Tax Hike Plea Brushed Aside

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

HEALTH Sciences Center Hospital's best chance to get voter support for a proposed tax increase is to prove that the teaching facility "has its house in order," County Judge Rod Shaw said Tuesday.

Shaw speculated about the results of such a vote after a special meeting of the County Commissioners where Lubbock County Hospital District officials made their formal pitch for increased tax revenue to prop up the hospital's sagging finances.

Commissioners refused to raise taxes on their own, saying if higher taxes are the only way out of Health Science's cash flow problems, an election will be called to approve or reject the increase. The commissioners will make a decision on the election at their regular June 25 meeting.

Shaw isn't taking any bets as to how the commissioners will vote, although he personally supports an election to decide the issue.

"Even the board of managers (for the hospital district) and the county commissioners are unsure as to some of the variables," Shaw said. The hospital doesn't have its financial management problems solved yet, he said, adding that the "board is desperately working on it."

Shaw speculated further, saying if it comes down to raising taxes or closing the hospital, voters will probably vote for higher taxes.

The hospital district is hoping to double the revenue they get from county taxes, by increasing assessment from the current 40 percent of appraised value to around 80 percent.

Tax Outlook Explained

Chairman of the LCHD Board of Managers Jack Strong outlined what the proposed tax increase would mean for a property owner paying taxes on a $40,000 house:

Because county property is currently appraised at 70 percent of market value, the homeowner is only being appraised at $28,000. And because the taxes are paid on only 40 percent of that reduced apraisal, the homeowner pays taxes on $11,200.

At the current hospital district allotment — the maximum by law — the district receives 75 cents on every $100 of valuation. At the 40 percent valuation, the property owner pays $84 a year to the hospital district. At a 60 percent valuation, the property owner would pay $126 a year.

And if the distrcit gets what it wants — an increase to 80 percent valuation — the owner of the $40,000 home will pay $186 a year to the hospital district.

Hospital district officials agreed to come up with exactly how much tax money is needed to keep the hospital open by the June 25 commissioners' meeting. If the commissioners decide to hold the election, voters will decide the issue August 11.

Estimates push the cost for such an election at around $5,000.

Commissioner Alton Brazell warned against scheduling an election "prematurely", asking for a report from the not-yet-formed "Blue Ribbon Committee" charged with outlining the hospital's financial situation as well as analyzing the facility's economic impact on the community.

"If we jump up and call an election, and it loses," he warned, "we'll be in trouble."

Hospital district executive director Gerald Bosworth is predicting a collection of about 65 percent of the hospital's $7 million in bad debts. But even that will leave the district about $4 million short of needed funds, Bosworth said.

Unpaid Bills Questioned

Commissioners quizzed the hospital representatives on the current status of the facility's alarming level of unpaid bills, finding that of the $7 million in bad debts, only two percent was accumulated by those declared legally indigent.

Texas Tech medical school spokesman Dr. Richard Lockwood, vice president for Health Sciences Centers, said that cost cuts and attempts to raise revenue would in many cases limit the hospital's abilities as a teaching facility.

"We can really only cut clinical programs so far," he said, saying that cutbacks to a certain level would eliminate it as a teaching hospital.

"If you reduce the staff enough, you can break even," Lockwood said. "Then the question is — What have you got left?"

The commissioners recessed, planning to reconvene at 9 a.m. Thursday to discuss appointments to the LCHD Blue Ribbon Committee.

Fuel Hoard Ban Wins Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to give President Carter limited new powers to deal with fuel shortages, including authority to ban home gasoline hoarding.

The legislation was approved 77 to 13 and sent to the House after senators overwhelmingly rejected a proposed amendment that would have forced motorists to leave their cars home one day a week.

However, the Senate unanimously agreed to an amendment by Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., giving the president blanket authority to ban the installation of home gasoline storage tanks and other forms of fuel hoarding.

Gas Hoarding Warned

Huddleston said the proposal "is intended to stop the hoarding of gasoline which has already begun in recent weeks and which I think we can reasonably expect to escalate in the coming months if it is not checked."

Depicted by some backers as a substitute for Carter's rejected standby plans for gas rationing and energy conservation, the bill would allow the president to set national conservation targets during serious shortages.

The president could prescribe a variety of steps to meet these targets — ranging from alternate driving days to bans on city parking — but he could only enforce them if states failed to come up with their own plans for meeting his targets.

Automatic Authority

This would not apply, however, to the authority to ban home gasoline storage tanks — which Carter would receive immediately if the legislation reaches his desk.

Carter would be expressly prohibited from banning gasoline sales on weekends as part of any plan to conserve energy. This was the result of a condition attached by the Senate Energy Committee and endorsed by the full Senate.

The bill would give the president more power than he currently holds to deal with fuel shortages but far less than he requested in the package of standby energy conservation measures recently rejected by Congress.

And critics said that the complexity of the process — requiring steps by both the president and the states — would virtually assure that the plan couldn't be used to ease gasoline shortages this summer.

"Good Beginning"

Still, Senate Energy Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash, called the bill "a good beginning on a long-range conservation effort."

Earlier, the Senate rejected, on a 79-10 vote, a proposal by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., that would have required all cars to bear windshield stickers stating one day of the week on which they couldn't be driven.

The plan would have been mandatory, taking effect within 60 days of the

Mackey Expected To Get Michigan State Position

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

TEXAS TECH University president Cecil Mackey is expected to be named the new president of Michigan State University at a news conference in East Lansing Thursday.

Mackey, 50, visited the Michigan campus Tuesday, according to MSU officials, but he could not be reached for comment. Sources say Mackey is the prime contender for the post at the school, which has twice Tech's enrollment.

Mention of him as a candidate first was made in a newspaper story in East Lansing in late April. Following publication of the story, he reportedly withdrew from consideration.

However, acting president of the school Dr. Edgar Harden has indicated he is leaving June 30, and the pressure is on to find a replacement this month.

The search for his replacement has lasted 19 months.

A search committee member told The Avalanche-Journal late Tuesday that the board of trustees will interview job candidates today and probably will decide by tonight who to hire for the position.

The MSU president currently earns $67,500, slightly more than Mackey's Tech salary of $63,000.

An MSU trustee said the board expects to reach a decision tonight and announce it Thursday.

John Bruff, chairman of Michigan State's board of trustees, said the original list of candidates included 250 names, although he declined to confirm or deny that Mackey is a candidate.

"We've had problems in names being released," Bruff explained.

In late April, the names of Mackey, Archie Dykes of University of Kansas and Charles Ping, president of Ohio University were mentioned as the top contenders for the job. Mackey and Dykes reportedly withdrew after their names were released. Ping was interviewed three times.

Woman Also Interviewed

Barbara Reagan, an economics professor at Southern Methodist University, also was interviewed at the Michigan campus last week.

Bruff said the criteria for the job includes knowledge and experience with a land grant university, committment to affirmitive action, scholarly accomplishments, experience in administration, budget and fiscal matters, and a president who works well with the state legislature, private fund raising, faculty, students and alumni.

Mackey came to Tech in 1976 from University of South Florida at Tampa where he was president from February 1971 to 1976. He was in other administrative positions at Florida State University from 1969 to 1971.

He received bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Alabama and a doctor of philosophy degree in economics from the University of Illinois. Mackey also did graduate law study at Harvard Law School.

Worked With FAA

Mackey worked for the federal government from 1963 to 1969, holding posts with the Federal Aviation Agency, the U.S. Department of Commerce and the U.S. Department of Transportation.

The Michigan job offer is at least the second offer in six months for Mackey, who was considered for the presidency of the University of Texas at Austin last fall. Mackey also was a candidate for the UT job in 1975.

Michigan State University, the largest in the state and one of the larger schools in the country with an enrollment of 46,500, includes three medical facilities: a college of osteopathic medicine, a college of human medicine, and a college of veterinary medicine.

DC-10 Groundings Delayed By Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge told the Federal Aviation Administration to ground all U.S.-registered DC-10 jetliners Tuesday, but hours later he allowed the jetliners to stay in the air.

A telephone conference call in mid-evening ended a day of legal confusion that began when U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. ordered the FAA to ground the jets.

As the FAA prepared a directive to comply, its lawyers used the conference call to persuade Robinson to delay the effect of his order — at least until after a new hearing this morning.

"There will be no further action required of the FAA (tonight)," Robinson told U.S. attorneys during the conference call.

FAA spokesman Dennis Feldman said Robinson's stay of his own order was issued "just as we were putting words on paper" to direct an immediate grounding Tuesday night.

As far as it was known, no airlines voluntarily banned their DC-10s from the sky.

Robinson had ordered the DC-10 fleet grounded after hearing arguments from an airline passenger group that contended the planes weren't safe.

The wide-bodied jets have been grounded twice since an American Airlines DC-10 crashed last month in Chicago. Another grounding would have disrupted travel on 138 U.S.-registered aircraft operated by eight airlines. The planes carry 33,000 passengers a day.

Government lawyers asked Robinson for the hearing this morning to give them a chance to change his mind about the safety of the DC-10.

Robinson okayed another night of flying for the DC-10s after government attorneys informally asked the U.S. Court of Appeals for a stay of his grounding order. Royce Lamberth, chief of the U.S. attorney's office civil division, said he asked the appeals court for the stay "so we don't have to issue a grounding order tonight." But a government lawyer said the appeal was abandoned because of Robinson's ruling.

At the hearing this morning, said John Leyden, an FAA spokesman, "we will seek to assure the judge that everything that needs to be done to the DC-10s is being done."

Leyden said the FAA is studying the effect of the judge's ruling and had not issued a grounding order by late Tuesday. All airlines with DC-10s contacted by The Associated Press said they were contining service.

In his order, Robinson directed FAA chief Langhorne Bond to bar continued operation of DC-10s "until such time as the cause for the loss of the left engine on American Airlines DC-10 Flight 191 is identified and sufficient corrective mea-

Rain, Twisters, Hail Highlight Storm Activity

UNRELENTING rains and occasional hail pounded the South Plains and Panhandle Tuesday while teasing twisters danced and dipped from towering cloud masses.

However, this area will enjoy a brief respite from the rain today, with the National Weather Service predicting more sunshine and no significant precipitation through Thursday.

The numerous funnel sightings reported throughout Tuesday started with a tornado that touched down nine miles southeast of Earth shortly before noon. National Weather Service radar indicated another possible tornado at the same time in the Olton area.

Several Funnels Reported

At 4:40 p.m., radar indicated a possible tornado 15 miles northeast of Littlefield, moving east-northeast at 20 mph. Five minutes before, a funnel cloud was reported by the public four miles north of Littlefield.

At 5:08 p.m., the Hale County Sheriff's Office reported a funnel cloud just west of Hale Center. Within 15 minutes, radar indicated another possible tornado 10 miles southwest of Plainview moving northeast at 20 mph.

None of the tornadoes stayed on the ground long, and no major damages or injuries were reported.

A slow-moving upper-level storm system triggered the heavy rains that drenched already saturated South Plains counties as it moved ponderously east.

The water-laden thunderclouds, which topped at 37,000 feet, prompted severe thunderstorm warnings for all South Plains counties at some time Tuesday.

As they moved through the area, the storms dumped up to an inch of rain in

Nuclear Waste Hearings Set

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE DEPARTMENT of Energy will conduct three formal hearings in Albuquerque and Carlsbad, N.M., this week on a proposed nuclear burial ground to be located about 27 miles southeast of Carlsbad.

Although the hearings are open to the public, only those persons who have pre-registered to speak on the Waste Isolation Pilot Project (WIPP) will be heard by the six-man panel of DOE officials and university professors.

Thursday's and Friday's hearings are scheduled to be held at the Albuquerque Convention Center. Thursday's session will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 10 p.m. The Friday hearing is slated from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The hearing moves to Carlsbad Saturday, where it is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Rodeway Inn ballroom.

Approximately 84 persons, representing views for and against the proposed nuclear waste facility, have registered to speak before the panel at the three hearings.

"I think the bulk of the persons who have been authorized to speak represent anti-nuclear organizations," Bob Rudolph, deputy project manager for WIPP, said from Albuquerque Tuesday.

Rudolph added that speakers will be limited to 20-minute presentations.

The panel is comprised of Ernest C. Hardin Jr., Office of Nuclear Waste Management, DOE; Dr. Robert Stern, National Environmental Protection Administration, DOE; Martin L. Rogowsky, General Counsel's Office, DOE; Leo Duffey, E.G. and G., Inc., DOE operating contractor, Idaho Falls, Idaho; Dr. John H. Cumberland, University of Maryland; and Dr. Irwin Remson, Stamford University.

Basically, the WIPP would be a receiving station for some of the nation's estimated 100 million gallons of "transuranic" (elements heavier than uranium) garbage, as well as a giant ashcan for contaminated clothing, instruments and other such material.

The "hot" waste would be stored between 2,100 and 2,650 feet below the surface in what are believed to be geologically stable salt formations. The depth of any burial would depend on the relative radioactiveness of the waste.

Originally, the WIPP site was envisioned as a burial ground for defense-related waste, which now is stored at three sites: Hanford, Wash.; Idaho Falls, Idaho; and Aiken, S.C.

The DOE held a formal hearing before the panel in Idaho Falls Tuesday night.

After this week's formal hearings, the panel will use the information presented to them to upgrade the project's environmental impact statement.

In other developments Tuesday, the DOE has notified Texas Attorney General Mark White's office that it will hold additional hearings in Texas on the proposed nuclear waste storage facility.

Assistant Attorney General Rick Lowerre said Tuesday the DOE has informed the office that a letter was

Smaller Bedroom Windows Spurned

City Building Board of Appeals members Tuesday rejected a proposal from local home builders to reduce size requirements for bedroom windows.

Board chairman Raymond Powell broke a 3-3 tie among board members saying the city should wait until the 1979 code is studied later this year to make the proposed changes.

"We would feel it's superfluous at this time (to change the code) when the code will be revised later," Powell explained following his vote.

Present building regulations require bedroom windows open 5.7 square feet to allow firemen and occupants to pass through them in a fire.

Ken Flagg of Ken Flagg Homes asked the board to recommend that the City Council reduce the space to four square feet.

In addition, the present code requires windows open 20 inches wide and 24 inches deep.

Flagg proposed the minimum depth be reduced to 20 inches and the width left as it was.

Flagg and representatives of the Lubbock and West Texas Home Builders Association and a local window supplier argued that smaller windows would reduce energy costs and look better.

Some city building inspectors began cracking down on window code violations last year, and WTBA executive president M.B. Smith said builders now are confused about the exact wording of the code.

Most national and regional codes changed the window requirements from five to 5.7 square feet in 1976 at the recommendation of firefighters, said Henry Kight, assistant building official. Lubbock followed suit that year, he said.

However, some inspectors did not enforce the new requirement until a year and a half ago, Kight said. At that time, the inspectors were "told to get in line," he added.

Kight read the window requirements to the board following Smith's complaint, and most members and builders agreed the code's wording is clear.

Prior to the board vote, Lubbock Fire Department representatives demonstrated that a firefighter in full gear could enter a window 20 inches by 24 inches wide, an area smaller than what the code requires and what Flagg proposed.

Board members and five other persons were appointed last month by the City Council to prepare the city's new building code.

Building code committee members are waiting for the national and regional codes to be published before beginning work on the Lubbock regulations, Powell said.

AN EDITORIAL:

Man's Survival Entails Risks

MASS DEMONSTRATIONS have become such great fun that it's really no surprise when tens of thousands of anti-nuclear power chanters gather at power plant construction sites around the globe.

But it would be incredible if thinking people were to take seriously the incantations of the "hell no, we won't glow" crowd.

In the United States, where our very survival depends on development of adequate energy sources, the stop-all-progress protesters gathered over the weekend in Texas, Oklahoma, New York, Virginia, Massachusetts, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Wisconsin, Florida, Michigan, Illinois, Connecticut and Georgia.

Hundreds were arrested for trespassing and associated crimes.

IT'S UNDERSTANDABLE that people are concerned about the safety of nuclear power production.

There have been similar concerns about every progressive step forward made by man. There were those, for example, who said that man was not meant to fly—and, sure enough, 273 persons died in a single airplane crash only a couple of weeks ago.

The crash of a DC-10 in Chicago, however, was no more a reason for cancelling all airplane construction than was the Three Mile Island emergency—in which no one died—a logical reason for cancelling all nuclear power plant construction.

There are risks associated with everything man does in this earthly environment—including sitting on a river bank and waiting for a fish to swim by—but man must weigh the risks against the benefits in everything he does.

IN THE CASE OF energy, the American public is unwilling to understand that full support and profit incentives must be given to those who would make this nation more self-sufficient.

So long as we remain dependent on foreign oil, we remain in jeopardy of our lives. America must develop and use its fossil fuels even while developing with all due speed those nuclear power plants and other energy sources that will provide us with replacement energy in the future.

"No country or civilized society can tolerate a form of energy so linked to potential disaster that an area of thousands of square miles could be rendered uninhabitable to future generations," consumerist Ralph Nader told a weekend rally of anti-nuke protesters in Boston.

"I think the scarcity of oil and the rising prices for crude, which are a menace to the functioning of our economies, can lead to wars," West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt was saying meanwhile in support of developing nuclear energy.

Of the two, Schmidt and Nader, Schmidt is rooted much more firmly in reality.

AN EDITORIAL:

Yes-It-Is, No-It-Ain't World

IF THE AVERAGE American seems confused these days, he or she can't be blamed.

Hardly a day passes but that someone "in authority" comes up with a new explanation of how we got where we are—on energy, economics and morals—and at the same time offers a solution for what ails us.

The latest weekend with the pundits, particularly those on the talk shows, is a classic example. The subjects range from oil to sanctions.

ON ONE hand, the consumer groups are beating the drums for more controls, not less, on Big Oil.

Rising prices and an on-again, off-again gasoline supplies have motorists in a dither, government officials in a lather and no one acting calmly. To hear the consumer people, recent price increases are the doings of Big Oil, and even if gasoline goes to $1 or more a gallon, it probably will mean no more gasoline at the pump.

This group conveniently ignores the fact that the loss of Iran's vital supply was the major cause of our current problems. Never mind that the OPEC took advantage of the overthrow of a friend of the West in Tehran. To hear the critics, Big Oil took advantage of it. And presto, price increases!

OVER ON THE yes-we-are, no-we-aren't going to have a recession-depression, things are just as muddled.

The administration now admits that "Yes, maybe we just might have a slight recession of sorts." This is a deviation from past recent policy when top Carter people were telling all and sundry that things needed cooling off.

In the meantime, numerous private economists say that a mild recession, as measured by lower industrial output and hard goods orders, may already be underway.

AND ON THE international scene, the gabby Amb. Andrew Young is back in the act. Amb. Young's pitch is that it would be outrageous for the U.S. to lift economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

Never mind that most observers say that the Rhodesian elections were for the most part fair—a criterion for lifting sanctions against the Salisbury. Such a move would anger other black nations in Africa and they would retaliate, goes the argument. In other words, operate from a position of fear and let the Marxist-backed guerrillas call the shots.

If it all sounds like something from Alice in Wonderland, it is. The only difference is that the scenario is taking place on the banks of the Potomac and the actors are those chosen to lead us out of the wilderness of confusion, not into it.

ART BUCHWALD:

Senator Sleeps Through Oil Talk--And Why Not?

WASHINGTON—When it was revealed that California's Senator S.I. Hayakawa fell asleep during a White House meeting on his state's oil crisis a few weeks ago a lot of people were shocked.

I think Hayakawa did the right thing. There is nothing that can put anyone to sleep faster than people talking about the gasoline shortage.

When government officials start discussing it, you might as well get in some sack time, because whatever they tell you, they'll change their minds the next day.

President Carter believes the oil companies are responsible for the shortage.

The President doesn't believe it's the oil companies, but the American people, who are not taking the oil crisis seriously.

CARTER SAID the people who are really responsible are members of Congress.

Are you getting drowsy yet? If not, stay with me.

Decontrolling oil should be the incentive to our nation's fuel industry to look for new oil.

We've got to conserve our fuel resources and the only way to do this is to charge more for the product.

Americans will pay any price for gasoline, and therefore the only people to gain by high prices will be the oil companies.

We can save billions of barrels of oil a day if people would take mass transit.

Mass transit doesn't work.

THE FARMERS should have first priority on our fuel resources.

States which depend on tourism must be given more consideration for gasoline allocations than states that do not.

At the same time, industrial states must be assured of enough fuel to keep their factories humming.

For those who are still awake, let's keep going.

The Department of Energy has ordered refineries to cut back on making gasoline for cars and start stockpiling heating oil.

The Department of Energy has just changed its mind and is now urging refineries to continue making gasoline.

Things should be better in June than they were in May.

JUNE WILL probably be worse than May and so will every month that doesn't have an R in it.

Please don't smoke in bed while reading this article as you may fall asleep and start a fire.

Where were we?

Oh yes. The CIA and the Department of Energy and the oil companies cannot seem to agree on how much oil reserves there really are.

Mexico is still mad at Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and that's why we can't get Acapulco crude.

It is still cheaper to send Alaskan oil to Japan than it is to Houston.

The OPEC countries will probably raise the price of crude when they meet next month, and therefore we shouldn't send them any wheat.

THERE IS no gas shortage.

There is a gas shortage.

The oil companies are holding back.

The oil companies can't do any more until the environmental laws are changed.

California will get more oil.

California will get less.

God only knows how much California will get.

Good night, David—Good night, S.I. Hayakawa.

GEORGE F. WILL:

Memories Can Hurt

TOLEDO, SPAIN—One room in Toledo's Alcazar, the ancient but rebuilt fortress, reveals something important about the social soil in which Spanish democracy is planted.

It is the room where, in 1936, Col. Jose Ituarte Moscardo bid farewell to his son.

Moscardo, commander of Nationalist troops besieged in the Alcazar, received a call from the Republican commander, who said he would shoot Moscardo's son unless the Alcazar surrendered.

When the son was put on the line, Moscardo told him: "Commend your soul to God, shout 'Viva Espana!' and die like a hero." The son was shot a month later.

The memorial to this episode—a bullet-riddled room containing portraits of father and son, the telephones on which they spoke, and transcripts of what they said—is stirring to all visitors.

But it must stir in Spaniards passions that should be left unstirred. To a visitor from the United States, the display at the Alcazar seems like a strange, even provocative, way to memorialize a civil war.

Spain's civil war, the most passionate war in this century of war, ended 40 years ago. But it is not a faded, rather romantic, memory here, as the American civil war was in much of America in 1905, 40 years after Appomattox.

Even before America's civil war ended, the place that was to become the foremost shrine of the war, Gettysburg cemetery and battlefield, had been dedicated by the commander-in-chief of one army to the victims on both sides.

And by 1905, veterans from both sides were mingling in sentimental reunions at battlefields.

THERE ARE no similar reunions in Spain today. Spain's civil war was an ideological and class conflict.

The great questions of the American civil war, slavery and secession, were closed questions in 1865, but Spain's ideological and class questions could not be so decisively closed.

Furthermore, Franco, unlike Lincoln, was a vengeful victor. And if Lincoln had governed after the war for as long as Franco did—36 years—Lincoln would have been President until 1901.

Franco, and a Nationalist martyr killed by Republicans in 1936, are buried with special honor in the Valley of the Fallen, a huge basilica carved out of rock in a mountain northwest of Madrid.

THE BASILICA'S style is neo-Albert Speer, a heavy, pompous, graceless expression of the cultural barrenness of Europe's authoritarian rightists.

The Valley of the Fallen is, ostensibly, a memorial to the fallen of both sides. But only one side can find it satisfying.

At the palace where Franco lived from 1940 until he died in 1975, an inscription carved into a wall refers to the civil war as the "war of liberation."

The Franco regime was utterly without the sense that a civil war should be regarded as a national tragedy from which everyone loses.

Few Spanish towns are without a street named Generalissimo, a Plaza Franco, or a place named after some other Nationalist hero.

BUT TODAY, people of the political left control most town councils, and they are talking about changing some place names. This, too, can be inflammatory.

Londoners do not think about the name of Cromwell Road. At least most do not.

A few years ago, this "In Memoriam" notice appeared in the London Times:

"Cromwell: To the eternal condemnation of Oliver. Seditionist, traitor, regicide, racialist, protofascist and blasphemous bigot. God save England from his like."

Yes, and God save England, and all nations, but especially Spain, from the likes of the person who wrote that notice three centuries after Cromwell died.

Every nation has memories that rankle, and little gardens of resentment that can be cultivated by people eager to produce a bumper crop of bitterness.

THE SUCCESS of Spain's young democracy depends, in part, on how many such Spaniards there are.

Spain lost most of its empire so swiftly that it could not waste all its resources on a doomed attempt to retain the empire. Similarly, there was a fortunate aspect to Spain's civil war misfortune.

The war was bitter enough to bring Spaniards—even Spaniards, as some Spaniards say—to their senses.

To a substantial extent, Spain's democracy is living on negative capital, the memory of what unmodulated political conflict produced.

Now that Billy Carter is cured, maybe doctors can find out what causes Jimmy to act the way he does.

Billy's hospital stay cost him $12,000, or about what his bar bill would have been for a month.

ANDREW TULLY:

Time To Learn?

WASHINGTON—Until now, it had seemed unnecessary to take note in this space of the kiss-and-tell articles in the Atlantic by James Fallows, a former White House speechwriter. After all, everybody has a right to make a buck.

But Fallows has a point. After beating up President Carter and his aides, he came to an interesting conclusion.

He said he'd vote for his former employer in 1980 because "No other potential President...would be more likely to recognize the bureaucratic pitfalls than a re-elected President Carter with four years of painful education behind him..."

On-the-job training sometimes pays off, as Harry Truman proved, and Jimmy Carter's education certainly has been painful.

AT THIS POINT it appears that a majority in his own party would prefer to nominate almost anybody else for the Presidential nomination next year.

But without endorsing another chance for Carter, I suggest that a vote for continuity in the White House has its merits. America has sorely needed a measure of stability since Richard Nixon was forced out of office.

We have not been granted stability, and that poses the question of whether the voters committed a grievous error when they awarded the Presidency to Jimmy Carter in 1976.

The trauma imposed by Watergate cried for a season of permanence. Jerry Ford had bound up the Republic's wounds, but the process of recuperation was not complete; he needed more time to make the body politic ambulatory.

ALTHOUGH FORD had his weaknesses, he did a good job in directing the economy, today the No. 1 national issue. Under his administration, the rate of inflation had been reduced from 12 percent to 4.8 percent.

We are now back to double-digit inflation, a condition Ford says resulted from Carter's overstimulation of the economy in 1977.

Ford zeroed in on Carter's problem in an interview with UPI. Carter, he said, "had no reservoir of support up there (on Capitol Hill). He was a new neighbor on the block. He had no long-standing relationship with Republicans or Democrats, and you don't build that overnight."

Carter did have support—among blacks and liberals. But unlike Ford, a longtime member of Congress who became Republican House leader, Carter was a stranger to Capitol Hill.

HE COULDN'T call in any IOU's in Congress because he didn't have any. Indeed, he often seemed to be campaigning against a Congress owned and operated by the Democratic Party.

Meanwhile, the campaign to draft Ted Kennedy continues apace. Even House Speaker Tip O'Neill, who says he's on Carter's side, says Kennedy could beat Carter for the nomination.

Blacks, liberals, and activist women's groups have turned away from the man they elected.

Again without casting a Carter vote, it is simply too bad. What we needed in 1976 was a two-term President.

So far, however, this good and decent Georgian just hasn't shown a fast ball with enough hop to get himself re-elected. Here, unfortunately, we go again.

JAY HARRIS:

Santa Fe Encore...

SANTA FE, N.M.—One doesn't have to go half way around the world to find exotic, interesting places and people.

Although we have hopped around just about everywhere you care to mention in recent years, a journey we took this past weekend to this historic city at the end of the Santa Fe trail proved to be a sleeper.

More or less as a last-minute thought, we joined about 23 members and guests of the Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Association, for what turned out to be a fascinating three days.

It has been some 10 years since we last visited Santa Fe with its narrow, winding streets, historic square, churches, La Fonda, museum and hospitable homes. In a way, it's too bad. We discovered what many others annually or more often learn—Santa Fe isn't all that far away.

THIS CAPITAL city of the State of New Mexico can be just about anything one wants it to be.

To many, who live here and visit, it is a first class art colony, with topnotch professionals from near and far, rubbing shoulders and "doing their thing," whether it be in oils, watercolors, ceramics, metals, woods, yarn, you name it.

To others, it is a "nice place to visit," perhaps a brief way-stop on a vacation or for a weekend, to get away from it all. And to others, it is service in state or local government. As the capital, Santa Fe vies with much larger Albuquerque for attention.

But, above all, Santa Fe has a character all its own. Its self-imposed, native architecture—whether for a refurbished La Fonda hotel, a "new" Inn at Loretto, a Pizza Hut or the corner gas station—makes it almost unique among cities of the world.

SANTA FE can trace its history back even before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock.

According to an account of La Fonda, the first description of Santa Fe was written by the founder of the village in 1610. The city, and a fonda or inn, literally were at the end of the Santa Fe Trail.

A lot of history, people, blood and water, not to mention whiskey, bullets, cattle, tall tales, gamblers, politicians and high and low ladies have passed this way in the interim. Each has added to the lore and legend.

Santa Fe, with its uniform adobe construction, molded around modern shoppes, businesses, offices and homes, fairly reeks with nostalgia. Here, if one listens, can be heard the voices of Gen. and Mrs. U.S. Grant, President and Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes, Gen. William T. Sherman, John A. Sutter and Lew Wallace, the author of Ben Hur.

ALSO, IT IS said, the ghosts of Billy the Kid and the man who is credited with finally ending his career, Pat Garrett, lurk in the shadows.

The voices and music of Old Spain and Old Mexico mingle with the military music of U.S. soldiers sent to territory, and the intrigue of Spanish eyes and a lover's serenade still have a place in the present as well as the past.

Today, Santa Fe is what it has always been, a city different. Its natives, the Indians and Spanish speaking people, as well as early American and more cosmopolitan artists still live their own lives, do their own thing.

We were privileged to walk behind some interesting doors on the past weekend's sojourn. There, whether in the ancient walls of sculptor Boris Gilbertson's quaint home, the neat confines of Niki Threldkeld's flower-bedecked abode, the Folk Art Museum with its fabulous collections or the mountaintop home-workshop of Donna and Eddie Badynski, we had a ball. And learned a lot in the process.

SANTA FE is the home of the Santa Fe Opera, housed in a magnificent structure on the edge of town.

Here, outstanding artists draw not only the local folk, but visitors from coast to coast for a summer festival of fun and frolic and music under the New Mexico stars.

"Characters," and perhaps the word should not be in quotes since we mean it in a positive way, abound by the dozen in this city. It has always been that way, from the days of the U.S. Army to the present day independence of the Taos Indians.

In many ways, down through the years, Santa Fe has acted as a magnet, for the adventurer, the historian, the ladies of fortune, the painter, sculptor and the powerful politician.

Each and all have left their mark. For instance, the showcase home for the benefit of the Opera Guild is the Bronson Cutting Estate. It was built by Bronson Cutting, who came to Santa Fe in 1910 for his health. He became a power in the GOP and served as U.S. Senator from New Mexico from 1928 until his death in a plane crash in 1935.

WE ALSO MET one Ron Adams who graciously showed us the expert art of hand graphics. His work is a science as well.

We visited in the warm, comfortable studio of August Kaiser, a Bavarian painter, and the quaint home of Randal Davey, once the sawmill for the erection of Fort Marcy 140 years ago. And we watched a brass pouring at the Shidoni Foundry, a stone's throw from Ben Ortega's wood carvings place.

Santa Fe also is a modern city, with modern problems, one of which is its population, its chances for further federal aid as a "small city," and keeping its architecture sacred.

Recently, the Santa Fe city fathers asked the Census people to do a special head count to be sure the capital had the necessary 50,000 people to qualify for certain federal development funds. As things now stand, the count is expected to be "just under or just above" the 50,000 mark.

Somewhere around the hogans, the ghosts of the past must be looking down on Santa Fe with mixed emotions. But, for the most part, they must be pleased. In many ways, the city at the end of the trail has kept the faith.

THE COMPUTER boys have learned that the proportion of red-haired women in penitentiaries is much higher than the proportion of red-haired women in general population. They construe from this that redheads are more likely to turn into outlaws.

What they do not report is whether these redheads are naturally so or of the drug store variety. Scratch this one.

Death Penalty Sought In Trial

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Lawyers in the murder-for-hire trial of Charles County told prospective jurors Tuesday the state will ask the death penalty.

Three jurors had been selected by midday Tuesday.

The swarthy, 30-year-old defendant from San Antonio is accused of being the triggerman in the March 20, 1976, shooting death of Chere Buffington. The victim's former husband was convicted in January of hiring County to kill Mrs. Buffington. The jury, which had been told Buffington planned to collect $369,000 in life insurance, recommended the death penalty for Buffington, 34.

Charles Moore, 33, a co-defendant in the case, testified at the Buffington trial and is expected to be a prosecution witness here.

The first life insurance policy on record was issued in 1583 to William Gybbons, a London businessman.

Public School Teachers Receive Additional Salary Increases

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Some public school personnel can expect a 5.1 percent state pay hike during each of the next two years, but that figure represents only a portion of their total salary increase.

The total state salary hike for a given employee generally will include step increases of 3 to 4 percent for personnel who move up in salary level, plus the overall 5.1 percent raise recently voted by the legislature.

In addition, the finance bill provides for a 2 percent pay increase for employees who previously stayed at the same salary during the second year of a two-year step.

Although the pay increase applies to personnel in 17 pay grades, the salary situation for employees with bachelor's and master's degrees (at grades seven and eight respectively) will illustrate the provisions for salary increases.

A look at the existing salary schedule (which does not include local salary increments) for an employee in pay grade seven shows wages at 13 different steps or levels.

An employee at pay grade seven advances a step for each year of his or her experience until reaching the 10th step. The employee would then stay two years in that step, and two years in each of steps 11 through 13.

According to Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration, the highest step in the Lubbock school district at this pay grade is step 11. He said that no one has enough experience to reach the 12th step.

Instead of mandating that employees be frozen at steps 10-13 for two years each, the new finance bill provides for steps 10, 10a, 11, 11a, 12, 12a, 13 and 13a.

An employee will receive a salary increase for each of the intermediate "a-steps" as well as for all other steps.

For example, a teacher who received the minimum salary of $12,811 at step 10 last year will receive $13,729 at step 10a in 1979-80. The $13,729 is a 7.18 percent increase and includes the 5.1 percent hike and the extra 2 percent step increase.

An employee who made $13,381 at step 11 last year would have made only $14,057 (due to the 5.1 percent hike) during the coming year because he or she still would have been in step 11.

However, since the addition of a new step (11a), that employee will make $14,338 — a figure that includes the 5.1 hike plus the 2 percent step increase.

Those people who move whole steps rather than to an a-step generally will receive step increases of 3 to 4 percent plus their wage hikes, according to Leslie.

For instance, a beginning teacher who made the base salary of $8,541 last year will receive $9,272 during the 1979-80 school year — an increase of 8.55 percent. The teacher will be getting $432 for the 5.1 percent hike plus $299 for the step increase for a total increase of $731.

A teacher with a bachelor's degree at step four received $9,870 in wages last year. Next year that teacher will receive $928 more, or an annual state-funded salary of $10,798. The increase includes $499 for the 5.1 percent increase and $429 for the step increase.

At the master's degree level (pay grade 8) a beginning teacher last year received $9,110. This coming school year, that teacher will receive $9,970, or $860 more due to the 5.1 percent hike and the step increase from step zero to step one.

Although the state appropriated approximately $334 million for school salaries for the next two years, the increase in funds for Lubbock school salaries has not been determined, Leslie said.

The amount of local salary increments set by the board of trustees has not been established either. The local salary funds are added to the wages provided by the state.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JUNE 6, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 10, 21, 33, 44, 56, 67 ..... Be cautious today
Highs: 11-20, 34-43, 57-66 ..... Good day for athletics
Lows: 1-9, 22-32, 45-55, 68-75 ..... Husband your energy

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 4, 18, 32, 46, 60, 74 ..... Unstable emotions rule
Highs: 5-17, 33-45, 61-73 ..... Extrovert day
Lows: 1-3, 19-31, 47-59, 75-85 ..... Emotionally you're down

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 1, 17, 34, 50, 67, 83 ..... Memory undependable
Highs: 2-16, 35-49, 66-82 ..... Innovate, inaugurate
Lows: 18-33, 51-66, 84-95 ..... Avoid problem solving

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

9	A16	20	24	A11	4	13	A7	17	3

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

Youthful Slayer Of Model Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 40 detectives searched a Queens neighborhood Tuesday for the youth who killed a 25-year-old fashion model by throwing a 10-pound cinderblock from the roof of a nine-story apartment building.

"The detectives are out ringing doorbells and knocking on doors to see who was out last night," a spokesman at the 109th Precinct station said. "We have nothing new."

Bridget Manderson was pronounced dead at Booth Memorial Hospital of a fractured skull and neck, two hours after she was hit on the head by the 6-by 9-inch block. Authorities said she also suffered cardiac arrest.

Neighbors told police that youngsters had been throwing debris off the roof since some repair work was done there recently.

Miss Manderson, a model for a women's sportswear company, was walking with a male friend out of her apartment building in the Whitestone section when she was struck at about 7 p.m.

Recently divorced, Miss Manderson moved into the luxury complex a few months ago with a female roommate.

ARTICLES OF CONFEDERATION

The "Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union," adopted by the Continental Congress in 1777, did not establish a sovereign nation. The colonies, or states, delegated only those powers they could not handle individually, such as to wage war, establish a uniform currency, contract debts for general expense and make treaties for foreign nations.

Another Energy Source Foreseen In Algae

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — With the rising cost of crude oil, scientists are considering substitute fuels — coal, wood, manure, the sun. And scum.

"It's a high quality product," says Alfred Engel, a chemical engineering professor at Penn State who touts the use of algae as a supplemental energy source. "We're trying to learn whether it would be economically feasible to convert algae into oil, which would be blended with raw petroleum before it's refined."

Engel and graduate student Lih-yen Chin have been converting small amounts of algae into a clear golden oil.

Autopsy Discounts Chance Of Foul Play In Hart Death

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The family of Gene Leroy Hart on Tuesday claimed foul play in his death in a prison exercise yard, but the state's chief medical examiner said Hart had a history of heart problems and died of a coronary.

Hart, 35, was acquitted two months ago in the 1977 killings of three Oklahoma Girl Scouts. The medical examiner refused to speculate if Hart's month-long trial for the killings added to the heart problems.

Hart was serving some earlier sentences from Mayes County at the time of his death. He had escaped from the county jail about 10 months before the killings of the young scouts.

Dr. A. Jay Chapman said a preliminary autopsy showed death was caused by "acute cardiac disfunction" brought on by severe blockage of two major arteries to the victim's heart.

He said the autopsy showed 98 percent blockage of one artery and 80 percent of the other.

Hart was stricken late Monday afternoon. He had eaten a full meal and spent an hour lifting weights and jogging in the prison exercise yard at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary in McAlester. Temperatures were in the 80s.

Chapman said there was "nothing to indicate that death was anything other than natural."

Although members of Hart's family said he had no history of heart disease, Chapman said the autopsy showed Hart had suffered a previous major heart attack, probably in the last three years.

The Rev. Bill Grass, a Locust Grove Freewill Baptist minister, said Hart's family was taking the news of his death "terrible."

"They just don't believe that Gene died of a heart attack," Grass said. "They think someone put something in his food or he was drugged or something."

He said Hart's mother, Ella Mae Buckskin, learned of the death from neighbors who had seen news reports. She collapsed after hearing the news and is now under sedation, he said.

"After all they've been through, to be asked to face this now is more than any family should be asked to bear," Gary Pitchlynn of Hart's defense team said. "They fought long and hard to save that man. It's a shock. We're all saddened."

State Crime Bureau Director Tom Kennedy said Hart's death will have no effect on the investigation of the Girl Scout deaths.

"There are a couple of things we've still got going which I can't really discuss," Kennedy said. "The death isn't going to influence that."

Pope Challenges Poland's Government To Respect Freedoms

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP) — In the strongest statement of his visit home, Pope John Paul II on Tuesday challenged Poland's communist government to respect religious freedom, the full range of human rights and "the real needs of the church."

If it does so, the pope said, there can be an "authentic dialogue" between church and state, even though the beliefs of Christians are "diametrically opposed" to Marxism's view of the world.

The pope's speech put the government on notice that the Polish church will continue to press for respect for "the cause of fundamental human rights, including religious liberty."

It was the fourth day of the former Cardinal Karol Wojtyla's triumphant return to his homeland, his first since assuming the papacy last October. He delivered the 5,000-word major policy address on church-state relations to a closed meeting of Poland's 70 bishops.

As archbishop of Krakow, Poland, he had long battled for the rights of Polish Catholics. Now, as pope, he was laying down conditions for the normalization of church-state relations.

The pope also celebrated Mass for 5,000 Polish nuns, gave a noon blessing to more than 300,000 pilgrims massed on the green hillside below the Jasna Gora Monastery, Poland's most important religious shrine, and said a late-afternoon Mass with thousands of workers from the mining and heavy industry complexes of Upper Silesia.

The Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Romeo Panciroli, said the Pope John Paul feels fatigued at the end of a day's gruelling schedule, but sleeps well and recovers his strength quickly. The government issued no statement on the pope's declarations, but signs of tension appeared for the first time as he pressed ahead with his defense of Roman Catholics, who comprise 80 to 90 percent of Poland's 35 million citizens.

A Polish clergyman said publicly he had received reports that pilgrims were barred from entering this city. The government press office responded with a statement saying the Vatican and the Polish church agreed this was untrue. But that statement was withdrawn after the Vatican and local church officials said they had never been parties to it.

An estimated 800,000 pilgrims had poured into this western Polish city Monday, but that was fewer than the predicted 1.5 million. On the other hand, police at traffic-control roadblocks around Czestochowa appeared to be doing no more than carrying out plans announced before the papal visit to keep automobiles from swamping the city of 250,000.

Some police were waving cars of nuns and priests into the city. Other visitors left their cars in parking lots and went on foot to the papal Mass at the monastery.

In his speech to the bishops, the pope noted that the Polish episcopate, basing itself on the teaching of the Second Vatican Council, had confirmed its readiness for dialogue with the Warsaw government.

But he added that the church's attitudes "clearly show that authentic dialogue must respect the convictions of believers, ensure all the rights of citizens and also the normal conditions for the activity of the church as a religious community to which the vast majority of Poles belong."

"We are aware that this dialogue cannot be easy, because it takes place between two concepts of the world which are diametrically opposed," he said.

He said the cause of fundamental human rights, including the right to religious liberty, "has an undoubted significance, which under a certain aspect is fundamental and central" to church-state relations.

Less Credit May Result From Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Trade Commission urged Congress Tuesday to think twice before voting to prohibit credit discrimination on the basis of where a person lives.

Both agencies agreed there is opportunity for abuse if creditors are allowed to consider place of residence. But legislation to outlaw all such consideration, just as race and sex have been banned as credit factors, could result in less credit for those who need it most, they added.

Nancy H. Teeters, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, and David A. Clanton, a member of the Federal Trade Commission, said the seemingly impersonal "credit-scoring" method of judging creditworthiness, which is under attack in the Senate Banking subcommittee on consumer affairs, actually offers better protection against prejudice than do other systems.

The subcommittee heard testimony that some persons have been denied credit cards simply because they live in a certain ZIP-code area or happen to have an occupation that is considered less creditworthy than others.

Some lawmakers contend such action results in discrimination against minorities, who tend to cluster in certain areas and thus often have the same ZIP codes.

However, representatives of two big oil companies told the subcommittee their credit-scoring systems never consider ZIP code alone in determining whether to issue a credit card.

That is only one of several factors considered, said Terence B. Redmond, vice president of Amoco Oil Co., and William B. Blackwell, credit manager for Mobil Oil Credit Corp.

"No credit card applicant has ever been turned down solely because of his or her place of residence," Redmond said. But he added that if the applicant scores low on other factors, the ZIP code could result in rejection.

The credit-scoring system that prompted the subcommittee's hearings judges a person's credit not on his or her bill-paying experience but on whether he or she has certain characteristics common to those with a poor credit record.

For example, Amoco, Mobil and various credit-rating agencies say there is a direct statistical correlation between a person's ZIP code and whether he is likely to pay his bills on time. This is based on statistics showing how persons within that ZIP code have paid in the past.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., whose bill would bar consideration of residence, said, "There is clearly a statistical correlation between sex and the time a person takes to pay bills." But Congress has ruled that sex, race and age may not be considered in judging creditworthiness, he added, and should do the same for residence.

The major alternative to the computer-based credit-scoring system is the "judgmental" method, in which a lender looks at a person's credit bureau file, income and debts in deciding whether to issue credit.

Francis X. Bellotti, the Massachusetts attorney general, submitted a statement to the subcommittee urging the ban on consideration of residence.

"Overall, a black resident of Massachusetts is twice as likely as a white person to fall into a penalized ZIP-code area," Bellotti said.

"Lenders should not be permitted to ignore personal credit characteristics in favor of more general conclusions based solely on address," he added. "A person should be granted or denied credit on the basis of his or her own credit history — not that of neighbors."

Controversial Talk Gets Carter Aides In Hot Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's chief spokesman tacitly acknowledged Tuesday that the president has advised his two chief anti-inflation advisers to avoid controversial public statements.

In the past week, advisers Alfred Kahn and Barry Bosworth have made statements known to have pained their White House superiors.

At a briefing for reporters, White House press secretary Jody Powell was asked if Carter had advised Kahn and Bosworth "that they might do well to shut their mouths and do less talking" about anti-inflation policy options.

"Well, I don't know if it was said exactly that way, or that that advice was confined to them," Powell replied.

Asked when the caution was delivered by Carter, he said he was not going to provide a minute-by-minute account.

In a taped television interview conducted by the Bureau of National Affairs, but not yet broadcast, Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, suggested mandatory wage and price controls as "a potential option" if inflation gets out of hand next year.

Carter repeatedly has rejected any thought of mandatory controls, having long ago abandoned a campaign position that the president should have such authority on a standby basis.

Kahn, chairman of the council, raised eyebrows at the White House last week by suggesting hindsight shows Carter should have vetoed last year's income tax cuts.

Credit Card Score Chart Due Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everybody knows that your typical teacher is always a better credit risk than the typical student. Right? Wrong!

In determining who gets credit, one major company gives a student 46 points; a teacher gets 41. A retired person living on a bare-bones income would get the maximum 62 points — same as a corporation executive or military officer.

A person with no job at all is awarded 33 points — same as a miner, rancher or farmer. Either would be better off by not answering the "employment" question at all; no answer is worth 47 points.

In the credit-scoring business, points are awarded or subtracted for a variety of factors, which differ from company to company. The person who reaches a certain point level gets a credit card; the one who falls below that point is rejected.

The credit-scoring system is being investigated by the Senate Banking subcommittee on consumer finance, which is concerned especially that some persons are rejected for credit simply because they live in a certain ZIP-code area.

In credit-scoring, the company uses these factors to predict whether an applicant for credit will pay on time. The factors measure an applicant against the credit record of other persons with those same characteristics.

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., chairman of the subcommittee, said one oil company gives an applicant seven points if he or she lives in Iowa; two for a resident of Massachusetts. But a person from Michigan loses 1½ points and one from Colorado is penalized three points.

This unidentified firm, Tsongas added, awards bonus points to residents of 413 of the nation's 36,000 ZIP-code areas; points are taken away from residents of 755 areas.

Most companies closely guard the makeup of their credit-scoring systems. But Noel Capon of the UCLA Graduate School of Management offered the subcommittee these sketchy details from one unidentified firm's system:

The most "creditworthy" ZIP code is worth 60 points; the least, 37. But a person who doesn't list a ZIP code gets 53. The applicant who lists a bank reference for checking and savings gets 15 points; either checking or savings is worth nothing; no answer earns seven points.

Home ownership is worth 44 points; the renter gets 35; no answer gets 39. An applicant who has done business with a finance company should keep that fact quiet. A "yes" answer earns 0 points; a "no," 25; no answer, 15.

The applicant who has lived at the same address for less than six months is awarded 39 points — the same for a person who had not moved in 12 years. Living in the same place for three years is worth only 27 points.

Similarly, the person who had worked for the same employer for less than six months gets the same 31 points as one who had not changed jobs in 15 years. Five years with the same boss is worth 24 points.

The example cited by Capon included these factors in judging a person's creditworthiness:

Having a phone at home, age, number of dependents, income, union membership, age difference between spouses, having a phone at work, ZIP code, age of car, size of family, telephone area code, location of relatives, and ownership of life insurance.

Appeals Court Soon To Hear Inflation Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting with unusual speed, the U.S. Court of Appeals will hear arguments next week in the Carter administration's appeal of a lower court ruling that bars the president from punishing violators of his wage-price guidelines.

The court set a June 13 date for a hearing, which will be held before a full panel of nine judges — an indication of the importance attached to the case.

A government attorney, declining to be named, said Tuesday that most appeals are heard before a three-judge panel. He said it was very rare for a full nine-judge panel to hear a case, particularly because it was not requested by the parties.

The attorney described the court as acting with "extraordinary rapidity," apparently paving the way for a swift hearing before the Supreme Court where the case ultimately is expected to wind up.

In a significant defeat for President Carter's anti-inflation program, U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker ruled last week that the president lacked constitutional authority to threaten denial of federal contracts to companies that violate his "voluntary" wge-price guidelines.

The judge then temporarily stayed his ruling pending an appeal. The appeals court Monday continued the stay "until further order of this court."

Technically, that means the administration can continue to threaten penalties against guideline violators until the appeals court rules.

The administration, however, has not actually denied a contract under its anti-inflation program.

Military Veterans Preference Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — Laws that give military veterans special preferences are constitutional and do not impermissibly discriminate against women, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

In a major setback to the women's rights movement, the nation's highest court voted 7-2 to uphold a Massachusetts law that provides an absolute lifetime veterans' preference in public employment.

Because the Massachusetts law is stronger than a similar provision used by the federal government and laws in 45 other states, the ruling might thwart any future sex-bias attack on those laws.

Phyllis Segal, a lawyer with the National Organization for Women's Legal Defense Fund in New York City, said the decision "flies in the face of common sense."

"What the court is saying is that it's okay for a legislature to enact a law that hurts women as long as it didn't enact the law just because it hurts women," she said

She and Eleanor Smeal, president of NOW, called the decision "devastating." Miss Smeal said in an interview the ruling will prompt an immediate effort in state legislatures and the federal government to change such laws.

She said a lifetime veterans' preference is "reverse discrimination of the worst kind" and "sets up a constant double standard so that no matter what women do, we lose."

But the ruling was hailed by the American Legion.

John M. Carey of Grand Blanc, Mich., the legion's national commander, issued a statement calling the decision "a restatement of allegiance to the veterans population of a grateful nation."

Carey said, "The high court recognized that such preference in employment has never been intended to deny employment opportnity to any group whatsoever, only to provide preference for these veterans."

In the court's majority opinion, Justice Potter Stewart said, "When the totality of legislative actions establishing and extending the Massachusetts preference are considered, the law remains what it purports to be: a preference for veterans of either sex over non-veterans of either sex, not for men over women."

Stewart noted that less than 2 percent of Massachusetts' military veterans are women and that from 1948 until 1967, federal law prohibited women from making up more than 2 percent of the work force in the nation's armed forces.

"But the history of discrimination against women in the military is not on trial in this case," he said.

Pair Dissent

Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall dissented, stating that the Massachusetts law "evinces purposeful gender-based discrimination."

The law had been struck down by a three-judge federal court in 1976 after it was challenged by Helen Feeney of Dracut, Mass.

Mrs. Feeney worked as a state employee from 1963 to 1975, and on three occasions had taken civil service tests as an applicant for better-paying government jobs.

Each time her ranking was lowered because veterans, always men, with lower test scores were elevated ahead of her because of the preference law.

Under the law, all veterans who pass the qualifying test automatically are moved ahead of all non-veteran candidates.

Point System Used

In most other states and under the federal veterans' preference, a "point system" is used. A veteran's test score is supplemented by a certain preference formula.

Mrs. Feeney sued the state in 1975. She lost her state job earlier that year, when the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency was eliminated.

In another case of alleged sex bias, the justices split 5-4 in ruling that former Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., must defend himself against a federal suit filed by a former aide.

Shirley Davis of Monroe, La., claims her constitutional rights were violated when Passman dismissed her as his deputy administrative assistant in 1974 because he wanted a man for the job.

Question Unanswered

The justices ruled that Miss Davis cannot be automatically barred from suing her ex-boss. But the court left unanswered the perhaps critical question of whether Passman is immune from the suit under the Constitution's so-called Speech and Debate clause.

The clause shields members of Congress from legal actions challenging their conduct while performing the duties of their office.

In other decisions Tuesday, the court:

— Ruled by a 6-2 vote to overturn the murder conviction of a man who confessed to the 1971 slaying of a Rochester, N.Y., pizza parlor owner.

In the important test case of Irving Jerome Dunaway, the justices said police may not detain a person for questioning unless they have "probable cause" to believe the person committed a crime.

Because Dunaway's constitutional rights were violated when Rochester police detained him, his confession should not have been used s evidence against him,the court ruled.

— Overturned a lower court's ruling that had struck down portions of Arizona's farm labor law. United Farm Worker leader Cesar Chavez had said the case could have a major effect on unionizing and on farm worker rights throughout the country.

HEADS FOR DRY LAND — Mamie Lewis and her dog took to high ground as some 5 inches of rain was dumped on Wichita Falls Tuesday, causing hundreds of persons to flee their homes. Groundings Of DC-10s Ordered sures have been taken to prevent future occurrences of the type that led to the crash."

Robinson referred to the May 25 crash of a DC-10 at Chicago that claimed 275 lives. It was the nation's worst air disaster.

The judge's order, issued in response to a plea by the Airline Passengers Association, remains in effect until Monday, when he will have to decide whether to extend it.

Robinson said the consumer group had shown the FAA "has failed to adequately promote safety of flight of civil aircraft" in violation of federal laws.

The judge earlier had expressed doubt about his authority to override the FAA in air safety matters, but in his decision, he said he had found a precedent for "providing limits on the administrator's discretion."

Would Reconsider

He said he would reconsider his order if the government can show that the FAA acted pursuant to the law or if "other interested parties" — presumably airlines — could show the order would cause them "substantial harm."

Although Robinson's order was directed at the FAA, it is the National Transportation Safety Board that has responsibility for determining the cause of the Chicago crash. Once the board pinpoints the cause of the crash, recommendations for corrective action are made to the FAA.

"The safety board frequently takes weeks or months to investigate an intricate case," said board spokesman Ed Slattery. "But if we discover something we can take immediate action to recommend safety measures without waiting to issue a formal report."

Cracks Discovered

The Airline Passengers Association took the case to court after the FAA announced the grounding Monday night of five DC-10s following the discovery of cracks in the pylons holding the engines to the wings of two planes.

The FAA said the cracks, which also were discovered in the pylons of the American Airlines DC-10 that crashed in Chicago, apparently were the result of improper maintenance procedures. The five planes that were grounded were subjected to the same procedure, the FAA said.

By midday Tuesday, the FAA announced that four of the five planes had been re-inspected and cleared for flight.

The Airline Passengers Association argued that the new cracks found in the DC-10 pylons were seen as a "life threatening" situation by federal investigators probing the Chicago crash.

Called Inadequate

The FAA's order that the five planes be re-inspected is "very watered down, very softened, clearly inadequate," association attorney Windle Turley told Robinson during oral arguments Tuesday.

"The public confidence can be restored in aviation travel," but only after the FAA can show in court that the DC-10 should keep flying, Turley said.

Later, Turley told a reporter he realized that grounding the DC-10s would cause "some disruption.... We also recognize that it is a large system and that it can absorb some disruption.

"Essentially there wasn't any alternative. What had to be done had to be done."

Disruption Argued

But Lamberth of the U.S. attorney's office argued, "You should not have complete disruption of air traffic when the administrator (of the FAA) and the best experts say it's not necessary."

Following the announcement of Robinson's order, Jerry Meyer, a spokesman for McDonell Douglas, manufacturer of the DC-10, declared: "We regard this action as completely unwarranted. The inspections already completed have been more than sufficient to assure the safe operation of the DC-10 fleet.

"The judge is superimposing himself over federal agencies that are expert in and are responsible by law for assuring air safety," Meyer said.

Flights Termed Safe

Joseph Daley, a spokesman for Continental Airlines in Los Angeles, said, "We believe such flights to be completely safe and will continue to fly unless ordered to do otherwise by te FAA."

American Airlines vice president David Frailey said, "We are continuing to operate DC-10s pending an order from the FAA."

Iranian Villages Hit By Iraqi Warplanes

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iraqi warplanes strafed and dropped napalm on four Iranian villages near the Iraqi border — killing six people, wounding four and destroying many houses, Iranian officials said Tuesday.

In Tehran and other major Iranian cities, hundreds of thousands of persons marched in support of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who lashed out at growing criticism of his rule.

Speaking of the Monday aerial attack in rural villages inhabited by Kurdish tribes, Governor-General Mohammad Mehdi Abbasi of West Azerbaijan province said only three dwellings remained standing in the village of Kaniz. He identified the other villages as Nokan, Gurshir and Takshir.

Interior Minister Seyed Ahmad Sadr Jay Seyyed Javadi said Iran protested to the Iraqi government about the attack.

Abbasi said he believed the Iraqi planes mistakenly hit the villages while aiming for Kurdish rebel camps on the Iraqi side of the border. But Kurdish leader Rahim Seyf Qazi told The Associated Press late Tuesday by telephone from Mahabad, about 40 miles from the Iraqi border, he believed the attack was an Iraqi reprisal against Iran for the fighting in Khuzestan province last week.

In that Persian Gulf area, 37 persons were killed and nearly 200 were wounded as ethnic Arabs seeking autonomy battled with revolutionary guardsmen. Iraqis are Arabs and Iranians are not, but they share the Moslem faith.

Iraqi planes have attacked Kurdish villages on the border with Turkey and Iran on several occasions in recent years in their protracted operations against seccessionist Kurdish guerrillas operating in the wild mountains of the region.

The four villages bombed are near Sardasht, a predominantly Kurdish town of 15,000 near a Kurdish guerrilla camp operated by leftist Iraqi Kurdish leader Jalal Talabani, who has forces on both sides of the border.

Tuesday's mass rallies in Iranian cities were to commemorate the thousands of anti-shah demonstrators killed 16 years ago in th holy city of Qom by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's troops.

In Tehran, 600,000 demonstrators paraded peacefully, vowing their allegiance to Khomeini. They shouted for a nonaligned foreign policy for Iran and chanted "death to Carter, Sadat and Begin," referring to President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Khomeini, whose revolution chased the shah from his Peacock Throne, assailed attorneys, human rights activists and others critical of him, and threatened "destruction of the troops who oppose us."

"Those who oppose us, they must be led to the right path," Khomeini declared in a national radio broadcast from Qum, "otherwise, with the same fist with which we destroyed the (shah's) regime, we will destroy them as well."

The speech by the 79-year old Shiite Moslem leader, his angriest in weeks, leaned heavily on his power base among Iran's poorer citizens.

More Rains Deluge Most State Areas

some parts during brief cloudbursts.

Pea-to marble-sized hail also was reported by the Civil Defense in Hale Center and in Littlefield by the Lamb County Sheriff's Office.

Plainview, Muleshoe and Spur were pelted with small hail, also.

Most of the heavy rainfall pounded open countryside between towns. However, at Cotton Center, 1.70 inches was noted during the day, and rain still was falling at 8 p.m.

Muleshoe tallied an inch during the day, and Floydada had 1.20 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Lubbock received only a dampening .05 of an inch during the day.

The system, which stretched from just west of Lubbock all the way to Hobart, Okla., caused downpours in the Panhandle. Amarillo reported a half inch of rain during a cloudburst about 4:15 p.m.

And about seven miles southeast of Miami in Gray County, 1.06 inches fell in 30 minutes.

Dry-Out In Prospect

The Lubbock area will have a chance to dry out today after a week of constant rain. The NWS is calling for partly cloudy skies today through Thursday with warmer afternoons.

Today's high will be 85, and tonight's low about 60. The high Thursday will be near 90.

Humidity will remain high, ranging from 90 percent this morning to about 50 percent this afternoon.

The storms that pestered the South Plains were part of a larger system stretching across Texas, which caused flooding in many areas including Wichita Falls, Lake Stamford and the Big Bend National Park.

In Wichita Falls, about 5 inches of rain fell during the day, causing Holliday Creek in the downtown section to overflow its banks.

Floodwaters seeped into some homes in the section, and the creek was expected to continue to rise through the night.

The Wichita Falls Police Department also reported a slow rise in the Wichita River. As of 7 p.m., the water level was about a half foot below flood stage of 16 feet, and residents were urged to move to higher ground for the night.

Lake Stamford, located in the southeast corner of Haskell County, flowed over its spillway and continued to rise at the rate of a half inch an hour during the day.

The added rise caused by rainfall runoff was expected by the NWS to produce serious flooding at the lake through early today.

The highway department closed Texas 55 at the Nueces River in Uvalde County because of high water. Texas 127 was closed at the Frio and Sabinal rivers. And campers were evacuated from Big Bend National Park.

Rates of 3 inches or more of rain were measured across the entire state Tuesday, with many areas getting 6 to 8 inches.

Fuel Hoard Ban Voted By Senate

bill's enactment — a factor that apparently contributed to its rejection as critics attacked it for lacking flexibility.

Earlier in the day, a group of eight House Democrats led by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., unveiled their own version of driveless-day legislation.

Dependent On States

However, unlike Weicker's proposal, their plan would only be triggered if states failed to meet energy conservation goals. The Moffett bill also proposes a $5 minimum gasoline purchase to keep motorists from "topping off" their tanks.

The anti-hoarding amendment approved by the Senate sets no guidelines, allowing the president to determine for himself what constitutes "hoarding."

However, Huddleston, the sponsor, said the measure was intended to prevent people from installing large-capacity gasoline tanks in their yards to help them ride out current shortages. Those who have already installed such tanks could be ordered not to use them.

Busing Ban Fails

During debate, the Senate rejected, 52-39, a proposal by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to prohibit the use of gasoline during shortages for forced busing to accomplish school integration.

Earlier in the day, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd announced he would support a Senate filibuster if one is needed to stop Congress from reimposing price controls on oil.

Byrd's position, a strong endorsement of Carter's oil decontrol decision, would make it extremely difficult for decontrol foes to prevail in the Senate even if they win a victory in the House.

Exempts Gasohol

As they worked toward a final vote on the Senate bill sponsored by Sens. Bennett Johnston, D-La., and Pete Domenici, R-N.M., senators unanimously approved an amendment that would exempt "gasohol," motor fuel which is a blend of gasoline and alcohol, from any mandatory restrictions placed on gasoline sales as a result of the legislation.

While Byrd did not say whether he would take an active role in a pro-decontrol filibuster, he made it clear he would do nothing to stop one, even to the point of opposing motions to limit debate.

Byrd told reporters he had told the president of his intentions at a White House meeting last week.

Called "Courageous'

He called Carter's decontrol order "a bold, courageous decision and he ought to stick with it."

House Democrats approved last month, by a 2-to-1 margin, a resolution renouncing Carter's oil decision. Decontrol foes have vowed to bring legislation to reimpose price ceilings on oil to the floor of both chambers in the near future.

The first phase of the president's plan to allow U.S. oil prices to reach world levels by mid-1981 began last Friday. It is expected to add between 4 and 7 cents a gallon to the price of gasoline by 1981.

Nader Urges Dismantling Of N-Plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader called Tuesday for dismantling all the nation's atomic power plants "as fast as is technically feasible" to avert a nuclear catastrophe that he called inevitable.

Testifying before a House Interior subcommittee, Nader said the billions this might cost utilities and their consumers would be "a cheap price to pay compared to alternative risks."

Nader said the nation's 70 commercial nuclear plants should be shut down as soon as electrical transmission systems are in place to assure replacement power to customers — a process he said should take two or three years at the most.

And the 92 other plants either now being built or soon-to-be-constructed should also be scrapped without exception, Nader said.

The subcommittee is holding hearings on the consequences the March 28 Three Mile Island nuclear accident poses for the future role of nuclear power.

There is only one lesson to be learned from that accident, Nader testified. He said the use of nuclear power for generating electricity should be abolished, "closing down the entire industry."

Nader also said that unless nuclear power is banned now, there eventually will be a nuclear accident so devastating that Congress will wind up doing it anyway.

"It is better to cut losses now and stop this ghastly industrial folly rather than wait until a nuclear catastrophe makes a portion of the U.S. uninhabitable for its survivors," he said.

Arms Treaty Reported Incomplete

WASHINGTON (AP) — The strategic arms treaty that President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev are supposed to sign in Vienna is still not complete nearly a month after basic agreement was announced by the United States.

"The problem is the business of putting final language into place in a 70-page document," State Department spokesman Hodding Carter explained Tuesday, less than two weeks before the scheduled start of the summit.

When the basic agreement was announced on May 9, qualified U.S. officials said it would take the U.S. and Soviet delegations in Geneva two to three weeks to complete the treaty. President Carter plans to leave for Vienna on June 14 and meet there with Brezhnev June 15-18.

Three Nuclear Waste Hearings Scheduled

mailed from Washington Monday stating DOE's willingness to hold hearings in West Texas and to extend the comment period on the environmental impact statement on the WIPP by 60 days.

That would put the deadline for comments at Sept. 6, Lowerre said. He added that although places and dates for the hearings are not expected to be fixed until next week, Midland, Odessa, Lubbock or El Paso could be likely sites.

Texas Assistant Attorney General David Priester, along with a representative from the Texas Energy Advisory Council, are scheduled to attend this week's Albuquerque hearings.

Because the WIPP would be only 25 miles from the Texas line, former Texas Attorney General John Hill asked the DOE to hold public hearings in Texas on the project in April 1978. Those hearings were held in Midland, Amarillo and El Paso in July 1978.

The WIPP, planned for a remote 19,000-acre parcel in eastern New Mexico, is estimated to cost between $350 million and $400 million by the DOE.

The project, if approved, is scheduled to be operative by about 1985. The site would become the burial ground for some of the nation's estimated 100 million gallons of radioactive waste.

The waste — a product of more than 30 years of nuclear-related technology — currently is stored at several sites around the nation. Opponents of the nuclear waste proposal have said its most troubling aspect is the transportation of the radioactive waste from these sites.

Above all, federal officials say, WIPP would be a demonstration project. They say the radioactive waste would be placed in a geologically stable area (a crucial factor since some of the material could retain radioactivity for a half million years), would be retrievable should something go awry and the WIPP could be scuttled after a 10-year observation period.

City Burglary Convict Gets 15-Year Jail Term

A 22-year-old Lubbock man, convicted Tuesday of an enhanced burglary of a vehicle indictment, was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

The 140th District Court Jury took 45 minutes to return Bobby Joe Justice's sentence, just five years less than the maximum sought by Asst. Criminal District Attorney Travis Ware.

The panel deliberated only eight minutes earlier in the day before deciding upon the guilty verdict.

Justice, of 6520 Caprock Drive, was indicted on the enahnced charge after prosecutors presented evidence of prior convictions. The enhancement allowed prosecutors to seek the 20-year term.

He was accused of taking a pair of $50 binoculars from a parked car at 1316 65th St. on Nov. 8, 1978. Defense attorneys Dellinda Ebeling and Wanda Wray asked the jury to return the minimum two-year prison sentence.

In another trial completed Tuesday, 237th District jurors found James Douglas Harris guilty of burglary in connection with a Dec. 3, 1978, incident at Lazario's Restaurant, 2411 Main St.

The 27-year-old Harris, of 2810 30th St., was arrested about 3:20 a.m. Dec. 3 after police discovered him and a companion in a vehicle parked outside the restaurant.

During the two-day trial, Asst. Criminal District Attorney Everett Seymore emphasized the evidence found in the vehicle, including a police scanner, walkie-talkies, gloves, pry bars, bolt cutters and sledge hammers.

The jury deliberated 1 1/2 hours before returning the guilty verdict.

Harris, who was represented by Bob Craig, received a probated five-year prison term from Judge John McFall.

Car Pooling Meeting Set

Rising fuel costs and increasingly congested streets are causing many people to turn to car pooling as a way to save time and fuel.

In response to the renewed interest in sharing rides, the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation will offer a program called "Ride Sharing Concepts" to interested persons at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the Lubbock Highway Department office, 601 Slaton Highway.

The program, which deals with several concepts of sharing rides, has been successfully implemented in several of the state's larger cities and is catching on because "car pooling will probably become very important in the future," according to Karen Spurlin of the Highway Department.

"The program is just to make people aware of the many ways to share rides," she said, "and that a lot of information is available through the Highway Department."

Representatives from the Governor's Office on Energy Resources and the Texas Transportation Institute will conduct the meeting, which will feature presentations from several experts and a question-and-answer session.

Two Soviet Cosmonauts In Space For 100 Days

MOSCOW (AP) — Cosmonauts Vladimir Lyakhov and Valery Ryumin have become the second Soviet team to spend more than 100 days in space, Tass reported Tuesday.

The official news agency said in a report from the flight control center near Moscow that nothing special was planned to mark the event but that communications between the ground and the Salyut 6 space laboratory had been high-spirited.

Tass said the two cosmonauts launched into space Feb. 25.

SOUGHT BY FBI — These are the three composite drawings issued today in San Antonio by the FBI. The men are sought in connection with the May 29 assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

FBI Issues Sketches Of Men Sought In Assassination Case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The FBI issued three more composite sketches Tuesday, bringing to five the number of men sought in connection with last week's assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

The FBI had released composite sketches last Friday of two white men in their late 20s or 30s whom witnesses had said were in the "immediate vicinity" the morning of May 29 when a sniper cut down the 63-year-old judge outside his townhouse.

Those men, Special Agent Manuel Marquez said Tuesday, have not yet been identified despite an intense federal investigation and numerous tips to a special 24-hour telephone.

The latest composites are of men witnesses said were in the area of Wood's townhouse either the morning of the assassination or an undetermined number of days before.

"They are not suspects, as such, but we want to find out who they are and what they were doing there," said Marquez.

One drawing showed a cleanshaven man in his late 40s or 50s with thick, medium-length hair salted with gray. Another showed a cleanshaven man in his 20s, with short hair, buck teeth and one scars on his cheeks. Both of those men are white.

The third drawing pictured a man with a dark mustache and medium-length hair. The man appears to be Hispanic, but Marquez said the FBI isn't sure of that.

None of the three men wore glasses.

Wood, 63, known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases, was killed by a single .243-caliber bullet to the spine as he was leaving for work. Such a bullet is usually fired from a high-powered deer rifle.

It was the second time in seven months a Western District of Texas official involved in the extensive West Texas narcotics smuggling case has been ambushed. Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr escaped serious injury Nov. 21 when his car was riddled with bullets.

Federal officials have refused to say whether they believe the two assaults are connected. Both Kerr and U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd have said they believe Wood's slaying is connected to the West Texas drug crackdown.

The sketches released last Friday showed one man with brownish long hair, glasses and a mustache and the other cleanshaven with medium-length light hair and glasses.

It had been reported Saturday that investigators sought a man witnesses said had been seen with a rifle and a walkie-talkie in the area a few days before the slaying.

A San Antonio photographer, who was in the area May 26 with a walkie-talkie and a monopod camera stand, went to the FBI Monday to determine if he had been mistaken for a man with a rifle.

Marquez said the FBI appreciated the photographer coming forward, but added, "We are still looking into that aspect of the case." He then refused to elaborate.

Lubbock Woman Slashed In Midnight Assault

A 17-year-old Lubbock woman was assaulted by a man and two women early Tuesday. The woman, Anna Maria Trevino of 309 E. Stanford St., required 89 stitches at a local hospital as a result of the incident.

The woman said the assailants kicked open the door at a 2008 15th St. residence about 12:15 a.m. and began beating her. She said she was dragged into the bathroom where the male suspect displayed a knife and cut her.

The attackers were described as Mexican-Americans between 18 and 25 years old, and all very short.

Miss Trevino was treated and released at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

In other activity Tuesday, the owner of Tim's Furniture and Appliances told police that someone stole 100,000 pieces of costume jewelry, worth about $2,000 from his business.

Tim B. Edwards, 23, said someone broke into his business at 2611 Ave. H between 6:30 p.m. Monday and 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. The burglars entered the store by breaking out a rear window and then squeezing between the bars on the window.

Also stolen from the store were a 7-piece knife set, a sewing machine and a fence charger. Edwards told police that on Monday, three Mexican-American males came to his store, driving a yellow school bus with black paint over the name of the school.

Edwards said the men sold him several items, including the sewing machine that was stolen.

Edwards said the three men told him they were on their way from Brownfield to Alaska.

In a house burglary, Billy Wayne Ray, 25, of 808 Ave. U told police someone broke into his house between 7:40 and 10:45 a.m. Tuesday and stole a television and stereo, valued at $2,000. Ray said the tuner on the televison was broken and the set received only on channel three.

In other activity, Johnny Alfred Dyer, 55, told police he was robbed of $45 cash about 12:15 a.m. Tuesday when confronted by two black men in the 1600-block of Avenue C.

Dyer, of 2722 E. Second St., said he was walking along the sidewalk when the bandits faced him and demanded money. He said one of the suspects was swinging a club.

Reports indicate that when Dyer said he did not have any money, one of the men went through his pockets and found the cash. After taking the loot, the bandits walked away north on Avenue C, according to reports.

The suspects were described as short and between 26 and 35 years old.

A 15-year-old boy reported to police Monday that since February a 27-year-old man has sexually assaulted him twice.

The youth said that the most recent attack was May 14 when the man entered his bedroom. The suspect, described as an obese black man, reportedly has tried to fight the complainant since the last assault.

A 14-year-old boy was taken into custody by police shortly after 5 p.m. Monday after he allegedly attacked a Lubbock woman in the 2200-block of 13th Street.

The 21-year-old woman said the youth grabbed her from behind and threw her to the ground. She said her screams apparently scared away the teen-ager.

Three off-duty policemen spotted the young suspect minutes later in the 2300-block of 10th Street and placed him in custody. The boy was turned over to juvenile authorities.

A 36-year-old woman was arrested about 9:30 p.m. Monday when she allegedly tried to walk out of the Safeway supermarket at Frankfort Avenue and 19th Street with $22 in unpaid merchandise.

The store manager said he saw the woman hide a package of meat in her pants and stick another item in her purse. The woman was arrested when she attempted to leave the store after paying for a can of shortening.

Prisoners Escape Jails In Region

Two prisoners — one in the Bailey County jail and one in the Lamb County jail — escaped Tuesday. Authorities in both counties were searching for the two escapees late Tuesday.

Leo Alvarado, 18, a trustee in the Lamb County jail in Littlefied, escaped from the jail between 1 and 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Lamb County Sheriff E.D. McNeese said Alvarado was visiting with his parents in a hallway outside the jail security area when he walked off.

Alvarado, who had been a jail trustee for four months, was in jail after appealing his recent conviction for burglary.

The escapee was described as a Mexican-American, 5-foot-4, 115-117 pounds, and wearing an off-white or green t-shirt, blue jeans and brown tennis shoes.

The jail break at the Bailey County jail in Muleshoe occurred about 6:10 p.m. Tuesday. Deputy Monty Phipps said he was making the evening jail check when he noticed Jesse Gloria, 24, was missing from his cell.

Phipps said Gloria may have escaped by climbing out a window in a corridor surrounding the jail area. He said the prisoner might have gotten into the corridor while a trustee was cleaning up.

Gloria was being held in the county jail for parole violation of a burglary conviction and also on a charge of burglary.

Gloria is a Mexican-American, 6-foot-2, 160 pounds with black hair and brown eyes.

Russia, China Put Out Truce Feelers

MOSCOW (AP) — As the U.S.-Soviet summit nears, the Soviet Union and China, the two rival powers of the Communist world, warily approached each other Tuesday with the idea of warming their long-chilly relations.

The Soviets said they were ready to begin talks with China this summer "aimed at reducing tensions" that have kept the two countries feuding for two decades. Indications from Peking were that the Chinese regarded the idea favorably.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry in Peking said the Kremlin proposal, made Monday by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in amemorandum to the Chinse Embassy here, was "under study."

But Foreign Minister Huang Hua told visiting Australian Foreign Minister Andrew Peacock in Peking that it was likely the talks would take place, according to an unidentified Australian source.

Although there appeared to be a good chance the two powers would get together for negotiations, it was doubtful that any significant healing of the deep ideological rift between them would be accomplished quickly.

The Soviets told Chinese Charge D'Affaires Tian Zengpei they would like to hold negotiations between deputy foreign ministers or selected representatives in Moscow in July and August.

"The aims and tasks of the negotiations must be the normalization and improvement of relations between our countries on the basis of the principles of equality, mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, non-interference in each other's internal affairs, the non-usof force," the Soviet memorandum said.

The Soviets also called on China to reject any claim to "special rights or hegemony in world affairs" and to build new relations based on the "principles of peaceful coexistence."

In Peking, a Western diplomat said Soviet overtures to China of this kind generally are made just before an important Soviet-American meeting. President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev are to meet in Vienna June 15.

Chinese sources in Moscow say that in recent weeks they have noticed a slight softening of the propaganda campaign the Soviet press wages almost daily against Peking. But there has been no recent rapprochement. Angry Russians demonstrated outside the Chinese Embassy here earlier this year to protest Peking's February invasion of Moscow-allied Vietnam.

Relations have been aggravated by Chinese arms purchases from the West, establishment of Chinese-American diplomatic ties, and Peking's decision in April not to renew a Chinese-Soviet treaty of friendship.

But China notified the Soviet Union on April 3 that it would like to negotiate and on May 5 suggested an agenda.

Apparently both countries want to leave their sticky 10-year-old border dispute to separate negotiations. Since 1969, when Soviet troops clashed with Chinese along their 4,350-mile frontier, both sides have maintained as many as a million men in combat readiness there.

The Chinese and Soviets have continued to hold meetings on their frontier rivers.

China recently announced that several issues had been resolved at the 21st meeting of a navigational conference held near the Russian city of Khabarovsk Feb. 20-March 27. It gave no details. Under an agreement signed in 1951, the two nations hold occasional meetings to discuss navigational rights.

Jury Still Out On Anniversary Of California's Proposition 13

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Proposition 13, the tax cut measure that set off a nationwide tax revolt, hasn't lived up to the promises of supporters or to the warnings of foes — at least not yet.

Californians approved the $7 billion property tax cut a year ago today, but it still is a largely unknown quantity, its impact blunted by massive state aid to local governments.

That doesn't mean that some government workers haven't lost jobs and some government programs haven't been cut. The state's school system has been wounded but remains afloat. There have been no significant cuts in police and fire services. Recreation programs were cut sharply, and in many cases fees were imposed.

Still, the aid financed by a state budget surplus has reduced the full impact of Proposition 13. And although shrinking, the surplus is still big enough to soften 13's impact for another year. What happens after that depends on the health of California's economy, efforts to reform government financing and pending new voter initiatives.

"The fallout from 13 is going to be long-term fallout," says Ralph Flynn, executive director of the California Teachers Association. "It's not going to be an instant whop over the head."

Cuts so far have often hit those least able to care for themselves: the poor, the elderly, and the young.

But many Proposition 13 supporters see it as only a first step to cut waste in government, and they are pushing new proposals aimed at restricting taxes and government spending.

Those measures include separate initiatives by Proposition 13 co-authors Howard Jarvis and Paul Gann.

Gann's proposal, which has qualified for the ballot later this year or in 1980, limits government spending on a formula based on price increases and population growth. Jarvis' pending initiative would cut the state income tax in half, a $3 billion annual tax cut.

Although Proposition 13 didn't force an overall cut in spending by local governments in 1978-79, it kept spending increases below inflation and average increases for recent years.

It also produced a significant reduction in the state and local government workforce.

There were 1.42 million state and local government workers in April, the last month for which figures are available. That compares to 1.52 million in May 1978. Most were absorbed in California's growing private job market.

About 16,800 of those 100,000 positions were eliminated through layoffs of secretaries, maintenance workers and others. The rest were due to resignations and retirements.

In human terms, those statistics represent people such as Gloria Davis, who spent eight years teaching in San Francisco schools and was described by school board member Myra Kopit as "one of the best we have ... a very rare teacher."

Today's FOCUS

But in April, Miss Davis resigned rather than fight a layoff notice, one of about 2,200 sent out by the district due to Proposition 13. She now works for a bank.

For Debra Walker, Proposition 13 means getting by without a cost-of-living increase in welfare. Miss Walker, 22, was receiving $287 a month when the rent for her San Jose apartment she shares with a 2-year-old son went up $75 a month.

"It was a matter of eating and not paying my rent. So now I am getting evicted," she said.

The other side of the Proposition 13 story is told by Paula Fatjo, who owns 7,000 acres of farm land near Los Banos on the hilly western edge of the San Joaquin Valley.

The land has been in Miss Fatjo's family since her great-great-grandfather,Francisco Pacheco, obtained it in an 1843 Mexican land grant.

She said before 13 cut property taxes 57 percent, she was paying $4 an acre in taxes on land that brought in $6 an acre lease income, not enough to enable her to keep the land.

"I always wanted to keep it in the family," she said. "I had just about given up hope."

Newspaper Classroom Use Workshop Topic

Using the daily newspaper to teach literature and composition is an important feature of a three-day workshop for secondary English teachers Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Mabee American Heritage Center at Lubbock Christian College.

More than sixty teachers from 32 area towns have registered for the workshop sponsored by the LCC English department and the Center for Business and Economic Education.

Participants may register by contacting Dr. Aubrey Green at the LCC English department or by calling 792-3221, extension 236.

Registration also will be held from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. Thursday in the lobby of Mabee American Heritage Center.

The workshop, designed to help secondary English teachers use effective teaching strategies on the junior and senior high school levels, offers two semester hours of advanced English credit in English 439. The registration feefor the regular workshop is $25. Those wishing to take English 429 or 439 must pay $50 tuition.

Dr. F. Allen Briggs, professor of English at Laredo State University, will be using materials furnished by The Avalanche-Journal to illustrate effective ways to use the newspaper in the English classroom.

Other speakers include Robin Brancato, author of several novels for young people; Ann L. Jensen, instructional consultant for the Garland School District; Gene Michelon, president of Development Counselors Inc. of Cleveland, and M. Stanton Evans, nationally syndicated columnist from Washington, D.C. The speakers' fees have been funded by a grant to the LCC English department from the Center for Business and Economic Education.

Patrick Murphy Voted To Furr's Board

The board of directors of Furr's Inc. has elected Patrick J. Murphy to the board and named him president and chief executive officer of the corporation.

Murphy previously has held the offices of executive vice president and chief financial officer. He had been retained earlier in the year to help the company out of its financial problems and when it became necessary to file a petition for reorganization under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act, Murphy was promoted.

Before he became associated with Furr's, Murphy was senior vice president-finance and chief financial officer of Allied Supermarkets Inc. in Detroit, Mich. His career includes 26 years of management responsibilities in the retail supermarket industry.

Roy K. Furr, who nominated Murphy, said, "We are fortunate to have obtained Pat at this time. He is highly respected among both banking institutions and members of the retail trade. He will be most helpful in leading Furr's through its reorganization."

Murphy was born in Duluth, Minn. He received his bachelor's degree in commerce from McGill University and he is a registered industrial accountant. He and his wife Lorraine have five children.

Lubbockite Recalls Normandy Invasion

Thirty-five years ago today, at 1:32 a.m., Clyde Hall watched a red light come on inside the cramped cabin of a C-47 transport plane and 20 young men rise tensely to hook up their parachute lines.

Four minutes later, a green light came on, the man at the rear yelled, "Jump!" and they jumped one by one into the dark wind and the greatest battle in history.

HALL

The 29-year-old engineer had taken off south of Bristol, England, with paratroopers and his three fellow crewmen, and they were making one of the first troop drops on D-Day of the Normandy Invasion.

"It was one of the most horrifying experiences you could ever have," Hall, now a 64-year-old automotive service shop owner in Lubbock, said this week. "Every 10th bullet from those machine guns had a tracer bullet, which was red, and it looked like a Christmas celebration, with fireworks going off."

The plane came in low — at 1,500 feet — to fly under most of the German flak.

As quickly as they could shuffle to the open door and tumble out, the paratroopers were gone. The pilot, co-pilot, navigator and Hall turned back for England and the second of numerous loads of paratroopers that night.

"I couldn't tell you the number of trips we made in there," he said. "We had more confidence after that first flight. Most of us had never been in combat before."

Hall said the first load of paratroopers, faces blackened, "were smoking cigarettes and cracking jokes" on the way over the English Channel to France.

"That was the guttiest bunch of boys I ever had the pleasure of being associated with," he said, "that first bunch I carried over.

"Good-natured fun was going on, but it was real tense."

The Army Air Corps crews had been briefed on the invasion 10 days earlier. While bad weather threatened it, they were kept in a long Quonset hut with military police at each end for security until the weather finally lifted. The MPs even went with them to the latrine, he said.

The C-47s carried troops across for nearly three hours, and the next day they started carrying wounded back to England from France. After three days, they settled into a pattern of "hauling gasoline to Patton and hauling the wounded back."

Three weeks later, Hall took part in the invasion of Southern France from Gorsetta, Italy.

"It didn't go so good for the first two weeks, and then we started to gain ground and Patton got to going, and we knew we were on the road to overcoming the enemy," he said.

Hall is a former commander of VFW Post No. 2466 in Lubbock and a former state VFW commander.

He and his wife Juanita live at 7002 Avenue Q.

Erma Bombeck is on vacation this week. This column is a repeat of one of her most popular columns. She will return next week.

By ERMA BOMBECK

We have two cars in our garage, a color TV set, and door chimes that play "How Dry I Am."

My winter coat has a label in it (Fruit of the Loom), our sugar bowl matches the cream pitcher and we subscribe to two newspapers.

I mention these facts only to impress you. For amidst all this class and affluence, we could not mail a box of cookies to our daughter at college because: (a) we had no box; (b) no string or twine; (c) no brown wrapping paper, and (d) no pencil or pen with which to address it.

It began with the search for a box. The carton the TV set came in was too big. The earring box too small. The box holding the Christmas tree lights had a window in it. The Col. Sanders chicken bucket too deep. The nose tissue box too flimsy and the cracker box too full. I would have sold my soul to the devil for a shoe box.

The twine was quite another story. It was shocking to me to discover if I had an inclination to hang myself or if I was bleeding and needed a simple tourniquet, I would have to resort to a red hair ribbon in the back of the medicine cabinet, a dog collar, a garden hose, a belt, a gym shoe string, a drawstring from a pair of bathing trunks or a length of dental floss.

The quest for brown wrapping paper was a drill in futility. Other than gluing brown grocery bags end to end there was no hope in sight of finding brown wrapping paper.

I have saved the Big Pencil Search for last, possibly because it is the most incongruous. "I do not understand it," said my husband, "that a literate family of five who function in an educational atmosphere are forced to communicate by etching telephone messages in the grease on the exhaust fan. Surely, somewhere in this house there must be a pencil or a pen."

We found two typewriters, a label maker, a yellow crayon, an eyebrow pencil, a chapstick, a piece of tailor's chalk and a rusty nail, but not one pencil or pen did we find.

Finally, we sat around the kitchen table exhausted. "Let's forget the cookies," I said, starting to nibble on one.

"I know when we are beaten," said my husband, passing the plate around to the boys.

As we sat there nibbling, I said, "We should write her and explain what happened to the cookies."

An hour later, we had unearthed a piece of yellow tablet paper, a piece of cardboard from one of Daddy's shirts, a 3 x 5 scratch pad behind the refrigerator, and a piece of tissue from a new blouse.

I picked up my yellow crayon and began to write...

Here is an unusual play described by Paul Lukacs as a one-suit squeeze.

The defense starts out with three rounds of spades. South ruffs the third one and has to find a way to avoid the loss of two diamond tricks.

The basic play is to strip the hand and come down to a four-card ending.

West will have thrown one diamond and will still be holding K J 10 7 while East will be holding 9 5 and two black cards. North and South each hold one trump and three diamonds. If West holds K J 10 9 there is an easy end play, but South knows that West would have thrown the jack-10 or nine to avoid that so South leads the last trump (high trump in dummy) and West must drop the jack or 10 to keep the seven spot. Now South leads dummy's six. East must play the nine, whereupon South plays his queen and West is caught in an end play due to the fact that dummy's eight has become the second highest diamond.

The play has only worked because East's one high diamond was the nine. If East held the 10, West could hold K J 9 and the play of the 10 from East would kill all end plays.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I hit a dog today. It wasn't your ordinary, run-of-the-mill accident where a dog darts into the street and gets killed. It was the stupidity of his owner that did him in.

I was following a small pickup truck down the highway. There were two dogs in the back, playing and wrestling. I kept wondering why on earth a driver would allow his dogs to roughhouse in a pickup truck with the back panel down.

Suddenly the truck hit a bump and the dogs fell out onto the pavement. I hit one before I could swerve. I knocked the poor mutt thirty feet into the guardrail. We both pulled over and ran to the dog. I was horrified to see him mangled beyond hope — thrashing in agony. Fortunately, a highway patrolman drove by within minutes and put the beast out of his misery — two shots in the head with a pistol.

The owner drove off and I couldn't believe his indifference. In the meantime the officer told me it happens all the time. He said some people tie their dogs to the truck, thinking they won't fall out, but they DO fall out and then they are choked to death or dragged to death at the end of the rope.

Please print this for all people to see. Obviously many dog owners need educating. — Susan C. From San Diego

Dear Susan: Indeed they do — and I thank you for helping. Obviously, man could do a lot better by his "best friend."

Dear Ann: I'm a widow with four children. The oldest just turned 21. She has a good job and decided she wants her own apartment. I agreed, thinking the experience would make her more independent. I said I'd buy the bed linen and towels.

Now I learn my daughter will be sharing the apartment with her boy friend. I disapprove of this shacking-up lifestyle and have told her that now that I know the facts I will not contribute to the arrangement in any way. I'm also concerned about the example she is setting for her younger sisters and brother.

These last few days I've been having second thoughts about going back on my offer. Please tell me what to do. Should I reconsider? — Her Mother

Dear Mother: When you offered to buy the bed linen and towels, you didn't know of your daughter's live-in plans.

Now that you DO know, you are under no obligation to help her out by supplying bed linen and towels. A parent who helps furnish a love nest puts her stamp of approval on it. (P.S. I am not suggesting you cut off communication. Continue to be loving and non-critical. Once she's moved out, consider that subject off-limits.)

Odessa Tops Dallas In Divorce Rate

BY JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

If you are a married woman living in the metropolitan area of Odessa, you stand a very good chance of being divorced from your spouse, according to figures of the National Center for Health Statistics.

The statistics reflect information supplied by the 1970 United States Census but results of findings have only recently been published in a booklet called "Divorce and Divorce Rates".

Dallas has long had the highest number of divorces among the nation's top 10 cities. But Dallas falls to second place (statisticians understand these things much better than most people), when divorce rates of metropolitan areas of the state are compared.

Listed in the order of those having the highest divorce rate per one thousand married woman:

Odessa -29.3
Dallas -27.4
Austin -27.2
Fort Worth -25.7
Amarillo -24.7
Houston -23.4
Wichita Falls -22.8
Midland -22.7
Waco -22.4
El Paso -22.4

Lubbock ranked 17th for having a rate of 16.2. Of all the metro areas in Texas, however, Laredo has the lowest divorce rate -a mere 5.1!

Statistical information, by state, is also available. In 1970, per one thousand married women, Texas had a rate of 22.2, as compared with Louisanna's 11.6. Divorce rates are higher in the Mountain states generally, bolstered by an expected high rate of divorces in Nevada: a whopping 85.4.

The four highest ranking countries (per one thousand population):

U.S.— 3.47 (highest)
Soviet Union — .62
Hungary — 2.22
Egypt — 2.07

Countries having very low divorce rates include (not in order of rank): Guatemala, Turkey, Greece, Taiwan and Romania. Portugal reports the lowest rate of divorces.

Change your place of residence to save a faltering marriage? — statisticians say "no need," for obvious reasons. But statisticians warn of the trend for rapidly increasing numbers of couples to seek divorces throughout the world and predict no slowing down of the divorce rate into the next decade.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH
BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have a tipped uterus. For years I have had pain, particularly close to my menstruation, during intercourse, or when I exercise. My doctor dismisses my complaints matter-of-factly. I have spoken to several women who have it. Is it serious? How can it be corrected? At what point should surgery be considered? — C.C

Many women panic when a doctor mentions "tipped uterus." They shouldn't. It is so common that it is almost normal. It means only that the uterus is angled, usually backward (retroverted). Other women may have a forward tip. There are many variations and degrees. It seldom causes pain, menstrual problems or infertility. In the third to fourth months of pregnancy the uterus straightens and develops normally.

The uterus may change position throughout life, and may even alternate back and forth slightly from the norm. However, the same problems can occur in a tilted uterus as in a normally-positioned one — enlargement, growth, etc. Any of these conditions might produce the discomfort you mention. In only a very few women does the tipped uterus produce pain with intercourse. One way to determine if your uterus tilt is causing pain is to wear a pessary, a ring support. If you get relief from this, then the tilting can be considered the problem. Very rarely, surgery is needed. The years correct matters for most women, as the uterus shrinks at menopause. Unless you are one of those unusual women whose uterine tilt is a real problem, look for other causes of your pain.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I babysit for a one-year-old girl in my home during the day. Everytime I leave the room doing my housework she cries. When I go to the bathroom, she cries until I come out. She wants to hang on and whine. She follows me all day, and I don't have the time to hold her all day and get my work done. I'd like to quit but I need the money. Her mother tells me she's not like that at home. Thanks for any help you can give me. — G.L.

Nothing communicates so easily to an infant as frustration of a parent or babysitter. This tot feels insecure in a strange home with a relative stranger, who happens to be a person from whom she can get a rise just by crying or whining. I'll bet if you took five or 10 minutes out of your housework time to sit quietly with her and leaf through a colorful picture book, then went on about your work you'd find living together much less hectic. Most infants like to "tag along" and you should not let that frustrate you.

Dear Dr. Ruble: When I close the left nostril and breathe in through the right side I sometimes notice a disagreeable odor. The doctor says I have nasal polyps. I am now wondering if this could be malignant or what? — Mrs. C.R.

Nasal polyps are not usually malignant, but removal is desired if they become obstructive or bothersome. The odor is most likely from infection, which can accompany polyps. Since the polyps are causing such symptoms, you should consider surgery to have them removed.

NBC Escapes Nielsen Ratings Cellar

NEW YORK (AP) — Bolstered by big numbers for the last chapter in "The Best Place to Be" and "Bob Hope's Birthday Party," NBC finished No.2 in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s weekly prime-time ratings after 15 weeks in a row in last place.

CBS, the previous week's winner, dropped to third for the first time since the week ending Feb. 11. CBS was hurt by a relatively small audience for its broadcast Friday night of the pro basketball championship game between Seattle and Washington. The sports special, No.55 of 62 prime-time shows, was CBS's lowest-rated for the week ending June 3.

ABC listed five of the week's 10 most-watched programs, including No.1 "Three's Company," tops for the third week in a row, and regained first place in the networks' competition.

ABC's rating for the week was 16.2, with NBC second at 15.4 and CBS third a tenth of a point behind NBC at 15.3. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 16.2 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to ABC.

Both NBC programs in the first 10, "The Best Place to Be" in second place and "Bob Hope's Birthday Party" in fourth, were being broadcast for the first time, as was CBS's "60 Minutes," ninth in the ratings. All other Top 10 programs were reruns of previous episodes.

The rating for "Three's Company" was 23.4, less than a point better than the runner-up. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 23.4 percent saw at least part of the ABC situation comedy.

Despite the basketball game, CBS did not have a show in the bottom five. The ranking: No.58 "Battlestar Galactica" and No.59 "Welcome Back Kotter," both ABC; No.60 "Comedy Theater," NBC; No.61 "Operation Petticoat," ABC; and No.62 "Hizzonner," NBC.

Here are the week's 10 most-watched programs:

"Three's Company," with a rating of 23.4 representing 17.4 million homes, ABC; Movie-"The Best Place to Be," Part II, 22.8 or 17 million, NBC; "Mork and Mindy," 21.9 or 16.3 million, ABC; "Bob Hope's Birthday Party," 21 or 15.6 million, NBC; "Laverne and Shirley," 20.7 or 15.4 million, and "Fantasy Island," 20.6 or 15.3 million, both ABC; "Alice" and "M-A-S-H," both 20.5 and 15.2 million, both CBS; "60 Minutes," 20.3 or 15.1 million, CBS, and "Taxi," 20 or 14.9 million, ABC.

The next 10 shows:

Unions Oppose Broadcasting Deregulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six labor unions announced Tuesday their opposition to bills in both the House and Senate aimed at deregulating the broadcast industry, especially in the area of programming.

The proposals, which would effectively end public interest standards for radio broadcasters while slowly phasing out controls over television, threaten to create a marketplace "that sacrifices quality programming to economic profit," said Susan Lowell of the National Education Association.

Joining the NEA on the Ad Hoc Committee to Preserve the Public Interest Standard in Broadcasting were the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees; the United Steelworkers, the Screen Actors Guild, the United Auto Workers and the Coalition of American Public Employees.

The most wide-ranging bill, sponsored by Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., would:

—Eliminate requirements for news and public affairs programming by radio stations, while easing the fairness and equal time doctrines for television.

—Allow radio stations to be licensed in perpetuity while reducing competitive standards for telvision licenses, with total derelation scheduled for television in 10 years.

—Remove all limits on total radio station ownership, now set at seven AM and seven FM stations, while also permitting networks and other communications companies to own cable television systems.

The two Senate bills are sponsored by Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Mrs. Lowell declared that "the 1934 Communications Act is dangerously diluted in the legislation at a time when the increasingly pervasive influence of the media would seem to call for strengthening, not weakening, this public protection."

She said the bills, including two milder versions in the Senate, would likely lead to a retreat in children's programming, and noted that the National PTA has opposed the proposals on that score.

At a Senate Commerce subcommittee hearing, meanwhile, Assistant Commerce Secretary Henry Geller endorsed a limited deregulation of the industry, particularly for radio, but said the government should collect standard fees from broadcasters to subsidize special programming for minorities and children. Charles D. Ferris, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, also called generally for less regulation, saying many of the current rules "have become unnecessary, unsuccessful or counterproductive" in achieving "our primary goal — to expand the marketplace of ideas."

Every stranger on the island of Lifuka, in the Tongan islands, is greeted by women and children with the phrase, "It is good to be alive."

Cowboys' Dorsett Fully Expects Success As Actor

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tony Dorsett, the Dallas Cowboys' premier running back who is chasing O.J. Simpson's National Football League rushing records, is following the Juice's acting career now, too.

The slick gridiron hero has agreed to a deal with Osmond Sports Management, a branch of Donny and Marie's entertainment empire in Utah, to represent him for endorsements, TV commercials and movies.

Dorsett, 25, holds 18 NCAA football records and a couple of Cowboy records. He was the first Cowboy rookie to rush for more than 1,000 yards.

The handsome, compact athlete is a compulsive goal setter. And now his sights are set on winning an Academy Award some day.

"I want to be as successful as the Juice on the field and on the screen," he said on a trip to Hollywood to confer with his acting coach, Laura Zucker.

"I was born with a God-given athletic talent. Who's to say I wasn't born with God-given acting talents? I majored in communications at the University of Pittsburgh.

"Laura tells me we all do some acting every day of our lives. I believe that. On the football field I relax and let things happen. An outside force takes over when I'm given that football.

"Acting takes time and effort to get involved. I'll relax with acting and things will become second nature to me just like they do on the field."

Dorsett hasn't acted at all. But he doesn't believe his confidence in himself is misplaced.

He was just as confident about his football career. So far he's attained the goals he set out to achieve.

"When I entered the Univerity of Pittsburgh, I wanted to become a starter as a freshman and I did," he said. "Then I aimed at becoming an All-American. At Pitt I was a four-time All-American.

"I wanted the Heisman Trophy. I won that in my senior year in 1976, after losing out two years to guys whose records weren't as good as mine — John Cappelletti and Archie Griffin.

"I also wanted to break the record for total yards gained in the NCAA, which I did, with 6,082 yards.

"My acting goal is to become one of the best in the world and I guess an Oscar would go along with that."

Dorsett obviously is capitalizing on his football fame. But he is determined not to become just another jock-turned-actor. He doesn't plan to pattern his acting career after such other NFL stars as Jim Brown and Fred Williamson.

"Jim and Fred appeal mostly to the black public. I want wider appeal, not just exploitation roles.

"The Juice and I have met a couple of times and we hit on each other a little. He hasn't offered any advice but he invited me to stay at his house this summer.

"Until I prove myself people will look at me as the stereotyped athlete-actor. It could be tough but I can be tough, too.

"Some football players have made it, like Don Meredith. Others like Joe Namath didn't do so well.

"As a running back I improvise on the field. A good actor has to improvise. I'm an instinctive runner and I think I can be an instinctive actor. When I've got the ball, I cut this way or that when I see a flash of color that isn't a Dallas uniform. But I don't want to play football roles because they wouldn't be a true test."

Dorsett said he would play for the Cowboys only five more years. After that he will devote himself to acting full time.

"I have a career goal in professional football," he said. "When I quit, I want to be mentioned in the same breath as the Juice, Jim Brown and Gale Sayers."

Stock Mart In Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — Paced by energy, casino and auto issues, the stock market recorded a broad advance Monday in the busiest session of the past six weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 9.44 points to 831.34, its largest increase since it tallied a 14.47-point rise on May 17. Advances led declines by almost 3-1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

NYSE volume rose to 35.05 million shares from Monday's 24.04 million. Tuesday's volume was the heaviest since 35.54 million shares changed hands on April 24.

Several analysts cited renewed interest by financial institutions as a major reason for Tuesday's gains. "You don't go from 24 million to 35 million (shares) without institutional activity," said Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp.

"There was a lot of buying of energy issues by institutional people," noted Eldon Grimm of Birr, Wilson & Co.

Tesoro Petroleum, among the Big Board's most-actives, rose ⅞ to 13⅞. Amerada Hess rose ⅞ to 40⅞ and Gulf gained ¼ to 25⅞. Exxon, which announced an exploration agreement was signed with China, rose ½ to 50⅞.

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Comments Aired On Hospital Tax Increase

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

IDALOU — "Is there any way that we could get rid of our county hospital?"

That question from one man Tuesday at a public meeting held here by State Sen. E.L. Short drew some laughter from the 40 persons attending but provoked a round of questions about the financially troubled Health Sciences Center Hospital in Lubbock.

County Commissioner James Lancaster of Idalou told his townspeople after the 9 a.m. gathering at Isom Insurance Agency that he planned to vote against a requested hospital district tax increase at a special 1:30 p.m. commissioners meeting Tuesday.

Short discussed an effort he led in the Senate to provide the district with $15,000 in state money for each resident studying at the Texas Tech University Medical School-affiliated hospital.

The bill narrowly failed, he noted.

If the tax increase is not approved, Short said the Legislature then either would have to provide more money for the hospital or let it close. He said he would expect more funding because the state already has invested about $50 million in the Tech medical school, which is federally required to be affiliated with a teaching hospital.

Short said the school might be able to contract with another hospital, such as Methodist Hospital in Lubbock, but that it would have to be on the basis of an approved long-term contract.

The medical school used Methodist Hospital as an interim teaching facility at the rate of about $52,000 annually when the school first opened, but a survey of Tech medical students indicated they were not happy with the arrangement.

The cost of graduating medical students here was a concern during debate on the extra funding, he said, adding, "The word on the Senate floor was that it costs twice as much as any other medical school in Texas."

Short said state legislators probably would want Health Sciences Center to be under state control with a different administration if they saved it with state money.

"If they have invested $50 million in it, I can't see them letting it close down," he said.

Short, a former state representative from Tahoka finishing his first legislative session as a senator, stopped in Idalou before conducting similar meetings at Lorenzo, Ralls and Crosbyton.

Today, Short will conduct similar meetings elsewhere in the area. At 9 a.m. he will be at the school superintendent's office in Whiteface, at noon at the Lions Club in Morton, and at 1:30 p.m. at the school superintendent's office in Bledsoe.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am 66 years old and I draw my Social Security benefits. I am also drawing Supplemental Security Income. Last week I received a call to go to the local Social Security office to discuss my S.S.I. benefits. I don't understand why they are doing this. My situation has not changed at all. Can you tell me what this is all about? — D.L.

The Social Security Administration reviews every Supplemental Security Income recipient at least once a year to make sure that the recipient is still eligible and that he is receiving the correct amount. These reviews are required by the law. Social Security representatives will get in touch with each recipient of SSI when it is time to review his case.

This review may be done by phone, or by personal interview at the recipient's home or in the Social Security office. The same type of questions will be asked that were asked when you applied for SSI. They will need information about your income, things you own and your living arrangements.

HEARTLINE: I will be 65 in August. I will have been on Social Security for three years then. In August I will also be starting on Medicare. I have heard from a friend on Medicare that you must pay for this coverage. I always thought it was free. Can you tell me who is right? — E.H.

There is a charge of $8.20 per month for the Medicare Part B (medical insurance premium). Starting July 1, this will be increased to $8.70 per month. There is no charge for Part A (hospital insurance) under Medicare for those who are fully insured under Social Security.

For all people on Medicare, Heartline has a very easy-to-understand book covering the entire program. To order, send $1.75 to Medicare Guidebook, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: Can you tell me if Medicare will cover my wife for kidney dialysis treatment? I am 63 and am drawing my Social Security benefits. My wife is 59 years old and she is not on Social Security. — C.R.

Yes, Medicare would provide coverage for your wife for the kidney dialysis treatment. The following are eligible for Medicare coverage for kidney dialysis treatment:

* All people on Medicare.
* A worker already drawing Social Security benefits but who has not yet turned age 65.
* A worker who has enough quarters of coverage under Social Security to be eligible for a retirement benefit.
* The spouse or dependent child of a worker who is already eligible for Social Security benefits or drawing Social Security benefits.

HEARTLINE: I am presently receiving Social Security retirement and SSI benefits. If I move to another state, will I still be eligible for SSI benefits? — A.W.

SSI is a combination state and federally funded program. If you are presently living in a state that funds the federal SSI program and move to a state that does not, you could possible lose (or have reduced) your SSI benefits. However, if you live in a state that does not pay funds into the federal SSI program and move to one that does, your SSI benefits could be increased. Check with your local Social Security office to see how the move will effect your SSI benefits.

Mexican Oil Fire Starts Speculation

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A fire in an offshore oil well has led some Mexican officials to feel the potential of the field in the Campeche Sound may be greater than calculated, an official of the state oil company PEMEX said Tuesday.

The fire started Sunday morning and is still burning. The 63 persons on the platform, in the Gulf of Mexico 48 miles off Ciudad del Carmen, escaped safely in boats, the platform suffered considerable damage.

"Technicians feel that the high pressure indicates the potential of the well may be larger than originally estimated," the official said.

Mexico currently produces 1.5 million barrels of crude oil daily, and sells 400,000 barrels daily to the United States, 60,000 to Spain and 30,000 to Israel.

NEW PUP AT THE AQUARIUM — Lucy, an orphaned harborseal, noses up to her day-old male pup at the New England Aquarium in Boston Tuesday. PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Star Should Have Gambled

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If Kenny Rogers had known his hit "The Gambler" was going to make him a three-time winner in the 13th annual Music City News Cover Awards, he would have skipped Las Vegas.

ROGERS

"If I'd have known I'd have won three awards, I'd have canceled and been there in person," Rogers said from Las Vegas via special hookup to the nationally televised awards show at the Grand Ole Opry House on Monday night.

Rogers, unable to make the ceremonies because of a performing commitment, was chosen top male vocalist Monday night. His song "The Gambler" was selected best single and he shared duet of the year honors with Dottie West.

Barbara Mandrell was selected female artist of the year, breaking Loretta Lynn's 12-year hold on the award.

"I think it's great she won," Miss Lynn said. "You've got to lose sometime."

Other than Rogers, the only other act to win more than one award was the Statler Brothers, who were chosen group of the year for the sixth straight year and who won top album honors for "Entertainers On and Off the Road."

Silver-haired Pee Wee King, an accordionist who wrote the classic "Tennessee Waltz" in 1948, won the Founder's Award for long-time contributions to country music.

Cash Settlement Offered

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The state of Wisconsin has offered a student $2.50 in cash if he will drop his claim against the University of Wisconsin-Madison for a dead house plant.

Officials said it would cost more than $10 for the state to process a check for $2.50.

Michael Mikolajczak says university maintenance workers killed a plant in his dormitory room during last Christmas break. In a written complaint to the universtiy, he said he later learned that workers repairing a radiator had left the steam on, causing room temperatures to reach 120 degrees.

The university referred the matter to the State Claims Board, which in turn offered the cash to Mikolajczak. There was no word on whether the student would take the money.

Goats Rented As Mowers

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — Meat packer Earl Edmondson is renting four-legged lawnmowers to gasoline-conscious customers.

"Rent-a-Goat" said the newspaper ad. "Living weed eaters — Save your back, let our goats work for you."

Edmondson, head of Melvel Central Meat Packing Co., says he's had about 50 inquiries.

Prices start at $5 a week for a single goat.

You rent as many as you need. The more you rent, the cheaper they are. You can rent a pair for $25 a month with a $10 deposit.

Two goats, says Edmondson, should be able to eat up a 100-foot square lot in about two weeks.

Edmondson vows his beasts, which he raises for slaughter, are docile.

"I've never heard of a billy goat biting anybody," he said. "But they do have horns."

Seal Birth Party Feature

BOSTON (AP) — A newborn baby harbor seal is a film star.

The male pup was born Monday night at the New England Aquarium as a videotape camera was trained on mother Lucy. In an adjoining room, scores of guests at a cocktail party and poetry reading for author John Updike watched the birth on a television monitor.

The 221-pound mother and the pup, a shiny 20-pounder, slept much of the day after Lucy's three-hour labor.

"Lucy did it all by herself," said Carla Skinder, custodian of harbor seals at the aquarium. "It was the first birth at the aquarium of a harbor seal. It's a very rare occurrence and probaby the first that has ever been videotaped."

Lucy and the father seal, Hoover, were both orphans. Hoover came to the aquarium in 1971 after being found in Maine. Lucy arrived in April 1972 after the aquarium rescued her from a backyard dock.

Hughes Marriage Alleged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Why don't you let someone take care of you?" asks the voice on the tape. "Why don't you let me have the job?"

TERRY MOORE

Actress Terry Moore claims the voice is the late millionaire Howard Hughes talking to her in 1949. The recording was played in Superior Court Monday as part of an effort to get Hughes' estate settled.

An attorney for Hughes' relatives asked that the tape be played before Judge Jack Swink.

Miss Moore claims she and Hughes were married aboard a ship in the fall of 1949.

Also, a transcript was read in court of an alleged taped interview between the actress and Noah Dietrich, a one-time Hughes aide. According to the transcript, Dietrich said, "He has just fooled and double-crossed you because he got hold of that captain's log and he destroyed it."

The ship's captain is dead, and it would be difficult to prove a wedding took place between Hughes and Miss Moore.

Paul Freeze, an attorney representing some Hughes relatives, said his clients wanted to press the issue of whether or not there was a marriage because Miss Moore had not made a formal claim on the estate, but had said publicly that she intended to.

Heiress' Trial Postponed

DRAGUIGNAN, France (AP) — Christina Von Opel, heiress to the West German auto fortune, went on trial with seven alleged accomplices Tuesday, accused of smuggling 3,564 pounds of hashish into France. But the trial was abruptly adjourned when new evidence turned up.

Miss Von Opel, 28, was arrested in July 1977 after the drug was discovered in two apartments she had rented in St. Tropez, on the French Riviera.

The narcotics, allegedly smuggled aboard a yacht from Lebanon, were found hidden in shower fixtures, under wall panelings and other parts of the villas.

The trial was adjourned when the court received a statement from a man confined in West Germany. The nature of the statement was not disclosed.

Miss Von Opel spent part of her detention in a sanatorium recovering from depression, and part under house arrest on the Riviera after her cousin, European playboy Gunther Sachs, posted bail.

She went on trial before a criminal court along with her boyfriend, German freelance photographer Mikhael Karg, and was represented by Robert Bandinter, one of France's top lawyers.

Third Time Not Charm

ODESSA (UPI) — An all-night grocery store clerk three months out of the Marine Corps foiled a man's third holdup attempt in one day Tuesday and held the suspect until police arrived.

Ruben Suarez, 22, was credited with nabbing the robbery suspect.

Municipal Court Judge Otis Moore set bonds totaling $40,000 for Clarence Jay Faulkner, 30, on two counts of aggravated robbery.

Faulkner was implicated in a strongarm robbery attempt also during a 41-minute spree early Tuesday.

Officers said a suspect attempted a strongarm holdup about 2:15 a.m. Tuesday at a West Odessa cafe, then held up a clerk 15 minutes later at an Odessa motel.

At 2:56 a.m., the same suspect entered a 7-11 store near downtown, officers said, and punctuated his demand for $100 by aiming a .22-caliber rifle at the clerk, who was not identified.

Suarez, standing at a magazine rack nearby, said the suspect ordered him into a back room, then fired a shot near Suarez to hasten his exit.

The holdup man fired again seconds later, after Suarez reappeared and did not respond quickly enough to the robber's demand that he lie flat.

When the holdup man fled on foot with an undetermined amount of cash, Suarez pursued.

"I just took the chance. I just got out of the Marine Corps three months ago and it was just instinct," he said.

Suarez caught up with the suspect in a nearby building and pinned the suspect — who had dropped his weapon — until police arrived.

Murder Trial Deliberations To Begin

A-J Correspondent

PLAINVIEW — Jury deliberation begins this morning in determining guilt or innocence of Clifford John Clark, 22, who is charged with murder in the death of 27-year-old Albert Alejandro of Lubbock.

Clark's attorney, Joe Cox, based his case on self-defense and presented two witnesses during the trial, which began Monday. The defendant and his common-law wife were called to testify.

Alejandro was shot six times in a Plainview night spot, The Funky Onion, on Dec. 23, 1978. Clark was arrested in Tulia on Dec. 24 and has been free on a $10,000 bond.

Testimony during the trial alleged an argument ensued between the defendant and Alejandro during a pool game.

The trial is in the 242nd District Court of Judge Van Stovall.

A-J Correspondent

TULIA — Leroy Saul of Kress was sworn in as Swisher County judge Monday after being appointed to the position by the county commissioners May 29.

He succeeds Louie Bonds, who resigned recently because of poor health. Saul will serve the remainder of 1979 and all of 1980. The office will be on the ballot for the 1980 general election.

Saul served in the Texas legislature from 1952 to 1958. In 1963, he was House parliamentarian.

His salary will be $11,356, plus traveling expenses.

Gospel Group To Perform

CROSBYTON (Special) — A popular musical group, Bridge, will give a concert at 7:30 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church of Crosbyton.

Bridge consists of 15 young adults, all either in college or recent college graduates. The musically self-contained group of five vocalists and eight instrumentalists has been heard in many of the nation's largest churches, before college and high school audiences, civic organizations and in ticketed concerts.

The 15 musicians who compose the group come from nine states throughout the country. They are chosen from more than a thousand applicants trying out annually.

The group's rhythm section includes keyboard, guitar, bass and drums. The other four instrumental musicians play trumpet, flugel horn, trombone, alto sax, baritone sax, clarinet and flute.

The group records for one of the largest gospel recording and publishing companies in the world. They are heard extensively on religious radio and television programs and have appeared on the NBC national evening news program.

The group was created and is directed by Jim Van Hook. He is known in the gospel music world for his work as a publisher, writer, producer and director.

The concert will include some current gospel numbers, as well as re-arranged "standards."

75-Year Term Given For Murder

A-J Correspondent

SNYDER — Larry Williams, 20, charged with murder in the death of a store manager, received a 75-year prison sentence Tuesday after pleading guilty to the charge of murder.

Williams' trial had not begun. He has been in Scurry County jail since being charged in the shooting death of John Garcia, 28, manager of Gibson's Discount Center. Garcia was shot Jan. 12 during a robbery at the store.

David Dell Rivera, 18, was charged with capital murder and aggravated robbery in connection with the same incident. Rivera pleaded guilty to robbery and received a 60-year sentence in March.

Solar Home Open House Scheduled

CROSBYTON (Special) — "Casa Del Sol," a 4,000-square-foot solar house, will be open to the public for tours and inspection Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m. Admission will be $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children and will benefit the Mount Blanco Community Club.

The solar house is the new home of Georgia Mae Ericson, the granddaughter of one of the first settlers of Crosby County. The house, equipped with a solar-heated indoor pool and a native stone fireplace, took 18 months to build and was designed by the Texas Tech University School of Architecture.

The house is in Blanco Canyon, 10 miles north of Crosbyton on FM 51, then one mile and a half east on FM 193.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. When our son was born four years ago, he received one share of stock in a bank holding company as a gift. Trying to build a future reserve for him, we enrolled him in the company's automatic dividend reinvestment program. From time to time, we have purchased additional shares for him through this plan.

Since there is a fee charged for this reinvestment service, we wonder if it would be wise to switch to a utility that doesn't have this fee. Where will we find the names of such utility stocks?

A. The most comprehensive list I know of companies with dividend reinvestment plans is printed twice a year in "The Outlook," the weekly investment advisory publication put out by Standard & Poor's Corp. The March 12, 1979, issue had such a list — of more than 600 companies.

You'll find "The Outlook" on file in many public libraries and in almost all brokerage offices.

Most companies do charge fees and pass on brokerage charges. But more and more corporations are doing away with such fees and allowing shareholders to reinvest their dividends without any charges. And some companies allow dividends to be reinvested at 5 percent discounts from going market prices, without brokerage charges.

It's not just utilities that do this. A growing number of other companies are getting into the act. A dividend reinvestment program is a fine "extra" service to stockholders — the owners of a company. After all, corporate management should try to keep the owners happy.

In your son's case, my advice is to stay with that bank holding company stock — unless the fee for reinvesting is very high in proportion to the amount reinvested. The earnings and dividend payout on the stock you named in your letter have shown much better growth than most utilities. For a young person, a steady investment in a growth stock makes good sense.

Q. Is there any "rule of thumb" for figuring the average percentage cost to a stockholder who uses a dividend reinvestment plan, under which the stockholder pays both a service fee and a brokerage charge?

A. Not really. The service fee for handling the paperwork is usually about 5 percent — up to a maximum of $2.50. But those numbers can vary from plan to plan.

The brokerage charge can throw any attempt to come up with an "average" way out of whack. Remember that brokerage commissions are "negotiated" and can also vary widely.

Q. I am in my 70s and my wife is in her 60s. We have most of our money in two "income" mutual funds. With the depressed condition of the stock market, we wonder if we should sell and invest in a safer source of income. Our broker urges us to hold these funds. What is your advice?

A. Stick with those two funds and with your broker. Both of your funds are doing the job you bought them for. They are providing good income and have rather good records of maintaining their share values in a turbulent stock market. They're right for people in your situation.

The broker made a commission when he sold those funds to you. He could have told you to redeem your shares and then made another commission by selling you something else. He didn't. That's to his credit.

Q. Newspapers list two prices for mutual fund shares — the "bid" price and the "asked" price. When we bought, we must have paid the asked price. If we sell, will we get the asked price or the lower bid price?

A. When you redeem mutual fund shares, you get the bid price. That's the actual asset value behind each share. When you buy you pay the asked price. That's the asset value per share, plus maximum commission.

With most mutual funds, the maximum commission is 8½ percent of the money you pay to buy or 9.4 percent of the amount actually invested. So, if you buy into XYZ Fund at a time when its asset value per share is $9.15, you pay $10 a share. The 85 cents goes in commissions.

Read through the mutual fund listings and you'll see that some funds list their bid prices and their asked prices as being equal. They are the "no-load" funds — on which no commission is charged.

Scarcity Of Gas Now Hurting Toll Roads

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

The gasoline crunch is taking a toll on tolls.

Officials of many of the nation's 40 major toll roads and more than 100 toll bridges and tunnels say receipts have dropped in the past month or so as gas shortages have kept Americans off the road — especially on weekends.

"Our passenger traffic during the week has been about the same as last year, but our passenger traffic on the weekends has been down considerably," said George McIntyre, general manager of the West Virginia Turnpike Commission. "Certainly, this is a direct result of people not wanting to drive on the weekends for fear they won't be able to find fuel."

But while auto traffic was off, McIntyre said, commercial traffic increased, making up the loss in passenger-car revenues.

Other turnpike officials say declines in weekend business have been somewhat offset by increases in traffic during the week. "It's more or less a scare," said Ellsworth C. Peterson, general manager of the Indiana Toll Road. "People are just not sure they'll be able to get gas over the weekend."

"It's too early to see if there is a trend," said Robert Costello, a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Turnpike, where passenger-car toll revenues fell 5.5 percent in May. "We won't be able to see what the public travel will be until the schools are out. The real test will be the weekend of July 4."

F.D. Fogo, chief engineer-manager of the 236-mile Kansas Turnpike, says traffic on that route dropped 15 percent during the Memorial Day weekend. Toll revenue declined to $217,491 in the period from $258,559 the same weekend a year ago.

"It is too early yet to determine if this decline will continue through the summer tourist season," Fogo said. "However, we will be keeping a close watch on our monthly traffic and revenue trends."

Not all toll routes have been hit by the gas crunch; others say that the gains in commercial or weekday traffic have sufficiently offset any losses suffered on weekends. And the Chicago Skyway Toll Bridge, which links the Indiana Tollway with the Dan Ryan Expressway, anticipated the drop in traffic earlier this year and raised the toll from 60 cents to 75 cents per automobile.

But receipts have dropped sharply in California, where the gas crunch has hit the hardest.

"In California, the situation is considerably worse," said William Rusch, executive director of the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, a Washington-based trade association. "The Golden Gate Bridge and the (San Francisco) Bay crossings are feeling a real loss in traffic."

According to Homer Winter, an analyst for the Golden Gate Bridge District, daily traffic on the span has declined by 3,000 to 4,000 cars. About 45,000 cars cross the bridge every day. Because of the drop in traffic, the district is losing $3,000 to $4,000 in daily revenues on weekdays, and $7,000 to $10,000 a day on weekends, Winter said.

Toll revenues are used to pay back money borrowed to build the road, bridge or tunnel, and to cover maintenance costs. Officials say a decline in toll revenue might not affect regular maintenance but could cut into budgets for improvements and new equipment.

"We felt the pinch during the last energy crisis and if losses get to a certain point, it hurts maintenance," said Joseph Carragher, executive director of New Jersey's Garden State Parkway, where officials say bad weather has combined with the gas crisis to cut traffic the past couple of weekends.

"If they're in very good shape (financially) it wouldn't hurt them too much," said Rusch. "If they're not very healthy it would hurt them somewhat."

General Motors Plans Plant In Spain

MADRID (AP) — General Motors Corp. and the Spanish government have reached a general agreement for GM to set up a $461 million plant in Spain, a senior Spanish official said Tuesday.

The reported agreement, pending approval of the Spanish cabinet, came after a meeting Tuesday between Premier Adolfo Suarez, Industry Minister Carlos Bustelo and GM President Elliot M. Estes, the official said. He gave no details on a starting date or a location.

Industry sources said the probable location would be in the Ebro Valley in eastern Spain, although Suarez was understood to be pushing for locating the plant in Southern Andalucia, Spain's most economically depressed area.

Approval by the cabinet of what the official called an "organic decision" would put the No. 1 and No. 2 U.S. automobile producers — GM and Ford — in Spain.

62 Wildcat Wells Drilled In Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission reported Tuesday that 43 wildcat gas wells and 19 wildcat oil wells were drilled in Texas during the last half of May.

The gas discoveries included 16 in the Refugio area, 10 in South Texas, four each in Southeast Texas and the San Antonio area, three each in West Central Texas and the Midland area, two in North Texas and one in East Central Texas.

Operators have reported 550 gas discoveries through May, 121 more than in the first five months of 1979.

There have been 187 oil discoveries reported this year, three month than in the same period a year ago.

Seattle Gives Draft 'Choo Choo' Start

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Leach and Jay Schroeder, both chosen in the first round of baseball's free agent draft Tuesday, are the latest athletes who now face the difficult choice of deciding between baseball and football.

Both are standout quarterbacks, Leach at the University of Michigan and Schroeder at Palisades High School in Pacific Palisades, Calif. Leach was selected in the fifth round of last month's National Football League draft by the Denver Broncos, the 132nd player picked in the pro football lottery, and Schroeder has signed a letter of intent to play at UCLA.

Now comes the decision.

Leach, also a baseball outfielder, was selected by the Detroit Tigers, one of three University of Michigan players picked in the first round of the baseball draft. He was the 13th player selected.

Schroeder, a catcher, went higher. He was the draft's No.3 selection, picked by the Toronto Blue Jays.

Seattle opened the draft by selecting Albert "Choo Choo" Chambers, a power-hitting 18-year-old first baseman-outfielder who graduates from Harrisburg, Pa. High School on Wednesday. Chambers, a tight end and defensive end in high school, had signed a letter of intent to play football at Arizona State. But there will be no debate on the his future because the Mariners quickly announced that the youngster had signed a contract with the team.

"Chambers has the best bat I've seen for a high school player since Jeff Burroughs, who was the nation's No.1 pick in 1969," said Hal Keller, director of player personnel for the Mariners, who made the club's selection. It was Keller who selected Burroughs No.1 for the Washington Senatorsin 1969.

Playing in a league which did not have outfield fences, Chambers batted .484 in 22 games this season with seven doubles, four triples, four home runs and 28 runs batted in. He hit .408 as a sophomore and .434 as a junior.

"He's a tremendous player," said Paul Stein, Chambers' high school coach. "He has a short, quick swing and he's hit balls 400 feet this season."

Chambers, a 6-foot-4, 210-pounder, calls himself "a real strong hitter. I can hit the ball pretty far," he said. "I got a quick bat."

After the Mariners picked Chambers, the New York Mets selected right-handed pitcher Tim Leary from UCLA. Then Toronto went for Schroeder and Atlanta picked Brad Komminsk, an outfielder-first baseman from Shawnee High School in Lima, Ohio. The fifth choice of the first round was infielder Juan Francisco Bustabad of Hialeah, Miami Lakes High School in Hialeah, Fla.

Besides Leach, the other Michigan players picked on the first round were a pair of pitchers, right-hander Steve Perry and left-hander Steve Howe. Both were selected by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Queen Coach Cuts Diamonds

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Dean Weese isn't your basic gambling man. Oh, maybe a hot game of Yahtzee now and then with the kids or a little penny-ante with the boys, but that's about it.

But when the former Wayland Baptist Flying Queens coach agreed to guide the newly formed Dallas Diamonds of the Women's Basketball League, he put more than a couple of bucks on the line.

He put his career there.

"In 22 years of coaching I've only moved twice," said Weese Tuesday after returning from a press conference in Dallas which had been set up to formally announce his hiring. "But I think this was a good move on my part. It's a chance to move from college ball to pro basketball. And the owners, as well as myself, feel this is the way to pioneer something."

Since seven of the eight teams which competed in last year's WBL are returning and six more clubs have been added, Weese doesn't believe the move from the highly successful Wayland operation is that big of a wager.

"I signed a three-year contract, so I know I've got that long," continued Weese. "Anyway, if something happens I'm not worried about getting another

Rangers Select Horn Pitcher

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The first time Jerry Don Gleaton was chosen in the major league baseball draft, he candidly admits he was a "thrower" then instead of a pitcher.

That was his senior year in high school. Now, as a junior at the University of Texas, Gleaton is confident he has become a pitcher. The Texas Rangers apparently feel that way, too, because they made Gleaton their No. 1 pick in Tuesday's draft.

"I was drafted by the Baltimore Orioles in the second round out of high school, but I didn't sign," said Gleaton, who plans to pass up his final year of college to sign with the Rangers.

"I was just a thrower then. Now, I've learned how to spot the ball."

Gleaton has found the right spot far more often than he has missed this year. The 6-foot-3, 205-pound left-hander has logged a 13-0 record, a 1.64 earned run average and 115 strikeouts in 104 innings.

Gleaton's pitching is one of the main reasons Texas is competing in the College World Series here, but he also is Better 'n Better

AS CLOUDS DRIFTED back and forth — frequently cutting off the sun's view of the proceedings — youngsters by the dozen drifted back and forth across the artificial carpet of Jones Stadium.

Football was on their minds Tuesday, but they were not of the age to challenge the giants who will tread the same turf come autumn. These youngsters were only attending a football camp for a few days, creating a youthful bridge in the stadium between Tech's spring training and the real show which will come this fall.

Even as the kids huffed and puffed through a series of drills, their minds atuned to hear the whistle calling them to the regular water breaks, the sounds of football were being heard, replacing — finally — the shouts of pro basketball and vieing with the sounds of striking umpires and Billy Martin and Roy Smalley and the surprising Rangers and Astros of baseball.

Over the weekend, the big shots of college football fought a conference-room battle over support or dislike of a college playoff system. And even now, many of the college coaches are batting such questions around, even as they bat around little white golf balls in a strictly-for-fun session at Dallas.

SOON WILL COME a magazine, then another and then the avalanche, each bearing a message heard often before: The Southwest Conference is stronger than ever before.

Gone are the Russell Erxlebens, the Danny Davises, the Ben Cowinses, the Tony Franklins, the Putt Choates, the Don Kellys, the Ronnie Lees, the Cody Risiens. But, as any coach worth his depth chart will reply, there are a few left — enough to go around.

The Aggies are touting Curtis Dickey for the Heisman. Johnnie Johnson is returning at Texas after making all-America defensive units a year ago, and Houston has David Hodge back at linebacker, plus those two road-blocks (Leonard Mitchell and Hosea Taylor) posing as defensive tackles.

Tech is leaning on James Hadnot, SMU has Mike Ford and a couple of incoming freshmen to hand the ball to. Even Rice and TCU are talking better times.

Could be the year will be better, the teams stronger.

FOR SURE, THE returnees are legion. They outnumber the departees easily. Only Arkansas shows less returning than graduating.

The Razorbacks, who parlayed experience into back-to-back bowl seasons for coach Lou Holtz, now see some of that experience evaporating. Their returning starters number five on offense, four on defense. The entire offensive backfield must be replaced, and graduation cut a major slice out of the defense.

But, rest of the way. . . Baylor returns eight offensive starters and seven on defense, and Houston, the conference co-champ, lost but five offensively and only three on defense.

Alphabetically, the rest is Rice, five and seven returning; SMU, nine and five; Texas, eight and nine; A&M, eight

Red Sox Clobber Rangers Second Straight Time

By The Associated Press

Fred Lynn and Carl Yastrzemski slammed two-run homers and Jim Rice added a solo shot to power the Boston Red Sox to a 9-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Steve Carlton had a no-hitter until the seventh inning, allowing only three men to reach base on walks, before Jeff Leonard slapped a line-drive single to left-center as the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the Houston Astros 8-0.

Dave Parker hit a two-run homer in the first inning and the Pittsburgh Pirates went on to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 behind the seven-hit pitching of Bert Blyleven and Kent Tekulve.

Dave Concepcion blasted a three-run homer and Dan Driessen hit a solo home run for the Cincinnati Reds in a 6-1 victory over the New York Mets. Bob Horner broke a scoreless tie with a three-run homer in the sixth inning, triggering the Atlanta Braves to a 4-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Jerry Mumphrey drove in the tying runs in the seventh inning, then tripled in the ninth and raced home on a passed ball to give the streaking St. Louis Cardinals a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

In an afternoon game, Gene Tenace and Dan Briggs slugged home runs and Dave Winfield smashed a double and a triple to lead the San Diego Padres to a 11-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

In other American League games, Larry Gura scattered three hits while the Kansas City Royals roughed up Luis Tiant early and beat the New York Yankees 3-1. Roy Smalley had two hits and drove in two runs to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 3-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Two-time Cy Young Award winner Steve Carlton came within a whisker of his first no-hitter and finished with a one-hit beauty as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Houston Astros 8-0 Tuesday night.

Cecil Cooper and Sixto Lezcano each singled home a run in the fifth inning to snap a tie and lead the Milwaukee Brewers past the Chicago White Sox 5-3.

Hogs Beat Horns 9-4

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Marc Brumble smacked a three-run double and a solo home run and made several sparkling plays in the outfield to lead Arkansas to a 9-4 victory over No. 1-rated Texas in the 33rd College World Series Tuesday night.

It was a sweet victory for seventh-rated Arkansas (49-13), which was runner-up to Texas in the Southwest Conference and lost to the Longhorns four times in five games earlier this season. Arkansas is the only undefeated team in the series and is assured of a berth in the championship game.

Arkansas faces third-rated Fullerton State (57-14) Wednesday night on the second game of a doubleheader. Texas (55-7) plays No. 8 Pepperdine (52-17) in the opener, with the loser of that game eliminated from the series.

Brumble hit a bases-loaded double to highlight a seven-run third inning and slugged a solo home run, his sixth of the year, over the left field wall in the seventh. Kevin McReynolds hit a solo homer and two-run double in the big third inning.

Brumble, who homered in Arkansas' 5-4 victory over Pepperdine in the first round, also made four outstanding catches in left field, including a diving grab that robbed Terry Salazar of an extra-base hit in the seventh.

Sophomore Jeff Huddleston (1-2), who was sidelined for seven weeks this year with a broken jaw, pitched 4 and 2-3 innings of shutout relief.

Weese Inks Diamond Contract

job."

Weese, who said he began contemplating the move two months ago but wasn't sure he'd accept the position until "I had the pencil in my hand and the contract in front of me," said the reasons for leaving WBC were threefold.

He explained: "I've got no more recruiting, no more scheduling and no classes to teach. Now all I've got to do is coach.

"I'm not leaving because of lack of talent, that's for sure," he added. "There aren't too many coaches around that have two Kodak All-Americans coming back."

Marie Kocurek, a former pupil of Weese's at Wayland who now plays for WBL's Minnesota franchise, once commented that she felt that Weese might have a hard time coaching in the pro ranks, saying "the girls here aren't used to playing disciplined basketball."

But Weese denies he'll have any trouble in the pro ranks: "I don't think that will be any trouble because I plan on getting the type of girls that I feel can play for me."

Weese will get the chance to pick his kind of players when the league holds its second draft next week in New York. The Dallas club has the third selection but Weese didn't indicate who the Diamonds would go with. He did say though, that there were some girls in this area that he would be looking at.

Weese actually signed a contract to coach the Diamonds last week. However, the official announcement wasn't made until Tuesday's press conference in Dallas. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed, of course.

The 43-year old Weese will not take over the controls of the team until his coaching duties at WBC are fulfilled on July 15. The season starts in November and runs through March.

DEAN WEESE

After taking over the WBC program in 1973, Weese guided the Queens to a 194-30 won-loss mark. Five of those teams competed in the AIAW National Tournament. However, he never won a National title.

In making the announcement, club president Judson Phillips praised the 22-year coaching veteran, commenting, "We think he (Weese) is the premier women's basketball coach in the country. We're delighted to have him. With him as our coach, we're off to a great start."

During the news conference, however, Phillips and WBL president Bill Byrne both admitted the league still has an unhill battle.

"Women's basketball is tougher to sell in Texas," said Byrne. "Texas is football as far as the market in the United States is concerned. But our product in selling Dallas is the same as any other City."

Added Phillips: "We're striving for good entertainment and good entertainment value."

The Dallas team, which hopes to move into the ultra-modern Reunion Arena after a one-year stay in the Dallas Convention Center, will compete in the Western Division along with Los Angeles, San Francisco, New Orleans and Houston.

According to WBC Athletic Director Bob Clindaniel applications for the vacancy will be accepted until June 15. After that, Clindaniel added, a special committee will begin the process of trying to find a replacement for only the sixth head coach in the 21-year history of the Queens.

Parrish Takes Honor

NEW YORK (AP) — Catcher Lance Parrish of the Detroit Tigers, who hit .519 last week and compiled 23 total bases, was named American League Player of the Week for the period May 29-June 3, the league office announced Tuesday.

The 23-year-old Parrish collected eight runs batted in during the week, scored nine runs, and had a slugging average of .852.

Dan Meyer of the Seattle Mariners was second in the voting. Meyer hit .400 (8-for-20) last week, including two homers and 10 RBI.

Other American Leaguers who enjoyed outstanding weeks were Seattle's Bruce Bochte, Texas' Johnny Grubb, Toronto's Alfredo Griffin, and pitchers Ron Davis of New York and Victor Cruz of Cleveland.

Rutledge Inks Pact

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams have signed University of Alabama quarterback Jeff Rutledge to a series of three one-year professional football contracts, the club announced Tuesday.

Rutledge, whose club had a 33-5 record during his three years at quarterback and was national collegiate champion in 1978, was the ninth round draft choice of the National Football League club.

The Rams also signed place kicker Frank Jordan, a free agent from the University of Southern California.

Turner Emerges Partial Victor In Horner Arbitration Case

ATLANTA (UPI) — Ted Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves, emerged at least a partial winner from arbitration of Bob Horner's contract dispute but that didn't stop him from aiming a bitter verbal attack Tuesday at the slugging infielder's agent, Bucky Woy.

"I hope Horner sees that his agent led him down a primrose path for an extra $40,000," said the outspoken Turner, referring to what Horner would receive over the Braves' base offer because of the arbitrator's Monday ruling.

"We made a lot of trouble for a lot of people, and I hope they think the extra $40,000, if they get that much, is worth it," Turner said. "Maybe now, Horner will grow up and be like players like Dale Murphy and everything will be fine from here on."

Horner, National League Rookie-of-the-Year last season, lost all but one of eight contested points in the ruling Monday by the arbiter, University of Kansas law professor Raymond Goetz. But he did get an unprecedented decision that the $175,000 the Braves gave him as a bonus for signing last year must be counted as part of his 1978 salary in calculating the minimum he can be paid this year.

The Braves had offered him $100,000 and the ruling would put the figure up to about $140,000. Goetz indicated, however, he'll trim that sightly, probably to around $130,000, leaving Horner still the highestpaid second-year player in baseball history.

That figure may rankle Turner, who indicated he is still upset over the death of General Manager Bill Lucas last month. Lucas, who had been a key man for the club in the negotiations, died of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Turner recalled a statement attributed to Woy that if he lost the negotiations, "I'll vomit right on Seventh Avenue," in New York City.

One of the points won by the Braves was that Horner could not become a free agent, thus tying him to the club for the next five years under baseball rules.

Hillcrest To Host Women's Tourney

The 44th annual Women's West Texas Golf Association Tournament gets underway this Saturday with the flag ceremonies scheduled for 10 a.m. at the Hillcrest Country Club.

Lubbock Mayor Dirk West will be on hand to held open the tournament. Practice rounds will be held following the ceremonies on Saturday and Sunday. Then on Monday the women play their qualifying rounds.

the championship rounds to be played on Friday. Nearly 150 women from clubs all over West Texas will compete in the annual tournament.

Last year's champion, Jackie Dyess from Odessa Sunset Country Club, will not be on hand to defend her title. Howeve Martha Badgett of the Amarillo Country Club, who was the firs runner up in 1978, will be at Hillcrest along with the 1977 runner up, Jean Abbott of Sunset CC.

After Monday's qualifying round the tourney will most likely be divided into a championship and four other flights, according to Geri Hackler, publicity director for the tournament.

Mrs Hackler also noted that aobut half of the field was comprised of golfers with a handicap of 15 and under.and the remainder of the golfers had handicaps in the 16-32 range.

The tournament began in 1935 and has been a traveling affair sponsored by the Women's West Texas Golf Assoc. for the last 44 years.

French Open Tennis

Borg, Gerulaitis Get Net Wins

PARIS (AP) — Bjorn Borg and Vitas Gerulaitis put down stubborn opposition Tuesday and qualified to play each other in the semifinals of the French Open tennis championships.

Top-seeded Borg, the defending champion, reached his best serving form of the tournament and outlasted a tiring Hans Gildemeister of Chile 6-4, 6-1, 7-5.

Gerulaitis won a long, seesawing duel with Jose Higueras of Spain 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Gerulaitis has played many thrillng matches against Borg, but has never defeated him.

Meanwhile, two quarterfinals still to be played. One is an all-American duel between second-seeded Jimmy Connors and Eddie Dibbs, and the other matches two South Americans, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina and Victor Pecci of Paraguay.

Borg's all-round stroke mastery brought out the best in Gildemeister. The Chilean said he had never played such good tennis and had never run so much.

"I have played four and five hours against Vilas, but I have never been this tired," Gildemeistr said.

But he made his full contribution to a match that kept the sell-out crowd of 17,000 on the center court of the Roland Garros Stadium enthralled from start to finish.

Borg was comfortably placed with a two sets lead, but it took him an hour to finish off the third set.

Gildemeister kept level until 4-4, and then had five break points against Borg's service. He lost his last chance to break through when he tried to vary the pace with a drop shot and failed to clear the net.

Baseline Rallies

The match was full of baseline rallies on the slow clay court. Borg soon discovered that Gildemeister had a killing forehand, and he worked relentlessly on the Chilean's backhand.

Higueras said he was handicapped by cramps in the later stages of his match against Gerulaitis. He also claimed he had been weakened by a recent fever.

But he fought gallantly against the stylish and speedy American. Higueras levelled at one set all, trailed 2-5 in the third set and then fought back to win the next two games.

Just when it seemed Gerulaitis was losing his grip on the match, Higueras double-faulted twice in one game and lost the third set 4-6.

After a 10-minute break — mandatory in the best-of-five-set matches on the slow clay here — Higueras got a service break and a 4-2 lead. But Gerulaitis finished in high gear and won the last four games.

Earlier Gene Mayer, younger brother of American pro Sandy Mayer, folded completely in his fourth-round match against Vilas. Mayer had led by two sets to one when the match was halted Monday night, but managed only three games in two sets when it was resumed Tuesday. Vilas won 7-5, 1-6, 6-7, 6-1, 6-2.

In the women's quarters, Wendy Turnbull downed Czechoslovakia's Hana Mandlikova 6-3, 6-3 to gain the semis against another Czech, Regina Marsikova. Marsikova beat compatriot Renata Tomanova 6-1, 6-1 Tuesday.

In the other semi, it will be top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd against Australian Dianne Fromholtz.

and seven; TCU, eight and all 11; and Tech, seven and nine.

Thus, Arkansas should be down somewhat from team of a year ago — which was a pre-season pick for the national championship — but all the rest, including Houston, should be stronger.

THE LEAGUE'S BIG Three from last year, Texas, UH and Arkansas, will be looking for new quarterbacks. The Porkers lost Ron Calcagni and will employ Kevin Scanlon full time, and UH must replace the magic man, Danny Davis, who hauled the Cougars to two Cotton Bowls in three years, and UT will look anew, after Randy McEachern closed out his collegiate cageer.

However, Donnie Little, the freshman speedster, is expected to step in as Texas' QB, forget about the forward pass and return to the running game. Baylor has two returning quarterbacks, but that position was unsettled a year ago, and Mickey Elam, who played at Tech before transferring, could emerge as the top man this fall.

TCU is replacing Steve Bayuk with Steve Stamp, but all others will have veterans at the controls. Ford is one of the reason for SMU's return to respectability, and the Aggies follow Mike Mosley. Ron Reeves retained his No. 1 spot at Tech in a spring battle with Randy Page, and Randy Hertel has two years starting expertise at Rice.

Holtz usually cracks a joke when he's called upon for an answer. He didn't disappoint in looking forward and backward: "Arkansas is the only school in the conference which held graduation ceremonies."

But, he elaborated. "Everyone else should be stronger. Texas is in a class by itself. Tech shocked everyone last year and has everyone back. If Rice makes as much progress as it did a year ago — look out. Folks are just waiting for TCU to explode.

"There is not an easy Saturday anywhere."

hitting .333 as a part-time outfielder.

"I just want to go out there and play," Gleaton said. "I like hitting and I like pitching, too. I like to help the team in any way I can."

Gleaton is from Brownwood, Tex., which is about 160 miles southwest of Dallas. He said he is a Rangers fan and would enjoy playing for a team from his home state.

"I like the way they play," he said.

Gleaton said playing three years at Texas was comparable to working his way up through the lower minors. He said he has no idea where Texas will assign him, but added he doesn't expect to make the big step to the majors right away.

Montreal picked Tim Wallach, a first baseman from Tustin, Calif. and Minnesota went for outfielder Kevin Brandt from Nekoosa, Wis.

The Chicago Cubs selected Jonathan Perlman, a right-handed pitcher from Baylor. After Detroit picked Leach, San Diego selected first baseman Joe Lansford of Wilcox, H.S. in San Jose, Calif. Lansford's brother, Carney is the regular third baseman for the California Angels.

San Francisco followed by choosing right-hander Scott Garrelts of Buckley, Ohio. Then the Dodgers chose Howe and Texas went for a home grown pitcher, drafting left-hander Jerry Don Gleaton from the University of Texas. Lipscomb Carves Niche In NAIA Record Book

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — David Lipscomb's pitching coach says Kai Koenig had control problems all year. In three innings of relief for the NAIA World Series championship, Koenig fanned more than half the batters he did during the regular baseball season.

Selected the tournament's most valuable player, Koenig struck out seven of nine batters to lead Lipscomb to a 5-4 victory Monday night over High Point College, High Point, N.C.

The Bison hurler, who compiled a lackluster 4.66 earned run average during the season, pitched six and two-thirds innings in the tournament. He recorded two saves, one win, one hit, no runs, three walks and 13 strikeouts, the same as his season total.

"He was one of our top relievers last year, so we were counting on big things from him," Bison pitching coach Roy Pardue said. "His biggest problem this year has been getting the ball over."

Lipscomb, of Nashville, carved a niche in National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics baseball record books.

The Bisons this year were the first team ever invited to the NAIA final tourney, selected to replace Grand Canyon College, of Phoenix, Ariz., which withdrew because its players used champagne in a post-game victory celebration. All teams previouly qualified through sea playoff.

Lipscomb defeated Southeastern Oklahoma 2-1 in 1977 at St. Joseph, Mo., to win that year. The NAIA World Series moved to Nahville this year after a six-year stretch in St. Joseph.

Top Draft Pick Likes Dream

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Albert Chambers had to be the happiest kid in Pennsylvania Tuesday.

"I feel it's like a dream come true," said the 18-year-old slugger from Harrisburg High. "I never thought I'd be a first-round draft choice for a major league baseball team."

Chambers was the first youngster picked in baseball's free agent draft, being selected, then signed by the Seattle Mariners.

But first he wants a college education, a condition he says the Mariners met in closing the deal.

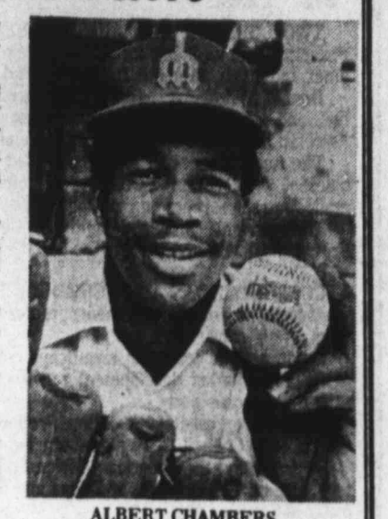
"They're going to pay my college tuition for me, any college I want to go to," Chambers said in a telephone interview. "I'm really interested in playing because now I can fall back on something else if baseball doesn't work out."

Also selected in the first round Tuesday was John Mizerock III, a catcher from Punxsutawney, Pa. He was picked by the Houston Astros.

Chambers, a 6-foot-4, 215-pound first baseman and outfielder, hit .484 as a senior, .434 as a junior, and .408 as a sophomore. He has signed a letter of intent to play both baseball an football at Arizona State, but said Tuesday he's now leaning toward a college education somewhere closer to home.

He figures it will take about three years in the minors — playing when he's not pounding the books — to prepare for major league ball.

He leaves Saturday for Seattle



ALBERT CHAMBERS

and will report June 17 to the Bellingham (Wash.) Mariners of the Northwest League.

He's described by Mariners' scouts as a power hitter.

"Al has the best bat I've seen for a high school player since Jeff Burroughs, who was the No. 1 pick in the nation by the Rangers in 1969," said Hal Keller, Mariner director of player development. "He has a very short, quick stroke and tremendous power. At the age of 18, he is just learning the game."

Says Bill Kearns, the Mariners' scout in the East:

"Chambers has the most power of any free agent I've seen."

Knoetze Hands Tate South African Award

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Kallie Knoetze, his eyes red and swollen, awarded Big John Tate South Africa's highest sportsmanship award Tuesday, only three days after the American fighter caused the puffy eyes, pummeling him in a world heavyweight boxing match.

Knoetze told a news conference Saturday's bout in Mmabatho, Bophuthatswana, was "a boxing match against two friends. It was sport, not politics."

He handed the prized green tie decorated with a gold springbok's head to Tate, who was comfortably dressed in a blue T-shirt and baseball cap.

The 24-year-old Knoxville, Tenn., native was flanked by the mustachioed Knoetze and Gerry Coetzee, who's slated to take on Leon Spinks of the United States in Monte Carlo June 24.

Sol Kerzner of Southern Suns, co-sponsor with Top Rank, Inc., of the Tate-Knoetze fight, announced that Coetzee would meet Tate for the world heavyweight title in Pretoria in September or October, provided the undefeated South African champ wins his eliminator against Spinks.

The smiling, good-natured Tate said he would leave for the United States Tuesday night, rest, then start training for the title fight in early fall.

His eighth-round victory Saturday was the first of a series of fights expected to be recognized by the World Boxing Association when world champion Muhammad Ali announces his retirement.

Obviously delighted with the $650,000 gate receipts from Mmabatho, Kerzner praised South Africans for their interest in boxing.

"It was the record for the gate of any non-title fight anywhere in the world," he boasted. "South Africans are great sportsmen and great supporters of sport. Given the opportunity, they'll support it to the hilt." He alluded to refusals by many athletes to compete in South Africa because of its racial segregation policies.

His co-sponsor, Bob Arum of Top Rank, said that "a great onus rested with Koetzee to see that the title fight came to South Africa" and added that he "had a great shot" at beating Spinks.

High School Playoffs Near Start

AUSTIN (Special) — For the first time in Texas schoolboy history, baseball teams from Class B, A and AA schools will be here this week to compete in the state championships.

Previously only the top four AAA and AAAA diamond squads had gathered in the capital city to decided state champions.

Female Reporter Problem Still Exists

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Will there ever be peaceful coexistence between notebook-toting female reporters and athletes and coaches who covet locker room privacy.

The sticky issue of equal access in locker rooms for all reporters was once again the topic of discussion Tuesday, this time at the sixth annual Associated Press Sports Editors convention.

And once again, very little was resolved, except for the reluctant admission that problems do exist and that a split remains between many sports editors and the coaches who support the right to privacy.

"I am really one of the original male chauvinists," said Indiana football coach Lee Corso, one of six panelist who addressed the group.

Also participating were Elroy Hirsch, athletic director at the University of Wisconsin; Don Bryant, president of the College Sports Information Directors Association; Jim Heffernan, director of public relations for the National Football League; Ed Falk, director of communications for the National Basketball Association and Bob Wirz, director of information for major league baseball.

"I don't think women should be in the locker room," Corso added. "I'm going to take care of my players first and the press second. I'm responsible for my players and their feelings.

"It's not so much for the stars, but for the kids sitting next to them who no one wants to talk to. Should he have to sit there feeling embarrassed while a female reporter is right next to him talking to his buddy?"

The topic of the panel was general accessibility of athletes to the press, but most of the complaints from sports editors came in the area of equal opportunities for their female reporters.

Corso, for example, allows female reporters to interview his players in a special area near the locker room if requested. An interview room is also used at Wisconsin, but such facilities are regarded as undesirable by many editors.

"I think my female reporters should be given equal access," said George Solomon of the Washington Post, who cited the spontaneity of locker room interviews.

"Interview rooms tend to be like mimeographed press releases," added Hubert Mizell of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times.

Solomon blasted baseball for not taking a leadership role in determining access policies, pointing out that it took the Supreme Court to order the opening of Yankee Stadium locker rooms to females.

Wirz defended baseball, saying tat each club decides its own policies and that the "strong majority" have full access.

"Basketball is unquestionably the most accessible sport," offered the NBA's Falk.

Deadline Nears For Diet Pepsi Race

Lubbock's first Diet Pepsi 10,000 Meter Run will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the Texas Tech track.

From 600 to 1,000 runners are expected to compete in the race, which will continue through a route outside the track and end at the track.

The entry fee is $3.50. Entry blanks can be obtained at local supermarkets and the Swift Foot sporting goods' store at 3602 Slide Road. The deadline for mailed entries is Friday, but registration will continue up to the beginning of the race.

More than 80 cities across the nation will be conducting their own versions of the race. The male and female first-place finishers will win an expense-paid trip to Denver, Colo. to compete in the regional race July 21. The national race will be in September in Purchase, N.Y.

All runners will be registered on the day of the race. All participants will be given a t-shirt and a computerized card with the times of runners from last year's event. The series began last year in more than 30 cities.

USDA Considers 'No Set-Aside' Option For 1980 Wheat Program

By JAMES VICINI

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — U. S. Agriculture Department officials said they are leaning towards proposals that would result in no set-aside for the 1980 wheat program.

They told Reuters the USDA plans to publish in the Federal Register today three broad proposals covering the 1980 wheat program — no set-aside, continuing the 20 percent set-aside and a 30 percent set-aside.

Under the no set-aside option, USDA is considering a loan rate at $2.75 a bushel, up sharply from $2.35 in 1979, while the target price would range from $3.02 to $3.22 a bushel, down from $3.40 a bushel, respectively, they said.

Under this plan, USDA would not expect to make any deficiency payments as the expected five-month season average price for wheat at the farm level in 1980-81 would average an estimated $3.50 to $3.60 a bushel, well above the target price, they explained.

Also as part of this proposal, the market price would be supported by increased empasis on the farmer-owned reserve instead of the deficiency payments, the officials said.

Thus, if favorable weather conditions prevail through 1979 and into 1980, the size of the farmer-owned reserve would increase, they said. Under unfavorable weather, the amount of wheat in the reserve would be maintained around present levels.

With the loan at $2.75 a bushel in 1980. The first trigger to release wheat from the farmer-owned reserve would be $3.85 a bushel, up from $3.29 in 1979, they said.

Another leading option would be no set-aside, but leaving the loan rate at $2.35 a bushel and the target price between $3.02 and $3.22 a bushel. The officials said, however, this would result in average wheat farm prices at or slightly below $3.00 a bushel they predicted.

Wheat support levels would be attained through deficiency payments, they said. Also, under this proposal, prices probably would not reach the $3.29 a bushel trigger point that releases wheat from the farmer-owned reserve.

The USDA officials said other alternatives include:

— A 10 percent voluntary diversion program, with payments of 20 cents a bushel, based on unfavorable weather for the 1979 wheat harvest, with the loan rate at $2.35, the target price at $3.22, and the wheat farm price average at $3.50.

— Based on favorable weather, the plan would be modified to a 10 percent set-aside and a 10 percent voluntary diversion program with payments of 55 cents a bushel, a loan rate at $2.35, a target at $3.24 and an average farm price around $3.10.

— Continuation of the 20 percent set-aside, with the loan rate remaining at $2.35 a bushel and the target at $3.50 to $3.70 a bushel, depending on favorable or unfavorable weather.

— A 30 set-aside, with a $2.35 a bushel loan rate and a target price of $3.65 to $3.70 a bushel, depending on the weather.

The USDA officials said some of the proposals are aimed at insuring that farmers receive at least the same return in real terms during 1980-81 as in 1978-79.

This could be reached through the $2.75 a bushel loan rate and no set-aside, through a 30 percent set-aside or possibly through the voluntary paid diversion proposals, they said.

Under law, the USDA must announce the 1980 wheat program by Aug. 15.

Life On Capitol Hill Likened To Dairy Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, a former three-term member of Congress from Minnesota, says he has no hankering to return to Capitol Hill because he thinks the lifestyle there is "absolutely uncivilized."

"It's terrible. Early morning, late at night, seven days a week," Bergland said. "It's like the dairy business. I put them in the same league."

Bergland, a farmer then, was re-elected to a fourth House term in 1976 but resigned when Jimmy Carter named him as secretary of agriculture.

It was enjoyable in Congress while it lasted, he told reporters over lunch this week. But a grind. He said if Carter had not appointed him to the cabinet he would have run for re-election once more and then quit after five terms.

Bergland, 50, was asked about rumors that he might resign and run for public office again. No such plans, he said.

"I wouldn't go back if I had the chance," Bergland said.

Moreover, Bergland said he likes his present job, adding that "it's much easier for a lot of reasons" than being in Congress because "I can regulate my weekends, mostly."

Looking tanned and relaxed, Bergland said he spent the past weekend sailing on Chesapeake Bay with his family.

"If I had been in Congress, I'd have been home, going to parades and picnics," he said.

Earlier, Bergland was asked by a reporter about occasional news stories quoting him as saying he plans to resign from the cabinet late in 1980 or early in 1981, even if Carter is elected to a second four-year term.

It's simply a formal routine followed by all cabinet officers when a president is re-elected, he said.

"If the president wants me to remain, I'll do so," Bergland said.

More Tenderizer Use Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has proposed that meat processors be allowed to use tenderizers in all kinds of meat and "mature" poultry. It now is permitted only in beef.

The proposal would let tenderizers — called proteolytic enzymes — be used for pork, lamb, mutton, goat and mature poultry meat.

Products with the tenderizers would have to carry a statement, immediately after the product name, spelling out the nature of the treatment and the name of the enzyme. For example: "Lamb Shanks — dipped in a solution of water, salt, flavorings and papain."

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the enzymes generally are recognized as safe by the Food and Drug Administration.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

TWO LUBBOCK MEN ARE MEMBERS of a six-man team that left San Francisco last weekend for a three-week cotton trade mission to the Philippines, Indonesia, Thailand, Bangladesh and India.

Donald A. Johnson, executive vice president of the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., and Albert "Bert" Kyle, sales manager of the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association, are representing producers and cooperatives, respectively.

The five countries in 1977-78 provided markets for an estimated 1 million bales of U. S. cotton, PCG officials point out. Three-fourths of this was in grades and staples common to High Plains production.

The mission is financed jointly by Cotton Council International and the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

CONSULTATIONS ARE SCHEDULED in the various countries with cotton agents, importers, merchants, representatives of spinning mills, government officials and others.

Sending trade teams to significant cotton importing countries is one of CCI's many market development activities that help to maintain and expand U. S. raw cotton exports.

Johnson represents the Cotton Producer Steering Committee of the National Cotton Council, CCI's parent organization, and Kyle represents AMCOT.

Representing the American Cotton Shippers Association are Eduardo Esteve of Esteve Cotton Co. of Dallas and Samuel Reeves of Dunavant Enterprises of Fresno, Calif.

Other members of the team are Ed Deariso of the USDA's cotton and tobacco division and CCI special projects manager Carl Campbell.

THE TRADE TEAM'S OVERALL OBJECTIVES, as described by Dave Hull, executive director of CCI, include to:

— Update cotton customers and potential customers on current availability of U. S. cotton and the outlook for exportable supplies in 1979-80.

— Discuss U. S. cotton's marketing opportunities and problems.

— Emphasize U. S. cotton's advantages, including credit programs and the wide range of qualities and staple lengths available, as well as the dependability of U. S. exports.

— Reconfirm the industry's recognition and appreciation of each country as a major customer of U. S. cotton and the industry's determination to continue to serve that market as a dependable supplier of quality fiber.

The group is scheduled to return June 21.

COTTON FUTURES AT NEW YORK closed 34 to 80 points up and nearer the highs Tuesday after an afternoon dip to minor net losses.

Floor brokers said locals sold near July, triggering light sell stops down to 28 points off, but the market reversed on late short covering and some commission house buying.

The trade was mostly idle in the afternoon after lending early, good support, particularly in new-crop months.

Brokers continued to cite wet weather in Texas and in the Delta. Thrips have been reported in cotton in the northern High Plains, where control operations have been underway.

Volume on Telcot increased again Tuesday, rising to 5,446 bales. The Telcot basis was up 50 points. The average price to farmers was 51.86 cents and the average premium over the loan was 951 points.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and corn futures fell and wheat edged higher Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Overnight rains in Texas, however, had a positive influence on wheat bids as traders talked of possible delays in the winter wheat harvest.

Corn Planting Ahead Of Normal

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 98 percent of the nation's corn acreage has been planted, well ahead of the normal progress for this time, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

But spring wheat planting still lagged behind normal as of June 3 with about 86 percent of the acreage seeded, compared with a pace of 91 percent a year ago and the normal for this time of 90 percent, officials said.

The figures were included in a weekly report of crop and weather information.

Corn planting, which had lagged sharply because of wet, cold weather earlier this spring, progressed rapidly in recent weeks as many farmers worked around the clock to catch up.

With 98 percent of the corn now planted, that compared with 89 percent a year ago and the long-time average pace of 94 percent, the report said.

Between 70 percent and 90 percent of the corn planted had emerged in the major production areas by June 3 and the crop was "generally rated good," it said.

Cotton planting was reported 91 percent completed by June 3, compared with 87 percent last year, and soybeans were 65 percent seeded against 54 percent of the acreage a year ago.

Corn planting progress as of June 3 in 17 states that last year accounted for 93 percent of the 1978 harvest, included:

Colorado 92 percent complete and 98 percent a year ago; Georgia 100 and 100; Illinois 98 and 80; Indiana 98 and 80; Iowa 100 and 91; Kansas 95 and 90; Kentucky 80 and 84; Michigan 90 and 90; Minnesota 91 and 95; Missouri 91 and 38; Nebraska 100 and 100; North Carolina 100 and 100; Ohio 100 and 80; Pennsylvania 81 and 74; South Dakota 89 and 79; Virginia 100 and 100; and Wisconsin 88 and 95.

Bread Price Rise Seen This Year

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Industry analysts say bread prices may be headed for an increase before the end of the year because of rising energy costs, higher wages and sharp wheat price increases.

"Costs are building in the baking industry ... almost assuring a bread (price) advance on the immediate horizon," declares a recent editorial in Milling & Baking News, a trade publication.

However, industry officials declined to predict a price increase.

"We are concerned," says Bob Wager, president of the American Baking Association in Washington. "The return to the baking industry was down 14 percent in 1978, and the squeeze has continued in 1979."

Livestock Futures Finish Unchanged To Higher

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed unchanged to up 100 points led by October on a possible record volume of 45,373 cars Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The market rebounded after June tumbled the 150 limit.

Prices moved up 130 in October for a time in a technical rally after hitting the lowest level since February, off almost 12 cents from recent highs. The limit loss was the third in a row and reflected the 10 cent break in beef in recent days along with sharply lower cash cattle.

Deliveries total 27 thus far. Wholesale beef was off 2 at 99½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a three-month low. Cash cattle were off 50 cents to $2 with the best top $69 per hundredweight, which is a three-month low. Omaha's top was $68.75. Slaughter was 125,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 12,900 head.

Feeder cattle futures closed 45 to 110 lower led by October on sales of 5,354 lots. The market rallied to Monday night's close briefly after tumbling the 150 limit the third day in a row.

Prices sank to the lowest since January, off 15 cents from highs, on the sharp break in cash cattle and beef. The rally followed improvement in live cattle futures but faded as traders noted the high cost of feeder cattle despite the price erosion lately.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to off $2 with the best top $109 per hundredweight at San Antonio. About 3,700 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Hog futures closed 77 lower to 22 higher on sales of 8,077 lots.

Selling generally followed weakness in cash hogs and most pork products and forced prices to one-year lows before support was uncovered.

October through April set new season's lows on the slide. The discount of futures to cash brought buying on the scale-down but traders continued wary on indications of further losses in cash hogs today.

Wholesale hams were off ½ to 1 at 61 to 67 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is the lowest since April 1977. Cash hogs were off $1.50 to up 25 cents with the best top $44 per hundredweight. Kill was 329,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 30,500 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed unchanged to off 40 led by August on sales of 7,283 contracts. The market tumbled 142 to new season's lows across the board after gaining 90 for a time.

Pressure continued on weakness in cash hogs and bellies along with heavy kill. Short covering and other buying was sparked by the possibility of a net reduction in out of town stocks with some traders looking for 800,000 pounds less. Others, however, feel another increase is more likely.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off ⅛ at 40½ to 42 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.
