GETS PIE IN THE EYE — Dr. Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California, is hit in face with a custard pie while speaking to a group of Indiana University students observing the eve of the Vietnam Moratorium last night at Bloomington, Ind. James Retherford, a former Indiana graduate student, was charged with assault and battery. Kerr cleaned his face and continued his lecture.

Antipoverty Bill Trimmed By Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed overwhelmingly a two-year $4.78 billion extension of the antipoverty program but left unsettled the status of the controversial Legal Services aid.

In a sharp defeat for the program's backers, the Senate voted 45-40 Tuesday to add a rider to the bill giving governors the absolute right to veto any Legal Services projects.

But then, after the rider's sponsor, Republican Sen. George Murphy had left the chamber to go to California, the bill's managers came up with language which would allow President Nixon to override such vetoes.

Several senators contended Murphy's amendment was being emasculated in his absence.

The managers answered that Murphy should not have left the chamber before work on the legislation was completed but they pledged they would drop the new language in Senate-House conference if Murphy objected.

The Legal Services lawyers, target of Murphy's amendment, have stepped on the toes of state and local officials in a number of states by filing lawsuits questioning various governmental practices.

Gov. Ronald Reagan in California has criticized their work in behalf of striking grape pickers, among others.

Under present law governors can veto most antipoverty programs in their states, but the Office of Economic Opportunity director can override the vetoes.

The bill to continue the OEO through fiscal 1971 passed the Senate 73-3 and was sent to the House.

Democrats and Republicans on the House Education and Labor Committee have been squabbling over OEO extension for months. There was no estimate on when the committee might act.

OEO already has gone through more than a quarter of the current financial year without knowing what its exact funding will be.

The Senate bill authorizes slightly over $2 billion for the present year, exactly what Nixon asked. The total is $100 million more than was spent last year.

The bill also authorizes $2.73 billion for fiscal 1971, considerably more than the administration has indicated it wants.

More Flags Than Black Arm Bands

Local influence from the nation-wide moratorium to protest the war in Vietnam today seemed comparatively small with no support noted at Howard County Junior College.

At Big Spring High School, Assistant Principal Harold Bentley said a few students were wearing black and sporting black arm bands.

"But our school colors are black and gold," he said. "I just thought they were being patriotic to the school." Bentley added there were more flags being displayed at the school than black trappings. The flags indicate support of patriotism, counter-acting the protest.

Somali Boss Shot Dead

NAIBROBI, Kenya (AP) — Dr. Aboirashid Ali Shermarke, president of the Somali republic was shot dead this afternoon by a man said to be wearing a police uniform.

Radio Mogadishu interrupted its programs to broadcast the news.

The Somali Republic is on the eastern horn of Africa, bordered on the landward sides by Ethiopia and Kenya. It became independent in 1960.

Shermarke had been president since June, 1967.

The broadcast announcement said the man accused of the shooting is now under police custody.

The monitoring station in Nairobi said Radio Mogadishu later announced that a dusk to dawn curfew had been imposed in the capital city and that security officers are patrolling the streets

Bishop Sheen 'Regenerating'

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, known by millions across the land for his former televised religious program, has resigned as bishop of the Rochester Roman Catholic Diocese, it was announced today.

The 74-year-old bishop will be succeeded by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph L. Hogan, 53, pastor St. Margaret Mary's Church in Rochester.

In Vatican City, the Vatican said Pope Paul had accepted the resignation for reasons of health.

But Bishop Sheen told a news conference his health was "perfect, Thank God. Just marvelous."

Bishop Sheen emphasized that "I am resigning the diocese. I am not resigning work. I am not retiring. I am regenerating."

He said that after the installation of Bishop-elect Hogan he will "return to New York — not to retire, but to spend myself and be spent in any work the Lord sees fit to use me."

Bishop Sheen said that last May 8, his 74th birthday, he had an audience with the Pope.

Some Troops In Viet Back Moratorium Day

Demonstrations Get Under Way

By The Associated Press

On college campuses and city streets, in churches and commuter terminals, Vietnam Moratorium Day demonstrations got under way early today in protest against the war.

About 25 students gathered in Columbus, Ohio, on the steps of the administration building at Ohio State University in the early morning chill and took turns reading the names of Americans killed in Vietnam.

Overnight vigils were held on several campuses, including Temple University in Philadelphia where 200 students remained sitting at dawn out of 500 who began the demonstration at midnight.

'Tell It To Hanoi'

Before the day was out, millions of Americans in cities and towns in various parts of the country were expected to take some part in the moratorium's campus rallies, teach-ins, parades, forums, prayer services and similar activities.

In Washington, an all-night House session planned by a group of congressmen in support of the protest ended short of its target when adjournment was voted shortly after 11 p.m., after about three hours of debate.

Meanwhile, in Vietnam there was a small echo of the U.S. demonstrations. Half the 30 troops in a combat platoon in the U.S. Americal Division went out on a mission today wearing black armbands to protest the war.

"I'm wearing it to show that I sympathize with the antiwar demonstration back home," said the platoon leader, 1st Lt. Jesse Rosen of New York City.

Moratorium opponents—led by President Nixon—planned their own observances in support of administration policy.

One group—calling itself the Citizens Committee for Peace with Security—took a full page advertisement in the New York Times declaring: "Everyone who wants peace in Vietnam should: Tell it to Hanoi."

Rallies, Forums, Prayers

The opponents of the demonstration included public officials, veterans' groups and police and firemen's organizations who said the demonstration was not in the national interest.

Those participating in the protest planned a variety of observances including mass rallies, parades, teach-ins, forums, prayers and the reading of the roll of Vietnam dead.

Leaders of the moratorium movement called for a nonviolent disruption of the daily routine. Most law officials did not express great outward concern although some geared up to handle greater traffic.

Opponents planned to emphasize their view by flying flags at full staff and, in some cases, driving with their headlights on.

One of the opposition organizations, the American Legion, urged all Americans to fly the flag at full staff "as a symbol of their faith in the American system of government . . ."

The Legion also said such action would be a "vote of confidence in the way our President is working to bring a prompt, just, and honorable peace in Vietnam."

'Worthy And Timely Rebuff'

On the eve of the moratorium, the North Vietnamese delegates to the Paris peace talks released a statement by Premier Pham Van Dong calling the protest a "worthy and timely rebuff" of President Nixon's policy.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, acting with the President's approval, termed the message a "shocking intrusion into the affairs of the American people by an enemy" and urged protest leaders to repudiate the Communist support.

The Vietnam Moratorium Committee replied in a statement from its Washington, D.C., headquarters:

"Oct. 15 is an appeal to the conscience of the American people. It is regrettable that the administration would seize this straw in an attempt to discredit the patriotism of those millions of Americans who sincerely desire peace."

'Could Pull The Rug Out'

South Vietnam's ambassador to the United States told a Princeton University audience Tuesday night that everyone wants the war to end but precipitous action "could pull the rug out from under our feet without giving us a chance to stand alone."

Because of the time difference, one of the first moratorium observances came in Saigon where a group of 20 American civilians presented a petition at the U.S. Embassy protesting the presence of American troops in Vietnam.

A delegation was received by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. They said he "expressed his own concern about the war" but disagreed that the immediate withdrawal of American troops was the way to accomplish it.

In Washington, the plans for an all-night session of the U.S. House of Representatives in support of the moratorium were cut short when the lack of a quorum forced adjournment at 11:17 p.m.

A motion to adjourn had been made and defeated early in the session and before the quorum call there was far-ranging debate over U.S. involvement in the war.

Early observances of the moratorium included a sleep-in by students at Fordham University in New York City and a convocation at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

More than 2,000 turned out for an orderly candlelight parade on the University of Washington campus Tuesday night. A midnight memorial service for those killed in the war was held at Clemson University in Columbia, S.C.

Opponents of the protest in Columbia planned a late-afternoon parade and rally. The Veterans of Foreign Wars in the state asked citizens to fly the U.S. flag in silent counterreaction to the moratorium.

Dr. Spock Denounces Nixon's 'Deception'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The business of government ground on much as usual today as opponents of the Vietnam war saved their most spectacular protest for nightfall and a candlelight vigil at the White House.

The capital's observance of the nationwide moratorium on business as usual was confined largely to quiet seminar rooms and student assemblies. There, war and peace displaced the routine academic subjects.

Dr. Benjamin Spock, who has long since declared a moratorium on baby talk to speak his mind on Vietnam, drew a coffee-break crowd of several hundred to a sidewalk rally outside the Office of Economic Opportunity.

There, he denounced President Nixon's recent moves toward peace as "deception obviously designed to quell protest."

At the White House, Nixon carried on a full schedule unrelated to the moratorium. His activities focused on Latin American policy and efforts to curb inflation.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was keeping informed about the moratorium through news media reports and "normal staff discussions."

The clergy at the National Cathedral offered prayers for peace every hour but abandoned, without explanation, plans to toll the great cathedral bell for five minutes on the hour.

As a prelude, the House of Representatives stayed in session past 11 p.m. Tuesday while the American involvement. Young people, quiet and well-behaved, many wearing black armbands, packed the galleries.

Vietnam Moratorium Day was planned, in the words of its sponsors, to "appeal to the conscience of the American people." It grew into a nationwide affair, with Washington as the focus.

President Nixon had said he would not be influenced by the demonstrations, but a Hanoi endorsement of the Oct. 15 observance brought a quick response from the administration.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, after conferring with the President, denounced the Hanoi message "a shocking intrusion into the affairs of the American people by an enemy power."

The Vietnam Moratorium committee replied that "it is regrettable that the administration would seize this straw in an attempt to discredit the patriotism of those millions of Americans who sincerely desire peace."

President's Welfare Reform Package Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration opened its drive in Congress today for massive welfare reform by calling the proposed family assistance program "the best vehicle for this nation to help break the poverty cycle."

Secretary Robert H. Finch of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the administration's lead-off witness before the House Ways and Means Committee, said the first year costs of the President's welfare reform package have been revised upwards from $4 billion to $4.4 billion.

But he conceded the proposed federal minimum payment of $1,600 a year to a family of four "is not adequate to support needy families without other sources of income."

OPENING NEW PROGRAM OF SOLAR RESEARCH

Soviet Union's Biggest Week In Space

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's biggest week in space got even bigger Tuesday with the opening of a new program of solar research, keyed to an unmanned satellite, while the three manned spaceships sent up earlier continued their troika flight.

The Soviets apparently are carrying out two unrelated space operations simultaneously, and one of them—the three-ship manned flight—is among the most complicated operations ever undertaken.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the group flight of Soyuz 6, Soyuz 7 and Soyuz 8 "continues successfully" and the seven cosmonauts "feel fine." There was also the usual report of morning exercises, medical checkup and checking of instruments.

The announcement said the day's schedule called for "observations of separate regions of the earth's surface in mountainous areas, to watch the distribution of cloud and vortex formations over the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, to explore the reflecting factor of tracts of forest and desert regions."

But once again there was no word on plans to link up and weld together at least two of the spacecraft, the exercise in construction of a space platform that is believed to be the chief purpose of the flight.

Tass in another report late Tuesday dubbed the Soyuz crews "cosmonaut-assemblymen" and stressed the importance of their space welding tasks, which it noted would be extremely difficult because weightlessness in space restricts even the simplest movements.

"The assembly of space constructions, their repair and other work will necessitate the joining of metals," Tass said. "To fulfill these jobs, the cosmonaut-assemblyman must stay outside the ship for long periods of time.

Tass said different welding methods will be used, including "electronic beam of plasma arc," which would give the space welders "the possibility of using a single instrument to both join metals and cut them."

Meanwhile, on Tuesday the Russians sent up a new unmanned satellite, Intercosmos 1, and said it would be used by radio observatories of East European Communist countries for a large-scale probe into the mysteries of the sun.

The satellite is named after a new body formed to coordinate space experiments of the Soviet Union and its European partners, the Council for International Cooperation in the Field of Exploring and Studying Outer Space, or Intercosmos.

Boris Petrov, a leading Russian scientist who heads the organization, said the mission of Intercosmos 1 was "to study the ultraviolet and roentgen radiations of the sun and their influence on processes taking part in the upper atmosphere."

Petrov said the satellite carried equipment made in East Germany Russia and Czechoslovakia, and that observatories in Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany, Poland, Rofania and Czechoslovakia a swell as the Soviet Union were taking part in the probe.

Residents Given Two Weeks To Sign Up For Paving

Residents along some 20 city blocks will have two more weeks to make financial arrangements to have their streets paved, or be deleted from the paving program.

The city commission decided on this course of action at its regular meeting, after a request for the deletion had been made by the contractor, W. D. Caldwell Inc.

"This is the same list Caldwell requested earlier," Public Works Director Ernest Lillard said, "because of the large amount of delinquent taxes. We have found little improvements in any of the units."

"Those people were told to get three-fourths of the people on the street signed up," Commissioner Garner McAdams said, suggesting more time for the residents; "they got three-fourths signed, but now the street won't be paved."

"Some people have paid back taxes to get the paving," said Commissioner Jimmy Morehead, "but others have not paid. Now they are anxiously waiting for paving too."

Mayor Arnold Marshall instructed the administration to formally notify the residents they have two weeks to make suitable financial arrangements, or be dropped from the program.

Those blocks (18) to be notified are: Thirteenth, from Dixie to Settles (one block); Fourteenth, from Dixie to Settles, (one block); North Tenth, from Main to Runnels (one block); Lorilla, from Seventh to US 80 (one block); Austin, from Fifth to Sixth (one block); North Tenth, from Goliad to Benton (two blocks); North Third, from Trades to Dundee (one block); North Fifth, from Scurry to Main (one block); North Eighth, from Main to Goliad (four blocks); West Eighth, from US 80 to Andree (one block); North Eighth, from Aylford to San Antonio (two blocks); and Trades, from North Third to North Fourth.

The mayor also directed Lillard to check out the blocks which had been suggested as substitutes, to see that similar tax problems do not exist, before the next meeting. Those blocks are North Aylford, from North Third to North Fourth; Carl, from Connally to Wasson; Grace, from Connally to Wasson; Sixth, from San Antonio to Abrams; Fifth, from Goliad to Benton and State to Settles; Cardinal, from Sixteenth to Webb Lane; Lockhart, from First to Third; North Eleventh, from Gregg to Scurry and from San Antonio to Lamesa Highway; Owens, from Eighteenth to the south end of Mittel Acres; Twenty-second, from Runnels to Johnson; Twenty-fourth, from Runnels to Johnson; Runnels, from Twenty-fourth to FM 700; Virginia, from Phillips Road to Cole Lane; North Sixth, from US87 to Goliad; Fifth, from Abrams to Douglas; Twenty-third, from Scurry to Main; and Fifth, from Nolan to Goliad.

Horoscope Forecast

TOMORROW

—CARROLL RIGHTER

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An adverse day for forcing anything. You would certainly be wise to see what you can do to eliminate tactfully and quietly whatever is standing in the way of your progress. Avoid making dramatic changes or comments for they could cause trouble.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) If you do not forget those controversial ideas you have, you can now lose much of the good will you have been building up carefully. Stick right to business. Follow scrupulously every regulation that concerns you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You want to dash out to the new and untried but this would certainly affect the present worthwhile setup. Stand firm and complete what has been started. Get ahead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't deliberately neglect your obligations or you find they become more difficult later. A fellow worker is being rebellious. Don't criticize but cooperate more and you win him over.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get out of that mood for some costly entertainment that will be even more costly in another way, and still not be worth anything. Keep busy with new ideas. Don't put them in operation until you have studied them well.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can't avoid that work ahead of you so get at it cheerfully. Don't try to antagonize a valuable associate. Put that arrogant quality aside for the moment. Not a good day to put those ideas across.

VIRGO (Aug. 2 2to Sept. 22) If you want to get along better with others, you have to be willing to give and take. A nice smile can go a long way in gaining the favor of others. Get rid of the scowling habit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Others at home are not feeling quite up to par, so don't complain or there can be arguments that are best avoided. Be cheerful and you find that anxieties are really negligible. Have a happy evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) There are arguments arising between allies and yourself, but it is best to keep quiet right now. Much care must be exercised in motion, driving, etc. Avoid that accident that could be quite costly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You feel a financial loss now, but if you see where to cut down on expenses, you find you soon have a sizable nestegg on which to build. Avoid such crises in the future. Be more active.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to exercise self-control or your plans go awry and you accomplish very little. This is a good day to get health and appearance improved. Be smart, look smart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) It may be true that others are imposing on you, but don't lose your temper or you could have more trouble. Keep busy at duties and do them as efficiently as possible. Be happy with mate tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Show thought and consideration when dealing with friends and do not make demands they cannot meet. Avoid a social meeting where an argument could follow. This could be a serious one.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to the lady who wanted to breastfeed her about-to-be adopted baby saddened me, although it did not surprise me. You are hardly to be blamed when the majority of the medical men in the country, including obstetricians and pediatricians would also pooh pooh the idea.

Knowledge of the physiology of lactation and the factors which induce it are woefully lacking in the American medical education of today.

There are "primitive societies" (civilization's arrogant adjective for peoples living more naturally than we do) who very often use the services of other women than a baby's natural mother to breastfeed a baby. In some groups, grandmothers, long past their reproductive years, will successfully suckle infants.

The La Leche league is far more sophisticated in its knowledge of nursing than the medical profession. More power to your correspondent. I applaud her maternal instinct and hope she makes the attempt to breastfeed her adopted child. It can be done.

MRS. L. Mc: ALBANY, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that mother-to-be who is so eager to breastfeed her baby that if she's going to all that trouble because she thinks it will be better for the baby, she shouldn't kid herself.

I have had four children. I bottle fed the first two and breastfed the last two. All four are equally healthy. It made no difference in their teeth. In fact, the only child who did NOT have to wear bands on his teeth happened to be a bottle baby.

Also, my two breastfed children did not enjoy any "closer" relationships with me than the bottle-fed children.

What a baby needs more than anything else is LOVE, and they all got plenty of that.

TWO OF EACH:
VALDOSTA, GA.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: From my own personal experience, I can say that bottle babies are healthier.

I nursed my first baby and had nothing but trouble. When I was nervous and fretful, my baby would become nervous and fretful. Every little emotional upset would promptly be transmitted to my baby through my milk. Also breastfeeding seemed to drain me of all my energy.

My next three babies went on the bottle immediately, and they were healthier in every way than my first one. And I had a lot more pep, too.

MRS. G., ORANGEBURG, S.C.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I nursed my adopted baby! It took a lot of patience on my part, but it was well worth the effort. I'm glad I didn't take my doctor's word for it when he told me to "forget it."

I can thank the La Leche League!

Potential Of Alaska's Oil Fields Overrated?

HOUSTON (AP) — The top spokesman for the American petroleum industry says there is little doubt the Prudhoe Bay area on Alaska's North Slope will prove to be the largest oil field in North America.

Michael L. Haider believes, however, the area's potential oil reserves have been grossly overstated in some quarters.

"Present reserve estimates in the 10 billion barrel range have been based on a minimum number of wells and further delineation could result in an increase in the estimates," said the board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute.

"I am not discounting this possibility, but it does not change my view of the gross overstatements regarding both Prudhoe Bay Field and the entire area."

Some unofficial sources have estimated the North Slope's potential as high as 100 billion barrels.

Haider, who retired Oct. 1 as chief executive officer of the Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), spoke at the final session of the golden anniversary meeting of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

"North Slope oil, even if it achieves the high expectation of some observers, is only a small part of the total oil reserves which the industry will need to find and develop to assure that a major portion of our energy supplies comes from secure sources," Haider said.

He said the crude oil reserve currently estimated for Prudhoe Bay represents only about a two-year supply for the United States at present rates of consumption.

"Because of growth in demand it will represent a smaller part of our needs when it comes on stream in a few years," he said. "It is obvious we cannot afford to be complacent because of the Alaskan finds. We must continue vigorously to explore in other states and in offshore areas as well to achieve the reserves required."

Haider estimated that 72 billion barrels of new domestic crude oil reserves can be discovered by 1985 if incentives such as the industry's 27½ per cent depletion tax allowance and the current oil import controls are retained.

His 72 billion barrel estimate included 31 billion for Alaska, 21 billion for inshore domestic areas, and 20 billion for offshore areas out to a water depth of 2,000 feet. The 31 billion barrel figure for Alaska included the Naval Petroleum Reserve and the Wildlife Refuge.

Nude Neighbors? Build A Fence

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — If nude neighbors annoy you, you should build a higher fence.

That's what sunbather James A. Koch told his neighbor Troy J. Morris recently, and Prosecutor Keith Sorenson of San Mateo County agreed.

Refusing Morris' complaint Tuesday against Koch for outraging public decency, Sorenson noted that the backyard fence between the two homes was difficult to see through or over.

CHEVROLET PICKUP — A 1.6-inch wider rear tread and 15-inch bias belted ply tires are among many improvements in the 1970 Chevrolet half-ton pickup. Side marker lights and reflectors are standard, and all engines are equipped with a new type exhaust emission control system. New options include sliding rear window, 400-cu.-in. V-8, air-inflatable rear shock absorbers with coil springs to maintain a level ride with varying loads, and a tilt steering wheel with automatic or 4-speed transmission.

FULL LINE MARKETER

Chevrolet Introduces Truck Line; Includes New Series

For the first time since it entered the commercial vehicle market in 1918, Chevrolet will become a full line truck marketer when it introduces its 1970 models in mid-October.

Addition of a new series of heavy diesel line-haul tractors will give Pollard Chevrolet Co., 1501 E. 4th, coverage of the market ranging from light dual purpose vehicles to prime movers as large as any now commonly used in over-the-road service.

Entry into the extra heavy-duty field with the new top-of-the-line diesels will bring changes in the division's heavy-duty truck marketing program. Beginning in October, 1970, Chevrolet intends to market its heavy-duty trucks under a separate selling agreement which will be offered to qualified Chevrolet dealers in areas where adequate potential exists.

The new large diesel tractors will be offered in 22 models with both two-and four-cyle engines with nine different power ratings up to 335 hp. Three basic cab types are offered — long and short conventional in steel and an aluminum tilt.

Of special interest is the ultra-modern interior of the aluminum tilt cab with its "pilot cabin" design, combining highly efficient placement of controls with attractive interior styling and driver comfort. The wrap-around instrument panel puts all controls within easy reach of hand and eye, permitting monitoring with minimum eye movement. Adding to driver comfort is an adjustable steering column which tilts to several positions.

In general, the balance of the 1970 Chevrolet truck line is continued with several significant improvements and refinements. Exhaust emission control equipment now is standard on all gasoline engines, with fully aluminized exhaust systems for longer life. In addition, all engines used in half-ton models include a new transmission controlled spark system which effects a significant reduction in hydro-carbon and carbon monoxide emissions.

Other improvements in the half-ton conventional line include a 1.6 inch wider rear tread, combination side marker lights and reflectors, and bias belted ply tires for greater tread life and resistance to road hazards. New options in the conventional light line include AM-FM radio, air-inflatable shock absorbers on models with coil springs for level ride with varying loads, stereo tape player, adjustable tilt steering wheel when automatic or four-speed transmission is ordered, sliding rear window glass, auxiliary fuel tank on some models, weather-sealed and lockable tool stowage compartment for longer wheelbase Fleetside models, and a larger 400 cubic inch V8 of 310 hp.

Styling introduced on conventional light-duty 1969 models is generally continued, with several changes to interiors. Five new trim colors are available and seat rim styling is new this year. A new grille grid paint treatment adds to pleasing appearance.

Other changes in the light-duty line include larger tires as standard equipment on ¾-ton and 1-ton models, new front suspension spherical joints for better sealing, and seat belts anchored to the optional rear seats on Suburban Carryalls for easy removal.

In the dual purpose Blazer line, introduced late in the 1969 model year as a four-wheel drive only, Chevrolet will add a two-wheel drive version for 1970. Except for driveline and suspension components, specifications will be largely the same for both lines. The two-wheel drive Blazer will have independent front suspension and coil springs front and rear for comfortable ride and excellent handling.

Several important changes also have been made on conventional four-wheel-drive models. A three-speed automatic transmission will be available for the first time, an important feature for recreational users. Other improvements include a new type easier shifting and quieter transfer case, a 40-degree steer front axle option available for better maneuverability and reduced maintenance, and limited-slip rear axle option available for the first time.

Changes in 1970 Step-Vans and forward-control chassis include a 250 cubic inch 155 hp. six as standard equipment in six-cylinder half-ton models, replacing the 140 hp. 230 cubic inch engine used formerly, and automatic choke for greater driver convenience standard on all gas engines.

New Jersey Warrant Out For Sinatra

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — An arrest warrant has been issued for Frank Sinatra, who failed to heed a subpoena to an investigation on organized crime. An aide to Sinatra said he was out of the country.

The warrant, enforceable only in New Jersey, was issued Tuesday at the request of the State Investigation Commission.

In Beverly Hills, Calif., a spokesman for the singer-actor said Tuesday, "Mr. Sinatra left New York City this morning for the Caribbean and at present is unaware of the situation. We are trying to locate him now and I am certain that when he is advised of the matter he will have some comment."

The SIC said Sinatra had been served with a subpoena June 25 in connection with an investigation of organized crime throughout the state. At that time, Sinatra was aboard his yacht off Highlands, N.J.

He was ordered to appear at a private hearing Aug. 19, but his Los Angeles attorney, Milton Rudin, obtained a month's delay.

The SIC said it had not heard from Rudin or Sinatra since, and Superior Court Judge Frank J. Kingfield issued the warrant, charging the entertainer with contempt.

If convicted, he would face up to six months in jail.

Sinatra is a native of Hoboken and has frequently visited the state.

He was forced to sell his interests in two Nevada resorts in 1963 when state officials charged that he had been host to a Chicago underworld figure.

Sinatra once owned 50 per cent of the Cal-Neva Lodge in Lake Tahoe and 9 per cent of the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. He sold his interests, which he said were worth $3.5 million, after the State Gaming Control Board recommended revocation of gambling licenses at the two resorts.

Students At Tech Plan Long Vigil, Symposium

By The Associated Press

A national moratorium against the Vietnam War began in Texas today with no clear indication whether war protestors would outnumber supporters of the national policy in Vietnam.

Protestors planned demonstrations—all peaceful—at several college campuses, and some off-campus affairs were also scheduled.

Persons opposing the observance have said it undermines the United States' conduct of the war. That group urged Texans to fly their flags and turn on their lights to show support of the government's position.

Although administrators at many schools sanctioned peaceful demonstrations that did not interfere with operation of their institutions, most refused to close down entirely.

At Texas A&M University, the administration refused any proposal to close. Similar action was taken by San Antonio Junior College has an enrollment of 13,800.

Wiley College at Marshall will close. It was closed last spring by students who had presented the administration with several demands. The school is mostly Negro.

Most authorities appeared to be disregarding the possibilities for violence.

At the giant University of Texas campus at Austin, only uniformed motorcycle officers will be on duty during a planned demonstration, spokesmen for the Austin police said.

However, Department of Public Safety officers and plainclothesman were scheduled to handle security at the State Capitol. Some UT students planned a march from the Campus to the Capitol, with up to 10,000 expected to take part.

Austin also had its demonstration dissenters. The Texas Young Republican Federation said the moratorium had turned into an attack on the Nixon administration by Young Democrats and others.

Most Moratorium Day activities in the state were scheduled to take the form of speeches and "Vigils."

Centers of the observance appeared to be at San Antonio and Dallas.

San Antonio Junior College refused to permit an on-campus rally, but observances in that city appeared to center at San Pedro Park.

Sponsors of the Dallas observances hoped for 5,000 at White Rock Lake, near a city park. Another Dallas ceremony was scheduled at Lee Park, which is a hippie hangout near the business district.

The organizer of the Dallas observance, Norman Riffe, said his group protested neither the war nor President Nixon.

"We're just asking Congress to set a definite public date for complete withdrawal of American forces (from Vietnam)," Riffe said.

A request to lower the Midwestern University flag at Wichita Falls to half-staff during the day was refused by the school. But approval was given to fly the flag at half-staff from noon to 1 p.m. to honor Midwestern students who died in the war.

Students at Texas Tech in Lubbock planned a day-long vigil and symposium, with some Lubbock ministers planning services tonight.

At Pan American College in Edinburg, two church groups set up what they called "an hour in search of peace."

Forty-two faculty members at Lamar Tech signed statements supporting the Moratorium.

The movement to turn on porch lights and fly the flag to show opposition to the moratorium was led by the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The two Texas senators appeared split over the moratorium.

Sen. John Tower, a Republican, attacked critics of the President's Vietnam policy.

Democrat Ralph Yarborough called for massive demonstrations supporting the moratorium.

Rep. Olin Teague, a Democrat from College Station, said, "I don't see how anyone can expect the President to negotiate in Paris with this going on."

The East Texas city of Marshall designated today as Respect the American Flag Day and urged its citizens to fly the flag and ring church bells to show support of the tovernment.

An organization called the "United Vietnam Veterans" in Austin announced support of the Moratorium.

Norther Takes Aim At Texas

By The Associated Press

Another norther took aim at Texas today as most of the state was still shaking off effects of the last cold front.

Forecasts called for the new front to wheel into the Texas Panhandle and drop temperatures sharply again Thursday. Less noticeable cooling was promised all other sections except the southeast portion.

While it still was rather brisk in most areas early this morning, brisk west winds held the mercury up to a warm 69 degrees at El Paso in far West Texas. Some dust flew as the wind gusted up to 28 miles per hour.

Skies were generally clear and temperatures elsewhere ran as low as 40 at Texarkana, 43 at Childress and Lufkin, and 44 at Amarillo.

Moderate south winds fanned other parts of West Texas and light east breezes blew near the coast and along the Texas-Louisiana border.

Top marks Tuesday ranged up to 79 degrees at El Paso, and a number of points recorded highs in the lower 70s. Lubbock was the coolest spot with a maximum of 52.

TWELVE YEARS — Mayor Arnold Marshall (right) presents a plaque on behalf of the city to Charles F. Boland for 12½ years of service as building custodian at the police department. Boland, who had been with the department since the new building was finished in 1957, retired Sept. 30.

Charles Boland Retired After 12 Years With City

A plaque was given to Charles F. Boland, 1009 Sycamore, Tuesday night during the city commission meeting, on his retirement after 12 years of service with the city (from April, 1957, to October, 1969). Mayor Arnold Marshall presented the plaque on behalf of the city.

"I have enjoyed working for the city," Boland said. "If I can help the city in any way in the future, I will be more than glad to do so."

Boland, who will be 66 in November, retired Sept. 30, after serving 12½ years as building custodian at the police department. He had been with the building since it was built in 1957. Now he plans to go into business caning chairs, previously it had been his hobby.

"I have been thinking about this business for a long time," he said. "If you own your own business, then you can be your own boss. Not all husbands have this advantage."

Though Boland has some sight, he has been legally blind since the age of three, when a doctor used too strong a medicine to treat his sore eyes. As a teenager he studied in the Texas State School for the Blind where he learned how to cane chairs.

Boland came to Big Spring with his wife, Hattie, (who is also blind) in 1947. Before going to work for the police department, he ran a magazine rack and notion stand in the lobby of the old post office. He has also held jobs (in Dallas) in a textile mill, broom factory, and aviation factory.

"Because of lack of sight," Boland said, "a blind person has to concentrate his other senses when he does something. You can tell him something once, and he usually remembers. Some blind people can do more than others."

Boland points to his wife as an example of what a blind person can accomplish. She cooks, washes, irons, and generally keeps house as well as any sighted person.

Schools Could Lose Federal Impact Funds

Supt. S. M. Anderson asked Big Spring school board trustees Tuesday night to use any influence they have with congressmen to encourage continuation of Public Law 874 and 815 for federally connected students. He cited figures which showed the elimination of these funds would force Howard County to raise its tax valuation by $22 million.

He said there are presently 450 youngsters in the school system classified "A." which means the federal government pays $300 per year for their education. This classification is for students whose parents both live and work at a federally tax-exempt institution. The "B" category, $150 per student, is for families who work at the exempt institution, but live in town.

"We have 1,500 of the "B" category," Anderson said, "and with the $135,000 we receive for "A" students this makes a total of $360,000 that we receive each year."

Anderson added that at 90 per cent collection ratio this would mean, in the event of the elimination of funds, that the county would have to raise $324,000 more a year, or add $20 million to its tax valuation.

The superintendent cited other legislation when he told the board that the state now requires anyone wishing to address the school board to be listed on the agenda which is posted at least three days prior to a meeting. He said those wanting to come before the board must make their wishes known, in writing, in order for it to be placed on the agenda.

In other action Tuesday night, the trustees gave formal approval to the Park Hill PTA's plan for campus improvements. The organization plans to pay the full cost of paving an area about 80 by 80 feet for an all-weather play surface. It has discussed a price of $2 per square yard with a local contractor, and plans to start fund-raising projects immediately.

Two resignations and the employment of six new persons were also on the agenda and received approval from the trustees. Resigning are Mrs. Elizabeth Otterson, Marcy, because of her husband's transfer; and Billy F. Richey, high school, because he is entering the armed forces.

Formally hired were: Mrs. Vesta Joyce Mills, sixth grade, Kentwood; Mrs. Mary Catherine Reams, sixth grade, Washington; Mrs. Edith Russell, science, Runnels Junior High; Mrs. Joy E. Shaver, speech and English, high school; Mrs. DeAnne L. Tucker, mathematics, Goliad Junior High; and Mrs. Laimite Zern, librarian, Marcy.

In observance of National School Lunch Week, board members were shown a video tape of a tour of the local school cafeterias.

Anderson made several reports to the board concerning recent legislation and current issues affecting schools at large.

Reports from Novis W. Womack, tax appraiser, and the firm of Brown and Hamby were included in the agenda for clarification of tax issues, but were not brought verbally before the board. All financial statements presented, bills paid and payable, and the budget statement as of Sept. 30, were approved, as was the preliminary application for foundation funds, 1969-70.

Returns From Crash Site

Wesley Phillips, who flew to Florencia, Colombia last week on learning of the death of his sister, Lou Ann Phillips, in a plane crash in a remote jungle section south of the equator, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Phillips here this week.

He was unable to go closer than Florencia because of difficulties of travel to the isolated mission outpost where Miss Phillips was to have begun missionary work. However, he did talk with individuals who had been at the scene. Ted Phillips plans to fly to South America in about three weeks to proceed from Florencia to the mission point and visit the grave of their eldest daughter.

Many have wanted to make memorial gifts, and the family suggested that those who wish to do this send them to their own mission stations. If there are those, however, who wish to make them to the mission where Lou Ann had gone, they may do so by sending them to Christian Worship Center, 1909 21st, Lubbock, Texas 79411.

City Spending Policies Come Under Question

Authorization for large purchases, expenditures in excess of the approved budget, and purchasing procedures of the city were questioned by Jack Watkins, businessman, at the Big Spring City Commission Tuesday evening.

"Who approved authorization for the purchase of 28 3-cubic-yard garbage containers, at a cost of $5,600, from the Pak-Mor Manufacturing Co., San Antonio, last June?," he asked. He gave the commissioners the check number of the payment and said he could not find authorization for the expenditure in the 1968-69 budget or the 1969 (six months) budget.

None of the commissioners indicated they knew about the purchase. Watkins asked if it is not the policy of the city to call for bids on purchases above $2,000, and asked why bids were not called for in this case.

Ernest Lillard, public works director, said he turned in a requisition slip for the purchase through the normal channels, and the purchase was approved from the Garage Fund. He explained that the city has a standing purchase agreement with Pak-Mor for the purchase price — same as when the original containers were bought several years ago.

Mayor Pro-tem George Zachariah agreed with Watkins that the commission should approve the expenditure of any funds not budgeted, and should be advised of such purchases, "at least out of common courtesy."

Zachariah was joined by Garner McAdams in saying that the commission should also be advised when city departments exceed their approved budgets.

"The commissioners should be aware of when the budget is exceeded, and certainly of a $5,600 expenditure," Zachariah said. He pointed out however, that the budget is only a guideline, not a rigid rule on expenditures.

Lillard, in answer to Watkin's question, said the containers were placed at new sites throughout the city, including apartment houses.

"It is not necessary for validity for the commissioners to approve excess expenditures if they are small," Herb Prouty, city attorney, said. "The law discusses the matter of an 'emergency situation' and 'a reasonable amount.'" He added that such expenditures should be approved later.

Watkins also questioned the city's purchasing procedures and the lack of maintaining a file of receipts for expenditures. Commissioners, in general, agreed with his suggestions and pointed out that the purchasing procedures are under study.

No official action was taken on the matters Watkins brought up.

Juco Trustees Approve $18,500 In New Equipment

Trustees of Howard County Junior College approved expenditures of $18,507 for new equipment purchases at the regular meeting Tuesday evening.

They also approved transfers of $912 into the student scholarship fund. Of this amount, $600 was in forfeited student fees, the remainder being interest on student deposits.

The board also took under advisement an offer by the FHA to sell the college 13 homes in the Monticello Addition for $20,000. John A. Coffey, president, named a committee to look into the matter. Dr. W. A. Hunt, college president, said that there could be a use of the properties for married couples.

In addition to the equipment purchases, the board approved a rug for the Dora Roberts Student Union parlor, and auxiliary offices, in the amount of $1,200 on a bid from Lucelle's. A residue of $700 from the SUB patio-lounge project (financed by a private contribution) was put with $500 from the general fund for the new carpet.

Approved was a payment of $1,325 for pulling new cable beneath the science building. This burned out last summer and interrupted power service. So did a collapsed line back of the Practical Arts building. Trustees approved $300 for periodic inspection of the electrical system which is college property.

The board also reaffirmed its position in favoring the location of Permian College at the nearest point toward Big Spring. This would be the site near Terminal. Technical difficulties and refusal of mineral owners to vacate a site at the northeast edge of Odessa has reopened the matter of a site for the upper-level regional college.

Purchases approved included: Twenty new type drafting tables, $8,340; two electronic calculators and two printing calculators from Frieden, $2,295; camera for El Nido (newspaper) from Wendy's, $290.93.

Also two items of equipment for electronic classes, $440; enlarger and photographic lab equipment, $674; opaque projector and accessories for music department, $439.70; disc packs for vocational technical department data processing $1,483 (these have been rented for $150 per month); 24 classroom chairs, $328.56; wide carriage (19-inch) IBM typewriter for registrar's office (455).

The board also formally released securities pledged by Security State Bank when it was depository. The account is now serviced by First National Bank. Also approved was travel allowance for Leslie Lewis, registrar, who will attend the Texas College Registrars' Association in Mexico City (Mexico is part of the Texas association). Dr. Hunt said that eight faculty members are taking junior college specialization courses in the graduate center at Midland.

'RCUND TOWN

By LUCILLE PICKLE

There's nothing humdrum in the new styles that are being shown in Paris and New York. The lengths are almost to the floor or shockingly high. The dresses barely cover as much as a fingertip coat covers and are occasionally shown with great or maxi coats that are 'fully full' length.

Probably the designers are men. And more than likely they have never worn garments that reach the floor. While none were this long right after WW II when materials were beginning to be more plentiful, most of the coats were full skirted, and many came well below the calf of the leg. I remember the bottom of my coat nearly always had dragged along the floor of the car by the time we reached our destination and getting it arranged was like fixing a full blanket. I never have wanted or purchased a full skirted coat since . . . and the full length ones are not likely to be as stylish as some of the new ones. But I'll be more comfortable.

A LOVELIER YOU

Erase Crow's Feet With Proper Makeup

By MARY SUE MILLER

After a woman passes her thirtieth birthday, she is not immune to aging lines at the corners of her eyes, unattractive as their name — "crow's-feet." A number of factors contribute to the trouble. It probably starts with habitual eyestrain and the habit of squinting. It surely is compounded by the gradual lessening of oil and moisture as the skin matures.

If you wish to retard the information of the lines — as who does not? — you obviously must have your vision checked regularly. Too, you will have to check the impulse to squint. You should not, of course, be caught without sunglasses on bright days, winter or summer.

To compensate for drying skin, the eye area needs extra-special attention. It is the most delicate in the face and has the fewest oil glands to begin with. And therein is found the advantages of an eye cream, stick or gel.

Such products contain oil and moisture to the saturation point.

Yet they are light textured so as to slip on without pulling the skin. Most can be worn under make-up during the day. Nightly applications are a must.

To camouflage eye lines, there are a growing number of wrinkle sticks and liquid firming "lifts." They have treatment as well as cosmetic value. Subtle eye make-up aids the cause — pale shadows and upswept lashes.

EYES OF YOUTH

You are not lost to youthful beauty because of dark circles, puffiness, or wrinkles around the eyes. These problems can be brought under control by proper skin care, cosmetic applications, health habits and facial expressions. Methods are detailed in my leaflet, "The Eyes of Youth." To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

PTA Probes Relationships

The problem of communication between parents and children was examined Tuesday at the fall workshop of the 16th District, Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, in the First Baptist Church at Sweetwater. Host groups were the Maryneal and Phillip Nolan PTA units.

"The Missing Link" was the panel discussion conducted by James Holmes of Big Spring, president of the Texas State Teacher's Association; Mrs. M. A. Dunagan of Forsan, aide to the president; Mrs. Dan Shockey, Big Spring, a parent, and Keith Dollaff and Katheryn Giesler, both students at Maryneal High School.

The panel discussed ways parents and children could communicate. It was agreed that the weakest link in the "chain of communication" is the inability to listen. Parents were advised to listen to their children and take an interest in their activities.

Theme for the program was "Chains of Communication." Registration began at 9:30 a.m., under the direction of Mrs. Lamar Green, of Big Spring, chairman; Mrs. Jack Brown, Big Spring; and Mrs. Robert Hodge, Sweetwater. Among 43 delegates and their guests approximately 25 were from Big Spring.

Mrs. D. B. McCann of Big Spring, president, presided, and the invocation was given by George Archer, Gay Hill principal. The presentation of colors was by Boy Scout Troop No. 142 of Sweetwater.

A Devotion For Today . . .

Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life. (Proverbs 4:23)

PRAYER: O Father, rather than love the things of the world, which are esteemed great, fair, or good, I would love Thee. Earnestly I desire Thee—Thy favor, Thy acceptane, Thyself—rather than put my affection on any or all things Thou hast created. I would love Thee. I DO LOVE THEE! Amen.

Capitol Architect Rides Again

J. George Stewart, architect of the Capitol, seems to live a charmed political life. Former Delaware congressman and engineer, he has weathered such storms as the controversy over the monumental monstrosity that is the Sam Rayburn House Office Building with its construction blunders and costs that spiraled skyward.

Now he is bent on tearing down the Capitol's historic sandstone west wall, moving it out 88 feet to make room for restaurants, restrooms, conference rooms and other nonessentials, and rebuilding it in marble and granite. Thus would go the last remaining visible part of the original Capitol, at an estimated $45 million cost that would probably skyrocket under construction.

In this he is backed by a Commission for Extension of the United States Capitol, including, with Stewart, the presiding officers and minority leaders of Congress. The bill has already passed the House, but has run into Senate opposition headed by Sen. William Proxmire, (D-Wis.,) of the appropriations committee.

Proxmire now has a letter from the American Institute of Architects saying Stewart made "wild assertions" that the west wall was in danger of imminent collapse and could not be restored. The AIA experts say it could be safely restored, far more cheaply than replaced, but hedged that judgment with the recommendation that any reconstruction not be entrusted to Stewart.

The House-approved expansion of the Capitol is unjustified. Preserving an original wall of the Capitol is historically worthwhile. And the AIA's judgment is incomparably more trustworthy than Stewart's. The Senate should so decide — and Congress would do well to look for a new Capitol architect with abilities matching his responsibilities.

Issue That Deserves To Die

A Houston management magazine, Texas Business and Industry, recently aired and apparently shared what it indicated were numerous private-enterprise complaints of unfair competition from state prison industries. A particular objection was the 1963 law requiring state-financed agencies to purchase available prison-made goods that meet their procurement needs.

This is not, we hope, a really widespread objection in the Texas business community, or a view that will gain support. In a strict sense, of course, prison-made goods, considering the captive labor benefit and the 1963 state purchasing law, are in unfair competition with similar privately produced goods of a considerable variety. However, other considerations far outweigh that easily exaggerated factor.

In the first place the total income from the Texas Department of Corrections' agricultural and industrial operations is only about $9 million, hardly a significant factor in a multibillion-dollar economy. But that income to a system that it costs $20 million to operate is enough to give Texas one of the lowest per capita prisoner cost to taxpayers in the nation, while at the same time this state has one of the best prison systems.

More important, however, is the need for prison industrial operations to achieve an effective rehabilitation program, a field in which Texas also has become a leader among state correctional systems. It is imperative for such a program that prisoners have constructive work to do, not just "make work," and that facilities and activities are provided to train or retrain inmates for available employment on their release.

Some of that is now provided by the system's new "work release" program that allows outside day private employment of screened prisoners under close supervision and with the commendable cooperation of private firms. But that cannot possibly substitute, in volume, for the occupational therapy and rehabilitation assistance that prison industries and farms afford more than 12,000 inmates.

It was thought that the "prison industries issue" had faded away years ago, and it is hoped that it will not be seriously revived. For the decision made on this issue in Texas decades ago was and is clearly in the general public interest.

The Not-So-Delicate Ramrod

WASHINGTON, D.C. — What's this — a Dump Nixon movement?

Anyhow, that was the creepy air of this Capitol press conference. The fellow who'd called it was Allard Lowenstein, a sort of Jack the Ripper character. It was this Lowenstein's out-loud thinking of unthinkable thoughts last year which started the notion that a sitting wartime President, LBJ, could be rudely dumped. Lowenstein not only lived to see it happen; he also got himself elected to Congress (D., N.Y.) as a peacemonger.

THE CONFERENCE was held on the House side of the Capitol, but a number of Senators had made the long walk, which is unusual, and two of them were of Mr. Nixon's own party, which is ominous.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, the sermonizer from Oregon, chaired the meeting. A fortnight ago Sen. Hatfield, along with Sen. Javits and Sen. Case, were secretly named as personally obnoxious to the President in the contest for the Senate minority leadership post. But there he was, smooth-talking about "assisting" Mr. Nixon to get out — and you wondered if Sen. Hatfield didn't mean get out of Vietnam or else get out of the presidency.

NEXT CAME THE meeting's keynoter, Sen. Frank Church (D., Ida.) another smoothie, but he as good as called the President a liar. "(Nixon's) purpose," said Church, "is not to get out, but to stay in." The President's planned withdrawal of 200,000 U.S. troops, Sen. Church declared, "is rather, a formula for keeping up to 300,000 American troops engaged in Vietnam indefinitely."

It got worse 'n' worse. The solemn Democrat, Sen. Cranston of California, spoke for Bug-Out Now. Sen. Charles Goodell, the New York Republican who replaced Bob Kennedy, spoke for Bug-Out in 1970. Two young Republican House members, Rep. Riegle (Mich.) and Rep. McCloskey (Calif.) lifted choirboy voices and chanted Pax. This pair are introducing a resolution to repeal the Tonkin Resolution. In effect they are asking Congress for a declaration of peace that wouldn't require the President's signature.

DUMP NIXON? Well, anyhow, ramrod Nixon. Give Nixon the cattle-prod toward his, toward America's, Waterloo. All the speakers at this press conference were for the Oct. 15 Movement. It sounded like Castro's July 27 Movement, and could be equally helpful to Communist arms, but actually it's a nationwide student day of protest against the anti-Communist war.

An hour before his press conference, there'd been another, conducted in the Rayburn building with Rep. Paul Findley (R., Ill.) in the chair. Findley showed us a House resolution which already had 104 sponsors, and it was also Ramrod Nixon except that the ramrod had a velvet sheath.

IT DECLARED that the President's troop withdrawals were "in the national interest," and it commended "expressed" determination to pull out all "remaining" U.S. forces at "the earliest practicable date." The Findley resolution didn't say "now." To ramrod a wartime President, without a velvet sheath, is bad.

Billy Graham

In a class of young people, which I lead, they questioned the real value of the Bible in our scientific age. How can I answer this? W.F.

I judge that some of the young people were questioning the relevancy of the Bible for our day. I believe the Bible is the most up to date and relevant book in all the world and that our lives are empty without its teachings.

Only this morning I read these words: "For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do."

This description of the Bible should show us how important it is to let God speak to us through its pages. Only then can we see ourselves as God sees us. Only then can we know God as he really is. Study the Bible and it speaks to every need of our hearts and lives. Make the Holy Scriptures our guide and we will find that the path becomes plain and God's will very clear. There are many other things one might say but this one final word — when we ask God to speak to us as we read the Bible, He always does.

Who Says You Can't Go Home Again?

By JOY STILLEY
(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Take five sisters who haven't seen one another for seven years, subtract husbands and children, add plenty of homemade pie and strong coffee, sprinkle liberally with nostalgia and let sit several hours around the kitchen table.

That's the recipe my four sisters and I concocted last weekend at the home of one of them in Washington, D.C., and we all agreed it was an unqualified success.

The principal ingredients for this satisfying combination came by plane, train and car from all over the country for the long-planned reunion, and the result was a couple of days of bedlam but not boredom.

Most of the time the place was filled with friends, friends of friends, and possibly a few strangers who saw the crowd and decided to stop in and see what the excitement was about.

But the really memorable moments came when we gathered late one night at the small round table in the kitchen. The five of us were alone for perhaps the first time since the long-ago year that we shared a campus apartment when we were all in various stages of our college careers at once.

Now most of our kids are in college and we've all gone back to fulltime jobs, so interspersed with the "Do you remember?" was talk about how to condense 26 hours of activity into every 24, and how to succeed in cooking without really trying.

Being close in age, we shared many mutual friends during the years we were growing up, so everyone had to be brought up to date on the ones we had kept in touch with.

After 48 hours of togetherness —our memories reactivated, our closeness renewed, our throats raw from trying to be heard above the chorus, and our eyes heavy from lack of sleep— separated.

Who says you can't go home again? You can—for a little while—and it's beautiful!

'Know Other People'

NEW YORK (AP) — Wisdom never travels as fast as knowledge and so the brokerage business today is in a stew about something the Greeks understood many centuries ago.

"Know thyself," Plato and others are reputed to have stated, and it is presumed that brokers have assimilated this bit of wisdom. Perhaps they should have recalled a commentary years later by another Greek, Menander, who said:

"In some ways the saying 'Know thyself' is not well said. It were more practical to say, 'Know other people.'"

The "other" people in this instance are customers, for the courts have told brokers they can be held liable for losses incurred by securities buyers who obviously go in over their heads.

Briefly, this is the situation:

In 1963 an Indiana company, Dobich Securities Corp., opened an account with Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith. Later the company was granted credit and became an unusually big trader. It was a poor trader also.

A trustee for the financially distressed Dobich firm claims that the trading resulted in a loss of about $465,000. He sued Merrill Lynch, alleging among other things that the brokerage house knew Dobich was financially unstable.

In opening the account for Dobich, the trustee claimed, Merrill Lynch failed to obtain financial references and statements so as to know just what type of customer it was dealing with.

Merrill Lynch replied that it couldn't be held liable, but a U.S. district court didn't agree. It denied a move by the brokerage house for a summary judgment, and an appeals court backed up the district court.

This week the issue reached the U.S. Supreme Court and was turned away. The highest court declined to review the case, thus leaving standing the lower court decision. The case now is scheduled to be tried by the district court.

The argument centers around a well known but sometimes poorly applied rule of the New York Stock Exchange, Rule 405, which applies to the subject of "Diligence as to Accounts." It begins:

"Every member organization is required through a general partner or an officer who is a holder of voting stock to:

"Use due diligence to learn the essential facts relative to every customer, every order, every cash or margin account accepted or carried by such organization and every person holding power of attorney over any account accepted or carried by such organization."

That language is clear and strong. Note the presence of "every" five times and an all-inclusive "any" as well. No room for exceptions with language of that sort.

One wonders, however, if Rule 405 can be applied as diligently as its wording dictates, for Wall Street has plenty of trouble as it is trying to clear the paperwork that accompanies ordinary trading activities.

The implications of this case are large, for there are always big losers in securities who will be tempted to recoup their losses in the courts. Many of these losers are going to take a long second look at Rule 405.

If this rule means what it appears to mean, it is a hard one to live up to. And depending on the outcome of court action, it could be a very costly one to break.

Difference Between Bacteria And Viruses

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the difference between bacteria and viruses?—W.G.

Both are "microorganisms," creatures too small to see with the naked eye, but capable of reproducing themselves — sometimes with great rapidity. Some varieties of both can cause disease. Some don't.

One great difference is in size. A bacterium is a very complicated germ, comparatively speaking. It is big enough so (when stained with dye) it can be easily seen through an ordinary microscope. A virus however, is so small that it cannot; it requires an electron microscope to be seen. It was only about 15 or 20 years ago that the first electron microscope photographs of small viruses were published.

I'll grant that you don't much care, if you are ill, whether a bacterium or a virus did it to you, but it makes a difference to your doctor.

Bacteria include (among others) the "coccal" group: streptococcus, or "strep;" staphylococcus, or "staph;" pneumococcus, which causes pneumonia; gonococcus; the colon bacillus; the bacillus of tuburculosis. And a lot of others.

The viruses cause a host of diseases, from colds and "cold sores" to hydrophobia. But the more serious virus diseases can be suppresssed by vaccines: examples are smallpox, polio influenza, rabies, measles, and most recently German measles.

We have not been able to find vaccines to prevent the bacterial diseases — pneumonia, scarlet fever, staph and strep infections. But, on the other hand, we have found the antibiotics, the "wonder drugs," which are very effective in controlling infections from them. We can't prevent them from happening again and again — but we can (usually) combat them if they occur.

The viruses are the opposite. We can prevent many of them with vaccines, but the antibiotics don't do any good — and that's why an antibiotic or "a shot of penicillin" is usually useless for a cold. That is, unless it's a cold that hangs on, and a secondary, bacterial infection has followed it.

Incidentally, we haven't been able to develop a "cold vaccine," first of all because there may be a hundred or more viruses, all of which can cause colds, and second, because the common cold, even though it causes a great deal of nuisance, isn't a severe disease that affords long-lasting immunity once you've had it. The immunity wanes.

And we haven't been able to find a vaccine to prevent hepatitis, but I wish we could.

Shingles can be a painful disease. To receive a copy of my booklet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Around The Rim

Autumn

Every season has its virtues, but autumn has a certain majesty of maturity that makes it a favorite of many.

IN THIS AREA, it generally is a calm season. Certainly it has its days when winds whip down from the north to warn that winter will be coming one of these days, or when winds rush back out of the south to fill the counter attack north. Yet, most of the time there is a stillness not possessed by other times of the year.

The sun, not in a hurry to come up, usually puts on a brilliant pageant in cooler shades. It doesn't make a quick assault as in the summer, but lazily warms to the situation.

THIS CRISPNESS takes up sounds and sharpens them. It stirs up latent energies among the livestock and pets, and the calves and colts burst into occasional exhultations of energy. Everything seems to quicken its step, everything but nature.

Crops have a different appearance. Cotton waits patiently for late bolls to swell and mature, or sometimes to crack open locks like white roses. The rich green leaves gradually loose a bit of luster and take on a faint tinge of steel gray. Grain sorghum plants stick up heads of grain for blessings of the sun, then turns pink and yellow-red in the glory of ripeness.

WEEDS GROW HEAVY, topped by seeds and dark with pollen. No longer in a race with the crops, they nevertheless assert their seniority, refusing to leave ahead of time.

Stock tanks are motionless, reflective. The occasional dip of an insect sends tiny rings sliding silently across the silver surface, effortlessly yet meekly. The heavens are mirrored flawlessly, and a benediction of peace descends upon the scene.

BIRDS, INSTINCTIVELY warned that this time of bounty cannot last, begin to fly more in restless bunches. In the late evenings wedges of sandhill cranes flap ponderously through the sky. Occasionally there is the honk-honk of geese heading south. The mocking bird no longer auctions his bursting joy with such reckless abandon.

At sundown quietness descends with the weary sun, which has been rubbed to a special shine by its long summer travels. Invisible dust, no longer shoved aside by restless winds, lends rare brilliance to sunsets. In the hollows, however, these particles hover like an umbrella awaiting a chance to be let down.

NIGHTS COME on with a bit of bite in the air. Stars stand out in pinpoint clearness and the Big Dipper balances on its handle in the northeastern heavens. And then there is the smell of burning wood in the fireplace, and it is time for reflection on what the year as well as the day has brought.

The Issue Is Surrender

WASHINGTON — For what may be the first time in American history, some members of Congress as well as a number of protesting groups are demanding that the United States run up the white flag and yield to the enemy in Vietnam after many American lives have been sacrificed for a great principle — to repel aggression and aid weaker nations to determine their own destiny.

NO PUBLIC-OPINION poll has directly asked the question whether the American people favor surrender. The customary queries have been whether the war is being handled properly or if it should be brought to an end, without reference to how this could be achieved. The issue has not been clearly put to the people. If it were, undoubtedly Americans would reject any humiliating policy amounting to "peace at any price."

Resolutions are being offered in Congress and are being supported by various organizations which plan "demonstrations" in many cities on Oct. 15 to insist that the United States make peace at once. Not a single one of these proposals requires as a condition any reciprocal action to be taken by the North Vietnamese. In Paris this week, both North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have deliberately ignored peace efforts made by the United States, and are offering no concessions whatsoever.

THE FORTHCOMING "protest day" in the United States — this Wednesday — is being hailed by the Communists as a sign that the American people are willing to surrender. Seventeen senators and 47 House members are supporting the projected "demonstrations."

The chief American delegate at Paris, Henry Cabot Lodge, has been pleading in vain for talks that would accomplish constructive purposes, but the opposing delegations at the Paris conference have been turning a deaf ear. The negotiators of the North Vietnamese government instead are placing great hopes on the signs of American opposition to the war. One of the Hanoi representatives says that support is snowballing in the United States in behalf of the Communists.

ALMOST EVERY week some members of the Senate and the House call for a more and more rapid pullout of American forces by President Nixon, but not one of them imposes any condition on the enemy to take the action necessary to assure peace in South Vietnam. Timetables are being specified by senators for the withdrawal of the American troops, yet no stipulation is made that the enemy must also remove its military forces from South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, there is much talk about a "coalition government" being set up which could replace the present government in South Vietnam and make it easy for North Vietnam to move in and assume command. Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird recently stated President Nixon's policy as follows:

"WE HOLD firmly to a single objective for Vietnam: Permitting the people of South Vietnam freely to determine their own destiny. We want peace as speedily as possible, but we cannot acquiesce to a peace that denies self-determination to the South Vietnamese."

The advocates of peace at any cost would, in effect, allow the South Vietnamese government to be destroyed. Yet it has mobilized a large army, and what some members of Congress seem to be asking is that this force surrender to the enemy.

A Gallup Poll recently showed 52 per cent approval when the question concerned "the way President Nixon is handling the situation in Vietnam." One wonders how much bigger the percentage would be if an answer were obtained on the following question:

"DO YOU want the United States to surrender in Vietnam, and thereby ignore the sacrifices that have been made by tens of thousands of troops of the United States and our allies who have been killed or wounded in an effort to protect the right of peoples to select their own form of government?"

All the so-called "antiwar" statements being made inside and outside of Congress are unquestionably encouraging the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong to prolong the war. If this fact, which has been stated by high authorities, were to be reiterated and made plain to the American people, they would surely not support any resolution in Congress that could mean surrender. For to do so would tell the Soviets and the Red Chinese that America would no longer help countries to resist aggression whether in Asia, Europe or Latin America.

Few Kind Words

Texas Moratorium

By The Associated Press

Texas newspapers generally condemned in advance today's Vietnam moratorium observances. But some newspapers had kind words to say about the planned demonstrations.

The Dallas Morning News said today, "Just the organization of such a demonstration is a great victory for North Vietnam, obviously."

THE NEWS said a great turnout by demonstrators today "will be taken by the communist delegates in Paris as unmistakable proof that any serious move on their part to negotiate or compromise from here on will be not only unnecessary but damaging to their cause. From the North Vietnamese standpoint, what is the percentage in compromising with a foe who is on the verge of unconditional surrender?"

In San Antonio, the afternoon Light ran a "guest editorial" which quoted Hubert Humphrey:

"The president is proceeding along the right path in Vietnam, and I think the worst thing we can do is try to undermine the efforts of the president."

But the morning Express criticized President Nixon's declaring he would not be affected by the moratorium. "The young are the ones who do the dying, and they should be heard," said the Express.

THE EL PASO Herald-Post supported Nixon's Vietnam policy, but said "it is a pity that the President may be falling into the habit of marring sound policy with ill-considered remarks."

The El Paso Times lined up with senators and congressmen supporting the moratorium so long as it is peaceful and nonviolent.

"At the same time, we hope that the participants in the moratorium know what they're doing. In our opinion they are giving the enemy reason to stiffen his back and demand better terms for ending the war," said the Times.

THE DALLAS Times Herald frontpaged its assessment of the moratorium as "a minority clamor in American streets," said Nixon "is eminently correct in stating that to allow government policy to be made in the streets would destroy the democratic process."

PATCH THE PONY — Gov. Preston Smith signs proclamation of Oct. 27-Nov. 2 as "Patch the Pony Week" in Texas. The event, which takes as its theme a nationally recognized pony safety symbol, aims to alert Texas school children against accepting candy, gifts or auto rides from strangers. With the governor, on behalf of the Patch the Pony safety education program, is Harold Bratz, Carrollton.

CHILD MOLESTING

Patch The Pony Week Proclaimed

Gov. Preston Smith has named the week of Oct. 27-Nov. 2 "Patch the Pony Week" in recognition of the cartoon crusader against child molesters. Patch is a brown and white pony wearing a patch over one eye and a police star on his chest.

Patch the Pony kits are distributed nationwide to kindergartens and elementary schools. The program consists of storybook literature, a filmstrip, posters and other child-oriented materials featuring the pony. It is produced and distributed by the Society for Visual Education, Inc. The pony is the creation of Mrs. Margaret H. Liles, a concerned mother, who launched this safety program in Alabama schools in 1963. The results were so successful that the PTA, Jaycee, Kiwanis and other community organizations soon helped to send the molester-battling pony galloping across the country.

Texas is the ninth state to designate a special "Patch the Pony Week."

"The threat of the child molester is tragically real in every community," Gov. Smith said. Molesters prey upon innocent children who sense no danger in accepting favors for strangers or a ride in a stranger's car. Educating the children to beware of such situations is the best kind of protection against the molester, said the governor.

Authorities estimate that as many as one million children are victims of sex offenses in the U.S. each year. Girls between eight and 10 years and boys between 12 and 15 are the mostly likely targets.

"While police and school authorities can take precautions against the child molester, these are not likely to succeed unless they have the full cooperation of parents and children," said Gov. Smith. He urged all concerned citizens to participate in the statewide observance by staging Patch the Pony campaigns to alert youngsters to the dangers of being lured by strangers.

"Nay . . . Nay . . . From Strangers Stay Away," Patch cautions children. Patch gives three rules: "Never accept candy, presents or anything else from a stranger. Never get into a car with a stranger. Never follow a stranger anywhere, no matter what treat is promised." Patch also advises, "A policeman is your friend and help when you need him."

Any community organization or citizen interested in campaigning with Patch may receive free information by writing: Patch the Pony, Society for Visual Education, Inc., 1345 Diversey Parkway, Chicago, Ill., 60614.

Locking the stable door comes too late when the horse has already taken a walk. It is frequently too late to plan a successful defense when two or three tricks have been permitted to slip by without being included in the general scheme of things. In today's hand, failure to sit up and take notice at trick one nullified perfect subsequent defense by the East player.

Against South's three no trump contract, West led the five of clubs. Dummy played the three, East the queen and declarer the ace. The jack of diamonds was then led for a finesse and East permitted it to hold in an effort to shut out dummy's diamond suit. Observe that East still retained a stopper.

Another diamond was led, and when West showed out the king was played from dummy. The ace was cashed and then East was given his diamond trick with the queen. The latter shifted to the jack of hearts which was taken by declarer with the king. A low club was then led toward dummy to set up the jack as an entry to cash the diamonds.

East's hold up of the queen of diamonds was good strategy, but it came too late because, by his play to the first trick, he had set up a future entry into dummy by way of the jack of clubs. His proper play at trick one was to duck, permitting declarer to win the trick as cheaply as he cared. This would guarantee that dummy's diamond suit would be shut out, since possession of the ace of spades renders dummy's queen useless for purposes of an entry. East had fallen victim to the "third hand high" slogan.

Abilene Lawyer Faces Cross-Exam At Pecos

PECOS, Tex. (AP) — An Abilene lawyer, Jack Bryan, faced cross-examination today in the trial of Bryant and two other men charged with swindling an Odessa savings and loan association of more than $1 million.

Both Bryant and another defendent, Kenneth Musgrave of Dallas, testified Tuesday. Also on trial is Homer Koon Jr. of Gainesville.

A fourth defendent, Marshall Womack of Bedford, is ill and will be tried later.

The case involves loans made by the Home Savings Association of Odessa. At the time of the loans, Musgrave was chairman of the association.

The government has charged the loans were made with insufficient collateral and that Musgrave had entered into an agreement to sell a large block of Home Savings stock he owned to Womack, after making the loans to the Bedford man.

Bryant was listed as a former attorney for Home Savings. Koon was listed as Womack's "nominee."

Bryant testified Tuesday that he did not represent Home Savings but only handled the instruments for Musgrove in the sale of stock.

Testimony in the trial showed Musgrove loaned Womack $1.4 million with a farm and the Trans-America Building in Fort Worth as collateral.

Appraisal reports showed that the farm offered as collateral contained 1,670 acres of irrigated land worth $400 an acre but that the land had not been farmed in some time and had gone through several ownership changes.

The appraisal also said the Fort Worth buildings was only 30 per cent occupied.

The indictment claimed, "Womack and Musgrave both well knew at the time that said properties provided grossly inadequate security and collateral to Home Savings."

'Gift' Of Wine To Cost $6.16

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Gov. Dan Evans received a gift of eight bottles of wine from California Gov. Ronald Reagan Tuesday, but it cost him $6.16.

The California Wine Institute, on Reagan's behalf, is presenting wines to the nation's governors in observance of the 200th anniversary of the state's wine industry.

But somebody forgot to pay the 26 per cent tax and state liquor store markup required by Washington law before out-of-state wines can be brought into the state.

Evans said he would pay the money himself.

Wife Says Mate Vowed To Kill His Former Boss

DALLAS (AP) — Police learned from the wife of Jasper Porter Stevenson Tuesday that he had lived for two years with a vow to kill his former boss.

Instead, Stevenson killed the wife of his ex-employer and himself Monday night.

The victim was Mrs. Thomas F. Fedrick, 54.

Mrs. Stevenson said her husband, 47, was fired by Fedrick two years ago and Stevenson had threatened many times to kill Fedrick and himself.

Mrs. Stevenson said her husband had worked for the Brown and Williamson Tobacco Co. for 15 years. Fedrick was a Dallas tobacco distributor.

Stevenson moved to Iowa Park about 18 months ago and worked for a greeting card company.

Pilot Vocational Training Project OK'd By Trustees

A pilot project in vocational training, to be financed by the state, was approved at Tuesday's meeting of the Big Spring school trustees. Keith Swim and Noel Reed are in Austin today making formal application for a laundry project which will be a cooperative effort between the Vocational Technical Division of the Texas Education Agency and the Division of Special Education.

The program, which will be available to vocational students and special education students who qualify, is slated to begin Nov. 1 using facilities at the Lakeview Elementary School which were originally built for an industrial arts shop. The local school board is responsible only for facilities and utilities which, Supt. S. M. Anderson said, will cost an initial $10,000. The rest of the program, including two academic teachers, one vocational teacher and three aides, will be 100 per cent financed by the state as one of its three-year pilot studies.

Anderson said there are about 40 youngsters presently in the school system who would probably take the course and stated several reasons for its probable success.

"There is a real need in the community for people trained in this field," Anderson said, "and every single laundry in town has heartily endorsed the program."

He said the school itself could provide enough laundry for the program and cited a $40 per day laundry bill for physical education towels alone.

"They could also do things like cafeteria aprons and table cloths, and possibly band uniforms and girls physical education uniforms," he said.

Anderson said the main expense which will be borne by the local schools will be the purchase of a boiler to produce steam for the presses but that he already has a used one in mind. He did not disclose the exact cost or location of the boiler pending further arrangements with the owner.

Widow Of King Wants Inquiry

NEW YORK (AP) — The widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. says she thinks there should be a more complete investigation into the assassination of her husband.

"I think that it would help many people to feel better about it, if they really knew who the assassin really was."

James Earl Ray, an escaped convict, is serving 99 years on his plea of guilty to the slaying, which he has since denied.

Sweetwater Man, Woman Charged After Shootout

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Two Texans—a man and a woman—have been charged with shooting a policeman with intent to kill during a shootout with officers Monday night.

They are Donald Gene Richardson, 22, of Sweetwater, also wanted on murder and robbery charges in Texas, and Sandra Gail Gamble, 19, of Houston.

They were arrested with two others after Richardson allegedly shot Sgt. Bennie Caswell as the officer tried to arrest them. Caswell is reported in satisfactory condition.

Miss Gamble is accused of handing a gun to Richardson just before Caswell was gunned down.

In Houston, Charles Wesley Ogletree was surrendered to the FBI Tuesday by his lawyer. A federal complaint charges him with driving the getaway car for Richardson and Harvey Dale Webb, 21, after a Houston bank was robbed of $33,447.

Webb and Kathy Marlynn Frazier, 20, of Houston, are in jail awaiting action by Texas authorities.

They were arrested near the shooting scene and officers said they and Miss Gamble and Richardson came to Oklahoma in a camper.

Police said about $20,000 was taken from the camper.

Richardson and Webb broke out of the Eastland County jail May 27 to start the crime rampage.

At that time, Richardson had been sentenced to seven years in prison for burglary. Webb was being held pending his appeal on a 75-year sentence for rape.

Richardson and Webb were next charged for the $28,000 robbery of the Harrisburg Bank of Houston June 10.

Someone then took $8,000 in diamond rings from a Houston jewelry store on Aug. 22. Police charged Richardson.

He was again charged with the Aug. 25 robbery of the East End Bank in Houston, which netted $17,000.

Police then found Richardson and another man near Beaumont on Sept. 16, but as they closed in, the men escaped in separate cars and later fled on foot to a swamp.

A mechanic and his mother were then forced to drive a man who identified himself as Don Richardson to Houston later that night.

Therapy Machine Demonstrated

STANTON (SC) — A demonstration of a respiration therapy machine was given today at 1:30 p.m. at Martin County Hospital. The machine is used to treat bronchitis, pneumonia and emphysema.

"The machine is urgently needed at our hospital," said Dr. Sue Fisher. "Without it, patients must travel to Big Spring and Midland for this treatment."

Assistance in providing a therapy machine was asked by Mrs. John Atchison Tuesday from the Stanton Noon Lions Club.

'I Want To Love In The Present'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP — Shirley Temple says she wants people to stop thinking of her as that cuddly little blonde who used to be in the movies.

"I am grateful for the good life I had as a child, but I want to live in the present," the former child actress, 41 and the mother of three, said in an interview Tuesday.

Now Mrs. Shirley Temple Black, still dimpled, pleasantly plump and a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly, Shirley said:

"I hope that we will be able to introduce young people into the activities of the United Nations and its related agencies."

Mets Only Human, Baltimore Insists

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite a suspicion to the contrary, the Baltimore Orioles continue to deny that the New York Mets and the man upstairs have formed some sort of strange alliance.

"You know what somebody told me?" coach Joe Pignatano asked with a laugh in the Mets dressing room after the club nicknamed the Amazings had been just that in a 5-0 victory over the Orioles Tuesday that gave them the lead in the World Series.

And then he answered his own question:

"God is a Met fan."

"We," added Manager Gil Hodges, "certainly picked up some more non-believers with this one."

But they didn't pick up any of the Orioles.

"They're not super men," said outfielder Frank Robinson. "They're flesh and blood. The writers want to make it look like somebody's looking over them, but there's nothing to that."

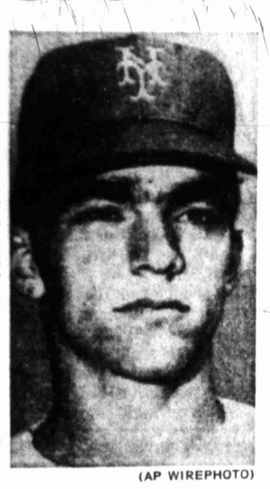

'NO MAGIC'

"They tell me," said Manager Earl Weaver, "that man up there likes us all the same. Magic? They don't have any magic. They're just good.

"Heck, if Agee has an ingrown toe nail we got five runs."

Agee is Tommie Agee, the Mets center fielder. He didn't gave an ingrown toe nail Tuesday, but he did have a leadoff homer that gave the Mets a lead they never relinquished and two spine-tingling catches that preserved the victory.

The catches and shutout pitching by Gary Gentry and Nolan Ryan pulled the Mets into a 2-1 lead after three games of the World Series and gave them a substantial edge the oddsmakers and experts never expected.

GARY GENTRY

With two more games in New York, today and Thursday, and with their aces—Tom Seaver and Jerry Koosman—lined up to handle the pitching, they have put themselves in position to complete the miracle that has seen them move from ninth place last year to the top this season.

"Do we have our backs against the wall? No," said Robinson. "When they need only one more then we have our backs against the wall. They have only the advantage of being one-up just the same as when we won the first game.

"But it certainly gives them an edge. It was a pivotal game. They got by it. They're in good shape."

"It's only one win in the whole series," said Weaver. "The fourth win is the most important. If you get the fourth win it makes the other three important. If you win the fourth it wipes out all the losses.

"Who knows—it (Tuesday's victory) might not be important when it's all over."

When it's all over—no matter who wins—there are two things that happened in the third game that will never be wiped out—Agee's catches, already ranked among the best made in the entire history of the series along with those by Al Gionfriddo and Sandy Amoros.

ONE-HANDED

The first was made in the fourth inning with two men on when Agee chased a drive by Ellie Hendricks to the wall in left center, spearing it one-handed in the web of his glove before grazing up against the wall.

The second was made in the seventh inning with the bases loaded when Agee had to go the other way into right center for a liner by Paul Blair, diving for it one-handed at the last second as the wind kept carrying the ball away from him.

Although the second catch was more dramatic because of the acrobatics involved, both Agee and Hodges agreed the first was the better of the two.

"It was," said Hodges, "better than Gionfriddo's and as good as Amoros.' "

Hodges witnessed both those catches also.

He was a young catcher with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947 when Gionfriddo made a leaping one-handed catch of Joe DiMaggio's bid for a homer in the sixth game.

In 1955, Hodges was playing first base for the Dodgers when Amoros made a game-saving catch of a drive by Yogi Berra in the seventh game, racing toward the left field foul line with his glove hand extended to grab the drive as the Dodgers won their first Series.

Cooper Still 2nd; Coahoma 5th In Poll

DALLAS (AP)—Houston Elmore, given a big assist by the Palacios Sharks, vaulted into the No. 1 spot of the Dallas Morning News Schoolboy football poll Tuesday in Class AAA.

Houston Elmore whipped Beaumont Charlton Pollard 28-16 over the weekend while top-ranked Refugio was stunned 13-0 by Palacios. Refugio tumbled all the way out of the top 10.

Sixth-ranked Plano also fell from the AAA rankings because of a 28-21 upset by Bonham.

The other classes remained relatively stable.

The juggling in the AAA ranks saw Alvin move into the second spot and West Columbia climb to third. Lubbock Estacado is fourth, Bonham fifth, Ennis sixth, Belton seventh, followed by Lamesa, Jasper and Wichita Falls Hirschi.

Abilene Is Rated High

ODESSA — "There is no question that the Eagles will be playing for the district championship."

So spoke Gene Mayfield, coach of the Odessa Permian Panthers earlier this week, in referring to Abilene High.

"In my opinion, there is no doubt that Abilene is stronger than Cooper."

Abilene and Permian tangle Friday night in Odessa. The two teams will be fighting for survival in the 3-AAAA race.

Cassius Clay Eyes Career On Stage

NEW YORK (AP) — A Broadway producer says he has signed Cassius Clay, the undefeated but unfrocked world heavyweight boxing champion, to become a song and dance man during the next theatrical season.

The producer, Zev Bufman, said Monday that Clay—who took the name Muhammad Ali when he joined the Black Muslims—would star in a musical version of "Big Time Buck White" opening Dec. 1 at the George Abbott theater.

Bufman said the contract guarantees the boxer two weeks off during the run of the show for a title bout if one materializes.

Clay, or Ali, taped a network television show this week and was believed to be in the New York area, but could not be reached for comment.

"Big Time Buck White" originally was a play about Negro aspirations and the uses of black power by Joseph Dolan Tucci. It ran for 129 performances in an off-Broadway theater during the 1968-69 season.

Bufman said Clay "caught the closing performance and was overwhelmed by it" at a recent showing in Philadelphia.

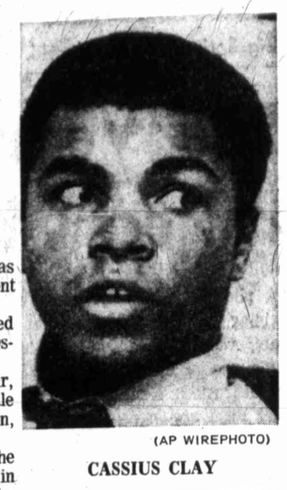

The play has been reworked into a musical with songs by Oscar Brown Jr.

Bufman said his boxer star, who is 27, would play the title role in the musical version, singing four songs.

"When I asked him how he could get ready for a fight in two weeks," Bufman said, "he answered that 'for that bum Frazier I only need a week.' "

Joe Frazier is recognized as world heavyweight champion in New York and five other major boxing states. In other areas, the official champion is Jimmy Ellis, once a Clay sparring parrtner.

The World Boxing Association withdrew its recognition of Clay, or Ali, as champion in 1967 because of his refusal to be inducted into the Army. He is free on $5,000 bail pending an appeal of a five-year sentence on a draft violation charge.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Chicago psychiatrist Dr. Daniel Offer, after studying 73 normal teenage boys recently, found that the young men ranked school and studying (not parents and sex) as their biggest areas of conflict.

The only meaningful relationship they had with any teacher was with their athletic coach.

That hardly comes as news to the average mother of the young athlete. She knows how important a coach can be to her son. He all but becomes Superman to his players.

He's widely admired by fathers (even though sometimes he's barely tolerated by mothers, who might be a little jealous at first of sharing her son's attentions).

Ask most any mother: Coaches rule many roosts. Family life seems to revolve around practice, games and the magic words, 'The coach says . . . '.

* * * *

When a boy first expresses interest in football, it usually is the father who first surrenders to the idea. The mother remains adamant in the belief that the boy should not be playing such a rough sport.

The more the mother is against the idea, the more the father comes around to the belief that it would be good for his heir. Eventually he signs the parent permit slip and cheerfully pays for the football insurance and the gear the school doesn't furnish.

Pop doesn't wince at the increased food bill when the son demands steaks, huge salads, fresh vegetables and fresh lemonade as a regular bill of fare.

The coach will suggest to the boy what to eat and his recommendations become canonized.

The phrase 'the coach says' may set the mother's teeth on edge but the odds are she grinds her molars in silence.

* * * *

Fathers relish the thought that their sons are going to be subjected to a little discipline. They may not be stern enough to preach restraint and moderation themselves but they appreciate someone who can.

* * * *

One coach, looking apoplectic, can sometimes say, in substance:

"What's the matter with you! Are you chicken? You can't be afraid to strike the other fellow in this game and make him back off. When you take on those big ones, hit 'em hard. Throw that body into it as if you mean it. Those who really give 100 per cent stand less chance of getting hurt. And if you skin your legs, rub a little dirt on them and hit 'em again!"

'That body' has probably been carefully guarded and tended by a mother for 15 years, starting with baby oil, special soaps, vitamins, mother's cooking and a thousand dollars worth of dental care.

Before the season is very old, mothers start giving coaches grudging credit for making their sons head to bed early (they're often too tired to do otherwise). Mom takes a secret delight in telling girls to call back after football season, that he's too bushed to talk.

The pomp and pageantry of young gladiators pitting weight, agility and skill against one another in the 100-yard war provides a thrill that even mothers get caught up in.

The maternal parent might be inclined to show a little resentment if they see the coach reading the riot act to a boy who has dropped the ball or been faked out of position.

By the same token, they can get downright dewy-eyed when that same coach puts his arm around a sweating youngster who must have done something right.

* * * *

The army of mothers who have stayed awake in bed at night writing mental letters of protest to coaches for their despotic attitudes would probably outnumber Napoleon's troops at Waterloo.

But very few of those letters are ever written and fewer are mailed after they are written. The coach, in a moment of rare compassion while offering unstinting praise, can dispel months of maternal seething in a few minutes and gain respect and admiration that can last a lifetime.

The license to show pride in a youth's accomplishment comes free in this old world. If the government should put a tax on it, we could probably pay off the national debt in short order, for mothers — bless their souls — would still subscribe.

Bob Hayes Set For Eagles

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Bob Hayes can joke when he talks about it now.

"Oh, I even wear my shoulder pads when I take my wife out to dinner," he laughs. "You can bet I'll never be caught without them again."

Hayes suffered a shoulder separation Sept. 6 in a pre-game warmup before an inter-league exhibition game with the New York Jets.

"We never wear the pads during the light limbering up drills and I fell on my shoulder going for a ball," Hayes says. "The pads stay on from now on."

Hayes is slated to start Sunday against Philadelphia for the Dallas Cowboys in a National Football League game at his old split end post.

"I've given the shoulder some real good licks in practice against blocking dummies and it feels real good," Hayes says. "I can lift my arms and catch the ball with no problem."

Hayes, who joined Dallas in 1965, says the current undefeated team is the "best Dallas team I've seen—both offensively and defensively.

"With Calvin Hill in at running back, the linebackers are really presented with a problem. It will be interesting to see if they want to take a chance to double cover me and risk having Hill run up their backsides."

Hayes admits that being out for a month and a half was the worst time of his life but says "I'm lucky it wasn't for the season. Look at some of the people like Tommy Nobis, Atlanta linebacker who might be lost for the year. Yes sir, I'm really lucky."

He says "There is really a great feeling on the team this year. I feel like we're Super Bowl bound."

Stricter Pass Policy Is Adopted By Trustees

A new half-time policy for home Steer football games got the nod from school board trustees at Tuesday night's meeting. Supt. S. M. Anderson explained that he and several staff members had invoked the new idea of locking all gates except one just before the half-time and manning that gate to demand anyone wanting back in after the half to pay again.

"We're not trying to make it difficult for people to see the game," he stressed. "We're just trying to keep undesirable situations from developing." He added that the new policy greatly reduced the usual trouble in the bays under the stands as well as vandalism in the parking lot.

Anderson said 11 policemen were hired to help out at the last game, in addition to the two provided by the city and Anderson's staff members. He said trouble under the stands and in the parking lot has been a problem for several years.

"The people manning the gates were all told to use common sense in allowing people back in," Anderson said. "If the people had a good reason and it was obvious they weren't trouble-makers, we let them back in."

Several of the board members said they had received complaints from citizens who had been forced to pay twice so the suggestion was made to issue "pass outs." This would allow people already in the gates to go out at half time if they had good reason and then get back in by turning in the pass.

Further action on the proposal awaits the turn of events at Friday's home game with Odessa.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets and Baltimore Orioles aren't the only ones involved in important action this week. College football has some key games on tap Saturday.

For openers, there's third-ranked Southern California against No. 11 Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind. Then there's fifth-ranked Penn State at Syracuse, with the winner a good bet to capture the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of Eastern supremacy.

Seventh-ranked Tennessee and Alabama, No. 20, have a crucial Southeastern Conference clash at Birmingham, California faces eighth-ranked UCLA in Los Angeles with the loser becoming a Rose Bowl spectator and Michigan, ranked 13th, is at Michigan State and very little has to be at stake for that one to be a thriller.

Whoever said quit while you're ahead has our thanks, after a 43-13 week, best of the season. But we can't, since there's still more than a month to go.

Notre Dame over Southern California—Both teams walloped Northwestern, USC by a 48-6 count and Notre Dame by 35-10. But ND's Joe Theismann has come of age as a quarterback while USC's Jimmy Jones and Clarence Davis have never played in the South Bend snake pit.

Penn State over Syracuse—Syracuse ranks sixth nationally in total defense. Penn State doesn't care about the numbers—just about its own defense, which put the clamps on high-powered West Virginia last Saturday.

Alabama over Tennessee—'Bama may have been looking ahead during last week's incredible loss to Vanderbilt. Bear Bryant will make sure the Crimson Tide is looking in the right direction this time.

UCLA over California—Dennis Dummit, Greg Jones and Mickey Cureton lead Bruins' potent offense past Cal's sticky defense.

Michigan over Michigan State—Wolverines smell roses, the Pasadena, Calif., kind, after last week's 30-21 upset of Purdue.

Ohio State over Minnesota—Merrily we roll along.

Louisiana State over Kentucky—Kentucky only wins on alternate weekends, and this isn't one of them.

Oklahoma over Colorado—Sooners lost a tough one to Texas, and Colorado will pay for it.

Missouri over Oklahoma State—State had last week off, and this will be an off-week, too.

3 LETTERMEN BACK
Pugh Launches Drills Today

Basketball workouts are officially under way at Big Spring High School today and coach Kirby Pugh is far from discouraged with his prospects.

Pugh says the Steers will be small and inexperienced but quick and boast a good scoring potential.

The Longhorns will not scrimmage anyone before they launch play against Plainview here the night of Nov. 15.

Bruce Hutto, 6-2 and growing, likely will be the team's bell wether. Hutto, son of a former BSHS great, Tommy Hutto, came on fast toward the end of last season.

Robert Evans, 6-0 junior, likely will be another Steer standout. Evans' biggest need, as Pugh sees it, is to settle down. He has loads of talent but, in the main, has been too tense.

For the first time in years, the Steers have a sophomore who could play a lot. He is David Carter, who stands 6-1½. The young man has a lot of potential.

Others likely to rate the varsity squad are Riley Falkner, 5-9 senior; Richard Ethun, 5-10 senior; Mike Randle, 6-2 sophomore; and Randy Womack, 5-11 junior.

Hutto, Evans and Womack are the only returning lettermen.

Others sure to offer major bids for starting jobs include Smitty Swords, a six-foot senior who has no experience; Richard Bullard, 6-3 junior; Jesse Olague, 5-11 junior; David Newman, 5-10 soph; Larry Pierce, 6-4½ soph; Stanley Shanks, 5-10 soph; and Ted Smith, 5-5 soph.

Jimmy Farris, Gary Hinds and Herman Evans are playing football now and won't be available to the team until the season is over.

Stanton Bisons Lose Fifth Boy

STANTON — If the Stanton Buffaloes didn't have a whale of a lot of spirit, they would be in bad trouble for the remainder of a tough season. Friday they lost Scotty Fisher for the year. Scotty's knee made him the fifth Buffalo (and the fourth starter) to be sidelined from the campaign.

Nevertheless, the Buffs are gunning for an upset when McCamey comes to town Friday evening.

"We're going to win some more," asserted Coach Gerald Lloyd, "and Friday's game could just be one of them."

Although tripped up by Slaton, he had praise for the effort of his team.

Rufneks Host Toros Nov. 1

MIDLAND — Nash Dowdle, chairman of the board of the West Texas Rufneks, announced today the arrangement of the final schedule for the Rufneks for the remainder of the season. With the loss of both the Monterrey and the El Paso franchises for this year, an adjustment in scheduling was made at a league meeting Sunday Oct. 5, in Dallas.

The top two contenders for the Western Regional Championship of the Texas Division, the Rufneks and the San Antonio Toros, decided that they would rather settle the final outcome in heads up competition.

The remainder of the season shapes up like this:
Oct. 18 — Texarkana Titans at Texarkana.
Oct. 25 — Oklahoma Thunderbirds at Midland.
Nov. 1 — San Antonio at Midland.
Nov. 8 — at San Antonio.
Nov. 15 — at Dallas.

Hagins: 'Dog Effort Best

COAHOMA — Last Friday's 28-14 victory over Rotan was the best team effort to date for the Coahoma Bulldogs, Coach Bernie Hagins feels.

He said that the play of the line was so uniformly good that it was hard to single out one for special recognition. Backs were doing a good job, too, of clearing out the holes opened in the line.

This week Coahoma will entertain Cooper, which brings a 4-1 record. Only loss the visitors have had pinned on them was a 7-32 verdict dropped to Frenship. Since then, Cooper has been winning convincingly.

Dean Richters, halfback who did not suit out last week due to injuries, may be ready to go for this one. Toby Green, who played but sparingly at his left end post last Friday, should be ready to go full blast.

Dykes: Boys Have Too Much Pride To Quit

"The boys have too much pride to quit," BSHS football coach Spike Dykes told members of the Quarterback Club Tuesday night, in discussing the effects of last week's narrow defeat at the hands of Abilene Cooper.

"We got a supreme effort out of our kids," the coach added. "I'm not going to say we should have won but we could have won.

"We made some mistakes but so did Cooper. I was proud of our kids and the fans who supported us at the game. We must have had 2,500 people there and a lot of them came by the dressing room after it was over to congratulate. It's a shame we couldn't have won but that one is behind us."

In looking ahead to this week's opponent, Odessa High, Dykes said that the Bronchos had a "good football team" and it would be foolish to compare scores.

He pointed out that Big Spring looked better on paper when the opponents' games with Odessa Ector were compared but added that Ector is a cross-town rival of the locals, whereas the Steers caught the Eagles earlier in the season.

"We've seen the Bronchos in two games," Dykes stated, "and in neither one have they run the ball very much. What gains they have made have come through the air."

The head coach also lauded Mark Green, the Broncs' 6-4 quarterback, as one of the ablest players the Steers will see all season, a boy who plays on both defense and offense for the Odessans.

Big Spring will carry a 3-2 record onto the field while Odessa is 2-3.

The Steers will be in near top physical condition for the Friday contest, the coach said, and had benefitted by some fine workouts this week.

For the benefit of parents present, Dykes remarked:

"We're playing what we think are the best 11 boys on the team on every down. Some of you might disagree but we have to do what we think is right."

Bill Richey, who scouted the Broncs for the Steers, reviewed the Odessa lineup and identified right tackle Terry Thiebaud as the best lineman the Bronchos have and added that Green had plenty of help in the Cayuse secondary from such boys as Wayne Wallace, Randall Ferguson and Reed Tolles.

In screening films of last week's game with Cooper, Dykes consistently lauded the play of such individuals as Steve Tidwell, Howard Stewart, Tony Dean, Jimmy Farris, Lewis Switzer, Mike Barnes and Roy Anderson.

Local Tennis Team Wins

New BSHS tennis coach Royce Cox had a right to exult, if he were so amind, after the Steers' surprising 9-4 victory in a practice tennis match with Snyder here Tuesday.

The success was the first ever achieved by a Big Spring team over Snyder representatives.

The Big Spring boys registered a decisive 7-0 edge over the Tigers. The local girls lost, however, 4-2.

Here's the way the Steers went about it:

BOYS SINGLES
Stewart Bunn, Big Spring, over Bebo Boren, Snyder, 6-0, 6-1; Bobby Dyer, BS, over Terry Book, Snyder, 6-4, 6-0; Green Martin, BS, over Boardon Wooten, Snyder, 6-4, 6-4; Steve Lawlis, BS, over William Rasco, Snyder, 6-3, 6-0; Ray Kennedy, BS, over William Rasco, Snyder, 6-1, 6-1.

BOYS DOUBLES
Martin-Steve Burnett, BS, over Wooten-Rasco, Snyder, 6-3, 6-0; Dyer-Bunn, BS, over Boren-Book, Snyder, 6-3, 6-4.

GIRLS SINGLES
Karen King, BS, over Linda Miller, Snyder, 6-4, 6-3; Deanna Boles, Snyder, over Martha Boadle, BS, 6-3, 6-4; Joan Braziel, Snyder, over Lynda Meador, BS, 6-4, 6-4; Becky Simms, Snyder, over Phyllis Faulkner, BS, 6-3, 7-5.

GIRLS DOUBLES
Miller-Boles, Snyder, over King-Meador, BS, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4; Boadle-Stephanie Dickens, BS, over Braziel-Simms, Snyder, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

SEASON CAGE TICKETS WILL GO ON SALE HERE SHORTLY

Season tickets for home games of the HCJC basketball team, priced at $5 to adults and $3 to students, will go on sale shortly.

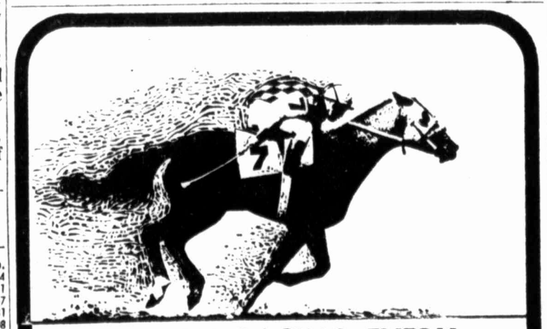

The school's business office will make the ducats available.

The cost is 50 cents less than last year in each instance, possible because one less home game is being played by the Hawks.

Tickets at the gate will sell for $1 adult and 50 cents student. That means adults can save $5 by purchasing the season ducat while students can realize a savings of $2.

The home schedule:

Nov. 18 — Southwestern Christian of Temple; Nov. 24 — Fort Worth Christian; Dec. 9 — Amarillo (C); Dec. 16 — South Plains (C); Jan. 24 — Clarendon (C); Jan. 27 — Frank Phillips (C); Feb. 3 — Odessa (C); Feb. 10 — Lubbock Christian (C); Feb. 17 — NMJC (C); March 2 — NMMI (C).

On the move: New Chevrolet Movers for'70

Chevy goes heavy! New Titan 90.
Anybody can add a new truck to a lineup. Leave it to Chevy to add a truck and a half.
Titan 90.
Never before has a Chevy tilt been so long on muscle.
So right for turnpike stretches.
With any one of 9 diesels available to put under the driver at the wheel.
Or one of the biggest sleeping compartments on the road to put under him when he's not.
And a wraparound instrument panel that puts everything just a glance or fingertip away.
Big, tough conventional chassis cabs. Lowest cost vans. Recreational vehicles.
Whatever you're thinking, your Chevrolet dealer's got it.
And it's a Mover.

Chevy goes lively! New '70 pickup.
The first thing a Chevy pickup has to move is you. And we never forget it.
It shows in the way our '70s look.
In their coil spring smoothness. Car-like option lists.
And all the ways they come: Fleetside, Stepside and Longhorn (the second car that doubles as a second home).

CHEVROLET
Putting you first, keeps us first.

Chevy goes anywhere! New Blazer.
Call it Chevrolet's convertible-station-wagon-car-truck if you've got the time. Or just call it Blazer for short.
It's the runabout with the largest V8's, widest track and roomiest interior.
Order it with removable hardtop. Two- or four-wheel drive for telling trails to get lost.

Civitans Sell Holiday Candy

Halloween candy is being sold by the Civitans Club to raise money to buy shoes for needy children. Last year the Civitans gave shoes to nearly 600 children at Christmastime.

The Civitans and auxiliary Civinettes have sponsored the project four years. In the past, school teachers have chosen needy students to receive the shoes. This year the children will be chosen by Mrs. Tom Phillips, Howard County Welfare office.

In addition to receiving shoes, the children will be given a Christmas party, said Don Finkenbinder, Civitans president. "We are planning a party with entertainment, perhaps some food and extra gifts," said Finkenbinder. "In the past," he said, "local shoe stores have donated shoes. These are mostly in narrow sizes, and we try to fill in the other sizes needed. If we can't fit the child with shoes, then we'll buy him a gift."

The trick or treat candy is being sold door-to-door, 112 individually wrapped pieces for $1.

Smith Names Tyler Judge

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith Tuesday named his administrative aide, Galloway Calhoun Jr. of Tyler, to be a new district judge in Tyler.

Calhoun, former state senator from Tyler and son of a longtime Democratic party leader, succeeds Judge Connally McKay, Tyler, who was appointed by Smith Tuesday as associate justice of the 12th Court of Civil Appeals in Tyler.

McKay replaces Judge Grover Sellers, Sulphur Springs, who resigned effective Oct. 31.

Calhoun has served as administrative aid to Smith since the governor took office last Jangovernor took office last January. Previously he was an assistant attorney general, criminal district attorney of Smith county and state senator for six yers from Tyler.

McKay is a former district attorney of Smith, Wood and Upshur counties in 1946-49 and had been district judge of the 114th District since 1953.

Enrollment Dips Lower

Declines in the Airport and Boydstun elementary schools and in high school accounted for most of the loss as enrollment dropped by 20 in Big Spring schools last week. Airport lost six and Boydstun seven, which was more than the net loss of 10 in elementary schools. High school had nine withdrawals — four freshmen, three juniors and one each among sophomores and seniors. Runnels Junior High was down for a net loss of nine in secondary. Enrollment was 7,322, or 166 less than the same time last year.

New York Magazine said VW "retains its value better than anything else. A 1956 VW is worth more today than any American sedan built the same year, with the possible exception of a Cadillac."

Texan Draws Life Sentence

PINEDALE, Wyo. (AP) — A Wyoming judge has ordered a life sentence for Larry Ray Foster, 15, of Pasadena, Tex., on a reduced charge of second degree murder in the shooting death of a Texas girl.

Foster was arrested after a July 14 shootout. The body of Kathleen Callier, 13, also of Pasadena, was found nearby.

Foster was committed to the State Industrial School at Worland until he is 21. He will then be transferred to the penitentiary at Rawlins.

One officer died in the shootout. It occurred as Foster and a cousin, James Earl Arabette, 27, also of Pasadena, were trapped by police.

Arabette pleaded guilty to second degree murder, armed robbery and rape and was sentenced to 90 to 91 years.

The Other Big Problem Is Their Parents' Fame

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Most American parents now face the real possibility that their children may get hung up on dope. If the parent happens to be an entertainment star, the chances of that danger may well be increased.

This was underscored recently with the apparent suicide of 20-year-old Diane Linkletter. Her father, television star Art Linkletter, said she plunged six stories to her death while under the influence of LSD.

"It wasn't suicide, because she wasn't herself," Linkletter declared. "She was murdered by the people who manufacture and sell LSD."

Earlier this year, Loren Silliphant, 18-year-old son of screen writer Stirling Silliphant ("In the Heat of the Night"), was shot to death during a gathering in his Sunset Strip apartment by an intruder who demanded narcotics. A bag containing marijuana was found outside the window.

The Hollywood community, with its residential area centered in Beverly Hills, is similar to other centers of affluence in its juvenile problems. It has many directionless young people looking for thrills, and with the money to buy them.

Beverly Hills Police Chief Joseph P. Kimble says: "If there is a higher incidence of dope among juveniles in Beverly Hills, it is not much higher than in similar communities. But there can be no doubt that the problem exists."

Where do youths get dope?

"Mostly from other kids," Chief Kimble said. "The hollow-eyed, furtive, 50-year-old fiend who pushes dope on young people is pretty much a thing of the past."

In other words, a Beverly Hills youth who wanted to experiment with dope would not have much trouble finding it.

"I think this is an accurate statement," the police chief said.

There are indications that the children of the famous may be more susceptible to the use of drugs than others their age. Stars lead busy, self-centered lives that allow little time to listen to children's problems. Multiple marriages leave children to grow up with governesses and step parents and at boarding schools.

Their playground becomes the discotheques of Beverly Hills and hippieland of Sunset Strip. Many become involved with the rock music world, where pot and LSD are a way of life.

All young people face the search for identity, but this quest seems more acute with stars' children. Their parents' fame is constantly a factor to be dealt with.

Art Linkletter touched upon this as he discussed his daughter's problems: "There was always the family name to contend with—you know how hard that can be. You're prejudged by everyone. All my kids have had to adjust to it, having that name riding on top of them."

Other famous children have recently made news because of drugs.

Kent Lane, 27-year-old son of Rhonda Fleming, admitted last April in an interview that he had used marijuana and LSD. He recalled confessing it to his mother two years before: "I wanted to shock Mother—hit her right between the eyes. I wanted her attention, even if it hurt. I hurt; I wanted her to hurt, too."

Lane, now a promising actor, said he had rid himself of the use of drugs. He touched on some of the reasons for his usage:

"I spent my childhood being terribly confused. Mother wasn't there much, and that wasn't fair to either of us . . . My father was a snapshot—I didn't see him often."

A Beverly Hills psychitrist who has treated children of the famous names of Hollywood has this to say:

"These children are troubled because of two factors. For one thing, their parents are extremely busy and self-centered people; their own careers and their need for ego satisfaction leaves them little time to give attention to their sons and daughters.

"The other problem is their parents' fame. Everywhere a boy goes, he is pointed out as so-and-so's son. He becomes a celebrity himself, but not because of anything he has done. He has difficulty establishing his own identity because of the overwhelming fame of his parent.

"Some movie children get into trouble, such as using dope, in a misguided effort to get some kind of attention from their parents. Others use the so-called mind-bending drugs in a search for their own identity."

As long as such situations exist, Hollywood may see more tragedies like that of Diane Linkletter.

'JOHN DOE' DON'T DO IT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I suppose you think I got no bullets in this," a gunman told patrons at Jack's Tavern. "I guess you think I won't shoot."

He promptly dispelled doubts on both counts by accidentally shooting himself in the leg, police said.

With that he fled Monday night with $400 and two bottles of whisky he had previously collected from patrons and bartender Roy F. Shoemaker, 42.

He was captured two blocks away, charged with armed robbery and taken to a police ward of a local hospital. He continued Tuesday to refuse to identify himself and was booked as "John Doe."

Patrolman Hit In Side By Bullet

FORT WORTH (AP) — Patrolman G. T. Pappas, 39, was shot and wounded as he answered a disturbance call at a bar shortly after midnight Tuesday, police reported.

Officers said another man also was wounded after reinforcements arrived and two persons were being held without immediate charge.

NYC Contract Renewed, Guided From Lamesa

The Big Spring City Commission during its regular meeting Tuesday night voted to renew its NYC contract until Jan. 31, 1970.

Administrative Assistant Larry Smith said the Department of Labor wanted Howard County's program to merge with Dawson County, in order to consolidate services and because funds for the program have been reduced. The department chose Dawson County for the headquarters, Smith said, because it had the only Funded Community Action Agency.

"The Department of Labor left us with two alternatives," Smith said. "We can either continue as prime sponsors, though Dawson County would administer the day-to-day activities, or let the contract expire. I would recommend continuing as prime sponsors to give the commission time to see what direction the program might take."

In other business, the commission denied a request for damages amounting to $12.50, made by Joe A. Welch, 3239 Drexel. Welch explained the damages were for a bill to the plumbing company he called when sewage backed up into his house.

"This experience has been personally embarrassing to me and to my family," Welch said. "I think the city has a moral, personal responsibility to pay such small damages in this circumstance.

"I know it would set a precendent if the city did pay for the damages, but at least the city can have a more routine check, even a monthly clean-out of the sewer system, so it won't happen elsewhere."

City Attorney Herb Prouty explained that through governmental immunity, the city is not liable for suit or damages in these cases; and to hold a person liable, it must be shown he is at fault. The city people who investigated the case, he said, could find no reason for the city's being at fault.

Public Works Director Ernest Lillard said the city has about 300,000 feet of sewer line, and it is physically impossible to maintain regular checks over the whole system.

"If one area has a history of trouble," Lillard said, "we follow a regular routine in checking it; we only have men and equipment for regular problems.

"Often, we never know what stops up the sewer because it is washed on through. We have found bath towels and diapers in the line, or it could be grass or tree roots. Especially in cold weather, grease in the line can coagulate and stop the sewer."

"Then the city should launch some campaign to publicize this matter," Welch said, "in order to divert a disaster in some household."

In other action the commission:

1. Approved the first reading for an on-premises beer permit for the Cherokee Lounge;

2. Approved an emergency reading for an off-premises beer permit for the Foodway Store, suggested by Mayor Pro-Tem George Zachariah. Mayor Arnold Marshall and Commissioners Walter Stroup and Jimmy Morehead all expressed concern about setting a precedent in this matter, but the Mayor voted with Zachariah, and Garner McAdams to approve the motion, 3-2. Stroup and Morehead voted against it.

3. Approved a recommendation from the traffic commission to take down "no parking" signs on the north side of Fifteenth, from Gregg to Lancaster.

4. Passed resolutions commending nine retiring members from city boards, including F. D. Rogers, Dick Collier, Jerry Mancill, Gene Haston, Clyde Chesser, Vernon Permenter, Travis Bracken, Tom McAdams and John Ferguson.
