Tom F. Connally Announces For Office of Mayor

The Leader is authorized by him to announce the candidacy of Mr. Connally for the office of Mayor this week. He is too well known to require any special introductions, he having been a respected and useful citizen of Clarendon since 1908.

Mr. Connally served Clarendon as Mayor from 1913 to 1917. He also served three years on the School Board, being a member of the Board at the time of his election as Mayor.

He makes no promises. In a private conversation, he favors lowering taxes, and in order to accomplish this result, he naturally favors a more economic administration that will permit the city to live within its means.

He asks the consideration of the voters on his record in the past. He enters the race at this time upon the insistence of friends and neighbors who believe that he can render the city a real service during the reconstruction period.

Donley County Folks Have Narrow Quake Escapes

Reports indicate that former residents of Donley county escaped injury in the recent earthquake shocks in California. The beautiful home of Wesley Knorrp in Long Beach was damaged, but to what extent cannot be determined until a more thorough examination. The family spent the first night in autos in the street rather than risk the building.

Mrs. Carroll and children were in a frame building and escaped injury. Frame buildings were far less seriously damaged than brick, tile or concrete structures.

Three sons of Mrs. M. L. Wood of the Naylor community, John, Edgar and Blake and families escaped after the front of the building collapsed and the back doors jammed in the second story where they were living with their families.

Highway Matter Slowly Gets One Step Nearer

Tom F. Connally, member of the Jury of View on the right-of-way purchase for Highway 5 reports that arrangements have been closed for the right-of-way from Clarendon to the west county line.

The Jury is holding up waiting for the surveyors to complete the survey from Hedley east at this time. Just as soon as the survey is made, the Jury will make the necessary purchase with the approval of the State Highway department, after which bids will be asked for active construction.

Series of Sermons to Begin At Presbyterian Church

All who heard Rev. Jan McMurry of Quannah last spring, and who enthusiastically invited him to return this year, will rejoice in the fact that he is to hold an eight day meeting at the Presbyterian church beginning Sunday, April 2nd.

Rev. McMurry's preaching is uniquely Biblical, and invariably held the interest of his audiences, while his singing lent an added attraction to the services. The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Aggie Class of High School Terraces Wednesday

G. L. Boykin, instructor in vocational agriculture in the Clarendon high school, gave his pupils plenty of practical work in terracing land on the R. T. Darnell farm near Jericho Wednesday forenoon.

Some two hundred acres were prepared for future rains according to the latest methods of conserving both moisture and soil. Boys of the class taking this trip were Walter Brady, Walter Gorman, Emmett Simmons, Acey Yates, George Wayne Estlack, Wesley Hastings, Theodore Meyers Glen Riley, Bill Gambin, Chester Mayo, Robt. Nichols, Donley Darnell.

C. R. Skinner remains at his home with a slight improvement in his general condition. For a time he was seriously ill following an attack of flu.

DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT PLAY AT LELIA LAKE

Music And Readings Included On Interesting Program For Friday Night

A benefit comedy-daram in five acts is the main event on a well-filled program to be presented by the Odd Fellow Dramatic Club at Lelia Lake Friday night of this week. "Tony, the Convict," as the name indicates, affords thrills aplenty. There will be plenty of laughs, and pathos, according to Doc Woods, director of the play.

The cast of characters is made up of the best talent within the Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges here. They are:

Tony, the Convict—Doc Woods. Weary Wayside, the Detective—Jack Bailey.

James Barclay, hard hearted and vindictive—Roy Clampitt. Judge Van Cruger—Winfield Mosley.

Mrs. Van Cruger—Mrs. M. W. Mosley. Lena Van Cruger, reputed daughter—Pauline Brame.

Rosa Sedley, the old maid—Emma Ayers. Sally, the servant—Mrs. Jack Bailey.

Phillip Warburton, Homer Bones Warden, Sing Sing Prison—C. R. Gambin.

Jackson, Nihilistic son of Ham—Finis Harp.

In addition to the five-act comedy-drama, arrangements have been made for readings of special merit, and music of that character that is designed to arouse enthusiasm. The proceeds of the 'show' will be divided between the Lelia Lake athletics, and the widow and orphans fund of the Odd Fellow lodge. The price of admission will be only 10 and 15 cents. A mighty big show for the price, folks. Everybody is expected to be present.

Ladies of Methodist Church Announce Chicken Supper

Castings about for a workable method of enhancing the financial standing of their treasury, the ladies of the Methodist church announce a chicken pie supper to be given on Tuesday night of March 21st at the church.

An attractive menu has been arranged that will appeal to most any one of any age. It includes chicken pie, salad, candied sweet potatoes, pickles, rolls, pie and coffee.

An appeal is being made to the younger folks with the assurance that they will be given a special division, where the supper will be served to the youngsters in a private group. The small sum of twenty-five cents will be charged to assist with the expenses of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Boston visited relatives here Wednesday.

Cuban Cigar Tobacco Grows Successfully Here

For some years experiments have been going on in Lamb and Bailey counties southwest of Hereford in an effort to ascertain if tobacco may be grown in West Texas. The reports are most favorable, where the work was done by experienced hands.

Mr. Frank Fleming, brother of Mrs. J. B. Baird, demonstrated the possibilities of growing a first-class Cuban cigar tobacco here the past season. Having had previous experience, Mr. Fleming is of the opinion from the test made, that the climate offers an ideal opportunity for growing the weed.

He made a test of Cuban cigar tobacco. The flavor was all that could be desired and no insect pests developed. Hail was the only drawback he noted. The plants were allowed to grow four feet high before being forced to branch. Rainfall was sufficient to produce a plant that came up to the standard.

Mr. Fleming will grow it on a more extensive scale this season. Others who have had experience in growing tobacco in Donley county, are kindly asked to report results.

Brother Hits His Preacher In Face With Reck

While driving on the highway east of town early Sunday morning, Rev. E. B. Bowen, pastor of the First Methodist church of Clarendon, was struck on the side of the face by a rock thrown by Hon. T. H. Peebles, a leading member of his church.

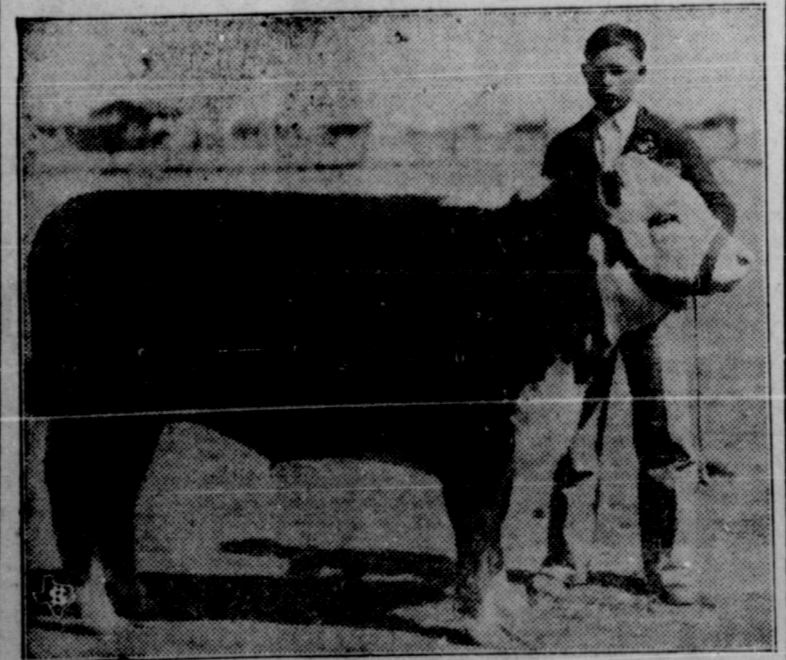

In discussing the matter, the minister stated that he had never before been struck squarely in the face by a rock thrown by a member of his church until Sunday, the rock passing through the windshield, bounced off the preacher's shield and out the back window.

In extenuation, Mr. Peebles explained that he was not "preacher mad" but merely "hog mad", his anger having arisen after chasing a hog over the pasture. The said animal being unaware of the "day of rest", refused to rest, or permit his owner to properly observe the Sabbath.

Friends of both men, and more especially those from Tennessee, being better acquainted with the unerring rock-throwing aim of natives of that section, believe that a rock thrown by an ex-Tennessean would follow the aim of the thrower. In other words, when a man back there draws "rock aim" on a squirrel in an 80-foot tree, it is just too bad for the squirrel. The peace, dignity and safety of a Texas preacher is subject to the same hazard, say those who would look upon the humiliation of Mr. Peebles as a huge joke.

Anyway, the minister canceled his engagement at Memphis and will likely accept the good offices of the sheriff who has proffered the local pastor the use of his bullet proof windshield should he dare to attempt passage by the Peebles farm again next Sunday.

He Gets Cash for His Champion Beef

Nelson Almsworth, farm boy, didn't know when he brought his 950-pound baby steer to the Amarillo Fat Stock show that he was going to go home with $627 in cash money in his pocket. His steer won first prize and sold for 66c a pound to a major oil company, which donated it for resale to Amarillo charities. Nelson got cash, and kissed his calf goodbye when it was sold.

BACK TAXES MAY BE PAID IN 10 INSTALLMENTS

Bill Remits Penalties And Provides For Semi-Annual Payments

A measure affecting the payment of delinquent taxes passed the lower House Saturday lacking three votes necessary to make the law immediately effective. The vote stood 97 to 11.

Rep. Homer Leonard, sponsor of the tax bill, moved to reconsider the bill again Tuesday at which time another vote showed a vote of 113 to 12 favoring the new law. With the approval of 21 members of the Senate, the bill will become a law.

Provisions of the measure provides that interests, penalties and costs that accrue on July 1, 1933, on ad valorem or poll taxes that are delinquent on or before that date are released, subject to the provisions of the act. The maturity date of all ad valorem and State taxes which will be delinquent July 1, 1933, is extended to the dates and times provided for in the bill.

One-tenth of the ad valorem and poll taxes which will be delinquent on July 1, 1933, shall be paid by date without interest penalty and costs. The remainder of the taxes on which penalties, interest and costs are released may be paid in nine semiannual installments, one of which shall be due Dec. 15, 1933, and one each on July 15 and Dec. 15, of 1934, 1935, 1936 and 1937, with 6 per cent interest from Feb. 1, 1933. If the first installment is not paid by July 15, 1933, two-tenths of the total amount shall be paid by Dec. 15, 1933. Failure to pay two-tenths by Dec. 1, 1933, or one installment on any due date thereafter, shall at once make all installments due and delinquent.

Irvin Alderson Continues To Improve

Wearily counting the time when he will be permitted to again mingle with the folks out of doors, Irvin Alderson is slowly making improvements from serious burns received some two weeks ago.

The writer visited him at Adair hospital where he is receiving every attention possible furthering his recovery. His eyes are practically normal, and the only serious wounds are on his hands and arms. These are predicted to become nearly normal with time to heal. His many friends will be glad to know that he is to make a recovery soon.

Certificates of complete soundness enabled the three local banks and the Security State bank at Hedley to resume normal business as usual Wednesday morning. During the banking holiday of twelve days, depositors were patient because neighbor banker was merely following the dictates of the state or national government, all of which was agreed as being to the best interests of the nation's financial system.

A total of $57,700.37 was deposited in the Clarendon banks on opening day Wednesday, bringing the total deposits up to better than $538,000.00. Local bankers are very optimistic over the outlook. This same spirit is being reflected in the financial reports from other sections of the state, and the nation.

Locally, the situation assumed an air of every day business. There was no rush either to withdraw or deposit, though the deposits far exceeded the withdrawals at each of the four banks of the county.

These banks are opening with no restrictions except the ruling of the Secretary of the Treasury against paying out gold, and the prevention of hoarding. Banks of Donley county were given an o. k. after careful inspection of their records. Since a number of banks will not be permitted to open again at this time in many places, and especially in the larger cities, bankers of Donley county are paid a distinct compliment for having managed local affairs in such a manner as to meet with the immediate approval of the banking authorities.

Our banks are in better condition than for two years according to a comparison of financial statements. There is every evidence that our financial situation in Donley county has been strengthened and that we are happily on the up grade.

The Security State Bank of Hedley according to a phone message from Clifford Johnson late Wednesday afternoon, received $4,609.37 for deposit Wednesday. The withdrawals were $1,540.87, showing a net gain in deposits of $3,068.50 over the day.

Among the many laws passed by the present Legislature, none will be appreciated more than that reducing the price of a poll tax. Next year one may vote by the mere payment of one dollar rather than the old price of $1.75.

Another law that will meet with popular favor is that repealing the law requiring farmers to secure a three dollar shofor license before operating a truck.

Cosmopolitan Nature.

Publishers of weekly papers who are inclined to seek solace in self-pity, would do well to study the record of J. M. Wear, editor, publisher, proprietor, devil and what have you of the Stamford, Nebraska Star.

This human dynamo finds time, when he is not chasing news items and ads, to sell ice, read meters, observe the government rain gauge act as town clerk, occupy a church pulpit frequently, carry mail and raise a family. Mr. Wear has beaten all comers in games of checkers and chess. He also hangs paper and paints buildings and won a ribbon at the county fair when he assembled a two-row cultivator blindfolded. Mr. Wear finds time dragging and local industry sagging to the extent that he is to begin buying hides while superintending a ladies rest room and a day nursery each Saturday.

The Old Deal.

We hear much of late about what is optimistically termed the "new deal," a term coined during the recent campaign, designed to help the democrats. We readily accept any new deal for purposes of trial or experiment believing that any change could make matters no worse.

At the same time there is some "old deal" business that demands the craving attention of the sorely tried multitude.

If Charles E. Mitchell did sell bank stock of New York's National bank to a relative for the purpose of showing a $2,800,000 on his income tax report, with the intention of a repurchase of the stock as has been alleged, he should be made to pay the same penalty as Al Capone. Charley knew better and in apparent amelioration of the crime resigned from the presidency of the bank. That is not enough.

If Uncle Andy Mellon did connive with others in defrauding the government out of $110,000,000 as is alleged in the suit that has been brought against his name and others, he too, should be made to pay for his perfidy and the violation of the confidence of over a hundred and thirty million Americans.

Will the so-called new deal apply to multi-millionaire buccaneers? That's what the public demands to know right now, and a clean-up from top to bottom would have a decided tendency to restore confidence right now more than any other one thing. We need a square deal along with a new deal--nothing less.

Fortune Telling. Unfortunately, for hundreds of listeners at least, some of the very best talent displayed over the broadcasting stations is that of the "fortune telling" tribe, both men and women. Why otherwise sane people still persist in believing that any one can see into the future even for a price, is a mystery unexplainable. Only recently two men were arrested and convicted on fraud charges at Albuquerque for having broadcast over the air fortune telling tactics that displayed an extreme skill, but very little judgment. These "seers" could not see into the future regarding their own welfare sufficiently to escape prosecution, but hundreds no doubt believed that these same men could peer into the future in behalf of the individuals.

The mails were flooded with greenback passed from the gullible to the merciless robbers who peddled "hot air" alone in return.

Just what class of citizens fall for this trickery? One is surprised to know that men and women educated in the ways of the world accede to the demands of curiosity of tracking the wraith of fortune by means of mere human minds.

The big majority are those who have had, or have an impending crisis in financial affairs. The second class includes those who have affairs of the heart. Honeyed words become a sweet morsel to those lulled to sleep in the imaginary lap of luxury expected on the morrow. That day never comes. The coffee cup in the hands of the old southern black mammy in by-gone days was just as reliable. Uncle Sam does his best in most instances to keep the fool and his money from parting, but he can't keep up with all of us all of the time.

Cruel, Cruel World.

Just as the writer cocks his feet upon the editorial desk after filling the old briar with the noxious weed famous to the mountaineers of eastern Kentucky, here is handed him a scathing denunciation of vitriolic ineptitude in the form of a letter from an alleged follower of Mother Grundy down at Baird.

The Bard of Baird denudes the writer of pride before the inevitable fall by denouncing in no uncertain terms his ideas relative to the appropriateness of pajamas for street wear. The Bard is quite certain that this article of clothing can only be classed as strictly nocturnal, with almost sedentary habits. To all of which this writer agrees adding diurnal instincts and meandering proclivities, without attempting to become verbose and thus again call down upon his head the wrath of the he-monster of Baird.

With deep humility the writer acknowledges a faint conception of the huge, involving, shadowing night of ignorance which descends upon the mind that knows little of the past, less of the present, and nothing of the future. The sense of one's own ignorance does little positive good in the world, shatters no idols, rights no wrongs especially, in a pajama argument with an erudite gentleman whose fastidious nature becomes offended by a bold but honest announcement. But it has some pale and negative merits, such as tolerance, patience and humility.

Error is the material from which the web of life is woven, and he who lives longest and wisest is only able to weave out the more of it. At the same time, ignorance has also the merit of tranquility. The writer has reposed his untutored head on that pillow of ignorance which a benevolent Creator has made so soft for us, knowing how much we should be forced to use it. Repose, humility and the attempt at recognition of ignorance are some of the graces to which this Baird reader would have us give careful thought. We shall do that very thing. In the meantime, we stand by our guns, deny his allegations, defy the alligator and come out more boldly for the apparel pattern given us by the Mikado's subjects in the land of cherry trees and silk worms, and where the mums mumble the greatness of the Imperial Nippon.

Weekly Poem

AFFINITY
There's a thought in the petal of flowers,
A theme in each blade of grass;
Those blooming beneath my bowers,
Those along the road I pass.
I may impart these thoughts to others,
Or stow them away in my mind,
I may dwell on their beauty and colors,
Or leave them all behind.

But the friends I've made as I journeyed,
And the impress of their lives on mine
Can not be valued or measured,
Nor left in the march of time.

And the eternity alone shall treat,
Of the share of me each shall be,
For I am a part of the folks I meet
And they are a part of me.

CAUTION

Barefooted, he sat on the steps of his tumbled-down shack, smoking a corn-cob pipe.
A stranger stopped for a drink of water. Wishing to be agreeable, he said: "How's your cotton coming on?"
"Ain't got none," said the cracker.

Manufacturers of Poultry Food Issue Book

An exceptional book full of good chicken sense for the man or woman raising chickens, is to be found in the new Purina Poultry Guide, just off the press. It's an attractively bound and beautifully illustrated volume of over 100 pages, presenting with unusual freshness and interest the necessary things a poultry owner wants to know, and needs to know, without having to spend much time searching for them.

Stating frankly that no attempt has been made to include all the knowledge there is about poultry, the book nevertheless gives striking evidence that some years of sound experience and information have entered into its preparation. Everyone owning poultry will find in this publication information that will make poultry raising more profitable.

Popular breeds of poultry, care of chicks, battery brooding, producing broilers, tips on raising turkeys, winter care of layers, getting eggs in summer, producing quality eggs, egg to egg feeding plan, feeding ducks, raising game birds, poultry diseases and parasites, care of hens in batteries, easy way to cull, poultry sanitation - - - these are some of the essential subjects skillfully presented in an easy helpful style by men who know poultry for the man or woman who raises poultry.

The Guide is priced at fifty cents but for a short time can be obtained by users of Purina Startena from the Clarendon Hatchery at a substantial discount.

TEMPLE OF TRUTH
By the Apostle

Hip! Hip! Hooray!!!

The above snapshot was taken of the old Apostle just at the moment when Homer Newton was handing him two big sacks of that famous Newton sausage Saturday. Homer has moved to Goodnight but follows the old trade because he has a large number of regular folks who refuse anything else. He makes a specialty of sausage and this remembrance Saturday is greatly appreciated.

It looked like the depression had surely passed. Homer had not been out of the office five minutes when Mrs. Frank Elmore came in and we began talking about that good home-made cream cheese. She is going to make one for us. In fact it is already made, but she has a ripening process that improves the quality, if such a thing is possible, then she is to send in the cheese and won't we throw up our old Easter bonnet and feel secure against the wolf for at least another month.

And just a hint to the women folks right here. Mrs. Elmore says that if a cloth dipped in vinegar is placed around the cheese after it is cut and a part removed, the cloth will prevent any mold or change in taste or quality. We thank her for the information and pass it on.

Donley county folks ought to make and eat more cheese. Why up in Wisconsin where they live on cheese, there is no one in jail at this time. The women folks brought in cheese and paid the old man's fine with it. Cheese will do most anything even to keeping a man out of jail.

how to make all kinds of cheese and half-way promised to make us a real clabber cheese. There is a method of making a cheese out of cooked clabber that is a real treat, and we look forward to that clabber cheese with a whole lot of expectation, Mrs. Holt.

Among those to visit the office Saturday was little Miss Bonnie Marie Hendrix. Never met her before, but she is very lady-like, looked the machinery over and promised to come back again some time. We like for these youngsters to come in and look the plant over. Many of them have no idea how a paper is made. More especially do we want children from the homes where the Leader goes every week, and that is pretty nearly every one in the county. Come on, little folks, and feel at home.

The lady who sews up the eyes of her hens to keep the hens from picking the heads of little chickens asked us not to say anything about it. We are ashamed of it too, and glad to comply with her request.

Well sir, a farmer told me Monday that if this town wanted to be progressive, they ought to put a bunch of hitching racks on the main street.

Hypocrisy is the compliment which vice pays to virtue.

When Peaceful Picketing Raised Valley Farm Prices

Force and violence were avoided in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas by peaceful pickets who sought to have all growers ask minimum prices of $6 per ton for cabbage and 20c per bushel for other winter vegetables, prices to be paid in cash. Prices as low as $1.75 per ton for cabbage and other crops as low as 4c per bushel caused the farm strike. Here is a picket stopping a truck load of cabbage near San Benito.

It Pays to Terrace Cleared Land

Jesse Harcrow, Leon county, Texas, farmer, has found that terracing newly cleared timber land insures good permanent farming soil. For three winters Harcrow has been grubbing out stumps and terracing his land immediately after with a "V" drag. Eighty acres of similar land cultivated without terraces washed so badly that it is now hardly worth cultivating, while the terraced land produces more than double the unterraced in cotton.

ped open and resewed into a skirt out of the average pair of men's pants. Fat men are coming into their own. A man who wears anything above 46 waist measure is going to be some popular guy within no time. If he has his pants stripped off in public, will he be humiliated? Certainly, you could knock him down with the Washington monument, or any old thing. It's going from bad to worse and congress refuses to listen to a blamed thing except money, right now.

Good lord! Here's a pome coming on. Balmy breezes breed pomes and call for heavier skirts. Brace yourself—

The skirts she wore
Had a beautiful stripe
Where two days before
I lit my pipe.
Grab hold of something and—
March winds blow
The skirts so high
But it pours more sand

Who was it said that some folks have no use for their heads except to keep their backbones from unraveling?

In speaking of old times and the game situation 40 years ago, Doc Howard says he remembers when they had to fight wild turkeys out of the horse troughs on the J A's. He related an instance of when he was asleep in the bunk house about mid-afternoon in the month of July, 1882, he was awakened by a vigorous tug at his vest. When he raised up he found that a wild turkey gobbler had swallowed his watch. Fortunately the chain held the gobbler until Doc could reach an ax. Otherwise the gobbler would have given him a stiff battle as it weighed 65 pounds when dressed.

"He stood on the bridge at midnight,
And tickled her face with his toes;
For he was only a mosquito,
And he sat on the bridge of her nose."

If you don't like that one, how's this 'un?
"My boy, beware of the baby stare.
Because if it's a bluff,
She knows too much—and if it's not
She doesn't know enough."
(Both are being printed by special request, especially the latter.)

For the first two years, we didn't know whether our third to the oldest son would walk or fly, his ears were so big. Now, by cracker, he's doing both.

Some cured ham tastes like it might of had a serious relapse.

Ain't nature wonderful! A million years ago she never knew that we would ever wear spectacles, but look how she rigged up our ears.

The latest thing in men's styles (and women's styles too if they wear men's clothing), will be celophane pockets so government agents can tell who is doing the hoarding act. Personally, most of us need no pockets at all.

During these hard times men who formerly had a paid agent make out their income tax reports, did it themselves this year. A man simply put down his age, added the size of his hat, subtracted the number of his wife's dresses and multiplied the whole mess by his car number and got by with it. The government men never did understand the income tax blanks either.

Would you believe it, the women folks have started a craze of making skirts out of men's pants. The Apostle has been chased as much as three blocks by several women the past week. The pants are rip-

Monstrosity

This lamb, born in Kimble county, near Junction, Texas, had two well developed rear ends, but only one pair of shoulders and forelegs. It had two ears, three eyes, two nostrils. The lamb lived for several weeks. Scientists believe mutated births such as this are caused by incomplete separation of chromosomes in the germ cell of the mother. With complete separation, she would have twins.

That Goldston literary program Friday night was great. It was just such as will build a better community spirit. Every one on the program did her or his best and they intend to keep right on improving their home talent. Every community ought to have something one night out of each week until the busy crop season starts.

The best thing to our mind, was the wholesome friendliness. They know how to make a visitor feel welcome and are not backward about doing it. Yep, we're going to make it possible to visit there oftener.

POISON in Your bowels!

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels, cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied constipation for over forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drugstore sell.

BOOK TALK

By Lallah Wright

What are these grotesque creatures called human beings doing here in the world? Whence did they come and whither are they going, and how? What are they doing, and why are they doing it? And, above all, what exactly is the score? Aldous Huxley spun a web, a deep, imperceptible, intricate web of life and its vague obscurities in "Point Counter Point."

This is by far the most complete novel of the century on the difficulties of learning to live. Grandiloquently, he includes and harmonizes all our complexities in irrelevant groups of characters. There are twenty-seven "round" characters—strong, complex, dynamic, individual—each with his contrasting interpretations, each struggling to "get along." For what? The result is always the same—Death. Artists, novelists, writers, scientists, revolters, musicians, dramatists, "bad girls"—the low down on all of them and their intellectualism and barbarism, austerity and lasciviousness, through one omniscient author.

One favorite character, Phillip Quarles, writer, was the novelist within his own novel. I think Phillip wanted to write a book interpreting every subject, looking with the essence of the new way of looking; multiplicity. In the book he wanted to include his findings, sought through the eyes of the religious, economic, scientific, historic, romantic—all in one. Such a kaleidoscopic story was invented by Huxley.

The impressive element of the book is its versatility. No sooner does one become engrossed with one group of characters than one is pertinaciously drawn to another group, to return later to the first, and thus alternatingly through the whole of the huge web.

The theme of the story is manifested in the poem on the fly-leaf: "Oh, wearisome conditions of humanity! Born under one law, to another bound, Vainly begot and yet forbidden vanity: Created sick, commanded to be sound. What meaneth Nature by these diverse laws— Passion and reason, self-division's cause?"

Most of the characters realized the difficult and futile struggle of being alive and striving to live by time or another into the inert laissez faire, passion conquering reason, et cetera. And despite their fighting and wrangling, they were constantly aware that death would sooner or later be the reward. No matter how great their achievements they were not allowed to forget that merit in this world was no assurance of merit in the next.

Mark Rampion, artist and dramatist, believed that the root of all the mess we've made of living was in the avaricious desire for money and more luxuries. We do not live like human beings, but like idiots and machines. The first step he suggested in correcting this individual psychology was to make the people live dualistically: in one compartment as industrialized workers for eight hours a day, and in the other as human beings for the rest of the time. By making people believe that the eight-hours' work is just a nasty job that has to be done, a genuine human life in leisure hours will result. After all, it would be rather fine to think of a position, a job, as utterly irrelevant to the real human life.

Spandrell, a worthless fellow, defined work as a drug to prevent the people from seeing themselves and the world as they really are. "The gospel of work's just a gospel of stupidity—No wonder the big business men are such enthusiasts for work. Work gives them the comforting illusion of existing even of being important."

Not only are work and business and intellectualism defined as child's play, but war as well. And, according to Rampion, the more "civilized" the world grows, the more numerous will be wars. "Industrial progress means overproduction, means the needs for getting new markets, means international rivalry, means war. Mechanical progress means more specialization and standardization of work means more ready-made and unindividual amusements—means increased boredom—and finally, a kind of individual madness that can only result in social revolution."

Therein is a smattering of the ingenious interpretation of the economist's eye. Huxley's religious "eye" is almost funny; his weakest characters seem to have resorted to religion for lack of another resort. Most of the strong characters did not believe in God, of course. Everything about this fragile existence of ours is made fun of—even love; still, subconsciously the reader realizes that this fine mess of hell is somehow all right, that sadness is happiness; that the sad is acceptable. These twenty-seven characters were "fed-up" with love and its surprises. Most of them had evil experiences because they were bored with everything else, and finally they were bored with having wicked experiences because time and habit had taken all the wrongness out of them.

Retrospectively, conclusively, what is the point? Living is still as it was from the beginning: an unharmonious harmony, point counterpoint.

ASHTOLA SCHOOL NEWS

The following schools are invited to participate in a track meet at Ashtola Friday, March 17, beginning at 1:00 p. m.: Chamberlain, Goldston, Martin, Goodnight, Lelia Lake, Skillet, McKnight, Bray, Giles, Windy Valley, Hudgins, and Clarendon Jr. Hi. No trophies will be awarded; this is just a friendly competitive work out in preparation for the county meet. No charges will be made and everyone is invited to come and watch the events. In connection with the field and track meet there will be volley ball, boys and girls tennis, and boys and girls playground ball.

A pie supper will follow the try-outs in declamations, Friday night. An added attraction will be a school fair, exhibiting some of the work done this year. The declamations will begin promptly at 8:00. Proceeds from the pie supper are to be used for athletic equipment.

To the delight of everyone the six-week exams have been finished. The hustle and bustle and worry has ceased, and everyone has settled back down to normal, routine work again. The task of grading papers is over, as all the teachers are through and have the report cards out for this six weeks. Basketball season is over and we are beginning the spring sports. Tennis, volley ball and baseball. There are more senior girls out for volley ball this year than in former years, and the boys are looking forward to having a good baseball game. Both junior boys and girls may be seen playing playground ball at any play period.

The Ashtola Pleasure Hour Club met Monday afternoon, with president Horace McClellan presiding. The minutes were read and approved and the program was turned over to Mr. Bowen, who with the help of his room dramatized a sketch from "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Several other interesting numbers were rendered, among which was a vocal solo by Mr. Willard Cook, otherwise known as "Cooky".

Miss Baley's room has charge of the program for next Monday afternoon. Everyone is invited to come to our programs presented every Monday afternoon at 3:30. "Civil Service", a comedy drama depicting the joys and sorrows of a group of postoffice employees in a small middle west city, was presented by the Ashtola faculty, with the help of two high school boys, Richard Hatley and Foster Gregg, Thell Drennan, Jessie Swinburn, and Harry Hartzog, from the Martin community, and Mrs. Thomas. The play was quite a success and received much favorable comment.

Goldie and Birdie, the country lovers played by Mr. Bowen and Miss Cole, and old R. F. D. played by Mr. Thomas were parts especially liked. The leading part was very ably played by Miss Helen Baley.

We hope to have more good plays here before the school year is over.

Men Invited to Hear Temperance Lesson

The Come As You Are, Men's Bible Class, extends an invitation to the men of the community to be present Sunday morning in their Class room in the Basement of the First Christian Church to study with them the great subject of "The Effects of Alcoholic Drinks." This is the International Sunday School lesson for the day and Rev. Ferrell, the teacher of the class promises to bring some interesting facts. As a sample of what he has in store for you he submits the following illustration:

From a bushel of corn a distiller got four gallons of whiskey, which retailed for 16.80. The other involved in the manufacture of the whiskey reaped the following rewards:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. The farmer got $0.25, Government got 4.40, The railroads got 1.00, The makers got 4.00, The drayman got 15, The retailer got 7.00, The consumer got DRUNK, His wife got HUNGER, His children got RAGS.

This Bible class boasts of remarkable growth during the last few months and is real anxious that other men meet with them and enjoy the lessons and friendship that exists in their class room, every Lord's Day.

PEARCE DESCRIBES ARTIFACTS FOUND IN OLD INDIAN GRAVES

In the fourth of a series of articles depicting the lives and habits of Texas Indians, Professor J. E. Pearce explained the findings of archaeological explorations in Northwest Texas.

"The arrowpoints found in the Russell place were all of exactly the same type, namely, a small, thin, finely chipped point, triangular in form, and having a sharp thin edge at the bottom instead of a tang," Professor Pearce said. "They were always in clusters of from three to fifteen, usually placed by the knee of the skeleton with the points toward the feet. Evidently when buried with the dead they were arrows in quivers. They are of a type that would slip easily from the shaft and remain embedded in the flesh of the wounded man or animal when the shaft came away. By promoting death from blood poisoning they would be more effective in war than in hunting. An astonishing fact concerning these points is that they were almost universally present in burials that contained arrowpoints of any description, found in all the 32 sites worked in this region; and were, in the extreme portion of Northwest Texas, usually the only type found. This was the case at the Russell place. They were mixed with points possessing a rudimentary or completed tang in increasing numbers as one came towards the south. Strikingly uniform and found in both old and recent burials, they constituted a widespread and long continued culture element.

"The pottery at the Russell farm was surprising in many ways. Its variety in form and size indicated use for almost every possible purpose. Cooking pots were large, plain, strong and covered with soot and stains that made their use unmistakable. The largest specimen at this place would hold about four gallons. One found later at the R.

L. Carson farm, about 12 miles from the Russell place, was seventeen inches in height by fourteen inches in greatest diameter, and had a capacity of about five gallons. The largest one that has been found was dug up on the H. R. Taylor farm, about thirty miles from the Russell place. This was eighteen inches in extreme dimensions and would hold about seven gallons. These two large vessels were in perfect condition and are the largest specimens of pottery of any kind that was found. As the cooking pots were all found sitting upright and they were probably buried with food in them. One of the large pots had a smaller one inside it. There was never more than one of the very large pots with a skeleton, and it was placed near the foot.

Beautifully Ornamented
"The smaller cooking pots merge into food bowls that were not used in cooking. These pots and bowls were placed about the head and shoulders of the body, sometimes several in a burial; and several of them contained the bones of birds or small animals. In one at the T. M. Sanders farm, on Red River, there were fish bones. The smaller cooking pots were often beautifully ornamented in raised designs, with scalloped margins, graceful ears and nodes set in lines. Fine designs in incise lines were evidently left off because they soon became invisible from the effects of soot.

"Bowls ranged in size from four-gallon vessels to toy-like specimens not much larger than tea cups. Most of them were ornamented, many of them incised or carved designs go down through the slip, and so stand out in a color in marked contrast to that of the general surface.

"The very large bowls, with content of several gallons, were obviously containers for seeds. According to the Spanish records the historical Indians of this region stored, in large pottery vessels, quantities of sunflower seeds, squash seeds, shelled corn and beans. Our finds confirm these observations.

"Bottles are of many forms and sizes. The most intricate and elaborate decoration occurs on the bottles and bowls. The former are nearly all ornamented with incised or carved designs. A few have raised lines which cut the surface into equal strength.

"Bottles range from nearly gallon size to some comparable to the tear bottle of the Orient. Small bottle and bowls so often accompanied the remains of children to suggest, rather definitely that they were toys. Usually the small bottles and bowls are crudely made, but exceptional pieces have perfect symmetry and beautiful intricate designs.

Like Potter's Wheel
"One bowl of rare and interesting type was found on the Russell farm. It was of hemispherical configuration, covered over the whole outside surface with rounded nodes that had been stuck on the surface before firing, and had been four conspicuous, hemispherical, hollow nodules, or knobs, filled with clay pellets. These knobs were placed near the margin and divided the rim into equal segments. Bowls of this type make a pronounced rattle when shaken and probably were covered with skins to form a sort of a tambourine. We later found several, of various sizes at other sites.

"The pipes from the Russell site and nearby were all of clay and all had a shallow, flaring bowl, brought to perfect symmetry inside by turning a bent twig in the bowl. This constitutes probably the nearest approximation to the lathe or potter's wheel found anywhere in America.

"In sites further south the number of pipes increased both in burials and in fragmentary form of village sites. This seemed to indicate an increased practice towards the south of tobacco smoking. It is notable, too, that the pipes of Wood and Anderson counties are often more highly ornamented than those in the more northerly region, where we found several with stems of clay made in one piece with the bowl. These were also discovered in Southwestern Arkansas.

"Earspools occurred at the Russell farm and occasionally throughout the Northeast Texas region. The largest, a pair of symmetrical stone pools from the T. M. Sanders farm on Red River, Lamar County, were about one and one-half inches in diameter and were covered on the exterior side with copper. Copper was found in only one other place, but the two cases prove influence from the far North as there was no known copper in the nearby regions pure enough to be workable by a people who did not know the art of smelting."

"BECAUSE IT'S BETTER"

Merchandise is advertised because it is better --- also, it is better because it is advertised.

That is neither a paradox, nor a wise crack. It is a truism.

Advertising establishes a standard of quality that leads the buyer to expect much, and that impels the maker to measure up to the expectation.

To this extent then, merchandise is advertised not only because it is a better product --- but it actually becomes a still better product because it is advertised.

Consistent advertising is the manufacturer's pledge of quality. It is a visible proof that he has faith enough in his product to back it with his name --- and with his money.

People know instinctively that a product so sponsored is worthy of their confidence. They prefer it, naturally, to its unheralded, unsung competitor.

Advertised goods are sold at a lower price because of the greater demand created through advertising which enables the merchant to enjoy a larger volume of sales and a quicker turnover.

Advertising cannot work miracles. It may sell inferior merchandise for a short time, but it cannot keep on selling it. When you see a store advertising its merchandise by name and price year after year, you know that the store handles reliable merchandise, that its prices are fair, and that its service is competent.

Stores cannot continue to advertise bad bargains, because "advertising doesn't pay" for that kind of merchandise.

Advertising is educational in its influence. It makes it possible for the woman in Canyon or Tuscon or New York to shop with equal confidence, knowing not only what she wants and what it will cost, but what she can expect from it in satisfaction and service.

No time is lost in guessing. The buyer knows from long experience that advertised merchandise must be dependable, or it could not continue to be advertised. You buy with confidence at stores that advertise nationally advertised brands of goods, and you are seldom disappointed.

Our Weekly CHURCH CHAT

W. E. FERRELL
Minister First Christian Church

Theme: "THE CHURCH LOST AND FOUND."

VI. The Church Found.

When the leaders of the "Restoration Movement" declared to the world that "Denominationalism" was a sin and that there should be more emphasis placed upon the Bible and its teaching than on creeds, confessions and church disciplines, there was much confusion. The Bible reveals God's plan for the salvation of mankind and to restore the Church and its program as it was in the beginning, people must learn to distinguish between faith and opinion. There is room for the opinions of men upon any question not answered in the Bible, but there are certain questions answered in the Bible and no man or body of men have the right to enforce their opinions on these questions or subjects, to make their opinions tests of fellowship.

The New Testament sets forth God's desires and plans concerning the salvation of men, and He sent Jesus Christ His Son into the world to make this plan known. His disciples were instructed as to what to do and what not to do, and the Church was organized under the direct leadership of the Holy Spirit, who prompted the Apostles in their words and works. The Church was begun as God desired it and no man or group of men have ever received instructions from God, Christ or the Holy Spirit to make any changes. In the New Testament, Christ is declared to be our prophet, priest and king. As prophet we must listen to Him as the great teacher. As Priest, He makes intercessions for us and we need no earthly priest. As King, He rules over His Kingdom, the Church and His words are law, and all of His subjects must render obedience to Him.

DOROTHY DARNIT

By Charles McManus

The "Restoration Leaders" did not try to found a new church, but they lived and died trying to restore the Church and its program as outlined in the New Testament. A new church was not organized or established but the New Testament Church was restored, the life saving institution with a plan and purpose, in harmony with God's will and desire was rediscovered and offered to the world which was divided on many religious questions. HIGHWAY VIOLATIONS

Constables and Justices of the Peace.

Your Committee found in several Counties of this State that Constables were practicing what was more or less a "racket" in that they preyed upon the traveling public.

The 41st Legislature passed a bill forbidding Constables to collect fees in speeding cases from the defendant, in order to halt the "speed trap" abuses. Subsequently there has sprung up a large number of cases over the State of "speeding and operating on the wrong side of the road," two misdemeanors being charged because fees accrue in the second charge. The arresting officer will lie in wait on the road-side for passing motorists and will follow a motorist who exceeds 45 miles per hour. Then, when the car they are following passes another car on the left and an approaching car is 150 feet or less from them (or so it is claimed), the officer arrests the motorist and informs him that he has been arrested for two violations of the traffic law, one for exceeding the speed limit and the other for passing an automobile when an on-coming car is less than 150 feet away. The offender is told if he will plead guilty to the "operating" charge, the charge for "speeding" will be dropped, thus holding out the promise of a fine in but one case.

Generally, the people arrested are strangers in the County, many of them being women travelling alone, and of course few, if any, are acquainted with the fact that the officer gets his fees only in the "operating" charge. It has been the habit of these officers to collect fines and costs then and there, without the formality of a trial, yet an examination of the costs bill shows that the defendant paid a typical "cost bill" as follows: $2.00 for arrest; $3.00 for summoning four witnesses at 75c each, when no witnesses were summoned $1.00 for being released, when defendant had not been in jail; $1.50 for making bond, when indications are that no bond was made; $4.00 for trial fee, when no trial was had; $5.00 for County Attorney's fees, when the County Attorney did not appear; and $1.00 for the fine, making a total of $17.50.

Selective Test Panhandle Talent to be Soon

Directors of plays, broadcast programs and musical events in Amarillo are planning a "revue" for the purpose of testing semi-professional talent to be found in the Panhandle.

Those coming within the scope of this selection are musicians, readers and actors. The purpose is to be in a position to call on this discovered talent when needed to put over special programs for the bigger events in Amarillo in the future. The tentative date set is March 24th.

Mrs. Carrol Knorp left for Long Beach California Monday evening to visit her mother who is quite ill.

J. W. Noel and Clifford Johnson Hedley bankers, were here Monday on a matter of business.

Father of Mrs. Combest Died Saturday

Mr. Hill, aged 83, passed away Saturday night at 10:30 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. Combest, where he had been making his home for some time.

The deceased was actively engaged in the Baptist ministry for more than forty years. The body was shipped to Sherman where interment was had beside his wife who had passed on several years ago.

Bill Barker of Martin came down Wednesday to see the banks open, saw all three pop open right in his face, and went home to tell his neighbors the country was on the up grade again.

Miss Beatrice Drew of Pampa spent the week end here as a guest of her sister, Mrs. R. Wilkerson.

NOTED WRESTLER WILL CELEBRATE AFTER 37 YEARS

Dutch Mantell to Meet Pat Garrison at Amarillo Thursday Night

By way of celebrating his 37th year as a wrestler, Dutch Mantell will take on the fiery red-headed Pat Garrison in the National Guard Armory, meeting a man some twenty years his junior. Mantell's first ring battle took place in Fremantel, West Australia, March 17, 1896.

All wrestling bouts taking place in Amarillo are under the direct supervision of the doughty warrior who has a wide reputation as a stickler for clean sports and a square deal for all comers.

No man in the Panhandle has done half as much to foster clean athletic sport as has Dutch Mantell. His influence on the wrestling ring permeates all activities of this nature. As a physical condition at this time when men of his age are ordinarily in their dotage, is ample proof that his methods and manner of living are undisputable.

Genial, whole-souled, Dutch Mantell has a smile and welcome for his legion of friends and the same attentions enables him to keep constantly adding to the list. All Amarillo believes in him.

His reputation as a wrestler is not only nation-wide, but world-wide, he having appeared in the rings of every civilized nation on the globe during his experience of thirty-seven years.

were won in typical Mantell fashion.

His photo in this column pictures him at the time he received the appellation of "the Human Gorilla." It is his ring face. Ordinarily, Dutch looks very much like a human being, though he is prouder of his ring face than the natural one, he has worn it more and under far more strenuous circumstances.

Those who like clean sport will fill the Armory at Amarillo Thursday night to see their idol win another victory. The crowd will be made up of men, women and children from many places in the Panhandle. To be dubbed the "King of Luxemburg" is an honor, but to be crowned the "Czar of Matdom" of the great Panhandle of Texas, is a distinction that has come to only one man—Dutch Mantell of Amarillo.

Mrs. G. L. Heatherly Dies Wednesday Night

The Leader joins the many friends of the family in offering sincere sympathy.

Rotarians Change Meeting Date to Wednesday

At their luncheon hour Friday, the Rotary club unanimously voted to change their luncheon day to Wednesday noon of each week.

D. R. Davis had charge of the program Wednesday. Dr. J. W. Evans summed up his impressions on several lines in a round-table discussion. Rev. Ferrell explained why people attended church more in some places during a depression.

Arch Dyer, manager of a cafe and bakery, was of the opinion that a lot of people lost their appetites during the bank holiday. J. C. Estlack summed up the present status of world affairs, and more particularly those affecting conditions locally.

Miss Rhoda Wiedman announced that she would present the program on the 5th Wednesday of the month. Judge Cole will have charge of the program next Wednesday.

Miss Eudora Hawkins, an employee of the Home Service division of the West Texas Utilities company with headquarters at Abilene, was here this week furthering the interests of her company.

Donley County Boy Works Way Through College

Graduating from the Hedley high school at the age of fifteen is but one of the many commendable feats accomplished by Bob Reed of the Naylor community. Hitch-hiking to Mena, Arkansas last year, the lad enrolled as a student in Commonwealth College of that city.

Limited as to means, he sought a job by which he could earn his way. He found it in the position as night watchman. Winding up the half term last year, he again enrolled this present term, under more favorable circumstances. He now has a place as caretaker of cows and poultry. He was awarded a scholarship for having made the best average grades the previous year.

Though dressed in the regulation uniform of blue denim shirt and overalls, Bob is a journalism student. In fact he has an excellent article in the Commonwealth College Fortnightly, the college publication, in the issue of March 1st. The Leader will print this article next week that his friends and well-wishers back here in old Donley county may enjoy his measure of success in his chosen profession.

Bob is a son of Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Reed of the Naylor community and those parents have something to be proud of in a worth-while son who uses every obstacle overcome, as a club with which to beat down the next.
