Along The Waterfront

Mrs. Jim Staisell of Taylor Oak Trailer Park caught 13 nice trout and Al Smith and Byron Smith got 31 trout last week.

Jesse Barrera, a printer at the Pilot tells this one:

"My wife and I were fishing Friday, May 31 on the Intracoastal Canal south of Port Aransas. We got 22—mostly croaker and gafftop.

"She hooked an 8 1/4 pound drum and as I raised it out of the water, the line broke and there went the fish.

"I had previously caught two fish and had them on the stringer in the water. I noticed that the drum went down and up again and stayed near the boat.

"My wife had two hooks on her leader and what I think happened was that when the fish was going down, one of my fishes on the stringer went after the other shrimp. So we pulled up the stringer—two small fish and the big drum—the small fish actually had the bait and hook in its mouth.

"So there!"

Plans Now On Drawing Board Show Space For 150 Cars At Shopping Center Which Will Include a Number of Other Businesses

H. E. Butt, president of the H. E. Butt Grocery Company, Corpus Christi, announced this morning that his company would build its 90th store in Rockport, sometime within the next ten months.

W. J. Black, who acquired the land for the development, which will include an HEB store, a variety store and others, said the exact date would depend upon the construction schedule for a number of other stores which the com-

Three Thousand Attend Art Show

Three thousand or more people attended the Spring Show of the Rockport School of Fine Arts, Friday, Saturday and Sunday and at times there were between 200 and 300 people on the grounds, inspecting the paintings, which included a number by Rockport artists. And may of the artists who exhibited paintings at the show will return next Monday, June 10, when the first summer session of the school gets under way with a session on landscape and marine paintings.

Mrs. Madeline O'Connor of Victoria was top winner of the day. She was awarded the Rockport School of Fine Arts Gold Cup for outstanding achievement, as well as winning first place in the figure division sponsored by Central Power and Light Company, and an honorable mention in still life division, sponsor Key Allegro Island Estates.

Another top winner was Dalhart Windberg, also of Victoria, who was awarded the $100 cash prize donated by Emory Spencer for the most popular painting at the show, and the second place award in the figure division. The most popular painting was chosen by vote, and evidently Windberg's other paintings found favor with the public, for he had sold all of them but one by the close of the show.

Among the Rockport artists exhibiting at the show were Mrs. A. Dinger, who exhibited nine paintings; Mrs. James A. Jarboe, 15; Mrs. Edna Taylor, 9; Mrs. Jerry Wendell, 5; Mrs. Mary Goodman, 5; Mrs. Ruth Wright, 7; Mrs. Gene Bird, 9; Mrs. Fay Hartman, 12; Robert Harriet, 2; Mrs. Grace Lentz, 13; Mrs. Travis Bailey, 12; Lorna Hamilton, 15; Tim Wilde, 1; and Mrs. Robert Little, 2.

SEA-O-RAMA OPENS WITH ART SHOW

Local Shipyard Will Build 7 Big Trawlers for Japanese

Navigation Filing Deadline Is June 19

Deadline for filing for a place on the Navigation District ballot in July is June 19, 1963, according to Ellis L. Clark, navigation district attorney.

The term of Ted Atwood expires in July. He has announced for re-election as has Charles Schindler.

ART SCHOOL SUMMER CLASSES START MONDAY

The first summer session of the Rockport School of Fine Arts will start next Monday morning, June 10, according to Director Simon G. Michael, who says that it will run from June 10 through June 21.

The second session, which deals with portrait, figure, still life and landscapes, runs July 8-19, and the third, on landscapes and marine paintings will be from Aug. 5-16.

Seven big steel, deep water trawlers, of a type pioneered by Rockport Yacht and Supply Company, are to be built here for a Japanese fishing company—Nippon Reizo Kabushiki Kaisha, of Tokyo, according to T. N. Smith, Jr., of San Antonio, head of the shipbuilding firm.

Contracts have been signed and construction will start as soon as material can be obtained, Smith said.

This marks another step in the expansion of the Rockport industry, which is rapidly becoming the city's largest employer of skilled labor, with a payroll of over $8,000 per month.

"We have about 40 permanent employees now," Smith said, "and since we have obtained the trawler contract, the force will be increased. In addition, we are remodeling a portion of our big buildings into offices for an accounting force, most of which will also be obtained in Rockport."

Smith's father, the late T. Noah Smith, was one of the developers of the Luling Oil Field, and an early resident of this area, where he was a boyhood friend of Conn Brown, perennial mayor of Aransas Pass. In later years he purchased the Hoopes home here, and the Smith family have used this as a summer residence ever since.

"We started in the boat business at Rockport about 1935," Smith said, and about 1933-34 we started in the boat repair business.

We didn't really get into it in a big way until 1957, when we built the big building in which we can repair and build boats in any weather. Since then, the business has grown steadily, with Albert Silchenstedt as works manager, and we figure on still further expansion. We intend to construct a new building almost immediately for yacht repair and refinishing under cover. This will make it possible for us to take in fine yachts and to turn them out looking like new. Boatyards in Florida are furnishing such service, and we intend to offer facilities as good as theirs or better. It is our hope to become the yacht refinishing and repair center of the Gulf Coast."

Smith says that the yard already does business with yacht owners from all over, and that it also repairs and builds trawlers for fishery operators from Florida to Texas.

The trawlers that are to be built for the Japanese firm, Albert Silchenstedt said, are of the same type as an all-steel hull the yard is just finishing for R. E. Clegg, (Continued on page 8)

ADDITION PLANNED FOR TELEPHONE BUILDING, SHORT SAYS

A major addition to the Rockport telephone building has been announced by Allen Short, manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Short said the extensive building project calls for additions to both the front and rear of the present telephone structure, along with interior alterations. Construction will be of solid masonry to match the present building.

An addition measuring 19 x 20 feet will be made to the front of the building. At the rear, an addition measuring 22 x 20 feet will be made.

Short said the added floor space will be used to care for future growth of the dial telephone equipment serving the city. The building project is expected to be completed in about five or six months.

Short said Seth Steele, contractor of Rockport, was successful bidder on the telephone project.

SINGING CONVENTION POSTPONED UNTIL NOTICE

The Aransas County Second Sunday Singing Convention will not be held June 9, because a number of the singers are on vacation, at special schools or otherwise occupied.

As a consequence, it has been decided to discontinue meetings until some future time, which will be announced.

Captain Johnson Killed In Alaskan Air Disaster

Captain Robert M. Johnson, who with his wife and two children formerly lived next to Mr. and Mrs. Del P. McLain in Little Bay Shores, was one of those lost when a sudden mysterious plane disaster sent 101 men, women and children to their deaths in the bitter North Pacific Monday.

Captain Johnson had only been recently transferred to an Alaskan Air Force Command, while Mrs. Johnson and the two children had returned to Austin to live with her folks while he was on this remote duty.

The family was well-known here. Captain Johnson came here to the 813th ACW Squadron as a lieutenant, and received his promotion to captaincy while attached to the local squadron. He and his wife were members of the congregation of the First Baptist Church, and took an active part in the community.

Debris and bits of bodies were picked up at the site of the disaster, scotched any hope that there were survivors of the chartered Northwest Orient Airlines DC7. Ships at the scene radioed that evidence "indicated an impact of great force."

The propeller-driven four engined airliner fell into the sea from a height of nearly three miles a moment after making a routine radio request for a change of altitude. There was no hint of trouble.

The location was 60 miles off the northern tip of British Columbia's Queen Charlotte Islands and about 175 miles southwest of Ketchikan, Alaska.

The chartered military air transport flight from McCord Air Force Base, near Tacoma, Wash., to Anchorage, Alaska, carried 58 servicemen, 22 military dependents, 15 civilian employees of the Defense Department and their dependents and a Northwest Airlines crew of six.

Thirteen women, including two stewardesses, and 20 children were aboard. The children ranged in age from 10 months, to their late teens.

Most of the 39 Air Force personnel, including a WAF, and the 18 Army men were flying north to new assignments in Alaska.

There was no immediate clue to what happened. Officials refused to speculate, but said it was swift and strange. Weather was discounted as a factor, although there was some turbulence and icing conditions at the time.

With weather apparently ruled out, all signs indicated something went wrong in the plane, but no one would comment on the possibility of an explosion or structural failure.

Debris recovered over a mile-wide arc gave one indication those aboard may have had a moment's warning of disaster. Several seats fished out of the water had the belts buckled.

The Coast Guard said the cutter Sorrell and the Alaska Steamship Co. freighter Chena had both recovered "mutilated parts of bodies," personal belongings, books, postcards, aircraft insulation, three uninflated life rafts and scores of pieces of twisted, broken metal.

ARANSAS MIOCENE STRIKE GAUGED FOR 13.2 MILLION

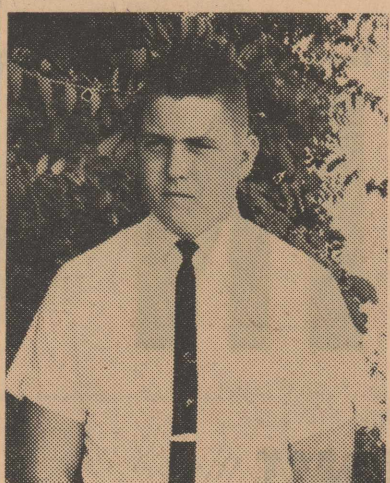

Coastal States Producing Co. of Corpus Christi No. 1 Aransas Bay Tract 79, Aransas County Miocene discovery 1 1/2 miles south of Lamar, has been completed for a daily open flow of 13.2 million cubic feet of dry gas.

Production was through perforations from 4,274-80 feet in 4 1/2 inch casing at 4,360 feet, with total depth 8,000 feet. Flowing tubing pressure on 10/64 inch choke was 1,786 pounds and shut-in pressure was 1,865 pounds.

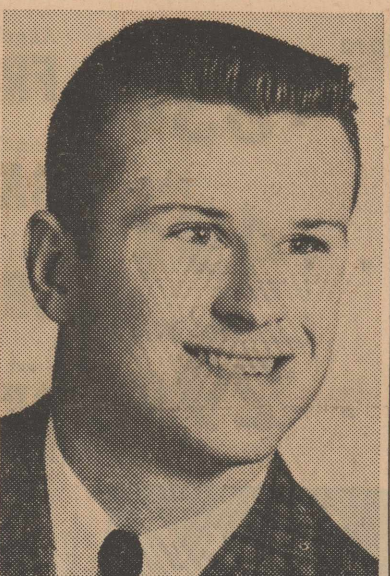

Location is on a 320 acre lease in Aransas Bay.

Tuer, Townsend To Attend U of T Atomic Meeting

An Aransas County School student, Gary Tuer, has been named to attend the Third Texas Nuclear Science Symposium at the University of Texas, June 9-12, under the sponsorship of Central Power and Light Company, according to an announcement made today by local manager B. T. Hardeman. Tuer will be accompanied by Clyde J. Townsend, a recent graduate of San Marcos, who will teach mathematics in Rockport schools next year.

The symposium is being jointly sponsored by the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation and the University of Texas. The Foundation is made up of eleven investor-owned electric utility companies in this state, including Central Power and Light.

Some 500 selected students and teachers from high schools throughout the state will attend the Austin sessions, at which some of the nation's outstanding nuclear scientists will speak. Schools invited to send participants were chosen by the University.

"The Foundation is co-sponsoring, with the General Atomic Division of General Dynamics Corporation, the world's largest privately financed research effort in the field of controlled nuclear fusion, is also seeking through sponsorship of science symposiums to contribute scientific education and understanding," Hardeman said.

The meetings sponsored by the Foundation seek to bring to Texas high school science students and teachers lectures on nuclear physics and nuclear fusion research by outstanding scientists and to provide the students with an opportunity to obtain answers to their questions on scientific careers and college curricula.

Topics to be covered during the three-day session will include nuclear physics and nuclear reactors, nuclear fusion research, direct conversion and solid state physics, physics and mathematics, X-ray, electron and neutron defraction methods, neutron activation analysis and biophysics.

SEA-O-RAMA DANCE FRIDAY NIGHT AT ROCKPORT RADAR

There will be a Sea-o-rama dance open to the public, at the recreation hall of Rockport Air Force Station on Friday night, from 8 p.m. until midnight, with Lex Harp and his orchestra furnishing the music. Admission is $3 per couple. Only 100 couples can be accommodated, so Jimmy Kautz, general chairman, says you'd better get there early, or buy your tickets in advance.

SEVENTY-SIX BEAUTIES COMPETING IN THE FOUR CATEGORIES; PARADE TO BE BIGGEST, BEST EVER; BOAT RACES TO BE EXCITING

Final plans have been made for Rockport's Sea-o-rama, which starts with an art exhibit that gets under way Friday, and ends with boat races Sunday.

The art exhibit, at the Aransas County Woman's Club will be open from noon until 5 p.m. on June 7, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday, and from noon until 5 p.m. on Sunday. The awards will be made by Joseph A. Cain, art editor of the Corpus Christi Caller Times.

Friday night there will be a dance at Rockport AFS, open to the first hundred couples to arrive, at $3 per couple. Also expected for Friday afternoon is a space exhibit from NASA at Houston, to be erected on the beach, where a carnival is already setting up its tests.

Saturday morning's festivities got under way at 10 a.m. when all beauties, and all entries for the parade are asked to check in and register at the VFW Hall on Market Street, prior to the start at 10:45 a.m. Delmar Hiller, says that practically all Rockport businesses have agreed to close during the procession.

Dignitaries and judges will be introduced from the reviewing stand prior to the parade entries as they pass the stand. As has become the custom, the floats, bands, beauties, etc., will disband on the Fulton waterfront.

Immediately following the parade disbandment, the Lone Star dog and pony show will be held at Fulton waterfront, and this will be followed by a fish fry, staged by the Fulton Lions Club.

At 2 p.m., there will be a luncheon at the VFW Hall for those beauties competing in the senior contest for the title of Miss Sea-o-rama, and in the junior contest, for the title of Miss Mermaid. There are 19 entries in the first; thirty-three girls are contesting for the title of Miss Mermaid; there are 12 entries in the sub-teen contest, including several from out-of-town; and in the tiny tot division there are another dozen hopefuls.

At the same time as the luncheon, the Coastal Bend Sports Car Club will hold a gymkhana at the Rockport waterfront area. This event will be a precision driving contest on a special obstacle course for owners of foreign and domestic sports cars, with trophies to be awarded in the various classes. Further information of this may be obtained by calling Bill Pearce at TE 5-1850 in Corpus Christi. (continued on page 8)

C of C Transactions And Reports Routine

Chamber of Commerce directors heard routine reports and transacted a number of business matters at their regular meeting Tuesday night.

Mrs. Mary Juergens reported that three new members had been signed—Lockwood, Andrews and Newnam, engineers; Dunes Mobil Home Park; and E. B. Crawford, Justice of the Peace.

Jimmy Kautz told directors there was a great need of entries for the local division in the boat races to be held Sunday afternoon as part of the Sea-o-rama.

Mrs. James A. Jarboe, public relations council of the Aransas Natural Gas Company, reported on the status of the Hug-the-Coast Highway.

Mrs. Juergens reported that the tourist promotion committee was busily engaged in developing a float for use in the Sea-o-rama. She also reported that playground equipment in the waterfront park had been repaired.

The directors also discussed the possibility of a traffic sign for the intersection of Highway 35 and Market Street. Control on beach traffic and swimming in the ski basin were also discussed.

AIR FORCE OFFICER QUALIFICATION TEST TO BE GIVEN

S/Sgt. Gary C. Douglass, local Air Force recruiter, announced today that the Air Force Officer Qualification test will be administered to interested college graduates at 8 a.m. on June 18th at the Corpus Christi Air Force Recruiting Office, 420 Taylor Street.

Sgt. Douglas said that selected applicants will attend Officer Training School at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas. Training is 12 weeks in duration and leads to a 2nd Lt's Commission in the United States Air Force.

Upon completion of training, graduates are normally placed in job assignments related to their college degree. Male applicants are also afforded the opportunity to apply for pilot or navigator training.

College graduates or college seniors within 210 days of graduating are eligible to take the test if they are between the ages of 20 1/2 and 29 1/2. Interested applicants are encouraged to stop by the Air Force recruiting office or call TU 2-2402 no later than June 17 to obtain a reservation for the test.

Palm Harbor Folks Are Sand Dollar Multi-Millionaires

Fossil sand dollars were deposited in the banks of Palm Harbor ages ago and now, after every rain, may be withdrawn by shell collectors who don't even have to write a check to cash in on this treasure trove.

It's a sort of shell game that really pays off, for the avid collectors who frequent the spoil banks are just as apt to come up with a mammoth's tooth or a camel's thigh bone as they are with one of the dollars.

"They must be awfully old," said Raulie Irwin, former San Patricio County Commissioner whose dredge has uncovered a whole host of prehistoric animals that once lived in the Coastal Bend.

Irwin comes by his interest in prehistoric life naturally, for a number of years ago his father, who was also a San Patricio County Commissioner, uncovered a vast treasure of fossil bones in a caliche pit at Old Ingleside.

"I guess that is what aroused my interest first," Raulie said, "and I've been sort of a sporadic fossil collector ever since. When we started dredging here, all sorts of things appeared on the spoil banks, but now, while fossil collectors prospect them after nearly every rain, most of the larger fossils are gone. But if you could spend sand dollars, we'd all be millionaires."

Irwin doesn't know just when these relatives of the starfish and sea lilies swarmed in the area where Palm Harbor now stands, but is satisfied it must have been eons ago, when the ocean covered this section of the Coastal Bend.

"I know that sea urchins became plentiful about 60,000,000 to 125,000,000 years ago," he said, "and sand dollars are members of the sea urchin and starfish tribe, along with crinoids or sea lilies. But I don't suppose these are that old, because they're more like the ones you find in the Gulf today."

Irwin has sought information in books on fossils about the dollars, and has some pictures of what the sea bottom must have looked like around here a hundred million years or more ago.

"But of course," he said, "I haven't any idea whether all of these things were here then. They might have been, but we haven't found anything but the sand dollars and the bones of the horses, camels and elephants that came afterwards."

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jamison of Dallas spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Glass. Mr. Jamison is Mrs. Glass' nephew.

Louis Ernest Grimm and Eloise Marie Olmstead Prophet were married Thursday, May 30, by Justice of the Peace E. B. Crawford, Sr., at his home.

Fort D. A. Russell Founded By Cavalry

Once Fort D. A. Russell at Marfa was an important cavalry post, but bugle calls no longer resound from its parade ground. Today barracks and stables have been turned into warehouses by the Fort Russell Ranch Company, and houses along officer's row are now occupied by the Border Patrol.

It all began when Mexican revolutionists were burning, stealing and murdering along the border, half a century ago, and U. S. Cavalry regiments were ordered to the Rio Grande. Troop M of the 3rd and Troop H of the 14th founded the fort, which was then called Camp Marfa.

Later other cavalry and even some infantry regiments were stationed there, but it was nine men from Troop A of the 14th that were nearly roasted during the Villa disorders.

These nine were stationed in an outpost at Glenn Springs to prevent plundering by itinerant bandits, but the combined attack of nearly 200 Villistas and Carranzistas on May 6, 1916, was almost too much, and resulted in the death of three troopers.

At Glenn Springs, besides the soldiers, were E. K. Ellis, C. G. Campion, a small daughter, a son of four years, and a deaf and dumb son a few years older.

Compton, a clerk in the Ellis store, which the Mexicans obviously intended to loot, carried his daughter to the home of a Mexican woman for safe keeping, then returned, leaving his two sons in their home, where the little one was killed during the attack.

For several hours the soldiers withstood the bandits attack, but the campaign against Glenn Springs was well planned. The bandits knew the troopers quarters were adobe, with a tin roof, covered with candleilla, to break the intense heat of the sun. This candleilla burns like powder, for it is coated with wax, and the Mexicans set fire to the thatch.

The heat drove the soldiers out, silhouetted against the blazing inferno. Three were killed and the rest badly burned, although they managed to get away, barefooted and practically naked, for most of them had been asleep when the attack started.

Capt. C. D. Wood, who had heard the firing, was one of the first men on the scene after the bandits left, said that the men had blisters all over their body as big as a man's hand.

Troops occupied Fort D. A. Russell all during World War I and among the regiments posted there were the Sixth Cavalary, the Fourth Texas Infantry, the First Texas Cavalry, men from the Pennsylvania National Guard, and the 34th U. S. Infantry. The Sixth Cavalry was later relieved by the Fifth.

After the Big Bend District was discontinued in 1920, Camp Marfa was designated as the headquarters of what was called the Marfa Command. Ten years later, the post was formally named Fort D. A. Russell.

In 1936, the First U. S. Cavalry Division used it as headquarters during extensive war games, and maneuver area included the ranches of Mrs. T. A. Childers, Lee Fisher, Wert E. Love, W. E. Cleveland, R. E. L. Tyler Courtney Meland, Smith Brothers, T. C. Mitchell, Ware Hord, Joe Bishop, Ridout Brothers, Albert Griffith, R. S. McCracken, Milton Gillett, W. W. Bogel and L. C. Britte, a territory of about 4,000 acres.

The division commander, General Hamilton S. Hawkins, gathered in the border garrisons, divided them into two opposing forces, commanded by Col. Frank Keller, from Fort Bliss, and Col. C. F. Riggs of Fort Brown.

The war games were realistic, and were observed by officers from foreign armies, but this marked the last stand of the horse cavalry, for shortly there after, all the regiments were mechanized.

The old fort received a new lease on life after passage of the Selective Service Act, and during World War II it was used as a training center for chemical warfare battalions.

In 1943 it became a camp for German prisoners of war; in 1945 it was deactivated; and in 1949, the property was privately owned by the ranch company.

Christilles Started At Medina Lake In 1911

Fred Christilles, who has operated charter boats here for the last 15 years or so, got his start at Medina Lake with a fishing pole and a bunch of dogs.

He was born on Alamo Plaza in San Antonio, and grew up with a fishing pole and deer rifle for playmates. In 1911, when he was 20, as soon as the Medina Irrigation Company completed the dam that backed up one of the first big lakes in the state, Fred moved in and stayed for 32 years.

His first fishing camp was constructed of scrap lumber from forms used building the dam. This camp was done away with and replaced by modern buildings later, but the original name "Fred's Dam Place" stayed on.

During the time he spent at the lake he became even more devoted to the outdoors and first became convinced that man is his worst enemy where nature is concerned. He watched the lake decline from one of the best fishing waters in the state to just another big lake.

He claims that Medina started out like so many new lakes, and filled up immediately with multitudes of bass, bream and catfish. But people caught strings and strings of fish. Fred says they used to bring in strings of them at night when they were too tired to clean them, and leave them laying around on the banks or tied to the docks.

He says he used to make the rounds every morning, and dump the spoiled fish into a big barrel, using the fish to fatten his hogs. Christilles says that the big decline at Medina came because a limit was put on fish but no limit on the bait a fisherman could catch. Consequently, he thinks, it wasn't long before the bait was gone and the fish had to turn cannibals, feeding on their own hatch. And, because the limit was a size limit instead of a catch limit, Christilles says, after a weekend you'd find nearly an acre of undersized fish that had been killed and drifted up against the dam.

While at the lake—where he once operated a string of 100 row-boats, with five power boats for towing, along with a tavern, fishing tackle supply stand, dance hall and tourist courts—Christilles often learned new ways of catching fish, just so he could keep his customers interested.

Once he got the idea of hanging a lantern on the side of the dam. He came to it a couple of hours later and, says he, "you should have seen the fish! We'd drop a live minnow under the light and get a fish every time—black bass, white bass, bream and some catfish. We started telling fishermen and in a short time the lake looked like a huge Christmas tree every Saturday night."

Christilles and his wife, Frieda, had ample time to watch the other wildlife around the lake.

"Maybe a lot of people won't believe it," Mrs. Christilles said,

"but we have had wild squirrels hop on our heads and even run down our gun barrels. We just sit real still and they aren't afraid."

GUN RUST REMOVER

Here's another tip on rust spot removing that sounds pretty good.

Rust spots on that gun of yours can be safely treated by rubbing the spots gently with a soft cloth and a very fine valve grinding compound. This, it is claimed, will not injure the bluing.

Boating Tips...

Docking a boat is easier than parking a car because you can make the forces of nature help you, say Mercury outboard experts. Try to approach against the force applying most pressure on your boat, be it wind or current. If this force flows parallel to the dock, come in against it, bow angled toward the dock slightly. Shift to reverse to stop and secure the bow line. Your stern will swing toward the dock, and you can tie up aft. With an off-the-dock wind, approach head on, stopping a few feet from the dock. Secure the bow line, then power the stern into place. When the wind's stern, come close and parallel to the dock, then drift into place. If you must approach with the wind, drive parallel to the dock and secure the stern line first. The wind will push your bow into place.

SEA-O-RAMA OPENS—

Entry is open to anyone with a banofide sports car.

Big event of the day for a lot of mothers will come at 4 p.m., when their small fry and subteen daughters compete for the titles of Miss Sea Nymph in the sub-teen class and Miss Seabob in the tiny tot division.

At 7 p.m., the junior and senior beauty contests get underway, with the most entries ever to take part in any such event in Rockport. In the senior event, coming from as far as Yoakum, Waco and Alice, there are nineteen competing beauties, all of whom hope to be picked for the title of Miss Sea-o-rama of 1966.

In the Miss Mermaid contest, open to girls between the ages of 13 to 16, there is an imposing array of 33 hopefuls, most of them from Rockport and Fulton, although there are half a dozen from Yoakum, Alice, Robstown, Aransas Pass, Port Lavaca and Port Aransas.

As an added attraction this year, a Rockport or Fulton girl will be chosen from the Miss Sea-o-rama entries, to be known as Miss Sea Star. Eligible for this title (provided that they do not win the crown of Miss Sea-o-rama) are Sue Eller, Sue Johnson, Mary Ann Garcia, Sandra Hammac, Sharon Jenkins, Sandra Spencer, Jean Miller, Caroline Clark, and Ann Cassel.

Following the beauty contests, and while waiting for the announcement of the winners, there will be a fast gun show staged by the Yorktown Gun Slingers, and, in turn, this will be followed by a street dance, which will bring Saturday's festivities to a close.

Sunday morning, after attending church of their choice, spectators and participants will have a chance to eat barbecue, as the Lions of Rockport and the Junior Chamber of Commerce stage annual event at the Lions Pit in front of the Woman's Club, in the Rockport harbor area.

Starting at 1:30 p.m., there will be boat races for local boat owners, and 2:30 p.m. there will be a ski show, staged under direction of national champion Tom Darwin, who will attend the Sea-o-rama and direct members of the local ski club. This is staged under the auspices of the Ski Club and VFW.

Last event of the day, and the most exciting, will be the index of performance boat races staged by Dr. William C. Triplett and his group from Corpus Christi. Those who have seen previous races by this group knew that thrills and even spills can be expected during the course of the closed course heats in Little Bay, and most spectators agree that races of this sort are much more exciting than these put on by souped-up, high speed racers. Not that speed is lacking, for it isn't. Some of the craft entered in the race can plenty of time, but this isn't the only thing needed, for much of the success of the racers depends on their skill and that of their pit crews.

who operates a fleet of shrimpers out of Port Lavaca, and who intends to use the boat fishing for royal red shrimp in deep water.

They are patterned after the Bering Sea trawlers in which Japanese and Russian fishermen have been fishing all over the world. Silchenstedt says they were developed to fish in seas that are never still, in winds from .20 to 60 miles an hour, and they are more stable than the standard shrimpers of the Gulf of Mexico.

"The particular design we are using was developed by the naval architect William Reir, of Vancouver, British Columbia," Silchenstedt said, "and is 62 feet over all, with a beam of 17'6". It differs from local boats in having a double chine instead of a single one. This makes the boat more stable, and able to stay at sea in almost any weather. It also makes it possible to carry oversized winches and heavier gear for deep water fishing without danger of capsizing. Standard shrimpers couldn't stand up under this load without some danger.

"These boats draw about 18 inches more water empty than the standard shrimper, and has considerable flare forward to aid in combating heavier seas than the standard shrimper can cope with. Outside of two like them we have built, it is a completely new design for the Gulf Coast. These two have hung up enviable records for speed and production, as they are able to come and go at higher speeds than most shrimpers, regardless of weather, and can fish in much rougher seas."

Silchenstedt said that the seas where these boats were developed are the roughest in the world, and weather is always bad. "Consequently they had to have boats that would stay at sea when winds blew at gale force, and which could operate at long distances from their bases. It is boats like these that have made it possible for the Japanese and Russians to become first and second in fish production."

Queried as to where the Japanese owners would probably fish with the boats Rockport Yacht and Supply is building, he said he had no idea. Asked as to what a combination of circumstances made it economical for the Japanese to buy boats here rather than to build them at home with their much cheaper labor, Silchenstedt commented that it might be cheaper because of the great distances involved. "If they built them in Japan," he said, "the cost of getting them to the fishing ground might be so great that there would be no saving."

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. H. May Sunday were May's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Tip Anderson and grandsons, of Big Springs. Her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Sullivan, and granddaughter Linda of Robstown spent the day with her Tuesday.

ROCKPORT PUBLICITY—

2500 years old. When its seedlings first pushed above the sand, the coastline may have been different from its present contours. Perhaps an erstwhile mott, long since extinct, protected this composite tree from the winds and permitted it to grow straight. Whatever its history, it stands erect and symmetrical in the midst of a grove that leans toward the ground."

The article goes on to say that: "Inhabitants of the peninsula say that man is the greatest enemy of the erees. If man can be held back in his restreuctive march upon the beauty of the peninsula, it is felt that the oaks can more than hold their own against the constant winds and the voracious wooly worms that come by the hundreds of millions every spring to feed upon the tender leaves . . ."
