Stassen Plan For Dumping Nixon Aired

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower flew in from Panama today with a warm greeting for Vice President Nixon and the briefest of handshakes for Harold Stassen, his disarmament aide who announced a move last night to push Nixon off the Republican ticket.

Even before this tabuleau at the airport, Nixon's renomination had appeared to be nearly cemented.

Nixon was the first to greet Eisenhower as the smiling President stepped down from his private plane, Columbine III, at National Airport at 8 a.m.

Twenty feet down a receiving line which included diplomats, Republican Congress members and government officials, Stassen was waiting with a broad smile on his face.

Eisenhower shook hands with everybody and Stassen remarked as he put out his hand, "Good morning. Congratulations on a great job down there."

In the background rose a chant of "We like Ike" from a group of young Republicans.

Stassen had told a news conference yesterday that "in loyalty to President Eisenhower" he would work to replace Nixon on the GOP ticket this fall with Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts.

Stassen said private polls had shown that an Eisenhower-Herter ticket would be 6 per cent stronger than an Eisenhower-Nixon combination. The added strength, he said, might mean the difference between Republican and Democratic control of Congress.

Eisenhower appeared fully rested and alert as he alighted from his plane. The Columbine has sleeping accomodations and there was opportunity for nearly a full night's rest on the flight north.

Both Nixon and Stassen were on hand at the airport some minutes ahead of Eisenhower's landing and shook hands briefly after welcoming ceremony for the President. Both were smiling but Nixon turned quickly and walked away.

Stassen repeated to newsmen that he did not make his supplant. Nixon move as a member of the President's official family—but as a private citizen. He said he still considers himself a member of that family.

Nixon, interviewed separately, renewed his statement of last night that he stands on his announcement that he is available for a second term bid but that the matter is one for Eisenhower and the GOP convention.

Eisenhower stepped from the plane unsmiling at first, but broke into a wide grin when he caught sight of Nixon at the foot of the ramp.

"Hello, Dick," Eisenhower said stretching out his hand in greeting.

Nixon said "Congratulations on a great job," and added an inaudible comment.

Eisenhower moved on down the straggling reception line, and encountered Stassen in 10 or 12th place.

Eisenhower was still smiling when he greeted Stassen.

Some newsmen said they thought they heard a low-voiced statement to Stassen but not clearly.

Nixon said there was no discussion of the Stassen statement.

Nixon, too, got a cheer from the crowd with the "We like Ike" signs. None of the signs mentioned Nixon.

After his brief get-together with Nixon, Eisenhower got into a White House car and started for the executive mansion.

Stassen caught his fellow Republicans by surprise with his Herter-instead-of-Nixon proposal yesterday.

ENTERS SECOND WEEK OF COURT MARTIAL—S/Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon, left, sits erect and looks straight ahead as the second week of his court martial at Parris Island, S. C., got under way. With McKeon is his chief defense counsel Emile Zola Berman.

Private Is Not Sure McKeon Took Drink

By BEM PRICE

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP) — A crisp young Marine said today he saw S.Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon "raise a bottle to his lips" just before he led the disciplinary march of six recruits to their deaths.

However, Pvt. David H. McPherson of Chatham, N. J., said he was unable to say that McKeon actually had taken a drink.

McKeon is facing a general court-martial for leading 74 members of Platoon 71 into a marsh last April. Six drowned.

Just prior to McPherson's appearance the defense sought to call 108 ex-Marines as witnesses—and earned a mild reprimand.

In his testimony the day's first witness said he was called to McKeon's room about 8 p.m., April 8. The march began about 8:30 p.m.

"Sgt. McKeon was standing out in the hallway," McPherson said. "He followed me in. He asked me, 'What is wrong with you McPherson? Why aren't you doing something to help the platoon become better disciplined?'"

"He slapped me once or twice with the back of his hand. Then he told me to sit down."

McPherson said they then quietly discussed the platoon.

"I told him I felt the platoon had it too easy right from the beginning. He told me he planned to take the platoon into the swamps and asked if I thought that would help discipline the platoon. I told him in my opinion it would."

As the discussion continued, McPherson said, McKeon walked across the room and picked up a bottle. The witness continued:

"He brought the bottle over. I saw him raise the bottle to his lips. It was a clear bottle with a label marked vodka. He asked 'Would you like some?' I said it was up to him, it didn't matter. He said, well I couldn't have any anyway. He asked me if I liked vodka. I told him I did."

By the time the trial reopened today eight survivors of Platoon 71's death march had testified they were "goof offs" and McKeon was a Marine they admired.

Ban On Slav Help Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted to grant the administration $4,110,920,000 in foreign aid appropriations today after rejecting an attempt to slash $126,600,000 in economic assistance money.

The vote was 54 - 36.

The funds in the foreign aid bill, including $2,300,000,000 in military assistance, were approved by a 57-33 roll call vote. This action came after a 54-36 vote rejecting a series of amendments by Sen. Ellender (D-La) calling for a 10 per cent cut in President Eisenhower's requests for defense support and development assistance abroad.

Final passage of the bill, however, awaited action on other amendments.

The total money figure is what the Senate Appropriations Committee recommended.

The vote which followed the rejection of the Ellender amendments buttoned down the committee's recommendations for economic assistance. The Senate last week approved the $2,300,000,000 in military assistance funds.

Still pending was an amendment, opposed by the administration, to prohibit President Eisenhower from shipping additional jet fighter planes to Yugoslavia and to limit future military aid to President Tito for maintenance and spare parts for equipment he already has.

The Senate defeat of Ellender's proposal for a 10 per-cent cut in most of Eisenhower's itemized requests for defense supports and development assistance abroad was a major victory for the administration.

But Senate Democrtic Leader Johnson of Texas predicted later adoption of an administration-opposed ban on shipment of jet fighter planes and all new arms to Yugoslavia.

The administration asks that the Senate leave the question of further shipments to Marshal Tito to the President's descretion.

The ban is proposed by Republican Leader Knowland (Calif) and Sen. Bridges (NH), chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

They turned down an administration delegation which paid separate calls on them late yesterday to urge that they change their stand.

Other supporters of the amendment said the debate will disclose the shipment of "several" jet fighters to Yugoslav Marshal Tito since the controversy started several weeks ago.

Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr., Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) and Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons and Jack Martin, aides to President Eisenhower, made the unsuccessful pleas to Knowland and Bridges.

"My position is unchanged," Bridges told reporters afterwards. He said the same was true of Knowland and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine), the other sponsor of the amendment.

The amendment would allow this government to continue to provide maintenance and spare parts for American equipment Tito already has, but shut off abruptly the shipment of planes and other new arms to Yugoslavia.

The administration kept up its pleas to other senators to leave to Eisenhower's discretion whether to cut off Yugoslavs help. Both the House and the Senate have approved such a provision in the authorization bill already enacted.

Bridges said he may drop a previously planned amendment to cut in half the 80 million dollars carried in the bill for economic aid to India in view of its defeat when offered as an amendment to the authorization bill.

Rain Strikes Wide Section

Several parts of Scurry County got showers yesterday afternoon and last night, while some were getting small showers this morning.

The rainfall was spotted. Yesterday and last night, there were reports of half an inch of rain in the Dunn area and half an inch in part of the Ira area.

There was mist at some other places. In the southwest part of Snyder, gauges measured .1 of an inch yesterday afternoon.

Clouds late this morning spurred hopes of more rainfall here.

By The Associated Press

Showers fell at scattered points over Texas Monday night and early Tuesday but they hardly moistened the rain gaugues.

A severe thunderstorm warning was issued for North Texas Monday night but the danger period passed with only light showers and no turbulence reported. Wichita Falls, Dallas and Fort Worth received traces of rain. Early Tuesday morning light showers were reported at Mineral Wells and Abilene.

The forecast calls for "more of the same"—partly cloudy and continued hot weather with widely scattered thunderstorms.

Temperatures Monday ranged from 79 degrees at Lubbock to 104 at Presidio. Early Tuesday they ran from 63 at Amarillo to 83 at Dallas and Galveston.

261 Absentee Ballots Cast; 72 In Mail

Two hundred sixty-one absentee ballots for Saturday's Democratic primary had been marked and returned to the county clerk's office today, the last day for ballots to be mailed from the clerk's office. Seventy-two ballots are still in the mail.

Balloting began July 9. Absentee ballots may be received in the clerk's office until 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. All ballots to be mailed to absentee voters must be postmarked by midnight tonight by the clerk's office, however.

Persons who will be out of town during the election or who are ill and will not be able to go to the polls can vote absentee. Those who wish to vote absentee in the election must make written application in the office of Dan Cotton, county clerk.

Ballots can either be sent out to voters by mail or the voters can cast their ballots in Cotton's office. Any voting not done in the office must be sent in by mail.

Those who vote absentee must leave their poll tax receipts in the county clerk's office until after the election.

Smooth Transition In State School Integration Reported

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Commission on Race Relations reported today more than 300,000 school children in 71 school districts of Texas attended integrated schools the past year.

The commission said a three-month survey showed more than half of the districts had integrated their schools completely, from the 1st through the 12th grade.

In some districts students were required to attend integrated schools. In other districts the attendance of integrated classes was voluntary.

Ed Kloppe, executive director of the commission, said there were no integrated schools in the eastern fourth of the state or east of a line from Port Lavaca to Eagle Mountain in Tarrant County to Wichita Falls.

Kloppe said the commission was a voluntary "Southern organization for the promotion of racial goodwill" with local chapters in Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, Huntsville, Houston, San Antonio and Waco.

"Racial integration in the public schools is a growing fact," Mrs. James Crate of Houston, Commission president, said "More than 1,500 Negroes attended classes with white children in the 71 public school districts in the past year and reports received up to this time have been overwhelmingly favorable.

"That the transition has been harmonious is indicated by reports that all of these communities plan to continue, extend or complete the process of school integration this fall. At the rate at which new districts have been reporting this summer we anticipate a much larger number this fall."

The report said that in the desegregated schools the Negro pupils represented as high as 17 per cent of the total scholastic population.

In about one-third of the districts Negro and white children were given the option of continuing in the school previously attended.

Kloppe said that in the integrated districts having Negro schools comparable in quality to the white schools "there is little difference between the scholastic achievement of the white and Negro children in integrated schools, according to superintendents appraisals and other analyses. Where Negro schools are poor, the opposite is true," he said.

Steel Men Meet Behind Closed Doors

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives of the nation's major steel companies met behind closed doors today, apparently to work over a new offer aimed at ending the 24-day-old steel strike.

The company representatives meet later with negotiators for the United Steelworkers of America.

Both sides have declined to say anything about the reported new offer. There was speculation it would call for a three-year contract in contrast to industry's original demand for a five-year one, and one or two cents more than offered previously in hourly benefits.

John A. Stephens, industry's top negotiator, met with his management group at the Biltmore Hotel during the morning while David J. McDonald, union president, met secretly with union representatives at Hampshire House.

"Please God, that this visit to New York will be more fruitful than the last," he said.

Earlier contract talks here ended in a stalemate that signaled a walkout of 650,000 steelworkers. Nearly 90 per cent of the national steel capacity has been idled by the strike and about 103,000 workers in allied industries have been laid off.

The new discussions were called Sunday by the industry's top negotiator, John A. Stephens of U. S. Steel. Talks in Pittsburgh had collapsed last week.

There was speculation in Pittsburgh that the companies might be prepared either to revise their basic proposals or to modify them within the framework of the long-term pact they say is necessary for industry stability.

Commission Rules Merger Violation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission ruled today that acquisition by Farm Journal, Inc., of its principal rival, Country Gentleman-Better Farming, violated the antimerger law.

But the commission said there is little it can do about the matter now. It quoted the hearing examiner whose report it adopted as saying that "from a practical standpoint" the only action it could take "will accomplish nothing."

The Farm Journal acquired Country Gentleman-Better Farming, a Curtis publication, in June 1955. The combined Farm Journal-Country Gentleman is published in Philadelphia.

Two States Slate Civil Rights Fight

By The Associated Press

Two Southern state legislatures today sought means to keep Negroes from sharing classrooms with whites while in Congress supporters of a measure to extend Negro voting power in the South fought what seemed to be a losing battle for its passage at this session.

Legislatures of North Carolina and Florida moved into special sessions summoned for the express purpose of circumventing the Supreme Court's ruling that racial segregation in public schools must end.

In Washington, Senate advocates of a House-approved civil rights measure fought what appeared to be a losing battle to bring the bill to a vote before Congress adjourns.

While the civil rights bill has many facets, its threat to white domination of Southern political processes is perhaps the principal source of the virtually unanimous opposition from Southern members of Congress. Its supporters are hopeful that if passed it would enable Negroes to participate in Southern elections in strength at least approaching their ratio in the population.

In North Carolina, Gov. Luther Hodges roundly criticized the Supreme Court but said "I definitely do not propose that this state defy" the court. Instead he asked enactment of a two-phase program which would authorize tuition grants from public funds for children of parents who refuse to send their children to integrated schools and thus enable them to attend "private" schools. The other major provision would permit local school units to close schools if conditions became "intolerable."

Alcatraz Escape Attempt Is Flop

SAN. FRANCISCO (AP)—Another attempt to escape from grim Alcatraz prison ended early today like the others—in failure—when murderer Floyd Wilson was found crouched behind a rock barely 150 yards from the spot where he disappeared.

Wilson, serving a life term on the famed Rock, surrendered meekly 11½ hours after he slipped away while working on the prison dock.

His capture ended an intensive foot-by-foot search by FBI agents and prison guards of the small island in San Francisco Bay. Federal officials have called it escape-proof ever since the prison was set up 22 years ago.

Associate Warden J. B. Latimer said Wilson was found near the water's edge on the east end of the island.

"He had nothing to say," Latimer reported.

Guards immediately hustled Wilson inside the prison for questioning.

Wilson, sent to Alcatraz in 1952 for the murder of a Washington, D. C., grocery store manager, probably will be placed in isolation pending filing of escape charges, Latimer said.

The prisoner was captured as Coast Guard patrol boats circled the island, located about a mile offshore, playing searchlights on both the shore and the water.

Wilson disappeared from the Rock about 3:30 p.m. yesterday—about the time a water barge departed for the mainland. He failed to answer a prison check at 3:45.

Latimer said the convict "apparently slipped around or through a fence adjacent to the dock."

Eleven other desperate men have attempted to escape in the 22 years since Alcatraz was established to hold the federal government's most hardened criminals.

Of the eleven, two were shot to death. Two tried to swim to shore and are presumed to have been lost in the surging tide. The others were recaptured.

It is No. 1 T. C. Richardson in section 56, block 12, H&TC survey. Footage location has not been learned.

Humble Oil & Refining Co. spotted location for a 5,000-foot Ellenburger wildcat 7½ miles northwest of Ballinger in Runnels County.

Drillsite is 2,310 feet from west and 330 feet from south lines of section 16, block 47, University Lands survey.

The Superior Oil Co. of Midland logged shows of possible discovery production in the top of the Devonian at its No. 1 Barnes-McBrayer, Southwest Dawson County wildcat.

This prospector cored at 12,203-251 feet. Recovery was 24 feet of shale, which was dense, salty and limey; seven feet of lime with scattered stain and odor; three feet of lime with medium to finely crystalline porosity, saturated and bleeding oil and gas and 14 feet of dense lime, which was tight with scattered stain and bleeding oil and gas from vertical fractures.

The exploration is preparing to run a drillstem test. Top of the Devonian is at 12,227 feet. Elevation is 2,694 feet.

The well is seven miles northwest of Patricia and 330 feet from south and west lines of labor 24, league 271, Loving County School Land survey.

It recovered gas and free oil in a drillstem test in the Wolfcamp at 10,250-319 feet.

Midwest Oil Corp. No. 4 Joe Scott, stepout from production in the Myrtle, West (Strawn) field of Northeast Borden County, has been completed.

On 24-hour potential test, the well flowed 397.84 barrels of 42.3 gravity oil, through a 12-64-inch choke and perforations opposite Strawn from 8,082 to 8,087 feet, after 500 gallons of mud acid.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 413, block 97, H&TC survey, 14 miles northeast of Gail.

J. C. Williamson and Ed F. Alstrin, Midland, were preparing to set casing for tests of the Fusselman and Pennsylvanian in No. 1 Buchanan, Central Howard County wildcat.

Final drillstem test, in Ellenburger from 9,685 to 9,741 feet, recovered 70 feet of mud and 9,500 feet of salty sulphur water. Tool was open one hour.

Drillstem tests of the Fusselman and Pennsylvanian, when hole was being made, developed interesting shows of oil and gas.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 13, block 32, T-1-N, T&P survey.

Herter Not A Candidate

BOSTON (AP)—Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts said today he still isn't a candidate for vice presidential nomination despite Harold E. Stassen's announced support of him.

However, Herter reiterated a news conference his willingness to "do anything the President asked me to do." Herter previously said he would seek the second place on the GOP ticket only if President Eisenhower so requested.

Herter had "no comment" to queries on a news report he had been asked a few days ago to present Vice President Nixon's name to the San Francisco convention for renomination. The "no comment" applied also to queries at to who had asked, if such a request was made, and whether he would do it.

Herter said again the Stassen announcement came as a complete surprise to him.

Atomic Plant Fight Goes Into House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A partisan fight over launching the government on a speedup program of building atomic power plants moves to the House floor today.

Just how it would come out was anybody's guess, but indications were the vote would be close. Meanwhile, Republicans pushed for adoption of what they call "protective" amendments.

The fight centers around a bill passed July 12 by the Senate by a 49-40 vote over administration opposition.

The bill would direct the Atomic Energy Commission to start a 400-million-dollar program of building large atomic reactors to develop electric power for several of its own installations. No number is specified. Smaller experimental plants would be built elsewhere in this country, and the AEC would be directed to conduct a "vigorous program" of helping to develop reactors in other countries.

Republicans opposing the bill contend the "crash program" isn't necessary and would drain off skilled scientists needed in the AEC's defense work. Its purpose, they say, is to open the door for federal domination and control atomic power.

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the AEC also has opposed the bill, saying it would hurt rather than help the commissions present program of reactor development.

Much of the commission's present program involves cooperation with private utilities in developing power facilities.

But the bill's backers, headed by members of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, insist that private utilities cannot afford the risk and cost involved in building atomic power reactors at this time. Utilities are opposing the bill.

Nasser Hits At US Policy

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser sharply criticized the United States today for the withdrawal of the American offer to help finance the Aswan Dam.

Nasser said Egypt will "never submit to dollars or force."

His criticism came during a speech at the inauguration of the Cairo-Suez oil pipeline.

Nasser did not mention Britain in his 20-minute speech. Britan joined the United States last week in announcing the withdrawal of its offer to help finance the project on the Nile.

"You can make false announcements from Washington," Nasser said. "We announce if these statements are based on the belief that Egypt's economy is not sound — this is a tragedy.

"But if these statements are false and misleading, then the tragedy is bigger, especially coming from a country that is the so-called leader of the free world and which calls for freedom."

The measure was a compromise between House and Senate versions. The Senate has yet to act on the compromise.

Additions to the original House bill included raising the appropriation for the Kingsville, Tex., Naval Auxiliary Air Station from $592,000 to $2,610,000.

Other Texas projects remained unchanged.

Raw Deal In Place Of Fair Deal--Ave

ABERDEEN, S. D. (AP) — Gov. Averell Harriman of New York said last night that the New Deal and Fair Deal for farmers under former Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have "given way to the raw deal of President Eisenhower."

Quoting a campaign address he said Eisenhower made at Brookings, S. D., in 1952 promising 90 per cent parity supports, Harriman declared: "Eisenhower broke that pledge."

The New York governor addressed a barbecue audience of South Dakota Democrats shortly after Kentucky's Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler had launched a similar attack against the Eisenhower administration before the same group.

The two governors, both bidding for South Dakota's eight votes at the Democratic National Convention, now pledged to Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), did not meet. Chandler was driving out of Aberdeen as Harriman landed at the local airport.

Chandler said the Republicans had "betrayed the farmers of America" in repudiating the 90 per cent support formula.

Harriman said that the net income of farmers was down a third, that farm equities are down by 11 million dollars while farm mortgages are up four billions and interest charges up 100 million a year.

"Farmers always have been ready to do battle with the elements—drought, hail, wind and flood—but they can't cope with all these and Eisenhower too," Harriman concluded.

Drive-In Political Service Is Started

DETROIT (AP)—In this day of drive-ins, they're offering something new in the way of political super service in Michigan's 14th congressional district.

Here the vote-minded citizen can drive into a political campaign headquarters, receive campaign literature, have stickers put on car bumpers and shake hands with the candidate, all without leaving the car.

It's the brainchild of Republican congressional candidate Rockwell T. Gust and his campaign manager, Michigan state legislator Robert E. Waldron.

Texas Soil Has Brief Layover In Honolulu

HONOLULU (AP) — Those 31 pounds of Texas soil paused in Honolulu briefly last night en route back to Dallas from Tokyo.

Bob Cole, Honolulu Star Bulletin writer formerly of Dallas, who greeted a Pan-American plane carrying the package fumed "It's being treated like dirt."

An agriculture inspector with a spraygun disinfected the soil before allowing Cole to handle it.

"Because it's from Texas," he said "we want to be sure no biggest or best bugs get into this territory."

The dirt was sent to Tokyo as a Texas publicity stunt, but Japanese law forbids import of foreign soil.

FENCE 'EM OUT—This sturdy fence of jewel-tone plastic clothesline in a spider web design is ideal for keeping tots away from backyard swimming pools when adults are not around. Rustproof screw eyes are used to hold the web to the wooden frome. A good leisure time project.

Jewel-Tone Plastic Fence Is New Pool Safety Device

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

ANY OLD backyard is likely to spot a swimming pool these days. But sometimes in the anxiety of making the purchase, parents are likely to foret that safety factors are involved. Junior and all the other little neighborhood children are in danger, as long as the pool is not fenced in. Some communities forbed swimming pools that are not properly enclosed.

If you haven't a fence around your pool you may build one as a leisure time project. Even some of the smaller pools for tots may be dangerous if left around where Sis may fall in when no one is looking.

An attractive fence may be made in a woven geometric design with new jewel-tone plastic clothesline. It permits undiminished passage of light and air and a minimum of view obstruction.

A sectional panel frame of redwood or other suitable wood is erected and then the nylon cord is laced through screw eyes set at intervals in the frame and section dividers. This same principle may be followed in the construction of a pergola, trellis or to relieve the severe look of a carport.

Work out a pattern in a diamond, block or even a spider web design. Or lace your fence in horizontal, vertical or diagonal pattern. You may change the effect by placing screw eyes at different distances. A good standard balance may be achieved by placing screw eyes six inches apart.

Use ordinary household tools, frame lumber, and No. 110 zinc or cadnium plated screw eyes, which will weather and not rust. The clothesline comes in turqoise, sapphire, tourmaline and other jewel tones.

Make a spider web fence by starting with a circle of desired size in any position in the fense panel. Weave from position nearest the fence panel. Use short pieces of cord for the first tieings and then as the work expands, longer lengths may be used.

Starting from the center of the top panel frame, screw eyes are placed 6 inches apart, two on each side. Increase the distance to 8 inches for remainder of the distance to fence posts. Screw eye distances are made progressively larger as the lacing is worked to the outer frame away from the circle. Random spacings throughout the outer circles make the pattern more attractive.

Little Girls Are Feminine In Pinafores

WHY CAN'T little girls look like little girls?

For mothers who don't like little Susie dressed just like her brother, in grimy shorts and T-shirts, here's a suggestion from the experts at your local sewing center. Make her a collection of pinafores in ladylike organdy, trimmed with dainty decorative stitching.

Using a basic pattern, cut several pinafores at once from organdy in various colors. You'll find organdy so sheer that is is easy to cut as many as three or four at one time. Give each one a dose of decorative stitching, in different designs.

For example, a pretty diamond stitch may be applied to the ruffles at the shoulder and repeated on the pockets. Apply the stitching detail before sewing the ruffle or the pocket to the main part of the pinafore. If you have one of the new automatic swing-needle sewing machines which makes it possible to achieve a variety of pretty stitches just by flicking a lever on the top of the machine, you'll find that this makes decorative designs as easy as straight stitching. Otherwise, use one of the automatic zigzagger attachments.

A series of pretty pinafores will keep a little girl fresh as a daisy, with a clean one to slip into everyday. If you're careful to select an organdy that has one of the new miracle finishes, the organdy will keep a just-ironed look through the most wilting weather.

Get a pattern that opens out flat for easy ironing, too. If your daughter is going to look like a little lady after finishing a softball session, you might as well make it easy on yourself and cut down laundry and ironing time.

PARTY PINAFORE — Easy to make at home from standard pattern, in crisp pastel organdy.

How To Win Husbands And Influence Men Is Big Job

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

The most important job in every woman's life is to get along with men, says Mrs. Florence Pew, who has made a life work of teaching women of all shapes, sizes and ages to be happy, charming and successful.

This sparkling, silver-haired lady, herself a highly successful wife, mother and executive, explains her point thus:

"Any woman who wants to be successful in life, whether it is in marriage, a career or running a house, has to know how to manage men. A woman must deal with men all her life. She starts by learning how to get along with her father. Next she must learn to be popular with the boys at school.

"Later her life still is ruled by men. She must know how to help her husband, make him happy, aid him in his work and keep him devoted.

"If she has a job, she must get along with her boss. And in everything she does there is some man to be met and won over—the doctor, the butcher, the grocer and the milk man."

Mrs. Pew is vice president of Dale Carnegie Publishers and founder of the firm's special courses in human relations for women.

Mrs. Pew gives some well-tested advice on her favorite subject —how to get along with a man:

"Help a man to be gallant. Let him light your cigarette and open doors for you. Seek his advice and respect his opinions. No man likes to have a woman take charge, flag down her own taxicab, order her own meal, try to manage his life as well as hers. The charming woman never lets her efficiency show, even if she heads a worldwide corporation during working hours.

"If your husband or your best beau wants to take you out on the town, or suddenly gets an urge to do some foolish things such as going to Coney Island or taking a ride on the ferry, always be ready. Fall in with his mood.

"Don't short-ration your man on sugar. Nobody ever had too much love. So if you love him, don't be afraid to show it.

"Let him be a knight on a white charger, and school yourself to be a helpless and adoring helpmeet — even if you have the muscles of a mule and steel-trap mind. Just don't let them show."

The Super-Highways

The new "super-highway" system now being planned in the United States has been the subject of considerable comment throughout the country.

The Comment in Snyder has centered for the most part on the question, "Is our town big enough for a freeway?" Viewing all aspects of the problem, this question defies a conclusive answer.

Recent publication of a map showing the proposed nation-wide system of freeways has stimulated more comment, and there is evidence that other cities and towns are giving the topic as much attention as it is getting in Snyder.

Now comes word that an active movement is underway to get US Highway No. 87 included in the big interstate system of freeways. Apparently the movement developed upon the theory that a connecting freeway would be needed somewhere in West Texas to join US 66 and US 80. Both of the latter two thoroughfares already are listed in the big interstate program, and both are east-west highways, US 66 cutting across the Texas Panhandle and US 80 meandering across the Lone Star State's midsection from El Paso to Marshall.

US 87 is a north-south Federal highway running from the Panhandle down through Lubbock, Lamesa, Big Spring, San Angelo, etc. If it should be included in the interstate freeway system, that would put the north-south freeway some 50 miles from Snyder at its closest point, while the east-west US 80 route, which already is firmly established, would come no closer than 22 miles to Snyder.

Presumably, if these two routes were developed to freeway status, similar development on the state level may be expected for such highways as US 84 and US 180. However, the nation already has been put on notice that the big interstate system will get top priority during the next 13 to 15 years.

This accentuates the quandary in places like Snyder.

Not By Skill Alone

A Virginian, in a letter to the Richmond Times-Dispatch, advances the theory that a highly skilled automobile driver on the highways is a more dangerous driver than the less skilled. He makes this point:

"I was driving in the country and on taking a slight rise I met a car directly in front of me coming about 80 miles per hour. He had just passed three cars going about sixty. He couldn't get back to his side of the road. I was going 50 but pulled out on the shoulder enough to let him pass with at least two inches to spare. My opinion is that he was an expert driver, probably could have passed any examination but he lacked common sense."

Obviously, he also lacked a sense of fair play and a willingness to abide by the law: for no driving practice is more dangerous or productive of more death and disaster than passing other vehicles on a hill, in the face of possible oncoming traffic.

Yet in Texas at least this law — man-made as well as dictated by common sense—is flagrantly violated frequently;on any drive of a hundred miles or so you will see it done two or three times.

We have had exactly the same experience the Virginia driver recounts, and we averted disaster by taking to the shoulder. This hair-raising incident taught us something beyond the common sense practice of not passing other vehicles on a hill or a curve. It taught us to approach from the other, or flat side, of the hill with circumspection, for one never knows what reckless fool is passing someone else just beyond the brow of the hill coming in your direction. You must be prepared to take to the shoulder in the twinkling of an eye.

Passing on a hill or a curve is like playing Russian roulette, with this added potential consequence: your foolishness may not only claim your own life, but several others as well.

Yet too many drivers do it, for the sake of saving a few seconds at the risk of eternity.

Skill without common sense makes a dangerous driver.

Two Big Arguments Develop On Military Policy, And Each Pre sents Worthy Points

By WALTER LIPPMANN

There are going on inside the government two big arguments about military policy. The one has been brought into the open through the Symington Sub-Committee, prompted, it seems plain enough, by high but not the very highest officers of the Air Force. This argument is about whether the money asked for by the Administration is enough to keep us ahead of the Soviet Union in the ultimate nuclear weapons. Out of this argument has come the action of Congress in voting $900,000,000 more for the Air Force than the President asked for.

The second argument, which was brought into the open in dispatches by Mr. Anthony Leviero, turn on proposals by Admiral Radford to reduce the armed forces by about 800,000 men during the coming three years. This would mean a smaller army but one armed with more deadly modern weapons. The Radford doctrine would give up the idea of being prepared to fight large local wars, like the Korean, with "conventional", that is to say without nuclear, weapons.

There is a connection between the two arguments. It is that the cost of maintaining both kinds of military power would be prohibitive. It is not possible as the cost of weapons rises to keep up two miltiary establishments — one for a world war and one for local wars, one with the big nuclear armaments and the other a powerful but conventional army, navy and air force. It would mean that both military establishments would be second rate. Insofar as the Radford proposals face up to the dilemma, they will have a sympathetic hearing.

For the general public the most serious question is raised by those who make the following argument. Now that the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. have reached a stalemate in nuclear weapons, neither will dare to use them. This will mean that military aggression with conventional weapons — like that of the North Koreans — can be undertaken without fear of nuclear penalties. It is necessary, therefore, to be ready to resist conventional aggression with a conventional army, navy and the air force.

Without saying that it is theoretically impossible, it seems to me most unlikely tha a war as big as the Korean war, which concerned the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A., could ever be fought again without the use of nuclear weapons. The chances would be very great that small atomic bombs would be followed by bigger bombs and these by still bigger ones. The chances of general war would be so great that a local war on the Korean scale would be an incalculable military risk. It is not absolutely certain but it is very probable that for the visible future wars of this type will be absorbed into the overall nuclear stalemate. This calculation should not prove to be an imprudent risk.

The assumption which lies at the root of the argument is that the alternative to general nuclear war is local conventional war. I wonder. It seems to me that the real alternative is first, guerrilla warfare and second, political infiltration and maneuver. Against neither of these kinds of warfare are the conventional American military forces prepared to be effective.

What fighting there is in the world today is in Algeria and in Cyprus and in Palestine. Such guerilla warfare can be an effective kind of warfare in a sense that it wins concessions. But it is not the kind of warfare for which American military power, nuclear or conventional, is prepared or even designed.

It follows, I believe, that if ever our vital interests are involved in an outbreak of local violence and disorder, for example in the Middle East, we shall not again do what we did in Korea. We shall not engage ourselves in a big land war on the other side of the world. We shall remember that we are a sea and an air power, and we shall tailor the shape of our intervention to the character of our military forces.

• • •

We are vulnerable in Germany, in Japan, in Vietnam, in Korea and in Formosa, not to military aggression but to political infiltration and maneuver. Red China is working to make a deal with the Chinese in Formosa, and who can be at all confident that they will not succeed, if not now behind Chiang's back then later on when Chiang goes? The same kind of thing is under way behind Dr. Syngman Rhee's back in South Korea and behind Diem's in South Vietnam. In Germany negotiations with the East are not very far off, and once Dr. Adenauer retires, they are to certain take place.

The critics of the Radford thesis, who want to maintain conventional forces big enough to fight another Korean war, may fairly be asked at what place, where our interests are at stake, a war of the Korean type might break out. This is a fair question because a military establishment has to be designed for a war with a particular adversary. It cannot be designed for any kind of war anywhere with anybody. Out strategic air force is designed for a particular war. But is not the plea that we must also have big conventional forces prepared for another Korean war a case of preparing for a war that is past?

LITERARY GUIDEPOST

THE SEVEN ISLANDS. By Jon Godden. Knopf.

In the Ganges, according to this short fiction, on one of seven islands lives a holy man, the Sadhu, teacher and recluse. He welcomes occasional visitors, but for constant companionship he has the birds, beasts and serpents. He ing eagles. He is the friend of the snakes that are soothed by the music of his flute, ha ea he milk he ses ou for hem in saucers, or h frogs ha Prm hips o catch, and that somtimes lie against him at night for warmth.

The eagles are late this year in mating and nesting, and the Sadhu knows why. Worshipers of Lord Krishna are building a school and temple on a nearby island; there are crowds where before there were only one or two human beings; there are noise and bustle where before it was quite. Can this development really be good for man if it disturbs lowlier creatures?

The Sadhu secretly works out schemes for driving off the invaders. But when he leaves signs to be interpreted as ill omens the meanings are twisted so that the people think the new construction has been blessed by divinity. The Sadhu's attempts seem to suggest that if anyone is going to look out for the dumb creatures, it must be, as a last resort, God himself.

This tale falls this side of novel and even of novelette. A slight, tenuous story, it is still by one of my favorite authors and has a sweet, fanciful charm. Though the scene and people are Indian, the lessons have their English counterpart: That the Lord watches out for the sparrow, and that man, though he may fail, should try and try again.

Big Circus Experiences Many Setbacks, But Some Claim It Is Too Large To Die

By GENE PLOWDEN

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—When robustious old John Ringling—last of five founding brothers — died in New York at the age of 70, he left oil wells and gold mines, hotels and beach property, railroads and grazing lands scattered throughout seven states.

He also left a 30 per cent interest, estimated to be worth $650,000, in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus—the most gigantic tented amusement enterprise in American history-plus $616,000 in other circus properties.

But the entire estate, valued at $22,366,000, was buried in an avalanche of claims and lawsuits, largest of which was an income tax bill for $3,753,138.01.

At the time of Ringling's death on Dec. 2, 1936, the circus had just returned to winter quarters in this resort town and would not go out again until he following spring.

Into this confusing scene stepped young John Ringling North, a vest-pocket edition of his uncle, to carry on the family tradition.

North, born in the circus town of Baraboo, Wis., to Ida Ringling North, the only sister in a family of seven brothers, had polished off his formal education at the University of Wisconsin and at Yale. He had helped his uncle look after his numerous affairs, usually working in the office.

North, 33 at the time, saw his uncle laid to rest in Englewood, N.J., then hurried to Sarasota to raise some cash. He, with his younger brother Henry, had been named executor of the estate. They and their mother were trustees.

North soon negotiated a loan of $825,000 to pay off a note left when John bought the American Circus Corp. in 1929 for two million dollars. That took him most of two years.

He then made a move that stamped him as a master showman of the stature of Barnum himself. He bought a gorilla which Henry promptly named Gargantua the Great, changing it from the Buddy tag the beast had worn for most of its seven years up to that time.

Gargantua proved to be the greatest feature in the history of the Ringling circus. His very name became a household word. Asked how much he paid for Gargantua, North cannily replied:

"He's worth $100,000." And he was.

Four years after Gargantua joined the show in 1937, North imported a female gorilla named M'Toto and staged an elaborate "wedding" for the beasts.

By this time North had become president and a member of the board of directors of the circus. His brother was elected a vice president.

By 1942, the estate's total debt had been reduced to $649,340 and the income tax claim had been settled.

Meanwhile, the circus was having its ups and downs. Labor disputes forced it to close in Scranton, Pa., late in June 1938. In the fall of 1941, 11 elephants were mysteriously poisoned and died.

Then, on the afternoon of Aug. 4, 1942, in Cleveland, Ohio, fire leveled the menagerie tent, burning to death two score costly animals which the show valued at $200,000.

World War II was on and in those years of rationing and uncertainty the future of the circus was in doubt. North wanted to turn it over to the government for the duration, but the directors disagreed and voted him out as president.

North's cousin, Robert E. Ringling, took over the helm. James A. Haley, an accountant who had handled many of John Ringling's business dealings, became first vice president and assistant to the president.

The show was playing Hartford, Conn., on the hot, sultry afternoon of July 6, 1944, when a tiny tongue of flame appeared above the sidewall near the entrance end of the 520-foot-long big top. Suddenly, the flames raced along the tent and the crowd of 6,789 patrons scrambled for exits.

Panic reigned as the world's largest tent settled to the ground, smothering and burning everybody caught beneath it. One hundred and sixty-seven persons died and 487 others were injured.

Six of the circus' key men were charged with criminal negligence. Five went to jail.

Prompt action in posting bonds enabled the show to leave Hartford nine days later and go back to winter quarters, there to rehabilitate and return to the road Aug. 4 in the Rubber Bowl at Akron, Ohio.

Total claims from the Hartford fire, amounting to four million dollars, have since been paid off.

[illegible] tor, had reduced outstanding claims against the John Ringling estate to $584,000 with salable property worth $5,769,973.

Two years later North was returned as vice president of the circus. Haley, who is now a congressman, was president.

North, who owned 7 per cent of the circus, also controlled the estate's 30 per cent. When Haley and his wife sold their share, North bought 14 per cent of it to bring his holdings to 51 per cent and give him controlling interest. The other 49 per cent was owned by Mrs. Charles Ringling and later went to her heirs.

In November 1947, North took over as president again. He has directed the show ever since, streamlining it, glamorizing it, modernizing it in a desperate attempt to keep many features of the circus of old but striving always to meet the challenge of changing times.

Now a combination of circumstances has forced the big top to fold in midseason at Pittsburgh. It came into winter quarters while a crowd stood glumly by with tear-filled eyes.

North has said the show will go out again and open in Madison Square Garden in New York City next April as it has done down through the years, but will appear only in air-conditioned auditoriums. He added that the big top, as we know it, is finished.

Others close to the circus disagree. They say the great tented amusement enterprise is too big to die; that anything that has been so much a part of the American scene for more than 100 years will rise again, to bring thrills and merriment to children of all ages.

Schacht Is Still Master Of Enlightened Self-Interest

By INEZ ROBB

When the court returned its verdict at the end of the Nuremberg trials in October, 1946, I was astounded that once more that wily old trout, Hjalmar Horace Greele Schacht, had managed to wiggle off the hook.

Since, on principle, I would have hung him higher than a kite, the verdict of acquittal in his case had me talking to myself for days. I felt the same way about the acquittal of Franz von Papen. And I have seen no cause to change my mind about either in the interim. Schacht was true only to money and von Papen to his own hide.

But perhaps I was over-harsh in the instance of Schacht, the government financial wizard of Germany for two generations. In his autobiography, which has just been published in this country, the man who shored up the German economy for Hitler and got him the money with which to rearm and wage war, reveals in his own virtues in a white and radiant light.

Alas, he was deceived by Hitler, who never took Herr Schacht into his confidence about his Jewish extermination policy. In all that time, Schacht never even smelled, much less heard, of the human abattoirs whose stench was still strong in certain parts of Germany when the Nuremberg trials were in progress.

So, to hear Schacht tell it, the revelation of this policy and of the extermination camps by the victorious Allies was a dreadful shock to his sensitive system.

And, naturally, Schacht was never a Nazi. I should have been smart enough to realize this, as World War II it was imposible to find any German who had ever been (1) a Nazi, or (2) heard of the extermination camps.

If German civilian and military leaders around Hitler continue to write their memoirs — and there is no indication that flood tide has yet hit its crest — it probably will be revealed that Hitler was the only Nazi in all Germany and that the extermination policy was the best-guarded secret in the nation.

Just for the fun of it, I dug out my notes on the Nuremberg tiral the other day, to see what I had written of Schacht at the time and here it is:

"Schacht looks like a mournful yet scornful hound dog, his mouth turned down in a perfect half moon between long, flabby jowls. It is obvious that he is not only holding himself self-righteously upright but aloof from the other defendants.

"It is clearly part of his startegy to disassociate himself in every way from the other defendants. From time to time, he twitches around to glare with distaste at them, in a manner plainly meant to say "What am I doing here with this canaille?"

In a way, this could stand as a fair review of his autobiography. At 79, Herr Schacht is still the master of enlightened self-interest in which he has specialized for a lifetime.

RADIO-TV REPORT

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"How will I recognize Jack Lenord?" Asked a man waiting for the comedian in a restaurant. "He's lost so much weight I won't know him."

"It's easy," replied a wit, pointing to the revolving front door. "When a guy slides through that door without turning it, that will be Leonard."

Leonard came in a moment later—turning the door, it's true. But nevertheless a much thinner man, down 125 pounds to a mere 205 by his bathroom scale. A woman tourist who had blundered into the restaurant and was waiting for a table called excitedly, "Aren't you Jack Leonard?"

"I was," muttered Leonard and stalked to a table with the man who had been waiting for him. "Don't worry about eating a big lunch," said Leonard. "I hate the sight of food."

Overcoming his aversion to the stuff, he ordered a corned beef sandwich — no butter — on corn bread—crust trimmed, and a cup of black coffee. He admitted to eating a soft-boiled egg and slice of protein bread for breakfast. For dinner his wife Catherine, who weighs 116 and helped him loose that 125 pounds, would serve him least roast beef and a plate of spinach.

"So you want to know my diet," said Leonard, who appears frequently on many TV programs and soon will launch his own regular situation comedy series. "Just say it's a few crumbs and one fig leaf scraped. Put it down that I'm now the world's tallest midget."

Actually Leonard, who never has drunk liquor but used to eat anything practically all day long, went on a 1,200 calorie daily diet. He did it the hard way by making it 400 and 500 calories a day. A total of 22 doctors said he had to lose weight as a result of a leg injury. At first they said he'd die of overweight. He took them so seriously that they decided he was dying of starvation. Somebody made him eat a one-pound steak and he's been happy on his 1,200 calories a day ever since.

Formerly often billed as "Fat Jack Leonard," the comedian finds that thinness has not spoiled Jack Leonard. He's in constant TV demand and feels fine — terrific. "I merely do all my fat man jokes in the past tense."

"I'm telling you I really shrank. My waist went from 58 to 42, my collar from 22 to 17. I gave away 40 suits, some of them never worn, and 150 shirts —half of them to fat cab drivers. The other day I ran into Jackie Gleason and I asked him where he's living now. He said Mr. Kisco. I said he must have swallowed it and he ought to diet. He said he'd lost 28 pounds. I said it must all be in his hair-line.

"Go ahead and order a rich dessert if you want to. It won't bother me. I hate food."

WASHINGTON LETTER

Country Cousins Are Like City Folks Now

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Eutha Olds, home demonstration agent in Pulaski County, Arkansas told a group of Extension Service workers meeting here that city and farm people differ very little these days.

"This is evident in the clothes they wear, conveniences in the home, or in knowledge of world affairs," Miss Olds said. "Women in each of these groups are interested in improving their homes and methods."

Traditionally, Extension Service programs have been concerned chiefly with rural families, and the home economics programs were designed by their suitablity to the needs of families living a rural way of life. Traditionally, also, the usual work area for the home demonstration agent has been the county.

Mrs. Maxine Livingston, family home editor of a national magazine, told a housing and household equipment group that urban renewal concerns all of America's housing.

"We need to conserve our good houses, to rehabilitate those which have felt the touch of blight, to eliminate the rock-bottom slums which have deteriorated beyond hope of reclamation," Mrs. Livingston said.

"To do this, it takes the interest of every individual — an awareness that motivates individuals to take action. Better housing, the desired end result, is achieved only at local levels."

Mrs. Livingston cited Cleveland's Operation Demonstrate as something that is being done at the local level — "It is a project undertaken by a civic-minded group of citizens to help local home owners improve their neighborhoods and modernize their homes."

"Home holds the key for sound growth," says Mrs. J. Warren Hastings, wife of a Washington minister.

"Home is the place where a child finds himself," she adds. "It's a place where he comes to know who he is as a person. A child accepts himself 'as is' because he is accepted by his parents and because affection binds the family together."

Voting Irregularities Are Under Study In South Texas

By BILL GIBSON

MCALLEN (AP) — Two separate investigations into alleged absentee voting irregularities in South Texas were on today.

One was at Laredo, conducted by Rep. Wade Spilman of McAllen. The other was in strife-torn Duval County where two representatives of Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd worked.

The two independent probes began after a verbal exchange between Spilman and Shepperd of who should or should not conduct the inquiries.

Spilman said his House General Investigations Committee would go to Laredo to look into alleged irregularities in five counties of that area. He said he would make a report on the "apparent refusal of the attorney general to act in the case."

He urged the attorney general to exercise his authority under the Texas Election Code and investigate the charges. He said the committee felt the law made it "mandatory" for Shepperd to do so.

The attorney general said no court has ever interpreted the election code the same way the committee did. Spilman called this reply "a half answer."

Spilman said he was advised by a member of the attorney general's staff that no action had ever been filed under Article 9.02 and no court had ever interpreted the law in any way.

"I don't understand why the office has not made some effort to do something under the statitue," Spilman said, "in view of the fact that he (Shepperd) has been so eager for us to make an investigation."

First Asst. Atty. Gen. Davis Grant said the attorney general's office had not refused to act in the case.

"We have had investigations there for some time and have them there now," Grant said.

Spilman urged last week that the attorney general start a court of inquiry after three candidates for office from Webb County had asked Spilman's committee to look into alleged absentee voting ivolations in Webb, Zapata, Jim Hogg, Duval and Starr counties.

Child's Home Is Decided

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge has ordered that Nicholas Newton, 5, son of the late actor Robert Newton, make his home in London with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Gates.

The decision ended an involved legal controversy over custody of the boy, whose father was "Long John Silver" of movies and television.

A University of Southern California professor, Sidney Benson, and his wife, Natasha, who cared for Nicholas for several weeks after his father died last March 25, wanted custody of the boy.

They claimed that Nicholas' stepmother, Mrs. Vera Budnick Newton Green, approved but the women denied it. Mrs. Newton and Mrs. Green had asked for joint guardianship.

Just then a police patrol car arrived. Sachs climbed in and within a few minutes the fleeing motorist, George Hunt, Jr., 35, was halted. He was charged with drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

Sachs was hospitalized for treatment of his rib fractures.

CRACKDOWN ORDERED

Italy Is Facing Traffic Problem

ROME (AP) — Campaigns have been launched in Italy to punish traffic offenders body and soul.

The state is talking about "decisive action" to crack down on careless drivers who roar along narrow Italian roads in ever-growing numbers and speeds. The Roman Catholic church has been urged to impose moral penalties.

Italians have been dying in frightening numbers in automobile accidents — about 5,800 a year. This is about three times the U.S. rate.

Neither laws nor sermons can do much about one of the basic reasons for the bloodshed. Most Italy highways are ancient. Via Aurelia, main coastal road from Rome to the Riviera, was staked out in the third century. Via Flaminia, from Rome to the northern Adriatic, was finished in 220 B.C.

Troops marched to battle against Hannibal on the Appian Way, still the straightest "superhighway" in Italy.

A foreign tourist caught in a maze of traffic, soon discovers that city streets were built for medieval horses, not for Flats or Ferraris—let alone Cadillacs.

That's half the deadly mixture. The other half is the fact that Italian cars are fast, their drivers love to handle them like racers.

and there has been insufficient law enforcement to stop them. There is no speed limit.

Heeding the recent press campaign, the Ministry of Interior announced last week that orders have gone out to provincial authorities to enforce what laws there are "with full vigor."

An expert in the Vatican's canon law has said the church could and should hand out ecclesiastical punishments to traffic offenders.

Vatican sources say that high prelates are studying the proposals seriously.

Wood Says Oil Men Not Meeting Requests

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Robert L. Wood, Midland, Tex., president of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America, has called for a discussion on the "serious failures by importers to take action requested by the government in the interest of national defense."

He charged that oil importing companies are not meeting government requests for import reductions.

Army Units Dig Into India Quake Wreckage

The quake left some 12,000 persons homeless. Tent camps were thrown up. Army medical units began a mass inoculation program.

Locals Rally For 8-7 Triumph

By BUCK FRANCIS
News Sports Editor

Snyder's Pony League All-Stars grabbed a one-game lead in their sub-district series with Colorado City's All-Stars last night at Towle Memorial Park by winning an up-hill battle from the C-Citians, 8-7.

Second game of the series will be played tonight on the local diamond. If the Snyder team wins tonight she will qualify for the district tournament to be held at Abilene next week.

If Colorado City wins tonight, the third and deciding game of the series will be played here Thursday.

It took a grandslam homer by Richard Mahan last night for the Snyder nine to emerge victorious. Mahan drove one far over the centerfield fence with the bases jammed in the fifth inning to erase a 4-3 Colorado City Lead.

Starting pitcher Dickie Richardson had walked the bases full prior to Mahan's homer. It was the second grandslam homer for Mahan within a week, the peppery shortstop having turned the trick against the Abilene Rebels last Wednesday in an exhibition game.

Norman Gladson, who relieved starter Tim Roberts in the sixth, received credit for the win. Roberts left the game with his mates ahead, 7-5, but C-City tied the score after his departure.

After the visitors tied the count in the sixth, Snyder pushed across its winning run in the bottom of the sixth when Tommy Minton singled across Billy DuBose from second. DuBose had reached second via a fielder's choice and a stolen base.

Colorado City took a 2-0 lead after 2½ innnings of play, mostly through loose play afield by the locals. Roberts struck out five C-Citians in the first inning but two of 'em got aboard on errors with one ultimately scoring a run.

Roberts recorded 14 strikeouts in all, eight of them coming in the first two innings. The slender lefthander struck out the side three times, in the first, second and fifth innings.

Gladson, after the locals had taken the lead in the bottom of the sixth preserved the league by striking out the side in the seventh.

Dick Richardson, ace of the C-City staff, allowed only one hit during his five-inning stint on the mound but he had control trouble through most of the game, walking five and hitting three batsmen.

Richardson was yanked in the bottom of the fifth when he walked the first two batsmen to face him. Reliefer Dwayne Thomason took over and walked Tommy Minton to load the bases and then Mahan delivered his clutch homer that sent the winners ahead, 7-4.

Minton got two of Snyder's four hits while Bob Bracy and Richardson combined to collect five of Colorado City's seven hits, Bracy getting three and Richardson two. Both of Richardson's hits were doubles.

Tonight's second game will start at 8.

Abilene Rebs Win Opener

The Abilene Rebels joined the Snyder team in posting frist game victories in sub-district play in the Pony League ranks last night.

The Rebs, behind the no-hit pitching of Johnny Choate, whipped the Abilene Yankees, 7-2, last night.

Choate struck out 18 Yankee batsmen.

Second game of the Yankee-Rebel series will be played tonight with the third game, if necessary, to be played Wednesday.

Easy Carpet Cleaning Discovery Hailed

What is said to be the easiest and "cleaningest" home rug cleaner, known as Blue Lustre, is now available after years of research.

Blue Lustre leaves no foreign residue to cause rapid resoiling. The pile is left open and fluffy as the colors spring out like magic. So easy to apply with a long handle brush (like playing shuffleboard) and is safe for all types of carpets.

Use Blue Lustre to clean the entire carpet or remove spots and traffic lanes. It's economical to use as ½ gallon of consentrate cleans three 9 x 12 rugs.

TRAIL BRAVES BY 2½

Redlegs Still A Threat In NL

By JOE REICHLER

The Cincinnati Redlegs, the National League's "ugly ducklings," stubbornly continue to hover within sight of the pot o' gold despite snubs by Milwaukee and Brooklyn.

Although the Redlegs trailed front-running Milwaukee by only 2½ games after last night's 4-3 triumph over Pittsburgh, Braves officials still regard the third-place Brooklyn Dodgers as the team to beat for the pennant.

The Dodgers, in turn, have eyes only for the Braves, who lead them by six games.

As the Dodgers prepared to meet Cincinnati tonight at Ebbets Field, Dodger General Manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi was quoted as saying the only team he feared was Milwaukee.

"Cincinnati has a good club but Milwaukee has more balance and finer pitching," he said. "Birdie Tebbetts has handled what he's got very well. We just don't have the pitching to stop them as the other clubs do."

Johnny Klippstein (8-6), who has beaten the Dodgers three times this season, was scheduled to pitch for the Redlegs against the veteran Sal Maglie (2-3).

Only two games were scheduled yesterday, both at night, one in each league. In the American League's only encounter, the last-place Kansas City Athletics upset the White Sox in Chicago 3-2.

Cincinnati's victory last night came when Johnny Temple singled home Bob Thurman in the eighth inning with the deciding run. The triumph went to Brooks Lawrence in relief. Lawrence, who won his first 13 decisions, now owns a 14-1 record.

Elroy Face was charged with the defeat, his sixth. Thurman, who scored Cincinnati's winning run, kept the Reds in the game with a sixth-inning home run.

Kansas City scored all its runs inside the first three innings, then held off the White Sox on strong relief pitching by Tom Gorman and Bobby Shantz. Hec Lopez drove in the A's first two runs in the second, and Vic Power singled in what proved to be the winning run in the third.

Gorman replaced starter Jack McMahon with the bases full in the second and forced Nellie Fox to hit into an inning-ending double play. He limited the Sox to three hits until the ninth when he walked Jim Delsing, who scored Chicago's second run on pinch hitter Ron Northey's double. Shantz then came in to retire the next three batters.

Hank, Cronin Are 'Inducted'

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—"It must be a wonderful country when a boy from the Bronx and a boy from San Francisco can win such honors with a baseball bat."

Hank Greenberg stood on a platform in front of Baseball's Hall of Fame, talking to those who came to honor him and Joe Cronin as its newest members.

Both men are general managers now, Greenberg at Cleveland and Cronin at Boston, but the big crowd that stretched across main street to the post office steps came to hear them talk of their playing days. Both men obliged.

"I didn't think I would be nervous standing up here," said the 45-year-old Greenberg, who was born in New York's Bronx. "But I have the same butterflies as when I used to anticipate hitting against Lefty Grove, or Red Ruffing with the bases loaded.

"When I played in the first game at Cooperstown when the Hall of Fame was dedicated in 1939 with men like Walter Johnson, Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth being honored, I little dreamed I would be on the same platform."

When Cronin, 49, spoke, he also said this was the greatest thrill of his baseball career.

"There were a lot of heartaches along the way," said Cronin.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick dedicated the plaques to Greenberg and Cronin.

TEXETTES HOST MIDLAND TONIGHT

The Snyder Texettes, winners of five of seven games this season, will entertain Midland tonight at Towle Memorial Park.

Game time will be 8.

It will be the first of two games for the local lassies this week. The Texettes will meet the Snyder Negro girls Friday night.

The Texettes won two games last week, edging Coahoma, 29-28, and walloping Sweetwater, 24-15.

TITLE MATCH TODAY

Kroll, Burke In PGA Finals

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

CANTON, Mass. (AP)— According to golfers who play in it — and some who won't — the Professional Golfers Assn. Championship is the toughest of all major tournaments because of its length and the unceasing pressure.

Two players well fitted physically and temperamentally to withstand this grind — Jackie Burke and Ted Kroll — meet today to battle it out over 36 holes of a woodsy, country-type golf course for the title and the $5,000 top prize.

Burke, 33, apparently is just reaching the peak of his competitive game after a too-long apprenticeship in which he was regarded as a perennial great prospect. Kroll, 37, is a wiry, weather-beaten tournament campaigner who plays every week on the pro tour and never seems to turn a hair whether the going is good or bad.

Since play began in the PGA last Friday, Burke already has played 121 holes of golf, almost without a breathing spell. Kroll didn't have a letup either until yesterday's semifinals, when the upset king of the earlier rounds turned out to be just a "pigeon" for a real tough competitor.

Kroll, shooting relentlessly steady golf, won by a near-record 10 and 8 margin from Bill Johnston, the 31-year-old club pro from Provo, Utah, who had beaten such players as Jay Hebert, ex-champion Walter Burkemo and Henry Ransom in the 18-hole duels.

Johnston was outclassed and soon realized it.

Putting was a big factor in Burke's 37-hole victory over Ed Furgol in about as exciting a match as this 38-year-old tournament has seen.

The Lame-armed Furgol, who lashes out at the ball in a jerky, vicious-looking way and achieves surprising results, moaned: "I should have beaten the man 9 and 8 or 7 and 6 if I had putted. I found the greens here hard to putt. They're not uniform."

The Blue Hill Country Club — a sort of Boston version of Tam o' Shanter — has a rolling course 6,634-yards long, with rocks and trees a little way off in the rough and some greens that were badly damaged by weather last fall and winter.

Burke played it amazingly well up to yesterday. Then he had all kinds of trouble on the early holes.

He came from 5 down at the 14th to 2 down at the 18th and then 2 up at the 28th after he had won five straight holes. The grim, crooked-armed Furgol caught him at the 35th and pulled off a couple of fine shots on the 36th to stay alive. A 12-footer on the 37th hole saved Burke.

17 States Turn Back Part Of Their Polio Vaccine Supply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Public Health Service announced today that 17 states have turned back part of previously allocated supplies of Salk polio vaccine.

In addition, 7 of the 17 waived their right to share in a new release today of 3,137,922 doses. The service said this enabled "states where demand is still high to receive larger amounts."

Secretary of Welfare Folsom and Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele of the health service have been urging maximum use of the vaccine as it becomes available.

However, a total of 2,431,035 doses previously allocated to them were turned back unused by the following states:

Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia.

The seven states which also waived their rights to a total of 728,244 doses from the new release were:

Kentucky, Maryland, West Virginia, Arkansas, Louisiana, Alabama and South Carolina.

State and territories other than the seven waiving their allocations were allotted 5,564,097 doses of the new and reallocated vaccine. The remaining 4,860 doses were licensed for export.

Today's release of 3,137,922 doses was the first this month. However, a record of 17,172,396 doses were released during June.

Eli Lilly and Co., Indianapolis, made 3,116,934 doses of the new release. The remainder came from previously released lots which were underestimated by manufacturers at the time of announcement.

Altogether, the states and territories have been allocated 67,800,367 doses of the 82, 196,382 released since the vaccine was licensed April 12, 1955.

A check of health service records showed that at least 32 states and other areas have now extended the vaccine priority age group to cover persons through 19 years of age.

The service said available information indicates that the tightest supply situation currently is in New England, New York and New Jersey.

Crude Oil Increase Is 29,700 Barrels

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Daily average production of crude oil and condensate increased 29,700 barrels during the week ended July 21 chiefly because of a 21,400-barrel advance in Oklahoma, the Oil and Gas Journal's survey showed today.

Oklahoma's output averaged 602,900 barrels. The national daily average was 7,113,350 barrels, raising the Journal's estimate of 1956 production to 1,542,948.7 barrels compared to 1,365,552, 443 a year ago.

Illinois and Nebraska had the larges losses, the former falling 3,700 barrels to 225,500 and the latter dropping 3,400 to 37,300.

Production was reported unchanged in Texas, 3,001,800 barrels.

Met Season Will Open Once More

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera Assn. has signed a contract with a labor union and the once canceled 1956-57 season is on again.

The opera company approved an agreement with the American Guild of Musical Artists yesterday.

Last week the association canceled the coming season in a dispute with AGMA over the dual job status of 31-year-old Robert Herman.

Herman is an assistant stage director and as such is a guild member and subject to guild rules. He is also an assistant artistic administrator and as such is a member of management.

The guild threatened to discipline him because he was a member of the management negotiating team. The Met objected and canceled the season.

Both sides agreed that any guild action against Herman should not become effective until after the 1956-57 season.

The new contract does not provide for an increase in base pay. But the chorus will receive time-and-a-half pay for rehearsal time in excess of 15 hours a week.

Little Party A Big Thing

CHICAGO (AP) — Cornelius (Bud) Koster, who has been lying face down for nearly 14 years, hasn't much to look forward to.

He remarked today to Fred Hertwig, warden of the Cook County Hospital, "Life is mostly a lot of little things; and little things are big things to me."

Koster, whose back was splintered in an auto crash near Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 18, 1942, will celebrate his 37th birthday in Ward 22 of the County Hospital next week —Aug. 2.

A former electric sign attendant, Koster was paralyzed from the waist down in the accident. A score of operations have failed to rehabilitate him even to the extent of being able to sit up with out pain.

But friends, who say Koster has grown tired of his self-imposed title "the Real Life Humpty-Dumpty," are planning a little ward party on his birthday, which may be a big thing after all.

White Seeks Fourth Term As Commissioner Of Agriculture

By ED OVERHOLSER

AUSTIN (AP)—At 31, John White, son of a tenant farmer who once earned his living pulling cotton, is up for reelection to a fourth term as Texas commissioner of agriculture.

The young redhead from Wichita Falls, who won a reputation as a political giant killer in 1950, has two opponents: Bill Jones, Kermit nurseryman, and Jim Barber, former agriculture department employe.

Barber and Jones have said White is using his department as a stepping stone to higher political office and has no "sincere interest" in the office.

White came from nowhere in 1950 to upset officerholder J. E. McDonald who had been agriculture commissioner since 1931. He was re-elected in 1952 and 1954.

This summer White has not made a serious stump swing, but has carried his campaign through newspaper advertisements, radio spots and letter writing.

"He hasn't had time to make a campaign trip with all the work he has been doing trying to get an effective drought relief program for the state," an aide said.

A frequent critic of Republican farm policy and, regarded as a Loyalist Democrat, White was the only statewide officeholder to refuse cross-filing of his candidacy by the GOP in 1952.

He was born on a farm near Newport, was graduated from Texas Tech and went to work at Midwestern University (then Hardin College). He was a vocational ag teacher at Midwestern when he challenged McDonald.

The husky, six-foot Irishman was considered a possibility to try for the governorship in 1954 and again this year but announced only for re-election.

Barber, 60, who resigned his job in the department May 3 to make the race, said White has been at outs with the federal authorities since shortly after the beginning of his first term.

Barber says "in his present status the department is a curse rather than a blessing to all Texans who look to the soil for their existence."

He was born and reared in Dallas County and was a former clerk of the Court of Criminal Appeals. Barber was an inspector for the departments Weights and Measures Division, a nursery inspector and has done seed certification work. He owns a Collin County farm near Wylie.

If elected, Jones said he would use the department to "further the cause of agriculture and not a place to groom myself."

The 38-year-old Jones operates a nursery in Kermit and has an interest in a nursery at Stephenville. He was educated at John Tarleton Agriculture College at Stephenville and North Texas Agriculture College at Arlington.

It's Cleanup Time, Yarborough Claims

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN (AP)—A last-hour whispering campaign of slander and abuse has been started against him in the governor's race, candidate Ralph Yarborough asserted last night.

He told a big Wooldridge Park audience a committee of women has been formed to spread such false stories as one that he has been married and divorced three times.

Yarborough made the statement after introducing his wife and saying she was the one who had taken the brunt of abuse in the campaign, having to cope with anonymous phone calls and letters at home while he was on the road.

Yarborough drew a crowd estimated by reporters at about 3,000 —equalling or slightly bettering the audience which heard W. Lee O'Daniel in the same spot two weeks ago.

O'Daniel and Yarborough are the only two of six candidates in the race to risk holding rallies in the Capital city. Yarborough's crowd interrupted him 25 times for applause.

Yarborough asserted his opposition had used a last-minute campaign of slander against him in the 1954 race.

"Now they have started it again," he said. "That's the kind of clean campaigners they are," he said.

Yarborough emphasized his program for drought relief and for a cleanup in state government.

He said "wrongful secret orders" permitted the defunct U.S. Trust and Guaranty Co. of Waco to continue in business with Insurance Commission sanction "after it was busted."

Yarborough came up with a new campaign publicity device in the one-day tour of his home town.

He rolled toward the Capitol in a little wagon pulled by four "Democratic donkeys" driven by Cowboy Copeland of Alice. Riding with him were the Cass County Coon Hunters, a guitar band which has furnished musical background for Yarborough's third bid for the governorship.

Yarborough, apparently in high spirits, energetically pumped the hands of hundreds of voters in a tour of shopping centers before his night rally. He moved to Houston today.

His band played "It's Cleanup Time in Texas" as Yarborough came to the microphone for his rally speech.

Jeanne Crain And Husband To Settle

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Actress Jeanne Crain and her husband, Paul Brinkman, have reached a property settlement and an agreement for a quiet divorce which she will seek without contest from him.

Miss Crain's publicity agent announced the agreement and said the actress, charging extreme cruelty, probably will have a divorce hearing within three weeks.

Miss Crain filed for divorce last March 29 and in an amended complaint accused Brinkman of caveman tactics in displaying affection. Brinkman's cross-complaint charged her with adultery which she denied.

State Political Road Show Rolls On

By The Associated Press

The race for governor had taken on today the appearance of Roman holiday and a Hollywood production rolled into one with watermelon feast, a movie star, a Pulitzer Prize winner and four donkeys in supporting roles.

Ralph Yarborough and his Cass County Coon Hunter's band rolled down Congress Ave. in Austin in a wagon drawn by four donkeys, the emblem of the Democratic party as a prelude to an address and watermelon feast attended by 3,000 in downtown Woolridge Park.

Sen Price Daniel staged a 30-minute television show from Fort Worth featuring Fess Parker —the "Davey Crockett" of video and the movies—Pulitzer Prize-winner editor Kenneth Towery, Frank Jackson of San Angelo, past president of the State Teachers' Assn; and the candidates's family.

W. Lee O'Daniel whose own road show consisting of a red fire truck and his hillbilly band has been playing over the state, made a one-night stand at Haltom City.

There was a touch of drama from other candidates.

J. J. Holmes, who has offered $10,000 and $50,000 rewards for information leading to the solving of the auto bombing of Brady attorney Sam McCollum III, camped at Huntsville trying to see a convict whom the candidate said is supposed to know something about the bombing.

J. Evetts Haley got a polite heave - ho from a Waco tire manufacturing plant when he tried to campaign inside the grounds and the plant guards were alerted to see that he didn't get in or interfer with traffic outside the gate.

Reuben Senterfitt took a dim view of at east one of Monday's performances. He said Daniel was "so desperate" as a candidate that he is becoming a theatrical producer. He said the original Davey Crockett "would turn over in his grave if he knew his good name was being lent to such political chicanery."

Yarborough, reviewing his charges of corruption in state government and promising a thorough and quick cleanup if he is elected, was interrupted 25 times for applause by a crowd which was more enthusiastly partisian than an earlier O'Daniel audience of about the same size.

In his TV program, Daniel predicted he can win without a runoff because of mudslinging of other candidates and by Walter Reuther of the CIO.

He said attacks by other candidates prove that he is far ahead in the race.

Daniel charged that Reuther and other out-of-state labor men with backing a candidate they twice supported without success, an obvious reference to Yarborough.

The senator said Reuther fought the tidelands bill, the natural gas bill and is now giving money to the NAACP to "help instigate law suits against school districts in the South, which have not chosen by their own decision to integrate."

Daniel said he doesn't believe union members will be dictated to on how to vote because, "they are independent."

Report On Savings Bond Program Given

Lyle Deffebach, Scurry County Savings Bond chairman, has announced that citizens of the county purchased $19,904 in U. S. Savings Bonds during the month of June.

Sales for the first six months of 1956 totaled $259,879, or 42 per cent of the 1956 quota of $610,000.

Sales in Texas for the same period were $98,307,958, which is 45.2 per cent of the 1956 quota of $217.5 million.

Deffebach reminded the people that by their continued purchase of savings bonds they are helping themselves and their government. By putting more of the national debt in the hands of individuals, citizens of the county are helping the government in its efforts to maintain a strong and stable economy, he explained.

"I feel confident that the people of Scurry County will get behind this worthwhile program and that Scurry County will make its 1956 quota," Deffebach said.

He Dropped Car Keys Off—In An Airplane

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration started an inquiry after receiving a complaint an old single engine plane flew to low over suburban Glendale.

Investigators traced the plane to Donald T. Smith, a crop dusting pilot, and got this explanation:

"I took off in the plane and then discovered I had the car keys in my pocket, so I flew low over my family's place and dropped the keys into the yard."

Some 3,000 Slogans Are Sent To GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aides to Rep. Oliver P. Bolton (R-Ohio) reported in some amazement today he has received about 3,000 suggestions for a 1956 GOP campaign slogan.

They were submitted in response to an appeal by Bolton just last week.

The Ohio congressman, expressing dissatisfaction with current GOP phrases, offered a $25 savings bond to the winner—still to be picked.

Some of the suggested slogans emphasize candidates. For example:

"All in favor say Ike." "Keep that Eisenhower look—a fat pocketbook." "Peace and power with Eisenhower." "Eisenhower, man of the hour." "Better an ill president than an ill country." "Ike and Dick are sure to click."

Other Republicans like the "Peace and prosperity" theme with such variations as: "From gloom to boom." "Grin and share it party." "A chicken on every corner." "We will not lower the boom." "Well heeled? You ought to know!"

Just what Bolton will do with the winning slogan hasn't been decided upon, but the GOP National Committee has expressed interest.

"Actually," said a committee spokesman, "we think now we'll go right down to the wire with 'Peace, prosperity and progress' but we haven't closed our minds."

Fresh blueberries make a pretty team when they are mixed with cantaloupe balls or orange cubes.
