Local government's roles are explained

Editors Note: The Hesperian is beginning a series of articles on local government in an effort to provide readers with a better understanding of their local government. This is the first installment of that series. It is necessary to explain the areas affected by county supervision before moving on to the particular offices or officials and their specific duties.

Local government consists of two levels, the County and the City. The first to be considered in this series is the County. County government in Texas has two principle roles. The first is to serve as an administrative arm of the state and the second is to look after the particular interests of local citizens, especially those who live outside the cities and towns. County authority is derived from the Texas Constitution and from State laws. The County is responsible for enforcing state laws within its boundaries. Counties are not empowered to enact ordinances of their own, as are cities.

State and local aspects of local government are intertwined to such an extent that it is often difficult to seperate them. Most services offered to county residents are partly legislated by and for the state and partly legislated by county authorities for the local citizenry.

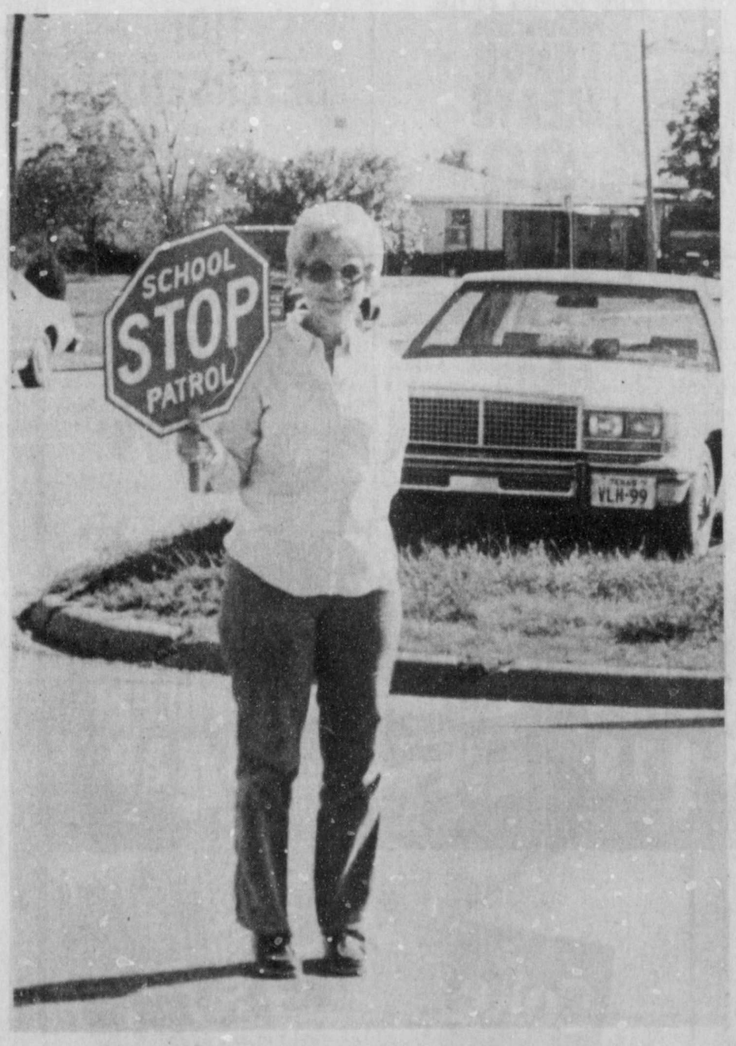

The county assesses and collects taxes, not only to provide income for itself, but also for the state. In many cases, taxes are also collected for other jurisdictions within the county such as school districts, hospital districts, water control and improvement districts, or junior college districts as authorized by state law. In Floyd County, the Floyd County Central Appraisal District performs this duty for the county and for the other taxing entities within the county.

The county is charged with organizing and conducting all general and special elections including county bond elections. The county also appoints persons to supervise these elections and determine the method of voting (paper ballot or voting machines). Voter registration is another of the county responsibilities.

Winners may pick up their checks at the Hesperian office on Friday, October 18.

Convenience store robbed

Officials arrest three

A combined effort by Floyd County Sheriff's Office, Floydada Police, Lockney Police, and D.P.S. was responsible for the arrest of two men and a juvenile, who allegedly robbed the E-Z Mart on October 14th at approximately 7:13 p.m.

Charged with aggravated robbery of the E-Z Mart were: Michael Charles Bradley, 19, and Wilson Jones Hunter, Jr., 18 both from Delaware.

According to Sheriff Fred Cardinal, "On October 14, two white males entered the E-Z Mart store and threatened the clerk with a handgun. She then gave them the money from the cash drawer, which amounted to $72.00. They then fled in a vehicle going west on FM 784. The clerk immediately phoned in the robbery at 7:13 p.m. Deputy David Hart arrived at the store and broadcast the description of the car. Deputy Raymond Hamilton, coming from his residence heard the description of the vehicle and passed the car coming west. Deputy Hamilton turned his vehicle around and gave chase, reaching speeds of up to 115 m.p.h. At the intersection of FM 378 and FM 786 a roadblock was set up by Deputy Doug Brewer and Lockney Policeman Hollis. The suspects vehicle u-turned at the roadblock and headed back on FM 378. Another roadblock was set up by Acting Police Chief, James Hale, north of the Sandhill intersection, which stopped the suspects, ending a 20 mile chase."

"It was a great joint effort," said Hale. "We all worked together. From the time the call came in, it took only 14 minutes before the suspects were under arrest."

In the car with the two suspects was a female juvenile, 16, who was a runaway from Delaware. The juvenile was handed over to juvenile authorities in Lubbock.

Recovered from the vehicle were a number of rifles, shotguns, cameras, video equipment and jewelry, believed stolen from a farm house in Oklahoma.

The handgun used in the robbery was thrown out the window of the suspects vehicle during the chase, and found the next day by Deputy Leonard Gilroy and Sheriff Cardinal after a thorough search thru rain soaked fields. "The handgun used in the robbery was also stolen from the same farm house in Oklahoma. The owner sure was glad to hear his property had been recovered," said Cardinal.

Bonds have been set at $30,000 each on both suspects, Bradley and Hunter.

Dispute over tax files is resolved

A major conflict between two offices in the Floyd County courthouse was resolved after much discussion and two motions during the October commissioners court meeting. During the past month, a controversy over access to public vehicle registration files developed between the County Tax Assessor-Collector Jonelle Fawver and Chief Appraiser, Shiela Faulkenberry from the Floyd County Central Appraisal District.

Discussion and statements made during the October 14 commissioners court meeting established the fact that Fawver, being through with the 1984 records relegated them to her basement files. She requested that the appraisal district not disturb the basement files. This created a conflict with the appraisal district since they still need to refer to the 1984 alphabetical files for taxing purposes.

The second area of disagreement arose over the use of the 1985 alphabetical files in the Tax Assessor/Collectors office plus the fact that no alphabetical file will exist for 1986. Fawver explained, "The 12 month staggered registration is filed and reported to the state by license identification number and classification of vehicle. There will be no alphabetical file."

Fawver's statement was backed up by Gilbert Roland from the Texas Department of Motor Vehicle Registration in Lubbock who said, "Under the Open Records Act, Jonelle is obligated only to allow access to the public registration records. She is not required by the department to maintain an alphabetical list. Any cost or labor resulting from the need for access to the records must be incurred by the party requesting access."

The entire matter came to the court's attention due to the inability of the two offices to resolve the dispute on their own. A large crowd of interested citizens representing the various taxing entities served by the central appraisal district were in attendance and voiced their opinions during the proceedings.

Adrain Helms, secretary of the board of directors of the Floyd County Central Appraisal District stated, "The district has been approved to tax vehicles and the logical place to obtain the necessary information is from the Tax Assessor-Collectors Office. Jonelle Fawver that has obligations in that area by virtue of her election to the office by the taxpayers. There is no reason why she should be reluctant to furnish us access to public records, yet she told us not to touch them."

Fawver countered with the assertion that "The records are not to leave her office, but the commissioners could authorize copies to be made if everyone agreed."

Commissioner Bob Jarrett from Precinct 2 asked, "Would there be a problem with the appraisal district being allowed access to the records in the basement or to the daily records being copied?"

Fawver agreed to retrieve the 1984 alpha file from the basement and allow the district access to it in her office along with the 1985 alpha file, but stated that, "the daily records are supposed to remain in my office and would have to be removed to be copied since I have no copy machine."

Roland stated, "The state would have no objection to the appraisal district removing the county portion of the registration forms each day to copy them if they are returned as soon as possible for Fawver to file." He also bids for a new dump truck to be purchased by Sam Spence, Precinct 1. The bid was awarded to Gene Messer Ford of Lubbock who bid $37,056.15 with trade in. Other bids were received from West Texas Truck Center ($39,553.62), and Reed Ford (submiting 3 bids—$39,239.00 for a 1984, $42,900.00 for a 1985, and $38,700.00 for a 1986.) Delivery is expected in approximately 10 days.

Financial reports were made and approved from both County Treasurer, Glenna Orman and County Auditor Bobbie Hamilton. The court approved payment of the monthly bills and approved four farm work requests.

Sheriff Fred Cardinal and Dwayne Collins from the Texas Department of Public Safety met with the court to discuss the aging teletype machine in the Sheriffs Department. Collins stated, "We encourage law enforcement officials to be current and updated in the area of tele-communications. Public awareness has made 24 hour access to information a necessity."

Cardinal presented a proposal for a lease-purchase of a new teletype from RCA. This would cost $204 per month with 24 hour no-fault service for 5 years. The department presently pays $165 a month for service on the old system.

The court elected to table discussion of the matter while Cardinal checks on the cost of a maintainence agreement if the unit is purchased outright at a cost of $3,395.00.

Doug Galloway and Delmas McCormick of Floyd County Farm Bureau met with the court to urge that Floyd County adopt a cut off date of April 20 for the use of 2-4-D Ester within the county. They also requested support for a job safety education program that the Farm Bureau will be conducting. The court agreed to actively pursue both matters.

County Auditor Bobbie Hamilton informed the court that the cost of having the services of a trapper are being raised to $450.00 per month as Briscoe County will no longer be paying a portion of the trappers salary. Hamilton also told the court that the county will have to pay unemployment tax and workman's comp on part time workers from 1982 to the present and must continue the practice in the future.

reminded those present that the copying and any alphabetizing required would have to be the responsibility of the district and that Fawver could not do any of this for them, nor could her office bear the cost.

Aldine Williams, representing the Caprock Hospital District board told the assemblage, "We agreed to a central appraisal district to save money and get taxes collected more efficiently. The taxpayers are paying both offices salaries and if they are going to fight among themselves like this, we need to get rid of both."

W.H. (Dub) Hallmark, from the Lockney school system asked, "Why cause all this trouble and have to have a meeting like this when all the records in question are public and the appraisal district has had access to them in the past?"

Eddie Teeter, a member of both the Lockney school board and the appraisal district board asked, "Why can't the two offices work together since both know what is necessary in order to tax vehicles for personal property."

In an effort to resolve the dispute, Commissioner Jarrett made a motion that "As of January 1, 1986, the Floyd County Central Appraisal District have access on a daily basis to all county registration receipts in the Tax Assessor/Collectors office and to registration information in the alpha files from all prior years." This was seconded by Jack Lackey, commissioner, precinct 4 and approved by a unanimous vote.

Following a recess at 3:30 p.m. on October 14, the court reconvened at 10:00 a.m. on October 15. At that time, the approved motion was rescinded and a new motion by Bob Jarrett and seconded by Jack Lackey was passed by unanimous vote. The new motion stated "Floyd County Central Appraisal District will be given access to alphabetic files of 1984 and 1985 as of 10-15-85 and that a copy of the daily work be available as of 10-15-85 with the appraisal office responsible and accountable for all receipts to be copied."

The change was necessary because the appraisal office must begin now to compile the necessary information for taxing next year.

Among other items considered during the October session was the awarding of

Feelings on seat belts expressed

The following poem was written by Donna Darovich, Director of University of Texas at Arlington News Service.

ODE TO THE SEAT BELT

I've buckled up for safety;
I'm complying with the law
Though my blouses are all wrinkled
And my neck has been rubbed raw.

Got a strap across my belly
But what sticks inside my craw
Is the one across my chest
That fits like a too-tight bra.

I can't even reach the glove box
To retrieve a simple map
Without filling up my mouth
With a lousy two-inch strap.

When I try to order Big Macs
This is how it goes:
I have to fight the belt
'Cause it's cutting off my nose.

I feel like I'm a chauffeur
Cause friends hate the belts, you see
And when we go to lunch
They won't ride up front with me.

But what really makes me mad,
Are the grins and all the stares
From the bozos watchin' me
Who, by gum, ain't wearing' their's!

Some say they never will
Wear that vinyl sash
But they can blame themselves
When their face lies on the dash.

Too bad we have to legislate
What's just for our own good
But I'd rather have a wrinkled shirt
Than go through the window to the hood.

Commissioners Court...

All necessary facilities for the operation of district, county, and justice courts are the responsibility of the county. Courtrooms must be provided, court records maintained, and the salaries of all court personnel, except district court, are paid by the county. Law enforcement is provided by the Sheriff, who works with the County Attorney and the District Attorney. The Sheriff's department maintains the primary detention facilities within the county.

Records of all official documents filed within its boundaries must be maintained by the county. These records include marriage licenses, deed records, birth and death certificates, as well as all court proceedings.

The county constructs and maintains county roads and is responsible for acquiring the right of way for all public highways. All county buildings, such as the courthouse, jail, precinct garages, and any sub-courthouses must be built and maintained by the county.

Floyd County is also responsible for public health and welfare. The county provides these services through the local hospital district, contributes towards child welfare care and care for the mentally ill. The county also supports library services for residents with two branches, one in Lockney and one in Floydada.

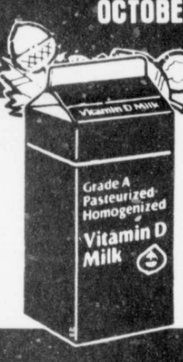

All of the above functions are directed by elected or appointed county officials whose duties are established by law. Most general functions related to the operation of the county fall under the supervision of the Commissioners' Court. In special areas, the elected official may be directly responsible to the voters and/or state officials. All elected county officials serve four year terms, with elections staggered so that approximately half are elected every two years.

Next Week: Commissioners' Court.

Breezers defeat Chiefs

On Thursday, October 10, the 8th grade Breezers traveled to Friona to take on the Friona Chieftains. The Breezers got off to a good start with a 65 yard opening drive which resulted in the first score. The score came on an 8 yard run around the left end by Harvey Soliz. The point after attempt failed, making the score 6-0 in favor of Floydada.

Friona received the kick-off and, unable to move the ball, were forced to punt. Floydada's Frank Suarez raced 70 yards down the left sideline for a second touchdown on the punt return. Suarez also made the two point conversion, to make the score 14-0.

The Friona team was able to put 14 points on the board during the second quarter. Both scores came on long runs around the right end. With two minutes left in the second quarter and the score tied 14-14, The Breezers had the ball again. On a third down with 10 to go at the 12 yard line, Suarez took a pitch from Grant Stovall and passed to Shay Hearon in the end zone for the score. The conversion failed, leaving the breezers in the lead 20-14 at halftime.

During the second half, the Breezer defense really toughened up, allowing Friona no points. The Breezers, however, were able to add another 14 points. The first of two touchdowns came on a 40 yard run around the right end by Suarez. Suarez broke three tackles on his way into the end zone.

The two point conversion was good and the Breezers led 28 to 14 going into the 4th quarter. The final score was made by Soliz who made a sweep around the left side. The conversion failed making the final score 34-14.

"The whole team did a great job throughout the game," said Coach Tim James. "We are still making a few mistakes, but overall, we are looking better and better." When asked who he wished to recognize as outstanding players on the offense and defense, James replied, "The entire 8th grade team."

The team's season record now stands at 4-1. The Breezers next game will be at home on Thursday, October 25, against Idalou. The 8th grade is scheduled to play at 6:30 p.m.

Friona slips by 'Winds 14 to 0

The Floydada Varsity made a long trip to Friona to face the Chieftains on Friday, October 11. A 14 to 0 loss brings the 'Winds record for the season to 1-5 and 1-2 in district play.

Coach Joe Paty said, "It seems to be the story of our life this season. We have a good defense and the opportunity to score, but just can't get the ball into the end zone."

Floydada's leading rusher was #22, Clay Lowrance who carried the ball nine times for 23 yards. Lowrance also made six punts averaging 36 yards. Quarterback Shannon Barbee, #11, attempted to pass several times, completing four. He was intercepted by Friona three times.

"Our defense preformed very well," according to Paty. "We intercepted one pass and recovered five fumbles, so we had the opportunity to score, but got no closer than the three yard line just before halftime."

James Burns, #32, was given the team honor of "Hit of the Week." Burns made 22 tackles during the Friona game. Commented Coach Paty, "James has played outstandingly on our defensive unit the past couple of weeks."

Accident statistics released

There were 99 traffic accidents in Floyd County alone during 1984. One of which was fatal, resulting in one person being killed during 1984. Last year 107 persons were killed in the 17-county Lubbock District, according to Mel Pope, District Engineer, State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, of Lubbock.

"Alcohol, speeding and not wearing seat belts continue to be our greatest problems," said Pople. "Here in the Lubbock district, which includes 17 counties surrounding Lubbock, we had 10,669 traffic accidents."

The number of accidents and fatalities in this area is cited as the reason the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation (DHT) will be working more closely with local traffic officials, police departments, the schools, and education for the community as a whole.

"We have the tools to reduce our traffic problem and save lives. If people would obey the speed laws, wear safety belts and eliminated drunk driving, our fatalities would drop by at least 80%" said Pope. "We build our highways with every safety precaution . . .Our motorists need to drive with that same kind of precaution."

For further information, and for information on free programs furnished to civic clubs, schools, hospitals and businesses, call Ruby M. Jackson, Traffic Safety Specialist, State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, at 806-745-4411.

LAKEVIEW NEWS

by Joyce Williams

Mrs. Choise Smith and sons, Dean and Hunter, were in Lubbock Saturday for a visit with Judge Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fluky Smith.

Jeremy Moses, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Moses is going to school in Crosbyton this year, as have other "county line kids" over the years. When families have land or relatives in Crosby County and live on the line as Lakeview children do, it's often more convenient to go to Crosbyton.

Mrs. Mike Bishop and Mrs. Monte Williams cleaned house last week and held a garage sale Saturday. Both ladies were pleased with the results.

Mr. and Mrs. James McGaugh attended the Floydada High School football game Friday evening and saw their daughter, Marlyse, and other Flag Corps members perform between game halves.

Mrs. Lula Teague attended the monthly fellowship of the City Park Church of Christ after church Sunday evening. Lula brought a large kettle of cabbage, tomatoes and ham, a dish she tasted once at Hemphill-Wells, figured out the ingredients and went home and cooked it herself. Delicious.

Mrs. Choise Smith and other Duncan Elementary teachers were present for Open House Monday evening at the first P.T.A. meeting of the school year.

The Ranch Day at the Burleson ranch scheduled for two Saturdays, Oct. 19 and 26, brings to mind a story that ran in 1965 in the "Vernon, Texas Daily Record."

Sixteen miles north of Vernon on the south side of Red River is a sandstone marker with no name on the head of a grave.

Old timers who lived at Doan's Crossing during the cattle drive of 1879 remembered him only as a tragic, nameless cowboy who was fatally wounded, but in death he inspired the ballad, "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie."

Two of his cronies, Pink Burdette and Jesse James Benton, buried the cowboy and put together the mournful tune with a refrain that was to become an American folksong.

The youthful cowboy, as the story is told, was one of the hundreds of trail hands who helped push herds into Indian Territory, past Doan's Crossing, on the way to northern markets. One night in Oklahoma he was accidentally but seriously wounded. His friends brought the young cowboy to Doans for medical help. A dance was in progress at the store and dancers took turns taking care of him. He died at midnight. His friends prepared him for burial and remembered how he had begged not to be buried in the wild country. So a cowboy composed a song. Next morning, friends took the body to a little grassy knoll about half a mile from Doan's store.

As they turked him beneath the sod to lay in a lonely, unmarked grave a cowboy sang the song he'd composed during the night.

"Oh bury me not on the lone prairie; These words came low and mournfully; from the grey lips of a youth who lay on his dying couch at the close of day.

Chorus: "Oh bury me not on the lone prairie; Where the wild coyotes will howl'ore me; In a narrow grave just six by three; Oh, bury me not on the lone prairie.

We buried him there, on the lone prairie, Where the coyotes howl And the winds blow free In a narrow grave Just six by three.'

Last Wednesday, final services were held for Mrs. P.F. Bertrand, mother of Haroid Williams, Neil Bertrand and Mrs. Gladys Widener. Services were held in the United Methodist Church at Floydada with burial in the Floydada Cemetery. Mr. Bertrand had preceded her in death in 1956. They had lived here since 1934, through the Depression and also the good years that came later.

HANSEL & GRETAL, produced by Adventure Theatre of Amarillo, thrilled and frightened the elementary school children in the Floydada High School auditorium Oct. 14 & 15. The musical play was brought to the kids by the Floyd County Arts Association. Shown here are the evil witch, Shelly Malil from Arlington, and Hansel played by Allen Merritt of Dallas.

Evans-Heinrich exchange marriage vows October 11

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH HEINRICH

Rebecca Ann Evans and Dean Joseph Heinrich exchanged wedding vows Friday, October 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the home of the bride's grandmother, Ruth Foshee, in Wolfforth.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Evans of Lockney, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee Heinrich of Slaton.

Officiating at the wedding was John McCoy, minister of Meadow Church of Christ. Heart-shaped candelabra at either end of the fireplace marked the wedding scene. Entwining the candelabras was greenery sprinkled with mauve, navy and bergundy flowers. Greenery placed on the mantle accented a center cluster of white candles.

Theme from "Endless Love", "Ice Castles" and "Let It Be Me" were sung by Mrs. Jenny Davidson of Lubbock. She was accompanied by Karl Race of Lockney on the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a tea-length dress of off-white satin with an overlay of lace. The bodice was designed with a jewel neckline and short sleeves of scalloped lace. The dropped waistline came to points in the front and back. Completing her wedding outfit were short lace gloves, and flowers worn in her hair. She carried a lace fan arranged with mauve and burgundy flowers tied with navy blue and off-white satin ribbons.

Honor attendants were Miss Connie Coffman of Lockney and Eric Heinrich, brother of the groom, of Slaton. Candlelighter was Jerry Don Evans, brother of the bride, of Lockney.

Miss Coffman's dress was of burgundy chiffon and featured an off-the-shoulder neckline and full, tea-length skirt. She carried a fan and flower arrangement similar to the bride's, and also wore flowers in her hair.

A reception and dinner was held in the Foshee home. Miss Coffman and Martha Foshee, the bride's cousin, of Brownfield, served. The brides table was laid with off-white lace over a burgundy liner. A floral arrangement and the bride's bouquet complimented the tiered wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Heinrich are at home southeast of Lubbock at Route 10, Box 314. A graudate of Metro Barber College, the bride is employed by J. Davidson's Inc. Styling Innovators in Lubbock. The bridegroom farms east of Lubbock.

COUPLE ENGAGED—Nancy Murtaugh of Lockney wishes to announce the engagement of her daughter, Tammy Lynn Clark to James Dwight Wilson, son of Corky and Alice Wilson of Sterley. Tammy is a 1985 graduate of Lockney High School and is currently employed at the Pay-n-Save in Lockney. Dwight is employed at Farmers Ag Service in Sterley. The couple is planning a November 15 wedding.

CELEBRATING 50 YEARS—Mr. and Mrs. J. Charles Featherston will be honored with a reception for family and friends from 2-4 p.m. [renewal of vows at 2:30] October 20 at the First Baptist Church, Fellowship Hall in Petersburg, Texas. Everyone is invited. Hostesses will be their daughter, Charlene Stricklen, husband Butch Stricklen, their sons: John Featherston, wife, Pat; Mike Featherston, wife, Lynda and seven grandchildren. The pair married on October 20, 1935 in Olton, Texas. They have lived and farmed in Petersburg, Texas for the past 48 years.

Cox honored with gift shower

Mrs. Jon Cox, nee Melody Wiley, of Lubbock was honored with a gift shower Saturday afternoon in the garden room of First Baptist Church of Lockney.

Mrs. Cox was assisted in greeting guests by her mother, Mrs. Richard Wiley of Lockney; and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Gary Cox of Seagraves. They all wore corsages of white daisies trimmed with pink and blue ribbon.

Special guests were Mrs. Cox's grandmother, Ozella Whitaker of Plainview; and her aunts, Betsy Wiley of Lubbock and Edna Smith of Plainview.

Other out-of-town guests included Mrs. Steve (Katheryn) Aufill, Ronee Thornton, Mrs. Bill (Brenda) Gallagher and Mary Lauren, Gale Wiley, all of Lubbock; and Mrs. Marlin Marble and Ashley of Hart.

Tammy Adams assisted guests in being served fruit punch, cookies, miniature popcorn balls, caramel apple bits and seasoned pecans. The serving table was laid with a blue checked cloth edged in lace. Centerpiece was a blue, pink and white braided heart accented with fresh white daisies that was given to the honoree. Milkglass appointments and blue napkins completed the table decor.

The hostesses also gave Mrs. Cox a bedspread. On the hostess list were Mmes. Keith Jackson, Robert Webb, Kenneth Edwards, Audie Noland, Paul Teuton, Pat Adams, Ronnie Aston, Tom Moore, Glen Cooper, Junior Lee, Max Smith, Raymond Watson, Marvin Gilbert, Herman Huffman, Don Vernon, Jerry Cawley, Bernice Miller, Charles Huffman, all of Lockney; and Jeff Isom and Ewald Quebe, both of Plainview.

Car care program given by Pate

The 1956 Study Club met October 8 in the home of Penny Giesecke for an evening on car care and maintenance. Gary Pate of Oden Chevrolet conducted a Powder Puff Mechanic Course explaining general maintenance and mechanical problems along with answering questions from various members. Co-hostesses for the evening were Sherry Hale and Darlynn Hambright.

A summary of the Tater Bake was presented during the business meeting. The 1956 Study Club appreciates the community support received during their fund raising project and will use the profits from this activity to sponsor a girl at Girlstown and to provide a senior scholarship.

Money is also used toward other community projects such as the "Love Sacks" for the nursing home, donations to the Floyd County Museum and Library and for magazine subscriptions to the elementary schools. Members would especially like to thank the Dairy Queen, Shop Rite and Howard Bishop for their donations which helped to increase the success of this project.

Agency on Aging receives grant

Hunger may be less of a problem to some homebound elderly in the South Plains. The Texas Department on Aging has awarded the South Plains Area Agency on Aging $31,793.00. This is the first year's award of money appropriated during the 69th Texas Legislature for the Omnibus Hunger Bill.

"The program is for elderly people who cannot afford, or are unable to prepare a meal for themselves due to physical limitations," said O.P. (Bob) Bobbitt, TDOA executive director. "The home-delivered meals are intended for elderly persons who have not regularly participated in any home-delivered meal program during the last federal fiscal year (October 1, 1984-September 31, 1985), particularly low-income persons in need of nutrition maintenance; elderly people whose names have been on written waiting lists to be served by an agency when resources are available; or elderly persons recently released from hospitals."

Approximately 61,000 South Plains area residents are over the age of 60 and many of them are homebound. South Plains Area Agency on aging serves not only Floyd County, but Bailey, Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Garza, Hale, Hockley, King, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Motley, Terry and Yoakum Counties.

"This program will enhance our current efforts to provide nutrition programs for older Texans," Bobbitt said. "Each weekday, the Department on Aging, through our area agency on aging network, provides over 50,000 home-delivered and congregate meals which meet one-third of the recommended USDA nutritional requirement. Our nutrition services, as well as our many other services such as transportation, telephone reassurance, and information and referral are available free to any Texan 60 years of age or older. Those who are able may contribute to help maintain and expand our programs."

Anyone wanting more information concerning the program is urged to contact the agency at Box 2787, Lubbock, Texas 79408 or by telephone at 806-762-8721.

JV game is at 6:30 p.m. here Thursday, October 17

Sam Spence re-elected to SPAG

Floyd County Precinct 1 Commissioner Sam Spence has been re-elected to the Board of Directors for South Plains Association of Governments for the 1985-86 term. Spence represents Floyd County in the General Assembly of the organization.

Membership of the General Assembly also approved a $1.6 million financial plan and set the membership dues rates at the 17th annual meeting held in Lubbock on September 12. By-laws were revised to allow the use of current census data population figures for setting membership dues.

Besides electing at large representatives to the Board of Directors, the membership established a biennial schedule allowing for two year terms for designated minority representatives.

New members elected to the board were Maxine Earl, Mayor Pro-Tem of Post, and Fred Jones, to councilman of Lake Ransom Canyon. Vacancies still esist for at large members from Lamb, Motley, and Terry Counties.

During the meeting and dinner, Lubbock Mayor Alan Henry was recognized for 10 years of dedicated service to SPAG. Members and their guests were treated to an amusing, but inspiring, address by Dr. Don Newberry, President of Western Texas College in Snyder.

TRADE MUST BE FAIR BEFORE ITS FREE

The issue of international trade is hot. There is a swell of support for the United States to adopt protectionist policies that will shelter our domestic industries against foreign competitors. As is often the case, this is a double edged sword.

While on the surface there can be merit found in protecting domestic industries, there are drastic repercussions to such practices. And the person most likely to be hurt by broad sweeping protectionism is the American farmer.

What we as a nation have got to do is demand FAIR trading practices worldwide, in order to assure that FREE trade can take place. Currently, there is no doubt that worldwide trade is not fair. Far too many of our trading partners have partially closed their markets to American goods, while ours remain totally open. And far too many of our trading partners have established tariffs and quotas that put our domestic products at a severe disadvantage on international markets.

It is these unfair trading policies that must be changed.

In a recent speech to business leaders in this country, President Reagan announced a new Administration policy on trade that is geared toward free trade, but insists first on that trade being fair. By demanding that our trading partners cooperate in efforts to break down existing barriers to free trade, the President has taken a very critical first step toward free and open international markets.

Our industries and exporters can compete with the best. Our producers are capable of producing quality products at competitive prices. What they cannot do, and cannot be expected to do, is try to compete against foreign governments rather than foreign producers.

The President has directed the United States Trade Representative to speed up unfair trade practice proceedings, identifying unfair practices and working to eliminate them.

He has set up a $300 million fund, in the form of grants which would support up to $1 billion in trade credits to maintain U.S. markets in the face of unfair trade.

He is pursuing both bilateral and multilateral negotiations with countries where the counterfeiting of U.S. goods has occurred.

And, most importantly, the President has asked that time limits be set for countries, like Japan, to open access to their markets.

These steps may prove to be insufficient, but they are a good beginning. And more importantly, they provide the kind of leadership initiative that will work to reduce the rising tide of protectionism in this country.

If we act in a retaliatory fashion to protect our industries, we are reacting to a problem without producing a solution. If we simply close our markets, whether it be to textile imports or footwear imports, we are taking the risk of retaliation from our foreign competitors. And historically, the first place that they will strike in retaliation will be against American agriculture exports.

We can't let that happen. Instead, we are obligated to work toward opening up markets that are unfairly controlled. That is the only action that will cure the current trade problems of this nation.

WADING WATER—Brett Marble is trying to cross the "mini-river" in front of the Floyd County Historical Museum on Wednesday, October 9. Rain fell steadily for several hours that day. Reports from around the county ranged from 4.95 inches at Producers Co-op in Floydada to 6.5 inches at Lockney Co-op. Barwise Gin reported 5.25 inches, McCoy Gin had 6.1 inches, Blanco Gin reported 5.1 inches and Marble Brothers registered near the 6 inch mark for the week.

"The First Shots"

(The following, written in journalistic style, is an account of events 150 years ago this week in the Texas fight for independence from Mexico. Dates are according to the calendar of 1835.)

By Fred and Eleanor Pass

GONZALES, TEXAS, October 5, 1835 -- War has begun in Texas.

The first shots in what may soon boil into a Texas revolution were fired between settlers and Mexican soldiers at dawn Friday (Oct. 2) on the banks of the Guadalupe River near here.

A company of 150 soldiers came from San Antonio with orders to seize an old cannon which Mexican civil authorities had given to Gonzales citizens four years ago to scare away marauding Indians.

But with rifle fire, and with a booming blast from the old six-pounder itself, about 100 volunteers from Gonzales and other settlements defied the order and drove the soldiers away.

The skirmish lasted only minutes. But those shots may echo as a rallying call across Texas for days to come. The implications of this exchange of gun-fire are far-reaching.

Mexico's dictator-president, General Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, feels threatened by this remote province containing too many armed settlers from the United States. His puppet congress recently gave him authority to confiscate their weapons.

Aa a way of sending a clear message to Texas that he intends to use that authority, he ordered his commander at San Antonio, Colonel Domingo de Ugartechea, to seize the cannon.

Last week four soldiers came to Gonzales and demanded that Andrew Ponton, local alcalde, surrender the gun.

To stall for time, the alcalde demanded additional orders.

Ponton's trick worked. One of the soldiers returned to San Antonio for more orders. Meanwhile, citizens buried the cannon and the alcalde dispatched messengers to Bastrop, Victoria and settlements on the Colorado and Lavaca Rivers to ask for help. The call brought about 100 men with rifles to Gonzales.

On Thursday (Oct. 1) Capt. Francisco Castaneda and 150 men arrived from San Antonio and again demanded the cannon. Refused again, they camped across the river to plan their next move.

During the night Gonzales citizens unearthed the cannon and loaded it with iron scraps, while the volunteers with rifles quietly crossed the river.

Early Friday morning, as the fog lifted, the old cannon -- which citizens describe as having more boom than bite -- boomed once more as a signal for the volunteers to attack.

Crying "come and take it", the Texans, led by Col John H. Moore, charged. Both sides fired. One Mexican soldier fell. Then Captain Castaneda commanded his soldiers to turn and march back to San Antonio, leaving behind the cannon and fallen comrade.

The old cannon that Santa Anna had meant to use as a symbol of intimidation had turned on him as a symbol of Texans' defiance.

Absentee voting explained

by Secretary of State Myra A. McDaniel

Barriers do exist that prevent some people from voting at their local polling place on election day. However, the voting process has changed to accommodate the varied needs of the public, so there are no longer barriers that prevent any registered voter from casting a ballot.

An inaccessible polling place may be a roadblock for some of the approximately 1.2 million disabled Texans of voting age, but state law mandates that polling places in elections at all levels be accessible by January 1988. Although that deadline is two years away, any eligible voter, who because of sickness or disability is unable to appear at the polling place, can vote absentee.

To encourage Texans to continue voicing their opinions as they grow older, state law permits any of the approximately 1.5 million residents age 65 or older, who are registered to vote, to cast an absentee ballot.

Absentee ballots are also available to registered voters who anticipate being out of town on election day, making it impossible for them to vote at their local polling places. Even those Texans who are unable to show up at the polls because of their religion can vote absentee.

The option to cast an absentee ballot provides everyone with the opportunity to vote in all elections. Voting absentee is a simple process and may be done by personal appearance or by mail.

Absentee voting by personal appearance for this November 5 general election is conducted at the county clerk's office or any branch office during business hours beginning October 16 through November 1. If the clerk's office is not accessible, you can ask the clerk to bring a ballot to the curb, where you can vote it. The clerk then takes the ballot and deposits it in the ballot box for you.

If you prefer to absentee vote by mail you must first mail in an application for an absentee ballot. The deadline for receiving applications, if yo wish to vote in the November 5 general election, is November 1.

Application forms are available from the secretary of state's office and county clerks. However, it is not necessary to use the printed application form when applying for an absentee ballot. You can simply write to the county clerk or absentee voting clerk and request an absentee ballot. Along with the request you must include the following information:

- *your name
- *residence address
- *address to which the ballot is to be mailed if you will be out of town
- *that you wish to vote in the November general election
- *your signature
- *your voter registration number or a statement that you have lost or mislaid your voter registration certificate

The clerk will send you an absentee ballot as soon after October 16 as your application is received. In order for your vote to be counted it must be mailed back to the clerk and received by November 5.

More information about absentee voting can be obtained by calling your county clerk or elections administrator, or the secretary of state's elections division at 1-800-252-VOTE (Voice/TDD).

Voting involves some tough decisions. Make a tough decision. Decide to vote.

U.S. Armed Forces enjoy Christmas through mail

"Words cannot express the gratitude that we feel toward you for making what otherwise would have been a dull Christmas into a most joyous Christmas for all to remember. Your thoughtfulness reflects great credit upon Americans and what America stands for. Continue to support U.S. service members...and may God be with you." These heartwarming words were received from a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army in response to the bundle of Christmas mail his unit received last year. Adds a colonel in the U.S. Marine Corps, " ... please accept my 'thank you' ... Mail Call ... made the holidays for my command ... Please keep up the good work."

Concerned, thoughtful Americans have for the past decade been making Christmas more joyous for members of the Armed Forces of the U.S. through Christmas Mail Call. Mail received from across the nation is sorted into some 150 or more bundles and sent to destinations across the U.S. and around the world for distribution to members of our Armed Forces.

Our sincere thanks go to them as well as to all the other wonderful folks who had a part in making last year's Christmas Mail Call the most successful every.

Mail Call is an exciting project for groups, organizations, churches, families, individuals, and schools from kindergarten through college . . . in short, for just about everybody! For complete information on how you, your family and your group can have a part in this unique, patriotic program please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope (business-size if possible) to: MILITARY MAIL CALL, BOX 6390, Fort Bliss, Texas 79906. Thank you!

PSAT/NMSQT scheduled at FHS October 22nd

This fall the nearly 1.5 million students across the United States who take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) will have a special opportunity to familiarize themselves with the testing format also used on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

On the PSAT/NMSQT, the 28 students taking the test at Floydada High School on October 22 at 8:30 can "preview" the exam process for the SAT—the prerequisite for many college-bound students, said Sheree Cannon, school counselor.

Since 1959, about 30 million high school students have taken the test, which measures verbal and mathematical abilities.

This year, the PSAT/NMSQT will be offered Saturday, October 19 or Tuesday, October 22 at almost 20,000 high schools nationwide.

Through the PSAT/NMSQT students are selected for the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Program, which enables talented students to compete for scholarships, and Hispanic students are considered for the National Hispanic Scholar Awards Program, funded through a $2.1 million grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

In addition, students can use the test as a guide to see how they ranked nationally among other students.

As preparation for the 100-minutes, two-part test, students receive a Student Bulletin containing a complete sample test with an answer key and scoring instructions.

After taking the actual test, students will receive a booklet, About Your PSAT/NMSQT Scores, a descriptive explanation of test results. Students will also be able to compare their individual answers with the correct answers by consulting the Report of Students Answers, another valuable guide. Actual test booklets will also be made available to allow students to spot mistakes and work out answers correctly.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD—Bill Hendrix, Chief Juvenile Probation Officer for the 110th Judicial District, is pictured with the plaque he was given on October 8. The award was made for distinguished service and exceptional committment to the Texas Probation Training Academy and the Criminal Justice Center. Hendrix serves Floyd, Briscoe, Dickens, and Motley counties through the 110th District.

Amendment supports water conservation

Approval of Constitutional Amendment No. 2 by state voters in the general election on November 5, 1985, would conserve the water supplies of the state of Texas, thereby making water available for future use by municipalities, industries and agriculture, according to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Voter acceptance of this constitutional amendment, which provides for the issuance and sale of $200 million in bonds to create the Agricultural Water Conservation Program, will set the wheels in motion for irrigators throughout the state to obtain low interest loans for upgrading their irrigation application efficiency.

Seventy-two percent of the water currently used in the state of Texas is used by agriculture. At the onset of this bonding program, a pilot program funded with $5 million will be established to test the success of a low interest loan program, as well as test the interest of irrigators in this type of program.

Funds available through this bonding program will be administered by underground water conservation districts an the soil and water conservation districts throughout the state.

Irrigation application efficiency improvements that could be considered under this loan program include the modification of existing center pivot sprinkler systems. This type of modification has been documented to improve water-use efficiency up to 20 percent. Additionally, the installation of the underground pipeline, which eliminates evaporation and deep percolation water losses in transporting irrigation water, could be funded, eliminating water losses from 10 to 20 percent per 1,000 feet. Also, the purchase of a surge irrigation system that improves irrigators' efficiency from 10 to 40 percent could qualify for a loan under this program.

Under the provisions of Constitutional Amendment No. 2, the only cost to state taxpayers would be in the case of a default on a loan made under the Agricultural Water Conservation Program. Even then, the cost would be minimal, as the equipment purchased under the loan would be sold at public auction. The proceeds of this sale would be used to repay the loan. Any balance remaining on the loan would then be shared on a 50-50 basis by the soil and water conservation district or the underground water conservation district issuing the loan, and the state.

Preconditioning improves health and value of calves

According to David McGowen of Producer's Coop in Floydada, local cattlemen could significantly improve the value of their calves by holding them after weaning on a preconditioning program for three to four weeks before sale.

"Cattle buyers will pay more for preconditioned cattle because they know that fewer will get sick or die after the stress of shipping," McGowen said. "And, because they've been started on feed, calves will go into a growing cycle much faster than cattle that were weaned right onto a truck."

McGowen recommends a preconditioning program which includes special health and nutritional attention along with preventive treatment by a local veterinarian.

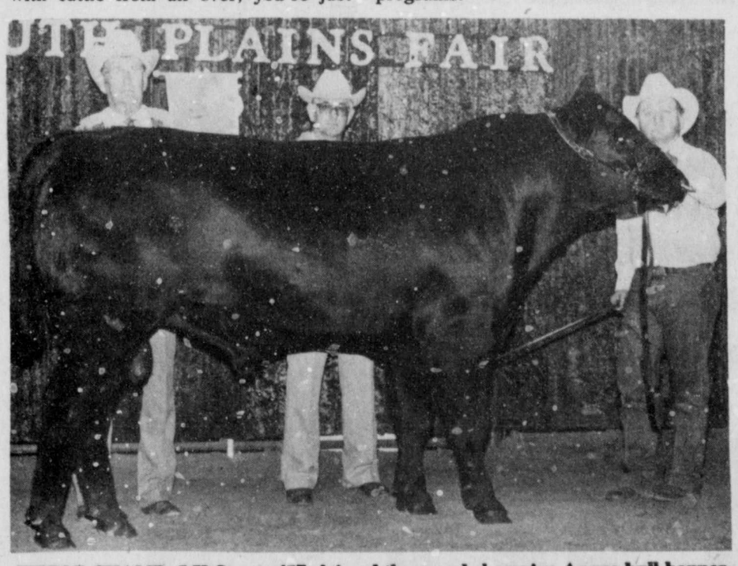

"Weaning is the most stressful time in a calf's entire life," McGowen said. "And when a calf is stressed it goes off feed, loses weight and most of its natural immunity. If you wean a calf then move it right to sale, mingling it with cattle from all over, you're just asking for it to get sick."

On the other hand, the feed supplier explained, thousands of tests have proven that preconditioned cattle are not only healthier, but during the preconditioning period they usually gain at least 50 to 60 pounds. "And that's during a period when they're usually expected to lose weight," he added.

"On the day of weaning they should be vaccinated according to the recommendations of a local vet. They then should be moved into a small pen that has some shelter from the weather."

The feed supplier added that the real key to the success of a preconditioning program is getting the calves to eat as soon as possible. "We suggest providing calves with plenty of fresh, clean water, and on the first day, all the top quality hay they can eat."

For the next 21 to 28 days the cattle should be fed, free-choice, a highly palatable complete feed that is formulated especially for preconditioning programs.

Texas farm families are subject of U.S.D.A. survey

More than, 1,750 farm and ranch families throughout Texas will be surveyed about work and family life during the next few weeks as part of a national research project sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The information collected will be used for improving and developing programs to aid farmers, ranchers and their families throughout Texas. Director of the project is Texas Tech University family economics Professor A. William Gustafson.

The mail survey will collect information about the effect of off-farm employment of family members, family functioning and the econimic situation of Texas farm and ranch families. The survey contains questions about family relationships, risk-taking, attitudes toward government and economic data.

"The survey is not lengthy and I hope people will take time to complete and return it," Gustafson said. "The survey offers a chance for farm and ranch families to give factual information to those who can help to improve the situation on farms and ranches in Texas."

The cooperative project, called S-191 by the USDA, is partially funded by the Texas Tech Home Economics Research Institute. The Texas survey is being administered through the Texas Tech University unit of the Texas A&M Agricultural Experiment Station.

Gustafson, who was asked by the USDA to direct the project, has both bachelor's and master's degrees in agricultural economics and a doctorate in family and consumption economics.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

The farm bill passed by the House in Washington October 8 leaves the door open, under certain conditions, for a reduction of the 1986 cotton loan rate by as much as 25 percent from the 1985 level. But, according to Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers,Inc., Lubbock, the bill has offsetting features that make this fact seem far less onerous.

The five-year bill provides that the loan be set by the same Market-oriented formula used in current law, eliminates the present 55-cent minimum and provides for a maximum reduction of five percent from one year to the next. However, if world prices fall below the loan level arrived at by that process, the Secretary would be required to apply up to another 20 percent cut to make cotton competitive in domestic and export markets.

In a worst-case scenario, this feature could reduce the 1986 loan to 43 cents from the 57.3 in effect this year.

"But the name of the game, " Johnson says, "is protecting overall producer income. And if left intact the target price provisions of the measure would furnish that protection."

The cotton target price would be frozen fro 1986 and 1987, he points out, and could not be reduced in the remaining three years unless the cost of production declines by five percent or more. PCG had sought a minimum 86-cent target price but that proposal fell short of the support necessary for passage.

Target price deficiency payments will equal the difference between the average price paid to farmers or the loan level, whichever is higher. "So if the loan drops, the cut in producer receipts from the loan or from the market will be made up by a corresponding increase in the deficiency payment," Johnson explains.

Also of interest to larger producers, he notes, is the amendment attached by 19th District Congressman Larry Combest that excludes from the $50,000 payment limitation any increase in the payment made necessary by a reduction of the loan below 55 cents.

Another cotton program provision Johnson finds attractive requires that if world prices fall below the final loan rate, payment-in-kind certificates with a value equal to the difference would be issued to first handlers to further assure a competitive price for U.S. cotton in world markets. There is also language in the bill to prevent the issuance of these certificates from reducing the official "average market price" used to calculate the loan rate in future years.

Supply control uncer the House bill would be achieved by giving the Secretary authority to require acreage reduction whenever the cotton carryover is expected to exceed one-third of domestic and export usage. Unpaid reductions could be required up to 25 percent and another 25 percent could be required under a paid diversion program. Payment could be in kind or in cash.

Each farm's base acreage for 1986 would be the average acreage planted in the last two years, with the numbers of years to be averaged rising each year until a five-year average is reached. Total of all program crop bases could not exceed available cropland on the farm.

Payment yields would be based on the average of actual yields for the past five years after dropping high and low years, but 1986 yields could not be below the 1985 level and yields through 1990 could not be less than 90 percent of the preceding year.

The Senate tentatively is scheduled to debate its version of a farm bill October 15, but most observers expect that debate to be postponed.

"We are a long way from having a farm bill passed by both houses and signed into law," Johnson cautions, "but if the end results improves our chances of maintaining and rebuilding markets through competitive pricing and at the same time protects producer income, as the House bill purports to do, it will be one of the few encouraging signs seen by the industry in several years."

COOPERATIVES

BUILDING A BETTER AMERICA

WHAT IS A COOPERATIVE?

A cooperative is a business voluntarily owned and controlled by the people who use it. It is organized and incorporated to engage in economic activities.

A cooperative provides services and benefits for its members in proportion to the use they make of their organization, rather than earning profits for investors.

The primary goal of a cooperative is to meet its members' needs in an economical and efficient manner. Six basic principles set cooperatives apart from other types of businesses:

- Operation at cost, with any profits allocated to patrons
- Member controlled
- Member owned
- Limited returns to equity capital
- Duty to educate the membership
- Cooperation among cooperatives

Sixty million Americans are members of the nation's more than 40,000 cooperatives. Cooperatives provide goods and services including electricity, telephone service, insurance, credit, food, housing, health care, child care, and even funeral services.

High Plains Underground Water District distributes comic books

"Dedicated to the principle that water conservation is best accomplished through public education," the Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District recently voted to purchase additional educational materials for use in the public schools within the Water District's service area.

The Board approved the distribution of a new educational comic book, "The Story of Drinking Water," which will be provided to school districts for use in grade one through three.

These are additions to the Water District's current education program which include educational films, booklets and programs which emphasize the importance of wise water management and conservation of the water supplies of the Ogalalla aquifer.

Initially, the District purchased copies of four films. These narrated presentations deal with varying insights into water awareness, availability and conservation. Each film is available from the Education Service Centers for students' use in the District's 15-county service area.

A text entitled, "An Introduction to Water and Water Conservation With Emphasis on the Texas High Plains," was written and published by the Water District. This booklet has proven to be a valuable supplement for earth and life science classes at the eighth and ninth grade levels. The booklet is also being used in many vocational agriculture classrooms.

Teachers' guides are also available for each of the texts. The teachers' guide contains hand-outs, tests and special projects provided for the students. All of these teachers' aids have been provided to the 65 school districts within the Water District's service area. Additional copies are made available to schools within the District as needed by the teachers.

Further, an educational comic book, "Water: The Basis of Life," has been provided for grades four through six, and the message is directed to the use of water in everyday living.

Additional information on the Water District's educational programs and materials can be attained by contacting the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas, 79405.

Water amendment may aid local towns and cities

Approval of Constitutional Amendment No. 1 by state voters in the general election on November 5, 1985, could provide a boost for many towns and cities throughout the state of Texas that are experiencing water problems, according to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Constitutional Amendment No. 1 provides for a total of 980 million dollars in additional state bonds to be administered through the Texas Water Development Fund. Proceeds from the sale of these bonds could be used by the smaller cities and towns throughout the state for water development, water quality, flood control and/or water supply projects.

Basically, Constitutional Amendment No. 1 provides for the following:

* $400 million in state bonds to allow for state participation in the acquisition and development of facilities for the storage, transmission, transportation, and treatment of water and wastewater;
* $190 million for water quality projects;
* $200 million for flood control projects; and
* $190 million for water supply projects.

Cities and towns throughout the state that have demonstrated that they cannot sell bonds on the open market at reasonable interest rates could, through these bonding programs, take advantage of the state's triple-A bond rating. Developers working to bring several small projects together into one regional system could also benefit from these bonding proposals.

By taking advantage of these bonding proposals the cost of the facilities developed would be reduced, which would in turn reduce the cost to local residents who will be taking advantage of the facilities created.

All loans made by the state from these bond funds are to be repaid in full, including interest, by the direct beneficiaries of the projects involved. Therefore, there would be no long-term cost to state taxpayers.

Cooperatives market crops

Almost a quarter of all farm crops are marketed through cooperatives. Agricultural marketing cooperatives protect farmers against the harsh effects of the speculative market and add an important competitive element to their marketing environment. They have improved and stabilized farm prices, without increasing costs to consumers.

Marketing cooperatives have also helped to improve the quality of food products reaching consumers, by emphasizing grading and labeling and insisting on high standards for the food distribution system.

More than 4,200 cooperatives in the United States market farm commodities. Increasingly, marketing cooperatives are getting into the farm supply business. Conversely, supply co-ops are adding marketing to their services.

But the primary function of marketing cooperatives is to bring to market raw foodstuffs ranging from dairy products, livestock and grain to fruits, vegetables and poultry. A hundred trade names of cooperatively marketed farm products—such as Sunkist, Land O' Lakes, Sunmaid, Ocean Spray, Farmland, Blue Diamond, Welches, and Farmbest—today stand for dependable quality wherever American consumers find them.

Weather damages cotton

Recent cold, wet weather across the High Plains caused heavy damage to cotton leaf tissue and essentially eliminated prospects for further fiber development. As a result, cotton producers must decide whether to terminate the crop with harvest-aid chemicals or wait for a killing freeze to desiccate and condition the crop for harvesting, advises a cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Applying harvest-aid chemicals adds an expense that many producers would rather avoid, noted Dr. James Supak, the Extension specialist. However, it is quite possible that a killing freeze may not occur for another three to five weeks, he warned. "Additional exposure of open cotton to weather elements could result in weight and quality losses that would more than offset the savings incurred by not applying harvest-aid chemicals. A recent analysis by Dr. Jackie Smith, Extension economist and farm management specialist, indicates that yield and quality losses can easily result in losses of $4-5 per bale each week," he noted.

Although the cotton plants were heavily damaged by the extreme weather conditions, the plants are still alive and capable of carrying out certain functions, Supak said. At this time, the most important of these involves the natural dehydration (hardening) of the bolls. This process will eliminate the possibility of extensive freeze damage (formation of ice crystals within the boll that eventually result in rotting of the boll) an enable the bolls to open normally, Supak said.

Desiccants will be needed to dry and condition plant materials for harvest. These chemicals can be applied once the boll hydration process is essentially completed, Supak said. He recommended that the use of desiccants be delayed until 75-80% or more of the bolls are open and the remaining bolls are essentially mature.

"Generally, bolls are mature when they are too hard to be dented when squeezed between thumb and fingers, too hard to be sliced with a sharp knife and when the seed coat becomes light brown in color," he explained.

Desiccants which are approved for use on cotton are paraquat and arsenic acid. These can be used alone or can be tank mixed with Accelerate, the Extension specialist said. Recommended use rates for these chemicals are 1-2 pints paraquat per acre; 1-1.5 quarts arsenic acid per acre; tank mix of 1-2 pints paraquat plus 1-2 pints Accelerate per acre; and a tank mix of 1.5 pints arsenic acid plus 1.5 pints Accelerate per acre.

"In some instances, even lower than recommended rates may provide adequate desiccation," Supak said. "The optimum rates must be determined by trial and error and are likely to change with variations in weather and plant conditions. With adequate soil moisture, some regrowth is likely upon the return of warmer, more open conditions. Arsenic acid is the more effective desiccant in controlling regrowth."

For best results, desiccants should be applied when winds are relatively calm, temperatures are in the 70's or higher, and 3-5 days of open, milk weather can be expected, Supak said. "Good spray coverage is essential for effective desiccation. Surfactants should be used to allow better distribution of the desiccant on plant parts. Where ground equipment is to be used, the addition of drop nozzles should be considered to improve coverage."

Desiccants constitute a production expense that farmers could avoid by waiting for a freeze to kill and condition the crop for harvest, the Extension specialist said. "Unfortunately, delaying harvest after the crop is ready can prove to be substantially more costly than the cost of the chemicals needed to prepare the crop for timely harvest."

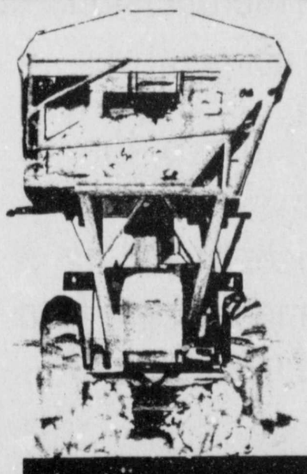

U.S.S.R. purchases corn

Private exporters today reported to the U.S. Department of Agriculture export sales of 1,000,000 metric tons of corn for delivery to the USSR during the 1985-86 marketing year and under the third year of the Long Term Grain Supply Agreement.

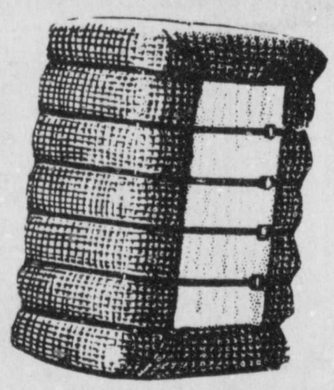

The marketing year for corn begins October 1.

With today's sales, corn to the USSR for delivery during the third year of the agreement (which begins Oct. 1, 1985 and ends Sept. 30, 1986) totals 1,600,000 tons.

Sales of wheat and corn to the USSR for delivery during the second year of the Long Term Grain Supply Agreement (which ends Sept. 30, 1985) now total 18,637,300 tons, of which wheat is 2,887,200 tons and corn is 15,750,100 tons.

Christian Living

By Earl N. Blair

"The old sinful nature within us is against God.
It never did obey God's laws and it never will."
(Romans 8:7 Paraphrased)

In this scripture Paul is telling us that we will never be able to live the Christian life through our own efforts. But we can trust Christ to live His resurrected life through us. He, and He alone, can enable us to live the Christian life. It's faith, not effort, that pleases Him.

The better we know God, the more we can trust Him. The more we trust Him, the more we experience the reality of His love, grace and power. Faith is like a muscle; it grows with exercise.

We need to experience the life that is ours in Christ. There is a story of a man who had just enough money to buy his ticket on board a ship. So he would not get hungry, he brought along some cheese and crackers. The first few days at sea the crackers and cheese tasted pretty good, but eventually they got stale. Noticing all the fine food the porter was bringing the other passengers he stopped the porter and told him that he would do anything to get some of the fine steaks and delicious food the other passengers were eating. "I'll wash dishes, sweep, or scrub deck." The porter asked him if he purchased a ticket, and he assured him he had, and the porter said, "The food comes with the ticket."

And so it is with the Christian's life, we can enjoy all the wonderful benefits that come through knowing Jesus Christ if we will live by faith.

Lung cancer deaths decreasing

Lung cancer death rates are steadily decreasing in young Texas men, according to an article in the scientific journal Texas Medicine.

During the period 1970-1983, there was an 18.8 percent decrease in lung cancer deaths among white men aged 35-44 and a 39 percent decrease in black men of the same age. Fewer cigarette smokers have contributed to these decreases.

The article, written by Dr. Guy Newell, Dr. David T. Carr, and H. Keith Lynch, appears in the September issue of the Texas Medical Association journal. The authors are all with the Division of Medicine at The University of Texas MD Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Houston.

Differences occur when comparing the lung cancer death rates among white and black men of Texas aged 45-54. Over the 14-year period studied, there was a 14.4 percent decline in the number of deaths among white men, while the incidence of death among black men rose 10.3 percent. In both white and black men, the rate of death due to lung cancer increased in those aged 54-65. The authors note the increase was slower for white men and that this may mean a downturn in lung cancer deaths among white men aged 54-65 during the next five years. They add that it is reasonable to expect similar decreases among black men.

The article also mentions a reduction in lung cancer death rates among white men aged 35-44 in the U.S. as a whole from 1969-1979. In addition, in 1964 slightly more than 50 percent of men were regular smokers, while in 1979 the prevalence of smoking among men was 37%.

Bullock collects $1.2 million

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has said he's collected an extra $1.2 million in taxes in less than two weeks as the result of publicity stemming from businesses closed for delinquent sales taxes.

Bullock ordered five businesses in Dallas and Houston padlocked and began planning similar seizures in other Texas cities.

The raids have prompted many delinquent taxpayers to voluntarily step forward and clean up their accounts, he said.

"The threat of nasty notoriety has the miraculous effect of turning delinquent taxpayers into law-abiding citizens," he said.

SOUTH PLAINS NEWS

By Mrs. Murray Julian

South Plains, October, Monday the 7th:

Mrs. Nettie Adams and Mrs. Letha Mulder of Floydada went to Amarillo where they spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives.

This Monday morning the wind was really blowing up a storm, but in the afternoon it showed signs of calming down.

Farmers are working from early light to dark stripping cotton. They are working long hours while the weather is dry.

They had eight inches of snow last week in Denver and Littleton, where my folks live. But the sun came out and it soon melted all the light snow that fell.

South Plains room mothers are selling fresh pecans in the halves. The bags are $4.00 each. Please contact Sue Givens at 983-2634, or Lora Bethel at 983-3045.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Julian of Roscoe, Mr. and Mrs. Kendis Julian and Tim, and Mrs. M.M. Julian of South Plains will all be attending the wedding of Mrs. Grace Shipman of Perryton and Bruce Julian of Perryton. Attendents will be David and Steven Shipman and Clay and Wade Julian. The wedding will take place at 3:00 p.m. Saturday afternoon, at the Holly Chapel First Baptist Church on October 12. A reception will follow in the church parlor.

We are happy to have Pat Stewart home from the Lockney Hospital. She was released Thursday October 3 and is now back to work at the post office.

The 23rd day of September is the first day of Autumn.

Remember Hobby Club members of South Plains that Habby Club will be meeting this coming Thursday. Club will be meeting at the home of Mrs. Sterling Cummings and on Thursday instead of Wednesday as it always has done in the past years. The time will be 2:00 p.m. October 10th. Becky McPherson will be talking about making a will. This is something each family needs to know all about.

We extend congratulations to the family of Terry and Lisa Roberts of Sterley, who became parents of a precious baby boy, born at Lockney General Hospital October 3rd. He has been named Jimmy Lane. He was 20 inches long and weighed 7 pounds 10 ounces. His grandparents at Sterley are Mr. and Mrs. Jim and Peggy Roberts.

If you would like to have more of the lovely Irish Acres pecans let the ladies, Lora Bethel and Sue Givens know, just remember they are $4.00 a pound and are whole, not in pieces.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Minnie May Burns extends their sincere appreciation for the many acts and expressions of love and sympathy during the loss of our dear one. Our love and thanks to the entire staff at the Lockney Care Center and to Dr. Gary Mangold for their kind and loving care; to George Schuster and members of Main Street Church of Christ for the service, the music and the food; to the staff of Moore-Rose Funeral Home whose helpfulness and attention are beyond expression; to all who comforted us in so many ways our love and gratitude.

We want to let Floydada and the surrounding area know how much we appreciate your support and business throughout the years we have owned the City Trim Shop. It has been moved to Levelland into a building behind our home at 1929 Avenue H. If you need any upholstery call us at 894-1681. We are both looking forward to living in Levelland and sad to leave Floydada. Thank you so much for everything you have meant to us. Be sure and come to see us.

Love,
Jerry and Julie Finley

We would like to thank everyone who helped us send Ernest Bryant back home. Special thanks to S.O.S., the Sheriff, and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Jones.

Murphy and Ruth Roberson

Iwant to extend by appreciation to Mrs. Kinder Farris and the Floyd County Arts Association for their joint efforts in bringing the performance of Hansel & Gretel to the elementary school children of the Floydada Independent School District.

The performance was truly an outstanding event that was enjoyed by the faculty and students of A.B. Duncan Elementary and R.C. Andrews Elementary.

Thank you for extending this courtesy to our school system.

Sincerely,
Jerry Cannon
Superintendent
Floydada Independent School District
