BULLETIN.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 25.—(AP)—More than 20,000 fans will cram Kyle Field here tomorrow to witness the gridiron classic of the season when the Texas University Longhorns and the Aggies meet.

By BLONDY CROSS
Record News Sports Editor

"It's an Aggie year!" shouted dopsters over the southwest conference shortly after the current grid season swung under way.

And, "It's an Aggie year, a few still faintly aver as the greatest two-team conference race in history of the organization nears the finish down at College Station today where E. J. THE WEATHER

"Papa was goin' to teach me how to box but after his bridge fell out he said he would wait till I got better judgment."

LYRICS OF LIFE.
By Douglas Malloch.
Let Me Be Thankful.

Let me be thankful for the things
That God has given me,
Not other blessings that He brings
I want my soul to see.
I would not only count my own,
Nor thank the Lord for these alone,
But I would thank Him for the worth
Of all the things on all the earth.

I could not very well be glad
If you had little cheer,
I could not look upon the sad,
Some sorrow that was near,
And coldly say, "Well, I, at least,
Shall have the joy and have the feast—
I'm glad to see that I am blest,
And so much happier than the rest."

The weather in Wichita Falls for the past 24-hour period as recorded by the Wichita Falls Electric company is as follows: Maximum 71; minimum 55; present temperature 65; precipitation zero; northeast breeze; cloudy; average wind velocity 8.5 miles; barometer 28.90.

SCENES AT TAYLOR WELCOMING DAN MOODY

Herewith is the art on the highway scandal, threatened legislative session and political upheaval at Austin. The center picture is the camera's version of Attorney General Dan Moody's reception when he passed through Taylor shortly after Frank Lanham and his associates had confessed a $600,000 judgment for the American Road company in Travis county district court. Taylor had a brass band and a crowd out and Dan was hailed as the next governor of Texas. Lanham, ex-head of the highway commission, and another member, Burkett, are shown in group together with "Ma" Ferguson and her husband, once impeached as governor of Texas, who last year upon his wife's election to this high office announced he would be the "wood and water carrier." In the upper right is Lee Satterwhite of Panhandle, speaker of the house, who has served an ultimatum upon "Ma" demanding an extra session. The half column cut, lest you forget, is no other than Representative King of Throckmorton who was the first to issue a call for the special session of the legislature, and all on his own initiative. He told the Record News at that time that it was "headlines in the newspapers," especially news from Houston which had moved him to issue a call since "virtue was asleep and vice rampant throughout the land."

Wichitan Assured Moody Will Guard Capital Of Theft

L. E. Cowling, real estate dealer, wrote a letter to Attorney General Dan Moody the other day asking him to ascertain if there was a mortgage on the Texas state capital building.

"If you find there is no mortgage be sure to see that nobody steals it," concluded Cowling in his letter.

Yesterday Assistant Attorney General May, answering Mr. Cowling's letter, stated that Attorney General Moody just now was in Washington, but that upon his return Mr. Cowling's caution would be brought to his attention and that Mr. Cowling could rest assured steps looking to safeguarding the state house would be taken in the event no mortgage of any kind now protected it from theft.

CHEST FILLED ALMOST--AFTER THIRD CANVASS

Total of $51,230 Is Announced Wednesday Night by Workers

Wichita Falls last night had filled its 1926 community chest to within a few inches of the top and had progressed to the point where, when a $51,230 total was reached for the first three days of solicitation, campaign officials felt justified in remarking definitely that "it's going over."

At 6 o'clock last night a grand total of $51,230 had been reported to campaign headquarters at the chamber of commerce. This is as yet unofficial and is subject to revision when a final audit is made of captain's reports. No appreciable difference will be shown one way or the other, it is thought and there is now no doubt but that the goal of $55,000 will be reached when the clean-up activities are concluded.

More in Sight.

In support of this contention, the following facts were pointed out:

No subscriptions have as yet been received from the school teachers who heretofore have always donated liberally.

No subscriptions have as yet been received from labor unions who always have and are now taking an active interest in the drive.

No subscriptions have as yet been received from a number of prominent business men who are out of the city and who have not been seen by solicitors.

No subscriptions have as yet been received from several large branch busines houses locatedt here who are required to write into home offices elsewhere before making a subscription.

Funds from the free-will offering to be taken in behalf of the chest at the union Thanksgiving services today are not accounted for.

These various fields yet to be exploited, it is pointed out, can hardly fail to yield the $4,770 needed to make the full amount. Campaign leaders realize, though, that to reach the mark they must continue an aggressive drive and plans are already under way to do this.

A follow-up committee will start out Friday morning to run down all prospects who have not been found and it will continue this work indefinitely untiy every man whose name appeared on the original lists has been seen. The committee will also make it a point to see or cause to be seen all other groups in the city who may not have been assigned to any particular team. There are a number of industrial concerns, the refineries, for instance, that have not yet been approached for individual contributions. The railway shops are another classification that will be approached.

It was estimated last night that fully 5,000 individual pledges have been made. Four thousand con-

CREDIT MOSES AS FIRST WHO COMMANDED A THANKSGIVING

Came Then the Greeks, Romans and Saxons in The Order Named

LINCOLN PERPETUATED

Since Then it Has Always Been the Last Thursday In November

By PEGGY PIEDMONT
Written especially for the Record News

TODAY all of America will observe its one spiritual holiday. And Wichita Falls will not be an exception. It is the one holiday when all Americans unite as Americans regardless of creed or belief in spiritual thanksgiving.

Although Thanksgiving day is recognized as a purely American holiday, originating in the colonies, the idea itself is older than America. Thanksgiving as a public feast is a very old institution and can be traced back to the earliest times, it always having as its idea the celebration of a successful harvest and was always appropriately celebrated with feasting and prayer.

Moses Was First.

What was probably the first Thanksgiving day decree was isued by Moses when he established the feast of the Tabernacles. He commanded the people not only to give thanks to the Lord for their successful harvest, but to feast and make merry. The Greeks also had their Thanksgiving day which they called Thesmorphin when thanks were offered to Demeter, the goddess of corn and harvest. In Rome a similar feast was held and dedicated to Ceres, the godless of the harvest. In England, the Thanksgiving celebration can be traced back to the time of the Saxons when it was called Harvest Home.

The first Thanksgiving service in this country was held in 1578 on the coast of Newfoundland by an English minister named Wolfall in Frobisher's expedition to that colony. To Governor Bradford, however, goes the honor of inaugurating in the new world a Thanksgiving day as a day set apart for prayer and feasting, for this reason Governor Bradford is one of the new governors whose names have become immortalized in history.

First in U. S. 1621.

In 1621 Governor Bradford proclaimed his first Thanksgiving day in the colonies, in order to show gratitude to the Almighty after a plentiful harvest which had followed a time of scarcity and depression. To provide the feast he sent men out in search of game. They returned laden with wild fowl, principally turkey, and the housewives spent three days preparing the feast.

Early in the morning on Thanksgiving day, the cannon on the hill protecting the settlement fired salute to the first Thanksgiving day in America. Then followed the solemn and interesting procession to the meeting house. After thanks was offered, the feast began. A band of friendly Indians headed by Chief Massasoit, joined the colonists in the celebration and added great haunches of venison to the feast. The soldiers of that romantic captain, Miles Standish, entertained the assembly with songs.

So successful was the Thanksgiving day that the Pilgrims repeated the celebration during the following years, but not regularily. The incentive for the celebration was either a splendid harvest or the arrival of a goodly laden ship or a victory over the Indians in one of those frequent conflicts. It was not until several years later that

SANDS WARM FOR MASKAT'S CLASS TODAY

Fall Ceremonial to Be a Colorful Affair For Shriners

The sands are sufficiently hot to warm the heart of the most callous Noble; all plans are made; figuratively, the stage is set.

Maskat temple was ready and waiting last night for today's dawn to bring annual fall ceremonial time. Officials asserted themselves as satisfied with all arrangements that have been made, and only the weather man remains as an unknown factor. Fair skies, of course, are wanted; but if these are denied the work will go ahead just the same with a little inconvenience being the worst that can develop.

Sort at 10 a. m.

Registration of candidates will start Thursday morning at the office of Al Ellis, recorder of Maskat temple. This will occupy the time from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. At 10 o'clock a business meeting will be held, and at 1 o'clock all novices must be assembled in Faith lodge room.

The big parade is scheduled to start promptly at 2 o'clock in the afternoon with Lester Boardman as marshal. Potentate W. W. Gardner has made a special plea that all Nobles appear in the line of march; and to make it more effective he has sanctioned threats of dire vengeance to be wreaked by Boardman on all red-fezed gentry who seek to watch things from the curb. Patrol officials and a hard-boiled strong-arm squad will be in readiness to use physical persuasion or even worse on those who decline to march.

Novices, of course, will be in line. That is obligatory. Some of them will march; some will "ride," or rather, be "transported;" but they'll all be there for the civic proletariate to see and laugh at.

The parade will be headed by Maskat band and the uniformed bodies. The divan will be there and a new feature never before staked will be the inclusion of a number of crippled children who are being given medical treatment through financial aid of the Shrine. The line of march will start from the corner of Tenth and Scott, east on Scott to Indiana, north on Indiana to Seventh, west on Seventh to Scott and south on Scott to the starting point.

Most of the dirty work will be

105 Clemency Petitions Signed for Thanksgiving By Governor

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP) All records for clemency granted in Texas during a like period, were surpassed tonight with the announcement of 105 proclamations by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, effective for Thanksgiving Day, bring her total record made public to 1,126 since her inauguration January 20, 1925.

Population Now 3,462

These 105 clemency petitions reduced the Texas prison population to 3,462. Forty-eight full pardons, 49 conditional pardons, seven paroles and remission of one fine, constitute the woman governor's Thanksgiving bounty to Texas convicts. Two of the full pardons and seven of the conditional pardons were granted women. The proclamation shows that 27 were convicted of murder, manslaughter and assault to murder and that most of the convicts have served the greater portion of their sentences.

209 Full Pardons

Since she took office, Governor Ferguson has issued 209 full pardons, 460 conditional pardons, 67 paroles, 131 restorations of citizenship, 188 furloughs and extensions of furloughs; revoked 18 furloughs and paroles; remitted 22 bond forfeitures; remitted 22 jail sentences and fines; commuted seven death sentences to life sentences and granted two reprieves.

Full pardons announced tonight follow:

Bubbe Bollar, Potter county, served 10 of 15 years, pandering.

R. L. DAENNAN, WICHITA, TWO TO 10 YEARS, THEFT.

Dan S. Dove, McLennan, two years, forgery, tubercular.

Della Davis, Jasper, served four of a five-year sentence, manslaughter.

Armour Dunlap, Hays, two years, forgery.

Curtis Dyer, Grayson, five years, robbery.

Joe Hawkins, Crosby, one year, liquor.

Jim Hearny, Houston, 25 years, criminal assault, friendless and penniless.

Rufus Hood, Cass, 20 years, murder.

Zack Hunter, Harris, burglary, 10 years, served nine. Friendless and penniless.

E. M. Hall, Red River, five years, manslaughter.

Harvey Cochran, Hill, one year, liquor, poor health.

Thurman Smith, Hunt, served seven of 15 years, criminal assault, friendless.

Jim Perkins, Cass; two years, liquor.

Claude Poe, Calahan, two years, liquor, wounded over seas soldier.

F. L. Prewette, Harris, served six of eight years, criminal assault.

J. F. PRATHER, ANTTMGUE, SERVED FOUR OF FIVE YEARS, BURGLARY; WIFE AND SIX CHILDREN DEPENDENT.

R. J. Pitts, two years, liquor, mistaken identity.

Link Rollins, Brasoria, served nearly all five years, robbery by assault, mother in "necessitatious condition."

D. S. Rowan, Hale and Freestone, theft and forgery.

ALICE'S MOTHER DRAGGED INTO TRIAL'S SLIME

Court Hears Kip's Mother-In-Law Indiscreet at Age Of 18 Years

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 25. (AP)—Recalled to the witness stand today after a brief respite from his week-long ordeal, Leonard Kip Rhinelander reiterated previous statements that Alice Jones had told him before their marriage that she was white.

The recall of the plaintiff followed Supreme Court Justice Morschnauser's announcement granting the plaintiff's request to amend the original complaint by charging that Alice defrauded Rhinelander by failing to tell him she was of negro blood.

Previously the complaint had charged that she told him she was white.

Three members of the Jones family and one relative by marriage were called as defense witnesses.

Grace and Emily, sisters of Alice, said the color question had never been brought up in their presence on any of Rhinelander's frequent visits to the Jones home. Mrs. George Jones, white mother of Alice, also said she had never heard Alice tell young Rhinelander she was white.

Robert Brooks, negro butler and husband of Emily, told of a friendship between himself and young Rhinelander. They had called each other "Bob" and "Len," he said.

During cross examination of Mrs. Jones by Isaac N. Mills, chief counsel for Rhinelander the pitiless light that has hitherto played on the lives of Rhinelander and his negro wife revealed an indiscretion committed by Mrs. Jones 35 years ago in England.

At the close of court Mr. Davis gave out a written statement which said: "The disgusting and unnecessary degradation of Mrs. Jones, the mother of Alice Rhinelander in forcing her to admit an indiscretion committed at the age of 18 years, is the most disgraceful spectacle I have ever seen or heard of in 20 years at the trial bar."

"MA" GOES TO AGGIELAND TO SEE FOOTBALL CLASSIC TODAY

Joe Burkett Is Called Before Criminal Probers Wednesday

FERGUSONS SILENT

Once Again They Refuse To Make Statement On Session Ultimatum

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP) On the eve of Thanksgiving Day, a lull followed the most critical period in Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's administration.

Tense atmosphere of the past three days, in which two members of the highway commission, Frank V. Lanham, chairman, and Joe Burkett, resigned, fifty-two members of the house of representatives, demanded the calling of a special session of the legislature by Dec. 10, and Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the house, announced he would call a special session by Dec. 15, was dissolved tonight.

Events of today were:

Appearance of Joe Burkett before the Travis county grand jury, which has been investigating the highway department for two months.

Announcement that the grond jury would make a report on its findings Saturday when it reconvenes, following a two day recess.

Statement by M. H. Hagaman of Ranger, member of the house, that he favors the calling of a special session by Dec. 10.

Decline of Governor Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, to make a statement on the proposed special session of legislature.

Statement by Lee Satterwhite that, inasmuch as the federal government made appropriations for state highway aid, it would be entitled to investigate the disposition of the funds, as requested in Washington today by United States Senator Earle B. Mayfield of Texas.

Remarks by Joe Burkett that he was summoned by telephone to appear before the grand jury, and that he was glod to go as "I have nothing to conceal." He was before the jury two hours, and was the only witness to appear today.

Thus with Governor Ferguson and her party departing for College Station to see the annual football game between the University of Texas and Texas A. and M. College, a quietude settled over the capitol.

More applications by telegraph have been received for appointment to the highway commission, but it was indicated that the governor would long consider before making appointments.

Smithville Wins Katy Shop Suit

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Writ of error was denied the M. K. T. Railway of Texas today by the supreme court in the case of the Katy vs the state, and the railroad will be compelled to maintain divisional headquarters, machine shops, office equipment and terminals at Smithville. This action terminates a long contest in the courts of Texas.

The suit was filed in the 53rd district court of Travis county, by the attorney general of the state. The trial court granted a writ of mandamus requiring the railroad to maintain offices, shops and headquarters at Smithville as on January 1, 1913. The third court of civil appeals affirmed the judgment.

LANGHORN'S APPEAL UP

Hidden Insanity Is Plea of Girls Slayer For New Trial

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Hidden insanity was presented today to the court of criminal appeals as the major reason it should grant a new trial and change of venue to William Langhorn Jr., under death sentence from Fayette county for murder February 18, 1925 of Valera Zapalac. Two other death penalties, those of Canuto Silva and Gerardo Zamora, convicted of robbery with firearms in connection with killing of Meyer Redmond in Hidalgo county, were submitted.

Crime Increases; Cops Rule Traffic

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP) Coincident with the efforts of the Washington police to unravel and enforce an ever changing multitude of traffic regulations, a crime wave has swept over the capital.

Daylight holdups, heretofore rare in Washington, have become an almost daily occurrence. Residences as well as stores have been robbed and in one case a bandit spent an hour in a private residence trussing up the occupant, his wife and the maid, and then made away with jewelry and other valuables using the owner's automobile to accelerate his departure.

Turkey Trimmings Costly In London

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Americans in London celebrating Thanksgiving may eat turkey costing less than chicken does, but this economy will be lost in buying of sweet potatoes, cranberries, pumpkins and other Thanksgiving trimmings.

The price of turkey on the markets here ranges from one shilling four pence (32 cents) to one shilling ten pence (44 cents) while chicken averages two shillings (48 cents) a pound. Cranberries cost one shilling four pence (32 cents) a pound, sweet potatoes ten pence (20 cents) a pound and pumpkin six pence (12 cents) a pound.

Ban On Exchange Charge Is Upheld

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—(AP)—The regulations issued by the federal reserve board prohibiting national banks and non-member clearing house banks from charging exchange on checks drawn upon them and forwarded through federal reserve banks for collection and the law under which the action was taken were in effect sustained today by the supreme court.

HANDSOME HOTEL SEYMOUR TO HAVE FORMAL OPENING CEREMONY THURSDAY NIGHT

New Hostelry Is Fine Addition to Northwest Texas Hospitality

SEYMOUR, Texas, Nov. 25.—The New Hotel Seymour is receiving its finishing touches for the opening on Thanksgiving day. The building will be open for inspection from 2 to 5, and in the evening dinner will be served to some 200 guests. After this there will be a program, put on by the chamber of commerce.

The Hotel Seymour is owned by E. A. Newman, formerly of Quanah, a man of many years experience in the hotel business. He will live here and manage the hotel. The new hostelry would do credit to a town many times the size of Seymour.

The three-story building has frontage of 125 feet on North Washington street, located just north of the municipal building. The building has 55 rooms and all the guest rooms are on the outside. The furnishings are of high grade. The floors have Wilton carpets, and each room has hot and cold running water, individual telephones and steam radiators, and about half are equipped with private baths. The upper floors are reached with an electric elevator.

The spacious lobby, with its terrezo floor and handsome furnishings, will be one of the nicest in this part of the state, and the same can be said of the dining rooms. Many visitors will be here from other towns to celebrate this big event in Seymour's history.

Texas News Briefs

VERNON—The program has been arranged for the union Thanksgiving service which will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the Central Christian church. The Rev. Burke Culpepper, evangelist, who is conducting a meeting at the Methodist church, will preach the sermon.

VERNON—A would-be hi-jacker had the tables turned on him when he attempted to rob Melvin Briley. Briley grabbed the barrel of the gun, and suffered a burned hand when the gun was discharged in the scuffle which followed.

HASKELL—Ground has been broken by the Haskell hotel company, incorporated, for the erection of a $50.00 hotel. The same contractors have begun work on a business house of modern construction for County Clerk Menefee, on the public square. Eight cottages and bungalows are now under construction here. Rent houses are in demand.

ALTUS—In a break from the Jackson county jail, five of the 11 prisoners escaped, according to Sheriff Lee English.

WAURIKA—Dedicatory services were held in the new Baptist church Sunday with the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Thos. J. Doss. All other church services in the city were dismissed for the occasion.

BOOM IN RUBBER TRADE.

Wild Excitement on London Exchange Due to Heavy Buying.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Although spot rubber remained unchanged at 4s 6d (about $1.08) per pound, there was wild excitement on the stock exchange today, with dealings in rubber shares recalling the boom conditions of years ago.

Dealers found greatest difficulty in executing the orders which accumulated over the week-end as well as in keeping track of the prices.

Danger Signals Of Indigestion

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year when your system needs all of its healthy vigor to withstand colds, flu, and other winter ills.

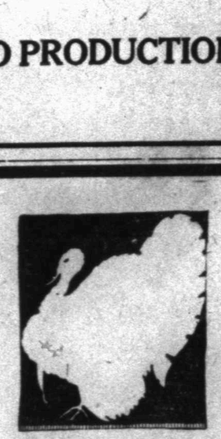

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical books tell us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes, pain and fluttering around the htart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestian—you are too apt to lose. If you have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Ferraline, Nature's great stomach treatment that has given relief to thousands. Ferraline immediately aids and assits every one of your digestive organs, including your stomach, liver and bowels. Ferraline makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effects from the very first dose. eGt a bottle of Ferraline today at any drug store. 300 Years

THREE centuries have passed since that first fervent Thanksgiving offered up in an untamed wilderness by the band of hardy and courageous Puritans who had braved the perils of the seas to reach a land of freedom.

It has been 300 years of progress and rapid civilization. Each century has been the development of more resources, on the surface of the land and below it. The years have seen the New World changed from a primitive land to the most modern and prosperous of the nations.

The hardships and inconveniehces endured by the Puritans have vanished with invention and discovery. Life has been made easier and happier.

Not far from the top of the list of discoveries is natural gas and its use in the home and in industries. This modern resources has brought to homes a degree of comfort and convenience never known before. It has, too, enabled every class to enjoy it, for it is comparatively inexpensive.

It is only one of the things we should be thankful for on this day, but it is one of the most important.

LIGE GRIFFITH'S FEARS OF DEATH AT GRIFFIN'S HANDS ARE TOLD TO JURY AT TRIAL

Accused Slayer of Ranchman Lays Basis for Self-Defense Plea

ARCHER CITY, Nov. 25.—The story of Lige Griffith's fears of death at the hands of Herbert Griffin, Archer county rancher, who was shot to death on the streets of Dundee, was told in district court today where Griffith is on trial for Griffin's murder.

After only four witnesses had testified for the state, the defense put on about 10 witnesses whose words bore to the jury the agony of Lige Griffith's fears of death, following his testimony in the trial of Herbert Griffin for the death of Hugh Reilly in 1924.

Guards had been placed at the Griffith home, in Dundee, where Lige had moved from the Reilly farm because he feared trouble with Griffin, witnesses said.

Describe Tragedy.

Eye witnesses told of the shooting of Griffin, and other witnesses told of the circumstances leading up to the tragedy, after which Griffith is said to have sworn: "That—has run it over me long enough."

Mrs. Griffith, wife of the defendant, testified that she had seen Griffin and another man drive by the Griffith home one night, and of a later prowling near the Griffith home of men in the darkness.

Defense counsel announced the Griffith himself would take the stand Thursday. Judge H. R. Wilson said court would be held on Thanksgiving day, and on Thanksgiving night, if ecessary, in order to allow farmers and business men on the jury to get back to their work as early as possible.

Self Defense.

The defense began laying its self-defense plea with the questioning of some of the first witnesses.

J. E. Robbins, an eye witness to the shooting, and first witness put on the stand by the state, said during cross examination, that Griffin reached to the bottom of the car to strike a match shortly before the fatal shot was fired. This was in response to a question by attorneys for the defense who asked if Griffin did not make a suspicious move shortly before the shot was fired.

As Griffin lay in the street dying, he urged that his friends search him to see that he was unarmed, Robbins said. He said he was standing by Griffin's automobile talking to him when he saw the defendant drive up in a wagon.

When the shot struck him, he got up out of the car and stumbled and fell in the street, Robbins said.

Mrs. Griffin was on the sidewalk when the shot was fired and seeing her husband, fled to him, Robbins testified. He said he heard Griffin ask that Dr. Lee be called and that he be searched to show that he was unarmed.

Hear Griffith's Words.

A. W. Maxwell, the next witness, said he saw Griffith drive by, but did not notice him further until he heard Mrs. Griffin scream and run to her husband.

"That—has run it over me long enough," Maxwell said he heard Lige Griffith swear.

George Ancell, a ranchman living near the Griffin place, described the wounds on Griffin's body. He said the bullet entered the right side just above the belt and penetrated the intestines.

Mrs. Herbert Griffin was the last witness called by the state before it rested. She testified briefly as to the manner in which her husband met his death. Mrs. Griffin wept continuously while on the stand.

Lawyers On Stand.

Leslie Humphrey, a Wichita Falls lawyer, was the first witness for the defense. He said he was a special prosecutor in the trial of Herbert Griffin, when he was on trial charged with the murder of Hugh Reilly, Jr., on May 15, 1924. He said as soon as it became known that Lige Griffith was to be an important witness in the case that Griffith came to him and appealed for protection. He said Griffith's reputation for truth and veracity was good.

James V. Allred, brother of district Attorney Ben Allred, the prosecutor, and himself former district attorney, testified that during the Griffin trial Griffith had come to him and asked for protection from Herber Griffin. E. T. Duff, a Wichita Falls lawyer, said the defendant had appealed to him for protection from Griffin.

Chester Morgan, former cashier of the Dundee State Bank, was called, but on objection of state's attorneys, his testimony was not allowed to reach the jury.

Sheriff Sent a Guard.

Ed Goodwin, former Archer county sheriff, told of his having sent one of his deputies to guard the home of Lige Griffith shortly after the death of Hugh Reilly.

Charlie Hunt, an ex-deputy sheriff, told of his having stayed in the Griffith home for about ten days, on Griffith's request. He said he saw Griffin and another man drive by the house one night and later heard shots. The next morning he said he showed Lige Griffith a card which he had found near the Griffith home. The district attorney objected to a recitation of the contents of the card, and his objection was sustained under the hearsay law.

Newt Newman said Griffith had told him he feared Griffin. Joe Smith of Dundee, a close friend of Griffith's, said Lige had told him he was afraid of Griffin. He said he disliked Griffin because he had been "sort of distant" to him (Smith.)

Mrs. Griffith on Stand.

Mrs. Lige Griffith took the stand for a few minutes during the afternoon. Her testimony regarding the passing of Griffin and another man, near the Griffith home one night, coincided closely with that of Hunt. She said she later saw a man whom she could not identify, near the house, and saw a ray from a flashlight in the barn.

Griffith's condition was reported much improved at the opening of court today by Dr. J. T. McCurdy and Dr. J. M. Hooper, who said they were of the opinion Griffith was able to endure trial.

THANKSGIVING

the celebration became an annual affair in Massachusetts and several of the colonies followed suit.

The Sopth Followed.

In 1830 the governor of New York issued a Thanksgiving Day proclamation and other northern states followed. The south inaugurated its Thanksgiving when Governor Wise of Virginia elected a day of special thanksgiving. Five other southern governors followed the Virginia governor's example, the next autumn.

The continental congress issued several Thanksgiving day proclamations. Washington also issued these proclamations for general thanksgiving by the continental army. The first national proclamation was issued by Washington's predecessor as head of the nation under the title of First Citizen and a resident of the these United States in congress assembled. This was the first official Thanksgiving day to be observed in the nation and the reason for it was in celebration of the victory of Yorktown over Cornwallis which virtually ended the revolutionary war. It is pleasant to realize the first and official national Thanksgiving Day was held to celebrate the birth of America as a nation.

The civil war interrupted the celebrations, but undaunted, in 1863, a Mrs. Hale sent President Lincoln a copy of Washington's proclamation of 1789 and urged him to appoint a national and regular Thanksgiving Day. Lincoln did so and since then every president has appointed the last Thursday in November as a national Thanksgiving Day of prayer and feasting.

LOCAL MAN WEDS IN VERNON.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at 9:30 Sunday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Alger in Vernon when Miss Evelyn Alger became the bride of William E. Latnam of Electra. Only a few friends and relatives were present. Miss Mabel Sandusa was bridesmaid and Charlie Alger, brother of the bride, best man. After the ceremony the young couple came to Electra where they will make their home, occupying a home the groom had ready furnished for his bride at 115 North Electra Street. Both young people are prominent.

JOHN BRUCE HYDE HONORED.

Mrs. Bruce Hyde honored her son's ninth birthday with a party at her home when about forty children were guests. The guests were seated at a long dining table in the living room where the cake was cut. Keith Keller was fortunate enough to get the dime, while the penny went to Albert Frank Fisher. Ice cream and cookies were served.

Electra Man Dies Of Auto Injuries

ELECTRA, Nov. 25.—Chloma Loran Echols, 23, who was injured Tuesday night when an automobile struck him while he was standing on the road one and one-half miles west of the city, died in Electra hospital at 1:45 a. m. A wife and two small sons and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Echols, who reside on a farm five miles north of town; three sisters, Mesdames J. R. Wilson of Winters; Cora Belle McKinney of Cottle county, and R. W. Wilson of Oklahoma, survive. His wife will be remembered among the younger set as Miss Rosie Wadlow.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the First Baptist church, with Rev. E. M. Francis, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating. Burial will be in the local cemetery.

Mr. Echols has lived in and around Electra for the past 14 years.

HEADLIGHT CAPS TAKEN FROM DEER HUNTERS

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Three headlight caps taken from the head of deer hunters in Wilson county by T. E. Sammons, special deputy game warden, are on display here in the office of Turner Hubby, game and fish commissioner. The caps are of canvass and of latest design, J. R. Smith, chief clerk said. Hunting deer with a light carries a minimum penalty of a $50 fine and revocation of hunting license.

JAY GOULD AND HIS MILLIONS

Jay Gould left behind him a fortune of $80,000,000. He named George J. Gould and three of the Gould children trustees of his estate, with George J. the head of the family and the chief executive.

Referee O'Gorman has just returned his verdict after a continuous performance of a year or more which involved the management of the estate and its gains and losses. Frank J. Gould and the Duchess de Tallyrand, who are now trustees of the estate, something more than a year ago demanded an accounting, and alleged that their dead brother, George, had been guilty of gross mismanagement.

The O'Gorman decision makes the four trustees liable for about $50,000,000 loss in the estate of the father, that Jay Gould who was known in his time as the wizard of the rail and the most daring operator Wall Street had known. Under the decision, the four trustees, the George J. Gould estate, Howard Gould, Edwin Gould and Mrs. Helen Gould Sheppard, would have to pay $12,000,000 each into the Jay Gould estate.

George J. Gould married a second time. His widow not long ago married the eldest son and heir of the Earl of Middleton. It is said the decision will deprive the second wife of Gould and their three children of their claims to the $14,000,000 estate of George J. Gould. This consists principally of property in the state of New Jersey.

All the seven children of George J. Gould will gain more than a million dollars each by Referee O'Gorman's decision. Edwin Gould will suffer to the extent of having to pay $12,000,000, or one-fourth of the sur-charge, and Howard and Helen Gould Sheppard, the other trustees will have to pay $12,000,000 each to the Jay Gould estate.

Of course, the grand-children of the late Jay Gould will not suffer by the decision. All the money will be kept in the family, but the woman who became the second wife of George Jay Gould and their three children, may not get a dollar from the estate of George Jay Gould and the Jay Gould will made it impossible for either the second wife or the three children to share in his vast fortune.

An American oil seeker in Mexico was responsible for the trite saying, "Wherever there is oil there is hell." It must be true that wherever there is a large estate in the hands of executors or trustees, there is hell and a lot of cost attached when the dis-satisfied ones break into the courts of the country. There are fat fees for the lawyers in this long drawn out Gould case.

It is said the referee received $500 a day for 14 months continuous performance, and the 40 or 50 lawyers who represented the litigants, will receive huge slices in the shape of retainers or fees when the mellon cutting takes place.

Gone are the Gould railroads; going are the Gould millions. Dame Fortune is the capericious old jade. She makes them today and she smashes them on the morrow.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR CONSERVATIVES.

Federal election returns in Australia indicate a great victory for the conservative party and a decided step-back for the labor party. It is also interesting to note that the liberal party is wiped out.

Labor has been all powerful in the elections in Australia in recent years. Now the conservatives are in the saddle and this will put a quietus on radical education.

Conservatism is uppermost in nearly every land under the sun, except in France, where the socialist and communists are powerful factors in political activities and the conservative voters appear to be in a hopeful minority.

Australia lawmakers a year ago, enacted a new measure or statute. They provided a penalty of $5.00 for the non-voter, to be collected by the agents of the government. Upwards of a million qualified men and women failed to vote at the recent election, and now if all the fines are collected, the treasury of Australia will be enriched to the extent of $5,000,000.00. This for Texas lawmakers. There are two million men and women of voting age in Texas.

Why not a compulsory voting law with a handsome penalty provided for the offenders. If there are persons unwilling to pay poll tax, why not compel them to pay poll tax. If there are indifferent voters who refuse to go to the polls on election day, educate them to their duties as citizens by imposing fines.

This will get them after a time, and there will be more money for road building purposes.

THEY CARE FOR THEIR OWN

New York has an organization known as the Federation for the Support of Jewess Philanthropic Society. A call went out for $4,000,000 to carry on the work, and the Jewish people of New York, high or low, rich or poor, raised the $4,000,000 in four days. Dollars speak louder than words.

Uncommon Sense

WITH THE LEFT HAND

"I took my boy to the circus," said a father, "to show him the advantage of training.

"I wanted him to understand what people can do by persistent effort and practice.

"I thought if he watched the acrobats, while I told him how their muscles had been developed by constant use, so that they could do things he could not possibly do, he might try to develop his own muscles, and with them his mind."

"I suppose you didn't want to go to the circus yourself," said the Doctor.

"Oh, yes, I rather enjoy it. I liked it as a boy."

"Well, you might have let your boy enjoy it too, instead of bothering him with lessons the while. You could have found a much better example of what training will do without going to any circus—and he would have had the example before him throughout his life, too."

"What do you mean?"

"Isn't your boy right handed?"

"Certainly. All normal boys are."

"Very well. Let him study his right and left hands. They supply all the lesson he needs."

"The right hand can do all sorts of things the left hand cannot do because it has been trained to do them.

"It does them only because it has been so trained, following a natural inclination which was inherited.

"Any boy can train his left hand as well as his right, so that it can do exactly the same things, and do them just as well.

Every pianist is an example of that so is every one who is compelled for one reason or another to train both hands in the same way.

"I have a brothr who was born left handed. Because most people are right handed, writing implements are fashioned for them, so that they are difficult to handle by left handed people.

"So my parents taught my brother to write with his right hand. But he still used his left hand now and then, with the result that he can write equally well with either hand.

"If the left hand, which is naturally disposed to let the other hand do all the difficult work can be made to overcome its objection to work, surely a boy can be trained mentally and physically to overcome his disinclinations, even if he happens to be what is called backward.

"The athlete may supply him with a goal, but he can find the same illustration of the value of training at the ends of each of his arms.

"Let him consider that he is a left hand and that other boys who are considered more expert are right hands.

Then let him overcome the awkwardness that is in him as he can overcome the awkwardness of his left hand.

"He will begin to develop, and if he is persistent he will be many times as quick and alert and 'handy' as he was before the experiment. But when he goes to th circus, let him enjoy himself. Recreation is a needful part of a boy's education."

CREDITOR NATIONS UNPOPULAR

From the end of the Napoleonic wars down to 1914 Great Britain, as the world's chief creditor, was none too popular in neighboring countries or on this side of the Atlantic. The feeling of the borrowing nations was not unlike that of the rural West and South today toward the more capitalistic East, and it explains in part the fondness of our politicians in the past to cast slurs on Britain and things British.

But now, as a result of war's vicissitudes, Britain and the United States are changing places. Foreign governments owe us $10,000,000,000, and new foreign loans are being floated here at the rate of more than $1,000,000,000 a year. Britain has obligated herself to pay us $11,000,000,000 in 62 years; Italy will pay us $2,400,000,000, and France is expected to pay perhaps $6,000,000,000 more. These obligations will not contribute to the popularity of America overseas, especially as their burden will increase in coming years.

Great Britain is meeting her commitments scrupulously, but with difficulty conceals a grimace as she pays. European politicians are showing the same fondness for plucking feathers from the American eagle's plumage that our own politicians have shown heretofore for twisting the tail of the British lion. Before the war the portrayal of Uncle Sam with a leanness approaching emaciation was not inappropriate. The disproportion between his height and girth was symbolic of his rapid growth. Now that he is becoming corpulent he will discover that the world does not love a fat man. His new affluence will have its drawbacks and penalties.

FIVE BILLIONS FOR BUILDING.

Five billion dollars for building purposes in 1926. This is astounding news, but it is vouched for by those who know all about building activities and the signs of the time.

They have made an estimate of the cost of the building program of investment program for the coming year, and they say it will go beyond the five billion dollar mark.

This estimate covers the probable cost of all the buildings to be erected in the 48 states, and the prediction is made that a new high mark will be registered.

If the building program of 1926 calls the expenditure of five billion dollars, then it is safe to assume that all the material men and the building trades will enjoy a most prosperous year.

I AM THANKFUL

I, the Record News, am thankful this day for many reasons.

One year ago this time, I thanked Wichita Falls and Northwest Texas for the opportunities it had afforded me, and the measure of success its people had given me.

This day, my thanks to these people is such that words can not express. There come times in one's life when a heart is so filled with sadness, or so filled with joy that words to bespeak the grief, or the pleasure, are not forthcoming.

Because accord without end has answered my efforts, I, the Record News am humble this day before the vast section which I serve. Its people, too, have by their patronage assured me of untold service another year.

I am glad and thankful for the success my efforts have met. Reverently do I bow my head this day and speak my humility to the great forces of Wichita Falls and Northwest Texas and of Southern Oklahoma who have proclaimed my efforts and rewarded me with their approval.

I, the Record News of Wichita Falls, am thankful.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A MORNING MANICURE

Growly the Bear stretched out his paw and Peter, seeing how proud the fellow was of his claws bent over and looked closely at them.

"Some claws, Growly!" said he. "Why they look as sharp as Eagle's talons. I am sure you didn't mean to scratch me with them but you couldn't well help it. What do you use them for anyhow? I should think they'd be in your way!"

Growly shook his head.

"In my way! Not much! They are what make my living for me. Without them I might starve. With them I am never hungry. I love snails and roots, nothing tastes more delicious than fresh ones to a bear, and with my nails I dig in the ground for them. My nails scratch up the hard earth where I make my bed for the winter. When I go honey-hunting my nails help me to hang on fast to the trunk of the tree, help me to catch hold of the branches. And when I have to fight I use my nails on my enemy. When nothing else will make him run away, my nails will. He's afraid of them, let me tell you! Oh, I use my nails for many things and you can be sure, Two-Legs, I keep them well sharpened."

This was a new idea to the boy. He stared at Growly.

"Do you mean to tell me you sharpen your nails on purpose?" asked Peter. "How do you do it?"

"In the easiest way in the world!" Growly smiled a bear smile and nodded. "I choose an old tree, one with the roughest, toughest bark I can find in all the forest. Then I stand up on my hind legs and scrape my nails up and down that tree's trunk, and up and down again. Why the finest file in the world is a rough, tough bark. You might believe me if you tried it! When I get through sharpening my nails I declare I could almost carve a limb through with them. Yes, sir, I am very particular. Come every sunny morning, I give them a manicure."

Peter giggled, but Growly didn't seem to care.

"Come to think of it, Two-Legs, the sun is high and not yet have I made my toilette. I forgot to tell you that when there is no tree handy, a stone will do. Excuse me for a moment, please. It is pleasure to talk to you, but I must do my duty!"

Growly turned his back upon the boy and shuffled slowly to the brook's edge, and Peter followed. They hadn't walked far before the came to a great rock half in, and half out of the water.

"Just one thing!" grunted Growly and stopped beside it. Then Peter, watching, saw a sight he long remembered. Growly spread his paw, and rubbed his nails, one at a time, upon the rough stone. He didn't hurry either. And it was some time before he stretched out his paw and showed the results of his labor to Peter.

"Fine work!" cried the boy. "They are as clean as can be, and that's a fine polish you've put upon them."

Growly was pleased as Punch at such praise.

"You know a fine bit of work when you see it!" growled he, and then leaned over and stared at his reflection in the water. But Peter, thinking how long and how sharp were Growly's nails, and remembering the scratch they had given him, made up his mind that never again, under any conditions, would he shake hands with a bear.

In the next story: "Something to Sneeze at!"

SYNOPSIS

Bing Carrington finds himself at David Lacy's farmhouse on Long Island. To his amazement he discovers Connemara Moore and her Aunt Celimena also are there. So, too, is Sweetie, a mysterious young woman whom Connie met aboard a yacht. Connemara was to have announced her engagement last night—to Bing or Salt Adams—but, instead, stole away from Aunt Celimena's Connecticut home. It was a night of wild adventure for all of them.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued

"Things have happened so rapidly, so confusingly," began Aunt Celimena, "I don't know which way to turn."

"This way," advised Sweetie, pointing to the hall. "You turn right around this way to go straight upstairs; eyes left. Join me and you won't be seen by the world. Pretty slick, that, eh? I'll have to jot it down and sell it to the Marines."

"Tell it to the Marines is the way the saying goes," numbled Aunt Celimena, following Sweetie to the door.

"I know it but you can't tell the Marines anything, ma'am, and you can sell them the Pacific Ocean."

Left alone with Connemara, Bing at once proceeded to press his suit—or, rather, it was Mr. Merrill's suit, Connie, turning crimson, pushed him away. She had caught a glimpse of Lacy approaching from the hallway.

"Oh, I say, Connie," protested Bing. "We're all alone now. We're engaged, aren't we? Didn't you——"

"We are not engaged," she broke in quickly. Lacy was entering the room. "I don't know what you are talking about."

"Listen! I swear to you, Connemara, I've been in love with you ever since the day I first saw you. I've——"

"Didn't you send Salt Adams a bunch of your hair, and wasn't that your way of letting me know you bobbed—Great Scott!" For the first time he had observed the blue ribbon bandeau. "You don't mean you're still keeping up that nonsense about covering your hair? It's the silliest thing I've ever—Look here, is it or isn't it?"

She continued to smile at him impishly, one finger patting the blue ribbon more securely in place.

"Connie," Bing began desperately. "I'm asking you to marry me."

"In the presence of witnesses," remarked Lacy dryly.

"The devil!" Bing gasped, whirling.

"The gentleman has just proposed to you," said Lacy, addressing Connie. "It's a question that calls for an answer, yes or no."

"You'll oblige me, sir, by keeping out of this," exploded Bing angrily.

"Impossible," said Lacy, without removing his gaze from Connie's lovely face. There was a light in his eyes that could not be misinterpreted. Her own eyes wavered, and he had read something in their shining depths that gave him courage.

"Some other time, Bing," murmured the girl. "Don't hurry me."

"That's all right, old chap," beamed Lacy, slightly exalted. "She's already been through a lot of unpleasant things in the past few hours."

"Yes—let's change the subject," cried Connemara, eagerly and gratefully. "Tell us all about yourself, Bing. Tell me the whole story. Aunt Celimena seems awfully vague about everything."

"We might as well sit down," said Lacy hospitably. He conducted Connemara to a comfortable davenport and sat down beside her.

"Well," began Bing, resignedly, and forthwith related the experiences of the night. He had seated himself in a morris chair some distance away. At the conclusion of his story he urged Connemara to tell him everything that had happened to her.

She arose. "No, Bing; I will tell it all to you when I have more time. I have work to do now. I must clear myself in Mr. Lacy's eyes. He believes I am mixed up in some way with that gang of smugglers. I cannot rest until I have placed that fifty thousand dollars in Mr. Bob Merrill's hands to be turned over to the government!"

"Fifty thousand what?" gasped Bing, as she started to leave the room.

"Bones," replied Lacy, following her.

"I hid the money down on the beach," she explained, hurriedly, "near the house where that funny-looking Bugle lives."

"I'll go with you, Connie," said Bing, springing to his feet. Stupefication had held him rooted to the chair.

"See here, Carrington," said Lacy, surveying the late arrival with a critical, even pitying air; "you can't go running about in that awful suit of clothes. You're a sight, old man. I'll tell you what. We're about the same size. I'll fit you out with a suit of mine. Come along to my room with me. Don't go yet, please," to Connemara. "I'll be down in a minute or two and we'll go to the beach together while Mr. Carrington is changing his clothes. It's too far for you to walk there and back, so I'll get the roadster. We can park it at the Merrills' and cut through their place to the beach. By the way, you can use my razors too, Carrington, if you like. You certainly need a shave. So don't hurry. Take all the time you like. No doubt you'd like a bath. You——"

"I had a bath last night," said Bing surlily.

"The more the merrier," quoth the sparkling-eyed Lacy, slapping the other on the back. Then, grasping his arm, he hurried him upstairs, but not without a look of appeal to the girl below.

In an incredibly short space of time he rejoined her and they set out for the beach. But it was not until they had left the little green roadster in the Merrills' drive, and were on their way down to the water that either of them spoke.

"I've never forgotten you," Lacy said then, softly and abruptly, out of that long silence. "Ever since the day in Auteuil your face has haunted me. I've thought of nothing else. In my dreams——"

"Do you think I belong to the Swede's gang?" she interrupted darkly.

"Good heavens, no! You couldn't! You are an angel. Listen! I swear to you, Connemara, I've been in love with you ever since the day I first saw you. I've——"

"Hush! You mustn't say such things to me."

"You are blushing! And how lovely you are when the color spreads over—Oh, I say! By George! It has just occurred to me that you may think I am mixed up in this smuggling business. For Heaven's sake, you—you don't think that, do you?" He stopped short. His eyes were troubled.

"Of course I don't. How stupid of you!"

"Well, then, I repeat, I've been in love with you for months, Connemara. I—I wonder if you remember meeting me over there in France. I don't suppose I made the slightest impression on you then but——"

"I remember you very well," she interrupted demurely. "I have an excellent memory. Will it please you if I say I have never forgotten you, Mr. Lacy?"

He gulped. Then, in rather a daze: "And you are not in love with that chap back there or—or with anyone else?"

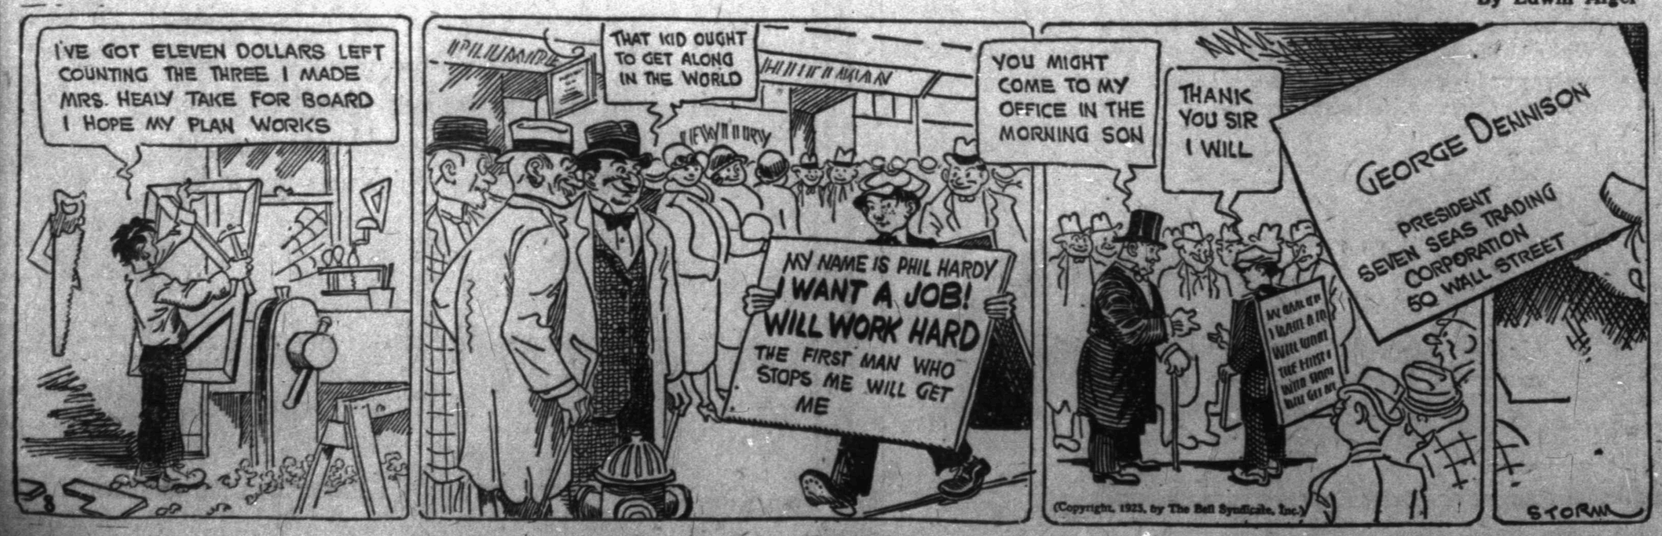

She smiled. "Don't hurry me so," she murmured. "Oh," she cried, in sudden confusion, and with no little relief, "there is the beach. Down there is where I hid the money. Come on, Mr. Lacy. We mustn't waste any time."

"I am trying not to," he exclaimed, as he hurried along after her flying figure. "Wait a second! Answer me, Connemara. Do you—do you love me?"

BOUND TO WIN

By Edwin Alger

HOW IT STARTED

"To Gain a Foothold."

We are all familiar with this phrase for getting advantageously intrenched in whatever one's line of endeavor, of getting a "good start." A popular expression in everyday speech in which we find the term is "gaining a foothold on the ladder of success."

It is in the sense of a "good start" that the words had their origin, dating back as they do to the days of the great Roman games, the ancestors of our own Olympic games and the competitive athletics of our day.

Before the start of a footrace, it was the custom of these ancient athletes to do a bit of jumping and posturing, somewhat as the competitors in a tennis match today will "volley" a bit before the game. This was called "getting the foot in," and is analagous to a good position at the starting line, a "foothold," to the aptness of which modern runners can testify. It is easily comprehensible, then, how the latter term should have found its way into everyday speech to express getting a good start at anything.

PANATROPE IS A TRIUMPH IN PHONOGRAPHY

Demonstration of New Brunswick Machine At Wichita Club

The new Brunswick Panatrope, the triumph of phonograph construction, was introduced in Wichita Falls yesterday afternoon in a private presentation to musical critics, newspaper men and dealers at the Wichita club, when O. P. Harris, factory representative of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company of Chicago, made an explanation of the machine. The group was astonished at the fidelity and the volume of the Panatrope, which filled the club with its tones, bringing out clearly the heavy ones, and the exquisitely fine ones.

The Panatrope may be accepted as a new talking machine, though it makes radical departure from the accepted laws of phonographs. It will play any make or any type of disc record and the reproduction, instead of being the mechanical action of a needle vibrating a diaphragm comes from the electrical disturbances set up in a magnetic field about the upper end of the needle.

Mr. Harris explained the new process of recording and the principles of reproduction. He compared it with the ordinary phonograph by playing first a record on the old machine and then on the Panatrope.

The program included a piano solo by Liepold Godowsky; "Brown Eyes," by Miss Lucas, known as the "Crooning Troubador;" "Memories," and "Oriental." The tones were faithfully represented, giving the deep and fine tones of the piano in Godowsky's solo; and emphasized the "singing" tones of the song; the strumming of the banjo in "Brown Eyes," as well as the singer's voice had all the qualities of the music had listeners been near the artist.

Exceptional Bill Of Vaudeville Today.

Five acts of Levey vaudeville open Thursday at the Olympic, with a feature picture "Thunder Mountain," a John Golden stage success. Albert, Accordionist De Luxe, presents a cycle of musical hits on his mammoth piano accordion. This opens the bill as a musical novelty that runs the gauntlet from grand opera to the latest jazz hits of tin pan alley.

Miller and Peters, in "The Cedarville Slickers," present a comedy offering that should prove one solid laughing hit. Intermingling with clever comedy patter, Mr. Miller proffers a musical selection on an ordinary hand saw. This clever pair of artists are recent recruits from the musical comedy world and their present appearance is their first tip on the vaudeville circuits.

Dale and Adair, in "Two Dark Spots On the Horizon of Fun," is a dancing and singing number featuring novelties in music as well as in dancing. Wordley and Peters in "Circus Days" present an act of the circus in which Mr. Wordley is the country boy and Miss Peters is the circus performer. Their talk is of the wise cracking variety and is guaranteed to register one laugh after another. Mr. Wordley does a comedy dance and song that never fails to bring forth laughs and applause.

Shadowettes in a Shadowgraph Revue, is a show within a show. A miniature stage shows a transparency in several brilliantly colored scenes where the shadow action takes place. These scenes have been likened to a series of animated paintings—original and bizarre paintings—animated with many small lifelike silhouettes of human's, animals and things.

The interest of the spectator is divided between the stories the figures tell and speculation as to how it is all done. This is especially appealing to the younger patrons. The action blends serious and humorous bits of history, sport, comedy and war.

"The Lost Word" Stupendous Film.

During the countless millions of years the twinkling stars have watched over the earth, the blinking eyes of the skies have rarely beheld a spectacular scene the equal of the volcano-forest fire episode in "The Lost World," which opens at the Olympic theatre Saturday.

White hot lava from a volcano starts the fireworks by igniting a forest thousands of acres in extent.

Prehistoric dinosaurs bigger than ten elephants and more dangerous than a hundred tigers and lions rolled into one, are driven from their lairs by the approaching flames.

There are scores of these creatures of the Reptilian age in this spectacle Paleontologists say these mighty monsters have been dead at least 10,000,000 years, but First National and Watterson R. Rothacker have brought them to life on the screen—after over seven years' work.

As the flames bear down, the fleeing monsters try to get to a big lake Characters enacted by Bessie Love Lloyd Hughes, Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery, also make for this watery refuge, and they are in peril of their lives from the crushing legs of these mighty creatures.

The volcano-forest fire sequence in "The Lost World" is but one of many incidents in the picture equally as thrilling. In fact, all of the thrills of Conan Doyle's novel, from which the picture was adapted by Earl Hudson, are to be seen.

Fritz Kreisler's Life Threatened

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The New York Sun today prints a copyrighted dispatch from Berlin declaring Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, has received a letter threatening him with death unless he pays the writer 20,000 marks. Kreisler was warned that he would be killed today and a heavy guard of police was established about his home.

Kreisler is known for presenting the receipts of his concerts in Austria and Germany to charity. The letter, mentioned this fact, says:

"I know your generous gifts to charity, but I have never received a penny. I must have 20,000 marks and unless I receive them I shall kill you on Tuesday."

It seems that the nineteenth hole has been made into a water hazard.

Now They're After Stars to Play Red

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Benny Friedman of Michigan, "cowboy" Kutsch of Iowa and "Five Yards" McCarty of Chicago today were offered contracts by Joseph W. Doherty of Florida to play on the Coral Gables, Fla., team against a team captained by Red Grange, Illinois star, on Christmas Day.

Doherty in New York to organize the venture, also announced that he had signed Charles Tierney, Harvard line coach and center on the Crimson 1920 and 1921 teams, to coach the Coral Gables team which will be captained by Tim Callahan, former Yale captain and all-American guard.

Tierney incidentally has been mentioned as a possible successor to Robert Fisher as head coach at Cambridge.

In addition, Bulger Low, former Fordham star, now a member of the Philadelphia Yellow Jackets and Bunny Cochran, former Princeton halfback, now a member of the Providence Steam Rollers, have been signed for the Coral Gables team.

GOLF FOR CONFERENCE

Dana Would Make Cow Pasture League Competition.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 25.—(AP)—D. X. Bible, head coach of the A. & M. college of Texas, is in favor of making golf a conference sport in the Southwestern Athletic conference. Two other schools, S. M. U., and Rice Institute also favor it and if the support of one more school can be gained it is very likely that a conference golf tournament will be held in the Southwest this year.

Golf is attracting much interest at A. & M. college where a club with a ninitial membership of 64 has been organized. Plans are being matured to sponser five tournaments among its members. Also a team will be sent to Houston to participate in a tournament that is being arranged by one of the newspapers of that city.

DOOMED IN FOUR MINUTES

Death Penalty Assessed Slayer In Briefest Trial

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 25—(AP)—One of the shortest murder trials on record took place here today when Sam Johnson, 20, was sentenced to death after a sitting of four minutes for the murder of Beatrice Martin, 23, at Stretford near Manchester. Johnson pleaded guilty and declined the aid of counsel.

"Love Bound In Wichita Falls"

As Written for the Record News By the Flapper Wife

FLOSSIE and MARY MIDDLETON are two pretty sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother Both of them work for the Dexter Oil company.

Flossie helps keep the files, under MISS MacFARLANE. Mary Rose is secretary to JOHN MANNERS, the sales manager, with whom she is deeply in love. Manners, however, is engaged to DORIS HINIG.

Mary Rose discovers that Flossie has been going out on long drives with HILARY DEXTER, the president of the company. And one night when she is at an inn having dinner with DR. TOM FITZROY, who wants to marry her, she discovers Flossie there with Dexter, her friend ALICE JAMES, and another man. Flossie is very sick with acute indigestion, and Tom takes care of her, while the two other men hurry away.

When Mary Rose scolds Flossie and begs her to return some valuable gifts that Dexter has given her, she refuses to and threatens to go to live with her chum, Alice.

Mary Rose points out that there is nothing for a girl in a friendship with a married man, and that even if Dexter weren't married, she ought to remember that she is engaged to SAM JESSUP, a nice young man who is Dexter's secretary.

The morning after the adventure at the inn, Sam Jessup tells Mary Rose that Mr. Dexter wants to see her in his office. Dexter tells Mary Rose that she must never mention the fact that he was out with Flossie, and just as the girl starts to tell him what she thinks of him, the door opens and in comes Flossie. Mary Rose realizes from the look on Dexter's face that he's really in love with the little butterfly sister.

(Now go on with the story.)

HAPTER X.

"Flossie Middleton, I'm ashamed of you!" Mary Rose said hotly.

"Why, what did I do?" Flossie opened her angelic blue eyes very wide, and looked innocently from her sister to Hilary Dexter.

With a laugh he stood up and came across the office, and stood towering above her, his hands thrust in his pockets as he looked at her.

"Perhaps your sister means that it would be better for you not to call me 'Dex, old kid' around the office" he said good humoredly, and then his voice deepened to a tender note.

"Do you feel all right, after your wild night, Flossie?" he asked. "We all thought you were in for—"

He stopped suddenly, for Sam Jessup had opened the door, and was standing at attention. "Mrs. Dexter to see you, sir," he said, and as Mary Rose turned to go she caught a glimpse of a large, determined-looking woman in sombre black.

It was easy enough to see why a man who was married to a woman like that would fall in love with fluffy little Flossie, who had the soft, appealing ways of a tiger-kitten.

And there was no doubt in Mary Rose's honest mind that he had fallen and fallen hard. The very way he looked at Flossie proved it unmistakably.

"I just got here, and I suppose Miss Mac will take my head off when I walk in," she said as they parted at the foot of the iron flight that led to the third floor. "Let's have lunch together, Mary Rose? Twelve o'clock?"

"Fair enough," Mary Rose answered, and she ran back to ask Sam Jessup to go with them.

"I jump at the chance," Sam said with a grin. "Flossie's been off me lately. I've wondered if she was sore about anything."

"No, she isn't sore," Mary Rose answered. "To use her own word, she's just 'icky' sometimes. Twelve o'clock, then."

But at noon when Mary Rose telephoned up to the filing department, Miss MacFarlane's vinegary voice informed her that Flossie had left for the day.

"For the day!" Mary Rose repeated. "Why, but she was going to lunch with me and Sam Jessup—"

Miss MacFarlane laughed unpleasantly. "And you'd better talk to Sam or me that someone else is beating in time," she said. "I heard her tell some man who phoned for her that she'd meet him in half an hour—"

"And there's one thing more, Mary Rose," she finished, as Mary Rose started to hang up, "this behavior of hers can't keep up much longer. She's gone half the time, and this work is too much for me alone!"

Heartsick, Mary Rose left the phone and went downstairs where Sam was waiting for her. The look of disappointment that leaped into his eyes when she came down alone, showed her how much Flossie meant in his life.

"I'm sorry, Sam." She laid her hand on his nice brown eyes, "There's been a misunderstanding, somewhere. She's left the office for the afternoon. Maybe she went home."

Together, and in silence, they walked down the street and ate their hot roast beef and apple pie, at a lunch-counter.

"Floss hates this sort of thing," Sam said. "She'd live like a queen if she had her way. She should, too. She's too doggone pretty for ordinary things."

When they came out into the street, again, the sun was shining "like mad," as Mary Rose said.

"Mr. Dexter's taken the rest of the day off, too," Sam said, as they turned back toward the works. "Spring fever, I suppose. He's probably playing golf."

Mary Rose darted a quick look at him. But there was no shadow of suspicion on his face. Nothing but dark unhappiness.

"A millionaire. That's what Flossie should do—marry a millionaire," he said. "She could, too. With her looks!"

"Nonsense!" the girl spoke sharply. "Millionaires aren't marrying poor girls these days any more than they ever did. Cinderella and the Prince belong in the fairy-tale books, Sam, and no place else!"

But he shook his head doubtfully.

"How about a picnic on Sunday?" she asked, with sudden inspiration. "Just Mother and Floss and Tom, and you and I? We could broil a beefsteak and bake some potatoes. How about it?"

"Yes, and at the last minute Flossie'll back out," Sam answered "You watch and see. I tell you, she's off me, Mary Rose. I honestly think she's made up her mind that I haven't enough money for her—"

"How much do you make?" Mary Rose asked. "Or isn't it any of my business?"

"Fifty a week." Sam answered promptly. "And that's not enough to marry a girl, like Flossie, on—"

"It is, too!" Mary Rose contradicted. "And if I were you I'd just go ahead, and do it. Show your spunk, Sam!"

He shook his head, once more. "No," he answered. "Not until I'm sure she's willing to be poor. I'm not going to spoil her life for her."

"But you will come to the picnic on Sunday, won't you?"

He said that, of course, he would.

Mary Rose spent all of Saturday afternoon, mending Flossie's green wool sports suit for tomorrow's picnic. She sat beside the kitchen table watching her mother taking layers for a noble cake, out of the oven one by one.

"I think I'll make a few deviled eggs for tomorrow, too," Mrs. Middleton said, when the cake was finished, frosted, and set to cool in the cupboard.

Her face was flushed and moist with the excitement of the picnic preparations. She moved about the cosy little kitchen singing snatches of hymns to herself.

Mrs. Middleton always sang when she was happy. And when she was very, very happy she sang hymns—and one, in particular—about the music of Heaven.

She was singing it now, as she filled a pan with water and set it on the stove.

"Oh, the music of heaven is sweeter
in measure,
And purer in every strain
(Mrs. H. F. Sanderford.)
Than the music of earth, tho it fills us with pleasure
As it thrillingly rools over valley and plain."

She stopped, and looked at Mary Rose with her blue eyes showing a glint of tears.

"I declare to goodness, I can't remember the last time I was asked to a picnic, Mary Rose," she said. "I think it must have been to one of those that the Sunday school used to have, when you and Flossie were little girls.

"I must say I do enjoy getting ready for one," she went on dropping the eggs into the pan of boiling water. "But, pshaw, Mary Rose, you young folks don't want me along tomorrow."

Mary Rose looked up from the sleeve of Flossie's suit. "We certainly do!" she said, decidedly. "You spend almost every day in the year alone in this house—and this is one Sunday when you're going to step, for a change! So don't you think you can get out of it, Mrs. Middleton! Because you can't! You're going to this picnic tomorrow as sure as fate."

(Mrs. Joe Art.)

"Well, if you're sure I won't be in the way, then—" Mrs. Middleton said doubtfully.

Mary Rose could see that she was secretly delighted, pleased as a child over a birthday party. And at last, as she rolled the deviled eggs in oiled paper, she said with a certain pride: "Well, it's nice to know that my girls like me to share some of their little pleasures with them. Goodness knows I've always tried to be a chum to you and Flossie. I've tried to keep my heart young—".

Mary Rose got up and kissed her. "And you have, Mums," she answered, patting her arms around the bent little shoulders, and kissing the flushed cheek. "You're the sweetest little mother in the world."

A little after six, just as the early darkness shone gray through the windows of the kitchen, Flossie Middleton pushed open the back door.

She brought with her all the fresh crispness of the Spring air. A big bunch of fluttering violets was pinned on her breast, and in her hand she carried a paper hatbag.

Pulled down over the gold silk of her hair was a new hat, a tiny scrap thing, whose only trimming was a fancy pearl pin.

"Well, here I am! And gaze at the last word in spring bonnets!" she cried gayly. "How do you like it?"

Mrs. Middleton and Mary Rose (Mrs. J. A. Morrison.)

walked all around her, admiring the new millinery from every angle.

"It's lovely, deary!" Mrs. Middleton said at last. She was as pleased with the new hat as if it belonged to her. More pleased, in fact.

For she had no life of her own, and she lived over the youth again in Flossie—Flossie with her new hats, and her new beaus, and her new way of looking at things.

"Go and put it away, and come right down to supper. It's all ready, dear," she said. "We aren't having much tonight. We're saving our appetites for tomorrow."

"What did you ask mother to go with us for, tomorrow?" Flossie asked, peevishly later that night, as the two sisters were getting ready for bed.

"Well, why not?" Mary Rose asked by way of answer. "She never has had fun or goes anywhere, unless we take her along with us."

Flossie sighed. "Well, you've just crabbed the picnic, that's all," she said. "I don't know whether I'll go if mother goes. She'll raise the dickens if I smoke or be myself, at all!—You know, yourself, how she is about smoking!"

Mary Rose opened the window, and drew the shades. "Well, you shouldn't smoke. It's bad for your health—"

"It's not that I like to smoke, because I don't." Flossie answered with a giggle. She turned to the dresser, and picked up the little gold cigaret holder that Hilary Dexter had given her. "But I do love to use this holder in front of Sam! It gets him wild. He's sure some man gave it to me, and he's so jealous, he's green!"

She sighed again, as she unhooked her dress and hung it up on the hooks behind the door. "Oh, Mary Rose," she said. "Why is it that I like a man until he falls in love with me—and then I'm through with him. I just haven't any use for Sam, any more!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Mrs. Middleton interferes with plans of Mary Rose and innocently encourages Flossie to "get a rich man." But Sam Jessup—read tomorrows' installment.

"It's not that I enjoy a cigarette * * * Because I don't," admitted Flossie.

Where Fair Sways Was 2 Robberies

Tuesday night a negro man reported to the city police department that his Studebaker touring car had been stolen from a downtown street.

That was nothing unusual, so the cops made the usual records and sent out the usual notifications to patrolmen and motorcycle riders to be on the lookout.

Later in the night a Ford coupe was found abandoned out in the residential district and was brought to the city hall to await a claim by the owner.

Wednesday morning a telephone call came in from the city marshal at Burkburnett asking whether or not the police here had found any trace of a strange Ford coupe.

"What's the numbers?" Desk Sergeant McConnell asked.

The Burk cop read them off.

"Sure, we've got it down here right now," McConnell told him. "you haven't seen anything of a Studebaker touring car, have you?"

"What's the numbers?"

McConnell read them and the other end of the wire answered, "sure, it's here in front right now."

"Well, bring it down and we'll swap," McConnell told him.

"You're on."

They did.

Thanksgiving Day—1925

A PROCLAMATION

THE SEASON approaches when, in accordance with a long-established and respected custom, a day is set apart to give thanks to Almighty God for the manifold blessings which His gracious and benevolent providence has bestowed upon us as a nation and as individuals.

We have been brought with safety and honor through another year, and, through the generosity of nature, He has blessed us with resources whose potentiality in wealth is almost incalculable; we are at peace at home and abroad; the public health is good; we have been undisturbed by pestilence or great catastrophe; our harvests and our industries have been rich in productivity; our commerce spreads over the whole world, and labor has been well rewarded for its remunerative service.

As we have grown and prospered in material things, so also should we progress in moral and spiritual things. We are a God-fearing people, who should set ourselves against evil and strive for righteousness in living, and, observing the golden rule, we should from our abundance help and serve those less fortunately placed. We should bow in gratitude to God for His many favors.

Now, therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, do hereby set apart Thursday, the 26th day of November, next, as a day of general thanksgiving and prayer, and I recommend that on that day the people shall cease from their work, and in their homes or in their accustomed places of worship, devoutly give thanks to the Almighty for the many and great blessings they have received, and to seek His guidance that they may deserve a continuance of His favor.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 26th day of October, in the year of our Lord, 1925, and of the independence of the United States of America the 150th.

Calvin Coolidge

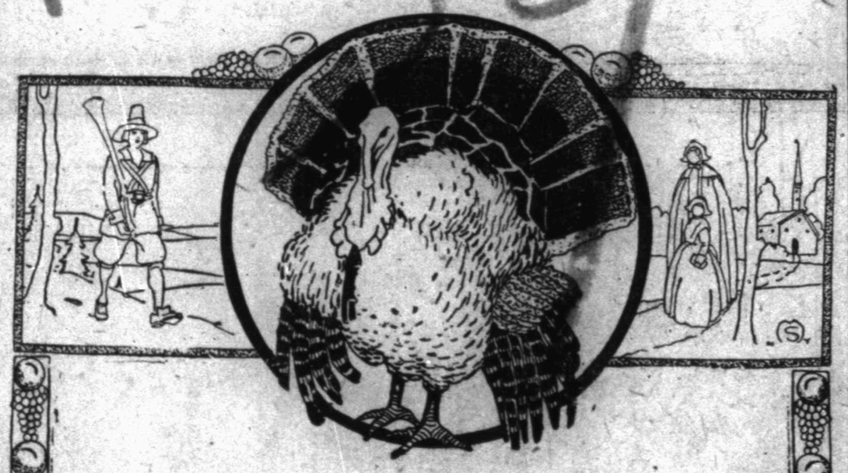

We Are Thankful For Your Patronage

Thanksgiving day serves as an excellent reminder of the many things that we should be thankful for. That we live in a country of freedom, peace and prosperity is a just cause for thankfulness.

Also in our minds is a wish to express our thankfulness for your liberal patronage which continually fires us with renewed ambition to be of the most service to you in the future.

RADICALS WIN IN DEMAND FOR HERRIOT RULE

Former Premier Asked To Form New French Cabinet

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(AP)— The socialists and extreme radicals today finally succeeded in forcing the president of the republic to c. on M. Herriot to form another cabinet. The group maneuvers in the past few days made it clear to President Doumergue that Senator Paul Doumer would be unable to do better than M. Briand and that it would be useless to call upon any other public man outside of the limited list of available men acceptable to the socialists. After M. Doumer had given up the task this afternoon there remained only M. Herriot and Leon Blum to choose between. President Doumergue decided to send for the president of the chamber—M. Herriot—who, after an hour and a half of earnest talk promised that he would do his best to "respond to the confidence of the president.' The studied avoidance of the word cobinet in this declaration and its vagueness are taken to mean that the former premier is none too sure that he will be able to set up successful combinations.

Road Company's Refund Checked

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—Check of the $314,000 in approved estimates due the American Road company from the state soon will be completed, Henry J. Cox, state highway maintenance engineer said today. The check thus far has shown the estimates to be substantially correct, he said. When the American Road company in the fifty-third district court here confessed the state should recover from it $000,000 excess highway profits, it was agreed the $314,000 in approved unpaid estimates should be applied to the recovery.

Wife Deserter Will Be Held For Kansa

A man wanted by Wichita, Kan authorities on a charge of wife-desertion, a felony in that state, is being held by city police here. A Kansa deputy sheriff is on the way to Wichita Falls to take the prisoner back. The latter has waived extradition proceedings and asserted he will return without recourse to legal measures.

A request that he be arrested was received here by the police Wednesday morning and the man was under arrest in a short time.

He is an automobile mechanic.

FOOTBALL

as but a few yards to go and touchdown to make.

Steer Backs Better.

A few would opine the Farmers carry an edge on the Longhorns in this that Mame of games. A few would prove by statistics and pencil calculation that Dana's Aggies deserve a shade in pre-contest prognostications. This is based on the argument the Farmer forward wall is stronger than the varsity front line defense. The majority of critics agree on this point. They, also, combine to declare the Longhorn backfield more powerful and more versatile, which may or may not just about balance accounts.

Close students of the game with only a few exceptions agree the teams are more evenly matched than ever before. Each eleven boasts a varied attack the Longhorns possibly the better. Both have proved comparatively strong defensive clubs, playing common opponents. Each club would be at its best on a dry field. Wet going will not hamper one more than the other, coaches say.

Prophets the few of them who predict a Farmer victory, base their predictions on the fact the Aggies in conference warfare to date have displayed "wonder" defense, and have surprised their most optimistic followers with a fast and at times dazzling attack. They would say the Farmers defense, supposedly stronger than the Longhorns' can hold the varsity drives, whereas it is not likely the Orange and Whit ecan stem the scientillating running and overhead game developed by Bible along with his old standby attack, the off-tackle smash.

Varsity At Peak.

However, Stewart has brought his team wam right along little by little, at like times with seeming slowness, until today the Longhorns appear to be at their peak. Hitting at top stride, a condition varsity teams not always have boasted in the annual conflict with the Aggies, it is a matter of guess work for all concerned other than Stewart and his staff as to just how much stronger the Longhorns are today than at the stage of development almost two weeks back on which the opposters base their comparison of strength.

Regardless of all the cracks the boys may dish up, the true dope whenever Aggie clashes with Longhorn this: one stands just as good a chance to cop the grapes as the other. In other words, the outcome is a toss-up. History reveals, that is, over the past, decade, the purported strength of one team or the other means little in the annual battle.

Time and again has a vaunted varsity machine met sudden and surprising reversal before the attack of an underrated Farmer eleven. The same holds with Aggie teams ranked stronger than their Longhorn opponents.

The record of games in which these veteran rivals have met gives Texas decided margin. But it must be remembered that back i nthe early days the university had far more and stronger material to draw from. for A. & M. was a much smaller institution. But of late years, the Aggies have been coming back, coming back strong enough if not to halt the Orange and White advance to fight it on even terms.

The dope is even today. Pick your own winner.

REVIVAL AT CHILDRESS.

CHILDRESS, Nov. 25.—Under the preaching of the pastor, Rev. Geo. A. Purlee, an extensive eight-day meeting started Sunday morning at the First Baptist church in this city. Night meetings have been held by this church in the past five years, and the pastor has done all the preaching for five of them.

God's in His Heaven, All'r Right With the World, Appropriate Today

TODAY, Wichita Falls will follow its usual Thanksgiving custom, beginning with a union Thanksgiving service at the First Christian church at 10:30 o'clock when the sermon will be given by Dr. Walter J. Johnson and special music in charge of Alva Willgus.

Family feasts will be on the day's program, with students home from various colleges while many are spending the week-end in other cities. Appropriate indeed is the saying "God's in his heaven, all's right with the world." Among those who are entertaining with family dinners today are:

With the Kemps.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kemp who will have as their guests, their children and grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. Newton Maer, Kemp and Charlotte Haer; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Langford, and two sons, David and Stanmore; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kemp, Jr.

At the Akins.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Akin are celebrating not only a Thanksgiving dinner, but a birthday dinner as well, when they will observe the birthday of their son, J. W. Akin, Jr. Miss Margaret Akin student of S. M. U. is at home for the holidays. Their guests include Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Akin, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. Henry D. Akin; Misses Josephine and Marguerite Kaye, nieces of Mr. Akin; Mr. and Mrs. Grady Fletcher; and the six grandchildren, Martha and Joe Ned Akin; Robert, Joe Dorothy, and Grady Fletcher.

The C. W. Sniders.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Snider are entertaining the latter's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Moore, and children, Esther and Lewis Moore of Kansas City, Mo. Miss Helen Snider of the University of Oklahoma is also a guest over the holidays.

Mr. Silk and Three.

OLD PEOPLE'S SERVICE AT CHURCH DRAWS CROWD

The old people's service at the First Baptist church Wednesday was well attended, and several persons past 80 years of age were present. Of the great number of old people there one had been a Christian for 67 years. More than three thousand years of church membership were represented by the old people.

Dr. T. L. Holcomb, evangelist from the iFrst Baptist church of Sherman, spoke on the subject, "Crowning Days."

Burkburnett Man And Child Burned

BURKBURNETT, Nov. 25.—Charley Hightower and little 4-year-old daughter were severely burned on the faces, arms and backs this morning when the gasoline machinery in his cleaning and pressing shop exploded, burning the house and contents.

The injuries are dangerous, but not considered fatal by physicians.

The accident occurred at the West Main Cleaning and Pressing shop, with family apartments attached.

A Word Of Tribute

"This has been the most satisfactory community fund raising campaign that has been conducted in Wichita Falls since the war work drives in 1918. Every member of the campaign committee; every captain and team worker; all the speakers; persons asked to assist in the clerical department; those aiding in the publicity department; subscribers and, in fact, the public generally has shown a spirit of town loyalty that has indeed been very gratifying.

"It is a pleasure to have a part in community work with such citizens as we have in Wichita Falls. This has been a most pleasant and good-natured campaign. The rare instances in which the committees failed to find an attitude of courtesy and generosity were probably due to lack of information about the work or private reasons that seemed good and sufficient to the persons themselves. In 99 cases out of 100 the response was pleasant and prompt. Every man and woman that had a part in the campaign should feel a distinct pride."

—HUBERT M. HARRISON
General Manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Director of the Community Chest Campaign.

CHEST

tributor buttons were ordered and all have been passed out. A number of persons who have made pledges have been forced to go without the little crimson "I care" badge that has been peeping out from numberless coat lapels the past three days.

Second Day Reports

Second day reports were made at noon yesterday when team captains and their workers met at a joint meeting of the Lions and Optimist clubs. When all reports had been turned in to J. W. Chatham, auditor of the campaign it was found that atotal of $14,285.25 had been collected between Tuesday noon when the first report was made and Wednesday noon. It was also reported at that time that $24,119.86 of the amount was in cash with the rest pledged on the quarterly payment plan.

After reports had been made, instructions for the afternoon work were given by Hubert M. Harrison, director of the campaign, and Joe Huckins, III, chairman of the campaign committee. A final afternoon's effort was urged and all captains requested to turn in their collections and supplies at the chamber of commerce office at 6 o'clock in the evening.

When this was done most of the 68 business men who have labored steadily and earnestly on the work completed their task for another year. A few will be included on the clean-up committee, but this will not be a large one.

SHRINERS

perpetrated at Shrine headquarters on the fair grounds where, contrary to prevailing belief, Maskat will "give the Shrine" to novices. The first commandment in the Novice's series of 15 is "don't tell your friends you are going to take the Shrine. You arn't. We're going to give it to you." Another commandment says don't fail to prepare for the worst. It's the best you'll get. tStill another, "Dont wear glasses. Youll know whats going on by the feeling. You can see the next time." And another, "Don't be afraid of getting killed. You may be sorry you weren's before you're through."

Dance at Night.

To conclude the day, nobles and ladies will enjoy an elaborate semi-formal dance at night at the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club. Extensive preparations have been made for the function and a rare time is promised all who attend. Visiting nobles and their ladies, of whom there will be many, will be honored guests at the dance which will continue, so the announcement says, "as long as any one wants to dance."

Favors will be supplied for the ladies, confetti will abound in profusion, special lighting effects will be provided and one feature of the evening will be the showing of the moving picture taken at Los Angeles last summer when the Imperial council sessions were held there. Movie producers of the city combined in turning out one of the most spectacular scenes ever devised, one costing over $1,000,000, and the film of this will be shown for the dancers.

Needless to say a high class orchestra has been provided and dancing will continue, so the announcement says, as long as any one wants to dance.

In the meantime, candidates for the Shrine ring are busy prosecuting their activities in hopes of winning this most coveted of all Masonic jewels. E. S. Marshall, "the wild deer tamer," who has been put forward on a platform of longer nights, shorter skirts, more moonshine, ten wives for every man and various other enlightments was a last minute entry Wednesday night.

Texas Open Port Law Under Attack

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Attack on the validity of the Texas open port law was made today before the court of criminal appeals by attorneys for A. W. Ratcliff, sentenced two years in Potter county, Texas, for interference with the duties of the Texas national guard during the railroad shopmen's strike in 1922. Appellants attorneys contended that the open port law is unconstitutional and invalid Ratcliff was convicted at Amarillo N. A. Stedman of Austin argued for the state; E. A. Simpson of Clarendon and E. T. Branch for the appellants.

More Truth Than Poetry

I recently read in a newspaper clip
An interview given by some one.
Which said that the girl who is known as "a pip"
Is rarely, if ever, a dumb one.
He says he has traveled about quite a bit,
And his varied experience teaches
That the dames who possess the most wisdom and wit
Are the ones he calls peaches.

I don't know this chap, nor the girls that he's met,
But his words do fill me with wonder.
He is only a man, and I'm willing to bet
That he's made an excusable blunder.
For a line that is pulled by a hard favored Jane
Who was seated beside you at dinner,
Would not seem one-half so profoundly inane
If lisped by a winner.

Just gaze at a pair of soft amethyst eyes
And a nectarine tinted complexion,
Which, however come by, completely defies
A masculine person's detection.
And every remark that the creature lets fall
Will seem brilliant and keen and inspiring
While you sit there, your doddering spirit in thrall,
Bewitching and admiring.

This gentleman may be convinced he is right,
And regard it his manifest duty
To tell the whole world how delightfully bright
Are maidens of glorious beauty.
But if he had traveled about half as long,
We think he'd agree with the writer
And admit, like a fair-minded man that he's wrong,
They only seem brighter!

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE PUMPKIN PIE PRINCESS--X

by W. J. ENRIGHT.

THE STORY UP TO NOW

ONCE A PUMPKIN HOUSE OF A TINY LITTLE GIRL FELL TO THE MOON. THE KING OF THE MOON ASKED THE LITTLE GIRL WHAT THE PUMPKIN WAS. "MOST PEOPLE MAKE PIES OF THEM," SHE SAID. SO HE TOOK HER AND THE PUMPKIN TO HIS CASTLE AND ASKED HER TO TELL HIS COOK HOW TO MAKE A PIE. "BUT DON'T SAY ANYTHING TO MAKE HIM LAUGH," CAUTIONED THE KING. BUT ESMERELDA SAID SOMETHING SO FUNNY THE COOK SHOOK WITH LAUGHTER, AND EVERYBODY LAUGHED WITH HIM.

THE COOK COULDN'T STOP LAUGHING, SO NO ONE ELSE COULD AND THERE WAS DANGER OF THE WHOLE MOON SHAKING WITH IT.

FINALLY, HOWEVER, THE KING'S CROWN SLIPPED UNDER HIS CHIN AND, REALIZING HE WAS LOSING HIS DIGNITY, HE THREW A GLASS OF COLD WATER IN THE COOK'S FACE, WHICH STRAIGHTENED IT, AND STOPPED HIS LAUGHTER.

THEN THE KING AND ESMERELDA STOPPED AND GRADUALLY THE SOUND OF MIRTH DIED AWAY THROUGHOUT THE CASTLE. THE KING TURNED REPROACHFULLY TO ESMERELDA AND SAID: "I TOLD YOU NOT TO SAY ANYTHING FUNNY TO THE COOK." "I SHALL NEVER DARE TO AGAIN, YOUR HIGHNESS," SHE REPLIED. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

WELL, NOW FOR THE PIE," SAID THE KING. "YES, NOW FOR THE PUMPKIN PIE," ECHOED THE COOK, AS HE WIPED THE TEARS FROM HIS EYES. AND SOON HE HAD PANS, GRATERS, SIFTERS AND CANS OF SPICES STALKED LIKE GUARDS ABOUT ESMERELDA.

TOMORROW—A WONDERFUL SUCCESS.

BEWARE THE COUGH OD COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

Farewell to Alexandra

A sequel to "A Welcome to Alexandra" May 7, 1863.

Alexandria.

Sea-Kings' daughter from over the sea,
Alexandra,
Gone is the poet who welcomed thee,
But all who are left are mourning thee,
Alexandra,
Fire your salutes, O Fort and Fleet,
Lower your voices, O crowds in the street.
Think of her youth so joyous and sweet,
Think of her life with good replete.
Scatter today your loveliest flowers,
Sing, English birds, your choicest songs,
Sing of her deeds of charity,
Sing of her great simplicity,
Sing, and make of your song a prayer
That joy be awaiting her "over there."
Flags of England wave for her now.
Wave at half-mast as you waved on high;
Flames on the headland rise higher and higher,
Make her a mighty funeral pyre.
Moan, O bells, in the Autumn air;
Gone for aye is the Royal pair
That once ye greeted with joyous clang
As through all England your music rang.
She came, and she conquered us, one and all,
Sea-Kings' daughter from over the sea,
Saxon and Norman and Dane though we be,
But she in turn became one of us—
An English queen of Royal grace
Who added new lustre to our race.
And although in her passing we are sad,
There's an undertone in our hearts that is glad;
For she gave us memories rich and rare,
The Sea-Kings' daughter and bride of our heir,
A gift to the people, a gift to the Throne;
She came to us, loved us, and made us her own.
And Saxon or Dane or Norman we,
Teuton or Celt, or whatever we be,
We are all alike in our grief for thee,
Alexandra.

Phillips Petroleum Company Pays 75 Cents a Share

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Directors of Phillips Petroleum company today declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents, placing the capital stock on an annual dividend basis of $3 a share, which formerly was $2. It is payable apuary 4 to holders of record December 21. The dividend is applicable to the 25 per cent additional stock to which share holders of record November 25 have the right to subscribe at $40 a share.

She Could Never Have Done It With Piles!

Bless the American girl who has glorified all the sports! She makes a pretty picture in the water, and is a plucky swimmer, too. Piles are unthinkable for active women. If you have them, you ought to know this simple thing to do!

At any hour or moment that you have the least distress or discomfort from piles, use a simple Pyramid pile suppository—and go happily on your way! The worst hemorrhoids, even bleeding and badly protruding piles respond at once to the soothing suppository applied in perfect privacy. But bear the name in mind; Pyramid is the one every druggist has, usually the only one he will sell his patrons. Pyramid is marvelous. Why suffer another single half-hour with painful piles?

Sixty cents the box, the world around. But or proof, a free box plainly wrapped will be sent those who write Pyramid Drug Co., 200 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

And you'll never find vitiated air in a ventilated room.

How Doctors Treat Colds and Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsilitis, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bed-time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—no danger. Get a family package, containing full directions, only 35 cents. At any drug store.—Adv.

DOROTHY DIX ADVICE

What Can a Stenographer-Mother Do With Her Small Children During the Day? How Can a Girl Attract Boys? Why Children Become Selfish and Ungrateful Toward Parents Who Spoil Them

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband is in a sanatarium and there is no likelihood of his ever being out again. I have two small children, aged 4 and 5 years. I am employed as a stenographer and make a fairly good salary. As far as money is concerned, I can pay my own way, but my trouble is in getting someone to care for the children. I have tried boarding with them, but it is unsecessful. The children are sweet and lovable and well mannered, but of course, they are noisy and restless, and every night when I come home from work the woman we board with is full of complaints about how they have annoyed her. My husband's people are willing to take the children, but only on condition that I give them up altogether, and I cannot bear to do this. Can you suggest any way out of the dilemma?

YOUNG MOTHER.

Answer:

If you have sufficient income to afford it, the thing to do would be for you to establish a home of your own, and employ a competent governess to take care of the children. But this would require a great deal of money; more, I fear, than you earn.

To leave your children in charge of just an ordinary, unreliable, ignorant servant is to run a great danger of their being neglected, and of their being taught things that you would not wish them to know. Your plight suggests a crying need for the establishment of some sort of supercreche, where children are past the baby stage can be left by their mothers who are employed during the day.

Here is a tip for some of the intelligent, educated women who want to earn money in their own homes. They might, with profit to themselves establish day homes for children in which mothers could leave their youngsters when they want to work, or went shopping, or to the matinee, certain that their little ones would be well taken care of and amused and made happy.

I certainly should not advise you to give your children to your in-laws unless you can absolutely find no them. Your mother heart other way of taking care of them Your mother heart would cry for them unceasingly, and you would be utterly miserable without them. And to deprive your children of a mother's love and care and tenderness is to rob them of the most precious thing that life can ever give.

But what cold and callous creatures your husband's people must be that they ask this sacrifice of you! Surely you have had sorrow enough in your husband's misfortune to make them pity you, and try to lighten your life, instead of taking from you the last ray of sunshine in it! And the brave way in which you have gone to work to support yourself and the children should rouse their admiration, and make them glad to lend you a helping hand over this rough spot in your life. For in a little while your children will be old enough to put in school, and that will automatically solve the problem of what to do with them.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—Will you please answer the following questions for a club of five 16-year-old girls:

First. What is it about a girl that attract boys to her?

Second. If a boy likes a girl, will he find means of getting acquainted with her?

Third. How can a girl become attractive?

Fourth. If a girl likes a boy, how can she make him like her?

A CLUB OF FIVE GIRLS

Answer:

First. The thing that boys like about girls is their just being girls. The attraction of sexes is the primal law of nature.

Beyond this general attraction is specific attraction of the individual. There is an instinctive bond between certain individuals. No man knows why he falls in love with the particular woman he does. No woman can tell why she is sure that a certain man is just the one man for her.

Broadly speaking, the things that boys like in girls are for the girls to be pretty, to dress tastefully, to be good dancers, and to have a good line of jolly. Boys like girls who are easy to talk to, and pleasant to get along with, and who are sweet and amiable.

They don't like a girl to run after them, neither do they like a girl to be too difficult.

Second. Certainly any boy who likes a girl will find some way of getting acquainted with her. If he likes her, he will tell her so. No man is too shy to ask for what he wants.

Third. A girl can be make herself attractive by dressing in good taste, and learning how to walk and stand properly. She can add to her attractions by learning how to play a good game of bridge and golf and tennis, and especially by becoming a fine dancer. The girl who can play on the piano and sing has a headliner attraction.

But good nature and a jolly disposition are the greatest attractions of all.

Fourth. There is no "follow-this-rule-you-cannot-fail" recipe for winning the heart of a man.

All that a girl can do is just make herself as agreeable to him as she can, and trust to luck that she will win him.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DOROTHY DIX—I worked hard and made a fortune, which I lavished on my children, who are now all grown. Through no fault of my own I have now lost my money, and my children abuse me for not having a fortune for them to spend. Why should they be so ungrateful when they had all that I made in thirty years?

Answer:

I suspect the reason why your children are selfish and ungrateful is because you spoiled them, because you raised them up to think of nothing but themselves and their own pleasure.

DOROTHY DIX

If you worry about business you'll soon have no business to worry about.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients. It is known as Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Compound and can be obtained at all drug stores for only 75 cents a bottle.

While gray faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.

INDIGESTION SPELLS— COULD HARDLY EAT

"I suffered with indigestion for six years," says Mr. H. C. Dove, of Chester, S. C., telling of the disorders from which he finally found relief through the use of Thedford's Black-Draught.

"I had gotten to the place where I could hardly eat a thing. Everything hurt. I had smothering spells and fell off twenty pounds. I was in a bad fix.

"I read of Black-Draught, and decided to try it. I took a big dose daily and in three months' time I saw a big change.

"I had gotten to where I only ate milk and crackers, but, after I began on Black-Draught, I began to eat and gradually got my appetite back. I gained in weight and I felt better. I have not had a bad spell of indigestion in ten months.

"I believe Black-Draught is the best liver medicine made. I can not say enough for what it has done for me. I have used it in large doses and have taken small doses after meals and find both ways very satisfactory. I am glad to tell others what it did for me. I feel so grateful for what Black-Draught did for me that I want others to know for it may help them as it helped me.

One of the first things to do in an attack of indigestion is to clear the system of all undigested particles of food. Thedford's Black-Draught will do this very thoroughly and will also stimulate the digestive organs to carry on their normal work, and help in eliminating poisons and impurities from the system.

Black-Draught is composed entirely of pure, medicinal roots and herbs of natural, harmless action. It contains no mineral or other harmful drugs and no sugar syrup, which sometimes disorders the stomach.

The vegetable ingredients of Black-Draught are carefully combined in clean, up-to-date laboratories, in just the proportions that scientific experience has shown to be the best for the purpose.

That banking gentleman, Hughie Cotner, inquires of this person what he (meaning I'm) is thankful for, if any, this morn.

There's lots of it some of which is:

There remains but one more day of after-game alibis weekly broadcasted by certain football coaches.

Local wrestling and boxing promoters got heir annoyances off early this week and we can enjoy today with the knowledge no more torture of the sort is carded before next week.

Bill collectors have a holiday. Always like to see these lads take a day off.

BRIDGES REMINISCES

The big game at College Station, of course, draws the conference spotlight, but today is of particular interest to one Frank Bridges, for it brings back to Frankie fond memories. Baylor plays Rice at Houston, hoping to squeeze into the victory column at last. But whatever the outcome, the game recalls for the Bruin grid wizard that Bear-Owl conflict of 1921, naturally, whereupon he grins hugely. That game Bridges, in a reminiscent mood, cites as the starting point of Baylor's championship career. Long the under dogs of the conference they started climbing, these Bears did, says Bridges, at the time of that Rice scrap.

* * *

"What little success we've had is measured from that day," Bridges said. "The game was a two-man affair pure and simple. Eddie Dyer and Wesley Bradshaw, in my opinion two of the best running backs the conference has ever produced, were pitted against each other. Rice scored a touchdown on us almost before we had kicked off. We tied the score, then went into the lead by a field goal, only to lose it when Rice scored its second touchdown. We scored another touchdown in the last quarter and surprised the conference with a 17-14 win over Rice, at that time rated on paper as the equal of anything in the conference.

* * *

"Rice made its mistake that day in using Dyer too much. They had eight or nine yards to the goal once and four downs to make it in. Dyer had run the ball practically half the length of the field, but they called on him all four of those downs. Needless to say we held them and soon punted out of danger. Dyer was injured soon after and the biggest Rice threat was removed."

* * *

Bridge's team which opposed the Rice gridsters that day composed others who were destined to set their names down in conference history. B. J. Pittman, Russell Blallock, hefty linesman who made 'em all sit up and take notice, and other lesser lights. Heavy Underwood and Russell Kennedy were playing their last season for Rice. The game came at the beginning of one of the most disastrous years in Rice history, when they toppled from the upper ranks of the conference to the more or less lowly position the Institute has held since.

Ad Works With Youngsters

Gus Pappas, if nothing else, stacks up as a very frank sort of a person. The Greek light heavy extempored at length after that Santel-Pappas mat affair Tuesday night, lauding Ad as a wonder athlete. The keynote of his utterances were struck when he said: "I didn't expect to beat Ad, knew I didn't stand a chance with him, but I'm willing to try it with any of 'em. Santel is the GREATEST wrestler in the world."

* * *

It is coincidental that this solemn-visaged athlete has won the hearts of the youngsters out at Junior college, too. Up chirps Rosy Richardson, captain of the Tribe mat squad: "I'll tell the world Ad Santel is THE MAN. And the whole team will vouch for that."

* * *

Matchmaker Ross at the invitation of Coach Frazee took Santel and Charley Mason, the middleweight, out to the college yesterday. Mason could not do any exhibition stuff because of a boil under an arm. But Santel took the team under a wing and taught 'em more in one hour, possibly, than they had learned in months of work.

* * *

Keller and Moore, two members of the team, were absent. They certainly missed something, the rest of the gang declares. Hobbs, Gillum, Legget, Woods and Richardson all worked with the wrestler.

Baylor Cards Five Conference Games

WACO, Nov. 25.—The completed 1926 Baylor university football, scheduled will give the Baylor Bears six of their ten games at home. It includes one intersectional game with Loyola university, to be played at New Orleans, and five conference games, two of which will be played in Waco, two in Dallas, and one in Houston.

The strong Dallas university eleven will open the season with the Bears in 1926 the game to be played in Waco. Following is the completed schedule.

M'CALLUM'S OLD-TIMERS ALL SET FOR TODAY'S GRID GAME AT SPUDDER PARK WITH ELKS

Former Football Stars Band Together For Holiday Clashes—Darktown Boys In Curtain Raiser

The big game of the year!

That's what they're calling the battle of the old-timers slated for this afternoon at Spudder park between Brown McCallum's Wichita Falls all-stars, team composed of former high school and university grid flashes, and the Burkburnett Elks, semi-pro club.

Gainesville's Black Terrors and the Washington school Black Coyotes are slated for the curtain raiser. Yessir, it's a double header.

First game goes on at 2 o'clock. Ten minute quarters are in order. The feature contest is to start at 3:15, according to McCallum.

The two McCallum brothers have raised a team which should step high and handsome this year, as they are planning to play on for some time if this game makes a hit with the fans. They have gathered possibly the greatest assortment of college and high school players who have been billed on a Wichita Falls grid.

Bud to Play.

The man who will be watched more than any other will be Bud McCallum, coach of the Coyotes, who will be seen in the backfield. Bud at one time was one of the best backfield men of the Texas Longhorns, and will make a great attempt, he says, at a comeback to his old form of the days when he was picked on the mythical all-southwestern eleven for two years.

Buddy Armour will be another man who will bear watching. In 1922-23 this athlete was one of the fastest backs in the Missouri valley. In 1918-19-20 he played great ball with the San Antonio high school.

Ben Howie, one of the Coyotes' old mainstays, will be in the game somewhere, but no position has yet been reserved for him. Shorty Chewning was a member of the famous Coyote team of 1923 and later with Millican college. He will be one of the backs in this game. Chewning was the running mate of Leo Baldwin in games in 1923. Rowdy Curtin is another member of the all-stars. Curtin is a player every football fan here knows, and quite a bit of interest will be attached to his performance this afternoon.

Watch Brown.

Brown McCallum of Texas, S. M. U. and Waynesburg, will be in the line. The manner in which this man developed the Coyote line this year will go to show that he ranks among the best in this section of the country. Uncle Joe Smith, well known six-footer of the '23 line at the high school, will be in the game. Birtie Foster, Texas and all-southwestern back, will be in the lineup.

Pap Peyton, Texas and V. M. I., will be another who may see service in the backfield.

Taking the prospects all in all the all-stars should be able to stack up with the Budk Elks on every bit of even terms.

Montgomery, Golden and Kay, junior high coaches, are among the stars who will line up with the Burkburnett team.

LIONS PRIMED FOR GREATEST FIGHT OF YEARS

VERNON, Nov. 25.—After the final grooming this afternoon, Catch Baggett pronounced the Vernor Lions in excellent condition for the Turkey Day clash with Oak Cliff's Leopards. With both Gilhausen and Ryan Bank in the line-up and in good shape, Baggett states that the club will probably be stronger tomorrow than at any time since Sayre, Okla., invaded Vernon early in the season. The game is to be called at 2:30.

Every man of the Lion squad is in splendid condition physically and the locals are expected to wage the best battle of the season. All are emphatic in announcing their determination to wipe out the sting of the defeat which Oak Cliff handed them at Dallas last year, when the Blue eleven won the Bi-District championship from the Lions by a 39-0 score.

With Ryan again at the field general's position this week the Lion mentor has been drilling his club constantly on forward passes. Fans predict that the Lions will display the greatest overhead attack used this year.

A representative of the Oak Cliff team arrived in Vernon this morning and announced the Leopards would arrive early Thursday morning. All except Baxter, left end who sustained a broken arm in Saturday's game with Bryan, are in excellent condition the representative said.

The probable starting line-up of the two clubs follows:

Oak Cliff	Position	Vernon
Mann	Left End	Hollar
J. Allen	Lef Guard	Koontz
J. Higgins	Center	Park
Hood	Right Guard	R. Key
Armstrong	Right Tackle	Burrows
Carver	Right End	T. Key
P. Higgins	Quarterback	Ryan
Lumpkins	Left Half	Williams
Clements	Right Half	Crouch
Sopper	Pullback	Gelhausen

Doc Isn't Going To Let Big Crowd Excite His Team

Varsity Stays in Pullman Until Shortly Before Contest

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)— After a brisk workout early today on the stadium gridiron, the Texas university football team at noon boarded its special car for College Station where Thursday the Longhorns engage the Texas Aggies in the game that will decide the southwest conference championship. Thirty gridsters, every man on the squad, made the trip.

The Longhorn coaching staff and players will stay in their car until shortly before game time. Doc Stewart head coach, is taking no chance on having his charges get excited by the huge crowd that will throng College Station.

Indications are Stewart will start a lineup composed of the most seasoned players on the squad. Such a lineup would be composed of Matt Newell and "Sailor" Shearer, ends; "Ox" Higgins and "Swampy" Thompson, tackles; Moore and Homan, guards; "Heinie" Pfannkuche, center; Captain Stuart Wright, quarterback; Mack Saxon and "Rosy" Stallter, halfbacks, and Rufus King, fullback.

Ike Sewell has been expected to start at guard, but was slightly injured in Monday's scrimmage. He is certain to get into the contest, however, before it ends.

Conservative estimate of the number of fans who will go to College Station is 8,000.

OWENS TOO FAST FOR DUKE IN LEGION CARD

Duke Trammel, the southwest's welterweight knockout king failed to get over with his sleep-producing wallop last night in the ten-round main event of the American legion weekly fight card at S12th Scott.

Jimmy Owens, youthful Oklahoma City welter, whose meteoric rise the past few months in southwestern pugdom has been a continued source of pleasure to Sooner state fans, was too fast and clever to slip onto the catching end of Trammel's potent right and left-hand socks.

Owens played a running, ducking and clinching game. Trammel did the leading, forcing the fight practically all the way. From this, one who was not a spectator would imagine Duke had by far the better of the argument. However, it was almost the contrary. Owens evaded Duke's charges, then countered with gusto on numerous occasions. He mixed this style of battle with standing, waiting for Trammel to begin a lead, and then beat the Fort Worth lad to the punch.

Owens scored more than Duke. However, neither landed effectively. The judges ruled unanimously for a draw decision.

The fight took well with the fans.

Wildcat Monte won a judges' decision over Jack Ercaubrack in a six-round semi-final. Monte fought mostly in the clinches and was faster than Smiling Jack.

Six Second Smith won in the third round of a scheduled four-round fight over Sam Mitchell, colored heavy, by a technical knockout.

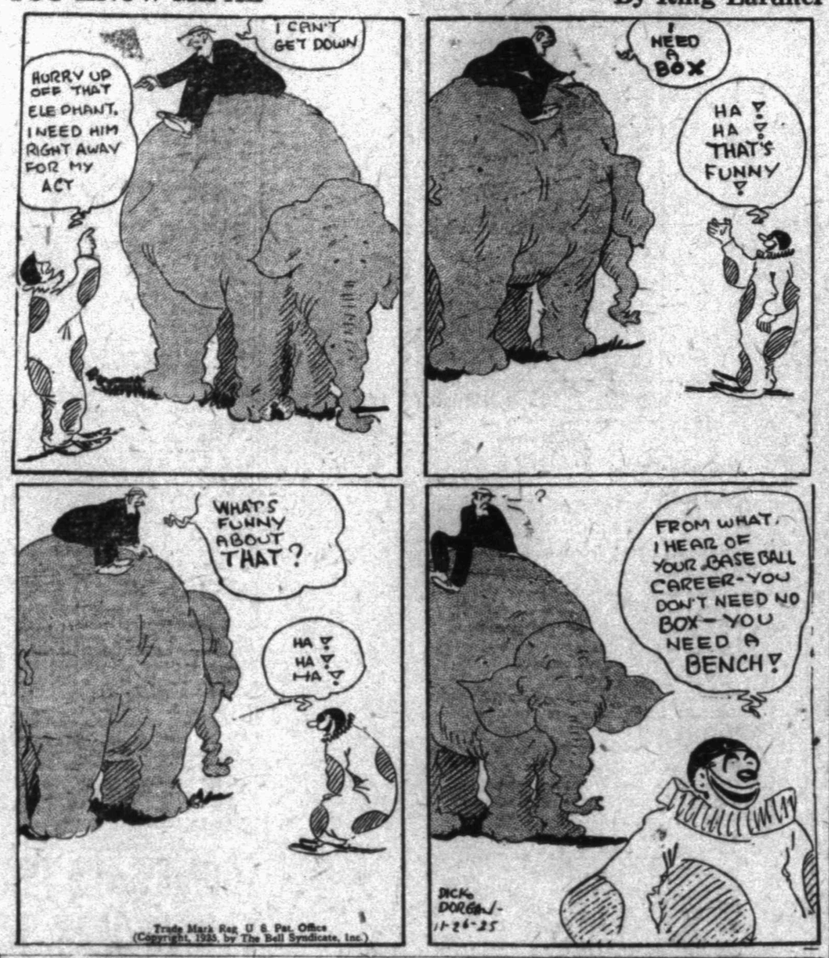

Kid Cossey beat Jack Frost in the third round of a scheduled four-round match by the technical kayo route.

Roughhouse Smith won a decision over Toughy Robertson in a four-round curtain raiser.

WALTERS PLAYS POLY

WALTERS, Okla., Nov. 25.—The Walters high school football team, having won the southern Oklahoma conference championship, has arranged to meet the Polytechnic high school team of Fort Worth, Texas, here Thanksgiving. This will probably be the best game of the season. The teams are said to be well matched. The locals have come through the conference without being scored on and promise to put up a hard fight for the game Thursday.

The PASSING HOUR

They will not mention who name the dreams
That are called the annual all-star teams—
This plugging lad who has gone ahead
And plugged a line hole much like lead—
Who has played his way through seven games
With never a line where the headline flames.

Maybe he is not a star, it's true—
Only he's done what they told him to do—
No showy lad with a natural flair
For drawing eyes to his graceful air—
A simple sort of hum-drum soul
Playing steady, plugging a hole.

But the chances are that when next fall
Gather the clans who play football,
The coach with a brand new line to poll
Will miss the play of that hum-drum soul—
All-Star choices but once are here—
The simple souls must play all year.

CONFERENCE centers have attracted more attention this year than the guards. There are three of the snapper-backs on whose work the majority of the critics have centered—Pfannkuche of Texas, Walker of Baylor and Underwood of Rice with an occasional voice raised for Washmon of T. C. U.

Outstanding guards include Scott of Arkansas, Vaughn of S. M. U. and Dansby of Texas A. and M. But so keen is the competition for center that it is a foregone conclusion many critics will shift one of the centers to guard. If this were done the change of either Underwood or Washmon would be more logical, since both are field goal kickers and Underwood a punter, hence not passing the ball at a critical juncture when their passing might be judged best.

Pfannkuche will be judged largely by his showing in the final games with A. and M. And Walker will have to face Underwood at Houston. Washmon is not likely to make the first selection on many picks because it is really his accurate kicking not his center play that has drawn attention.

It is doubtful if there is a better guard in the conference than Scott, over whom not 15 yards of gain have been smashed all season. But he has keen rivalry in Vaughn and Dansby.

One outstanding feature of the two positions is that no team in the conference has been weak in the middle of the line this season. There may be few outstanding guards but there have been plenty of good hard working ones to get results.

THE Fort Worth Star-Telegram regards selling auto licenses at Christmas as the meanest form of taxation. How about having the material for your eggnogg sequestrated on search and seizure?

BOBCATS PLAY QUANAH

CHILDRESS, Nov. 25.—The Childress Bobcats wind up their football season with the Quanah Indians at Quanah Thursday afternoon.

The Bobcats defeated Matador last Friday at Matador, 26 to 0.

The Thanksgiving game is attracting quite a bit of interest in this section for the Indians are old rivals of the Bobcats.

Lou Dillon Wins at Lexington

WEST BADEN, Ind., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Lou Dillon, owned by L. B. Shouse of Lexington, Ky., today won the all-age matron award in the bench show for dogs at the annual meeting here of the National Fox Hunters' association. Tom Boy, owned by H. H. Lawler, Dublin, Miss., was second, and Beth, owned by L. B. Shouse, Lexington, Ky., was third.

Nebraska Plays Notre Dame In Valley Classic

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Nebraska and Notre Dame at Lincoln will hold the spotlight in Thanksgiving day games on the Missouri valley gridiron tomorrow. It will be the eleventh annual clash between the two schools.

Both Nebraska and Notre Dame have not been up to their usual form this year. Despite the fact that Nebraska has fared ill in the Missouri valley conference this year, the Corn Huskers are a strong aggregation and showed up well in non-conference contests, defeating Illinois and holding the University of Washington to a 6 to 6 tie.

In the past ten contests, Notre Dame has won five, Nebraska four and one was a tie.

CAGE LEAGUE MAY ORGANIZE FRIDAY NIGHT

Landon-Hill, Texhoma And Draughons Ready For Action

Wichita Falls commercial league basketeers will meet for Friday night organization and discussion of plans for the coming season, said C. E. Neal, Landon-Hill team leader, yesterday.

Three clubs have agreed to participate in the race, a fourth has signified the possibility of entering.

Landon-Hill, Draughons business college and Texhoma are marshalling forces, while it's understood there's a possibility of Dixie Tire company putting a team onto the court.

If four teams will agree to enter the league, the organization session will be held Friday, according to Neal. However, if in the meantime the fourth club is not lined up the meeting is to be held at a later date.

Robstown Plays Pearsall Club

ROBSTOWN, Texas, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Robstown high school football squad, winners of the first district interscholastic league championship, will meet Pearsall tomorrow, endeavoring to maintain its record of the "point a minute team." The team annexed this unique sobriquet by scoring one point for every minute played in the seven interscholastic league games in which it participated. It has made 313 points in as many minutes of play.

According to the number of road hogs abroad, there should be no shortage in pig skins this season.

Electra Takes On Burkburnett Bulldogs Today

It's Final Grid Scrap Of Year for Reese's Squad

ELECTRA, Nov. 25.—The Tigers are ready for their go with the Burk Bulldogs when the latter invades the Tigers lair to furnish the opposition for their Thanksgiving fray. This is the last appearance that will be made by the local pigskinners this year.

When the Burk lads buck up against the Tigers Thursday afternoon, they will find that they are facing a much stronger eleven than that which they battled to a 6-6 draw early in the season.

Although Big Dell Coolidge who proved one of the Tigers' greatest assets against Burk in their first clash will be out of the lineup, Pug Sanderlin, captain and star end, will be ready to go which adds to Tiger hopes as Sanderlin wasn't able to don the moleskins in the early season clash of the two teams.

Reese has been using a number of next year men in the lineup during the practice sessions this week and it is probable that Willis Carnahan will see action a plenty either in the backfield or at end as will Louis Kent, who has showed up to a good advantage at both positions. Boney Melton is due to see action at end as is Jesse Weaver at guard and big Oren Sargent at tackle. There are a number of other second stringers who have seen little work in games this year who will likely see action at some stage of the game. Lendon Smith will probably see action in the backfield.

The starting lineup will probably be: Brown and Sanderlin, ends; Aven and Turner, tackles; Smith and Gilger, guards; R. Coolidge, center. In the backfield, Wright and Moore will probably be used with Trammil at full and Lebus directing the team at quarter.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 25.—Prospects for a winning basketball team at Aggieland this year are very poor, or at least until the beginning of the second term, the first of February. With only two letter men from last year's squad Coach Bible is up against the problem of building a new team almost from the ground up. Kyle at center and Baker at guard are the only letter men members of last year's squad back this year, who are eligible. Tucker, a flashy forward of last year will be ineligible until the 20th of January due to his failure to pass the required amount of scholastic work last term. Broad at guard, Kreuger at forward and Shelton at center, members of last year's varsity squad who did not letter should prove valuable men in rebuilding the team; while McConaughey, Tapp and Blount were uncovered in last year's Battalion basketball league. Broiles and Figarl at guards, Clark, Furneaux, and Sikes forwards and Matthews at center, the best members of last season's freshman squad will undoubtedly give the old men a hard scrap for their places.

TRIBE OFF FOR DECATUR GAME THIS MORNING

Deems Returns to Lineup In Time for Final Battle

Mosley's Junior College Indians depart Wichita Falls this morning at 8 o'clock for Decatur, scene of the final conflict of the year this afternoon with Decatur Baptist college gridsters.

Tribe rooters plan to go to Decatur in a special coach. If 100 or more attend the game from Wichita Falls, a cut rate on tickets will be allowed.

The squad yesterday was reported to be in fairly good condition.

The best news that has come to the camp fo rthe last few days is Dummy Deems, quarterback, is again in line to play, having passed his grades and is ready to go. With Deems back in the lineup the club will be strengthened greatly.

Coach Mosley shoved the boys over a rather hard signal practice Wednesday afternoon in a last effort to get them into shape. The coach announced his probable starting lineup as Harris and Crites, ends, Burks and Weeth, tackles, Hirschi and Timmons or Karns, guard; Clary, center; Deems, quarterback; West and Stephenson, halves, and Beaty, fullback.

This constitutes the strength of the Redskins. Each and every one of these men have proved their worth in the early games of the season.

Five Rice Owls In Last Game Today As Bear Invades

HOUSTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Five first string Rice footballers will play their last Owl game Saturday, and three reserves will also terminate their athletic career on the chalked field when the Owls and Baylor's Bears clash in the final game of the year for both teams. Those who are singing their swan songs are: Sam Williams, of Galveston, guard; Joe Heyck, of Houston, guard; William McVey, of Cleveland, Ohio, tackle; Willie Wood Kendrick of Houston, tackle; Oliver Winston of Smithville, end; Travis Calvin, Houston, backfield; Camelle Ulrich of Crosby, tackle, and L. S. McWhorter of Palestine, backfield.

Thus both guards and tackles will be lost to the eleven. Only Heavy Underwood, captain, will be left in the center of the line, and Walter Josephs of Houston will remain on an end. Crain and Appling, who are considered as alternates as ends, will both be back for the combination of next fall. All the men graduate this year with the exception of McVey, who, it is reported, will enter an art school in New York after Christmas.

Calvin and McWhorter, both reserve backs, will be lost. None of the regular backfield athletes are ready for graduation.

Most any butcher can whack off a leg but it takes a skillful surgeon to save one.

WE ARE THANKFUL

We of this firm wish to express our thankfulness for the wonderful patronage which we have enjoyed this year. We are thankful for the warm friendship of our customers and for the part they have played in making this one of the most popular Men's Stores in Wichita Falls.

We pledge ourselves to keep their confidence which is essential to the hearty survival of any institution and will try in the future, if it is possible, to give an even greater service to merit a greater confidence.

WE THANK YOU

To our many friends and customers who have given us their patronage the past year we are very grateful. We have tried hard to give the very best values in quality merchandise that is possible to obtain. We will strive even more in the future to make this store shopping headquarters for the men and young men of this community who like to dress well. The evidence of our customer's approval of our efforts has stirred us to further betterment of service and satisfaction.

It will be appreciated if you will phone me your selection and I will then do all possible to have handled per the petition conditions, decision by abutting property owners after prices known. (Forms for ads closed before council meeting, so I cannot include bids in this request). Messrs. Evans, Woodson and myself circulated the petition in the main, and we'll do our part to have properly carried out as intended. Those not electing as to preference being not counted in tabulations of foot frontage to decide.
Phone City Cleck 6909, for bids and prices submitted if you are not informed. It there is any merit in competitive bidding, it is rediculous and illogical to make decision on choice before knowing bids.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The cotton market was rather a quiet affair today trading being restricted by the impending holiday tomorrow—Thanksgiving—when all the American markets will be closed. There was the natural indisposition to enter upon new commitments and such trading as there was resulted from evening up and liquidation for over the holiday. Prices after opening seven to 15 points lower on poor cables, eased off further to a loss of 18 to 19 points on liquidation and due a rumor that there was a panic on the French bourse due to the further drop in francs and to the cabinet crisis. The rumor was later denied and prices recovered some but the market ruled very quiet for the rest of the morning. There was a fair rally in the afternoon on shorts covering for over the holiday and because of better spot news and some fears of a return of bad weather in the belt. After advancing 12 to 24 points from the lows to a small net gain over yesterday's close on active positions, the market weakened right at the end on liquidation losing most of the recovery and closing seven to 17 points net lower for the day.

At the lowest of the early trading which also proved to be the low level of the day, January traded down to 19.88 and March to 19.56 or 19 points below the previous close. The rally of the afternoon carried January up to 20.12 and March to 19.78 or 22 to 24 points above the lows and three to five points above the previous close. In the last few minutes of the session prices on the active months broke 17 points from the highs. The final trades were about 10 points above the lows of the morning and 12 to 14 points under the close of yesterday for the most active months.

Exports to rthe day totaled 37,836 bales.

NEW YORK FUTURES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed easy at net decline of 7 to 17 points.

	High	Low	Close	Prev. Close
Jan.	20.41	20.13	20.26-30	20.33

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The cotton market was generally quiet today with business largely of a pre-holiday character. After selling off early to 20.15, January rallied to 20.41, but did not fully maintain the advance, closing at 20.27. The general market closed easy at a net decline of about 17 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of three to 10 points and showed net losses of about 14 to 27 points in early trading under liquidation local and southern selling. Sentiment appeared to be influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables, the further decline in the French franc which was accompanied by rumors that in some cases French buying orders for cotton were being cancelled and a favorable weekly review by the weather bureau of conditions in the south.

Some selling of December against purchases of March by spot interests and the relatively easy ruling of the near months and an unsettling effect on sentiment. The decline was checked by covering, however, and the afternoon market rallied on bullish spot advices from the south which included reports of short demand and buying for southern mill accounts. Prices recovered all their loss. December selling up from 20.74 to 21.03 and March from 20.12 to 20.32. At these figures more realizing and some southern hedge selling developed in the last few minutes carrying closing prices 1 to 16 points off from the best. Much of the day's business was attributed to switching from neas to late months. Trading otherwise was supposed to be largely in liquidation of old accounts.

Exports today 37,873, making 3,402,003 so far this season. Port receipts 43,993. U. S. port stocks 1,460,415 bales.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Stock prices bounded upward today on a subsidence of selling pressure, with practically all groups participating in the advance. Net gains of one to five points were numerous at the close, a few stocks showing advances from six to nearly 12½ points. Total sales, however, were well below the 2,000,000 share mark.

Speculators for the advance started to bid up stocks at the opening on the theory that forced liquidation had been completed and that the market was entitled to rally on technical grounds. Special strength quickly developed in the rails on publication of additional favorable October earnings statements and soon spread to the steels, motors, tobaccos, mercantiles, chemicals and specialties.

The strong character of the buying soon led to extensiv erhort covering, the rapidity of the advance in some issues suggesting an overcrowded short interest. Several large blocks of stocks were thrown into the market at intervals but they were well absorbed and prices moved steadily forward, the closing quotations generally being around the day's high.

Pittsburgh and West Virginia was the sensational feature s nthe rail group soaring 12 points to a new high record at 120½ on reports of competitive buying for control. Atlantic Coast Line closed over seven points higher at 226 while Atchison, New York Central, Southern railway, Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, Chicago and Northwestern, St. Paul preferred Missouri Pacific and Delaware and Hudson were among the many issues to show net gains to a point or more.

Motors also were strongly bought for both accounts. Chrysler closed 112⅝ points higher at 183⅛ after having sold slightly above that figure and General Motors showed a net gain of 3⅜ at 111⅛. U. S. Steel common closed three points higher at 130⅝. Among the many new high records established during the day were Tobacco Products, "A" Liggett and Myers "A" and "B", Consolidated Cigar, Kimber Brothers, Weber and Heilbroner, Norfolk and Western, Postum Cereal, Sheffield Steel, Foundation company and Devoe and Reynolds.

Call money held steady at 4½ per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Renewed weakness of French francs which broke below 3.75 cents to a new low record for the year was the feature of the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady at $4.84¼ but moderate recessions took place in most of the other European rates.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Largely as the result of a forecast from a British trade authority that Argentine will have an exportable surplus of 38,000,000 bushels larger than recent estimates by American experts wheat prices today averaged lower. The wheat market here closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1¼ down, new style. December $1.61⅝ to $1.62 and May $1.59¾ to $1.59½, with corn unchanged to ⅝c off, oats ⅛c up and provisions varying from 12 decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Corn was swayed chiefly by the action of wheat. Favorable weather continued in the corn belt, and most traders were looking for liberal receipts here on Friday about 700 cars. Commission houses picked up surplus offerings of oats. Lard trading was reported as rather slow, but demand for meats was seasonal.

Livestock

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25.—Activity characterized the cattle trade Wednesday. Nothing except calves, was quotably higher, but the market had a good, strong undertone, and consignments went scaleward with unusual briskness. Calves were 50c higher, the gain for the past two days amounting to fully 50c. Rates on stockers and feeders were unchanged, arrivals being of small importance. There was no market in Fort Worth Thursday, as the holiday will be observed at all livestock centers.

Consignments of slaughter steers sold readily, salesmen finding the market satisfactory in every detail. The showing was not large, but quality made a good average and as a whole was the best of the three day period. Six loads went at $6.85 and other sales were from $6 to $6.50.

Fat cows ranged up to $4.25. Most of the run cleared at $3.25 to $3.75. Canners reached $2.65 and strong cutters made $3.35. Heifers and yearlings were scarce. One car of bulls were here and sold at $3.50. Small lots went at $2.50 to $3.00.

Heavy calves of fairly good quality brought $7 to $7.40. No good lights were here. Bulk sales ranged around $5.50 to $6.50.

The hog market opened steady, with only two cars here, one load going at $11.75 and the other at $11.40. Three cars arrived later, however, and a sale was made at $11.90. Some truck hogs went at $12.50 to a butcher.

Receipts of sheep ran largely to goats and stockers. The market presented a steady appearance. A deck of goats brought $3, some stocker shorn lambs notched $11 and a few stocker yearlings brought $10.50.

Livestock receipts were estimated at 3,500 head of cattle, 700 calves, 500 hogs and 600 sheep.

Cattle, 4,200, including 700 calves: market strong, cattle, 25c higher on calves; steers $4.50@7.75; stockers $4.00@5.75; fat cows $3.50@6.00; cutters $2.75@3.35; canners $2.25@2.65; heifers $3.50@8.50; yearlings $4.25@9.00; bulls $2.50@3.75; calves $2.50@7.50.

Boy, Doomed To Die, Refused New Trial

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP)—William Cavalier, the 15-year-old boy condemned to the electric chair for the killing of his grandmother, was notified today that the supreme court had refused him a new trial. The boy showed no concern. He replied to the information given him by offering to close the cell window if it was too cold for his lawyers. He asked the depth of the snow, but manifested no interest whatever in his fate.

No man knoweth what a bum kidney doeth.

Market Gossip

R. E. Flowerree and Co., brokers, Staley Bldg., today received the following market comment from Fenner and Beane, of New York, New Orleans and Chicago:

COTTON.

Prices moved but little today as there were no new developments to stimulate activity on either side and the holiday Thursday made traders more inclined to even up than take on new commitments.

Profit taking or liquidation in December caused that position to lose some of its premium.

The weekly review was quite favorable as to progress of picking but reiterated former statements to the effect that most of the cotton in the fields in the northwest is of low grade.

The map indicates probability of another rainy spell developing over the holiday. If this materializes it may help the market.

Sentiment is more or less mixed at the moment with many traders awaiting some new development.

GRAINS.

Wheat: Easier Liverpool, accompanied by reports of better weather in the Argentina gave our market a lower start and brought out sufficient liquidation to create a weak appearance. Nevertheless, offerings were well absorbed and the tone at the close was strong. In fact, the relative strength of the Buenos Aires market, where prices were ⅝ up at noon, was a source of uneasiness to shorts.

There was not much business done today, said to be due to lack of offerings more than anything else.

Markets under influence of crop news, either foreign or domestic, are always more or less erratic, and as Argentina news is the dominant factor at the moment numerous reactions are to be expected. When they offer, we think they should be taken advantage of to make purchases.

Coarse Grains: The corn market was under pressure during the forenoon, the selling seemingly inspired by increased receipts and the failure of foreigners to make additional purchases following yesterday's business. Later in the session a better demand for futures developed, which was credited to prominent interests, and the close of the session was strong. It seems to us the market has already felt effect of any increased movement and that any change in the situation must necessarily be for the better.

Chapman, Killer, Will Get Reprieve

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Gerald Chapman, mail robber and murderer, will be reprieved from death sentence set for Dec. 3 until March 3, 1926, by Governor Trumbull, probably tonight, by agreement reached between State's Attorney Alcorn and Joseph Freedman of counsel for Chapman.

The date was agreed upon at a conference this afternoon and the necessary papers to be offered the governor, prepared. Meantime legal points to be raised in new angles in the Chapman case based upon the writ of habeas corpus and the refusal of Chapman to accept a presidential commutation of sentence as a mail robber will be taken to the United States supreme court.

They curse their weight—the overfat,
And swear on each occasion
That they are "off the food for life"—
But that's their pet evasion.

MRS. WILSON IN CITY SINCE 1890 PASSES AWAY

Pioneer Resident Succumbs To Long Illness On Wednesday

Mrs. G. N. Wilson, aged 73 and a resident of Wichita Falls since 1890, died at 4:25 o'clock Wednesday afternoon following a long period of failing health that in the past few days had rendered her condition critical. She passed away at her home, 1209 Seventeenth Street, with members of the family at her bedside.

Coming here some 35 years ago from Denton county, Mrs. Wilson had built up an exceptionally large acquaintanceship in and around Wichita Falls. She was an active worker in the First Baptist church here until failing health compelled her to give up her enterprise in this institution. Until the end, though, she retained her interest in the affairs of the church where she was an honored and respected member.

Mrs. Wilson was born in Tarrant county in 1852 and lived there and in Denton until she moved here with her husband some six years after their marriage in 1882. Mr. Wilson, who survives her, is one of the veteran employes of the Wichita Mill and Elevator where he has worked steadily for years. Up until last Thursday the family had lived at 1706 Bluff Street, having maintained a residence at that address for many years past.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Wilson leaves four sons, L. A., O. E., Guy and L. E. Wilson all of Wichita Falls, and two sisters, Mrs. R. C. Beal of Fort Worth and Mrs. W. B. Hood residing near that city.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night but these will be completed some time Thursday.

CITY BRIEFS

City Clerk W. R. McBroom and family left Wednesday to spend Thanksgiving with relatives in Ardmore, Okla.

Judge R. V. Gwinn and family left early Thursday morning to spend Thanksgiving with Judge Gwinn's brother in Oklahoma. They will return the first of next week.

The Kemp Public Library Will Be closed Thanksgiving day and will not reopen until the regular time Friday morning, according to announcement by the librarian, Miss Lucia Powell.

Mrs. Leonard Grayson and Sons, Jackalee and Dick, have gone to Norman, Okla., to visit over Thanksgiving with her mother. They expect to return the first of the week.

Lester Martin, Jack Story, John Hides, Herbert Mayfield and Dillard Hughes, all students at Oklahoma university, arrived Wednesday night to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with their parents. The boys are all pledged to Sigma Phi.

Five Negro Men Were Arrested By city police Wednesday afternoon when they staged a surprise raid on a crap game in progress in the basement of a local hotel. All the gamers put up cash bonds at the police station and will be tried in city court this morning.

City Tax Statements To the Number of more than 4,500 were completed Wednesday at the office of W. E. Dyer, tax collector and assessor, and part of them have been put in the mails. All will be mailed out in a short time. It is asked that special care be taken of them since they must be presented when a tax-payer appears to pay his bill; or must be returned with the check in the mails.

A Representative From the Manufacturers of Martha Washington chocolates will be in Wichita Falls Saturday as the guest of the Tenth Street Fruitery. The young lady, who will be dressed in Martha Washington style, will be at the fruitery, which has the exclusive agency for Martha Washington chocolates in Wichita Falls, from 9 o'clock Saturday till 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and from 4 to 9 o'clock Saturday evening. Sample boxes of the "old home made" Martha Washington candies will be given away to visitors to the store during that time.

Special Car To Be Sent To C-C Meet

Sufficient names have already been compiled by the chamber of commerce to insure chartering of one special car for the regional conference of the southwestern division of the United States chamber of commerce, it was announced yesterday. The conferences will be held in Oklahoma City on December 1 and 2 and it is hoped that at least two carloads of Wichita Falls business men can make the trip. A special chamber of commerce committee has been working in the interests of a large delegation which will be headed by Frank Kell, a member of the board of directors of the United States chamber of commerce.

Twenty names were announced last night as those of business men here who will probably make the trip. They are not definitely reserved but indications have been given that the following will attend the Oklahoma City sessions: Frank Kell, J. T. Harrell, J. C. Mytinger, W. B. Hamilton James P. Waggoner, J. S. Bridwell L. L. Albritton, Joe Huckins, III, J. J. Perkins, E. H. Edleman, W. M. Mc Gregor, R. E. Shepherd, Jack Barnard, P. A. Rogers, W. M. Priddy, B D. Donnell, Frank Baldwin, D. M. Bernard, Hubert M. Harrison and J W. Chatham.

HOW WORKERS LINE UP AFTER DRIVE IS OVER

Compilation of Results Of Community Chest Issued Wednesday

Below is a tabulated statement of work done by the 17 teams soliciting subscriptions to the community chest fund. It is not correct, in that it accounts for only $48,774.15, while a total of $51,230 has actually been raised or pledged. The discrepancy is accounted for by the additional returns made by team captains Wednesday afternoon. The table shows the standing of affairs at noon Wednesday when the second days returns were made at the Kemp luncheon. Individual team reports were not available last night.

The table serves to show, however, how the various teams reported. It must be borne in mind that the wide variation is governed largely by the productivity of the territories in which a team worked. Those showing the greatest amounts subscribed had a section in which to work that offered a more fertile field than the area in which other teams showing less results was assigned.

The following is the table:

STARTS YOUNG, QUITS YOUNG

Youthful Wellington Auto Thief Has Had Enough Of It

"You started pretty young, didn't you bud?" Jailer Ike Johnson asked a 16-year-old boy who was arrested here Wednesday by officers from Wellington, Texas.

"Yes, and I guess I'll stop pretty young, too," the culprit grinned.

The youth was picked up here on a charge of stealing an automobile in Wellington.

He has admitted the theft.

TEXAS AMERICAN LEGION ADDS 1875 TO ITS ROLLS

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Since its membership drive was started November 11, the Texas American Legion has added 1,875 members, S. M. Hankins, state adjutant, said today. The membership is now approximately 15,000.

Bad Weather Platform Is Announced By Haney

A platform, "not to stand on, but for a shelter in the stormy days ahead," is announced by W. W. (Jack) Haney, blue law advocate, dry law leader and reformer, who is a candidate for the diamond ring in the Maskat Shrine Temple ceremonies today.

"I don't care what becomes of the road contracts or who gets the money, but I want a bridge over the hot sands, and if elected as a successful ring candidate, will pledge every Shriner that I'll never do it again," Mr. Haney says.

Mr. Haney broadcast his dry law speech over radio station BOOZE.

No opposition has yet developed to the Haney candidacy and his friends predict victory for him. Mr. Haney is soliciting "the support, influence and vote of every member of Maskat Temple," he says.

W. W. Harney, Wichita Music company, is running on a popularity platform of the Shrine ring in the coming Shrine ceremonials.

Chest Workers Ask All To Join Fund

There are no doubt a number of Wichitans who have not been asked personally to contribute to the community chest fund.

It is not that campaign officials would not appreciate a subscription from these persons. They want them, but the very nature of such a task as the chest drive presents precludes the possibility of every man and woman in town being interviewed personally.

To these persons an appeal is being made to send in voluntary contributions or phone a chest official so that some one may be sent out to take the subscription.

If you have not subscribed and are willing to give something, just mail your check or cash, with your name and address, to campaign headquarters at the chamber of commerce. Or call that office—4131—tell your wants and a solicitor will come to your address with a pledge card.

MRS. RUGGLES IS DEAD

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)— Mrs Mary Lee (Dixie) Ruggles, 62, widow o fthe late Gardner Ruggles, is dead here. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Henry R. Davis, and a son Dan G. Ruggles of Dallas, and William R. Ruggles, secretary of the Texas Ex-Students' association, and well-known sport writer.

Yancey Story To Get Jail Release

DENTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Judge Hal Lattimore of Fort Worth, sitting as special judge in the sixteenth district court here this afternoon, ordered bonds for Yancey Story in twenty-six indictments pending in Denton county approved and Story released, subject to approval of bonds totalling $6,000 in four cases which were transferred to Collin county on a change of venue several months ago.

MICKEY WALKER WINS.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, retained his title tonight when he gained a newspaper decision over Sailor Friedman, challenger, in a 12-round, no-decision contest in the Newark armory. According to newspaper critics at the ringside, Walker had a margin in ten rounds while two went on the records as a draw.

Shall We Say Here Is Something To Be Thankful For?

The business of getting married on a holiday eve occupied the attention of quite a few yesterday. Six marriage licenses, one of the largest single day's run in several weeks were issued by the county clerk. They went to the following: G. L. Daugherty, Wichita Falls, and Miss Hallie Lower, Wichita Falls; W. L. Owensby, Wichita Falls, and Mrs. Tessie Johnson, Wichita Falls; Oby V. Rhoads, Wichita Falls, and Miss Annie Maude Hoover, Wichita Falls; J. L. Brown, Electra, and Miss Chessie Allford, Iowa Park; Otho E.
