Legislators try to salvage $4.8 billion tax measure

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Legislators tried today on the last day of a special legislative session to salvage a $4.8 billion tax bill that would pay for the most dramatic public school reform in Texas in 35 years.

Significant progress was reported late Monday night by House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, but any tax proposal would still have to survive votes of both houses and, in the Senate, an almost certain filibuster.

The tax bill would be the first major tax increase in Texas in 13 years, but legislators have only until midnight to pass it unless Gov. Mark White calls another special session.

House, Senate differ over ad tax

AUSTIN (AP) — The House and Senate disagreement over whether to include newspaper and broadcast advertising under the state sales tax is a major obstacle to the $4.8 billion tax-hike package for highway and school improvements, says Speaker Gib Lewis.

The Senate voted 25-5 Monday to preserve the current exemption that protects advertising from the sales tax.

House members, drawing the ire of newspaper publishers and others who make money from ads, had voted to kill the exemption.

"The big boys came down here and done a pretty good job," House Ways and Means Chairman Stan Schlueter said after the Senate vote.

Late Monday, after the House rejected the Senate tax package, Lewis said informal House-Senate negotiations reached "as close as one item away from having an agreed compromise." He said the advertising tax was the one item.

The House, in a stormy Saturday night session, had voted 75-59 to add the sales tax to advertising, amusement admissions, laundry and dry cleaning and building repairs.

Mondale works to put missing pieces in place

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Working to put into place the final parts of the puzzle of a united Democratic Party and a peaceful national convention, Walter F. Mondale still has two major pieces missing — one labeled "The Rev. Jesse Jackson" and the other "Vice President."

Mondale was going to work today on one of the elements, meeting with Jackson in Kansas City, Mo., for what he hopes is a unity session like the one with rival Sen. Gary Hart in New York.

"It will be pretty much the same as the meeting I had with Gary Hart," Mondale said Monday. "There is no agenda; we're just going to have a discussion."

The probable Democratic nominee spent Monday working on selecting a running mate. He interviewed Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, the New York Democrat at the top of many lists for the job.

Mondale pronounced her "qualified" and a "truly impressive" leader after a three-hour meeting at his home.

Ms. Ferraro said she wanted the job to help defeat Ronald Reagan in the fall, but that she wouldn't be part of an effort at the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco two weeks from now to challenge his choice if that choice is a man.

Both Mondale and Jackson were scheduled to address the annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People after their noontime meeting in private.

A new CBS-New York Times poll released Monday showed Mondale trailing President Reagan by 15 percentage points, 50 percent to 35 percent.

Moreover, the poll showed him trailing Reagan among women as well as among men. Among women, the poll said Reagan led 45-37; among men, Reagan led 55-32.

The latest sample of 1,600 people has a margin of error plus or minus 3 percentage points. A Gallup poll released Saturday showed Reagan with a 19 point lead, 56-37.

Jackson headed to today's meeting with Mondale after sending mixed signals of conciliation and confrontation. Jackson told reporters Monday that he expected "a congenial meeting" because he and Mondale have a long-standing relationship of mutual respect.

"But beyond the personal rapport, there must be signs of accommodation for the legitimate interest of the rainbow coalition," Jackson said.

Jackson said Monday he plans to go to southern Africa, will seek a visa for white-minority ruled South Africa, and also will visit the Soviet Union later this year.

Mondale has been under increasing pressure from female supporters and other feminists to name a woman as his running mate, with Ms. Ferraro the choice of many of those women. But Mondale shrugged it off, including pressure from the National Organization for Women, after his meeting with the congresswoman from Queens.

"Dealing with pressure is basically what a public leader does. That's politics," Mondale said. "But it is not going to change my commitment to pick the best possible person. That's exactly what I'm going to do."

He did, however, have high praise for Ms. Ferraro.

"It is well known that I respect Geraldine Ferraro as one of the truly impressive leaders of the Democratic Party today, and she has demonstrated that across the board," he said. "I regard Gerry Ferraro as being qualified and clearly in contention for the nomination for vice president."

MMH reaches agreement on drug treatment facility

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

After more than three years of fighting for a local drug treatment facility, Midland Memorial Hospital will relinquish participation in the unit other than helping to establish a governing board comprised mostly of members from the Midland community.

An agreement in concept with Camelback Hospitals and Samaritan Health Service, both of Phoenix, Ariz., was announced by MMH President Ray Branson at a news conference this morning. Although no formal contract has yet been executed, the conceptual agreement provides Camelback and Samaritan with joint construction and ownership responsibilities. MMH, responsible for obtaining the certificate of need from the Texas Health Facilities at a cost estimated to be between $150,000 and $200,000, has provided the 10-acre tract of land, valued at $1 million and donated by Scharbauer Brothers & Co., a long-time supporter of MMH.

"The hospital will not own or participate in the financing of the chemical dependency unit," Branson said. "The decision was made sometime back that if we're going to proceed with this project, it would not be through financing."

MMH will be reimbursed for the certificate of need costs, Branson said, which will include a $35,000 fee for a preparation study made by a civil engineering firm at the site, located west of Loop 250 and north of where Thomason Drive will be extended.

The joint financing venture between Camelback Hospitals and Samaritan Health Services "would include that and other related preopening costs," said Daniel W. Capps, president and chief executive officer of Camelback Hospitals.

The certificate of need for the 50-bed facility placed construction costs at $3.4 million, according to Luther W. Goehring, Samaritan Health Service vice president of regional operations. Architects Flatow, Moore and Brown of Albuquerque, N.M., a firm responsible for other construction projects at MMH, have been retained, he said.

The hospital, referred to as the MMH Behavior Health Center, will be renamed.

Programs will include detoxification, rehabilitation, therapy and after-care treatments on an outpatient basis, said Capps. About 150 people will staff the facility, with the majority coming from the Midland-Odessa area. Most likely, "we may have to go outside" the Permian Basin for administrative and clinical leadership, he said.

The need for a chemical dependency unit was first identified by MMH in August 1980, Branson said. The certificate of need, necessary for any construction or expansion for services and equipment costing more than $600,000, was granted by the THFC in July 1982, after a three-way battle with two other facilities.

Parkview Hospital applied for a $500,000 conversion of its existing facility to a 60-bed psychiatric hospital with drug abuse services. Southwest Health Inc., an Arlington corporation, requested a $4.1 million 60-bed psychiatric hospital with drug and/or alcohol abuse services to be located near Midland Regional Airport.

The requests from MMH and Southwest Health, whose facility is to be named West Plains Hospital, were approved. Parkview's application was denied by the commission on a 2-1 vote.

Parkview has since filed a suit against the THFC and West Plains. Heard in a Travis County Court in May, a ruling is expected to be handed down in a few months.

Although MMH opposed the West Plains hospital because it was not a local company, Branson said there is a difference in having the Phoenix firms operate and own MMH's facility.

Indian firms close to protest dismissal of government

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Shops and businesses across the Himalayan state of Kashmir closed today in a protest against Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's dismissal of a state government led by one of her main critics.

The government imposed a 24-hour curfew on Srinagar, the state capital, and paramilitary troops were alerted to prevent more violent protests. Several people were hurt Monday in scattered riots protesting the ouster of Chief Minister Mohammad Farooq Abdullah.

The state, where almost 6 million people live in cities and towns along a picturesque valley, was reported quiet today.

Mrs. Gandhi's governing Congress Party had accused Abdullah's National Conference Party of allowing Moselm and Sikh extremists to operate in Kashmir, and of terrorizing Congress Party workers.

Abdullah's government fell after 12 legislators who belonged to his party withdrew their support, reducing Abdullah's support in the state legislature to 34 out of 76 seats.

G.M. Shah, Abdullah's estranged brother-in-law and leader of the defecting deputies, was appointed the new chief minister. He will be supported by Mrs. Gandhi's party.

Abdullah is the son of Sheik Abdullah, the "Lion of Kashmir" who was a dominant force in state politics for 50 years prior to his death in 1982. Although he was a follower of Mohandas Gandhi and Jawaharlal Nehru, his frequent battles with the federal government won semi-autonomy for Kashmir.

Abdullah accused Mrs. Gandhi's government and party of having "engineered defections through bribes and other inducements."

Attack on Cypriot vessel kills two near Iranian port

By The Associated Press

Two crewmen aboard a Cypriot cargo ship were killed and four were injured when the ship was attacked Sunday near the Iranian port of Bandar Khomeini, a spokesman for the ship's owners said today.

The spokesman did not say who staged the attack on the 13,316-ton Alexandra Dyo, but Iraq has claimed that its forces attacked five ships in that section of the Persian Gulf on Sunday. It has tried to enforce a blockade around Iranian ports as part of its strategy in the 45-month-old Iran-Iraq war.

The Alexandra Dyo, which was carrying a load of Japanese steel products from Mozambique, was badly damaged in the attack, according to Capt. Epaminondas Koumantaros, agent for the vessel's Cypriot owners, Eurotribune Marine Ltd.

Koumantaros said the dead and wounded crewmen were Filipinos. He said the four officers and the rest of the crew were safe in Bandar Khomeini, at the north end of the gulf.

"It isn't yet clear what's happened. The ship appears to have run aground as a result of the attack," he said.

Iraq claimed that its warplanes destroyed five ships Sunday and shot down an Iranian fighter in a dogfight over the area.

One of the targets, according to the South Korean Foreign Ministry, was a South Korean cargo ship, also carrying Japanese steel, that was hit by two Iraqi missiles. South Korea said four crewmen aboard the 10,205-ton Wonjin-ho were injured but that all those aboard were picked up by Iranian rescuers.

The National Weather Service forecasts showers today in a band from the Great Lakes area through Texas and southern New Mexico and along the southern coast of Arizona and California. Showers are also predicted in parts of Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and along the East Coast, from North Carolina to Florida.

Midland once again has chance for thunderstorms

From Staff and Wire Reports

Thunderstorms may trudge across the Midland sky tonight if the weatherman's 1-to-5 odds for thunderstorms pay off.

Otherwise, it'll be a dry gulch.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport has ventured a 20 percent chance for thunderstorms tonight. The high is to be near 70, and winds are to be southerly at 5 to 10 mph.

For the Wednesday Fourth-of-July holiday, the weatherman is calling for a sunny day, a high in the mid-90s and southerly winds at 5 to 15 mph.

Monday's high temperature was 83 degrees, while the record high for a July 2 is 104 degrees in 1964. The overnight low was 67 degrees, and the record low for a July 3 is 61 degrees in 1942.

STATE

Scattered thunderstorms were considered likely for much of Texas tonight after a mostly sunny day.

The National Weather Service said rain was expected over western and southeastern portions of North Texas, across Southwest Texas, and along the Texas coast and the Rio Grande Valley.

Temperatures in the 90s were forecast statewide.

Skies were generally clear across most sections of the Lone Star State early today. However, humid air continued over the eastern half of Texas as a high pressure system was located over the central Gulf of Mexico.

Otherwise, scattered high level clouds were observed over the southwest and South Plains while dense fog dropped visibilities to near one half mile in some locations of Southeast Texas.

NATION

While parts of Texas were parched for rain and were rationing water to save underground springs today, a plentiful supply fell over the north-central states, the Gulf Coast crescent and the mid-Atlantic states.

On the West Coast, a heat wave around San Francisco eased.

Meanwhile, widely scattered thunderstorms rolled through Florida and southern Georgia and a few thunderstorms dotted the central Gulf Coast states.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms also touched the mid-Atlantic coast region and along the Carolina coast.

Gromyko: Remove NATO missiles

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told the British foreign secretary today that Britain shares responsibility with Washington for a "worsened war threat," and repeated Moscow's demand that NATO take its missiles out of Europe.

Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe met with Gromyko for three hours, and then was received in the Kremlin by President Konstantin U. Chernenko.

Both the British and Soviet summaries of the foreign ministers' meeting indicated they discussed an array of East-West disputes, including nuclear arms issues, the Middle East and military policy in Asia. But neither summary gave many details of the give-and-take between Howe and Gromyko.

An official British statement said Howe raised the subject of Soviet military involvement in Afghanistan, and also submitted a list of "personal cases" that a British official said consisted primarily of Soviet citizens seeking to emigrate to Britain.

"There were one or two that did not fit into that category," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity and declined to name any of the "personal cases." On Monday, British officials said Howe brought up the cases of such Soviet dissidents as Andrei Sakharov and Anatoly Shcharansky.

The British said the discussion included prospects for reducing armed forces in Europe, the "moves in the Western European union to lift the remaining restrictions on (West German) arms production, the outer space proposals and nuclear arms control...the Middle East (and) the Iran-Iraq war."

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said in its summary that Gromyko stressed the need "to take urgent measures to prevent the militarization of outer space and to hold to this end Soviet-American talks, as is offered in the statement of the Soviet government."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko greets British Secretary of State Geoffrey Howe in Moscow.

On Monday, Howe told Gromyko in a Kremlin speech that he supported a U.S. plan to raise the general issue of nuclear arms at a Kremlin-proposed space weapons conference this fall. But Gromyko said nuclear arms are unrelated to space weapons and repeated the official Soviet rejection of the U.S. proposal.

The Soviet Union, which broke off the Geneva arms limitation talks last November when NATO began deploying missiles in Europe, is refusing to discuss medium-range or strategic arms as long as the nuclear weapons remain.

Tass said Gromyko repeated this position in his talks with Howe.

"Andrei Gromyko stressed that the deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles in Western Europe — responsibility for which was shared by the British government — has worsened the war threat," Tass said.

"It is not yet too late to put the situation right," the news agency quoted Gromyko as saying. "Measures to withdraw the missiles already in place, simultaneously with steps to remove the measures taken in response, will provide conditions for the resumption of the nuclear talks."

The Soviet Union has said it has deployed new missiles of its own in Czechoslovakia and East Germany in response to the NATO deployment.

Tass said Howe "reiterated the position of the NATO countries...a position which is not conducive to the resumption of talks and an improvement of the international situation."

Earlier today, Howe told the British Broadcasting Corp. in a radio interview that the responses he had encountered from Soviet officials during talks on arms control were "very negative" and "quite illogical."

He said he stressed during his first round of meetings that Moscow and the West "have interests in common in trying to make headway on arms control.

Advisers: Reagan should insist on arms talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite election-year pressure to accept Moscow's offer to negotiate a ban on space weapons, presidential advisers believe President Reagan should insist on adding nuclear arms discussions to the agenda to avoid seeming overly eager.

A high-level administration official conceded that the administration realized it was risking a rebuff by the Soviet Union by proposing resumption of nuclear arms talks.

"You can say to me that you might have known that you were running the risk of a turndown by the Soviets. And I would say, 'Absolutely,'" said the official who was interviewed only on condition that he not be identified.

"But that makes the point I'm trying to make to you: just because it would be advantageous from an election standpoint to be able to sit down with the Soviets — looked at purely from domestic politics — that would not be good policy," he said.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin on Friday told Secretary of State George P. Shultz of the Soviet offer to discuss space weapons in September at negotiations in Vienna. Reagan responded later in the day that the United States was interested in discussing resumption of nuclear missile talks first.

On Monday, the Reagan administration said it would agree to talks with the Soviets with no preconditions, but still would raise the nuclear arms issue.

U.S.-Soviet negotiations on nuclear weapons were halted late last year as Moscow protested NATO's deployment of new American missiles in Western Europe.

"The one thing I think is important — he should not be seen as begging the Soviets for a meeting," said the White House official.

He did not believe Reagan gave Dobrynin a message to take to Moscow when the two men met and talked at length during a White House barbecue Sunday night.

"I can't say that he gave him (Dobrynin) a message to take back, but they talked at the reception for the diplomatic corps, and I would just imagine that, as he routinely does, he would report on that conversation," said the official, referring to Dobrynin's normal communications with Soviet authorities.

"He (Reagan) has made it clear that he's sincere and reasonable in terms of going anywhere at any time," the official said. "The only thing he said is there are a whole host of things we really ought to at least discuss."

Citizens can't prod IRS to deny tax breaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private citizens may not go to court and prod the federal government into denying or rescinding tax breaks to racially discriminatory private schools, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 5-3 vote, the justices said private citizens lack the necessary legal standing to file such lawsuits.

The ruling, a significant setback for civil rights activists, greatly limits the impact of the court's 1983 decision upholding an Internal Revenue Service policy of denying tax-exempt status to discriminatory private schools.

Generally, the IRS accepts the word of a school in deciding whether it qualifies to have contributors claim their donations as tax deductions. The only required proof of good intention is that the school state publicly that it does not discriminate on the basis of race.

Today's decision means private citizens may not call on the federal courts to spur more stringent enforcement standards.

Writing for the court, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said a lawsuit filed by black parents "which aims at nationwide relief and does not challenge particular identified unlawful IRS actions alleges no connection between the asserted desegregation injury and the challenged IRS conduct direct enough to overcome the substantial separation-of-powers barriers to a suit seeking an injunction to reform administrative procedures."

She was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White, Lewis F. Powell and William H. Rehnquist.

Justices William J. Brennan, Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens dissented.

On May 24, 1983, the high court ruled that the IRS policy of denying tax breaks for private schools discriminating against blacks is supported by "a most fundamental national public policy."

Burford appointment upsets environmentalists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some environmentalists say they are astounded and even outraged by President Reagan's decision to bring Anne M. Burford back to government as head of a national advisory committee on environmental issues.

The new appointment for Reagan's first administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency was made in a routine announcement Monday on the eve of a White House luncheon organized to ease the administration's "continuing problems in environmental matters."

"I'm flabbergasted," said John McComb, chief lobbyist for the Sierra Club. "It really makes a sham of what had been a reputable committee."

The White House said Mrs. Burford is to chair the National Advisory Committee on Oceans and Atmosphere, a panel that reports to the president, Congress and secretary of commerce on marine and atmospheric policy and programs.

"We think it is outrageous that Anne Burford, who was effectively driven from office for failure to vigorously implement this nation's environmental laws, has been named to chair a committee that is responsible for making recommendations about the management of the nation's coastal and marine resources," said Lisa Speer, an ocean scientist on the staff of the Natural Resources Defense Council.

Liz Raisbeck, the lobbyist handling ocean issues for Friends of the Earth, said: "It's incomprehensible that a person who left in disgrace over her ethical conduct should get a presidential appointment. I'm shocked and aghast. It shows this administration is totally insensitive to the environment."

Amy Chapman of Environmental Action said, "She's back! This is terrible."

Committee members work part time and don't receive salaries, but White House spokesman Larry Speakes said today they are reimbursed for expenses and are paid $100 a day when they work. They advise on issues ranging from defense navigation systems to wetlands protection and from subsea mining of scarce minerals.

TAXES

At least five senators and five House members, meeting without official approval of their colleagues, talked privately in Hobby's office Monday night after the House had rejected Senate amendments to a tax bill.

After the House also voted not to appoint a conference committee to negotiate differences on taxes, the special session was on the verge of failing. Senators joked about "competency testing" of House members, and the House blamed the Senate for the stalemate.

"There are some feelings and egos at stake, but I think they are all starting to work pretty good," said Lewis. "They're very close."

Asked about White's role in the negotiations, Lewis said, "He's just saying, 'Do it.' He thinks it would be a disaster — and I agree with him — if we go home without acting on a tax bill and have to be called back in. He just wants a bill."

Lewis said the conferees were within "one item" of a compromise, and that item was the sales tax on advertising.

"The Senate is killing this deal," said Rep. Ray Keller, R-Duncanville. "They'll have to take the responsibility now."

On Monday rather than accept the House version of the largest tax bill in Texas history, the Senate stripped away a proposal that would have placed advertising under the state sales tax, which would have raised $459.2 million over three years.

Senators also discarded a House provision that would have eliminated sales tax exemptions on auto and home repairs.

To make up for the lost revenue, the Senate voted to raise the sales tax from 4 percent to 4.25 percent, which would raise $689.1 million over three years.

"There's a lot of resistance to increasing the sales tax," said Schlueter, D-Killeen.

House members booed a comment in debate that the Senate had "taken the tax off of business and put it on the general population."

"We're not trying to play hardball or anything, but we would like to maintain at least part of the dignity of the bill," said Schlueter.

The House gave up on appointing a conference committee after a test vote on suspending certain rules failed to get the necessary two-thirds. The vote was 87-56.

Both the Senate and House bills would raise about the same amount of money to pay for $2.8 billion in school reform over the next three years and to increase maintenance of highways.

In a move that was first interpreted as a slap at Lewis, the Senate defeated a House proposal to dedicate a 1-cent-a-pack increase in the cigarette tax to cancer research, a pet project of the speaker.

Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, said he understood the $12.7 million each year from the tax would go to a Fort Worth facility. Later, after Lewis visited with Howard, the senator said the bill was not designed as "pork barrel" for Lewis' legislative district.

Nevertheless, the Senate refused to dedicate the money to cancer research, choosing to channel it into general revenue.

The Senate adopted a new concept when it accepted an amendment by Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, to base auto registration fees on the model year rather than weight. Newer cars would pay higher fees.

McFarland estimated the change would bring in an additional $36 million over three years.

The Senate bill included a proposal that would expand the tax on telecommunications, but an amendment removed that proposal, carving out $66 million over three years.

An amendment restricting the tax on amusement admissions to tickets costing $6 or more also was approved in the Senate. Loss estimates in tax revenue ranged from $12 million to $20 million a year.

Another change in the Senate version of the bill would raise the gross receipts tax on mixed drinks from 10 percent to 12 percent, which would raise an estimated $8 million a year in additional tax revenue.

A major revenue-raiser in both bills would increase the motor fuels tax from 5 cents to 10 cents a gallon for a total of over $1.3 billion in three years.

MMH

The agreement between MMH and the two companies was based on the "not-for-profit concept" of all three entities, he said. "All the profits that result from the operation (of MMH's facility) will stay in the unit. There will not be shareholders that will have dividends distributed to them (like with the West Plains facility)," he said. "The ownership...stays local in concept in that there would be a majority on the board that will govern the new facility from Midland."

The drug treatment facility will probably "purchase services from MMH to the extent possible to avoid duplicating services," Capps said.

Judge: Photographers must comply

AUSTIN (AP) — News photographers must comply with court orders to turn over photos taken at crime scenes, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled today.

Dallas Morning News photographer Randy Eli Grothe had been held in contempt of court by Dallas County Criminal Court Judge Robert Moss for refusing to turn over pictures taken at a Sept. 19, 1983, protest at Dallas Power & Light.

Grothe was freed on bond and never spent time in jail, according to court records.

Photographs taken by Grothe were subpoenaed by Mavis Belisle, who was charged with obstructing a public passageway during the demonstration. Grothe testified about what he saw at the protest, but declined to turn over photographs he took that weren't published by the newspaper.

The Court of Criminal Appeals said Grothe had no constitutional right to resist the subpoena.

"We are not unmindful of the important place of a free press in our society," Judge Charles Campbell said in the appeals court opinion. "Not to be forgotten, however, is the interest in protecting the integrity of the criminal justice system."

Teachers association explains objections to bill

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — The school reform bill approved by the Legislature and awaiting Gov. Mark White's signature, despite pumping more money into public education, likely won't solve many of the problems, the Texas State Teachers Association says.

Although the bill contains a pay raise for beginning teachers, the TSTA said Monday there is no guarantee that many experienced teachers will be paid more.

"The overall impact of the bill lowers the already sagging morale of the state's teachers. The result will be to worsen a teacher shortage because increasing numbers of teachers will simply retire or seek other careers," the group said in a statement.

The TSTA, with 95,000 members, is the state's largest teacher organization. It initially supported the education reform compromise worked out in the Legislature, but last week withdrew its backing.

Becky Brooks, TSTA president-elect, said the group didn't urge lawmakers to oppose the bill because it does contain some positive changes, including provisions to reduce class size and to make academics the top priority.

But "as fine as certain provisions in this legislation are, no one can expect teachers to be happy with this legislation with all its uncertainties," Ms. Brooks said.

"Aides and secretaries who will be removed from the state minimum salary schedule and librarians and counselors who will be excluded from the opportunity of ever entering the so-called career ladder cannot be expected to be ecstatic about the new legislation," she said.

Ms. Brooks said only one-third of the $850 million the Legislature will spend next year on school reform is certain to go to teachers.

"The final bill has great potential for further eroding the morale of teachers and other school employees if the substantial amounts of money are not passed through in order to raise salaries," she said.

Among the bill's provisions the TSTA finds objectionable, Ms. Brooks said, are:

— "Insufficient" immediate salary hikes for all but beginning teachers, who will get raises from $11,000 annually to $15,200.

— A requirement that teachers and administrators take competency tests which haven't yet been written.

Congressional candidate recognized as winner

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — After a court challenge that took a month to fend off, Joe Barton has been acknowledged as the winner of the Republican nomination for the congressional seat being vacated by U.S. Senate aspirant Phil Gramm.

Max Hoyt, a former Pentagon aide and government lobbyist, threw in the towel Monday and conceded the race to Barton by a razor-thin margin of 10 votes out of more than 9,200 votes cast in the 6th congressional district.

"It feels good," said an elated Barton, who was the leading vote-getter in a four-candidate field in the May 5 GOP primary, but failed to win a majority needed to avoid a runoff.

Testimony in the lawsuit opened Monday morning. When it became clear by mid-afternoon that Hoyt would lose, former state Rep. Bob Davis of Dallas — Hoyt's lawyer — moved that the case be dismissed. Visiting District Judge Robert Cummings of Gatesville granted the motion.

Barton, who will take on Democratic nominee Dan Kubiak in the Nov. 6 General Election, was represented during the election contest by former Secretary of State David Dean of Dallas.

Rumors fly in drug probe

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — A cocaine investigation that prompted the resignation of the school board president and "cuts across all levels of society" has sent rumors flying in this town of 30,000, but authorities remain tight-lipped about who might be involved.

On Friday, Barrett Keith Brown, the president of Sherman school board resigned, saying in a letter to fellow board members that he "was guilty of having used cocaine in the past."

The 37-year-old attorney's resignation came two days after he appeared before a federal grand jury investigating drug trafficking in Northeast Texas.

According to a copy of the letter of resignation obtained by the Sherman Democrat, Brown wrote the board that "I was guilty of having used cocaine in the past. I voluntarily terminated any cocaine use some time ago."

The school board, stunned, accepted Brown's resignation Friday afternoon.

"It cuts across all levels of (Sherman's) society," said Ron Sievert of Tyler, an assistant U.S. attorney involved in the case.

In his letter, Brown said: "I hereby respectfully resign my position as president and as a member of the school board. I believe this action to be in the best interest of the Sherman Independent School District because of my former conduct. ... Although this never affected my responsibilities to this board, I violated the law and had no excuse."

One of Brown's attorneys, Phil Burleson, told the Dallas Times Herald that the resignation is "connected with his appearance before the grand jury."

Brown's resignation came five days after another Sherman attorney, Larry Cain, admitted using cocaine in a lengthy letter published last Sunday in the Democrat.

"I've been burned," wrote Cain, 37. "I will carry the scars of this burn mainly on my reputation for the remainder of my life."

Charles Schweizer, who has served on the school board with Brown for the past two years, said the six-month investigation, being conducted by police and FBU agents, has spurred lots of talk in the quiet Grayson County seat 65 miles north of Dallas.

"There have been a lot of rumors floating around," said Schweizer, who works at a Sherman stock brokerage firm. "In a town of 30,000, when you have something like this happen, it's the talk of the town."

Scweizer said board members and Sherman citizens are "really sorry something like this has happened."

"People in town are concerned about it," he said. "It's not every day of the week that a school board president resigns over something like this."

Iris Guedea, a mother of three students at Sherman High School, told the Dallas Morning News that townspeople have been "reading about the investigation for a long time and heard there were some big people involved.

"But I wouldn't have thought he (Brown) would've been one of them."

Murder charges filed for restaurant slaings

DALLAS (AP) — Five charges of murder and one of attempted murder have been filed against a 39-year-old Moroccan native in connection with last week's fatal shooting of six people in a North Dallas restaurant and club.

After filing of the charges late Monday, City Magistrate Frances Goodwin set bonds of $250,000 for Abdelkrim Belachheb on each count. He had previously been charged with one count of murder.

A court-appointed attorney said Monday he is considering an insanity defense.

"It is not exclusive. It's among the defenses we're considering," the attorney, Ted Calisi, said.

Norman Kinne, an assistant district attorney for Dallas County, said the prosecution anticipates such a strategy.

"I don't think the insanity defense will float, but I can't think of anything else," Kinne said.

Belachheb has been held since Friday in lieu of $500,000 bond. He was arrested about two hours after the handgun slayings of the six patrons at Ianni's Restaurant and Club early Friday.

Witnesses said several people were shot and killed by a man who was angered when he was spurned by a woman on the club's dance floor.

Reagan appointee criticizes president's civil rights actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights has criticized President Reagan for actions he says mark a departure from the administration's civil rights philosophy.

In two letters sent last week to the president, Clarence Pendleton Jr. criticized a White House luncheon for black administration officials and Reagan's recent statement in support of local "set-aside" programs for minority contractors.

Pendleton, a conservative black who was appointed to the panel by Reagan, also criticized an administration decision to make Hasidic Jews eligible for federal business assistance by giving them "disadvantaged" status.

"I told him that I would never knowingly attend any meeting that was exclusively for blacks because I thought that was divisive," Pendleton said of his letter criticizing the June 25 meeting for black officials.

"We didn't get appointed by color or gender, so don't convene us by color or gender," Pendleton said Monday night in a telephone interview from his home in La Jolla, Calif.

In his letter to Reagan, Pendleton wrote that the briefing and luncheon was convened as an attempt "to discuss with them how good this administration has been to black Americans."

At the meeting, Reagan told the black officials that "contrary to a lot of demagoguery that we're hearing, our administration has moved with vigor and vision" to promote equal opportunity.

Pendleton said he suspected Reagan's political advisers were responsible for the president's recent expression of support for local "set-aside" programs that guarantee minority contractors a percentage of public construction contracts.

"I think that is probably more advice than it is himself," Pendleton said.

Pendleton said he objects to set-aside programs because they are "just another form or preferential treatment that I think is inappropriate and constitutionally impermissible."

These programs "do mayhem to the Constitution and to the civil rights laws," he wrote.

Pendleton said he told Reagan that "in this election year ... that it was important that he maintain a fidelity to his principles." The administration has generally opposed racial quotas to promote equal opportunity.

"Let the Democrats play that game, we don't want to play that game, the numbers game," he said.

"We have received two letters from Mr. Pendleton, but we are not going to have any comment on them," said White House spokesman Anson Franklin.

NEA report prompts heated debate

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A report aimed at clearing the air on where the nation's largest teachers' union stands on issues like merit pay and teacher competency testing has instead become the springboard for the most heated arguments at the group's annual convention.

Most of the leaders of the National Education Association, including its president, Mary Hatwood Futrell, support the 18-page study called "An Open Letter to America on Schools, Students, and Tomorrow." The report was likely to be approved by the rank and file today.

But at least some of the 7,018 teacher delegates gathered here have charged that the report is so vague that it might actually erode the union's credibility in the debate over education reform unless it is thoroughly revised.

At least 78 amendments to the report have been proposed by union members.

A rousing speech Monday in which Democratic presidential hopeful Walter F. Mondale promised to be "the best president that education, and science and learning has ever had" was the emotional high point of the four-day meeting.

But the NEA's leadership has regarded passage of the report by the full membership as the most important piece of business — the guidepost for union activity for the next several years.

The report released last week just before the start of the convention called for a "total restructuring" of America's public schools.

On some issues the report took clear stands. It expressed "unalterable opposition" to merit pay. It also called for starting teacher salaries of $24,000 — about $10,000 above the current average — along with several other steps to improve overall teaching conditions.

But while many teachers spoke in favor of adopting the report as official NEA policy, a number of members in the spirited debate that began Monday termed the report negative and vague — and warned that it might wind up hurting the union in the public eye.

"It's all rhetoric. There's no substance to it," said Thomas Dunn, a Springfield, Mass., teacher.

"I think most people here feel it needs lots of work. I'm embarrassed to put this report out to the nation," said Tamera Busch-Johnson.

Royal Crown to defend lawsuit

NEW YORK (AP) — Royal Crown Cola Co. will "vigorously defend" a lawsuit filed by the state of New York charging the soft-drink company with deceptive advertising, the company says.

The suit filed in state Supreme Court says that advertising for Diet Rite Cola creates the false impression that the beverage no longer contains saccharin, an artificial sweetner linked to cancer, Attorney General Robert Abrams said Monday.

Seven-Up, Pepsi-Cola and Coca-Cola companies have agreed not to run ads in the state that imply that their products contain only a different sweetener, aspartame, Abrams said.

Effect of loose insulation unknown

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — It's not known what effect the discovery of loose insulation on the space shuttle Discovery will have on its launch schedule, a NASA spokesman said.

One of the shuttle's three engines was replaced Monday and NASA said that loose insulation on a super-cold fuel line may have been a factor in the problem that forced cancellation of a liftoff June 26.

Officials hope to reschedule a launch in mid-July, NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said. But he said the agency wants to thoroughly understand the fuel line problem before it proceeds.

Moon's boats could be seized

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A public auction will be held within a month to sell 83 fishing boats seized by the city unless the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church pays $41,854 in overdue taxes, the city said.

The boats were seized Monday for back personal property taxes and penalties on the vessels, the city said.

Karen Smith, a church official in Gloucester, Mass., said the church had been "taxed incorrectly" and would fight the tax which was due June 29. She said the church planned to use the boats in worship services at sea.

Judge won't dismiss rape charges

CINCINNATI (AP) — A judge has rejected a defense motion that he dismiss 30 criminal charges filed against a former physician accused of 13 rapes in the Columbus area from 1975 to 1978.

Edward Franklin Jackson Jr., 40, was convicted in September in Akron of 21 other rape charges.

Jury selection began Monday on the Columbus charges. Both trials were moved from Columbus because of pre-trial publicity.

Congress wants to protest system

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress wants Secretary of State George Shultz and the U.S. delegates to the Universal Postal Union to protest the Soviet Union's "systematic non-delivery of international mail."

The measure, which passed the Senate during last week's rush to recess, calls on delegates to the postal union congress now under way in Hamburg, West Germany, to consider sanctions against the Soviet Union for the non-delivery, which is a violation of the treaties governing the handling of international mail.

The non-binding resolution, earlier approved by the House, said postal patrons in the United States and 17 other countries have complained about mail not being delivered to selected addresses in the U.S.S.R. Mail not being delivered is typically between family members or people sharing a religious bond and usually consists of personal correspondence or gifts of articles for personal use, it stated.

Death penalty 'unconstitutional'

NEW YORK (AP) — The state's highest court, ruling that any group of convicted people is entitled to "individual consideration," struck down an automatic death sentence for certain inmates convicted of first-degree murder.

The Court of Appeals, in the 4-3 ruling Monday, said that the mandatory death penalty for first-degree murder committed by inmates serving at least 15 years to life in prison is unconstitutional.

The court, however, upheld the conviction of Lemuel Smith, an inmate found guilty of murdering a female prison guard.

Search continues for inmates despite helicopter crash

ONLY, Tenn. (AP) — Despite a helicopter crash that killed three searchers, an intense manhunt for three prison escapees went on today with scores of officers, dog teams and another helicopter equipped for scanning in the dark.

A Tennessee Army National Guard pilot and two associate wardens from Turney Center prison died Monday when their observation helicopter crashed near the medium-security facility, where the inmates had fled by jimmying cell locks and climbing two fences in dense fog Sunday, authorities said.

Although the cause of the accident was not immediately known, witnesses said power lines were down around the wreckage of the craft.

Meanwhile, West Virginia correctional officers early today recaptured a convicted murderer who was taken into custody without incident along a creek near the hospital from which he had escaped Sunday.

About 70 prison guards and Tennessee Highway Patrol troopers stood watch overnight, forming a perimeter five miles out from the prison, while four teams of tracking dogs combed the area, said state Correction Department spokesman John Taylor.

The second helicopter, which was flying over the dense woods and rugged terrain around the prison about 65 miles west of Nashville, was equipped with infrared sensors that could detect the fugitives' body heat in the dark, Taylor said.

Time to talk

An undisputably wise person whose name has long since been forgotten once noted that communication is something so simple yet difficult that it has never been put into simple words.

In the case of the leadership of the United States and the Soviet Union that difficulty could not be more obvious. It's hard enough just to get Ronald Reagan and Konstantin Chernenko to meet each other face-to-face, ~~much less actually~~ communicating.

That's why there is so much promise inherent in the notice that the Reagan administration will go to Vienna at Moscow's request to talk about banning space weapons.

No, that isn't all the two leaders need to talk about. In fact, it isn't even everything President Reagan wants to discuss. He wants to bring back to the bargaining table a serious discussion of limiting or reducing nuclear arms. But the last time that was mentioned the Soviet Union responded by calling Reagan's proposal to talk about both anti-satellite and nuclear arms "totally unacceptable."

Obviously the Russians are still miffed because the U.S. went ahead with deployment of new nuclear missiles in Europe, a step that was taken because the Soviets had been increasing their nuclear arsenal.

But that isn't the point. The point is that when the two leaders aren't talking they can devote too much creative energy building up a significant distrust of the other, which leads to the production of more weaponry and more of this vicious verbal warring.

On the other hand realistic talks, with an anti-satellite weapons pact as the jumping off point and nuclear weapons limitations as a possible icing, are sure to reveal the true natures of the two superpowers and to dispel falsities.

It's a good starting point. After all, talking beats fighting any day.

Democratic bogey

It all started 20 years ago when Barry Goldwater was the Republican candidate for president: The insidious whispering campaign, directed at the elderly, that the first objective of any Republican reaching the White House would be the elimination of Social Security.

The Democrats, of course, never openly made this charge, but there is no question that they cheerfully permitted the word-of-mouth defamation to circulate. Obviously they reasoned that every little bit helps, whether it is true or not.

Sen. Goldwater was soundly defeated, electorally, although he amassed a respectable popular vote, so the Democrats saw fit to revive the old bugaboo in the subsequent campaigns of 1968, 1972, 1976 and 1980.

Which brings us to the present and the happy possibility that this totally groundless issue has finally been put to flight despite the efforts of one group to restyle and doll it up for still another tour.

A group calling itself the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare has been put on notice by several congressional committees to clean up its act. The committee, it turns out, not only has exploited the vulnerability of the aged but has raised more than $5 million by selling "memberships" at $10 a head to people hardly able to afford that assessment.

All this was accomplished by some slick and subtle mailings which carried a fictitiously "official" look along with messages from James Roosevelt, the former congressman and son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, under whose administration Social Security came into being.

Acting on the warnings from congressmen of both parties, the national committee finally has started trying to upgrade its image. But it is too late. Even the elderly who were originally taken in by the committee's mailings now realize they were fed a spate of exaggerated half-truths.

It is regrettable that James Roosevelt lent his family's distinguished name to this undertaking.

Another View:

A different justice

When a person is jailed for a crime he might commit, it is called preventive detention. It is a concept that has been shunned by the American judicial system except under rare circumstances.

Most states permit pre-trial detention of adults when it is believed that they will not appear for trial. But the Supreme Court has decided that it is acceptable in cases involving juveniles.

In upholding New York's pre-trial detention law for juveniles, the court said, in effect, that jailing children accused of a crime protects society.

In many jurisdictions, juvenile courts and probation systems are badly overloaded. Custodial facilities often are places of danger in which young people who are incarcerated learn to be hardened criminals.

Putting innocent young people in jails can be both dangerous and counterproductive. Nevertheless, Justice William Rehnquist wrote that pre-trial detention provides "the youth with a controlled environment" away "from improper influences."

What the court seems to forget is that the American judicial system is based on the concept that a person is innocent until proven guilty. And this concept must apply to both children and adults.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, July 3, the 185th day of 1984. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 3, 1863, the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg ended after Confederate General George Pickett's troops suffered severe losses in his famous charge.

On this date:

In 1608, the city of Quebec was founded by Samuel de Champlain.

In 1775, General George Washington took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass.

In 1890, Idaho became the 43rd state of the union.

In 1898, the U.S. Navy defeated a Spanish fleet in the harbor at Santiago, Cuba, during the Spanish-American War.

In 1950, American and North Korean forces clashed for the first time in the Korean Conflict.

In 1962, Algeria became independent after 132 years of French rule.

Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev ended their third summit meeting by signing a communique in which they said their countries would seek a new interim accord on limiting offensive nuclear weapons.

Thought for today: "Silence gives consent." — Oliver Goldsmith, Anglo-Irish author (1728-1774).

JACK ANDERSON

Soviet war games alarming

WASHINGTON — What President Reagan dismissed in early April as "regular and routine maneuvers" by the Soviets turned out to have been a massive, unprecedented exercise that included the launching of six nuclear missiles toward the United States. They were presumably unarmed.

Jack Anderson

Published reports described the great number of Soviet warships that left Arctic and Baltic seaports for war games in the North Atlantic. Secret Pentagon tallies showed just how huge the flotilla was: at least 135 surface ships and 70 submarines, including nuclear-missile subs in their largest deployment ever.

Now my associate Dale Van Atta has learned from intelligence sources and highly classified reports that the exercise was more ominous than even the numbers suggest. One source said it appeared to be part of a combined conventional-nuclear war plan.

For one thing, the CIA discovered that an entire Soviet city was evacuated during the exercise, in a test of civil defense measures that would accompany a nuclear strike.

Even more significantly, the exercise supported the Pentagon's suspicion that the Soviets' supposedly intermediate-range SS-20 missiles may now have to be counted as intercontinental missiles capable of hitting targets in the United States. It was the SS-20's massive deployment in Eastern Europe that prompted the decision to arm NATO with new U.S. Euro-missiles.

The Defense Intelligence Agency had spotted something peculiar — and alarming — about some of the mobile SS-20s located in northern Russia early in 1981: The launchers appeared to be aimed at the United States, not Western Europe.

The CIA pointed out that the SS-20's range was believed to be 5,000 kilometers maximum (about 3,100 miles) — not great enough to reach important U.S. targets. The CIA suggested the missiles might be designed to "roll over" after launching and head toward Europe. This argument won the day.

But after April's large-scale Soviet war game, the CIA is now conceding that the SS-20 may have to be counted as an ICBM. What changed the agency's mind was that the Soviets launched six of the missiles from the western town of Yurya on a northern trajectory — that is, on the polar route toward the United States.

The missiles, presumably armed with only dummy warheads, were destroyed after they reached outer space. But the very fact of their launching demonstrates that hundreds more nuclear missiles may be aimed at the U.S. mainland than had previously been thought.

Here's why: Top-secret estimates put the number of mobile SS-20 launchers at more than 400. Each launcher is believed to have five missiles, and each SS-20 carries three independently targeted warheads capable of a half-megaton nuclear blast. That means a total of more than 6,000 warheads.

The SS-20's efficiency is frightening. The Defense Intelligence Agency estimates that the missile's warheads can hit within 285 meters (about 314 yards) of their targets more than half the time, and that its launch reliability is 95 percent, its in-flight reliability 97 percent, and its warhead reliability 97 percent. The weapon system's overall reliability is 89 percent.

Even those who still question whether the two-stage SS-20 could be an intercontinental missile must concede that its three-stage version — the SS-16 — is a tested ICBM. And top-secret reports point out that the Soviets have more than 400 SS-16s that can be loaded onto SS-20 launchers. In fact, they estimate that the Soviets have three operational SS-16 regiments, with 12 launchers each, at Plesetsk right now.

BOONDOGGLE OF THE WEEK: These are hard times indeed for American farmers. But the Washington officials who should be helping them are living high off the hog.

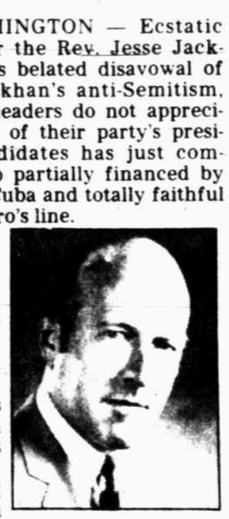

According to agriculture experts, about 50 family farms go broke every day. One cause of their demise is the restrictive loan policies of banks regulated by the Farm Credit Administration. And while farm after farm is going on the auction block, the Farm Credit bureaucrats have just moved their swivel chairs into a luxurious, $25 million new headquarters in one of the most expensive commercial areas of suburban Washington.

EVANS & NOVAK

Jackson agenda may hurt Demos

WASHINGTON — Ecstatic over the Rev. Jesse Jackson's belated disavowal of Louis Farrakhan's anti-Semitism, Democratic leaders do not appreciate that one of their party's presidential candidates has just completed a trip partially financed by communist Cuba and totally faithful to Fidel Castro's line.

Rowland Evans

Showing neither apology nor embarrassment, the Jackson campaign let Castro pick up expenses on Cuban soil. That fits Jackson's unblushing exposure on his remarkable Caribbean journey as the first American presidential candidate to fully embrace the Third World political agenda: anti-capitalist, anti-democratic, anti-Zionist, anti-Western, anti-American.

Robert Novak

This reality is shrugged off by Walter F. Mondale's advisers and other Democratic leaders who narrowly focus on Jackson's danger to black-Jewish cooperation within the party's coalition rather than his influence over party policy. That influence has helped shape the 1984 Democratic Platform, which — with the notable exception of Israel — reflects the Third World mindset.

In fact, Jackson's ties with Farrakhan, with Castro and with Third World thinking comprise a seamless web that Democratic politicians ignore. Farrahkan's closest foreign patron is the Libyan terrorist-dictator Muammer Khadafy (whom he recently visited). Jackson's Operation PUSH in 1980 received $10,000 from Khadafy, triggering a Justice Department investigation that determined last year Jackson did not have to register as a Libyan agent.

John Bustamante, a Cuban-American practicing law in Cleveland, represented Jackson in those Justice Department proceedings. He also helped arrange Jackson's Cuban trip. On June 20, a legal associate of Bustamante in Cleveland, Edward C. Coaxum, wrote the Treasury Department requesting a license for Jackson's visit to Cuba that would be "hosted" — that is, paid for — by Castro's government.

Jackson could have asked special permission to pay his own way, normally prohibited so that American travelers do not supply Castro with hard currency. Treasury officials told us permission almost certainly would have been granted, but no request was made.

The significance of a Democratic presidential candidate being "hosted" by the communist dictator was clear in Panama, the first tour stop. Asked by Fred Barnes of the Baltimore Sun whether he would press Nicaraguan and Cuban leaders about their support for communist subversion in El Salvador, Jackson replied that would not be "appropriate."

What proved appropriate was incessant mouthing of the Third World line, even to attacks on "imperialism." Jackson compared U.S. rule in the Panama Canal Zone with South African apartheid. He referred to newly-elected Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte as a "puppet" chosen in a "sham election" (softening that when he met Duarte).

Jackson uttered no word of criticism about Cuban and Nicaraguan dictatorship but praised El Salvador's leftist guerrillas. In Managua, he predicted "final victory" for the Marxist regime. In Havana, his lovefest with Castro was capped when he praised brainwashing of youth at the notorious Isle of Youth (formerly Isle of Pines) "re-education" center.

None of this bothered Democratic politicians back home, in a frenzy over Jackson's refusal to repudiate Black Muslim Minister Farrakhan. Their gnawing fear: To placate Jewish voters, Mondale would have to break with Jackson and thereby alienate new black voters brought into the electoral process by him.

To avert that, the party's senior figures engineered Jackson's break with Farrakhan. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy telephoned black leaders urging them to pressure Jackson. When Jackson finally disavowed Farrakhan, the relief by Mondale's inner circle was palpable. But that did not wipe away Jackson's Caribbean extravaganza for such realists as Hyman Bookbinder, the distinguished Jewish leader who considers Jackson's brand of Third World politics "extremist" and "simplistic."

Why cannot Fritz Mondale publicly reject Jackson's Third World agenda in just such language? "Never," a Mondale adviser told us. "That would be read as a rejection of the black agenda." The need for Jackson's voters in November has trapped Democrats into not only immunizing him from criticism but embracing elements of his Third World ideology. That trap is reflected in the platform's Third World flavor: a full-page of fulminations against South Africa while the deadly Soviet menace is disposed of in a few words.

That same platform conforms to the Third World's Central America policy, condemning "death squads" and anti-communist "contras" but not dealing directly with communist insurrection. This was written by Democratic politicians who worry about Jackson almost exclusively in terms of Farrakhan and the Jewish vote. In reality, Jesse Jackson's barnstorming through the Caribbean as the Third World's presidential candidate may hurt the Democratic Party a lot more with a great many more American voters.

CHARLEY REESE

Seniority ruling a good one

The Supreme Court decision which said you can't disregard seniority just to preserve the reults of affirmative action programs when you are forced to lay off people is a good one. It's just in the particular case, involving firemen in Memphis, Tenn., and in general it raises an issue we ought to debate in public.

Charley Reese

The original civil rights law, if I read English correctly, intended to make our society color blind. It intended to prevent anyone from being discriminated against. The main target was black Americans who at the time were being legally segregated in the South and in other areas were frequently victimized by racial prejudice in other ways.

Unfortunately, as is often the case in free countries, some reformers pushed the pendulum too far. Under various euphemisms, some bureaucrats and some federal courts began to impose a quota system on schools and businesses. In some areas, the fedeal court became obsessed with achieving precise racial balances in public schools and began to move children about like chess pieces.

All of this was done, I'm sure, with the best of intentions. My father often reminded me, however, as I was learning to shoot a gun tht if you shoot somebody they won't feel any better just because you did it by accident.

So it is with the law and with the courts. Good intentions don't make wrong, right. And quota systems and forced busing of children to achieve some arbitrarily selected goals of racial balance are wrong. Such remedies make the government and the private sector do exactly the opposite of what the civil rights laws intended: become color conscious and actively discriminate on the basis of race.

If you set aside a percentage of jobs, of business, of openings in schools for people of a certain class, then you are necessarily excluding all others. Like the old segregationists, you are hanging up signs which say, "Blacks Only." Like the old segregationists, you are committing an injustice. When you say to a person, you can't have this job becaue you are the wrong color, the moral principle is the same whether the person is black or white.

Quota systems violate another principle which has always been observed in the United States. We have always believed that rights belong to individuals, not to groups.

As usual, the whole subject has been politicized. Some people have equated support for quota systems with support for civil rights and therefore if you don't support quota systems, you are a racist or you are trying to undermine civil rights. That is partisan hogwash.

Let us be free — to go to any school of our choice, to obtain any job for which we are qualified, to have a fair chance at bidding on government business. Simply assuring that is difficult enough.

Let us also recognize that equality of opportunity will never translate into equality of results or status because in reality we are not equal. I'm talking about individuals, not race or sex. We are not equal because we are born with differences in intelligence, in energy levels, and in circumstances. We develop different degrees of motivation, have different aspirations even have different luck.

We can, by law, make sure that a prestigious Wall Street law firm does not slam the door in a job applicant's face just because that face is black or belongs to a woman. There's nothing we can do about the fact that a child born in a Detroit slum will have a tougher time getting to the door than a child born to wealthy parents on Long Island. That's why it is foolish to believe that the demographics of every occupation, school and profession have to match the demographics of society as a whole.

You could decree that a certain percentage of nuclear physicists ought to be from whatever class you put me in and I would still never become a physicist because my brain gags on college algebra and faints at the sight of calculus.

The Congress has never legislated a quota system nor racial balance in the schools. They have been imposed in some places on a de facto basis. The recent Supreme Court ruling does not do away with them, but it is a step in the right direction.

BIBLE VERSE

The wicked shall be turned back unto Sheol, even all the nations that forget God. Ps. 9:17

Big Bend perfect place to go for contrasts, solitude

BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK, Texas (AP) — Donn Cook of Santa Ana, Calif., recently climbed the Chisos Mountains, adding his first Texas peak to the list of 300 he has scaled in the last four years.

But Big Bend National Park's isolation probably discourages many tourists, the park's chief naturalist said recently.

Visitors to the 740,118-acre park, which celebrated its 40th anniversary recently, find a wealth of natural contrasts: The river and mountains share the terrain with a broiling desert.

"I'm a member of the Sierra Club in California," Cook, a 44-year-old high school science teacher, said recently, "and enjoy a good hike as often as I can find one."

He came to the park looking for rare birds, when he decided to climb the 7,835-foot Mount Emory, the park's highest peak. "Climbing Emory was really a spur-of-the-moment decision."

Cook said he was most impressed with Emory's view of the Chihuahuan Desert. "It's stunning. You can see the whole park from up there," he said.

Bob Huggins, 38, the park's chief naturalist and public information officer, said he wished more people would follow Cook's lead into the mountains.

"Other large parks, Yosemite and Yellowstone, for instance, are overvisited," Huggins said. "During the summer months, they'll run two to three times the number of people per acre that Big Bend draws."

Huggins said two factors limit the number of visitors — isolation and the heat. "You have to want to come to Big Bend. It's not on the way to anywhere," he said.

National Park Service records show about 200,000 people annually visit the park, located about 200 miles southwest of Midland.

"Most of our traffic is in the cooler fall and spring months," Huggins said. "Traditionally, people get vacation time in the summer so they can be with their children."

Although some visitors may be attracted to the park because of its 40th anniversary, Huggins said the real celebration is set for next year.

"Big Bend National Park was enabled by Congressional legislation in 1944," he said. "But it was a park 10 years earlier. We're gearing up for the 50th anniversary June 20 next year."

Huggins said most visitors camp in the Chisos Mountains. There is a lodge at the Chisos Basin, where tourists have booked rooms as much as 18 months in advance.

Dale Sorrels, 28, of Pomfret, Md., said recently that he planned to photograph a sunset from Emory's peak, then camp at Laguna Meadows, the most popular mountain camping area, according to Huggins.

Huggins recommended Government Spring to those who want a quiet place to camp close to the road. It sits back from the road less than a quarter mile above the Basin Junction turnoff.

Big Bend has five kinds of camping, including recreational vehicle hookups, Class A, B, primitive and outback, Huggins said.

RV hookups, which include water and electrical connections, cost $6 a day. Class A campsites, which run $4 a day, have flush toilets, tables and cover. Class B campsites, $2, have tables and outhouses.

Primitive campsites are little more than flat places beside dirt roads. Free permits for primitive and outback camping are available at ranger stations, Huggins said.

One recent night, about a dozen javelina foraged near the west rim of the Basin's Class A campsite.

Charles Watson, a branch manager for Dictaphone in Corpus Christi, jumped up on his car when he heard the wild pigs running toward his campsite. "Do they bite?" he asked a friend.

"Nothing would bite you," the friend replied, climbing off the car.

Most of the park is desert, according to a park service pamphlet. Few backpackers hike the sparsely covered desert floor, where ground temperatures sometimes reach 180 degrees and natural water is spotty.

Huggins said the main park service station at Panther Junction issued only one desert backpacking permit for the last week in May.

Instead, park visitors increasingly are turning to the river, Huggins said.

"Big Bend, especially the less developed areas, will grow on you," Huggins said.

Potter lets work speak for itself

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — If great craftsmen let their works speak for themselves, Ken Ferguson is as good as he is quiet.

A huge man, Ferguson measures his words even though he expresses himself with little — if any — trepidation. Ferguson is a potter whose outsized platter, teapots, bowls, jars, baskets and pots tell as much, if not more, about the man than the man himself.

At a recent showing in Southwest Craft Center's Emily Edwards gallery, Ferguson displayed 16 pieces — most ceramic platters — large, bulky pieces flowing with natural irregularities.

Ferguson also recently conducted a five-day workshop for which 16 students — potters or those trying to be — paid $125 apiece to learn from him.

He is, after all, one of the 12 outstanding ceramic artists in the world, according to the readers of Ceramics Monthly magazine. He won that honor in 1981. "I didn't know about it," he said. "They didn't ask me to vote."

The 56-year-old potter began working with clay 30 years ago. After a two-year stint in the Army, he took art education courses and fell in love with the medium.

Ferguson holds a bachelor of fine arts degree in painting from Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh and a master of fine arts degree from New York State School of Ceramics at Alfred University.

A teacher as much as he is a potter, Ferguson is chairman of the ceramics and fiber department at Kansas City Art Institute in Kansas City, Mo. He has held the position for 20 years.

Quoted in 'American Craft' magazine, Clary Illian, a fellow craftsman, said of the work: "The skeleton upon which Ferguson builds his forms is not always understandable. It is unlike any known skeleton; the torso might be longer than the legs, an arm can grow from the waist, and other imaginary wonders can occur.

"Sometimes a lump or hesitation will spoil the flow of a line. But upon closer inspection, these flaws prove to be the kernel of vitality."

That's Ferguson, a man whose quiet, but intense, energy bursts through his rugged pots: a slump here, a slice through a handle there, a crease here and a smooth-flowing section there.

He started making what he calls "slump pots" in 1977, after working through a series of creative phases, the number of which he does not know. He told the workshop participants during a slide show, "I try to make the pots look like a man's belly hanging over his belt."

Again, a reflection of the creator.

"I think the pots are about throwing," he said quietly, thinking about his creative process. To Ferguson, the clay tells the artist what it wants to be, while being turned on the potter's wheel.

"The clay is not completely under control. I don't want to make things that are precious. I want them to take on a life of their own. I want them to look like they're always wet — that's when they look best.

"When I throw a tall jar, first I just hope to get it together, to make it tall," he continued.

"Then," he said, slowly, "I hope there's something in the jar that happens on its own. If it wants to buckle, say, or to wrinkle, and it looks good, I let it go. I try to take advantage of what it does."

His method involves light. The sunshine filtering into the dusty workshop of Southwest Craft Center's pottery division affords the craftsman enough light to judge where contours may occur.

"I try to take what happens on the wheel so far, but not so far that it's completely out of control."

Virtually the same process holds true to his platter, large 10-to 14-inch round plates, with two-inch-wide lips. Here, Ferguson incorporates sculpture, painting and even a little philosophy.

Scrawled on the lip of one platter: "Ashes to ashes, dust to dust. If liquor won't get you, a woman must." On another: "A nude woman is naked when she puts on shoes."

Nude figures are among his favorites, etched in several platters with a knife. A glaze jackrabbit decorates one porcelain creation and a mermaid done in bas-relief and bladework is curled up on the face of another.

"I want to make a platter that looks like my hands have been on it. It has gesture to it, a feeling. I want to show life, vigor, almost look like they're done with real energy."

At first glance, the man and his work appears multidirectional, with little sense of control.

'Big Three' take different routes to victory

Qualifier Annacone among survivers in quarterfinals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The "Big Three" of men's tennis — John McEnroe, Ivan Lendl and Jimmy Connors — took different routes to the quarter-finals at Wimbledon on Monday, where they found unexpected company.

McEnroe breezed past 14th-seeded rival Bill Scanlon 6-3, 6-3, 6-1, and Connors came on strong after a stumbling start for a 6-7 (4-7), 6-2, 6-0, 6-2 victory over No. 16 Tim Mayotte, and Lendl struggled through five sets before outlasting unseeded Scott Davis 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 5-7, 7-5.

But they all won, which is more than can be said for fifth-seeded Jimmy Arias, No. 11 Kevin Curren of South Africa, No. 12 Johan Kriek and No. 15 Vitas Gerulaitis.

Instead, joining the top three seeds in the quarters are qualifier Paul Annacone of East Hampton, N.Y.; two unseeded players, John Sadri of Charlotte, N.C., and Australian Pat Cash; No. 6 Andres Gomez of Ecuador; and No. 13 Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia.

Wimbledon

Women's singles play on the 100th anniversary of the women's tournament at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, went more according to form.

Top-seeded Martina Navratilova, seeking her third consecutive Wimbledon singles crown, advanced to the quarterfinals when her opponent, Australia's Elizabeth Sayers, had to retire because of illness. Also advancing were No. 3 Hana Mandlikova, No. 4 Pam Shriver, No. 6 Kathy Jordan, No. 7 Manuela Maleeva and No. 10 Jo Durie.

Chris Evert Lloyd, a three-time champion who is seeded No. 2, was unable to play because of a delay caused by the rain. She will face No. 12 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, qualifier Carina Karlsson of Sweden continued her surprising fortnight by upsetting 15th-seeded Andrea Temesvari of Hungary 6-4, 7-5.

The men's quarter-final pairings will send McEnroe against Sadri, Cash against Gomez, Annacone against Connors and Smid against his Czechoslovakian Davis Cup teammate, Lendl.

In the women's quarters, Navratilova will take on Maleeva, Shriver will play Jordan, Durie will face Mandlikova and Karlsson will meet the winner of the Lloyd-Kohde match.

McEnroe, who defeated Scanlon in the fourth round here last year but lost to him in the fourth round at the 1983 U.S. Open, took only 1 hour, 43 minutes to crush the Dallas right-hander 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

After Scanlon broke McEnroe's service in the sixth game of the second set to pull even at 3-3, the No. 1 seed from New York ripped off the next eight games, taking a 2-0 lead in sets and a 5-0 advantage in the final stanza.

"Once I broke back, I really dominated the match," said McEnroe, who again followed his own advice and let his "racket do the talking."

"It's a matter of me being ready to play every point," he said afterward.

Even Scanlon had nothing but praise for the left-hander, although last weekend both players heated up their rivalry in comments to the press.

"When he plays like that, there's nothing you can do," Scanlon marvelled. "He hit a lot past me from every direction, shots I'm just not used to."

Mayotte, a right-handed serve-and-volleyer who has always done well on these grass courts, captured the opening set against Connors and had a 2-1 lead in the second. Connors, the veteran left-hander, moved his game up a notch — or maybe even more — and swept through the next 11 games and 16 of the last 18.

"After I lost the first set, the ball looked like a basketball coming at me," Connors said. "I played as well in the last three sets as I've done in a long time."

Davis, a 21-year-old Californian, won the fourth set to knot his match with Lendl when the Czech double-faulted at set point. The two then traded service breaks in the second and third sets before Lendl broke at 15 in the 11th game, aided by two unforced forehand volley errors.

Davis, scrapping from the baseline and the net, broke right back to knot the score at 5-5. But Lendl took the next two games to close out the match.

"When Lendl broke me at five-all, I don't think I could have served much better," Davis said. "He proved to me why he is No. 1 or No. 2 in the world. When it was on the line, he came up with the shots."

Annacone and Karlsson have been the shocking darlings of the tournament, moving past their higher-ranked foes. Annacone advanced with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 victory over Kriek after earlier knocking out Britain's Jonathan Smith, American Mark Dickson and South African Christo Van Rensburg.

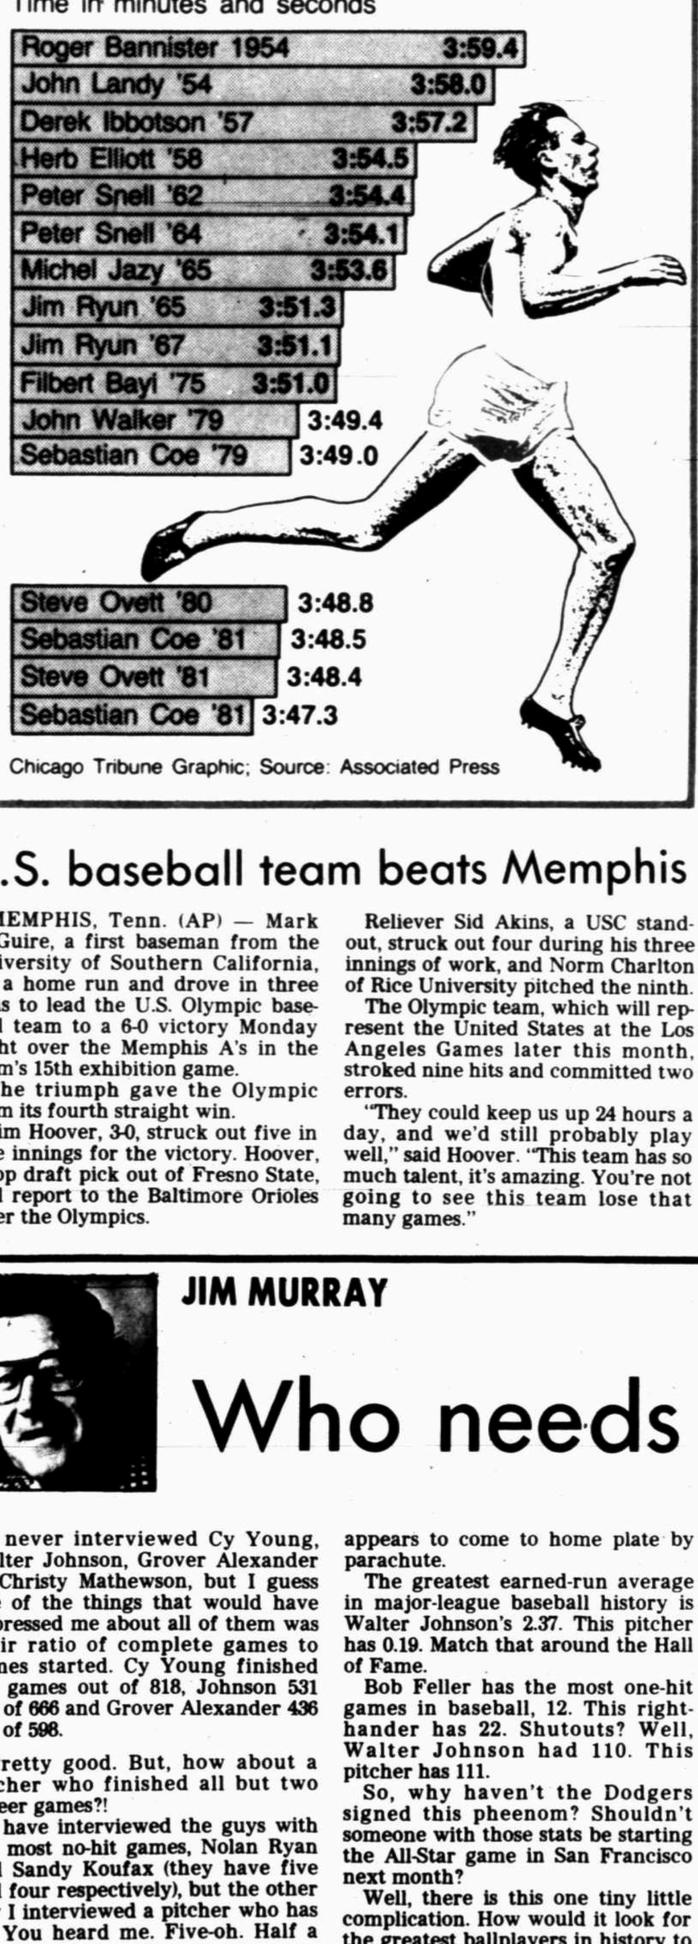

"I feel I deserve to be here since I have been playing well," Annacone said of his first tournament as a pro. "There was definitely more pressure playing in the qualifying."

Gooden fans 12 in Mets' 4-2 win

By The Associated Press

National League

The fans were cheering every two-strike pitch by Dwight Gooden and the Ks were being posted on the upper deck facade at a rate commensurate with the rookie strikeout artist's latest overpowering performance.

A crowd of 21,923 had come to Shea Stadium hoping to see the 19-year-old right-hander take the major league lead in strikeouts. He didn't disappoint them, fanning 12 in a 4-2 victory Monday night over the Houston Astros to boost his total to 125 and pitch the New York Mets into first place in the National League East.

A large red K was taped to the railing and the drama continued to mount with each succeeding strikeout in what has become known as The K Korner, a spot near the left-field foul pole. It reached its climax when Houston's Jerry Mumphrey fanned for the third time to boost Gooden past Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles.

Gooden, in living up to his reputation of being poised far beyond his years, seemed unmoved by all the commotion.

"I don't get caught up in the crowd," said Gooden, who has fanned 10 or more six times. "The first time it happened I wondered what was going on. Now I just have to shut it out."

But the fan reaction is a concern to Mets' Manager Davey Johnson, who said that at times in the past Gooden has tried for a strikeout with a fastball rather than going with the right pitch at the right moment.

"The fans are getting old hat clapping so much," Johnson said.

The fans didn't impress the Astros, but Gooden's effort certainly did.

"Right now, he's one of the best right-handers in the league," said Jose Cruz, who had three of the eight hits off Gooden. Jesse Orosco relieved Gooden with one out in the ninth and picked up his 15th save.

"He's one of the best young pitchers I've ever seen . . . especially when he's throwing 95 miles an hour," Cruz added.

GOODEN, 7-5, tamed the hot-hitting Astros, who had been averaging seven runs over their last 12 games, after a shaky first inning. He allowed a leadoff triple to Bill Doran, Craig Reynolds' RBI grounder and a double to Cruz, who is now 18 for his last 31.

Wally Backman led the New York attack by driving in three runs, but errors contributed to the cause.

The Mets tied it 1-1 in the second inning when Darryl Strawberry tripled off the left-field wall with Cruz missing a catchable ball and scored when Hubie Brooks hit a chopper that shortstop Reynolds tried to short-hop but misplayed for a two-base error.

In the fifth inning, New York scored twice against Mike Scott, 4-6, without hitting the ball out of the infield. Right fielder Terry Puhl misplayed a hit by Ron Gardenhire in the seventh to help the Mets, who lead both Chicago and Philadelphia by three percentage points, score their final run.

Padres 5, Cubs 1

Three Chicago errors aided San Diego, which increased its NL West lead to five games over Atlanta. Dave Dravecky, 5-4, allowed just four hits in six innings, walked one and struck out a career-high seven batters. In his last 37 1-3 innings, the Padre left-hander has allowed only three runs and permitted just 18 hits.

San Diego went ahead 2-1 thanks to a sixth-inning throwing error by loser Rick Reuschel, 4-4, and added three more runs in the seventh with the help of a two-run error by Gary Matthews.

Garry Templeton, who had three hits, led off with a double and George Frazier relieved Reuschel. Pinch hitter Tim Flannery walked and Alan Wiggins dropped down a bunt single to load the bases. Tony Gwynn lashed a single to left to score Templeton, and Flannery and Wiggins came home when the ball eluded Matthews.

Phillies 4, Reds 0

Shane Rawley, making his first start for Philadelphia, pitched two-hit ball over seven innings and Ozzie Virgil and Glenn Wilson hit solo home runs.

Rawley, 1-0, acquired Saturday from the New York Yankees, allowed both hits — singles by Dave Parker and Nick Esasky — in the fifth inning. Al Holland retired all six batters he faced in the final two innings.

Juan Samuel opened the Phillies' first with an infield single, stole second and third and scored when catcher Brad Gulden's throw went into left field. Samuel leads the major leagues with 40 stolen bases.

The Phillies made it 2-0 in the second on Virgil's 12th home run of the season and added another run in the sixth.

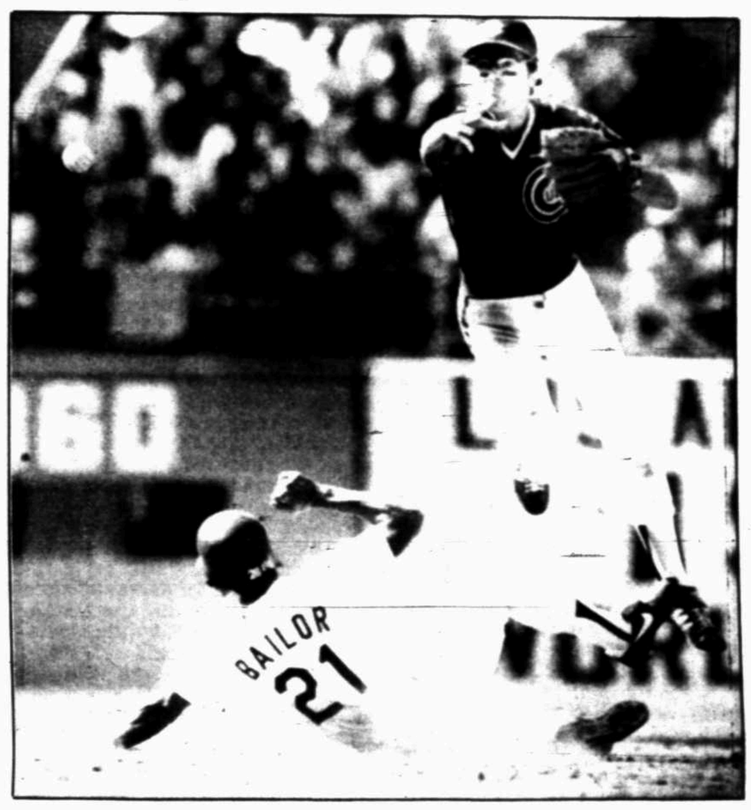

Wilson opened the seventh by hitting the first pitch from Tom Hume, 3-8, over the left-field wall for his sixth home run.

Expos 5, Braves 4

Andre Dawson's double highlighted a four-run sixth inning that made a winner of David Palmer. Miguel Dilone, batting for Palmer, 3-3, singled for the first of four straight hits off Atlanta's Pascual Perez, 8-3, who had retired 14 of the previous 15 batters and held a 2-1 lead.

Tim Raines, who had homered on the second pitch of the game, followed with a single and then Pete Rose singled to drive in Dilone. Raines scored the go-ahead run on Dawson's double, Rose came home on a wild pitch and Gary Carter drove in the final run of the inning with a sacrifice fly.

U.S. baseball team beats Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mark McGuire, a first baseman from the University of Southern California, hit a home run and drove in three runs to lead the U.S. Olympic baseball team to a 6-0 victory Monday night over the Memphis A's in the team's 15th exhibition game.

The triumph gave the Olympic team its fourth straight win.

Jim Hoover, 3-0, struck out five in five innings for the victory. Hoover, a top draft pick out of Fresno State, will report to the Baltimore Orioles after the Olympics.

Reliever Sid Akins, a USC standout, struck out four during his three innings of work, and Norm Charlton of Rice University pitched the ninth.

The Olympic team, which will represent the United States at the Los Angeles Games later this month, stroked nine hits and committed two errors.

"They could keep us up 24 hours a day, and we'd still probably play well," said Hoover. "This team has so much talent, it's amazing. You're not going to see this team lose that many games."

JIM MURRAY

Who needs a relief pitcher

I never interviewed Cy Young, Walter Johnson, Grover Alexander or Christy Mathewson, but I guess one of the things that would have impressed me about all of them was their ratio of complete games to games started. Cy Young finished 751 games out of 818, Johnson 531 out of 666 and Grover Alexander 436 out of 598.

Pretty good. But, how about a pitcher who finished all but two career games?!

I have interviewed the guys with the most no-hit games, Nolan Ryan and Sandy Koufax (they have five and four respectively), but the other day I interviewed a pitcher who has 50. You heard me. Five-oh. Half a hundred.

The pitcher I talked to makes Cy Young look like an in-and-outer, Grover Cleveland look careless and Ryan look like, if not a junk pitcher, at least a guy who had to scatter hits.

Lots of pitchers strike Reggie Jackson out and lots of pitchers manage to keep him in the ballpark on his hits, but Reggie never even got a fair ball off this pitcher. He never hit the ball forward, if you please.

THE PITCHER I refer to is right-handed, tall (6-2), is a submariner like Kansas City's Dan Quisenberry, has a fastball that has been clocked at 96 m.p.h., a pitch we used to call the "upshoot" back on the sandlots of New England and a change that appears to come to home plate by parachute.

The greatest earned-run average in major-league baseball history is Walter Johnson's 2.37. This pitcher has 0.19. Match that around the Hall of Fame.

Bob Feller has the most one-hit games in baseball, 12. This right-hander has 22. Shutouts? Well, Walter Johnson had 110. This pitcher has 111.

So, why haven't the Dodgers signed this pheenom? Shouldn't someone with those stats be starting the All-Star game in San Francisco next month?

Well, there is this one tiny little complication. How would it look for the greatest ballplayers in history to get their bats stuck up their ears by a curveballer called Kathy? What kind of a part is that for Robert Redford?

The greatest pitcher I ever interviewed, by cold stats, is probably the only pitcher I thought it might be fun to go dancing with after the game. Pitchers with earrings are not that big a novelty any more, but they look better on this one than they do on, say, Pascual Perez. Anyway, this is the only no-hit pitcher in the game who might be somebody's mother.

MEET KATHY ARENDSEN, sports fans, who might do things with a thrown ball no Cy or Sandy or Rapid Robert or Big Train or Big Six ever did.

Joe McGinnity pitched five double-headers in his career? Kathy pitched 10 games in three days once in Salt Lake City. She pitched 26 innings once in Houston in 100-degree weather. They called Mcginnity the Iron Man. Compared to Kathy, he seemed like a spot pitcher.

Of course, Kathy's field of endeavor is the softball pitch (as the British call the field of play), where she is only 40 feet from the batter, the runners can't steal till she lets go of the ball and the batters all swing like girls because they are girls.

On the other hand, the balls are 12 inches in diameter, the bases are only 60 feet apart, the fences are only 200 feet away and the bats are aluminum.

Cy Young won 511 games. But he lost 313. He leads in both categories. Kathy has won 162 games. But she has lost only 15. Steve Carlton has struck out over 3,800 batters, but in 4,600 innings. Kathy has fanned 2,063 in only 1,191 innings.

Of course, Kathy pitches for a dynastic organization that makes the New York Yankees look patchwork. The Yankees won 33 pennants and 22 world championships in 64 years. Kathy's team is the Raybestos Brakettes who have won 19 world or national championships in 36 years. The Yankees won 7,119 games in their span. They lost 5,341. The Brakettes won 1894 and lost only 241 in their run.

"They hardly ever let a hit ball touch the ground," Kathy says admiringly of her support. Cliques don't form, no lightning bolts come down from the front office.

KATHY STRUCK out Reggie Jackson three times in an exhibition in the Carrier Dome in Syracuse during the baseball strike in 1981. In 21 pitches, Reggie managed to foul two back to the screen. "Give him lots of credit. Not many ballplayers would risk it. Ted Williams is supposed to have thrown his bat in disgust," Kathy says.

The greatest pitcher I have interviewed has been in the L.A. area for the Women's International Cup competition at Whittier Narrows Park through July 4, bringing together the eight best fast-pitch women's softball teams in the world. The Brakettes represent the U.S. against teams from Japan, China (titillatingly enough, teams from mainland China and Taipei will face each other), Holland, Mexico, Puerto Rico and Canada.

Don't laugh. The Detroit Tigers would be underdogs in this tournament. And just remember, when I asked Kathy about her team bullpen, she said. "A what?" I said, "A place for relief pitchers." And she said, "What's a relief pitcher?"

And, why would you need one? I mean, we're not talking Cy Young here.

Gators post 9-3 win over Cubs

From Staff Reports

BEAUMONT — Beaumont used 17 singles with Pat Casey going 4-for-4 Monday night to lead the Gators to a 9-3 Texas League victory over the Midland Cubs.

While the Gators were spraying singles to all fields, pitcher Kevin Towers, 7-3, held the Cubs to only four hits and one run in seven innings. The Cubs added three more runs off reliever Mike Barba who picked up the save. Cub Doug Potestio, 3-3, took the loss.

The victory ended the Cubs 12-game road trip, losing to El Paso and Beaumont by 2-4 counts. The two victories Midland managed in Beaumont are the only two of the year in Gator country in 11 tries.

The Cubs return home tonight for a six-day stand against the San Antonio Dodgers. All Texas League teams will then have a three-day break for the All-Star game to be played on July 11. Midland returns to action July 12 with a five-day road trip against Shreveport.

CUB NOTES — Midland first baseman Jeff Jones and right fielder Darrin Jackson were the only two Cubs selected for the Texas League All-Star game in Jackson, Miss.

Jones, who was picked up by the Cubs after the start of this season, has hit .332 so far this year, scored 35 runs while driving in 60. Of his 78 hits, 18 have been doubles, three triples and 13 home runs.

Jones is in his fourth year of minor league ball. He's from New Jersey and played college ball for the University of Iowa.

Jackson was the Cubs third selection in the 1981 draft, coming to the pros straight out of high school. In this his first season in Midland, he has a .275 average. In his 77 hits, Jackson has collected 11 double, two triples and 10 home runs. He has scored 46 runs while driving in 32.

Jackson is from Culver City, Calif.

Old Timers still have home run swing

National League beats American Stars, 9-4

WASHINGTON (AP) — The waistlines are bigger and the gait slowed, but the home run swings that cheered generations of America's baseball fans were still very much in evidence Monday night as the National League Old Timers blasted their way to a 9-4 victory over their American League counterparts in the third annual Cracker Jack Classic.

Six home runs were hit in the game, including National League blasts by Henry Aaron, Johnny Bench, Tom Haller and Billy Williams.

"This is Washington, the most powerful city in the world. You've got to bring your power when you come here," former Chicago Cub Ernie Banks said before the game.

"You never lose the joy, thrill, of hitting a home run," Williams said. "Next to a home run I hit off Bob Gibson in the 12th inning on opening day in Chicago one year, this has to be the biggest home run I ever hit."

Bench, who at 36 was the youngest participant, was thrilled to be playing in his first old timers' game.

"All these guys were heroes to me. I hope they ask me back, I would like to catch a Warren Spahn or Sandy Koufax," he said.

The American League also played long ball scoring on solo home runs by Harmon Killebrew, a new member of Baseball's Hall of Fame, and former catcher Andy Etchebarren.

"It felt pretty good to hit one out," said Killebrew, who started his major league career with the original Washington Senators in 1954. "But it seems a lot longer going around the bases than I rembered."

THE FIVE-INNING game, which now serves to both open and close Washington's baseball season, attracted a crowd of 29,698 fans despite the inclement weather.

Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king with 755, splintered his bat as he drove a pitch from Bob Feller some 300 feet into the left field seats for a 2-0 National League lead after one inning.

Bench, who retired last year after 17 seasons in a Cincinnati uniform and after hitting more home runs than any catcher in baseball history, sent a pitch from Whitey Ford into the left field stands for 3-0 lead after two innings.

Killebrew pulled the AL within two as he greeted Koufax, a former Dodger great, with a towering home run to center field.

Koufax, who also was touched by Etchebarren for a home run in the inning, retired the side striking out both Mickey Vernon and Jerry Coleman.

The National League put the game away in the third with a five-run outburst. Haller, a vice president with the San Francisco Giants, had the big blow, a three-run home run off former Washington Senator Camilo Pascual.

Rain delayed the start of the game but did nothing to dampen the spirit of the fans or the participants as they reminisced of a bygone era.

The biggest cheer of the evening was reserved for Joe DiMaggio. The former New York center fielder received a standing ovation from the nostalgic fans.

Gamblers' Kelly named USFL Player of Year

By The Associated Press

When he was growing up in East Brady, Pa., Jim Kelly tried to model himself after Terry Bradshaw and he still wears Bradshaw's No.12. But Bradshaw never had Mouse Davis and his "run-and-shoot offense."

The 6-foot-3, 215-pound Houston Gamblers rookie Monday was named the United States Football League's Player of the Year after putting together the most productive season ever by a professional quarterback. It was accomplished under the tutelage of Davis, who developed the quick-strike, short-passing offense that allowed Kelly to fufill his promise.

"Bradshaw is my main man, I hold the ball the same way he does and I have the same number," Kelly says of the Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback.

"But Mouse has been such a great help to me. He's taught me a lot about anticipating when to throw and how to read the zones. When I first signed with the Gamblers, I didn't even know who he was. But believe me, a lot of people know him now."

With Kelly directing Davis' offense, the Gamblers became the only one of the six USFL expansion teams to make the playoffs. They were eliminated in the first round Sunday 17-16 by the Arizona Wranglers.

Kelly, a first-round pick of the National Football League Buffalo Bills, was the first top young quarterback to sign with the new league and quickly became one of the USFL's brightest stars.

He received 30 votes from a panel of two reporters from each USFL city. Philadelphia quarterback Chuck Fusina had three votes, Philadephia running back Kelvin Bryant, last year's player of the year, had two and Birmingham's Joe Cribbs got one.

For the season, Kelly passed for 5,219 yards and 44 touchdowns and had nine 300-yard games in 18 starts. He also ran for 493 yards in 85 carries, an average of 5.8 yards per carry.

The touchdown passes were an all-time pro record, four more than Pete Liske's 40 for Calgary of the Canadian Football League in 1967 and eight more than the NFL record of 36 set by George Blanda of the Houston Oilers (in the old American Football League) in 1961.

Karlsson, who looks much younger than her 20 years, added Temesvari to her list of victims. Ranked 182nd in the world, she reached the fourth round with victories over American Anne White, Christiane Jolissaint of Switzerland and veteran Virginia Wade of Britain.

Sadri and Gerulaitis played for 3 hours, 15 minutes on an outside court before Sadri finally prevailed 6-3, 7-5, 6-7, 4-6, 6-3.

In the final set, the two battled evenly to 3-3. Then the right-hander took the next three games to wrap up the victory.

"I don't think Kevin and I played up to our best today," Cash said after eliminating Curren 4-6, 6-2, 7-6, 6-1. "We both served pretty badly and seemed to have lost our rhythm. It was cold and windy out there and we never seemed to get it back."

Like Arias, Smid is a clay-court specialist. But unlike Arias, Smid is one of the top doubles players in the world and is used to being at the net. It was that aspect of his game that sent him into the quarters with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 victory.

Navratilova only played one set — a perfect one — before her Australian opponent retired due to a "stomach bug," according to Dr. Tudor Mills, the tournament physician.

"I knew midway through (the first set) that something was wrong," Navratilova said later. "I thought she pulled a stomach muscle or something.

"At five-love, I thought maybe I should say something. At the next game, I knew I should. I walked up to the net and so did she. I could see she was in trouble. I was really upset for her.

"So I called for the doctor and the trainer, and got Peter (Smiley, Sayers' fiancee and coach) out of the stands. She was better when she walked off, I hope."

Sayers, who was sent to her hotel and ordered to rest, is scheduled to play Tuesday in the mixed doubles with Sherwood Stewart of The Woodlands, Texas.

In Centre Court ceremonies following a 45-minute rain delay and prior to the matches, 17 former Wimbledon women's singles champions were honored.

To the sound of a trumpet fanfare, Navratilova led all but three of the surviving All-England women's singles titlists onto the game's most hallowed turf.

Each received an engraved piece of crystal, a kiss on the cheek from the Duchess of Kent and the adulation of a packed stadium.

The ceremony honored Wednesday, July 16, 1884, when 13 women players — one later withdrew — walked onto the court for the first All-England women's tennis tournament.

The loudest cheers were for Kitty Godfree, 88, the 1924 and '26 champion, who lives nearby in East Sheeen, England, and still plays tennis here once a week.

Others honored included American Althea Gibson (champion in 1957, 1958), who now coaches in New Jersey; Brazil's Maria Bueno (1959, 1960, 1964); Margaret Smith Court (1963, 1965, 1970), now a mother of four in Perth, Australia; and the six-time queen of Wimbledon, American Billie Jean King (1966, 1967, 1968, 1972, 1973, 1975).

The Braves had tied the game 1-1 in the fourth and went ahead an inning later on Claudell Washington's 10th homer.

Atlanta threatened to tie the game in the ninth, but Dale Murphy, who had singled off Jeff Reardon, was cut down by Carter trying to steal third. Then Reardon got his 12th save by retiring Gerald Perry to end the game.

Dodgers 5, Pirates 4

Pedro Guerrero had two hits and drove in two runs, and rookie Franklin Stubbs added three hits for Los Angeles, which extended Pittsburgh's losing streak to seven games. The Dodgers sent nine men to the plate and scored four runs in the fourth inning to overcome a 2-0 Pirate lead.

Steve Sax doubled home Dave Anderson against Larry McWilliams, 4-7, then Guerrero hit a ground-rule double to score Bill Russell and winner Alejandro Pena, who had two hits. Candy Maldonado doubled to center to score Guerrero and give the Dodgers a 4-2 lead.

Stubbs tripled in the seventh and scored on Anderson's sacrifice fly.

Pena, 9-4, scattered eight hits in 7 1-3 innings before giving way to Tom Niedenfuer, who earned his 10th save.

Dale Berra had three hits and two RBI for the Pirates.

Mamede breaks mark in 10,000-meters: 27:13.81

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Setting a world record in the 10,000 meters, Fernando Mamede believes, is equal to winning an Olympic medal.

However, the Portuguese runner, who broke the 6-year-old record for the event on Monday, would like to find out for sure. The next time he runs in a 10,000 meter race, it will be at the Los Angeles Games.

Mamede, with a tremendous finish in the last two laps, was clocked in 27 minutes, 13.81 seconds in at international meet at Stockholm's Olympic Stadium, breaking the mark of 27:22.4, set in 1978 by Henry Rono of Kenya.

Carlos Lopez, another Portuguese, also ran faster than Rono did six years ago in Vienna, Austria, clocking 27:17.48 for second.

Mark Nenow, of Lexington, Ky, was timed 27:40.56 for third in history's fastest 10,000-meter race. It was well off Alberto Salazar's American record of 27:25.61.

Lopez, who is enjoying his finest season at 37, looked like the winner as he broke away from Mamede and Nenow with seven laps left, extending his lead for every lap.

But the 33-year-old Mamede, known for his great kick, was never really worried.

"I felt very strong towards the end of the race and I knew I have a better kick and better last lap than Carlos," said Mamede, who used to run the 400 and 800 as a junior.

"I knew I had a chance to beat the record when I looked at the clock before the last lap."

The world record was sweet revenge for Mamede's disappointing performance last year in the World Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland, where he finished 14th after being troubled by a leg injury. And, two years ago he missed Rono's record by less than half a second in Paris.

"I beat the European record in that race, but this beats everything of course," Mamede said.

Mamede, who will confine his Olympic efforts to 10,000 meters, will be among the favorites for Olympic glory, but it will probably be a different kind of race at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

"It will be a tactical race," he said. "You just can't go out and try to set a world record in the Olympics. The climate is so different in Los Angeles."

It was chilly and near perfect racing conditions Monday and Mamede said the 17,217 fans "really helped me to beat the world record.

Leasing means I can upgrade my telephone anytime.

"Fresh paint, some new wallpaper. When I redecorated the bedroom, I figured why not change the phones, too."

Free phone upgrade

"Because I lease my phones from AT&T, I can exchange my old black phone for a fancy Trimline® like this. And leasing means paying just a little bit each month."

Repairs at no extra charge

"This phone doesn't just look great, it's built great, too. But suppose I did have a repair problem. Leasing means AT&T will exchange it at no extra charge. I just call their toll-free number or take it to one of their Phone Centers."

Leasing means relaxing

"There are three good reasons to lease a phone from AT&T: low monthly cost, repairs at no extra charge and free upgrade and exchange of equipment...then there's the fourth reason. Leasing means I can relax!"

Balboni homers pace Royals to pair of wins

By The Associated Press

Steve "Bye Bye" Balboni is bidding farewell to baseballs with increasing regularity and the Kansas City Royals are saying hello to a pennant race.

The 27-year-old first baseman, who earned his nickname with some prodigious clouts in six years as a minor league slugging sensation in the New York Yankees' organization, homered in each game Monday night as the Royals swept a double-header from the Cleveland Indians 9-3, 4-3 and stretched their winning streak to five games.

"Earlier in the year, if I got a good pitch to hit, I'd hit a single," said Balboni, who has seven homers in his last 11 games after hitting only five in his first 48. "Now, if I get a good pitch to hit and I hit it, I know it's going to be a home run."

Balboni slammed a two-run homer and a single in KC's opening-game triumph and added a single, double and homer in a 3-for-3 nightcap.George Brett also hit a two-run homer in the first game while Larry Gura scattered seven hits. Brett doubled home what proved to be the winning run in the ninth inning of the second game following Pat Sheridan's single.

White Sox 7, Tigers 1

Harold Baines and Ron Kittle slammed two-run homers and Floyd Bannister checked Detroit on five hits as Chicago defeated the Tigers for the first time in seven tries.Baines blasted his 13th homer off Dave Rozema in the first inning after Scott Fletcher singled, and Kittle hit his 19th, a tremendous shot onto the roof in left-center, in the fourth after Baines singled and was forced at second.

"I've never hit one farther, unless maybe it was at the driving range," said Kittle, whose drive was his second roof shot of the season and sailed over the 374-foot mark onto the roof, which is 74 feet high.It was the 27th ball in the history of Comiskey Park hit on or over the roof and Kittle did it twice as a rookie last season. He also threw a runner out at the plate in the sixth inning.

Rangers 7, Yankees 6

Billy Sample's tie-breaking two-run double in the fifth inning capped Texas' comeback from a 5-0 deficit while Dickie Noles, acquired from the Chicago Cubs on Sunday, picked up the win in his AL debut by allowing an unearned run and two hits in 4 1-3 innings of relief.

Gary Ward had a two-run triple for Texas, which tied the score on Pete O'Brien's fifth-inning single. Home runs by Steve Kemp and Dave Winfield helped the Yankees to their 5-0 lead after 2½ innings, but they blew a chance to put the game away with some unbelievable baserunning, a symbol of their futility this season.

The first seven batters to face Texas starter Danny Darwin produced, in order, five singles, Kemp's homer and a double. The sum total? Three runs.

Angels 6, Blue Jays 3

Mike Brown hit a pair of solo homers and Fred Lynn added a two-run blast as Mike Witt won his third straight decision.Witt allowed eight hits before being relieved by Don Aase with two out in the ninth. Lynn hit a two-run homer off Jim Clancy in the first inning, while Brown connected off Clancy in the third and Dennis Lamp in the ninth.

Twins 6, Orioles 4

Kent Hrbek and Mickey Hatcher homered and John Butcher scattered 10 hits in beating Baltimore for the third time in three meetings this season.Butcher allowed three runs in the first three innings and then blanked the Orioles until the ninth.

Hrbek, who homered in the second inning and singled and scored the go-ahead run in the sixth, has 14 hits and eight RBIs in his last seven games. The Twins erased a 3-2 deficit with two runs in the sixth off Scott McGregor on singles by Darrell Brown, Hrbek and Gary Gaetti, plus Tim Teufel's grounder.Hatcher added a two-run homer in the seventh.

Athletics 9, Red Sox 6

Mike Heath led off the 11th inning with a double and scored the first of three Oakland runs on Tony Phillips' sacrifice plus a throwing error by Boston third baseman Wade Boggs. Dwayne Murphy singled home two insurance runs in the inning, while Mike Davis and Dave Kingman his two-run homers for Oakland.

Brewers 3-6, Mariners 2-4

Ben Oglivie got two game-winning RBIs with a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning of the opener and an eighth-inning home run in the nightcap. Milwaukee's Rick Manning homered in the opener and Rollie Fingers recorded a save in each game. Oglivie's homer came off Salome Barojas to lead off the eighth and the Brewers added an insurance run on a walk and singles by Dion James and Ed Romero.

American League

Seattle led 4-0 in the nightcap on Bill Nahorodny's two-run homer, Al Cowens' RBI double and Jim Presley's run-scoring grounder. Milwaukee tied the game in the fifth off Dave Geisel, just back from the minors and making his first appearance of the season.

Umps arrive, uniforms on later flight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The umpires weren't wearing their familiar blue uniforms in the first game of a double-header between Seattle and Milwaukee Monday.

The umpires were wearing Milwaukee Brewers caps and "Lach's Legion" T-shirts, which refer to Brewers Manager Rene Lachemann.

The umpires' uniforms had not arrived on a flight from Kansas City in time for the game.

L.A. sends Brock, Diaz to farm club

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers sent first baseman Greg Brock, who was batting only .208, to their Albuquerque farm club along with pitcher Carlos Diaz, team officials announced Monday.

The Dodgers filled the vacant spots on the roster by recalling first baseman Sid Bream and third baseman German Rivera from the Albuquerque squad of the Pacific Coast League.

Brock, who suffered a wrist sprain earlier this season, had nine homers and 19 RBIs in 140 at-bats. Diaz was 1-0 with the Dodgers, allowing 39 hits in 31 innings with a 6.40 earned-run average.

"We feel Greg Brock was affected by the severe wrist sprain and because he was slow in recovering, he was out of the lineup for some time," said Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis.

AL honors go to Langston

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie left-hander Mark Langston of the Seattle Mariners, who pitched two shutouts last week, was named Monday the American League's Player of the Week.

Langston pitched beat the Chicago White Sox 5-0 on a five-hitter, than came back to blank the Boston Red Sox, 1-0 on a three-hitter to become the first Mariner to win the award this year.

DO YOU WANT A NORMAL LENS!

We don't think so. In the past the so-called "normal lens" was far less expensive than lenses of other types, especially zoom lenses. Now for only $70 more than the price of a 50mm lens you can get a 35-70 f2.8 macro zoom lens. We call this lens a "super normal" because it drastically increases the versatility of your 35mm camera. You get 36 different lenses in one small package. Wide angles for scenery and groups, telephoto for sports and portraits plus the added bonus of macro for close-ups of flowers, etc. When you buy any of today's exceptional 35mm cameras, match it with the Sigma 35-70 f2.8 Macro "Super Normal"

Factory orders show 1.9 percent rebound

The Associated Press

Gains in factory orders and construction spending in May signal continued economic expansion, some economists say, but others are warning of a recession by year's end unless the federal deficit is cut.

Orders to U.S. factories climbed 1.9 percent in May following a 3.4 percent drop in April, while construction spending rose 1.8 percent to counter a 1.5 percent April decline, the Commerce Department said Monday.

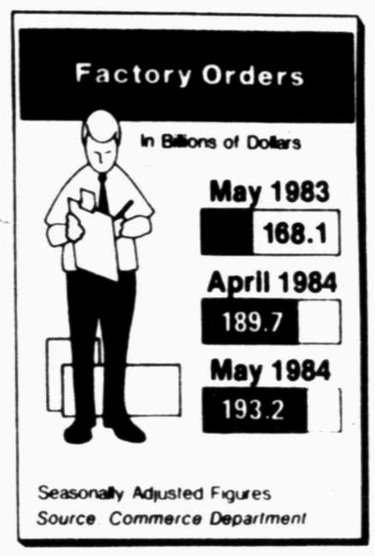

Still, a panel Conference Board panel said the economy will experience "solid but slower" growth through the end of the year, but "may soon lurch into another recession" without major policy changes.

The board's Economic Forum, a panel of 12 economists and analysts, said in its midyear report that there are "deep and widespread fears" about the economy in 1985 and beyond.

A major worry is that rising credit demands later this year and in 1985 will coincide with attempts by the Federal Reserve to slow money supply growth, leading to higher interest rates, said Lawrence Chimerine, chairman and chief economist at Chase Econometrics.

In its factory-orders report, the Commerce Department also said inventories rose a strong 1.5 percent, the fourth straight month that manufacturers have increased stockpiles at a pace above 1 percent.

The increase in new orders had been anticipated in light of a recent advance report showing orders for durable goods — products expected to last three or more years — climbed back sharply from an April setback.

U.S. factory orders rose 1.9 percent in May, rebounding from a sharp decline the month before.

Durable goods orders increased 3.8 percent in May, the Commerce Department said, the biggest increase since a 7.4 percent rise in June 1983.

In the construction-spending report, analysts said the greatest strength was shown in industrial construction, which was up 10.9 percent to an annual rate of $15.2 billion.

Private construction rose 1.8 percent in May to a rate of $255.2 billion, including a 2.5 percent increase in home building to a rate of $105.3 billion, the department said.

Housing indicators lowest since March '83

WASHINGTON — The Builder composite index of leading housing indicators declined in May for the third consecutive month to its lowest level since March, 1983.

"The indicators suggest that the current housing recovery peaked in February of this year," according to Kent W. Colton, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders. "Unless mortgage interest rates decline, housing activity will decline during the second half of 1984."

The Builder Index, created for Builder magazine by NAHB's Economic Division, is a monthly composite of seven major housing variables.

The index stood at 77 in May, down from a peak of 83.38 percent last August. By comparison, the index bottomed out at 40.92 percent in December, 1981. It was 102.33 percent in May, 1978.

Colton said that it was possible that housing starts could decline to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.5 million by year's end.

Contributing substantially to the dip in the Builder index in May were sagging builder expectations for sales in the next six months. Builders expecting "fair to excellent" sales of new single-family detached homes dropped to 68 percent, down from 83 percent during the prior month and a peak of 90 percent in December, 1983.

Builders also continued to report slower traffic of prospective buyers through their subdivisions. Forty percent said that the traffic was "low to very low," compared to less than 30 percent in the prior month and only 15 percent as recently as March.

Builders' expectations for new home sales and buyer traffic through housing subdivisions are just two of the seven factors used to determine the monthly housing index.

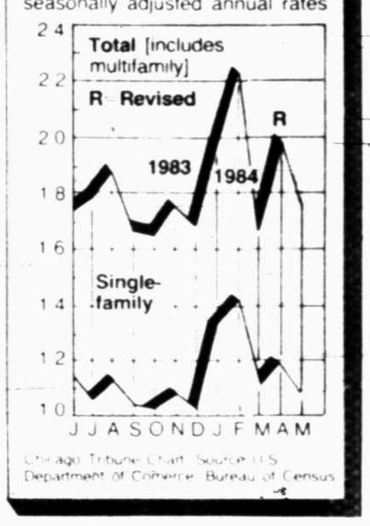

Other housing indicators used to draw the composite are: building permits, Government National Mortgage Association (Ginnie Mae) yields, lumber and plywood prices, the Producer Price Index for construction materials, and the confidence index of home buying.

But some of these factorss still contained some good news for housing in May. Building permits in May at an annual rate of more than 1.7 million and about the same as the prior month, indicated that the housing recovery still has staying power and will begin winding down only gradually.

Consumers also remain fairly bullish about housing, although adjustable rate mortgages with initial interest rates typically two percent below the going rate for fixed rate loans have helped insulate today's home buyers from the full brunt of conventional mortgage rates that are now well over 14 percent.

Warner sells Atari to Tramiel, associates

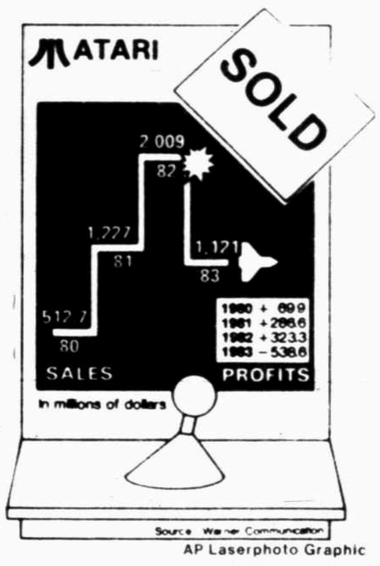

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Tramiel, who left Commodore International Ltd. after turning it into the nation's leading home-computer maker, now plans to challenge Commodore's lead with his newly purchased company, Atari Inc.

Tramiel and his associates bought the bulk of Atari's assets, including its home-computer and home-video divisions, from Warner Communications Inc. for $240 million in debt and other considerations.

It was the end of a bittersweet relationship between Atari and Warner, whose fortunes soared with Atari during the video-game boom of the early 1980s, then crashed when the craze fizzled two years ago.

"Our aim is to be number one," Tramiel said in a statement. "There's much work to be done but we already are moving swiftly ... to restore Atari to prominence and profitability.

"Both the home-computer and video-game marketplaces continue, in my view, to offer great opportunities," he said. "At Atari, I believe there is the capability and the foundation which will enable us to fulfill this tremendous potential."

Machinists, Aerospace Workers strike plants

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers went on strike today after turning down the latest contract offer from General Dynamics' Convair Division.

Pickets appeared at 12:01 a.m. at Convair's two San Diego plants, which employ an estimated 4,000 Machinists union workers. Another 700 Convair employees are represented by other unions while the remaining 7,000 are non-union engineers.

It was expected that other unions would honor the machinists' picket lines.

Union and company negotiators continued to negotiate as pickets appeared. Talks on a new contract began March 12.

The San Diego Union said 400 Machinists union members at Convair facilities at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California and at Cape Canaveral in Florida also were expected to strike.

"We've been negotiating with this company for almost three months, and during that three-month period they haven't come up with any of the solutions to the problems that exist as far as wages, benefits, pensions, group insurance, cost of living.... Many, many items are in dispute between us at this point," Bill Wiegand, admnistrative assistant to the union's vice president, said today.

"We're here and ready to meet, but as it is right now, the picket line's up," Wiegand said.

The walkout was approved by union members who turned down the company's latest contract offering. Of the estimated 80 percent of union employees who voted on the last contract offering, 91 percent rejected it, the union said.

Under the old contract, which expired April 29, the hourly wage for machinists ranged from $3.40 to $12, with the average about $10, the union said.

Dollar advances on foreign exchange markets early today

LONDON (AP) — The dollar advanced on foreign exchange markets early today, bolstered by continued expectations of a rise in American interest rates. The value of gold bullion fell slightly.

The dollar rose against all major currencies except the Canadian dollar. After hitting record high levels against the Canadian currency for seven straight sessions, the dollar eased to 1.31795 Canadian dollars, down from Monday's late rate of 1.34635.

Shortly after the European opening, the dollar pushed the British pound to a new all-time trading low of $1.34035. Later sterling improved to $1.34115, down from $1.3515 Monday.

Dealers said the prospect of higher U.S. interest rates — the key factor in determining the dollar's value — was the main factor affecting the market.

Midmorning dollar rates compared with late Monday included:

2.8085 West German marks, up from 2.7955.

2.3553 Swiss francs, up from 2.3417.

8.61725 French francs, up from 8.5755.

3.1655 Dutch guilders, up from 3.1495.

1,727.25 Italian lire, up 1,720.50.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to 239.85 yen, up from 238.45 yen, despite reported intervention by the Bank of Japan. Later in London, the dollar was quoted at 239.40 yen.

Safety chief focuses on drug, alcohol related accidents

The Los Angeles Times,
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The only transportation experience that James E. Burnett Jr. possessed when he became chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board two years ago was what he learned in traffic cases as a small-town Arkansas judge.

Today, he has focused the attention of the agency noted for its technically meticulous investigations of airplane crashes on new areas: alcohol and drug abuse among railroad workers and among youthful automobile drivers.

He is, if some familiar with the board's aviation safety work are to be believed, a good example of what happens when a politically well connected, but technically inexperienced person without extensive managerial experience takes charge of an agency whose primary mission is to find out why airplanes crash.

Airplane crashes and near-crashes have not been ignored during Burnett's tenure but, more than any predecessor, he has re-focused board and media attention on other safety issues.

Some egos are being bruised, particularly among the board's aviation specialists, and many board employees are critical of Burnett's administrative and personnel skills.

Larry Morris/Washington Post

James E. Burnett Jr.

On the other hand, such institutions as the railroads, their employee groups and the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) are feeling the kind of pressure and attention received by the airline industry and its regulators for years, including full-blown investigations, public hearings and media coverage.

Burnett gets a large amount of the credit for pushing the railroad administration's boss, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Hanford Dole, into releasing proposed federal regulations barring drug and alcohol abuse on the railroad.

The safety board must investigate all major airline crashes but can pick and choose among surface transportation accidents. It has no regulatory responsibilities; it can only nag. Burnett is a prodigious nagger.

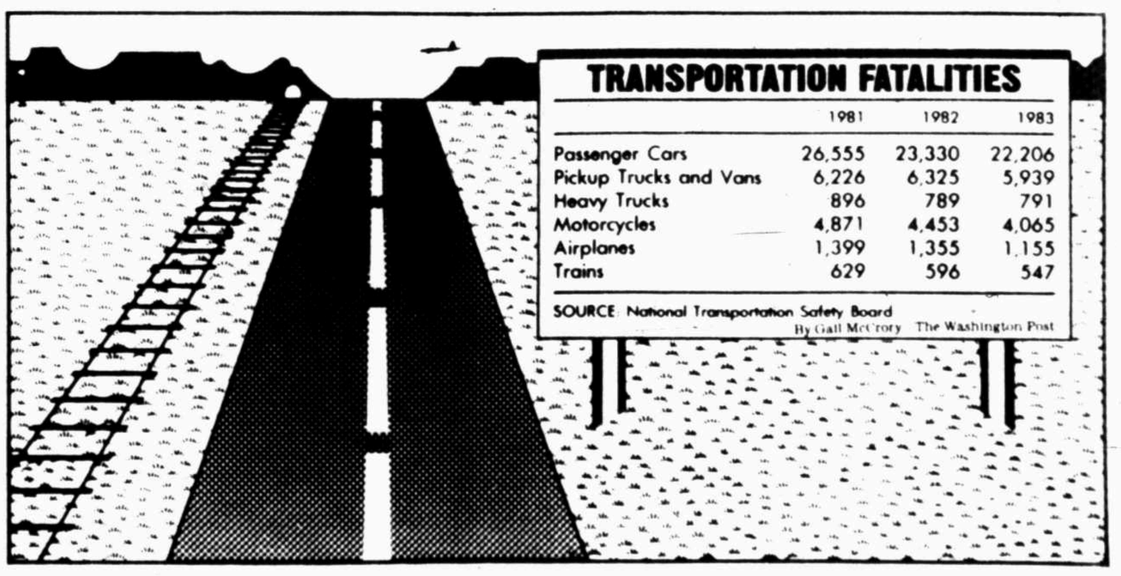

Since he has been chairman, the board has wasted no time investigating such mishaps as two recent Burlington Northern accidents in which seven railroad employees were killed and earlier alcohol-involved accidents in Livingston, La., and Sullivan, Ind.

"Until the federal government acts," Burnett said in a recent statement, "it will have a share in the blame of any accidents caused by the minority of rail workers who endanger their fellow employees and those in communities across the country. ... "

That kind of statement is "a form of intimidation by the politicians working for the board," in the words of Fred Hardin, president of the United Transportation Union and the Railway Labor Executives Association, the umbrella covering all rail unions. "We ... do not intimidate, nor do we accept the law-and-order gospel of federal control as set forth by Judge Jim Burnett, the self-proclaimed apostle of transportation safety," he said.

Another Burnett target has been drinking and driving by young people. He traveled on 104 weekdays in 1983, his itineraries show, often to testify before state legislatures in support of a board recommendation that states raise the minimum drinking age to 21 to reduce highway fatalities.

"Some of my people think the time I spend on this is time diverted from aviation and contributes to a perception that identifies the agency as being too much away from aviation," Burnett said. "I have to make a policy decision: we can save about 1,250 lives a year by raising the drinking age to 21. That's about what we would lose in all of aviation (including small-plane accidents) in a good year."

Enserch Exploration announces award of offshore blocks

DALLAS (SWN) — Enserch Exploration, Inc., announced that an operating group of which it is a part has been awarded 37 blocks in the April 24 federal Central Gulf Lease Sale 81 offshore Louisiana. The operating group includes Enserch Exploration, Placid Oil Co. and other Hunt entities. Enserch Exploration is a wholly owned subsidiary of ENSERCH Corp.

Enserch has a 25 percent working interest in all but three blocks, in which the company has a 12.5 percent working interest.

The group also participated in two federal lease sales in the Gulf of Mexico in 1983, with Enserch acquiring interests ranging from 12.5 percent to 37.5 percent in 28 blocks offshore Louisiana and Mississippi and 25 percent in seven blocks offshore Texas.

API says lock-outs blow to energy security

WASHINGTON — The American Petroleum Institute has called moratoriums on offshore leasing in federal waters another blow to America's energy security.

Such lock-outs increase America's growing dependency on imports, lose jobs, cost needed revenue for the federal government, add to the balance of trade deficit, and most important, deny Americans assured future supplies of oil and natural gas, says API.

Presidio stock to be sold in private deal

DENVER — Presidio Oil Co. has said that Mary L. Smith of Philadelphia had agreed to acquire 467,406 shares of the company's common stock in private transactions with certain members of Presidio's management and board of directors for an undisclosed price. Closing will occur in early July.

The transactions will bring Smith's holdings in Presidio to 1,025,019 shares, or 18.5 percent of the outstanding stock.

Midwest completes well in Bluebell field

OKLAHOMA CITY — Midwest Exploration Inc. has announced the completion of the Chasel-Hackford No. 2-10 A1E as a Wasatch oil well. This is the second completion for Midwest and its Midwest Drilling Program 1983-1 in the Altamont-Bluebell field of northeast Utah. The 1983-1 drilling program has a 16.5 percent working interest in the well, with Midwest's working interest at completion, being 11.5 percent.

Completion is in selected intervals in the Wasatch between depths of 12,772' and 14,438'. Initial 24 hour flow was 793 barrels of oil, 29 barrels of water, and approximately 450 Mcf of gas, on a 16/64" choke, tubing pressure 500 PSI. This well is a field extension well in section 10, township 1 south, range 1 east, Uintah County, Utah. The operator is Linmar Energy Corp. of Denver Co.

14.5 billion barrels may be recovered

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Petroleum Council (NPC) has concluded that as much as 14.5 billion barrels of oil could ultimately be recovered from presently known reservoirs with the successful application of existing enhance oil recovery (EOR) technology, under current economic conditions. The NPC reported that the rate at which this resource could be produced is significant, potentially exceeding one million barrels per day by the early 1990's and remaining above that rate for nearly 20 years. The NPC also examined the impact of technological advancements and varying economics. It reported that if the price of oil were $50 per barrel and advances in EOR technologies that appear feasible over the next 30 years were to occur, the ultimate recovery potential for EOR could be as much as 34 billion barrels.

Report shows update of storage capacity

WASHINGTON, D.C. — During its semi-annual meeting, the National Petroleum Council (NPC) adopted a final report entitled Petroleum Inventories and Storage Capacity and transmitted it to the secretary of energy. The report concluded that the U.S. petroleum storage capacity for crude oil and the principal fuel products, in all sectors, from refineries to individual consumer consists of approximately 2.3 billion barrels and that inventories on hand as of March 31, 1983, approached 1.1 billion barrels. The study was undertaken in response to a request from the secretary of energy that the NPC update its 1979 report on the subject. It is the 10th in a series of NPC reports on the petroleum inventories and storage since 1948.

Firm says shareholders oversubscribed

DALLAS (SWN) — Statex Petroleum Inc. an independent oil and gas exploration and production firm, has announced that shareholders had oversubscribed its rights offering of 450,000 shares of $2.55 cumulative convertible preferred stock, series A, $20 par value.

Net proceeds to the company were approximately $8.7 million.

California Portland Cement Co., which presently owns 52.13 percent of Statex's outstanding common stock, purchased 276,655 shares of series A preferred stock, or 61.48 percent of the total. California Portland had earlier announced its intention to subscribe to all shares of the series A preferred stock to which it was entitled and oversubscribed for additional shares to the extent available up to an aggregate commitment of $6 million.

Statex Chairman Stuart T. Peeler expressed satisfaction with the results of the issue, terming the decision by the shareholders to exercise their subscription rights "a strong vote of confidence in Statex's future."

HCW Exploration, Inc. announces the following staff additions:

HERMANN E. EBEN has been named vice president - acquisitions of HCW Exploration, Inc. In that capacity, Eben will be responsible for coordinating the acquisition of producing oil and gas properties for the limited partnerships syndicated by HCW's Boston parent, HCW Oil & Gas, Inc. Eben's oil industry experience includes positions with Magnolia Exploration Co., a Dallas-based independent, where he was vice president - finance/administration, and Delhi International Oil Corp. where he held several different positions, the last of which was administration manager.

JIM TOWNSON has been named president of HCW Drilling Corp. Prior to joining HCW, Townson was vice president - operations of Tahoe Drilling Co. for more tha five years. The hiring of Townson underscores HCW's commitment to build a competitive medium depth drilling company. Rig No. 2 has recently been put into service in the Permian Basin and present plans are to add a third rig before year end.

SAN ANTONIO — Valero Energy Corp. has named JOHN P. WALTER vice president of corporate development.

Walter is responsible for Valero's strategic planning and special projects. He joined Valero after serving as group planning manager in the petroleum and minerals division of Dresser Industries in Houston. He previously held senior planning positions with Shell Oil Co., including service in the company's international exploration and production operations and its oil and chemical products economics division. Prior to joining Shell, Walter was an industrial research economist with the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas.

LAS VEGAS — GERALD (Jerry) LAVINE has recently been appointed Texas Casino Executive for the Las Vegas hilton, according to Dennis Gomes, senior vice president and director of casino operations.

Lavine, a native of Dallas, has represented Las Vegas casinos for more than 15 years, most recently the Dunes Hotel & Casino.

"I am pleased to be associated with such an impressive organization as the Las Vegas Hilton," said Lavine, "and I am looking forward to showing the resort's Texas hospitality and elegance to my friends across the Lone Star State."

Director of Michael Modes Co., Lavine will maintain an office in Dallas.

SAN JOSE, Calif. — ROBERT E. HURST was named president and CEO and elected a director of this research and development firm, announced Norman c. MacLeod, chairman.

Hurst most recently was vice president of the Dowell Division of Dow Chemical Co. in Houston.

MLI, founded in 1980 by MacLeod & William R. Irwin, has developed a remote sensing system capable of downhold-to-surface communications during the drilling of oil and gas wells.

AUSTIN — A senate subcommittee has voted to pass the nomination of PERKINS DAUGHERTY SAMS of Midland to the Texas parks and Wildlife Commission to the full senate for confirmation.

Sams, who works for Banner Energy, is being sponsored by Sen.Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, whose district includes Midland County. Sams was appointed to the commission by Gov. Mark White last July 27 for a one and a half year term.

Sams, who appeared before the senate subcommittee on nominations Monday morning, is expected to be confirmed by the senate later this week. If approved, his term would expire Feb. 1, 1985.

NEW YORK — JANET SMITH and GANA DUROSETTE local representatives of Doncaster Inc., an exclusive line of women's apparel recently won an all-expenses paid trip to New York City. The trip, labeled "The New York Fashion Fling" is awarded to the year's top five fashion consultants and managers. The announcement of winners' names was made by Michael S. Tanner, president of Doncaster Inc., a manufacturing company that specializes in women's custom made clothing and classic separates.

Three employees of Anthony Mechanical Services Inc. received 1983 "Circle of Excellence" awards from The Linc Corp., Pittsburgh-based franchisor of 58 LINC Service Contractors nationwide.

KAREN MITCHELL, office manager: RONALD MOORE, sales manager; and FRANCIS RICHARDS, service representative, were honored for their individual achievements in the LINC Service Business Systems, Marketing and Operations categories, respectively.

MICHAEL G. WATSON with Exxon Co. U.S.A., southwestern division, Midland, has been promoted to district exploration manager.

He holds a BS and a master degree in geology from the University of Iowa. He is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists.

He holds a BBA degree in petroleum land management and a MBA degree in business management from the University of Oklahoma. He is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen and Permian Basin Landmen's Association.

O.D. (DON) BALDWIN with Exxon Co., U.S.A., southwestern division, Midland, has been named district geophysicist.

He holds a BS degree in geology from Baylor University and in 1971 he receied a masters degree from Rice University. He is an active member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and Society of Exploration Geophysicists.

DALLAS — Election of JOE A. MOSS as secretary of American Petrofina Inc. has been announced. Moss continues as vice president and general counsel. He replaces John MacKenzie as secretary. Mackenzie, senior vice president and secretary, will retire July 31.

Moss joined Cosden Petroleum Corp. at Big Spring in 1953 as attorney for the exploration and production department. He was elected secretary and assistant general counsel of Cosden in 1961. When Fina acquired the assets of Cosden, he became vice president, secretary and general counsel with Cosden Oil & Chemical Co., a subsidiary of Fina. In 1971, when he moved to corporate headquarters in Dallas, he was named general counsel of Fina. He was elected vice president and general counsel in 1972. He also serves as vice president and general counsel of various Fina subsidiaries.

Texas-based boat firm announces new plant site

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Texas-based boat-building company has chosen western Columbus County as the site for a plant that could employ between 250 to 300 people, officials said Monday.

Conroy Inc. of San Antonio, which manufactures fiberglass pleasure boats and trailers under the brand names Glastron and Conroy, is scheduled to begin operations at its new plant in Fair Bluff in November, said Greg Cook, general manager of Conroy's marine division.

Conroy expects to produce 25 boats a day at full production, Cook said.

Cook said the company moved to Fair Bluff because it wanted to get closer to the East Coast market by building a plant near Interstate 95. The new site is about 30 miles from I-95.

The company also has plants two other plants in Texas and one in Anaheim, Calif.

Cook said he and other company executives happened upon Fair Bluff one Sunday morning while searching for other plant sites in North Carolina and South Carolina.

"We were just driving through and happened to stop the chief of police and ask him if there were any available plants. A man came out and met us," Cook said. "The people were just super ... very helpful to industry, as opposed to some places we go."

Conroy plans an initial investment of about $3 million, which will be used to buy and equip a 101,000-square-foot building for the boat manufacturing operation and a tobacco warehouse for storage and trailer manufacturing.

Short-term T-Bill yields rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on short-term Treasury securities rose in this week's auctions, the government reports.

The government on Monday sold $12.8 billion in new securities — half in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 10.01 percent, up from last week's 9.77 percent, and half in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 10.54 percent, up from 10.49 percent last week.

The three-month bill yield was the highest since 10.07 percent on June 11, while the 10.54 percent yield for six-month bills was the highest since 10.66 percent, also on June 11.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 10.41 percent for three-month bills and 11.29 percent for six-month bills.

Tax-Deferred

"It's really remarkable how the government thinks of us... every April 15th, that is."
Will Rogers

Sometimes it seems like the government doesn't know who you are, but come April 15th, it's mighty easy to feel like you're at the top of its list. To help you with your taxes, City Savings is thinking of you all year 'round, by offering you ways to keep the tax bite down. Even though tax-time has come and gone, what you do today will affect what you pay next April 15th. Even Will Rogers would approve of the GNA Tax-Deferred Annuity, now available at City Savings. This safe, competitive plan not only helps insure a secure retirement income, but qualifies you for a great tax break at the same time.

11½% Annualized Yield (10.88% compounded daily) GUARANTEED until December 31, 1984

Tax-Deferral You pay no taxes on the interest earnings until you withdraw money from your account. That means your money compounds faster because there's more left in your account to grow.

No Deposit Limit There is no ceiling on the amount of interest earnings you can shelter from current taxes. ($5,000 minimum deposit)

Safety Your principal and interest are guaranteed by GNA, a qualified legal reserve life insurance company.

Flexibility There are over thirty different pay-out plans to meet your future financial needs.

Will Rogers knew there's no such thing as a free lunch. On the other hand, the winner is the one who exercises good, old fashioned common sense when making decisions. That's where the GNA Annuity comes in. It's the common sense approach to a tax-advantaged today and a sound financial tomorrow. Call or come into any City Savings branch, or mail the coupon below to find out more about the GNA Tax Deferred Annuity. Exercise your common sense. Open a retirement account that goes to work for you today, and every day.

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly today in light pre-holiday trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 1.77 to 1,131.85 by noontime on Wall Street.

Gainers held a 6-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said there was little in the news or the market's own behavior to stir up much excitement among investors.

The markets will be closed Wednesday for Independence Day, and a good many participants in them are expected to take Thursday and Friday off as well.

With the Treasury selling new seven-year notes today, and 20-year bonds on Thursday, broker said fears persisted of further upward pressure on interest rates.

Warner Communications fell 1⅝ to 20½ on top of a 1¼-point drop Monday. The company said it will incur a second-quarter loss of about $425 million, partly as a result of the sale of its Atari home computer and home video operations to a group headed by Jack Tramiel.

Vacation home has 'volatile' value

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — In the summer daydreams of many Americans, visions often come to mind of owning a vacation home.

Whether your fancy runs to a seashore estate or a rustic cabin in the woods, the idea has a lot of appeal. There's the prospective psychic reward of owning your own vacation place and the hope of financial reward as well.

On top of that, a vacation home can give you access to some of those sumptuous tax breaks that come with real estate.

If it all sounds just about irresistible, at least one observer of the real estate scene has some words of caution.

From a financial standpoint, says Thomas O'Dea, senior contributing editor of the Real Estate Investing Letter, in the current issue of that monthly publication, "smart investments in vacation houses are very difficult to make."

For one thing, O'Dea says, "values of vacation houses are much more volatile than those of other real estate properties. That's because a vacation home purchase is 'discretionary.'

"Nobody 'needs' a vacation house, even though everyone might want one. Discretionary expenses, and their amount and frequency, are also affected by many things that will be completely out of your control.

"During the years of gas shortages, vacation home developers (and many vacation home owners) went right down the tubes. A poor snow season drives down the value of houses in ski resort areas. Economic recessions put discretionary expenditures on the shelf for most potential buyers."

Furthermore, O'Dea warns, if you rent out your vacation house to others, you may well be faced with a great many management headaches and costs. Even if renters are conscientious about keeping the property clean and repairing any damage they cause, they have no particular incentive to take corrective or preventive action against any long-term maintenance problems.

Hiring professional local management will cost more than you think, says O'Dea. "The care and feeding of your $100,000 investment is left in the hands of a third party whose compensation is some percentage of rental income."

The tax rules say you cannot take writeoffs from things like depreciation that exceed your rental income unless you use the property yourself for no more than a very small specified part of a given year.

Some people, O'Dea notes, operate on the assumption "who's to know just how much the house is rented vs. how many days I use it?" But, he says, "There are ways for the tax people to know or at least surmise just how much you use the house vs. renting it to others. Moreover, any investment strategy based upon potential tax cheating is clearly an inadequate one."

Lest he sound like a spoilsport, O'Dea says he doesn't mean to imply that no one should ever buy a vacation property. It may make eminent sense, he says, if you can afford the up-front and continuing costs and separate in your mind the romance and the financial realities involved.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

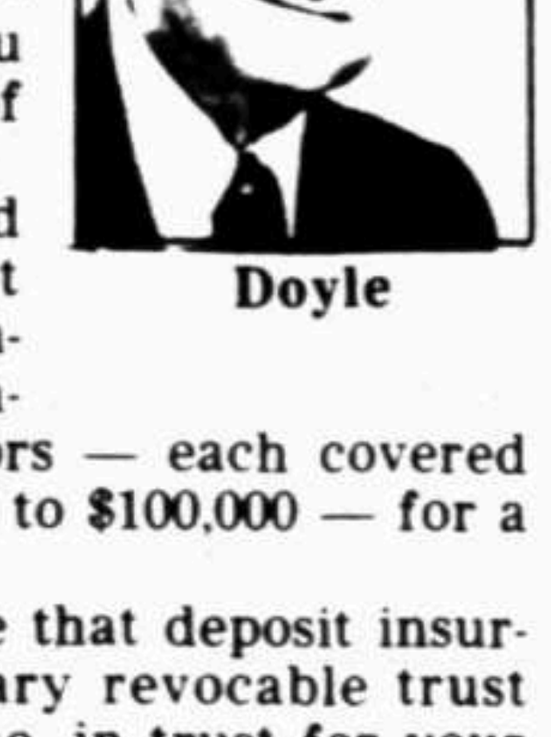

Insurance covers each depositor

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I get conflicting answers about the following from two depository institutions. Let's say I have up to $100,000 in accounts in my name, my wife has up to $100,000 in accounts in her name and we have $100,000 in accounts in our joint names — all at the same institution.

Are we coverd by deposit insurance of up to $300,000, or only $100,000? At one institution, I was told dividing the accounts in different names has no bearing and, because we are one family, the maximum insurance coverage is $100,000.

A. Assuming the "depository institution" is an S&L with FSLIC coverage, a bank with Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage or a credit union with National Credit Union Shares Insurance Fund coverage, you would have up to $300,000 of deposit insurance.

Doyle

Each depositor is covered up to $100,000. The joint account is counted as a separate depositor. In your example, you have three depositors — each covered with deposit insurance of up to $100,000 — for a total of $300,000.

Your family could increase that deposit insurance by opening testamentary revocable trust accounts — one in your name, in trust for your wife, and one in your wife's name, in trust for you — each with $100,000 coverage.

Q. I know that when stock is owned jointly, the word "and" must be between the owners' names. The word "or" cannot be between the names, because that is an unacceptable form of registration.

Our credit union opens joint accounts and places "or" between the names. Is this an error, or are the rules different for savings deposits than for stocks?

A. The rules are different. The use of the word "or" on joint accounts is permissible in "banking." So, banks, S&Ls and CUs automatically put an "or," rather than an "and," between names on joint accounts. That enables either joint owner of the account to make deposits and withdrawals.

State Highway 191 falling short of goals

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

State Highway 191, the new road expected to link Midland and Odessa development, has yet to meet the expectations set for it by the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The Highway Department expected the north link road to be splitting traffic that had been using U.S. 80 within three months of its mid-March opening.

While it has fallen short of this goal, the new highway has relieved some of the congestion from U.S. 80. Recent tallies show S.H. 191 as the daily route taken by 7,900 vehicles.

This figure is up 1,600 from the first week's count and 200 from counts taken in May. April tallies of vehicles using U.S. 80 showed traffic down 3,000, to a total of 15,000 vehicles per day.

The end of the boom and the resulting slowdown in development is part of the reason the road has yet to reach its projected level of use, said Fred Nelle, Planning Coordinator of the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study.

Recent boom-time traffic counts on U.S. 80 went as high as 28,000 per day, said Nelle, estimating the popular industrial route could accommodate up to 50,000 cars.

"We're trying to anticipate that traffic volumes will grow to this level," he said, though "tolerable traffic volumes" on the older road would end at about 30,000.

"Where there is traffic, there are going to be accidents," he said.

Local merchants agree that the link road has improved access between the two cities, although the lack of conveniences, such as service stations, along the way, could keep travelers from choosing the new route.

"From the market we draw on, people are coming along 191," said Pamela Leach, marketing director at Midland Park Mall, which has planned a marketing push targetting the north side of Odessa.

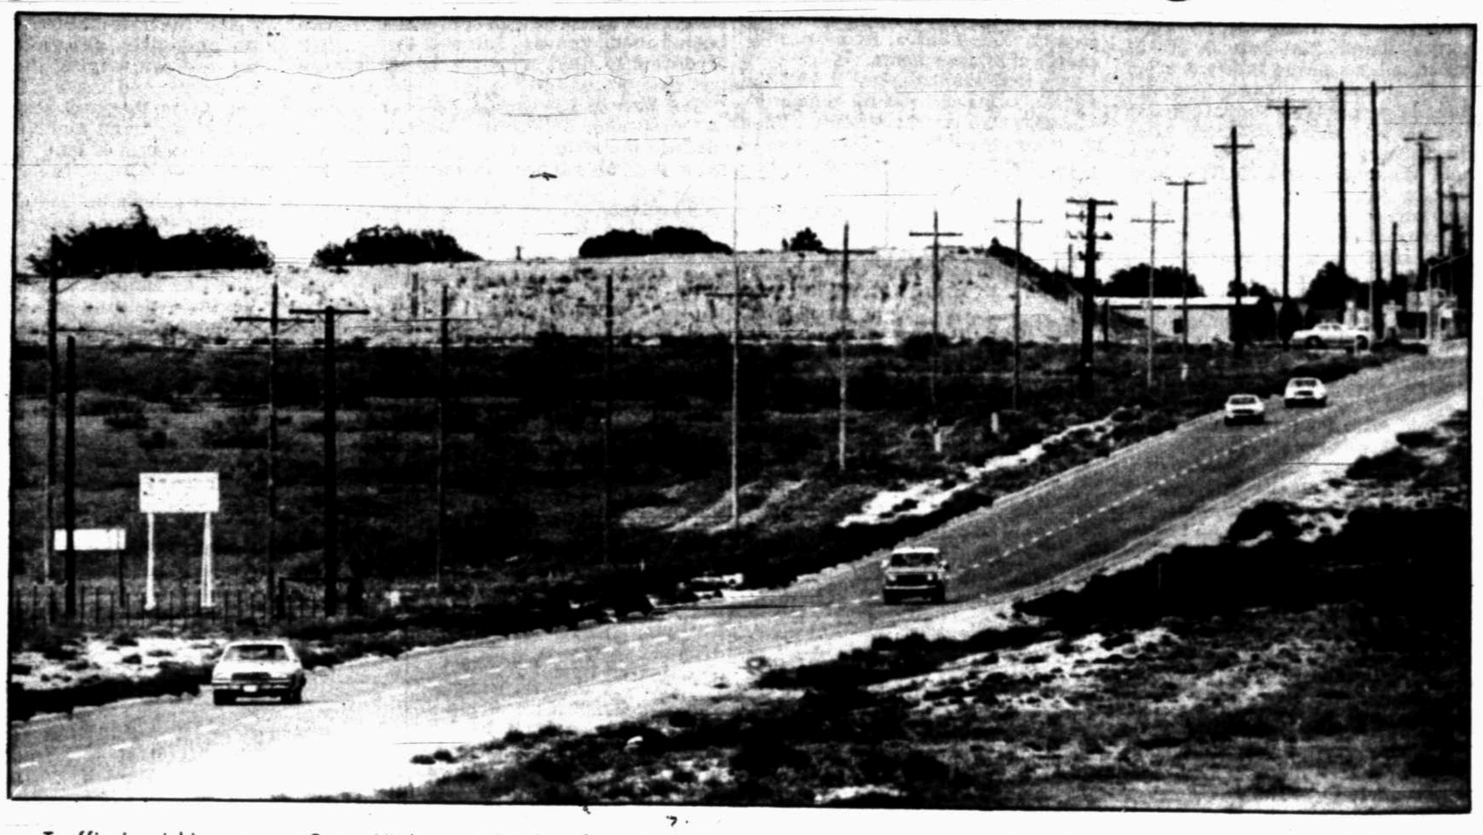

"The drive is kind of boring," she said, noting that proposed developments along the road by Scharbauer Bros., and at Mission Dorado are still in preliminary stages of construction and no telephones or service stations are available for distressed motorists.

Agreeing on the need for development along the new road, Claydesta Corp. Leasing Manager Bill Sandlin said "I just hope the development is controlled."

"I don't think I'd want to see two Highway 80's between Midland and Odessa," he said, pointing to the increased accessibility it offered Midlanders to Midland Regional Airport and Odesssans to Cubs Stadium.

With fewer trucks and commercial vehicles, "It's just a nicer little drive," he said.

Traffic is picking up on State Highway 191, but fewer vehicles than projected are using the road designed to link the north sides of Midland and Odessa.

Judges marry couples in usual, unusual places

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The bride and matron of honor were adorned in full-length lace-laden pink wedding dresses.

The bridegroom and best man were donned in casual street clothes.

And the marrying judge, Midland County Justice of the Peace Robert H. "Bob" Pine, had just returned from a death scene where he had acted as coroner.

He ushered the two smiling but nervous couples into the courtroom, recited the wedding vows "...whom God has joined together let no man put asunder..." and made the "husband-and-wife" pronouncement.

He was 60; she was 27.

He was grinning; she tearful.

"I don't pay much attention to it (age of couples)," said Pine, who has been performing courthouse marriages for almost 20 years. "What do you call them: May-December marriages? I've seen them both ways, though," he said of the age differential in couples.

Most couples marry within their age bracket even if circumstances otherwise are somewhat peculiar.

Pine once married a couple in an aircraft. Once airborne, the bridegroom left the cockpit, turned the controls over to his co-pilot, and joined the bride, the marrying judge and witnesses.

Two years later, the couple was divorced.

"What's the matter?" quipped the judge. "She didn't like to fly?"

He recalled other weddings.

"I came near to marrying a couple in a hot-air balloon," said Pine, who was game enough to ascend, but "the weather was not conducive" to the flight. And the couple recited the vows at poolside near their condominium.

"I married a couple on a runway at a nightclub," he said, "and they had to wait 'til the go-go girl was through with her act."

He has married prisoners from the county jail, married couples in rose gardens, in homes, in the courthouse, in dance halls, in the National Guard Armory, and in churches.

Robert H. Pine

Charlie Sprayberry

"I try to perform more of mine (weddings) in the courtrooms and in homes."

Pine and his wife, Mary Jo, were married 52 years ago in Arizona.

"I was married by a preacher, but it was in a courthouse," the judge reflected. "They apparently couldn't contact the JP, and the County Clerk's Office called him (a minister), and he came on down."

Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry, who has been in the marrying business as JP for only 3½ years, has married couples in rose gardens, gazebos, bars, cafes, homes, and backyards.

He married a couple, in their mid- to late 60s, upon the insistence of their grandchildren.

"Their grandchildren had been after them to get married," he said. The couple had been in a common-law marriage. The grandchildren were best man and matron of honor.

On another occasion, Sprayberry married a couple on a bowling lane. They were sentimental; they had met in a bowling alley.

Sprayberry wedded a Midland couple, who were married 20 years earlier in Juarez, Mexico. But they never got a marriage license and could not find a record of their wedding.

Sprayberry once joined a priest in a wedding ceremony at a country club: The priest performed the first part of the ritual, and the JP finished it up.

He married another couple in a hospital room; the bride had an emergency appendectomy on the morning of the day of their scheduled wedding.

Yet another couple flew Sprayberry and his wife, Lavon, to San Antonio, where the judge performed the marriage on a river walk within sight of the Alamo.

"I didn't charge them (a fee)," he said.

Whatever the fee, if any, is "up to the individual," Sprayberry said.

"No one has ever given me a million dollars (to perform a wedding)," he jested, "and that doesn't mean I wouldn't accept it."

During regular office hours, any fee is "like tipping or a gratuity," the judge said.

Jackson concert tickets put Midland in 'Thriller' situation

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

These are tense times for Midland's Michael Jackson fans.

Last week, hundreds of them crowded into line at the Midland Post Office to plunk down $120 for a postal money order, which they then mailed off to a New York P.O. Box number.

The 300-350 Midlanders who bought the money orders contributed about $40,000 to the coffers of the Jackson brothers' concert tour. If a money order is selected during the random computer drawing, its sender will have won the privilege of paying $120 for four tickets to one of the upcoming Jacksons concerts in Dallas.

But the selection process won't be completed until July 11, two days before the first concert, so Jackson fans might have to wait by the mailbox until next Wednesday before the suspense is ended. That's a long wait, especially for the 150 or so Midlanders who flocked to the post office on June 25, the first day the application intructions appeared in the Dallas Morning News.

"At first, we didn't realize what was happening," said Midland Postmaster Bill Williams. "We couldn't understand why we were so busy."

Of the 300-350 people whopurchased postal money orders for $120 last week, about half those people showed up Monday morning, said Williams.

"It was a shock," he said. "I'm a country-western fan — I'd never heard of the gentleman and I didn't know anything about him."

But Michael Jackson has a lot of fans at the post office now, because his management is requiring that all applications for the summer tour be in the form of postal money orders.

Since some 10 million ticket requests are expected nationwide, "Overall it's estimated we will make several million dollars" from the tour, said Williams. "It's $1.55 for the money order and 20 cents for the stamp, so we're making out real well on that."

The post office might also sell a few more number 10 envelopes (4 by 9½ inches) than usual, because that's the only size envelope in which applications are being accepted. So exacting are the application instructions that some Jackson fans may feel they are replying to a ransom note rather than trying to buy a concert ticket.

Fans must apply for four tickets — no more, no less. They must send the $120 (that's $30 per ticket) in a U.S. Postal Money Order — in a number 10 envelope — and they must give up their hard-earned money without any hope of receiving any tickets. If their application isn't selected by the computer, they must wait 4-6 weeks to get their money back.

But if they aren't selected, there's still hope. Radio station KQIP and the five Burger Kings in Midland and Odessa will be giving away 10 tickets on July 9 for the July 13 Jacksons concert in Texas Stadium. Interested fans can register for the drawing at their local Burger King, according to KQIP General Manager Roy Elsner.

Elsner said he's heard the promoters aren't getting as many ticket applications as they expected, but if a market the size of Midland can produce 350 applicants (for 1,400 tickets), "They'll do pretty well."

Ticket sales lagging in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Over-the-counter ticket sales will be necessary if promoters of the nationwide Jacksons Victory Tour hope to sell out the three concerts scheduled for Texas Stadium on July 11-13, a local ticket agency official says.

Postal officials in Dallas and Fort Worth said only about 11,900 money orders had been sold in the two cities as of Saturday — enough to guarantee a sellout for only one of the three performances in the stadium, whose capacity for the concerts will be 43,000.

Monday was the deadline for getting orders for the Texas Stadium shows to New York.

Steve Allen, marketing director of Rainbow-Ticketmaster, said promoters need to decide quickly whether to allow over-the-counter ticket sales. Such sales will have to begin by Friday to guarantee a sellout of all three concerts here, he said.

The firm has been negotiating with tour promoters "since the inception of the tour," Allen said.

"We've talked to them about this, but there's absolutely nothing firm set," he added.

Promoters of the tour said they were returning more than 65,000 unfilled orders for the 135,000 seats available for three Kansas City concerts, but Dallas-Fort Worth residents apparently failed to match that level of interest.

Allen said people in the Dallas-Fort Worth area apparently were unwilling to put up $120 with no guarantee they would receive tickets.

LAWRENCE BUDD

West Texas resident becomes 'big city' again

I guess there's still a little "big city" in this suburbanite turned West Texan.

Until a recent return to the bright lights and traffic jams, I really thought I'd finally gotten used to the relatively simple, small-town lifestyle of Midland.

For the first time in my life, I was actually getting caught up.

Lately, there've been times when I actually have nothing hanging over my head — no uncertain situation prompting me to tap my foot uncontrollably and play a frantic drum roll on the dashboard at inconsiderate stoplights.

I should have had an inkling a series of unusual experiences lay ahead when I just barely made the airport — my tank on empty and my oil light flashing out a warning.

But the flight went off without a hitch and I landed safely in Dallas ready for a reception of friends.

None to be found, the mellow Midlander in me sat for more than two hours sure they'd show up within the next minute and all would be well.

But they didn't and it wasn't.

THAT BIG-CITY frenzy tried to creep back into my demeanor. But armed with my West Texas cool, I ambled down to a courtesy bus and rode to the rent-a-car station.

Anxiety built as I encountered one new situation after another. My first rent-a-car experience prompted me to bombard the clerk with stupid questions, but I managed to make it, a little unraveled, out to the lot.

After troubleshooting the nuances of the Ford Mustang I'd been given (Just getting the key to turn in the ignition is an adventure with those tricky release buttons automakers hide underneath the columns) I motored onto one of those mammoth Dallas freeways that gave me so many anxious moments during my stay in the city.

It had been more than six months since I'd braved such traffic or found my way through the maze of on and off ramps. It bothered me slightly when I missed the Central Expressway exit and found myself headed for Louisiana, but I felt a surge of "city slicker" when a familiar exit sign appeared.

I had found my way off the road, but I was still lost — just on a smaller road.

STOPS AT THE homes of several friends left me without a port in the storm. So, I drove my way back to the familiar environs of Plano where I'd learned what little I know about the real world of journalism.

Without any prior warning, I barged in on an old writer friend who I hadn't seen in a year.

Never one for the casual fern bar, he and his girlfriend suggested a blues hang-out in one of the rougher parts of Fort Worth.

The neon sign outside said, "The New Bluebird," but the worn-out screen door swaying uneasily on loose hinges and generally run-down motif quicky told me we were far from any place I'd been during the seven months I'd been in Midland.

No offense to the Marbles, but that band was the closest I'd been to real blues since I'd watched legendary bluesman Johnny Lee Hooker perform in a Dallas club more than a year ago.

And the atmosphere was so real, right down to the tupperware bowls they served our ice in. This place was so down and out, it had no liquor license.

WHEN WE arrived, we were the lone Anglos in an authentic blues joint. After all, the blacks were singing the blues long before Hank Williams got a lonesome heart or anyone trampled Carl Perkins' blue-suede shoes.

But when the band had congregated and it was time for the cover charge to be collected, the racial mix slowly changed. I realized I'd finally witnessed the ironic and sad result of blues becoming commercial, which has been brought out by bluesmen in recent years. The music had become too expensive for the race from whence it had come.

I was "big city" again when I emerged from this place. But the culture shock (or recharge) had only begun.

Sunday, I travelled fifty miles to another time, when men were men and cars were chariots.

The Greco-Roman Festival was a spectacle. Not 10 yards from my rent car, some Greek columns marked the beginning of a journey into the past.

Inside, my friend and I were accosted by mermaids sitting by a murky, green pond. After a serenade, we passed along a path straight out of "The Ten Commandments," while craftsmen called me to examine their wares.

I tore primitively at a huge turkey leg as knights raced around a track in chariots. Cleopatra plotted against and quarrelled with other wenches, and Dionysis turned everyone against the other.

IT WAS PRETTY taxing for a guy grown used to kicking back in the jacuzzi for excitement.

A trip to a huge Texas steakhouse, complete with live country and western band and two-steppin' couples, gave me a chance to return gradually to my acquired lifestyle.

Still, I'd never seen a place before with a slide that emptied kids of all ages out onto the dance floor. And an escalator carrying riders to the top to boot.

It's been a couple weeks since my return. I guess I'm back in the country swing of things. But it sure was a welcome relief, anxiety and all.

I guess that old saying holds true: "You can take the boy out of the city, but you can't take the city out of the boy."

Weekend cowboys work with Mr. Gus

ORANGE, Texas (AP) — Bandanas tucked in their back pockets and spurs clanking with each step, they stroll into Gus's house every Sunday before the roosters make their daybreak declarations.

"Who's cooking breakfast?" they always ask as the screen door slams behind them, knowing full well that according to Gus's schedule, breakfast was an hour ago.

Gus Harris, 73-year-old rancher and proprietor of Farmers Mercantile, will point them to the two coffee pots on his kitchen counter.

"Now this here's the strong stuff," he'll say, "and this is just stuff."

They slurp the steaming coffee as greedily as they listen to him talk about the beef market, the weather or the fate of his rye grass last season.

They enjoy listening to these dawn dialogues before work begins. They might as well; they have a long day ahead of them.

From all over the county they come every Sunday morning to help work cattle for "Mr. Gus," as he is reverently known. They ask no pay, only the chance to help.

His impromptu posse, comprising math teachers, pipefitters, longshoremen, housewives and electricians, takes pride in its weekend operation, sliding boldly into the mud and manure to wrestle a stubborn calf, wiping specks of gray worm medicine from their faces and passing around a single cup of water before they go to the next pasture.

"OK, boys and girls, get your horses," Gus will say, wiping the water from his lips. And that's just about the only order they will hear all day. The rest are hand motions the posse discerns with a kind of sixth sense.

As the sun beats down on one of the 15 pastures he owns or leases in Orange County, Gus scrapes the air with his first two fingers, and the posse, yelping like Indians on the warpath, begins sweeping cattle from their hiding places in the thick underbrush.

Rousted from their refuges, the cows trot ahead of the horses, some calves still tugging at udders. With a single circular motion with the same two fingers, his unsnapped cuffs flapping about his wrists, Gus has his followers round up the cattle and surround them on horses like a circle of covered wagons.

Townspeople from Newcastle, Texas, volunteered their weekend to help build seven miles of water pipeline to connect their thirsty town with Lake Graham.

Water pipe to quench thirsty community

NEWCASTLE, Texas (AP) — As water shortages worsen across Texas, scores of volunteers have been working non-stop for three days to lay a pipe that will bring a year's supply of water to this small town.

"It looks like we're going to make it before we run out of water," said Newcastle Mayor R.B. Maxwell, who expects the pipe project to be completed today.

The town of 625 voluntarily cut back on water consumption six months ago after its primary lake source went dry. Another lake is diminishing rapidly in capacity.

Crews, many of them elderly and including volunteers from three nearby counties, have been working around the clock since Friday to lay a pipe that will carry water from Lake Graham, 7½ miles away, to this oil and farming community 100 miles northwest of Fort Worth.

"We lack about 2½ miles (of pipe)," Maxwell said Monday. "We had about 100 volunteers turn out yesterday and about 50 Saturday. If we move pretty good we may be there tomorrow night."

Some problems emerged, however, as air leaks threatened to stall the ambitious project.

"We found air leaks in the pipes, so we'll have to get the welders to come out and fix them," Wallace Whitley, 65, said Monday. "We had the best day yesterday (Sunday) because it wasn't as humid and we had about 100 men out there."

Maxwell said an agreement was worked out with the City of Graham on Thursday to buy 34 million gallons of water from Lake Graham.

"It's pretty strenous (work) right now, but it thrilled me to see the older people join in the effort," he said.

The effort rounded up five trucks and a forklift from a trucking company to help lay 200-pound, 20-foot long segments of iron pipe.

The mayor said it's not the first time Newcastle has run out of water.

"This is not something new, the city running out of water," he said. "What's new about this is the laying of the pipeline. We've run out of water before but we've been blessed with good rains and haven't had to be without water too long."

Newcastle residents have voluntarily rationed water for about six months.

"People just took it on their own," said the mayor's wife, Doris. "They just automatically quit watering. They were real cooperative."

Cooperation is also being asked of Corpus Christi residents, who cut back on water following a mandatory water rationing program that officials hope will save 30 million gallons per day.

Doug Matthews, director of the city's public utilities, said water consumption totaled about 70 million gallons on Sunday, the first day of mandatory conservation. He said that was 40 million fewer gallons than was used Saturday.

The cutbacks also started in several area cities that buy water from Corpus Christi.

In New Braunfels, the dwindling Comal Springs prompted city officials to ask residents to comply to a one-day strict water conservation effort that lasted until midnight Monday.

"I've married a lot of people for free," Sprayberry said, "and I don't keep them from getting married just because they aren't well-heeled."

Pine and Sprayberry theorized many couples opt to be married by a justice of the peace rather than by a priest, minister or preacher out of "convenience."

"It's too much of a hassle to get married by a preacher," allowed the best man at the wedding of the old man and young woman in pink. He suggested he preferred to forego any lectures on holy matrimony, marriage and religion.

"As far as I know," wished Sprayberry, "I make the folks eternally happy."

Men try to sexually assault girl, woman

From Staff Reports

A 15-year-old girl and a 25-year-old woman reported a man tried to sexually assault them while they were asleep in their beds in apparently unrelated incidents occurring early this morning.

Shortly before 2:30 a.m. today, the 25-year-old woman told police she was in bed at her duplex in the 1200 block of East Parker when she was awakened by someone trying to put something over her face. According to reports, the woman struggled with the subject, who fled when she started screaming and beating on the wall in an attempt to wake up the residents next door.

No description of her assailant was given.

In an incident occurring at 5 a.m. today, a Midland teen-ager told police she also was asleep in her bed when she awoke and found a Hispanic male tying her feet to the bed and touching her body. The subject ran off when she sat up, reports indicate. The man apparently entered the trailer in the 1600 block of East Garden Lane through a westside window, the girl's mother told police.

In other reports filed with city police, Benni Rosser reported a residence at 1108 Lanham was burglarized sometime between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. Monday. Two necklaces valued at $225, a $775 gold and diamond ring, an antique watch of undetermined value and $86 in cash were taken. Also missing were albums, eight-track tapes and an unspecified amount of coins.

The manager of Windtree Apartments, 3600 N. Loop 250, reported Monday afternoon that the apartment of tenant Palaula Duncan was entered and clothing and two lamp shades were slashed. Total damage was placed at $1,000. No sign of forced entry was detected by investigating officers.

Terry Tidwell of 2607 Illinois, told police he returned home from work shortly after midnight today and found his house ransacked and about $308 in cash and cassette tapes worth $90 missing. Entry had been gained by breaking a southeast corner window.

Items valued at least $130 were taken during a burglary of West Reproduction, 605 N. Baird, sometime between Sunday and Monday morning. Doug Wilmut reported the supply store was entered by breaking a southside window.

Crime Stoppers looks into house burglary

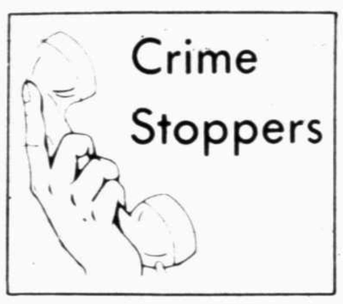

ODESSA — Information on a May burglary of an Odessa residence is being sought by Midland and Odessa Crime Stoppers this week.

The house, located at 2508 Bob White, was entered sometime during Memorial Day Weekend by breaking out a window and reaching in to unlock a door.

Reported missing from a gun cabinet were a 12-gauge Browning shotgun, a 20-gauge Browning shotgun, a Springfield 30-06, Winchester 30-30, Savage 300 rifle and a Marlin 22. Also taken during the burglary were a Canon AE-1 camera, two gold watches and cash.

Persons knowing of anyone trying to sell the weapons should contact Crime Stoppers. Any information given this week that results in the arrest and indictment of persons responsible is worth $1,000. All callers may remain annonymous.

To contact Crime Stoppers in Odessa, call 333-TIPS; in Midland, call 694-TIPS.

Area residents collide in Midland County crash

From Staff Reports

A 22-year-old Midland man and a 32-year-old Odessan were listed in good condition in Midland Memorial Hospital this morning after their vehicles collided in northwest Midland County, according to the Department of Public Safety.

William David Lampkin of Midland was heading west on Highway 158 in his '79 Toyota when he collided with a Ford pickup driven by James David Griffith of Odessa at the intersection of FM 1788 and Highway 158. Griffith was driving north on FM 1788 when the accident occurred at about 7 a.m.

Lampkin suffered facial and rib injuries, while Griffith was injured in the back, neck and shoulders.

Union pickets don't upset mayor

HOUSTON (AP) — City Mayor Kathy Whitmire wasn't upset by a group of 20 policewomen who picketed outside her home to protest a pay raise they consider insulting, a spokesman says.

The officers, all women who were off duty, demonstrated for about an hour Monday morning, said Bob Thomas.

While hesitating to attribute recent enrollment increases at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin to the opening of the road, UTPB Dean of Admissions Russ Monahan said "I don't think there's any question 191 is going to have an effect." The road ends at 42nd St. in Odessa, a road which borders the university on the north.

The lanes currently making up S.H. 191 and Loop 250 are projected to become access roads in the next five years, with new lanes built for the main roadways complete with interchanges and on and off ramps, said Nelle.

Nelle said S.H. 191's main lanes would be built when traffic grew to 15,000 vehicles per day.

Texas, Carlsbad district merge in water fight

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The state of Texas and the Carlsbad Irrigation District are challenging a decision by State Engineer Steve Reynolds to use water from the Pecos River to maintain a permanent pool at Santa Rosa Reservoir.

Attorneys for the irrigation district and Texas on Monday filed a petition in federal court at Albuquerque. The petition seeks to have the case heard in federal court, rather than in a state district court.

Reynolds approved the transfer of water rights from the Carlsbad Irrigation District to the Santa Rosa Reservoir on May 4. The reservoir is situated on the Pecos River, about 10 miles upstream from Santa Rosa.

The purpose of the water diversion would be to maintain a 510-surface-acre permanent pool for recreation and enhancement of wildlife habitat.

Reynolds' ruling would affect up to 4 percent of the Carlsbad district's water rights from the irrigation of 1,000 acres of land. The Carlsbad district uses the water for agricultural irrigation and contends that to use the water for recreational purposes would violate regulations for Bureau of Reclamation projects.

Reynolds issued his decision after the state Parks and Recreation Department applied for the water transfer.

The Carlsbad district and Texas contend Reynolds' ruling violates the Pecos River Compact. According to court records, the compact prohibits depletion of water in the Pecos River below 1947 conditions at the Texas-New Mexico Boundary.

FASHION

Margaretha Ley pairs full tweed skirts with deep dolman-sleeved pullover sweaters for fall.

Hearst Feature Service

Sweaters are the centerpiece of the fashion knitwear boom. The big buzzword for fall 1984 is "natural" — natural fibers of wool, mohair, cashmere, alpaca, angora and cotton.

It is these fibers that are bringing sophistication to fall collections as they interpret magnificent color and create beautiful tactile textures. They symbolize the luxury of the real thing. In a season sparked by luxurious sportiness, sweaters have emerged as a stellar staple by day and night.

One of the most positive things about European collections was the knits. The smartest trend to emerge was the long-over-the-hips sweater under the abbreviated waist-cropped jacket.

One sure-handed sweater interpretation came from Valentino, who translated the look into sweater-coats, luncheon tunics, suit blouses and dramatic full-length sequined cardigans.

Back in this country, the role of sweaters will be just as great. They'll partner in lively colors with jackets or other sweaters, serve as a tunic and act as a vest.

The most significant themes for fall '84 were the big, big sweaters, outsize in both length and width. There are vests of infinite variation of texture and patterns, a new look in sweater sets of cardigan or vest pullovers, and hand-knits of inspired stitchery.

T-square shapes with deep dolman sleeves will give a new freedom and flow to women's styles. Look for the geometrics to make a bold pattern splash in plaids, checkerboards, patchwork, tile motifs and a bonanza of stripes.

Fashion collections feature updated, upscale sweaters

Hearst Feature Service

There were mannish fashions in the fall collections previewed recently in Europe and America, and there were clothes that reflected the glitz and glitter of pure femininity.

Distinctly different, both images nonetheless had something in common: The Sweater, recently promoted to upscale status, played a starring role in almost all the parades of new clothes.

The sweatery fashions in both European and American collections featured details that updated them for the new season — batwing sleeves, for example, and padded shoulders. Also, there was great variety in the materials.

In Italy, the sweater influence ranged from the brilliant mesh knits of Gianni Versace, to Krizia's pullover with an enormous spread eagle across the front, to the shawl-collared Shetland jacket over a printed T-shirt by Moschini. The knitting mills in that country not only were kept busy by the top Italian designers, they also produced some of the best of the sweaters for French and American collections.

In Paris, Yves St. Laurent has a sporty super-turtleneck and a patterned knit top threaded with gold. Chanel has a collarless camel sweater that crosses over at the waistline, topped by a belt.

Per Spook, transplanted to Paris from Scandinavia, reflects his homeland in snowflake design cardigans. And, of course, Sonia Rykiel has updated versions of the innovative knit tops that have made her famous.

In New York, Bill Blass combines long torso cashmere pullovers with slipper satin in his couture collections, and a chain metal cardigan sweater trimmed in fur. He also features long, blousy cable-knits for the sporty Blassport line.

Perry Ellis makes them plain or fancy — the latter with abstract art designs. Adrienne Vittadini makes them big and bulky, in bold designs, and in several instances elongates her sweaters into long dresses. Gloria Sachs goes for cardigans and pullover sets that call up the look of V-necked tennis gear, only hers are of luxury cashmere.

Each designer does them in his or her own fashion. They're as different as the individual talents. But they add to the same fashion category: The Sweater. No other garment had as much international impact or as many interpretations, and certainly no other trendy garment can cross the line between man-tailored and feminine with such ease and versatility.

The sweater began to achieve status just a few seasons ago when designers started raising it from utilitarian to ultra-chic for both day time and evening.

The reasons were several: new techniques and new knitting developments, the introduction of new yarns and the use of metallics combined with wool or cashmere, the entrance of young, talented people into the cottage industries that had been unorganized groups of part-time housewife knitters, and, of course, the fact that some of the most famous creators of high fashion at long last recognized that here was a universally beloved garment with enormous but as yet unrecognized versatility.

When Paris' Rykiel and Rome's Laura Biagiotti and Milan's Missoni family began to produce luxurious sweaters — with price tags to match — before long they were being worn at smart luncheons and evening social events.

Then Mollie Parnis of New York made some four-figure priced sequined party cardigans, and Ralph Lauren countered with his understated English countryside hand knits, also pricey, and the sweater became a status style.

This year, the trend toward high fashion sweaters has reached such proportions that retailers apparently can't get enough from famous designers — they're adding some with their own label. Saks Fifth Avenue, for instance, has commissioned hand knitters in England to make a group exclusive to them, which will sell at from $300 to $600.

DEAR ABBY

Stolen candy leaves sour taste

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I walked out of a local department store when suddenly someone tapped me on the shoulder and said, "I'm with security; please give me the box you have in your purse and follow me."

I followed him back into the store and into the manager's office, where I was questioned for shoplifting a box of candy that cost 78 cents!

Understand, I am not a kid. I am 50 years old, the mother of five children. Should they learn of this, I would never be able to look them in the eye again. There is a hearing scheduled for a week from now. I will probably be fingerprinted, charged with shoplifting and fined about $50.

Why did I do it? I have asked myself that question a thousand times. I wish I could come up with an answer — any answer that would explain my actions. I did not enter that store with any thought of shoplifting. I didn't want the candy; I seldom eat candy. Then why did I take it? I have plenty of money to buy whatever I want. I've never stolen anything before, and I didn't get a particular "thrill" out of taking it.

Thanks for listening, Abby. I haven't been able to talk to anyone about this. I feel so lousy. — GUILTY AS CHARGED

DEAR GUILTY: Legally you are guilty of shoplifting, but there is a strong possibility that you are a "kleptomaniac." Definition: "one who has a persistent, neurotic compulsion to steal — especially without economic motive." It's a condition that can be treated. Get a lawyer and a doctor. And in that order.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Today's stars not likely to change names

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Years ago, agents reduced such names as Joe Yule, Frederick Austerlitz and Archibald Leach to tidbits for the trivia trove. They gave those actors snappy pseudonyms — Mickey Rooney, Fred Astaire and Cary Grant.

But today, stars are more likely to keep the names with which they were born. Mary Steenburgen is Mary Steenburgen. Jack Lemmon is Jack Lemmon. Jon Voight, Paul Newman and Jane Fonda also have their real names.

"Nobody cares about changing names. People don't care about names," said agent Bill Robinson of Robinson, Luttrell and Associates.

"These are dedicated actors (who say) 'You accept me the way I am and my name too. Changing my name is not going to make me a better actor,'" longtime Hollywood publicist Lee Solters said.

When actor Allen Garfield started out in show business, he took his stage name from the late film actor John Garfield, who had changed his name from Julius Garfinkle.

Garfield later decided he owed it to his parents to go back to his real name, Goorwitz. But after six years as Allen Goorwitz, he's back to Garfield.

His agent, Rodney Sheldon, thinks too many changes can hurt a performer's popularity, which depends to some extent on name-identification.

Some people didn't know that Allen Garfield, the shady wiretapper of "The Conversation" and kingmaker of "The Candidate," was the same actor as Allen Goorwitz, the harried screenwriter in "The Stunt Man" and the crusading publisher of "Continental Divide."

The change from Garfield to Goorwitz "knocked his entire TV-Q rating out in one second," Sheldon said. The TV-Q is a private show-business popularity rating service.

Garfield, 44, said the name he took in 1965 "started to weigh on my mind in the wake of both my parents dying. The only Goorwitzes that were left were me and my sister, Lois, and I figured if she gets married there aren't going to be any Goorwitzes on the scene."

So from 1977 until last December he was Goorwitz. Meantime, he lost 100 pounds, polished his image and skills as an actor and began to grow back into the larger-than-life Garfield name.

"I talked to a lot of people and finally made up my mind that I was going to enjoy the professional name of Allen Garfield again," he said in an interview. "I've got nothing to prove. I know who I am."

The Garfield name appears again in "The Cotton Club," "Teachers" and "Irreconcilable Differences" — all set for release this year.

Most movie actors retained their real names, such as Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn and James Stewart. But many others have made radical changes.

Here are the pseudonyms of some entertainers — and their real names.

— Michael Caine, Maurice Micklewhite; Dyan Cannon, Samile Diane Friesen; Doris Day, Doris Kappelhoff; Sandra Dee, Alexandra Zuck; Kirk Douglas, Issur Danielovich Demsky; Judy Garland, Frances Gumm; James Garner, James Baumgarner.

— Jean Harlow, Harlean Carpentier; Sterling Hayden, John Hamilton; Helen Hayes, Helen Brown; Barbara Hershey, Barbara Hertzstein; Rock Hudson, Roy Scherer; Boris Karloff, William Pratt; Michael Landon, Michael Orowitz; Jerry Lewis, Joseph Levitch; Sophia Loren, Sophia Scicoloni.

— Shirley MacLaine, Shirley MacLean Beaty; Karl Malden, Mladen Sekulovich; Walter Matthau, Walter Matasschanskayasky; Marilyn Monroe, Norma Jean Baker; Mary Pickford, Gladys Smith; Robert Preston, Robert Preston Messervey; — Roy Rogers, Leonard Slye; Martin Sheen, Ramon Estevez; Elke Sommer, Elke Schletz; and John Wayne, Marion Michael Morrison.

The fledgling "Goren Bridge Letter" scored a minor coup when its second issue beat the leading bridge magazines with its report on the Trials to select the U.S. team for the 1984 World Bridge Olympiad. The team led by Malcolm Brachman of Dallas won the right to represent the U.S. after a hard-fought battle that was decided only in the last quarter.

Here is one of the hands from the "Goren Bridge Letter" report. In the one room, the Brachman team had been content to play in game. In other room, their opponents reached slam via the sequence shown above. East-West were using an artificial club system, so the two club opening bid was natural and not forcing. South felt his hand was too good simply to overcall, and North's hand became stronger as the bidding progressed.

Against six spades West led a club and declarer ruffed in dummy. He drew four rounds of trumps as West sluffed clubs, then ran the queen of hearts to East's king. East shifted to a diamond.

Declarer rose with the ace and led a heart to the ace. When East failed to follow, declarer had little recourse but to try the diamond finesse. Down one.

There is an alternative line that would have worked. Declarer should win both high diamonds and then lead out his remaining trumps. As the cards lie, West will not be able to keep his guards in both red suits — he will be squeezed out of a heart or the queen of diamonds. However, if nothing good develops, declarer can then finesse the nine of hearts, for East's probable distribution is 4-1-2-6. By adopting this line declarer succeeds whenever the squeeze operates, or the queen of diamonds drops, or if West has the 10 of hearts.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge," will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. 'Pops' has another season

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Fiedler set the style four decades before television made the Boston Pops a summertime habit for millions of Americans. Today, although the maestro is gone, his spirit lingers.

"The Pops still presents itself with what I call a wide keyboard," said William Cosel, producer of public television's "Evening at Pops" series, which begins its 15th season Wednesday night with the orchestra's annual, live Fourth of July concert. "It's an orchestra that can do just about anything.

"Arthur always used to say, 'You've got to give the people what they want,'" Cosel said, "and that meant a mix of music — popular, light classic, movie and theater — as well as a variety of guest performers.

"And John Williams," he said, "has continued to do that."

Williams, an accomplished pianist who is better known as the composer of music for the movies "Star Wars," "Superman" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," took over after Fiedler died in 1979.

But Williams resigned this spring, and a July 8 concert in Symphony Hall will be his last with the Pops. Other new programs in the public TV series were taped previously.

It was Fiedler who first assembled the orchestra outdoors for the July 4th show, in 1929, and the concert on the Charles River Esplanade is a tradition that Williams has maintained. As in Fiedler's day, the concert still ends with cannons, fireworks and Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture."

The Independence Day program, performed before an audience of perhaps a quarter-million, will include selections from John Philip Sousa, Johannes Brahms and Leroy Anderson.

Less than a week later, "Evening at Pops" takes a regular Monday-night timeslot for the first of a dozen weekly performances from Symphony Hall in Boston. The July 9 program features singer Sarah Vaughan and trumpet player Wynton Marsalis.

"There have been a number of changes at Symphony Hall since Arthur's death," Cosel said, "and most of them have to do with putting the Pops on television.

"John was determined to improve the production in whatever way we could with sound and light," he said, "and I think that has enhanced the program for those who cannot be physically present in the hall."

Williams, an Emmy- and Oscar-winner for his TV and movie music (his most recent Academy Award, for best original score for a motion picture, was in 1983, for "E.T."), insists that "Evening at Pops" be as close to technical perfection as possible, Cosel said.

"Fiedler's tradition was more turn-of-the-century concertizing," he said. "He had no idea of the incredible technological backup required to do the show. The big difference is that John raised all of our sights to making everything sound and look better."

Fiedler, for instance, insisted on a new program every night. Cosel said, while Williams prefers less variety in favor of more accomplished work.

"The Pops (under Fiedler) never was geared to giving that kind of attention to detail and rehearsal," Cosel said. "It's not always easily perceived, but I think the orchestra sounds greatly improved."

Williams probably would not dress as Elvis Presley for a show featuring the late rock star's music, as Fiedler once did, Cosel said, or stride on stage in a raccoon coat to perform tunes from the '20s. "John would not do that," Cosel said. "It would not appeal to him."

The Boston Pops still plays in the "party" atmosphere created by Fiedler, Cosel said.

"You go to a concert, there's a moment of hush, and out comes the conductor," the producer said. "That means the audience is supposed to sit still through the program.

"Fiedler didn't do it that way," he continued. "He chose to start with a loud march, as if to say, 'Don't get uptight, folks.' He allowed an informality to a Pops concert, and that tradition continues."

In addition to the Esplanade concert, the upcoming season includes five new shows, featuring The Manhattan Transfer vocal quartet on July 16, opera singer Jessye Norman on Aug. 13, a program of Fiedler's greatest hits on Aug. 20 and singer Tony Bennett on Aug. 27.

World's beauties gather in Miami

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The world's most beautiful women will gather in Miami for the 1984 Miss Universe Pageant on Monday.

Bob Barker is host for the event, which will be teecast live on CBS. Joan Van Ark of CBS' "Knots Landing," is hostess and singer Tom Jones is the special guest star.

The pageant this year will attract 82 contestants from around the world to compete for the title and $175,000 in cash and prizes.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, July 4, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Those celebrating birthdays today are patriotic, confident and highly original! Author Nathaniel Hawthorne, President Calvin Coolidge, jazz great Louis Armstrong, songwriter Stephen Foster, and "Yankee Doodle Dandy" man George M. Cohan were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: columnists Ann Landers and Abigail Van Buren, Pittsburgh Pirates manager Chuck Tanner, playwright Neil Simon and New York Mets shortstop Jose Oquendo. Changes that take place this month will have a favorable effect on your financial fortunes. Keep your eyes open so that you will know the right time to make your move. Although romance has its rocky moments, it is mostly happy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Happy holiday! A long-awaited treat becomes reality. Domestic harmony reigns when you put family members' needs ahead of your own wishes. Get in touch with an old friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A great day for getting together with old and new friends. Plan to do your entertaining at home and keep expenses down. A close relative or neighbor will help with the cooking.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be subtle when trying to persuade others to accept your suggestions. Recent tensions evaporate when good friends get together. A parade or picnic delights all who are young at heart.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A generation gap disappears when family members of all ages celebrate the holiday together. Put business aside and enjoy the company of your loved ones. Romance needs more time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Romance is more rewarding than in the recent past. A pleasure trip is favored only if you will have an opportunity to conduct some business. Let your allies know your plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Happy Fourth of July! A casual get-together gives you a chance to exchange family news. Be discreet about a new romance or business deal. A Leo pays new attention to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Happy Fourth of July! A family picnic, baseball game or beach party appeals to both the young and the old. Do not run up a big phone call trying to reach elusive people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Celebrate this glorious day with your one-and-only. Marital ties deepen. A summer romance could turn out to be the real thing. Singles think about setting a wedding date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A family reunion makes this a lively and memorable holiday. Those who attend company picnics find lots of good fellowship. Make sure to pitch in and help with any clean-up chores.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Many of you would prefer celebrating the holiday alone with romantic partner to joining a large group. Be careful not to hurt an older relative's feelings. Diplomacy works wonders.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get an early start today to avoid traffic jams. A picnic beats cooking at home! A Leo makes an interesting disclosure. You begin to see him or her in a more romantic light.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A family gathering enjoys highly favorable influences. Give your loved ones an unexpected treat. Offspring are prepared to see things your way. Invite close neighbors to join the fun.

Volunteers dig for history near Custer's Last Stand

CROW AGENCY, Mont. (AP) — Don King was spending his 52nd birthday on his knees in tick and rattlesnake country, and he didn't come here to dig up any more lousy tinfoil.

King came to find clues about Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer's last battle, and as he moved on to another spot to dig, he hoped to leave tinfoil, wire, nails and other modern junk behind.

He sure could use a good bullet about now.

"Be prepared for a slug or a cartridge, three or four inches deep," said David Fouts, who swept his metal detector over King's next site. After King knelt and plunged his trowel into the ground, Fouts acknowledged, "There's also a chance of a little piece of aluminum foil."

The only way to know is to dig. That's what volunteers are doing at the Custer Battlefield National Monument in southeastern Montana, looking for clues into one of the most famous and grisly events in United States history: Custer's Last Stand.

Up to 25 volunteers a day walk the battlefield's rolling terrain with metal detectors and trowels. More traditional excavations are aimed at finding bones.

Already the dig, which began May 7, has found far more battle artifacts than anyone expected. At the halfway point it had more than 600, mostly spent cartridges and slugs. Unused ammunition, musket balls, steel arrowheads and buttons from cavalry clothing have also turned up. Skull fragments, arm and leg bones and other human remains found here came from soldiers, since the Indians removed their dead after the battle.

WIND AND RAIN had covered the items with a few inches of dirt in the 108 years since the deaths of Custer, his 220 or so men, another 40 men nearby under Major Marcus Reno and perhaps 100 warriors under Sioux leaders Crazy Horse and Gall.

Experts hope the dig will help answer some questions:

Exactly where did the Seventh Cavalry and the Indians maneuver and fight? Did the soldiers maintain skirmish lines or did they die in a rout? Did the Army burial detail leave the 28 men of Company E in a steep-sided ravine rather than burying them in the mass grave on Custer Hill?

"We're never going to know for sure what happened," said Jim Court, the monument's superintendent.

Digging is confined to the main parcel of monument land, which covers less than a square mile, only a small portion of the five-mile stretch where soldiers fought Indians in June 1876.

Most of the battlefield looks like a vast unmade bed, shot through with ridges and ravines that can swallow up roving archaeological crews in a few steps. It is green early in the season, and the grass is long enough to shimmer in waves when the wind blows.

THE QUIET scene still arouses strong emotions in some of the quarter-million visitors here each year. Some think Major Reno was a coward who didn't deserve to be buried in the nearby national cemetery in 1967. Some also object to the fact that a quotation on the wall of the visitor center, "Know the power that is peace," came from an Indian.

Much of the Last Stand's grip on the American imagination, of course, comes from Custer himself. Flamboyant and successful in battle, he had an "innate craving for the spectacular" and "hungered for the pomp and circumstances of war, for the blare of the trumpet," in the words of a 1932 issue of the North Dakota Historical Quarterly. Some believe Custer wanted to ride his glory all the way to the White House.

But his dreams ended at the Little Bighorn River, following orders to punish Indians for leaving the starvation of their reservations to hunt for food.

Custer badly underestimated the size of the Indian camp he saw in the distance when he arrived in the area with about 600 men. He split the soldiers into three battalions before advancing on the camp, which turned out to be one of the largest Indian gatherings in history. It contained 2,500 to 4,000 warriors.

IN THE END, most historians believe, Custer was surrounded in an indefensible position on what is now Custer Hill. The Army found his body among 42 that lay behind a desperate barrier of 39 horse carcasses, laid nose to tail. He had been shot in the left temple and chest.

Indian accounts and artifacts are the only hope for clues to this battle, which no soldier survived and which was not seen by cavalrymen at the other end of the battlefield. That's why Don King was digging so diligently a couple hundred yards from Custer Hill on his birthday.

In a few minutes he troweled out a hole nearly big enough to bury his baseball cap, but in the wrong place to find the metal that made the detector squeal. Fouts found a reading off to the side, and King started shaving away the side of his hole.

An antique gunsmith from Big Timber, Mont., King is a hard-core history buff, the kind of man who relaxes with a beer, a cigarette and speculation about a mound of fresh dirt in the background of an old photograph. Among the diggers, from all over the country, he's not alone.

"It kind of gets in your blood," said Ron Nichols, 49, a California electrical engineer who owns 300 books on Custer. He has made eight trips here to do things like walk the land to figure out troop positions from historical accounts.

"WE CAN'T let go," he said. "We keep coming back."

They bring a feel for the battle. Jay Scott, a historian from west of Billings, Mont., saw two unused cavalry bullets and a musket ball in a line along a hillside. A soldier could have dropped the bullets while running under musket fire, he said.

Terry Osborn, 43, a Billings artist, pointed to a few marble markers that purport to show where soldiers fell. To protect other cavalrymen who scrambled uphill behind them, he said, "they laid their butts on the line."

Rich Fox, co-director of the dig and a Ph.D. candidate in archaeology at the University of Calgary in Alberta, Canada, understands when volunteers build flesh and blood from metal and marble.

"They're just like me. They dig up a cartridge, they look up at Custer Hill and they say, 'God, it must have been a desperate fight.' They still feel it. It's 108 years later and they still feel it."

Fox and Doug Scott, a National Park Service archaeologist who's directing the dig, see the artifacts a little differently from most volunteers.

For Vernel Wagner, a 28-year-old artist from Big Timber, for example, finding a finger bone with a ring still around it was a lot more exciting than unearthing the boot nail and cavalry slug she'd turned up before. But to Fox and Scott, the more mundane findings might prove more valuable.

Volunteers scratch the soil on a hill at the Custer Battlefield National Monument in southeastern Montana recently. Diggers have found bones from a forearm with most of the wrist and palm bones nearby. The marble markers are not tombstones, but indicate the spots where soldiers were believed to have died during the 1876 battle against the Sioux Indians.

FDA scientists wary of aloe vera's reputed powers as healing plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 2,000 years ago, the armies of Alexander the Great sought a thick-leaved plant — a relative of the lily family — for its reputed healing powers.

But the aloe vera, long revered in folk medicine, fell out of favor in the last century with the rise of modern medicine.

Today it is making a comeback as Americans turn to home remedies again and skillful promoters market aloe products to treat everything from burns to constipation to skin cancer.

"Aloe vera has become popular because it has been around for a long, long time as a folk medicine. There has been a trend to more natural-type healing, so this falls into that category," said R.C. Benson, head of Aloe Laboratories of Texas, in Harlingen.

At the Food and Drug Administration, some claims being made for the plant and its products have raised eyebrows, but in most cases the promoters carefully phrase their pitch to stay within the law.

The government admits that aloe vera seems harmless and, in some instances, may even be helpful.

Mentioned in the Bible and reputedly used by Cleopatra as a beauty aid, aloe has been popular as an ingredient in cosmetics and suntan products for several years; the FDA reports that no problems or adverse reactions have been reported.

The government has paid more attention to medical uses of the plant. The plant has been evaluated by study panels investigating laxatives, anti-irritant medications and products used on minor burns, cuts and scrapes.

Although many Americans swear by the cut leaves of the aloe vera plant as an effective treatment for burns, the FDA concluded that there was not enough evidence to decide whether aloe works.

FDA spokesman Michael Shaffer said the agency classifies aloe as an "inactive ingredient" in burn products. The study group recommended more tests.

Max B. Skousen, head of the Aloe Vera Research Institute in Cypress, Calif., said the medical community has shunned aloe vera because scientists have been unable to figure out why it works.

He termed the product "an orphan of the bureaucratic system. Nobody can monopolize the products, therefore no one is going to do the testing on it."

Conditional approval of a gel made of aloe vera has been granted for use in treating vaginal irritation. That government study panel reported that the product is safe and seems to kill some microorganisms that cause itching and irritation, but complete effectiveness remains to be proved.

There was no question about the laxative effects of products prepared from aloin, the dried latex of the aloe plant. A study panel approved it for use on people aged 6 and over, although some reports say it may be unpredictable and can cause cramps.

Skousen said the laxative is made from the bitter yellow sap of the plant, something that has been known to Western medicine for centuries. But that irritant sap is not used in cosmetics or healing products which instead use the clear pulp of the plant.

Shaffer said there is some concern at the agency that while aloe products appear harmless, some claims made for them might lead consumers to forgo proven treatments for serious diseases.

Marketers stay away from making claims on their product labels that could result in government action. But some booklets on the market, while recommending medical attention for serious diseases, at least imply that aloe can help such serious problems as skin cancer, asthma, arthritis and ulcers.

Man finds boat of his dreams — 50 years later

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Clarke Taylor decided when he was a youngster in Anderson, Ind., that he would one day own a boat to enjoy. And he knew then exactly what it would be.

Fifty years later, he has his first boat — just as he always dreamed — docked behind his home on the Intracoastal Waterway here.

But Taylor's vessel, "Joe Jr.," has little semblance to the yachts and sailboats parked on this affluent channel.

That's because his is probably the only 50-ton tugboat that's being used as a pleasure craft in South Florida.

"At least no one runs over you in this boat," he says laughingly as a small yacht passes by, its occupants waving and pointing to the tug.

Taylor reaches for a lever in the wheelhouse to respond with a couple of short blasts on the ship's horn that reverberate across the waterway.

It was last year, Taylor recalls, that he decided to fulfill his childhood dream of owning a tugboat.

"When I was a kid, my family would take me twice a year to visit relatives along the Ohio River about 200 miles away. That's where I first saw tugboats. They're something to take a shine to."

His search ended in New Orleans where he found "Joe Jr.," about to be retired from years of pulling fuel barges on the Mississippi River.

The 50-foot ship was built in 1957 at Houma, La., and is powered by a V8 diesel engine. Its beam is almost 15 feet and it draws 6½ feet of water.

While most yacht owners are particularly proud of some electronic or luxurious fixture aboard their crafts, Taylor's pride and joy is "Joe Jr.'s" power.

"It has a 48-inch propeller and a 300-horsepower engine with a 5-to-1 reduction gear. That gives it 1,500 horsepower! It's a water-going bulldozer."

Another advantage of having a tug, explains Taylor, is the cruise range it provides.

Richard Nixon's story one waiting to be told

An Analysis

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — News of Richard Nixon, drip by drip by drip for a decade, has become a flood.

His journey from disgrace to exile to a still evolving attempt at resurrection was a story waiting to be told. And now, as Nixon and the nation approach the 10th anniversary of his resignation, a writer has done just that.

Since leaving the White House in August 1974, Nixon has popped into the public consciousness in fits and starts — his illnesses, TV interviews, visits to China and Europe; his struggles to find a place to live, a place for his papers, a place in history.

Periodically, there is a swirl of activity. A speech in backwoods Kentucky, a fund-raiser in Ohio for Republicans brave enough to have him. An occasional funeral for a world leader. A few, a very few, visits to the White House.

And, of course, Nixon's endless battles in the courts as others challenge the presidential privacy that he cites in maintaining control of his papers and the infamous Oval Office tapes.

Now resurrection is on in earnest: This spring's classic performance before an influential gathering of newspaper editors; the frequent commentary on the 1984 campaign; his observations, for a TV special, on television and the presidency; last January's meeting with the visiting Chinese vice premier.

Robert Sam Anson, in his aptly titled book, "Exile. The Unquiet Oblivion of Richard M. Nixon," tells of Nixon's last 10 years. Anson finds no point where it can be said, "Nixon is back;" rather, the re-emergence of the 37th president has been gradual. So gradual that it's hard to remember that a decade ago Nixon was the focus of a political firestorm; that he became the first man to resign the presidency.

Anson begins where Woodward and Bernstein's "The Final Days" leaves off: with Nixon's tortured farewell on Aug. 9, 1974, and the flight to San Clemente — half of it as president, half as private citizen. It ends on his 70th birthday in 1983 with Nixon increasing his activity and visibility.

Except for the first year of his exile when he was sick, Nixon's credo always was "never look back."

"Let me make just one thing clear," he told students at Oxford in 1979. "I'm not just going to fade away and live the good life in San Clemente, listening to the waves and playing golf."

He told a reporter: "Going through fire makes what is soft iron into steel."

He told another: "People who reach the highest levels in public life don't become obsessed with themselves, and thinking, 'Oh, my God, what are people going to be thinking of me,' and all that sort of thing. If they do, they're never going to be great leaders."

Nixon obviously thought of himself as one of the great leaders. He chafed in San Clemente and longed to move to New York, which he called "the fast track." Once there, he held carefully planned, high-powered "issues" dinners, always stag, off-the-record. He began showing up in the best restaurants; he traveled extensively, seeking out world leaders in China, then to Europe, and Africa.

His search seemed always for acceptance as a statesman. Once he complained to a friend that Jimmy Carter failed to grasp "the big picture in world affairs," and asked who the real strategic thinkers were. "Well, there's you," said the friend and Nixon responded, "Of course, but who else?"

Although Nixon was shunned by the Republicans at their 1976 convention, by 1980 he was giving advice to Ronald Reagan's campaign, some of it unwanted. He was offering guidance, much as he used to give presidential advice on strategy to football coaches.

Like it or not, Nixon was always news — even in events as innocuous as a visit with his grandchildren to Disney World. In a decade, he's gone from down, out and hated, to being a listened-to commentator on the world scene and a pundit on domestic politics.

It is, as Sam Anson says, that Nixon has come out of the desert and is "back in the arena again."

People gather to honor car with 'roving eye'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The 1948 Tucker Torpedo may be best known as the car with the roving eye — a center-mounted headlight that turned in tandem with the steering wheel. But attention to that gadget has overshadowed its luxury and safety features, its designer says.

The 51 Torpedos that were made had windshield glass that popped out during a crash, interior safety pads, four disc brakes and independent suspension.

Because the engine was in the rear, the Tucker had no transmission hump and thus a roomy interior and flat floor — like the front-engine, front-wheel drive cars of today.

Interest in the 48 Tuckers that still exist flourishes among a dedicated band of enthusiasts.

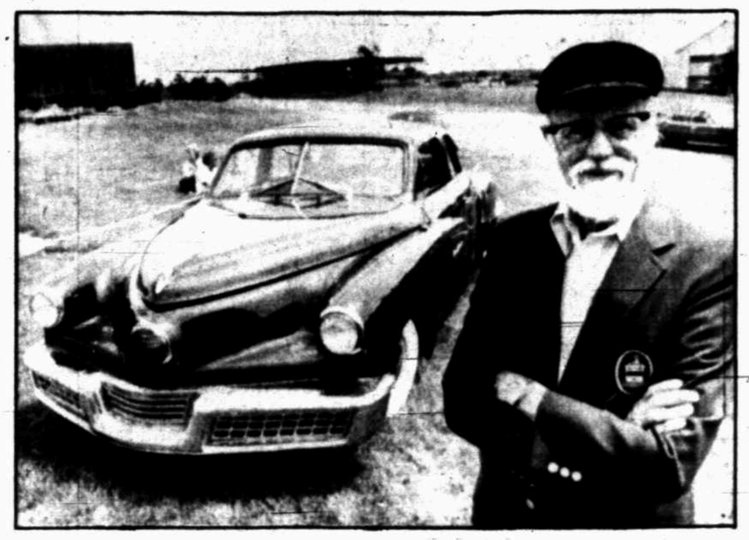

The Torpedo was the dream of Preston Tucker, who set up shop in an old aircraft plant in Cicero, Ill.

But production was stopped when the Securities and Exchange Commission took him to court on stock fraud allegations. Tucker was exonerated several years later, but by then the company had folded.

Tucker died of cancer in 1956 at age 53.

The car's designer, Alex Tremulis, 70, was the featured guest at a recent Ann Arbor convention where the first Torpedo to roll off the assembly line was displayed in mint condition to Tucker buffs for the first time.

Two dozen of the 100 conventioneers traveled to Flat Rock, Mich., and put 48 red carnations on Tucker's grave to commemorate 1948, the car's model year.

AP Laserphoto

Alex Tremulis, 70, designer of the Tucker Torpedo, left, was on hand last month when a small group of Tucker devotees got together in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The gathering was organized by Audrey Hodges, who designed the Torpedo's plush interior. Tucker lovers say she may have been the first woman to work full-time as an auto designer.

Tremulis, who went on to work at Ford Motor Co. and as a private consultant, said "a lot of fabulous thinking went into this car."

Detroit's designers today are "torturing innocent sheet metal," he said.

The Torpedo had aircraft-style doors of a design that later showed up in the Chevrolet Corvette and, most recently, the Ford Tempo.

Its six-cylinder Franklin engine weighed 300 pounds, put out 166 horsepower and would propel the car to 60 mph from a standing start in 10 seconds.

The rear-mounted engine was designed to be easily removed at a garage if it needed repair. The owner could drive off with a loaner engine until his own was fixed.

On the other hand, Tremulis described the Tucker as a 3,600-pound tank, weighing half a ton more than most of today's cars.

"Do you have any idea how much this thing weighs? Have you ever weighed it?" Tremulis asked the owner, car collector John Lemmo of Peninsula, Ohio, who works in the front office of the Cleveland Browns football team.

Lemmo said he had not weighed the maroon car.

Tremulis told the owners how he packed pound after pound of lead and solder into the steel front to fill out the body.

Lemmo found Tucker No.1 rusting behind a barn in Pennsylvania. Body man Arthur Ulatowski of Mantua, Ohio, spent 12 years restoring it.

Lemmo also owns Tucker No. 20.

He won't say how much he paid for the cars.

The Torpedo sold for $2,500 in 1948. Restored models have brought as much as $85,000, and some Tucker buffs estimate a perfectly restored one could bring $150,000.

Film director Francis Ford Coppola owns two Tuckers and Zoetrope Studios in San Francisco owns movie rights to Preston Tucker's life story, but a studio spokeswoman said there were no immediate plans to make the film.

Tucker favored seat belts, Tremulis said, but "it was very unpopular at that time to talk about safety belts," so they were left out.

'Telephone voice' generated by computer

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The stereotypical nasal voice of the directory assistance operator is being replaced all over the country with a voice generated by computer microchips.

Slowly but inexorably, telephone systems nationwide are installing computer equipment that generates a female-sounding voice that recites the requested number twice.

Forty percent of the old Bell Telephone system nationwide has the computerized audio response system, and all directory assistance offices will be using it by mid-1985, said Richard Keener, a district manager for Bell Communications Research.

The reason, quite simply, is economics. Operators can handle 25 percent more calls with the help of their computerized sidekick.

With the new system, an operator takes a call, finds the requested number on a monitor and then punches the information into a computer that could be a hundred miles away. The computer voice synthesizer repeats the phone number twice and then tells the caller to stay on the line if he or she wants to talk to a human again.

"It saves six seconds of working time per call for operators," said Dan Sanders, division manager of operator services for Bell of Pennsylvania.

"That may not sound like a lot But when you're getting 100,000 calls a day, six seconds adds up to a considerable amount of time," he said. Without the computer-generated voice, an operator uses an average of 25 seconds per call.

Company officials said callers using directory assistance seemed to be accepting the body-less voices.

Aussie 'sons' lose in new anthem

With some sexist words removed, "Advance Australia Fair" was designated recently as Australia's national anthem, replacing "God Save the Queen," which will still be played when members of the royal family are present.

The opening line, "Australia's sons, let us rejoice," was replaced with "Australians all, let us rejoice." And "For loyal sons beyond the seas" gave way to "For those who come across the seas."

One Hour Fast Photo, located in the Town and Country Shopping Center, offers high quality photo finishing in just one hour. Slower service does not necessarily insure better quality print, so why wait to get your prints back?

Each print at One Hour Fast Photo is given individual attention. Each negative is printed by hand by an operator so that adjustments can be made on the computer to give you the best possible print.

The adjustments that can be made will compensate for over or under exposure. The computer also has a color balance for the different types of film. Each brand of film has different light characteristics so the computer adjusts to give the best print possible.

Besides one hour color processing, Fast Photo also does E—6 slide and one day black and white processing. Black and white enlargements can be made up to 16x20. A 20x30 is the largest color enlargement available.

Fast Photo also handles over 65 kinds of film. Kodak, Ilford and Fuji are just a few of the brands carried.

Besides print and slide processing they offer passport photos in less than five minutes.

Mats, framing and albums are also sold at One Hour Fast Photo.

Next time you need your film processed quickly take it to the only fast photo service that uses Kodak paper. Take your film to One Hour Fast Photo in the Town and Country Shopping Center. If you have any questions give them a call at 699-5041.

Bob Hawk and Associates offers a you-haul-it concrete service

As Spring arrives in West Texas "do-it-yourselfers" are popping up all over. Some are putting in fences or building a patio while others are edging flower beds.

These are wonderful home improvement ideas but they all require concrete. To have a company send out a truck with a small amount of concrete is expensive. If you are asking yourself "what other alternative do I have?". The answer is Bob Hawk and Associates.

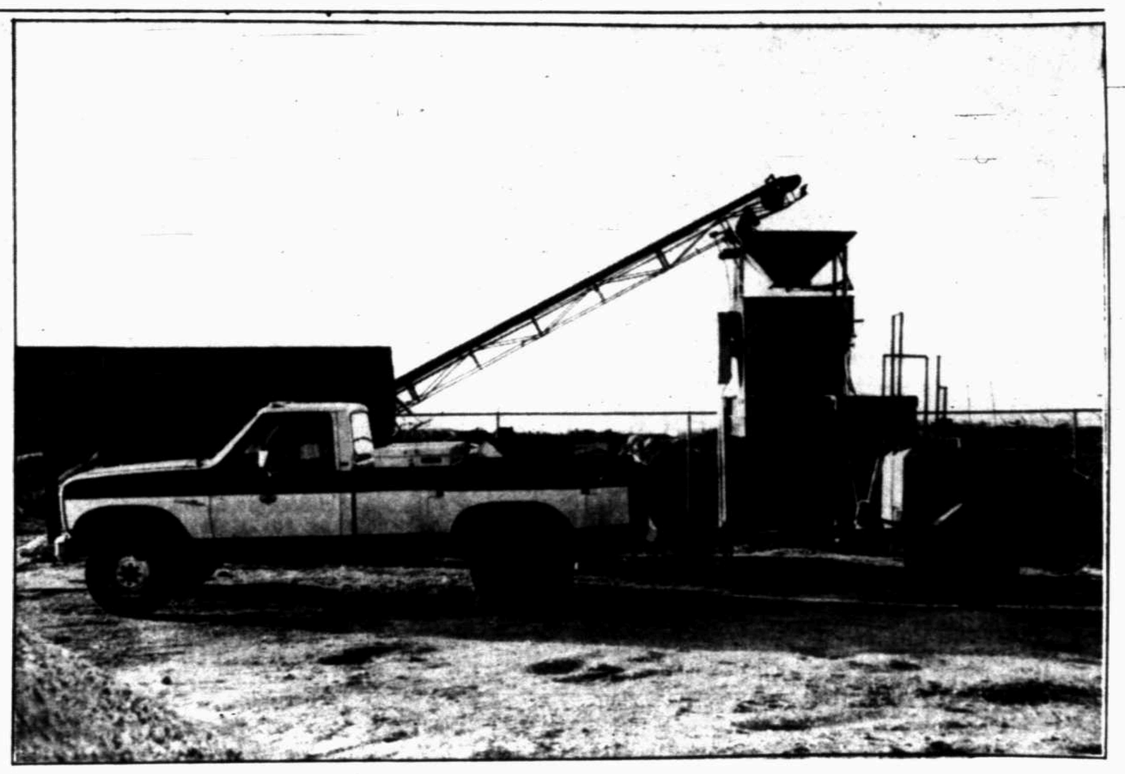

Bob Hawk offers do-it-yourself ready mix trailers. They will mix the concrete to the right consistency for you and furnish the trailer. All you have to do is hook up the trailer and drive home. Once you have emptied the trailer just wash the trailer out and return it.

Concrete is available in small amounts only which is usually all a do-it-yourselfer needs. You can get ¼, ½, ¾, 1 or 1¼ yards of concrete at a time.

This convenient service is available Monday through Saturday, 8am to 8pm and Sunday by appointment.

For you contractors that have a smaller job coming, Bob Hawk will be glad to help you out also.

If you would like to find out more information call Bob Hawk and Associates at 694-6572. You can pick up your concrete and furnished trailer at 5508 W. Industrial.

Bob Hawk and Associates now offer you-haul-it concrete for the do-it-yourselfers of the Midland area. If you need a small amount of concrete but do not want to pay the high price of having it delivered call Bob Hawk today at 694-6572 for more information on this new service.

British government rejects proposal for united Ireland ruled by Dublin

LONDON (AP) — The British government has rejected as unworkable a proposal for a united Ireland ruled from Dublin, as well as two other formulas drawn up by Irish Catholics hoping to end the sectarian bloodshed in Northern Ireland.

Instead of encouraging an Anglo-Irish initiative to end the conflict in the British-ruled province, Britain on Monday urged Northern Ireland's Catholic and Protestant political parties to agree on their own solution.

"I am absolutely convinced that it is better for the parties themselves within Northern Ireland to find common ground than for us to try to force it upon them," said James Prior, Northern Ireland secretary, conveying the Conservative government's rejections of the proposals.

The four main Roman Catholic political parties in the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland issued a report May 2, at the New Ireland Forum, recommending three strategies to try to bring peace to the province.

Protestant parties refused to participate in the forum.

One option was a united Ireland ruled from Dublin, capital of the Irish Republic. A second envisioned parliaments in both Belfast and Dublin under a federal arrangement. The third suggested "joint authority" over Northern Ireland by Britain and Ireland and dual citizenship for Protestants.

The Irish Republican Army has been waging a guerrilla war to wrest control of the province from Britain and unite it with the Irish Republic.

Prior, during a debate Monday in the House of Commons, urged the province's parties, both Protestant and Catholic, to arrange talks "without commitment" and said the government would avoid moves "designed simply to enhance the interests of one group or another."

Peter Archer, a spokesman for Britain's opposition Labor Party, welcomed Prior's call for talks but said the only way to bring peace to the province was unification with the consent of all parties.

In Northern Ireland, Protestants outnumber Catholics 2-to-1. The province's Protestant political parties generally have rejected suggestions that province establish stronger links with the Irish Republic, where Catholics are the overwhelming majority.

Prior sought to revive interest in the Northern Ireland Assembly, a consultative body set up by Britain in 1982 in a move to give the province more say in its affairs.

Catholic parties have boycotted the assembly, saying Protestants have too much power in it. The Official Unionists, the North's largest Protestant party, returned to the assembly in May after a six-month absence to protest what it said were inadequate measures against the outlawed IRA.

In Dublin, two suspected IRA outlaws were sentenced Monday in Special Criminal Court to prison terms of 10 years and 12 years after they were convicted of shooting at police during a gun battle in western Ireland in March.

Army's high command dismisses Bolivian official linked to coup

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The army high command has dismissed Bolivia's second-ranking defense official and declared him a suspect in an attempted coup against the government of President Hernan Siles Zuazo, an army officer says.

Defense undersecretary Col. Mario Oxa Bustos was ordered to report for an investigation of his role in the plot, said the officer, who spoke late Monday on condition that he not be named.

Oxa, who has had held his Defense Ministry post since Siles Zuazo took office in October 1982, is the highest-ranking government official implicated in Saturday's attempted coup, which began with the abduction of the president. Two former Cabinet ministers and about 100 right-wing military officers, policemen and politicians have been arrested.

Siles Zuazo, 70, was resting at his home Monday after hospital treatment for a hairline rib fracture suffered when kidnappers tied him to a bed in a vacant La Paz warehouse.

Cabinet Secretary-General Miguel Urioste said Siles Zuazo was beaten and thrown onto the bed when he struggled with the kidnappers. "The president is very tired. His ribs are bandaged and he is resting under doctor's orders," he said.

The army announced Monday that three military officers implicated in the unsuccessful coup, Col. Rolando Saravia, Lt. Celso Campos and Maj. Luis Aradaya, had been dishonorably discharged.

Saravia, the alleged ringleader, was reported to be in hiding. Campos, a military police officer, took refuge in the Venezuelan Embassy and Ardaya, an aide to Vice President Jaime Paz Zamora, was under arrest. Paz Zamora, on an official visit to Portugal, condemned the plot.

The six kidnappers surrendered Monday at the residence of the Argentine ambassador, where they were taken after Siles Zuazo guaranteed their safety. The Foreign Ministry said it had been unable to find a country willing to give them asylum.

Four other suspects sought refuge in the Venezuelan Embassy, and three took refuge in Uruguay's embassy. Neither country granted asylum.

Paraguay, ruled for many years by rightist dictator Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, has been the only country named as a possible destination.

Gustavo Sanchez, undersecretary of the interior, said Bolivia's cocaine traffickers were not directly linked to the attempted coup. However, he said: "There could have been cocaine money, or involvement by some officers linked with narcotics trade."

Salvadoran rightist parties criticize Duarte's first 30 days as president

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two rightist political parties, including one viewed as a possible ally of the new administration, have published stinging critiques of moderate President Jose Napoleon Duarte's first 30 days in office.

The National Conciliation Party, which remained neutral in a May 6 run-off election and dropped hints that it supported Duarte, published a newspaper advertisement on Monday entitled "Thirty days of bad government."

"Thirty days after taking power, the Christian Democratic Party has not been able to confront seriously or responsibly the national problems," it said in an ad published in the daily Diario de Hoy.

The ultra-rightist Republican Nationalist Alliance, or ARENA, ran an ad titled "In the last 50 years, a government and official party had never committed so many errors so soon."

Duarte took office on June 1.

During the past several weeks the two parties have joined forces to help hand Duarte a series of defeats. Shortly after Duarte took office the assembly appointed an ultraconservative attorney general and supreme court. Last Friday the assembly rejected Duarte's plan to extend a land reform program.

All three moves are considered serious deterrents to Duarte's government and could seriously weaken the power of his government.

The Republican National Alliance and two allied parties hold 29 seats in the 60-member assembly. The Christian Democrats and their ally, the Democratic Action Party, hold 26.

The National Conciliation Party's five seats are crucial to either side, and in the past month it has continually voted against Duarte.

The party's ad charged Duarte with "tyranny" and nepotism in firing hundreds of public employees and hiring party loyalists to take their place. It also said he had embraced classical "fascist" tactics by blaming El Salvador's mail strike on Communists.

A strike by about 1,800 postal workers, which entered its 36th day Monday, has paralyzed mail service throughout the country.

Guerrilla calls Nicaraguan elections 'farce'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaraguan guerrilla leader Eden Pastora, still limping from wounds suffered in an assassination attempt, says elections scheduled by Nicaragua's leftist leaders for November are in danger of "being a farce."

Pastora appealed at a news conference here Monday for the United States and Western Europe to bring pressure on the Sandinistas to adopt a series of electoral reforms, including easing press restrictions.

"We seek establishment of effective democracy in Nicaragua as the only way to put an end to the bloodshed in our country and ensure peace in Central American," Pastora said.

Pastora, who was injured in an assassination attempt May 31, was still limping and walked with the aid of a cane. He told reporters he didn't know whether he was the victim of a plot by the "extreme left or the extreme right" but denied he had ever accused the CIA of being behind the attack.

Pastora said the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance (ARDE), which he heads, has 8,000 guerrillas fighting against government forces in southern Nicaragua. However, it has been widely reported that the CIA has cut off aid to Pastora because he has refused to join with guerrilla forces of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force (FDN) in northern Nicaragua, who do receive CIA support.

Pastora said his forces, which he said are not aligned with anyone, will fight on alone, if necessary.

Pastora said he and a group of other opponents of the Sandinista government are seeking "an international consensus" to pressure the government to meet their election demands and bring about true democracy in Nicaragua.

Judge frees priests, church workers, ends murder case

BACOLOD, Philippines (AP) — A judge freed two foreign priests and six Filipino church workers today, formally ending a multiple murder case that had strained church-state relations in the Philippines.

Priests Brian Gore of Australia and Niall O'Brien of Ireland and six Roman Catholic lay workers walked out of their cells at a provincial jail to the cheers of hundreds of other inmates.

The priests had been jailed since January and the lay workers for 14 months. All were accused of the 1981 ambush killing of a mayor and four aides.

The church workers claimed they were framed by military authorities protecting sugar plantation owners on Negros Island, 350 miles south of Manila. The churchmen had been organizing sugar workers to seek improved working conditions.

Dissident pleads innocent

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — A dissident reported to be in the seventh week of a hunger strike pleaded innocent at the start of his trial on charges of anti-government activities.

Vojislav Seselj was arrested May 22, after police searched his apartment and seized unpublished manuscripts of his writings. If convicted, he faces a maximum 15-year prison sentence.

He was charged with "counterrevolutionary activities imperiling the social system" of this nonaligned Communist country. In a three-hour statement at the opening of his trial Monday, Seselj called the charges "fabrications."

China OKs resort club

PARIS (AP) — Club Mediterranee, the French resort company, has announced a preliminary agreement with China to open a vacation village in South China near Hong Kong.

The village, which will begin operating in about 18 months, will be in Shenzhen, one of the special economic zones set up by the Chinese government. The village will accommodate 280 guests and have a nine-hole golf course.

Former Israeli president 'deeply offended' by Soviet interrogation

PARIS (AP) — Former Israeli President Ephraim Katzir said today he was "deeply offended" over being interrogated for an hour and a half by the Soviet secret police after he was prevented from visiting a Soviet Jew in Leningrad.

Katzir said Soviet authorities were aware he was a former president and suggested the interrogation "might have been a message to the refuseniks and any future or potential refuseniks."

Refusenik is a term used in the West to describe Soviet Jews who have been refused permission to emigrate.

Katzir, who was detained in Leningrad on Sunday, arrived in Paris from Moscow today and told an airport news conference he had merely intended "to bring regards and a few simple gifts" to the Soviet Jew from his family in Israel.

He declined to identify the man but said it was not Yaacov Gorodetsky, whose name was reported in the Israeli media.

Katzir, 68, an internationally known biochemist who works at Israel's Weizman Institute, was in Leningrad for a scientific meeting.

"The interrogation started out with some pretty tough questions," Katzir said. "They wanted to know every step I had taken while I was in Russia. They dumped the contents out of my wife's handbag and looked through all of them, and they examined the few gifts that we were taking to the man."

"For themselves, they took a diary with pictures of Israel, a book of songs about Israel, and some Israeli coins. They gave us back the prayerbook and some pencils."

"After it became clear we weren't carrying any secrets or anything, they became nicer and suggested we take a taxi back to our hotel," Katzir said.

Katzir, Israel's fourth president from 1973 to 1978, said the incident began when he and his wife took a taxi to the man's house and were confronted by three KGB agents who prevented them from entering the apartment.

"One of the three spoke Hebrew and he said, 'Look here, as it became known you were going to visit this man, about 30 people who are refuseniks gathered'" at the apartment, Katzir said.

"I told them, 'You should know that I was the fourth president of Israel,'" Katzir said. But the Soviet agents took him away anyway for questioning at a nearby police office.

Katzir said that as he and his wife were being put in a military jeep, "one of the refuseniks came runing after the jeep and said, 'Look, I'm a refusenik. I want to go with them. I've already spent one year in jail and I don't care.' But the KGB men just brushed him away."

Katzir, speaking in English, described reports that he had intended to participate in a meeting of dissident Soviet Jews as "really nuts."

"I came as a guest of the Soviet Academy of Science. Do you really think I am going to protest?"

He claimed to have only the vaguest notion of the political status of the man he wished to see, and that he only decided to visit him at the request of the man's family.

Asked if he knew the man was a refusenik, he replied: "Not exactly. I knew he was interested in Israel and the Zionist movement, so I thought he might very well be."

Israel releases five more ferry passengers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (ap) — Five Lebanese passengers from a ferry boat intercepted by the Israeli navy four days ago were released by Israeli authorities and crossed into Lebanon this morning.

Three male passengers and one woman were still being held. There was no word on their whereabouts or when they might be released.

Four men and one woman were escorted across a border crossing in two International Red Cross cars after spending the night in a guest house on the Israeli frontier.

Israeli authorities forced the Alisur Blanco ferry, which was traveling from Cyprus to Lebanon, to the port of Haifa on Friday. All but nine of the 63 passengers were released Saturday.

The five passengers freed today said they were blindfolded and interrogated at length by Israeli authorities.

All five said they knew nothing about the international terrorist Carlos, who had been rumored to be on the boat, and said they were not questioned by Israeli authorities about him.

Venezuelan-born Ilyich Ramirez-Sanchez, known as Carlos the Jackal, is wanted in a series of terrorist attacks, including the 1975 kidnapping of oil ministers at the Vienna conference of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and the 1972 massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics.

In Beirut today, the government prepared to deploy about 8,000 troops to take over the capital from Christian and Moslem militias.

Officials said two infantry brigades and one armored brigade have been told to be ready for the takeover, along with a U.S.-trained helicopter battalion.

Syrian-backed Prime Minister Rashid Karami's coalition government was scheduled to convene Wednesday to launch the operation, according to the officials. They declined to be named.

The sources said the plan calls for the army's 5th and 6th brigades to fan out in Christian east and Moslem west Beirut on Wednesday, reopen all crossings between the two sectors on Thursday and reactivate the city's port and airport on Friday.

The 8th brigade in the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb and the helicopter-borne battalion were put on alert to support the brigades in case they run into militia resistance, the sources said.

Christian, Druse and Shiite Moslem militia commands — the principal antagonists in Lebanon's civil war — have pledged to cooperate and withdraw their fighters from traditional warfronts in and around the capital, along with their heavy arms.

Druse militiamen withdrew many of their heavy weapons to their Chouf Mountain strongholds southeast of Beirut in the past three days.

The nation's only permanent memorial to the men who created the Declaration of Independence was dedicated Monday in Washington. The site, called "Signers' Memorial" is in West Potomac Park.

Signers of Declaration of Independence honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 56 men who laid the foundation of the United States by signing the Declaration of Independence now are memorialized in a Washington park, their signatures engraved on 56 pink granite blocks.

The new monument, in Constitution Gardens between the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument, was dedicated Monday.

"It is a grand occasion in which we recognize these 56 individuals who rose above personal concerns to unite — as the colonies themselves would unite — to achieve a common goal based in untested principles of liberty, equality and justice to all," said Mary Lou Grier, deputy director of the National Park Service.

Added Sen. John Warner, R-Va.: "These men lived up to their promise and many suffered the consequences in loss of fortune, loss of health and loss of life, but never in loss of honor."

The granite blocks from Minnesota are arranged in a semicircle on a small island in the park, with the signatures from the Declaration cut into the surface of each block and highlighted with gold leaf.

The blocks curve in an arc facing the water, surrounded by lawn and shrubs and nearly invisible from nearby streets.

Designer Joseph Brown said his aim in the $255,000 project was to create a contemplative setting where people could rest and reflect on history — a memorial that would be fitting, but which would not intrude on the pastoral park.

"The Signers of the Declaration Memorial is a special reminder that there is strength in unity," said Ms. Grier at the dedication ceremonies.

Most people think of the Declaration in terms of Thomas Jefferson and John Hancock, she commented. "It is too seldom that we think of the shared responsibility of the 56 men who risked everything, together, so that we might live, as we do today, in the greatest nation on earth," she said.

As a reminder of the risk taken when the delegates voted to approve the Declaration on July 2, 1776 — it was formally ratified two days later — the entrance to the new memorial bears the final words of the famous document:

"And in support of this Declaration with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

Directors reach tentative accord with producers

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Directors reached tentative accord with film and TV producers and the three networks Monday night, apparently averting a first-ever strike which could have crippled coverage of this summer's Olympics and political conventions.

The national board of the 7,300-member Directors Guild of America recommended acceptance of contract proposals forged during a weekend of bargaining that continued until Monday night, when guild members began voting on the contract.

"We're happy there is no work stoppage and we feel that we have achieved an adequate package for our members," said Gilbert Cates, the guild president.

West Coast guild members voted on the tentative package and approved it overwhelmingly, said guild spokesman Richard Claussen. Members in New York must still ratify it in voting on Tuesday.

On the West Coast, the vote for the part of the package covering free-lance directors was 1,989 in favor, 126 opposed. For network directors, it was 174 in favor, 18 opposed.

At a press conference after the membership meeting, Cates was asked how Sunday's 25-0 vote by the national board rejecting what was then the producers' latest proposal turned to Monday's night's settlement.

Actor says key is being 'natural'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Actor Wilford Brimley says the key to his performances in such films as "Tender Mercies," "China Syndrome" and "The Natural" is, well, just being natural.

"I am the character I play," says Brimley, who once earned his living training and shoeing horses.

Although known as a character actor — he was a baseball manager in "The Natural," a plant manager in "China Syndrome" and managed a country singer in "Tender Mercies" — Brimley says's he not sure exactly what that means.

"I never really understood those terms — 'star' and 'character actor.' Robert Redford is as good a character actor as there is," he said. "Right now, I'm out of work. If a good year does that to you, I don't want any more of them."

NEW YORK (AP) — It was kicked off by Dizzy Gillespie, J.J. Johnson and Benny Carter and soared and sailed through a 10-day run that Kool Jazz Festival impresario George Wein called "the best festival we ever had."

"We didn't have a dead concert and we've always had some dead concerts, where we have 500 or 600 paid admissions," Wein said after the festival closed Sunday night. He said ticket sales were the highest in the 30-year history of the event.

Spyro Gyra and Bob James sold out two concerts at Avery Fisher Hall the same night Sarah Vaughan sold out Carnegie Hall.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, whose life sentence for triple murder was the subject of the Bob Dylan song "Hurricane," has been transferred from a maximum to a medium security prison, officials said.

"It's a routine inmate move as far as we're concerned," James Stabile, a spokesman for the Department of Corrections said Monday.

Carter was moved from Trenton State Prison to Rahway State Prison on Friday, Stabile said, adding that "He's done a lot of time and he doesn't need the security of Trenton."

Carter, 47, once a top middleweight boxing contender, and John Artis, were convicted in 1967 of killing a white bartender and two white patrons at the Lafayette Bar and Grill in Paterson on June 17, 1966.

The nation's only permanent memorial to the men who created the Declaration of Independence was dedicated Monday in Washington. The site, called "Signers' Memorial" is in West Potomac Park.

Signers of Declaration' of Independence honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 56 men who laid the foundation of the United States by signing the Declaration of Independence now are memorialized in a Washington park, their signatures engraved on 56 pink granite blocks.

The new monument, in Constitution Gardens between the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument, was dedicated Monday.

"It is a grand occasion in which we recognize these 56 individuals who rose above personal concerns to unite — as the colonies themselves would unite — to achieve a common goal based in untested principles of liberty, equality and justice to all," said Mary Lou Grier, deputy director of the National Park Service.

Added Sen. John Warner, R-Va.: "These men lived up to their promise and many suffered the consequences in loss of fortune, loss of health and loss of life, but never in loss of honor."

The granite blocks from Minnesota are arranged in a semicircle on a small island in the park, with the signatures from the Declaration cut into the surface of each block and highlighted with gold leaf.

The blocks curve in an arc facing the water, surrounded by lawn and shrubs and nearly invisible from nearby streets.

Designer Joseph Brown said his aim in the $255,000 project was to create a contemplative setting where people could rest and reflect on history — a memorial that would be fitting, but which would not intrude on the pastoral park.

"The Signers of the Declaration Memorial is a special reminder that there is strength in unity," said Ms. Grier at the dedication ceremonies.

Most people think of the Declaration in terms of Thomas Jefferson and John Hancock, she commented. "It is too seldom that we think of the shared responsibility of the 56 men who risked everything, together, so that we might live, as we do today, in the greatest nation on earth," she said.

As a reminder of the risk taken when the delegates voted to approve the Declaration on July 2, 1776 — it was formally ratified two days later — the entrance to the new memorial bears the final words of the famous document:

"And in support of this Declaration with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

Directors reach tentative accord with producers

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Directors reached tentative accord with film and TV producers and the three networks Monday night, apparently averting a first-ever strike which could have crippled coverage of this summer's Olympics and political conventions.

The national board of the 7,300-member Directors Guild of America recommended acceptance of contract proposals forged during a weekend of bargaining that continued until Monday night, when guild members began voting on the contract.

"We're happy there is no work stoppage and we feel that we have achieved an adequate package for our members," said Gilbert Cates, the guild president.

West Coast guild members voted on the tentative package and approved it overwhelmingly, said guild spokesman Richard Claussen. Members in New York must still ratify it in voting on Tuesday.

On the West Coast, the vote for the part of the package covering free-lance directors was 1,989 in favor, 126 opposed. For network directors, it was 174 in favor, 18 opposed.

At a press conference after the membership meeting, Cates was asked how Sunday's 25-0 vote by the national board rejecting what was then the producers' latest proposal turned to Monday's night's settlement.

Actor says key is being 'natural'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Actor Wilford Brimley says the key to his performances in such films as "Tender Mercies," "China Syndrome" and "The Natural" is, well, just being natural.

"I am the character I play," says Brimley, who once earned his living training and shoeing horses.

Although known as a character actor — he was a baseball manager in "The Natural," a plant manager in "China Syndrome" and managed a country singer in "Tender Mercies" — Brimley says's he not sure exactly what that means.

"I never really understood those terms — 'star' and 'character actor.' Robert Redford is as good a character actor as there is," he said. "Right now, I'm out of work. If a good year does that to you, I don't want any more of them."

NEW YORK (AP) — It was kicked off by Dizzy Gillespie, J.J. Johnson and Benny Carter and soared and sailed through a 10-day run that Kool Jazz Festival impresario George Wein called "the best festival we ever had."

"We didn't have a dead concert and we've always had some dead concerts, where we have 500 or 600 paid admissions," Wein said after the festival closed Sunday night. He said ticket sales were the highest in the 30-year history of the event.

Spyro Gyra and Bob James sold out two concerts at Avery Fisher Hall the same night Sarah Vaughan sold out Carnegie Hall.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, whose life sentence for triple murder was the subject of the Bob Dylan song "Hurricane," has been transferred from a maximum to a medium security prison, officials said.

"It's a routine inmate move as far as we're concerned," James Stabile, a spokesman for the Department of Corrections said Monday.

Carter was moved from Trenton State Prison to Rahway State Prison on Friday, Stabile said, adding that "He's done a lot of time and he doesn't need the security of Trenton."

Carter, 47, once a top middleweight boxing contender, and John Artis, were convicted in 1967 of killing a white bartender and two white patrons at the Lafayette Bar and Grill in Paterson on June 17, 1966.
