J.T. Waddell, left, and Bill Powell of Caldwell Electric Co. prepare to hoist a pump that was damaged by flooding in Big Spring. Much of the city is without water service pending repairs.

Much of Big Spring still without water

BIG SPRING (AP) — At least half of this West Texas city — including a hospital and school buildings — were still without water today as authorities worked to fix pumps that have been on the fritz since the weekend, officials say.

All classes except for those in the high school, where final exams are under way, were canceled today because of the lack of water, said school superintendent Lynn Hise.

And at Malone Hogan Hospital, all but emergency surgery has been temporarily banned while workers take care of routine tasks using bottled water, officials said.

"I never knew you could be a nurse without washing your hands," said one nurse who declined to give her name. "Luckily, things have been slow."

As many as 90 percent of the city's 30,000 residents either went without water or had extremely low pressure Tuesday because of the malfunctioning pumps at the local water treatment plant, City Works Director Tom Decell said.

All four pumps at the 35-year-old plant have failed at various times over the last three days, and two have been shipped to Odessa to have major repair work done, Decell said.

A city police spokesman said some low-lying areas had their water service restored early today as firefighters pumped water into the system from fire trucks.

"But that doesn't pressurize the system and get water to higher ground," he said. "It may be tonight before the water comes back on fully."

A local cafeteria, although it had some water, was forced to close an hour early Tuesday night as dirty dishes stacked up on some of the tables.

Decell said the pumps at the water treatment plant malfunctioned Saturday night, causing mechanical failures that led to the flooding of the plant's pump station.

When the station flooded, electrical motors were shut down. Those motors had to be taken from the plant and serviced at a local electric company Tuesday, he said.

Decell said the city was drawing water from well fields and routing water through Comanche Trail Park and Big Spring State Park to serve the southern part of the city.

Acting City Manager Hal Boyd said he was uncertain if Saturday night's violent weather caused the damage to the pump.

"We're not ruling out that a power surge brought on by the lightning didn't cause this," said Boyd.

Some tornado damage emotional

SWEETWATER (AP) — Extensive emotional scars as well as destruction were left in the wake of an April 19 tornado that cut through a large section of this West Texas city.

Officials said 58 of the 146 units in the Sun Village center were destroyed as the twister cut a swath through the city. The storm killed one man, injured 95 others and caused about $20 million in damage, they said.

Project officials said Monday it will be six to eight months before Sun Village is rebuilt.

"Our little community — that's what we called it," said Kathleen Lewis, executive director of the Sweetwater Housing Authority, which manages the Sun Village project.

"It's been hard on all of us to break up the community," she said. "This was their home, not just their apartment. Our goal is to have it back like it was."

Pauline Helms, whose apartment was destroyed, said she moved into an older, smaller duplex across town from the project.

MISD board told teachers won't seek salary hikes

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland school teachers won't ask for across-the-board salary increases this year as the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees faces a budgetary crisis of declining state and local revenues.

Teachers say they want to maintain current salaries and benefits in the face of falling oil prices and have asked that school trustees approve four requests that would include implementing a state-sanctioned salary schedule, retain its annuity and sick leave benefits, provide full funding of the teacher career ladder and specify salaries on all faculty contracts.

During a presentation Tuesday by the Joint Teacher Salary Committee, spokesman Cary Davis told school trustees that "the past 12 months have not been the greatest either for Midland or the teachers of Midland ISD. The many provisions of House Bill 72 have led to low morale among teachers in the district."

To improve morale, Davis said teachers are asking that the state-sanctioned salary schedule be passed on to all faculty members and continue its policy of providing a step for employees at the top of the salary scale by adding a step.

"We feel that a continuation of this policy would encourage those teachers with the most expertise to remain in the district and continue to strive to improve," Davis said.

Teachers also ask that the board retain the current annuity and sick-leave rebate benefits which provide $50 rebates for each unused sick day.

Davis said the benefits have proven to be valuable assets to the district in attracting and retaining qualified staff and would continue to do so. "These benefits have become part of the salary package, and their loss or partial loss would in reality mean a decrease in salary for hundreds of MISD employees," he said."

By fully funding the teacher career ladder, MISD can rid the district of a "major morale problem" and spend only a small amount of money in the process, Davis said.

"The current feeling among teachers is that it makes as much difference where and for whom they teach as it does how well they teach. By adopting the standards passed by the Legislature rather than the higher standards adopted by MISD, most of these problems would be alleviated.

"At the same time, we do express our appreciation for an appraisal system we consider superior to the one proposed by the state. Any system will be sujective in nature, however, when its product is people, and this subjectivity will only be heightened by higher standards," he said.

Teachers also believe a stated salary on their contracts would allow teachers to better plan for the coming year and would be a further demonstration of the board's prudence and good faith, Davis said.

Several teachers in MISD felt "victimized" by current system when the increase in pay they supposedly received actually amounted to a decrease from what they expected.

Mishap puts 100,000 at risk of cancer

MOSCOW (AP) — More than 100,000 people risk developing cancer because of exposure to radiation unleashed by the Chernobyl disaster, said an American doctor treating victims of the nuclear power plant accident.

Meanwhile, a Soviet physician, Dr. Angelina Guskova, was quoted by the government newspaper Izvestia on Tuesday as saying that 120 people from the Chernobyl area were being cared for at Moscow's Hospital No. 6.

Of those patients, 70 to 80 "are occupying our hearts and minds permamently," Ms. Guskova, the hospital's chief radiologist, was quoted as saying, indicating that their condition was serious.

According to official Soviet accounts, two workers were killed in the April 26 explosion and fire at Chernobyl's No. 4 reactor, and 17 people have died in hospitals since.

The accident at the power station, 80 miles north of the Ukrainian capital of Kiev, sent radioactive particles skyward and spread an invisible cloud of radiation over much of Europe that ultimately reached around the world.

Dr. Robert P. Gale, a U.S. bone marrow specialist in Moscow to help treat victims of the worst nuclear accident in history, indicated in an interview Tuesday night that the full human cost of the disaster may not be known for years.

Speaking live from Moscow in the British Broadcasting Corp. program "After Chernobyl," Gale said 300 people had sustained immediate injuries from the reactor blast, and that 35 of them were in danger of dying.

But he said it was not unlikely that a thousand or thousands of people in the Chernobyl area who were exposed to substantial levels of radiation would develop cancers in years to come.

He estimated the total number of people at risk of developing cancer at more than 100,000.

Gale, who arrived in Moscow within days after the explosion, returned to the Soviet capital on Sunday after an eight-day break at his home in Los Angeles.

He said he had performed 19 bone marrow transplants on victims, but added, "It is too early to say if they will live or not."

Bone marrow transplants, which are Gale's speciality, have potentially dangerous side effects, but are considered the only effective treatment for severe radiation exposure cases.

Intense radiation destroys bone marrow and can lead to death.

Ms. Guskova was quoted in Izvestia as saying that about 200 people were admitted to Hospital No. 6 after the accident, and that about 70 of them had been discharged after treatment.

She told Izvestia the third to sixth weeks are crucial in treating radiation sickness, and that during that period, the slightest infection or bruise can be "a source of complications."

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said on May 14 that 299 people were hospitalized as a result of the Chernobyl disaster, and Ms. Guskova's remarks indicated most of them had been taken to Moscow.

The English-language weekly Moscow News reported over the weekend that some victims had been taken to Kiev.

Musicians to conduct benefit for Chernobyl disaster fund

MOSCOW (AP) — Some of the Soviet Union's top pop and rock music stars, in the tradition of their Western counterparts, are giving a concert to raise money for a Chernobyl nuclear disaster fund, officials announced today.

Friday's concert in Moscow is being called "Account No. 904," after a nationwide account set up for disaster fund donations, and is the first of its kind in the Soviet Union, say officials of Roskontsert, the Russian Federation Concert Organization.

Pop singer Alla Pugacheva, rock groups Avtograf, Bravo and Kruiz, and balladeer Alexander Gradsky will be the featured performers, concert organizer Art Troitsky said in a telephone interview.

The concert will be held at the indoor stadium built for the 1980 Moscow Olympics, which seats about 25,000 people, and is expected to raise around 100,000 rubles, about $142,000, in ticket sales, Troitsky said.

He said the concert would be recorded and videotaped and organizers expect "much more money" in proceeds from their sale.

Troitsky said Ms. Pugacheva and other musicians had the idea for the concert. They approached Communist Party and Moscow city authorities and won approval for the idea, he said.

Exodus rumors 'just aren't true'

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Rumors of a mass exodus from Midland just aren't true, according to statistics compiled by Midland Realtor C. Neill Moore.

"There is no indication of a drastic exodus from Midland as soon as school is out," he said. And he says, figures he obtained from the Midland Board of Realtors, Texas Electric, Energas, and local moving companies substantiate his findings.

The Bright Side

In fact, figures obtained by Moore from Pery Connell, of United Van Lines, indicate 800 have moved into the Midland-Odessa area between Jan. 1, 1986 and May 1, 1986, split 50-50 between the two towns. According to Connell's findings, 85 percent - 680, had jobs, 5 percent were retired, and 10 percent were looking for work.

"There's no way we'll lose 20,000 people," he stated. "For one thing, for people to be moving, they have to put their home on the market. That's the way things are normally done, anyway." He found that as of May 14, 1986, there are 1,598 homes on the market, 21 less than May of 1985, and 54 more than April 1986. The average sales price has fallen from $98,300 in May 1984 to $78,873 in May 1986. Houses also are selling faster, falling from an average 158 days on the market in 1984 to 108 days in 1986.

One statistic that reflects the fear the rumored mass exodus has caused is the list price-selling price percentage, according to Moore. In May 1984, buyers were paying 94.1 percent of the listed price for a home; two years later, in May 1986, buyers are paying 89.3 percent of the asking price. "People are scared. They've decided they better take what they can get," he said.

Texas Electric reported 45,655 connections in April 1986, a gain of 500 from April 1985. Tesco showed a net loss of 12 connections between March and April, 1985 and March and April, 1986. Likewise, Energas reported 27,453 connections in March 1986, an increase of 402 connections.

Also, the Tall City's apartments are 82 percent occupied, with most move-outs buying homes, not leaving town, Moore says his study shows.

Connell's statistics show 93 moves from Midland to another Texas city between Jan. 1 and May 25, 1986, down five from the same period in 1985. Moves out of state were down to 67 for the same period, a drop of two from the same period in 1985.

Moore quoted spokespersons from Rocky Ford, Allied and Mayflower as saying there was little or no change from past years, while Bekins reported a 20 percent increase in activity. "I asked them how many they moved a month, and they said 40 to 50 — that's equal to about eight or nine moves," Moore commented.

He compiled the statistics after hearing the rumors and seeing the fear it caused. "We've got to do something to stop these rumors from going around. We do have problems, I'm not saying we don't. But we don't have the types of problems that are being publicized across the country."

"We have weak areas, but we have strong areas too, that can cover the weak spots. We can turn this around. We have the know-how and the ability. I'm not doing this for the publicity. I'm doing this because I love Midland, the city I've lived in for 26 years."

Goddess' flight back to dome Saturday 'risky,' officials say

AUSTIN (AP) — Airlifting the new, 1½-ton Goddess of Liberty statue onto the Capitol dome Saturday is a risky flight that will require extraordinary skill, officials say.

"We are approaching the installation as a very delicate operation that demands every precaution," Capitol architect Roy Graham said Tuesday in announcing details of the airlift.

"It is easier to take it off than to put it back on there," added Col. Herbert Purtle, state aviation officer for the Texas Army National Guard, which will fly the mission.

The original 16-foot statue, holding a lone star in its upraised hand, was removed in a helicopter airlift last November after 97 years on its 311-foot perch.

That zinc statue was so weather-beaten it had become a safety hazard.

The new Boss' Cafe in Irving offers a '50s style atmosphere combined with food made from fresh — not frozen — ingredients. "Our slogan is that these are the good old days, welcome back," says Ted Murray, one of the owners.

Cafe's atmosphere, food reminiscent of 1950s eateries

IRVING (AP) — Stepping into the new Boss' Cafe in Irving is like stepping back in time — in more ways than one.

With its neon lights and polished counter lined with bar stools, the decor is strictly '50s style. But the food also is reminiscent of the past because, from the beef for the hamburgers to the potatoes for the "curly-q-fries," all the ingredients are fresh, not frozen.

"Our slogan is that these are the good old days, welcome back," said Ted Murray, one of the owners. "It's reminiscent of the '50s and '60s but we're not dwelling on the past. We're incorporating the '80s and '90s into it."

The cafe is Murray's first venture in the restaurant business, but he and his partner, Sunnie Fernandez, plan to capitalize on the skills they have acquired through the years. Both have been involved in the real estate and construction business.

"Our background in marketing, management and restaurant construction has overcome the lack of real hands-on knowledge of the restaurant business quite well," Murray said.

"We thought about buying a franchise, and we decided we could do a better job," said Ms. Fernandez.

Despite her lack of hands-on experience, Ms. Fernandez has had a long family association with the restaurant business. Her grandfather used to serve hamburgers to cowboys from his chuck wagon in the early 1900s.

Ms. Fernandez' mother came to be known as Hamburger Lindsey because she could always be found with her father among the cowboys. When she grew to be more than 6 feet tall, she earned a new nickname.

"Because of her size, she got a nickname of being called 'The Boss,'" Ms. Fernandez said. "I don't remember her being called anything else, and my children call her 'Bossie.'"

The Boss is now 77 years old but she regularly visits her namesake to greet customers.

The cafe only seats about 50 people but Ms. Fernandez said that helps give it a friendlier atmosphere.

"I've had a number of people tell me this is one of the only places they would come in and eat alone and feel comfortable," she said.

By the end of the year, Murray and Ms. Fernandez hope to open three to five Boss' Cafes in the Dallas area.

"For what we're doing and what our goals are, this size is perfect," Murray said. "We'd rather have a bunch of these than a few large mega-restaurants.

"Our long-term goal is to pick specific cities in the United States and go put one of these in them. And then we will go to some international places."

Murray was a military pilot for 14 years and has traveled all over the world. He said there are several foreign countries where an American restaurant like the Boss' Cafe would would go over in a big way.

All of the restaurants would be distingished by their '50s atmosphere and emphasis on fresh ingredients.

For instance, the french fries are made from one-pound russet potatoes, cut before the customers' eyes.

"The reason we do that (make the patties) is if you buy meat that is pattied at the factory, the machine condenses it so much it's not juicy," Murray said. "We want to keep it as light as possible."

The menu also features chicken fried steaks, club steaks, chicken strips, a soup and salad bar, and chili dogs.

Murray said he makes his chili dogs based on a technique he picked up in his native Tulsa, Okla.

"I've grown up on these chili dogs and my son has too," Murray said. "If you don't follow the exact recipe, it's not the same. Everyone claims to have the best chili dogs, and the people in Tulsa do, and now we do."

Reedpoint Class of '86 class of one

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Depending on how you view it, Robin Riley was first in her class and last. She was prom queen and class president.

Robin Riley is the Class of 1986 at Reedpoint High School.

Reedpoint, a dot on Interstate 90 between Billings and Bozeman, became Ms. Riley's home about nine years ago after her family moved from California.

Most of Reedpoint's 160 residents watched as Ms. Riley was handed her diploma last week by her father, John, chairman of the school board.

The Class of 1986 isn't Reedpoint's first class of one. Ms. Riley's class adviser, Kelli Brewer, says there have been three such classes.

Ms. Riley said she plans to attend a vocational school in Great Falls, but it will be hard to leave Reedpoint "because everybody's family."

GODDESS

But with proper maintenance, the 1½-ton aluminum replacement that duplicates the original "should last almost indefinitely," said Patrick Rice of Washington University Technology Associates, consultants on the statue restoration.

Purtle said a twin-engine Chinook helicopter will carry the new statue in a nylon harness and arrive over the Capitol about 8 a.m. Saturday.

The helicopter will lower the statue over a vertical mounting pole atop the dome. Barring problems, the statue should be in place by 8:30 a.m., Purtle said.

"This is not as easy as it sounds. It's actually somewhat like threading a nearly invisible needle because the pilot can neither see the statue nor the vertical shaft," said Roy Graham, Capitol architect.

TEACHERS

"Had the salary schedule for 1984-85 been used rather than that for 1985-86, some teachers would have received as much as $500 additional money," he said.

Joint Salary Committee Chairman Dale Tervooren said the requests would not increase salaries and benefits, but only maintain them. He said he is confident that the board will approve most, if not all of the requests.

Sam Manning, president of the Midland Federation of Teachers, said he also is optimistic that the board will approve the requests, given the fact that teachers aren't asking for salary increases.

"I'm optimistic that the board will do what it can, he said. "People are hurting, they're out of work. A salary increase would be justified, given the economic conditions."

In other MISD Board highlights, trustees approved the placement of 115 additional teachers to Level II on the state Teacher Career Ladder.

Garland Chapman, assistant superintendant for administrative services, said 444 eligible teachers, including the 233 who received the $2,000 benefit last year, applied.

In addition, trustees divided the $16,000 Local Merit Pay for School Librarians among eight MISD librarians.

Trustees also approved on first reading new school hours for kindergarten students this fall.

Beginning in September, MISD half-day kindergarten hours will be from 8:15 to 11:15 a.m. for the morning session and 12:40 to 3:40 p.m. for the afternoon session.

The new hours were approved to comply with state law which requires kindergarten classes to meet a minimum of three hours per day with at least 1 hour and 15 minutes between sessions for teacher planning and lunch. No other school hours will change.

"I'm over here by myself," Mrs. Helms, 77, told the Dallas Morning News. "I'm lost. That's the only way I can describe it. We were all like a big family here. I'm trying to make myself as satisfied as I can, but it's a lot to get used to.

"I'm anxious to go back," she said. "There's not much to do anymore."

Showing his sketches to former prisoner of war Ernst Mayr, left, at a reunion in Mexia is former German officer Heinz Schafer. The men, along with 21 other former captives, Tuesday visited the prison camp where they were held more than 40 years ago. It is located at Mexia, about 100 miles south of Dallas. Above, some of those attending the reunion display a German flag. The event was planned as part of Mexia's Sesquicentennial celebration and many of the Germans say they particiapted in an attempt to strengthen the friendship between the United States and West Germany.

Former POWs recall dusty days

By DAVID PASZTOR
Los Angels Times-
Washington Post News Service

MEXIA, Texas — When the guard towers and twin rows of barbed wire became too oppressive, Walter Littmann and his fellow prisoners would search for a taste of freedom.

Usually, they found it in a small grove of mesquite and willow trees by a narrow creek.

The grove was the only shady spot around in 1943, when Littmann and his fellow German Army officers were prisoners at the Mexia Alien Enemy Internment Camp, the largest of 12 camps in Texas that housed World War II prisoners of war.

Littmann was among 23 former prisoners and their wives who returned Tuesday to the prison, now a state school for the mentally retarded, at the invitation of Mexia officials planning Sesquicentennial events.

The camp that had been their home for two years consisted of row upon row of one-story, white wood-frame barracks holding a total of 4,200 prisoners. Only 21 of the original buildings still stand, and they are used mostly as storage or maintenance buildings. The fences and guard towers are gone and none of the newer, red brick buildings were familiar to members of the group.

But a stand of trees on the far side of what is now an athletic field caught the attention of Littmann and several others.

They headed for it, their pace quickening as they got nearer, their conversation bubbling with excitement.

Their taste of freedom was still there, its trees older, the creek now dammed to form a small lake.

Littmann sat at a picnic table beneath the trees with Joachim Glueer. The two former lieutenants, who served in the Afrika Korps commanded by Gen. Erwin Rommel, drank in the shade that still colors their memories of captivity.

Sometimes on hot summer days, they said, the guards would let them leave their barracks — which stood where the athletic field now is — and relax beneath the trees. It became their oasis from the searing Texas sun, and a kind of psychological haven from prison life.

"In the summertime it was so damn hot here," Littmann said. "The trees were not quite so big, but sometimes it was very hot and dusty. This was the only green place."

For most, the former prisoners said, life in the camps consisted of working for area farmers or the U.S. Army, studying, playing soccer and trying to stay in shape.

In Glueer's memory, the camp was a barren, dusty place with few trees, a far cry from the well-tended green lawns and flower gardens that are now the school grounds. It seemed right, he said, that the camp now serves a more positive purpose as a school and hospital for the mentally handicapped.

Syrian vice president meets Gromyko

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Andrei A. Gromyko met with the Syrian vice president today in what Western diplomats have speculated is a Kremlin attempt to unite its criticism of U.S. and Israeli policies with that of its Arab allies.

The visit to Moscow by the Syrian official, Abdel Halim Khaddam, coincides with discussions between Soviet leaders and the Libyan government's No. 2 man, Abdel Salam Jalloud.

Jalloud was reported to have met Defense Minister Marshal Sergei L. Sokolov today, but the official Soviet news agency Tass did not say whether the two had agreed on new Soviet arms deliveries to Libya.

Tass gave no details of Gromyko's meeting with the Syrian vice president, and official media have not said how long either he or the deputy to Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy will stay in Moscow.

Jalloud was received by Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev and Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov on Tuesday.

On Monday, Gorbachev warned that any U.S. or Israeli attack on Syria or the Palestine Liberation Organization outside Israel would have "incalculable consequences," according to Denis Healey, foreign affairs spokesman for Britain's opposition Labor Party.

Healey was one of a group of British parliamentarians who met Gorbachev in the Kremlin.

In his meeting with Jalloud on Tuesday, Gorbachev condemned the U.S. raids on Libya on April 15, and Tass said vigilance and a high level of defense capacity were needed in case of future American attacks.

The meetings Gorbachev and Ryzhkov held with Jalloud were the first between leaders of the two countries since the U.S. bombing raids staged to punish Libya for its purported pro-terrorism policy.

Reports from Tass on the meetings and speeches at a dinner Ryzhkov gave for Jalloud did not make clear whether the Kremlin has agreed to increase arms deliveries to the North African nation.

But Tass said Ryzhkov lauded Libya in a dinner speech as "the country that has not wavered when faced with an outright imperialist aggression of the United States."

Tass quoted Jalloud as saying America's "criminal terrorist-style aggression" against Libya and Western reaction to the April 26 Chernobyl nuclear disaster "have confirmed that the capitalist West has no morals."

He was quoted as accusing the United States of "provocations and ruthless barbarous aggression" against his country since 1981.

Tension has risen lately in the Middle East following terrorist attacks, the U.S. raid on Libya and accusations by the United States that Syria and Libya are aiding terrorists.

Israel recently expressed concern at what it said were Syrian attempts to improve its military position in Lebanon.

Both Syria and Israel have denied any intention to go to war.

President Hafez Assad of Syria said Monday in Athens, Greece, that the United States and Israel were threatening to turn the world into a battlefield by using counter-terrorism as a pretext for armed attacks.

Syria signed a friendship treaty with Moscow in 1980 and is the Kremlin's strongest Middle East ally.

During Israel's invasion of Lebanon in 1982, the Israeli air force shot down about 80 Syrian planes and knocked out Syria's missile defense system on the border with Lebanon.

Western diplomats, speaking on condition they not be identified, said they expected the visits by the top Libyan and Syrian leaders to provide a forum for anti-American rhetoric and common criticism of U.S. and Israeli policies in the Middle East.

Small South Dakota town hosts space-age Landsat data complex

By SUZANNE MALICH

GARRETSON, S.D. (AP) — Across the road from a rural cemetery, near pastures where deer roam, stands a $50 million space-age complex of glass and steel, where scientists track the spread of radiation from the Soviet Union's Chernobyl reactor.

EROS Data Center, the nation's only government-run center for processing data from Landsat satellites, is an anomaly for this quiet southeastern South Dakota town of 963.

"Most of our people appreciate that they don't have to battle bumper-to-bumper traffic every day or contend with pollution," said Phyllis Wiepking, information officer for EROS, or Earth Resources Observation Systems.

The center's 350 employees, more than half of whom are scientists with advanced degrees, do occasionally have to contend with slow-moving tractors when they commute from nearby communities, including Sioux Falls, about 15 miles away.

When it was built in 1973, technology required that EROS be near the center of the continent and away from interfering radio and television signals. Though today's technology could deliver the signals from space almost anywhere, Garretson remains EROS' home.

Big things are happening in this small town setting.

Photographs produced by EROS, showing the Chernobyl nuclear reactor shortly after the April 26 accident, were published in newspapers and magazines throughout the world.

The Chernobyl photographs were enhanced by computer, giving the images more detail, said Allen Watkins, director of EROS.

"Our people were up most of the night and took the time to do the further analysis. Our sophisticated computer equipment allowed us to enhance the photographs as much as is possible," he said.

He said EROS was monitoring crops in fields near Chernobyl to see how they're being affected by radiation. Any damage from radiation will be visible in about two months, he said.

EROS provided pictures of the Chernobyl reactor to the CIA and other U.S. intelligence operations as well as to the news media, Watkins said. Other uses of EROS photos by the intelligence services are classified, he said.

Operated by the U.S. Geological Survey of the Department of Interior, EROS is a national archive and research facility for data collected by satellites and high-flying aircraft.

Some 7 million photographs and images of the Earth stored at the center are for sale to anyone, including foreign governments and private industry.

"Some of our customers have included the U.S. intelligence agencies that, for example, want to find out the crop yields in other countries such as the Soviet Union," said Watkins.

"Also, some of our orders have been spawned by the Iran-Iraq situation," he said, referring to those nations' prolonged war. "And the Chinese are always interested in what their neighbors are up to."

By analyzing the pictures, experts can monitor disasters, study the effects of acid rain, advise oil companies where to drill and keep track of urban sprawl.

The images are picked up by satellites called Landsats that orbit the Earth about once every 100 minutes. The electronic signal is relayed to EROS where it is changed, by computer, into photographs or tapes that computers translate into video screen images of the Earth's surface.

The satellites, about the size of a car, are capable of picking up images from anywhere in the world except the North and South poles, provided the area is free of clouds, said Watkins.

Starting in 1972, five Landsats have been launched, and a sixth is being built now, Watkins said. The satellites operate for about three years and are replaced as they go out of service, he said, adding that just one Landsat is fully operational now.

Watkins said that while some private data companies operate on a smaller basis than the government-run EROS, "there are no others in this country that process all the data and do all the interpretation at the level we do. No other facility has such a broad-based set of scientists. We have everything from agriculture experts, hydrologists, energy people and geologists."

Watkins said Landsat signals are received and processed at 12 points outside the United States, including centers in Australia, Argentina, Brazil, India, France, Sweden and Canada.

WORLD IN BRIEF

'Tanker war' broadens

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — The Persian Gulf tanker war, an offshoot of the Iran-Iraq war, has been broadening so much that fewer and fewer shipping lanes are safe.

"We no longer know what is a problem area and what isn't," said an official of the Muharraq Engineering Marine Shipping Co. in Bahrain.

Maritime company executives say 127 foreign ships have been attacked by both sides and at least 69 seamen have been killed and 23 wounded.

The conflict between Iran and Iraq began in September 1980 and the tanker war started in February 1984, when Iraq imposed an air and sea blockade on Iran's vital oil terminal on Kharg Island in the northeastern sector of the gulf.

Iran struck back by interdicting vessels in neutral waters to the south, chiefly to pressure Arab oil nations to discontinue financial and moral support for Iraq. But Iran since has broadened its end of the tanker war to include waters outside the Persian Gulf, in the Gulf of Oman.

The maritime executives said the Iraqis have crippled 74 vessels and the Iranians 53. They added that 50 seamen have been killed and seven wounded in Iraqi attacks, while 19 have been killed and 16 wounded in attacks by Iran.

Rule result of terrorism

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's new rule requiring diplomats to show passports when entering or leaving East Berlin is the communist nation's response to Western requests that it act against terrorism, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

Western sources speculated earlier that the East German move, initiated Monday, was an attempt to gain recognition of the Berlin Wall, erected in 1961, as part of the Soviet bloc nation's international border.

The West considers the wall between the Eastern and Western sectors merely a demarcation line inside Berlin, which was partitioned into zones overseen by the United States, France, Britain and the Soviet Union in 1945 following the Nazi defeat in World War II.

The Western powers do not recognize either the designation of the Soviet zone as East Germany's capital or the city's division, contending Berlin is legally a united city under four-power administration.

Subway rates to go up

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico City's mayor says the government will sharply raise the price of a subway ticket, which at a mere 1 peso — less than one-sixth of a U.S. penny — is the cheapest in the world.

Mayor Ramon Aguirre Velazquez told local reporters Monday that the federal government could no longer afford to subsidize the city's costs and that transportation fares would have to go up. His remarks were reported Tuesday in capital newspapers.

Aguirre said fares for the subway, buses and trolleys would probably rise in July to 20 pesos, about 4 cents. Bus tickets now cost 3 pesos, and the charge for the limited trolley service is 60 centavos, or less than 1 peso.

The current exchange rate is about 540 pesos to the dollar.

Police, black group clash

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police today used rubber whips to break up a group of black women marching to protest restrictions on riot victims' funerals, police said.

The clash in Kempton Park, a white town just east of Johannesburg, occurred when the women refused orders to disperse as they marched to a court to see the chief magistrate.

Elsewhere, police reported four more blacks slain in scattered unrest around the country. Two were burned to death by other blacks, and two were shot dead by police when a crowd attacked a foot patrol, police headquarters in Pretoria said.

At the Crossroads shanty city near Cape Town, government crews resumed clearing the rubble of shacks destroyed last week in fierce battles between rival groups of squatters.

Thousands of homes were razed in the fighting, leaving between 25,000 and 50,000 blacks homeless.

Assad concludes visit

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Syrian President Hafez Assad ended a three-day official visit to Athens today after reportedly seeking Greek help in mustering European support to counter charges that his government backs terrorism.

On Tuesday, the 55-year-old Syrian leader also held unexpected talks with Jordan's prime minister, whose government is seeking to soften Assad's support for Iran and heal inter-Arab rifts.

Assad, who arrived in Athens Monday on his first official visit to a Western nation in nearly eight years, left the Greek capital at about noon. Officials said they could not reveal his destination for security reasons.

France conducts test

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — France today carried out its third underground nuclear test in the South Pacific this year, exploding a device with the explosive yield of 2,000 tons of TNT, scientists here said.

Warwick Smith, the director of the New Zealand Seismological Observatory, said the test at Mururoa Atoll was monitored at the earthquake recording center in Rarotonga, the Cook Islands.

There was no immediate confirmation of the blast from the French government, or immediate reaction from increasingly vocal anti-nuclear nations in the South Pacific region.

Evangelists 'innocent'

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Three evangelists who gave a Greek youth a copy of the New Testament have been found innocent of charges that they broke the law by seeking converts in this officially Eastern Orthodox nation.

A three-judge appeals panel Tuesday overturned a lower court ruling that sentenced the missionaries — an American, a Greek and one with joint British and New Zealand citizenship — to 3½-year jail terms in 1984 on charges they tried to convert a 16-year-old boy.

The three had been charged under a 1939 anti-proselytizing law enacted by a Greek dictator.

Mitterrand may call vote

PARIS (AP) — Socialist President Francois Mitterrand was quoted today as saying he may call for early elections to challenge the conservative majority now in parliament, but gave no indication when that might take place.

Reagan to disregard SALT II limits unless alleged Soviet cheating stops

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he will disregard limits set by a 1979 treaty on U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons unless he is convinced by the end of the year that alleged Soviet cheating has stopped.

In a decision announced Tuesday the president condemned the unratified SALT II accord as "fundamentally flawed" and said he will update American military forces according to U.S. "strategic needs."

It was the first time the United States asserted a readiness to break out of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty signed by President Carter and the late Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at their Vienna summit, but never ratified by the Senate.

The U.S. could surpass treaty limits at the end of the year, when enough B-52s are equipped with air-launched cruise missiles to exceed one of the treaty's principal provisions.

In the meantime, however, Reagan ordered the destruction of two Poseidon nuclear submarines over the summer to clear the way for the eighth Trident submarine, which steams out of Groton, Conn., to join the fleet today. This will keep the number of missiles with multiple warheads within the 1,200 limit established by the treaty.

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas said Reagan should have gone further and scrapped the treaty at once. Moderates in Congress such as Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia chose to stress the dismantling of the two Poseidons as a sign of continuing U.S. observance of the controversial accord.

Two private supporters of arms control, however, blasted Reagan's decision as an ominous development.

"It's rock-headed thinking," Paul Warnke, the chief U.S. negotiator of SALT II, said in an interview. "Regrettably, it means we're going to have an offensive and defensive arms race."

Warnke said the Soviets would abandon the treaty if Reagan scrapped it and they would soon have 21,000 ballistic warheads aimed at the United States instead of the current 10,000.

"It's a tragic mistake in terms of American security," he said.

Spurgeon Keeny, president of the private Arms Control Association, said Reagan "repudiated his commitment to SALT II — the only existing constraint on strategic arms."

Keeny, a former U.S. arms control official, said "the threat to SALT II is being slipped through."

Liberal Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said continued compliance with the treaty was good news, but called the threat to abandon its limits later ominous.

"The restraints contained in the unratified SALT II treaty may remain the only buffer the planet has protecting us from a pell-mell rush for new weapons by both superpowers," he said.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., a liberal, concentrated his fire on the buildup of strategic bombers carrying cruise missiles.

The treaty set a ceiling of 1,320 on the combination of such bombers and missiles with multiple warheads. The United States is close to the limit and due to exceed it by the end of the year.

Markey said Reagan's action was "irresponsible and reprehensible" and tantamout to "a virtual declaration of war on arms control."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called the decision to continue treaty compliance sound, but added "it is regrettable that the president saw fit to bow to right-wing pressure and disparage the arms control rationale."

In the announcement, Reagan used some of the same anti-treaty rhetoric he employed while seeking the presidency in 1980. He also reiterated charges that the Soviets have broken several agreements with the United States.

A "fact sheet" distributed by the White House press office accused Moscow of four violations of SALT II alone and three areas of "ambiguous behavior."

The Soviets have vigorously denied the allegations and accused the United States of breaching superpower accords.

Reagan's announcement was immediately criticized by Dole, a potential contender for the GOP presidential nomination. "I am concerned that the decision sends the wrong signal to the Kremlin," the Kansan said. "We cannot continue to abide by an agreement — an unratified agreement, at that — which the Soviets are so blatantly violating."

Among Congressional moderates, Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., said he congratulated the president, and he told reporters "it leaves arms control hanging by a thread."

And Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said, "The president made a wise decision to continue adherence to the treaty."

Woman beats would-be purse thief with umbrella

NEW YORK (AP) — A bicyclist who allegedly tried to snatch the purse of an 87-year-old woman was thwarted when she screamed and beat him with her umbrella.

"I wanted to go and whack him some more when he was down, but they pushed me away. They wouldn't let me do that," said Vera Tucker, who suffered only minor injuries in Monday's incident.

Jose Ramos, 38, of New York City was arraigned Tuesday on charges of robbery, possession of stolen property and resisting arrest. Bail for Ramos, who had previously served time in prison after pleading guilty to an attempted robbery in 1983, was set at $4,500.

Police said Mrs. Tucker was walking Monday near her apartment on an exclusive block off Fifth Avenue when a bicyclist grabbed her purse and tried to pedal away.

Mrs. Tucker shouted for the thief to stop. When he did not, she screamed for help while whacking the thief with her umbrella until he fell off the bike.

Mrs. Tucker said she shouted for the thief to stop and she hit him as she ran, "because I can run. I made up my mind I was going to get him." She said she "hit him so hard, I gave him such a whack on the back that it knocked him off the bicycle."

Police said Ramos got up and staggered across the street trying to remount his bicycle, the purse swinging by its strap over the handlebars.

"I heard these very loud shrieks," said passerby Gregory Culley, 33. "I saw this elderly woman whapping a man on the head," he said. "I wouldn't like to have been him. The umbrella had a good bend in it."

Culley, who is 6-foot-5 and weighs 175 pounds, approached Ramos, who is 5-foot-7 and weighs 132 pounds.

"He tried to push the purse at me. He said 'Here it is. It's over. It's over,'" Culley said.

Culley said he wrestled the thief to the ground but the man wriggled free.

Palestinian-born professor killed

WYNCOTE, Pa. (AP) — The killings of a prominent Palestinian-born professor and his wife do not appear to be the work of an ordinary burglar, authorities said as they searched for a possible political motive in the stabbings.

A pregnant daughter also was injured in the attack in the couple's home Tuesday, while another daughter and a young grandson escaped injury by hiding in a closet.

Killed with "a 15-inch survival-type knife" were Ismail al Faruqi, 65, a Temple University professor in Islamic studies, and his wife, Lois, 59, said Lt. Detective Robert Krauser.

"It did not look like a routine burglary, if you get my drift," Krauser said, explaining why the FBI was called into the investigation.

Krauser said there were signs of a struggle at the surburban Philadelphia home, but authorities had been unable to determine if anything was stolen.

The couple's oldest daughter, Anmar el-Zien, 27, summoned police. Mrs. el-Zien, who is eight months pregnant, was reported in stable condition with stab wounds in the chest and both arms.

Al Faruqi, who was born in Palestine, lectured and taught at universities throughout the world and wrote a number of books. His wife was also a published scholar.

Police sources said the long knife was not a typical burglar tool and that thieves normally do not slash their victims repeatedly.

Corporate support

The nation's colleges appear to be the principal beneficiaries of the Reagan philosophy urging educational, social and charitable groups to place more reliance on support from the private sector.

The response on the part of the donors has been impressive. A report by the Council for Financial Aid to Education shows that for the first time in the agency's 30-year history, corporate contributions to American universities and colleges exceed donations from alumni.

For the 1984-85 academic year, gifts from all sources to American institutions of higher learning totaled $6.32 billion. Of this, $1.57 billion came from corporations, $1.46 billion from alumni with various foundations providing $1.18 billion. Those are impressive figures and point toward a significant change for colleges and universities where their funding is concerned.

While the support was upscale in all areas, it was the corporations' voluntary contributions that registered the biggest gain since the last report — a staggering 23.8 percent. Moreover, many corporations are supplementing their financial gifts with company products such as data processing equipment.

The general prosperity of the past few years may have prodded the corporations into parting with a greater share of their profits, but even so, their record of generosity to the colleges is something in which they, the administration and the American people can take pride.

Doubtless the generosity will result in improved educational programs that will, in turn, benefit business and industry.

Businessman endures Khadafy torture

WASHINGTON — This is the story of an American businessman who recently returned from a Libyan nightmare and is now in hiding from Moammar Khadafy's killers. The story has been confirmed by witnesses, who fear retaliation. We have agreed, therefore, to withhold all names.

Jack Anderson

The businessman, tempted by a multi-million-dollar offer to sell textiles to Libya, flew to Khadafyland, where he was cordially received. Contracts were signed; the profits rolled in. All the while, Libyan authorities gave him the red-carpet treatment.

But on his last trip to Libya, he was unaccountably arrested by secret police who questioned him for 16 hours — from noon until 4 a.m. He was taken to his hotel to pick up his belongings; then he was hauled back to secret police headquarters, which was located in a villa that had once been a private residence.

He was stripped naked and slammed into a narrow, cramped, basement cell, "approximately 3-by-7 feet, with no window, no toilet, no sanitary facilities." His clothes were returned, but he was provided nothing else except water and "an inedible, spicy Libyan soup and bread."

For 33 days, he was caged in this tiny cell. "The temperature was approximately 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and there were no showers, tooth brushes or other amenities, nor any change of clothes," he said. "The mosquitoes were so numerous that despite the intense heat it was necessary to sleep beneath the scratchy sackcloth bedding."

Back home, the businessman's wife began to worry when she didn't hear from him. "I called the manager of my husband's office," she said. "He also had not received any telexes. I then began to make repeated telephone calls to my husband's hotel room, but the operator always stated that he was out but had not checked out of the hotel. I then telephoned my husband's older brother, a lawyer in New York."

The lawyer and another brother took off for Libya to search for their missing brother. They got as far as Switzerland. "We were unable to obtain visas to enter Libya," one brother explained simply.

Meanwhile, the businessman was taken out of his cell only for questioning. "The halls were lined with grim-faced, teenage guards armed with rifles, whom I had to pass on the way to interrogations," he said. "I was interrogated on approximately four occasions, always at night, and left in a weakened emotional and physical state."

Though these sessions were harsh, he was not physically tortured. However, he saw other prisoners brutally beaten with rifle butts at the whim of the teenage guards. A British prisoner, he said, "was badly beaten."

Not until the end of the ordeal did the businessman figure out why he had been arrested. The arrest was intended to terrorize him, he concluded, so he would do their bidding. The carrot had been the multi-million-dollar contracts; the cruel imprisonment was the stick.

He was told to contribute 5 percent of his profits to the Libyan-African Trading Co., he said. He was also put in touch with a mystery man who went by the name of Haji Ali; the American was instructed to lure anti-Khadafy leaders out into the open by promising them lucrative business opportunities.

The businessman made discreet inquiries and was told that the Libyan African Trading Co. was a front that finances Khadafy's worldwide terrorist underground. He also learned that other businessmen had been dragged into the basement prison for torture and intimidation.

The businessman agreed to follow instructions. But as soon as he got out of Libya, he hurried back to the United States and told his story to the FBI. Now he fears for his life and constantly watches over his shoulder.

TEA FOR WHO?: Jean-Pierre Hoke, the U.N. High Commissioner on Refugees, visited the Capitol the other day to see the American democratic process in action. But he was obviously unaware of the old congressional maxim: "If this is Monday, I must be home." House staffers couldn't find a single appropriate member to have tea with the VIP, so they just made do with the most distinguished-looking aides they could collar.

FOLLOW THAT DIP!: FBI agents were recently issued new pocket-size cards with revised license-tag codes identifying foreign diplomats' cars. (The Soviet embassy was changed from D-SX to D-FC, for example.) The distinctive red-white-and-blue plates, issued by the State Department, tell the G-men whether the car is assigned to a Washington embassy or the United Nations. In light of recent revelations that Libyan diplomats have been involved in terrorist activities, you'd do well not to get too close to cars with D-FM tags; leave it to the guys in dark glasses who'll be following at a discreet distance.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., thinks the 40 million Americans who eat fast-food meals every day are entitled to know what they're eating. We heartily concur. Since most of the ingredients in the fast-food chain operations come in standardized portions, it should be no great burden to have them labeled for content under the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, as Chafee suggests. It would be an enormous help to people on a diet — and possibly a lifesaver to someone with serious allergies.

Neo-natal miracle

Jack Anderson's column of May 19 referred to the crisis in neo-natology, the medical science of keeping premature infants alive. Surely the word Anderson meant to use was miracle and not crisis.

One such miracle occured in Midland on May 30, 1980. Born 11 weeks early, weighing just three pounds and measuring 15 inches long, my son was not supposed to live through the day. With the expert care of Dr. Ronald Boren and the staff at Midland Memorial Hospital he made it not only that day but also the next week, the next month, and, now, for the next six years. Another child born that same day was not so fortunate and lived only a few hours. Neonatal science has now advanced to the point that three pound babies are routinely kept alive. One pound babies now have a chance to live and grow to a normal healthy life. There have even been three instances of clinically dead mothers being kept artificially alive; one for over six months, until the baby was developed enough to be born.

Some of Anderson's points were valid. The cost is very high. My son's birth cost me and my insurance company over $10,000. The physical pain and suffering that he went through as he struggled to fight for every breath was very intense. The mental anguish and psychological pain that his mother and I suffered is something that I would never want to repeat and would never wish on another parent.

That was my miracle's picture on the front of last Sunday's (May 18) sports section. Knees high, arms pumping, fighting for victory in the Run for the Arts, an all-American boy. That was his daddy next to him, grinning like a Cheshire cat, cheering him on, as proud that day as the day he was born, but knowing that he had already run and won his biggest race six years ago.

Yes, Mr. Anderson, the price is high, the pain intense, the suffering great, oh, but the benefits — tremendous. We can never put a price tag on human life. If we are spending $2 billion a year now, I say let's spend four.

Youth: harder to be 'for'

I am responding to Melanie Hurta's May 15 letter in regard to Midland's Esteem Machine (teen theater group).

I want to address Ms. Hurta's statement that "there was not one wholesome, loving, concerned parent (depicted) in the entire play." She cited a skit where the mother was an alcoholic, another where a girl was raped by her mother's fiance. How about the skit where the mother and daughter discuss how the other does not understand them and then how they begin to see the other one's situation? The mother holds up a picture of her daughter and says, "I wish you knew how much I love you and how much I do understand what you are going through." The mother and daughter leave the room arm-in-arm. What about the teen suicide skit where the crying mother says, "Holly, we loved you so much. We could have worked all of this out if you had only thought this through." And the best friend who says, "Holly, your parents loved you, they would have been there for you." The alcoholic mother skit depicts the friend telling the daughter that her minister told her about Al-Anon.

There are people that believe that parents should only be depicted as perfect, authoritative and in control of all situations. The truth is that our children today are involved in drugs, sexual activity, depression and suicide because many parents have stopped teaching morality. By that I mean teaching by doing and living. One out of two marriages ends in divorce, but we are preaching that kids hold off sexual involvement until the "sanctity of marriage" — what sanctity? Many of the kids I work with find that marriage and divorce have caused them the worst pain of their lives. The fact that they needed "both" parents was not as important as what the parents needed and wanted for themselves. Alcohol and drug abuse by adults is at an all time high as is sexual abuse of children by adults. It has been the adult apathy that has allowed television and movies to feed our children a steady diet of sex and violence.

I am still amazed that people think community organizations like Planned Parenthood, public schools, health departments, etc., should be teaching Christian ethics and morality. That is the parents' and churches' job and if we have not done this by junior high school it is too late. If we have set the proper examples and laid firm foundations, then our kids can take the education programs that are presented to them as another reinforcement of why it is better to wait for sexual involvement, not do drugs, etc.

Every time I see the Esteem Machine I witness the same thing. The Esteem Machine youth who have practiced and worked long hours, display a great sense of pride in being part of something meaningful and worthwhile. You can see a look of real joy in the faces of the youth in the audience that someone out there does understand that "my problems are real and my feelings are valid." What saddens me is that it is their "own" who acknowledge their problems and offer them hope. We adults are too busy criticizing and moralizing to be of any real help. For all of the rhetoric about how damaging Esteem Machine is, not one program from all the "verbal authorities" has come forth. It is so easy to be "anti," but it takes real love and dedication to be "for" something. I pray that one day we will respect our youth and admit that "we" are part of the problem. Maybe then we can find positive ways to help them. As for now, we have a dedicated group of Christian young people who are doing that job and they are known as "Midland's Esteem Machine."

ART BUCHWALD

Beware of 'charming' summer rental lingo

Thanks to the uncertainty abroad, many Americans have put their overseas travel plans on hold. Instead they are desperately trying to rent houses in the U.S. mountains and at the seashore. Newspapers are chockfull of classifieds for summer rentals. The problem is the properties are not necessarily what they are cracked up to be. Because people rarely get to see the summer homes they rent in advance they have to take the description in the advertisement on faith. Sometimes this could be a mistake.

Art Buchwald

It took me seven months to break the code for summer rentals but it was worth it.

For example, when you read, "Charming two-bedroom, one-bath ranch house in forested area. Sleeps twelve, 20-minute drive to town," they're really talking about a matchbox in the woods that sleeps twelve, if everybody takes turns sleeping through the day and night. The house is indeed 20 minutes from town — if you drive 100 miles an hour.

Here's one: "Magic cottage overlooking the sea. Always a cool breeze blowing. Five thousand dollars for season. A steal due to minor work going on this summer." The minor work is a an addition to the breakfast room and a new kitchen. The breeze is blowing through a hole in the side of the house.

This is one of my favorites. "House for rent by owner. Completely redone. Five bedrooms and playroom in basement. Color TV in family room. Swings, wading pool and sandbox on lawn. Fenced in back yard. No children of any kind."

People, when advertising homes, use the word "dramatic" quite a bit. "Dramatic four-bedroom house in town, few minutes from beach." What makes this house dramatic is in order to get to the beach you have to run by a Hell's Angels clubhouse on the corner.

Beware of an advertisement which claims the house is "on the water" because that's very likely where it is.

A property that has the word "secluded" in the ad means no one will be able to find it.

I am not sure what a "sparkling" home means, but the word is usually used when an owner has little else to brag about.

"Spectacular" is the same as "sparkling." The only difference is "spectacular" has one-and-a-half baths instead of one.

A "new contemporary" is a house that was built in the early Sixties. An "old contemporary" could mean anything and usually does.

If you see an advertisement which reads, "Unusual house built by owner," it means the dining room is in the basement and the washer and dryer are located in the bedroom.

Some people prefer the word "quaint." Now quaint could mean having to stoop to get into the front door or a climb up to a two-room apartment over the garage.

Here's one to look out for: "nestled," as in "Nestled in the forest by a stream." Houses like these always have plumbing problems, and because they are "nestled" no one will come out from town to fix them.

Even if you're not renting a summer place it's worth reading the real estate ads, because some of the best fiction in the country is now being printed there.

LETTERS

Esteem's New Edition

First of all, this letter was not written to re-start controversy (since it has all been said before), but was written rather as a correction to a letter recently published in this column by a concerned parent. In this recent letter, the author quoted from some skits that for a time were used by the Esteem Machine Teen Repertory Company. Also, the author of this recent letter expressed certain views held apparently by a large group of friends that the author of this letter persuades.

Esteem Machine has matured since its humble beginnings over a year ago. It has weathered the storm of controversy to become a most successful way of reaching teens and proving that there are ways and alternatives to solve problems of drugs, drinking and driving, and even alcoholic parents.

Perhaps certain adults in this community do not realize that teens do think for themselves sometimes, regardless of the influence of their parents. Perhaps these same adults do not realize that teens do want to turn to their parents, but that communication is sometimes easier, more comfortable, with friends.

No matter what one tells their children, no matter how tight the leash is that's put on them, teens do think for themselves. I suggest that the author of this recent letter re-visit the "New Edition" Esteem Machine. Though I realize this author's mind will have probably been made up already, maybe this author will realize that this is America, and one person's opinion is their constitutional right, but not everyone that thinks differently is immoral.

An MHS student view

I am currently a student at Midland Senior High School, and I would like to address this letter specifically to Faye Thurman and to those who share her views.

First of all, I applaud Lee High School for having an outstanding honors program, great football team, good baseball team, band etc. Never have I found that Lee students were incompetent or otherwise unable to try hard and learn.

Of course, according to Faye Thurman's letter, printed in the May 18 issue of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, one could assume that Midland High School consists of kids with 2.5 grade point averages, of a football team with all the condition of a water buffalo herd, and of students and faculty with no ability or desire to try hard.

How dare you point your finger at us and assume the position of arbitrator!

Not only do we have an exceptional athletic department, band, drama squad, debate team, foreign language department, choir, honors program, etc., but we have parents and very qualified teachers who support us in every way. I pity you for having lived in this town the length of time that you obviously have without ever realizing this.

The fact is that the school districts were unequally divided, and this inequality was unbalancing the enrollments of the two schools.

Perhaps, after reading this letter, you will reevaluate your opinion, but I doubt it. I'm just grateful that the majority of this town doesn't share your immature and unrealistic attitude.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, May 28, the 148th day of 1986. There are 217 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 28, 1934, the Dionne quintuplets — Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne — were born to Elzire Dionne in Callender, Ontario.

On this date:

In 1533, England's archbishop declared King Henry VIII's marriage to Anne Boleyn valid.

In 1863, the first black regiment from the North left Boston to fight in the Civil War.

In 1937, Neville Chamberlain became prime minister of Britain.

In 1940, the Belgian army surrendered to invading German forces.

In 1972, the Duke of Windsor, who had abdicated the English throne to marry Wallis Warfield Simpson, died in Paris at age 77.

In 1977, more than 160 people died when fire raced through a nightclub in Southgate, Ky.

In 1984, President Reagan led a state funeral at Arlington National Cemetery for an unidentified American soldier killed in the Vietnam War. The soldier's remains were interred in the Tomb of the Unknowns.

One year ago: In a nationally broadcast speech, President Reagan proposed to "radically change" the federal tax structure, calling the current system complicated, unjust and un-American.

TORNADO or THUNDERSTORM

WATCH — (Conditions are right for a tornado or severe thunderstorm to form.)

WARNING — (A tornado or severe thunderstorm already is in existence.)

In North Texas, generally fair and mild tonight. Lows 58 to 63. Partly cloudy and warm Thursday with widely scattered mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms central and west. Highs Thursday 81 to 84.

In West Texas, mostly cloudy in the Panhandle through Thursday with widely scattered thunderstorms. Partly cloudy over the rest of West Texas with isolated thunderstorms except in far west. Slightly warmer Thursday. Lows tonight low to mid 50s north with 55 to 60 elsewhere.

In South Texas, mostly cloudy through Thursday. Scattered showers and a few thunderstorms tonight and Thursday, more numerous west and south. Highs low and mid 80s north, mid and upper 80s south. Lows tonight lower 70s along the coast and extreme south.

Temperatures should warm some Thursday

From Staff and Wire Reports

Daytime temperatures will warm slightly on Thursday, according to forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. The NWS is calling for a high in the middle 80s and partly cloudy skies.

Tonight, under partly cloudy skies, the low is expected to be in the middle 50s. Winds will be out of the north at 10-20 mph both tonight and Thursday.

Tuesday's high of 71 was 30 degrees below the record high set for the date in 1985. This morning's low of 52 was two degrees above the record low set in 1973.

STATE

Clear skies prevailed over North Central Texas early this morning, while the rest of the state had partly cloudy to mostly cloudy skies.

A few showers and thunderstorms were reported over the lower Rio Grande Valley and south coastal plains, the National Weather Service said. Light rain fell over the Trans-Pecos, and patchy fog developed over parts of Southeast Texas.

Early morning temperatures were generally in the 50s and 60s, with a few 70s in South Texas. Extremes at 4 a.m. ranged from 50 degrees at Amarillo in the Panhandle to 77 at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

North Texas should be generally fair tonight with lows in the 50s and 60s. Thursday should be partly cloudy and warm Thursday with widely scattered thunderstorms and highs in the 80s.

South Texas should be mostly cloudy through Thursday with scattered showers. Highs will be in the 80s, and lows in the 60s and 70s.

West Texas should be partly mostly cloudy through Thursday with widely scattered thunderstorms.

NATION

Rain fell in the nation's midsection, the South and Northeast today while fair weather prevailed in the West.

A nearly stationary low pressure system over Kansas sent showers and thundershowers into the central Plains and middle Mississippi Valley.

A frontal system over the Southeast produced showers and thundershowers in the lower Tennessee Valley, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Dense fog developed early today in the Ohio Valley and from the mid-Atlantic states through the Southeast while rain was scattered in the Northeast, New Mexico, northern Idaho and northwest Montana.

Angel hurlers cool Travs, take 3-2, 5-0 wins

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

The numbers tell the story for the Midland Angels' pitching staff, and as long as the Angels keep posting numbers like these:

21-10-2-2-7-14. That translates to 21 innings pitched, 10 hits, two runs, two earned runs, seven walks and 14 strikeouts.

That's the Midland pitching line since the red hot Arkansas Travelers came to town, and for the Angels, that line means good things, including 3-2 and 5-0 wins in Tuesday's doubleheader. The Angels have now cooled off the Travs with three straight wins to open the seven-game series.

They are also the type of numbers California Angels roving pitching coach Joe Coleman, here on one of his traveling sojourns, likes to see.

"There's no question I'm impressed, they're really throwing super, now," said Coleman.

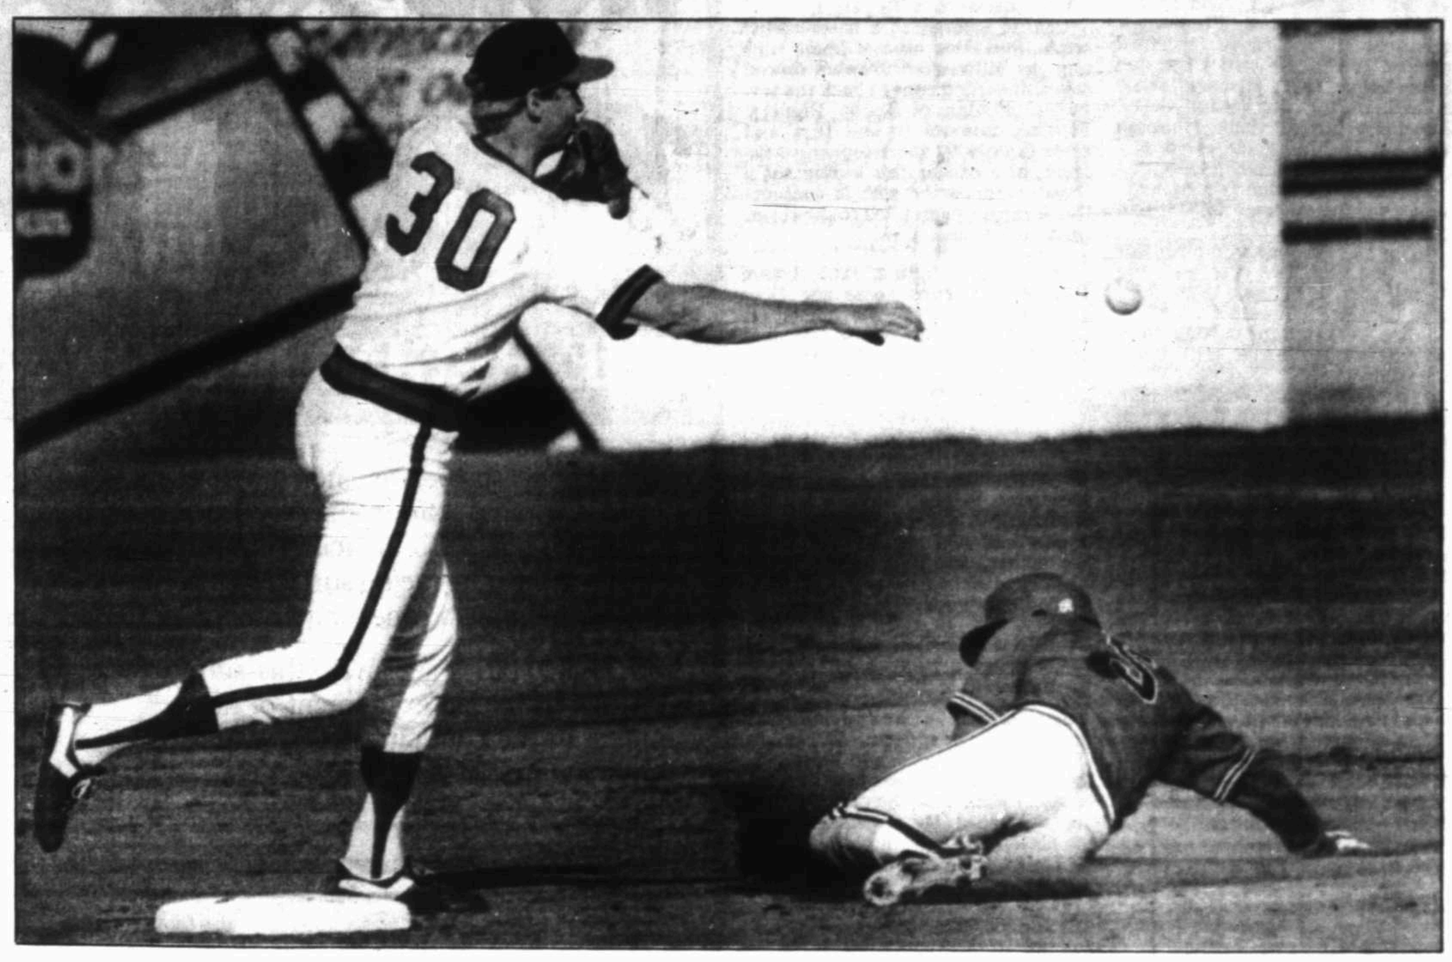

Coleman was dispatched to Midland over the weekend after the disastrous Tulsa series in which Midland was pounded for 49 runs on 53 hits in the first three games.

But that seems over, now.

"I was a little surprised, you're always concerned when you hear that, you've got to be when you see numbers like that," Coleman said. "But I think it was a case of guys getting flipped around in the rotation, and they're young, some still didn't know how to handle it."

But with the rainouts, injuries and roster moves hopefully over, manager Joe Maddon feels his staff has turned the tables, and the numbers seem to agree.

Another number Maddon is looking at is the 1½ game difference between first place El Paso and the second place Angels. Arkansas maintained a ½ game lead over Shreveport in the Texas League's Eastern Division.

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Midland shortstop John Hotchkiss (30) throws over Arkansas' Dave Clements to complete a double play Tuesday.

GLEN WALKER got things rolling in the first game with his league-leading 10th home run of the season in the sixth inning to erase a 2-1 deficit. The homer came with Billie Merrifield aboard and made a winner of Rafael Pimentel, 3-2.

Pimentel went 6⅓ innings, allowing just three hits before DeWayne Buice came on to preserve the win with his fourth save.

In the nightcap, Don Timberlake, 3-2, tossed a two-hitter in recording Midland's third shutout in four games. The Angels jumped on Traveler starter Scott Young for two runs in both the first and second innings, and with Timberlake finding his groove, it made for an easy win.

"It was the best I've seen him throw all year," Maddon said.

Now in his second season in Midland, Timberlake was penciled in as one of the aces of the staff in spring training. Instead, he has been hampered with blisters on the middle finger of his throwing hand, forcing him to miss his regular turn.

"This was the best consistency I've had all year," the big righthander said. "I was keeping the ball down and using all my pitches real well. This is the first time I've pitched on regular rest in three weeks. I'm really looking forward to big things now. I'm hoping we can really string some wins together."

TIMBERLAKE GOT all the support he would need in the nightcap in the first inning. Mark McLemore rapped Young's first pitch into left-center field and never stopped running on his way to a double.

Young's second pitch didn't fare any better as Raul Tovar laced it to left and McLemore raced around to score. Tovar moved to third on James Randall's ground out then scored on a wild pitch.

In the second, McLemore again keyed the Angel rally. With the bases full, McLemore plated David Heath and Mike Madril with his second of three hits. The Angels' final run came in the fifth as McLemore singled, stole second and scored on Tovar's single to right.

"The whole key to the second game was McLemore and Tovar getting things going," Maddon said. "We did just what we needed to do. We had beaten 'em in a tough game and we needed to jump on them early."

THE FIRST game saw Walker continue his tear through the Texas League, tagging Ernie Carrasco with just his second loss of the season. It was Walker's 10th homer and gave him 48 RBI — both league highs.

Walker scored Midland's other run in the second inning after leading off with a single. He moved to third on a passed ball and a ground out by Brian Brady. Tovar brought him home with a sacrifice fly.

Pimentel struggled in the second inning, walking Jeff Ledbetter to lead it off. Eddie Tanner and Dave Clements followed with singles to score one run. But Pimentel got Harry McCulla to fly to center, scoring the second run, then Sal Agostinelli grounded into a quick double play to end the threat.

Pimentel did not allow another hit until the seventh when with one out, Clements singled and Maddon signaled for Buice.

ANGEL HALOS: McLemore was 2-for-2 in stolen base attempts, giving him 29 for the season, light years ahead of the rest of the pack. The second baseman hit 4-for-6 in the twinbill, upping his average to .333...

Graf wins 22nd straight match

PARIS (AP) - Steffi Graf continued her winning streak today, beating American Gretchen Rush, while Ivan Lendl eased past Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland in the second round of the French Open.

On a day in which all but one of the women's seeds and half of the men's were set to begin the second round, Graf, the third-seeded 16-year-old West German, opened center court with a quick 6-1, 6-1 dismissal of Rush, from Mount Lebanon, Pa.

Lendl, the men's top seed from Czechoslovakia, followed with a 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Hlasek.

"Now it's round three," Lendl said. "All I really wanted to do today is win."

The lone American among the men's seeds, No. 13 Johan Kriek, beat Milan Srejber of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3. Jimmy Arias of the United States, who had been seeded 15th, pulled out Tuesday with a badly sprained ankle.

Also advancing was 13th-seeded Carling Bassett of Canada, rallying to beat Pascale Etchemendy of France 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

It is Bassett's first tournament since her father died of cancer two weeks ago, and she says she has rededicated herself to tennis to try to cope with the personal loss.

Other leading matches included No. 4 Yannick Noah of France against Sammy Giammalva of the United States; the women's No. 1, Martina Navratilova, against Larissa Savchenko of the Soviet Union, and No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd against Nathalie Heremann of France.

GRAF'S VICTORY over Rush was her 22nd in a row, stretching back over championships in four tournaments.

"At the beginning of the year I said my goal was to win a tournament and stay in the top 10," she said. "I think I've changed my mind on that."

The victory over Rush took 53 minutes — a marathon compared with the 34 minutes she needed to beat Andrea Betzner in the first round.

"I wasn't really concentrating on every point," Graf said. "It was difficult to play some of the balls because of the wind, and she wasn't playing that badly. She was running well."

Navratilova advanced easily Tuesday in her opening match, 6-3, 6-3 over Sandra Cecchini of Italy. At one point Navratilova missed a shot and Cecchini muttered: "She's not a god."

Winning among the men's seeds were No. 2 Mats Wilander, 6-0, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, over Riccardo Acuna of Peru; No. 11 Martin Jaite of Argentina, 6-1, 3-6, 0-6, 6-2, 6-4 over Ronald Agenor of Haiti; and the French pair of No. 8 Henry Leconte over Spain's David de Miguel 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, and No. 10 Thierry Tulasne over Italy's Francesco Cancellotti 4-6, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. Unseeded Frenchman Guy Forget, struggling in recent months, also won on center court, beating Pablo Arraya of Peru 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6.

WOMEN'S SEEDS to advance, besides Navratilova, included No. 5 Hana Mandlikova, rallying to beat Yugoslavia's Sabrina Goles 6-7, 6-3, 6-3. No. 4 Claudia Kohde Kilsch beat American Lori McNeil 6-4, 6-2; No. 10 Zina Garrison of the United States defeated Romania's Gabriela Dinu 6-2, 6-3; and No. 7 Kathy Rinaldi defeated Hu Na 6-1 6-1, in a match of Americans.

Three seeds were eliminated Tuesday.

Anne White of the United States, the women's 15th seed, lost to Laura Gildemeistr of Peru 6-1, 6-3; Paul McNamee of Australia beat No. 6 Swede Joakim Nystrom 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0, and West Germany's Damir Keretic ousted 16th-seeded Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland 4-6, 6-2, 4-, 7-6, 8-6.

Noah was at the center of a big day for French players Tuesday.

In the best match of the tournament's first two days, he beat countryman Tarik Benhabiles 6-3, 6-4, 6-7, 6-7, 6-4, turning the crowd at center court into two distinct cheering sections.

"Yah-neek! Yah-neek!" half the crowd chanted. "Tah-reek! Tahreek!" the other half replied."

After 3 hours, 47 minutes, Noah's 16th ace ended his afternoon of frustration and Benhabiles' dreams of history.

"I went to a different state of mind," Noah said. At one point, he had the first two sets in hand and was servng with a 3-0 lead in the third. "I played sloppily. I thought I would win it quickly. ...

"When I was at match point (in the fourth set) and he won the point, I just said, 'Try, try, try again.'"

On the final changever, the crowd rose and began appluading both players. The cheers cointinued through the final point moments later.

ARIAS WAS a semifinalist at the U.S. Open and a member of the round-of-16 here in 1983, when he was ranked sixth in the world. He has slipped, now 21st, but had seen the French Open as a chance to improve his ranking — until the accident Sunday.

"It was a stupid thing, really," he said. "I was chasing a lob and as I strtched my foot caught under the rain tarp at he end of the court. I heard the foot pop."

Chaps lose No. 6 singles

Loss costs MC two points, share of lead

From Staff Reports

Tyler — Seeking to duplicate the national tennis title won by the Midland College women last week, the Chaparral men's team suffered a small setback in opening day action of the men's National Junior College Athletic Association tournament Tuesday in Tyler.

The Chaps dropped two points off the pace when their number 6 singles player fell in the second round after drawing a first round bye.

"That loss cost us two points, one for the first round bye and one for the loss," explained MC coach Joe Williams. "However, we're still in the chase. It's just that now we can't afford to drop any more matches until at least the quarter-finals."

The other five Midland College singles players advanced, winning in the second round after first round byes.

After the first day, six teams are tied with 12 points each. Midland College is tied for seventh with three other teams.

ONE MORE round of singles and two rounds of doubles were slated for Wednesday. All the Chaparral doubles teams were seeded and got first round byes. The tourney runs through Saturday. All six singles flights have 64-place draws.

"The seedings were really strange," Williams mused. "Midland was ranked first in the nation, with Tyler second and McLennan of Waco third. But Tyler had to play McLennan in two positions the first day and we had to play them in one. Those teams shouldn't have been matched up that early."

McLennan, ranked No. 1 in the nation until the Chaps knocked them off for the Region V title, won both those matches and toppled Tyler into 11th place after the first day.

Only Midland's No. 4 player, Jos Warmoes, gained a top seed in the tourney. None of the other MC players was rated higher than fourth seed.

TIED FOR first place with 12 points each are: Anderson, SC; Florida Junior College; North Greenville, SC; Jefferson State, Ala.; Miami-Dade South, Fla.; and Wharton, Texas. Midland College is tied with McLennan, Texas; Abraham Baldwin, Georgia; and Mesa, Arizona. Host team Tyler has 8 points.

Midland's No.1 singles player, Jean Roussell, was seeded 5th. He defeated Rada Torres, Jefferson State, 6-0, 6-1; defeated Scott Kircher, Milwaukee Tech, 6-0 6-0; will play Paul Monicusko, College of DuPage;

Eric Lingg, No.2, was seeded fourth. He had a first round bye; defeated Raj Basappa, Roane State, 6-3, 6-0; will play Trac Jorgensen, Snow College;

No.3 Emil Bijleveld, seeded seventh, had a first round bye; defeated Rodolfo Nunez, Brunswick, 6-1, 6-3; will play Jeff Elbl of Jefferson State.

No.4 Jos Warmoes, seeded first, had a first round bye; defeated Paul Leonard, Johnson County, 6-2, 6-2; will face Scott Zent, Vincennes;

No.5 Herve' Rousseau, seeded sixth, had a first round bye; defeated Matt Volland, Charles County, 6-1, 6-0; will play John Crauser, Wharton;

No. 6 Richard Turner, seeded fifth, had a first round bye; lost to Dorien Geba, McLennan, 6-2, 6-3.

1951 — After going 0-for-12 in his first three games, Willie Mays of the New York Giants hit a home run off Warren Spahn in a 4-1 loss to the Boston Braves.

Ali uninjured in auto accident

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Former boxer Muhammad Ali was involved in an accident that left a motorcyclist slightly injured after Ali's Rolls-Royce cut across traffic to make a left turn, authorities said today.

The motorcyclist, Gregory Gray, 26, complained of bruises and pain in his leg after the Tuesday night accident, said sheriff's Sgt. Guy Earl. Gray was treated at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center and released, said spokesman Ron Wise.

The former world heavyweight champion, driving a Rolls Royce at 5 mph to 15 mph, turned left from the right lane, Earl said. Gray, overtaking Ali in the left lane, hit the rear of Ali's car, he said.

"He (Ali) just cut across the left-hand lane," Earl said.

Ali, 44, was not cited pending an investigation, said Deputy Dave Hogan.

Weiss promises Spurs will play 'old-time ball'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — New San Antonio Spurs coach Bobby Weiss promises a return to "old-time Spurs basketball."

But Weiss, who replaced the fired Cotton Fitzsimmons Tuesday to become the seventh head coach in the franchise's 13-year existence in San Antonio, admitted the rebuilding task won't happen overnight.

"We doubt it will be a one-year process," said Weiss, a Dallas Mavericks assistant coach for the last six seasons. "It could take several years."

One of the highest-paid assistant coaches in the NBA, Weiss earned approximately $95,000 this past season. His contract with the Spurs is a multi-year deal, believed to be in excess of $125,000 per year, although the actual length and amount were not disclosed.

Assistants Allan Bristow of Denver and Mike Schuler of Milwaukee also were candidates for the job.

Spurs General Manager Bob Bass said the Spurs did not interview unemployed San Antonio resident Stan Albeck, the winningest coach (62.2 percent) in franchise history. Albeck lost his job in Chicago last week and had phoned the Spurs during the interview process.

Armas finds final out in Cleveland fog

Associated Press

Now you see it, now you don't.

Boston center fielder Tony Armas saw Mel Hall's fly ball emerge from the fog that shrouded Cleveland Stadium just in time to catch it for the final out of the Red Sox' 2-0 victory over the Indians on Tuesday night.

The final out, however, came in the bottom of the sixth inning. Armas' adventure forced a halt in the game for the second time, and 1½ hours later the umpires called it off.

"I picked it up off the bat, then I just saw it at the last minute when it was coming down. It was very tough," said Armas, who banged into the fence as he caught Hall's drive with two Cleveland runners on base.

"I asked him when he came in if he saw the ball," said second-base umpire Rocky Roe. "He said he just ran to a spot on instinct and picked it up out of the fog about five feet from him. That would be a play for 'This Week in Baseball.' The trouble is, nobody would be able to see it."

Boston's victory gave the Red Sox a two-game lead over the idle New York Yankees in the American League East.

The evening began innocently enough, with the Red Sox scoring twice against Neal Heaton in the first inning on an error by shortstop Julio Franco, a walk and RBI singles by Bill Buckner and Jim Rice.

Fog rolled into the stadium on the shores of Lake Erie in the third inning and became thick during the fifth. After Boston's Mike Brown walked Tony Bernazard leading off the Cleveland sixth and went to a 1-1 count on Franco, the game was delayed for 15 minutes.

Boston right fielder Dwight Evans complained that he was unable to see and the umpires asked Cleveland coach Bobby Bonds to hit two balls to the outfield. Standing midway between home plate and the mound, Bonds lifted a routine fly ball which Evans struggled to see but finally caught. Bonds then hit a second baseball over the right-field fence.

When play resumed, Franco got an infield hit and Steve Crawford replaced Brown. He struck out Joe Carter before Hall's adventuresome fly ball. During the second delay, second base was not visible from the press box and the game eventually was called. Under baseball rules, fog is considered the same as rain, making it a regulation game since it had gone five innings.

"In my 23 years (as an umpire), this is the first time I've ever seen fog like this sock us in," said crew chief Larry Barnett. "We waited 1½ hours and then went into the outfield. Any fly ball would have still been impossible.

"The weatherman couldn't help me like he does in a rain delay when he says it might break in an hour. They said the fog was coming in off the lake and there was no wind.

Rangers 6, White Sox 3

Oddibe McDowell doubled, homered and scored three runs to back the four-hit pitching of knuckleballer Charlie Hough as Texas upped its lead in the AL West to one game over California. Two of the hits off Hough were home runs by Tim Hulett and Greg Walker.

With Chicago leading 2-1, McDowell, who homered off Richard Dotson in the third inning, ignited a two-run rally in the fifth with a leadoff double. Scott Fletcher was hit by a pitch and both runners advanced on Pete O'Brien's fly ball. McDowell scored as Pete Incaviglia grounded out and Gary Ward gave the Rangers the lead with an RBI double.

Singles by McDowell and Fletcher, a throwing error by Chicago reliever Joel McKeon and a balk by Bob James gave the Rangers two more runs in the seventh and Darrell Porter homered in the eighth.

Brewers 9, Royals 1

Charlie Moore had a bases-loaded triple, Rob Deer hit two home runs and the Milwaukee Brewers scored seven unearned runs to back the seven-hit pitching of Teddy Higuera. Fielding miscues in the first and third innings by shortstop Angel Salazar, who earlier this season set a Royals team record with 35 consecutive errorless games, led to the seven unearned runs.

In the first inning, Dale Sveum doubled two runs home and Deer followed with a two-run homer off Danny Jackson. Deer also homered in the ninth off Dan Quisenberry. Moore's three-run triple came in the third inning.

Twins 7, Blue Jays 6

Tim Laudner's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 11th inning enabled Minnesota to beat Toronto for the second night in a row, something the Twins hadn't accomplished since September, 1983. With one out in the 11th, Kent Hrbek drew a walk from Tom Henke and Tom Brunansky doubled him to third. After Gary Gaetti was walked intentionally, Jim Acker relieved Henke and Laudner hit his sacrifice fly.

Brunansky hit a two-run homer in the first inning, added an RBI single in the third, singled and scored in the fifth and committed two errors in the eighth that helped Toronto take a 6-5 lead. Minnesota tied it in the bottom of the eighth on doubles by Randy Bush and Roy Smalley.

Scorer's calls aren't always in 'Black and White'

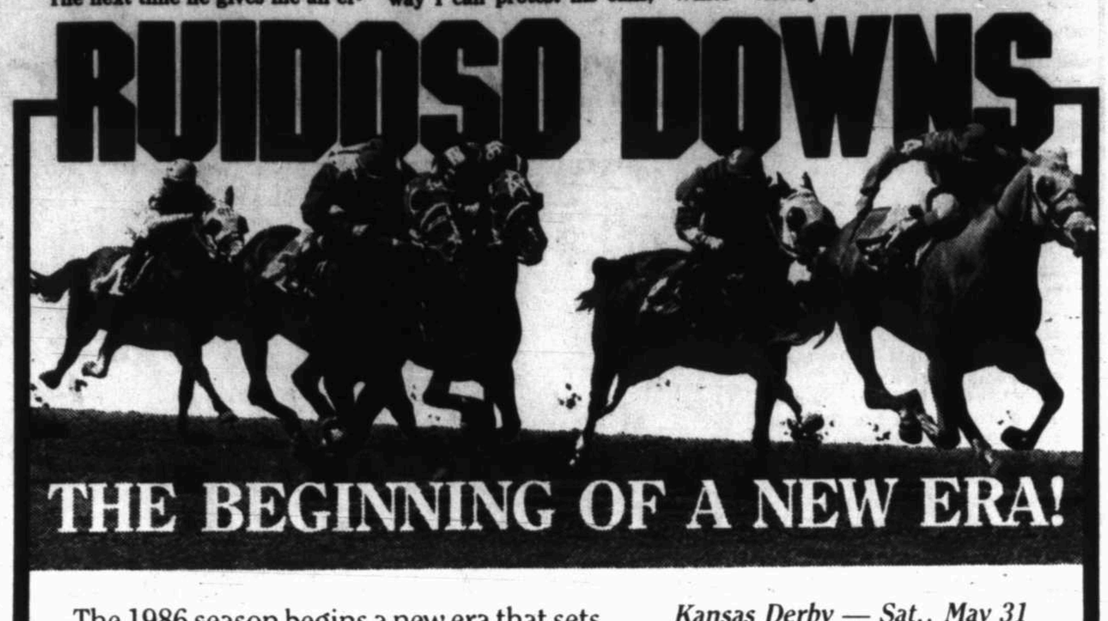

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City second baseman Frank White says he will leave the game the next time he draws an error from the Royals' official scorer which he does not feel is warranted.

"The next time he gives me an error I don't deserve, I'm going to walk off the field," White said.

Del Black, a former baseball writer, is the official scorer at all games in Royals Stadium.

"I intend to do it. That's the only way I can protest his calls," White said.

White, a six-time gold glove winner, was charged with an error Tuesday night on a sharply hit grounder by Rick Manning in the eighth inning of the Milwaukee Brewers' 9-1 victory over the Royals.

Foster slams, Knight slugs as Mets rip L.A.

Associated Press

George Foster swung hard and hit a pitch from Tom Niedenfuer for a grand slam. After the next pitch, Ray Knight swung hard and hit Niedenfuer.

"I charged the mound. He tried to tackle me. I swung at him. Then I hit the ground — people were scratching at my face, so I started swinging again," Knight said, recalling a six-run, fight-interrupted sixth inning Tuesday night that led the New York Mets over the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-1.

The bench-clearing brawl came just after Foster had greeted Niedenfuer with his 13th career grand slam, capping the big inning and giving the Mets a 7-1 lead.

Niedenfuer stood glaring on the mound as Foster rounded the bases, and then hit Knight in the elbow with his next pitch.

"I felt sure he threw at me," Knight said. "I've always had the philosophy that I would never charge the mound unless I knew for sure."

Niedenfuer, who had marks around both his eyes, said the pitch to Foster, "was not where I wanted it to be, and neither was the one to Knight. ... I wanted the pitch to Knight to be up and in."

Ironically, Niedenfuer reportedly was the peacemaker during a pregame scuffle in the Dodgers' dugout between Greg Brock and Steve Sax. Neither Niedenfuer, Sax nor Brock would provide details about the incident, although a team spokesman said it did occur.

Once the game in New York started, Ron Darling raised his record to 6-0 by pitching a five-hitter while striking out 12.

After Ken Landreaux hit a home run in the Dodgers' first, New York tied it in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Gary Carter.

Astros 5, Cardinals 4

St. Louis shortstop Ozzie Smith threw away a potential double-play relay for an error, allowing Houston's Kevin Bass to score from second base in the ninth inning with the winning run.

With runners on first and second and one out, Dickie Thon hit a grounder to the mound. Todd Worrell fielded the ball and threw to Smith for a forceout at second base, but Smith's throw back to first was wide.

It was the fourth error in 41 games this season for Smith, a six-time Gold Glove winner.

The host Cardinals scored three times in the seventh, two on Tommy Herr's homer, for a 3-1 lead.

Dave Smith, 1-2, got the win, while Ken Dayley, 0-3, was the loser.

Phillies 6, Giants 2

Mike Schmidt's hitting and Steve Carlton's pitching once again sparked Philadelphia to victory, this time over visting San Francisco.

Schmidt broke an eighth-inning tie with a two-run homer in the eighth inning off Jeff Robinson, 2-1. It was Schmidt's eighth homer of the season. Greg Gross added a two-run double later in the inning.

Carlton, 3-6, pitched eight innings and gave up two runs on seven hits. He struck out eight and walked none.

Carlton won his 317th career game, tying him for sixth place on the all-time list with Pud Galvin.

National League

Braves 6, Pirates 2

Terry Harper, who entered the game in the 10th inning as a defensive replacement, hit a grand slam with two outs in the 12th that lifted Atlanta over Pittsburgh.

Harper snapped an 0-for-18 slump with his blast off Bob Walk, 2-2. The Braves had loaded the bases on a walk to Rafael Ramirez, an infield hit by Dale Murphy, a wild pitch and an intentional walk to Bob Horner.

Gene Garber, 1-1, pitched two scoreless innings for the win.

Walk entered the game in the 12th after Rick Reuschel had pitched 11 innings, giving up two runs on nine hits.

Atlanta won its third straight game. The Pirates lost their sixth straight, watched by a season-low crowd of 2,830 at Three Rivers Stadium.

Expos 5, Padres 4

Hubie Brooks' RBI groundout broke a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning and gave Montreal its victory over visiting San Diego.

Mitch Webster, who had three hits, opened the seventh by reaching base on an error by Tim Stoddard, 1-2. Webster stole second, took third on a fly ball and scored when Brooks grounded out to third baseman Graig Nettles, who was unable to throw home.

Tim Burke, 2-0, the second of three Montreal pitchers, was the winner.

The Padres took a 4-0 lead in the first inning on a three-run homer by Steve Garvey, his 11th, and an RBI double by Terry Kennedy.

Reds 5, Cubs 4

Dave Parker singled four times, including a drive off the right-field wall that snapped a 2-2 in the fifth inning and sent Cincinnati past Chicago.

The Reds, who scored a pair of unearned runs on three Chicago errors, won for the fifth time in the last six games.

Dave Concepcion walked with one out in the fifth, stole second and scored when Parker singled off the wall at Wrigley Field.

Tom Browning, 2-4, got the victory and Steve Trout, 2-3, took the loss.

Phillies' Lefebvre calling it quits

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After four operations on his right knee and two years of rehabilitation, outfielder Joe Lefebvre of the Philadelphia Phillies said he is convinced the knee can't withstand the rigors of major league baseball and has announced his retirement.

Lefebvre said Tuesday night that he would return to his flower shop in Orange, Conn., and examine some Connecticut broadcast options.

"After a two-year ordeal with lots of highs and lows, it's time to get out," said Lefebvre, 30.

"I gave it everything I had and just came up short," said Lefebvre, who was in his sixth major league season.

"I'll miss baseball. It's been my life. I've cried a lot of tears over this," Lefebvre said as he sat in the dugout before Tuesday night's Phillies-San Francisco Giants game.

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1986, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Thursday, May 29, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: A secret brings great pleasure now. You feel much more optimistic about the future. A positive attitude helps you win an important competition. An affair of the heart leads to change in lifestyle. You see great improvement in a parent-child relationship. Let loved ones know that they can count on you in times of stress. A timely investment could mean lasting financial security for your family. Check insurance coverage.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Bob Hope, actor Anthony Geary, producer-director Stacy Keach Sr., auto racing's Al Unser, President John F. Kennedy, English author G.K. Chesterton, actress Beatrice Lillie, American patriot-orator Patrick Henry.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An emergency or unforeseen financial development could catch you off-guard. Resist an urge to act on impulse. A business meeting could lead to romance. Be on your best behavior!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Certain social or travel plans may not work out. A business or marital partnership should be handled with kid gloves. A projected visit could be postponed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Continue to be vigilant where your money and personal possessions are concerned. Having too many irons in the fire could strain your personal relationships. Give more thought to a proposed agreement.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Self-discipline helps you deal with a difficult situation. A late afternoon conference leads to a new accord. Better communication will avert a confrontation with member of opposite sex. Be candid.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Speak up if you need a favor or raise. Career progress depends largely on the way you handle your responsibilities. Your ability to speak or write concisely puts you ahead of the competition.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Family and real estate affairs look brighter today, thanks to a sudden turn of events. Saying the right things to the right people will make business expansion possible. Put your best foot forward.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A brisk, concerted effort to advance a pet project will pay big dividends. A job hunt proves successful. Be more sensitive to loved one's feelings and needs. A young person shares valuable insights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Travel plans are subject to change. Concentrate on work projects you can handle alone. Patience and tact serve you well in a sticky situation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Someone may have designs on your money or possessions. Pay close attention to any unusual behavior. Make amends to a friend or relative before asking for a special favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A bright idea leads to greater efficiency at work. Align yourself with trusted allies who can help your further your goals. Be more practical in your financial dealings. Remember your primary obligations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A willingness to serve others helps you get a favorite project rolling. Do everything you can to avoid an open clash with someone influential. A shopping excursion yields bargains.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Comparison shopping pays off. Check with several stores before making a luxury purchase. Romance proves lucky now. You are delighted with a change in lifestyle.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	1 ◇	Dble
1 ♡	1 NT	Pass	3 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♡.

Active bidders have a cross to bear. They sometimes reveal so much about the hand that they become passive defenders as declarer makes use of the information they give him. Consider this hand from the recent Grand National Pairs Championship.

North's double of one diamond was "negative," i.e., for takeout, not for penalties. South showed his balanced hand by choosing one no trump for his rebid since he expected a heart bolster from his partner, and North raised to game.

West led the top of his partner's suit, dummy played low and East correctly inserted the ten. Declarer, Richard Oshlag of Memphis, Tenn., ducked! Now East made the fine play of returning a low heart. Declarer overtook his queen with the table's king and led the last heart.

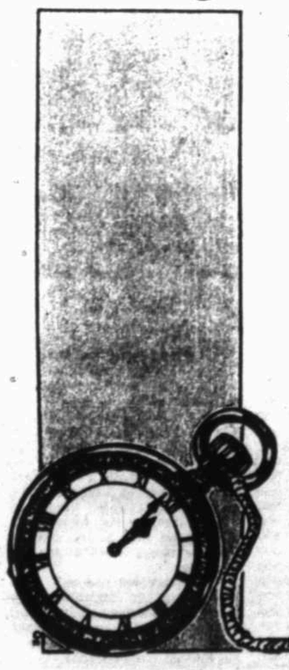

East had to take his hearts or never get them. That reduced the hand to this position:

	NORTH
	♠ A Q 10 4
	◇ A 10
	♣ Q 9
WEST		EAST
♠ 9 5		♠ 7 6 3 2

♣ K 7		♣ 10 6
	SOUTH
	♠ K J 8
	♣ A J

When East shifted to a diamond, declarer won in dummy with the ace and was not tempted by the club finesse—after all, West had to have the king of clubs and five diamonds for his overcall. He came to hand with the ace of clubs—a Vienna Coup—and then ran four spades, discarding the jack of clubs from hand.

In dummy there remained a diamond and the queen of clubs, while declarer held K-8 in diamonds. West could not hold both the king of clubs and two diamonds, and was faced with the choice of which hand he presented with the game-going trick.

WATCHES

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

Kiley calls prison performance 'magic'

NORFOLK, Mass. (AP) — Actor Richard Kiley, who won a Tony award as Don Quixote in "The Man of La Mancha," says he was "absolutely speechless" over a prison troupe's preparations for a production of the musical.

"Out of spit and bailing wire, they've created magic," Kiley, 64, said Tuesday after coaching the 20 inmates of the Awesome Convict Arts Group at the Massachusetts Correction Institution for their June 15 performance.

"I'm sure that in the beginning it was very hard to tap their energy," he said. "There's a kind of natural lethargy guys get in this kind of a situation."

"La Mancha" is a musical adaptation of a novel written by Miguel de Cervantes while he was imprisoned in 1605 for trying to collect taxes from the Roman Catholic church during the Spanish Inquisition.

"The imagination has no walls," Kiley reflected. "These guys have flown over the walls in their minds for sure... I guess the only unnerving moment came when I thought that in the end we go home and they go back to their cells."

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Brooke Shields has been signed to a three-year, multimillion-dollar contract to appear in television and print advertising for Arrid Extra Dry antiperspirant, the company says.

Shields

The advertising, continuing the brand's "Get a Little Closer" theme, will first appear on television in June and in print in August, Arrid's maker, Carter Products, a division of Carter-Wallace Inc., said Tuesday.

John Mack, president of Carter Products, said it selected the actress "because she projects a wholesome, yet sophisticated image."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Acid-tongued comedian Joan Rivers thinks New Jersey has gone too far this time, lambasting the state for not having sterling silver serving pieces at Drumthwacket, the governor's official mansion.

Rivers

"Proper is proper," said Miss Rivers, who learned the state secret on Sunday during a tour of the Princeton mansion. "And not having silver in the governor's mansion is not proper. Something should be done."

The 18-room official residence of Gov. Thomas H. Kean — who actually lives on his private estate in Livingston — has sterling flatware and can use a punch bowl and two candelabra on loan from the battleship USS New Jersey, said Jane Sanderson, administrative assistant to Debby Kean.

However, it doesn't have any silver candlesticks, bowls or platters.

"I think it's a crime, especially for a state that has gambling," said Miss Rivers, who performed here over the weekend and took part in Hands Across America. "New Jersey shouldn't have to eat off stainless."

UPPINGHAM, England (AP) — Three members of England's junior chess squad defeated Gary Kasparov in multi-challenge match in which the world champion won 11 games and tied in six.

Kasparov, 22, who was paid several thousand dollars for the challenge in this central England community, took about 30 seconds for each move Tuesday as he went from table to table.

Philip Moris, 18, one of the victors, said Kasparov "made one fatal move and that was the end of the match."

Kasparov is in Britain to inspect the venue for his world title rematch with Anatoly Karpov, which begins July 28 at London's Park Lane Hotel.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star George Jones refused to perform at a festival in Texarkana, Texas, because the promoter did not have the money to pay the agreed fee, his booking agent said Tuesday.

Tony Conway, vice president of Buddy Lee Attractions of Nashville, said Jones did not perform Monday at the Ar-La-Tex Festival on the advice of the agency.

"This is the only leverage the artist has," Conway said. He said Jones "has made a successful effort the past four years to make every contracted engagement and to overcome a past reputation which was not that stable."

Jones picked up the nickname "No Show Jones" several years ago for not showing up at concerts. Jones, formerly married to country star Tammy Wynette, is known for hits such as "He Stopped Loving Her Today" and "The Race Is On."

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — There was no evidence of excessive speed or drug or alcohol abuse in a boating accident in which the son of movie director Francis Ford Coppola died and the son of actor Ryan O'Neal was injured, officials said.

Gian Carlo Coppola, 23, was killed in the accident on the crowded South River on Monday when his boat cut between a tow boat and a disabled boat, striking the tow line that connected the two boats, said Sgt. Millard Waddell of the Maryland Natural Resources Police.

G. Coppola

Griffin O'Neal, 21, suffered a minor shoulder injury in the accident, but refused treatment, Waddell said.

Waddell said the other two boats were about 150 feet apart when the 14-foot runabout containing O'Neal and Coppola cut between them. "It would probably not be good boating practice" to cut between the boats, he said.

O'Neal told investigators that Coppola was operating the boat at the time of the accident, Waddell said. O'Neal estimated the boat, powered by a 50 horsepower engine, was going about 14 or 15 knots (roughly 16 to 17 mph) when it hit the tow rope.

Asked if that was excessive speed, Waddell responded: "For that particular area, no."

He said the tow line ripped loose the railing around the bow. Coppola was killed when he was hit by the line, the rail, or both, "knocking him to the deck of the boat ..., causing massive damage to the head and neck," Waddell said.

A police boat reached the scene six minutes after the accident in response to an emergency call from an unidentified boater.

Coppola was taken to Anne Arundel General Hospital in nearby Annapolis, where he was pronounced dead an hour after the accident, officials said.

Lisa Hillman, a hospital spokeswoman, said the apparent cause of death was severe head injuries. The body was taken to the state medical examiner's office in Baltimore for an autopsy.

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP) — Barry Kiener, a pianist with drummer Buddy Rich's band, died Sunday. He was 30.

Kiener, of Rochester, N.Y., died during a trip from Texas to California. He was on a bus with others of the 17-member band, officials said.

He died of heart and lung failure and preliminary autopsy results indicated heroin may have been involved, authorities said.

National survivors open WCS play

National teams from 24 countries, survivors of two years of qualifying play, will open the 1986 World Cup Soccer tournament May 31 in Mexico. After four weeks and 51 tournament games, the two remaining teams will play for the World Cup June 29.

Although the WC is often referred to as the Super Bowl of soccer, even that doesn't tell the story. Try to imagine the atmosphere if once every four years all Texas born NFL players returned home for a world championship football game against all Oklahoma born players, and you can begin to get the feel of the World Cup.

Defending champion Italy faces Bulgaria Sunday and one of the top early matches sends against Brazil and Spain June 1. While the U.S. failed to qualify, Mexico and Canada are involved. Mexico meets Belgium June 3 and Canada faces France June 1.

Many of the games will be carried on SIN....

MIDLAND ADULT teams competed in the Memorial Day weekend North Texas State Metro Adult tournament. Midland Circus took first in the Over-30 Open division with a stunning 6-0 semifinal victory over Dallas South End and an overtime victory over Oklahoma City in the finals.

Nine goals by Jim Hanophy and two shutouts by goalkeeper Joe Nye paced the Circus.

The Midland Dustbusters won second in the Rec-11 Women's division, losing in overtime in the finals. Midland's Dustdevils took third in the Under-30 men's competition and Midland Exodus was third in the ladies Rec-1 division....

THE NEGATIVE side effects of the downturn in the oil industry have reached all the way to the local soccer leagues. Oil industry professionals leaving Midland for greener pastures unfortunately made up a good percentage of the soccer referees in Midland.

In an effort to overcome what might otherwise be a crippling shortage this fall, the Permian Adult Soccer Association has agreed to sponsor the full cost of referee certification clinics for any PBSA player. Anyone interested in taking advantage of this offer should contact either David Stall (682 8904) or Roy Barr (687 3466).

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore outfielder Fred Lynn, who hit .522 last week, has been named the American League's player of the week.

Lynn, who hit three home runs and drove in nine runs, collected 12 hits in 23 at-bats for the period ending Sunday.

Detroit's Walt Terrell, who had a 2-0 record and a 0.50 earned run average, and Boston's Don Baylor, who hit .435, also received strong support in the voting.

In the National League, Los Angeles Dodgers left-hander Ferndando Valenzuela, who pitched two-hitters against Montreal and Philadelphia, received the player of the week honors.

It marked the second time this season that Valenzuela won the weekly award.

Eddie Bird has big shoes to fill at ISU

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Eddie Bird will get his wish to play college basketball close to home, but in choosing Indiana State, the comparisons with his famous older brother will be inevitable.

"There was a great deal of pressure on Eddie following in Larry's footsteps," said Gary Holland, the coach at Springs Valley High School, where Eddie Bird broke his older brother's career scoring record last season.

"There is room for improvement in his game and hopefully he will mature, grow in size and improve in the future," Holland said.

"Indiana State did a good job in recruiting him. They didn't put pressure on him and they didn't come on strong," Holland said. "I think he will do well playing for Coach (Ron) Greene. I hope the people in Terre Haute don't try to compare him to Larry."

Larry Bird, 6-foot-9, was a two-time All-American at Indiana State and was the national college player of the year in 1979, when he led the Sycamores to second place in the the NCAA tournament. In high school, Larry Bird scored 1,125 points over three seasons — although he played only two varsity games as a sophomore. In the National Basketball Association, he has been an all-star in each of his seven years with the Boston Celtics and was named league MVP twice.

Eddie Bird, three inches shorter than Larry, scored 1,172 points in four seasons at Springs Valley, and he averaged 21.6 points and 9.3 rebounds his senior year. The French Lick school compiled an 18-6 regular-season record before losing in the regionals of the Indiana state tournament.

"We think he has the tools to become an outstanding college basketball player," Greene, whose Sycamores were 11-17 last year in his first season at the school, said.

"He will bring some impressive high school statistics with him to Indiana State. We think he has the tools to become a fine college basketball player and to make a solid contribution to the program we are building," Greene said Tuesday's in announcing Eddie Bird's selection of the Sycamores.

The younger Bird said he considers the strong points of his game to be scoring and rebounding.

"I chose Indiana State because I like the area, plus it will be close to home and make me feel at home," he said. "I have friends attending school there and that had a lot to do with the decision.

"I plan to major in math or physical education and I'd like to be a coach someday."

Cowboys' Verplank still seeks first win

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Oklahoma State's Scott Verplank, who many thought would dominate collegiate golf after he became the first amateur in 31 years to win a PGA Tour event, enters the 1986 NCAA golf tournament looking for his first victory of the year.

And the senior, who tied for the NCAA title his freshman year, doesn't like it a bit.

"It's been real difficult," Verplank said last week in Dallas, where he was preparing for the tournament to begin Wednesday at the 7,079-yard Bermuda Run Golf and Country Club. "It's been a real drain, a storm I've had to weather."

Verplank beat Jim Thorpe for the Western Open title last August, but instead of rocketing to stardom, Verplank saw little change in his game. Verplank's 71.7 strokes per round is only a half-stroke higher than he shot in 1985.

"It was a great experience, but then again it hasn't been that great an experience," he said. "But they say you're supposed to learn the most when things aren't going well."

Verplank hopes things go well this week, not only for himself, but for the top-ranked Cowboys, who will be looking to defeat defending champion Houston, host Wake Forest and 27 other schools in the field. The Cowboys last won the NCAA golf title in 1983.

Houston, coached by Dave Williams, has won the last two NCAA titles and 16 crowns overall. But the Cowboys should be pressed by Oklahoma State and Wake Forest. The second-ranked Demon Deacons, playing on their home course, last won the team title in 1974 and 1975 and have had four individual champions.

Also expected to be in the hunt for the team title are Florida, LSU, Georgia Tech, Oklahoma and North Carolina.

A host of golfers appear ready to give Verplank a run for the individual title.

Southern California's Sam Randolph, the low-amateur player in The Masters the past two years, should battle for the crown in the four-day, 72-hole event. Others in the hunt are Georgia's Peter Persons, North Carolina's John Hughes and Kurt Beck, Georgia Tech's Nacho Gervas and Wake Forest All-American's Chris Kite and Billy Andrade.

"There's more teams with a chance to win this thing than I can remember," Oklahoma State coach Mike Holder said. "Wake Forest has a tremendous advantage. It's fresh ... and probably even more important, it has the advantage of the home course."

However, when the tournament opens, most eyes will be on one player — Verplank.

Injured Snow Chief to miss Belmont

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Preakness winner Snow Chief, who suffered a slight injury in winning the $1 million Jersey Derby, is being shipped back to California and will skip the Belmont Stakes.

"A bump on his right front ankle," suffered during or after Monday's running of the Jersey Derby, prompted the decision, the colt's handlers said Tuesday at Garden State Park.

Before heading to California, trainer Mel Stute said the injury was not serious but that handlers didn't want to take any chances by running the colt in the 1½-mile final leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown for 3-year-olds at Belmont Park on June 7.

Snow Chief, whose only loss in seven starts this year came in the Kentucky Derby May 3 when he finished 11th as the favorite, boosted his earnings to $2.7 million with the $600,000 winner's purse from the 1¼-mile Jersey Derby.

"The Belmont is a classic race and we would have liked to run in it," said co-owner Carl Grinstead, who hadn't planned on the Belmont until Snow Chief's front-running two-length triumph over Mogambo on Monday.

Grinstead and Stute had differed on Snow Chief's next start after Monday's race. The trainer had wanted all along to give the California-bred a rest, but Grinstead had wanted the colt to try the Belmont "as a little more redemption (for the Derby loss) if he could win two classics."

The Belmont would have meant four races in 35 days for Snow Chief.

Snow Chief is the only horse eligible to win the $1 million New Jersey Challenge, a bonus offered to the horse who sweeps the Jersey Derby, the Haskell at Monmouth on July 26 and the Pegasus at the Meadowlands on Sept. 12.

The June 29 St. Paul Derby at Canterbury Downs near Minneapolis now is likely to be the the colt's next start.

The Belmont field will be headed by Ferdinand, the Kentucky Derby winner who finished second in the Preakness at Pimlico May 17.

12 alternatives to whacking your kid.
When the big and little problems of your everyday life pile up to the point where you feel like lashing out—stop. Take time out. Don't take it out on your kid. Try any or all of these simple alternatives—whatever works for you.
1. Stop in your tracks. Step back. Sit down.
2. Take five deep breaths. Inhale. Exhale. Slowly, slowly.
3. Count to 10. Better yet, 20. Or say the alphabet out loud.
4. Phone a friend. A relative. Even the weather.
5. Still mad? Punch a pillow. Or munch an apple.
6. Thumb through a magazine, book, newspaper, photo album.
7. Do some sit-ups.
8. Pick up a pencil and write down your thoughts.
9. Take a hot bath. Or a cold shower.
10. Lie down on the floor, or just put your feet up.
11. Put on your favorite record.
12. Water your plants.

Dollar falls

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell against European currencies and the Japanese yen in nervous, uncertain trading today after dealers concluded they were unlikely to push the dollar any higher. Gold was down in Europe after strengthening in Hong Kong.

Dealers said the technical trading that had pushed the dollar higher in recent days seemed to be coming to an end, while most of West Germany was going into a long weekend starting Thursday and dealers in Frankfurt said this was slowing trading.

"People aren't sure what they should do," said a Frankfurt dealer.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell to a closing 168.90 yen from Tuesday's 169.68. Later, in London, it was quoted at 168.80 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Tuesday:

—2.2727 West German marks, down from 2.2860

—1.8785 Swiss francs, down from 1.8905

—7.2415 French francs, down from 7.2865

—2.5555 Dutch guilders, down from 2.5735

—1,560.00 Italian lire, down from 1,566.50

—1.3793 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3717

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.5030, compared with $1.4965 Tuesday.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $341.40 a troy ounce, compared with late Tuesday's $342.20. At mid-morning Wednesday, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $341.60.

In Zurich, the bid price was $341.55, down from $342 late Tuesday.

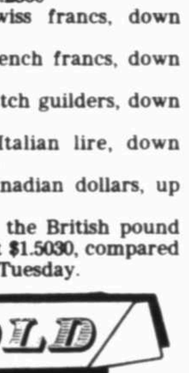

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold rose 0.52 to close at a bid $341.78.

Silver was quoted in London Wednesday at a bid price of $5.13 a troy ounce, up from Tuesday's $5.12.

Existing home sales soaring

WASHINGTON (AP) — The decade's lowest mortgage rates pushed sales of existing homes in April to their fastest clip in 6½ years, yielding the largest annual increase in median prices since 1981, an industry survey said Tuesday.

Those sales increased 11.3 percent from March to April for a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.56 million units, according to the National Association of Realtors' monthly survey.

The April pace of home sales was 17.9 percent faster than the April 1985 rate of 3.02 million units, the Realtors said. It was also the fastest annual rate since October 1979, when homes were selling at a pace of 3.77 million units.

The median price for an existing single-family home increased $1,300 last month to $81,100 — up 8.4 percent from the April 1985 median of $74,800. The median is the point at which half the homes sold for more and half for less.

That annual increase was the biggest appreciation in existing home values since February 1981, when median prices jumped 8.6 percent from February 1980.

Interest rates, now hovering above 10 percent for conventional mortgages and 9.5 percent for Federal Housing Adminstration loans, were the major factor in the spurt in home sales, the Realtors said.

"Families are discovering that affordability conditions are better now than at any other time in this decade," said Clark E. Wallace, the association's president.

The surge in home sales partially reflects "a tremendous pent-up demand" among people who couldn't afford to buy a house when interest rates were 12 percent to 15 percent several years ago, said Realtors spokesman Walter Molony.

"A lot of people were sitting on the sidelines waiting to see what was going to happen in interest rates," Molony said. "They hadn't even been thinking about buying a home for some time."

The actual number of home sales was 335,000 in April, compared with 277,000 in March and 283,000 in April 1985, according to the Realtors' survey.

Regionally, the biggest increase in home sales occurred in the Midwest, where the annual pace jumped 15.8 percent to a rate of 1.1 million units.

Don Evans, president of the newly consolidated TMBR/Sharp Drilling Co. contemplates the future facing what is now the largest drilling contracting firm in the Permian Basin with 53 rigs.

TMBR looks for gas rebound

'Big picture' perspective needed for success

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

The guiding philosophy at TMBR Drilling these days is one of not drawing long-term conclusions from short-term events.

TMBR President D.L. (Don) Evans, says the company is faithfully looking beyond the bleak short-term forecast to prepare for the oil and gas industry turnaround that is coming. "The question is when it will come, not if," Evans says.

As a demonstration of corporate faith in long-term improvements, TMBR recently acquired Sharp Drilling Co. from Pioneer Corp., Amarillo. A bargain price of $3 million for a 23-rig company — including equipment, office property, and the expertise of "five-star caliber people" — enabled TMBR to muster the courage to make a bold move in a down market.

"We saw it simply as something you have to do if you have faith in the industry," Evans explains.

"Natural gas reserves are at their lowest level since the 1950s and the estimated life of proven gas reserves is at an all-time low. Combine those figures with the fact that domestic oil supply is still vulnerable to the whims of foreign governments, and it becomes evident that the oil and gas 'energy crisis' is still a real threat to this country," Evans says.

"A shortage of natural gas deliverability in the near future is as predictable today as it was in the late '60s. Today the scenario of gas deliverability, supply and demand is directly analogous to the period preceding the healthy growth of the energy industry in the early- and mid-1970s," Evans notes.

"We're getting ready for the turnaround that one bitter, or two moderate winters could bring about." When supplies become tight again, those who have been the most vocal in their condemnations of the oil and gas industry will want the problems solved overnight.

"One of the most serious shortcomings of the energy industry's public relations efforts is its inability to change the perception of the lead time necessary in the oil and gas business." The consuming public still has no idea of all the time-consuming steps required between generating a prospect and delivering oil or gas production from that lease.

The ability to do "great things in the worst of times" is the hallmark of survival instinct. Evans is confident that, within a few years, looking back at the 1986 formation of TMBR/Sharp Drilling will prove to be "great timing".

Lone Star Steel moving to diversify from oil industry

LONE STAR, Texas (AP) — Oil prices may be edging upward, but Lone Star Steel is nevertheless trying to curb its dependence on oil-related businesses, the company's chief executive officer says.

"Our job is to make the company thrive once again in spite of oil prices," Howard Beasley said Tuesday at the Morris County Lone Star Steel steel mill during a visit by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

To lessen the company's reliance on its oil-related pipe business — which has been battered by falling oil prices — Lone Star has re-entered many sectors of the steel market that the company withdrew from during the oil boom of the last decade, Beasley said.

He added the company also continues to invest heavily in research and development in an effort to find new product lines.

Referring to recent layoffs at the plant, Beasley added, "I think if our product strategy is successful, we can bring back many of the people who have been laid off."

Sperry Corp. directors, headed by Gerald G. Probst, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, left, accepted a merger offer from Burroughs Corp., headed by W. Michael Blumenthal, chairman.

Sperry accepts offer to merge with Burroughs

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

Sperry yielded to a sweetened bid by Burroughs on Tuesday, accepting a $4.8 billion merger proposal that will create the nation's second-largest computer maker.

Burroughs said it will pay $76.50 in cash and securities for Sperry's 62.5 million shares. The offer was made Tuesday morning, following indirect negotiations throughout the long holiday weekend, and was accepted a few hours later by Sperry's board. Details of the agreement were not released, but Sperry said it would disclose additional terms "promptly."

Neither company would comment on what roles Sperry executives, in particular Chairman Gerald A. Probst and President Joseph Kroger, would have in the new company. Nor was it known what effect the merger would have on New York-based Sperry's 67,000 employees.

News of Burroughs' offer began rippling through Wall Street early Tuesday morning, and Sperry's stock began moving up before acceptance of the bid was announced late in the trading session. By the end of the day, Sperry shares had gained $1.25 to close at $74.25, a new high. It was the most active issue on the New York Stock Exchange, as almost 3 million shares were traded. Burroughs' stock dropped 37 1-2 cents to close at $59.50.

Analysts, some of whom were critical when Sperry rejected the $75 a share that Burroughs had offered last week, said the price was good for both sides.

"Burroughs got away cheaper than I expected," said Jan Lewis of Palo Alto Research Group.

Phillips forms new overseas division

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Phillips Petroleum Co. will form a new international division of exploration and production in Bartlesville effective July 1, company officials said Tuesday.

The new division will bring 50 to 60 employees to Bartlesville, including 12 to 15 employees from the current Asia-Latin America headquarters in Houston, said company spokesman Dan Harrison.

The international division will direct all of the company's exploration and development programs outside the United States, except those in the United Kingdom and Norway.

L.M. Rickards, Phillips executive vice president of exploration and production, said the formation of the new division is part of the company plan to consolidate and streamline its operations.

"Creating an international division will give us improved access to the company's exploration and production services groups already headquartered in Bartlesville," Rickards said.

Exxon moves 70 to Midland

From Staff Reports

Exxon Corp. will be moving in approximately 70 families to Midland from its Andrews production office, according to company spokeswoman Sharon Curran-Westcott.

She said that about 100 field operations personnel will remain in Andrews while 85 staff and management personnel will be consolidated into the Midland production office, to be renamed the Southwestern Production Division. "About 15 already live in Midland and commute, so that leaves about 70," she noted.

The emphasized that this is a step in the firm's consolidation effort, not a job reduction effort. "This is being done to improve our operating efficiency and effectiveness."

Non-OPEC production down, oil minister reports

JAKARTA (UPI) — Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto Tuesday said non-OPEC oil production has fallen by about 600,000 barrels a day to around 23.3 million barrels a day since the first of the year, the OPEC news agency reported.

Subroto pointed out that world oil demand has risen by 200,000 barrels a day since March because of lower prices.

By the fourth quarter of this year, he predicted the situation will be "much better than today" but warned that oil prices are not likely to return to $28 a barrel any time soon, according to OPECNA, the cartel's news agency.

Oil prices have plummeted by about 50 percent from an average $28 a barrel in December, when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries abandoned production and price controls in a bid to force non-members to help prop up prices by curbing their output.

Subroto said one factor behind the drop in non-OPEC output is high production costs that are not geared to low oil prices.

The Indonesian oil minister said the non-OPEC output decline would enable OPEC to raise its production ceiling above the targets of 16.3 million barrels a day in the third quarter and 17.3 million barrels a day in the fourth quarter of 1986.

At the April meeting in Geneva, a majority of OPEC ministers agreed to lower the cartel's production to these targets, but Iran, Libya and Algeria dissented. OPEC officials said any cutback in non-OPEC production would be added to the cartel's output for the second half of the year.

OPEC estimated its own production was 17.6 million barrels a day in the first two weeks of April.

Engineering firm among top 500 designers

By MELLA McEWEN

For the third consecutive year, Lubbock-based PARKHILL, SMITH & COOPER, INC., which has an office in Midland, has been named in the top 500 design firms in the United States for 1985.

The firm was named by "Engineering News-Record," a weekly construction magazine. Recent projects include the nearly completed $11.4 million roads, parking and drainage improvements at Midland Regional Airport, and major water and wastewater system improvements for the city of Midland. The firm is also designing projects for the Crane County Water District, the Town of Pecos City, and the city of Stanton.

Parkhill, Smith & Cooper was formed in 1945, and serves all of Texas, eastern New Mexico and several federal agencies. Besides the Midland branch, the firm has offices in El Paso, Amarillo and Austin.

R. Kyle Womack, vice president, is manager of the Permian Basin office, which currently has a major addition under construction.

TAN-FASTIC, a new tanning salon located in the North Park Shopping Center next to Music Den and Tony's Deli, is now open.

The salon uses TanAmerica beds, manufactured by a Dallas firm, and features air conditioned rooms with AM/FM stereo cassette headphones, push button start, and guarantees a tan in seven to 10 sessions. The first visit free.

Plus, customers who sign a one-year contract win a free trip.

A new store in Midland Park Mall, next to Motherhood and Home Savings, THE POSTER GALLERY, is offering over 1200 reasonably priced images and custom framing to Midland art lovers.

"We thought there was a latent demand for reasonably priced art and framing, and we wanted to cater to that demand," said manager Richard Giroux, whose brother owns the store.

If a customer doesn't find a poster or print at the store, the store can custom order. The store's main thrust is variety, Giroux said of the art, ranging in price from approximately $3.50 to $50.

Also, customers can bring in items to be mounted or framed. "We have inexpensive mylar framing or the more expensive glass and wood or glass and metal custom frames," Giroux said.

Several contractors and suppliers in the Permian Basin area are in the process of forming a local chapter of the National Association of the Remodeling Industry.

An organizational meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. this evening at the Airport Executel.

The benefits to the consumer of dealing with a NARI contractor including knowing the contractor has been in business at least a year, has a good track record, and that he is subscribing to a strict code of ethics.

Andrews field gains 178 barrel producer

The University Block 9 field of Andrews County gained a Pennsylvanian producer as AMOCO PRODUCTIOIN CO., Andrews, completed the No. 1 J.E. Parker "AC".

The well was tested to flow 178 barrels of 39.6 gravity crude, 102 Mcfd and no water on a 21/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 150 psi. Production is from perforations 9,092 to 9,133 ft., which had been acidized with 5,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid. Gas-oil ratio is 573:1.

Drilled to a total depth of 9,300 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 9,240 ft.

The well topped the San Andres at 4,850 ft., Wolfcamp at 8,560, and the Pennsylvanian at 8,960 ft. on ground elevation of 3,178 ft. Pay was topped at 9,092 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from south and west lines of Section 30, Block A-44, PSL survey, five miles northeast of Andrews.

Chevron completes Ellenburger producer

The Glasco field of Andrews County gained a second Ellenburger producer as CHEVRON U.S.A., INC. completed the No. 1 L.L. Butler to pump 130 barrels of 41.9 gravity crude and 346 barrels of water from perforations 13,797 to 13,800 ft., no treatment reported.

Drilled to a total depth of 13,810 ft., the well was plugged back to 13,805 ft. with five inch casing set at 12,073 ft.

The well topped the Simpson at 13,645 ft. and the Ellenburger at 13,789 ft. on ground elevation of 3,018 ft. Pay was topped at 12,997 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from east and north lines of Section 14, Block A-19, PSL survey, 24 miles northeast of Andrews.

Runnels field extender flows 100 barrels oil

SOJOURNER DRIKLING CORP., Abilene, added a second upper Capps producer to the Salvatiaon field of Runnels County with completion of the No. 1 Maracek.

On potential test, the well flowed 100 barrels of 40 gravity crude and no water on a 12/64 inch choke from perforations 4,060 to 4,070 ft. The interval was acidized with 750 gallons of acid.

Permitted as a 5,200 ft. wildcat, the well reached a total depth of 4,500 ft. and was plugged back to 4,144 ft., where 4 1/2 inch casing was set.

On ground elevation of 1,769 ft., formation tops include the Dog Bend at 4,035 ft., Upper Capps at 4,055, Lower Capps at 4,090, Goen Lime at 4,306, and the Gardner Lime at 4,460 ft.

Location is 1,787 ft. from north and east lines of Section 152, WCRR survey, four miles west of Rowena.

Kodak charges up

NEW YORK (AP) — Eastman Kodak Co., continuing to diversify, will sell a full line of alkaline batteries and the first 9-volt lithium battery for mass consumer use.

Kodak said its Ultralife 9-volt lithium battery has a shelf life of 10 years, compared with two or three years for alkaline batteries, and would be priced about 70 percent higher than alkaline batteries. It will be manufactured by Kodak.

Eastman Kodak has entered the $2 billion domestic consumer battery market, unveiling a complete line of consumer batteries

Kodak also will sell conventional alkaline batteries under the Supralife name in the most popular sizes, AA, AAA, C, D and 9-volt. They will be made to Kodak specifications by Matsushita Battery Industrial Co. in Japan.

All Kodak's batteries will have pure gold-plated tips on the positive contacts for better conductivity and resistance to corrosion, the company said.

Kodak said batteries were a natural product line for it to market because nearly 90 percent of batteries in the United States are sold through the same retail outlets that handle photographic products.

The alkaline batteries will be available in July and the lithium battery in early fall, Kodak said. The company is planning to introduce lithium batteries in other sizes besides 9-volt at a later date, according to Peter Clark, vice president of operations for Ultra Technologies, the two-year-old Kodak venture that developed the batteries.

People spend $2 billion a year in the U.S. ($5 billion worldwide) on non-rechargeable batteries, Kodak said. It said sales of high-performance batteries were growing by 10 percent to 12 percent annually.

Writing Chinese

Dr. H.C. Tien demonstrates how Chinese may be written on an IBM Personal Computer using a standard PC keyboard and a program he spent 20 years developing.

The Chinese have a saying that a journey of 1,000 miles must begin with one step. Dr. C.H. Tien took that step when he decided to computerize the 60,000-character Chinese language.

It took him to years, but the Michigan physician has developed what he believes is a simple but unique method for word processing, data storage and telecommunication in Chinese, using an IBM Personal Computer with a standard keyboard.

In Chinese, the word Li can mean plum, pear, crime, beauty, plague, raccoon, dysentery, or 99 other unrelated characters. One word can have more than 100 characters, depending on subtle tonal or semantic differences. That will give you some idea of how difficult a feat it is to convert the 6,000-year-old Chinese language into a 20th-century computer system.

Dr. Tien used a "natural language approach" and a standard keyboard to create an intermediary language which he calls Pinxxiee (pronounced Pin-Shay), to alphabetize more than 16,000 characters of the most commonly used Chinese characters (called Han characters).

Dr. Tien's Pinxxiee uses double letters to indicate tones and a set of 200 semantic suffixes to more precisely define the Pinyin words. His suffixes are based on the Chinese characters.

The result: anyone can sit at a standard Personal Computer keyboard, type in Pinxxiee and have it converted into Chinese characters. The procedure is as fast as word processing in English.

Speaking computerese

DALLAS (SWN) New technology which enables computers to understand spoken commands from virtually anyone will be marketed by a Dallas-based company.

InterVoice, Inc. has reached an agreement with Voice Control Systems, also of Dallas, to license VCS's proprietary speaker-independent voice recognition technology.

InterVoice uses the IBM Personal Computer as base for a voice response system that provides stored information to the user by changing the data into words which sound like natural speech. Adding the VCS technology to the InterVoice system, the user can request information from the computer by speaking directly to it over telephone lines.

The systems are in use throughout the nation in banks, credit unions, and savings and loan associations, providing banking services by phone.

DRILLING — Mobil affiliate eliminates 144 jobs

"Granted, there is not much work for drilling contractors working in any depth range today. But the weekly posting of new post-World War II record low rig counts cannot be a long-lasting phenomenon.

Evans explains, "With an average weekly rig count between 1800 and 1900 last year, the natural gas industry replaced only 60 percent of the reserves produced. If the count averages around 800 this year, the reserve replacement ratio will fall to 25 to 30 percent of the 17-plus trillion cubic feet of natural gas produced."

Deliverability is going to have to suffer at some point — seemingly not very far down the line.

However, even if the gas rebound takes three to five years, TMBR/Sharp is ready. With TMBR's restructuring as a part of its spin-off from Tom Brown Inc., "the firm is financially sound and structured to guarantee sufficient cash flow to sustain operations through a prolonged downturn," Evans says.

Evans' outlook relative to the gas market is a key to the acquisition of Sharp — a firm with more than a 40-year history in Permian Basin drilling, particularly in deep drilling, the province of the most prolific gas discoveries. Adding Sharp's deep drilling expertise to TMBR's 30 years in shallow and intermediate depth drilling, underscores the company's commitment to offering services at all depths throughout the basin.

On the oil side of the industry, Evans sees recent positive movements in spot and futures markets as the early signs of a self-correcting process underway in allowing "classical economic forces to bring supply and demand back in line. Gradually increasing demand combined with stifled supply resulting from reduced exploration, will allow prices to stabilize in the $18 to $22 barrel range.

"The Saudis' self-interest will be served by prices in that range, which will give both needed cash flow for their government and a degree of regional geopolitical stability in the Middle East," Evans expects.

"Economic forces must be given the chance to work in this situation: an import fee on crude oil could provide some short-term benefits, but would also give industry opponents something to hold over our head once the market turns around."

However, Evans feels that the current down market is an opportune time to get some constructive legislation enacted, including removing the windfall profits tax, deregulating natural gas and repealing incremental pricing of natural gas.

The basin is destined to have "another day in the sun," — not necessarily a boom — but a steady, healthy growth pattern which marked the pre-boom days of the late '70s, Evans predicts. "The inextricable relationship of a stable domestic energy supply and national security, will gradually dawn on larger numbers of people who will in turn realize they need us — a strong, vibrant energy industry."

"Even in a cyclic industry like ours, the current condition is an unconventional cycle, which requires unconventional actions." Buying 23 rigs to add to a 30-rig fleet, at fire-sale prices, may be just the kind of unconventional action which can pay off for the risk-takers in today's down times.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One Mobil Oil affiliate announced plans Tuesday to eliminate 130 Louisiana jobs and another 14 positions because of the deteriorating worldwide petroleum markets.

Mobil Oil Exploration & Producing Southeast Inc. said layoff notices were given Tuesday to 71 salaried employees — 31 at its New Orleans headquarters, 23 in Lafayette, seven in Morgan City and seven in Lake Charles. It said 59 others, either clerks or those who are paid hourly, will get their notices within the next several weeks.

Another Mobil affiliate, Mobil Exploration & Producing Services Inc., 14 jobs — six in Lafayette, four in Morgan City and four in New Orleans.

A company news release said layoffs also were being made elsewhere because of a reduction of more than $900 million in Mobil's worldwide exploration and production budget.

fix-it-fast meals

A Weekday Survival Plan

What's for supper tonight? Nancy Stern, nationally known as the "Uncomplicated Gourmet," has the answer – four of them to be exact! That's four tempting hot dinners all ready in just 20 minutes – or less. And, in just one pan – which means cleanup is a snap. Now, getting through the week couldn't be easier! Her secret: rice and some very practical supper survival tips.

Nancy, an energetic culinary "artist" and mother of two, has impressive culinary capabilities based on years of preparation and practice. As a certified instructor and member of the International Association of Cooking Schools, she is an expert in classic continental cooking techniques. But Nancy understands that today working people need help when it comes to "weekday survival cooking." By this she means "balancing good nutrition with fast results and making meals as uncomplicated as possible." For weekday meals, she admits that "restaurant take-out foods do save time, but are vastly expensive and often fail on flavor." Her solution is to "make your home freezer a take-out store." With double-batching or some advanced preparation, complete meals can be stored in the freezer for easy take-out.

Here she has especially designed four weekday survival meals, all using just three easy steps, for the working person who loves a delicious, balanced, moderate-calorie meal but can't spend hours in the kitchen. Nancy offers options created for the way you cook today, to help just about everyone survive. Whether you're cooking for one, two or eight, prefer a range or microwave oven, or like to prepare ahead and freeze, you can create quick, tasty, versatile dishes with minimum effort. Armed with uncomplicated three-step recipes and survival tips, Nancy proves that quick, easy, healthful and delicious can go hand and hand in the kitchen.

Now, getting through the week couldn't be easier! These fix-it-fast meals are ready in 20 minutes or less. Shown: Fish, Rice & Broccoli with Basil Cream Sauce; Chicken Cacciatore

NANCY STERN'S SUPPER SURVIVAL TIPS

Don't Throw Out Leftovers – "But don't leave them until they're wilted." Slice or chop them, then individually wrap and label, and store in freezer for use as ingredients. On busy days, extend them into complete meals – add them to soups, stir-frys and casseroles.

Make Ahead and Freeze – make more than you need for one meal – prepare a double batch recipe on Saturday, eat half and freeze the rest for weekday use.

Stock Your Kitchen Well – having ingredients on hand means fewer trips to the store – a major source of lost time. Pantry inventory control is made easier when you keep a note pad and record items as they are used up.

Use Spare Minutes Wisely – once you're in the kitchen, make the most of your time – pre-cut ingredients and store them – this builds-in convenience so you're ready to just heat and eat your next meal.

Measure All Ingredients Before You Start To Cook – to decrease frustration and speed results.

Plan Ahead – preparing menus for 3 to 5 or 7 days, whatever works for you, means no forgetting and no wasted effort because all the decisions have been made in advance.

Let The Kids Help – kids love to help start the meal – this not only gets supper off to a quick start, but teaches responsibility.

Get The Man Of The House Involved – instead of plain work for one – make it an opportunity for conversation – men are a new creative force in the kitchen today.

CHICKEN WITH FRESH VEGETABLES AND RICE

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3/4 pound chicken, slivered
- 4 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 1 small onion, sliced
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 2/3 cup white wine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup fresh broccoli florets
- 1/4 cup diced red pepper
- 1-1/2 cups rice

*Or use 1-3/4 cups frozen farm fresh broccoli, green beans, pearl onions and red peppers.

1. Heat butter in large skillet, add chicken, mushrooms and onion, and saute for about 5 minutes.

2. Add broth, wine, salt, pepper and remaining vegetables; simmer covered for 5 minutes.

3. Stir in rice. Cover; remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Makes 6 cups or 4 servings, about 330 calories per serving.

Note: Recipe may be doubled (using one 12-inch skillet or two 9-inch skillets) or halved. For 1 serving, quarter recipe, using 1-1/2 tablespoons white wine, dash of pepper and 1/3 cup rice.

Microwave Directions for 4 Servings: Combine chicken, mushrooms, onion and butter in nonmetal serving dish. Cover and cook at high power 5 minutes, stirring after 3 minutes. Add remaining ingredients, reducing broth to 1-1/2 cups. Cover and cook an additional 5 to 6 minutes, stirring after 3 minutes. Remove from oven and let stand covered for 5 minutes. Fluff with fork.

Freezing Directions: If desired, freeze single portions. To reheat, place in saucepan (or in nonmetal baking dish for microwave) with 2 tablespoons water. Cover. Simmer on top of stove 8 to 10 minutes, gently stirring occasionally. For microwave, cook at medium power for 9 minutes or until thoroughly heated, turning dish one-quarter turn after 5 minutes. Stir gently before serving.

According to Nancy, "It's absolutely fine to use just about any fresh fish fillet you choose in this recipe. And, to make it something truly elegant, 1/2 cup dry wine can be substituted for 1/2 cup of the chicken broth."

FISH, RICE AND BROCCOLI WITH BASIL CREAM SAUCE

- 1 package (16 oz.) frozen flounder, slightly thawed and cut into 8 squares
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1/3 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 package individually frozen whole broccoli spears
- 1-1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1/2 cup heavy cream, half and half or light cream
- 1/2 teaspoon dry basil
- 1-1/2 cups rice
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

1. Melt butter in skillet; add onion and salt. Place broccoli on one side of skillet and fish on the other. Cover and simmer 8 minutes, turning fish and broccoli once after 4 minutes.

2. Pour chicken broth, heavy cream and basil into skillet. Bring to a full boil.

3. Add rice; sprinkle with parsley. Cover; remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Makes 4 servings, about 370 calories per serving using heavy cream.

Note: Recipe may be doubled (using one 12-inch skillet or two 9-inch skillets) or halved.

Microwave Directions for 4 Servings: Combine butter, onion, salt, broccoli and flounder in nonmetal serving dish, placing broccoli on one side and fish on the other. Cover and cook on high power 5 minutes. Rearrange inner pieces of fish and broccoli to the outer sides of the dish and cook 3 minutes longer. Add remaining ingredients and cook 5 minutes, stirring after 3 minutes. Remove from oven and let stand 5 minutes.

Freezing Directions: If desired, freeze single portions. To reheat, place in saucepan (or nonmetal serving dish for microwave) with 2 tablespoons water; cover. Simmer 8 to 10 minutes, gently stirring occasionally. For microwave, cook at medium power for 9 minutes or until thoroughly heated, turning dish one-quarter turn after 5 minutes. Stir gently before serving.

Don't know how many to expect or at what time? Prepare ahead and freeze directions make this recipe the perfect solution for a family with a busy schedule.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE

- 2 tablespoons butter, margarine or oil
- 1 pound chicken, cut into strips
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 medium green pepper, cut into strips
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 can (28 oz.) whole tomatoes
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon basil
- 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper (optional)
- 1-1/2 cups rice

1. Heat butter in skillet, add chicken strips, onion, green pepper and garlic, saute lightly.

2. Add tomatoes, tomato sauce, salt and seasonings. Bring to a full boil.

3. Stir in rice. Cover; remove from heat. Let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Makes about 8 cups or 4 servings, about 370 calories per serving.

Note: Recipe may be doubled (using one 12-inch skillet or two 9-inch skillets) or halved.

Microwave Directions for 4 Servings: Combine chicken strips, onion, garlic and butter in nonmetal serving dish. Cover and cook at high power for 5 minutes. Stir in remaining ingredients, cover and cook 5 to 6 minutes longer. Remove from oven and let stand covered for 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Makes about 8 cups or 4 servings.

Freezing Directions: If desired, freeze in single portions. To reheat, place in saucepan (or in nonmetal baking dish for microwave) with 2 tablespoons water. Cover. Simmer on top of stove 8 to 10 minutes, gently stirring occasionally. For microwave, cook at medium power for 9 minutes, or until thoroughly heated, turning dish one-quarter turn after 5 minutes. Stir gently before serving.

One of Nancy's pantry staples, soy sauce, adds distinctive oriental flavor to this authentic beef skillet dish. Convenient ingredients like pre-cooked rice cut down on cleanup and cooking time.

BEEF AND BROCCOLI

- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon water
- 3/4 pound well-trimmed flank steak, cut diagonally into 1/4-inch slices
- 3 tablespoons oil
- 2 cups diagonally cut individually frozen broccoli spears
- 1 cup red pepper strips
- 1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
- 1-3/4 cups water
- 1-1/2 cups rice

1. Combine cornstarch, soy sauce and water; add steak and stir to coat. Heat oil in skillet, then saute steak until lightly browned. Remove from skillet and keep warm.

2. Add broccoli, red pepper and water chestnuts to drippings. Heat thoroughly, stirring often. Add water. Bring to a full boil.

3. Stir in rice. Cover; remove from heat. Let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Push rice mixture to edge of skillet and place meat in center. Cover and simmer just until heated. Makes 6 cups or 4 servings, about 400 calories per serving.

Note: Recipe may be doubled (using one 12-inch skillet or two 9-inch skillets) or halved.

Microwave Directions for 4 Servings: Combine cornstarch, soy sauce and water; add steak and stir to coat. In nonmetal serving dish, add oil and meat. Cover and cook on high power 5 minutes. Stir in remaining ingredients, cover and cook 5 to 6 minutes longer. Remove from oven and let stand covered for 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Makes 6 cups or 4 servings.

Freezing Directions: If desired, freeze single portions. To reheat, place in saucepan (or nonmetal serving dish for microwave) with 2 tablespoons water. Cover. Simmer on top of stove 8 to 10 minutes, gently stirring occasionally. For microwave, cook at medium power for 9 minutes or until thoroughly heated, turning dish one-quarter turn after 5 minutes. Stir gently before serving.

Agency predicts chicken consumption will overtake beef

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

There is certain to be concern within the beef industry over a recent prediction by the U.S. Department of Commerce. The federal agency has projected that 1986 will be the year when, for the first time, Americans eat more chicken than beef.

Analysts estimate that per capita consumption of chicken will increase to 73 pounds this year, a 21 percent jump from the 1979 level of 60.5 pounds per person, according to a report on the projection by California Farmer magazine.

Beef, on the other hand, continues its decade-long slide, and per capita consumption could decline to 72 pounds, a 5 percent reduction from 1985 levels. The Department of Commerce offers several explanations for the problems now encountered by beef, which for years reigned as America's favorite source of protein.

"The reasons for the change include competition from fast-food chicken shops, an aging U.S. population (older Americans tend to eat less meat, particularly red meat), a continued concern over fat and cholesterol, and, of course, price," the magazine reported.

Whether consumption of chicken can, in fact, outdistance that of beef during the second half of this year is still in doubt.

Wholesale beef prices are expected to drop significantly as more dairy farmers take advantage of a U.S. Department of Agriculture buy-out program aimed at reducing the nation's staggering milk surplus. The $1.8 billion plan offers farmers throughout the country a financial incentive to liquidate a portion of their herds as a means of reducing milk production.

Estimates state that more than 10 percent of the nation's dairy herd will be slaughtered or exported, including 950,000 cows and 600,000 heifers or calves.

As meat from the slaughtered dairy cows reaches wholesale channels, there will be downward pressure on beef prices. Consequently, the program may provide consumers with some attractive buys in the coming months.

Maybe one of the reasons that Americans are eating less beef these days is that people have a tendency to cook it too long, thus negatively affecting flavor. At least that is one explanation that can be extracted from the findings of a poll conducted by Walt Disney World's Epcot Center.

Visitors to the amusement park in Orlando, Fla., were asked earlier this year how they prefer meat prepared. Most (58 percent) responded that their choice is either medium or well-done. In fact, three times as many people (20 percent) said they liked their meat well-done than did those who like it rare (6 percent).

For years, food professionals, chefs and various meat industry associations have recommended that most meats, particularly beef, be cooked to medium-rare or medium doneness. The Epcot poll found that only 30 percent of the 7,844 adults it surveyed, for instance, would eat medium-rare-cooked meats.

One problem with the results is that all meats and poultry were lumped together as a group. Thus, one individual's preference for, say, a medium rare sirloin at one meal and a crisply barbecued pork rib at another could not be distinguished.

Another curiosity in the Epcot survey was that either there are not as many vegetarians in the general population as the public is led to believe or the non-meat eaters do not flock to Walt Disney World. The poll found that only 4 percent of those offering opinions said they did not eat any meat.

Chicken teamed with potatoes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

SEASONED CHICKEN

4-pound roasting chicken
Salt
1 small onion (2 ounces), peeled
2 tablespoons butter, soft
2 medium cloves garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon paprika

Dry chicken with paper toweling. Sprinkle cavity with salt; put onion in cavity. Blend butter with garlic and paprika; with a small spatula spread over chicken. Tuck wingtips back akimbo fashion; tie legs together. Roast in a buttered shallow pan in a 425-degree oven, basting several times, until tender — about 1 hour. Cut into serving pieces with kitchen scissors. Makes 4 servings.

Note: Shake the pan once or twice during the first half-hour of roasting to prevent the chicken from sticking.

IF EVERYONE LIKED THEIR SOUP THE SAME WAY, WE WOULDN'T HAVE GIVEN YOU A CHOICE.

Introducing Special Request.

Almost everyone likes the taste of Campbell's® Soup.

But not everyone likes the same amount of salt in their soup.

That's why Campbell's has offered you regular and low sodium soups in the past.

And that's why we're adding Special Request™ Soup today.

You see, it's got all the goodness of our regular soup, with just a third less salt.

So it's suited for people who are cutting down on their salt, but aren't on a low sodium diet.

And, of course, Special Request is a great tasting soup that comes in all our most popular flavors: Chicken Noodle, Tomato, Cream of Mushroom, Cream of Chicken and Vegetable.

So look for it along with our regular and low sodium soups.

Because now, no matter how you like your soup, Campbell's has a soup for you.

CAMPBELL'S SOUP IS GOOD FOOD

Beef favorite food in Argentina

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

On the southeast coast of Latin America lies a vast expanse of rich soil known as the Argentine pampas. Here sleek cattle graze on luxuriant grass, and beef is the king of the kitchen.

Steak is a key part of the diet in this land below the equator, and some Argentines consume it in one form or another three times a day.

Argentina has several types of cuisine, including criollo or campfire cooking, which has a strong Indian influence that pervades much Latin American cookery.

The widely held belief that most Latin American cuisine is based on spices so hot they can choke the uninitiated is legend. It was apparently spread by those whose experience was limited to some of the volcanic offerings of Mexico. Actually, most Argentine dishes, while amply seasoned, are generally no hotter than those of North America.

Argentina's fondness for beef was inherited largely from the gauchos, part-Indian nomads who lived off the wild cattle roaming the pampas in the 19th century.

Evolutionist Charles Darwin visited Argentina and recalled a meal he shared with a gaucho band. The supper consisted of two piles of roast beef, one roasted and the other boiled. The only other dish was piece of pumpkin.

The Argentines have many ways of preparing beef, including a meat roll filled with egg, vegetables and seasonings.

MATAMBRE

2 steaks (2 pounds each)
2 cups red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon garlic powder, or fresh, chopped garlic
1 teaspoon dried thyme
1 pound fresh or frozen spinach
6 medium carrots, scraped
4 hard boiled eggs, quartered lengthwise
3 medium onions, cut into thin rings
4 medium fresh mushrooms, sauteed in butter and sliced
¼ cup parsley, chopped
1 teaspoon crumbled chili peppers
Salt and pepper to taste
4 cans canned or fresh beef stock

Have your butcher slit steaks horizontally from one long side to within half inch of other side.

Place steaks in glass baking dish, cover with wine vinegar and sprinkle with garlic and thyme. Marinate 6 hours. Lay steaks cut side up, and spread with washed spinach leaves. On top, place carrots about 3 inches apart. Place eggs between rows of carrots. Scatter with mushroom and onion slices. Atop, sprinkle parsley, chili peppers, salt and ground pepper.

Roll steaks into 2 cylinders and tie with kitchen cord. Place in large casserole and pour in beef stock, adding enough stock to bring liquid one third up side of steak rolls. Cover and cook in oven preheated to 375 degrees, for one hour. When done, remove string with knife and cut rolled meat into ½-inch slices.

Marinating tenderizes meats for grill

By BETTY WILSON
Hearst News Service

Take a team approach to summer meals; let one chef do the grilling while another prepares side dishes in the kitchen.

Tender meat from the grill can be economical. Ground beef, pork, chicken and fish are naturally tender, while marinades can be used on less tender cuts of beef.

Marinades are thin sauces consisting of acid, oil and seasonings. Vinegar, wine and fruit juice are popular tenderizing agents, each adding a distinctive flavor.

When marinating foods, place them in a non-metal container or plastic bag and cover with sauce. Turn the food several times.

Marinating time is influenced by temperature, size and type of meat. Less tender roasts and thick steaks may be marinated 8 to 10 hours in the refrigerator. At room temperature, 2 hours is adequate to flavor and tenderize meat. Marinate fish and tender cuts of meat 1 hour in the refrigerator or 30 minutes at room temperature. If meat or fish is cut into chunks, reduce the marinating time.

GRILLED FRESH HAM

4- to 5-pound boneless fresh ham
¾ cup chili sauce
¼ cup red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 clove garlic minced

Place ham on rotisserie of grill. Place foil under rotisserie to serve as drip pan. Insert meat thermometer in thickest part of ham, not touching fat or rotisserie rod. Close grill hood. Grill over slow coals for 2¼ to 2¾ hours or until meat thermometer registers 165 degrees.

For sauce, in a small bowl combine chili sauce, vinegar, lemon juice, mustard and garlic. Mix well. Brush ham frequently with sauce during last hour of grilling time. Let ham stand at least 10 minutes before carving to allow juices to set. Temperature should rise to 170 degrees during this time. Serves 12 to 15.

HERB GRILLED TROUT OR FROZEN FILLETS

6 ready-to-cook trout or 2 pounds frozen fillets, thawed
1 cup lemon juice
½ cup oil
1 tablespoon onion powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon dry parsley flakes

Mix lemon juice, oil and seasonings in heavy duty freezer bag large enough to accommodate fish. Add fish and lay bag in cake pan to refrigerate 30 minutes.

Remove fish from marinade. Place on well greased grill over hot charcoal and grill about 10 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with a fork, turning once and brushing often with marinade. Serves 6 to 8.

CHICKEN NAPOLI

1 broiler-fryer, quartered
½ cup margarine, melted
1 envelope (0.6-ounce) Italian salad dressing mix
½ cup lime juice

Combine margarine, salad dressing mix and lime juice. Arrange chicken in shallow container. Pour marinade over chicken. Allow to marinate for one hour, turning quarters one time.

Position grill about 8 to 10 inches above coals. Place chicken on grill. Cook for 1 to 1¼ hours, turning and brushing with marinade frequently until chicken is golden brown and drumstick or wing joint breaks clean. Serves 4.

TERIYAKI MARINADE

¼ cup oil
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup dry sherry or lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated ginger root or 1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons molasses

Combine first 5 ingredients. Place chicken, beef or pork in plastic bag in deep bowl or shallow baking dish. Pour marinade mixture over meat. Close bag or cover dish. Refrigerate 4 to 6 hours. Turn bag or spoon marinade over meat occasionally to coat evenly. Drain, reserving marinade. Stir in molasses. Use to baste meat during last 10 minutes of barbecuing. Makes 1 cup, enough for 2 pounds of meat.

WHAT'S COOKING

Chef's experience includes Army, 'Olympics'

By ELIZABETH EDWIN
Lifestyle Writer

Cody Bell/Reporter-Telegram
Art M. Elvins

Art M. Elvins brought over 17 years experience in the culinary arts to the Odessa Country Club when he became its executive chef in January.

Elvins earned a bachelor of arts in culinary education from New Mexico State University and studied advanced culinary arts at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, New York. He has been a cook in the U.S. Army, operated his own catering business, taught cooking in both public school and college and earned a long list of hotel credits.

"I have extreme hotel experience," Elvins said. "But I love instructing, I know I'll do that again later.

"When I teach, I want to teach that cooking isn't just the show, it's not just how it looks. Anybody can be taught to cut a radish to look like a rose. It is all a lot of show," he said, "but the final test is how it tastes. You have to learn how to mix flavors together.

"It's important to learn the management of a restaurant as well as the cooking. A restaurant must be concerned with a profit. It must make money to stay open," he said.

At the Odessa Country Club, Elvins is responsible for everything from sanitation to baking. His responsibilities include heading a staff of approximately 16 people, planning banquets and daily buffets and taking care of food production and purchasing for the club.

"I have enjoyed my career. I've gotten to see so much of the states traveling with my work. This profession always offers you opportunities because there are always people who like to eat," Elvins said.

One of his most memorable travels was attending the 1984 International Culinary Olympics in Frankfurt, Germany. The Olympics are sponsored every four years and Elvins plans on attending the 1988 event on an individual basis.

"The Olympics are a week of marathon competition so you must be very organized," Elvins said. "It's an embarrassment if you are not good."

There is a new culinary trend which favors the "American Chef," according to Elvins. Although these chefs are trained by European chefs, they learn to pick up their own ideas and grow with them.

"They learn to be creators of their own art trying new flavors together," he said. "The American chef is also more on the management level, they do much more than the European chef."

Elvins said he doesn't cook much at home. "Surprisingly enough I use a lot of microwave cooking at home, but before I use to cook a lot."

Elvins chose to share a cool Italian dish he thought would be good for the upcoming months.

ITALIAN PASTA SALAD

Add in large salad bowl:
8 ounces cooked and cooled Linguine Pasta.
2 ounces Parmesan Cheese, imported. Use steel blade in food processor.
½ cup chopped fresh parsley. Use steel blade in food processor.
2-4 ounces chopped salami or sliced pepperoni. Chop salami with steel blade or slice pepperoni with 4 mm. blade in food processor.

Process with steel blade:
2 cloves of garlic in food processor.

Add through feed tube of processor:
½ cup oil
⅓ cup red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons dried basil or 6 tablespoons fresh basil
¾ teaspoon dried oregano
¼ teaspoon dried tarragon
¼ teaspoon dried rosemary
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon ground black pepper

Pulse a few times to mix. Replace the steel knife blade with the 4mm slicing disc and slice the following into the bowl:

1 bunch of green onions with tops
1 green pepper, cut off slices, seed and quartered
1 red pepper
1 small can black ripe olives, pitted
4 ounces fresh mushrooms

Replace the 4mm slicing disc with the regular shredder disc and shred into bowl 4 ounces of Monterey Jack cheese and 2 medium zucchini.

Replace the regular shredder disc with the french fry disc and process 2 medium tomatoes in the bowl. Place all ingredients in a large salad bowl and mix. Serves 4.

"No matter where I travel, I feel the pull of my Texas childhood. I feel myself rooted by its traditions and yet independent — much like the state itself. The spirit of Texas has nourished me all my life, and I'm proud to join in the Sesquicentennial celebration." — Jobeth Williams, Actress

CHICKEN BREASTS DIJON

4 chicken breasts, boned and split
½ cup dry white wine
½ cup soy sauce
½ cup dijon mustard
Plain or seasoned bread crumbs
6 tablespoons each butter and vegetable oil
Salt and pepper to taste

Pound chicken breasts thin. Season with salt and pepper. Mix together wine, soy sauce and mustard. Dip breasts first into above mixture, then coat with bread crumbs. Saute in oil and butter combination approximately 3-4 minutes per side. Serve plain or with a bechamel sauce seasoned with dijon mustard.

Chicken fillet recipe features 'A Taste of the Mountains'

GLEN, N.H. (UPI) — Since 1981, hundreds of cooks, both amateurs and experienced chefs, have passed through the doors of New England's most unusual cooking school — A Taste of the Mountains at the Bernerhof Inn.

A visit combines the pleasures of staying at the 100-year-old country inn with learning both classic cooking techniques and American innovations from chef-director Steven Raichlen.

Raichlen is a graduate of Europe's best cooking schools — Cordon Bleu and La Varenne in Paris.

Now he has gathered 53 lessons and hundreds of recipes in "A Taste of the Mountains Cooking School Cookbook" (published by Simon and Schuster, with a suggested retail price of $16.95).

The following, from that cookbook, is Raichlen's recipe for Chicken Fillets With Silver Oak Mushrooms and Amaretto:

CHICKEN FILLETS WITH SILVER OAK MUSHROOMS AND AMARETTO

1 lb. chicken fillets, sinews removed
6 ounces silver oak mushrooms, or 2 ounces shiitake
2 tablespoon sesame oil
1 clove garlic, peeled and minced
4 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon Amaretto
Juice of ½ lemon
Salt and fresh black pepper to taste

Cut the fillets in ½-inch chunks. Quickly wash the mushrooms, remove tough stems and cut the large caps in half. Heat the oil in a wok or sloping-sided saute pan. Add the chicken and mushrooms and stir-fry for 30 seconds. Add the garlic and parsley and cook for 15 seconds.

Add the remaining ingredients and continue cooking for 1-2 minutes, or until chicken is firm. Add more salt, pepper, Amaretto or lemon juice to taste before serving.

Lutece turns 25

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chef Andre Soltner has every reason to be proud: his premier dining establishment Lutece turned 25 recently with neither kitchen nor dining room missing a beat.

In that way so central to great chefs, the affair was a mixture of special event and business as usual. Soltner and his chefs showed why Lutece is considered by many the greatest French restaurant in American — and one of the greatest in the world.

Here is Soltner's recipe for Creme de Moules aux Quenelles a la Moelle, a luscious Lutece soup.

CREME DE MOULES AUX QUENELLES A LA MOELLE

4 ounces beef marrow
¾ cup dry breadcrumbs
2 tbsp. cream of wheat
3 egg yolks
Salt and pepper to taste
Parsley and chervil, chopped
Dash of grated nutmeg
Beef bouillon
2 pounds mussels
5 tbsp. unsalted butter
3 shallots, chopped
⅓ cup dry white wine
Salt and pepper to taste
6 cups chicken stock, hot
6 egg yolks
1 cup heavy cream
1 tbsp. chives, chopped

Puree the marrow. Add breadcrumbs, cream of wheat and egg yolks. Add salt, pepper, parsley, chervil and nutmeg. Mix well. Shape into small ovals ¾-inch thick and cook in gently boiling bouillon for 10 minutes.

Clean and wash mussels, giving them a good scrubbing and scraping away beard. Discard any open mussels.

In a large pan, heat butter and saute the shallots. Add mussels and cook a few minutes. Add wine and cook uncovered until mussels are done (3 to 5 minutes — mussels will open when cooked). Add salt and pepper. Strain the liquid and add to the chicken stock.

In a double boiler, whisk the egg yolks and the cream, mixing continually until frothy. Gently and gradually, add the hot bouillon to this mixture while stirring constantly with a whisk.

Heat without boiling until slightly thickened and strain through a sieve. Taste to check seasoning, then ladle the soup over the quenelles placed in a bowl. Sprinkle with chopped chives. Serves 6.

Special stuffing now for all seasons

Associated Press

Adding apples and raisins to bread stuffing for poultry has always been popular around holiday time, but with Golden Delicious apples available all summer now because they store unusually well, this dressing can may be enjoyed all year around.

CORNISH HENS WITH APPLE-RAISIN STUFFING

3 cups firm, ½-inch white bread cubes with crust
½ cup butter
1 big, unpeeled Golden Delicious apple, cored and cut into ½-inch cubes
⅔ cup raisins
½ cup coarsely chopped onion
½ cup thinly sliced celery
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
½ to 1 teaspoon sage
¼ to ½ teaspoon thyme
Salt and pepper to taste
6 Cornish hens (each about 1 lb.)

Spread bread cubes in single layer on baking sheet. Toast until lightly browned in a 350-degree oven — 10 to 12 minutes; reserve.

Melt butter in a large skillet over medium heat. Add apple, raisins, onion and celery. Cook, stirring occasionally, until apple is almost tender — 8 to 10 minutes. Stir in parsley, sage, thyme, salt, pepper and reserved bread cubes. Cook and stir 3 minutes. Stuff hens with bread mixture, using about ⅔ cup for each. Place on rack and roast in a 375-degree oven until tender — 45 to 55 minutes. Serves 6.

DEAR ABBY

Ex-husband wants annulment

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I was divorced three years ago, after a six-year marriage. My husband has remarried, and his new wife is a Catholic. My ex-husband and I were both brought up in the Lutheran church.

I heard from him recently; he tells me that in order for his wife to take communion, his marriage to me must be annulled. (Is that true?)

Abby, I kept my married name for the sake of convenience. If my marriage is annulled, will the legality of all the documents I've signed with my married name be questioned? And how can an annulment be initiated when an individual has already been divorced? I always thought an annulment declared the marriage to be non-existent, and a divorce acknowledges the fact that it existed but is dissolved.

Is this a process that involves only the church, or does it have legal ramifications as well? There are no children involved. My husband is sending me some "forms" to fill out and I need the above questions answered first. — NO NAME OR TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: Your ex-husband's Catholic wife cannot go to communion since she married a divorced man — that is why your ex is trying to get his marriage to you annulled.

Unless you had your maiden name restored in the divorce decree, you're entitled to use your married name. There's no way any effective question could be raised about the legality of documents you've signed since your divorce.

As for the annulment and the "forms" your husband is sending you, watch out! Annulment and divorce are entirely different. Inasmuch as you were divorced, there must have been a valid marriage that was dissolved by a divorce decree. A valid marriage cannot be annulled. A final word of advice: Do not sign anything that is not true, and see your lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I seem to be locking horns on the subject of toothpicks.

Is it proper to pick your teeth in public during or after a meal? My husband started picking his teeth at the table while we were in a restaurant. I politely asked him to go to the restroom to pick his teeth, and he became very upset with me.

Personally, I find it very repulsive. I wonder what other diners think? I don't care if you put this in the paper, but please don't use my name. — MILWAUKEE SENTINEL FAN

DEAR FAN: Not only is it improper to pick one's teeth in public, it's crude, inconsiderate and a show of bad manners.

DEAR ABBY: Recently a friend's husband passed away. The obituary notice read, "No calling hours."

Should I have called? I did not, but I have since learned that other friends did. Please clear this up for me. — PUZZLED IN NEW YORK

DEAR PUZZLED: The obituary notice was confusing. It should have read, "No specific calling hours," which would indicate that those who wished to call could do so at their convenience. "No calling hours" could be interpreted to mean "No callers at ANY hour."

DEAR ABBY: I, too, am 100 percent American, and because I am of Asian ancestry, I am often asked, "What are you?" It's not the personal nature of this question that bothers me, it's the question itself. This query seems to question my very humanity. "What am I?" Why, I'm a person like everyone else!

Another question I am frequently asked is, "Where did you come from?" This would be an innocent question when one Caucasian asks it of another, but when it is asked of an Asian, it takes on a different tone. I suppose I am expected to say that I am from faraway China or Japan. When I reply, "I'm from right here — Portland, Oregon!" they are invariably surprised. Why? Because they find it hard to believe that an Asian-looking person is actually a native, true-blue, 100 percent American — and not a recently arrived immigrant from some foreign country.

Many people have the false impression that all "real" Americans must be white (or at least black). I don't speak with a foreign accent, my dress is typically American, but because I am not the "right" color, many people automatically assume that I am not American.

Being white is not a prerequisite for being a real American. This country started out as an empty land, and all the races that are represented here now (yes, even the American Indian) came from other parts of the world. We are all Americans, regardless of our ancestors' origins.

Americans come in all shapes, sizes and colors, and I, for one think it's high time everyone realized it. — A REAL AMERICAN

Dried beans serve as economical source of protein

By DIANE SAVAGE
Copley News Service

There's no more economical source of protein than dried beans — they feed millions around the world every day. They're a great alternative to meat: inexpensive, low in fat, and high in iron, thiamine and riboflavin.

Dried beans come in more varieties than you might think. Check out the shelves at a natural foods market (which will usually stock a good assortment of legumes). You'll find pinto beans, black, fava, garbanzo, and kidney beans, Great Northern, navy and lima beans.

Some people experience indigestion with cooked dried beans, and avoid them on this count when there is really no need to do so. Just be sure to cook them right, and you shouldn't experience any problems.

Dried beans contain complex sugars called oligosaccharides, which the human body can't digest. But if you soak the beans for 24 hours before cooking them, you will leach out about 90 percent of the gas-producing oligosaccharides.

Cover beans with water, bring to a boil, then remove from heat and let stand, covered, for 24 hours. Then just discard the soaking water and cook the beans in fresh water.

This method DOES get rid of a few of the nutrients in the beans, but they are heat-volatile nutrients which would have been lost during the cooking process, anyway.

CUBAN BLACK BEAN SOUP

1 pound dried black beans
¼ cup olive oil
3 medium onions, chopped
4 cloves garlic, minced
2 carrots, diced
1 stalk celery, diced
2 teaspoons ground cumin
Salt and pepper to taste
Garnish:
2 cups hot, cooked rice
½ cup chopped green onion
½ cup shredded Jack or mild cheddar cheese

Rinse beans and place in large pot with water to cover. Bring to a boil. Boil for 1 minute, then remove from heat. Let beans soak, covered, for 24 hours, then drain and discard soak water.

Place soaked beans in large pot and add 2 quarts cold water. Bring to a boil, then lower heat, cover and simmer 1½ to 2 hours, or until beans are soft. Drain, reserving water.

Heat oil in skillet, then add onions, garlic, carrots and celery. Saute, stirring often, about 5 minutes, or until onion is limp. Set aside.

Puree half of the beans in blender and return to pot with whole beans. Add enough of the reserved bean water to make a thick puree.

Stir in sauteed vegetables, cumin, and salt and pepper to taste. Simmer, uncovered, over medium flame until heated through adding more water, as necessary.

Serve hot, garnished with hot cooked rice, chopped green onion and shredded cheese.

MEXICAN REFRIED BEANS

2 cups dried pinto beans
1 teaspoon salt (optional)
3 teaspoons vegetable oil
1 small onion, minced
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese

Rinse beans and place in pot with water to cover. Bring to a boil over high heat. Let boil for 1 minute, then remove from heat and let stand, covered, 24 hours. Drain and discard soak water.

Return drained beans to pot. Cover with fresh water, add salt (if desired), and bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer 2 to 2½ hours, or until beans are tender and soft. Drain and reserve liquid.

Heat oil in large, heavy skillet over medium heat. Saute onion and garlic, stirring often, until tender. Add beans, ½ cup at a time, mashing with back of wooden spoon. Add small amounts of bean liquid, as necessary, to thin slightly.

Reduce heat to low and simmer, stirring frequently, until mixture becomes a thick paste. Serve piping hot, sprinkled with shredded cheese.

BEAN SUCCOTASH

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 small onion, chopped
½ medium green pepper, chopped
1 stalk celery, diced
1 clove garlic, minced
2 cups raw corn kernels
¼ cup water or vegetable stock
¼ teaspoon each salt and pepper
2 cups cooked beans (any variety or combination)

Melt butter in large skillet. Stir in onion, green pepper, celery and garlic. Saute over medium-high heat, stirring frequently, 4 to 6 minutes, or until vegetables are tender.

Stir in corn kernels and water. Cover and steam 4 minutes, then stir in cooked beans and seasonings. Lower heat and simmer just until beans are heated through, 3 to 5 minutes longer. Serve hot.

Kidney bean salad takes on new twist

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

A salad that became extraordinarily popular about 25 years ago was made of three kinds of canned beans: red kidney beans, cut green beans and cut wax beans. They were mixed with onion, green pepper and a salad dressing of oil, cider vinegar and a large amount of sugar. It was, in fact, a relish and many family-style restaurants served it.

Since then many versions of kidney bean salad have appeared. Nowadays these salads are made in a different way. They call for little or no sugar and are far from being a relish.

BEAN SALAD

16-ounce can red kidney beans
½ cup cooked cut-up snap beans
½ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion
Lemon-Cilantro Dressing, below
Lettuce
2 strips crisp cooked bacon

Stir together kidney beans, snap beans, green pepper and onion; add Lemon-Cilantro Dressing and toss. Place in a covered container and marinate 2 hours. Arrange bean salad on lettuce; top with crumpled bacon just before serving.

LEMON-CILANTRO DRESSING

3 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped cilantro (fresh coriander)
1 small clove garlic, finely chopped
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon sugar
Salt and pepper to taste

Whisk or shake together all the ingredients.

Bean soup named after U.S. Senate

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

SENATE BEAN SOUP

¼ cup loosely packed parsley sprigs
1 small potato, pared and quartered
1 small onion, pared and quartered
1 rib celery, quartered
1 clove garlic
3½ cups drained cooked Great Northern, navy (pea) or other small white beans
1 cup water
4 slices bacon, diced
1¾ cups chicken broth

In a food processor using metal blade, chop parsley; remove and reserve. With metal blade process potato until coarsley chopped. Add onion, celery and garlic; pulse until finely chopped. Remove and reserve. Place 1⅝ cups of the beans and ¼ cup of the water in the processor; process until smooth.

Saute bacon in a large pan until browned; add processed vegetable mixture. Cook about 5 minutes. Add pureed beans, remaining beans, chicken broth and remaining water. Bring to a boil; simmer, covered, 30 minutes to 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Add parsley and salt and pepper

Rabbit delicious, versatile meat

By MERLE ELLIS

I hope it's far enough past Easter so that the subject of eating rabbit will not be repulsive. Unfortunately, for some it is distasteful any time of year.

The Easter Bunny, aided by his cousin Bugs and by Peter Rabbit, have messed up a lot of good eating in this country, and it's really a shame. Rabbit is marvelous meat.

If I were writing for a New York ad agency, I might say: "Rabbit meat is perfect for today's lifestyle; lean, light white meat low in cholesterol, low in sodium and very high in protein."

But being neither an ad agency nor a nutritionist, I find it sufficient to state that rabbit is just darn good food.

With just a little more consumer acceptance, this meat could become an important and comparatively inexpensive food source in the years ahead. After all, three does and one buck can produce between 96 and 120 offspring annually. At maturity, that's enough meat to supply the protein needs of a family of four for a full year.

Many markets carry rabbit, at least some of the time. Since most breeders are doing so on a part-time basis, following their own inclinations rather than any kind of organized production schedule, the availability of rabbit, particularly fresh rabbit, is spotty.

That may change in the not-too-distant future. A national marketing organization has recently been formed in an attempt to get rabbit breeders, processors, packers and related industries to promote rabbit and to support a marketing plan for it.

If they are at all successful, I wouldn't be surprised soon to see a lot more rabbit in the meatcases of this country.

The time may not be far off when you can walk into a market and buy rabbit parts just as today you buy chicken parts: boneless hind legs labeled sirloin of rabbit, boneless filet of loin for grilling even ground rabbit and rabbit sausage.

Until then, don't be turned off by whole-bodied rabbit fryers. Most butchers will be happy to cut them up for you, or you can easily do it yourself.

Cutting up a rabbit is not much more difficult a task than cutting up a chicken. With a heavy cook's knife, first remove the two hind legs by cutting across the back at the point where the legs join the back.

Bend the legs apart to crack the pelvic bone, then cut through to separate the legs. If the hind legs are larger than you want for a single serving, cut them in half at the knee joint.

Next remove the front legs by sliding your knife under the shoulder blade bone and along the bone to and through the shoulder joint, leaving the shoulder blade attached to the front leg.

The rest of the shoulder and the rib section of the rabbit can be divided into serving size portions by separating it from the loin at the last rib.

Cut the rib and shoulder portion along the spinal column to make two pieces. Cut the loin section in half across the back to yield a total of 8 to 10 serving size pieces.

Rabbit can be cooked any way that you would cook a chicken. It can be breaded and fried, roasted, stewed, served hot or cold. One favorite around our house is simply pan fried. Here's another.

RABBIT IN RED WINE

1 rabbit fryer, cut into serving size pieces
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon coarse ground black pepper
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon butter
6 to 8 small boiling onions, peeled
4 to 6 cloves of garlic, minced
1 bay leaf
¼ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon rosemary
6 to 8 mushrooms, quartered
1 cup dry red wine
1 cup beef stock

Dust rabbit pieces with a mixture of flour, salt and pepper. Heat oil and butter in a heavy skillet, brown rabbit pieces, a few at a time, turning often to brown evenly on all sides. Set aside.

Brown the onions and garlic lightly in the same pan, adding a bit more butter if needed. Add bay leaf, thyme, rosemary and mushrooms, toss and cook for a minute or two.

Pour in the wine and beef stock, bring to a boil while scraping the pan to incorporate any browned bits of goodies clinging to the pan's bottom and sides.

Place the rabbit pieces back in the pan, cover and simmer over low heat for 30 minutes. Remove rabbit pieces to a warm platter, pour sauce over and serve.

Or, if you would like a thicker cream gravy, blend 2 tablespoons of cornstarch with a cup of sour cream and stir into the sauce over high heat for a couple of minutes after removing the rabbit, mushrooms and onions.

Serves six to eight.

Today's frozen meals no longer 'TV dinners' of past

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Frozen food, once the dinner fare of children whose parents were dining out, has become a staple of American life, according to a maker of the food.

According to Del Monte Corporation, the pot pies of yesterday have given way to full-course meals that have little in common with their counterparts, the "TV dinners" of 20 years ago.

"New technology and competition have brought to the freezer case a quality never before imagined," according to the firm's David Ash.

Ash says sales of frozen food increased 10 percent last year.

Fast-food chain advertises good nutrition

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

A new twist has been added to the highly competitive fast-food world where convenience and price have long been the battleground on which the burger-chicken chains fought for patrons. It seems that in recent weeks nutrition has surfaced as a customer lure.

Partially responsible for the precedent-setting tactic was a national survey of the salt, fat and calorie content of some of America's favorite away-from-home foods compiled by the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

Since the survey was made public, Denny's Restaurants Inc. has distributed fliers throughout its 1,100 outlets touting the fact that its fried foods are "healthier" than those of the competition. The center's study found that the company, based in La Mirada, Calif., was the only nationwide company using 100 percent vegetable oil for frying.

Virtually all the other chains surveyed used animal fats or a more heavily saturated vegetable oil for preparing items such as fish, chicken or potatoes. The comparison is noteworthy because of medical research which indicates that a diet high in fat increases an individual's risk of heart disease and cancer of the breast, colon and prostrate.

The center's statistics show that the oil used by Denny's has only 18 percent saturated fat compared to a saturated-fat level of between 45 percent and 50 percent for the oils found at McDonald's, Wendy's, Carl's Jr. and Bob's Big Boy. In some cases, a mixture of 95 percent beef fat and 5 percent vegetable oil is used to prepare items such as fries.

Denny's promotional leaflet also points out that its competitors are using the less desirable oils simply as a cost-cutting measure.

"Vegetable oil is significantly more expensive than animal fat. This is probably why some chains listed in the (center's) study cited cost as a factor for using animal fat," the flyer states.

Normally the food industry's most severe critic, the Center for Science's executive director Michael Jacobson had kind words for the Denny's effort.

"Denny's happens to have been using a good vegetable oil (for their fried foods). Now they're publicizing it," he said. "(The chains) are competing on the basis of good nutrition for a change and that's great."

FDIC may lose defaulted FNB-M loans

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) has struck out again in a lawsuit keyed to an old First National Bank of Midland (FNB-M) guaranty, which has worked to the advantage of the debtors.

The FDIC stands to lose more than $382 million in defaulted FNB-M loans, which the FDIC bought at discounted rates in the wake of the failure of the bank on Oct. 14, 1983.

This time, Judge Pat Baskin of Midland's 142nd Texas State District Court ruled against FDIC and in favor of the debtor-defendants, Jay V. Fulfer, Lynn D. Jones and Loretta A. Field, all of Midland, and E.A. Conner Jr. of Dallas, and Bob N. Williams. Baskin has not yet signed a final judgment in the case.

But in 1985, Baskin had ruled in a Frost National Bank-vs.-Don Johnson case involving a similar guaranty that the indebtedness had to be paid in full before the rights of the guaranty could be exercised by a San Antonio bank.

The five officers of Urban Energy Co. had borrowed about $1 million to invest in their Urban Energy Co. in 1980, 1981 and 1982 and had signed FNB-M personal guaranties to ensure payment of the loans should Urban Energy Co. fail. But the loans went sour, and Urban Energy Co. filed for bankruptcy for re-organization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in June 1983.

THREE MONTHS AGO, U.S. District Court Judge Lucius D. Bunton had ruled against FDIC and in favor of debtor-defendants, Austin lawyer Daniel Matheson and Austin book dealer-collector John Jenkins, in a similar case. FDIC has appealed that federal case to the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, and FDIC is to appeal the state case. Baskin's state ruling preceded Bunton's federal ruling by about a year.

Matheson and Jenkins were among investors in Trafalgar Drilling Co., which had borrowed about $1.3 million from FNB-M in 1981 to purchase a drilling rig. Oil and gas descended into a slump, money became "tight," the loan went sour, FNB-M failed, FDIC in its corporate capacity (FDIC-C) bought FNB-M assets from FDIC as receiver (FDIC-R), and FDIC-C sought to recoup its money.

But the blow to FDIC came in the wording of the guaranty agreement, which is common to more than $382-million in soured FNB loans. The guaranty says in part that "all indebtedness to the Creditor (FNB-M) shall be paid in full, before the assignee of any debt guaranteed shall receive any benefit of this contract."

FDIC did not pay "in full" when in 1983 it bought about $1.5 billion in FNB-M assets and thereby protected the bank's depositors and sold other loans to RepublicBank. Many loans were uncollectible and worthless. FDIC spent about $946 million in acquiring FNB-M commercial-loan portfolio. And, according to court documents, more than $350 million of the loans acquired by FDIC-C "are secured by guaranties embodying the (guaranty) paragraph in dispute in this case."

"...FDIC-C IS NOT seeking any profit by collecting the Urban Energy debt from the defendants," the FDIC noted in its plea for a summary judgment in its behalf. "As founders and officers of Urban Energy, however, each of the defendants benefited personally from the loans, which FNB-M made to Urban Energy." FDIC claims that the defendants "induced" the bank to make more than $1 million in loans to Urban Energy.

"The defendants should not now be allowed to escape their liability for that debt," FDIC contends, "and the strained and incorrect construction of the disputed language advocated by the defendants should be denied."

FDIC noted that defendants Fulfer, Jones, Field, Conner and Williams interpreted the disputed paragraph to mean that FDIC-C as holder of the Urban Energy debt "could not enforce defendants' guaranties unless FDIC-C paid 100 cents on the dollar for each note it purchased." FDIC says that the defendants' stance is wrong and that the paragraph in dispute "was intended to apply to certain specific circumstances only — none of which are involved here." FDIC-C contends that the paragraph was "intended to establish a priority of debt payment in favor of FNB-M, as 'Creditor,' compared with subsequent transferees."

IN FURTHER building its case, FDIC noted that the word "Creditor" with the capital "C" in the guaranty agreement refers to the bank and that FNB-M "holds no assets and no debts are now owed to FNB-M." In that case, the FDIC reasons that "the provision embodied in the disputed language" of the guaranty is "satisfied" and FDIC-C "can proceed against the defendants...as guarantors of the Urban Energy debt."

James Boldrick, attorney for the Urban Energy defendants, holds that the "guaranty provides, on its face, that the FDIC, as assignee of the guaranteed debt, cannot receive any benefit from the guaranty until all indebtedness to the Creditor has been paid in full."

Richard Heiar, FDIC assistant managing liquidator of the Midland Consolidated Office, said in a court record that "if these guaranty agreements cannot be enforced by FDIC..., then the FDIC will suffer extremely heavy losses in attempting to collect on these loans, because many of the debtors are insolvent and the underlying collateral security is of very limited value."

Ector tax entities may protest how values derived

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A dispute over how taxable values have been determined for oil reserves and real property this year may lead Ector County governmental, school and college districts to mount a joint protest to the Ector County Appraisal District Appeal Board.

Representatives of Ector County government, the City of Odessa, the Ector School District and Odessa College were meeting this morning to, in effect, continue a discussion that began during Tuesday night's meeting of the Odessa College Board of Trustees.

Figures provided by the Ector County appraisal and county auditor's office indicate total taxable values, from which Ector County will derive its general fund revenues this year, will be from 13 to 15 percent less than in 1985.

Ector County Auditor Bill Hicks estimates this will mean a revenue shortfall of $2.3 million to $2.4 million in the 1986-87 fiscal year.

According to Hicks, the effective tax rate of 33 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, instead of producing the same tax revenue as last year, will only produce about $16.3 million for the general revenue fund. If county commissioners approved a 7.75 percent increase in the tax rate, under the 8.0 percent figure that could trigger a call for a rollback as occurred in 1983, the revenue produced this year would still be nearly $1.3 million under last year's figure.

Other taxing entities expect to experience comparable budgetary shortfalls in the upcoming fiscal year.

APPRAISAL DISTRICT Chief Jim Goodwin, appearing before the OC board Tuesday night, assured board members the Ector Appraisal District adheres to the three principles set forth in the state property tax code, which require values be equal and uniform among similar kinds of property and different kinds of property; that all property be appraised according to market value; and that all property is taxable unless specifically exempted by the Texas Legislature.

In determining real property values, Goodwin said, the appraisal district uses "continual sales analysis," which provides the prices homes sell for throughout a given year. The appraised value is then determined by using sales of comparable property in the first and last quarters of a given year, he said. To make adjustments for improvements within the city limits, building permits are used. Out in the county, where no building permits are required, Goodwin said appraisal district personnel actually drive through the county and make visual inspections to adjust assessed values.

The appearance of Goodwin and Ed Pritchard, a partner in the Pritchard & Abbott valuation consulting firm which estimates mineral values in Ector County and throughout Texas, was prompted by complaints by OC President Phil Speegle that the appraisal district did not use January market values for oil and gas reserves, but rather futures values, which were about $5 a barrel less.

Speegle and board members expressed concern that the "new formula" used by Pritchard & Abbott to value mineral properties afforded oil companies a decrease of nearly 22 percent in appraised values, while homeowners will receive a decrease of only about four percent under the method used by the appraisal district.

Pritchard, who has been involved in appraising mineral properties for more than 50 years, explained that the $23 per barrel price used to establish mineral values was not based on the price of a barrel of produced oil or oil that was in a pipeline as of Jan. 1, 1986, but on the value of oil (reserves) in the ground.

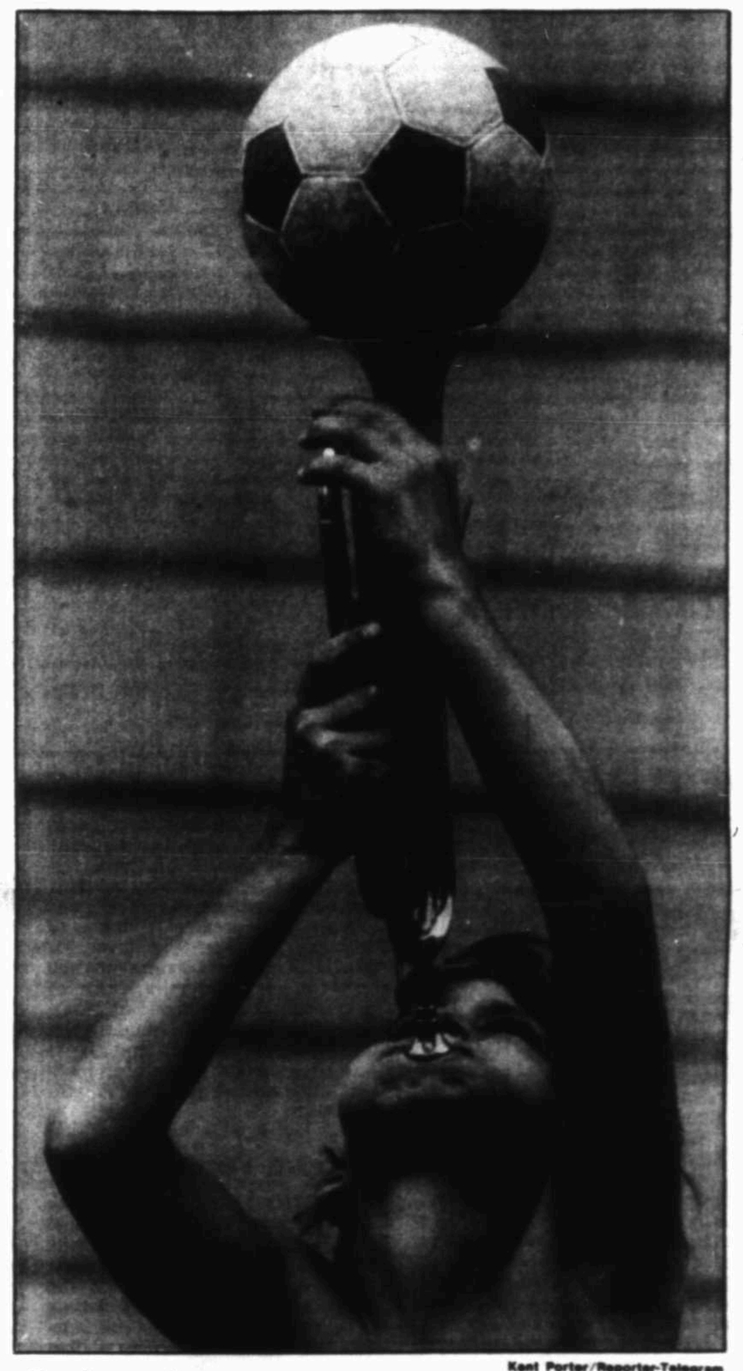

In 1985, mineral properties in Ector County were assessed at nearly $2.7 billion. In 1986, mineral properties (oil reserves) had decreased close to $600 million, to slightly more than $2.13 million.

Referring to a prepared statement presented to OC board members, Pritchard observed that "On Jan. 2, 1986 (the first day of the New Year Wall Street opens), the futures price of oil, which is oil that will be delivered two to three months in the future, was at $22 a barrel. Historically," he said, "the futures prices were at or above posted (contract) prices. However, the futures prices are a very good indicator of where the market is headed and, as can be currently seen, were very optimistic on January 2," stated Pritchard.

OBSERVING THAT "it was evident to us that there was considerable weakness in the price of oil on Jan. 1, 1986, and we felt that the price would average about $5 (per barrel) less than the Jan. 1 price for the year 1986," Pritchard said. Noting the current price range of from $14 to $16 per barrel, he said, "Our projection was optimistically high, unless there is a drastic turnaround later in the year."

Pritchard insisted the formula used this year to determine mineral property values is the same that has been used for years. However, OC Business Manager Roger Coomer contended that, in years past, Pritchard & Abbott had used contract, rather than futures, prices to determine mineral values.

Midlanders ask council for extra park protection

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

The city council Tuesday received about 300 signatures from Midlanders who say they fear for their safety at Hogan Park and need extra police surveillance.

"Teams no longer feel safe using fields for practice. If we continue to have trouble, I'm afraid we won't be able to get outside teams to come in," said Vernon Williams, spokesman for the petitioners.

The group presented five requests to the city council, including a police patrol from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday evenings. A May 11 shooting in which a 17-year-old Midland man was left critically wounded has prompted the group to go to the council for help, Williams said.

"We were practicing 40 minutes before the shooting. It makes you stop and think, what if it was one of you're own. I do not want my son to be the next one shot," Williams said.

One officer that patrols the area surrounding Hogan Park is not enough, Williams said. Along with an additional two-man unit police patrol, the group requested a minimum park speed limit of 10 mph and a maximum speed limit of 20 mph. Vehicles travel about 2 to 3 mph and clog up the park's two entrance roads trapping people trying to get to practice and games, Williams said.

To cut down on drug and alcohol use at the park a canine patrol to search for drugs was also requested. The group asked that park rules be posted all around the park and they asked for an enforcement of city laws within the park.

"We'll probably have a talk with the police department about some of the problems and discuss it again at the next meeting," city manager Jim Brown said of the group's proposals.

In other action the council approved of a six-month trial left-turn light at Garfield and Golf Course road, after a group of citizens protested a proposal to widen the street with a left turn lane.

Lawrence Connolly, 905 W. Michigan, said he opposed a left turn lane because it would promote traffic in the area.

"Anything we can do to discourage traffic in a residential area would be a step in the right direction," Connolly said.

Councilman David Godfrey said he thought a compromise had been reached with the group that successfully defeated a proposal to widen Garfield by one lane.

"The compromise we reached was that we'd forget about widening Garfield on most of its length. We've gone on the assumption that it was an acceptable compromise," Godfrey said.

Councilwoman Katie Heck said, "Somewhere in here there's going to have to be a happy medium of moving people around."

Terry Gray, 1904 Sparks, said "We're not trying to renege on what might have been a compromise situation. We're just saying left hand turn arrows may not be a bad idea."

The proposed left turn lane is part of a $260,000 project that includes reconstructing Garfield from Cimmaron north to Wadley.

The council also approved using $2,995 from the Chamber of Commerce's economic development fund to send Steve Hardin, manager of economic development at the Chamber on a trip to Dongying, China. About 30 people from the Permian Basin will participate in the seven-day trip beginning June 13 to discuss selling oil equipment to Midland's sister city in China. A move by councilwoman Oralia Corrales to deny the request was defeated by a 5-2 vote.

Hardin said city council approval was sought for the trip because it was out of the country.

"We do trips like this from time to time. We just wanted the person to go out of the country," Hardin said.

George W. Bush endorses Smith for Congress

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

GOP congressional candidate Lamar Smith got a boost Tuesday when George W. Bush of Midland endorsed his campaign during a four-city tour.

"Lamar will represent the economic interests of our district," said the vice president's 39-year-old son who has resided in Midland since 1975. The vice president also lived in Midland for 10 years.

The campaign has gotten "dirty" Bush said, because Van Archer has questioned Smith's ability to vote for medical treatment as a Christian Scientist.

"To try to drag someone through the gutter because of his religious beliefs is wrong," Bush said.

Smith said his religion would not interfere with his conduct as a congressman. He said the campaign has been soiled by Archer's comments on his religion but, "If there's any mud slinging it will be from one direction only."

Smith will face Archer in a June 7 runoff for the Republican nomination to the 21st Congressional District. The winner will face Midlander Pete Snelson, a former state senator, in November.

Effectiveness and a knowledge of the oil and agriculture industry will be the most important issues in the campaign, Smith said.

Smith said he is the only candidate that has served in three levels of government. Smith has served as a county commissioner, a state representative and he has worked with the Small Business Administration in Washington D.C. Archer is a former San Antonio city councilman.

Everyone is affected by the oil slump and it is important for Congress to protect exploration incentives for oil and gas, Smith said.

"Everyone is in the oil business, no matter what they do," he said.

The United States depends on imports for 30 percent of its energy needs and that figure may double by 1990 if the industry is not given exploration incentives, Smith said.

Along with energy, drugs are another issue in the campaign, he said. Border patrols and military air surveillance need to be increased to cut down on drug trafficking, Smith said.

"Texas cannot be allowed to become a drug highway," he said.

MC's Parrish announces promotions of two administrators

Raymond H. Yell

From Staff Reports

Promotion of two long-time Midland College administrators was announced today by Jess H. Parrish, college president.

Raymond H. Yell was promoted to the post of Vice President for Instruction. He had been serving as Dean for Transfer and General Studies. Replacing Yell will be Hosni A. Nabi, who had been Assistant to the President.

"In an effort to conserve funds during this time of budget constraints, we will not fill the post of Assistant to the President," Parrish said.

Both promotions will take effect August 1. Yell is replacing Don Hunt, who is retiring this summer.

"A committee comprised of faculty and administrators interviewed a number of highly qualified internal and external applicants for the Vice President's position," Parrish said. "The Board of Trustees and I concurred with the selection committee that Dr. Yell had all the qualities which we sought for the post. We were pleased that both positions could be filled from within. This offers us continuity during the transitional period, especially since both Dr. Yell and Dr. Nabi are long-time employees who know and understand the operation of the college. They also are familiar with all the faculty and staff with whom they will be working."

Yell was one of four fulltime faculty members employed in 1969 when Midland College began functioning. He was the only fulltime math instructor at that time. He earned his Bachelor of Arts degree from Baylor University, his Master of Mathematics from the University of South Carolina, and his Doctor of Education degree from Texas Tech University.

In addition to his service as a math instructor, he has served as a counselor, associate academic dean, and dean of instruction before being named Dean of Transfer and General Studies in January, 1982. He also has served as interim athletic director and basketball coach, and chairman of the vocational and cultural divisions.

Yell was a participant in the first Leadership Midland class and has served that group in several alumni capacities. He is a past director and president of the Midland Tennis Club, served as tournament director of the 1979 National Junior Collegiate Athletic Association women's tennis tournament, and as coordinator of the 1986 NJCAA women's tennis tournament.

In his new position, Yell is responsible for all instructional programs at Midland College. This includes both credit and continuing education, plus the off-campus programs offered by the college in Fort Stockton, Big Lake, and other locales. He also will serve as Acting President in the absence of Dr. Parrish.

Nabi also began his association with Midland College very early. He joined the Midland College faculty in 1971 as a biology instructor, then became Chairman of the Scientific Studies Division. He was named Assistant to the President two years ago.

A native of Egypt, Nabi received his Bachelor of Science degree from Cairo University. His Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy degrees were earned at Louisiana State University. He is a specialist in plant genetics and developed several varieties of cotton used in the South Plains.

In his new assignment, Nabi is responsible for credit programs offered through four instructional divisions.

Disabled, elderly protest proposed cuts in DHS budget

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — About 150 disabled and elderly people joined two state lawmakers Tuesday in a rally to protest proposed cuts in the Texas Department of Human Services budget.

The protestors, many of whom wore black armbands bearing the slogan, "NO CUTS," staged the rally just outside the doors of the DHS building. Inside, board members readied for a meeting to discuss the cutbacks along with a variety of rule changes regarding the state's social services.

The proposed cuts, which DHS has not yet approved, stem from Gov. Mark White's Feb. 18 order for most state agencies to reduce their budgets by 13 percent. White's order is the result of dwindling state revenues tied to an ailing oil and gas industry.

The governor told agencies to make the cuts without laying off state employees or eliminating "essential services."

On March 5, DHS Commissioner Marlin Johnston responded to White's call with a proposed budget reduction of about 6.7 percent. That plan, which totaled almost $126 million, included $72,470,101 in administrative cuts and another $53,469,040 in "program adjustments."

Among those proposed adjustments is an elimination of chiropractic services, eyeglasses and hearing aids for Texans eligible for Medicaid. Other cuts include an annual limit of 30 inpatient hospital visits by physicians. The current limit of such visits is 120.

On April 15, Johnston submitted another proposal, this time reflecting a 13-percent cut in the DHS budget, as White had originally asked. Cuts of that magnitude would bring about a $222,930,414. In a letter to White, Johnston said the agency did not intend to put in place the latest round of cuts.

"Implementation of any one of the reductions would result in the denial of possible life-sustaining services for elderly people and needy children," he wrote.

A 13-percent cut in DHS' budget would result in a significant reduction in the state's contribution to Medicaid benefits. The 6.7 percent budget-reduction measure would not effect those payments.

Charlotte Flynn, a member of the Gray Panthers in Austin, told the rally that legislators should rearrange their budget goals so that social services are given top billing.

"We need to reorganize our priorities," Flynn said, "so that human services aren't the last to be funded and the first to be cut."

Pasedena Sen. Chet Brooks, author of much of the indigent care legislation lawmakers enacted a year ago, said he was concerned that many "hard-fought battles" may have been waged in vain.

"I don't want to see (recent achievements) washed away in a rather whimsical way because of budget problems," Brooks said. "Don't do it in areas where people are vulnerable and where people will suffer and die because of those cuts."

Shortly after the rally, DHS board chairman J. Livingston Kosberg told a crowded hearing room that the agency would have made many of the cuts Johnston proposed in his first letter to White even if the governor had not ordered them.

The plan to cut the DHS budget by 6.7 percent, Kosberg said, will not eliminate any essential services. The recommended cuts "do not have any material impact on those services, and many of them are items we would have dealt with anyway," he said.

But Dr. Leslie Cortes, an Austin physician who regularly treats elderly patients, said the proposed reduction will "reduce essential services, necessary services, and not just cutting out the fat."

County Auditor Hicks, commenting Tuesday afternoon on nearly 22 percent decline in mineral values from last year to this year, said that over the years a rule of thumb has been that mineral reserve values should decrease about $200 million. With a decrease nearly three times that, he said, there is probably a legitimate reason to question the validity of this year's mineral valuation, especially in view of the comparatively small decrease in real property values.

In 1985, Mineral property assessed values were about 10.5 percent greater that real estate assessed values. In 1986, real estate values exceed mineral values by about 6.4 percent.

OC Board President Joe Zant Jr. told Pritchard during his presentation board members were concerned about the apparent disparity in values because it appeared homeowners would be required to bear a disproportionate share of the tax load this year.

Following the meeting, Speegle expressed the belief the problem with valuations may not lie with the formula used by Pritchard & Abbott, but with the state property tax code itself.

Workshop slated on road work

From Staff Reports

The Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce and the Mexican-American Research Center Inc., of Midland a workshop for persons seeking contract opportunities with the Texas Highway Department at 7 p.m. Thursday at Casa de Amigos, 1101 E. Garden Lane.

Contracting opportunities with the Texas Highway Department is designed for the disadvantaged and women-owned business enterprise.

The featured speakers are Conrado Cavazos and Ricardo Romero, both of the Mexican-American Research Center, George Gomez of the Small Business Administration and Lorenzo Cedeno of the Veterans Land Program.

Topics to be addressed during the workshop include program certification, subcontracting and costs estimates, Surety Bond requirements and an explanation of the Veterans Land Program.

Mobil to lay off 20 Midlanders

From Staff Reports

Mobil Producing Texas & New Mexico Inc., a subsidary of Mobil Oil Corp. announced today that it is reducing its staff by approximately 8 percent, but less than 20 of the 335 producing and exploration employees in Midland will be affected by the downsizing.

Mobil said the reduction in staff was the result of a $900 million reduction in the firm's worldwide exploration and producing budget because of falling oil prices. A freeze on hiring and attrition will account for approximately 3 percent of the staff reductions, while about 5 percent will be terminated.

Mobil says it will provide as much assistance as possible to employees who will be terminated or retired as a result of the new cost reduction program, and has improved the firm's benefit plan.

Planetarium plans viewing session

From Staff Reports

West Texas Astronomers will host a viewing session at the Marian Blakemore Planetarium Saturday. Activities will begin at 9 p.m. with a brief orientation in the planetarium followed by outdoor viewing through club members' telescopes.

Venus, Saturn and Halley's Comet are among the celestial objects in good position for viewing.

"The Light Fantastic" is the regular program for next week in the planetarium. Show times are 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday and 7:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. on Tuesday.

The next regular club meeting of the West Texas Astronomers will be at the planetarium on Thursday, June 12 at 7:30 p.m.

The planetarium, located in Haley Park, is open to the public without charge.

Fund established for heart patient

From Staff Reports

A trust fund to pay for a heart transplant operation for Jerry Fox of Midland has been set up with the Western State Bank.

Defeated candidate endorses Craig

From Staff Reports

Milton Rister, the defeated candidate in the three-way race for the Republican Party nomination for Midland County commissioner in the May 3 primary elections, today reaffirmed his support of the incumbent commissioner, C. Wallace "Wally" Craig.

Craig, a 62-year-old real-estate broker, and Guy McCrary, a 32-year-old marketing consult, are seeking the Republican Party nomination for Precinct 2 commissioner in the June 7 run-off elections. Winner of that race will challenge Democrat Don Boydstun, a 39-year-old design technician, for the post in the Nov. 4 general elections.

"I am supporting Wally because of his firm stand on doing everything possible to hold down taxes in county government," Rister said today, "and also because I feel that his position on having one county jail is much more realistic and cost effective than the three-jail concept proposed by his opponent."

Rister had announced his support of Craig on night of the primary elections.

He said he was "satisfied" with Craig's statement during the campaign that he "would favor any workable (jail) plan which is the least expensive for the taxpayers." Rister had advocated a private-sector jail.

Craig said he appreciated Rister's support.

"I think we have found solutions (to the jail problem)," Craig said today. "But finding solutions and getting voters to support those solutions are two different things now."

Midlander jailed on charges of sexually assaulting girl

From Staff Reports

A 24-year-old Midland man was being held in city jail in lieu of a $30,000 bond after being charged Tuesday with sexually assaulting an 11-year-old girl.

Blaisdell Young, 1207 E. California, is accused of assaulting the girl on May 23 in an alley near 509 W. Mineola, according to police reports. He was charged with aggravated sexual assault of a child.

In other reports, a Midland man wrestled with two robbers Tuesday night at Jim's Pit Stop, 200 S. Lee, but they escaped with about $50 in currency.

James Hister, the proprietor, refused the robbers' demands for money and ignored the toy pistol they brandished after entering the restaurant about 11:50 p.m, reports said. But one man grabbed about $50 in currency from the cash register while Hister was wrestling with the other man, reports said. The men then fled on foot.

An arrest was made in the case, but no further details were available at press time.

A 33-year-old Midland woman was treated for minor injuries and released after a Tuesday afternoon traffic accident on Garden City Highway, according to reports from Midland Memorial Hospital and Midland police.

Patricia Banks, Star Route B, was eastbound in the 3100 block of Garden City Highway in a 1974 Mercedes when her car collided with a westbound 1965 Ford pickup which had turned left in front of her, according to traffic reports.

The pickup was driven by 31-year-old Randall McCaleb, Route 9, Box 9221, reports said.

Lola Igou, 2600 N. Loop 250, reported the loss of a $700 stereo and a $500 microwave in a Tuesday burglary of her apartment, reports said.

Crime Task Force slates hearing

From Staff Reports

Law enforcement officials and victims of crime will testify on their views of the criminal justice system and their suggestions for improvements at the hearing of Associated Texans Against Crime Task Force on Victims of Crimes.

The hearing will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Midland County Commissioner's Courtroom, Midland County Courthouse, 200 West Wall Street. This is the second in a series of hearing across the state.

State Rep. Sam Johnson, a former POW in Vietnam for seven years, serves as Charman of ATAC's Victims Task Force.

ATAC held hearings throughout the state in 1984. Of ATAC's package of nine recommendations to the Texas Legislature, seven were passed during the 1985 session. One was the instruction of juries about parole and stopping the use of minor technical errors in indictments as a basis for appeal of appeal of a criminal conviction (also known as Proposition 11 which passed 69 percent to 31 percent) last November.

STATE

Survey: Many teachers considering quitting

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Citing "stress, burnout, paperwork and hassles," nearly 42 percent of Texas teachers answering a recent poll say they are "seriously considering leaving the teaching profession."

For the fourth time in six years, two Huntsville researchers conducted the survey of 525 Texas State Teachers Association members on behalf of the TSTA — the state's largest teacher group. The 1986 results show an all-time-high percentage of teachers want to leave the classroom and that working conditions — not money — is the major force driving them out.

Education Commissioner William Kirby said "classroom defections" and the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers (TECAT) could leave the state short 5,000 to 10,000 teachers by September 1986. Teachers, he said, need the strong support of parents in particular.

"We need to quit criticizing teachers, or we're not going to have any," Kirby said.

Of the 329 teachers who returned the questionnaire, 41.7 percent said they were "seriously considering" leaving the classroom. Of that group, 68 percent cited working conditions and 17 percent pointed to money as their reasons for leaving.

Senate Education Committee Chairman Carl Parker of Port Arthur said Tuesday he was not surprised by the poll results.

Parker said lawmakers went about the job of improving education backwards. They "mandated quality first," he said, without providing the incentives for teachers that will produce that quality.

State Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner of Alice, vice chairwoman of the House Public Education Committee and a former teacher, said she hopes many of the teachers have fallen into the annual spring morale trap and will change their minds and return in the fall.

"Like farmers, you can talk about being on strike until it's planting time, then you've got to get the seed in the ground," she said. "But if we don't make teaching a satisfying profession, we're going to lose those folks."

As part of the 1984 school reforms, the Legislature created a career ladder bonus-pay plan for outstanding teachers. The TSTA survey showed 83 percent of teachers are not satisfied with it and were about evenly split on whether to improve the career ladder or eliminate it.

Ms. Glossbrenner said the current law, which allows districts with financial problems to limit the number of qualified teachers they place on the career ladder, fosters competition in a profession that requires cooperation. "What we have now is not a career ladder, we have a merit-pay system," she said.

Walsh critical of Mattox, Lucas case

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox should remove himself from an appeal of Henry Lee Lucas, who once confessed to a long string of murders, says Ed Walsh, a potential challenger for Mattox's job.

"Mattox should step aside and let someone who believes in the death penalty, someone who believes that trial by jury is the foundation of our legal sytem and someone who believes that Henry Lee Lucas is a mass murderer handle this case," Walsh told a news conference.

Walsh said Tuesday that he thought Mattox attends executions at Huntsville "because that is where the news media is and the TV cameras."

"I won't waste my time there if I'm elected," Walsh said.

Walsh is a GOP runoff candidate in the June 7 second primary against San Antonio District Judge Roy Barrera.

The winner faces Mattox in November.

Mattox, the Democrat nominee, replied that Walsh "apparently still hasn't figured out who his opponent is in the Republican runoff. I'm just not on the Republicaan ballot."

Mattox said he was not "taking the side of Henry Lee Lucas as Walsh claims. I simply was seeking the truth. Walsh in his ineptness is taking the side of rapists and murderers who are still loose on the streets because of Lucas' false confessions."

Walsh issued his "Mattox report" Tuesday in reply to Mattox's "Lucas report" three weeks ago.

Mattox said his investigation showed Lucas did not commit many of the admitted murders and was led to confess at times by information fed him by law enforcement officers.

"Henry Lee Lucas doesn't have a better friend in the whole world than Jim Mattox," said Walsh, who was district attorney at Georgetown when Lucas was assessed the only death sentence he has received. The sentence is on appeal.

Mattox said his investigation showed some doubt about evidence presented in the Georgetown case.

"As an attorney, he is unethical," Walsh said about Mattox's report. "He uses lies and deception for the sole purpose of furthering his political fortunes."

Walsh said his "Mattox report" contained thousands of press clips from across the state about Mattox and Lucas. "It chronicles the publicity Mattox has received from Henry Lee Lucas," Walsh said.

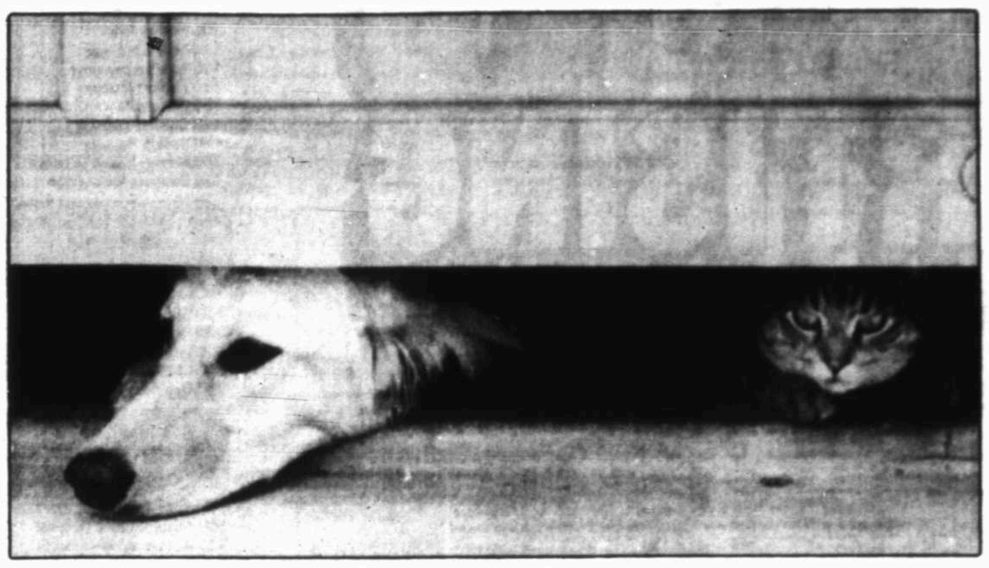

"The fact is that Jim Mattox is on record as saying he doesn't believe the death penalty is a deterrent to crime," he said.

In another race, Republican John Thomas Henderson of Austin, a runoff candidate for the Texas Railroad Commission with Rep. Milton Fox of Houston, challenged Fox's qualifications.

In a written statement distributed Tuesday, Henderson said Fox claims to have 20 years field experience as a petroleum engineer.

"If he's such a hot-shot petroleum engineer why has he been out of the industry for the past 15 or 20 years?" Henderson said.

"They already have plenty of engineers and lawyers on the staff and what they need is a person with business and personnel management experience — and that's me," he said.

Woman pleased ancestor honored

AUSTIN (AP) — A special Memorial Day ceremony at the Texas State Cemetery was a bittersweet victory for Michelle Frizzell of Round Rock, who says her ancestor finally received due recognition.

Ms. Frizzell, a member of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas and a descendant of the Burleson family, said Gen. Edward Burleson's contribution to Texas history has been overshadowed by that of Sam Houston. Burleson was vice president when Houston was president of the Republic of Texas.

"So much has been written in Texas history about Houston, and he has been given credit for so many things he really didn't do," Ms. Frizzell said.

"Frankly, it's because Sam Houston had a good press secretary. Whenever Houston did something that was unflattering, his press secretary was able to slant it or shade it.

"Anyone who knows Texas history knows that Gen. Edward Burleson's contributions were great. In fact, if it hadn't been for Gen. Edward, Houston might have retreated" at the Battle of San Jacinto, Ms. Frizzell said.

Documents in the archives at the Barker History Center on the University of Texas campus suggest that Houston was considering retreating but was prodded to continue fighting by Burleson, said Ms. Frizzell, who has been researching the Burleson history several years.

Ms. Frizzell said she was pleased the general was being honored, even though the recognition was slow in coming.

"We're having a lot of fun, seeing our ancestors honored like this for the first time in 150 years," she said.

Burleson, who died in 1851, was the first person buried at the Texas State Cemetery in Austin, according to a historical marker at the site.

Burleson was one of 179 Texas war heroes and statesmen honored in a special Monday ceremony coordinated by the city of Austin Sesquicentennial Commission.

Richards says state won't have to write 'hot checks'

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's austerity programs and two hefty revenue windfalls should be enough to help Texas squeak through 1986 without running out of cash, state Treasurer Ann Richards says.

Ms. Richards had warned the Texas Senate March 3 that the budget crunch was so severe that the state might not have enough cash to pay its bills without writing what she called "hot checks."

"It's awful close," she said. "But I don't think we'll be short. The cash-flow problem is still there, but the extremity is not there to the point that we fear having to write any kind of 'hot warrant' this year.

A combination of things will keep the state from writing checks it can't cover, she said:

— $425 million from the federal government, Texas' share of revenues from disputed off-shore oil leases;

— $157 million from a judgment against Exxon Corp. for violating federal price controls on domestic crude;

— and the governor's austerity program, which he says already has identified savings of at least $625 million for this two-year budget cycle, ending Aug. 31, 1987.

Korean children to undergo surgery

HOUSTON (AP) — One of two South Korean children evaluated for congenital heart defects will undergo surgery Wednesday at the University of Texas Medical Branch, a hospital spokeswoman said Tuesday.

The children arrived in Galveston Sunday night after a 24-hour flight from Seoul. They are being treated as part of a cooperative effort between the Galveston Rotary Clubs and the medical branch.

Ji Soo Kim, a 4-year-old boy, will be operated on Wednesday, said Linda MacDonald, spokeswoman for the medical center. Su Hyun Kim, a 4-year-old girl, will continue to be evaluated Wednesday and may be ready for surgery Thursday, she said.

Both children were admitted to the Child Health Center for evaluation by a cardiovascular team. They are not related, said Kletha Allen, another spokeswoman for the hospital.

A chest X-ray taken in South Korea revealed holes between the lower pumping chambers of the children's hearts, Ms. Allen said.

The Rotary's Gift Of Life program permits children to come to the United States for life-saving treatment of heart disorders.

Three Texans suspected of beating, robbing man

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police were searching for three men, believed to be from Texas, who snatched a tourist from a street-corner at the edge of the French Quarter, robbed, beat and stripped him before abandoning him on a remote highway in St. John the Baptist Parish, authorities say.

The 21-year-old man was grabbed at the corner of Canal and Bourbon streets by three men in a tan 1982 or 1983 Ford Fairmont, St. John sheriff's spokeswoman Judi Guillory said.

Deputies who stopped to help a stranded motorist late Monday were told that the man was walking nude on Interstate 55 just south of Ruddock, authorities said Tuesday.

When deputies found the man, he told them his abductors had robbed him of less than $5, beaten him and thrown him out of their car, Guillory said.

He described his assailants as a white male about 18 years old with blond hair, another white male weighing about 200 pounds and a thin black male about 5-feet-10. All three had Southern accents and were believed to be from Texas, Guillory said.

Deputies took the man for medical treatment and gave him a suit of clothes.

Judge reprimanded

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Commission on Judicial Conduct has publicly reprimanded Judge Lawrence J. Gist of the Criminal District Court in Beaumont for his sentencing practices.

The reprimand, signed by Robet C. Flowers, executive director of the commission, said the commission found in a hearing May 9 that Gist in a number of cases ordered a sentence to begin at a time earlier than the date on which the sentence was pronounced. In one instance the sentence began before the offense was committed, the report said.

Gist readily acknowledged that he had engaged in the sentencing practice, the reprimand said.

"Sentences beyond the scope of existing law, even if for some good perceived by the judge are improper," the reprimand said.

"Truth in sentencing is essential to public confidence in the judicary."

Trees stir controversy

DALLAS (AP) — The grassy knoll that some believe hid a second gunman in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy was the subject of a new controversy when four holly trees were recently planted on the historic spot.

Theories about a conspirator with Lee Harvey Oswald, the alleged assassin, hiding on the knoll in Dealey Plaza persist despite the Warren Commission's finding that there was no second gunman.

The new argument over the knoll involves the planting of four yaupon holly trees.

The trees were uprooted and moved a few blocks away to Union Station at the request of the Dallas County Historical Commission, which said the site should look as it did 23 years ago.

Beaumont gets payment

BEAUMONT (AP) — City officials said they would bank a $4.4 million check today as the first in a series of payments from a $20 million investment loss in March 1985.

A federal judge in Florida approved a legal agreement Tuesday that will return Beaumont's share of the bankruptcy settlement of ESM Government Securities.

About 20 ESM creditors shared a $35 million pool recovered from the Fort Lauderdale-based securities dealer, Beaumont city attorney Lane Nichols said. Beaumont lost $20 million when ESM closed its doors.

The agreement guarantees that the city will repay ESM receiver Thomas Tew up to $4.4 million if appeals to the settlement diminish the city's recovery, Nichols said.

Man given life sentence

GATESVILLE (AP) — William Joseph Mann was sentenced to life in prison by state District Judge Bobby Cummings for the 1983 slaying of a Gatesville convenience store clerk.

Mann, 24, was transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections' diagnostic center in Huntsville after his court appearance Tuesday, said Sheriff Gerald Kitchens.

Mann was convicted last week in the Sept. 2, 1983 slaying of Mary McCallister. The convenience store clerk was stabbed 19 times after apparently surprising a burglary in progress at Westview Sack It and Pack It in Gatesville.

Land to be used as park

AUSTIN (AP) — About 216 acres of Brazos Island, Cameron County, has been returned to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission for use as a park, the General Land Office said Tuesday.

The transfer was made after Playa del Rio Inc. developers relinquished its rights under a previous option agreement that allowed them to lease the property as long as its development proved to be environmentally resposible.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said the developer relinquished its option in exchange for a $21,000 road easement.

Officers fired for not aiding woman

LYNN, Mass. (AP) — Two police officers will appeal their firings for what officials said was their delay in responding to a woman's plea to catch a thief because they were on a dinner break, their attorney says.

Mayor Albert DiVirgilio on Tuesday fired Patrolmen William F. Giles, 51, and Dennis Curley, 39, for the April 6 incident.

The two officers were suspended for five days pending an administrative hearing, which ended two weeks ago with a recommendation the officers be fired. The officers' lawyers said the order would be appealed to the state Civil Service Commission.

The officers were eating at a restaurant near the Convenient Food Mart when Tammy Landry, manager of the store, chased a thief from it, investigators said. She spotted the officers' cruiser in a parking lot.

Ms. Landry, 19, told the investigators she pounded on the window of the restaurant to get the officers' attention and they beckoned her to come inside.

She said she told the officers she had been roughed up trying to stop a man who left the store without paying for some items. Ms. Landry testified she told the officers the thief was standing in a nearby alley.

Police estimated that at least one minute, 48 seconds elapsed before the officers rose from their meals to aid Ms. Landry. The thief was never caught.

Some Soviets to join families in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, which has been pressing the Soviet Union to improve its human rights performance, says a Soviet decision to let 117 citizens join their families in America could help East-West relations.

A congressional leader on human rights issues says the move shows the Kremlin leadership is starting to heed world opinion.

The State Department announced Tuesday it had received word from the Soviet Union that 36 of 126 divided-family cases on a list submitted by the United States had been resolved. That means Soviet emigration permits are expected to be granted to 117 people over the next few weeks and they will be welcomed to America.

The Soviets also pledged to settle two other cases, one involving a dual nationality and the other a spouse of an American.

State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said it was not known why the Soviets agreed to the exodus, but that it was welcomed.

"It is a positive step that will contribute to an improved atmosphere in our relations."

Sect's members convictions upheld

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Two members of a sect who argued that they were practicing their religion when they withheld medical treatment from their dying son were properly convicted of reckless homicide, the state Supreme Court says.

The court on Tuesday upheld the reckless homicide convictions of Gary and Margaret Hall, the first members of the Faith Assembly convicted in the deaths of their children. The justices threw out child neglect convictions in the death from pneumonia of the couple's son, Joel David, on Feb. 16, 1984.

"Prayer is not permitted as a defense when a caretaker engages in omissive conduct which results in the child's death," Justice Randall T. Shepard wrote for the court, which ruled that the child neglect charges constituted double jeopardy.

You are hereby notified of the opportunity for written public comment concerning the Construction Permit Application No. 16884 by Mobil Producing Texas & New Mexico Inc. to replace and add compression engines at the Pegasus Gas Plant in Midland County, Texas. The proposed location is approximately eighteen and one-half miles south of Interstate 20 on FM 1788. This facility proposes to emit the following air contaminants: petroleum hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides. The Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board has made the preliminary determination to issue this permit. Before a permit can be issued for this facility, all emission sources must demonstrate compliance with all Rules and Regulations of the Texas Air Control Board and all applicable Federal Regulations. This includes the application of "best available control technology" to each emission source and compliance with all ambient air quality standards.

A copy of all materials submitted by the applicant is available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board Odessa Regional Office at 1901 East 37th Street, Suite 101, Odessa, Texas 79762, telephone (915) 367-3871, and at the Texas Air Control Board, 6330 Highway 290 East, Austin, Texas 78723, telephone (512) 451-5711. All interested persons may inspect these materials and submit written comments to the Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board. Any person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the proposed facility may request a hearing from the Board. All comments received in writing by June 28, 1986 shall be considered by the Board in making its decision on the application. All comments will be made available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board Office in Austin.

POLICE AUCTION

The Midland Police Department will hold a Public Auction on Saturday, May 31, 1986, at 10:00 AM, to dispose of over 100 vehicles being held at the Police Pound, located at 1603 Orchard Lane.

Some of these vehicles were abandoned, some were wrecked, some will run, some are repairable and some are only suitable for salvage. However, neither the City of Midland nor the Police Department makes any guarantee as to the condition of these vehicles. All vehicles are sold "as is, where is".

The Police Pound will be opened at 8:00 AM, May 31, 1986 for inspection of vehicles and bidding will start at 10:00 AM.
