Caver trapped

CARLSBAD, N.M. — A New York woman whose left leg was broken by an 80-pound rock as she explored the nation's deepest known cave remained about 1,000 feet underground Monday as efforts to rescue her intensified. Rescue teams used lanterns and battery-powered lamps to prepare an exit route from Lechuguilla Cave for Emily Davis Mobley, 40, a veteran spelunker from Schoharie, N.Y. who fell Sunday morning. Jeff Denny, a ranger at Carlsbad Caverns National Park and information officer for the rescue operation, said it could take up to 72 hours to get Mobley out of the cave— "probably Wednesday or afterwards"

Tradition ends

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Weeping sidewalk vendors gathered in the city's Old Town hours before an ordinance banning them from selling their wares on the plaza began Monday. The tradition began 40 years ago when Indians spread turquoise jewelry on blankets and has evolved into a lucrative trade. The Indians, non-Indians, shop-owners and officials involved in the 20-year battle over sidewalk vending in the historic district said abolishing it was the only solution, even though no one was happy with the decision.

Graham dies at 96

NEW YORK — Martha Graham, who turned the passions of the human soul into wildly original dances that made her an architect and high priestess of the modern dance movement, died Monday at home. She was 96. She died of cardio-pulmonary arrest due to congestive heart failure, said Ross Alley, director of marketing with the Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance. A slim, fragile-looking woman who didn't dance until she was 21 but who performed until she was 76, Miss Graham was viewed by many as the greatest contributor to the development in the 20th century of modern dance.

Funding wins reprieve

Judge extends deadline on school-finance plan

■ McCown's decision should allow school districts to continue operating at least until April 15, lawyers say.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — A state judge on Monday effectively gave lawmakers an extra two weeks to reform the school funding system, but he also ordered an alternative plan if the Legislature again fails to act.

"If indeed we are to avert and avoid a judicial takeover of the public schools of our state, it is going to have to be done in the next 15 days," said Attorney General Dan Morales.

District Judge F. Scott McCown set an April 15 date to hear about legislative action, and to get a report from Lynn Moak, deputy state education commissioner for research and development.

McCown appointed Moak to develop a plan to equalize funding between rich and poor school districts.

Monday was the Texas Supreme Court's deadline for lawmakers to devise a school finance reform plan.

The Legislature missed the deadline, triggering a court order that froze state spending on public education. However, the next state checks are not due to be sent out to school districts until April 25.

McCown emphasized that lawmakers have a mandate to find a plan that allows all school districts to generate about the same amount of money to educate their children.

"The message of the court today is that they are all our children, and that the money has to be divided equally," McCown said.

Morales said he was grateful to McCown for not taking more drastic action, and he predicted lawmakers would work out a solution within days.

Lawyers said McCown's decision should allow school districts to continue operating at least until April 15.

House hits 'gold mine' on pensions

■ Increase is triggered by 29.5 percent pay raise voted in last year.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House members who retire from Congress after the next election will get a hefty pension increase — as much as $7,000 annually for a 12-year veteran — because of the big pay raise they voted themselves last year.

Those who came to Congress before 1980 are eligible for a second sweetener if they retire next year. They legally may pocket leftover campaign cash, a privilege that will expire at the end of the current term.

The pension increase is triggered by a 29.5-percent pay raise that boosted House members' salaries from $96,600

Report: Low Medicaid fees deprive poor

■ Many physicians shun patients with health program for the poor.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Medicaid, the health program for poor people, pays doctors much less than either Medicare or private health insurers for the same services, and as a result many doctors are refusing to take Medicaid patients, a federal advisory commission said Monday.

In a report to Congress, the panel, the Physician Payment Review Commission, said Medicaid pays doctors 69 percent of what Medicare pays, and an even smaller proportion of what private insurers pay.

Forty-four states have problems getting doctors to participate in Medicaid, and "low fees were cited as the most common factor in discouraging participation," the commission said.

Medicare, the federal health insurance program for 33 million elderly and disabled people, has a much stronger political constituency than Medicaid, a federal-state program for 27 million low-income Americans, including 13 million children.

While doctors have often complained informally about the level of Medicaid payments, the study by the nonpartisan commission is the most systematic attempt to date to measure the disparities.

The study, conducted with the help of the National Governors Association, was based in part on a survey of state Medicaid programs, which reported data on actual fees for services commonly used by Medicaid beneficiaries.

Another reason for the disparity in doctors' fees under the programs is the the way the programs are financed. Medicare has its own trust funds, composed of payroll taxes, premiums and general revenues.

City prepares to stem effluent farm problems

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

The city of Midland is ready to pour money and effort into mopping up its stinky effluent farm problems, City Manager Fred Poe said Monday.

The farm, located about 16 miles southeast of downtown, will not remain a malodorous burden to its neighbors after the system is expanded and upgraded, Poe said.

Effluent sometimes flows off the farm and onto nearby ranch land when it rains, forming bodies of smelly water that kills vegetation grown for grazing livestock.

To counter the problem, the city plans to add 1,000 acres of crops, install an extra pump system and subcontract the farm work. The deadline for submitting subcontracting proposals to the city is today.

Christmas just around April's corner

By David Morris
Staff Writer

Crystal Rice's home of 30 years was in disrepair and the 61-year-old ex-waitress could do little to stop the decay.

Crippled by rheumatoid arthritis, she was forced to quit her job in 1985 — about the same time her husband Bill, a cement contractor, died.

On a fixed income and with no handyman skills to speak of, she felt helpless.

"I'm not saying this for sympathy," she said during an interview last week. "I'm trying to make you understand that people like me, we don't have any way ... of getting anything done. You just have to sit and watch your place fall down around you."

Her two-bedroom house in the 1800 block of South Camp Street needed major repairs: The roof was curling up at the edges, there were holes in the ceiling, the porch was falling apart. There was no insulation in the attic, the paint was peeling and Mrs. Rice's bedroom was in "terrible shape."

The needed repairs would have cost Mrs. Rice "a fortune," she said, and it was a fortune she did not have.

The Kansas native's only source of income is her monthly Social Security disability check and what little money she gets from her son, who can't work much because of a chronic vision problem.

"It takes everything that I have just to survive," she said.

With the house continuing to deteriorate, Mrs. Rice applied last year to Midland's Christmas In April (CIA) project for help.

She wasn't sure she would qualify for assistance, so she was pleasantly surprised to learn that a CIA crew would be descending upon her home.

A swarm of about 50 CIA volunteers from Alamo Heights Baptist Church took four or five days to turn Mrs. Rice's ramshackle house into something resembling the home she moved into 30 years ago.

Fair, windy weather on tap

Today's forecast calls for fair and windy weather with a high in the mid-70s, and southwest to west winds increasing to 20 to 30 mph and gusty, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be fair with a low in the lower 40s.

Wednesday is expected to be clear with a high in the upper 70s.

After an overnight low of 35, the high for Monday was 77 compared with the record high for that date of 99 in 1946. The record low for today's date was 29 in 1938.

STATE

Most of Texas basked in spring sunshine Monday, but forecasters said that would change today, with increasing cloudiness and a chance of thunderstorms across most of the state.

A high-pressure system continued to dominate the state's weather, providing temperatures ranging from the upper 60s in Dalhart to 80 at El Paso, Harlingen and McAllen.

In North Texas, temperatures were mostly in the 70s with southerly winds at 10-20 mph.

Skies in West Texas also were mostly sunny. Temperatures were in the 70s and 80s with winds from the south at 10-20 mph and occasional gusts.

There was some high-level clouds over South Texas, and some lower- and mid-level clouds covered the Rio Grande Valley. Temperatures were in the 70s and 80s and breezes were from the south and southeast at 10-15 mph.

Highs today were expected to be in the 70s with 80-degree readings in the Big Bend. Lows were predicted to be in the 40s tonight.

South Texas also expected increasing clouds with a chance of drizzle in central and western sections. Lows were predicted in the 50s and 60s with highs ranging from the 70s to near 90 along the Rio Grande.

There was a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms in North Texas today with lows in the upper 40s and lower 50s and highs in the lower 70s.

NATION

Rain and snow were scattered Monday from the Great Lakes to the East Coast. A new storm moved into the Northwest.

At midday, snow fell over eastern Upper Michigan, northeastern through south-central Lower Michigan, eastern Ohio, western Pennsylvania and northeastern West Virginia.

Rain was scattered over much of New York state, southern New England, northern New Jersey, central Maryland and north-central Virginia.

In the Northwest, rain fell across southwestern Oregon and the Washington coast.

Rain was expected to reach western Oregon early today, changing to snow in the mountains. A stronger weather system was expected to extend over the Oregon coast Wednesday, the National Weather Service said.

Elsewhere, showers were scattered over west-central Nevada.

There were no reports of heavy rainfall or measurable snowfall during the six hours up to noon CST.

Snow advisories were in effect over the mountains of southwestern Colorado through this morning, with 4 to 8 inches of snow possible.

In the high country of east-central Arizona, wind gusted to 54 mph during the morning at Show Low.

Although California is still considered to be in the fifth year of a drought, two cities had record rainfall for March.

Santa Barbara collected 12.33 inches, erasing the previous record of 11.73 inches set in 1885. The coastal city's normal rainfall for March is 2.43 inches. And Santa Maria, between Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo, got a record 9.41 inches.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

REPRIEVE: Decision gives lawmakers two weeks

(From 1A)

McCown took under advisement a motion by a group of poor school districts to cut off local as well as state education funds until a constitutional system is devised.

He also took under advisement a request from the state to give lawmakers until June 1 to develop a reform plan.

The Supreme Court has twice unanimously ruled unconstitutional the current $14 billion-a-year school finance system, which relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

Differences in local property values now result in large disparities in education funding available to school districts.

The Legislature failed to meet the court deadline after the House on Wednesday rejected a bill developed by a House-Senate conference committee. The measure would have shifted hundreds of millions of dollars in local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts.

Lawmakers then recessed until Tuesday, leaving no reform plan in place.

McCown directed Moak to update a school finance blueprint devised last year by former Supreme Court Justice William Kilgarlin.

Kilgarlin's plan would have redirected state aid from wealthier school districts to poorer ones that make a strong local tax effort.

His plan did not take effect last year because the Legislature and then-Gov. Bill Clements finally agreed on a school finance reform bill. But that plan was struck down in January by the Supreme Court.

McCown also ordered the state comptroller to determine the cash balances, borrowing abilities and contractual obligations of each of the state's 1,050 school districts.

"I'm not yet saying what, if anything, I will do with the plan or the data," McCown said. But he asked for briefs on the court's authority to implement a plan.

McCown also suggested that lawyers representing poor school districts draw up a motion to ensure that all school districts are included in whatever final action the court takes.

Legislative leaders have discussed maneuvers for passing a bill when they return to work on Tuesday.

The House has the option of reconsidering its vote and approving the conference committee school finance bill, which failed 87-63.

Morales said, "A matter of turning around 13 votes in the House is simply not that tough a challenge when the spectre of a court takeover is the alternative." That would send a bill to Gov. Ann Richards.

If the House does not change its vote, Senate leaders have said senators simply may approve a bill that passed the House in February. That also would send a measure directly to the governor for her signature or veto.

Another plan being considered by Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock would tax minerals and utilities on a statewide basis, taking them out of the local property tax base, said his press secretary, Rafe Greenlee.

The cost of the plan was not immediately available, Greenlee said.

MEDICAID: Program depends on general funds

(From 1A)

Medicaid, by contrast, depends almost entirely on general federal and state revenues.

The federal government decides how much to pay doctors under Medicare, and has historically guaranteed that physicians receive fees close to market rates.

But states have wide discretion in deciding how much to pay in doctors' fees under Medicaid. State Medicaid agencies set the fees, often in consultation with the legislatures.

States often fail to update doctors' fees to take account of inflation. In some states, Medicaid pays less than it costs for doctors to perform certain services.

The low Medicaid fees affect patients in several ways, the commission said: Medicaid recipients are less likely than other people to have a continuing relationship with a doctor, less likely to receive care in a private office and more likely to receive basic care in a hospital emergency room or clinic.

In addition, the panel said, doctors who choose to treat Medicaid beneficiaries may be at a "substantial economic disadvantage relative to their peers."

Doctors are not required to take patients under either Medicaid or Medicare, but many find it profitable to take Medicare patients.

The commission plans to make recommendations later this year for changes in how Medicaid pays doctors.

The commission found "very large differences" in physician payments.

New Jersey and New York were among the lowest-paying states. New Jersey's Medicaid fees for doctors were 50 percent of average Medicaid fees for all states, and New York's payments were 53 percent of the national average, the commission said.

In 1989, New York's Medicaid program typically paid doctors $240 for a total hysterectomy, or 17 percent of what Medicare paid ($1,448), the commission said. New Jersey paid $257 for that procedure, or 22 percent of what Medicare paid ($1,163), the panel reported.

For a typical visit to a doctor office's, Medicaid paid $11 in New York, or 35 percent of what Medicare paid ($31.68).

In West Virginia, Medicaid paid $330 for normal delivery of a baby, or 38 percent of the average claim submitted to private insurers for that service ($860).

Missouri and Rhode Island were other low-paying states. The highest-paying states included Alaska, Arkansas, Georgia and Indiana, where Medicaid payments to doctors slightly exceeded Medicare payments.

PENSION: Pay raise brings more sweeteners

last year to $125,100 this year.

"The pensions are ridiculously generous," said David Keating, executive vice president of the anti-spending, anti-tax National Taxpayers Union.

"What's particularly unfair about the pay raise is it turns a pension into a gold mine for incumbents who hang on for two more years," said Keating. He said the House should have changed its pension formula to avoid the windfall.

Pensions for House members are calculated in part on the basis of an average of lawmakers' three highest-salaried years. Thus, the salary increase for 1991 and 1992 provides a big jump in the pension they're entitled to.

Members of Congress can start collecting a pension at any age with 25 years of service and at age 50 with 20 years of service. At age 62, members can collect with five years of service.

Departing senators will receive much smaller pension increases because their salaries rose just 3.5 percent. And senators never have been permitted to convert leftover campaign money to personal use.

The right to pocket leftover campaign money is available to House members who were in office before Jan. 8, 1980, and applies to money in their coffers as of Nov. 30, 1989.

That means 165 senior House members are eligible to convert $41 million in campaign surpluses to their personal use if they leave Congress by Jan. 3, 1993.

The impact of the two benefits on retirements is uncertain.

So far, three members have announced they won't run for reelection. One, Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif. hasn't served long enough to retain the leftover campaign money. A candidate for the Senate, she would benefit from the pension increase if she loses.

Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., also running for the Senate, is converting his leftover campaign cash to a Senate campaign fund. Matsui, elected in 1978, was eligible to keep more than $750,000.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, an Arizona Democrat who has served since 1961, is eligible to retain $75,879 when he retires after this Congress. But his spokesman, Erik Barnett, said, "He's not going to take the money." Udall, who is ill with Parkinson's Disease, hasn't decided what he'll do with the ieftover cash, Barnett said.

EFFLUENT: City to add 1,000 acres of crops

is not prepared to handle a farming operation on its own.

"You're talking about a big operation here," Castro said. "We're not farming experts. We could hire somebody and get into the farming business, but we don't feel confident about it."

The city also would have to purchase tractors, trailers and cutting equipment, he said.

"After all that, it would cost quite a bit of money," Castro said. "I don't think the city is ready to drop that kind of money."

Poe said a subcontractor would pay the city possibly up to $25,000 annually for the rights to grow grasses and alfalfa on the property and use it as grazing land.

The contract, he said, could be awarded as early as next Tuesday's council meeting.

"Our primary purpose, and we've spelled that out, is getting rid of that effluent," Poe said.

The city will provide the seed for the first planting season and pay for electricity that runs the irrigation system, he said.

Only between one-third and half of the 2,500 acres of farm land has been used, Poe said, but another 700 acres should be cleared and ready for farming by Sept. 1.

Poe said another 300 acres of farming land will be added by Sept. 1 to the city's other effluent farm, located in southeast Midland off Interstate 20.

The total cost to clear the extra 1,000 acres will be about $201,000, Poe said.

At a $67,000 cost, the city is adding a pump and installing more pipeline at the effluent farm off Interstate 20.

The whole effluent treatment system processes about 10.5 million gallons of raw sewage daily. The additional pump and piping, expected to be installed by the end of this month, will allow the city to process another 2 million gallons daily.

Castro said the effluent farm system has been a longtime black eye for the city.

"We need to move on this thing," Castro said. "We need to clean it up. We're moving as fast as we can."

In a complaint filed with the Texas Water Commission, a Midland environmental consulting firm listed 12 possible violations of the city's permit to operate the facility.

The firm was hired by Rita Cone and her family, who own a ranch that borders the effluent farm.

The Jan. 17 report alleges that the city has improperly monitored the system and, among other potential violations, has allowed effluent to form ponds in the area.

After reviewing the complaint, Ralph Johnson, an Odessa-base TWC investigator, said the commission would inspect the farm.

Neither Johnson nor other TWC officials could be reached Monday for comment.

Ms. Cone, co-owner of the Boone Ranch, has said overflow continued to be a problem last year, despite recent treatment system renovations.

The facility, located off County Road 1379, cost about $20 million to build and was completed in mid-1984.

Treated water is used to irrigate alfalfa and other crops on city land leased by the Gist Cattle Co.

City officials have said a defective sprinkler system, unlevel land and poor monitoring by the Gist Cattle Co. caused overflows up until last year.

Condoms and other items flushed through sewer lines became stuck in sprinklers, causing the system to overwater in places.

An improperly monitored system also resulted in overwatering in certain areas.

The city spent about $300,000 last year to fix sprinklers, level land and pay system electricity bills among other costs. Two people were hired to monitor the sprinklers.

CHRISTMAS: Project serves Midland's needy

(From 1A)

When the saws and hammers fell silent, the holes in the ceiling were patched. The roof shingles had been replaced. The bathroom sported a new paint job. The hallway and master bedroom were lined with new wood paneling. The porch had been rebuilt. The attic and windows were insulated.

Gene Butler, a Midland welder who worked on the project, said he returned to Mrs. Rice's house several times after the workday to do some touch-up jobs and finish insulating the attic.

"It was very, very, poor," Butler said of the house's condition. "Most of the jobs we get are run down pretty bad."

Butler, who has been a CIA volunteer since 1974, said most recipients of the project's help are grateful for the assistance. Mrs Rice was no exception.

"I thought it was just wonderful," she said. "You just can't imagine the joy that it gave me."

She said she didn't know what she would have done if CIA hadn't mobilized to help her.

"I would have just had to live with it the way it was, and froze in the winter and roasted in the summer," she said.

Mrs. Rice was among some 250 people served by CIA last year, CIA President Bobby Trimble said.

This year's project should serve about the same number, he predicted. Nearly all of those served will be elderly and disabled homeowners with limited financial resources who are unable to repair their homes themselves.

"We go basically by age and income" when determining who qualifies for assistance, Trimble said.

About 125 needy people will have their homes repaired on the annual CIA workday on April 27, Trimble said. Some of these homes may require more than one day's worth of labor, he added.

The rest of the people served will receive emergency home repair assistance throughout the year on projects such as re-roofing and water heater replacement. The cost: about $150,000.

All of that money comes from community donations, and almost all work is done by volunteers — teams from churches, civic groups and corporations.

Trimble, who has been CIA president since 1976, said he expects about 3,000 volunteers to take part in this year's workday.

It's a far cry from the first Christmas In April in 1974, when a handful of volunteers on a $6,000 budget worked on 17 Midland homes.

Now CIA is a national effort, with projects springing up in 135 cities and towns in 19 states.

Most groups will do the bulk of their work on the traditional CIA workday: the last Saturday in April.

On Thursday at 7 p.m., leaders from local organizations deploying volunteer work crews will meet at Alamo Heights Baptist Church, 1305 N. Midland Drive, to choose the houses on which their respective teams will work.

Selections will be made based on the size of the work crew and the nature of the repairs needed on each house, Trimble said.

He said the application deadline for people wishing to have a CIA team work on their house already has passed. However, it's not too late for volunteers to sign up and for donations to be made.

"If we don't provide homes and the help for these elderly people on the homes they're living in now, in a few years they'll have no place to live," said Trimble, an oil and gas scout by trade. "They'll end up in some type of rest home, and their money may not pay for it, so your tax dollars do."

Butler said volunteering, in addition to improving others' lives, is a rewarding experience.

"I feel great about it," he said. "It's something that I've always enjoyed. Any time I can help somebody, it just thrills me."

Volunteers who are not on a church, civic or corporate team can report to the CIA warehouse April 27 to be assigned to a work crew or help load materials, Trimble said. Volunteers should report at 8 a.m.

People wanting more information about CIA should call 683-4177.

Communists win elections in Albania

TIRANA, Albania (NYT) — The Communist Party, entrenched here for more than four decades, overcame voting setbacks in Albania's cities and returned to power in this country's first modern and free elections, all parties agreed Monday.

Among the bitter setbacks in the election on Sunday was the defeat of President Ramiz Alia, the head of the nation's Communist Party, in his parliamentary district in the capital by a young geologist representing the newly formed opposition Democratic Party.

While official results were not available, a Politburo member, Xhelil Gjoni, claimed victory for the Communists at a news conference Monday afternoon. "The party, with Ramiz Alia at its head, is the main party in Albania and enjoys the support of the masses," he said.

It is not clear under the election rules whether Alia will be re-elected president.

The foreign minister, Muhamet Kapllani, was reportedly also defeated.

Shortly after Gjoni spoke, Sali Berisha, head of the Democrats, conceded that his party had failed to achieve a majority in the 250-seat Parliament, despite huge margins in Albania's six largest cities. He said his party would go on fighting for democracy.

The Communists won more than 160 seats, mainly in rural districts where 60 percent of the 3.5 million Albanians live. Berisha said preliminary returns indicated that the Democrats had won 72 seats.

Some opposition figures said that in some rural regions Communist party control was so great that voters were left unaware that they had any other choice but voting for the Communists. But even in many farm areas where the Democrats had been able to campaign, the local Communist party's years in power provided its candidates with great leverage.

As was true in the other Communist countries of Eastern Europe, the party has a greater impact on life in the countryside than in cities since it doles out supplies needed by farmers and buys their crops.

Some other races were apparently undecided. In contests where no candidate won an outright majority, runoff elections will be held.

Founded last December during the tumult of huge anti-Communist demonstrations, the Democrats were overwhelmingly endorsed in Albania's urban centers but lost in the mountainous countryside.

There were indications of widespread intimidation of voters in the countryside by the Communists and some charges of ballot rigging.

And some of the opposition's losses were attributable to the brief time the party had to organize a campaign from a standing start.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., who spent four days here observing the election preparation, the voting and the ensuing events in and around Tirana, said Monday, "From what I saw, it was a reasonable and free expression of the will of the people." Other foreign election observers concurred.

At an opposition rally, Berisha said "there will be no coalition" with the Communists.

The final results of the voting by the electorate of almost two million Albanians are scheduled to be announced on Tuesday by the National Election Commission.

The chairman of the commission, a Communist nominee, was defeated in his parliamentary district here.

For all the relative tranquillity of the voting, the result had several ominous implications, because it left this wretched Balkan nation deeply divided between country and city as well as between young and old. Albania is demonstrably Europe's poorest country.

Since last June, 80,000 mostly young Albanians have fled by land or sea and the Communist victory may cause many more to try to leave, Albanian university students said Monday. "There's no point in staying," said one who asked not to be named.

The 66-year-old Alia took power in 1985 after the death of Enver Hoxha, the nation's Stalinist founder.

After widespread protests and the flight of refugees, Alia legalized opposition parties and called the elections.

Soviet consumers brace for major price increases

MOSCOW (NYT) — Battered Soviet consumers braced themselves Monday on the eve of sweeping retail price increases, with extra goods expected in the sparsely stocked stores and extra troops already patrolling the anxious nation's cities.

The final loaves of low-priced bread were hunted down by long lines of worried shoppers as the Kremlin issued its final directives for the increases, with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev maintaining a personal silence on the issue.

The Kremlin sent other officials forward on the nightly television news to present the case that consumer price rises of two to three times on average were an unavoidable and even economically healthy development, a difficult argument for a nation long used to subsidized prices as one of the few benefits of Communism.

"People lining up at bread stores no longer believe in anything," said Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, surveying how the city's bakeries had been emptied by shoppers stocking up on even perishable food.

To cushion the early weeks of the price revolution, Kremlin planners were reported to have been stockpiling scarce staples and consumer goods for quickly priming empty store shelves and easing shoppers' complaints.

Two months ago, in a move widely seen as a precaution against civil unrest over the rising economic pressures, Gorbachev ordered the use of thousands of Soviet military troops as policemen to bolster street patrols in all major areas.

The government has also authorized pay subsidies to help absorb the shock of the price rises.

Officials in Moscow's insurgent government criticized the Kremlin for instituting the price increases without additional steps to move the country toward free-market competitiveness and away from Communism.

"Some unrest is possible, and we should expect it," Deputy Mayor Sergei B. Stankevich said at a news conference, charging that the Gorbachev government was using the price rises to deal with its budget shortfall without a larger economic plan.

Most basic foods and consumer goods, including bread, will suffer sharp price rises.

The prices of beef and flour at government stores will triple.

Kurdish rebels begin retreat to mountains

OUTSKIRTS OF DOHUK, Iraq (AP) — Kurdish rebels on Monday retreated on foot into their traditional mountain strongholds, surrendering more urban centers under a steady onslaught by Iraqi loyalist forces.

Also Monday, Iraq said it captured documents proving the complicity of more than one foreign government in unrest designed to unseat Saddam Hussein and accused the United States of 92 "provocative" reconnaissance flights last weekend, many of them over Baghdad.

Baghdad said its troops had retaken Dohuk, Erbil and Zahko — the last major cities in the north held by the Kurds. The Kurds, who seized more land from Iraq after the end of the Gulf War than they had in their decades-long struggle for autonomy, apparently are being outgunned by loyalist forces.

Low on morale, frightened refugees asked why President Bush and his allies were allowing Saddam to use artillery and helicopters to break the rebellion.

"Why have they abandoned us to Saddam?" refugees repeatedly asked Western reporters.

Hundreds of thousands of Kurds fearing government reprisals were fleeing by any means possible into the mountains along the Iranian and Turkish borders, turning roadways into ribbons of humanity.

Many women and children were forced to walk. Some, too tired to go on, laid on the roadside without food or water. Refugees camped in the mountains, in the open, without protection from rainstorms and the cold.

In Washington, State Department deputy spokesman Richard Boucher said heavy fighting continued in northern Iraq.

The oil center of Kirkuk "seems to remain in government hands despite renewed fighting in that city late Friday and Saturday," he said. Government forces had taken control of Erbil and Dohuk and have also moved against rebel forces in the Zahko area along the Iraqi-Turkish border.

Boucher also said there had been additional fighting near Basra.

U.S. troops face quandry in handling Iraqis

IN IRAQ (NYT) — At Checkpoint Bravo here in the Euphrates River Valley, Lt. Col. Stephen Smith has the unpleasant duty of asking fleeing Iraqis to go home.

More than 55,000 Iraqis have passed by this American checkpoint since the end of the war, when American forces swept the Iraqi army out of southern Iraq and occupied 15 percent of Iraqi territory.

Shuttling in buses and on foot along the highway between Basra and Nasiriya, the refugees search vainly for sanctuary from the civil war unleashed in southern Iraq after Baghdad's rout in the Persian Gulf war.

But nobody wants them. Not the Kuwaitis, not the Saudis and not the U.S. Army. The Army is providing food and emergency medical care, as is its responsibility under international treaties governing occupying forces, but says it can offer neither shelter nor political asylum.

Checkpoint Bravo, a small depression off of an east-west highway, is operated by the Army's 1st Armored Division. The checkpoint is 35 miles west of Basra and about 4 miles south of the temporary cease-fire line between Iraqi and American troops.

It is not much to look at, but it is a daily reminder of the United States' moral quandary a month after the war's end.

Having chased the Iraqi army from Kuwait and urged Iraqi rebels to rise against President Saddam Hussein, the American military finds itself watching idly as Saddam's forces destroy the rebellion in southern Iraq.

Some soldiers on the ground, who can hear the fighting and who see Iraqi helicopters flying over rebel positions, ask openly why they cannot keep fighting the Iraqi army.

But the United States, its allies and the United Nations have little to offer the Iraqi civilians seeking refuge from the civil strife set in motion by the war.

"They come and say, 'How do we go to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Syria or anywhere?'" said Smith, who supervises the checkpoint here. "They don't care."

U.S.: 'Front' companies helped Saddam's war machine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department said Monday that two American businesses are among 52 "front" companies it has identified as part of Saddam Hussein's worldwide financial and arms trading network.

The department also named 37 individuals, none based in the United States, whom it said acted as middlemen for the Iraqi government in using the companies to hide billions of dollars that Saddam's family skimmed from Iraq's oil revenues. The front companies were used to buy weapons, tools, spare parts and raw materials for Saddam's war machine, officials said.

The Treasury said U.S. companies and citizens are prohibited from doing any business with Iraqi front companies and middlemen without the department's permission. Convictions of violating the prohibitions could mean criminal penalties of up to 12 years in prison and $1 million in fines.

Civil penalties of up to $250,000 also may be imposed, the Treasury said.

"We want the network exposed and we want it neutralized," Treasury Deputy Secretary John Robson said at a news conference. "We are putting the world on notice that when you deal with them, you deal with Saddam."

Robson added there are "many more cases that are under investigation," but he declined to give details.

The two U.S. companies are Bay Industries Inc., an engineering firm in Los Angeles, and Matrix Churchill Corp., the American machine tools subsidiary of a British corporation.

There were no answers to repeated phone calls to Bay Industries in Santa Monica and no immediate comment from Matrix Churchill.

Treasury agents seized the assets of Bay Industries on March 22, along with those of Anees Wadi and his wife Shamsaban al-Hayderi. Wadi controls Bay Industries, and the government alleged that all three had helped Saddam procure arms for Iraq.

The government shut down Matrix Churchill's Cleveland, Ohio, plant last September while the U.S. Customs Service investigated allegations that it was involved in arms shipments to Iraq. The plant was a front for Saddam to disguise the flow of technical expertise and items from the United States to Iraq, a Customs official said at the time.

The Treasury also listed Iraqi Airways offices in Los Angeles; Southfield, Mich. and New York City as being among the front companies. It has been illegal for U.S. citizens to fly on Iraqi Airways since President Bush instituted an embargo and asset freeze against Iraq following its invasion of Kuwait last Aug. 2.

The Treasury named 49 other Iraqi front companies, more than 30 of which are based in Britain. Others are located in Egypt, Brazil, Germany, Italy and Honduras.

Robson said cooperation from friendly foreign governments had been "good," but he declined to be specific.

"Worldwide cooperation will help eliminate this network," he said.

The department also identified 160 merchant ships owned or controlled by the Iraqi government. It said U.S. companies and citizens are prohibited from using the ships, subject to the same penalties as for doing business with front companies and agents.

Monday's announcement was part of an investigation by the U.S. and Kuwaiti governments into Iraq's worldwide financial network. The probe found that Saddam, who took power in 1979, is one of the world's richest men.

The investigation determined that the Iraqi president's had family skimmed $10 billion in oil profits since 1981 and had used the money to buy pieces of companies in Europe and the United States, a U.S. government source said last week.

Iraqi investors working for Saddam have purchased nearly $1 billion in shares of publicly traded legitimate companies, including French media giant Hachette SA, according to the chief investigator, Jules Kroll.

Alcoholism help vital to business

These are days that were. Tens of thousands of college students have staggered through drinking binges on their spring break. Some are already stumbling down the road to alcoholism.

The present cost of alcoholism in this country — in health costs, lost production and other problems — amounts to about $86 billion a year, according to researchers.

That total says nothing of the personal and family suffering which 18 billion alcohol abusers now cause. More than 100,000 die prematurely each year from alcohol-related problems.

Despite the vast war on drugs and strong national efforts to publicize it, alcoholism remains the nation's most serious addiction. It is much more prevalent in the professions, the upper echelons of business, and other leadership positions.

Business pays most of this cost. Problem drinkers, who don't contribute their full potential, cost companies heavily. That is a loss of not only competitive market strength but these drinkers file about $4,600 more in health claims than other employees.

For more than a decade, many companies have instituted programs to help alcoholic employees recover. However, as the recession takes a greater toll, many firms have cut their contributions to these programs. Most are not eliminating alcohol programs entirely but limiting and denying treatment.

Various studies have proven that the benefits of these programs surpass the costs by three and four to one. While firms must consider their own survival first, alcohol treatment has become an important part of that survival. To allow employees to continue or lapse back into excessive drinking is financially wasteful and irresponsible management. This is not a do-gooder program. It's good business.

U.S. business cannot always take the short-term view. Companies should believe their own slogans — that they are only as good as their people.

FDA officials come under fire again

WASHINGTON — Federal investigators are examining allegations that Food and Drug Administration officials are using their inside information about new drug approvals to play the stock market.

Anderson

Thirteen FDA officials have been subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury in Baltimore. The subpoenas stem from an ongoing joint investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission and Health and Human Services Inspector General Richard Kusserow.

FDA officials, including some at high levels in the agency, are suspected of using confidential drug approval information to their financial advantage.

Our associate Jim Lynch has learned that the confidential information may have been shared, for a price, with a California brokerage house. Such information is as good as gold. Knowing exactly when a new drug will be approved for commercial sale makes for quick and easy money. The stock of drug companies soars when they receive approval for "breakthrough" products.

In addition to the 13 subpoenas for FDA officials, we have learned that another five were issued to private individuals.

The FDA has muzzled any leaks about the investigation fearing the backlash from yet another scandal. The agency has not yet recovered from the embarrassment of a generic drug scandal that saw some of its employees taking gifts from drug companies in return for a fast track through the drug approval process. FDA officials hope that the grand jury probe into alleged insider trading will turn up dry. And they may get their wish. Much of the evidence gathered so far appears to be circumstantial.

But even circumstantial evidence will be a setback for the FDA. The agency's credibility was critically wounded by the generic drug scandal that was exposed in 1988. FDA chemists were found guilty of rigging the generic drug approval process in exchange for overseas flights, expensive meals, VCRs, cash and other gifts.

Convictions from that probe have been rolling out of the U.S. Attorney's Office in Baltimore for more than a year. Most recently, the former chief of the FDA's generic drugs division was convicted of lying to federal investigators when he denied having accepted meals from drug company executives.

Most of the documented cases in the generic drug scandal involved nickle and dime gifts. But using insider information to make a killing in the stock market could get lucrative.

Pharmaceutical stock analysts are hungry to know if and when a company's new product will be approved by the FDA. These analysts crowd the FDA's public hearings where drug applications are reviewed. And long before cellular phones were common, drug stock experts were carrying them in briefcases to FDA hearings so they could parlay information into money instantly.

In the three months David Kessler has been commissioner of the FDA, he has vowed to beef up the agency's enforcement division and regain its credibility. He has stopped news leaks of the current investigation. If the allegations turn out to be true, Kessler wants them dealt with quickly and cleanly.

If the insider trading allegations stand up, there will likely be drastic action by Congress to remedy what would then be seen as chronic problems in the FDA. There is already talk of distributing some of the FDA's duties to other agencies and possibly removing the agency from the umbrella of the Health and Human Services Department.

LETTERS

God might frown upon all misguided non-beefeaters

A whole bunch of us out here in West Texas should give thanks for Bill Murchison's counterattack on the "Meatout people" (Midland Reporter-Telegram, March 22). It seems to me, though, that it is worse than a "new puritanism" to attack cattle and beefeating. It is "a new idiocy!"

My family, friends and I, like Bill Murchison, will continue to eat beef and even more of it, in order to join the fight against all those misguided, effete intellectuals, militant environmentalists, and minority provocateurs who seek to dilute our country's heritage and strength by reducing vitality in our men, virtue in our women, productive capacity in our lands, and respect for heredity and posterity in our society.

In the event of chaos and revolution most likely to be precipitated by the misguided and villainous tactics of the above-mentioned proponents of class warfare, it will be the God-fearing beefeaters of America who will be most likely to survive. If our country is fortunate enough to avoid such a dire circumstance, as Bill Murchison alluded, sins against the spirit are going to account for more harm to each individual than sins against the body on God's great judgment day! Let's hear it again — eat more beef!

Many drivers prove they just don't get the concept

On a recent Friday before a holiday in Midland a schoolbus stopped and the red warning lights came on. A young student told the bus driver and bus monitor goodbye, got off the bus and started to cross the street.

A sports car coming down the street at least 50 miles per hour went around a second bus although the warning lights were flashing and also ignored the red flashing lights of the first bus.

With the bus driver and monitor screaming warnings, the car swerved and barely missed the child by inches. The car never slowed down.

Citizens of Midland, this scenario actually took place in the Northgate Addition. It really made the bus driver and me, the bus monitor, upset and angry. I'm writing this letter to express my feelings about the incident and to warn the public.

It's not just Northgate but all of Midland that has this problem. I guess Midland drivers are ignorant of the fact that when red warning lights are flashing, that means to stop behind the bus and let the kids cross the street safely. This is a state law!

It does not mean to hurry up and try to beat the school bus's lights or ignore them. A little girl was nearly hit when the incident occurred on a recent Friday.

I guess people think they have more important things to do than look out for a child's safety.

I hope this letter will bring this danger to the attention of the general public and perhaps bring some action.

I sure hope we don't have to learn the hard way and get somebody killed before steps are taken to remedy this problem.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, April 2, the 92nd day of 1991. There are 273 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 2, 1917, President Wilson asked Congress to declare war against Germany, saying, "The world must be made safe for democracy."

Thought for Today: "Most of us love from our need to love, not because we find someone deserving." — Nikki Giovanni, American poet (1943-).

CHARLEY REESE

Never mind other's woes, we have our own

While we've been looking intently at the Persian Gulf, things in Eastern Europe have not been going well.

Both the economies and the environment are pretty much in the trash dump. The Soviet troops have not gone home yet. In fact, the Soviets' version of their Congress has so far refused to ratify the agreement with Germany. Nationalisms, suppressed under communist rule, have re-emerged.

Reese

Some Slovaks want to part with Czechs. The artificial entity of Yugoslavia is on the verge of breakup. There is a real problem with the large Hungarian population living under Romanian control in Transylvania.

If all that weren't enough, the Soviets may be on the verge of scrapping the already signed conventional arms treaty — they're cheating on it, the West says, before it's even ratified — and the big nuclear arms treaty seems farther away than ever.

And still, that's not all. The East Europeans, especially the Albanians, want to go to the West and the people in the Soviet Union want to get out, even if it's just to Eastern Europe.

Both in Czechoslovakia and in Romania, it's pretty well accepted that the 1989 spontaneous revolutions were not spontaneous but were in fact well-planned putsches by one faction of communists against another, aided and assisted by the Soviet KGB.

In short, matters look considerably less cheery than they did in late 1989 when we were all cheering the end of everything — communism, the cold war, divided Europe, and even history itself.

Looks like we had a premature celebration and now our hopes are for a nice, quiet and peaceful world are locked up in an incubator, looking skinny and purple and not at all a sure bet for survival.

Part of the problem of the Eastern economies is that Western banks and countries so loaded down the nations with loans to the hard-line communist rulers (lust for profits and interest are apolitical, in case you haven't noticed) that the new more democratic leaders are strangled by the debt.

That's a heck of a note when you think about it. Some young democrat finally gets a shot at bringing democracy and a market economy to his country and sees it all turn to ashes because he can't pay back the loans Western democracies gave his communist predecessors.

It's also interesting to note that the communists and the ex-communists are getting rich, selling off the state assets to each other or getting hired as head honchos by the western banks and businesses for their East European subsidiaries.

I guess I'll stop being anti-communist. Why should I be? My government isn't. The western democracies aren't. The banks aren't. The business community isn't. It's stupid really for common folks to pay taxes for defense and to get killed now and then in token wars while all the big shots in the country are trading and lending to communist governments.

Whatever anyone else does, I'm taking the Smedley-Butler pledge and making peace with the world. I will never leave these shores to shoot people from any country my government has lent money to, sold arms to, or allowed the banks to finance their arms industry. Why should I make war while others make a profit off the same poor fellow. Dealing with our bankers and bureaucrats is enough punishment for any foreigner.

As the old Marine general, Smedley-Butler, said, only two things are worth defending — the shoreline and the Constitution.

I hope the folks in Eastern Europe can dig themselves out from under the debris of communist mis-management and capitalist loans, but they're on their own. We Americans have wrecked out own economy and our environment.

We have to turn around education, re-build the infrastructure, tackle affordable health care and affordable housing, create jobs, clean up toxic dumps, straighten out the bank mess and bring peace to city streets. Any volunteers?

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Now's the time to send in the snake-killer

Macbeth, Act III, Scene 2: "We have scotched the snake, not killed it."

Murchison

The Iraqi army is using chemical weapons and old-fashioned butchery to put down Shiite risings in the South and is turning even now on the rebellious Kurds in the North.

According to a refugee medical technician from the South, the soldiers "arrested any resistance people and hanged them from electric poles. They towed their bodies behind tanks. Women and children they ran over with tanks. There were some wounded in the hospital — they were taken away by the military and burned alive. Some of the doctors treating the wounding were executed."

It is going to be our fault if America doesn't do something. We'd better get that through our skulls right now.

Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf told David Frost, the television interviewer, that had we continued pounding the Iraqis instead of halting in place, "we could have continued to, you know, wreak great destruction upon them. We could have completely closed the door and made it in fact a battle of annihilation."

Instead, says Schwarzkopf, the president made "a very humane decision and a very courageous decision" to stop.

The remarks were gracious as well as respectful of the commander in chief's authority. Nevertheless, the White House was nettled. Anonymous sources let it be known that the general was out of line; that he hadn't at all opposed Bush's decision to halt the fighting. (Yes, and he hadn't said he'd opposed the decision, only that we could have routed the Iraqis, absent the decision.)

You can say, if you like, that when we stopped fighting, we had done what we went to do — liberate Kuwait. And, further, that we're going to make the Iraqis pay reparations. You can say it, but it doesn't stop the massacres, which are happening on our watch.

That we came to liberate Kuwait is an academic point. The situation has changed. Saddam Hussein, against every rational expectation, has survived the war.

Considered in context, none of the putative objections to American intervention in the Iraqi civil war makes sense.

A united Iraq is preferable to a dismembered one? What about a unified Iraq led by the mother of all snakes? Look what he is doing without even having rearmed. Saddam is a continuing threat to peace in the Middle East. He has to go. Period.

The Arabs would object to U.S. intervention in the Iraqi civil war? This is the kind of argument used last summer against the whole idea of sending American troops to the gulf. The idea proved not to hold water. Most Arabs would doubtless be glad to take care, once and for all, of an Arab-biting snake.

The American people won't support more fighting? Another warmed-over notion from last year. The American people will take less satisfaction in wringing their hands from the sidelines than in sending in the Air Force.

Which is all we'd need to do — send in the planes. Hit the Iraqi army from the air. We don't need at this stage to win the war for the rebels; we just need to level the playing field a bit. We should bomb until Saddam quits fighting or is run out of the country.

Continued idleness for high-minded reasons of diplomatic necessity will not wash with the American people. Our people will not understand sitting amiably by while the tyrant we just beat the living daylights out of beats the daylights out of his own people.

Raise a toast to all our lottery dreams

I rarely miss a story about a lottery winner. You learn a lot about people by reading what they have to say. Take the man in Ohio who won $50 million, the biggest lottery jackpot in the state's history. When asked what he was going to do with all that money, he was quoted as saying, "I've always wanted one of them eight-slice toasters."

Bombeck

Is that the American dream or what?

Of all the luxuries that torment people but elude them, a toaster doesn't seem to be one of them. But what do I know? Maybe there are dreamers who lie in a hammock, stare at the sky, and plan for the day when they can make toast for an entire Marine base.

How many people sit around wearing reading glasses held together with paper clips, promising themselves they'll get a small screw for it when they win the lottery?

The irony is that most lottery winners lust after some small thing that has probably been in their grasp all along, and they didn't realize it. So they wish for something they've been putting off ... a new sofa for Mama, a trip to the Smokies with the kids, or, as the man from Ohio added, "fill in the dents in my Pinto."

We all do it. I've been part of a two-income family for a lot of years, and I have a cookie sheet that looks like a drip pan under a 1947 tractor. I could probably pick one up for $3.99, but instead I open a window to get rid of the smoke every time I slide a few frozen biscuits in the oven.

How many people sit around wearing reading glasses held together with paper clips, promising themselves they'll get a small screw for it when they win the lottery?

I heard a talk-show hostess admit one day that her idea of luxury would be to open a can of white albacore tuna packed in water and share it with no one.

The problem is that most of us live low-budget lives. We read menus in restaurants from right to left, look at the price tag before we even check the size, and have been conditioned to discern real needs from what we can live without.

I always tell my husband if I won the lottery, I'd buy us an extra door key. We have only two and are forever losing one, burying it under a rock for someone, mailing it, or leaving it with a neighbor. I know of one couple who have a drawer full of them, but they're rich.

My husband's ultimate fantasy is a pair of salt and pepper shakers for the kitchen table so he wouldn't have to get up at every meal and walk to the stove. Hey, as long as you're dreaming, you might as well reach for the stars.

Pair of blazes keeps MFD busy

By Michael Kashgarian and Brian Pearson
Staff Writers

Two fires that occurred within minutes of each other Monday afternoon endangered a child and gutted a house, Midland officials reported.

A 5-year-old boy who ignited a fire Monday in an east Midland home nearly became a victim of the blaze, police said.

The boy was playing with a cigarette lighter in a bedroom closet of the 415 East Golf Course Road house when the fire started about 5 p.m., police said. He, another boy and a woman were in the home at the time, authorities said.

After noticing the fire, the woman ran outside and flagged down officer Gilbert Villarreal, who was driving by in his patrol car.

Villarreal said the woman and the other boy managed to escape, but the 5-year-old was still inside and lost in the smoke.

The officer said he ran and pulled out the boy, who was unharmed.

Police said the house, owned by Raymundo Sanchez, 55, suffered extensive fire damage to a bedroom and hallway and smoke damage throughout the house.

Two firefighting units responded to the blaze, which took less than 20 minutes to extinguish.

Fifteen minutes earlier, what looked like a small fire to Tony Oliver had swelled to engulf a house on South Rankin Highway. Firefighters rushed to the scene in the 3200 block of South Rankin Highway after Oliver, working on a soon-to-be-open restaurant next door, reported the fire about 4:45 p.m.

"I came out of the restaurant ... heard crackling sounds and then saw flames," said Oliver, a plumber.

"I ran over there and turned off the propane tank and went to turn on the water hose but hardly any water came out," Oliver said.

Smoke and flames were confined to the back northeast section of the house — about 1200 square feet — when Oliver ran back to the restaurant to call for help.

"The place was smoke everywhere after that," Oliver said as firefighters battled the blaze.

"It was all locked up and I was knocking on the door ... I couldn't get too close because of the heat," Oliver said. No one was home.

The house — owned by John L. Evans — was home to George Thompson and his family, said Dale Little, county fire marshal.

By the time firefighters had doused the blaze, the home was gutted.

Little said the cause of the fire was undetermined Monday evening. An investigation continues.

Dust clouded his view of war

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

From what he saw of it, Saudi Arabia looked a lot like Midland to U.S. Army Cpl. Rick Buchanan.

A photographic specialist, the Midland native was deployed to Riyadh on Christmas Eve to support Operation Desert Shield/Storm.

"It wasn't too different from here," Buchanan said. "Dry, dusty, maybe a little more barren.

"Sand was the biggest problem. It was like baby powder. It got all over everything and it was hard keeping cameras and things clean.

"I wouldn't want to go back."

Buchanan processed aerial photographs for Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine intelligence at the Joint Imagery Production Complex, an instant village of Quonset huts and tactical vans — photo labs on wheels — that the unit built on a junkyard in a week.

He worked with CenCom (Central Command) forces from Britain, Canada and Australia.

"We worked 12-hour days, but I generally stuck it out there 24 hours at a time, especially during the ground war," he said.

"When we were supporting the air war for targeting, they needed the pictures very immediately."

Buchanan said the high-tech weapons systems used in the war made real-time intelligence essential.

"Intelligence, especially in the imagery field, can't have a photo that's three years old and expect it to be current."

Many of the buildings that served as landmarks for air strikes were destroyed after a few weeks of the air war, for example, making up-to-the-minute photographs a necessity, he said.

He also did BDA's (bomb damage assessment pictures) and ones for CenCom to release publicly.

"You know those photos of oil fields burning and the targeting ones," Buchanan asked of the images

DWI arrests jump in 1990

■ MADD officials attribute local 49.2 percent increase to better prosecution.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Arrests for driving while intoxicated (DWI) in the state of Texas jumped 9.5 percent in 1990, according to recent statistics released by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

In 1990, there were 112,802 DWI arrests statewide compared with 103,008 in 1989.

The increase was even more substantial in Midland.

Midland Police Department DWI arrests in 1990 were up 49.2 percent, from 598 in 1989 to 892 last year.

In Midland County, DPS arrests were up 28.5 percent, from 372 in 1989 to 478 in 1990. The Midland County Sheriff's Office made 38 DWI arrests in 1990, compared to 21 the year before, an 81 percent increase.

1990's statewide jump in arrests may not be indicative of a trend in increasing DWI arrests.

In comparison to last year's 112,802 arrests, there were 103,482 arrests in 1988 statewide, 114,245 in 1987 and 121,491 in 1986.

A DPS spokesman in Austin said the fluctuation in arrests may be a reflection of a fluctuation in law enforcement manpower or a general decrease in people driving drunk.

Faye Higgins, president of the local chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), said she thinks the number of drunks on the road has remained constant in the last few years.

And, according to MADD, only one out of every 2,000 drunk drivers is arrested.

Locally, Ms. Higgins said the increase in arrests may be attributed to a better prosecution rate for DWI offenders, which encourages law enforcement officers to make arrests. In addition, better training and equipment may be responsible for more arrests.

In the city of Midland, the higher number of arrests is probably due to increased public awareness, said Sgt. Mike Roberts of the Midland Police Department's traffic division.

"The is the result of the public becoming more intolerant of folks drinking and driving," he said.

"There is greater emphasis placed on it by the public and greater emphasis by the department."

Roberts added that groups such as MADD have been instrumental in educating the public about drinking and driving. As a result, the public's concern has reflected in greater law enforcement of DWI, he said.

County to auction 'tools' of drug trade

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

What you don't want, someone else will buy.

Midland County is counting on that truism to raise some cash and get rid of some unwanted items, including cars, trucks and a ski boat used by drug dealers.

Drug-trafficking tools, such as cars, boats and aircraft, may be confiscated by law-enforcement agencies in the process of making arrests.

The courts, in following laws designed to discourage illegal narcotics dealings, may award the tools of the trade to the agencies that made the "busts."

That's how Midland County comes to be auctioning off 32 vehicles, as well as office

'Bunnynappers' make demands

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Pamela Maresch doesn't know if she'll ever see her bunny again.

Kidnappers have demanded a Zippo lighter, M&M candies, Charmin toilet paper, Cedar Fresh moth balls and Summer Eve's douche for the safe return of her flat friend.

Monday night, Mrs. Maresch was waiting patiently for further instructions from the kidnappers of a four-foot wooden Easter bunny wearing overalls that she had displayed in her yard at the Midland Village apartments, 2433 Whitmire Blvd.

Is it a case of a bunny bandit or an April Fool's Day prank?

The mystery began Easter Sunday about 9:50 p.m. when Mrs. Maresch said she noticed the rabbit and an Easter egg missing from her yard. A sign stating "The Easter Bunny Stops Here," and three other eggs were left behind.

Police department keeps 50th birthday celebration low-key

■ A committee seeks memorabilia for a proposed Midland Police Department archive and video display.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

The Midland Police Department quietly marked its 50th birthday Monday but it's holding off on the big celebration until November.

Ceremonies commemorating the event will be held in conjunction with the grand opening of the new police building located at 601 N. Loraine St.

The department has formed a committee of police officers and civilians to help preserve its history in its 50th year.

The committee is working to create an archive of the past 50 years that will be on display at the new headquarters. It will also make a video outlining the history of the department and begin a yearbook for officers, said Cpl. Jim White, a committee member.

The archive will contain newspaper clippings about the department, photographs, old uniforms, patches, guns and gun leathers, and anything else that illustrates the history of the department, White said.

"We are in the process now of compiling it. I think it will be real interesting for the public to see," White said.

He pointed out one departmental tidbit as an example of the agency's past.

Before 1953, the department had a red light posted downtown for patrol officers. When the light came on, officers reported to the station to be directed on a call.

"We were one of the first police departments in West Texas to get a radio system," White said. The agency installed it in 1953.

When the department first opened in 1941, six officers, including Chief L.P. McCassland were responsible for fighting crime in the city.

The original station was located in the old City Hall that stood on Illinois Avenue across the street from the current City Hall.

The department moved its headquarters to its current site at 406 E. Texas Ave. in 1952 and shared the facility with the Midland Fire Department.

Today, the department employs about 168 officers commanded by Chief Richard Czech.

"We build on history and we need to build on tradition," Czech said of activities planned for the 50th anniversary.

No accounts of the department's development have been compiled until now, Czech added.

The video will be produced in a documentary style with interviews with officers and local dignitaries of the past as well as photographs illustrating the bygone days.

White said he anticipates the video being shown at schools and civic groups, and perhaps broadcast on television if a sponsor appears.

The department currently is seeking donations to help defray the cost of producing the video and yearbook.

DEATHS

Geraldine Box

Geraldine "Jere" T. Box, 62, of Midland died Sunday at her home after a long illness.

Box

She was born Feb. 7, 1929, in Salt Lake City, Utah. She earned her bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Utah and in 1965 moved to Lubbock, where she earned her doctorate degree from Texas Tech University.

She moved to Midland in 1970, where she was one of the first four instructors at Midland College. She taught history and government until her retirement in 1986. She served as volunteer editor of the Permian Basin Historical Annual and "The Pioneer History of Midland County, Texas, 1880-1926." She also was the author of many articles on local history.

Survivors include her husband, Marshall R. Box of Midland; a son, Michael E. Kline of Midland; and a daughter, Paula Kline of Harlingen.

Services are not scheduled at this time.

William Moore

Funeral services for William H. Moore, 76, of Midland, are scheduled for 3 p.m. Wednesday at the First Assembly of God with the Revs. Sammy Hayes and Homer T. Goodwin officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Moore

He died Sunday at his home.

Moore was born May 2, 1914, in Fairfield, where he grew up. He married Pauline Clark on May 2, 1936, in Corsicana. They lived there until 1941, when they moved to the West Texas area. They lived in Jal, N.M., Imperial and Texon before coming to Midland in 1962.

While in Texon he worked for Phillips Petroleum Co. and in 1956 became an independent contractor. He retired in 1987.

His wife preceded him in death in 1974. In 1975, he married Louise Driver in Gainesville and they made their home in Midland.

Survivors include his wife, Louise Moore of Midland; two sons, William D. Moore of Midland and Jerry L. Moore of Gainesville; four daughters, Barbara Wiest, Carneil Warren and Jerry Curry of Odessa and Linda Price of Monroe, La.; a sister, Susie Curlee of Edna; 15 grandchildren, 22 great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Vinnie Harbert

Services for Vinnie Delle Harbert, 84, of Midland, are scheduled for 1 p.m. Wednesday at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Bill Skaggs, associate pastor of Kelview Heights Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Monday at a local hospital.

She was born July 22, 1906, in Myra and grew up in Gainesville. When she was 16, she moved to Denton, and in the 1930s she moved to Dallas. She worked as a telephone operator for General Telephone. She moved to Midland in June 1990.

Her daughter, Freda Dalle Finley, preceded her in death in December 1989.

Survivors include her sister, Verna Copeland of Midland; two grandsons; one great-grandchild; two nieces and two nephews.

BUCHANAN: 'I wouldn't want to go back'

(From 1B)

that were a staple on CNN. "We did those."

There are about 600 photographic specialists in the Army and five in Buchanan's Fort Bragg, N.C. unit.

"The Army rounded up and sent us six more (specialists) because we needed them," he said. "It's such a small field, we know most of each other."

After graduating from Lee High School in 1984, he began work at the now-defunct Photogenesis, where he discovered his flair for the craft. He subsequently worked for Gorman's Camera and Sound in Odessa and the Permian Basin Business Journal.

But the Army was in his blood — his dad, J.D. Buchanan, earned a Purple Heart in WWII, his uncles served in Korea and his brother Rodney served in Vietnam — so he enlisted in 1987 and was trained as a photographic specialist at the Interservices School at Lowry Air Force Base in Denver.

He has served in Korea, Fort Bragg, and Saudi Arabia and thinks he may go to Germany in the next two years of his enlistment.

"Really I'm hoping to go back to Interservices School to teach photography," Buchanan said.

He said he had had enough of the Scud missile attacks on Riyadh that set the sirens wailing and gas-masked personnel running for bunkers.

"A few hit fairly close," he said. "The closest brought the tactical van we were in about six inches off the ground."

Before Buchanan left, he brought his wife Holly and a fish named Fred to Midland to stay with his parents. "I thought I was going to be gone for six months to a year. I was really surprised at how fast it was over."

When he returned Thursday night, she was there to greet him, along with the rest of his family and red, white, blue and yellow decorations galore.

Holly Buchanan and her mother-in-law, Evelyn Buchanan, said they appreciated the Red Cross military family support group. Holly was one of two military wives in the group and said she was overwhelmed by Midland generosity.

But having Buchanan home is the best gift of all, they agreed.

"It's been wonderful — a dream come true," said Evelyn Buchanan.

DEMAND: 'Bunnynappers' hold out for list of eclectic dry goods

(From 1B)

A note from the culprits was found in her mailbox.

"The ransom note was all out of newspaper (cut-out words) just like a kidnapping," Mrs. Maresch said.

"We have the rabbit (cutout picture of rabbit). We want (picture from store coupon of lighter and M&Ms). We will contact you," the notebook paper letter stated.

A second note showed up on Mrs. Maresch front door Monday afternoon — April Fool's Day.

"Bunny is OK. We also want (picture of toilet paper, moth balls and douche). Rabbit is homesick," the note, made on toilet paper, stated.

"Get all the goods or else we'll make a (picture of toothpick) out of him. We will contact you," the ransom note concluded.

A Polaroid snapshot of the rabbit with an arm in a sling at Midland Memorial Hospital Emergency Room was enclosed.

"I guess I'll just wait till they tell me where to put all this stuff. Someone is having a lot of fun," Mrs. Maresch said.

"All my friends said they didn't do it and nobody believes me because it's April Fool's," Mrs. Maresch said.

"Nobody believes I ever even had the rabbit," Mrs. Maresch said of the bunny she purchased for $25.

"We'll have to see if he comes home or we'll have to pay the ransom."

Sesame Street comes to Chap Center today

"Sesame Street Live" brings its musical "Let's Play School" to Midland College's Chaparral Center today and Wednesday for three performances.

"Let's Play School' is the brainchild of the Minneapolis-based VEE Corp., which holds the licensing agreement with Children's Television Workshop to produce a live production of Sesame Street.

Ticket prices are $9.50 with a $1.50 discount courtesy of JC Penny. All seats are $6.50 on opening night, courtesy of the Midland Reporter-Telegram and KMID-TV.

At the 4 p.m. Wednesday Milk and Cookies Matinee, all seats are $7, courtesy of Magic 102. The 7:30 p.m. Wednesday show is KPEJ Watch Night.

AUCTION: Funds to go to confiscating agency equipment and furniture, in its 10 a.m. Saturday auction at the county's old barn at Henderson Street and Taylor Avenue near Interstate 20.

(From 1B)

The Permian Basin Drug Task Force and the Midland County Sheriff's Office confiscated some of the dope-hauling vehicles in drug raids, said Sheriff Gary Painter.

Other vehicles on the block were abandoned or retired from county service.

Funds raised in the auction will be turned over to the agency that confiscated the items, the sheriff said.

Funds from the sale of other items will go into the county's general fund.

The Permian Basin Drug Task Force, for example, will reap the proceeds from the auctioning of a 1978 Hammond Ski Boat powered by an inboard V-8 Mercury engine.

The county will profit from abandoned vehicles, including a 1977 Chevrolet sedan with a "blown" engine.

Auctioneer Mike Balog will also bring his gavel down on a 1979 Datsun 280Z, a 1977 Ford Mustang, and a 1976 Chevrolet Blazer. They have a common problem: no engine.

For sale, too, are former county four-wheel drive vehicles, pickups, station wagons, and sedans from 1972 to 1988 model years.

In some cases, the Midland County Commissioners' Court believes that the vehicles will bring in more money at the auction than they would fetch as trade-ins when the county bought new vehicles.

"Most of them are in good running shape," Painter said. "The four-wheel drives are in excellent shape."

In the 1990 auction, "everybody was pretty well satisfied" with the vehicles they bought, he said.

"There were some very good bargains. Some of them went real cheap."

And whether a bargain is a bargain "depends on whether you're satisfied or not" with the price and the performance of the purchased item.

"It's a good deal if the buyer is satisfied with the price and the product," Painter said.

Random items in the sale include cowboy hats, space heaters, tires, public-address speakers, typewriters, office furniture, and a telephone.

The auction netted $80,000 last year, of which $50,000 went to the task force and $30,000 was divided between the county and the sheriff's office, Painter said.

He credited Balog with its success.

"He does a good job and takes care of us," the sheriff said of the auctioneer.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Guilty plea

Staff Report

The former assistant director of the Odessa Housing Authority pleaded guilty last week in federal court to conspiring to steal from the agency, the FBI reported Monday.

Jim Wayne Hubble, 44, admitted that between 1985 and 1990, he inflated mileage reports submitted for reimbursement. He also admitted using agency materials for personal use and requiring agency employees to work for his "personal benefit," according to an FBI statement.

The conspiracy resulted in agency losses of more than $5,000, the statement said. Co-conspirators were not named in the documents charging Hubble.

Hubble, who resigned from the housing authority in 1990, faces a maximum of five years in prison and up to a $250,000 fine. He entered his plea March 28 before U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton III.

Hubble's plea came after an 18-month investigation, the FBI reported.

Robbery attempt

ODESSA — A would-be robber got away empty-handed during an attempted aggravated robbery of a convenience store early Monday morning, police officials said.

An employee of the Chevron Mini Mart, 1601 S. Grant Ave., told police that a man who had patronized the store in the past came in at about 12:00 a.m. with his left hand in his pocket and announced a robbery.

The employee and the cashier, Ray Perkins, 35, said they believed the man was armed.

When the suspect reached across the counter to open the register, Perkins went around the counter, grabbed a baseball bat and ordered him to leave.

The suspect repeated his attempt and Perkins — wielding the bat — ran around the counter and chased the man out the door. Nothing was taken.

The suspect was described as a black man in his early to mid-30s, about 5 feet 3 inches tall, 150 pounds with short black hair. He was wearing a red vest over a blue shirt.

Fire

ODESSA — A city landfill fire that firefighters battled from Thursday morning to Sunday evening sparked some new interest Monday morning, fire officials said.

Firefighters were called back out to the scene, about a mile north of Kermit Highway on Farm to Market Road, about 8:30 a.m., fire officials said.

The fire was reportedly contained once more at noon, officials said.

The initial blaze apparently ignited when someone dumped smoldering debris into the landfill.

Fire

ODESSA — A fire destroyed a trailer home at Washington Avenue and Clifford Street Monday, fire officials said.

Four units were sent to the blaze about 11:21 a.m.

No one was home at the time of the fire and its cause is unknown, officials said.

Tell about your company in Business & Industry

Ever wished you could see your company's name in the headlines? Every business has a story to tell, and yours can too!

The Business and Industry pages, published each Tuesday in the Midland Reporter-Telegram, give you the perfect opportunity to tell your story.

The Business and Industry pages offer advertisers a unique format. The articles and pictures on the pages let readers know what various businesses have to offer.

The pages are not just for one type of business. In fact, the pages feature consumer businesses, as well as commercially-oriented companies.

Both advertisers who offer services and those who are selling a product have been very satisfied with the response they have received by advertising on the Business and Industry pages.

What's really amazing is that your business can be on these pages for a remarkably reasonable rate. Prices for ads start at just $20.68 (gross) per week.

All it takes to begin advertising on the Business and Industry pages is a call to the retail advertising department at 682-5311.

Ads on this page are set up on a contract basis. The number of articles and pictures an advertiser gets is determined by the size of the ad that is run each week on the pages.

The advertiser pays only for the ad, thereby spreading the cost out over a 13 or 26 week period.

Advertisers do not have to worry about writing the articles or taking the pictures themselves. Janice Ford, the Midland Reporter-Telegram's advertising feature writer, will take care of that.

When possible your articles will be coordinated with special events, such as grand openings and seasonal sales.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, APRIL 2, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your expectations should be more easily realized. Self-discipline and long-range planning are the keys to your success. Romance will give you new hope in June. Marital bonds grow stronger. Children could enjoy a very special place in your life next September. Expect business progress to be most rapid in November and December. Non-essential travel is best planned for early 1992 when the financial picture looks brightest.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actors Buddy Ebsen and Sir Alec Guinness, singer Emmylou Harris, actress Linda Hunt.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be receptive to new ideas. Other people could come up with some excellent business suggestions. Do more serious thinking about a complicated personal relationship. It may be time to set the date!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Romance is a source of real delight now. You could find yourself working on a public event or community project. Resist the temptation to take promises at face value. Get the facts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Seize an opportunity to air the plans you have been developing; your colleagues should be highly receptive. Listening to classical music with a loved one will be soothing to you both.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It is time to apply the brakes. Both money and a friendship could be lost if you are not careful now. Avoid sounding secretive — it could turn others off. Romance sizzles tonight!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The atmosphere could turn combative today. Avoid getting involved in risky business of any kind. A love or professional relationship could become quite stormy. Take the initiative and make peace.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be certain you show team spirit today. It is very important that you not appear standoffish or unconcerned. Be more nurturing in a romantic relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expect the unexpected and be prepared to roll with the punches. Changing conditions favor your efforts in the area of finance. Follow conservative methods to ensure your financial security.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep your wits about you when in the spotlight today. It is the little things you say and do that reflect heavily on you. Try a new hairstyle and update your wardrobe.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You could make an important discovery or connection in an unexpected way. Be open to new trains of thought and unusual opportunities. Work carefully to avoid making costly mistakes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A raise or promotion may be in the works. Draw close to people in high places. A message from afar sheds light on an important matter. Give parents, children and pets extra loving.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Count on an interesting pal to add spice to your day! You will not be idle. Someone who works with you could be the best companion of all today. Get out and socialize.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You will have an opportunity to shine in the public eye today. Be cheerful and cooperative and you will attract favorable attention. This could be an opportune time to negotiate a new contract.

TODAY'S CHILDREN: Parents can expect a lot from these bright youngsters, but only if they help their offspring handle their unbridled enthusiasm and love of change. Energetic and fit, these Aries may try to settle playground squabbles physically. Wise parents will teach the benefits of talking things out. Achieving good grades means little to these independent-minded youngsters. Beating the competition is their motivation for scoring high marks.

Opening lead: Queen of ♡ Somerset Maugham wrote that bridge is a mirror of life. If that's so, don't send a boy to do a man's job.

North-South bid intelligently to six spades. Once North could make a two-over-one response, South described a hand with six spades and four hearts while not bypassing three no trump. When North then raised spades, South pressed on to slam.

West led the queen of hearts. Declarer won in hand and, paying no heed to the implications of the opening lead, cashed the other high heart before trying to ruff a heart with dummy's low trump. East overruffed and returned a trump, and declarer was stranded with a heart loser. Down one.

The heart lead should have alerted declarer to the possibility of shortness with East. As a countermeasure, declarer should have ruffed the third heart with the ace of trumps!

However, that is only the first phase of the campaign. Declarer should still guard against the possibility of a 4-1 trump split. For instance, should declarer now attempt to draw trumps, hoping to lose only a heart trick, the defenders will come to a trump trick as well.

The best chance to protect against an unkind distribution is for declarer to cash the high diamonds, discarding a club from hand, then return to hand with the ace of clubs to ruff the last heart. East can overruff, but declarer can ruff any return and draw trumps, felling the ten, since East shortened his trump holding with the overruff.

Poitier returns to small screen in role of Thurgood Marshall

RADNOR, Pa. — Sidney Poitier said "I don't do television" when writer-director George Stevens Jr. first tried to interest the Oscar-winning actor in a made-for-TV movie.

The film, "Separate but Equal," airs 8-10 p.m. Sunday and Monday on ABC. Poitier plays Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall as a young lawyer in charge of a case involving school segregation.

The last time Poitier did a television movie was in 1955, a drama called "A Man Is Ten Feet Tall." He has appeared in some specials, but his acting has been confined to the big screen in such films as "Lillies of the Field," for which he won the Oscar in 1963, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," "To Sir with Love" and "In the Heat of the Night."

Stevens said in an interview for the April 6 edition of Radnor, Pa.-based TV Guide that he kept at his friend because he knew he had to get a big name to play the first black to join the nation's highest court before a network would buy the movie.

He finally persuaded Poitier to read the script.

"You tell me how I could refuse," Poitier said afterward. "Thurgood Marshall is a living legend. It's an honor to play him."

Poitier said he met Marshall last summer for lunch.

"It took him 20 minutes to climb the restaurant stairs," Poitier said of the 82-year-old justice. "It was very difficult. But he did it. To me, it was an example of the kind of innate courage that is part of his personality."

ROME — A porn star-turned-politician is leaving the Italian Parliament in what she says is an act of political strategy.

Ilona "Cicciolina" Staller, whose non-political credentials include such films as "Chocolate Banana," was elected on the ticket of the fringe Radical Party in 1987.

Politicians will try to form a new government this week in the wake of Premier Giulio Andreotti's resignation Friday. If they fail, new elections will be called.

"After careful reflection and the resignation of the prime minister, I have decided to resign from Parliament in the hope that this decision could prevent the danger of early elections," she said Sunday.

Staller's presence in Parliament has not been an issue in the latest government difficulties and it seemed unlikely her resignation would have any effect on them.

The Hungarian-born Staller said she hoped her proposals for new laws would outlive her parliamentary stint. Her ideas included opening government "love parks" in which young people could follow amorous pursuits undisturbed, and reopening brothels.

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. — When Dinah Shore tells someone to jump in the lake, she joins them.

After Amy Alcott on Sunday won the golf tournament named after the 74-year-old singer and TV talk show hostess, she, her caddy and Miss Shore all bounded into the lake at the 18th green.

Shore

"She met me on the green and said, 'I've got my bathrobe and I'm ready to go.' She coaxed me into it," said Alcott, who also won the tournament in 1988.

Miss Shore was merely keeping her word. After all, she had written in a foreword for Alcott's new golfing book that she would accompany Alcott into the lake if she ever won the tournament again.

"My Sunday school teacher told me that you have to keep promises," Miss Shore said.

WALTHAM, Mass. — Pop artist Roy Lichtenstein and writer J.D. Salinger will be among those receiving the 35th annual Brandeis University Jack I. and Lillian L. Poses Creative Arts Awards.

The university's board of trustees announced Monday that honorees also include avant-garde theater director and visual artist Robert Wilson, writer Lorrie Moore, the improvisational dance troupe Urban Bush Women, choreographer Annabelle Gamson, dancer Elizabeth Streb and conceptual artist Joseph Kosuth.

The artists are selected on the basis of their creative innovation, artistic breakthrough and exploration of artistic frontiers, said university spokeswoman Mary Anderson. The awards will be presented April 25.

Diet Center: Making a real difference for 20 years

Diet Center owner Tina Blake, left, counsels client Roxanne Spradlin, who has recently lost 17 pounds. For information on the Diet Center program, please call Tina at 684-5081.

Roxanne Spradlin took a friend's advice and called Diet Center to find out more about its sensible weight loss program. She has lost a total of 17 pounds and 18.3 inches in only eight weeks.

How does she feel about the Diet Center program? "I knew instantly it was what I needed. I was in charge of all decisions regarding cooking and food selection."

"If you follow the Diet Center reducing plan in choice and schedule, you don't feel hungry. I feel great! I was used to feeling sluggish and lethargic. With the Diet Center plan, the focus is off of food and on living. Food is a fuel instead of life itself."

Ms. Spradlin noted several reasons which have helped her stay on the program. First is her desire to lose weight. Second are her friends who have had great success on the same program have made her believe she can do it also. Third is her personal weight loss success. Most important, she said, is the support of her husband, Mike.

Daily weigh-ins and counseling sessions with Diet Center owner Tina Blake have also been very helpful, Ms. Spradlin reported.

"They are good because it is a positive incentive to stick to the program. This way, you observe changes and results quickly."

While Ms. Spradlin noted that there isn't an easy way or a quick fix solution to lose weight, she said, "I was pleasantly surprised to find that the the food plan is pleasant and nourishing. The results are fast enough to motivate me."

Ms. Spradlin, a physical education teacher at Crockett Elementary, and the mother of three children, said that with her hectic and unpredictable lifestyle, the Diet Center plan has taught her how to eat proper foods and exercise portion control wherever she is.

"When I get to my goal weight, I'll be a different person," she concluded.

For 20 years, Diet Centers across North America have helped more than 4,000,000 men, women and children lose weight. When dieters take full advantage of the Diet Center program, they lose an average of 16 to 25 pounds in just six weeks. Male dieters can lose up to one pound per day.

Diet Center surveys show that dieters also experience an inch loss (overall body measurement) of one inch per pound lost because 92% of all weight lost is from adipose tissue.

Diet Center helps individuals to learn the techniques of personal, lifelong weight management. Radical medical procedures, reliance on prepackaged foods or liquid formulas, pills, hypnosis or anything else which reduces the need for personal commitment presents only a short term solution for weight loss.

The Diet Center program provides the perfect long term solution to weight loss. The underlying principles are:

- stabilization of the blood sugar concentration
- a combination of sound nutrition principles with a focus on complex carbohydrates, naturally occurring sugars, fiber, bulk and lean meats.

Ms. Blake guides her clients through four necessary stages of the weight loss program and teaches them how to maintain ideal weight permanently. These stages are Conditioning, Reducing, Stabilization and Maintenance. Nutritional eating habits are established for lifelong weight maintenance.

Is Diet Center for you?

There are no contracts to sign or hidden costs at Diet Center. A one-time registration fee is $50. The weekly fee covers private daily counseling and weigh-in sessions as well as the daily nutritional supplement.

Call Tina Blake today at 684-5081 to arrange an appointment for a free consultation. Or come by Diet Center's new location at 2034 W. Cuthbert, across from Memorial Stadium. Hours are from 7:00 a.m. to 12 noon and 4:30 to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Find out how Diet Center can change your life. What do you have to lose?

Martin released

DALLAS (AP) — Harvey Martin, a four-time Pro Bowl defensive end with the Dallas Cowboys, is free on bond on charges of misdemeanor assault, resisting arrest and a misdemeanor drug charge stemming from a weekend incident, officials said.

Lew Sterrett Justice Center officials said Martin was arrested about 2:30 a.m. Sunday on a woman's complaint that he beat her. Martin was booked into jail at 3:20 a.m. and released at 5:50 a.m. on three $200 bonds.

Martin, who played college football at East Texas State, was a 10-year veteran of the Cowboys when he retired in 1983. He was a Pro Bowl choice for four straight years from 1976-79. He made the All-Pro team in 1977.

The Cowboys capped the 1977 season by beating the Denver Broncos, 27-10, in Super Bowl XII. Martin was co-named the game's Most Valuable Player with defensive tackle Randy White.

Deer kills down

DALLAS (AP) — More Texans were hunting deer, but fewer of them were able to kill a deer during the 1990-91 hunting season, state wildlife officials say.

Some 600,000 Texans hunted deer during the past season, spending a record-high 5.2 million so-called "hunter days" afield.

Hunters in Texas took a national-high 429,500 animals last season, but game managers blame drought, a heavy acorn crop and slumping deer populations for a 10 percent skid in statewide harvest figures, TP&W research analyst Glenn Boydston said.

The statistics might indicate more deer hunters are using the traditional autumn season for camping, reunions and family outings, rather than serious expeditions to get venison, according to game biologist Mike Reagan.

Duke rides over Kansas

■ Sophomore Bobby Hurley is largely responsible for ending Duke's Final Four jinx.

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Finally! Duke's destiny is not disappointment.

Finally! Mike Krzyzewski doesn't have to answer any more questions about winning the big one.

Finally! The Duke Blue Devils are NCAA champions.

The Blue Devils ended six years of frustration with a 72-65 victory over Kansas Monday night for their first national title in five championship-game appearances and nine trips to the Final Four.

The scoring and rebounding of Christian Laettner and the passing and court smarts of Bobby Hurley gave Duke (32-7) the victory one year after a 30-point loss to UNLV in the championship game.

It also capped a run of five Final Four appearances since 1986, including the last four years. No school had been to the Final Four as many times as Duke without taking home a title.

Now that yoke has to be borne by Houston, with five futile trips, because Coach K finally had that final net as a souvenir. He was mobbed by his assistants as time expired.

"We are much more mature than the previous teams that have come here," Krzyzewski said. "We've won a lot of games in March. It feels good to win one in April."

The Blue Devils led 42-34 at the half. After Kansas closed within 44-40, they took off on a 9-3 run, the final points coming on a dunk by Brian Davis off an alley-oop pass by Hurley, who had nine assists and played all 40 minutes as he had in the last three tournament games.

They were able to extend the lead as Kansas repeatedly missed shots inside. The lead reached 14 points three times, the last at 65-51 with 6:10 to play, appropriately on a rebound basket by Laettner on a missed 3-pointer by Hurley.

It may not have been as assist but it was those two players who stood out throughout.

Laettner finished with 18 points, including 12-12 at the free-throw line, and 10 rebounds. He was 49 of 54 in the tournament from the free throw line. Bill McCaffrey had 16 points, Hurley 12 and Grant Hill 10 for Duke.

Mark Randall had 18 points for Kansas (27-8) and Adonis Jordan 11.

Kansas, which was making its sixth title-game appearance and was looking for its third championship, made one final run, but it came up short. Duke came through at the free throw line, making four of four in the final 1:30.

Kansas was within 70-65 with 32 seconds left, but a dunk by Davis 12 seconds later ended any thoughts of a miracle.

When the buzzer sounded, Krzyzewski turned to his staff and joined in a long

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bobby Hurley was as generous with his hugs as he was with the basketball.

But it should have been his teammates grabbing the Duke sophomore after Monday night's 72-65 victory over Kansas for the NCAA championship.

He was largely responsible for ending the Blue Devils' tourney jinx and giving them their first national title in their ninth trip to the Final Four. He also took care of his own business, atoning for a bad game in last year's championship loss to UNLV in complete John Wayne style.

Hurley

"I'm just glad to be on this team and part of Duke basketball," said Hurley, who raced off the court and began embracing anyone he could find. "I have to thank everybody for making me a better player."

In last year's 30-point blowout by UNLV, Hurley shot 0-for-3 from the field, scored just two points, had three assists and committed five turnovers in 32 minutes. But Monday night, he was the only one for either team to play the entire 40 minutes, and they were all valuable.

Hurley had 12 points, and his nine assists set a Duke season record of 289, breaking his own mark of 288 he set last year. The 6-foot guard also had three turnovers for a six-game tourney total of 10, and he committed only one foul and added a pair of steals.

Hurley played every minute of this Final Four, starting Saturday night when he scored 12 points in a 79-77 semifinal upset of UNLV.

Against Kansas, he hit 3 of 5 shots from the field — two of them 3-point goals — and he made all four of his free throw attempts.

Kansas coach Roy Williams said Hurley "played an outstanding game. He did the things that make him the special player he is."

Lady Vols turn day to 'Knight'

■ Tennessee's Pat Summitt ties Indiana's Bobby Knight with third national basketball championship.

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Tennessee's third championship in five years ties Pat Summitt with Indiana's Bob Knight for most titles by an active coach, and the similarities don't end there.

Summitt said Knight is one of her coaching role models.

"I've always admired how his teams have played on the defensive end," Summitt said. "He's a great teacher of the game. My style is different in interacting with my players, but in terms of teaching the game, in teaching kids to play defense, there are a lot of similarities."

Dena Head of Tennessee and Dawn Staley of Virginia each had a championship record 28 points Sunday in the Lady Vols' 70-67 overtime victory.

"Dawn Staley played a great game," Summitt said. "What's important is Dawn Staley is going home with the Most Valuable Player trophy, and we're going home national champions. I wouldn't swap."

HEAD MADE a pair of free throws with seven seconds left in regulation to tie the game at 60, then made five more free throws in overtime to hold of Virginia.

Head also made a big defensive play to keep Virgtinia from winning in regulation. Staley took the ball the length of the court for a layup after Head had tied it, but Head blocked the shot from behind, and Heather Burge couldn't get the rebound.

"I think Dena did a great defensive job on the last shot," Staley said. "It was a great defensive play."

"Dawn's a great player, and she pushed the tempo to try to win the game," Head said. "Our coaches told us not to foul her. I just tried to come from behind, and I was lucky enough to knock the ball out."

Virginia missed the front ends of three one-and-ones in overtime and a two-shot foul. Virginia was 7-for-19 in the game and Tennessee was 22-for-35.

Virginia (31-30) was ranked No. 1 through most of the season until losses to Penn State and Clemson dropped them to second in the final poll. Tennessee (30-5) was No. 4.

Last year, Virginia beat Tennessee 79-75 in overtime in the regional finals to keep the Lady Volunteers from playing in the 1990 Final Four at Knoxville, Tenn.

Kelli Casteel, right, and Regina Clark celebrate Tennessee's 70-67 win over Virginia Sunday in the NCAA women's championship.

That defeat has been a motivation for Tennessee all season, and it is the focus of the lead article in this year's media guide, which begins: "Ever heard the story about the big one that got away?"

"Last year, losing to Virginia in the tournament really hurt us," Summitt said.

"Today's win feels like the greatest of all the national championships. But in 1987 we were the underdogs, and that was Tennessee's first national title, so that was extra special.

"The 1989 championship was rewarding because we were ranked No. 1 and we were supposed to win. We did what we were supposed to do that year. This win is a lot like 1987's because again we were the underdogs. We over achieved, and it worked for us again."

'Cats, Rebs can gain tie with MHS

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

After Saturday's 6-5 loss to Abilene High in District 4-5A baseball play, Midland Lee has little time to dwell on its first league defeat of the season.

That's because the Rebels must play at 4:30 p.m. today in San Angelo for a piece of the 4-5A lead. Lee, 12-7 overall and 4-1 in district, and San Angelo own identical district records and are ½-game behind 5-1 Midland High, which is idle today.

The winner of the Lee-San Angelo game will pull even with MHS for the league lead.

In other 4-5A games today, Abilene Cooper visits Odessa Permian and AHS hosts Odessa High.

And even though a win against the Bobcats will set up a showdown with MHS Saturday, Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez refuses to speculate about the game with the Bulldogs until tomorrow.

"I don't even want to think about Midland High right now. We've still got to play San Angelo, and they're fighting for first place, too," he said. "They have been playing well, too, so we have just got to go over there and take care of them."

Scheduled to pitch for the Rebs is senior Jeff Johnston. Though he showed a chink in the armor in his last start against OHS, the senior lefthander struck out the side to close the AHS game in one inning of relief.

Johnston is unbeaten in district play with a 3-0 record, and is 6-1 overall. Opposing Johnston on the mound for the Bobcats will be Ryan King. King is 2-1 overall after earning a complete-game win over Cooper a week ago.

The key to game for Lee, according to Benavidez, is to get his hitters back on track. After averaging 12½ hits a game in district play, the Rebels let their hit total drop to seven against AHS.

"We kind of depend on the hitting. Abilene got their hits when they needed them Saturday and we didn't," Benavidez said.

Yankees say bye-bye

Associated Press

Spring Training

The New York Yankees Monday said bye-bye Balboni.

The Yankees decided to place Balboni on unconditional release waivers and pay off the remaining $1.1 million on his guaranteed contract.

Balboni, 34, hit .154 with one home run and five RBIs in 20 games this spring. He batted .192 with 17 home runs and 34 RBIs in 266 at-bats with the Yankees last year, when he was used primarily as a designated hitter and as a pinch-hitter.

"I appreciate what he's done for the Yankees over the years," general manager Gene Michael said. "It's a tough business, though. We know that."

With less than a week to go before the start of the season, clubs are getting serious about making roster changes and several moves were made on Monday.

Otis Nixon became a member of Atlanta in a trade with Montreal, and Braves shortstop Andres Thomas was placed on unconditional waivers.

Nixon, 32, stole 50 bases in 231 at-bats last season. He batted .251 with one home run and 20 RBIs in 119 games. The Braves were last in the National League in 1990 in stolen bases, with 92 in 147 attempts.

To get Nixon and minor league third baseman Boi Rodriguez from the Expos, the Braves gave up catcher Jimmy Kremers and a player to be named later.

The Boston Red Sox traded left-handed reliever Rob Murphy to the Seattle Mariners for right-hander Mike Gardiner, the Class AA Eastern League's 1990 Pitcher of the Year at Williamsport.

Murphy, a five-year veteran acquired from Cincinnati on Dec. 13, 1988, had a 5-7 record and nine saves with a 2.74 earned run average in 74 games with Boston in 1989. However, he slumped to 0-6 with a 6.32 ERA and just seven saves in 68 games last season.

Meanwhile, Pittsburgh general manager Larry Doughty contacted all but two National League teams Monday to see if any were interested in dealing for All-Star outfielder Bobby Bonilla.

Doughty said only two teams have contacted him since the Pirates and Bonilla reached a contract impasse last Friday. He did not identify the teams. Doughty will contact the 14 American league clubs on Tuesday.

"I threw it out there to (check the interest) ... and there weren't any great offers out there. If we don't get any, we'll keep him all season and get an amateur draft pick for him," Doughty.

Two veterans were placed on the disabled list on Monday.

The Seattle Mariners placed Ken Griffey Sr. on the 15-day DL. The 40-year-old Griffey has a strained lower back from a traffic accident early last month when his car was rear-ended as he was stopped for an oncoming emergency vehicle.

The Chicago White Sox placed pitcher Charlie Hough on the 15-DL because of bone spurs in his right foot. The move is retroactive to March 29, making the 43-year-old knuckleballing right-hander eligible to play April 13, five days after the team's opener.

Mets make Gooden rich

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (AP) — Dwight Gooden vaulted to No. 2 on baseball's salary list Monday, agreeing to a three-year contract extension worth a guaranteed $15.45 million.

The average annual value of $5.15 million places Gooden just behind Boston's Roger Clemens, who will average $5,380,250 during a four-year extension he agreed to on Feb. 8. The two former Cy Young Award winners are the only players with contracts averaging $5 million a year or more.

Gooden's new deal contains a total of $750,000 in performance bonuses that, if earned, would leapfrog his deal over Clemens' contract.

"It is important, but it's so close that it really doesn't matter," Gooden said of the race for the top spot. "It depends on how you look at it (whether highest paid or not)."

Gooden will be making $2.25 million this year in the final season of a three-year contract worth $6.7 million. When he agreed to the deal on Feb. 8, 1989, it made him the highest-paid player in baseball. But Clemens passed him one week later with a three-year $7.5 million contract.

Under the new deal, Gooden gets a $2 million signing bonus and salaries of $4 million in 1992, $5 million in 1993 and $3.7 million in 1994. He also is guaranteed $250,000 per year under a joint video-promotion deal with the Mets that is part of the extension.

Finally, Gooden can make a $250,000 bonus each year if he pitches 200 innings. He would pocket the full $750,000 in bonuses if he pitches a total of 500 innings over the three years.

If Gooden makes all the performance bonuses, he would earn $16.2 million over the three years, an average of $5.4 million per season.

"The bottom line is we got what we wanted," said Gooden's agent.

Galaxy ruins Riders' home debut

Associated Press

WLAF Roundup

SAN ANTONIO — The Frankfurt Galaxy used a late fourth-quarter goal line stand to fend off a rally by Undra Johnson and the San Antonio Riders and hold on to win 10-3 Monday night.

The Riders failed four times to score from inside the 2-yard line in the final five minutes of the World League of American Football game. Frankfurt stopped four runs by Johnson before regaining possession with 1:57 remaining.

The loss was the first home game of the season for the Riders, who fell to 0-2. San Antonio opened the season last week by losing in Orlando. Frankfurt, defeated in its season opener against the London Monarchs, improved to 1-1.

Frankfurt scored early in the second half to lead 10-3 with a touchdown on a 36-yard Mike Perez pass to Cedric Gordon.

San Antonio appeared close to tying the game in the fourth quarter after a fumble recovery by the Riders' Donnie Gardner following back-to-back interceptions by each team.

A 37-yard pass from Lee Saltz to Bill Hess brought San Antonio within reach of the goal line.

Dragons 34, Machine 10

MONTREAL — The largest crowd ever in the WLAF — 53,238 at Olympic Stadium — was silenced by the Barcelona Dragons, who beat Montreal 34-10 behind two TD passes from Scott Erney to Gene Taylor to spoil the Machine's home debut.

The game, in the second week of the WLAF's existence, marked the return of professional football to Montreal. The last game was Nov. 9, 1986, when the Alouettes of the CFL drew just over 9,000 for a playoff game against the Toronto Argonauts. The Alouettes folded before their season-opener in 1987.

Taylor caught TD passes of 21 and 5 yards from Erney. Paul Palmer and Lydell Carr had TD runs for Barcelona (2-0).

Ryan will give no quarter to UT

DALLAS (AP) — Nolan Ryan said he will give no quarter but for the first time he'll be pulling against his teammates.

Ryan, the 44-year-old Texas Rangers ace, will be serving up "senior heat" at 96 miles an hour tonight against the Texas Longhorns and his 18-year-old son, Reid, who will be firing "junior heat" at 88 mph against the American Leaguers.

It's the first known mound duel between a major league pitcher and his son. According to the Society of American Baseball Research, there have been 122 cases in major league history in which both a father and son or sons have played in a major league regular season game. The only father-son combination to appear in the big leagues at the same time is Ken Griffey Sr. and Jr.

"This is a different situation than what I've ever been in," the senior Ryan said Monday. "I'll approach it as any other game when I'm pitching but when I'm on the bench I'll be pulling against my teammates."

Ryan said he hoped it would be a positive appearance for his son, who has been used sparingly as a freshman reliever for the Longhorns.

"I think Reid will handle the hoopla well," Ryan said. "I think he'll thrive on it. He has an outgoing personality."

Ryan senior said he hopes to go seven innings and get in about 100 pitches.

"Reid will start but I don't know how long he will go," Ryan said.

Ryan said his son is a much better pitcher than he was when he was 18.

Lockhart back with Cowboys

IRVING (AP) — Linebacker Eugene Lockhart, one of 17 Dallas players left unprotected under the NFL's Plan B free agency program, Monday announced he would remain a Cowboy.

Lockhart, Dallas' leader in total tackles, was the most notable of Cowboys left unprotected when the team released its Plan B list Feb. 1.

Lockhart said he had received four or five offers from other teams within the past few weeks but decided in the end that "my heart is here with the Dallas Cowboys."

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said he was pleased that Lockhart was staying, but added that the player would have to work to keep his spot in the starting lineup.

"We're very happy that Eugene has decided to stay with the Cowboys. I think he knows he has his work cut out for him, but we're glad he's staying," Johnson said.

Lockhart estimated his decision to stay with the Cowboys cost him "a couple of hundred thousand dollars" but said family and personal considerations won out.

He also owns the Cowboys Sports Cafe near the Cowboys' Valley Ranch training complex.

"There's always been a lot of doubt in my mind that I'd be leaving. I've always worn a star and I'm proud of that," he said.

Lockhart is entering the option year on his contract with the Cowboys after leading the team with 139 total tackles last season.

Henderson gets ace

Staff Report

J.C. "Pete" Henderson produced a hole-in-one at Hogan Park recently, using a five-wood to cover 165 yards on the par 3 No. 6 hole.

Henderson was playing with Joe Garcia and Johnny Stewart.

Philadelphia's Charles Barkley ...the hurting isn't over

Barkley injury hurts Sixers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — As expected, the news was not good for Charles Barkley and the Philadelphia 76ers.

The 76ers' All-Star forward will be out of action for at least two weeks with a slightly torn knee ligament, the club said Monday after Barkley underwent a magnetic resonance imaging test.

The MRI confirmed Barkley suffered a second degree sprain of the medial collateral when he bumped into teammate Rick Mahorn in the third period of Sunday's 110-101 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The fall caused the sprain — considered a slight tear — that will keep Barkley sidelined until at least April 14, said team doctor Jack McPhilemy.

On that date, the 76ers are scheduled to play the Minnesota Timberwolves. There would be four regular season games after that, then the playoffs. The 76ers, now 40-32, have already clinched a playoff berth.

If he returned on that day, he would have missed games against Milwaukee, Indiana, Chicago, New York, and Washington.

"It's a minimum of two weeks — and I want to emphasize minimum — before we would even consider letting him get involved in basketball," said McPhilemy. "Then, based on periodic examinations, in conjunction with his response to the physical therapy and rehabilitation program, we'll make a decision in the future."

Tarpley may lose probation

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities filed drunken driving charges Monday against Dallas Mavericks star Roy Tarpley, and the district attorney's office said it would ask that his probation for a 1989 DWI conviction be revoked.

The 7-foot, 250-pound forward, who has twice violated the NBA's anti-drug policy, was arrested early Saturday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated after he was clocked at 28 mph over the speed limit in a 35 mph zone.

Dallas police sent the district attorney's office the paperwork on Tarpley about 10 a.m., and a formal charge of DWI, second offense, was filed immediately, Assistant District Attorney Norman Kinne said.

"A motion to revoke his probation will probably be filed (soon)," Kinne said.

Tarpley was suspended for 33 games last season as a result of a Nov. 15, 1989, DWI arrest, complicated by a battle in which it took six policemen to subdue him and take him to jail.

Last September, in granting Tarpley a probated sentence, County Criminal Court Judge Mike Schwille warned that if Tarpley failed to meet the terms of his probation, he would send him to jail for one year.

Police department spokesman Ed Spencer said Tarpley, who told officers he wasn't drinking, took a field sobriety test but refused to take a Breathalyzer or blood test. His alleged refusal could result in his license being revoked for up to 90 days.

Sunday, Tarpley denied a report by police Sgt. Richard Baumgardner that Tarpley was cursing and directing "a tremendous amount" of insults toward the officers.

"I didn't do any of those things. I was very cooperative," he said.

Tarpley said on the advice of his attorney he could not say whether he had been drinking before his arrest. But he denied he was drunk.

Tarpley averaged more than 20 points and 10 rebounds in leading the Mavericks to a 3-1 record in the first week of the NBA season, but he tore up a knee on Nov. 9, and the Mavericks are 22-44 since then and will miss the playoffs.

If convicted on the latest DWI charge, Tarpley could face between 15 days and two years in prison and a maximum fine of $2,000.

The team has not indicated what action it might take against Tarpley. Mavericks owner Donald Carter and general manager Norm Sonju said through a team spokesman they would have no immediate comment.

Angels beat Edmonton

Staff Report

MESA, Ariz. — For the second consecutive game, the Midland Angels produced 16 hits to rip Class AAA Edmonton 9-3 in minor league spring training action here Monday.

The Angels, now 4-3 in exhibition games, had five players with two hits each and were lead by second baseman Kevin Flora, who had a triple and double in his leadoff role. The Angels used four pitchers in the victory.

DUKE: Destiny wins its turn

group hug which ended the years of a title search.

Laettner, the tournament's high scorer with 125 points, proved as tough a matchup for Kansas as he had for UNLV in the Blue Devils' semifinal revenge victory, one most observers felt may have been so big that it would take too much out of Duke.

That was far from what happened. Duke's defense was as intense as a midseason game at Cameron Indoor Stadium. Krzyzewski substituted liberally to help some rubbery legs.

Defense was the key in the deciding run. Kansas went 7:30 with one field goal, a tip by Richard Scott, and two free throws.

That's when Duke managed its first 14-point lead, 61-47 with 8:30 to play on two free throws by Hurley.

The Jayhawks finished 27-for-65 from the field, but it was the shots in close and from the foul line that made the difference.

Kansas missed nine layups and was 4-for-16 from 1-to-9 feet. Duke had no trouble with the wide-open 15-footer — the Blue Devils were 20-for-28 from the free throw line, compared with Kansas' 4-for-8.

McCaffrey, who had five points against UNLV, finished with 16 on 6-for-8 shooting.

Randall had 10 rebounds for Kansas and Terry Brown scored 16 points.

Duke had reached the Final Four the last four times through the East Regional. This time the trip was through the Midwest and it included wins over Northeast Louisiana, Iowa, Connecticut, St. John's and what may have been the sweetest of all, UNLV.

Kansas had knocked off the big boys to get to the big game, with victories over New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Indiana, Arkansas and North Carolina — the last three Nos. 3, 2 and 4, respectively.

Duke took the lead 30 seconds into the game on a 3-pointer by Koubek, the defensive star of the semifinal win over UNLV.

The Blue Devils extended it to as much as 36-27 with outside shooting, solid defense and Laettner's free throws.

Duke took the nine-point lead with 3:40 left in the half on a 3-pointer by McCaffrey, but Kansas, which beat Arkansas in the regional semifinal with three big comebacks, wouldn't go away.

Randall, who hadn't taken a 3-pointer in the five tournament games, nailed one 10 seconds later to keep the Jayhawks within six.

Kansas was within 39-34 and had the ball with 32 seconds left in the half when Laettner was charged with an offensive foul, his second personal.

Kansas was working for a final shot, but Richard Scott stepped out of bounds on the sideline with 11 seconds left and Duke had the final say on the halftime score.

Thomas Hill made a 3-pointer with one second showing for the 42-34 halftime lead.

Duke had the game in command from halftime but had to turn away a last-minute Kansas rush to take a title most had virtually handed to UNLV before the tournament started.

After the final buzzer, Duke reserve Brian Davis ran into the stands carrying a hand-lettered sign. "UNLV Dynasty" was crossed out. In its place were the words: "Duke Destiny."

Prices weaken

Unleaded gasoline for May delivery dropped 1.55 cents to settle at 66.10 cents a gallon at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

West Texas Intermediate for May delivery fell 32 cents to close at $19.29 per barrel.

Traders said gasoline has been losing strength on reports that large shipments are en route to the United States.

Any future price movement might hinge on whether those reports pan out.

Crude had gotten a bit of a push down early in the day on a report that OPEC production had been higher in March, said analyst Ann-Louise Hittle at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc.

Natural gas prices were mostly lower, although May delivery contracts rose 1 cent to settle at $1.419 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Lecture set

Lawrence E. Jenkins, a member of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board will speak this evening in Room 104 of the Occupational Technical building at Midland College, beginning at 7 p.m. His lecture is part of the SIFE Success 2000 lecture series.

Jenkins' topic will be "Education and the Economy in the 21st Century." He is former chairman, vice president and general manager of the Austin division, Lockheed Missiles and Space Co. He currently serves as chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, San Antonio branch.

Dollar falls

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar closed lower in very thin trading Monday as technical influences of supply and demand ruled the market in the absence of any substantive news developments.

European markets were closed for the Easter Monday holiday, and the dearth of overseas trading dampened New York activity, analysts said.

The dollar closed at 139.35 Japanese yen in New York, down from 140.60 yen late Friday.

The dollar also fell against the British pound in New York, where sterling closed at $1.7685, up from $1.7510.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Friday's prices, included: 1.6725 German marks, down from 1.6970;

Gold rose $3.30 on the Commodity Exchange in New York, closing at $360.40 a troy ounce.

Silver gained 9.1 cents on the Commodity Exchange and closed at $3.940 a troy ounce.

Airlines set to up fares next week

■ After a period of low fares, airlines will begin raising fares next week.

NEW YORK (AP) — It is a case of what went down, must go up.

After slashing fares to cure travelers of their war and recession jitters, airlines will begin raising most ticket prices next week.

The changes won't eliminate all discounts, but they will increase fares for people who plan trips on short notice.

Airlines were still scrambling Monday to get their new fare structure worked out.

"It's going to be a process of everybody having to go through and sort out what's being done in each market," said an official with one large airline.

As a general rule, the changes will raise the rates for travelers who provide either a seven-day or a 14-day notice, while offering cheaper fares for people who can plan farther in advance. The changes were first put in place by American Airlines.

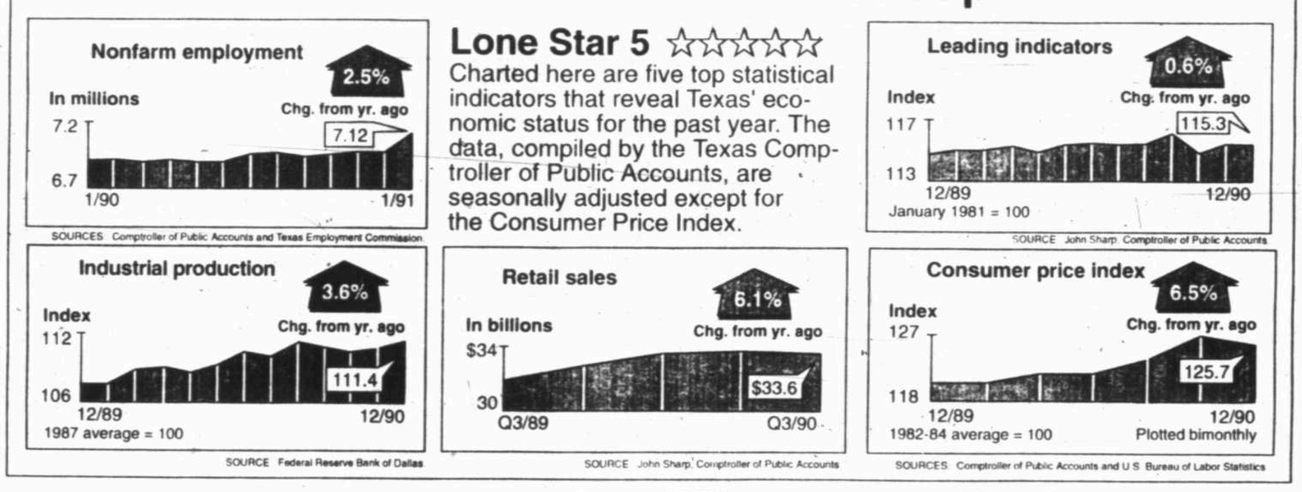
Despite the recent rash of fare cuts, experts said the increases were inevitable with airlines losing billions of dollars since the Persian Gulf crisis and the economic downturn cut deeply into the industry's revenues.

"I think it makes a lot of sense," said Lee Howard, chief executive of Airline Economics Inc., an aviation consulting firm in Wsahington. "If you're going to give low fares, then you have to put sufficient restrictions on those."

American said its cheapest fares would be for passengers who could provide 30 days' notice, but other major carriers later decided they would offer a cheap 21-day advance ticket.

American had not decided by Monday night whether to go along with that aspect of the fare restructuring.

The Texas Economic Roundup



Looking good

The Texas Lone Star Five, an index of leading indicators prepared by the State Comptrollers office for the purpose of predicting future trends on the state economy indicates a generally healthy economy, with 175,000 or one in every five new jobs added nationwide being in Texas. Retail sales, the consumer price index, and industrial production also showed strong increases.

Kellogg shreds Texas DA over remarks

■ Kellogg Co. sues Texas official in tiff over cereal claims.

DETROIT (AP) — Kellogg Co. filed a slander suit against a Texas assistant attorney general who said it lied in health claims for cereals, and the official said Monday the company is trying to intimidate him.

Texas is one of six states involved in federal court action in Iowa alleging that Kellogg made deceptive nutritional claims.

The slander suit, filed March 25 in Calhoun County Circuit Court in Battle Creek, Kellogg's headquarters, accuses Texas Assistant Attorney General Stephen Gardner of a "media assault" against the cereal maker.

"Its a bully boy tactic that's apparently designed to intimidate me from doing my job," Gardner said Monday. "I do believe Kellogg has lied repeatedly about its products."

Kellogg was closed Monday for an extended Easter weekend. Spokesman Joseph M. Stewart, reached at home, said the company was defending its integrity.

"We continue to stand behind the accuracy of our advertising," he said. "We believe the man should be acting in a responsible way and has no business attacking our good name. We've taken 85 years to establish our reputation."

The suit cited a Feb. 27 New York Times article quoting Gardner as saying,

'Retired' planes find a home in the desert

N.Y. Times News Service

Senior citizens aren't the only ones moving to the Southwest to retire. So are hundreds of aging jetliners.

Airlines, hit by a recession, slowdown in travel and a spike in fuel prices, have been mothballing many of their older, fuel-guzzling jets at desert airstrips in California, Arizona and Nevada.

There the planes are parked and "pickled." In industry parlance that means the windows of the older Boeing 727s, Douglas DC-8s, DC-9s and other jets are covered with heavy tape and plastic is shoved into the engine openings as protection.

The cost runs as little as $150 a month — less than what many downtown parking lots charge for your car. And for a little more, the parking-lot attendants will even rotate the plane's tires.

For the past few decades, the nation's biggest airline graveyard has been Pinal Air Park in Marana, Ariz., just west of Tucson. Operated by Evergreen Aviation, Marana is now home to more than 75 jetliners. McCarran International Airport in Las Vegas is another big parking lot for retired planes.

Much of Eastern Airlines' grounded fleet is currently parked at Miami International Airport. Other airlines also are parking aircraft at their chief maintenance bases: American Airlines in Tulsa and USAir in Pittsburgh, for example.

When business picks up, the airlines hope to put some of the jets back in the air, or sell them off. Others, no longer economical to fly, are simply used for spare parts.

"There is going to be such a glut of older jet aircraft on the market during the next 10 years that many will end up being cannibalized, scrapped completely, or even left to rust in airplane graveyards around the world," said Dick Spaulding, president of

Construction spending levels off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction spending dipped 0.1 percent in February, the government said Monday, but analysts suggested the barely perceptible drop pointed to an end to 11 straight months of declining outlays.

"I think we're pretty close to the bottom and we'll be seeing the construction number starting to edge up in the coming months," said David Berson, chief economist for the Federal National Mortgage Association.

The Commerce Department said residential, non-residential and government spending fell to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $395.1 billion, the smallest outlay since a $395.0 billion rate in April 1986.

But analysts emphasized other February statistics showing an increase in new and existing home sales, a jump in construction of new homes and apartments and a rise in building permits as signs

Check for static before touching computer

By Dennis Sever

Q. Several times in the last few weeks I have sat down at my computer to find that the keyboard doesn't respond. I have to turn the computer off and then turn it back on to get it to work. Do you think I have a virus?

Sever

A. No I don't think you have a virus. I suspect that you are experiencing problems with static electricity.

The computer is so sensitive to static electricity that you may not even be able to feel a shock that will disable a computer. I suggest that you spray around your computer area with an anti-static solution, (these are available at nearly all office supply businesses and computer stores.)

There are also anti-static mats that you can place on the floor under your computer. Another widely used product that successfully prevents static discharges is a "Touch Me First" pad. These pads are like the anti-static mat for the floor but they fit just under the computer and they have instructions telling the user to "touch" the pad prior to touching any computer devices.

One additional no-cost solution is to discharge yourself before you touch the computer by touching something metal that is grounded, like a metal chair leg, desk, or table leg as you sit down to the computer. Another good idea is to place your computer in a room with a tile or other hard surfaced floor because carpeting in West Texas in the Spring of the year will always generate static electricity.

Background Processing — Automatic processing of lower priority programs that don't need operator intervention while other programs are being executed.

Backup — Duplicate copies of programs and data that should be maintained current for use incase the originals are damaged.

Bank-Switching — A technique that allows programs to address more memory than is normally possible because of processor limitations.

BASIC — Beginners' All-purpose Symbolic Instruction Code (an acronym) is a high-level programming language that is relatively simple to learn and is very often provided with the operating system in the microcomputer industry.

Batch Processing — A technique where a program or group of programs can be submitted to the computer for execution without operator intervention.

Baud — A unit for measuring data transmission speeds. The baud rate is the number of signal changes per second.

BCD — Binary Coded Decimal (an acronym) is a technique for storing numeric data in decimal form although in hexidecimal representation.

Binary Digit — Either of the values, zero or one, which are combined with other binary digits to represent information.

Binary Number System — A number system with a base or radix of two.

Biochips — Organic computer chips (experimental.)

Bit — A Binary Digit.

Block/Blocking — A technique that is used to enhance data transfer speeds by combining groups of information into optimal sized packages. Also a word processing technique that allows a contiguous section of a document to be marked for copying, moving, deletion or other special modification.

Branch — An instruction that causes a transfer of program control to an alternate path.

Broadband Channels — A communications system that allows simultaneous transmission of multiple messages via a single medium.

Buffer — A storage device or memory area that is used to temporarily store information that is being transferred. The buffer is used to compensate to the different speed of the sending and receiving units.

Bulletin Board System (BBS) — A computer based mail/messaging service that is accessed via modems. The BBS's provide idea exchange, public domain software and common forums for ongoing discussions.

Bus — The circuits in the computer particularly on the motherboard that provide communication between the various components and devices. (Note that the term motherboard has been around a long time before Iraq's leader started talking about mothers of things.)

Byte — The smallest addressable unit of information in a computer. A byte is comprised of (normally) eight adjacent bits and is treated as a single unit of information.

Borden find

V-F Petroleum Inc. has completed an 11-barrel Mississippian discovery in Borden County.

Midland operator tests Borden strike

Staff Report

A Mississippian discovery has been completed in Borden County, just east of the Escondido field.

V-F PETROLEUM INC., Midland, tested the No. 1 Muleshow to pump 11 barrels of 39.4 gravity crude and 204 barrels of water from perforations 8,426 to 8,500 ft. Gas-oil ratio is 636:1.

Permitted as a 9,000 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 8,751 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 8,705 ft.

The well topped the Strawn at 7,772 ft., Mississippian at 8,424, and Ellenburger at 8,586 ft. Pay was topped at 8,426 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from south and 2,440 ft. from west lines of Section 22, Block 30, T-4, T&P survey, eight miles southeast of Gail.

Canyon discovery flows 11 barrels

HONDO OIL & GAS CO. has completed a Canyon discovery in Reagan County, 18 miles northeast of Big Lake.

The No. 1 Rainbow "19-A" was finaled to flow 11 barrels of 46.8 gravity crude and no water on a half-inch choke from perforations 8,282 to 8,436 ft. The interval was acidized with 6,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 140,000 gallons of gel and 397,400 lbs. sand. Gas-oil ratio is 2,818:1.

Drilled to 9,581 ft., the well was plugged back to 8,598 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 8,676 ft.

The well topped the Canyon at 8,250 ft., Woodford at 9,264, Silurian at 9,352, and Fusselman at 9,423 ft. on ground elevation of 2,499 ft.

Location is 2,300 ft. from north and 2,200 ft. from west lines of Section 19, Block 1, T&P survey, Abst. 482.

Maxus to build gas plant

DALLAS (AP) — Maxus Energy Corp. will build a natural gas processing plant by January 1993 in the Texas Panhandle, company officials announced.

Maxus now has its gas and oil from the Panhandle and western Oklahoma processed through facilities of other companies.

"Having our own gas plant will give us better control of and increase the profitability of our Texas Panhandle operations," said Steve Crowell, senior vice president for Maxus' North American exploration and production.

The size and cost of the plant is unknown because Maxus officials are still working on its design, company spokeswoman Linda Covington said.

A site has not been chosen for the plant.

Maxus produces and purchases about 150 million cubic feet of natural gas per day in the Panhandle and western Oklahoma.

The plant will have a processing capacity of 160 million cubic feet per day.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9998.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numberical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key(*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key(*). Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

CLAIM: Cereal killer hits

(From 4C)

"Kellogg constantly lies about its products. I don't believe anything Kellogg tells me."

Gardner said he referred to claims contested in the federal court case in Des Moines, where Kellogg filed suit against Iowa officials and the attorneys general of Minnesota, California, Florida, Texas and Wisconsin intervened.

In dispute are Kellogg ads saying that dieters should eat Special K to avoid muscle loss, that fiber and iron in a cereal formerly named 40+ Bran Flakes were of special help to people over 40, and that Frosted Flakes was a healthy snack superior to some fruits.

"I consider that a lie. It's 40 percent sugar," Gardner said.

Kellogg also has sued the Texas attorney general and the Texas commissioner of health over a Texas Department of Health ban on the sale of its Heartwise cereal.

The department ruled after a 1990 probe that in Heartwise, the company was selling a laxative, psyllium, as a cereal.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales condemned the slander suit in a statement as a personal attack and an attempt to intimidate a state employee.

BUILD: Construction

(From 4C)

Marilyn Schaja, an economist for Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp., said those data suggested the industry probably stabilized in February.

"March's data on housing will clearly be decisive in determining the strength of the industry, following the recent behavior of interest rates," she said.

In another report Monday, the National Association of Realtors said lower interest rates and prices, combined with rising incomes, boosted the ability of the typical American family to buy an existing home in February.

The Realtors' housing affordability index rose 1.8 percentage points to 114.5. That meant a family earning the national median income of $35,819 had 114.5 percent of the income needed to qualify for conventional financing covering 80 percent of a median-priced home costing $94,800.

The median means half the families earned more and half earned less, or that half of the homes cost more and half less.

The Commerce report said construction spending in February was 13.3 percent below the $455.6 billion in outlays a year earlier. Spending, which plunged 2.8 percent in January and 2.2 percent in December, has fallen every month since March 1990, when it inched up 0.4 percent to $457.3 billion.

Despite a 16.4 percent jump in housing starts in February, the value of new residential construction fell 3.7 percent, to $155.1 billion.

PLANE: Finds a home

(From 4C)

USAir Leasing & Services, the jet-leasing subsidiary of USAir Group.

Not only the business slowdown but the record backlog of new jet orders — more than 4,100 since 1988 — is hastening the retirements, Spaulding said.

He estimates that between 2,000 and 5,000 planes will be phased out of the worldwide commercial jet fleet in the 1990s. By comparison, the fleet of idled planes now stands at roughly 800.

Those numbers include all 170 planes at Eastern, 27 Boeing 737s bearing USAir's colors, 17 Continental 727s and DC-9s, six British Aerospace 146s flown by American, and eight Air Canada Lockheed L-1011s, according to Paul Turk, an aviation consultant for Virginia-based Avmark Inc. Many of the planes have been grounded since August, when the Persian Gulf crisis sent fuel prices soaring for a six-month period and added an unexpected $3 billion to the industry's fuel bills.

Some airlines, such as Continental, Eastern, Pan Am and just last week Midway, have been forced to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection because of the fuel-price shock and business slump.

While the airlines are hurting, the increasing number of plane retirements is a boon to companies that act as parking-lot attendants. Not only are the established airplane graveyards doing well, new ones are springing up.

"We see a real opportunity," said Larry Isham, chief financial officer for Airmark Corp., a San Juan Capistrano, Calif.-based aviation-services firm.

Affiliated bankruptcy plan eyed

DALLAS (AP) — Creditors of Affiliated Food Stores will get their first chance to change the cooperative's bankruptcy reorganization proposal today.

The distributor and marketer for about 400 grocery stores will emerge from bankruptcy as a publicly held corporation if U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Robert McGuire and creditors confirm the Chapter 11 plan.

Affiliated's executives and attorneys are hopeful confirmation will occur by late April or early May, spokeswoman Cathy Oppel said.

"They are expecting amendments," Ms. Oppel said. "There's no way you can think of every point in a bankruptcy case of this size and scope."

Affiliated filed under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code last Aug. 31 after receiving word that First City, Texas bank had canceled its $6 million line of credit. Affiliated and First City are in litigation over the decision.

The cooperative filed Chapter 11 to protect its inventory, most in a 1-million square-foot facility near its Keller headquarters. Affiliated's total debt and equity load is about $110 million.

A key component of the reorganization plan is payment of 30 cents on the dollar to unsecured creditors owed $40.6 million.

The plan also calls for the company to swap new common stock for about $27 million in debt claims by current stockholders, including the owners of grocery stores in Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas that Affiliated supplies.

Texas companies rank high on list

DALLAS (AP) — Some Texas companies gained while others declined in their ranking of Forbe Magazine 1991 Super 50 ranking of corporations.

The ranking is based on a composite value of the companies' 1990 sales, profits, assets and stock market value.

Each entry below includes current rank, the name of the company and change from 1989 list and 1990 figures.

DEAR ABBY

Marriage penalty keeps couple away from altar

DEAR ABBY: My fiancee and I are both energetic, productive citizens who work overtime seven days a week to provide a better life for our children. We are a middle-aged, upper-income couple with maximum debt (due to our former marriages), in love, engaged and want to get married. The problem is we can't afford to because our federal and state income tax could increase $11,000 and $5,000, respectively. This means we would have to earn an additional $25,000 in taxable income in order to meet this obligation, and we simply can't do that.

Van Buren

The tax code is obviously unfair when a couple can't afford to get married because of additional taxes, and I won't ask even Dear Abby to rectify that problem. But, do you know of any place or any way we can be married in a Christian ceremony, without having to declare our marriage for federal and/or state income tax purposes? — OVERTAXED IN THE U.S.A.

DEAR OVERTAXED: I doubt if you could find a clergyman who would agree to perform a marriage ceremony and conspire with you to conceal the fact of your marriage in order to assist you in tax evasion. In other words, don't expect to find an honest partner for a crooked deal.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please clarify the difference between a "social drinker" and an alcoholic? I am extremely confused because I love to go out with my co-workers for "a drink," and for some reason I end up having more than one — or two — and sometimes more.

A person in the AA program told me that I am an alcoholic, even though I enjoy drinking only twice a week.

The reason I am not sure that I am an alcoholic is because I question it a lot — and isn't it a fact that true alcoholics would be in denial and never question their drinking? — SOCIAL DRINKER (?) IN SCRANTON, PA.

DEAR SOCIAL DRINKER: A person who is in the AA program is in a position to know the difference between a social drinker and an alcoholic. I suggest that you attend a few meetings of AA. You will learn a great deal, and your question will be answered by experts. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Every morning on my way to work, I sit in the passenger seat watching drivers read newspapers or paperback books, dress children, apply make-up, shave, drink coffee, watch TV, etc.

Abby, please comment to your wide reading audience concerning this problem. It could save your life and mine. — RIDING SCARED IN MARIETTA, GA.

DEAR RIDING SCARED: I'll try. Drivers who are caught doing any of the above while driving should be fined and assigned to traffic school to learn how serious their seemingly minor infraction can be.

Not only do these half-alert drivers risk their own lives, but they risk hitting another vehicle and maiming or killing innocent people.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Michigan lawmaker up to his old tricks

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Rep. Perry Bullard wants to prohibit any team playing in a new Michigan stadium from using a designated hitter.

April fools!

Monday's news release announcing the mock legislation was a parody of the Tiger Stadium situation in Detroit.

Owners of the Tigers have talked about building a new stadium, perhaps like Toronto's with a retractable dome and artificial turf, to replace the 79-year-old building in downtown Detroit.

Rep. Perry Bullard said he'll propose legislation that prohibits public funds from being used for a professional baseball stadium with artificial turf or a dome, and prohibiting teams using the stadium from using designated hitters.

Each April Fool's Day, Bullard and his staff put out a release on joke legislation.

Trapped spelunker 'doing fine'

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — A New York woman whose left leg was broken by an 80-pound rock as she explored the nation's deepest known cave remained about 1,000 feet underground Monday as efforts to rescue her intensified.

Rescue teams used lanterns and battery-powered lamps to prepare an exit route from Lechugilla Cave for Emily Davis Mobley, 40, a veteran spelunker from Schoharie, N.Y., who fell about 12 feet when a rock gave way Sunday morning.

"She was working her way up through a pile of breakdown (large rocks that had fallen from the ceiling) and reached up and grabbed a rock. It came loose and struck her," said Jeff Denny, a ranger at Carlsbad Caverns National Park and information officer for the rescue operation.

Denny said Mobley then fell about 12 feet with the rock landing on top of her leg.

Denny estimated it could take up to 72 hours to get Mobley out of the cave — "probably Wednesday or afterwards."

"She's doing fine and is in good spirits other than the fact she's in obvious pain," said Denny.

Denny emphasized she was in no immediate danger.

"She's doing well," Denny said. "It's a fairly simple injury."

Denny said the rescue team had not begun the process of moving Mobley out of the cave as of 6:30 p.m. MST Monday. He said the team probably could begin the slow, difficult task of moving Mobley toward the surface later in the evening.

Lechuguilla, discovered in 1986 and known to be 54.3 miles long and 1,565 feet deep, is about four miles west of the famed Carlsbad Caverns in southeastern New Mexico.

Undeveloped and closed to the public, the cave is the fourth largest cave in the United States. It is a popular piece of underground terrain for experienced spelunkers who explore its labyrinth of tunnels, rooms and geological formations.

Mobley had been in Lechuguilla since Saturday with about five other members of a mapping expedition party. She was injured while exploring an area known as the Western Borehole, at the west end of the cave.

"She is also just south of a room known as the ABC room. She's located approximately 1½ to two miles from the entrance of the cave about 1,000 feet deep," Denny said. He said he didn't know why it was called the ABC room.

Mobley was injured sometime between 6 a.m. and 6:30 a.m. Sunday. It took some of her companions seven hours to reach the surface and initiate the rescue operation.

Dr. Steve Mossberg, a physician from Parkersburg, W.Va., who was along on the mapping expedition, remained with Mobley, who was being given food, water and pain killers.

Denny said it was not known if Mobley's broken leg had been set, although air splints had been sent down with rescue workers. A paramedic also was sent into the cave Monday to relieve Mossberg, Denny said.

The temperature inside the cave is a constant 65 degrees, with the humidity 95 percent, Denny said.

"Every effort is being made to keep her warm, although there is always the danger of hypothermia," he said.

Denny said the rescue team would use two types of stretchers. One is a fiberglass basket, while the second is a sheet of hard plastic that can be wrapped around Mobley and allows her to be slid or lifted through some of the narrower areas on the way out.

"There's a lot of steep inclines and narrow passageways. It will be difficult to pull her through there," Denny said. "We will take whatever time the cave allows us."

Rope-climbing skills are needed to maneuver steep areas inside the rugged cave, including a 90-foot drop into the entrance. Once inside, explorers use mountain-climbing skills to scramble over tricky ledges, climb slippery formations and squirm through narrow passageways.

Between Mobley's location and the cave entrance are deep pits, deep dropoffs, traverses where there are holes on either side of the pathway and tight tunnels, Denny said.

He said about 70 people were involved in the rescue effort. Many of those, he said, were rigging different sections of the cave to expedite movement across the more difficult areas of the cave.

"Some of the rescuers are getting ropes in place for when the rescue team gets there, they will be ready to go," Denny said.

Denny said the crews would work round-the-clock during the operation. They include two members of a Tennessee cave rescue unit and personnel from the National Park Service, the Lechuguilla Cave Project and the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant.

WIPP is a U.S. Department of Energy project designed to bury defense-related, plutonium-contaminated waste 2,150 feet below the surface in salt beds southeast of Carlsbad. No waste has yet been buried there.

El Paso launches water conservation rules

EL PASO (AP) — A water rationing plan aimed at reducing consumption by 20 percent went into effect Monday, with violators subject to fines of $50 to $500.

Officials in this desert city say they were inundated with calls from residents confused about the new guidelines.

Having a home with little grass and lots of native cactus became chic overnight because of the rules that limit lawn watering to three nights a week.

The use of water to clean streets or sidewalks is banned. Noncommercial car washing must be carried out only with buckets or hoses equipped with shutoff nozzles.

Beginning next summer, water-saving plumbing fixtures must also be installed in all new and renovated buildings. Violators of the construction measures will face fines as high as $2,000.

Officials say a summer water shortage, which prompted emergency conservation measures, and the news of rationing in California, which is in the midst of a five-year drought, prompted them to take action now.

"The drought in California kind of wakened people up," said Ed Archuleta, general manager of the city's Water Utilities Public Service Board.

Water authorities in San Francisco, which have imposed the most severe water rationing in the city's history, on Monday began requiring most residents and businesses to cut their water use by one-third.

Last summer, El Paso utilities produced 38.1 billion gallons of water, or about 200 gallons per person per day. Water officials hope to cut that to a per capita average of 160 gallons per day by the year 2000.

Half of a 12-member water police patrol were on the lookout Monday for violators, but might go a little easy at first, said one inspector, Manny Rodriguez.

"Seeing that it's the first day, if it's somebody we haven't come across before and they had just started to wash something," they might get just a warning, he said. No citations have yet been given out, he said.

The new rules were a test of will power for residents as temperatures lingered near 80 degrees.

Ruth Braun said she gave her gardener a tongue-lashing Monday when he watered some newly planted bulbs, allowing the water to flow out into the street. "You know it's got us all a little crazy," she said.

Residents who continue to use large amounts of water also face sharply higher water bills than those who save.

Sallie Homan, a landscaper who helped developed the new rules, said she has received many calls from residents wanting to know how much it would cost them to replace their lawns with desert plants.

Some residents opt for rock landscapes, but Ms. Homan said that could end up increasing a resident's water use.
