' advisories were in effect over parts of South Dakota, Colorado, Idaho, Washington state and California.

Three-year-old finally learns to eat

By JAMES LITKE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — Kelly Stamey left the hospital Friday, pint-sized proof of how resilient a child can be. A surgeon's skill gave her the ability to eat, but it took a psychiatrist, a psychologist and months of love and patience to make the 3-year-old do it.

Kelly was born at a Georgia military hospital with an incomplete esophagus — the tube that passes food from the throat to the stomach. Within 24 hours of her birth, doctors inserted one tube in Kelly's throat to drain saliva and keep her from choking and a second in her stomach to feed her.

That was only the first of several procedures and hospital stays that left Kelly bewildered, withdrawn and physically incapable of taking food through the mouth.

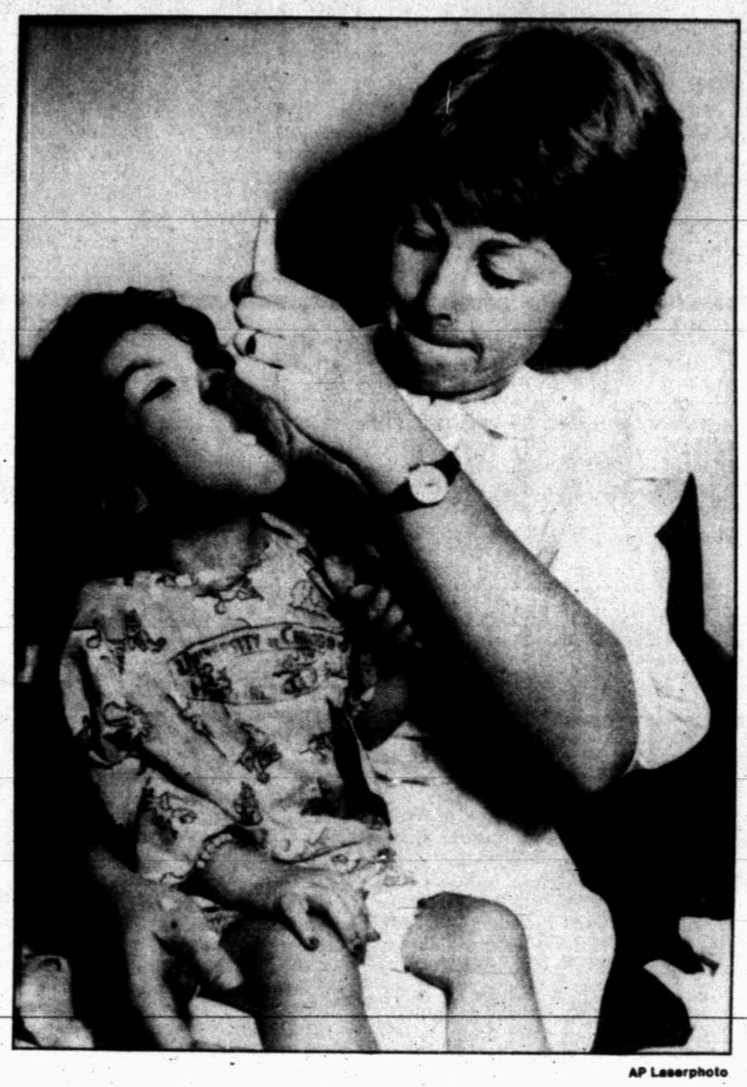

Then, in June, Dr. Dennis Shermeta, surgeon-in-chief at the University of Chicago Wyler Children's Hospital, fashioned Kelly a new esophagus, cutting away a portion of the stomach lining, stitching it into a tube and connecting it to her throat.

But small, frail Kelly — cheated of the social and psychological development that accompanies the simple task of learning to eat — was unimpressed by the gift.

Because doctors feared she might choke because of related problems, she had been trained from shortly after birth never to put anything in her mouth. On top of those fears, Kelly added her own layer of incentive — the refusal to eat brought attention from the nurses.

Even negative attention "was better than no attention at all to a child who spent most of her life in hospitals," recalled Dr. Bennett Leventhal, the psychiatrist who teamed with psychologist Joan Falk in teaching Kelly to eat.

"It's sad when the best way a child relates to people is to starve herself, when struggling makes up your most intense relationship," he continued. "We had done all these wonderful medical things to let her eat and she fought it every step of the way."

AP Laserphoto

Kelly Stamey is fed by nurse Sue Corbet.

Kelly sipped liquids by July, but getting her to eat two ounces of yogurt consumed two hours. At mealtime, she blocked her face with her arms, screamed hysterically and pleaded that swallowing was too painful.

"She was developmentally behind kids her age, but we knew she was bright," said Leventhal. "She was sophisticated enough to mimic gagging. She was an infant, but she already could manipulate adults."

Kelly's weight in August was 23 pounds, barely enough to sustain a 3-year-old, and her main source of nutrition remained an intravenous line attached to an artery in her leg.

Unless Kelly could be persuaded to eat, the intravenous line would have to remain; the longer it stayed there, the greater the chances for infection. Kelly was taking in 500 calories a day by mouth, but she needed more than 2,000 before the line could be unhooked.

Leventhal and Ms. Falk began the relearning process by drastically restructuring Kelly's mealtime environment. The curtains in her room were drawn, the door shut and the television turned off.

The nurses who fed Kelly said little other than to greet her, praise her for eating and warn her they would leave if she didn't.

The breakthrough was slow at first, but Kelly's social skills improved in relation to her eating. And with those new skills came curiosity and the broad range of interests that are the hallmark of developing youngsters.

Kelly wanted to do more and more things, and finding rewards to make her eat became easier — stick-on stars, lipstick, painted nails and the television program "Sesame Street" all worked.

Now, she's home.

"The first thing I'll do is throw her in a tub and let her splash around," said her mother, Dorothy. "We've missed a lot of the things that moms do with their kids — letting her into the yard and watching her play, all that good stuff."

"When she goes," said Ms. Falk, "she'll be taking a whole vanity table with her" along with a new understanding of her body.

DEATHS

Esther D. McIntire

McIntire

Rosary for Esther D. McIntire, 102, of Midland was at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Ellis chapel with Jessie Juardo officiating. Mass was at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at St. Ann's Catholic Church with Father Don Hansen officiating. Burial followed at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday at a local Hospital.

Mrs. McIntire was born Aug. 25, 1882 in Ft. Davis where she was reared. She married Henry McIntire in Fort Davis before the turn of the century. He preceeded her in death in 1944. She moved to Midland in 1978. She was a member of the Red Cross and St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Survivors include two sons, John McIntire of Carlsbad, N.M. and Simon McIntire of Fort Davis; a daughter, Louisa Rodriquez of Midland; 100 grandchildren; and 63 great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Robert Ramirez, Roy Chavez, Danny Aguirre, Michael Ybarra, Dickie Ybarra and Jessie Ybarra.

Midland Shrine Club sets holiday parade

From Staff Reports

The Midland Shrine Club announced it will sponsor the Third Annual Midland Christmas Parade beginning at 10:30 a.m. Dec. 15 at the intersection of Golf Course Road and Andrews Highway.

The announcement was made Friday during a press conference at the Master's Club, according to spokeswoman Brenda Richter.

Mrs. Richter said the parade will proceed south on Andrews Highway to Dennis the Menace Park.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the winning entries. Entry fees are $7.50. Deadline for entries is Nov. 23.

Craft items for sale

The senior citizen women at Hillcrest Manor, 700 W. Scharbauer, will be holding their annual crafts sale today from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Community Room.

Included in the sale will be handcrocheted afghans, quilts, ceramics and Christmas decorations.

Hillcrest Manor is the housing complex for low-income elderly and/or handicapped persons that is operated by the city's Housing Authority.

One person killed, dozens injured as tornadoes hit Midwest towns

Associated Press

Tornadoes whirled through the Midwest on Friday night, killing one person and injuring dozens more as it crushed a shopping center, rammed into a hospital and hit a trailer park.

Twisters also blew vehicles off an interstate highway in Arkansas and caused minor injuries and damage in at least three Illinois communities.

Authorities in Potosi, Mo., about 50 miles southwest of St. Louis, reported the twister struck at 6:30 p.m.

The Plaza Shopping Center was heavily damaged, and Sgt. Robert Doney of the Missouri Highway Patrol said as much as one-half of the center may have been destroyed in the storm. Numerous injuries were suspected but not confirmed, he said.

Doney said the tornado also hit the Shady Oak Trailer Court east of Potosi and a convenience store just north of the town of 2,500. Several windows were blown out at the Washington County Memorial Hospital, he said.

A woman was reported dead by hospital officials, but it was not immediately known if she was killed at the shopping center, said hospital administrator John Bennett. He said a dozen people were brought to the hospital for treatment.

Linda Dickey, the wife of a city councilman, answered the telephone at the Potosi Police Department and said felled trees were preventing emergency vehicles from getting to the damaged buildings. All power was out in the city, she said.

"It is still really chaos around here," Mrs. Dickey said.

At least 10 people were injured and more than 80 homes were damaged or destroyed when a tornado rolled around the town of Doniphan in southeast Missouri, authorities said.

The tornado struck along U.S. 160 west of Doniphan about 5 p.m., said police dispatcher Mark Capps. The twister moved northeast of the town of about 1,900 before dipping south, he said.

About 20 houses and 15 mobile homes were destroyed by the twister, Capps said, and at least 50 houses and mobile homes were heavily damaged.

"The damage is pretty bad because most of the homes damaged were pretty expensive," Capps said. He said many of the homes were unoccupied at the time of the storm.

Capps said the tornado also destroyed a power substation east of Doniphan, causing scattered power outages in the area. Damage to trees and power lines along the U.S. highway also was reported.

Another tornado struck a lumber company and a farm equipment company near Ste. Genevieve, Mo., at about 3 p.m., injuring two people, said Carl Virgien, administrator at the Ste. Genevieve County Memorial Hospital.

Both victims were in satisfactory condition with lacerations and bruises but no fractured bones, he said.

Power was out in Ste. Genevieve and in northern Cape Girardeau County, and Citizens Electric Co. officials said it may take up to 24 hours to restore service to some areas.

In Cape Girardeau County, authorities said a tornado caused an accident on Interstate 55 in which a 33-year-old woman suffered serious injuries.

The highway patrol said the woman was driving north when the twister blew her car sideways into a tractor-trailer rig, which was being buffeted from the opposite direction. Both vehicles were blown off the road, the patrol said.

Cars and trucks were blown off Interstate 55 near Osceola, Ark., after a twister touched down there around 8:40 p.m., the National Weather Service said.

In Illinois, a tornado peeled the roof off a school in Brownstown about 5 p.m., injuring several people, said State Police Trooper Jim Williams. He did not know how many people were injured.

Seven homes in the Bali Acres subdivision in Highland were extensively damaged by a tornado, state police said, adding that there were no injuries.

Soviets show interest in arms talks

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has shown interest in reopening talks to curb nuclear missiles within the "umbrella" framework proposed by President Reagan in September at the United Nations, an administration official said Friday.

Negotiations broke down 11 months ago in Geneva, Switzerland, when the Soviets failed to thwart NATO's installation of new U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

The disruption of the talks left the two sides free to add to their weapons arsenals, restrained partly by past agreements.

Reagan's call Sept. 24 at the U.N. General Assembly for a new negotiating "framework" was designed to sidestep the negotiating impasse.

Since then, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobyrnin and lower ranking Soviet officials have expressed interest by asking questions about the formula, said the U.S. official, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified.

This official said, however, that the Soviets "continue to emphasize substance over procedure," meaning they apparently are more concerned about the conflicting U.S. and Soviet positions on reducing nuclear weapons than about how the talks might be resumed.

One way of implementing the "umbrella" proposal is to have Secretary of State George P. Shultz meet with Gromyko, accompanied by U.S. and Soviet arms control experts. "Out of these high-level channels, formal negotiations would spin off," the U.S. official said.

Reagan is considering the appointment of a special arms control envoy to assist Shultz in meetings with Gromyko. Among the possible candidates are Brent Scowcroft, national security assistant in the Ford administration, and current U.S. negotiators Paul H. Nitze and Edward L. Rowny.

Talks on the two classifications of nuclear weapons as well as space and anti-satellite weapons would be lumped together, providing the Soviets with a face-saving opportunity to resume negotiations even though the new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles remain in Britain, Italy and West Germany.

"We think a new format could be helpful to them," the official said. "They have not endorsed the 'umbrella,' but they are asking questions."

In Santa Barbara, Calif., where the president was vacationing, a senior White House official confirmed that a high-level exchange involving Shultz was being considered.

The purpose, he said, would be to "clear the air" with the Soviets and try to put new life into such specific negotiations, including strategic arms reductions and intermediate-range nuclear forces.

SHIP

He added that another Soviet freighter was waiting "not too far off" the Pacific coast.

The source said there was no firm evidence that MiG fighters had been aboard the freighter that docked.

Javier Chamorro, the Nicaraguan ambassador to the United Nations, asked for an emergency meeting of the Security Council to protest alleged acts of aggression by the United States — spy plane flights, deployment of naval forces near Nicaragua and movements at military bases within the United States.

In Washington, the Pentagon said two large-scale military exercises in Georgia and in the Caribbean weren't a prelude to military action against Nicaragua.

"These have been in the works for a long time and have nothing to do with Nicaragua," said Air Force Col. Robert O'Brien.

The Sandinistas have been predicting a U.S. invasion for several months, and the government said it had begun arming civilians, including 20,000 student volunteers who normally harvest coffee, Nicaragua's principal export.

"We prefer the loss of the coffee than the loss of the country," said Agriculture Minister Jaime Wheelock, who is also an army colonel.

The latest war scare was caused by reports from Washington that the Soviet ship that docked Wednesday at Corinto might be carrying MiG-21s. Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto vehemently denied the ship carried aircraft, but insisted that the government has the right to acquire planes for defensive purposes.

Family reunion brings generations of Leals together for food, fun

HEBBRONVILLE, Texas (AP) — Ernesto Leal's strength and endurance were legendary when he was a young field hand in Hebbronville. Although now a frail 83-year-old, he recently endured a day that began in the midday heat and ended with midnight dance music.

The occasion was a Leal family ritual — their ninth annual reunion. Tio Ernesto, as most of the family calls him, enjoyed it from the seat of honor — a recliner placed at the center of a concrete slab on the edge of a dusty field. Tio Ernesto is the oldest living member in his family — the fourth child of 13 born to Alvina and Crisanto Leal.

The Leal reunion is a huge event that attracts more than 300 people, but despite its size it is typical of any family reunion. It brings together the babies and the elders of the family and provides a time for reminiscing and passing on family history and values. It is also a time for eating and relaxing.

Despite a daughter's concern that he was tiring himself, Tio Ernesto refused offers of a quiet, cool place to rest. He preferred to revel in every minute of the visiting, singing, laughter, playing, dancing and storytelling of his relatives.

ONE STORY, told often, was about Tio Miguel, one of Tio Ernesto's brothers. He was so strong as a young man in Hebbronville, the family legend goes, that he knocked ornery mules out with his fist in order to harness them. Tio Miguel tells the story in Spanish with a little boy's grin on his face while he swings his fist into his hand.

Tio Ernesto was so strong, another story goes, that he was forbidden by the sheriff to hit anyone with his hand closed into a fist.

These family stories that are handed down through the years, said Corpus Christi psychologist Dan Adams, are almost a glue that holds families together. Whether mythical or true, the stories are a shared experiences that build family bonds, he said.

As the day passed at the reunion, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces, nephews, brothers, sisters, cousins and other relatives came one by one to hold Tio Ernesto's once ferocious fist, kiss his cheek and share a memory or simply sit and be close for a moment.

Melissa Gutierrez, 19, who lives in Hebbronville, was shy at first about talking to her great-uncle. But after a brief conversation with him, she came back beaming. "He remembered who I was," she said.

"This is just like a tonic for my father," said Tio Ernesto's oldest daughter, Willie Mae De Los Santos, while she relaxed for a moment in the shade of a mesquite tree.

THE REUNION was equally rejuvenating for the younger generations of Leals. But instead of it being an occasion for reflecting on a long life and savoring the family gathering as if it might be their last, the younger family members mostly enjoyed the party and visited with relatives they don't often see.

Some of them, like Israel Garcia, imagined the day when members of his generation will be the family elders. "I can just see us in the year 2015 sitting there like the old-timers are now, singing the old songs off key, and nobody will mind," he said.

For a few people it brought up thoughts of how difficult maintaining family unity is in a world so different from the one in which their parents and grandparents grew up.

Vickie Mendez, Mrs. De Los Santos' daughter who lives in Austin, said she comes to the reunions because they keep her in touch with her many relatives. "In Mom's generation everyone knew each other. That's not true of my generation, much less my kid's generation," she said. "There's so many of us, you can see why it's difficult. Just Grandpa and that one branch — there's one daughter with a dozen kids."

There are so many Leals, in fact, that the various branches of the family wear different colors to the reunion so they can be identified.

VICKIE, WHO is a single parent, also brought up the difficulties that divorce can create in maintaining a larger sense of family unity. Another problem, she said, is that families are scattered across the state and the country now. It's far different than the days when Vickie's great-grandmother had all of her grown children living just down the street.

Mrs. De Los Santos' son, Joe, described the reunion as a booster shot for family spirit. "The reunion gives you something to hold on to" said Joe, 40. "You're in this old world and you've got to scramble to make the mortgage and the car payments, but once a year for three days we say to hell with it and enjoy our family."

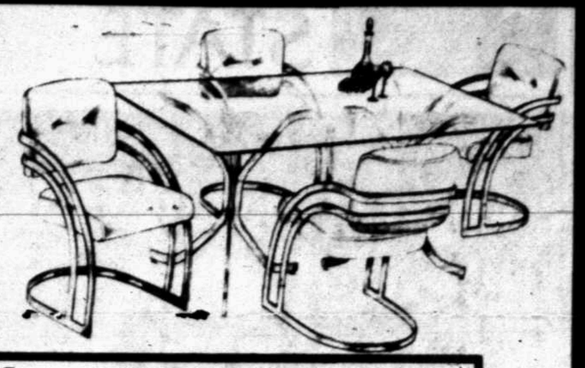

Carmen Guitierrez of Hebbronville said the reunion makes the sense of family stronger and that having family is important because it makes a difference in life. The respect for older uncles and aunts makes children think twice about getting in trouble, she said.

Adams later gave a psychology professional's vocabulary to the feelings the various members of the Leal family expressed no less eloquently.

Father's two-month jail stay ends

By ANDREW M. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — A father jailed for nearly two months for refusing to testify against his son in a murder case left a Harris County jail Friday after a state district judge ordered him freed.

But while State District Judge I.D. McMaster signed the order to free Bernard Port, the judge said Port's wife, Odette Port, would remain jailed until Monday.

"I just need some time to get in touch with my feelings," Bernard Port told reporters as he left the jail about 5:30 p.m. "And if you would, just tell my wife that I love her."

When asked if his wife was "tougher" than he, Port said, "I guess she must be.

"She's still in jail," Port said. "Odette's the hero."

The "circumstances of the case" made some of the questions asked Odette Port more important than those asked of Bernard Port, Harris County District Attorney John Holmes said.

Prosecutors have said Odette Port returned home first June 7, the day mail carrier Debora Sue Schatz was killed. Investigators found blood on the stairs and bullet stains in a wall of the Ports' house in an affluent west Houston neighborhood.

The grand jury adjourned shortly before 4 p.m. Friday. There were no plans to reconvene it, Holmes said.

Both state and federal appeals courts have rejected the Ports' argument they were not obligated to testify under the same principle that protects husbands and wives from testifying against each other in Texas courts.

The couple has been held in the Harris County jail since Sept. 12.

David Port was indicted in Ms. Schatz' murder and has remained free on $20,000 bond. Ms. Schatz, 23, disappeared while on her rounds in the Ports' affluent west Houston neighborhood.

Prosecutors have said that the elder Ports, who were not home when Ms. Schatz was killed, might be able to provide information that could lead to a capital murder indictment against their son.

Randy Schaffer, the attorney for the Ports, said his clients agreed to testify after the grand jury's term was extended to Jan. 31, meaning the parents could be jailed until that date.

"We had to do something," he said. "We couldn't just let them gather dust in jail for three months.

"The testimony before the grand jury has been sufficient to purge (Odette Port) of the contempt," Schaffer said. "Our position is the state cannot use the grand jury proceeding to discover further evidence of that offense."

Just before 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Bernard Port left the grand jury room, followed shortly thereafter by Jim Lavine, Harris County assistant district attorney.

Lavine said the grand jury was making much more progress, but refused to be more specific.

Although the two parents testified for several hours before the grand jury Wednesday, prosecutors refused to say what the two divulged in their testimony.

Holmes said Mrs. Port answered some questions during testimony Wednesday.

But because David Port is already indicted on a murder charge, defense attorneys could argue that the elder Ports do not have to answer questions concering the killing, Holmes said.

The district attorney declined to say, however, whether the Ports were limiting their answers about Ms. Schatz' murder.

'Altered state of consciousness' blamed

Associated Press

DALLAS — Abdelkrim Belachheb was in an "altered state of consciousness" when he opened fire on the patrons of a private Dallas nightclub, killing six and wounding a seventh, a psychiatrist testified Friday.

Dr. Sheldon Zigelbaum of Boston said Belachheb, who has pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to the worst mass murder in the city's history, was in a state similar to sleepwalking or a seizure.

"At the time of the shooting, Mr. Belachheb was not conscious. He could not in any way tell you about the shooting itself," Zigelbaum testified.

Like other defense witnesses, Zigelbaum said brain damage and a paranoid personality disorder afflict the 39-year-old Moroccan national, who is charged with six counts of murder and one of attempted murder.

Under cross-examination, Zigelbaum guided the hands of Assistant District Attorney Norman Kinne over the balding pate of the defendant, pointing out what he described as the scars of old injuries and beatings.

"The absolute evidence of heavy-duty skull damage is there," Zigelbaum said.

Zigelbaum said the brain damage makes Belachheb prone to "partial seizures" marked by violent outbursts such as the one on June 29 at Ianni's Restaurant and Club.

He said Belachheb's memory of the evening stops at the point where he became insulted when one of the victims rebuffed his advances.

"It seems he remembers everything up to the insult," Zigelbaum said. "Sometimes a trivial insult will kick off the altered state of consciousness."

Raising the specter of a life in either prison or a mental hospital, Zigelbaum said the prognosis for Belachheb is not good.

If Belachheb goes to prison, he is likely to die in a violent confrontation with other inmates, the psychiatrist said.

As for treatment, Zigelbaum said there "is no technology in 1984 to replace lost brain tissue" but that Belachheb would be a valuable subject for research into brain injuries.

A number of defense witnesses have testified that Belachheb said he was severely beaten in 1964 outside the Moroccan Embassy in Berne, Switzerland. They also testified that Belachheb said he struck himself in th skull with an ax as a child in imitation of an African tribal rite.

After Zigelbaum's testimony, prosecutors began trying to refute the insanity defense.

State nursing home firm again indicted

Associated Press

GALVESTON — A Houston-based nursing home corporation was indicted for a third time Friday on charges of murder in the 1978 deaths of two elderly patients at one of its facilities, the Galveston County district attorney said.

The eight indictments returned against Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc., the first corporation to be charged with murder in Texas, as well as its president, vice president and three employees closed the latest chapter in an inquiry that began in October 1979.

Autumn Hills, which currently operates about 12 nursing homes in Southeast Texas, was named in all eight indictments, said District Attorney Mike Guarino.

Named in six indictments were Robert Gay, 58, president and chief stockholder; Ron Pohlmeyer, 41, vice president; Mattie Locke, 42, nursing consultant; Virginia Wilson, 62, a former administrator; and Cassandra Canlas, 31 for director of nursing services.

"I'd like to know what took them so damn long," said their attorney, Roy Minton of Austin. "They said they only needed a month or two to get another indictment. Well, two years later, they finally do. None of these people should be indicted and they know it."

The five individuals were each released on $20,000 personal recognizance bond, Minton said.

All the defendants except Gay were named in two previous indictments, which were thrown out, Guarino said.

"The information contained in the indictments is basically the same as returned by the other grand juries," Guarino said.

The 9-men, 2-women panel has not completed its investigation, Guarino said. But he was uncertain whether further indictments would be returned.

The latest indictments allege that the corporations and the individual defendants knowingly caused the deaths of Edna Mae Witt, 78, of Galveston and Elnora Breed, 87, of Texas City by failing to provide them with nutrition, proper care, medication and other health care needs.

Both Mrs. Witt and Mrs. Breed were patients at Autumn Hills' facility in Texas City, about 30 miles south of Houston. The nursing home is still owned by Autumn Hills but is being leased by another firm, Minton said.

The indictments also said Autumn Hills failed to provide an adequate nursing staff and adequate supplies such as bandages and bed linen.

The five individuals also were charged with failing to adequately assess, evaluate and supervise the nursing staff and to take appropriate action when they knew patients were not receiving the needed care, the indictments said.

Mrs. Witt died Oct. 16, 1978, at Galveston County Memorial Hospital. She had lived at the nursing home for 45 days, the indictment said.

Mrs. Breed died Nov. 20, 1978, at the Texas City nursing home, where she had lived 47 days.

The indictments charged that the two patients died because the nursing home staff failed to report abuse and neglect of its patients to the Texas Department of Health as required by law. The deaths of the two women occurred because their clinical records were being falsified by the defendants, according to the indictment.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said of the indictments, "I think we are seeing an increased concern across Texas for the quality of life our senior citizens lead, particularly those who live in nursing homes."

Billie Herman of Houston, whose mother died in 1978 in Autumn Hills' Richmond facility, said she was pleased by the indictments but doubted any of the defendants in the case would be punished.

"Maybe the bad publicity will hurt them. Those people have never suffered. They've never suffered financially or mentally. The state has protected them too long."

Ms. Herman said that after her mother's death, she and six other people founded a group called Texans for Improvement of Nursing Homes.

Welch award winner enjoys pure, applied sciences

'Chemistry' of mixing with people seems to be favorite

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Dr. Kenneth Pitzer has enjoyed being a "bridge" between different kinds of scientific inquiry in his distinguished career.

Some of his work was directed at achieving relatively quick results, such as the method he and others developed to increase the octane rating of gasoline for military aircraft during World War II.

Other efforts have involved the most basic research — such as Pitzer's explanation of irregularities in the periodic table of elements — whose practical benefits he knew were years in the future.

All in all, his favorite work has been in the broad region between pure and applied chemistry. "I've enjoyed mixing with people of different types," Pitzer said.

Pitzer, former president of Rice (1961-68) and Stanford universities and now professor of chemistry and associate director of the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory at the University of California at Berkeley, was presented the 1984 Robert A. Welch Award in Chemistry this week.

The award consists of $150,000, a gold medallion and a certificate noting Pitzer's long career of "solving chemical problems of great complexity and broad importance."

He is the ninth recipient of the award, established in 1972 by the Houston-based Robert A. Welch Foundation to foster and encourage basic research in chemistry and to recognize in a substantial manner, research that "contributes to the betterment of mankind and to the understanding of human life."

Pitzer also has been deeply involved in questions of science and its relationship to public policy. He was director of research for the Atomic Energy Commission, a precursor of the current Nuclear Regulatory Commission and Department of Energy, and science adviser to three presidents.

When Pitzer headed the agency's research efforts, the nuclear power industry was in its infancy. Now, planning of new nuclear plants is at a virtual standstill.

Pitzer blames much of that on the slowness in solving the question of where to put radioactive waste.

"We were confident we could solve it," he said, "but that really wasn't enough for the general public reaction."

"Other fuels can provide needed power now," he said, "but sometime, perhaps in the next century, I think the world will be back at nuclear power, and we ought to be ready for it."

When that happens, he said, he hopes society will have learned a key lesson from the Three Mile Island accident in 1979 — that a nuclear plant is a "much more dangerous and complex device" than other kinds of power plants and "really too complex for the average American public utility to handle."

"Chemistry is a less popular word than 30 years ago," Pitzer said. While "careless" manufacture and disposal of chemicals provided "a real basis" for part of that attitude, he said, part of it resulted from exaggerated reporting of hazards in some cases.

Asked to name the most important science-related issue facing makers of public policy today, Pitzer said, "President Reagan's 'star wars' proposal for a space-based defense against nuclear weapons is a very important one."

It needs rigorous, objective study by scientists neither for nor against the idea, he said, so a true answer can emerge of what is scientifically and technologically possible.

STATE IN BRIEF

Austin teen-ager injured as car scatters crowd

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin teenager was hospitalized Friday after being seriously injured when a hit-and-run driver crashed into a crowd of teen-agers celebrating their high school's football victory.

Veronica Castro, 17, a student at Travis High, was listed in stable condition at Brackenridge Hospital. Police said she suffered a fractured spine, a skull fracture, a fractured right leg and possible internal injuries.

According to police, the crowd began building in the parking lot of a restaurant Thursday night after Travis beat Reagan High School 7-0 to win the District 26 AAAAA title.

At 11:35 p.m., police said, an auto pulled into the crowded parking lot at a high rate of speed. It hit a car belonging to one of the teen-agers, then traveled 119 feet and struck Miss Castro . The impact threw her against another parked car, police said.

The driver then fishtailed through the parking lot and sped away, police said.

Parker action delayed

BEAUMONT (AP) — A state judge says he will not start a court of inquiry into indictments against state Sen. Carl Parker until after the legislator is tried on charges of promotion of prostitution, perjury and promotion of pornography.

State District Judge Jack King said starting the inquiry proceeding before the trial would cause either a change of venue or a built-in reversible error in the trial.

Attorneys for Parker agreed to drop their request that a judge from outside Jefferson County be named to preside over the inquiry.

Panel renews opposition

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Nueces River Authority Board members have rejected a plea by the state to stop opposing a nuclear waste dump in South Texas.

Instead, the board voted Wednesday to reaffirm, and if necessary to intensify, its opposition to any radioactive waste site in the Nueces River Basin watershed.

Rick Jacobi, manager of the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority told the board he hoped to have a site selected late this year or early 1985.

Dallas surgeon honored

AUSTIN (AP) — Dr. Charles Max Cole, a Dallas surgeon, was honored by the Texas Medical Association Friday as winner of the association's distinguished service award.

The award is the highest TMA award.

Cole has served as TMA president, speaker of its house and a member of the board of trustees. He also has served as president of the Dallas County Medical Society which will honor him with a Friday evening reception in Austin.

Trip won't cost credit

RICHARDSON (AP) — A nine-day trip on a U.S. Navy ship next month won't cause two Richardson school students to lose academic credit, even though the trip will push the pair over their number of excused absences, the school board has ruled.

The question of credit arose because of newly implemented restrictions on absences included in this year's school reform legislation.

After appeals within the district and before the Richardson school board, Checky Liang and Patrick Niswonger learned their status for the semester will be ship-shape after their naval trip.

Psychologist indicted

ANGLETON (AP) — A former state prison psychologist whose job involved counseling inmates convicted of sexual crimes was indicted Thursday on charges that he raped a teen-age girl.

The Brazoria County grand jury also indicted seven Texas Department of Corrections inmates on various violence and escape charges.

Armando Simon, 33, a former psychologist at TDC's Ramsey III Unit near Rosharon, is accused of having sex with a 15-year-old repeatedly over an 18-month period. Also indicted was his wife, Angela, 20, who is charged with sexual assault of a child and indecency with a child.

Houston not 'thrilled'

HOUSTON (AP) — The Jackson brothers planned to make their 19th Victory Tour stop in the Astrodome this weekend, but Houstonians apparently don't consider the series of concerts a "thriller."

About 24,000 tickets were still available Friday morning, the day before the Jacksons were scheduled to stage their first of two Houston shows, an Astrodome spokesman said.

Allegheny County, Pa., Sheriff Eugene Coon, left, is turned away from Trinity Lutheran Church by supporters of D. Douglas Roth. Among the supporter are Darrell Becker, center, and Ron Weisen, right.

Sheriff won't enter church to get 'pastor'

Associated Press

CLAIRTON, Pa. — A defrocked minister who leads unemployed steelworkers was ordered arrested in his church Friday for contempt of court, but his supporters turned away the sheriff who conceded, "I'm not going to kick in the door of a church."

The Rev. D. Douglas Roth was said by allies to be praying inside the Trinity Lutheran Church, which was barricaded shut as about a dozen militant union supporters stood outside.

Roth has refused to leave his pulpit despite his dismissal by church superiors because of his involvement with a group of anti-corporate clergymen, who blame the region's decline on the policies of U.S. Steel Corp. and banking giant Mellon National Corp. His dismissal was upheld in a temporary injunction, and he was subsequently found guilty of civil contempt for ignoring the order.

After Roth failed to show up in court, Common Pleas Judge Emil Narick sentenced him in absentia Friday afternoon to 90 days in the Allegheny County Jail and fined him $1,200, according to clerk Margaret Bozik.

"He is by the terms of the sentence committed to the jail, so it is up to the sheriff to arrest him and bring him in," she said.

Ms. Bozik said Roth can avoid the sentence by appearing in court and promising not to perform any pastoral functions at the church, not to interfere with the pastors designated by the church synod and not enter the church without permission of the synod.

Earlier, Narick had ordered sheriff's deputies to "pick up this (man) wherever he may be and bring him to our court" after Roth failed to appear at a hearing in Pittsburgh, about 14 miles away.

Two hours later, Allegheny County Sheriff Eugene Coon, saying he wanted to "talk with" Roth, appeared at the church wearing civilian clothes and accompanied by one assistant.

Coon was met on the church's front lawn by Ron Weisen, a Roth supporter and president of United Steelworkers union Local 1397 in nearby Homestead. Weisen refused to allow Coon to talk with Roth.

Shuttle launches Canadian orbiter

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Discovery's astronauts interrupted their chase of two errant satellites Friday to launch a Canadian orbiter into deep space storage now to take advantage of NASA's bargain trucking rates.

Mission commander Rick Hauck and pilot David Walker fired rocket bursts to keep Discovery on track for a rendezvous Monday with the first of two orphan satellites, and then lined up the shuttle to deliver the Canadian Anik D2 satellite into orbit.

"The deploy went on time without any problems at all," said astronaut Joe Allen who started the automatic launch sequence by entering numbers in a computer. "The satellite counted down and deployed itself without a hitch."

The sequence caused the 2,700-pound satellite to spin at 50 rpm on a rotating table. Then springs ejected the craft into independent orbit. Forty-five minutes later, a rocket engine fired automatically to drill Anik D2 into an elliptical orbit with a high point of about 22,300 miles. Later, this orbit will be made more circular.

The Canadian company does not plan to use the satellite for awhile, but is sending it up now to take advantage of low launch fees by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Next year, NASA will double the charge for launching satellites, bringing the fees closer to actual costs.

Telesat said the Anik D2 will be "stored" in orbit above Medicine Hat, Alberta, until it is actually needed.

"The storage orbit allows us to be responsive to customers," said Telesat President Eldon Thompson. "Anik D2 can be moved into an operational orbit in about three days. If we stored it on Earth, it might take months or years to get a launch date."

Telesat paid NASA $10 million for delivery of the Anik. It is the eighth satellite put up by Telesat since the Canadian company launched history's first commercial communications satellite in 1972.

Another new satellite, owned by Hughes Aircraft and leased to the U.S. Navy, will be launched from Discovery on Saturday. Hughes is paying NASA $17 million to launch this satellite, which is larger than the Anik.

After Anik left Discovery's cargo bay, Allen referred to the salvage operation planned for next week when he told Mission Control: "We have an empty pallet (in the cargo bay). Looks like we've got room to pick up a satellite or two."

"That's exactly what we plan," said astronaut Ron McNair, the Mission Control capsule communicator.

Before the satellite was deployed, the astronauts beamed television views of themselves to Earth, and McNair said there was one particularly interested observer in Mission Control — astronaut Anna Fisher's daughter, 14-month-old Kristin.

"Kristin was here looking at you a while ago," said McNair. "She got a big kick out of that before she decided to take a nap."

"That's good news," said Mrs. Fisher, who is the first mother to fly into space. Her husband, Bill Fisher, also is an astronaut.

The astronauts also were still thinking about Tuesday's election.

Hauck said he hoped that astronaut boss George Abbey "did not lose our absentee ballots."

"I'm sure he got them in the right place on time," said McNair.

Discovery was supposed to have been launched Wednesday, the day after the election, and the astronauts were in Florida, away from their Houston homes, on Election Day. They voted by absentee ballot.

The Anik that was placed into orbit is almost identical to two wayward communications satellites, Palapa B2 and Westar 6, that the astronauts hope to capture in history's first space salvage operation.

Discovery's flawless launch Thursday morning was timed to start a 1.6 million-mile orbital chase of the Palapa and Westar. The target satellites have been in useless orbits since their rockets misfired last February.

Hauck and Walker triggered two short rocket bursts Friday as part of a series of 44 maneuvers that will slowly bring Discovery to within 35 feet of Palapa on Monday.

Both hunter and hunted are streaking around the Earth at about 17,400 mph. At the start of the chase, Palapa was 17,000 miles ahead of Discovery and at an altitude of 224 miles. Westar is at the same altitude, but 720 miles ahead of Palapa.

The rocket maneuvers Friday put Discovery into a 187-mile circular orbit, 37 miles lower than the target satellites. The lower orbit causes Discovery to move faster than the satellites, and allows it to catch up at the rate of about 241 mph.

Discovery will fly in formation with Palapa on Monday while astronaut Allen, wearing a Buck Rogers-like rocket backpack, flies out to the satellite and attaches a handle. Mrs. Fisher will then use the 50-foot robot arm on Discovery to capture the satellite and bring it into the cargo bay.

On Wednesday, the Westar will be the target and astronaut Dale Gardner will be flying the rocket backpack.

NASA is receiving $5.5 million from insurance underwriters to attempt the satellite salvage. The communications craft are worth about $35 million each. Once they are on Earth, the satellites will be refurbished and sold by insurance companies who hope to recover part of the $180 million they paid when the satellites went astray.

Officials reported only two problems aboard Discovery: A film camera that stopped running and a computer screen that quit. Neither affects the mission, and officials said it was hoped the astronauts could fix the camera.

An organic crystal-growth experiment designed by 3M Company continued to operate as planned on board Discovery. The experiment is the first under a multimillion-dollar contract 3M signed with NASA to conduct experiments on 72 shuttle missions over the next 10 years. The firm hopes to develop an industrial chemical research lab for a permanent space station planned for the 1990s.

Family ordered to leave 'all-adult' development

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A judge ruled Friday that a couple must move out of their home of seven years in a predominantly "adults only" section of a development because their 15-month-old daughter violates a no-child restriction in their deed.

"The question in this case is whether the age restriction is reasonable," Circuit Judge Miette Burnstein ruled. "The court will find as a matter of fact that the age restriction is reasonable."

The Woodlands Homeowners Association, representing the Tamarac community, took Bonnie and Ron Pomerantz to court, claiming they violated a deed restriction requiring that all residents in their adult section be at least 16. The association also claimed the Pomerantzes infringed on their mostly older neighbors' choice to live in a child-free area.

The Pomerantzes argued, however, the eviction attempt violated their civil rights through age discrimination in housing.

"We knew that it would be very difficult to win. Florida is not a very progressive state," Pomerantz said after the judge's ruling. "The rights of children are not very important in this state since old people bring in so much money."

The attorney representing the Pomerantzes said they would appeal.

In the meantime, the judge said the two parties should work out how long the family has to find other living quarters and, since they plan to appeal, whether or not they will be allowed time for the appeal before they move out.

Omega 7 leader sent to prison

Eduardo Arcocena

By PAUL MOSES
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — The convicted chief of the Omega 7 terrorist group, defiantly telling a judge he would "rot with pleasure" in jail, was sentenced Friday to life plus 35 years in prison for ordering the machine-gun murder of a Cuban diplomatic attache and more than 20 bombings.

"They say that I'm a terrorist," Cuban exile Eduardo Arocena said before the sentence was imposed. "If to struggle for my country and sacrifice everything I have is to be a terrorist ... then I am the greatest terrorist in the world, and I'm not sorry for it."

U.S. District Judge Robert J. Ward said Arocena's conviction proved the jury thought he was "founder, leader and chief bombmaker" of Omega 7, a group of Cuban exiles that claimed responsibility for two murders and a 10-year spree of bombings in a campaign against Cuba's leader, Fidel Castro.

Arocena, 41, was convicted Sept. 23 at U.S. District Court in Manhattan of 25 criminal charges, including the September 1980 murder of Cuban diplomatic attache Felix Garcia Rodriguez in Queens, punished by the mandatory life term.

He also was convicted in the attempted car-bombing murder of Raul Roa, Cuban ambassador to the United Nations, in March 1980 in Manhattan, and of a perjury charge involving the November 1979 machine-gun slaying of Eulalio Jose Negrin, an advocate of closer ties to Castro, in Union City, N.J.

In addition, Arocena was found guilty of financing Omega 7 by serving drug dealers as a collection agent and of ordering a series of bombings in New York, New Jersey and Florida from 1974 to last year.

Federal prosecutors said Arocena, who faced up to three life terms plus 235 years in prison, would be eligible for parole consideration after serving 10 years. Authorities said he could end up serving up to 50 years or a life term, depending on the decisions of parole officials.

In a vehement 20-minute speech, Arocena said he would never cooperate with federal investigators against other Cuban exile activists.

"I will never bow my face ... nor will my knees tremble," he said.

Jabbing the air with his finger, the former New Jersey longshoreman said U.S. officials were "digging their own graves" by what he called an effort to appease communists by probing the anti-Castro movement.

He denied FBI claims that he once aided a probe of a rival Omega 7 faction when he claimed agents kidnapped and drugged him.

Arocena told the judge that federal authorities "know I am an anti-communist to the death ...

"If I have to rot in jail, I'll rot with pleasure," he said.

After Arocena spoke, Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael L. Tabak told the judge he saw no need to make a long statement of his own to urge a stiff sentence.

"Mr. Arocena has clearly demonstrated by his actions of the last 10 years, right up to this moment, that he is a man who should not be on the streets again at any time when he is still capable of making a bomb or pulling a trigger," the prosecutor said.

Ward said Arocena's attacks were premeditated but not "wanton," noting he twice decided against detonating bombs because bystanders would have been hurt. But he said Arocena's bombings had injured several police officers and that a March 1979 bombing at Kennedy Airport "could have resulted in an air disaster bringing death to many people" if the Omega 7 bomb had exploded after a New York-Los Angeles flight had departed, rather than before.

Arocena also was convicted in the frogman bombing of a Soviet ship anchored off Elizabeth, N.J. in 1976, and attacks on Soviet, Cuban, Nicaraguan, Mexican and Venezualan diplomatic missions.

Voting time change sought

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An Oregon congressman said Friday he will introduce legislation early next year to establish uniform polling times nationwide, to prevent voters in the West from being discouraged by early television projections of winners.

"I'm convinced that for millions of working people in the West, the early network projections just drain the electoral process of its vitality," said Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore.

Wyden said his bill would propose one of two polling periods — polls opening at 8 a.m. Eastern time and 5 a.m. Pacific time, closing at 11 p.m. Eastern and 8 p.m. Western; or polls opening at 3 p.m. Monday, Eastern time, and closing at 3 p.m. Tuesday, Eastern time (noon on the West Coast).

The 15-hour polling period is more practical because it would not require major administrative changes, he said.

Elderly couple ended lives hampered by health problems

Associated Press

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — An elderly couple who enjoyed dancing and daily Jacuzzis until she suffered a stroke and he had a heart attack carried out a suicide pact so they could die with dignity, police said Friday.

"We feel very certain there had been a long-standing agreement, at least an understanding, between the two of them that they would end their lives together, in a dignified way," Palm Springs police Sgt. Jon Clem said of Saul Garell, 89, and his wife Hilda, 85, who had been married 69 years.

"I really hate to classify it as a murder-suicide, but legally that's what it is," Clem said.

Until recently, the Garells had gone ballroom dancing every Saturday night and would walk arm-in-arm every day to a Jacuzzi at the El Dorado Mobile Country Club where they lived, 110 miles east of Los Angeles.

Neighbors said the Garells "danced just like a dream."

Mrs. Garell had a stroke when the couple was on the dance floor last summer, said neighbor Mildred Cane. It left her paralyzed on her left side and unable to walk. Garell had a heart attack a short time later and the dancing stopped.

Sylvia Hopkins, a nurse who cared for the Garells two days a week, said the two often talked of killing themselves after their health began to fail.

"They were very unhappy because they couldn't do things together anymore," Ms. Hopkins said.

Even though he was weak, Garell insisted on pushing his wheelchair-bound wife on daily walks, neighbors said.

"I want to push her. She's my baby," neighbor Alyne Kemp remembers hearing Garrell say.

But Thursday morning, Ms. Cane said Garell told her and other neighbors that "if I have to live like this I'd rather kill myself. I've got a gun in the house and I'm going to use it."

Ms. Hopkins said Mrs. Garell had said repeatedly that she wanted to "go home."

The nurse said she tried to convince Garell that his wife was only confused and did not intend to say she wanted to die. Ms. Hopkins said she tried to talk the couple out of killing themselves more than once.

"At times they talked like things were going to get better," Ms. Hopkins said. "Sometimes, they still had hope. But then they'd get sad again and start crying."

The Garells wept during the lunch Ms. Hopkins served Thursday. They then retired to their bedroom. A short time later, Ms. Hopkins said she heard what sounded like shots as she was doing the dishes.

"I somehow didn't believe they would do it," Ms. Hopkins said.

Officers who found the Garells Thursday afternoon also found a suicide note, and a .357-Magnum handgun was in Garell's hands. Police say he shot his wife, then himself.

The note said "that they loved all their family and that they didn't want to be a burden," said investigating Officer John Booth.

NATION IN BRIEF

Defense requests slowing

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — After four years of huge requested increases in the defense budget, President Reagan apparently is ready to slow down the increase in defense spending and is likely to seek an additional 5 percent or 6 percent after inflation, a senior White House official said Friday.

The official, who spoke on the condition that he remain anonymous, said U.S. military strength had been improved sufficiently to allow for lower, but steady, budget increases.

Reagan has been seeking "real," or inflation-adjusted defense increases of 10 to 15 percent in the past several years, although Congress granted him just a 5 percent boost in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1, to $292 billion.

FBI probing allegations

CHICAGO (AP) — The FBI said Friday it is investigating possible civil rights violations against a black family that endured two nights of violence, obscenities and racial slurs after moving into an apartment in an all-white neighborhood.

Results of the probe will go to the Justice Department, which will decide whether the case is "prosecutable," FBI spokesman Bob Long said.

And Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley on Friday ordered an investigation into the husband's report that during the worst of the violence early Wednesday, he saw a uniformed police officer from neighboring suburban Cicero on the scene.

CIA documents detailed

NEW YORK (AP) — A CIA official complained to Director Richard Helms in 1967 that Gen. William C. Westmoreland apparently skewed Vietnam intelligence reports to avoid press criticism, but several days later struck an agreement with the general, according to documents introduced in court Friday.

A series of internal cables and a memo used as evidence in Westmoreland's libel suit against CBS detailed a battle between military and CIA analysts over estimates of enemy troop strength in the Vietnam War.

The cables — sent by George A. Carver Jr., top CIA official for Vietnam — detailed his view of a heated conference in Saigon over the politically sensitive intelligence reports.

NRC informed of probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said today it has been told by the Justice Department that a federal grand jury is investigating charges of wrongdoing "by certain NRC employees."

Frank Ingram, a spokesman for the commission, said the agency was told by Justice officials that the grand jury was convened in Washington to examine the allegations.

Ingram refused to discuss details of the probe, other than to say that it "relates to" actions by the NRC officials "within the regulatory process."

Springsteen makes appeal for miner's clinic

Springsteen

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Bruce Springsteen is becoming almost as well known these days for helping the jobless as he is for belting out such rock hits as "Born to Run" and "Dancing in the Dark."

During his four-hour, sold-out show here Thursday night, Springsteen made an impassioned plea for donations to the People's Clinic, which serve copper workers who have been striking Phelps Dodge Corp. for 17 months.

Officials said about $500 was raised. Springsteen also contributed $10,000.

"If you believe the business of America is Americans, I hope you can find it in you to help them out," Springsteen told the audience.

Dr. Jorge O'Leary, who founded his clinic in October 1983 after being fired as company physician at Phelps Dodge for supporting the strikers, said he would use some of the donations to buy an X-ray machine and give the rest to the town's food bank.

Springsteen, a native of Asbury Park, N.J., whose music extols his working-class roots, has made several similar donations during his "Born in the U.S.A" tour with most going toward food banks or steelworkers' benefits.

Coe

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer David Allan Coe says he will perform a benefit concert next week in memory of singer and songwriter Steve Goodman, who wrote Coe's first hit.

Proceeds from Tuesday's concert will go to Dream Makers, Inc. of Nashville, a non-profit organization that fulfills the dreams of terminally ill children.

Goodman, who died of leukemia in September at age 36, wrote such songs as "City of News Orleans" and "You Never Even Called Me by My Name," which in 1975 was Coe's first hit.

Coe said he will dedicate his next album, "Darlin', Darlin'," to Goodman.

Coe's other hits include "The Ride" and "Mona Lisa Lost Her Smile." He wrote the Johnny Paycheck hit, "Take This Job and Shove It."

Parks

NEW YORK (AP) — Rosa Parks, the Alabama seamstress who triggered the Montgomery bus boycott in 1955, is one of a dozen recipients of the this year's Candace award, given to black women deemed to be among the most distinguished in the nation.

The winners of the award Thursday from the National Coalition of 100 Black Women also included a general, a chemical engineer and one man, who said he was honored to receive the award from the women's organization.

A special achievement award was given Thursday to Constance Baker Motley, chief judge of the U.S. District Court, Southern District of New York.

Mrs. Parks is best known for refusing to move to the back of a Montgomery bus, as the law then required, sparking a boycott of the bus system by Montgomery blacks, a major event in the civil rights movement.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Judith Martin, known to thousands of newspaper readers as Miss Manners, says her mission in life is to make the world more civil.

"When I finish civilizing the world — as if that's not a big enough task — I'll think of something else to do," the syndicated Washington Post columnist said while visiting Memphis.

Mrs. Martin, who has been writing her Miss Manners column since 1978, said she's still amazed that so many people seek her advice on the social graces.

"Flabbergasted is the word," she said Thursday. "Who would think a subject like etiquette would draw that many people?"

Redgrave wins symphony suit

By BART ZIEGLER
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — A jury voted Friday to award Vanessa Redgrave $100,000, finding that the Boston Symphony Orchestra violated her contract by canceling a 1982 concert series. But jurors said the symphony was not trying to stifle the actress' radical politics and did not violate her civil rights.

Redgrave

The U.S. District Court jury found that the risk of violence cited by orchestra officials was not enough to justify canceling the performances, which were to feature Miss Redgrave's narration of Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex." The officials said the British actress' outspoken support for the Palestine Liberation Organization had prompted threats of violence against the performances.

But the panel declared the cancellation "caused forseeable harm" to Miss Redgrave, who claimed her career went into a tailspin after she lost the engagement.

Miss Redgrave, in a brief, impromptu news conference, called the decision a victory for all performers.

"If the BSO position had been upheld, nobody's contract would be safe," the 47-year-old British actress told reporters.

The verdict was met with silence in the crowded courtroom. Miss Redgrave, who spent four days on the witness stand, remained motionless as the decision was read.

The award fell short of the $1 million Miss Redgrave had sought for alleged violation of a Massachusetts civil rights statute.

She also asked for a minimum of $166,000 for lost income she claimed resulted from publicity over the canceled concert series. The jury said its award was to compensate her for any lost earnings.

There seemed to be some confusion as to whether Miss Redgrave would receive the $27,500 performance fee promised in her contract in addition to the $100,000. This was not mentioned in court, but attorneys for both sides said the jury automatically awarded her the fee when it decided the orchestra broke the agreement. Court officials could not be reached by phone to clarify this Friday night.

After the verdict, Robert Sullivan, the attorney for the orchestra, immediately asked U.S. District Robert Keeton to lower the award to $27,500.

Daniel J. Kornstein, Miss Redgrave's attorney, asked for a symbolic $1 award for the violation of Miss Redgrave's civil rights. Such an award would make the orchestra liable for her legal fees.

Keeton allowed the attorneys two weeks to file additional arguments before he decides on the final award.

Kornstein said he considered the jury's decision an affirmation of his contention that Miss Redgrave's civil rights were violated. "The finding on the contract claim implicitly says things about the rest of the case," he said. "We accomplished what we set out to do."

But Sullivan also claimed victory.

"I consider it more than that," Sullivan said. "There was no violation of civil rights, nothing appealable."

Thomas Morris, general manager of the orchestra, said he was "pleased and delighted" that the jury dismissed the civil rights claim. "We did not take her politics into account, and the jury has confirmed that," he said.

Morris also said the orchestra always was ready to pay the actress her $27,500 fee, although she claimed in court that she never knew that.

The manager said a large award would hurt the orchestra. The BSO usually runs up a $500,000 deficit each year, and a large award from Keeton "would increase those numbers," he said.

The jury's decision came after more than eight hours of deliberation by the six-member panel. One juror was excused Friday when he said he didn't remember enough of the three weeks of testimony to participate further.

Miss Redgrave thanked the artists who had attended a fund-raiser to help her meet the expenses of taking the orchestra to court. She also had something to say to the members of the BSO.

Man scales Astrodome

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who claimed he was Peter Pan's brother scaled the Astrodome Friday just hours before the start of the Michael Jackson concert there, authorities said.

The man, identified as Donnie Trest, 29, climbed the face of the Astrodome shortly after noon Friday and unfurled a banner reading "With Michael Jackson's Help, We Can Beat It — Cancer."

THE BETTER HALF

"Send in 20 box tops and they'll mail you a free set of dentures!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, November 11, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actress-model Maud Adams, author Kurt Vonnegut Jr., the San Francisco Giants' Jeff Ransom, Congresswoman Barbara Boxer (D-Calif.), actress Bibi Andersson and golfer Fuzzy Zoeller share your birthday. Also born on this date: the late Gen. George S. Patton Jr. and actor Pat O'Brien. Develop better rapport with your co-workers and your career will take off like a shot. Be more positive when dealing with higher-ups. Romance takes a dramatic turn in December or March. Ask for time to think things over. An unusual idea attracts the interest of someone influential. Set a fair price for your work and hold out for it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Trying to take the easy way out will only complicate matters. Make a firm decision and move quickly. You can no longer afford to close your eyes to what must be done.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get promises in writing even when dealing with family members. A phone call from a neighbor brings glad tidings. It is time to make a tough choice. Remember your long-term goals.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Plunge into family festivities and make this a weekend to remember. Spur-of-the-moment decisions are fine if they do not involve a lot of money. A shopping expedition uncovers bargains.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Dreams are wonderful but it is time to face up to your responsibilities. Make arrangements that will be satisfactory to everyone involved. Loved ones answer your questions. You make rapid progress.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your unpredictability works to your advantage today. Your sense of humor helps you avert a confrontation with a family member. A single phone call clears up any confusion. Plan a short trip.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Start on a small scale and build up. Family members ask questions. Come out with the truth. Trust your intuition; mate is in a forgiving mood. Keep any promises you make.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Face reality. You need to set a good example for an impressionable young person. A change in lifestyle could improve both your health and finances. You have the determination needed to correct a bad habit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be flexible and you can turn a disappointment into an advantage. A sermon or talk gives you new insights about a problem with loved one. Minor setbacks mean nothing. Victory is certain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your charm works miracles, even with young family members. Someone gives you an idea that can be turned into cash later on. Surround yourself with people who know what is important to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You feel a new inner peace now. Devote time to those projects that bring you greatest satisfaction. Keep alive a loved one's memory by carrying on his or her work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Clashes with relatives can be avoided if you are willing to make compromises. Even an innocent flirtation could land you in hot water now. Be discreet around someone who likes to dramatize things.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A strong physical attraction could lead you to do something that is not in your best interest. Postpone a home improvement project until you can get some help. Authority figure applauds your efforts.

Patty Lee, co-owner of the Manley lodge and store, says last spring's mass murder in her tiny wilderness community was "like Russian roulette. We're the ones that weren't hit."

Months later, horror lingers in Alaska village

By PAUL JENKINS

MANLEY HOT SPRINGS, Alaska (AP) — It was spring when a brooding, jobless loner from Illinois methodically executed seven residents of this wilderness hamlet and dumped their bodies into the rain-swollen Tanana River.

Now, with winter's grip squeezing the life from the countryside, townspeople ponder the lingering horror and the changes it made in their lives.

Michael Silka of Hoffman Estates, Ill., was 25 when he drove a beat-up sedan crammed with guns and gear north to Alaska, dreaming to live off the land in the back country.

Authorities believe he had already murdered a man in Fairbanks by the time he reached this log cabin settlement of about 50 year-round residents and killed seven of them, including a pregnant woman, her husband and their 2-year-old son, in a three-hour riverbank rampage May 17.

Nearly a day passed before the town figured out what had happened to the missing people. Alaska state troopers in helicopters headed up the muddy Tanana after the young drifter.

HE DIED May 19, hit five times by troopers' M-16 rifle fire on the muddy bank of the Zitziana River. Seconds earlier, troopers had offered him a chance to surrender. Instead, he stepped from behind a tree and fired a high-powered rifle at one of the helicopters, killing trooper Troy Duncan.

Nobody knows how Silka found this isolated village on the Elliott Highway. Nobody knows what stirred his demons.

People think he probably first shot a single person, perhaps in an argument, at the boat landing outside town, then — to escape without witnesses —killed the others as they arrived before he fled in a boat.

"Every one of us knows it could have been any one of us," said Patty Lee, who runs Manley's lodge, general store and post office along with her husband, Bob. "To me, that's like Russian roulette. We're the ones that weren't hit."

The carnage chilled the soul of little Manley Hot Springs, perhaps changing it forever.

FIRST CAME numbing shock. Then, the anger. Townspeople could not get at Silka, so they took out some of their frustration on his car, which he had abandoned along a dirt road leading to the bloodied boat landing.

"The boys shot it up, beat it up, tore it up and shoved it in the river," said Cy Hetherington, who runs a flying service from an office cluttered with artifacts, aircraft parts and hides. "I think it may have helped. It got some of it out of their systems."

The phrase "time will heal" pops up repeatedly in conversation, but some of the anger still smolders.

"We're all very happy Silka was killed, rather than having to pay for his crimes by sitting in an insane asylum," said Mrs. Lee.

"I don't believe they should have buried Silka in the veterans cemetery. That didn't go over too well with a lot of people," said Hetherington's son, Tom, a 26-year-old trapper, mechanic and commercial fisherman. "He had no right to that." Silka was an Army veteran whose ashes were buried at the National Cemetery at Sitka at his father's request.

But now, with the leaves stripped from the birch-carpeted hills and with pan ice beginning to choke the Tanana River, a cautious sense of optimism is trying to take root.

"NOBODY SEEMS to be giving up," Tom Hetherington said. "But the impact will be remembered for a long time. I take a gun everywhere with me now. I never did before. Our general opinion, after this, is that Manley is definitely a closed camp to drifters. Anybody that's questionable now gets watched."

"I don't think anyone's dwelling on it anymore," said Dennis McNeil, a school worker. "I don't think much about it. Maybe I'm a little less trusting. By the end of summer, after the last of the bodies that were going to be found were found, it settled down."

Families and friends of the victims spent months searching for bodies along the brush-choked banks of the Tanana. One at a time, four of them were found, some as far downstream as 50 miles: Larry Joe McVey, 38; Dale Madajski, 24; Lyman Klein, 36, and Fred Burk, 30.

Prototype overlooked

CINCINNATI (AP) — When people think of important suspension bridges, the one at Cincinnati never gets enough credit, says historian Joseph S. Stern Jr.

Books on bridge architecture frequently mention the engineering and design advances shown in New York's Brooklyn Bridge. But its Cincinnati cousin is overlooked.

Stern, a University of Cincinnati business professor who majored in history at Harvard, says national attention should be paid to Cincinnati's suspension bridge, which last year was formally named the John A. Roebling Bridge.

The name honors the architectural pioneer who designed the Civil War-era bridge as a prototype of his larger, later copy in Brooklyn. The Brooklyn Bridge celebrated its centennial last year.

Stern says he is happy to see local pride in the 118-year-old bridge across the Ohio River between Cincinnati and Covington, Ky.

In recent months, a group of residents calling themselves the Covington-Cincinnati Suspension Bridge Committee raised $300,000 to install and maintain lights to showcase the bridge's steel cables and stone towers that rise 230 feet above the river. The lights were turned on this fall.

The original estimate for constructing the bridge in the early 1850s was $350,000.

Agency stresses development instead of relief

By PETER S. HAWES

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Shirley D'Auria, the director of resource development for Technoserve Inc., explains the obscurity her agency has labored under while working for 16 years to stimulate economic growth in Third World nations.

"We're not sexy. We don't appeal to that heart-rending story of the starving children," she said in comparing her non-profit organization to such better known relief operations as CARE or Save The Children.

The organization's goal is much the same as the others: ultimately, to solve the world's hunger problems and immediately to improve the quality of life in the circles in which it works.

The approach, however, is different.

Technoserve places no stark photographs of emaciated Latin American youngsters in magazines. Its workers do not buy food for hungry Rwandans. Neither do they organize airlifts of medical supplies to Afghan rebels.

Technoserve, with headquarters in a small office above a Norwalk bank, takes pride in not being "just another giveaway program." Its staff of 125 uses money already available through programs such as the United States Agency for International Development or the U.N. World Bank to train low-income people to start and run their own businesses.

"We've tried the approach of giving people in developing countries money. These are poor countries, we all think, so obviously they need it," William F. Farren, Technoserve's marketing vice president, said in an interview.

But, he added, "Most countries that have been the recipients of this largesse are probably worse off than they were three decades ago. They're poorer and their living conditions are worse.

"Sure, giving money can be part of the solution, but it's not the whole solution: A lot of those countries are not poor — they're well off in resources. Something is missing. That ingredient is the ability to manage those resources and make use of them," Farren said.

According to Technoserve's annual report, in 1983 it aided 150 community-based enterprises in eight African and Latin American countries. It spent $2.8 million, which helped yield $19 million in gross revenues and $25 million in assets for the projects it assisted.

In Kenya, five years of teaching growing methods and management systems to 1,400 members of a farmers' cooperative helped double the cooperative's beef production and sharply increase milk production, Technoserve officials said.

Farren credited Technoserve's use of local people as staff members for the agency's lack of trouble in countries such as El Salvador, Zimbabwe and Honduras.

"Using mostly local people gives us a low profile," he said. "If we had 40 Americans working in these countries, it would be a different story.

Technoserve was founded in 1968 by Edward P. Bullard five years after he returned from a year in Africa. In 1962, at age 27, he had taken a leave of absence from his job as chief production engineer for his family-run Bullard Co., a machine tool manufacturer in Bridgeport, to work as a lay missionary in a Ghana hospital.

"I was struck by the extensive needs that were there, and I thought there was no way charity handouts were going to meet those needs," Bullard recalled. "I came back, fumbled around for around five years or so, quit my job and started Technoserve with the premise that developing viable enterprises could increase local productivity and, therefore, wealth.

Bullard developed contacts throughout the world and turned Technoserve into, as he describes it, "the first in a new generation of organizations that saw as its goal development instead of relief."

Israeli describes plans to deal with victims of terrorists

By KIP COOPER
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — Israel is far ahead of the United States in dealing with mass casualty situations, especially in planning for and dealing with terrorist acts, an Israeli doctor said here Wednesday.

"We have a different political system which permits us to do (things) that you are only talking about on a small scale," said Lt. Col. Michael Weiner, a surgeon in the Israeli defense force.

Weiner, who directs all casualty-related civilian and military medical activities in the northern sector of Israel, noted that since its birth his nation has been dealing with terrorism. It is also dealing with a new brand of terrorism (kidnapping, killing and the taking of hostages) that has developed in the Middle East in the past 15 years.

"We not only have developed the tools and the means to fight back, but our medical units particularly are linked with this type of warfare," Weiner said at the annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States. "A basic part of the action is immediate retaliation, seal off the area where the incident occurred, and provide medical treatment and evacuation of casualties."

As outlined by Weiner, the Israeli medical system is directed from the top of a pyramid represented by the government, and moves down to the senior medical officer in each of the three sectors Israel is divided into. Those medical officers have absolute control of all medical facilities, personnel, ambulances, helicopters and buses in the sector.

As many medical teams as are needed are based in each sector. No team is more than 15 minutes' distance from any place a casualty may occur.

Military medical teams are integrated with civilian hospitals and Red Cross medical teams. Civilian hospital staffs are trained to deal with mass casualties.

In a separate speech, Dr. David R. Mares of the University of California at San Diego said there are six ways to handle terrorists:

— Nations should agree on how to deal with and provide an organized response to terrorists.

— There should be specific responses, such as fuel oil and grain sanctions, against countries that offer asylum to terrorists.

— There should be international intelligence cooperation to pool knowledge of terrorist groups and suspected activities.

— The international arms market must be regulated.

— Newspapers and broadcasters must operate with restraint in coverage of political violence.

— An international consensus is needed on the definition and condemnation of terrorism.

Mares said modern urban societies are very vulnerable and an entire city can be held hostage by someone, for example, who gains control of its water supply.

He said the victims of terrorism usually are innocent bystanders, and that such acts are directed not so much at a specific victims as at the world that is watching.

Life getting harder for Mexican vendors

By CAM ROSSIE

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Cold raindrops ping on the roofs of the tiny metal stalls. The merchants huddle around their neatly arranged wares.

One offers lighters, calculators, radios, purses, shampoo, watches and eye shadow kits. Another makes keys. An elderly couple sit behind a table of cigarettes, candies and gum. A woman holding an infant in blankets sits out of the wind near her selection of jewelry.

With joblessness and underemployment widespread, hundreds of thousands of people throughout Mexico earn their livelihood selling goods in the open air.

They have become a class of their own, with the luck of a day's sales sometimes deciding what goes on the dinner table that night.

In most cities, vendors operate on the busiest or most fashionable streets. They did here in Monterrey, until the state government early this year moved them into alleys and side streets, a decision that the vendors claim has cut their sales.

Many arrive by 7 a.m., arrange their goods on small tables and shelves or hang belts and bags from metal hooks. Then they sit, often until after dark, living day by day off the whims of the passers-by.

Those who sell from the wide assortment of smuggled American-made goods watch for customs agents and police or face the loss of their merchandise in a raid.

The Nuevo Leon state government's order moving all street vendors off the main thoroughfares ended a 50-year tradition in Monterrey.

Authorities maintained that they had to clear the central business district of the brightly painted wooden stalls because they left little room for pedestrians and made it easy for pickpockets to operate.

As a compromise, the government built rows of aluminum stalls in the narrow walkways and offered the vendors a year's free rent.

But many of the more than 3,000 vendors complain the move has deprived them of access to the high-traffic areas for steady sales.

Jose Galvan, who sold his assortment of nail clippers on the busy Juarez Street before the relocation, charges that the state government and the local Chamber of Commerce conspired to force the street vendors out of the main business district so the established businesses wouldn't have to compete with them.

"There's an old saying that says the fat fish eats the skinny one," he says. "That is what happened here."

He operates now in a paved alley between rows of houses.

Many of the houses are vacant or carry "for sale" signs as local residents flee the street-vendor invasion.

But one street vendor says some of the residents who remained have been kind.

"I sold more on Juarez, but I like this location and I like the neighbors and my companions," says Jose Salas Alvarado.

The neighbors, he adds, "hide our merchandise for us when the customs agents come."

Some of the merchants say they are earning less than half of their former income.

"We're not selling anything," Santo Cruz says from behind her candy and gum counter.

She says it costs her and her husband about 1,000 pesos ($5) a day to eat. "At times we sell less than 1,000 pesos worth of goods."

Mrs. Cruz's son, Jesus Ruiz Cruz, also is a street vendor and manager of a local union affiliated with the National Confederation of Popular Organizations, one of several nationwide unions the street vendors belong to.

"We're content with what the government has done because we're not out in the air," Ruiz said.

He says the new stalls, which have corrigated steel doors, are more secure than the old wooden ones and that police are providing better protection now.

The free rent, says Ruiz, is proof that the government is helping the vendors make the transition.

"We're selling a lot less now," he acknowledges. "But people are selling more and more each day."

Others aren't as optimistic.

"The people who have young children have to send them out in the streets to sell things in order to make any money," Galvan says. "The days you don't sell anything, you wait longer to see if in the night you'll make a sale."

Rescue crew ready for each shuttle launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After space shuttle crew members are strapped into place and the main hatch is shut and locked, the closest people to the launch pad as the final minutes tick away are seven fire fighters huddled in a tank a mile and a half away.

Their mission: rescue the crew if they become incapacitated in an emergency.

The chief of one rescue team is Russell Hellein, a career fire fighter who has been at the Kennedy Space Center for seven years.

"Our only purpose for being there is to remove the astronauts," said the 46-year-old native of Uniontown, Pa.

The tank, an M-113 military transport that weighs 14,500 pounds and can hit 35 miles per hour, has no first-aid equipment inside.

"Its purpose is fast in and fast out," explained Hellein.

The space center has three of the tanks, nicknamed "hard hats." One is parked in a bunker 300 feet from the launch pad. If a last-minute emergency arises, those aboard the space vehicle are instructed to exit the craft, use slide wires to reach the ground, dash to the tank and drive off.

The rescue crew is ready with the second tank, and a third is left at an 18,000-foot runway three miles west of the pad. This "hard hat" is to be used by rescuers if a returning space shuttle goes off the runway and into nearby marshland.

On Thursday, space shuttle Discovery carried a crew of four men and one woman on a mission to recover two misfunctioning satellites and return them to Earth for repairs. At launch time a rescue crew was ready in its tank.

Hellein said that 90 members of the 100-member Kennedy Space Center Fire Department are trained in launch pad rescue procedures. These include removing astronauts from the space shuttle in its poised position on the launch pad as well as from a horizontal position. A crane is used to change the mockup's configuration.

Any emergency that warrants sending in the rescue team is extremely dangerous because of the fuel aboard the shuttle — 2.2 million pounds of propellant in the two solid rocket boosters, 1.55 million pounds of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen in the 154-foot long external tank, and assorted "exotic fuels" for such functions as orbital maneuvering.

Should that fuel explode, anyone near the launch site would perish. The silvery suits worn by the rescuers would offer scant protection in that kind of fire and temperature.

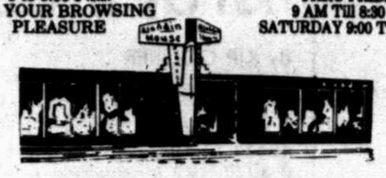

"It's not an entry suit," Hellein said.

Another danger could be the lack of oxygen. The seven fire fighters in the tank are equipped with oxygen masks and canisters containing 15 minutes of air.

As the Midland Lee Rebels were walking to their bus to take them back to the team's fieldhouse there were a lot of hearty congratulations being passed around. In the Midland High Bullpit, there were tears.

The Rebels had just finished a 9-1 regular season campaign and were beginning to look forward to next week's playoff game against Plainview. The Bulldogs had nothing left but memories.

Coming off the field, on which Lee had to fight for a 14-6 District 4-5A victory, there was one thing all players knew: Their opponent had been in one tough ball game.

"They played awfully tough," said Lee head coach Jack Tayrien. "They were ready to play but that's the way inner-town schools play. We were fortunate. Doug (MHS head coach McCutchen) did a great job and their coaching staff gave a great effort. I'm glad it's over."

McCutchen, who spent several minutes with his players after the game, consoling those with spirits broken down into tears and congratulating all, was only saddened by the fact his team had lost.

"Our defense played a great ball game," said McCutchen. "They have one hell of an offensive team and we stopped them from breaking the long play. We just couldn't get enough points on the board. Lee did a good job. We have to credit our defense for not breaking down."

OFFENSIVELY, LEE was led by the rushing of senior halfback Walter Jones, who led all rushers with 130 yards on 15 carries for one touchdown. They were hard fought yards and his tally late in the fourth quarter on a 19-yard run gave his team some breathing room.

"It was a regular 51 up the middle," said Jones about his TD romp. "We had run it the play before and I was open then but the linemen jumped offsides. We ran another play and came back with the 51. It was open again and the offense blocked it just right."

The TD run with 4:29 left in the game, combined with Craig Kamradt's point-after kick, increased a dangerous one-point lead to the 14-6 margin. From there on it was up to the Rebel defense to stop a Bulldog offense that was having success moving the football.

The Rebels gave Midland High the ball twice in the final minutes. The first time, they stopped MHS after three plays to force a punt.

The second time was a clipping penalty away from six points. After being stopped themselves and punting to the MHS 18, defensive back Terry Young picked off a Matt Marcum pass at the 30 and took it into the end zone. The clipping penalty brought the ball back to the 24 and, after picking up one first down, the Rebels opted to run out the clock.

LEE OPENED the game's scoring early in the second quarter after fair-catching a Jesse Renz punt at the Bulldog 45. Eight plays, including a penalty that nullified a Tyrone Thurman 15-yard gain, Thurman leaped over the Bulldog defense to break the plane of the goal line.

The touchdown, which came with 10:41 left in the half, was set up when split end Dexter Traylor hauled in a 26-yard pass at the 17, just over the defense of Midland High's Tim Hickey. Kamradt kicked the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

The Bulldogs struck for their lone TD of the game with 6:45 gone in the third quarter after Kelly Green blocked a James Tom punt at the Rebel 21.

Four plays, including a 15-yard penalty against MHS, saw the Bulldogs score. Marcum got back 11 of the 15 penalty yards with a pass to tight end Darrell Davis and put six on the board when he hit wide-open split end Darren Thorpe in the end zone for Thorpe's first TD catch of the year.

Midland High went for the tie, but Richard Fry missed the PAT kick for a 7-6 score, where it stayed until Jones scored in the fourth quarter.

"It was the pass that made the play," said Thorpe, "good blocking and a good pass. We had our chances to win but I guess you can't win every time. They (the Rebels) knew we were out on the field, that's for sure."

Marcum, a junior, completed 9-of-25 passes for 111 yards and three interceptions. He impressed more people than Thorpe even though his completion percentage wasn't very high.

"He did a good job," said Tayrien. "Midland High has a great football team. I thought our kids did a great job. Our kids played hard and I'm glad we won the ball game."

The loss ends Midland High's season with a 5-5 overall record and 2-5 4-5A record. Even though, statistically, it wasn't the year the Bulldogs had hoped for, they were proud of it.

"This is the best group of guys I've ever played with," said Thrope. "We played as a team more than anybody I've ever seen."

"We never gave up," said Green. "We played it right down to the end. I think we had a great year, we just didn't have all the good breaks."

"This has been a great year playing on this team," said defensive back Keith Byrd, who did an outstanding job on defense containing the Rebel offensive pitchout. "We never gave up."

Lee, Midland both winners

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

A bright full moon seemed to be sitting right on top of Memorial Stadium Friday night at the kickoff of the 24th football meeting between Midland High and Midland Lee.

The night seemed special somehow with that flashy oval overlooking the scene. It seemed even more special after the game itself. History will record that Lee's playoff bound Rebels won the city championship title by a 14-6 margin. But there were no losers to come out of this one. The Tall City was the winner.

The 1984 Lee squad became only the second team in the school's history to post a 9-1 regular season record. The 1976 team was the only other unit to capture that kind of mark.

LEE ALSO enters the playoff with a string of four straight victories, something first year head coach Jack Tayrien wanted desperately.

But this game went beyond the positives for the Lee Rebels. Midland High came to play and offered Tall City fans one of the most memorable meeting between the two schools. This was head-knocking stuff where both teams showed class.

"We did what we wanted to do," said Tayrien. "It was a great effort on both sides of the football. We killed ourselves on some drives with interceptions, but Midland High has a good football team. They played our britches off and they've done it a lot of times before. We expected this kind of game."

Doug McCutchen, also in his first year at MHS and finishing with a 5-5 overall record, said, "I couldn't be prouder of our kids if we had won by 100 points. Our defensive team played them as well as you could ask for. Lee is a heck'va good team. We would drive and drive and they would eventually stop us and we would stop and stop them and then they would come up with a big play. That's to their credit. If Lee hadn't been up for this game, we would have won it. You watch and see what Lee does next week against Plainview. You'll find out how good they really are and how well we played."

MIDLAND LEE linebacker Pool Webb said he had no problem getting up for this game. "This was for the city championship. I had no trouble getting up for this one. I think I had my best game. Midland High is a tough team and they played hard."

Lee defensive back Chris Embrey said, "We expected a hard game and Midland High played us like we expected. I don't think we had any trouble at all getting up for this game."

Midland High senior Darrell Davis, who many think may be one of the blue chippers in the state, was disappointed with the loss. "Lee's all right, but we could have beaten them. We had some bad breaks go against us."

Midland High junior quarterback Matt Marcum noted, "It's a real frustrating loss. The team really wanted to win this one. We had a lot of bad breaks. But we now have a long off season and will come back.

"I think Lee knew they were in a game. This game can do a lot for the Rebels. They'll be a lot tougher after this one."

If there was a controversial moment in the game, it was on one Midland High drive in Lee territory when McCutchen replaced starting quarterback Marcum with backup Jeff Alsup, who started two games for MHS this year when Marcum was hurt. Alsup fumbled two snaps from center after the change.

Meadowlands authority looking to baseball next

ABSECON, N.J. (AP) — The Meadowlands Sports Complex has boosted New Jersey's image, and sports authority officials say they still have hopes of improving things further by expanding to include a major league baseball team.

Robert E. Mulcahy III, chief executive officer of the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, said sports officials and representatives of professional athletic teams across the nation often visit the Meadowlands for tips on how to improve their facilities.

"We've come a long way to conquer our image problems," said Mulcahy.

He also said the authority has not abandoned efforts to find a baseball team to play in New Jersey.

No tie for Tech-TCU this year

Toughest game to pick this week is the Texas Tech-Texas Christian University game in Fort Worth. Our heart tugs both ways.

On the one hand, it would be a shame to end the TCU story before it reaches the Texas game and a possible trip to the Cotton Bowl.

Still, Texas Tech, even though last week's 13-10 loss to Texas, the No. 2 ranked team nationally, was as good as a victory at this stage of the Raiders' development, Jerry Moore and staff need a genuine victory, the kind that goes in the W column.

A team can starve on moral victories.

One good thing, the game isn't at Lubbock, so the envitability of a tie is removed. The last three TCU—Tech games at Lubbock have been stalemates.

Tech relies on defense and TCU has the kind of offense that has bowl scouts drooling, whether or not the Frogs make it to Dallas New Year's Day. Strange, isn't it. TCU is a hot bowl property. Nearby SMU, which has one of the best records in the land over the past three or four years, is still regarded with suspicion and skepticism by the big bowl people.

Last week the score was 4-1 in the SWC, with Texas Tech doing the torpedoeing, and 9-3-1 in other college games. In the pros, it was 4-3, somehow... For the season, our percentage against the college spread is .673 and .613 overall.

The SWC...

TCU minus 10½ over Texas Tech—This is a tough one to pick and the outcome probably will be decided by Texas. Can the Raiders come back from emotion-draining effort of a week ago? Can TCU, which plays Horns next week, keep attention riveted on Tech? Home field is the decider.

Houston plus 14 over Texas—Longhorns apparently play everybody close. The fact that this one is at Austin is cause for apprehension.

SMU minus 22 over Rice—Mustangs bounce back after scare against A&M last week.

Arkansas minus five over Baylor—I'm giving the points. Somehow that spells trouble.

The Others...

Florida minus three over Georgia—Gators have been coming on strong.

West Virginia minus six over Rutgers—Mountaineers rebound from Virginia loss.

NC State plus seven over Virginia—Gambling the Wolfpack is in a mood to play this week.

Washington minus four over USC— —Huskies No. 1. It's Washington State of whom they have to beware.

Nebraska minus 27 at Kansas—That's a lot of points to give a team that thrashed Oklahoma.

Iowa State minus 5½ over Kansas State-Every once in a while the Wildcats surprise, like that win over Kansas.

Colorado plus 27 over Oklahoma— It's at Boulders and aren't the Buffs supposed to be tougher in the high altitude?

Tennessee minus 1½ over Memphis State-Knoxville site makes the difference.

Wisconsin minus 3½ over Purdue—Who knows how the Boilermakers will respond.

Michigan State plus 12½ over Iowa—Hawkeyes should win, but Spartans keep it respectable.

Arizona State minus four over Oregon—Webfoots having problems after fast start.

Syracuse minus seven over Navy—Middies went all out against Irish....

Minnesota plus 21½ over Michigan—For the Little Brown Jug.

The Pros....

Denver even over San Diego—What do the gamblers know that we don't?

Steelers minus one over Cincinnati—Bengals are on down cycle.

St. Louis minus four over Cowboys—Cards will be up for this one before the home fans.

49ers minus 6½ over Browns—Easy money.

Bears plus three over Rams—Chicago beginning to resemble Midway Monsters of yore.

Redskins minus 10 over Lions—Washington can't afford to ease up.

Miami minus 14½ over Eagles—Dolphins not only are undefeated, but are 8-1-1 against the spread.

Packers plus six over Vikings—Green Bay's luck is begining to turn.

Holmes wins in 12th round

First IBF defense

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes, at times showing signs of age, pounded James "Bonecrusher" Smith's face into a bloody mess and stopped him at 2:10 of the 12th round Friday night in his first defense of the International Boxing Federation heavyweight title.

The 35-year-old Holmes appeared to have the fight well in hand in the scoring, but he had his problems.

The champion, who sometimes seemd to lose his rhythm, was shaken by rights to the heads on two occasions and suffered a cut above the left eye from a head butt in the seventh round. His corner was unable to keep the cut from bleeding for the rest of the fight.

The victroy was Holmes' 46th with no defeats and was the 33rd knockout for the man who defended the World Boxing Council title 17 times before giving it up last spring in a dispute with promoter Don King. King promoted Friday's bout before a sellout crowd of 5,000 in an outdoor arena at the Riviera Hotel and Casino.

Holmes, 221½, cut the 31-year-old Smith, who was fighting professionally for just the 16th time, on the bridge of the nose in the first round and under the left eye in the third.

In the fifth round, Smith was cut above the left eye, but in this round, he landed a crunching right to Holmes' jaw that made the champion hold.

In the seventh round, Holmes was cut and the fight suddenly took on a different complexion.

In the eighth round, Smith again hurt Holmes with a hard right to the head midway through the round and Smith also landed some effective jabs.

But Holmes kept his poise — poise built up over many years in the ring and would not let Smith take control of the bout.

Holmes was effective with his left jab in the ninth and 10th rounds, as the challenger did little punching.

Then, in the 11th, Holmes ripped a cut over Smith's left eye and the blood poured freely. With just a couple of seconds let in the round, referee Davey Pearl called Dr. Donald Romeo into the ring to examine the cut. Romeo said the fight could go on and the bell rang.

In the 12th, Holmes scored with jabs and a couple of rights and when the cut began bleeding badly again, Pearl once more halted the action and summoned Romeo. This time, Romeo told the referee to stop the fight. The time was 2:10.

Before the fight, Holmes had said, "I don't need to be as sharp against this guy."

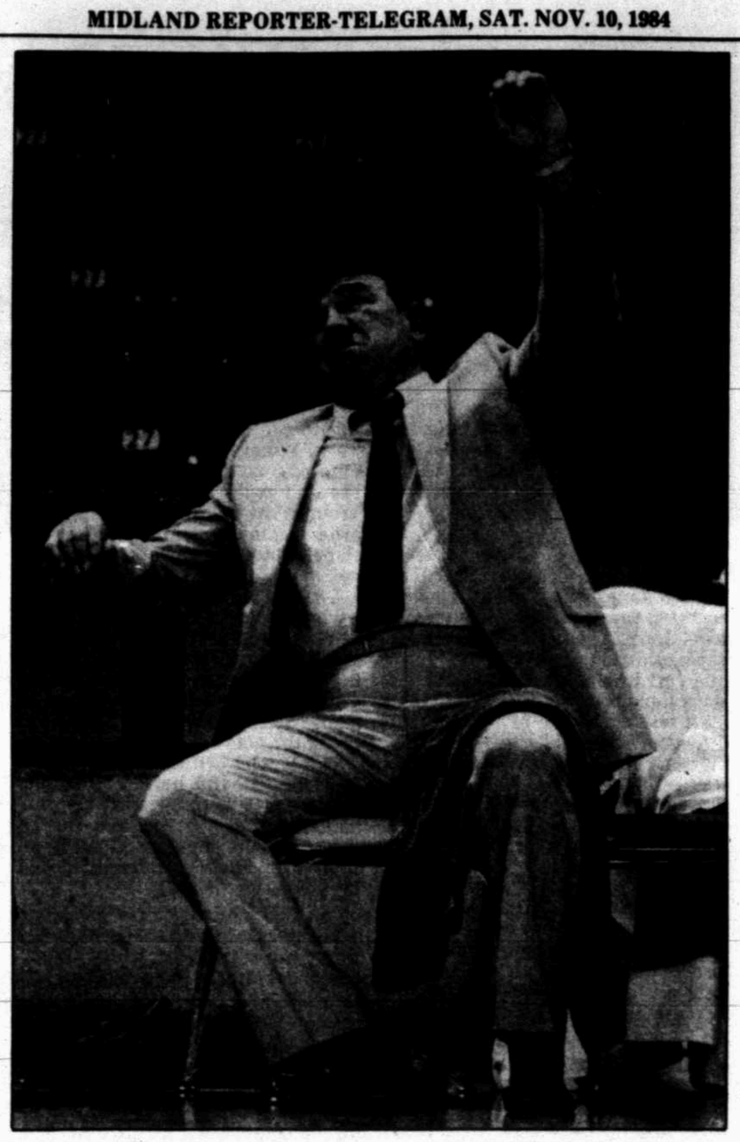

And Holmes certainly wasn't sharp on this cold, desert evening.

While Holmes' experience helped him greatly, he got a big help from Smith's inexperience.

Smith, who weighed 227, boxed as an amatuer in the Army and turned pro on Nov. 4, 1981, "to make me a few bucks ... a little Christmas money."

Smith picked up $175,000, which will fill more than a few stockings. Holmes earned $1 million.

Smith, who lost his first fight, now has has a 14-2 record with 12 knockouts.

Coach Jim Carey of the Garden City Bronc Busters squirms, shoeless, on the sidelines as his team bows to Midland College in Chaparral Classic.

Chaps advance to cage finals

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

Mildand College survived a furious rally and Odessa College wore down outmanned Howard to move into the finals of the Chaparral Classic tonight at 7:30 at the Al Langford Chaparral Center.

The I-20 rivalry pits Western Junior College Athletic Conference foes against one another early. MC won the right to defend the tournament title they have never lost before with a 76-73 win over Garden City of Kansas.

OC's Wranglers got another WJCAC opponent, Howard College, and wore down the Hawks' seven-man squad 88-79 to gain the final berth against MC.

Midland College trailed only once in their ball game with Garden City, but that came so late in the evening that it very nearly cost the Chaparrals the game.

Foul trouble hurt the Chaps' main man, Teviin Binns, and with his limited playing time in the second half Garden City staged a rally. Binns was whistled three times in the first half and his usually steady offensive game was erratic. He started the second half alongside Chap coach Jerry Stone and assistant coach Reggie Franklin on the pine.

Neither team could gain a serious advantage on the other until three minutes deep into the half. At that point, guard Zeak Williams and sub Tony Wright, who scored a team-high 20 points in relief of Binns, sparked a Chap run.

Williams began the blitz with a steal and a driving layup to make the score 45-37 in favor of MC. Twenty seconds later Wright swiped a pass on the left side, raced downcourt and skied to his right for a crowd-pleasing afterthought dunk. Just a few seconds later, Williams again stole the ball, and fed Chuckie Graves for a layup, prompting vocal GC coach Jim Carey to order a timeout.

Stone immediately brought Binns off the bench with a 12-point edge. When the 6-10 sophomore from New York drilled a pair of free throws at the 11:26 mark, MC had apparently brought the game under control with a 57-48 lead.

But Garden City began to chip away at the Chap lead with a size advantage and pressure defense. Wright was incredibly active for the Chaps on both ends of the floor, but offensively MC bogged down against the taller Bronco-Busters.

When Stone got a timeout with 4:09 left, Garden City had come all the way back to 70-69. The Chaps had the ball and twice missed under their basket, and after a Buster time out, Kevin Washington fed Terrence Ingram (21 points) for a layup and the first lead for GC of the night.

Binns missed his patented turnaround shot from the right baseline, and Garden City tried to spread the floor with their possession.

But Vernon Coleman, the other theft-oriented guard along with Williams, made a big defensive play by stealing the ball, and finding Graves on the right side for a jumper to regain the lead. Coleman snared the ball on a steal moments later, and he again made a super pass, this time to Lawrence Chumbley, who had his shot counted on a goal-tending call.

Garden City had run itself empty during the comeback, and had nothing left when MC got back ahead and got some favorable calls. Williams canned a pair of freebies that sealed the win with 12 seconds to play.

"Offensively, we're not awesome," said Stone afterwards. "But our shooting and ball-handling will improve. So now we're trying to win games by other means. Other teams have size on us, and every team's going to. We had Vernon Coleman guarding a 6-7 post man. That's ridiculous, but that's the way it's going to be."

Rangers, Eldorado battle to tie

From Wire Reports

GREENWOOD—Eldorado gained a 22-22 tie with Greenwood here Friday night, which was good as a victory for the Eagles, who wrapped up the District 8-2A football title with a 4-0-1 record.

And for Greenwood, the tie was as good as a defeat, leaving the Rangers with a 2-2-1 district record in their first season in Class AA. Wall beat Reagan County, 33-7, which gave both teams 3-2 records and created a tie for the second playoff berth from the district.

Eldorado struck first on a three-yard run by Steven Saldivar, but Greenwood came back with 11:44 left in the half on a three-yard run by Roger Smith and Chad Longley passed to Abel Mireles to give Greenwood an 8-7 lead.

Eldorado came back on a 52-yard run by with 7:12 in the half and Tim McAngus passed to James Harlin for two.

Before intermission Smith scored for Greenwood from the one and Terry O'Steen ran the two-pointer to keep the Rangers in front 16-15.

Both teams scored in spectacular fashion in the third quarter. Elorado's Jimmy Turbeville returned a punt 74 yards for a touchdown an Smith raced 67 yards for Greenwood.

Greenwood finished with an 8-2-1 record and Eldorado is 7-2-1.

From Wire Reports

FOOTBALL—Dennis Green signed a three-year contract extension at Northwestern. Green, 39, is wrapping up his fourth season at Northwestern as the only black coach in Big Ten history. "I'm very pleased to be standing here right now. It has been an exciting four years. We have been in eighth place the last two years and we are not pleased with treading water."...

Former Arizona Wranglers' Coach George Allen turned down an offer to coach another USFL team, but rejected it because of the league's unstable status. "I would get back into coaching, but everything would have to be right. I know I enjoy it. But right now, the league is in a little bit of a turmoil. The reason I stepped down is I could see some things taking place I didn't like — not just with the Wranglers, but with the league."

Arizona reportedly is close to a merger with the Oklahoma Outlaws. Allen has been against the idea from the start and even tried unsuccessfully to present Wranglers majority owner Dr. Ted Diethrich with two alternative proposals from local investors...

Herbert Siler, an admitted drug dealer who was the government's star witness in the cocaine trafficking trial of University of Illinois player Craig Swoope, has been sentenced to six months in prison. Siler was described by prosecutors as "the primary wrongdoer" in an alleged cocaine conspiracy this year. He also was put on probation for 4½ years and ordered to participate in a drug rehabilitation program...

BASKETBALL— Senior forward-guard Terry Reason has been dismissed from the Marquette University team, Coach Rick Majerus said. "Terry, of course, remains on scholarship. The action of today should in no way affect Terry's academic endeavors. We expect him to graduate in May."...

GOLF— Japan had a 651 to hold a one-stroke lead over a combined Britain-Ireland team after Friday's third round of the Men's World Amateur Team Championships in Hong Kong, while the favored U.S. team was 10 shots back. New Zealand was third at 658 and the Philppines a stroke behind in fourth place...

BASEBALL—Third baseman Sachio Kinugasa of the Japan Series champion Hiroshima Toyo Carp was named winner of the $20,400 Matsutaro Shoriki Award for his contribution to Japanese pro baseball in 1984. Kinugasa, 37, appeared in all 130 games this season, the 14th year in a row he has played in every game, was the Central League's MVP after hitting .329 and belting 31 homers...

Keith Lieppman, who chose a baseball career over the NFL in 1971, is the new manager of the Tacoma Tigers, the Oakland A's farm club in the Class AAA Pacific Coast League...

TENNIS—Ivan Lendl defeated Balaez Taroczy 7-6, 6-1; Andres Gomez beat Vitas Gerulaitis 6-3, 7-6, and Peter Fleming won over Cassio Motta, 7-6, 6-2 in the Benson-Hedges semifinals at Wembley, Eng...

HORSE RACING—Slew o' Gold, expected to be the star of today's Breeders' Cup series, was pronounced fit for the $3 million, 1¼-mile Classic. A final determination would be made after exercise ride Mike Kennedy galloped the horse again today. Slew o' Gold had been fitted with a new patch two hours before Friday's workout to mend a quarter crack which he incurred during a gallop Thursday...

GENERAL—The 1987 Pan American Games are scheduled for Indianapolis. U.S. Olympic Committee President William Simon reached an agreement in Mexico City Thursday to bring the Games to Indianapolis. Ecuador had been designated host of the Games, but withdrew because of the expense of building new facilities for the event...

Sandy Lyle's 64 ties Stadler

KAPALUA, Hawaii (AP) — Sandy Lyle shot a 7-under-par 64 and stormed from behind to tie Craig Stadler for the lead Friday after the second round of the $450,000 Kapalua International Championship of Golf.

Lyle attributed his jump from a 3-under-par 68 on the first day to a 7-under-par 64, for a 132 total, on the second day to his early tee-off time, before winds swept the par-71 6,578-yard Kapalua Bay course.

"The first nine holes weren't as windy today as they were yesterday, so I got off to a good start," said the winner of the 1984 Landcombe Trophy in Paris.

Stadler broke the course record by shooting a 9-under-par 62 on the first day. He shot a 1-under-par 70 on Friday.

Will TCU awaken to find it is only a Horned Frog

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Will Texas Christian awaken Saturday against Texas Tech to discover it is only a Horned Frog and not a Cotton Bowl prince?

The amazing, Cinderella Frogs need one more victory for a Cotton Bowl showdown in Cowtown with Texas in two weeks.

The Longhorns play Houston on Saturday unbeaten in Southwest Conference play while TCU has the next best record with a lone loss. Texas was a 14-point choice over the Cougars in their 11:30 a.m. (regional television) meeting in Memorial Stadium.

TCU, a 10-point favorite over Texas Tech, has seven victories, more than the Horned Frogs combined in the previous four seasons.

In other games on Saturday, SMU is a 22-point favorite over Rice in Houston and Arkansas is a 5-point selection over Baylor on homecoming in Waco. Baylor and Arkansas have been playing since 1904 and their series is tied 30-30-2.

SWC

REPRESENTATIVES of eight different bowls have dropped by to view the Horned Frog miracle — the Cotton, Fiesta, Sun, Bluebonnet, Liberty, Peach, Hall of Fame and Independence bowls.

The winner of the SWC race is the host team in the Cotton Bowl.

The NCAA ranks TCU as the most improved team in all of NCAA Division 1-A competition. The Frogs were 1-8-2 last year.

TCU is second in the nation in rushing offense with 310.8 yards per game and fourth in total offense with 473.8 yards pr outing.

Running back Kenneth Davis is tops in average yards per carry, eight, and third individually with 145.6 yards per game. He is second in scoring with almost 10 points per game and is just 118 yards shy of TCU's single season rushing record.

However, Texas Tech shut down Texas' running game, giving the 'Horns only 71 yards in a last-second 13-10 loss. The Red Raiders have the 10th best defense overall in the nation.

"There isn't a lot of comfort for us in knowing tha we are a running team going against a defense that has held two good opponents to 73 and 71 yards rushing the last two weeks," said TCU Coach Jim Wacker. "Hey, they didn't give us anything but one little pop up the middle last year. Drawyne Jiles and Brad Hastings have to be one of the best linebacking pairs in the country."

Wacker is worried his Horned Frggs might be overcome by all the sudden attention.

"It wouldn't be true if I said we weren't letting bowls and national rankings (No. 15) creep into our thoughts and conversations," Wacker said. "We would be foolish, however, if we fail to realize all we can do is keep trying to win week after week and such matters will take care of themselves."

TECH COACH Jerry Moore said TCU "is the best coached team in the U.S. Wacker has done a tremendous job convincing his players they can win."

The No. 3-ranked Longhorns have been living dangerously. They've barely beaten Arkansas, SMU, and Tech after a tie with Oklahoma.

"I may get some gray hairs of this keeps up," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "But we keep winning under adverse circumstances and that shows you something about the character on this team."

The Texas-TCU game Nov. 17 in Fort Worth has already been ticketed for ABC-TV with a 2:50 p.m. kickoff.

Houston's Isreal Martin tries to latch on to TCU's James Maness. The Cougars, however, didn't succeed. Today Texas Tech gives it a try in Fort Worth.

Yachtsman loses to 40-foot wave

LONDON (AP) — British yachtsman Chay Blyth said Friday he was defeated by a 40-foot wave in his attempt to break a 133-year-old record for the fastest voyage between New York and San Francisco.

"They were the biggest seas I have ever seen," the 44-year-old veteran of two around-the-world voyages said in a radio interview with the British Broadcasting Corp.

He spoke from a hospital bed in the Chilean port of Punta Arenas, where he is being treated for a broken collar bone.

Blyth and crewmate Eric Blunn, also of Britain, were rescued Thursday by a Chilean fishing ship after their trimaran, Beefeater II, capsized 40 miles west of Cape Horn off the southern tip of South America.

Blyth said he and Blunn waited for 26 hours on the upturned hull as the yacht drifted in the swelling South Atlantic. They were spotted by a Chilean Air Force plane, despite poor visibility.

The two adventurers set sail from New York Sept. 19 on a 14,500-mile voyage to San Francisco. It was Blyth's third attempt to beat a record of 89 days, 21 hours for the voyage set in 1851

Alcorn, Miss Valley rematch seen

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — An NCAA official says it is possible that Alcorn State and Mississippi Valley, whose football showdown last weekend attracted national attention, could be rematched in the Division 1-AA playoffs.

The playoffs begin Nov. 24 and a rematch could come Dec. 1 in the quarterfinals. Alcorn, ranked third in the division, beat Mississippi Valley 42-28 Sunday for first place in the Southwestern Athletic Conference.

"It could happen," said NCAA spokesman Jerry Miles. "Mississippi Valley could be put in a situation where it would play Alcorn in the quarterfinals. It's a good possibility since we like to keep teams within their regions."

Sherman big enough for Kangaroos' Tjeerdsma

By SAM BLAIR
The Dallas Morning News

SHERMAN (AP) — How you view your current surroundings may depend on where you've been. That's why Mel Tjeerdsma, nearing the end of his first season as Austin College football coach, still marvels at the size of Sherman.

"This is a city to me," said Tjeerdsma, and it should be.

His new hometown has a population of about 35,000. His old one, Orange City, Iowa, had 5,000.

"But most of our players come from Dallas and Fort Worth. They call it a town. It's all in your point of view."

Coach and players, however, have a common view of their situation as they prepare for their season finale against Tarleton State at Stephenville Saturday.

It's a lot better than it was when the year began.

"We started slowly," Tjeerdsma said, recalling two losses and a tie in the first month. "Now we have a shot at the conference championship. We've progressed pretty well."

Tjeerdsma, former offensive coordinator for Northwestern of Iowa — an NAIA Division II school like Austin College — changed the Kangaroos' attack to a Veer with lots of play-action passes.

It has worked better some weeks than others.

Last Saturday at Alpine was one of the others. Sul Ross intercepted four passes and won, 12-9, making an Austin College victory in the final game essential if the school is to win its first undisputed conference title in five years.

Tarleton has a 4-1 record in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association, where four schools play each other home-and-home. Austin College is 3-1-1 and beat Tarleton, 24-0, in their first meeting at Sherman.

"The key to our season has been defense," Tjeerdsma said. "It has played extremely well, and the first Tarleton game may have been the peak. They finished with minus-7 yards rushing that day.

"Offensively, we've needed some time to develop. We have only three starters from last year wide receiver Larry Fedora, tight end Finlay Woodruff and tackle Greg Larson. The defense has been consistent, though, and that's helped on days when we didn't do as much offensively as we hoped."

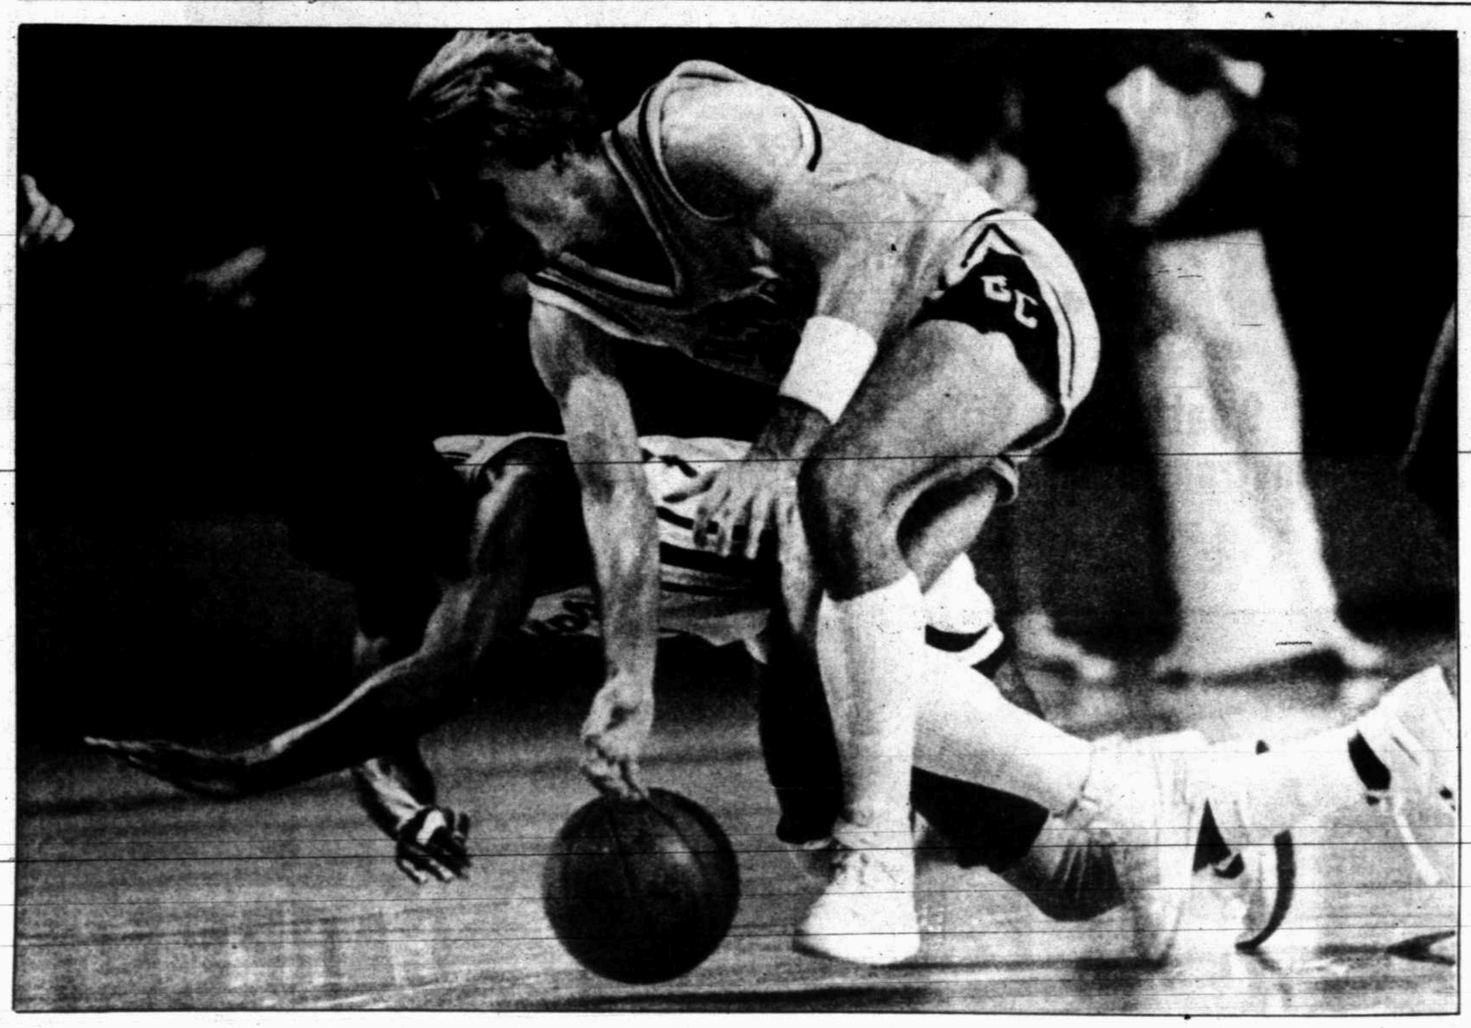

Among the leaders are defensive end Rossi Felix, a senior from Dallas Hillcrest who has 19 sacks in nine games; inside linebacker Dyke McMahan, a senior from Electra who's No. 2 in the TIAA in tackles; and outside linebacker Henry Miller, a sophomore from Highland Park.

The defense kept it close enough on an off day at Alpine that Tjeerdsma still could send kicking ace Jeff Timmons on to try for a tie on a 64-yard field goal on the game's final play. Timmons missed, but he had been true on a 52-yarder against Sul Ross in Sherman that produced a 16-16 tie as the clock ran out.

Now rated too low to have a shot at the NAIA playoffs, the 4-4-1 Kangaroos are looking for strong offensive performances from leaders like quarterback Todd Elliott and running back Roger McKnight to go with their defense and kicking against Tarleton. If they win, Tjeerdsma will see it as a nice boost toward the '85 season.

"We're going to have a lot of people coming back," he said. "There's a tradition for success at Austin College (which shared the national championship in its division in '81), and we want to maintain it. That was one of the things that attracted me to this job. I spent eight years at Northwestern of Iowa, and we were in the playoffs four times. I was very aware of Austin College and its record.

"Now, if we can win this one Saturday, we'll have a nice plus for this season."

MHS

SINCE LEE is going into the bi-district playoff game against Plainview at Texas Tech's Jones Stadium, a lot of memories are still to come.

"We're looking forward to the playoffs," said Jones. "Everybody has a positive attitude for the playoffs. We're going in ready to play. I liked seeing we could play a good second half (against MHS) and I think that's what we're going to need in the playoffs."

In that second half, Lee held Midland High to only 33 of its 111 total passing yards while giving up 93 of 151 total on the ground.

Offensively, the Rebels piled up 294 total yards, 238 rushing, 56 passing.

Individually, Midland High's Mike Stanton was second in rushing with 73 yards on 13 carries while Jake Madrid was 11-for-61 with two pass receptions for another 33.

Rebels

McCutchen explained, "Jeff is a senior and we gave him the opportunity to play because he deserved to be in the ball game. It didn't work out for him, but he has meant a lot to our team this year. He pulled us up against Odessa High and has contributed so much. It didn't work out well for Jeff, but he wasn't trying to do those things, they just happened. I don't regret that decision."

McCUTCHEN WOULD have liked for his team to finish with a better record, but said, "Playing in this district, I think we have come up against some of the best teams in Texas and we have competed well. That is a credit to our young men. Our record could have been much better, but the wins didn't come against some of the great teams."

Lee halfback Walter Jones, who had 130 yards rushing after going without a 100-yard effort in district play, said, "It's about time I got 100 yards. It took me long enough. But I think we are back on the right track now. The line is blocking great and we'll be ready for the playoffs."

And now Midland can think playoffs again as Lee goes against Plainview next Friday at 8 p.m. in Lubbock's Jones Stadium. But that's next week. The Tall City should sit back and enjoy this one for a time. It was a great regular season finale.

New York, er, Jersey, counts its playoff blessings

By DAVE ANDERSON
Times News Service

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Up on a TV screen in the Giants Stadium press lounge, Mark Haynes, the Giant cornerback, was skipping off the field after an interception that positioned the Giants' clinching field goal in their 19-7 victory over the Dallas Cowboys in Irving, Tex., just before the Jets were to line up for their game here Sunday with the Miami Dolphins.

"Our playoff possibilities are all alive," said Les Unger of the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority. "This stadium has never had a playoff game."

It might this year. Unger's reaction was the first official proclamation that an epidemic of NFL playoff fever had struck the New York area. Only once before, in 1981, did both the Giants and Jets qualify for the playoffs in the same season.

With six games remaining for both the Giants and the Jets, it's premature to be thinking about the playoffs — unless you're a Giant or Jet loyalist, a species that thinks of nothing else after so many years of frustration. Such fantasies understandably soared when the Giants won Sunday. And despite their 31-17 loss to the unbeaten Dolphins, the Jets remain a possible American Conference wild-card team.

Suddenly the Giants are tied for first place in the National Conference East and loom as a team with playoff potential if they can handle the St. Louis Cardinals, a conference rival they must play twice.

Looking to their remaining games, the playoff chances for both the Giants and Jets might turn on their game here against each other on Sunday, Dec. 2 — a Jet home game at which the 75,000 seats will be filled by Jets' season-ticket holders.

When the Giants' victory was announced during the Jets' game, the Jets' loyalists cheered, as cousins would for other cousins.

The irony is that, after all their years of loyalty, Giant season-ticket holders won't be able to attend that game — unless they have Jet tickets, too.

Perhaps that's why the Jet fans cheered the Giants' triumph. They know they hold the tickets for what should be the biggest Giant-Jet game.

With a sweep of the Cowboys in their two games this season, the Giants suddenly had a 6-4 record, including 3-1 against the Washington Redskins and the Cowboys, the two playoff teams to emerge last year from the NFC East. The Giants have outscored the Cowboys, 47-14, in their two games this season — a signal that the Cowboys ain't what they used to be, and neither are the Giants.

With their 37-13 rout of the Redskins a week ago, the Giants have now put two significant victories back to back over two of the teams they had to beat if they were to be a contender for a playoff berth. But this season there is a third team: the St. Louis Cardinals. Like the Giants, they have emerged as a contender in the division and are also tied for first.

In their remaining six games, the Giants have a somewhat more difficult schedule, primarily because of two games with the Cardinals.

After next Sunday's visit to Tampa Bay, the Giants return to play the Cardinals and the Kansas City Chiefs before opposing the Jets, then go to St. Louis and complete their 16-game schedule against the New Orleans Saints.

Permian wins 34-7 to finish unbeaten

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Odessa Permian quarterback Alton Holloway threw four touchdown passes here Friday night to lead the Panthers to a 34-7 victory over cross-town rival Odessa High.

Permian finishes regular season play with a perfect 10-0 record and will meet Amarillo Palo Duro next Saturday in Lubbock's Jones Stadium in the bi-district round of the state playoffs.

Holloway dialed Greg Anderson for TD tosses of four and 15 yards and also had 22 and 13 yard strikes to Royce Lightfoot and Rich Fletcher as Permian coasted to its undefeated season.

Permian also had 331 yards rushing to go with 110 passing by Holloway. OHS finishes the season with a 3-7 record.

SAN ANGELO—Tim Reibe scored three times and Rodney Anthony returns punts 52 and 32 yards for touchdowns as San Angelo levelled Big Spring, 62-0, in the season's finale for both teams.

The Steers finished without a victory in District 4-5A play.

The Bobcats struck early and often, running up a 21-0 first period lead and then adding 27 points for a 48-0 halftime lead.

Quarterback Mario Martinez unloaded two touchdown passes with a 13-yarder to Craig Hook and then a 33-yarder to Willie Blackley. The longest run of the night was a 75-yard gallop by Don Hall.

Huskies, Trojans sniff the Roses

Associated Press

Everything comes up roses Saturday — but for whom?

The No. 1-ranked Washington Huskies, 9-0 for the first time in the school's 95-year football history and 5-0 in the Pac-10 Conference, visit No. 14 Southern California (7-1, 6-0), with the winner representing the conference in the Rose Bowl. A tie prolongs the race another week and throws it open to many possibilities, most of which favor Washington.

"It's always a great game when everything is on the line, and I don't think we've ever played one that has so much on the line," said Washington Coach Don James, whose Huskies have been No. 1 for four weeks, longer than any team this season. "That's part of the excitement of being in this business, and that's probably why guys stay in this business so long."

Two other games also pair members of the AP Top Twenty — No. 11 Florida State at fifth-ranked South Carolina and eighth-ranked Georgia vs. No. 10 Florida at Jacksonville.

RUNNER-UP Nebraska visits Kansas, third-ranked Texas entertains Houston and No. 4 Brigham Young is home against San Diego State.

The rest of the Top Ten finds Maryland at No. 6 Miami, Missouri at No. 7 Oklahoma State and No. 9 Oklahoma at Colorado.

In the Second Ten, 12th-ranked LSU meets Alabama at Birmingham, No. 13 Ohio State is at Northwestern, Texas Tech at No. 15 Texas Christian, Army at No. 16 Boston College, No. 17 Southern Methodist at Rice, Michigan State at No. 18 Iowa, No. 19 West Virginia plays Rutgers at East Rutherford, N.J., and Cincinnati is at No. 20 Auburn.

ALTHOUGH Washington has withstood the pressure of being No. 1 for a month now, James said he doesn't think it will have any effect on the Pac-10 showdown.

"I just can't believe Southern Cal is going to be worried about where they're ranked this week, and we're sure not going to be worried about where we're ranked," he said. "We've stayed in the race the last seven years — finishing either first or second — so we expected to be in it, but I don't know that any of us expected to be 9-0 at this point."

And hardly anyone expected Southern Cal to be 7-1, especially after last year's 4-6-1 disaster.

"USC is the most physical team we will have played," James said. "They'll run that I-formation offense and try to knock it down your throat. USC has the biggest offensive line in college football, and maybe the best. We'll go in knowing we'll have to defend the run, but I'm sure Coach (Ted) Tollner will mix it up."

For his part, Tollner said that "it's an exciting feeling to be in contention for the Rose Bowl at this late stage. Now, the key is to make the most of the opportunity. Washington is the No. 1 team in the country, and we can't be intimidated by that.

"Our styles on both sides of the ball are similar, but they've been a much more dominant team than we have so far. The strength of both teams is defense. Washington is very solid and we think we're solid. I'm sure everyone is predicting a low-scoring game, but Washington creates a lot of scoring situations for its offense by aggressive defensive play.

"Offensively, the statistics are close. We're both physical, run similar plays, like to come at you and show a willingness to throw. Their offense is much more effective than people think."

THE BIG Ten berth in the Rose Bowl also could be be decided if Iowa (5-1-1) beats Michigan State and Ohio State and Purdue (5-2) both lose. That's unlikely since Ohio State plays ninth-place Northwestern.

The Big Eight, whose champion goes to the Orange Bowl, is a three-way race among Nebraska (5-0), Oklahoma and Oklahoma State (each 3-1), who rank first, second and fourth nationally in total defense.

"It's like comparing the Atlantic with the Pacific — you're going to get drowned any way you go," said Kansas State Coach Jim Dickey.

Nebraska has won 26 conference games in a row and is heavily favored over Kansas. But the Jayhawks are the only team to beat Oklahoma — Nebraska meets Oklahoma next week — and Coach Tom Osborne said that "no one is thinking about Oklahoma this week, not the way Kansas has been improving. We can clinch a tie for the Big Eight championship with a win at Kansas and that is what we are concentrating on, nothing else."

Texas leads its series with Houston 6-2-2, but the Longhorns have had trouble at home with a slim 3-2-1 edge. However, since the start of the 1968 season Texas is an overwhelming 82-6-1 at Austin.

Coach Fred Akers said that Houston "is a talented team and they are very dangerous because of their great physical ability. They can play with anyone and played us as tough or tougher as anybody we faced last year."

Brigham Young was the first team to clinch a bowl berth, earning its seventh consecutive trip to the Holiday Bowl last week. San Diego State Coach Doug Scovil said the Cougars "don't appear to have any weaknesses. They are very balanced in every area. They're a fine football team that deserves their rating. Everything they do is pretty straight-forward. They're so good they don't have to depend on anything complicated."

HAVING BECOME just the fourth team in South Carolina's 91-year football history to win eight games, the Gamecocks go for a record ninth victory against Florida State.

"South Carolina is now the biggest game on our schedule," says Florida State's Bobby Bowden. "If we win, it could mean a New Year's Day bowl game, or at least a chance at one. If they win, a possible national championship is in store for them."

Carolina's Joe Morrison called the Seminoles "one of the most explosive football teams in the country. They have some mighty talented skill people, with a fine offensive line to get them started. They've given up some points this year, but all you have to do is look at their score against Miami (38-3) and know they can put the halt on a good offensive unit. They will be the best football team we have faced to date."

Georgia is in command for the Sugar Bowl, but Florida, which has a six-game winning streak, is a major stumbling block, especially after last week's 24-3 drubbing of Auburn.

Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said the Gators "have all the ingredients of a championship team. They've got the second-biggest offensive line in America and, as a group, maybe three of the best running backs. It's quite obvious they are using their talent better than ever. It's probably the best Florida team we've ever seen."

With the exception of 1943, these teams have played every year since 1930, with Georgia enjoying a 39-20-2 advantage and having won six in a row. Coach Galen Hall promises Florida "will be ready to play" despite reports the Southeastern Conference will soon declare the Gators ineligible for the championship.

Giants taste the other side

By GEORGE VECSEY
NY Times News Service

NEW YORK — After one-sided upsets over Washington and Dallas, it has not escaped Harry Carson and George Martin that some pro football players have had more fun than they have. They have experienced too many new weeks, dragging themselves back into the Giant locker room, "like a tomb, everybody's back against the wall," as Martin puts it.

Winning in Dallas on the Cowboys' 25th-anniversary homecoming last week only served to unleash Martin's resentment toward the organization that has won 72 percent of its games while the Giants have won 37 percent of their games in his time in the league.

Martin is convinced that seeing his old rivals standing on pedestals before the game only helped him prepare to "put that star on the inside of their helmets." Now he and Carson can see what the Cowboys' clubhouse has been like on the first day back to work after the majority of their games.

"It's a relaxed atmosphere," Carson said after the coach, Bill Parcells, gave the team both Monday and Tuesday off. "It's much different than if the game had been close or if we had lost.

"When you're losing, everybody's uptight and nervous or whatever. This way, you can have a good practice and not worry about making mistakes today. You just don't feel a lot of pressure."

WITH THE Giants tied for first place with three other teams going into the game Sunday in Tampa Bay, Carson says he feels less pressure than in years when the Giants were not 6-4 after 10 games. He was the soul of the Giants' linebackers before Lawrence Taylor was invented, and losing once made him think about joining the Air Force in midseason.

Last year he would have settled for the French Foreign Legion. He wanted out so badly, his feelings bubbled over publicly — and few teammates blamed him. Martin never got to that point, and after two victories over their frequent tormentors, both Carson and Martin are glad they are still here.

After operating from five home fields in three states in their 60 seasons, the Giants have never claimed to be America's Team, the way the haughty Cowboys did, but they are certainly the Tristate Team.

When they lose, they are the regional version of the down-and-out high-school team in "The Last Picture Show," moping around a cafe while patrons remind them how awful they were in the last game. And when the Giants win, strangers ask, "Are the Giants for real?"

The Giants' hold on the region is seen in the attendance at Giants Stadium so far this season. The Jets, in their first year as a home team in New Jersey, have drawn an average of 68,634 fans for five dates; the Giants, 74,479.

JET ticketholders from outside New Jersey, making their first trek to the Meadowlands, have known true anguish of lining up dozens of cars deep to pay a 30-cent toll, the dreadful traffic jams on the tangle of roads, and the lack of rail transportation to the sports complex.

But the Giant fans get to the stadium, and millions more dare to hope with six games left in the season. Martin says: "After 10 years here, I'm not blind. The Giants are very popular."

Martin is a soft-spoken defensive lineman, a former art education major from the University of Oregon who returns home to Vacaville, Calif., "to remove myself during the offseason." He needs the distance to get over the losses, particularly in Dallas, where he had never had the pleasure of winning until last Sunday.

He felt a decade of frustration like a Dallas blue-norther storm between his shoulder blades Sunday when the Giants lined up in the runway before the game, only to be held up by the homecoming celebration. All the old favorites were literally on pedestals on the field, being honored by 60,235 fans.

"It kind of infuriated me, personally," Martin says. "Billy Joe Dupree. Roger Staubach. The club must have wanted an easy win for the Cowboys. We were supposed to be the goats."

As he waited in the runway, Martin recalled a throwaway line from Staubach that was probably meant to be a friendly little joke but that stayed with Martin like a pebble in the toe of a boot.

"The first year Roger stopped playing, he was doing a pregame interview show, and he had me on. He was really nice, asking very polite questions on the air. But as soon as the show was over, he said to me, 'George, do you really think you can beat us today?' And we did beat them that day, at our place."

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference football race is on the down side, but the championship possibilities remain on the up side as four games Saturday will leave only ten more to be played.

Leading Texas could clinch a tie for the title in Saturday's regionally-televised (Raycom Sports) game against Houston. The Cougars in turn could remain in contention for the outright championship — just one indication of the remaining possibilities.

Following the Cougar-Longhorn battle in Austin at 11:34 a.m. are three 2 p.m. games: Arkansas at Baylor, SMU at Rice and Texas Tech at TCU.

And, despite the waning calendar, TCU, Arkansas, SMU and Houston all have at least slight hopes of outright championships and better hopes of title ties.

Hitting the high spots of the remaining schedule, here are the routes the contenders would take to undisputed titles:

TEXAS — Will win outright with victories over Houston, TCU, Baylor and A&M, or with a loss if TCU loses or ties one more game.

TCU — Will win outright with victories over Texas Tech, Texas and A&M, if Houston, Baylor or A&M beats or ties Texas.

HOUSTON — Will win outright with victories over Texas, Tech and Rice, if Texas loses two other games, TCU loses two of its last three, and Arkansas and SMU each lose one of their last three.

ARKANSAS — Will win outright with victories over Baylor, A&M and SMU, if Texas loses three of its last four, TCU loses two of its last three, and Houston and SMU each lose one of their last three.

SMU — Will win outright with victories over Rice, Tech and Arkansas, if Texas loses three of its last four, TCU loses two of its last three, and Houston and Arkansas lose two of their last three.

Bypassing all the two-way and three-way possibilities, the other end of the chart presents this possibility of a four-way tie:

Texas loses to Houston and TCU, beats Baylor and A&M for a 6-2 record; TCU beats Texas and splits with A&M and Tech for a 6-2 record; Houston beats Texas, Tech and Rice for a 6-2 record; Arkansas beats Baylor and A&M, while SMU beats Rice and Tech, setting it up for the Arkansas-SMU winner to also finish at 6-2.

Saturday's games:

HOUSTON (3-2, 4-4 in SWC) at TEXAS (4-0, 6-0-1 in SWC), 11:34 a.m. (Raycom TV)–Eleventh game in series that began in 1953, withLonghorns holding 6-2-2 all-time lead, 5-2-1 advantage in SWC after winning four and playing one tie in last five meetings.

Cougars have had better success than most in Austin with two victories and a tie against three losses. Texas has won 18 straight SWC games and is unbeaten in 24 straight regular-season games. Houston's Larry Shepherd and Carl Hilton rank two-three among SWC receivers with 33 and 32 catches, respectively, will go against Texas defense with SWC-low completion percentage of 36.7, with nine interceptions and only one TD pass allowed.

Both teams boast top place kickers. Jeff Ward of Texas and Mike Clendenen lead teams in scoring, Ward kicking last-second field goals to tie Oklahoma and beat Texas Tech, Clendenen's kicking winning two games in last four weeks, 9-7 over Texas A&M and 29-20 over SMU. Clendenen became only SWC player with five FGs in two games when he did it against Mustangs.

Ward's field goal with three second left last week gave Texas 13-10 victory over Tech, fourth straight week Longhorn game has been decided in final seconds. Houston had strong showing in 21-14 loss to TCU, sealed by Frog interception with 29 seconds left. Texas slipped to third in Associated Press writers balloting this week.

Both long-time SWC veer rushing powers now more balanced, Houston rushing for 175 yards a game and passing for 156, Texas rushing for 134 and passing for 177. Cougars Raymond Tate (64.5 yards per game) and Sloan Hood (58.0) seventh and ninth in SWC rushing, QBs Gerald Landry of UH (181.6) and Todd Dodge of UT (156) second and third in offense...Ron Franklin and Mike Edmonds on combined Houston-UT radio network.

ARKANSAS (5-2-1, 3-2 in SWC) at BAYLOR (3-5, 2-3 in SWC), 2 p.m. Traditionally a high-scoring series that is even at 30-30-2 after Baylor won last two meetings. Last year Marty Jimmerson kicked a 24-yard field goal on the game's last play to give the Bears a 24-21 win in Fayetteville and two years ago in Waco, the Bears won 27-14 and ended Arkansas' seven-game win streak and No. 5 national ranking.

Bears hold 19-9-2 lead in games played in Waco. No. 1 and 2 SWC rushing defenses, Baylor allowing 113.2 yards per game and Arkansas allowing 119.7. Hogs have played nine consecutive quarters without allowing a touchdown, rank sixth nationally and lead SWC in scoring defense with 12.3 points per game.

Hogs' Greg Horne and Bears' Buzzy Sawyer rank second and third, respectively, in SWC punting with 45.1 and 44.3 averages. The schools also have the two top punt returners in SWC: Thomas Everett of Baylor and Bobby Joe Edmonds of Arkansas. Both teams utilize two QBs, Tom Muecke and Cody Carlson of Baylor and Brad Taylor and Danny Nutt of Arkansas.

Taylor has a realistic shot at becoming Arkansas' career leader in passing and total offense this week, needing 98 yards passing and 146 yards total offense to replace record holder Bill Montgomery (1968-70). Bears coasted to 39-2 victory over New Mexico last week to keep SWC in reach of best non-conference record since 1949.

Razorbacks also won handily, 28-6 over Rice in Little Rock despite having less possession time (25 minutes 23 seconds) and giving up 360 yards. Both teams have rushers among SWC's top five Baylor's Ron Fran- cis third at 89.5 yards per game, Arkansas' Marshall Foreman fifth at 77.9...game also features two of SWC's top six receivers, Hogs' James Shibest with 31, Bear's Glenn Pruitt with 27. Steve Fallon's daddy and Mike Nail on combined Arkansas-Baylor radio network.

SMU (5-2, 3-2 in SWC) at RICE (1-7, 0-5 in SWC), 2 p.m. Mustangs need one win in final four games to post fifth straight winning season for longest sustained success streak since SMU had ten straight winning seasons from 1922 through '31. It would also be second-longest sustained streak in SMU history.

The Mustangs are now tied with 1947-50 teams at four consecutive winning years. Owls have three more starts in effort to escape first run of three straight non-winning SWC seasons. Owls' best bet appears to be passing game, where they lead SWC with 195.4 yards per game, while SMU ranks eighth in SWC pass defense at 196.7. Conversely, SMU is third in SWC rushing (226.6) and Owls are last in rushing defense (261.9), SMU is second in SWC scoring (24.3 points per game) and Owls are last in scoring defense (33.4).

The teams rely on SWC individual leaders. Mustangs' Don King No. 1 in total offense (198.3 yards per game) and No. 2 in passing (134.6 efficiency rating points) and Reggie Dupard No. 2 in rushing (99.7 yards per game) and tandem offense (114.7) and scoring (6.9 points per game), Rice's Melvin Robinson leading pass receiver with 36 catches for 494 yards.

Owls' Marc Scott tied for eighth in receptions with 25, while SMU's Jeff Atkins is No. 10 rusher at 52.1 yards per game. The most successful SWC series for Mustangs has them with 38-24-1 all-time lead that started with 14-6-3 Rice victory in 1917

SMU has 18-12-1 lead at Houston and has won seven straight since dropping 41-34 decision at Rice Stadium in '76. Mustangs' 34-14 win over Rice in '80 cost Owls second-place finish which SMU claimed. '81 win gave Mustangs SWC lead over Texas as SMU held on for first of two straight titles before 20-8 SMU victory last year, eight prior meetings produced 45 or more points. Ponies ranked 17th in AP poll. John Greer and Brad Sham on combined Rice-SMU radio network.

TEXAS TECH (4-4, 2-3 in SWC) at TCU (7-1, 4-1 in SWC), 2 p.m. Record-threatening TCU offense meets the first of two straight top challenges in Tech defense that ranks tenth in nation and less than five yards a game (274.3) behind SWC leading Texas, Frogs' opponent next week.

Tech defense held unbeaten and second-ranked Texas to 97 yards for three quarters last week before Longhorns scored last-ditch field goals for 13-10 victory. Raiders also lead SWC and sixth nationally in passing defense with 127.9 yards allowed per game, 11 interceptions against only six TD passes, 43.5 completion percentage being slowed in 21-14 decision over Houston.

Frogs lead SWC and No. 2 nationally in rushing with 310.7 yards per game, lead SWC and No. 3 nationally in total offense at 473.7, and maintain dangerous passing attack (163 yards per game) that has accounted for nine of team's 38 TDs.

Frogs also rank third nationally in scoring (36.4 points per game), while Raiders are 19th in scoring defense (16.3). Three of SWC's top six rushers in game, Frogs' Kenneth Davis almost 500 yards ahead of No. 2 SWC rusher and third nationally at 145.6 yards a game, teammate Tony Jeffery fourth in SWC at 79.0, Tech's Tim Smith sixth at 67.9. Series has produced three ties in last five games, none in Fort Worth, with neither offense nor defense dominating 3-3 in '79, 39-39 in '81 and 10-10 last year.

Frogs hold 19-8-3 all-time lead, Tech has 12-9-3 SWC advantage with 7-1-3 record in last 11 meetings. Frogs also equalling SWC-record "turn-around" pace (improvement in won-lost record from one year to the next): '55 Aggies and '74 Baylor Bears improved 6 1/2 games from previous season, same mark now held by Frogs after posting 1-8-2 record last season. TCU ranked 15th in AP poll Dave South and Jack Dale on combined TCU-Tech radio network.

Breeders' Cup horses ready to strut stuff

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — In the presence of movie stars and $2 bettors, some of the top horses in training are set to strut their stuff today at Hollywood Park.

The action will be the inaugural running of the Breeders' Cup, a seven-race extravaganza that racing people hope will become an annual showcase for the sport.

Today's opening cast will be 68 thoroughbreds contesting races worth $10 million and the role of on-track star falls to Slew o' Gold.

The 4-year-old son of Seattle Slew is favored to beat seven rivals, including Preakness winner Gate Dancer, in the featured $3 million Breeders' Cup Classic over 1¼ miles. It will be the last race for Slew o' Gold, the leading contender for Horse of the Year honors, before he is retired to stud.

"Right now everything is go," co-owner Mickey Taylor said Friday, after Slew o' Gold, ridden by regular jockey Angel Cordero, blew out three-eights of a mile in 36 3-5 seconds.

Doubt was cast on Slew o' Gold's status Thursday when a new quarter crack was found in the right front hoof, where two quarter cracks already existed.

Fiberglas patches were applied early Friday.

"Angel was very happy with him," said Taylor, adding that Slew o' Gold would gallop Saturday morning with exercise rider Mike Kennedy in the irons.

Slew o' Gold, who has won all five starts this year, ran with two quarter cracks when he won the 1½-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup on Oct. 20. That victory earned him a $1 million bonus for sweeping Belmont Park's Fall Championship Series of the Woodward, Marlboro Cup Handicap and Gold Cup.

One star missing Saturday will be John Henry, the 9-year-old gelding who has earned a world record $6,597,497. He will miss the $2 million Turf race at 1¼ miles because of a strained suspensory ligament that he suffered last week.

Engineer J.L. Lemons sits in the cab of a small locomotive kept around the Commerce railyards for local work. Lemons signed with the Cotton Belt Railroad in 1942 as a fireman.

Engineer has ridden rails for 42 years

GREENVILLE (AP) — "And the sons of Pullman porters and the sons of engineers ride their fathers' magic carpets made of steel..." Steve Goodman knew about the romance of the railroads when he wrote the song, "The City of New Orleans."

J.L. Lemons knows about the romance, too, but he also knows about the dedication and patience. For 42 years, he has ridden the rails of Texas for the Cotton Belt Railroad.

"I never thought about the reasons," he says with a twinkle in his eye, "I just like the work."

Lemons signed with the company on Feb.6, 1942, as a fireman working out of Commerce on the old oil-burning locomotives.

In April 1943, World War II caught up with him, but Lemons didn't have to leave the rails for long. After eight weeks of Army basic training in New Orleans, he went on for technical training in the Military Rail Service, and was sent to India.

Lemons spent nearly two years in India as a train engineer, making 110-mile runs ferrying freight. The freight eventually was flown over the "Hump" in Burma, to the Chinese, who were fighting the Japanese.

Lemons recalls some unusual occurences during this period, but he is not a braggart. He says his stories aren't any more unusual than those of other soldiers who were there.

But he does say: "At one point we were within 15 miles of the front lines — that was close enough to the war for me."

After the war, Lemons rejoined the Cotton Belt Railway and became a fireman again, also working part-time as an engineer.

In 1953, Lemons married Thelma "Totsie" James. They have three sons, one of whom has railroad connections. James, 30, is a tax agent for the Southern Pacific in Houston. Paul, 27, works for Texas Power and Light, and Thomas, 22, is in the computer field.

Becoming an engineer on the Cotton Belt, Lemons says, was a matter of patience, waiting for seniority.

"The usual course is to wait until someone leaves the job or retires," he says. "I made full-time engineer in 1956, 14 years after I first started. I was started on stand-by, or extra-board, status. Then I advanced to freight engineer in 1964."

Lemons now makes regular runs from Commerce to Dallas or Texarkana.

On a typical day, Lemons arrives at work to receive his train orders, telling him where his run will go, at what speeds, and advising him where he can expect to meet other trains on the run.

One of the first jobs for the five-man crew is to "make up a train." Cars going to the same city are grouped together so they can be removed from the train more efficiently.

Bill collectors don't let evasions stack up

AMARILLO (AP) — Katie, the collector, was doing her job.

From a stack of 300 notices she pulled the name and phone number of a customer — in this case a well-known realtor who had neglected to pay his residential electric bill.

She dialed the number and luckily caught him at home. From her end, the world was calm. Situated in a clean, softly lit office, she had only the tools of her trade beside her: a ledger of customer accounts, a calendar of billing cycles and the phone.

But as she quietly began to explain the dark results of avoiding payment, a storm erupted on the other end.

"He kept cussing," she says, "and I told him I wouldn't be able to help him until he calmed down."

The tirade continued, but hours after the call the man stopped in and paid his bill. The following morning Katie was surprised with a bouquet of flowers and a note of apology. The flowers were forget-me-nots.

Not every past-due customer reacts to simple reminders with such unpredictability. But for dozens of bill collectors like Katie (not her real name), it's this incalculable human behavior that makes their jobs challenging, often difficult, and sometimes just plain lonely.

"Sometimes you get down thinking everybody is a deadbeat," says Greg Koontz, loan collector for Tascosa National Bank. "But most people seem pretty nice about it."

It takes a special person to handle the abuse, or fear of abuse, collectors say. You need a quick mind, a patient soul and thick skin.

And there are plenty of chances to develop those qualities. At Southwestern Public Service, for instance, more than 7,000 of its 70,000 Amarillo customers let their bills go past due each month, says credit adjuster Frank Robinson.

That means collectors must face 250 potential hotheads every day, week after week, year after year.

"It's not that they (delinquent customers) are mad at me, but at the company," Katie says as she shuffles a stack of disconnection notices. "And even though the job is repetitious, it's still a new world each day. You can't say you've heard it all because somebody's always got a hundred aunts that died."

As many as 200 work these jobs citywide, a spokesman for the Credit Bureau of Amarillo estimates. About 150 of those work in-house on 30-, 60- or 90-day past due accounts management hopes will be collectible.

Hairy beasts entertain customers of Baytown's Trophy Barber Shop

BAYTOWN (AP) — As customers who come to the Trophy Barber Shop get their trims, 105 hairy beasts gaze down from the walls and ceiling, silent tribute to the keen aim of the shop's late owner.

Among Jimmie Carpenter's attention-grabbers are a 12-foot alligator which takes up an entire wall; a 10-foot polar bear reared up on its hind legs and looming over a stuffed seal; a walrus' head with 22-inch tusks; an African Dik Dik, a deer-like animal whose tiny hooves are the smallest in the world; a three-foot-long South American lobster; and an Alaskan crab which is a yard wide.

"People like it for the novelty," said Milton Lorenz, who now co-owns the shop with Jack Jungbluth. "They can come in here and never be bored."

The shop's ashtrays are made from ostrich and bear feet. The trash can is a hollowed-out elephant's foot.

"I can't help but laugh whenever I look at that," said Lorenz, 58, as he pointed to the trash can.

The elephant's foot was squashed flatter than a pancake during the trip from Africa, Lorenz said, so Carpenter stretched it back into shape with some two-by-fours.

'Ellis Island' mostly mediocre trash

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

ENTERTAINMENT

NEW YORK — Only in America, land of opportunity, can a television network spend millions of dollars for three nights of trash, and very mediocre trash at that.

There's probably an interesting, challenging melting-pot story in how immigrants in the early 20th century searched for their American Dream, but "Ellis Island" isn't it. The miniseries takes the cynical view that life is one big soap opera and everybody off the boat wants to be J.R. Ewing.

The seven-hour production, based on the best-selling novel by Fred Mustard Stewart, begins Sunday night and continues Tuesday and Wednesday nights on CBS.

Trotting out all the stereotypes — Italian lover, Italian loanshark, Irish politician, Jewish songwriter and Jewish talent agent — and making them intellectually lifeless and unbelievable anyway, "Ellis Island" centers on the stories of four European immigrants with heavy accents and thick bootstraps. The lives of these characters become intertwined after they leave the immigration center on New York's Ellis Island to begin their climb up the ladder of sex, money and power.

Jake Rubenstein (Peter Riegert from "Local Hero") is a Russian Jew who emigrates to America after killing a Cossack in a pogrom. Given a boost by Al Jolson, Jake becomes a big-deal Broadway songwriter whose musical talent surpasses his marital choice of singer-gold digger Nellie Byfield (Ann Jillian.)

Marco Santarelli (played with wooden oafishness by Greg Martyn) is an Italian gigolo-gardener whose talent is his libido. "God didn't give me much," he tells his best friend Jake. "But women like to look at me, and I make love good."

As he sees the Statue of Liberty for the first time, he marvels, "She's a beautiful." The Lady of the Harbor turns out to be one of the few feminine figures he doesn't entertain in bed.

Another is Georgiana O'Donnell (Judi Bowker), a blind Irish immigrant Marco met on the boat to America. Their gentle and developing friendship — the only woman he ever really loved, he says — is sabotaged by classic soap-opera misconnections and her corrupt, malicious uncle (Milo O'Shea). Marco opts, instead, for an ill-fated marriage to the daughter of a U.S. senator and enters politics, while Georgiana becomes a famous Hollywood screenwriter.

Kate Burton plays Marco's wife, Vanessa, a pathetic figure who rebels from her father's values and Marco's sexuality and leaves both men for a female lover in Greenwich Village. The production displays a remarkably Neanderthal attitude about Vanessa's new life by making every subsequent character she encounters either evil or weird.

Miss Burton's father, Richard Burton, in his final role before his death last summer, plays Sen. Phipps Ogden. It's sad that this performance is no more than a series of imperious walk-ons in a production that will be notable only as the future Trivial Pursuit question: What was Richard Burton's last role?

The fourth central immigrant figure is Georgiana's sister, Bridget (Cherie Lunghi), who strives for a normal family life with an Ellis Island doctor as her husband. But that slice of real-life Americana is shattered when her deeds as a revolutionary back in the Auld Sod catch up to her.

The best thing that can be said for the miniseries is that it is fast-paced, in the same way that the novels travelers buy at airports can be quick reads. And with good reason: there's nothing remotely substantial weighing down "Ellis Island."

One asset is the performance of Faye Dunaway as stage actress Maud Charteris. Miss Dunaway manages to keep her dignity and evoke a genuine sensuality while playing Marco's lover and Phipps' wife.

If the immigrants' experience is supposed to say much about America's character and dreams, "Ellis Island" will be speaking superficially with an accent, but it won't be offering any intelligence or insights.

• • •

"Master Harold...and the boys" on pay-cable's Showtime is everything "Ellis Island" isn't. The Tony Award-winning play by Athol Fugard is involving, moving and thought-provoking.

It will be broadcast Monday night and then repeated five other times in November and December.

The tension-filled story, which takes place in one room in South Africa in 1950 but really is a broader commentary about racial conflict in the world.

Only one more 'kill' for actor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Roger Moore says it will be the last time he will use his 007 license to kill.

"A View to a Kill" is the 14th in the James Bond series and will be the last for Moore, who took over from Sean Connery in 1972.

"They're such hard work, these films," said Moore on location in San Francisco. "They may look great fun on the screen, but they're physically taxing. So now it's time to move on."

'Miou-Miou' leaves kittenish ways behind in rise to French stardom

PARIS (AP) — The nickname a teasing French comedian gave her in 1968 has stuck, but Miou-Miou has left the alluring little girl it suggests far behind.

The actress who charmed French moviegoers 10 years ago with her rippling laugh and innocent sexuality in "Going Places" has pushed her adolescent image aside. She's replaced street smarts with savoir-faire, bleached blonde locks with darker hair and youthful flippancy with emotional depth.

But after 29 films, Miou-Miou is virtually unknown to the American public, with the possible exception of her role as the sophisticated Madeleine in last year's "Entre Nous."

The French, though, have remained faithful to her ever since she made her name as a working-class comedienne in Paris cafe theaters in the late '60s. And more than her box office rivals Isabelle Huppert, Nathalie Baye or Isabelle Adjani, she is seen here as the incarnation of the new French woman.

"People identify with me," said the small-boned, 34-year-old actress, still freckled from summer-long filming in Morocco of the soon to be released "Flight of the Sphinx."

"I'm not pretty. I'm not hired for my beauty. I resemble other French women. I look like their older sister or someone you pass in the street."

Her performances over the past decade illustrate the dramatic shift in the way French women have come to view themselves. Such early movies as "Going Places" in 1974, won her comparisons with Brigitte Bardot.

But five years later, she was battling the hierarchy as an idealistic young police officer in "La Femme Flic." In 1982, she and Miss Huppert struck a blow for women's independence by leaving their boorish husbands in Diane Kurys' feminist "Entre Nous."

"I think you see a little of the evolution of women of my generation in those roles," said Miou-Miou, who once spoke before UNESCO in favor of abortion rights. "The woman ceases to submit. It is she who makes the major decisions in her life."

With her tousled hair, Parisian slang and occasional bursts of laughter, and wearing a red Mickey Mouse jacket to an interview in a hotel bar, she seems light years away from the smoldering sophistication of a Jeanne Moreau or a Simone Signoret. But critics say her "common" touch is exactly what seduces audiences.

Hungarian-born pianist would rather play than talk

SENLIS, France (AP) — Georges Cziffra, the Hungarian-born concert pianist who survived poverty, prison camps and personal tragedy to become one of the world's leading performers, would rather play than talk.

"When I play, I communicate with both the audience and the music. There is a kind of umbilical cord between me and the music," the 63-year-old Cziffra said in an interview at the St. Frambourg chapel, now the Franz Liszt auditorium, in this tiny medieval town north of Paris. "I've felt like this since I was a little boy."

Wiping his brow and flexing a wrist that was all but shattered in a recent car crash, Cziffra continued: "But I don't play the piano, I interpret music. There is a big difference."

Cziffra walked stiffly toward the shiny, black grand piano. The music of Frederic Chopin and Franz Liszt soon filled the room. Sweat poured down his tense face, and his large body swayed with musical emotion.

Until this "welcomed interruption" with a reporter, Cziffra had been practicing eight hours a day in preparation for a three-stop North American tour — Los Angeles, San Francisco and Toronto — in September, his first in 15 years.

A two-month tour in the United States is scheduled for 1985.

Cziffra said he did not snub his American admirers on purpose. He has simply been too busy making Senlis one of France's leading centers for young musicians, and in so doing, rescuing the St. Frambourg chapel from complete ruin. The site, renovated with the proceeds of Cziffra's concerts, is now a classified historical monument funded in part by the French government.

Second artificial heart implant approved

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Dr. William DeVries says he's ready to begin screening prospective patients for the world's second artificial heart implant, and hopes it won't take the nine months it took to find Barney Clark.

Humana Hospital Audubon "at this moment is ready to put the heart in," DeVries said Thursday, just hours after the U.S. Food and Drug Administration announce it had approved the hospital for six implants.

"I'm very excited. We're looking for the opportunity to succeed," said DeVries, who became the first person to implant an artificial heart in a human when he operated on Clark at the University of Utah in 1982.

No date has been announced for the second implant, but screening of candidates will begin immediately, he said. "We have several patients who are being considered but many others are suffering from end-stage heart disease who may also be potential candidates.

"I want to get a patient who's happy about his life."

DeVries, who left Utah in August because he said red tape was slowing down his work, said it took nine months and consideration of 77 candidates to find Clark. "I would hope it wouldn't take us that long" for the second operation, he added.

Humana was approved for "continued clinical investigation of the JARVIK-7 artificial heart," which kept Clark alive for 112 days, the hospital said. Clark died of mutliple organ failure unrelated to the artificial heart, doctros said.

Doctors plan to experiment with an 11-pound portable power system to pump the heart, compared with the current semiportable power system weighing 250 pounds and the one used for Clark, weighing 375 pounds, DeVries said.

The implant could be performed within days of the patient's selection, he said. The surgical team, including some University of Utah-trained members, has made three "dry runs" to test electrical and monitoring equipment.

Humana Inc., through its Humana Heart Institute International at Audubon, has agreed to underwrite 100 of the implant operations. Clark's surgery cost an estimated $250,000.

The six FDA-approved operations likely will occur in the next five years, then the process will be reviewed, said Dr. Allan Lansing, the institute's director.

Church council plans transition

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — After 34 years as a cooperative agency, the National Council of Churches is taking steps to become more accountable to its members and better able to reach out to all Christians, officials said.

A transition plan for the council, which represents 31 denominations encompassing 40 million people, calls for more direct involvement of member denominations in decision-making.

The plan also calls for denominations to have closer oversight of programs and places more stress on spiritual foundations — points that critics had claimed were lacking.

Key sections of the plan were approved Thursday by church representatives on the council's 266-member governing board during a four-day conference that runs through today.

John F. Stevens, engineer and builder of major segments of the Great Northern Railroad and the Panama Canal, instructed one of his construction chiefs on the canal project: "You won't get fired if you do something; you will if you don't do anything. Do something. If it is wrong, you can correct that; but there is no way to correct nothing."

Risk makes faith an adventure. Join us in attempting great things for God.

ENERGY STOP

We may grumble about the price of gasoline — but we keep coming back for more. These "life lines" provide us with what it takes to keep our wheels turning.

There are other kinds of energy which are essential. One of them is the spiritual vigor that we experience when we link our lives to God.

Our churches and synagogues are energy stops. They are helping men and women, boys and girls, discover and make use of the power God provides.

Crystal River Quartet to flow through Midland

The Crystal River Quartet will perform at Midland Foursquare Church, 415 E. Alta Ave., at 10:45 a.m. Sunday.

Formerly named The Young Disciples, Crystal River Quartet is a country gospel singing group from Lubbock. Members are four brothers, Sammy Gonzales, Joel Gonzales, Carlos Gonzales and Johnny Joe Gonzales.

The group has toured and performed on such programs as the PTL in North Carolina and the Western Deserts Gospel Singing in Victorville, Calif. The quartet has recorded several albums.

Tapes and records will be on sale after the performance. A freewill offering will be taken.

Women of the church will be having their annual UFW Membership Day and will be serving lunch in the gym after the service as a fund-raiser for their missionary projects.

The public is invited to attend.

Crystal River Quartet

Noted organist to perform at First Methodist Church

Darryl Knapp will present an organ recital featuring works by Johann Sebastian Bach at 7:15 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church, corner of Main Street and Illinois Avenue.

Darryl Knapp

Knapp is organist/choirmaster for Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, where his responsibilities include directing the program for nine choirs.

He received his early schooling at Southern Methodist University and Texas Tech University where he received a bachelor of music in piano performance and accompaning. He has a masters degree in organ performance and church music from Manhattan School of Music, New York City.

He was assistant organist and handbell director at Riverside Church of New York where he studied with Frederick Swamm and, more recently, Dr. John Walker.

Since moving to Midland he has served as dean of the West Texas Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, board member of the Midland Arts Assembly, musical director for productions at Midland Community Theatre, organists for the Midland-Odessa Symphony chorale and musical director of Friends of Music.

A native Texan, Knapp's parents reside in El Paso.

The program is a part of the Centennial Vesper Concert Series celebrating the 100th birthday of the founding of First UMC in August of 1885. It was the first church in Midland.

The musical community is paying special attention to Johann Sebastian Bach in recognition of the upcoming 300th anniversary of his birthday in March 1985.

Bach, a German composer, contributed a wealth of organ, choral and instrumental literature in his lifetime. He was a master of the fugue and contrapuntal techniques.

The public is invited to attend this free performance.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Good Shepherd to hold service for new pastor

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod, will hold an installation service at 5 p.m. Sunday for its new pastor, the Rev. David A. Krenke. The service will be at the church, 3800 Bluebird Lane.

The church's former pastor, the Rev. Loyal Schroeder, will conduct the service. Schroeder is entering retirement from fulltime ministry and will give his last address to the congregation during the 10:45 a.m. service.

The Rev. Vilas Glaeske of Houston, president of the South Central District of the synod, will deliver the message. The chairman of the south central district Mission Board, the Rev. Gary L. Pieper of Duncanville, will conduct the rite of installation.

A fellowship meal will be served following the service.

Krenke comes from Rock Springs, Wis. He served in Wisconsin at Isabel and Sioux Falls and at Morbridge, S.D. His wife Betty is a former church school teacher. The couple has two children.

The public is invited to attend.

Unity sponsors speaker

The Rev. Sune Richards will be the guest speaker at Unity of Midland at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

The service and lecture will be held at the Airport Executel, Highway 80 at Airport Road.

An ordained Unity minister, Ms. Richards serves Unity congregations in California, Florida and Indiana. She has lectured throughout the United States, Hawaii, Canada and the East Indies.

Also a master photographer, Ms. Richards is the artist/author of three books and numerous publications and her photo-paintings of the "Disciples," "Women of the Bible" and "Young People of the Bible" have had 2 million copies printed and circulated in most countries of the world.

The public is invited to attend. For more information call 697-6523 or 563-9051.

Musical workshop held

A mini-musical workshop is being held at 9 a.m. today at the New Hope Baptist Church. The workshop is being conducted by U.L. Rivers of Tyler.

A workshop musical will be presented at 7:30 p.m. today.

Also at New Hope Baptist Church, a Back Home Musical, sponsored by The Light of Praise Singers of Midland, will be presented at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Special guest is Sophia Williams of Denver, Colo. The choir will be directed by Dannie Durrell, also of Denver.

The public is invited to attend the performances.

St. Luke's has bazaar

An all church bazaar is being held in the Fellowship Hall at St. Luke's United Methodist Church from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. today. Lunch will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The bazaar features articles which have been handmade by members and friends of St. Luke's, including playground equipment, needlework, Christmas decorations, cookbooks, children's items, culinary creations, woodwork and stained glass.

Proceeds from the bazaar will be used by the church for the debt retirement on the recently completed education/music center.

Church forms local mission

The newly formed Gospel Baptist Church, 1908 W. Wall Ave., is a mission sponsored by Tabernacle Baptist Church in Lubbock.

The church is an independent, fundamental, premillennial and missionary Baptist church. The church's pastor, the Rev. Mark J. Miller, invites the public to attend. Service times are Sunday School at 9:45 a.m., 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sundays and 7:45 p.m. Wednesday for worship services.

Anglicans set Communion

The Rev. Jean Pierre Meshew, archdeacon of the Diocese of the Southwest of the American Anglican Church, will celebrate Holy Communion for St. Paul's American Episcopal Church at 10 a.m. Nov. 18.

Services are held in the chapel of Ellis Funeral Home. The 1928 Book of Common Prayer is used by the congregation for all services.

Thanksgiving service set

The Midland Association of Churches is sponsoring a united Thanksgiving Service to be held at St. Stephens Catholic Church at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 19.

The service will be conducted by Midland Memorial Hospital's chaplain, the Rev. Alan Williams. Special music will be provided by the sponsoring churches.

The public is invited to attend.

Episcopal priest campaigns for religious pluralism

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — When the Rt. Rev. Arthur E. Walmsley, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut, stands in front of a battery of microphones and reads a prepared statement — albeit with a few political hand gestures for emphasis — it is evident he is not a politician.

But Walmsley is campaigning this year, taking on two strong and, in view of the recent ecumenical movement, unexpected foes: the Roman Catholic archbishop of Hartford and the national leader of the so-called Moral Majority.

The issue is the proper role of government in legislating abortion practices and how churches press their positions. It has gained Walmsley more attention than all the social activism of his earlier clerical days.

In September he was involved in a public exchange of opinions with Archbishop John F. Whealon of Hartford. In October, he singled out the Rev. Jerry Falwell and Vice President George Bush for criticism on their approaches to the problem.

And he works to keep it all — public letters, press conferences, interviews — in perspective.

"There is some inappropriate return to the same old patterns of religious intolerance," he said.

"But that does not cut the esteem I hold for Bishop Whealon or, I think, the esteem in which he holds me.

"I don't think this issue is the most important, certainly not when compared to the work we are doing together to fight poverty, feed the hungry and find shelter for the homeless. Those works are not affected."

RELIGION

Numerous secular words blessed with religious origin

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Whenever people talk, whatever the subject, they're often using words with religious origins. But most don't know it.

The connotations have changed with the times.

"The reason may be that society is now more secularized," says the Rev. Dale S. Bringman of San Diego, Calif., a Lutheran pastor and researcher into words once religious that are no longer.

With shifting situations and "the passage of time, people simply forgot the religious roots from which the words came," he adds.

In any case, the language is loaded with such terminology, its origins in faith and worship, but now conveying something else.

"There are hundreds of English words and expressions commonly used that have long since lost their original religious significance," says Bringman, pastor of St. Peter's by the Sea Lutheran Church in San Diego.

"The words are still used, but where we got them is forgotten," he added in a telephone interview.

Some examples Bringman cites from everyday discourse:

"Parlor," meaning the main room in the house, stems from a French word meaning to speak and once was a room in monasteries in which monks vowed to silence could speak with visitors.

"Diapers," the white breech cloths for babies, comes from a Byzantine cloth, "diaspros," used for religious garments and meaning pure white.

"Lobby," now any entrance hall, derived from the German word for leaf and referred to the tree-covered walk where visitors waited to visit monasteries. Now "lobbyists" are those waiting outside to influence legislation.

"Giddy" and "enthusiastic" both originally meant "filled with God."

"Red-letter day," meaning a climactic day, came from the old practice of marking religious feast days in red on the calendar.

Lubbock Church of Christ hosting 'Help Seminar'

LUBBOCK — The Broadway Church of Christ, 1924 Broadway in Lubbock, is hosting a "Help Seminar" today.

The seminar, "Children and Divorce," will be held in Room 222 of the Broadway Education Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The seminar is sponsored by the Singles Ministry and the Family Care Ministry of the Broadway Church of Christ.

David Lewis, director of the Institute of Adolescent Studies, will be conducting the day-long seminar. Lewis, a marriage and family therapist, specializes in adolescent development and counseling children from divorced homes.

Lewis also served as director of the youth and family ministry of a large church in Abilene for over 10 years.

Topics to be discussed include "How Divorce Affects Children in different Stages of Development," "How to Recognize and Handle Depression" and "How Parents Handle Their Own Anger, Guilt and Resentment."

Cost is $10. Nursery and baby-sitting facilities are available for children up to 11 years old. Those attending may bring a sack lunch or eat at one of the nearby restaurants.

President well guarded during rallies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's security team has perhaps perfected the technique of simultaneously exposing Reagan to, and protecting him from, a crowd of thousands.

By use of various security devices, the president appears to be well protected during most of the time he spends at political rallies.

To begin with, Reagan's armored limousine pulls up to a building entrance that has been cleared of people in advance. Most of the people in the presidential motorcade are taken to a separate entrance.

The president is taken to a well-guarded "holding room," to await his introduction on stage. At this point, the audience has no idea that the president has even arrived since it would not have seen his motorcade pull up.

All of the people at the rally, often 10,000 or even 20,000, have gone through metal detectors set up by White House guards, who began traveling ahead of the president during the Reagan administration.

The stage is almost always constructed so that it is about six feet above the ground and backs up against the entrance Reagan will use — which is off limits to anyone except security personnel and those putting on the rally.

When the president is introduced, he walks up the steps to the platform and, for the first time, becomes visible to the audience. It only lasts a minute or so, while Reagan greets his fellow Republican politicians on the stage and acknowledges the cheers of the audience. Then he sits down until it's his turn to speak.

When he sits down, the president once again becomes invisible to the crowd since the stage or platform is ringed by a curtain that's perhaps three feet high, just high enough to make it nearly impossible to see Reagan.

Even if the platform has been constructed in an auditorium with balcony seating, no one is allowed in the seats behind or even alongside the platform. That way, the entire audience is in front of Reagan, the "secure" escape route behind him.

Seated on the stage near the president is a Secret Service agent carrying a bulletproof coat that would be thrown over Reagan if he needed protection while he was hustled out in an emergency.

Four other agents from the presidential detail stand in front of the platform, eyeing the crowd, which is kept behind a rope that has been installed six to 10 feet away from the platform.

As a sort of shield, a press pool of perhaps 30 reporters, photographers and camera crews is placed between the four agents and the crowd.

One agent stands on each side of the platform. Several others hover nearby. Many more are backstage and at various points among and on the sidelines of the audience. Others are guarding the presidential motorcade vehicles, which includes a van containing uniformed Secret Service sharpshooters who do nothing but sit in their van looking for snipers.

All of the agents who guard the president carry revolvers and wear bulletproof vests. Some of them also carry automatic machine guns and other armaments hidden in innocent-looking briefcases and elsewhere.

The president does not become visible to the crowd again until he stands up to deliver his speech, which lasts between 10 and 30 minutes. Usually, Reagan has been coaxed by his staff into wearing a bullet-proof vest under his shirt. Some of his suits have been retailored to accommodate the extra bulk.

To address the crowd, the president stands in front of his bullet-proof podium that has been transported from the White House.

When he finishes speaking, Reagan is surrounded by agents who provide a human shield as he's hustled from the stage into his secure "holding room" or into his limousine.

As the motorcade begins to move, four agents run alongside Reagan's limousine for the first 100 feet or so and then jump into their follow-up car. There are always two black limousines in the motorcade — one for Reagan and another that serves as a combination decoy and spare.

Puerto Rico becomes entry point for drugs

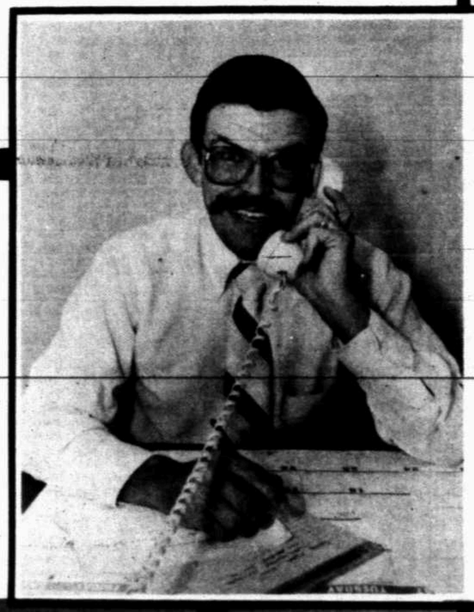

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — This U.S. Commonwealth is quietly becoming a major entry point for illicit drugs from South America as mainland enforcement officials plug up traditional entry points in Florida, Texas and California.

John T. Sutton, head of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) office here, estimated about one-tenth of the $100 billion in illegal drugs shipped into the U.S. mainland in 1983 passed through Puerto Rico.

Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., said in a telephone interview from Washington that Puerto Rico has been a low priority in U.S. drug interdiction. English is chairman of a Government Operations subcommittee with responsibility for monitoring federal drug interdiction efforts.

Sutton said he suspects that drug trafficking through Puerto Rico has risen since 1981, when President Reagan established the South Florida Drug Task Force. Anti-drug forces have also since been increased in the border states of Texas and California.

Satellites to aid communications in rural Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico will move into the modern communication age next year when the U.S. Space Shuttle launches two satellites the Mexican government says will provide telephone service to 18 million people in the nation's rural areas.

"With the operation of the satellites, Mexico will enter fully into the modern era of communication and will be included among those with the most technologically advanced systems, said Miguel Sanchez Ruiz, director of special projects in the Communications and Transportation Department.

Mexico and Brazil, which also plans to launch two satellites in 1985, will be the only two Latin American countries operating telecommunications satellites, the government says.

Authorities say telephone service will be extended to 13,000 rural communities with about 18 million residents after the satellites are in operation. Of Mexico's 77 millon people, 30 million live in rural areas.

There currently are 6.6 million telephones in all of Mexico.

"The principal objective of the government in launching the satellites is to provide rural telephone service," Sanchez said.

But the government says the system — called "Morelos" in honor of Mexican independence hero Jose Maria Morelos y Pavon — also will extend television signals in the nation's countryside; provide higher capacity to use high-speed computer signals, which will benefit the goverment, banks, airlines and tourism offices; and improve supervision and production of electricity plants.

The Space Shuttle will launch the first satellite in May and the second in November 1985.

The project, utilizing satellites built by the Hughes Aircraft Corp. in El Segundo, Calif., will cost Mexico about $140 million, including a payment to the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration for launching the satellites, the purchase of propulsion rockets from the McDonell Douglas Corp. and a consulting fee to Comsat General of Washington, D.C.

Fatima Fernandez Christlieb, a communication sciences investigator at the National Autonomos University of Mexico, says the "Morelos" project will increase Mexico's dependence on foreign countries.

"The satellite question could obligate us to pay political prices that could represent a point of no return with respect to the nation's history, since, technologically, we are dependent on a handful of transnationals," he said.

But Communications Secretary Lelix Valdez says the satellites will do just the opposite.

"In the future we won't have to depend on foreign services to carry signals throughout our country," he said.

Mexico currently uses microwave towers for its telecommunications system, although it rents some satellite space from the International Telecommunications System, Intelsat.

Touring teens talk about war

NEW YORK (AP) — Teen-agers from 14 countries are on a tour of the United States, telling Americans about the devastation of war in their homelands in hopes of diminishing its threat in the future.

"We represent the places in the world where men are killing each other and yet we are living together," said Arn Chorn, an 18-year-old refugee from Cambodia who is an adviser to the other youths on the tour.

Over the next 11 days, the 26 teenagers will visit 36 cities in what is called the Children of War Tour, organized by the Religious Task Force, an interfaith group created in 1978.

Marvyn Perez, 16, a refugee from Guatemala, said that two years ago he and his friends wrote a letter to Guatemalan "officials" asking for a better education, more schools and better teachers.

A few days later, he said, he was kidnapped while waiting for a bus. For 15 days he was beaten and seared with cigarettes and given electric shocks, Perez said.

"They say, 'Tell me the names of the other students,'" he said. "But I didn't want to because they kill them.

"One day they take me into bathroom and ask me, 'What you want to do when you grow up?' I said I want to be a doctor," Perez continued. "They bring my friend into the bathroom and shot him in the head and they say, 'You want to be a doctor? Take care of him.' He died."

Perez eventually was freed by his captors and he and his family fled to Mexico and then Los Angeles.

"Americans don't know what's happening in my country now," he said. "They think it's in peace now, but it isn't."

Another 16-year-old, Seng Ty, a Cambodian, said he fled his country alone four years ago after his parents died of starvation, his brother was executed and the Khmer Rouge separated him from his sister.

He said he wanted to tell Americans about his wartime experiences because "I want them to think about the wars going on in my country. I want to make peace in my country. I want to make a better world, I'm very tired to be fighting."

The countries represented by the children include Lebanon, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Israel, South Africa, Northern Ireland, Uganda and Vietnam.

Spanish shipbuilders rioting

Associated Press

BILBAO, Spain — Workers protesting government plans to restructure the shipbuilding industry fought riot police Friday and initial reports said at least six people were hurt, including two policemen.

Witnesses said police hurled about 500 smoke cans to prevent hundreds of shipyard workers from marching into downtown Bilbao in the third day of protests. The witnesses said the demonstrators responded with gasoline bombs.

Three passersby were injured while trying to cross a bridge into town while the clashes were going on.

Workers' representratives protested Friday's police action, claiming about 50 demonstrators were injured.

Protesters caused traffic chaos by running six public transportation buses onto the bridge and by setting afire some barricades they had erected.

Police sources said a police captain and a sergeant were beaten up by protesters and hospitalized, and that a worker also was hospitalized.

Indian intelligence, police probe Gandhi conspiracy

By STEPHEN R. WILSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India — Police and intelligence officials on Friday began an investigation into a possible conspiracy in the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Ghandi.

The investigation is headed by S. Anand Ram, former director of the Central Industrial Security Force. He is expected to report his findings to a special inquiry commission headed by a Supreme Court judge. The panel is expected to be named soon.

Several Indian newspapers have reported what they described as a "deep-rooted" conspiracy behind the slaying of Mrs. Gandhi on Oct. 31. The papers reported, with little substantiation, that the suspected conspiracy may have involved Sikh military officials or Sikh separatists based in foreign countries.

The Indian army, meanwhile, began escorting thousands of Sikh riot victims out of refugee camps.

Mrs. Gandhi's son and successor, Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, returned her ashes to her birthplace before they were to be scattered over the Himalayas.

In New Delhi, the curfew was relaxed and the capital remained quiet following the four day days of rioting that authorities said claimed more than 1,000 lives, includiing more than 600 in the capital. The curfew had been 9 p.m. to 6 a.m., but was cut back to 11 p.m. to 4 a.m.

The respected Statesman newspaper on Friday disputed the official death count, saying "several thousand Sikhs" were slain in New Delhi alone. The paper's claim could not be immediately confirmed.

The Indian Express, the Hindustan Times and the Times of India — the other three principal newspapers in the capital— also have said the death toll was much higher than the government's figures.

Army troops continued to guard the resettlement colonies where hundreds of Sikhs were beaten, hacked with knives and lynched by Hindu mobs following Mrs. Gandhi's assassination by two gunmen identified as Sikh members of her security guard.

At least 5,000 Sikhs who had fled their dwellings during the riots left the refugee camps Friday, city officials said, but an estimated 30,000 Sikhs were still in the camps.

The capital's army commander, Maj. Gen. J.S. Jamwal, said troops were providing armed escorts for Sikhs who feared they might be attacked on their way home.

Police said they had recovered looted property worth $2.2 million and arrested more than 2,900 people in connection with the riots, among the worst since partition of the subcontinent into India and Pakistan in 1947.

Curfews remained in effect in the Sikh holy city of Amritsar and dozens of other cities and towns in the Sikh-dominated state of Punjab. No major outbreak of violence has been reported in Punjab, but authorities said they want to head off any potential Sikh backlash against Hindus.

The start of the investigation was delayed by the purge of high-level police and intelligence officers responsible for Mrs. Gandhi's security. Several Sikh security men were among those fired or transferred under orders from the new prime minister.

The key to the investigation is expected to be the interrogation of Satwant Singh, one of Mrs. Gandhi's two alleged killers.

Singh was seriously wounded by other security guards after the assassination at the prime minister's residence. The other alleged killer, subinspector Beant Singh, was shot dead at the scene.

Satwant Singh's condition was reported improving and he was expected to be shifted from Ram Manohar Lohia Hospital to a secret location early next week for interrogation.

Police seized a letter addressed to Satwant Singh at the hospital Friday.

Chilean security agents raid homes, unions

Associated Press

SANTIAGO, Chile — Security agents raided homes and union headquarters in four cities Friday, seizing at least 107 people by government count in a crackdown on Marxist opponents of military rule.

The arrests, most of them by armed men wearing armbands of the secret police, brought to 153 the number of people taken in raids since President Augusto Pinochet decreed a 90-day state of siege Tuesday night.

The Vicariate of Solidarity, the Roman Catholic church human rights agency, said four of the 46 people arrested before Friday's raids had been released and the government had acknowledged holding the others.

Francisco Cuadra, secretary-general of government, gave the figure of 107 arrests Friday.

The vicariate reported 52 arrests Friday, but it was not immediately clear whether they were included in the 107 reported by the government.

The church group said, in describing some of Friday's arrests, that 11 activists were seized at the Mining Confederation union offices, and seven at the Surco Campesino Confederation headquarters. Both labor groups are led by Communists.

It also reported raids on homes in working class districts of Santiago, Antofagasta, Temuco and Valparaiso.

The National Information Central, Pinochet's secret police agency, said four leftists who were arrested during overnight curfews since Tuesday have been sent to military courts for trial — one for allegedly bombing a bakery, the others for barricading streets during recent anti-government demonstrations.

Pinochet said the state of siege was needed to combat what he called a Marxist-led insurrection against his military regime, which came to power in the 1973 overthrow of an elected Marxist president, Salvador Allende.

Although unauthorized meetings and all political reporting by the Chilean press have been banned, the crackdown has been used so far only against leftists. Hundreds of them have abandoned their party headquarters and their homes to avoid arrest.

Fanny Pollarollo, a Communist leader who turned up at the Vicariate's heaquarters next to Santiago's downtown cathedral, said party activists in hiding were planning a day of protest on Tuesday, followed by nightly clanging of pots and pans until some date in late November when a very large demonstration was scheduled.

Interior Minister Sergio Onofre Jarpa, who reportedly had resisted more sweeping repression, issued secret instructions to regional military governors on Thursday.

Jarpa said in a speech later the state of siege "does not mean a step backward in the opening to a full democracy" that Pinochet has promised for Chile in the next decade.

Walesa demands security reforms

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa on Friday accused Poland's security forces of "violence and lawlessness" and demanded reforms in the Interior Ministry following the kidnap-murder of a pro-Solidarity priest.

The government has charged a secret police captain and two lieutenants with kidnapping and murdering the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, and an Interior Ministry colonel is charged with "aiding and abetting" the three police officers.

The Interior Ministry controls Poland's uniformed and plainclothes police.

"We know too many examples of violence and lawlessness perpetrated by Interior Ministry functionaries which were never punished and revealed to the public," said Walesa in the letter to the Polish Parliament.

A spokeswoman at Walesa's apartment in the Baltic port of Gdansk read the text of two letters, one to the Parliament and the other to the presidium of the Parliament. The letters were drafted at a meeting Thursday between Walesa and Wladyslaw Frasyniuk, the former Solidarity chairman in the southwestern city of Wroclaw.

In the letter to Parliament, Walesa and Frasyniuk said existing law on the Office of the Interior Minister "leads not only to the degeneration of Interior Ministry employees and causes social opposition but also brings shame on Poland in the eyes of international opinion.

"In connection with the abduction and murder of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko by Interior Ministry functionaries, we demand changes in the law on the Office of the Interior Ministry," the letter said.

Walesa and Frasyniuk called on Parliament to consider their demand at its next session on Tuesday.

An Interior Ministry general has been suspended from duty for lack of supervision over his department, and a Warsaw police lieutenant colonel faces possible internal disciplinary measures for his links with those charged in the slaying, government officials said.

The body of the 37-year-old Warsaw priest was recovered by police frogmen in an icy reservoir near the northern city of Wroclawek on Oct. 30. He was thrown into the water bound and gagged after he was abducted Oct. 19 on a highway near the city of Torun, about 30 miles from Wloclawek.

In their letter to Parliament, Walesa and Frasyniuk said the law regulating the Interior Minister, which was approved by Parliament in July 1983, "infringes on basic citizens' rights" and creates "a feeling of impunity" among Interior Ministry functionaries.

The letter addressed to the Parliament's presidium said existing law on the Interior Minister violated international human rights agreements ratified by Poland.

That letter said the law details in which cases police are allowed to use firearms against people, and gives police broad powers to search apartments and place wiretaps.

West Germany expels Romanian envoys

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany expelled five Romanian diplomats Friday, the Foreign Office announced. The order followed reports that security officials were investigating five Romanian diplomats in connection with alleged plots to bomb Radio Free Europe and kidnap a Romanian emigre.

The Foreign Office issued a statement saying the Romanian charge d'affaires was asked to see that the five diplomats leave West Germany "as soon as possible." No deadline was given.

The statement accused the diplomats of "behaving in a manner incompatible with their diplomatic status."

A man answering the telephone at the Romanian Embassy said no one would be available for comment until Saturday. He declined to give his name.

The Foreign Office statement did not name the diplomats or mention the reported inquiry into the alleged bomb and kidnapping plots. Earlier Friday, a well-informed source confirmed the investigation was under way.

The source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the diplomats were under investigation in connection with an alleged plot to bomb the Radio Free Europe station in Munich and to abduct a Romanian emigre in West Germany.

The newspaper Die Welt reported Friday that the diplomats were under investigation. It cited unidentified chancellery and security officials as the sources for the report.

West German government spokesmen refused to comment on the newspaper report.

Die Welt named the five Romanians under investigation as embassy counselor Constantin Ciobanu and embassy secretaries Ioan Lupu, Ion Grecu, Dan Mihoc and Ion Constantin.

The newspaper said West German security officials had linked the Romanians to a plan to bomb the U.S.-financed Radio Free Europe station in Munich.The attack had been planned since October 1983, when Constantin sent his government a 13-page report on the layout of the station's headquarters, Die Welt said.

In deposition, Sharon denies discussing 'revenge'

By JOHN M. DOYLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — In pre-trial testimony Friday for his libel suit against Time magazine, former Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon denied discussing the need for revenge with the relatives of slain Lebanese President Bashir Gemayel.

"I did not discuss revenge with any Lebanese," Sharon said repeatedly during an often stormy deposition he gave at the offices of Time's lawyers.

Two days after Gemayel's Sept. 14, 1982, assassination, hundreds of Palestinians were slaughtered at two west Beirut refugee camps, and revenge for the president's slaying is the issue in Sharon's $50 million lawsuit against Time Inc.

Sharon claims he was libeled in a Feb. 21, 1983, Time article about an Israeli commission's investigation into the massacres at the Sabra and Chatilla camps. The slayings were carried out by Lebanese Christian militiamen during the Israeli invasion of Lebanon. The article stated Sharon discussed with Lebanese Christian leaders the need to avenge Gemayel's death.

Sharon called the magazine's article a "blood libel" during an unusual public deposition he gave Time attorneys in September.

In a continuation of that deposition Friday, Sharon asserted that the possibility the Christian Phalangist militia might seek revenge was discussed only among Israeli officers.

"I think the word was mentioned. I think it could've been used," Sharon told Time attorney Thomas Barr, but he denied having "conversations with anyone other than the (Israeli) Chief of Staff (Raphael Eitan) in which the word 'revenge' was used."

Sharon denied discussing revenge with Gemayel's father or brother, Amin, who is the current president of Lebanon, during a condolence call the day after the assassination. He also denied discussing revenge or mentioning in particular the refugee camps, which he described as "terrorist neighborhoods," at a meeting earlier that day with Phalangist political and military leaders.

"I never discussed in detail with anyone the entrance of Lebanese forces into the terrorist neighborhoods of Chatilla and Sabra," Sharon said. "I never mentioned those names or details in my conversations with Pierre Gemayel or Amin Gemayel."

Barr, the Time attorney questioning Sharon, and Richard Goldstein, Sharon's American attorney, exchanged harsh words several times during the daylong session.

One dispute arose over the English translation of Sharon's testimony before the Israeli commission.

Sharon maintained the English translation of the Hebrew word for revenge in the transcript was imprecise.

"We live in the Middle East, a place that uses the word 'nikmat-dam,'" he said.

Literally, "blood vengeance," Sharon said nikmat-dam referred "to the people who were involved in a killing or to a close relative. It has nothing to do with massive killings of civilian populations."

In the transcript, Sharon was quoted as saying "Amin himself, at the funeral on the 15th of the month, used the word 'revenge.' The word revenge also appeared, I would say among us."

Sharon maintained the Hebrew word "etzlenu" actually meant "among ourselves, in our place" instead of "among us" and that he was referring to a discussion among Israeli officials and not between himself and the Gemayels.

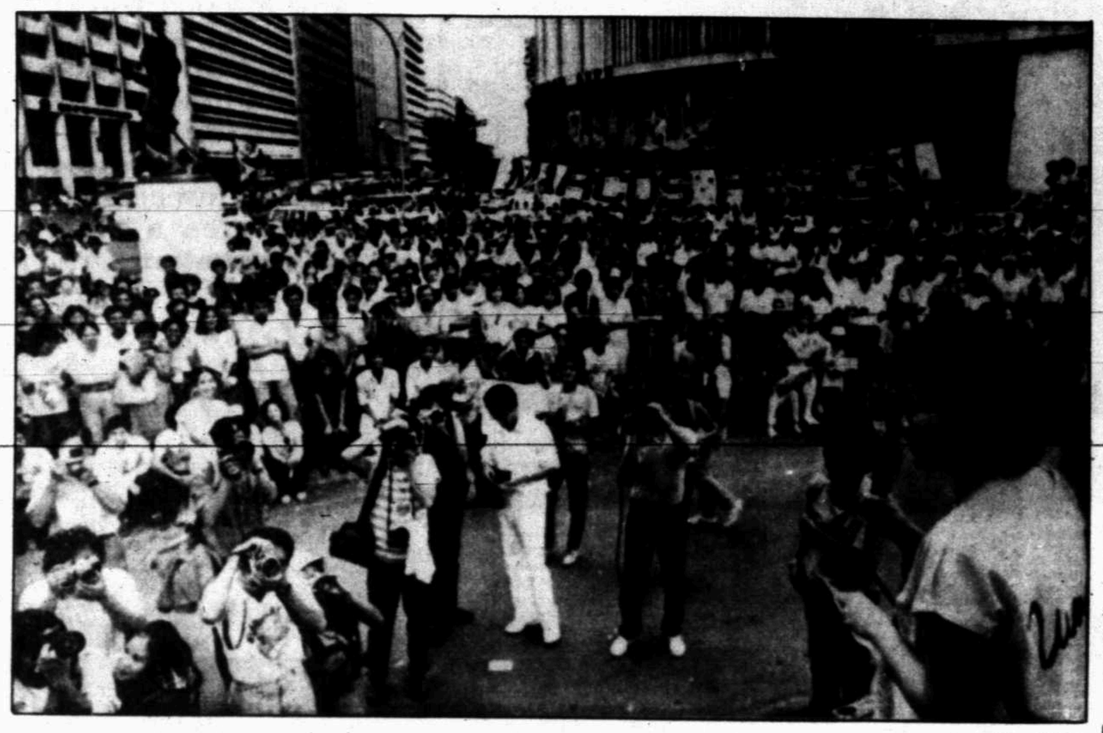

The Time article, which editors said was based on a secret appendix to the commission's report, said, "Sharon also reportedly discussed with the Gemayels the need for the Phalangists to take revenge for the assassination of Bashir, but the details of the conversation are not known."

In a pre-trial motion seeking dismissal of the suit, Time argued that Israeli officials were not cooperating and had blocked its lawyers' attempts to interview potential witnesses and had withheld documents.

Israel's attorney general released a statement Friday saying he had refused Time's request to interview in court several witnesses.

They were identified as Chaim Bar-lev, minister of police; David Kimche, foreign ministry director-general; Major Gen. Amir Drory, former chief of the army's northern command; Major Gen. Yehoshua Saguy, former chief of intelligence, and Col. Moshe Hevroni, Saguy's former aide.

U.S. District Court Judge Abraham Sofaer ordered the trial to start Tuesday. A jury of four men and two women was picked last week.

Resignation rally

Corazon Aquino, widow of oppostion leader Benigno Aquino, addresses a rally calling for the resignation of Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos in Manila's financial district Friday.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Manila hotel fire kills seven

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The nation's third fatal hotel fire in 16 days killed seven people and injured 13 Friday, police said. Manila's mayor was quoted as saying terrorists might be responsible for the fires.

At least four foreigners, none of them American, were reported killed in the fire at the eight-story Las Palmas Hotel in the Eremita tourist quarter of Manila.

The blaze came one week after President Ferdinand E. Marcos ordered the military and police to investigate "intelligence information" that "urban terrorists" may have been behind the first two fires and could start more.

Marcos, who faced terrorist bombings in 1981, again is experiencing mounting opposition, including demands for his resignation, following the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino last year.

Ariane delivering two satellites

KOUROU, French Guiana (AP) — The European Space Agency's Ariane-3 rocket carried two commercial satellites into space on schedule Friday night from the space center in this French territory on South America's northeastern coast.

The launch was the 11th of an Ariane rocket and the third with a commercial payload.

The unmanned rocket lifted off at 8:14 p.m. EST with an American and a European satellite aboard. The launch fell within the 45-minute window ESA officials had set, despite an interruption of the countdown due to a problem with satellite communications between Kourou and France.

Mexico counters tourist warning

DALLAS (AP) — Concern over reports that bandits prowling Mexican highways will scare off some of its $1.8 billion tourism industry, the Mexican government has launched a public relations campaign to build confidence among travelers.

Jorge Gleesen, director of Mexico's Office of Tourist Assistance, said he is conducting a tour of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and California to convince tourists that Mexico's highways are safe.

"We want to get our message across," he said. "When you have 9 million tourists and only 12 cases of violence, we feel it is a matter of concern but not a matter of alarm."

U.S. Ambassador John Gavin threatened, but later backed away from, issuing a warning to tourists to stay away from four specific stretches of highway in the northern part of Mexico.

NATO adopts attack doctrine

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — NATO on Friday adopted a counterattack doctrine calling for nonnuclear bombing deep inside Eastern Europe in the event of a Soviet first strike on the West, sources said.

The doctrine, called "Follow-On Forces Attack," is designed to reinforce NATO's front-line conventional defenses along West German borders by disrupting the second wave of a Warsaw Pact attack, according to sources who spoke on the condition they not be identified by name.

The decision to adopt the controversial doctrine is the first step in what is expected to be a lengthy process of deciding what kinds of newly developed weapons should be built and when they should be available.

U.S., Japan agree on fishing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. government spokesman said Friday the United States and Japan have agreed on how Japan can prevent reductions of its fishing rights in U.S. waters.

The discussions between the two countries stem from the interest by Japanese fishermen in hunting for sperm whales.

The International Whaling Commission has voted in favor of banning any further hunting of sperm whales.

Japan filed an objection, which under an agreement exempts it from the ban.

U.S. law provides that when a country "diminishes the effectiveness" of an international whaling measure, the offending country must be "certified" by the U.S. government. When certified, the country's right to fish within the U.S. 200-mile economic zone must be cut at least by half.

Canadian auto plants walk out

TORONTO (AP) — Workers at three of Ford Motor Co.'s nine Canadian plants staged wildcat walkouts Friday for the second day in a row, but United Auto Workers officials said the unauthorized strikes didn't endanger ratification of a tentative national contract.

"There's no indication of the workers being mad at their union or mad at the bargaining team," UAW Canadian director Robert White said at a news conference.

He said the walkouts stemmed from workers "taking a long weekend," without any connection to the terms of the proposed contract.

Ratification votes were scheduled Sunday on the tentative agreement, announced Thursday. It is nearly identical on money issues to a contract reached with General Motors Corp.'s Canadian subsidiary after a 12-day strike last month.

Conference on Ethiopia sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the U.S. foreign aid agency called Friday for a conference of food donor nations, including the Soviet Union, to coordinate strategy for ensuring that Ethiopia's food needs over the next year are met.

M. Peter McPherson, administrator of the Agency for International Development, said that 300,000 tons of food from donor nations are now in the pipeline, compared with a need of 1 million tons during the next year.

McPherson, who just returned from a trip to Ethiopia, said bottlenecks at ports and inadequate land transport hinder the arrival of food at camps where Ethiopia's drought victims have been assembling.

He said many people depart for the camps belatedly, arriving "just in time for their children to die." He added that during his trip, he saw "hundreds of children looking like shrunken little old men."

South African union leader held

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The president of one of South Africa's largest black trade union organizations was detained Friday, three days after his federation joined a protest strike in Transvaal province, union officials said.

Chris Dlamini, president of the Federation of South African Trade Unions, was the eighth person reported held without charge by security police since hundreds of thousands of workers stayed home Monday and Tuesday.

Jay Naidoo, general secretary of the Sweets, Food and Allied Workers Union, told a news conference Dlamini was picked up at the Kellogg cereal plant where he works. Kellogg South Africa, a subsidiary of the U.S. cereal maker, is in Springs, east of Johannesburg.

Zimbabwe killing sparks riots

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — The assassination of a senator who was a leader of Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's political party sparked riots that killed one person and injured 184, officials said Friday.

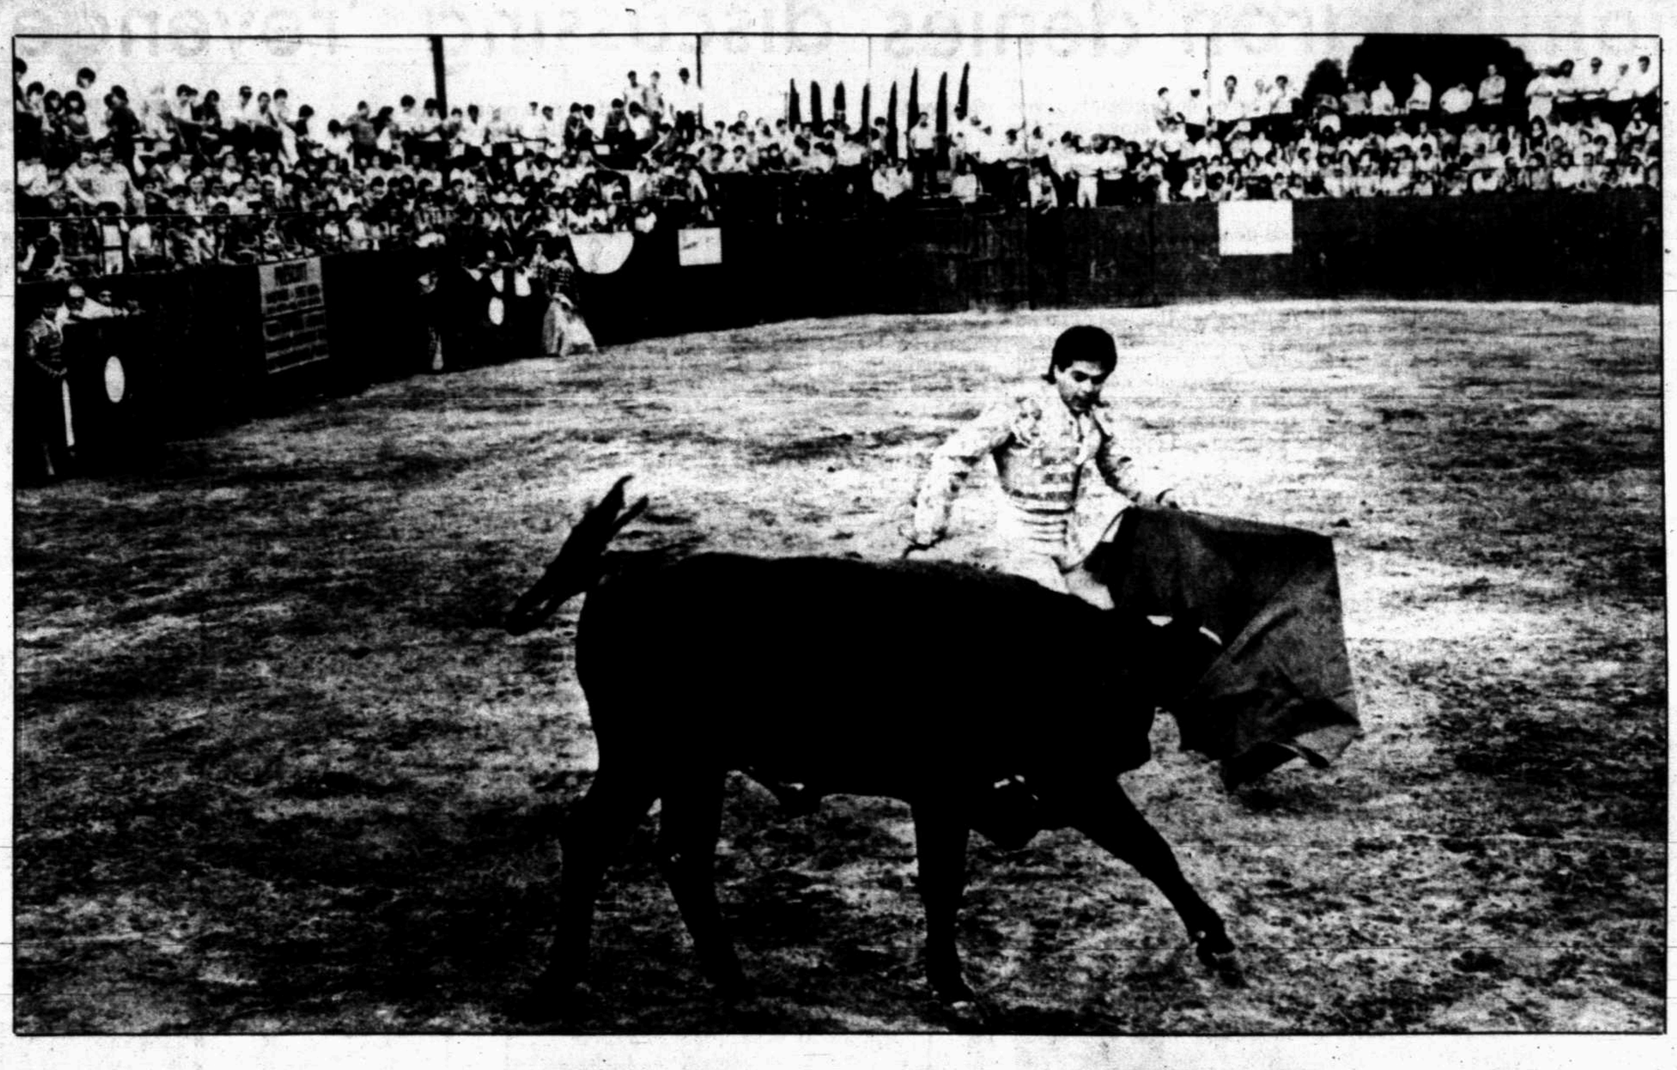

A government spokesman denied a report that 100 people died in the rioting after the shooting death of Moven Alex Ndlovu. Ndlovu, 50, the Senate leader of Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union, was slain late Thursday at his home in the town of Beitbridge, the spokesman said.

The spokesman, who under Zimbabwe law cannot be identified by name in news stories, said no one was killed in clashes between supporters of Mugabe's party and opposition leader Joshua Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union. He said 184 people were injured, but only 10 required hospitalization.

Matador Manola Arce of Mexico works a bull at an arena in Artesia, Calif. Since California law prohibits its traditional bullfighting, the bloodless sport is allowed if it accompanies a religious celebration.

Ole! Ole!

Jose Manuel Pinto edged toward the bull, a tantalizing red cape dangling from his hand.

In a burst of hooves and dust, the bull charged. Pinto pirouetted as the bull plunged past to scattered shouts of ole! from the crowd.

But the bull was not finished. As Pinto strutted away, the half-ton animal wheeled, snagged the matador with a horn and flung him to the ground. The crowd screamed.

Uninjured but angry, Pinto rose, dusted himself, picked up the cape and renewed his duel. Within minutes the bull was exhausted, its sides heaving. Pinto leveled his sword, taking aim for the kill.

But as the matador lunged, he tossed the sword away and gave the bull a pat on its head.

It is called bloodless bullfighting. But the sport is not practiced in Madrid or Mexico City. This form of the ritualistic battle between man and beast is taking place in bullrings north of the border, mostly in towns throughout California and the Southwest.

In recent years, such bullfights have been held in several cities in Los Angeles County, including Artesia, about 25 miles south of downtown Los Angeles, where Pinto and two other matadors battled bulls recently.

Bloodless bullfighting, which had its genesis in Portugal, has proliferated in areas with sizable Portuguese immigrant populations, such as Artesia.

While California law restricts traditional bullfighting, the bloodless form of the sport is allowed if it accompanies a religious festival or celebration.

During a bloodless bullfight, a matador tests his skill with a cape, culminating the event with a ceremonial kill made by touching a hand on the bull as it charges past. If all goes as it is supposed to, both matador and bull leave the ring unharmed.

Bullfighters stand at attention during opening ceremonies at the arena in Artesia, Calif., where bloodless bullfights are held three times a year.

The sport has been criticized, however, by members of animal-rights groups, who say that the display involves inhumane taunting tactics.

"Bloodless bullfighting is tormenting an animal," said Fred Lee, vice president of the State Humane Association of California. "We really feel it is something that's not necessary."

But to the Portuguese immigrants who flock to the bullfights, the sport is part of their heritage.

"Watching these bullfights brings a nostalgic feeling to the Portuguese people. It lets us remember a land far away and long gone," said Pedro Costa, a bullfight aficionado and editor of Novidade, a Portuguese-language daily based in Tulare, Calif.

Attempts in recent months to pass state legislation that would allow the sport to expand have foundered, in large part because of protest by the animal-rights groups.

Despite controversy, the sport persists. The bullfight featuring Jose Manuel Pinto was sponsored by the Artesia-based Divino Espiritu Santo Center, a 300-member Portuguese club, as part of the group's four-day celebration of the Holy Ghost.

More than 1,500 people jammed five-rows deep into the center's rust-brown bullring to watch the spectacle, one of three bullfights the group holds annually.

The crowd was distinctly urban. Young women dressed in trendy slacks mingled with men in stylish tennis shirts while families hunkered down on the wooden bleachers.

Cans of Budweiser in hand, they squinted into the light of a setting sun to watch the three matadors fight six bulls.

"Most of the people here are of Portuguese descent, but you'll find that there's quite a few other ones too," said Vasco Matos, who served as announcer for the bullfights. "You'll find a lot of people from the neighborhood and people who just enjoy bullfighting."

Indeed, promoters say that bullfights throughout the state are drawing increasingly large non-immigrant crowds, especially in towns near large urban populations.

In San Jose in Northern California, which has one of the largest Portuguese immigrant populations in the country, bullfights have become common, promoters say. Successful bullfights also have been staged in big cities such as San Francisco, Houston, Chicago and Detroit.

Bullfight promoters are finding the sport profitable. The Artesia group, for example, paid $7,000 for matadors and the massive, black fighting bulls imported from Mexico. Matadors generally are foreign born — Pinto, for example, is Portuguese — and travel on a circuit from town to town, much like a traveling rodeo.

But most bullfighting fans insist the version of the sport practiced in the United States is safe, both for bull and matador.

The bull's horns are blunted to prevent a matador from being painfully gored. And state law forbids the use of banderillas, the barbed darts used to weaken the bull.

With such restrictions, some purists say that bloodless bullfighting is a mere parody of the sport practiced in Mexico and Spain. Others contend, however, that more machismo is necessary to step into a U.S. bullring because the animals have not been gored and are therefore more erratic.

A charging bull runs under the cape held by matador Jose Manuel Pinto of Portugal.

"These guys here, they're crazy," Costa said. "They'll go in the ring with a bull that has not been hurt. You're talking about a beast that weighs 1,000 pounds, that still has most of its strength and can kill."

Spectators flock to the bullfights because there is "a certain fascination" in the Portuguese culture for bulls, Costa said.

"Since the bull represents such a colorful part of our folklore, it's considered exciting to be around one," Costa said.

To Lease or Not To Lease

Reasons To Lease:

1. Leasing is convenient – you only pay for what you use and not for the full price of the car.
2. There is no used car to dispose of at lease end.
3. Leasing frees your cash and you can use your available bank line of credit for other purposes.
4. Lessee – leasing for business purposes will have the benefit of simplified tax records.
