College addresses funding cutbacks

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Western Texas College officials are now taking budget-reducing steps in anticipation of an expected recall of state-provided monies during 1987.

According to Dr. Harry Krenek, acting chief executive officer at WTC, the current projection among community college leaders statewide is that the Texas legislature will ask two-year schools to return from 13 to 20 percent of state-allocated dollars.

This would come when the legislature meets beginning next January for its spring session.

The reason for the expected recall is the downward spiral of oil prices, which have recently prompted state officials to call for immediate 13 percent reductions in all state agency budgets.

Included in these are the budgets of state-funded four-year colleges and universities. Junior colleges, which are in part funded by state dollars over a two-year period, are not under the directive.

The current two-year funding cycle for schools like WTC includes the 1986-87 college year.

"Since a recall of state funds requires the legislature to be in session, we're confident all the state money pledged this year won't be affected," Krenek said.

"But we're now told to expect the legislature will ask for a return of state money when it meets next January. The bottom line is we feel like we'll have less from the state for next year's budget."

Krenek added that most junior college officials are viewing the cutbacks as "a short economic crisis" for Texas and its institutions of higher learning.

"Most people are looking at this as a short term thing, that the economic situation will be better in a year or two," he said.

In line with this, WTC's current planning is a combination of holding the line on spending and a wait and see attitude regarding the future.

"We're not planning anything like staff reductions or cutting our programs," Krenek said. "By the same token, we're not looking at additions in either area."

Regarding personnel, he said the current plan is to not fill any college positions that come vacant unless it is a key post which must be replaced.

"For the short term, we're going to ask our staff to assume a heavier work load when vacancies occur," he said.

This may include some college staffers currently not in the classroom assuming teacher roles.

While there are no salary or benefit reductions planned, pay raises during the 1986-87 budget year are not expected, he said.

The college is also considering other budget-reducing steps, to include reductions in staff travel and an earlier switch to a four-day work week this summer to cut utility costs.

The current projection for reduced state dollars to WTC is some $400,000, Krenek said, although admitting an exact

Drug arrests continue

Seven more defendants were arrested Friday for alleged drug trafficing in Scurry County.

Two Odessa men and one Lubbock man were included in Friday's arrests, bringing the number of individuals jailed since Thursday to 26.

In a called session Thursday, a Scurry County grand jury indicted 27 individuals on 50 felony counts. Only one of these suspects remained at large Saturday morning.

The indictments and arrests followed a four-month undercover investigation conducted by the Scurry County sheriff's office and Snyder police.

All 26 defendants are charged with felony offenses alleging delivery of marijuana or other controlled substances during a period from Nov. 8, 1985 through March 8.

Bonds for all defendants have been set at $15,000 on each count.

Suspects jailed Friday were:

—Tommy Sanders, age and address unknown — arrested by Eastland County authorities in that city.

—Steve Bearor, 25, of Odessa — two counts, delivery of marijuana.

Students rehearse one-act

Snyder High School theatre students will give up a portion of their spring break this week as they rehearse for UIL one-act play contests which begin here April 1.

Theatre instructor Jerry Worsham has selected Robert Bolt's "A Man for All Seasons" as the 1986 production.

Brad Vincent will be featured in the title role of Sir Thomas More with Shannon Lunsford cast as his wife Lady Alice and Missy McIntire playing his daughter Lady Margaret.

Set in England during the reign of Henry VIII, the historical drama traces the life of More — scholar, cleric and advisor to the king — through the political and religious upheaval of the time.

Offering commentary throughout the play will be a "common man" character, portrayed by John Hamlett.

Others cast in major roles include Robert Patterson as King Henry the Eighth, Patrick Malone as Thomas Cromwell, Richard Lack as Master Richard Rich, and Kyle Hawes as the Private schoolers pledge resistance

By VICKI BROWN
SDN Staff Writer

A group of county parents are preparing for a court battle against the Texas Education Agency (TEA) and the Texas Board of Education — a battle they say they plan to wage to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

At issue are proposed guidelines governing private and parochial schools which would require private schools to teach "essential elements" now included in public school curriculum.

Opponents of the concept say this would, in effect, force parents currently teaching their children at home to place them in an accredited school system.

One of these opponents is Rev. Mike Brown, co-pastor of Bible Way Baptist Fellowship and supervisor of Bible Way Academy here.

"Our school exists because we don't agree with the basic tenents of public school education," he said.

Bible Way Academy opened with the 1986-87 public school year and is currently the only private school for school-age youngsters in Snyder. The academy has some 33 students representing about 16 local families with hopes of increasing to 60 students next year.

"This is really not an issue of curriculum," Brown said. "Nor is it an issue of quality. Studies show that students in private schools have consistently higher test scores. It is an issue of parental rights."

Another opponent of the plan is Ann Nita Taylor, a member of a group of county parents who offer schooling in the home for their children.

Taylor, a member of the Abilene-based Parents for Choice in Education, believes that parents have the right to educate their children. "Scripturally it's the parent's responsibility no matter where (the child) is receiving that education. It is his responsibility to see that the child is educated."

Taylor said because home schooling is "a very private matter," she is uncertain about the number of local families which would be directly affected by the proposal. "There are five families here that I know of personally," she said. "However there are quite a few in the surrounding area. I know that there are at least 100 in Abilene, 45 or 50 in Lubbock, some in Midland-Odessa, Coahoma, Big Spring and other towns around here."

For Taylor, the issue centers on control. "It's not whether the children are being educated. The issue is whether they are being educated the way the state wants the child to be educated."

For the pair, religious beliefs also weigh heavily in the controversy. "This is a biblical issue, not just a moral issue. We intend to stand against it," Brown added.

"I'm not saying that in the name of religion we ought to be able to do anything. But my children are God's gift to me not to the state of Texas. I should have the right to educate my children.

"The real issue is that they want people to think that Christian educators are religious fanatics who want to destroy their children's minds. That is an archaic attitude. People with

The SDN Column By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If Paul Volker and his cigar resigns, what will the Federal Reserve use as a smoke screen?"

We really had refused to get upset about the state of the economy until two separate news stories ran last week.

One story said the government will introduce new money with a polyester fiber. The idea, the feds say, is to make it more difficult to copy the bills with the new generation of high-precision color copiers.

There has been concern about the health of the dollar for some time, but "polyester" money just doesn't have that ring of confidence that we expect in our currency.

Everytime we think of polyester, we think about those years in the mid-1970s when double-knit polyester pants and coats were popular.

We tried to put those sports coats in a garage sale one year. Not only did they not sell, nobody would even steal 'em.

The next item was of even more concern—the elimination of a childhood tradition. If you thought the elimination of the orginal Coke formula was bad—think about the two-stick Popsicle which appears to be on its way to oblivion.

In May, Popsicle Industries plans to take its two-stick Popsicle from grocery scores and replace them with a fatter, one-stick treat.

The company figures the reason for the two-stick model in this properous age is almost forgotten. Unlike Coke, the company will continue to offer the two-stick item in amusement parks and convenience stores—which account for only 20 percent of sales.

The original reason for the two-stick treat was that during the depression, you could buy it for a nickel and share half with a friend or playmate.

Modern mothers, despite a price just under 50 cents, find the two-stick model messy since it often melts and falls apart.

The real issue as we see it are those youngsters who use the sticks to build forts and other models for school projects. Now junior will have to buy twice as many Popsicles to complete a project.

Maybe Ross Perot bought some Popsicle stock...

3 suspects offer pleas

Three defendants were sentenced after entering guilty pleas in 132nd District Court last week.

Jackie Moody of 2011 Ave. O was given a three-year prison term in exchange for her guilty plea to a felony charge of forgery.

She was indicted for that offense in February.

Drawing a seven-year probated prison term for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle was Darrin Keith Sherman of Dallas.

Sherman was indicted in February for taking a car owned by Margaret Kruger of Snyder from the parking lot of Cogdell Memorial Hospital Jan. 25.

Sentenced to 180 days in the Scurry County Jail was 51-year-old Manuel Sanchez of the Old

Operator is fined

DALLAS (AP) — Jurors ordered a Dallas man Friday to pay $86,000 in fines and attorney's fees for selling a weed killer as a weight reducer, Attorney General Jim Mattox announced.

Jurors found that Nicholas Bachynsky sold dinitrophenol, a herbicide, to his patients. The jury also ruled that Bachynsky failed to tell patients that the chemical was highly toxic and not approved by federal officials.

Patients paid about $1,000 each for the treatment, according to the deceptive trade practice lawsuit filed by Mattox against Bachynsky.

Bachynsky operated clinics in Houston, Dallas and San Antonio.

The jury ordered him to pay $27,600 in fines and $58,436 in attorney's fees for the state.

No. 2 man at fed resigning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preston Martin is resigning as vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, saying he wasn't offered the No. 1 job and doesn't want to spend four more years as second-in-command.

"I'm not tired of the Fed. This is one of the most exciting crisis-management centers on the planet. But my term is up," the outspoken and often-controversial Martin told a news conference on Friday.

Martin's term as a board member runs until 1996. But his term as vice chairman expires on March 30. In a letter to President Reagan, Martin said he would leave at the end of April, calling his decision to step down "a very personal one."

Martin, 61, the longest-serving of four Reagan appointees on the seven-member board, had been viewed as a possible successor to chairman Paul Volcker.

Martin, who frequently clashed with Volcker, declined to comment on widely circulated reports that he was resigning because President Reagan had decided against giving him the top seat on the board — a post he reportedly actively sought.

"I see no reason to pursue that line of hypothetical questioning. ... There is no vacancy," Martin said. Volcker's chairmanship runs through August 1987.

"The opportunity (to succeed Volcker) was not offered and therefore I did not have to confront that question," Martin said when asked whether he would have stayed on had Reagan promised him the top slot.

However, Martin added: "I'm resigning because my term as vice chairman expires in about 10 days and it is not part of my personal objectives to serve another four years as vice chairman."

Volcker, in a statement issued late Friday, praised Martin for playing a "leadership role in many aspects" of the board's work.

"He is a man of strong and independent views as befits the board," Volcker said. "His contributions will be missed, but we are glad he will be available for counsel in the future."

Martin said he planned to return to San Francisco. "I don't have specific plans," Martin said, noting that he expected to return to the "financial services world."

Martin's resignation comes just days after disclosures that Martin and Reagan's three other appointees on the Fed outvoted Volcker in a February 24 decision to lower the Fed's discount rate from 7.5 percent to 7.0 percent, the key fee the Fed charges for loans to financial insitutions. It was the first time Volcker had been defeated in his seven years as chairman.

However, Martin denied that recent turmoil on the board had anything to do with his decision.

Federal deficit at $24 billion

By The Associated Press

The federal budget deficit swelled to $24.58 billion last month from January's $6.49 billion shortfall.

The nearly four-fold increase in February carried the deficit for the first five months of the 1986 fiscal year about 5.7 percent past the point it had reached in the same 1985 period.

Despite the expanding pool of red ink, the Reagan administration predicts the deficit for the full year will be $202.79 billion, or 4.5 percent smaller than the record $212.3 billion shortfall in the year that ended Sept. 30.

The administration's estimate is based partly on $11.7 billion in budget cuts that went into effect March 1.

Those cuts were required under the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law and were allowed to go into effect even though the Supreme Court is reviewing whether a crucial section of the law is constitutional. The Gramm-Rudman act, passed by Congress last year, requires that deficits be trimmed annually until the budget is in balance in 1991.

On Wall Street, meanwhile, the stock market's best known indicator on Friday took its fourth-largest dive in busy trading.

Federal judge seals jury verdict

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has sealed a jury's verdict in a lawsuit brought by the mother of a child who was injured in a handgun accident.

The verdict was returned Thursday afternoon in a suit seeking at least $8.8 million from the makers and distributors of the gun that left a 10-year-old Odessa boy paralyzed.

Jurors were to have decided whether the bullet that left Eric Hogan paralyzed on Feb. 26, 1983, was fired from a handgun of dangerous design or whether the boy's uncle was at fault.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton ordered the verdict sealed.

Law clerk Robert Perez told the Associated Press the judge was out of town Friday and could not be reached for comment.

Odessa lawyer Jack Tidwell, who represents Outdoor Sports Headquarters of Ohio, said Bunton indicated he would unseal the verdict next week. The jury deliberated just 30 minutes and defendants were confident of a victory, Tidwell said.

Attorneys for the child's mother, 31-year-old Korla Anderegg of Odessa, contended that the gun's design was flawed.

The gun's manufacturer, now-defunct High Standard of Connecticut, and distributor, Outdoor Sports, were named in the suit.

"This gun can't be disarmed without exposing others to injury," Windle Turley, Anderegg's attorney told jurors.

Testimony showed that the gun was purchased by Hogan's uncle, Clare Anderegg. He had just cleaned and loaded the gun when it discharged, according to testimony.

"Eric is really a bit of a prisoner," Turley told jurors. "He is attached to his stroller, soon to be confined to a wheelchair. That will be his world," he said.

But Tidwell and Dallas attorney Peter Ferraro, who represents High Standard, argued that poor handling by the boy's uncle caused the weapon to fire unexpectedly.

Aquino officials get inventory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Philippine government of Corazon Aquino has another piece of the puzzle it needs to track and perhaps retrieve the possibly ill-gotten wealth of former President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

The State Department announced Friday that it turned over to the Philippines an inventory of the jewels, cash and other items contained in 300 crates that Marcos and his associates took with them after the downfall of their government.

The list was provided "under the same bilateral agreements" that governed the earlier release to the Aquino government of more than 2,000 pages of documents tracing Marcos' wealth, said the State Department statement.

"We do not plan to release a copy of the inventory to the public," it added.

Marcos took the more than 2,000 pages of documents with him when he left the country. They were released publicly Thursday by U.S. Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Asian and Pacific affairs.

Attorneys for the Philippine government have charged that "official files and records, national treasures and artwork" may have been aboard the two planes carrying the Marcos party from the Philippines to Hawaii and that the items may have been misappropriated by Marcos and his associates.

Marcos and his party carried 300 crates containing cash, jewels, documents and other items from Manila. Twenty-two of the crates contain Philippine pesos valued at an estimated $1.2 million. The goods are being held by the U.S. Customs Service.

Ownership of the inventoried property is the focus of a court struggle in Hawaii between Marcos and the new Philippine government.

The list, compiled by the U.S. Customs Service, was turned over after a 45-minute meeting earlier in the day at the Justice Department where Philippine Sen. Jovito Salonga met with Assistant Attorney General Stephen S. Trott, head of the criminal division.

Salonga is head of the commission appointed by Aquino to investigate Marcos' holdings.

Salonga and Trott said the two governments had agreed to cooperate in various criminal investigations of Marcos' wealth now under way in the United States and the Philippines.

The investigations in both countries on a wide range of topics pertaining to the former Marcos government include federal grand jury probes in Alexandria, Va., and Pittsburgh.

Funds should help

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Friday that receipt of $416 million in offshore oil royalties, rentals and interest payments, along with state spending cuts requested by Gov. Mark White, offers hope for balancing the budget.

Hobby noted that Congress on Thursday had approved the payments, as well as an additional $134 million over the next 15 years, to settle the federal-state dispute over offshore revenue.

"This money, combined with Gov. Mark White's effort to trim spending this year, may give us hope of balancing the budget next year.

Convicted duo given terms

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge handed down prison terms Friday for two former city policemen convicted of civil rights violations for a 1983 shooting that left a motorist with severe brain damage.

Former officer Kendall R. Patterson, 24, was given a seven-year prison term and fined $6,000, and former Sgt. William Brasher, 35, was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $5,500.

"I cannot comply with the oath I've taken without sentencing you both to substantial sentences," said U.S. District Judge Norman Black in rejecting pleas for restitution and probation.

Several weeks ago, a federal jury convicted the two men of civil rights violations. Prosecutors said Patterson "lost his temper," shot the motorist and then tried to cover up the shooting by concocting a story with Brasher's help, who then was his sergeant.

The motorist, William Henry Pressey, 32, is permanently disabled from the gunshot, which struck him in the forehead at near point-blank range.

Both officers were fired from the Houston Police Department.

Brasher received probation for a state perjury conviction in connection with the shooting, and Patterson was found innocent of attempted murder by a state court jury.

The shooting occurred Oct. 14, 1983, while Patterson was directing traffic around an accident. Testimony indicated Pressey may have gotten into a quarrel with Patterson while attempting to drive through the intersection, and within seconds, the man had been shot.

Patterson has said he fired at Pressey because he thought the man was trying to run over Brasher with the truck, and denied a coverup.

Poet's El Paso hearing tackles thorny issues

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The stiletto heels and sprayed hairdos of the government attorneys stood in stark contrast with the poet's peasant leather sandals, cotton dresses and graying long hair wrapped loosely in a bun.

The diverse styles symbolized two camps engaged in bitter war and constant sniping during the intense, four-day deportation hearing of Margaret Randall.

Sitting at her attorneys' table on the left side of the federal courtroom was Ms. Randall — writer of more than 40 books on women and Third World countries and current cause celebre in intellectual circles — who gave up her U.S. citizenship and became a Mexican in 1967.

After 23 years abroad — eight in Mexico, 11 in Cuba and four in Nicaragua — Ms. Randall, 49, wants to live in the United States. She wants to settle in Albuquerque, N. M., her home town, where her parents have built her a house next door to theirs on the foothills of the Sandia Mountains and where she has taught women's and American studies at the University of New Mexico since arriving from Managua in early 1984.

Government attorneys suggested the citizenship change was a political statement from a woman whose strong criticism of American foreign policy and support of revolutions in Cuba and Nicaragua and the Communist victory in Vietnam have become the focal issue in her struggle for permanent residency.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service lawyers, occupying the polished wood table on the right, made it clear they want her out of the country.

During four grueling days last week, the two sides produced hundreds of pages of evidence, repeatedly questioned Ms. Randall on her political beliefs and excerpts from her writings, put 10 witnesses on the stand and snapped at each other often enough that U.S. Immigration Judge Martin F. Spiegel had to deliver an angry lecture on professionalism.

Through the proceedings, lead defense attorney Michael Maggio of Washington, D.C., and co-counsels David Cole and Michael Ratner, both of the New York-based Center for Constitutional Rights, guided witnesses through lengthy testimony.

For the government were chief INS attorney Guadalupe Gonzalez and co-counsel Penny Smith.

The hearing, scheduled in a large federal courtroom to accommodate a crowd of journalists and Randall supporters, began Monday.

Spiegel decided Ms. Randall had knowingly given up her citizenship and was deportable.

He must now decide whether she should be deported, but he gave no indication when he would rule.

The defense centered on three points. One, Ms. Randall has never been a communist, which would make her deportable under the McCarran-Walter Act of 1952. Two, even if she sympathized with leftist governments, the First Amendment protects her right to free speech. Three, her numerous family ties in the United States go to the heart of the Immigration Act, which President Reagan has told Soviet leader Mikahil Gorbachev centers on family reunification, her attorneys pointed out.

"The government's case is that Margaret Randall over a period of 20 years has espoused the economic, international and governmental doctrines of world communism," Ms. Gonzalez told Spiegel in closing arguments Thursday (March 21).

"The earmark of her writings is an utter disdain for capitalism," she added. "Randall is an admitted Marxist."

Spiegel pointed out that family ties are important in the case. Ms. Randall's husband, poet Floyce Alexander, has filed documents asking for his wife's residency. The two, who have known each other since the mid-1960s, separated last April after a one-year marriage.

Ms. Randall's son, Gregory, who is an American citizen, will be filing similar documents for his mother, her attorneys said. Her youngest daughter, Ana, is claiming U.S. citizenship through her father, Robert Cohen of New York.

Under the McCarran-Walter Act, the INS can exclude from the United States foreigners who have been associated with communist or anarchist organizations. Many of Ms. Randall's supporters wore buttons saying "Keep Randall; Deport McCarran-Walter."

Poet Adrienne Rich, walking with the aid of a cane, testified as an expert witness, calling Ms. Randall's works "invaluable and indispensable" and saying the language she used in criticizing U.S. policy during the 1960s and early 70s was mild compared to others who wrote at the time.

"I'm embarrassed and shocked," Ms. Rich told a reporter during a recess. "Before I came here, I didn't expect it would be on this level at all ... I have to keep reminding myself they work for the government and they have to toe a certain line."

Author Norman Mailer, as president of PEN American Center, a writers' organization, wrote Spiegel urging him to grant Ms. Randall residency. Miller and other well-known writers, including Alice Walker, Kurt Vonnegut and Arthur Miller, sued on behalf of Ms. Randall, challenging the constitutionality of the McCarran-Walter Act. The suit, filed last October in federal district court in Washington, D.C., is pending.

League writes off Democrat debate

AUSTIN (AP) — The League of Women Voters of Texas said Friday the group has given up trying to arrange a statewide television debate among Democratic gubernatorial candidates.

"The league has been unable to secure and coordinate dates and air time for the program," said Modelle Brudner, speaking for the league.

On Thursday, Andrew Briscoe, a Democratic gubernatorial candidate, challenged Gov. Mark White again to a debate. Briscoe said a Houston firm had offered to carry the broadcast and he named eight "alternate" dates in April when he would be free to debate White.

White's campaign office said they had heard nothing from Briscoe.

Earlier, White named a date in March and another in April but the league said it was unable to set up a statewide debate involving all candidates on either of the dates.

The league is sponsor of a statewide debate by Republican gubernatorial candidates on April 14, originating from KHOU-TV, Houston.

Same frustrations

PARIS (AP) — France's new conservative leaders are expected to emphasize fighting terrorism as much as changing the economy at their first meeting Saturday, but they may face the same frustration that dogged their leftist predecessors.

Three policemen are killed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A grenade exploded while police were deactivating it in the statehouse of the Pacific coast state of Guerrero, killing three officers and wounding six others, newspapers reported Friday.

State chief of staff Angel Aguirre Rivero, in a press conference, gave no indication of where the grenade was found or why state police brought it into their basement headquarters Thursday afternoon in the capital city of Chilpancingo.

Mexico City newspapers quoted witnesses as saying Pedro Morales Parra, second in command of the Guerrero state police, was killed along with two other officers who were assisting him. The explosion occurred when Morales Parra pulled the pin on the grenade, Aguirre Rivero said.

The injured men, who were watching the operation, included the assistant state police director and the unit's chief commander, Aguirre Rivero said.

Authorities discounted the possibility of terrorist involvement "because that happens in dictatorial governments, and Guerrero's is a government of dialogue," Aguirre Rivero was quoted as saying by the Mexico City daily El Universal.

Government offices were closed throughout Mexico on Friday because of a national holiday and further details of the explosion were unavailable.

Alfonso Nery, secretary general of the city government in Chilpancingo, located 234 miles west of Mexico City, told The Associated Press he could add nothing to newspaper reports but that the investigation was continuing.

Friends praise Fitzwater

DALLAS (AP) — A 32-year-old Baylor Law School graduate who will be sworn in next month as the youngest federal judge in the United States is competent, organized and "squeaky clean," friends and associates said.

Sidney A. Fitzwater, while an undergraduate and later a law student at Baylor in the early 1970s, coined his own curse words rather than resort to the more common variety.

"He called them his 'Baylor oaths,'" said Neal T. "Buddy" Jones, a close friend of Fitzwater's since law school who described Fitzwater as "squeaky clean."

Fitzwater said that he is a basic "straight arrow" who does not smoke or drink.

In college, he was "one of those guys who made his bed every morning," Jones told the Dallas Morning News. "In his closet, everything is in order. He labels his hangars. They'll say 'green slacks' or 'No. 1 white button-down shirt.'

"I thought he was colorblind," said Jones. "But he said, 'I just want to make sure I don't lose a shirt at the cleaners."

Now 10 years out of law school, the veteran of six years of corporate law practice and another four on the bench of Texas' 298th District Court in Dallas said he no longer does his own laundry or labels his hangars.

But Fitzwater said he does own five business suits, one for each day of the work week.

"My basic nature is to be organized," said Fitzwater.

His law professors at Baylor, where he earned his law degree in just two years, remember him as a "hot-shot" student with "exceptional ability."

Morris Harrell, a founding partner in the Dallas law firm of Rain, Harrell, Emery, Young & Doke, said Fitzwater is a "real star."

"I hated to lose him," Harrell said, adding the judge worked for four years before his appointment to the state bench in 1982.

Practicing members of the Dallas Bar Association said they believe Fitzwater is among the best jurists is the business.

Dallas lawyers in November 1983 gave Fitzwater the highest performance rating of any judge in the country. And 97 percent of those participating in the survey said they approved of his performance.

Fitzwater's overall approval rating in the bar survey last November was 96 percent.

"He's a very good judge, there's no question about it," said state District Judge Ed Kinkeade.

Two locals predict school issue fight

children in Christian education want to have the right to make that choice. That's the issue," he said.

Taylor expressed concern that under the proposed guidelines Christian schools will be forced to teach material inconsistent with their values. "The Supreme Court has already ruled that it is illegal to teach Christianity, not religion, in the schools," she said.

As proposed, the rules will require that private schools that teach elementary grades must provide basic skills instruction and a curriculum that is comparable to the essential elements of curriculum taught in public school systems.

Secondary level classes must also include the proper course sequencing and the essential elements required in similar subjects at public schools.

Taylor noted that the "essential elements" defined by state law are "broken down by subject and by grade level. They define exactly what must be taught at each level."

Dave Haigler, an Abilene attorney acting as legal advisor to the parents group, noted his clients have expressed "a number of concerns about essential elements and comparability. The rules don't allow for better curriculum, just comparable curriculum. I don't want some bureaucrat to have the sole responsibility of determining just what 'comparable' means for my clients."

Haigler added, "This is a matter of quality of education, not just a matter of religious liberty."

Other requirements included in the proposal are that the school's curriculum include a study of good citizenship, that its professional staff members possess at least a BA degree from an accredited college or university, that teachers have daily contact with students, that facilities meet local and state health, safety, fire and sanitation requirements, and that school days and the school year comply with state law.

Brown and Taylor plan to attend a public hearing before the State Board of Education set for April 10 in Austin.

Obituaries

Lonnie Rollins

Services for Lonnie Rollins, 74, of Snyder Oaks are set for 4 p.m. Saturday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Chapel with the Rev. Jerry Spears of Breckenridge, former Snyder pastor, officiating. Burial will follow at Hillside Memorial Gardens under direction of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

He died at 5:05 a.m. Friday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. He was born July 18, 1911 in Breckenridge.

He was a farmer and lifetime Snyder resident. He married Lena Bryan October, 1930 in Cushing, Okla. She died April 6, 1975.

He is survived by two daughters, Bobbie Beutelschies of Ft. Worth, Juanel Ruggiero of Weatherford; three sons, Harvey Rollins of Uvalde, Billy Rollins of San Antonio, Thomas Darling Jr. of Camarreo, Calif.; 10 grandchildren; several great-grandchildren; two brothers, Jim Rollins of Peacock and Raymond Rollins of San Angelo; two half-brothers, Garland Rollins and Bub Rollins, both of Plainview.

Pallbearers will be Ricky Glasscock, Eddie Rollins, Chris Rollins, Mike Rollins, Greg Rollins, and Steve Rollins.

Benny Davis

Services for Benny Davis, 33, of 2906 34th were to be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Chapel with the Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, officiating. Burial was to follow at Hillside Memorial Gardens under the direction of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

He died Friday at his home. He was born Sept. 27, 1952 in Sweetwater.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. "Doc" Davis of Snyder; a brother, David Hilton Davis of Abilene; two nephews, Jason Davis of Haskell and Jeff Davis of Abilene.

Pallbearers were to be Bryan Brooks, Charles McCartney, Richard Dupree, Ricky Freeman, Bill Devers, and Jimmy Walker.

Obit photos encouraged

The Snyder Daily News encourages family members to provide photographs when possible to accompany obituaries printed in the newspaper.

These may be turned in at the newspaper office or with Bell-Cypert-Seale representatives.

Such photographs may be picked up at the news office the day following publication.

Local schools set spring round-up

The Snyder Public Schools will be holding their annual spring round-up on April 15-17 for children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall.

Parents are urged to check and update, if necessary, their child's immunization records and to get a valid birth certificate prior to registration.

The required immunizations are as follows: polio, minimum of three doses, one shot after 4th birthday; DPT, minimum of three doses, one after 4th birthday; measles (rubeola), rubella and mumps, one dose each after first birthday.

Immunizations are given free of charge at the Scurry County Health Unit each Tuesday.

A valid birth certificate is one issued by the State of Texas or by the county clerk in the county where the child was born. Many times a hospital document or baptismal record is thought to be a valid birth certificate because they look official; however, these are not acceptable according to the Texas Education Code. You may obtain this certificate of birth by calling or writing the county clerk's office where the child was born and requesting one. There is a small fee for issuing the certificate.

Children who did not attend public school kindergarten but will reach six years of age on or bfore Sept. 1 should also preregister for first grade at this time.

The following schedule will be observed: Northeast and Central, April 15; East and North, April 16 and West and Stanfield, April 17.

Additional information will be published prior to the round- up. If there are any questions, call Mrs. Bobbie Box, student development coordinator, Snyder Public Schools at 573-9364 or the principal at the school in the child's attendance area.

DPS reports minor wreck

Snyder-based highway patrolmen investigated a minor two-vehicle traffic mishap west of Snyder Friday morning.

Involved in the 10:30 a.m. collision — at the intersection of Farm Roads 1607 and 1609 some 8 miles west of Snyder — were a 1982 Lincoln driven by Joe Cubine of Abilene and a 1984 Ford driven by Tommy Glenn Green of Snyder.

Shoplifting charges filed

Police logged six misdemeanor arrests Friday including three suspected shoplifters at Kmart.

The first of those arrests came at 2:46 p.m. when store employees called police and reported having a female juvenile suspect in custody.

Officers were called back to the store at 4:03 p.m. and took into custody a 29-year-old woman and a female juvenile.

Both juveniles were released to the custody of their parents.

In other action, officers jailed two men for public intoxication and one for disorderly conduct Friday night.

"For next year, we can absord a $400,000 loss," he said. "Because of this, I don't think you'll see us having to cutback on the programs we offer."

And if the economic outlook hasn't improved by this time next year, he said, "Then we'll have to rethink where we're at."

Motorist hits bank structure

An outside structure at American State Bank was struck by a motorist Friday causing minor damage to it.

The involved vehicle was a 1984 Ford driven by Courtney Travis Gothard of Mertzon.

The mishap was reported to police at 11:15 a.m. and was one of three minor accidents reported during the day.

Involved in the first — at 6:40 a.m. in the 3800 Block of College Ave. — were a 1984 Dodge driven by Earl Abercrombie of 2602 35th St. and a 1985 Dodge driven by George Glen Stephens of Snyder.

Friday's final accident occurred at 12:01 p.m. in the 4200 Block of College Ave.

Involved in it were a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Ruben Pesina of 2111 Ave. X and a 1982 Ford driven by Joe Ellington of 2217 40th St.

Services set all week here

Miller Robinson, president of the alliance and pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, noted that lunch will be served following each service. "These services will be brief and the participants can easily attend during their lunch hour."

A breakfast meeting is set Friday in the First United Methodist Church's Odom Chapel. The service will begin at 7 a.m. with breakfast to be served in the church's fellowship hall at 7:30 a.m.

Cleveland State bows out...

Duke, Kansas advance in NCAA tournament

by The Associated Press

Top-ranked Duke and second-ranked Kansas moved a step away from a trip to the Final Four Friday night, but the Jayhawks did it only by surviving a major scare, overcoming a six-point deficit in the final 1:08 to beat unranked Michigan State 96-86 in overtime.

Duke, which beat DePaul 74-67, will take on Navy, which ousted upstart Cleveland State 71-70 on David Robinson's five-foot jumper with six seconds left, in the East Regional final on Sunday.

Kansas, which got eight points in overtime from Calvin Thompson after Ron Kellogg and Danny Manning fouled out in regulation, will play North Carolina State. The Wolfpack beat Iowa State 70-66 as it continued on a run similar to its surprise trip to the 1983 national championship.

The Jayhawks' win in Kansas City was marred by two controversies in the final minutes involving the game clock.

The first time, with 2:20 left and Michigan State leading by four points, the clock didn't move while Kansas had the ball, starting only after Kellogg scored to cut the deficit to two. The second time, with 19 seconds left, it continued to run after the Spartans' Mark Brown was fouled, going down to one second while play was stopped.

The clock was reset the second time, but it was not reset the first time.

Johnny Dawkins had 25 points and Mark Alarie 22 to lead Duke to its win over DePaul. The Blue Devils broke a 28-28 tie late in the first half and never trailed after that.

Robinson overcame a sluggish start in Navy's win. He had three fouls and just five points in the first half, which ended with the Midshipmen leading 39-30.

But the 6-foot-11 Navy center, who decided to remain at Annapolis last year instead of opting for a school where he could graduate into a million-dollar contract in the NBA, had 17 points in the second half as Navy stood off a Cleveland State surge that put them ahead for most of the last eight minutes.

"With about five minutes to go, I said somebody had better take charge," Robinson said. "That's when I turned it on."

Robinson's stuff cut it to 68-67 with 2:25 remaining and Vernon Butler scored on a drive with 1:15 to go to give Navy a 69-68 lead. Clinton Smith gave the Vikings a 70-69 lead with 27 seconds left before Robinson's winning jumper.

Navy Coach Paul Evans said he spoke to Robinson with about nine minutes to go and told him he hadn't picked up his fourth personal foul yet and to be more aggressive.

"I was getting banged around pretty good," said Robinson, who was double- and triple-teamed all game. "I looked at the scoreboard with about five minutes and it looked like we can lose this. We had a chance to take them out but didn't and were complacent in the second half."

"I salute him," Cleveland State Coach Kevin Mackey said of Robinson. "He's a great example to the youth of this country. That's a superb gentleman."

At Kansas City, 6-11 Chris Washburn had 20 points and 6-10 Charles Shackleford had 22 as North Carolina State used its size advantage to beat Iowa State.

Washburn scored 16 points as the Wolfpack took a 40-29 halftime lead before Jeff Grayer and Sam Hill sparked a 14-4 Cyclones run at the outset of the second half that sliced North Carolina State's lead to 44-43.

Iowa State pulled even briefly at 47-47, but Ernie Myers, who finished with 16 points, helped North Carolina State break the Iowa State momentum and regain control midway through the second half.

"I think the big guy played his best offensive game of the year," Wolpack Coach Jim Valvano said of Washburn.

Odessa makes NJCAA finals

SENATOBIA, Miss. (AP) - Northeast Mississippi and Odessa (Texas) College were to meet Saturday for the national championship in the National Junior College Women's basketball tournament.

Northeast Missisippi advanced to the finals Friday by defeating John Logan of Illinois 76-53 here. Odessa made the final game by defeating Florida Junior College of Jacksonville 99-80.

The final game will mark the first time that an undefeated team has won the national championship.

Northeast, 30-0, and Odessa, 35-0, were to clash at 8 p.m. Saturday for the championship trophy.

For Odessa, Doreatha Conwell led the team with 30 points and Renay Daugherty contributed 25, Erda Ware 14 and Patricia Purvey 11 points.

Lisa Jones led Florida with 23 points. HeaJu Moon added 18 and Val Avant tossed in 16 points.

Ohio State rips BYU; ousted coach happy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Ohio State basketball Coach Eldon Miller knows his team's failure to make the NCAA tournament this season played a part in his dismissal as the Buckeyes' mentor.

But Miller is excited about reaching the Final Four in the National Invitation Tournament, a feat made possible by the Buckeyes' 79-68 victory over Brigham Young Friday night.

"The NCAA is more prestigious, but the people in the NIT will tell you we've got a pretty good tournament going," Miller said after his final appearance at St. John Arena.

Ohio State, 17-14, will face Louisiana Tech in a semifinal game at New York's Madison Square Garden Monday night. Wyoming meets Florida in the other semifinal. The winners will play Wednesday for the championship.

Tigers edge Permian in eight innings, 10-9

ODESSA -- Jimmy Hunter rapped a two-out single in the top of the eighth inning here Friday, scoring teammates Mike McWilliams and Michael Long to propell Snyder past Odessa Permian in a non-district baseball game, 10-9.

The see-saw battle left Snyder with a 7-6 record as the Tigers prepared to face Plainview in Plainview on Saturday. Permian is 10-3.

"The kids showed a lot of character. There were plenty of times when they could have packed it in but they didn't," said Coach Albert Lewis.

Lewis was especially pleased with the performance of pitcher Jimmy Velasquez, who went the eight-inning distance and struck out 14 batters.

"Jimmy really showed us something. He hung in there despite us booting the ball so much behind him," said Lewis, who was referring to six Snyder errors.

Permian used three Tiger errors in the first inning alone to jump out to a 2-0 advantage. Snyder got its first run in the second inning when Justin Webb singled, stole second and came in on a double from Velasquez.

Velasquez put Snyder ahead for the first time in the fourth when he slapped a two-run homer, scoring himself and Webb, who had walked aboard.

But the game was to be a back-and-forth affair. Permian regained the advantage in the bottom of the fifth on an error and a passed ball, 4-3.

Catcher Todd Odom was hit in the eye by a foul ball during the inning and was replaced by Hunter. Snyder was also without regular short stop Brad Holcomb and backup Reynaldo Gomez, who were both too ill to make the trip. Webb filled in at the crucial spot. Lewis said Odom's injury was not serious and he expected him to play Saturday.

Snyder went back on top in the sixth inning. Webb tied the game on a two-out, two-strike pitch which he slammed over the outfield fence. Velasquez and Kenneth Pickering then delivered a pair of singles and they were sent home when McWilliams followed suit.

Snyder narrowly missed another run when Michael Long hit a bounce-over double. McWilliams was only allowed third base on the play, and Permian got out of the top of the inning without further damage.

But as Lewis kept saying, "It wasn't over yet."

Permian came right back, using two singles and a walk to stack the bags. Odessa tied the score on a full-count single up the middle, 6-6. Another passed ball put the Panthers in front, 7-6.

Snyder countered once again in the top of the seventh. This time Webb slapped a two-out single and Velasquez followed with a two run homer that easily cleared the fence 365 feet away. The score was knotted at 8-8 though, when Permian singled home John Hitt, who had walked and been sacrificed to second in the bottom of the stanza.

That set the scene for a dramatic eighth inning. McWilliams opened for Snyder with a double. The Tigers put two aboard when Long singled. Permian battled back defensively by getting Scott Lanier and Chris Fryar out on fly balls. Up stepped Hunter, however, who knocked a two-ball, two-strike pitch for a two-run single to left field that gave the visitors a 10-8 lead.

Velasquez, who threw 153 pitches in the contest, started off the bottom of the eighth well. He got the first two batters to fly out. Next-up Scott Erwin doubled, though, and Hitt followed with a single to push his teammate across. A walk then put the would-be winning run on the basepaths. Velasquez responded by getting Darren Allman to fly out to McWilliams at centerfield, ending the game.

Brad Cornett started the game and went four innings. Erwin took the loss in relief.

Snyder got its 10 runs on 14 hits while Odessa compiled 9 on 9. The Panthers made just one error. Snyder made a half-dozen, including three on passed balls.

Lewis said those miscues were not entirely the catchers' fault.

"Jimmy has a sharp slider. It breaks real sharply and tonight it was working real well as a strike out pitch but it was working so well it made it very difficult for the catchers," he said. "We finally had to quit using it because they got three runs off of passed balls.

"It looked like it wasn't going to be our day. We had both our short stops out and we had all those errors. But like I said, the kids really showed a lot of character, all of them. This was a real good win for us - on the road and against a team like Permian."

Tennessee approves new eligibility rules

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Officials of Tennessee's high school ruling association Friday approved a stricter eligibility rule for high school athletes - requiring them to maintain passing grades in at least five courses to remain active in interscholastic play.

By a 6-3 vote, the Tennessee Secondary Schools Athletic Association's legislative council approved the action, which will take effect this fall.

Previously, student-athletes had been required to pass only four courses to retain their eligibility.

The policy is unlike the "no pass, no play" rule in effect in Texas, where students are required to pass all subjects during six-week terms to remain eligible.

Under the new TSSAA rule, student-athletes will be evaluated each semester rather than for each report card period, which means no student-athlete in Tennessee will face disqualification under the rule until the spring of 1987.

TSSAA Executive Director-elect Ronnie Carter said the tightening of eligibility requirements follows a natural progression begun when requirements to graduate had recently been raised from 18 to 20 credits (five a year) for Tennessee students.

Carter pointed out that for students taking only five courses per semester, the new rule would be the same as the "no pass, no play" rule in Texas. For that reason, Carter said, it would "encourage athletes to take six subjects."

The new rule - which affects grades 9 through 12 - does not specify what type of courses must be taken.

Peete shares lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Calvin Peete and Nick Faldo matched 68s in a cold, blustery wind and shared the lead Friday in the rain-delayed first round of the $500,000 USF&G Classic.

"Just a terrible day," said the 43-year-old Peete, who had the lead alone until he bogeyed the 18th, a par-4 that played straight into the teeth of the wind that he said was "25-30 miles per hour.

"I leaned all over a 3-wood (second shot) and was 30 yards short," Peete said.

The wind-chill factor was in the 20s when Peete and Faldo played in the early morning. It was in the 30s for the afternoon group.

Faldo, a three-time British PGA champion, birdied four of his first six holes, including three in a row.

"Once I got it in position like that, I looked at the wind and knew par would be a good score," he said.

FSU top-ranked baseball squad

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Florida State was ranked first in the Collegiate Baseball-ESPN Division I baseball poll but four other teams were within a five-point span.

Florida State (22-2), with an eight-game winning streak at poll time, preceded second-place Miami, Fla., (18-3) which had won seven games.

Texas (23-4) placed third, and Louisiana State (17-1) was fourth. Oral Roberts (19-4) was fifth and five points behind the Seminoles.

Rounding out the top 10 were Stanford (16-7), sixth; Loyola-Marymount (18-5), seventh; South Florida (21-5), eighth; Michigan (7-2), ninth; and South Carolina (12-4), 10th.

Other top 20 teams were: California State-Fullerton (14-8), 11th; Old Dominion (12-4), 12th; Southern California (15-7), 13th; Arkansas (14-6), 14th; and Oklahoma State (6-5), 15th.

The remaining five teams were: Wichita State (10-2), 16th; Hawaii (15-7), 17th; Georgia (147), 18th; Alabama (15-5), 19th; and Brigham Young (7-5-1), 20th.

Delay is approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Press International won bankruptcy court approval Friday for a three-month delay — until June 30 — in its deadline for filing a reorganization plan providing for sale of the news service to a Mexican publisher.

At a 5½-hour court hearing, UPI lawyer Richard Levine said the reorganization plan actually should be ready for filing with U.S. Bankruptcy Judge George Francis Bason Jr. within two weeks.

The $41 million sale of UPI to a partnership headed by Mexican publisher Mario Vazquez-Rana has the backing of UPI.

Proposal clears Congress Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to prevent a virtual shutdown next month of the nation's toxic waste cleanup effort cleared Congress Friday and went to the White House for President Reagan's expected signature.

The stopgap "Superfund" bill would pump a $150 million transfusion into the nation's premier environmental program, which has been limping along ever since Congress allowed its principal money source — a tax on petroleum and basic petrochemicals — to expire last Sept. 30.

The legislation would allow the Environmental Protection Agency to spend the new money through May 31 while House and Senate negotiators work on a five-year plan to resurrect and expand the effort to clean up chemical dumps.

In the Swiss village of Stans, citizens of the tiny canton of Nidwalden elect their officials and vote on proposals by a show of hands while standing outdoors, sometimes in falling snow.

Two are honored in 1-act

Two Hermleigh students received one-act play recognition Tuesday during the east zone competition held in Snyder. Patricia Jones received honorable mention recognition and Rodney Foster was named to the all-star cast.

The Hermleigh thespians performed "Quiet, Please." Others appearing in the play were Ben Smith, Anna Mireles, Eva Romero, Patricia Romero, Lori Tate.

Stage crew members were Jeff Roemisch, Tim Kotrla and Barbara Brown.

Museums' holiday schedule slated

The Diamond M Museum, located at 909 25th Street, will close on March 28 and re-open on April 1.

Navy might fly near Libya again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three U.S. aircraft carriers moved to link up forces in the central Mediterranean Friday amid indications that Navy fighters could begin flying near Libya over the disputed Gulf of Sidra as early as this weekend.

Top administration officials, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, said they could not disclose details of the mission. But the sources confirmed that Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger had approved a new round of exercises in the region and said they could begin as early as Saturday night or Sunday morning, Eastern time.

"They might start out flying near Libya without moving over the gulf.

Ira FFA garners trophies

Members of the Ira Future Farmers of America judging teams captured 15 trophies Tuesday during the Western Texas College judging contests.

The school entered three teams overall, earning a second place, a third place and a fifth place trophy.

Team awards included a first and second place in cattle judging and a second place in wine judging.

Cathey Crowder placed as first high individual; Brent Bearden was fourth highest and Rebel Royall was 10th highest.

Individual members also placed in the contest including Crowder who captured second place in sheep judging. In cattle judging Justin Spradlin was first, Crowder was second, Chuck Barbee was third and Kyle Sorrells placed fifth. Spradlin also placed third in swine judging.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential commission investigating the Challenger explosion goes back on the road next week to supervise tests designed to solve one remaining riddle: what caused a seal in the shuttle's booster rocket to leak gas and flame.

At a public hearing Friday, the commission was told by experts that they had ruled out every other potential cause for the Jan. 28 explosion that killed seven astronauts.

"I believe we have eliminated all the other possibilities," said Wayne Littles, associate director for engineering at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

A theory advanced at the hearing was that wind gusts aloft buffeted the shuttle as it climbed toward space and reopened a small leak between two segments of the booster rocket that began at the instant of ignition.

Littles said the tests, to be completed in a week to 10 days, are designed to determine whether the joint between the bottom two segments of the rocket failed because of:

—Damage when the rocket was assembled;

—A manufacturing defect in a secondary O-ring used to seal the joint;

—Ice in the joint that may have forced the O-ring seals open;

—Cold weather that might have robbed the O-rings of the resiliency needed to completely seal; or —Damage from cold weather to putty designed to protect the O-rings from flaming gases inside the rocket motor.

"Those are items which either individually or potentially in combination" could have initiated the failure, Littles told the commission.

No further public hearings are scheduled. The commission was splitting again into subpanels for visits to various NASA centers and to the plants of the space agency's contractors.

The commission has said it expects NASA's engineering task forces to make their report by April 18. The commission's own report to the president is not due until June 3 but Chairman William P. Rogers is known to be eager to finish at least a month ahead of schedule.

February unemployment is on increase in metro areas

DALLAS (AP) — Lower oil prices, a battered Mexican economy and overall weakness in the Texas economy increased unemployment levels in every metropolitan area in the state last month, the Texas Employment Commission said.

Of the 27 Texas metropolitan areas that recorded increases in their February unemployment rates, some rose as much as five percentage points from January levels, said officials.

The highest increases were recorded by energy-dependent regions and along the Mexican border. Beaumont-Port Arthur's jobless rate soared to 15.7 percent, up from 12.6 percent in January. The Brownsville-Harlingen area's unemployment rate increased five percentage points to 18.7 percent last month.

"Places like Beaumont-Port Arthur and any area particularly oriented to the oil and gas industry were impacted quite heavily in February," said Terence Travland, assistant chief of economic research for the TEC in Austin. "The oil price situation provides a special stimuli to the economic downturn that's been in process — and prompted the downturn during the month."

Dallas-area unemployment increased 1.1 percent to 5.8 percent, its highest level since September 1982. Fort Worth-Arlington area unemployment rose 1.4 percent to 6.3 percent in February.

Houston's jobless rate increased 2.2 percentage points to 9.6 in February.

Areas in the state historically not directly influenced by swings in the energy sector were not spared last month, Travland said.

Unemployment in Austin, for example, remains the lowest in the state but increased 1 percentage point to 5.4 percent last month.

Abilene's unemployment rate of 7.7 for February is only a tenth of a point below the all-time high recorded in June 1982.

The 4,200 jobless individuals is up from 3,100 the previous month.

"It reflects what we are seeing in the office every day," said Keith Quade of the Abilene Texas Employment Commission office. "There are more and more people out of work and seeking jobs."

Quade said the biggest jump was in the oil-field sector. Almost 350 new or reopened unemployment compensation applications have been made in the last 30 days by people laid off or fired from the oil patch, he said.

Odessa probably was hardest hit with its 6.4-percent January rate shooting up to 9.3 percent in February.

Unemployment in the Corpus Christi area rose 21 percent last month, bringing it to 11.6 percent of the work force, its highest level since September 1983.

Allen Itz, manger of the TEC office in Corpus Christi, said the worst is yet to come.

"I expect to see a higher rate in March, directly attributable to declining oil prices," Itz said.

In El Paso, 25,000 were without jobs in February as the unemployment rate hit 12 percent — up from 9.3 percent the month before.

According to TEC figures, 5,900 more people were unemployed in February than in January.

Hector Venegas, a labor analyst with the commission, attributed increased joblessness to layoffs in the apparel industry.

We wish to express our gratitude to everyone who has been so thoughtful during the hospitalization and death of our loving son, Paul Ellis.
The prayers, phone calls, cards, letters, visits, flowers, and memorials are greatly appreciated. Also, the food and meals furnished by friends, neighbors, and the First Baptist Church were truly a blessing. Friends mean so much at a time like this, and we will always love and appreciate everyone for every kindness shown.

Harold and Dena Ellis

Scurry County Folks...

By Vicki Brown

Women accustomed to a vigorous workout several times each week will soon have an opportunity to continue a scaled down version during pregnancy.

Loraine Hall, local aerobics instructor, will begin offering the modified routine for expectant mothers April 6.

Recently, Loraine attended a three-day certification program and convention of the Aerobics and Fitness Association of America in Atlanta. A pregnancy and exercise workshop offered during the convention convinced her of the need for a specialized program locally.

"The workshop was conducted by a registered nurse and a gynecologist who offered suggestions based upon findings by the obstetrical board," she said.

Aerobic exercises are designed to increase the individual's metabolic rate. "During the exercises, a person's heart beats faster. Programs are generally designed to help a person reach his maximum heart rate," Loraine explained. "An individual's target heart rate is determined by adding his age and his resting heart rate (usually between 60 and 90 beats per minute) and subtracting that figure from the maximum rate of 220."

During an aerobics workout, the routine normally forces the heart to work at 70 to 90 percent of the target heart rate. Loraine noted that women in the pregnancy program will work at 50 to 70 percent of their target heart rates. With careful monitoring, she will allow each woman to reach a maximum of 140 beats per minute or lower.

The pregnancy workout will feature other modifications, too. No running, jumping or bouncing exercises will be included in the routine. Loraine plans to lead all floor exercises and stretch exercises at a slower rate. "All the exercises I plan to use will be low-impact aerobics — exercises in which the participants keep one foot on the ground at all times," she said.

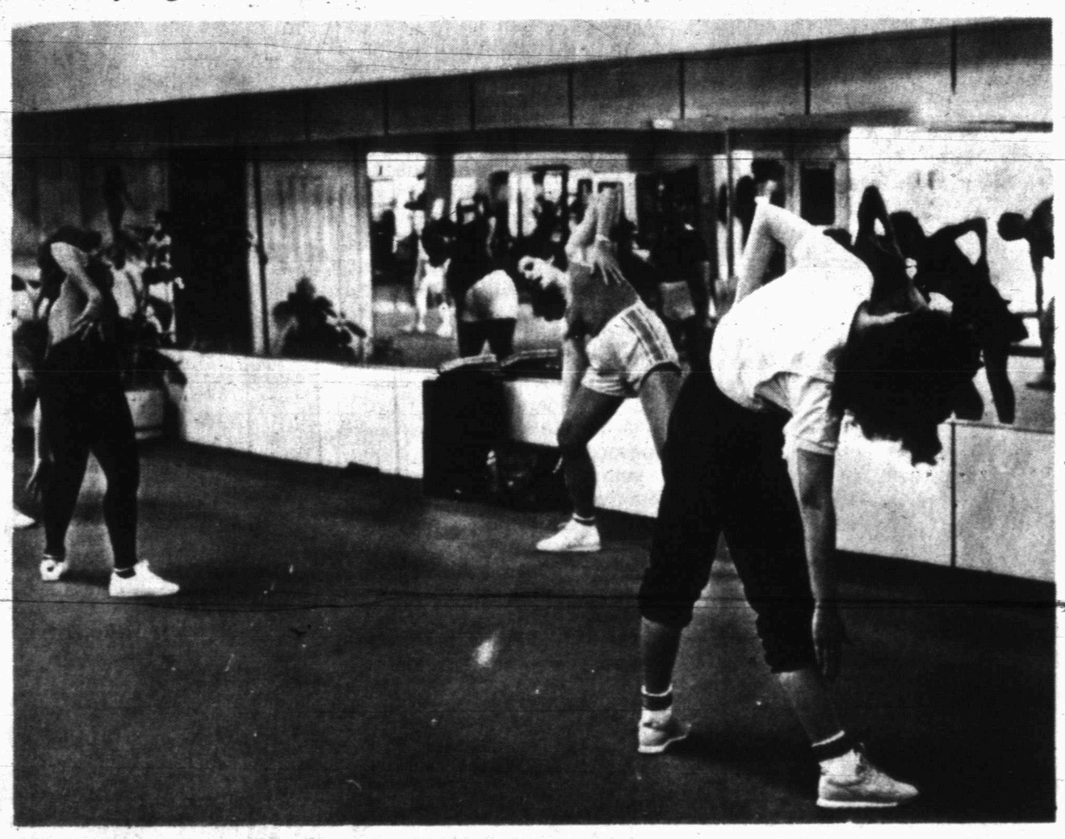
Loraine said the modified program is suitable also for women who have not previously exercised. "Everything will be done at a slower rate and exercises will be modified," she said.

Loraine noted exercise can benefit an expectant mother in several ways. "Exercising can make pregnancy easier, especially the delivery phase. It can make you feel better and help give you more energy. It will help you keep your muscle tone through pregnancy. You will have an easier chance to lose weight after delivery and you won't lose as much muscle tone."

Cost for the class will be $15 per session with individuals enrolled with Cogdell Hospital's Lullaby Lane program to be charged $10.

She added that a woman could join the program at any time. "We're not going to go higher or lower (in terms of difficulty), so women can fit in at any time. Our level will remain about the same. I'll probably offer a brief orientation at the beginning of each month."

(Editor's Note: Doctors recommend pregnant women consult their personal physican before beginning any exercise programs.)



EXERCISING TO THE MUSIC — Loraine Hall (center) will begin an aerobic exercise program for pregnant women on April 6. The classes, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. to 7:15 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday at Family Fitness, will concentrate on retaining each participant's muscle tone. Here Loraine leads a ladies' jazz aerobics class. A certified aerobics instructor for the past three years, she is office manager for Dr. Stanley Allen. (SDN Staff Photo)

April 26 deadline for fingerling orders at SCS

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District, serving Scurry and Borden Counties, is currently accepting fingerling orders for pond restocking. The District announces the following prices are now in effect per hundred: 4-6 inch channel catfish, $40; 6-8 inch channel catfish, $60; 1-3 inch hybrid bluegill, $40; 3-4 inch hybrid bluegill, $60; 2-3 inch hybrid Florida bass, $70; 4-6 inch hybrid Florida bass, $160; and fathead minnows (approximately 425 per pound), $8 per pound.

Delivery date is set for April 26 from 9-11 a.m. at the Soil Conservation Service office in the Snyder Shopping Center.

Suggested stocking rates for small ponds are 100 channel catfish per surface acre. If you plan to supplementally feed the catfish or fertilize the pond, then 500 catfish per surface acre can be stocked.

The channel catfish can be stocked alone or with fathead minnows to serve as forage. The diet of a catfish is largely made up of aquatic insect larva, but minnows are also eaten if available. The larger 6-8 inch catfish fingerlings are recommended if large bass are present in the pond. Fingerlings of this size are generally fast enough to avoid being eaten by the bass.

In ponds greater than one acre surface area, stocking 100 catfish, 50 bass, 300-400 bluegill and two pounds of fathead minnows provides a balanced stocking program.

The hybrid bluegill can be stocked alone or with bass or catfish. About 10 percent of the bluegill will reproduce and are a good choice for stocking alone in very small ponds.

Plastic bags will be provided for hauling the fish. They can be kept in the bags for up to two hours, but should be placed into ponds as soon as possible.

Payment is due upon placement of the order with checks made payable to the Upper Colorado SWCD. You may preorder fingerlings until noon, April 25. To avoid long delays in picking up fish on April 26th, those who preorder will be given a 30 minute time slot in which they may come and not have to wait over 30 minutes to receive their fish. 10-15 orders will be filled each 30 minute slot. The earlier you preorder the earlier a time slot you will be given. This system avoids someone having to wait two hours in line to pick up their fingerlings.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 573-1268 or by seeing District Directors and SCS personnel in the SCS field office located 3423 Avenue T.

A nip of brandy before braving the cold is a mistake, according to the American Heart Association. The group reports that alcohol dilates blood vessels, and blood more quickly is moved into extremities where heat-loss takes place. Smoking while in extreme cold also can cause problems, it says. It constricts blood vessels and speeds the effects of cold on the skin.

LARGER THAN LIFE: TEXANS

The Texas Sesquicentennial book display at the Scurry County Library for March is biographies.

Texans from all walks of life, good and bad, seem to be larger than life. Read about them at the library, and pick up a book list for future good reading.

Two of the books available are reviewed below:

C.C. SLAUGHTER; RANCHER, BANKER, BAPTIST. By David J. Murrah. Born during the infant years of the Texas Republic, C.C. Slaughter participated in the development of the southwestern cattle industry from its pioneer stages to the modern era. Trail driver, Texas Ranger, banker, philanthropist, and cattleman, he was one of America's famous ranchers. A pioneer in West Texas ranching, Slaughter increased his holdings from 1877 to 1905 to include more than a million acres of land and forty thousand head of cattle. At one time "Slaughter Country" stretched from Big Spring, northwestward two hundred miles to the New Mexico border, west of Lubbock. He was also a founder of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association and the American National Bank of Dallas. David J. Murrah has written a definitive account of this well-known figure in southwest history.

TOM BOND. By Josie Baird. Tom Bond's story is typical of many another frontier boy who grew up to be a cowboy. His earliest memories were of a happy frontier family ever on the move. Through Miss Baird, Tom Bond has told his story of the era in which he lived as he remembered it. Interesting reading for those who enjoy cowboy lore.

Dental technique

We all know that dental care is needed for healthy teeth and good looks. Now there is a chemical technique for gently removing decay, without the drilling.

According to Dr. Sheldon Nadler, a teaching as well as practicing dentist, the technique uses liquid applied through an applicator to soften and flush out decay. Nadler says the technique can't always completely eliminate drilling, but reduces the need for it alone.

Men's skin

Should a man's face feel raw in cold weather? No more than a woman's, says Lia Schorr, whose skin salon in New York has more male than female clients.

For winter problems, she recommends that her male clients use an almond- or cucumber-base lotion for cleansing, a special pre-shave preparation and a non-alcohol after-shave.

Moisturizer cream finishes the routine before a man faces the elements. Skin is skin, whether male or female, and needs protection.

It's a little unusual, but sometimes three small cards in a side suit can be a distributional feature. A good declarer will not overlook such opportunities.

North was reluctant to rebid one notrump with only three little spades, but the alternative — raising hearts with 4-3-3-3 shape — was equally repugnant. He finally chose the bid that told the truth about his shape. When South then invited game by jumping to three hearts, North happily raised to four.

To safely make the game contract, declarer must suppress his natural instinct to draw trumps. Instead, realizing that there is a possibility of losing three spade tricks, he should plan on using one of dummy's heart honors to ruff a potential spade loser. So, after winning dummy's club ace at trick one, declarer should forthwith lead a spade back to his ace and play a spade. On regaining the lead, he can then play another spade and eventually trump his last losing spade with either the king or the jack of hearts in dummy. The diamond finesse is then available for a possible overtrick.

Here declarer does not even have the luxury of being able to change horses in midstream. If he plays two rounds of trump and then realizes he should perhaps trump a spade, it is too late. When declarer then plays ace and a spade, East is in with the queen and can lead back his last trump to eventually set the contract.

Canada formally passed from French control into the British Empire on Feb. 10, 1763. The occasion was the signing of the Treaty of Paris. The treaty marked the end of the Seven Years' War, which had ended four years earlier with the capture of Quebec in 1759. The treaty stripped France of all of her possessions north of what later became the United States, except for the islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon, still under French control.

PARTICIPATIVE MANAGEMENT

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — "Participative management" is a business technique in which fewer employees share a greater workload. As a result, each employee is more responsible for performance and decision-making.

Phillips Petroleum says it is one firm using participative management to cut costs while encouraging workers to develop their full potential.

"Today there are 6.9 employees for every supervisor, compared with 5.8 in 1983," says C.J. Silas, chief executive officer. "Employees work with less supervision and, therefore, must participate more in making their own decisions."

PLAN GARDEN: THEN PLANT

It is time to plan your garden for this year. Be sure to think of all the requirements of a garden.

First, make sure you have room for a garden. You won't need a lot of space if you are a beginner with an average size family. Your garden might only be 20 feet by 20 feet or maybe even less.

Whatever size garden you have, think in terms of four basic requirements. First, you need sunlight, because all vegetables need some sun and most must have full sun for highest yields of quality produce. Unless you are concentrating on leaf or bulb crops such as broccoli, collards, spinach or onions, your crops need every available ray of sunshine.

Next, consider the location of your garden. Put it as near the back door as possible. Make bringing home the fruits of your labor a pleasant and enjoyable chore. The out-of-sight, out-of-mind principle applies here. A garden does not demand constant care and attention, but it thrives and does better if you visit it once a day. If you do not check it regularly, insects, diseases or lack of water can destroy your garden in a short time. So put the garden close to the house where watching it will not be a hassle.

Next, consider the soil. Ideally the soil should be fertile and easy to till wth just the right texture - a loose, well-drained loamy soil. If your soil does not meet these specifications completely, don't panic. You can work it into shape without breaking your back.

Avoid areas heavily infested with johnsongrass, nutgrass and other weeds. Don't put your garden on a rocky ledge or in a poorly drained area. These things make gardening more difficult.

Next, consider the availability of water. Plaee your garden near a spigot or at least where it can be reached easily with a garden hose. In a typical year, watering is necessary about once a week.

Now you are ready for the planning stage. The first step is to select the vegetables you want to grow. Plant vegetables you like to eat. Avoid those that your family doesn't usually buy, at the local grocery store. With a few exceptions, you can plant almost anything you like in your garden.

After you have selected your vegetables make a rough diagram of your garden. Indicate the number of rows and different vegetables you wish to plant. Also show the desired location of each crop, the number of plants or feet of rows you want to plant and the best time to plant.

The plan will help you meet planting deadlines, make decisions on what you need to buy and put some order into your gardening activities.

FAMILY SPPORT DURING FINANCIAL STRESS

When family members pull together to make the most of limited resources and at the same time reassure one another that material things are less important than having each other, then the burden on their financial problems seem less threatening.

If your family has serious financial problems, you obviously have to "do without the luxuries" or even the necessities of your former lifestyle. But while everything seems to be going wrong, your family is still the best support during these hard times.

It's easier for families to make sacrifices as long as "biting the bullet" is a mutual effort by all family members. That's one reason why holding family councils to discuss family and individual needs can be so important.

In these meetings you can establish plans and goals, whether that's finding or training for a new job, paying off debts, saving for a down payment on a house or cutting back on food costs.

Involving all family members — including children — in discussions and plans is especially important. They will feel they are making a contribution to solving the family problems and learn about financial responsibility as well.

Just as you share the burden of your financial problems as a family, don't forget to share some good times too. Family activities need not be expensive, and can help keep everyone's spirits high.

Playing board games, croquet, catch, frisbee or other activites as a family will provide good physical and mental release. Take walks, go jogging or ride bicycles.

Use free library or bookmobile services to get books or plays that you can read together. You can also make gardening and even chores a family event with an element of fun..

With a little effort, you can capitalize on the strengths of your family to provide support while you work through a difficult financial situation.

SCS Notes

The sodbuster and swampbuster provisions of the 1985 farm bill went into effect on December 23, 1985, when the President signed the Food Security Act of 1985.

That date is very significant for any producer who plows out highly erodible land or drains wetlands after the law was signed. It could mean the producer would have to forfeit USDA program benefits in 1986 if the land is used to produce a crop in 1986.

The Department has not had time to publish and implement rules and regulations since the legislation was signed.

Anyone who plans to plow out or drain land not now in cropland should realize that there is a possibility that such land will be subject to the sodbuster and swampbuster provisions.

We have been advised by out national headquarters that the rules and regulations providing detailed information should be published within the next 90 days.

Spikes and messy hair to sleek, soft easy care styles

CHICAGO (AP) — For spring, designers on both sides of the Atlantic have produced some of the most curvaceous yet wearable fashions in years. And hair fashions, too, are more feminine and shapely, in keeping with the overall mood of pared-down chic, a group of hairstylists report.

The look is sophisticated, a city style, but one that even the busiest woman can achieve, say the members of the Helene Curtis Hairstylists Advisory Board.

An individualized haircut is the key element to the season's most up-to-date looks, they agree. And the completed style, they add, has to be one that complements your hair, your face and your lifestyle.

"The hairstyle is the ultimate accessory," says board member Jerry Gordon of Chicago. "Nothing finishes a fashion look the way a custom-designed hairstyle does. Yesterday's spiky, messy hair looks simply do not have the elegance that today's sleek fashions require. Hair now is simpler, emphasizing the form of the cut the way a fitted jacket emphasizes the woman's figure."

According to Gordon, the perm is essential to the new season's classic, elegant styles.

"A perm adds softness and interest to even the simplest style and is necessary to achieve the volume spring styles call for," he says. "Women love the ease a perm gives them in styling, whether they blow-style or dry naturally. Straight hair simply has too many limitations."

Geri Mataya, of Pittsburgh, also sees the wave as an important element of spring styles. "There's a return to romance that's evident in the slim and fitted lines of the spring fashion collections. Hairstyles, too, are more romantic. A loose wave establishes that feeling in short and long hair alike," she says.

While longer styles are directed off the face, Mataya notes forward movement, a hot trend last fall, is still important in shorter cuts.

"The forward direction is not as exaggerated, but still evident," she says. "Instead of 'plumes' of hair falling forward, we'll see little 'fringes' framing the face. Nothing that can get in the way, just flattering little wisps that direct attention to the eyes."

Geometric cuts, created with clippers, will provide another dramatic trend, but Mataya notes the silhouette is softened with uneven chunks and wisps cut into the strong lines.

Color adds further softness to spring styles, notes Rocco Altobelli of Minneapolis-St. Paul.

"Shine is extremely important when styles are as sculptured as they will be for spring," he explains. "With several tones of color, we are able to create highlights that give the hair 'dance' and movement."

The soft touch in styling extends to the products used to create the looks. Heavy gels, necessary to create stand-up spikes, are replaced with soft styling mousses and non-greasy glazes which add luster to the hair.

One-third of 20,000 Eritrean rebel fighters seeking independence from Ethiopia are women.

Attic treasures or trash ?

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Were you planning to clean out the attic or basement and call the trashman for an extra pickup to prepare for a neater new year?

Before so much as throwing out a candy wrapper, take Helaine Fendelman's advice and stop. Mrs. Fendelman, who held her first tag sale 17 years ago when she and her husband discovered they had bought too much to fit into their new home, says you owe it to yourself to find out whether you're throwing away trash or treasure.

Her own passion for holding onto odd bits and pieces has led her to a satisfying career as a tag-sale planner, dealer, appraiser and author of books on collectibles.

Recently, Mrs. Fendelman coauthored a book to tell others how to evaluate what they have, find out what the things are worth, and how to dispose of some and insure and appraise those they decide to keep.

In "Money in Your Attic," she says, recycling your "junk" into someone else's home at a tag sale can lead to fun and profit.

Naturally, one of the first questions to ask is: What do I have? She has found a common error is to value the wrong things and overlook gold among the dross. For example, while old Christmas ornaments dating as late as the 1940s are collectible today, old books, encyclopedias and most old magazines are almost valueless.

Those who have been saving National Geographics and World Books have probably been wasting storage space. On the other hand, if you've saved old movie magazines, or the first issue of Antiques Magazine which she says is worth between $75 and $100, you are in a position to profit.

Many think that old children's toys are valuable — and they are. But generally they must be in mint condition, preferably in the original box, to garner good prices. Broken toys aren't wanted by most collectors and dealers and are not worth saving (unless they happen to be from the 17th or 18th century). Old china and jewelry are popular right now, as are linens, handmade lace textiles and even old clothing. But they have to be in good condition.

Many people have taken in the fact that old pieces have value, but like some vaccinations, they have taken it in too well. They are victims of what Mrs. Fendelman calls the "exactly-like-it" syndrome.

These people may see a china set at an antique show marked $500. They have a set that is in the same design or is, perhaps, by the same maker, so they set out to sell it for the same price. Perhaps theirs is the wrong color, the wrong maker, badly damaged, cracked and chipped. Or some significant pieces may be missing. "Then they have a hard time understanding why they are offered only a small fraction of the $500 for their set," she said.

Refineries should be alright

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas' oil refineries, capable of processing one of every four barrels of crude in the United States, are scrambling to get rid of the oil purchased weeks ago at prices nearly double the current rates.

But industry officials and analysts watching the volatile swings in the price say well-managed refineries should be making profits whatever the price of oil. And while some layoffs hit the refining segment more than a year ago, companies now are hiring a few workers to maintain employment levels and no one is predicting future layoffs.

Analysts say the lower oil prices, which translate into lower prices for gasoline, may even be good for the oil industry, which has seen the boom of the late 1970s and early 1980s turn to bust.

"This is not bad news for them," says Jack Carney, project manager for short-range forecasts at Houston's Pace Consultants, Inc. "Refiners are making more money than before."

Pace estimates major oil companies on the Gulf Coast will make as much as $1.50 per barrel profit on products in the first quarter of the year, renewing investors' interest in a segment of the oil industry that has been considered an economic liability. Previously, the refiner may have been losing money.

"Now he's the only one making money," Carney says.

"If we can live through the price plunge, things are going to be better once the price stabilizes," says Rick Sherman, vice president of administrative services for Texas City Refining Inc., an independent refiner southeast of Houston.

"For the small independent like us, it's not a lot of fun these days. But we're still hanging in there. As long as the margins are there, you can do better with lower prices," Sherman said.

The industry timetable for moving a barrel of oil through the refining process is six weeks, meaning refiners are caught with yesterday's higher crude prices and competing with today's lower product prices, says Amoco Oil Co. spokesman Ray Thompson.

"Purchasers are reluctant to build up inventories in product because they're uncertain what gasoline prices are going to do the next day," he says.

So refiners are keeping inventories as low as possible, hoping to take advantage of the lower crude prices.

"You can get burned on inventory," says Rick Hansen at Shell Oil Co. "But the refinery people are very optimistic because (the price decline) portends good things for demand. It's better than the price going up. When you have to charge more money for your product, you're not going to encourage buying that product."

The sentiment that demand will grow as gasoline prices are driven down is shared by other company officials, though analysts are a bit more cautious.

"I don't see a big shift away from fuel-efficient cars," says Don Hoyte, senior research scientist at Lamar University's John Gray Institute, an oil industry think tank. "The gas hogs are kind of gone from the marketplace. Federal regulations have taken care of that."

When oil prices skyrocketed, taking gasoline prices with them, Americans facing better than $1 a gallon fuel prices for the first time ever began thinking conservation.

"We finally got to the point where we quit buying gasoline," Shell's Hansen says, referring to consumers.

At Texaco Inc., the lower consumption triggered a self-described streamlining of operations beginning in 1982. At least 1,400 jobs were eliminated from its Port Arthur refinery, which was built in 1903.

"They've gone on to something else," Hoyte said of the people who lost work. "They may have left, they may by unemployed, they may have gotten out of the workforce altogether."

Some, however, have gone to a neighboring Gulf Oil Co. refinery, where a limited number of people are being hired, according to Gary Beevers, vice chairman of the Texaco Workers Committee at the Oil, Atomic and Chemical Workers Union.

Dear Abby

Mules' Dull Public Image Stubbornly Resists Polish

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am fed up with all these offended bachelors who resent being compared with mules. What's wrong with mules? I am a regional representative of the American Donkey and Mule Society, and believe me, donkeys and mules are the finest beasts on earth, so if any human calls you a mule or even a jackass, he is paying you a compliment!

Donkeys and mules are honest, affectionate, gentle, intelligent and fun-loving, so how did mules and jackasses get such a bad name?

SUE ANN WEAVER,
BLUESTONE BRAYERS

DEAR SUE ANN: It eludes me, but over the years the consensus has been that mules are stubborn and jackasses are stupid. Unfortunately, these degrading myths have been perpetuated until they are accepted as facts.

What donkeys and jackasses need is some high-powered public relations firm to improve the images of these noble beasts. Any takers?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for six years and we are very happy. The only thing that ever comes between us is that I never receive gifts from him on special occasions.

Although he can't afford to buy expensive presents, he doesn't understand how much I would like to get at least a card on Christmas, our anniversary and my birthday.

Last Valentine's Day, I bought myself a sexy nightie, had it gift-wrapped real nice and I showed it to my bridge club, saying it was from my husband. I know it wasn't honest, but I was ashamed that he didn't even give me a card.

Is there something wrong with me? Or is it him?

ELLIE

DEAR ELLIE: Nothing is "wrong" with you or him. But there is something wrong with your communication. Let him know how much it means to you to be remembered—even if you have to remind him as the date grows near. And do it with a sense of humor. For example, one week before your birthday, tape a note up on his bathroom mirror: SEVEN DAYS BEFORE ELLIE'S BIRTHDAY; the next day, ONLY SIX DAYS BEFORE ELLIE'S BIRTHDAY, etc. Get the idea? Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I are planning our wedding and need your help in settling a disagreement. We are both music lovers (classical) and talented performers as well. I am a pianist and Dennis has a beautiful singing voice.

It would give me great pleasure to play a few numbers immediately following the marriage ceremony. (I wouldn't do anything inappropriate like a jarring Prokofiev.) Dennis' song to me would be an appropriate selection in keeping with the occasion. He says the logistics of my moving from the altar to the piano in my long, flowing wedding gown would be awkward and disruptive—that I should be a bride and nothing more. And he should do no singing.

I think it would be a shame to engage outsiders to provide the music when we could deliver music at its best. (We have already agreed on an organist for the prelude, march and recessional.)

Please help me. Dennis' mother is siding with Dennis.

MUSIC LOVER

DEAR LOVER: I'm also siding with Dennis. Sorry. But if you must perform, do it at the reception.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you emphasized the importance of voting. May I share with your readers some examples of how one vote changed history?

In 1645, ONE VOTE gave Oliver Cromwell control of England.

In 1649, ONE VOTE caused Charles I of England to be executed.

In 1839, ONE VOTE elected Marcus Morton governor of Massachusetts.

In 1845, ONE VOTE brought Texas into the Union.

In 1868, ONE VOTE saved President Andrew Johnson from impeachment.

In 1876, ONE VOTE changed France from a monarchy to a republic.

In 1923, ONE VOTE gave Adolf Hitler leadership of the Nazi Party.

In 1960, ONE VOTE change in each precinct in Illinois would have defeated John F. Kennedy.

Veterans' benefits are now reduced

Education benefit payments for Chapter 34 veterans and Chapter 35 dependants and survivors were reduced 7.8 per cent effective March 1, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

This meant a reduction from $376 to $343 per month for a single veteran training full time. Benefits under Chapter 32, Section 903, Chapter 106, and Section 901 programs are not affected.

Tutorial assistance amount payable was reduced from $84 to $77, with the maximum amount payable reduced to $924.

The reduced educational assistance applied to any claims processed or payments obligated after Feb. 28, 1986.

These changes were necessary to implement the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 and will remain in effect through Sept. 30, 1986, Dever said. The 1987 VA budget restores the affected payments to the original levels but will be subject to deficit control measures in the future.

Information about veterans programs can be obtained by contacting Dever's office, located in the administration building at Western Texas College. The office will be closed from March 27-30 due to the college's spring break.

Late returns penalty noted

H&R Block has been made aware by the Internal Revenue Service that the IRS may now penalize a late tax return, even if it shows a refund. In the past, a late return with a refund was not normally penalized.

Because of this ruling, H&R Block is alerting all taxpayers who might file late to either file now or apply for a tax deadline extension in order to avoid paying such a penalty or interest. The size and scope of the tax return could determine the amount of money saved on the penalty or interest.

According to the local manager Wernette Smith, "We are trying to save taxpayers money. The public may not be aware of this IRS ruling, and we feel they should be alerted."

Many students, parents, and business people have inquired about Marketing-Distributive Education and Industrial Cooperative Training. What it is, who is eligible for it, etc.

What is Marketing-Distributive Education? A vocationl training program for students who are interested in studying the field of marketing both in the classroom and on the job.

What is Industrial Cooperative Training? A vocational training program for students who are interested in learning a skill in Automobile Mechanics, Carpentry, Machinist, Television Repair, Welding, Nurses Aide, Dental Assistant, Physical Therapy Assistant, etc... in the classroom and on the job.

Who can take MDE or ICT? These programs are available to Juniors and Seniors who demonstrate a serious interest and aptitude for vocational cooperative training, are a minimum of 16 years of age, have a good grade and good attendence record at the high school.

How does the Program Operate? The student makes applications for MDE or ICT at the high school MDE or ICT offices. The student must sign up for MDE or ICT and other neccessary academic courses. The student goes to regular school classes half the day, and goes to a training station (job) the other portion of the day. The students grades are determined by their class work, participation, and job performance. The student is paid for work on the basis of a regular part time employee.

How About Credit For MDE or ICT? Marketing-Distributive Education and Industrial Cooperative Training must be taken two consecutive semesters as a minimum, and counts two credits for each semester. However, many students take the MDE and ICT programs both their Junior and Senior years.

Marketing-Distributive Education and Induatrial Cooperative Training credits are accepted by Texas state colleges and universities. These students are encouraged to attend college and a large percentage of the students do attend

Marketing-Distributive Education and Industrial Cooperative Training programs are designed to orient high school juniors and seniors to the business world and the American economic system. This is accomplished through a combination of classroom instruction and on the job experience.

Students, both boys and girls, are placed in jobs according to their abilities and interests. Backing up this hands-on experience are classroom studies in selling, display, advertising, management, etc.

In addition, units in Job Application, Job Orientation, and Free Enterprise are covered in the curriculum.

Why are these programs referred to as Co-op Programs? The programs involve cooperation between the business community and the local school system. Many businesses favor employing students because of desire to be a part of the training of high school students and because of their interest in the related school study offered to the students. Many business owners, managers and workers received their initial training though the Co-op programs.

MDE and ICT serve as an excellent business survey course for the precollege student

The success of the Co-op programs and their constant growth is a tribute to the interest and time devoted by the local businesses who assist in the training of these students.

SDN Opinion Page

Editorials-Columns-Cartoons-Look Back-Letters

During the Nixon-Watergate mess of the early 1970s, we noticed a bumper sticker which asked a good question. It read, "Who elected the national press?"

At the time, we perceived it as a slam at the rabble rousers who were attempting to bring the king down. Our personal reply to that passing motorist was, "Hey buddy, ever hear of the first amendment?"

Which brings us to our subject, which is not Nixon, Watergate or the national news media. It is letters to the editor and how they matchup with that fine law — the one newspaper folk most often point to as their reason for nosing into other people's private business.

The boiled down version of the first amendment holds that it guarantees freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

To get it in the right context, however, you have to remember that the guys who wrote it were indeed a bunch of rabble rousers — some heavy-duty rabble rousers at that. They started a war.

And two of the big freedoms they fought for was the right to express their opinions in public and the equal right to see these opinions in print.

To achieve this end, they tagged on the first amendment, which said in part the government "shall make no law abridging the freedom of the press."

Freedom of the press to a journalist of 1776 basically mean't he could call King George an idiot and get away with it.

So this country's first newspapers — single sheet deals called "petitions" — offered the opinion (mildly stated) that Mother England was handling its relation with the Colonies poorly.

Since 1776, freedom of the press has had one zillion adjustments made to it. The result is a tradition passed down journalist by journalist and legal decision by legal decision regarding what newspapers will and will not print — all under the glorious banner of freedom of the press.

All of which is fodder for future speculations.

Now, back to letters to the editor. They are literally a direct link back to that earliest hard-won freedom — the right to have your opinion in print.

However, we will now say, not without qualifications.

A letter to the editor cannot say bad things about another person, except in some cases those considered public figures. Thanks to one of those zillion changes we mentioned, you can call Senator Blowhard a crook in print.

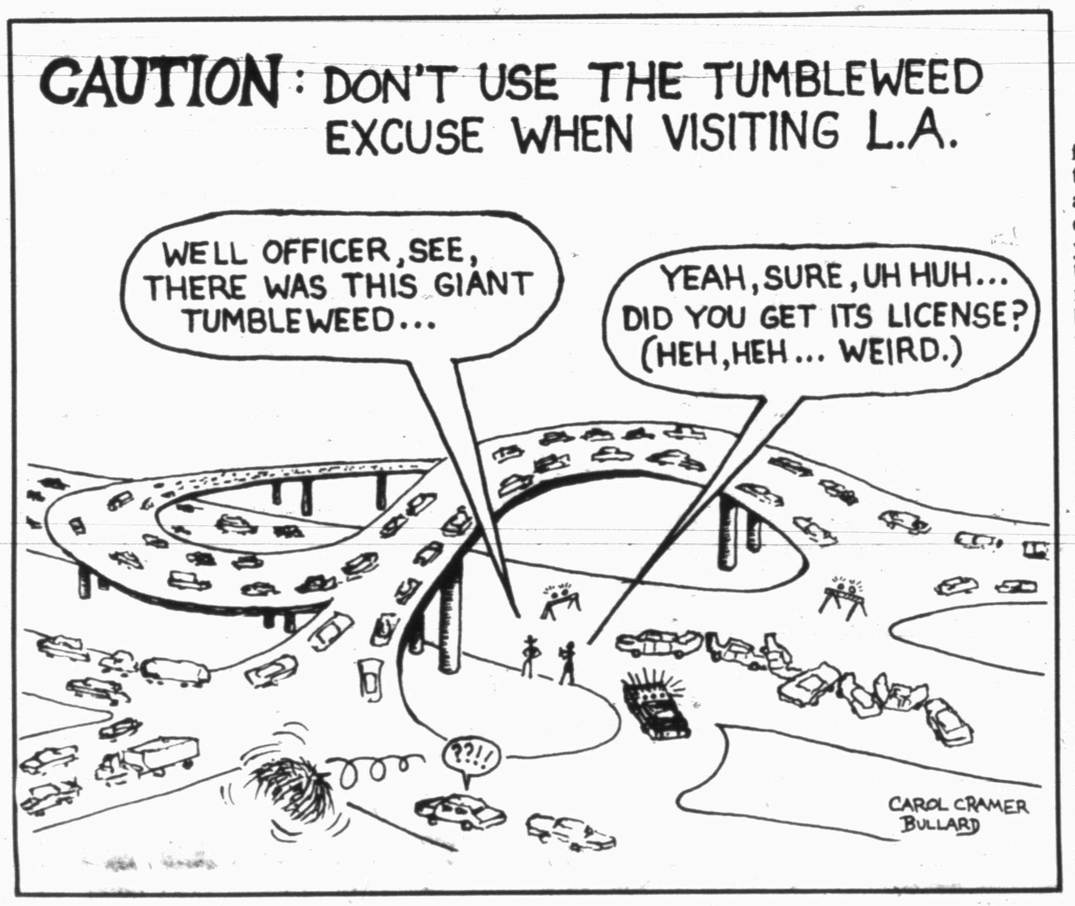
You cannot say the same thing about your neighbor who hasn't returned your lawnmower since last July — that's libel and both the letter writer and the newspaper can have their proverbial pants sued off.

Letters to the editor can also be declined or shortened on the basis of good taste (we don't want to hear about your gall stone operation) and length.

Another qualification in the SDN is letters should have some tag to local events and should be generated by local folks. A lot of lobby groups write us letters, but our space is better reserved for local issues.

Finally, a letter must absolutely, positively be signed and a mailing or residential address given. And the answer is yes, we're not above verifying both if the letter warrants.

Finally, to those folks who would inquire "How can you print what that yo-yo had to say?" (which, by the way, no one has asked) we'll only answer, "what gives any newspaper the right not to?"



Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

This will be the last in a truly forgettable series of essays on the month of March. What I am about to reveal is an undocumented scientific fact that you won't read about in the county agent's column. You see, the month of March begins the breeding season for tumbleweeds.

Yes, I know that all your life you have been taught that tumbleweeds were plants that dried up, broke off at the roots, and rolled, or tumbled, across country which ever way the wind blew them.

This is simply not true. Anybody who lives in the country for any length of time and observes the little buggars will tell you that.

First of all, tumbleweeds are prolific breeders. You can't trust them out of your sight for a moment. Many a time I have glanced out my kitchen window to see a couple of tumbleweeds cornered in one of the lots. Some time later, I'll look out again, and there'll be a whole crowd of them.

Tumbleweeds are social animals. They congregate in great colonies usually along a fence line. Often, they are so busy reproducing themselves that the very fence itself will disappear beneath all the hordes of tumbleweeds.

When the baby tumbleweeds reach a certain age, they are kicked out of the colony on a coming-of-age mission in which they travel the land on their own to faraway lands in order to discover their purpose in life. Many of them will start new colonies of their own.

Tumbleweeds are hostile creatures. Once, while sitting on my porch swing, trying to relax and take in a little sun in spite of gale-force March winds (this is a true story), my son, who was about four years old at the time, came tearing around the corner of the house as fast as his little legs could carry him, stark terror written all over his face.

Before I had time to react, here came a gigantic tumbleweed, measuring maybe six feet in diameter, heading straight for my little boy. I did the only thing a quick-thinking mother could do — snatched him up and drew him into the protection of the fenced-in-yard.

Tumbleweeds hate being fenced out of a place. That one pressed against the gate, determined to break in. In a couple of hours, several more had joined it, but they were unable to break down our defenses.

Tumleweeds do have a few natural enemies. Horses, for example, like to nibble on them, and certain big kids like to play a game of "kick the tumbleweed" once in a while. (This could help to explain their natural nastiness.)

I know this may sound heartless and cold, but the only way to get rid of the little devils is to burn them. I'm sorry if the violence offends you, but to a country family, it's them or us. It's usually over quick; the fire is a fast-burning one.

You have to watch out though. By the time the next March rolls around, a whole squad of tumbleweed relatives is likely to show up, bent on revenge.

Be sure and keep plenty of matches handy.

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY
March 16

A group in Snyder is attempting to address compulsive overeating as a disease similar to alcoholism, it was reported Sunday.

They have formed a local chapter of Overeaters Anonymous and have been meeting weekly each Monday since last October. A second weekly session is now planned each Thursday.

MONDAY
March 17

An equipment problem at the Snyder water treatment plant which will likely cause a temporary shutdown of the facility within the next few weeks was reported Monday.

The plant's operation will be curtailed — an action which will leave the city briefly dependent on stored reserves — due to a "disentigrated" bushing in a paddle wheel device in the basin.

TUESDAY
March 18

Snyder Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway has informed city officials he will be resigning his city-held post as municipal court judge, it was reported Tuesday.

He will continue to serve in his elected office as JP, including overseeing all JP court actions filed through the local courthouse.

Callaway said he will give up the municipal court post due to a recent legal decision by the Texas Attorney General which reversed an earlier AG decision which dated back to 1940.

Olney Savings, a Texas S&L which dates to 1927 and currently operates branch offices in 35 cities, has made application to purchase the local operating rights for First Federal Savings and Loan.

Such an application must be approved by both the Texas Savings and Loan Department and the Federal Home Loan Bank. A hearing with the state agency regarding the application is now set for April 21.

Plans to consider bids for a computer system and the organization of a new committee charged with developing membership were given board approval Tuesday by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

The computer addition will come before chamber directors again in April. At that time, the board will review cost estimates and decide if the addition to the chamber operation is justified.

With expenses now projected at near $24,000, Snyder's annual chamber of commerce banquet which drew state and national attention last Saturday is expected to be a "break-even" effort.

The extra benefit of "a million dollars worth of publicity" was pointed out also during a wrapup report offered chamber board members Tuesday.

Representatives from 23 West Texas high schools were in Snyder Tuesday as part of the third annual Western Texas College land and livestock judging events. A total of 37 livestock teams and 17 land teams competed.

WEDNESDAY
March 19

City Engineer Rick Conner has accepted a similar position with the City of Kerrville and will be leaving Snyder in mid April.

It was reported Wednesday he will serve as director of engineering At Kerrville.

THURSDAY
March 20

The major installation project of two 140-ton columns at the C02 removal facility at the Sun gas plant equaled some one-half million added dollars to the local economy, it was reported Thursday.

And project officials note these dollars were spent in Scurry County rather than somewhere else in major part because of the local oilpatch skills available here.

A split 5-2 ballot of the Snyder school board Thursday authorized school administrators to notify a teacher employed by the system of "an intent not to renew" her contract."

The board met in a 1½ hour closed session to discuss the matter and emerged at 2:10 p.m. to take the public vote.

A four-month undercover investigation headed jointly by the Scurry County sheriff's office and Snyder police resulted in the arrests of 19 individuals on drug trafficing charges Thursday night.

A called grand jury session Thursday returned 50 sealed felony indictments involving 27 individuals. More arrests were expected Friday.

FRIDAY
March 21

For the second straight year, Gail Henderson has captured the county spelling title.

She garnered the top prize during Friday's contest held in the Fine Arts Theatre at Western Texas College. Second place winner was Angela Vaughn, a sixth grader at East, and the third place winner was West fourth grader Katie Perkins.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

With mixed emotions as to the morality of requiring certified Texas school teachers to undergo basic literacy testing — and with no small amount of sympathy mixed, I must admit, with just a tad of revengeful, long belated glee — I have watched the unfolding of "The Great TECAT Controversy" in multi-media local and national coverage. Last week as I watched Ted Koppel of ABC interview Governor Mark White and several incensed teachers from across the state, the irony of it all began to occur to me.

The Class of 1946 of Snyder High will covene for its 40th anniversary in August. I am a proud member of that group. We in that class remember, with a loving admiration, Miss Katherine Northcutt. She gave the fastest pop quiz in the West! We in American History class were convinced she stayed up nights searching the textbook for questions we could not answer. Our complaints, whines, whimpers and excuses fell on deaf ears as we "made her day" most every Tuesday or Friday. There was no recourse, and democracy, though skillfully taught, was never practiced in American History class.

Our beleaguered Texas school teachers should thank their lucky stars that "K-K-K-Katy," as she was affectionately called when not in hearing distance, did not have a part in preparing the TECAT.

Yours truly,
Waylon Bruton

Snubbed director remains in spotlight

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences usually manages to step on some toes with its nominations for Oscars, and this year is no exception. In the spotlight on the eve of Monday night's presentations is a director who was ignored.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A snub of director Steven Spielberg has thrown the contest out of focus as the film world's elite gather for the 58th time to bestow Academy Awards for the finest achievements of the year.

Unlike the last two years, which were dominated by "Amadeus" and "Terms of Endearment," the Oscars to be handed out Monday night are likely to be spread among a variety of films.

"Out of Africa" and "The Color Purple" topped the nominations with 11, but chances for the latter were left in doubt when Spielberg failed to get a nomination as best director.

"Prizzi's Honor," 79-year-old John Huston's dark comedy about the underworld, collected the most critics' awards as well as eight Oscar nominations, a tie with the audience-pleasing "Witness." The fifth nominee for best picture, "Kiss of the Spider Woman," got four nominations.

The 230 Academy Award voting members stirred up controversy — not unusual at Oscar time — when they ignored Spielberg, the biggest moneymaking director ever. His distributor, Warner Bros., called the snub shocking, and "The Color Purple" actors jumped to his defense.

"It's a small bunch of people with small minds who chose to ignore the obvious," said Whoopi Goldberg, who was nominated as best actress after winning a Grammy last month.

"I know that Steven knows that all 11 nominations are his nominations," said Margaret Avery, nominated as supporting actress.

Spielberg has agreed to attend the festivities at the Los Angeles Music Center though he declined to be a presenter. He could still make it to the stage if "The Color Purple" wins as best picture. He is a co-producer.

Other notables also to appear despite disappointments are Jane Fonda, unnominated for "Agnes of God," though Anne Bancroft and Meg Tilly were; Cher, overlooked for her work in "Mask"; Rebecca De Mornay, not named for "Runaway Train," though Jon Voight and Eric Roberts were.

Bob Hope, Audrey Hepburn, Michael J. Fox, Whoopi Goldberg, Alan Alda, Teri Garr, Sally Field, Barbra Streisand and Robin Williams are among the emcees or presenters lined up by Stanley Donen, producer of the telecast to be aired by ABC beginning at 9 p.m. EST.

"The show's length is the hardest thing to plan," Donen says. "It's like a football game: You never know how long it will be or whether it will go into overtime. How do you prevent filibusters? That's easy — you start the music and go to commercial.

"Now I have butterflies in my stomach about the show being too short."

One performance Oscar security chief Jerry Moon hopes to avoid is the acceptance of an award by an imposter, like the one who disrupted the Emmy Awards last September.

Moon said the presence of Jane Fonda as a co-host also was a concern, because of her political activism.

"Her presence usually incurs the wrath of different groups," Moon said.

At the Sept. 23 Emmy Awards, Barry Bremen, 38, stepped up to the podium and accepted Betty Thomas' best supporting actress statue, claiming the "Hill Street Blues" actress wasn't at the ceremony. But she was, and Bremen was arrested.

This year, Paul Newman, who has been nominated six times as best actor and once as producer, but has never won, was voted an honorary award "in recognition of his many memorable and compelling screen performances and for his personal integrity and dedication to his craft."

Charles "Buddy" Rogers, who starred in the first picture to win the Oscar, "Wings," has been named for the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award. The Board of Governors also voted an honorary award to Alex North, who has been nominated 15 times for musical scores from "A Streetcar Named Desire" to "Under the Volcano."

Nutmeg ballet gains prominence

TORRINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Stephanie Murrish began her 60-hour work week by wrapping her toes in paper towels and stuffing her feet into pink satin dance slippers.

"It's for support," she says. "These slippers are thin."

And thin is the reward Ms. Murrish gets for working nights and weekends, often six days a week. Unpaid, she's just doing what it takes to become a professional ballet dancer.

"I used to want to be a parttime veterinarian and a parttime ballet dancer," she says. "I figured the vet job would give me money for my pointe shoes. Now all I want to do is dance. I want to be a prima ballerina."

Ms. Murrish, 19, is one of Nutmeg Ballet's 40 dancers who share grueling work, a love of dance and a dream of performing with a world-class ballet company.

The odds are against them, says former professional dancer Sharon Dante, founder of the Nutmeg and its artistic director. For women, only one in 10,000 hopefuls will get into one of the major companies; for men, the odds drop to one in 1,000.

"Given a choice between being a professional quarterback or a ballet dancer, I would take the quarterback," Ms. Dante says. "A ballet dancer will work very hard for nine hours a day, seven days a week, sometimes getting a small paycheck or no paycheck at all.

"We don't have to eliminate them (from the school), they eliminate themselves," Ms. Dante, a petite woman, says with a laugh and a toss of her head.

Ms. Dante founded Nutmeg in 1971, two years after she started her Torrington School of Ballet, many of whose students had come as toddlers and trained for years before moving on to the Nutmeg Ballet, where they perform in exchange for stage experience.

Ms. Dante, the principal teacher at the ballet, struts into the huge dance room, shouting orders in French and English. Working with her students for an hour or two before the formal class begins often stretches her weeks to 70 or 80 hours.

Although the Nutmeg Ballet is tucked away in a small industrial New England city, it has recently gained national recognition. In July 1984, homegrown ballerina Victoria Mazzarelli won the only gold medal presented at the International Ballet Competition in New York City. She is now with the Basel Ballet in Switzerland.

A recent graduating class of four sent two students to professional dance companies, one to study and dance at Yale University and one to drama school at New York University.

"I never dreamed (the ballet) was going to do what it did," Ms. Dante says.

Your Birthday

March 23, 1986

Major accomplishments are in the offing for you in the year ahead. Lady Luck will pay a prominent role in helping you to achieve them through ways you'd least expect.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your workload can be lightened considerably today if you use your head as well as your back. Apply sensible methods when performing tasks. Major changes are ahead for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'd be smart to take a back seat today if you encounter a dominating character in a social setting who wants the whole stage for himself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) For the sake of harmony on the home front, let everyone be heard concerning a major family issue. The full mix will produce the solution.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An important plan could run into serious opposition today if you present it prematurely. Be conscious of your timing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're reasonably adept at managing your own financial affairs today, but it's best not to tell another how to handle his funds. Your counsel will be unsound.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When conversing with friends today, a topic might come up for discussion on which you and your mate have opposing view. Don't air your differences.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Opportunities will slip past you today if you put them off until tomorrow. When something fortuitous develops, act upon it immediately.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In social involvements with friends today, don't feel you have to be the center of attention. You'll gain more admirers by being a little laid back.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) For the sake of your image, don't brag about your accomplishments today. Let someone else toot your horn.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Even though you may secretly feel your ideas are superior to those of others today, nothing will be gained by starting a debate. Button up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Joint ventures that require a financial outlay on your behalf must be carefully thought through today or you could come out on the short.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't take it upon yourself today to make a major decision without first consulting your mate. If it goes wrong, and it might, you'll catch a lot of heat.

March 24, 1986

Things won't be dull in the year ahead where your work or career are concerned. Exciting and unexpected changes are in the offing that could contribute to your advancement.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against tendencies today to attempt to do things beyond your physical or mental capabilities. Seek help where needed. Major changes are ahead for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Funds you have earmarked for necessities could be blown on something frivolous if you're not budget-minded. Spend sensibly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely selective regarding the guests you invite to your place today. Don't include someone who can't get along with others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When dealing with co-workers today, make it a point to be doubly tolerant. Criticism or a caustic remark could create something unpleasant.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you expect longevity from things that you now own, be sure to take proper care of them today. Breakage is likely if you're careless.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When negotiating a matter of importance today, be sure both parties clearly understand the agreement, or later one might claim to have meant something else.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Plot your course carefully today or you might end up a victim of your own poor planning. Look ahead and program each step.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Friends look upon you as the Rock of Gibraltar in their time of trouble. Today they may bring you more complications than you can manage.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you'll get verbal commitment from others regarding their willingness to assist you, but when the chips are down, their support won't be forthcoming.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Maintain your powers of concentration today, and keep your mind on what you're doing. But if you do make a mistake, don't cover it up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you fail to attend to may hamper your freedom of movement today. Don't sweep it under the rug because it could cause more trouble later.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Indecisiveness is something you may have to combat today. If you keep changing your mind, associates won't want to deal with you.

Houston is coping with housing, oil slump

HOUSTON (AP) — Five years ago, when the oil industry and the local economy were healthy and thriving, Marty and Lynn Hokanson thought a two-story Victorian-style home that sold for $99,500 was a good investment.

The Hokansons expected the three-bedroom house in southwest Houston would follow a longtime trend and rapidly increase in value.

"It was a good neighborhood. There was so much growth then," recalls Mrs. Hokanson, an attorney. "The other houses were selling for $200,000 to $250,000 and we figured our house would go up 10 percent to 12 percent a year. It didn't turn out that way."

The Hokansons' dreams, and those of thousands of other Houston homebuyers, fell victim to the glut of houses on the local market and a long spiraling downturn in the city's oil-based economy.

After Mrs. Hokanson started working downtown, the couple decided to move and put the house on the market. That was three years ago, and they still have not found a buyer. A real estate agent recently told them the highest price they could get would be $85,000.

Homes all over Houston purchased in the boom years of 1978 through 1982 have languished on the market, unsold and often unneeded.

Experts, however, believe the worst may be over. The Houston housing market has started to stabilize, with the number of vacancies now steady and new residential construction at a two-decade low.

"The good news is that 1986 could and should be the 'bottoming out' year, the turning-the-corner year, the year that Houston begins its recovery from our worst slump ever," said Frank Gentry, president and chief operating officer of American Mortgage Co.

Houston's housing glut and the international oil glut came at about the same time.

In 1983, with petroleum prices beginning to fall on world markets, the oil and gas industry — the life-giving blood of the nation's fourth-largest city — fell on hard times. The rapid influx into Houston of newcomers slowed. Jobs that once seemed plentiful became scarce. Developers and builders found themselves stuck with huge inventories of unsold houses and some were forced into bankruptcy.

Home foreclosures soared, jumping from 9,023 in 1984 to a record 16,571 last year, marketing researcher Al Birdwell said.

The Veterans Administration in February auctioned about 250 homes as part of a sale of repossessed residential and investment properties, and some Houstonians who were working got bargains.

A four-bedroom house, complete with fireplace, sun deck and master bedroom Jacuzzi, sold for $7,000. A three-bedroom home was purchased for $4,000 — and the new owner charged the sale on two VISA cards.

Housing starts hit a 20-year low of 13,600 during 1985.

COFFEE vs HEART

Drinking large amounts of coffee may increase cholesterol levels in the blood, enough to double the risk of heart disease, report Norwegian scientists from Univ. of Tromso. Their study of 15,481 coffee-drinking men and women found that as the amount of coffee consumed rises, the cholesterol in the blood rises dramatically. The Natl. Coffee Assoc. claims that other human studies disprove this correlation.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My sister had a blood clot in her leg. Five months later, she got clots in her lungs. After 12 days in the intensive care unit on a respirator, she went back to her room, then she got more clots and died. Her doctor said it was because she was overweight, but she wasn't that heavy. He won't answer my questions or talk to me at all.

DEAR READER — Your sister seems to have died from a pulmonary embolism, a blood clot that was carried in the circulation from the leg to the lungs, where it became wedged. Although this is a serious and sometime fatal condition, it is treatable. Some doctors use heparin to prevent clots from forming in the leg veins; other physicians may give streptokinase, a drug that dissolves clots once they have formed.

I think it's peculiar that the doctor won't answer your questions. In similar circumstances, I would be more than willing to explain your sister's condition, because the outcome was disastrous and I think you have a right to know what happened and why.

Overweight people may have a higher incidence of pulmonary embolism; however, obesity was not the cause of her death. She died of a treatable disease.

I could not assess your sister's treatment without fully reviewing her records, so I cannot say whether or not her doctor was negligent. I can, however, say that his attitude is reprehensible and needs improving. Call the chief of staff at the hospital at which your sister was a patient; ask him or her to help you. This may be an instance where a little professional pressure from your doctor's colleagues might produce the answers you need.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 86 and have had hives for a year. I am taking Benedryl but can't get rid of them. What should I do?

DEAR READER — See an allergist, who may either identify the source of your hives or prescribe more effective treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My colon was removed nine weeks ago, with just enough left to tie to the small intestine and rectum. What foods should I eat or not eat?

DEAR READER — Your dietary restrictions may have as much to do with the illness for which you required surgery as the operation itself. You can obtain the best advice from your surgeon, in conjunction with the hospital dietitian.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What can you tell me about vitiligo? It is getting progressively worse on my 24-year-old son. Is there a research facility where this disease is being investigated? Would the drug Psoralen help?

DEAR READER — Vitiligo is a harmless skin disease of unknown cause, characterized by irregular patches of depigmentation. The disease usually affects exposed portions of the body.

Psoralen is a compound that, when applied to areas of vitiligo and exposed to ultraviolet light, stimulates the production of melanin (skin coloring). It must be used carefully in patients with vitiligo because the medicine can cause the skin to become too sensitive to light; it also can cause allergic reactions. Many medical centers are investigating the problem of vitiligo. At present, treatment is best left ot the judgment of a qualified dermatologist.

The French sometimes are a dotty lot. In 1975, they passed a law forbidding the use of English words to sell or promote products. I see this as an extension of a peculiar tendency: an absolute refusal to speak anything but French to foreigners. I used to have a fair grasp of French, but I can remember struggling with a declension in Paris while the partner in the conversation shrugged his shoulders, pursed his lips and cast his eyes heavenward. "Je ne comprend pas, monsieur," he exclaimed, but I knew darned well he spoke English and French better than I.

Anyhow, the French passed this law, and I would not have bet a sou that it would be enforced. But enforced it was, primarily through the efforts of a powerful group of private citizens. According to news reports, the group has collected civil damages from about 40 sources, including the Paris Opera (for selling English-language programs at a performance of "Bubbling Brown Sugar") and Trans-World Airlines (for distributing boarding passes in English).

Judging from the degree of foreboding and trepidation, the French perceive English words as semantic termites, literally nibbling away at the supporting beams of Gallic culture. Americanisms may force the Republic "to lose our identity as a nation — give up our very soul" was the way Jack (not Jacques!) Lang, minister of culture, put it. Mon dieu!

Each month, the Secretariat for Technology and Communication publishes a blacklist of banned English words — as many as 100 a month. French TV and radio are urged and expected to favor French-speaking entertainers. The High Commission for the French Language labors mightily to mint new words to replace the imported variety. "Disc-jockey," "computer," "joystick" and "blackout" are words that are now fini. The French are making an heroic effort to avoid what has been termed "Anglo-Saxon hegemonism."

I think the whole situation is amusing, because Americanisms aren't going to be wished away; let's face it, the words are catchy, blunt and to the point.

I believe this Franco-paranoia is beginning to affect increasing numbers of U.S. doctors. On our side of the Atlantic, many M.D.s would like to see certain words banned from English: "malpractice," "incompetent" and "impaired," for instance. "Malpractice" is a dreaded word; it makes the skin crawl, the juices flow and the gut contract. "Incompetent" and "impaired," when applied to physicians, are adjectives that are truly terrifying; the terms provoke fear because each and every doctor is a potential candidate and the profession, as a whole, has been alternately unwilling and unable to do much about colleagues who are impaired or incompetent. "Mistake" is another word that doctors would like to see stricken from the language; every practicing physician is only one step from that one each day. Some doctors, who would like to ban the clauses "I am sorry" and "I don't know," believe that if they say these words, the patient's next visit will be to an attorney.

As I was sitting in a staff meeting at the hospital last month, I listened to one of my associates define doctors as "a bunch of uptight guys wondering who's going to s---w them next." I swear that's a quote. Aside from being mouthwatering hors d'oeuvres of Anglo-Saxonism, the statement says a lot about the type of fare now being served up at doctors' professional tables. In my opinion, many of us are angry, resentful and frustrated, a far cry from the dedicated and considerate healers we once upon a time thought we'd be. We are not victims of a psychoneurotic complex; we are suffering from a medical-industrial complex.

We live in the Era of Exasperation. Some doctors say that medical practice is no longer fun. Fewer physicians are encouring their children to enter careers in medicine.

However, things are tough all over. Everyone has problems. Nobody I know seems to be having an easy time. Nonetheless, medically, unpleasant words are no more likely to go away than the short, punchy Anglo-Saxon guerrilla words that continue to infiltrate the Gallic establishment. I'm afraid we doctors and the French are just going to have to accept reality and learn to adapt to change. N'est-ce pas, guys?

'Silent' comic prefers his job

EDITOR'S NOTE — As comics go, Gene Perret is a scream, albeit a silent one. You've been laughing at his jokes for years, though you probably don't know his name. That's fine with him. As Bob Hope's ghostwriter for the past 17 years, this unknown comic prefers his behind-the-scenes role to that of the star.

By Hugh A. Mulligan
AP Special Correspondent

SAN MARINO, Calif. (AP) — Gene Perret is a funny man. He can be funny on demand, sometimes coming up with 200 jokes a day.

Sometimes on command, too.

Perret has stood in the wings with his yellow legal pad at parade rest, while Bob Hope laid royalty in the aisles at command performances for Queen Elizabeth II, King Bhumibol Adulyadej of Thailand and, just a week ago, King Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden.

In Siam, Hope needed more jokes in a hurry to keep the king from taking over the show with his saxophone. His backstage ghost obliged with a half dozen quips between regal riffs.

At the London Palladium, minutes before the curtain rose on a command performance for the queen's Silver Jubilee, Hope was going through his cue cards and discarded a gag that made him uncomfortable. "Hey," protested Perret, with wounded pride of authorship, "that's a funny line. The queen will love it."

"Oh, yeah?" shot back Hope. "Then you get out there and do it."

This cautionary tale illustrates two delicate truths about professional comedy writers: Their material has got to fit the star's style like a Savile Row suit, with no awkward padding, and once the spotlight silhouettes that famous ski nose, nobody really writes Hope's act.

"Bob Hope," Perret says with sincere admiration, "may have as many as 12 writers sending him 500 gags a day, by phone or ZAP mail. He's got two writers in Toronto who sometimes drive all the way to Buffalo to make the air mail ZAP package, but he still writes his own monologues. He edits and reshapes and assembles it. The raw material may come from writers like me, but the finished product is his.

"My stuff is all just words until someone like Hope gives it some zing and tops it off with that delightful sneer."

Perret has been writing for Bob Hope for 17 years.

Before that he wrote for Bill Cosby, Phyllis Diller, Jonathan Winters, Jim Nabors, "Laugh In," "Mama's Family" and "The Carol Burnett Show." He was chief writer and producer for "The Tim Conway Show" and "Welcome Back, Kotter," winning three Emmys and a Writers Guild award for comedy.

Before that he was an engineer with General Electric in his home town of Philadelphia, working on "switching gear, the high voltage stuff." He describes himself as "a bad engineer, who graduated to supervisor" and wound up "the resident comic, emceeing retirement and 25-year parties."

His days at the management microphone struck the spark that ignited his real talents. He found himself mailing off jokes to comics, telephoning comics in need of a quick fix for their act.

People are so busy these days that not much time is spent getting together to visit. But, after the chili supper, some 250 people visited with each other before attending the open house and the programs.

Everyone enjoyed the evening. We do appreciate the thoughtfulness of all who were responsible.

To the editor,

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to the many people for their thoughtfulness and interest in Snyder Public Schools, its teachers, and support personnel.

A special thanks is extended to the school administrators and Mayor Rod Waller for having declared Tuesday as Teacher Appreciation Day. The note of greeting and Sesquicentennial memento from the Snyder Board of Trustees and Administration were a pleasant beginning for "our" day.

The parents and friends of education have made this past week memorable. Their kind remembrances, words, and food have lifted our sagging spirits.

My gratitude goes to those students who expressed concern for their teachers' passing T.E.C.A.T. Many left Friday afternoon with hugs (in elementary school at least) and shouts of, "Good luck!"

We want our students to have the best education possible, and we want to share in it.

The coverage of education and related events is important to our community. Thanks to you and your staff for keeping us informed on what has happened, is happening, or is about to happen.

Sincerely,
Dorothy Kayser

Senior Center sets contest

Prizes await the winners of the Senior Center's Easter bonnet contest on Wednesday morning.

Men and women are invited to enter the contest, with judges to announce the winners at lunch time. The contest begins at 10:30 a.m.

The center will be closed on Thursday and Friday for an Easter holiday.

VIVA volunteers at the center are reminded that March 31 is the deadline for turning in their record of hours worked before the recognition banquet in April.

O'Bannion makes UT honor roll

AUSTIN–Jack O'Bannion of Snyder has been named to the engineering honor roll at the University of Texas for the 1985 fall semester.

To achieve the engineering honor roll, a student must have maintained at least a 12-hour course load throughout the semester, passing all courses with a minimum GPA of 3.25.

The world's largest city in area is Mount Isa, Queensland, Australia — it's about as big as Switzerland, says National Geographic.

Showing at the Coliseum March 31–7:30 p.m. Admission is FREE

One of the most powerful pictures ever made—based on the dramatic true story of Tom Williams and his wife Pam in their battle with death and their victory of love. Tom was born and raised in Snyder, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Williams of Route 2.

Here is the inspirational and uplifting story of all-consuming trust and of the great provision of God. You cannot help but watch...and weep ...and laugh...and go away changed!

This moving film is a must for every Christian who desires a deep, abiding walk with God, for every family member who wants his family to be a warm and loving unit, and for every married couple who longs to experience the ultimate meaning of true love and intimacy.

This 79-minute color film will be shown at the coliseum in Snyder on Monday night, March 31st, at 7:30 p.m. Come and meet Tom and Pam in person. ADMISSION IS FREE, but an offering will be taken to help with expenses.

Dr. Williams is now a nationally and internationally known evangelist and has spoken in every state and many foreign countries.
