SELF GOVERNMENT FOR WASHINGTON? Washington, D.C. has not had "home rule" since 1874, when the U.S. Congress took it over in a type of receivership. It has been governed largely by the district committee of the House of Representatives. The present movement to give it self-government has been spearheaded by President Johnson. Home rule will make Washington America's first Negro city. Only city in the U.S. with a Negro majority, it would likely mean a Negro-dominated city government. It will also mean that after 90 years, Washington — citadel of democracy — will itself become democratic.

Former Mayor Is Secretary Of New Research Group

A former mayor of Rockport—Dr. Albert W. Collier, is secretary of the recently formed Gulf Universities Research Corporation, Inc., recently organized in Houston.

Members of the group include Rice University, the University of Houston A&M University, the University of Texas, Southern Methodist University, Louisiana State University and Florida State University.

The Southwestern Research Institute of San Antonio and Houston will operate any service facility the corporation acquires.

The corporation will provide scientific research facilities that are too large or expensive for any one member to build or maintain.

Gulf Universities Research will ask the federal government to swing more than $25 million research funds to the Gulf Coast over the next five years.

The money they say, will go toward: Establishing the facilities of the Gulf Coast Marine Science Center for use by the member schools.

Establish a budget of more than $800,000 for the first year's operation. Half a million dollars would be used to finance oceanographic research. About $350,000 would be used to make detailed plans for buildings, equipment, and research.

Establish an annual budget of $4-$6 Million after the first five years of planning and development.

Collier, whose wife is the former Miss Judy Sorenson, was mayor of Rockport for a time before leaving to take part in an oyster research project brought about by extensive law suits filed against various oil companies by oyster growers in Louisiana some 20 years ago.

Later he conducted oceanographic research for the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and he is now with the Florida State University Oceanographic Institute.

BLACK RADISHES SOMETHING NEW AROUND ROCKPORT

A. J. Manuel has started raising something new in these parts—black radishes. One of them filtered through the Pilot office this week and, outside of being a little thicker skinned than the red variety, displayed no significant differences from the red radishes with which most of us have been familiar since childhood.

January Shrimp Landings Are 2,000,000 Lbs.

January landings of shrimp tails in Texas amounted to 1,958,000 pounds, according to Orman H. Farley, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service statistician in charge of gathering statistics in this state.

Seventy-five percent of the catch came from the high seas off foreign coasts, with 55 percent coming from Campeche alone, Farley said. Pink shrimp made up 55 percent of the total; brown shrimp accounted for 36 percent; and whites 9 percent.

In the Port Arthur-Sabine area, 18,100 pounds were landed; at Galveston, 37,600 pounds; Freeport, 93,900 pounds; Matagorda - Palacios, 7400 pounds; Port Lavaca-Port O'Connor-Seadrift area, 34,300 pounds; Aransas Pass-Rockport, 347,200 pounds; Brownsville-Port Isabel, 1,420,000 pounds.

Farley also tabulated last year's catch, from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, inclusive, for the various areas.

In Port Arthur - Sabine, landings amounted to 1,608,400 pounds; Galveston, 5,735,600 pounds; Freeport, 7,342,700 pounds; Matagorda - Palacios, 1,267,800 pounds; Port Lavaca - Port O'Connor - Seadrift, 2,042,400 pounds; Aransas Pass-Rockport, 9,533,700 pounds; and Port Isabel-Brownsville, 13,949,900 pounds.

Trawlers working adjacent water made short, broken, trips as weather conditions in January were exceedingly unsettled, Farley stated. Catches of both brown and white shrimp averaged about 250 pounds per 12 hours effort in all areas adjacent to the Texas coast.

Long-range vessels working the high seas off Mexico caught about 300 pounds per 12 hours effort, with sporadic catches running as high as 500-600 pounds per night in the Campeche pink shrimp fishery.

One vessel was taken into custody by the Mexican Coast Guard, for violation of the territorial waters of that country, and one boat was lost off the Texas coast during rough weather.

The oyster fishery, primarily (continued on page 8)

Approximately $205 in damage was estimated.

On Feb. 18, Patrolman Dominguez investigated an accident at the intersection of Ann and Liberty between Donald Moses of Rockport and Tony Castillo of Corpus Christi. HELLO SPRING. It's the time of year when lambs in farms in many parts of the United States are being born, and it's a reminder that spring is right around the corner. "I'm here — but where's spring?" seems to be the question of this little black lamb, beaming its little eyes with a glow warm enough to melt the snows.

Terri Thomas Is Crowned Valentine Queen By School

On February 12, the annual Coronation of the Valentine Queen was presented to the student body and guests by the Senior Class. The Valentine Queen of 1964, Her Majesty Miss Florence Casterline reigned over the ceremony until the 1965 queen was crowned.

Each year, two weeks prior to the scheduled crowning, each class selects a candidate whom they feel will represent the class willfully and reign in the grace of a true queen. Each class works vigorously in the contest for their candidate. The votes are based on a one-cent value and the class earning the most votes earns the title of Valentine Queen for their candidate.

The means of acquiring votes vary from the sale of confectionaries and Coke bottles to car washes and simply collecting money from willing voters.

This year the candidates included: From the senior class, Miss Terrie from the House of Thomas, escorted by Mickey Gray. From the junior class: Miss Kathy from the House of Johnson, escorted by David Picton. From the sophomore class: Miss Sandra from the House of St. Clair, escorted by Jody Rouquette. From the freshman class: Miss Renie from the House of Owens, escorted by Alan Edmonson.

The presentations began with Sallie McCord playing "Miss America," as the Queen and her escort Jay Doegy, walked down the aisle and the Queen was seated on her throne. The candidates and their escorts followed. Hugh Morrison opened the program by telling the story of Valentine. Poems were then read by Mary Lou Johnson and Susan Armintrout. Cupid, portrayed by Fay Snyder, then revealed the 1965 Queen to Her Majesty and Miss Terrie Thomas was crowned by Her Majesty and cupid gave candy and recited a poem to the new crowned queen of 1965.

For the conclusion of the program Sherry Brundrett sang "Blue Moon" accompanied by Eldon Mackey.

Legislative Pitfalls Are Described For Councilmen at Friday Meeting

At a joint meeting between commissioners of the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District, members of the City Council and other city officials Friday night, various aspects of the county water problem were discussed.

Harold Picton, president of the conservation district, outlined for those present the findings of the engineering survey recently completed by Lockwood, Andrews and Newman, and told the assembly that if the population continued its climb, more water would be needed.

A second result of the survey was the conclusion that adequate facilities could not be provided without a change in the law that set up the district, in order to make a tax levy possible. Such a tax levy would be necessary, Picton said, to pay for the pipelines and treatment plant needed to assure a permanent water supply.

Conversations had been held with officials of the San Patricio Municipal Water District and with City of Corpus Christi officials, Picton stated, and both had assured officials of the conservation district that they were in accord with efforts in this county to obtain good and plentiful water, and they would sell us water from behind the Wesley Seale Dam at the same rate as cities like Odem, Taft Aransas Pass, Port Aransas, and Ingleside, all which draw their water from the same source.

Picton pointed out that local fears that, in case of water shortage, outlying towns such as Rockport would be cut off were groundless. The contracts of these other towns state in such case, all those drawing water from Wesley Seale Dam would share what water is available on a pro rata basis.

The broad outline of the plan, Picton said, was for this district to obtain water from the San Patricio Municipal Water District by construction of a pumping plant near Ingleside. Ray water from the Wesley Seale Dam, supplied from the river through an existing pipeline to Ingleside, would be purchased from the Municipal Water District.

This water would be pumped through a pipeline to a treatment plant near Aransas Pass, with the thought in mind that this treatment plant would supplement the output of treated water of the San Patricio District, and that surplus would be obtained for sale in the Aransas Pass area, over and above requirements for Aransas County.

At the treatment plant, water would be filtered and purified, then the portion to be used in this area would be pumped through a second pipeline to large storage facilities west of Rockport, probably near West Terrace and Oak Terrace additions.

From there a third pump station would deliver water to Rockport and Fulton, while service would also be available (continued on page 8)

Curtain Club Show Is Huge Success

The annual Curtain Club Show at ACHS ran to a packed house Thursday night, when it opened for a two-day run which was concluded with a matinee performance Friday.

The theme was "Rural America: Today and Yesterday" and the first half of the show was an old fashioned melodrama in which the lovely heroine was rescued from the obviously bad intentions of the villain by the noble and handsome hero, which all the appropriate histrionics suggested by the subtitle: "No. No! A Million Times No!" or "She Was Only a Farmer's Daughter, But He Ain't Done Right by Nell!"

Participating in the "mellodrammer" were Hugh Morrison, Susie LeBlanc, Rusty Kline, Phyllis Striano, Terri Thomas, Johnny Lindemeyer, Larry Iles, Sally McCord, Priscilla Carleton, Sonja Leet, Vicki Vermillion, Kathy Johnson, Denise Picton, Diana Gonzales, Ann Smith, Jean Novozales, and Ruth Ann Shaver. The second half was a variety show, and students taking part in this section of the program included Pat Falk, (continued on page 8)

Migration of Birds And Bird Watchers About to Descend

The spring migration of birds and bird watchers is about to descend on Rockport. Here, where the Coastal Bend of Texas constricts the great flyways from Central and South America, over 500 avian species have been recorded in past years, as they funneled through in vast floods, moving slowly northward with the spring.

With the birds come the bird watchers, for nowhere else in America can as many species be seen in as great numbers in so short a time, and there are birds everywhere on Live Oak and Lamar peninsulas and the bays surrounding them.

Among the permanent residents are some of extreme interest—the Attwater prairie chickens—last of a vanishing race, and almost as rare as the whooping cranes. On both sides of Highway 35 north of Rockport are the dancing grounds where the prairie chickens strut and boom during their spring courtship, now at its height.

Vermilion flycatchers and Inca doves are here all year long, and among the winter residents of brushy portions of the West Terrace area are half a dozen species of sparrows, while still other species fly up from the grassy flats.

Robins are everywhere, pushed south by the last Arctic cold spell in the mid-west, while golden and ruby-crowned kinglets inhabit the festoons of Spanish moss on the live oaks of Copano Heights.

In Rockport itself, besides birds that are common at all seasons, a cattle egret has made friends with the Sorenson's family's horse, and catches grasshoppers and other insects stirred up by the beast as it grazes on vacant lots in the south end of town.

During the next couple of weeks, according to nationally known bird woman Mrs. Jack Hagar, Cassin's sparrows will begin to arrive from their winter home farther south, and the huge flocks of pintails now gathered in the fields west of town will be the first ducks to leave. After them, the blue-winged, green-winged and cinnamon teal will begin to build-up, prior to their migration to the north, Mrs. Hagar said.

The birds use this area as a sort of rest stop and staging ground where they prepare for their long flights to their summer nesting grounds, she explained.

This tiny, 79-year-old, as pert and lively as the birds she watches, once tallied an almost incredible 204 species in a single day—the largest single day's count ever made in the United States or probably elsewhere—so when she talks about birds, other people listen. Of the 597 species credited to Texas, she has re-recorded 512 from this area!

In the same area the pintails are accumulating, and just off the highway about halfway between Rockport and Sinton, sandhill cranes are congregating, along with blue, snow and Canada geese, widgeon, red-breasted mergansers, scaup, roseate spoonbills and hundreds of snowy egrets. From here they will soon scatter to their nesting grounds.

Out in the Rattlesnake Point-Copano Ridge section, Mrs. Hagar says, there are white and white-faced glossy ibis. "There aren't too many of the glossies, but they're beginning to build up, and it won't be long before there are plenty of them."

Waders are beginning to gather in flocks also. On the prairies in the Copano Cove and Holiday Beach areas there are great flocks of long billed curlew. Along the edges of the canals that interlace Holiday Beach and Copano Cay, and the shores of Copano and Aransas bays there are thousands upon thousands busily searching for their food. In the shallow waters that divide Key Allegro from Rockport mainland, as well as in the other localities mentioned, there are dunlins, dowitchers, marbled godwits, and huge flocks of willet; semi-palmated Western, least and solitary sandpipers, snowy, semi-palmated, ringed and black-bellied plover, and the golden plover ought to be here in a couple of weeks, the bird woman said.

"Black-and-white warblers ought to start about the first of March, and will be the first of that tribe to pass through, but there will be warbler build-ups all through April, as they pass through in waves," she continued.

If winds are high, there will be days when the trees may be blue with indigo bunting, while on others they will be yellow with warblers or orange with orioles. At any time during the year, impressive checklists may be made, but during the spring migrations the bird watchers really go to town, some of them coming from halfway around the world to see the birds of Rockport.

SQUARE DANCE CLUB MAKING PROGRESS WITH CONSTRUCTION

Fine progress is being made on construction of the Paws and Taws Square Dance building, with all the windows set and most of the outside wall closed in. The building is 86 feet long by 56 feet wide plus an offset at the front 26 feet by 36 feet, which will contain the kitchen, large storage room, cloak room and rest rooms. An open porch toward the bay is also planned. This is an ambitious undertaking for a club less than one year old and the progress to date is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that all labor is voluntary and most of the work had been done on weekends.

The Building Committee is headed by H. H. Dick, building contractor, as chairman, assisted by L. E. "Duke" Nelson and Gilbert Hill, also building contractors, Travis Johnston, roofing contractor, Chuck Vermillion, general contractor, and E. L. Drummond, club president. These men have been supported by club members skilled in building trades, carpenters, electricians, and others whose enthusiasm makes up for any lack of skill.

The building is being constructed on waterfront land along Fulton Beach Road owned by one of the club members, Burl Wagley, who is leasing to the club for $1 per year.

Wagley, lumberman and builder, has also afforded the club with a unique money-making opportunity by turning over his Texaco service station at Fulton for the club to run, with profits going to the club. Wagley stocks the station and pays the utilities. The club receives the total profit or difference between actual cost and the selling price on all sales; gasoline, accessories, wash and grease jobs, etc.

A club member is on duty at the station at all times and the only expense to the club is one paid attendant during weekdays when the men of the club are at work and only female members can be on duty.

Bernice and Botton Bolen open the station at 6:30 every weekday morning, holding down the fort until 8 a.m. Ladies of the club alternate during the day, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. to take care of the money, courtesy cards, etc. From 5 to 7 p.m. and all day Saturday and Sunday, one or more of the men of the club are on duty. This project is yielding a tidy sum each week for the building fund, which makes the time and effort worthwhile.

A rummage sale in November boosted the building fund and another such sale is planned early in March. Several business firms have also made contributions. Those include Oak Shore Motel, Anchorage Motel, Wilson & Son Hardware, the First National Bank and Glass, Sorenson & McDavid, Insurance.

The first Rockport class was started in the VFW Hall in January, 1964 and when that class graduated, the Paws and Taws Square Dance Club was formed May 1, 1964, with an initial membership of 44. After the second class was started, the group outgrew the VFW Hall and through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Buster Coward have been using the airport hangar every Friday night for several months. With a present membership of 72, plus a number of visitors each dance night, they are about to outgrow the airport hangar facilities.

TRADE TALKS. Christian Herter, representing President Johnson at the Kennedy Round Talks on Trade in Geneva, is seen during stopover in Brussels, at the headquarters of the European Common Market. Main aim of GATT Round Talks is to boost commerce by lowering tariffs around the world. Late President Kennedy originally proposed an across-the-board tariff cut of 50 per cent.

Richard Hardy, of Corpus Christi, is the club caller and has also instructed the four classes which have completed the three months course required for club membership. He has a class of 32 in progress now which will graduate in May to further swell the membership roll of the club.

Club membership includes a cross section of business in Aransas County and of couples from all age levels. As an auxiliary there is also the Junior Paws & Taws Club with membership made up from the four squares of youngsters eight to 12 years old who recently completed their three months of instruction. They now square up in one corner of the building each Friday night to complete with (and sometimes outdo) the oldsters.

When completed, the Paws and Taws Square Dance building and porch will accommodate at least 42 squares, or 336 dancers. This will enable the club to host association dances such as was held in the coliseum at Corpus Christi a few weeks ago. Such events draw couples from all over South Texas.

able to property owners along the pipeline, from the southern border of Aransas County north to the end of Live Oak Peninsula and, eventually to Lamar.

Location of the pipelines, water treatment plant and other facilities are tentative and may change with the design phase, Picton said, although he considered this unlikely. This plan, however, would furnish a dependable water supply, Picton stated, even though the population continues to skyrocket.

Nevertheless, he pointed out, such a plan could not be put into operation on a revenue bond basis. It would need tax levies to support bonds issued for such construction, although depending on the amount of participation these tax bonds could be retired rather rapidly, and, ideally, the tax kept at a comparatively low rate.

He told those present that the meeting was the first of a series, to be called whenever necessary, so that those vitally interested could be kept fully informed, and then went on to outline some of the stumbling blocks that could be expected.

In the general election last November, he said, a constitutional amendment had changed the methods of getting a bill amended. The bill which set up the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District would need to be amended to permit tax levies, and preliminary steps had already been taken.

A notice of intent had been published in the local paper, Picton said, and a conference with Governor John Connally was arranged, at which time the bill would be presented for his approval. If such approval is gained, then the bill will be passed on to the Texas Water Board, which also must approve it before it can be introduced to the legislature. Once it hits the legislature, both house and senate must agree on its provisions. If the bill becomes law, then it will require a local election to approve issuance of the bonds. At any one of these places, Picton pointed out, the bill can be stopped cold.

The governor can refuse his approval; the Water Board can declare the plan unsatisfactory; the house or the senate can refuse to pass it; and a bond issue could be defeated.

And, a final hurdle, if all these organizations and the voters approve the bill, the bonds will still have to be sold. At best, Picton said, it would require five or six years before a water system can be functioning, more if everything did not go well.

A general discussion then followed, with a question and answer period.

ly in Galveston Bay, produced an estimated 600,000 pounds of shucked meats in January, after a record December, 1964 harvest. There were indications, however, that the heavy producing reefs in Galveston Bay were beginning to show effects of the tremendous fishing pressure applied since last November, Farley said.

Oyster meats were of good quality, and would grade select with a minimum of culling by dredge crews, Farley said. Meat yields ranged from 2% to 2½ gallons per 300 pounds of shell stock, depending on the extent of culling. Fishermen received $5.50 to $6.50 per 300 pound barrel for shell oysters.

Landings of blue crabs amounted to around 105,000 pounds, Farley said, and this supplied less than half the volume needed by the four processing plants in the state. Finfish landings totaled about 225,000 pounds, with red snapper accounting for over 50 percent of the catch.

Vessel construction by Texas companies continued at the same rapid pace as in 1964.

A Community Service

An abstracter, especially an attorney, can use an abstract plant to either cure titles or 'bust' titles according to his wishes. To cure titles is good for the community. To 'bust' titles is not good for the community.

Emory M. Spencer, sole owner of Modern Abstract and Title Company has used such abstract plant to cure titles, one of the factors entering into the matter being that up until now, this abstract plant is the only abstract plant based in Aransas County.

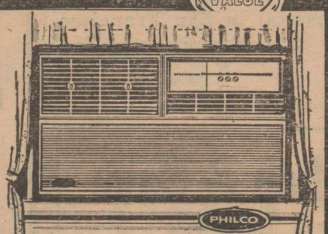

An outstanding example of his having cured titles rather than to 'bust' them was in connection with the property belonging to the heirs of Thomas Walsh who acquired the property in the partition of the Quayle Tract in Fulton. About 1952 Emory M. Spencer purchased an oil and gas lease from John D. Wendell and Travis R. Wendell with the understanding that their title would be cured. In connection with curative matters, all of the property remaining in the heirs of Thomas Walsh was purchased. In 1954 Aransas County was made a gift of this property through which gift Mesquite Street has been widened to 60 feet and some three streets between the blocks in the Quayle Tract have been opened. Afterwards Aransas County paid fifteen hundred dollars for a right-of-way between two of these blocks. On this basis Spencer's gift to Aransas County would be valued for at least Ten Thousand dollars. This is not a case where the widening of the street increased the value of the property remaining in the hands of the donor for in this case the donor gave away all of the property that he owned adjacent to the streets. The Fulton Elementary School was greatly benefitted by this donation, and one of the reasons this article is being written is that less than half a dozen people in Aransas County are familiar with this transaction.

The fifth grade class of Mrs. Linda Bradley took a field trip to the Jewel Box on Feb. 11. The group from Rockport Elementary enjoyed a lecture on rocks given by A. L. Reed. Mr. Reed illustrated his talk with several specimens of rock and mineral forms.

FISH REFLECT SPRING APPROACH

Winter is still here in the opinion of the man on the street, but some fish in the water along the middle coast are already getting that spring feeling, according to coastal biologists of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

E. G. Simmons, coastal supervisor, reports the arrival of larval pinfish, croakers and spot in the protected waters of the Rockport area. This is an indication that, even though "northers" may still blow, the high tides of spring have started. This event often, but not always, signals the end of the danger of fish kills from freezes, said Simmons.

New Books To Aid Career-
Seeking Students

Thirty-two new books have been added to the Aransas County Public Library collections, and will soon be on the shelves, to aid students trying to make up their minds as to the career they will seek after school is over.

All of the books were written by prominent men and women who are successful in their chosen fields. The series covers most of the major careers in practical terms for the young man or woman interested in more than just a job. A few of the points included in these books that will help in making and acting on a decision are:

What kind of person does this career require? What educational background is helpful? What are the personal satisfactions to be obtained? What are the opportunities? What are the disadvantages? In what area should you work? How much can you expect to earn on the average? Will you as an individual like this career?

Of course, it's easy enough to ask questions. But ultimately only the student can answer them. These books — which have been approved by authorities in the fields they cover, as well as by teachers and librarians — are designated to help young people in making their decisions.

The careers covered include those in pharmacy, aerospace, architecture, chemical engineering, industrial engineering, elementary school teaching, librarianship, music, beautician, airline, beauty operator, foreign service, home economist, law enforcement, dental assistant, dentistry, dietitian, medical technology, nursing, optometry, physician, accounting, automotive industry, credit field, journalism, personnel, printing, public relations, real estate retailing, and as a secretary.

NOW'S THE TIME TO PLAN FOR SUMMER COOLING

"A vacation," says Webster, "is a time of respite, a period for rest and recreation." The definition doesn't distinguish between spending that "time of respite" at home or away from it, only that it should provide "rest and recreation."

In line with this definition, statistics indicate that many consider air conditioning an all-summer vacation. And now is the time to plan for it.

The first step in planning such a "vacation" is to get cost estimates. Free estimates on gas air conditioning, without obligation, are being offered by Aransas Natural Gas Company during National Gas Air Conditioning Week, March 21-27, as part of a national program sponsored by the American Gas Association.

The American Institute of Management has predicted that, in just ten years, "air conditioning will be standard equipment in all new homes, and then non-air conditioned homes will be virtually outdated."

Which can mean that Americans just love to "vacation"—and who would doubt that!

KEEP IT STRAIGHT. News leaked out of Hollywood that actresses are removing unwanted waves by ironing their hair. And teen-agers across the nation, of course, decided to follow the trend, as above picture shows. But be wary, ladies — this could be a sure way of becoming a HOT HEAD!

ASSEMBLIES OF GOD WOMEN OBSERVE 14th ANNIVERSARY

In observance of the 14th annual Women's Missionary Council Day, Women of the First Assembly of God Church will participate in a special program during the morning worship hour, 11 o'clock, Sunday, Feb. 28.

Theme of the service, "Hold High Your Light," emphasizes personal responsibility of the Christian in everyday life. Special music and visuals will accentuate Christian motives and service.

The meeting will be part of a nationwide observance. The local Women's Missionary Council is one of some 6,000 such groups in the United States.

The Women's Missionary Council is a service organization of the Assemblies of God. For the past seven years, combined WMC-Missionette giving has exceeded one million dollars annually, according to the Rev. M. R. Crawford, pastor of the First Assembly of God Church.

Mrs. Jewel Bright is president of the local WMC group which participates in the national program.
