BELFAST, Northern Ireland — With Northern Ireland's hopes for peace in their hands, voters turned out in force Friday to cast their ballots on a hard-won plan aimed at ending 30 years of bloodshed between Protestants and Catholics. AUSTIN — Texas officials and residents are not taking seriously enough the dangers of the smoke and air pollution from fires in Mexico and Central America, a Harvard doctor said Friday. Tom Smith, state director of Public Citizen, said the smoky conditions have created an environmental emergency that should be treated similarly to tornadoes and other natural disasters.

Deputies find $120,000 stashed, sewn into car involved in accident

By Rick López
Staff Writer

Workers with B&B Wrecker and Recovery were curious why so many people called their office to inquire about a crushed late-model, blue Saturn they recovered Tuesday from an accident scene in Howard County.

They're now clued in on the $120,000 secret some inquirers might have known all along.

The incident began at about noon Tuesday, when Alfredo Rodriguez, 20, died after slamming the car into the back of a tractor-trailer 18 miles north of Midland.

Rodriguez, of Odessa, was the sole occupant of the vehicle and died upon impact, Texas Department of Public Safety troopers said. DPS officials reported that the man did not apply his brakes before the accident. They found $900 in his wallet.

After an initial investigation by DPS, the car was towed to B&B Wrecker at 1607 W. Florida Ave., where just a few hours later, workers got their first call from someone asking if they could recover the car from the lot.

Between that time and Thursday night, the business received at least 20 more calls concerning the Saturn, according a worker who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Some of them identified themselves as the victim's survivors, while others claimed to be Rodriguez's friends or even law enforcement, she said.

"We even got calls in the middle of the night. Some of them were weird," she said. "That's why we called DPS. We thought there could have been drugs inside of it or something like that."

When a DPS K-9 team and Midland County Sheriff's Office deputies searched the car Friday, they found more than what they bargained for, Sheriff Gary Painter said. They uncovered a fortune.

Officials found $5,000 cash stashed in the floor board of the car. Another $75,000 was sewn into the front seats of the vehicle and an additional $40,000 was concealed in the back seat. No other contraband was discovered, Painter said.

"They certainly tried to hide this," Painter told the Reporter-Telegram. "It was placed neatly inside the seats. This looks like a professional job."

The cash was taken to the Sheriff's Office for safe keeping, he said. The evidence will be taken before a judge, who will determine what should be done with the money, Painter said.

The owner of the money and car was unknown, and

2nd student dies; police find bombs in suspect's home

■ Police disarm five bombs in the 15-year-old shooting suspect's home.

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. — A second student wounded in the school shooting rampage died Friday as police found at least five bombs at Kip Kinkel's home, the last as they were removing his mother's body.

Earlier in the day, authorities sealed off the house, nestled among the fir trees just north of this city, and evacuated neighbors' homes as bomb squads poked through every corner in search of booby traps.

Demolition experts found two bombs with electronic timing devices and two pipe bombs hidden in a garage crawl space, said sheriff's Lt. Brett Freeman.

They also found two howitzer shell casings, a hand grenade, fireworks, various chemicals that could be used to make explosives and detailed bomb-making instructions.

By late Friday morning the home was deemed safe enough for crime-scene experts to go inside.

But in the afternoon, as they were removing the body of Faith M. Kinkel, a fifth homemade explosive was found, forcing forensic teams out and bomb crews back in. The body of William P. Kinkel, 59, remained inside.

Police said the couple had been shot to death between 5 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday — about the time their 15-year-old son allegedly walked into Thurston High School cafeteria and opened fire.

Kinkel, who had been suspended the day before for having a gun in his locker, fired off 51 rounds — nearly all from a rifle — before a wrestler, himself critically wounded, tackled him, police said.

When it was all over, 17-year-old Mikael Nickolauson was dead at the scene. Sixteen-year-old Ben Walker died early Friday from head wounds. Several others were in critical condition.

Kinkel made his first court appearance Friday afternoon. Wearing the same blank expression witnesses said they saw as he opened fire, the freckle-faced teen answered softly "Yes" when the judge asked him if he had looked over the four adult charges of murder. A hearing was set for June 16 for him to enter a plea.

Katherine Doll, a freshman at Thurston High School in Springfield, Ore., reads messages left on a fence near the school Friday. Two students were shot and killed and 18 others wounded during a shooting spree Thursday morning. Police have Kipland Kinkel, 15, a student at the school in custody.

Flanked by two attorneys, Kinkel wore black pants, leg shackles and a black University of Oregon sweatshirt over what appeared to be a bulletproof vest. He walked out of the courtroom without looking up.

If convicted, he could face life behind bars. Under Oregon law, juveniles cannot get the death penalty.

Ashley Proden, a 15-year-old freshman at Thurston High, was among those who watched him leave.

"I don't know whether to love him or hate him," she said. "I wanted to be able to talk to him and know what was going on in is head. I think he looked scared and that he regrets it."

Investigators said the rampage — which also left 22 students hurt or wounded — could have been worse if the wrestler hadn't acted.

Kinkel "had several fully loaded clips of ammunition and some loose ammunition in the backpack he was carrying," said Police Chief Bill DeForest.

Texas Parks & Wildlife seeks input from disabled on how to improve state parks

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

The Texas Parks & Wildlife Department is seeking input from Permian Basin disabled citizens regarding the expense of $20 million to make state parks more accessible.

The 75th Legislature has granted authority for the TPWD to issue $60 million in bonds to pay for infrastructure improvements at all of the state parks. The closest state parks are in Monahans, Big Spring and Colorado City.

Of these funds, $20 million is earmarked specifically for increasing access for disabled residents to state parks and upgrading facilities to meet Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) mandates.

These funds are to be utilized over the next five years with a percentage each year going toward ADA compliance and access issues, according to Dan Patton, director of the TPWD Infrastructure division.

NWS honors volunteer weather watcher in Lenorah for 50 years of reliable reporting

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

LENORAH — Grover Springer has pretty well run the gamut in his 84 years: farmer, schoolteacher, store-keeper, scoutmaster and a drought-to-storm weather observer.

"He was the weatherman; he kept everything," neighboring farmer Sammy Yates said of Springer.

This week at Springer's home in Lenorah, the National Weather Service commended him for 50 years of reliable weather reporting, especially rainfall amounts and temperature's highs and lows.

Lenorah is a farming community about 40 miles northeast of Midland in the center of Martin County.

"When it rained, you asked Grover how much it rained, and everybody else would say 'it rained an inch and a half.' Grover would say 'it rained an inch and three-tenths,' or 'it rained three-one-hundredths' or some like that," Yates said.

He was precise, which is what you would expect from a teacher of mathematics, history and government.

But Springer isn't a trained forecaster, though he said he has been well-schooled by experience in watching and surviving tornadoes — such the Mother's Day tornado in 1947 that ravaged Lenorah and

HONOR: Midland-Odessa area has 50 weather volunteers

(From 1A)

rearranged the Springer Brothers General Store — and by outlasting the Dust Bowl of the 1930s, the drought of the 1950s, and occasional downpours.

Quirks in the weather or a simple but exquisite rainfall excited him, recalled his wife, Irene, 83, a retired schoolteacher. "He was a pretty sharp weatherman."

She thinks he is "very deserving" of the NWS award.

Susan Griffin, a hydrometeorological technician with the NWS at Midland International Airport, noted Springer's dedication, which is a "trait that should be honored."

Ms. Griffin, representing chief meteorologist Ray Fagen, cited Springer's significant contributions to regional and climatological studies.

Springer is retiring as an official NWS volunteer. He and his wife are moving to Big Spring to be closer to medical facilities. His nephew, J.T. Springer II, is taking over the NWS duties in Lenorah.

Eddie Brite, the Midland NWS' data acquisition program manager, keeps track of cooperative weather observers and their reports in a 25-county area of West Texas and New Mexico.

"There's no way we can put a value on their contribution," Brite said. "Not only (does Springer report) rainfall, but if there is severe weather, like large hail or maybe a tornado, he can tell us exactly what is happening here at Lenorah while we're in the office. That contribution is invaluable."

Brite said that the "50 years of (Lenorah weather) records are fantastic.

"It's more unusual than not" for NWS volunteers to serve 50 continuous years. "That's few and far between anymore, because we have a transient society."

Joining Brite and Ms. Griffin in honoring Springer was retired NWS Lubbock weather forecaster Chuck Megee, who had headed up the Panhandle-to-Big Bend volunteer reporting area.

Nationwide, there are 11,000 NWS volunteers, including the 50 in the Midland-Odessa area.

Lenorah cotton farmer-ginner Myrl Mitchell cited the "contributions over the years that the Springers have made to Lenorah, counting the store, teaching school, the church, to our county and, more especially, to our community, the Boy Scouts. He was a scoutmaster for years and years and years."

Springer and his brother, Denver Springer, who died last year, had operated the Springer Brothers General Store beginning in the late 1940s until recent years. They had moved to Lenorah in a covered wagon in 1929.

At their store, "you bought your plow tools. You bought your bolts. You bought everything," said Mitchell, who has lived in Lenorah for 35 years. "You could buy baby chickens there at the store."

Buster Haggard reckoned that the Springers "had more influence over our age of kids growing up (in the 1930s and the 1940s), don't you think, Marvin?" he asked Marvin Standefer. "Grover was my Sunday school teacher. He was my schoolteacher. He was my scoutmaster and store keeper.

"During the drought in the 1950s, we would have starved to death if it hadn't been for the Springer Brothers' groceries and being able to run (credit) a month at a time, or whatever we had to, to be able to even keep going," Haggard said. "They let us charge groceries there. They helped everybody.

The store has since been shut down and the building abandoned.

The Springers are "just good, down-to-earth people. You won't find any, any better anywhere," Standefer said. "They are great people."

As a Boy Scout under Springer's tutelage, Standefer reflected on "the best time I ever had in my life" and Springer's fixing coffee in an old gallon can. "He was Scoutmaster, schoolteacher, everything.

Alex Haggard, who also helped honor Springer, characterized Springer as "an all-around American.

"He was a good neighbor, good businessman, always good with kids, school kids, the scouts. He's dependable (as a weather forecaster).

The Springer Brothers General Store, which had an organized clutter to it, operated on the motto, "We have it if you can find it," Alex Haggard said.

Grover and Irene Springer were "always here," he said. "And they was dependable. If anything happened, they knew about it."

INPUT: Series of bond issues to improve park system in Texas

(From 1A)

TPWD officials in Austin interacted with parks personnel and citizens around the state Thursday through a statewide teleconference, which included two-way video and audio at Midland College.

Access for disabled persons does not just mean bathroom doors, said Andy Sansom, TPWD executive director. "Access means getting to the resource," he said.

Brazos Bend park near Houston has been a proving ground for possible access programs. At this park, wheelchair trails connect with hiking and jogging trails and nature trails. There are tours and informational stations for sightless and hearing-impaired park visitors along with telephone adjuncts for these citizens, according to information presented at the teleconference.

TPWD faces a "huge backlog" of critical repairs and is behind in ADA compliance issues throughout the state, according to TPWD officials.

This new series of bond issues will vastly improve the park system in Texas, but the decision makers in Austin hope to get as much public input as possible regarding programs over and above ADA compliance issues.

The $60 million will be paid back over time by revenues generated in the state's parks from various user fees.

"Thanks to the Legislature, we now have some money to get started on urgent repairs, and we want input from Texans with disabilities on how to prioritize our plans for accessible facilities," Sansom said.

Various disabled people around the state made suggestions during the teleconference.

Many suggestions concerned telephone service for the hearing impaired and accessibility trails for people in wheelchairs. Having wheelchair-accessible restrooms at all parks is a major goal.

One man in a wheelchair suggested, as a means of setting priorities, to make sure that the disabled have access to the main feature of any given park.

"If the highlight of that park is fishing — you should make fishing piers at that park accessible," he said.

Other programs being tested include bird watching, camping, wildlife tours and even hunting activities for disabled Texans.

Those wishing to provide the TPWD with their thoughts regarding these plans, write: Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept., attention Lynn McDonald, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, 78744.

Interested people may also call 1-800-792-1112 or access the TPWD Web site at (http://www.tpwd.state.tx.us).

SHOOTING: Teens recall dark side of Kinkel

(From 1A)

semiautomatic handgun, a 9 mm Glock pistol and a military-style knife. Investigators said the rifle belonged to Kinkel, and the two handguns belonged to his father.

The Kinkels were both foreign-language teachers who neighbors say kept close watch over their two children and restricted their use of guns. The couple's daughter, Kristin Kinkel, is a student at Hawaii Pacific University.

In Springfield, a city of 51,000 about 110 miles south of Portland, more people came forward to talk about the dark side of Kinkel, who was once jokingly voted by his middle-school classmates as "Most Likely to Start World War III."

According to 14-year-old Nissa Lund, Kinkel bragged about stuffing lit firecrackers in a cat's mouth. His girlfriend in middle school, Rachel Dawson, 15, said he was "always bragging about making pipe bombs and shooting little cats."

In a recent literature class, when it was Kinkel's turn to share from his journal, he read about his plans to "kill everybody."

When asked why Kinkel was not referred to counseling after making such threats, School Superintendent Jamon Kent said: "If we detained every student who said, 'I'm going to kill someone,' we would have a large number of students detained."

Police and school officials said Kinkel was arrested Wednesday after a handgun was found in his locker. Another boy, Korey Ewart, allegedly stole the gun in a home burglary, brought it to school and sold it to Kinkel.

When officers asked Kinkel why he wanted the gun, the boy replied: "I just like guns." But DeForest also said the boy said he had no intention of using it on anyone.

Both boys were arrested, Kinkel on charges of receiving stolen property and having a gun on school property. He was released to the custody of his parents.

POLICE REPORTS

Weekend fatalities

The Department of Public Safety estimates that 30 people may lose their lives on Texas roadways during the Memorial Day weekend.

The reason for that, DPS officials said, is because of the increased number of traffic accidents that usually occur during the holiday period, which runs from 6 p.m. Friday through midnight Monday.

Last year, 34 people died in connection with 30 accidents that occurred in that same period, DPS Assistant Director Lt. Col. Thomas Davis Jr. said.

"The easiest way to protect you and your family from traffic-related injuries is to make sure that everyone is properly restrained," Davis said. "All is takes is the click of your buckle. It's quick, easy, and once you get in the habit, it becomes second nature."

The Memorial Day period falls during a national enforcement project aimed at increasing the use of seat belts and child safety seats. This effort, which continues throughout May 31, is associated with the Buckle Up America campaign.

"During high-traffic holiday periods, we keep every available trooper on the highways," Davis said. "This time, we'll focus extra attention on enforcing the state's seat belt laws."

Last year, a third of accident victims killed on Memorial Day weekend were not wearing seat belts. All drivers and front-seat passengers are required to wear seat belts, according to Texas laws. Children under 2 must ride in car safety seats and those under 4 must be restrained by car seats or seat belts.

"We also suggest that you leave your headlights on during the day to make your vehicle more visible, especially as long as the smoke from Central America remains in Texas," he said.

Auto fatality

BIG SPRING — A San Angelo nurse died Thursday night after sustaining injuries from an auto accident 17 miles north of Big Spring on Farm-to-Market Road 821.

Darla Mathews, 46, was pronounced dead at the scene at 8:30 p.m. by Justice of the Peace Marilyn Carson. Her body was taken to Meyers and Smith Funeral Home.

Texas Department of Public Safety dispatcher said that Ms. Mathews was southbound on the roadway when she took faulty evasive action after losing control of her vehicle.

Her vehicle skid for 20 yards before hitting a dirt embankment, troopers said. Her vehicle became airborne before flipping 1 1/2 times and landing upside down.

Troopers cited speeding and road conditions as contributing factors to the accident. The roads were wet and slick at the time of the accident, troopers from Howard and Reagan counties concluded.

Exit polls suggest Northern Ireland peace accord approved

By Sue Leeman
Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — With Northern Ireland's hopes for peace in their hands, voters turned out in force Friday to cast their ballots on a hard-won plan aimed at ending 30 years of bloodshed between Protestants and Catholics.

Exit polls suggested the accord won resounding approval on both sides of the border. The official count will take place Saturday.

The agreement was backed by about 70 percent of voters in Northern Ireland and more than 90 percent in the Republic of Ireland, according to polling by RTE, the state broadcasting service in the Republic of Ireland.

David Trimble, leader of the main Protestant party, the Ulster Unionists, has said a 70 percent "yes" vote overall would auger well for the success of the agreement. Passage requires only a simple majority.

Protestant opponents of the agreement, led by the Rev. Ian Paisley, had hoped that a majority on their side would say "no."

Lines formed outside some Northern Ireland polling stations even before they opened at 7 a.m., and some election workers said they had never before seen such a turnout.

"I voted 'yes' and did it for my children," said Linda McShane, 37, after casting her ballot in Catholic west Belfast. "'Yes' is everything for the future and there is only more death and destruction with a 'no' vote."

At stake Friday in both Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland is an accord — hammered out among eight parties and the British and Irish governments — that would create a custom-tailored Belfast government balancing Protestant and Catholic rights and obligations.

Opinion polls had pointed to a comfortable margin for the "yes" contingents on both sides of the border, so attention focused on how the vote would split among Protestants, who represent 55 percent of Northern Ireland's people.

Simultaneously Friday, voters in the Irish Republic were deciding on an extraordinary gesture to the north's pro-British Protestants: a constitutional amendment to drop their territorial claim on the six counties of Northern Ireland.

"It is their opportunity to influence events," said Irish Prime Minister Bertie Ahern. "It is an appointment that the Irish people have with history."

In Belfast, chief electoral officer Pat Bradley said he couldn't remember an election in the past 30 years that elicited this much interest; national elections typically draw around 65 percent of voters.

"Our returns show it could be 85 percent — and that's good for the 'yes' vote," said Gary McMichael, leader of the Ulster Democratic Party, a small Protestant party with links to pro-British gunmen.

Assuming the agreement is approved, Northern Ireland would vote again June 25 to elect 108 members of a new Assembly.

Khatami's election has seen big changes in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — When moderate Mohammad Khatami won election as Iran's president a year ago, the world sensed that a change was in the making — but no one envisioned so radical a shift in the Islamic republic.

In sometimes unprecedented actions, Khatami has called for a dialogue with Americans, long denounced as Iran's enemies; appointed women to senior positions, including the vice presidency; and encouraged a burgeoning of freedom of expression.

His landslide victory against a hard-liner in the May 23 election shook the foundation of Iran's clerical rule. The 20 million people who voted for him claimed his victory as a triumph for civil liberties in Iran.

"Mohammad Khatami did not create the May 23 epic. People created the day, and Khatami is the result of that day," said Ebrahim Yazdi, the head of the Freedom Movement of Iran, an opposition group that operates despite a government ban on such groups.

Khatami is expected to mark the first anniversary of his election on Saturday with an address to students at Tehran University, an acknowledgment of his popularity among the younger generation. Rallies in support of the president are scheduled around the country.

Khatami took office only in August, but has already made his mark on the nation.

In a television interview in January, he called for cultural and intellectual dialogue with "the great American people," and expressed regret for Iranian militants' taking over the U.S. Embassy in 1979 and keeping 52 Americans hostage for 444 days.

He stopped short of calling for a resumption of diplomatic ties with the Great Satan, as Iranian officials have dubbed the United States since the Islamic revolution in 1979. But hard-liners nevertheless accused him of betraying the revolution.

Khatami appointed women to top posts, including the vice presidency. He spoke in favor of freedom of expression and called for a moderation of revolutionary zeal.

These moves led Iranians to express themselves as never before under the Islamic system. Protests mushroomed and newspapers criticized officials in ways that would not have been tolerated previously.

Hashemi said that Khatami's views had given Iranians the confidence to stand up for their rights.

"The move which has started since Khatami's election is irreversible. It has given courage to the people to express their opinion for any problem. This is the crystallization of freedom," he said.

However, Khatami has had to wage a tug-of-war with hard-liners, who hold a slight majority in the Majlis, or parliament.

While his moves to ease social restrictions and improve Iran's relations with the West attracted popular support, they also provoked conservatives to lash out at his ministers and key allies.

The arrest of Tehran mayor Gholamhossein Karbaschi on April 4 was a clear case of the power struggle between the two factions. He was detained on the orders of Chief Judge Ayatollah Mohammad Yazdi, a hard-liner, and accused of corruption. But the move was widely seen as a bid to topple key officials of the president. Karbaschi had run Khatami's campaign in the presidential elections.

The mayor was released on April 15 when, after street demonstrations, Iran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, intervened to stop the factional rivalry from growing bigger.

Powerful earthquake shakes Bolivia, at least 60 dead

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Two earthquakes struck central Bolivia early today, destroying hundreds of adobe homes in remote mountain towns and killing local Indians as they slept. At least 60 people died and more than 100 were missing, Bolivia's civil defense chief said.

With roads blocked by landslides, army parachutists dropped into the area, 350 miles east of La Paz, to help with rescue efforts. At least 150 aftershocks sent panicked residents into the streets.

Civil defense chief Gen. Luis Montero, who gave the death toll, said 80 percent of the houses in Aiquile — a village of 5,000 people in Carrasco province — were destroyed. The roof of the Aiquile hospital also caved in.

Radio reports from Totora indicated that the village of several thousand was almost completely destroyed. At least 30,000 people, many of them Quechua Indian farmers, live in the area affected by the quake.

Some victims were killed as they slept, 10 of them children, Montero said.

A 5.9-magnitude quake struck at 12:36 a.m. near Aiquile, the San Calixto Observatory said. A second quake hit the same region 13 minutes later with a magnitude of 6.8, which can cause widespread damage in populated areas. The epicenter was 55 miles below the Earth's surface.

In Aiquile, Totora and nearby Pocoma, residents gathered in the main plazas, fearing the aftershocks would bring down more buildings.

A landslide blocked the road leading to Aiquile, delaying rescue operations, but dozens of parachutists landed nearby. Helicopters flew in emergency supplies of food and medicine from the central city of Cochabamba and brought out the injured.

Friends and relatives jammed the main hospital at Cochabamba, trying to find loved ones among the injured coming in from the stricken towns.

Tractors began clearing the rubble from the streets of Aiquile so rescue workers could reach more of the injured.

The quakes were felt as far away as La Paz, where some frightened residents ran outside when their buildings swayed back and forth.

President Hugo Banzer Suarez headed to the devastated area. Defense Minister Fernando Kieffer, meanwhile, said Bolivia was not prepared for this type of emergency.

The last powerful earthquake to hit Bolivia came June 9, 1994, with a magnitude of 8.2. It caused no damage since the epicenter was 550 miles below the Earth's surface, but it was felt as far away as Chicago and Canada.

Indonesian soldiers corral students after removing them from inside the Parliament building in Jakarta early Saturday shortly after midnight. Soldiers marched into Parliament after dark, rounding up about 2,000 student protesters who had occupied the complex for days.

Soldiers break up Parliament protest in Indonesia

By Christopher Torchia
Associated Press

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Yelling "Disperse!" thousands of soldiers from Indonesia's all-powerful army abruptly ended a five-day student takeover of Parliament after dark Friday, rounding up many of those whose protests helped bring down President Suharto.

The students have refused to give up their protests, angry with new President B.J. Habibie, a longtime Suharto friend who dumped some of his predecessor's closest allies from the Cabinet on Friday but kept key ministers.

Among those remaining after the Cabinet firings was the powerful defense minister, Gen. Wiranto, who rejected calls for an investigation into how Suharto accumulated his enormous wealth.

Evicting the students inside Parliament took several hours and was mostly peaceful, although a few soldiers flailed at students with sticks and kicked journalists. Some students jumped the fence to escape and two fainted, but there were no reports of injuries or arrests.

While soldiers escorted them to buses, about 2,000 jubilant students sang the national anthem and shouted slogans against their new president.

"Reject Habibie," students chanted. They view Habibie as a crony of Suharto, who quit Thursday after 32 years in power, his economically battered nation in turmoil following weeks of riots and student protests.

Wearing red berets and camouflage, troops with M-16 rifles strode across the marble floors of a Parliament office building and filed up a staircase, flushing out students.

The students' mood at the forced end of their protest was celebratory at times, with some standing on the roofs of buses as they drove out, giving victory signs and waving red-and-white Indonesian flags. Some shook hands with soldiers, exchanged high-fives and even thanked them.

"Have a safe trip," a soldier said to a protester before the buses pulled out, returning the students to a university campus.

Despite the goodwill, the raid likely will fuel protests against Habibie, who is trying to shed the legacy of his mentor.

Clearly, the occupation of Parliament had become too much for the military to tolerate. Students had torn up government documents, scrawled graffiti and draped banners. Litter was strewn everywhere.

Soldiers and tanks have been patrolling Jakarta's streets since riots last week that killed more than 500 people.

Even if he is sincere about reform, Habibie is bound by labyrinthine state laws that will turn many reforms into a lengthy undertaking. Though he is getting rid of the most prominent symbols of the Suharto era, an entrenched government bureaucracy is likely to resist rapid change.

British families win rights for mad cow disease deaths

LONDON (AP) — At least eight families whose children died from a human strain of mad cow disease after being treated with growth hormones won High Court approval today to seek compensation from the government.

Twelve families have already received compensation ranging from $146,700 to $228,200 stemming from a 1996 ruling, and the latest claimants are expected to be awarded similar amounts, said David Body, one of the lawyers representing the current plaintiffs.

Between 1959 and 1985, nearly 2,000 children whose growth was stunted because of a deficiency in the secretion of growth hormone were treated in Britain with hormone from the pituitary glands of cadavers.

The program ended in May 1985 after several children who had received similar treatment in the United States died of Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease, a fatal brain ailment in humans. In Britain, 25 people who received human growth hormone have died and two others are suffering from CJD.

A new variant of CJD has been linked by the British government's scientific advisers to infected beef from cattle with mad cow disease. But this court case involved the original human form of CJD, not the new variant.

In July 1996, High Court Judge Sir Michael Morland ruled that the Department of Health was negligent in not heeding a warning by a doctor who told the Medical Research Council in 1977 about the risk of contracting CJD from the hormone treatment.

He said the department should not have allowed any more patients to enter the program after July 1, 1977, and that families of those whose treatment began after that date could pursue compensation.

Judge rules Secret Service agents to testify

By Pete Yost
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A federal judge ordered three Secret Service employees to testify before a grand jury in the Monica Lewinsky investigation, scoffing at arguments that the end result could be a presidential assassination. President Clinton complained the ruling would "have a chilling effect" on him and his successors.

The decision Friday was the latest in a string of legal victories for Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr, investigating allegations of a presidential affair and cover-up.

In her ruling, U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson rejected the Secret Service's contention that its agents deserved a special "protective function privilege" to avoid testifying for fear that they would lose the confidence of the president if they revealed what they observed.

And she dismissed the administration's arguments that compelling testimony could result in agents being kept farther from the president, heightening the likelihood of assassination.

"The court is not ultimately persuaded that a president would put his life at risk for fear that a Secret Service agent might be called to testify before a grand jury about observed conduct or overheard statements," she wrote.

"When people act within the law, they do not ordinarily push away those they trust or rely upon for fear that their actions will be reported to a grand jury," Johnson wrote.

Her ruling granted Starr's motion to compel two uniformed Secret Service officers, Gary Byrne and Brian Henderson, and agency counsel John Kelleher, to appear before the grand jury investigating the Lewinsky matter.

The decision leaves the administration with several choices, including an appeal or a change in legal strategy: the president could still invoke executive privilege to try to stop the agents from testifying.

Clinton, talking with reporters in the Rose Garden, said of the decision: "At least, it will have a chilling effect perhaps on the conversations presidents have and the work that they do and the way they do it."

He acknowledged there was no law on the matter, but added, "It never occurred to anybody that anyone would ever be so insensitive to the responsibility of the Secret Service that this kind of legal question would arise."

He said he did not know if the Secret Service would appeal the ruling. "I don't know because I'm not involved," he said.

The Justice Department and Secret Service said in a statement that they were reviewing the decision and "continue to believe that any action that could distance the Secret Service from the president increases the danger to his life and that of future presidents."

Ruling denies delay in Microsoft antitrust case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Get ready to go to court, a federal judge told Microsoft on Friday.

Asked to wait at least seven months before making his first ruling in the dramatic antitrust case filed against the world's most powerful software company, a federal judge instead put things on the fast track.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson set a Sept. 8 trial date that is much earlier than the software maker wanted.

"With the greatest respect for your honor, that isn't enough time for us," Microsoft attorney John Warden told the judge.

"I tend to believe it is," replied Jackson, adding that he has presided over similarly daunting lawsuits of equal complexity in as little time.

The attorney general for New York, one of the 20 states suing Microsoft along with the Justice Department, called the decision a "crushing legal defeat" for the company.

"Microsoft wanted a trial in four years, but the states and Justice got one in four months," said Scott Harshbarger, the attorney general in Massachusetts. "That alone is an indication of the power of our arguments."

But the ruling also means that Microsoft can continue until at least Sept. 8 to require computer makers to sell the next upgrade to its popular Windows software exactly as Microsoft wants — with its own proprietary look and with its own Internet browser included.

That's especially significant because the nation's computer makers begin preparing as early as late summer for sales during the Christmas season.

The government argues, among other things, that Microsoft's decision to bundle its own Internet browser with Windows amounts to illegal "tying" under the federal Sherman Antitrust Act. The company's Windows software is used on roughly 90 percent of the world's desktop computers.

Charles "Rick" Rule, a legal consultant to Microsoft and former head of the Justice Department's antitrust division, described the judge's schedule on Friday as "ambitious."

"It's going to be very busy during the summer," Rule said.

Microsoft's senior vice president for law, William Neukom, said the time until Sept. 8 "will give us a chance to prepare our case, to assemble our evidence and law and make a very powerful presentation."

Congress moves to send highway bill to president

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate decisively endorsed the biggest highway and mass transit bill ever on Friday, a six-year, $203 billion package that promises to create tens of thousands of jobs and help restore the nation's crumbling infrastructure.

House approval was expected to follow shortly as its last major piece of business before Congress leaves for the Memorial Day recess. The Senate vote was 88-5.

President Clinton, while saying the legislation should have taken a tougher stand against drunken driving, said the road-building funding would "keep our country strong and vibrant." He said he would be "pleased to sign it into law."

The bill increases highway funding by 40 percent over the last six-year plan, rewrites the formulas for distributing money to help ensure that each state gets its fair share and substantially boosts mass transit spending, to $36 billion over six years.

"This is a very, very solid bipartisan, bicameral, equitable bill," said Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., chairman of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee.

It also includes more than $9 billion for special highway projects, a sum condemned by some as pork-barrel spending to keep lawmakers in favor back home.

According to final figures, the bill provides $167 billion for highways and $36 billion for mass transit over the life of the program.

It includes $719 million to encourage states to crack down on drunken driving, although Clinton said he was "deeply disappointed" the final version did not accept Senate language that would have penalized states not enforcing a stringent .08 blood alcohol content level for drunken driving.

Backers hailed it as a major advance for the nation's safety and well-being. They cited figures that 42,000 jobs are created for every $1 billion spent on roads, and that highway improvements envisioned in the bill could save up to 10 percent of the 40,000 people killed in traffic accidents every year.

"This bill is going to alleviate traffic, fill potholes and make our roads safer," said Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., chairman of the House Transportation Committee.

But some lawmakers complained that the bill was too expensive and unfair to some states.

"This package is loaded up with an incredible number of pork projects in order to drive through the House a legislative steam engine that will bust the budget to smithereens," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis.

Obey objected to the decision to cut $15.5 billion in veterans programs and $1.8 billion in social service programs to make up for the amount the highway funding exceeds caps set last year in the balanced budget agreement.

Veterans groups have strongly protested a decision, backed by the administration, to end a program to provide disability compensation for veterans who took up smoking in the military and later came down with tobacco-related diseases.

Documents show President Clinton told of Justice concerns before China waiver

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before approving a U.S. company's satellite launch in China, President Clinton was cautioned that federal prosecutors feared his decision would jeopardize a criminal probe into the company's prior dealings with Beijing, national security memos show.

However, White House and State Department advisers urged Clinton to approve the waiver for Loral Space & Communications, run by a major Democratic donor, on grounds that it was "in the national interest." The Associated Press examined the documents Friday.

Administration aides wrote Clinton that the approval would not aid China's military, but would give it an incentive to abide by rules to stop the proliferation of missiles and improve trade ties with the United States.

The memos also show that Clinton and his advisers were told about the Justice Department's ongoing criminal probe of Loral and were sensitive to the company's plea that any delays in approval would cost it millions of dollars.

An undated memo from National Security Adviser Sandy Berger to Clinton warned of "severe contractual penalties" Loral would incur if it did not soon begin launch preparation discussions with the Chinese.

The memo valued the Loral equipment in the transaction at $60 million to $65 million. A memo from an NSC staffer to Berger predicted penalties to Loral of $4 million to $6 million if the launch was delayed.

The company is headed by major Democratic supporter Bernard L. Schwartz.

"You should be aware that (Loral) is under investigation by the Justice Department for its unauthorized transfer of defense services related to a previous Chinese satellite launch effort, which could eventually be found to have contributed to the Chinese ballistic missile program," Berger also wrote.

On Feb. 12, just six days before the waiver was granted, Berger added another caution to Clinton. "The criminal division of the Justice Department has cautioned that a national interest waiver in this case could have a significant adverse impact on any prosecution (of Loral) that might take place based on a pending investigation of export violation."

However, in the same memo, Berger told the president, "We believe that the advantages of this project outweigh the risk, and that we can effectively rebut criticism of the waiver. On fairness grounds, we believe it is inappropriate to penalize (Loral) before they have even been charged with any crime."

The White House turned Berger's memo and other documents over to congressional investigators Friday in an effort to rebut criticism that Clinton was influenced in his decision by the nearly $1 million in donations Schwartz has made to Democrats since 1995.

Both the Justice Department and congressional committees are investigating whether there was any connection. Schwartz and the White House deny any such tie.

Air travelers find things aren't as bad as they expected

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Travelers who got to airports early Friday anticipating Thanksgiving-like crushes at ticket counters were pleasantly surprised when they found highways and airports less crowded than predicted.

"We didn't have any traffic going to the airport," said Jane Altizer, who left her Roswell, Ga., home early to leave plenty of time to get through Atlanta Hartsfield International Airport on her way to Las Vegas. "We haven't any trouble at all."

New York's LaGuardia Airport was quiet as a library. In Chicago, travelers moved easily along the concourse of an uncongested United Airlines terminal at O'Hare International Airport.

"I read the papers today and I was worried, but it certainly doesn't look like the biggest day in aviation history," said Adam Rogulski, of Wilmette, Ill. "No traffic, no problems, no waiting in line. It's mellow."

The Air Transport Association had predicted that a strong economy would send more Americans on vacation and put more in the air on Friday than any other day as the summer travel season got started ahead of Memorial Day weekend.

Passengers found the usual buzz of people darting around airports, but nothing like the long lines they had been told to expect. Some airline officials said the trade group that had predicted the record number of passengers may have been off base.

Nonetheless, the Washington-based Air Transport Association said it was confident its prediction of 2 million passengers flying Friday would bear out. The airline industry group expects 1.8 million people to return by plane from their trips on Tuesday.

The group said it based its prediction on advance reservations and previous years' traffic patterns. The total number of passengers Friday won't be known until next month.

One place where the prediction might prove true was at Los Angeles International Airport, where the wait at ticketing lines was an hour or more.

"This is the worst I've ever seen it," said Jane Rosell, from Glendale, Calif., as she waited at the end of the Continental Airlines line to check-in for her flight to Houston. "But I take it in stride."

Still, none of the major airlines, except Delta, expected to break any records. Delta was booked for 397,000 passengers, which would surpass by almost 30,000 people the previous record set the Sunday after Thanksgiving last year, said spokesman Todd Clay.

"What we're seeing is an extremely busy day but not by any stretch of the imagination a record," said Tim Smith, a spokesman for American Airlines in Fort Worth, Texas.

Smoke warnings not enough, doctor says

By Juan B. Elizondo, Jr.
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Texas officials and residents are not taking seriously enough the dangers of the smoke and air pollution from fires in Mexico and Central America, a Harvard doctor said Friday.

Tom Smith, state director of Public Citizen, said the smoky conditions have created an environmental emergency that should be treated similarly to tornadoes and other natural disasters.

"If this were a tornado, there would be alarms, the media would be alerted and people would be urged to take shelter," Smith said. "We should expect no less in this or other breathtaking situations."

Dr. Joel Schwartz, a Harvard Professor and health and air pollution expert, said air pollution hazards are not as traumatic as tornadoes.

"But it doesn't mean ... there aren't things we can do to save lives," he said.

Dr. Dennis Perotta, head of epidemiology for the Texas Department of Health, said there has been a tremendous effort to warn Texans. "We've been pretty clear about our concern," Perotta said.

Doug McBride, a spokesman for the Texas Health Department, said addressing the specific dangers for each person would be difficult because many factors contribute to that danger.

"To make one statement for the entire state of Texas that covers everybody's situation and yet doesn't overcover it is a complex, at best, proposition," Perotta said.

"I think a lot of people try to put this in very simplistic terms ... and to do that for the entire state is wrong."

Schwartz said part of the reason warnings and responses have been inadequate is that people cannot easily see the danger.

Smoke from Mexico has been pouring into Texas and other parts of the country for weeks. Some of the more than 9,000 fires in southern Mexico and Central America have been burning since January.

Smoke levels are expected to worsen over the three-day holiday weekend.

According to Schwartz, particules in the smoke are much smaller than the dust and sand particules Texans normally encounter.

Smaller particules more easily bypass the body's defenses and get further into people's lungs, causing difficulties in the processing of oxygen, Schwartz said.

The doctor said the oxygen-processing difficulty is especially dangerous for older people, children and those with respiratory problems. But he said there also are dangers for otherwise healthy Texans.

"For well people, they are not going to take a deep breath and have a heart attack," Schwartz said.

Opportunities for computer grads endless

EL PASO (AP) — Opportunity didn't just knock for Christian Nichols — it pounded on the door.

Months before Nichols was to graduate from the University of Texas-El Paso with a degree in computer information systems, Exxon was already courting him with a stay in a posh hotel and meals in fine Houston restaurants.

He begins his $44,000-a-year job with the oil giant next month.

"I didn't think it was going to be hard (to find a job), but I didn't expect this kind of treatment with any company," the still-awed 23-year-old said. "They're offering all this to a fresh-faced graduate and I never would have imagined in my wildest dreams that this would have happened."

Like Nichols, many in this year's college crop are benefiting from a booming job market that has employers recruiting harder, earlier and farther afield than in years past. And the hungry hirers are proving a boon at colleges such as UTEP, Texas Southern and UT-Pan American, schools whose graduates offer solid skills but lack the pedigrees of Texas A&M or the University of Texas at Austin.

UTEP officials began seeing more recruitment activity last year with spring 1997 graduates, and were surprised to have it carry over into the normally slow summer months. The strong interest has continued into the 1997-98 school year, even after commencement on May 15.

Some companies that came calling were repeat customers increasing their presence on campus. Others were completely new, including software king Microsoft, said Briane Carter, UTEP's director of career services.

"I love it," Ms. Carter said. "I absolutely love it."

Employers expect the healthy economy will translate into a 27.5 percent increase in job openings nationwide for grads.

"There are more opportunities available, and the companies are just taking advantage of that," said Harry Clack, director of career planning and placement at Texas Southern, which has seen a 10 to 15 percent increase in the number of companies recruiting on campus.

Browning-Ferris Industries Inc., a Houston-based waste services management firm, is among those that visited TSU for the first time this year. The company has stepped up recruiting at universities all across the nation.

Diana Porter, a senior corporate recruiter with Browning-Ferris, said the company started visiting smaller schools instead of just the major ones.

"Instead of fighting every other big company, I said, 'Where are the big companies not going? Let's try a different angle here,' " she said.

As usual, hot degrees includes those in computer science, computer engineering or computer information systems programs. But it's not only cutting-edge knowledge in demand.

At the University of Texas at Dallas' career center, some companies are asking for "people who are proficient in COBOL to reprogram computers for the year 2000," said director Carolyn Bray. COBOL is an old computer language widely used in the 1970s and '80s.

The ultimate beneficiaries, of course, are the graduates who haven't had to worry about what comes next.

Jeannie Limon, 22, started her job hunt late and was among those agonizing about the future as UTEP's graduation neared.

But the market proved to be kind. Before commencement, she made three site visits with Dallas-based companies — including one that picked her up in a limousine — and landed a job with Sprint as a software engineer.

"I just went through my finals thinking 'Good, I've got a job already,' " Ms. Limon said.

Owusu wins WAC

HOUSTON — Former Big Spring state champion Drexell Owusu won the long jump title at the Western Athletic Conference Outdoor Track and Field Championships Friday.

Owusu, who won UIL Class 4A triple jump titles in 1994 and 1995, added another horizontal jump crown to his trophy case. Owusu, who is competing for Rice, jumped 24 feet, 1 3/4 inches and won the title by the narrowest of margins. He defeated Tim Cawley of Wyoming by three quarters of an inch.

Owusu, whose sister Jaclyn, a Frisco senior, won the UIL Class 3A triple jump last week, will compete in the triple jump competition today.

Labonte crashes

CONCORD, N.C. — Pole-sitter Bobby Labonte and Dick Trickle crashed Friday on the backstretch at Charlotte Motor Speedway during the final five minutes of practice for the Carquest Auto Parts 300 NASCAR Busch Grand National race.

Both drivers escaped without injury, track officials said.

Labonte, who also is scheduled to start sixth in Sunday's Coca-Cola 600 Winston Cup race, plans to repair the No. 44 Pontiac so he can remain on the front row of the 300-mile race.

Meanwhile, Trickle, who was scheduled to start 14th, will go to a backup car, meaning he'll start at the rear of the 43-car field. The front of his original car was smashed.

Labonte crew chief Bryant Fraiser said Trickle was running about 30 mph slower than Labonte and cut in front of his driver when the accident occurred.

LUBBOCK — A couple of lessons learned from game one of the Region I-5A baseball quarterfinals between Midland High and Lubbock Monterey: No. 1 — Don't leave business unfinished.

No. 2 — It's nice to have one guy like Laynce Nix in your lineup, but it would be nicer to have another two or three.

With Nix hitting the ball out of Moegle Field and potentially threatening poor motorists on the loop southwest of the stadium, the makings of a big day for the Midland High offense were in place. Against No. 3 Monterey, though, failure to follow up on such opportunities is fatal.

The Bulldogs stranded 10 runners on base, and Monterey, characteristically, made the most of its opportunities, defeating Midland High 12-6 Friday afternoon to put the Bulldogs one game away from elimination for the first time this season. The good news is that MHS has a chance to redeem itself this evening at 6 p.m. at Christensen Stadium in game two of the series, and if the Bulldogs win, they will force a third game immediately following.

"That's the best thing about it," said Midland High coach Barry Russell, who had practically nothing else positive to find with his team's situation. "There's always another day."

Nix
...hit two homers

Friday actually looked good for the Bulldogs early, since they got on the board first in the second inning and ended up outhitting the Plainsmen 9-8. But the story was opportunities lost as Midland High loaded the bases in the second, third and fourth innings but could only come away with four runs in those innings despite a pair of homers by the sensational sophomore Nix.

While Nix was sending whatever pitches Monterey starter Cooper Vittitow could get over the plate out of the park, Midland High starter Lee Martin was having trouble finding the plate, walking nine in only 4 1/3 innings. For the game the Bulldogs (24-12) walked 11 batters.

"We had all those runners left on base and 11 walks," Russell said. "I thought Lee might get out of it and I kept waiting and waiting and I probably waited too long. (The Plainsmen) just hit the ball too well."

It started off like it would be Martin's day, since he retired the side in the first inning on only six pitches, but his control deserted him after that. Through the first

Six errors cost Andrews game with Frenship

By Oscar LeRoy

SNYDER — The Andrews Mustangs proved to be their own worst enemy in their Region I-5A quarterfinal game against Wolfforth Frenship Friday night.

The Mustangs committed six errors and left 12 runners stranded in a 6-3 loss to the Tigers at Moffett Field.

Thankfully for Andrews, this is a best-of-three series. The Mustangs have to win two games today at Seminole's Indians Field in order to advance to the regional semifinals. The first game is at 1 p.m. with the third game, if necessary, to follow 30 minutes later.

Andrews (24-5-1) must first forget about the horror of Friday night.

"I think everyone made an error except the left fielder," said Andrews coach Joe Ray Halsey. "I thought we had some ample scoring opportunities but we made some critical base running errors which spoiled our chances."

The Mustangs also failed to take advantage of Tiger starter Steven Leist (11-2), who struggled with his control all night long as he walked eight batters on the night. In the third inning alone, Leist walked three Mustangs, only to get out of the inning with two groundouts and a strikeout.

"He struggled a bit out there and not throwing as well as he has been," said Frenship coach Eric Leger of his pitcher. "But I'll take the blame for that for not throwing him enough lately. Even though he struggled tonight, he got the crucial out when he needed it and got out of a couple of jams by making some good pitches. And that's the mark of a championship pitcher — to make a good pitch when you have to."

Leger also knows that his Tigers (24-7) got a couple of gifts wrapped and delivered by the Mustangs miscues.

"They made a few more mistakes than they're supposed to at this point of the season," Leger said. "I'm sure that's not indicative of a very good team, which they are. But as I told my team that the team which makes the fewest mistakes at this time of year wins. That's what happened today."

Halsey and his troops also know that Friday night was not true Mustang baseball, and it's not the play that a

Chaps finish 4th at national junior college tourney

Staff Report

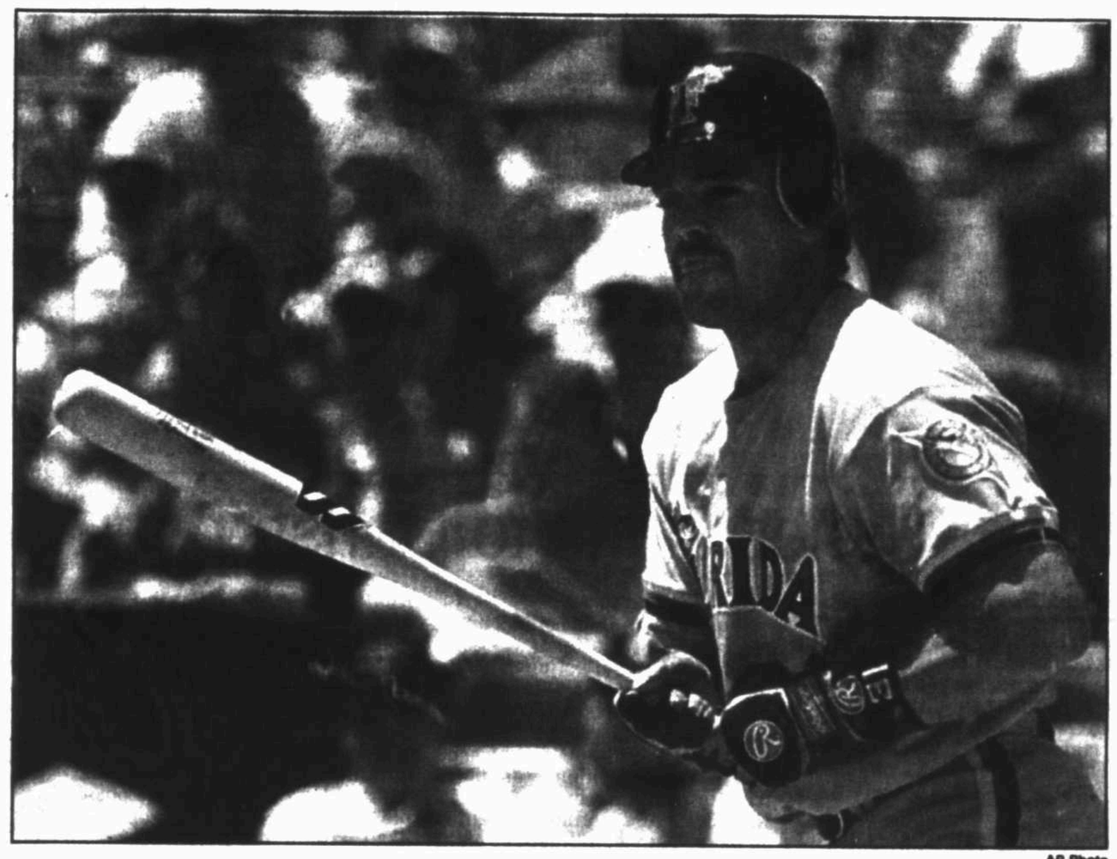

DOTHAN, Ala. — After two un-Midland College-like rounds at the National Junior College Athletic Association National Tournament, the Chap golf team came back with a vengeance.

However, a final round 291, its best in four days at the Robert Trent Jones Trail Course, was only good enough to move up one spot and finish the tournament in fourth place.

"This was our best round of the tournament," Midland College coach Delnor Poss said. "This was the way I felt we could have been playing all the time. We showed the capability to play with these teams."

"We are extremely proud of our fourth-place finish,"

Mike Piazza wore this Florida Marlins uniform for only one week. On Friday, the All-Star catcher was traded to the New York Mets. He was traded to the Marlins from the Los Angeles Dodgers on the previous Friday.

Marlins send Piazza to New York after only one week with Florida

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Mike Piazza has another new home — and this one should last for more than a week.

The Florida Marlins traded Piazza to the New York Mets on Friday, just seven days after getting the All-Star catcher from his longtime team, the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I have gone from a player who thought he would spend his whole career with one organization to a player who's been with three organizations in a week," Piazza said in Miami.

"I just want get in one place for more than a week and settle down," Piazza said. "I'll be with three teams in a week. Isn't that bizarre? It's like rotisserie baseball."

Florida gets outfielder Preston Wilson, who made his major league debut May 7, and highly rated pitching prospect Ed Yarnall. The World Series champions also got a player to be named, which will be pitcher Geoff Goetz, a Florida source said on the condition of anonymity.

Florida's payroll was sliced to $16 million, third-lowest in the majors, ahead of only Montreal ($9 million) and Pittsburgh ($13 million). After finishing last year at $53 million, fifth-highest in the majors, the Marlins reduced the payroll to $33 million by opening day, then cut it to $24 million last week.

But 15 of the 25 players who won the title are gone, and Florida has no hope of postseason play for the foreseeable future. Piazza played just five games with the Marlins, going 5-for-18 (.278) with no homers and five RBIs. Florida paid just $309,392 of his $8 million salary.

"For us, it ended up happening very quickly," Marlins GM Dave Dombrowski said. "When we acquired Mike Piazza's contract, we weren't sure how soon it would happen."

The Mets, lagging far behind the Yankees in both marquee players and attendance, managed to upstage their crosstown rivals for at least one day.

"This town is ready and waiting for Mike," Mets co-owner Fred Wilpon said. "They love him already and they'll love him even more. Mike Piazza is the kind of player, like Willie Mays, like Mickey Mantle, the kind of player that will take to this town. He's a New York kind of guy."

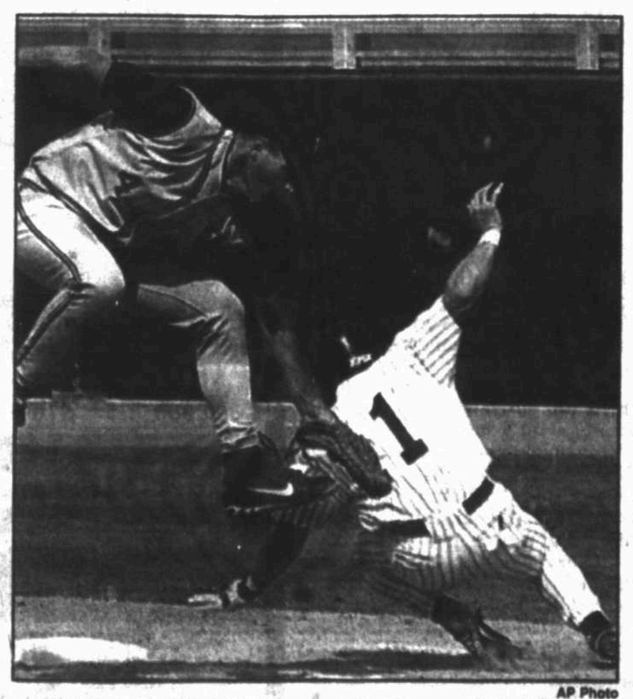

Piazza, 29, is eligible for free agency after this season. He has a .331 career average with 177 homers and 568 RBIs, and is batting .281 this year with nine homers and 35 RBIs.

The Mets said they will wait to discuss a new contract with Piazza, whose $15 million, t o-year contract expires at the end of the season.

"Who knows?" said the five-time All-Star, traded by Los Angeles after they refused his request for a seven-year deal worth about $100 million. "I'm not really in a position to speculate on my future after this season. I'm very excited to be with the Mets and playing in New York City. I'm enthusiastic about helping the Mets get into the playoffs any way I can."

His acquisition gives the Mets two All-Star catchers.

South Carolina shocks Red Raiders with 9th-inning slam

Associated Press

■ NCAA Baseball Tournament

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Ryan Bordenick stunned Texas Tech with a ninth-inning grand slam over the center-field wall, giving South Carolina a 9-8 triumph Friday night at the NCAA Atlantic I Regional.

Texas Tech led 8-2 after seven innings before the Gamecocks (44-16) rallied with three runs in the eighth and Bordenick's dramatic slam.

Mike Curry walked and Adam Everett and Derick Urquhart followed with singles to load the bases with nobody out against Brad Ralston (3-4). Bordenick then crushed a 1-1 pitch for his 19th homer of the year, setting off a jubilant celebration at home plate.

Texas Tech (44-19) now faces an elimination game Saturday against top-ranked Miami, which was upset 6-5 Friday by North Carolina. The winner of that game faces South Carolina later in the day.

Patrick Sexton (3-1) pitched three innings of hitless relief for the win. Starter Brett Jodie lasted just 4 2-3 innings, giving up nine hits and five runs.

South Carolina's Clint Collins hit a three-run homer in the eighth to bring the Gamecocks within 8-5. That chased Texas Tech starter Monty Ward, who struck out 12 in seven innings.

South Carolina (44-16) had led 2-0 early before the Red Raiders scored eight consecutive runs.

Mark Austry went 4-for-5 with four RBI to lead Texas Tech, including a two-run homer. Curry hit a solo homer for South Carolina.

Baylor 10, Florida 5

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Jon Topolski's three-run homer capped a six-run sixth inning as Baylor bounced back from a staggering loss to beat top seed Florida 10-5 in the NCAA South I Regional.

Jason Jennings (11-4) pitched his sixth complete game for the Bears. He gave up a three-run double to David Ross in the ninth, caught Shane Seroyer looking to end the game.

Baylor (41-19-1), which blew a 9-0 lead against Richmond in the first round, plays Illinois in an elimination game Saturday. Florida faces elimination against the loser of Friday night's Richmond-Wake Forest game.

Rangers rally for wild victory

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Juan Gonzalez hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night to give the Texas Rangers a 13-10 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Gonzalez had five RBIs, raising his major league-leading total 59. His 12th homer off Jeff Montgomery (0-2) bailed out John Wetteland (2-0), who had his first blown save in 26 tries dating to last season.

Wetteland gave up consecutive homers to Jeff Conine and Jermaine Dye in the top of the ninth when the Royals tied it 10-all.

The Rangers played the game under protest after Royals leadoff hitter Johnny Damon was credited with a walk by home plate umpire Ed Hickox, although the stadium scoreboard showed the count as 2-2.

Shane Mack hit a grand slam for Kansas City, which has lost seven straight.

Montgomery walked Mark McLemore and Rusty Greer to open ninth before Gonzalez hit Montgomery's first pitch over the wall in to straightaway center.

In the seventh inning, Gonzalez was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to drive in a run and broke up a double play to allow the Rangers to take a 9-8 lead. Ivan Rodriguez followed with an infield RBI single.

Pinch-hitter Mack's grand slam in the seventh inning put the Royals ahead 8-7. Mack has four homers this season and five career slams.

Kansas City led 4-2 in the fifth on Dean Palmer's RBI double before the Rangers scored five runs in the fifth off rookie starter Jamie Walker.

Walker, making his second major league start, gave up seven runs and nine hits in 4 1-3 innings.

The Royals took a 3-0 lead in the third on Jose Offerman's three-run homer, his second.

Texas got a run in the third on Kevin Elster's RBI single to make it 3-1.

Padres 9, Astros 6

HOUSTON — Greg Vaughn hit a pair of two-run homers as the San Diego Padres continued their best start ever with a win over the Houston Astros.

Vaughn's first homer tied it 6-6 in the seventh and he added his second in the ninth after Wally Joyner's RBI single gave the Padres the lead.

Tony Gwynn and Greg Myers also homered for San Diego, which leads the NL West at 31-17.

Angels break through in Arkansas

Staff Report

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The Midland Angels took their first win in the state of Arkansas this season with a 6-5 win over the Arkansas Travelers.

The Angels, who had dropped the first two games of the five-game series with the powerhouse of the Eastern Division, defeated the Travelers Friday in inter-divisional Texas League action at Ray Winder Field.

Midland is now two games above .500 at 25-23 overall and stays right on the heels of the San Antonio Missions. The loss moves the Travelers to 29-18. Arkansas is still way out in front of Shreveport and Tulsa.

In Friday's game, the Angels got out of the blocks quickly, scoring five runs in the first two innings. In the first, Eddie Christian and Troy Glaus had back-to-back singles and Matt Curtis followed with a two-run double down the left-field line.

Keith Luuloa then walked, and with two outs, Jed Dalton drilled a two-run double to the left field corner. In the second inning, the Angels made it 5-0 as Trent Durrington, who went 3-for-5 in the game, singled to left, stole a base and then came home on a double by Eddie Christian.

Arkansas added one run in the sixth on a soaring home run by Tyrone Horne. The Travelers scored two in the seventh highlighted by Nate Dishington's bomb.

Going into the ninth with the score 5-3, the Angels added an insurance run as Chuck Abbott doubled and Durrington followed with an RBI single. It proved to be huge.

In the bottom of the ninth, the Travelers put together a threat, and when Horne came through with a two-run double to make the score 6-5, things got tense. However, Juan Alvarez pitched himself out of a jam, getting the Texas League's top hitter Mike Hardge to ground out.

Alvarez picked up his fifth save while Rob Bonanno worked the first six innings, allowing two runs to improve to 5-3.

Angels Notes: Christian has now hit in 15 straight games... The Angels will play today in doubleheader action. The starting pitchers will be Matt Wise (3-2, 4.96 ERA) and Lou Pate (3-2, 5.81) for Midland and former Odessa College pitcher Clint Wiebl (5-1) and Jose Jimenez (5-1,3.29) for Arkansas...

MHS: Series shifts to Christensen

four innings, he gave up only three hits but he hurt himself with walks. The Plainsmen got on the board in the second when Vittitow led off with a walk then scored on a triple to right by Zach Barnard, who eventually scored on a wild pitch.

Derrick Prieto and Dusty Buck both walked, and when Buck stole second, Midland High catcher Morgan Leak threw the ball into center field, allowing Prieto to score from third and giving the Plainsmen a 3-1 lead.

In the next half inning, Blake Johnston led off by reaching on an error then Nix hit Vittitow's delivery the opposite way over the left field fence for a two-run homer to tie the game. It looked like the start of a big inning, especially after back-to-back singles by Steve Feris and Ralph Romero kept things going.

But things ended there as Vittitow struck out Martin and Aaron Pullin. Then after walking Tyler Nobles to load the bases, he fanned Michael Glover looking to end the inning.

"That certainly pumped (the Plainsmen) up," Russell said. "We didn't get a bunt down and struck out twice after that."

Monterey (28-6) claimed the lead for good in the bottom of the third on a two-out, two-run single by Buck — after Martin had issued two walks — which made it 5-3. However, the Bulldogs appeared to receive a jolt in the top of the fourth when with two outs Nix hit a 3-2 pitch from Vittitow far over the right field fence to cut the lead to 5-4.

"I can hit a million homers and it really doesn't matter if we don't win," said Nix, reflecting the glum mood of the Bulldogs. "We just need to get our minds right. If we get our confidence back we'll be all right."

What the Bulldogs might need more than confidence is more trips to the plate by 3-4-5 hitters Nix, Feris and Romero with men on base. They combined for eight of Midland High's nine hits, and Feris and Romero again followed with consecutive singles after Nix' second homer.

Martin reached on a fielder's choice after shortstop Buck's throw to third base was too late to get Feris, but Vittitow struck out Pullin to end the inning. The air seemed to go out of Midland High's balloon after that.

"The real key was that they had the bases loaded and they didn't get anything out of it," said Monterey coach Bobby Moegle. "Vittitow really wasn't that good but he was able to get out of it. (The Bulldogs) really could have gotten us down."

Monterey finally seized control for good in the fifth. With one out, Casey Morton singled, Dusty Buck walked and No. 9 hitter Zach Sawyer hit his first homer of the year to left off Martin, giving Monterey an 8-4 cushion. Martin was finally pulled after that, and Sawyer, on paper the weak link in Monterey's lineup, had a two run single in the sixth off reliever Jeff Beard to finish with five RBIs.

Vittitow was pulled after four innings, but went long enough for the win. Toby O'Jibway pitched the final three innings for the save, although what happened in the seventh for Midland High could have lasting implications.

Matt Bose, pinch hitting for Pullin doubled off O'Jibway and eventually scored on an error, as did another pinch hitter, Justin Smith, who had reached on a walk. Russell isn't ruling out the possibility of using them, or someone like them, in today's action.

"There could be some changes," Russell said. "We've got some guys on the bench who can hit and I'm going to discuss that with coach (Danny) Jordan on the bus ride home. That's what bus rides are for."

The Bulldogs will send Joey Schlaffer to the mound today against Monterey's Dusty Buck.

COLLEGE: Rice loses; Aggies triumph

(From 1B)

The Gators (43-16) got sloppy in the aftermath. Shortstop Mark Ellis threw away a potential inning-ending double play in the eighth. Baylor's Jeremy Dodson, who had four hits, had an RBI double and then scored when center fielder Derek Nicholson dropped a fly ball on the warning track.

Baylor scored one unearned run off Matt McClendon (8-4) in the second before chasing him in the sixth.

The Bears loaded the bases with none out on a walk and two singles. One out later, Bryan Loeb drove home two runs with his first hit of the regional. Preston Underdown followed with an RBI single.

Michael Gray relieved, and Topolski hit an 0-1 pitch straight over the 400-foot sign in center. Gray also gave up a solo homer to Matt Williams in the ninth, his second of the regional.

Washington 20, Rice 11

COLLEGE STATION — Third seeded Washington hit four homers, including a grand slam by Nick Stefonick in the five-run fifth inning, leading the Huskies to a 20-11 victory over top-seeded Rice in a second round game of the NCAA Central Region playoffs Friday.

Stefonick led Washington's 15-hit attack with seven RBIs as the Huskies avoided elimination with their comeback victory and sent the Owls into the loser's bracket. Stefonick also had an RBI double and two RBI grounders.

The Owls, trying to reach the College World Series for the second year in a row, got into the record book with hitting 10 batters, breaking the record of nine.

Texas A&M 4, Mississippi State 3

COLLEGE STATION — Ryan Rupe recovered from a slow start to pitch eight strong innings and Daylan Holt drove in the go-ahead run as second seeded Texas A&M rallied to a 4-3 victory over Mississippi State to remain unbeaten in the NCAA Central Region playoffs Friday night.

Tied at 3-3 after six innings, the Aggies edged ahead with two out in the seventh.

Steve Scarborough singled off Matt Ginter (5-4), went to second on a single by John Scheschuk and scored on Holt's single to right field. Holt was thrown out trying to take second on the play.

GOLF: Chaps play well in final round

(From 1B)

Poss added. "It is an honor to gain the No. 4 spot at this prestigious tournament. Fourth place in the nation is pretty good. We've been kind of spoiled for a few years."

The Chaps, who won national titles in 1992 and 1995, ended with a tournament total of 1,203, which was 48 strokes behind champion Scottsdale Community College.

Scottsdale fired a final-round 281 for a total of 1,155. That was good enough to take the lead from hometown Wallace Community College-Dothan, who ended with a 289 for a total of 1,161.

Central Alabama was third with a 1,195. MC did pass Brevard for fourth. Brevard took fifth with a 1,208.

The Chaps' day was highlighted by the play of Charlie Prince, a Midland Lee graduate and University of Texas-El Paso signee. Prince shot a 69 (3 under-par) in his final round as a Chap to guarantee a top 20 finish. Prince finished with a 302 which tied for 19th.

Another Midlander, Josh Jacobs, who graduated from Midland High, finished the four rounds with a 304.

"We were the only team in the tournament that had two hometown players in the lineup and we're proud of that," Poss said.

Kenneth Ferrie was the top Chap for the four rounds, finishing with a 295 and a top 10 finish. Ferrie, who took ninth in the medalist race, will join the long list of Chaps to come away from the national tournament with an all-American honor.

Also, Mark Loftus gave MC its third top 20 finisher. Loftus tied Prince with a 302.

One bright spot for Midland College is that three golfers — Ferrie, Loftus and Nathan Goulding — from this national tournament team will return next year.

"These young men are fine young men," Poss said. "I'm extremely proud of them and they represented Midland well."

Here are the results after the fourth and final round of the NJCAA National Golf Championships, being held at Highland Oaks Golf Course in Dothan, Ala.:

ANDREWS: Mustangs committ 6 errors

(From 1B)

No. 3 team in Class 4A is supposed to have.

"All we can do is forget what happened today and be ready for tomorrow," Halsey said. "We have less than 24 hours to do it again and if we're as good as we're supposed to be, then we'll come back tomorrow."

Even though Andrews starter Chris Trevino (12-2) didn't have as good a performance than what he's been used to this year, he still pitched solid as he allowed eight hits, three earned runs, walked four and struck out six in the loss. Mustang miscues started to hurt Trevino in the first inning as Leist, who reached on with a single, helped his own cause by scoring a run off a throwing error by Andrews third baseman August Lewis, who was attempting to throw out Rusty Maddox at first.

Two more errors led to two more runs for the Tigers in the third for a 3-0 advantage. There could've been more runs scored but heads up defense led to Tigers getting thrown out at third base and at home.

Andrews finally got to Leist in the fourth inning as Mike Hudgens singled in Adrian Delacruz and Shaud Williams got an RBI groundout to score Jeremy Pitkin and cut the gap to 3-2. But the Tigers put the game away in the fourth frame with three more runs, only one of which was earned.

Andrews got one more run in the fifth as Brandon Long singled home P.J. Lewis. But that was all the Mustangs could muster as Leist shut down the sixth and seventh innings.

The Tigers now try to win their fourth game over the Mustangs this year and try to close out a talented Andrews squad.

"That's the tricky thing about playing a best-of-three game series, is that you have to guard against letting down," Leger said. "We're going to play like it's a one-game series and we can't let up."

The Mustangs send P.J. Lewis (6-2) to the mound against Tiger sophomore Trace Vinyard (3-0) in Game 2.

PIAZZA: New York has 2 All-Star catchers

(From 1B)

Todd Hundley had a ligament in his right elbow replaced Sept. 26 and just this week started to swing a bat. He expects to return in the second half of this season, but it remains unclear when he will be able to resume catching.

"It will be an awesome lineup with Piazza and me in there. But we have to wait and see what happens," Hundley said. "Time will tell if I change positions."

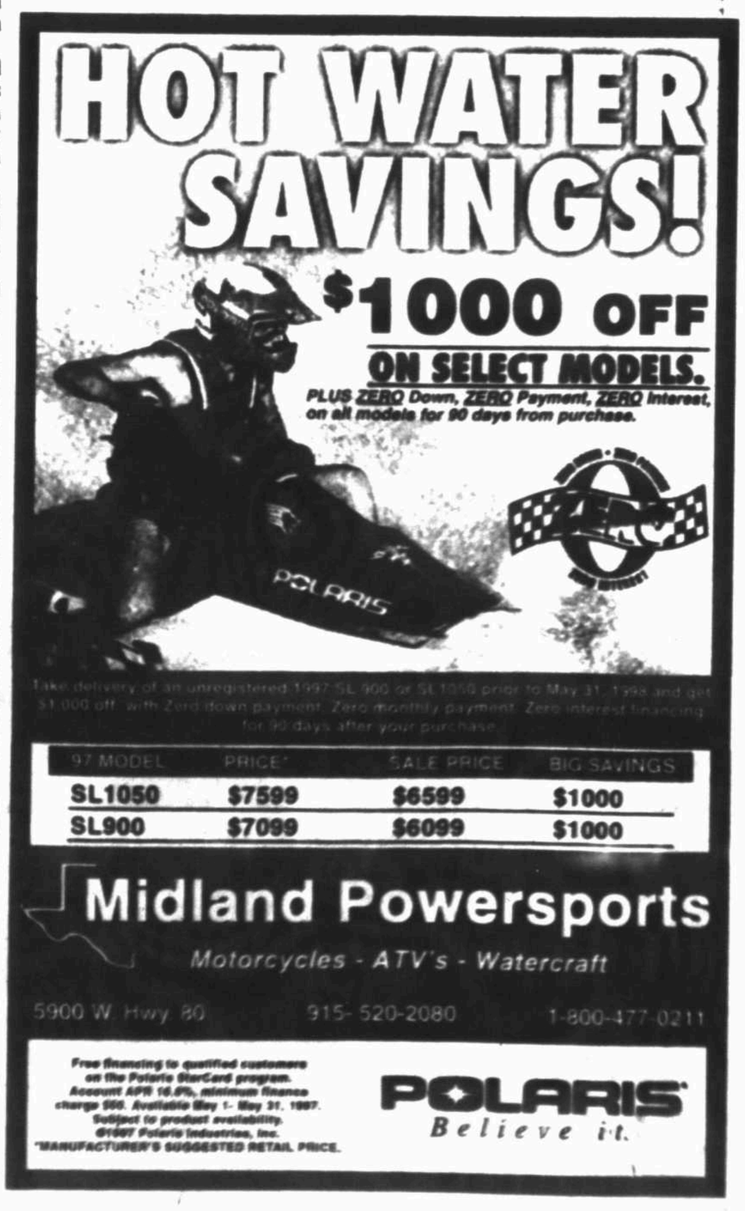

Piazza said he planned to join the Mets at Shea Stadium on Saturday for their game against Milwaukee.

"Certainly, we are ecstatic," Mets general manager Steve Phillips said. "He will instantly give credibility to the lineup and he will instantly give credibility to Mets fans that the organization is committed to making the playoffs and advancing toward the World Series."

Phillips said Tuesday that Piazza was not a good fit for the Mets, out of the playoffs since 1988. But Phillips changed his mind after learning that he might be able to pull off 3-4 other big trades using only major leaguers.

Earlier this week, Phillips told Hundley the Mets were not interested in Piazza. He said it was "difficult" to call Hundley on Friday, fearing his own credibility was on the line.

"I don't have any problems with this," said Hundley, a backup to Piazza on the last two NL All-Star teams. "If he can help put a World Series ring on my finger, more power to him."

Jackson bars Bulls from Brickyard for Indy 500 race day

By Chris Sheridan
AP Basketball Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — The Chicago Bulls are in town to play basketball, not to watch race cars.

Therefore, the players will be banned from the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on their day off between Games 3 and 4.

"I thought it would take too much out of us on an off day," said coach Phil Jackson, who handed down the Indy 500 ban as the Bulls, holding a 2-0 lead, prepared to play the Indiana Pacers in Game 3 Saturday.

Some of the Bulls reportedly were trying to secure a luxury suite at the racetrack for Sunday's Indy 500, which begins at 11 a.m. local time — about the same time the team will be scheduled to hold practice.

"I didn't want guys to come here in 100 degree temperatures and stand out there in the infield," Jackson said. "They'd end up losing their game on Sunday instead of playing it on Monday."

By the time the gentlemen start their engines, the tone of this series will have changed.

Either the Pacers will have closed their deficit to 2-1, or the Bulls will be ahead 3-0 — a lead no NBA team has ever blown.

"Tomorrow is the biggest game," Pacers coach Larry Bird said.

Many of the players and coaches sounded anxious Friday to resume the series, which went through its third straight off day. Both teams practiced at Market Square Arena, and the tenor of the comments cooled down after two days of referee-baiting and Rodman-bashing.

"I don't know how many times we've played on Saturday at the end of May — Memorial Day weekend with an afternoon start — and everything up for grabs," Jackson said. "It's always a game where you see a lot of strange things happen. We're looking forward to this game. It can't come soon enough.

During this season's playoffs, the Bulls have had some of their best efforts in Game 3.

Against the Nets in the first round, Michael Jordan made 10 of his first 11 shots, 15 of his first 18 and finished 16 of 22 for 38 points as Chicago completed a sweep of New Jersey.

The Chicago Bulls' Michael Jordan takes questions from reporters after a team practice Friday in Indianapolis. The Bulls lead their series with the Indiana Pacers, 2-0.

Against the Hornets in the second round, the Bulls went into the Charlotte Coliseum and quickly took the crowd out of it as they opened a big lead and coasted through the fourth quarter.

The Pacers, meanwhile, have not met with any success in Game 3s.

They lost to the Cleveland Cavaliers in the first round and lost to the New York Knicks in the second round — their only postseason defeats before the start of this series.

"We're definitely facing an uphill battle, but I think this team is up to the challenge understanding there's no looking back and tomorrow is a pivotal game," Reggie Miller said. "Anytime you're down, you should always have some measure of desperation."

The Pacers, who earlier this week complained about the physical defense Scottie Pippen played on Mark Jackson, emphasized Friday that they must cut down on turnovers. Indiana had 46 miscues in the first two games.

The Bulls, after again finding themselves explaining Dennis Rodman's behavior — Jackson explained how The Worm is late for every game and 80 percent of practices — were wavering Friday on whether to start him or stick with Toni Kukoc, who started the first two games.

"If he's out there (in the starting five), he'll probably get a better chance to play minutes than if he comes off the bench," Jackson said. "That's where he gets into foul trouble, and that's a problem we have to consider. The other thing is, Dennis is very good in pressure games like this."

Jazz embarrass Lakers in Los Angeles, move closer to sweep

By Bob Baum
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Home, and a great performance by Shaquille O'Neal, did nothing to ease the Los Angeles Lakers' frustration against Utah in the Western Conference finals.

Now they're just a game away from an embarrassing sweep at the hands of the cool, efficient Jazz.

O'Neal powered his way to 39 points and 15 rebounds but got little help from his teammates Friday night in a 109-98 loss that put Utah up 3-0 in the best-of-7 series.

The Jazz can complete their first sweep of a seven-game series in franchise history with a victory Sunday. No team has ever come back from a 3-0 deficit to win a playoff series.

"We can say we know we can beat a 60-win team four times in a row. We have done it," Lakers coach Del Harris said, referring to the conference semifinals against Seattle. "But that would be the wrong way to look at it. We have to look at it as one game at a time."

Shandon Anderson, the last in a series of heroes off the bench for the Jazz, scored nine points in a three-minute span of the fourth quarter. He finished with 13 points, 11 in the fourth quarter. Another reserve, Chris Morris, scored 15 for Utah.

With all the talk of the depth and talent of the Lakers, the Utah bench outscored its Los Angeles counterparts 46-22.

"Our bench has been sensational the whole series and we need them to win," Utah forward Karl Malone said.

Bryon Russell, who didn't miss a field goal in six attempts, hit a 3-pointer with 1:37 left to put the Jazz up 99-92, and the disbelieving Lakers fans streamed toward the exits.

Malone, who was 9-of-22 from the field, scored 22 of his 26 points in the second half and grabbed 10 rebounds. Russell added 17 points.

While O'Neal did everything he could to get the Lakers back in the series, Eddie Jones, Nick Van Exel and the other Los Angeles shooters were missing in action most of the night. Jones was 1-for-10 in the first half and 6-for-19 for the game. Van Exel was 2-for-13.

Still, the Lakers were down only 86-85 on O'Neal's stuff of his own rebound with 6:21 to play. But Anderson hit a 16-footer, Russell scored on a drive and Anderson converted a three-point play in an 8-2 run that put the Jazz up 94-87 with 4:35 remaining.

A free throw by O'Neal and O'Neal's rebound basket narrowed the lead to 96-92, then Russell buried the Lakers for good with his 3-pointer.

"He's a tough guy to guard," Malone said of O'Neal. "I spent a lot of time in the summer weight training and it paid off tonight."

The Lakers talked all week about stepping up the defense, but once the game began, they still could find no solution to Utah's perpetual pick-and-roll offense. Time after time, the Jazz used their trademark play to get an open shot.

The Lakers tried to counter the Jazz's attack with a few pick-and-rolls of their own, but they couldn't run it with the precision that is Utah's forte, and they rarely got on an open shot.

When the Lakers did get a fast break, they often fouled it up.

Utah led by as many as 10 points in the first half, and was up 49-43 at halftime, even though Malone had just four points and John Stockton two.

Russell had 10 points on 4-for-4 shooting and Morris came off the bench to score seven in the second quarter. Stockton's lone basket of the first half, a running one-hander as the shot clock expired, gave Utah its biggest lead of the game, 45-35, with 4:20 left in the second quarter.

"That's a tribute to Utah's intelligent play that we were able to take Malone, Stockton and Hornacek out of play in the first half and they were still ahead," Harris said.

After Malone's inside finger-roll gave the Jazz a 58-49 lead with 8:46 left in the third quarter, the Lakers finally mounted a serious rally. O'Neal scored four points, including a thunderous dunk over Greg Ostertag, and Jones, 2-for-12 shooting up to that time, made a rare 3-pointer during a 13-3 run that put the Lakers ahead 62-61 on Van Exel's two free throws with 4:04 left in the period.

Morris' three-point play with 1:45 to play in the third quarter capped a 7-0 run that put Utah ahead again, this time for good, 70-64.

The Lakers sliced the lead to 72-71 entering the fourth quarter, but the Jazz scored the first two baskets of the period. No matter what O'Neal did from there, Utah wouldn't crack.

Stars finally get Dallas excited

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — For their first four seasons in Dallas, the Stars were a novelty — exciting and different. Games were social events where fans cheered as loud for hard hits and fights as they did for goals.

The final score didn't seem to matter as much as whether fans had a good time. The attitude was so laid back that players complained the media wasn't being critical enough.

But now that the Stars are in the Western Conference finals, the honeymoon is over. Fans are finally holding them to same high standard they have for the five-time Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys.

"The town is just buzzing with the playoff atmosphere," center Mike Modano said. "It has taken a long time. The first couple of years were just kind of a feeling-out process. But now, it is exciting to play. They are expecting us to win every night."

Fans got behind the team last year when they went from near the bottom of the NHL to near the top, then everyone was crushed when the Stars were bounced from the playoffs in the first round.

Interest has remained high this season, although television ratings haven't. Games averaged about 45,000 viewers, roughly the same as "I Love Lucy" reruns on some nights.

But Game 5 of the first round series against Edmonton pulled in 170,000 viewers, the second-most viewers for a game since the team moved from Minnesota. Last year's playoff elimination game was the only one with more.

"We haven't gone this far since being down in Dallas, so I think giving the fans a little bit of a taste of playoff hockey for an extended period of time has really gathered the exposure and the fan base," Modano said. "Our success the last couple of years has drawn the fans in, but I think everybody has been waiting to see how we were going to do in the playoffs.

Now that the Stars are winning, the city is 100 percent behind them. That may not be fair, but that's the way it is Dallas. And although the bandwagons may fill up late, they get awfully crowded, turning star players into heroes.

"It's a real sports town," Modano said. "They love winners here."

Modano was asked on a conference call with U.S. and Canadian hockey writers whether he gets "the Troy Aikman treatment." These days, though, Aikman may be jealous of the Mike Modano treatment.

"It is getting tougher and tougher to go out," Modano said, "even more so than it was in Minnesota."

The party could end soon if the Stars aren't careful. Dallas may have won this years Presidents' Trophy for the best regular-season record, but the most recent name engraved on the Stanley Cup is still Detroit.

"We have had Detroit as a measuring stick for us the last couple of years," Modano said. "I think now we are finally getting there."

The next step won't be easy. The Red Wings went 2-1-2 against the Stars this season and are playing with supreme confidence.

"It's not so much that we want to win more than everyone else, but that we believe we're going to win more than everyone else," he said. "That attitude is what separates us from the rest."

Detroit's Brent Gilchrist played for Dallas last year, so he knows what to expect.

"They're tough. They check and check and check. It's unbelievable," he said. "I guess I've seen it up close because I was there. But they pressure the puck and really try to control the middle, the inside portion of the rink, and they've had a lot of success with it."

1998 STAMPEDE

Christian-Brown team leads Ranchland event

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

When the dust settled after the first round at the 1998 Stampede golf tournament at Ranchland Hills Country Club, a newcomer and veteran to the Midland golf scene topped the championship flight list.

Jon Christian, playing in his first tournament of any kind in Midland, and Chris Brown, a two-time Midland city champion, are leading a jam-packed and talented field at the two-man, low-ball event.

Christian and Brown carded a 5-under-par 65 which leads three teams. Trey Womack and Doyce Haney, Bobby Sharp and Bill Gulley and Dan Desilets and Morgan Marshall are tied for second. All three teams finished with 66s. Tim Peden and Royce Woolard — another two-time winner of the city tournament — teamed for a 67.

"Today was the first time we played together," said Brown, who won city titles in 1977 and 1979. "It was the first time for us to play in the same group or anything.

"It is nice to be a little ahead rather than behind with these guys (in the field). These guys are serious players. They will try to beat our butt."

Christian and Brown, who played golf at Texas Tech, didn't appear to be a team to be reckoned with early on. A birdie on the first hole was negated by a bogey on five.

However, over the next eight holes is when the round took off. The duo birdied Nos. 6, 9, 10, 11 and 14. From there, they cruised into the club house.

"At that point I knew we needed to play better than we did after five," Christian said. "Both of us hit some good shots and rolled good putts. We probably played our best between six and 14.

"We both knew that 65 was a score that would be a couple shots back or in the lead. After we finished, we figured we were in a good position."

Christian, who birdied 1, 6, 9 and 11, is a player who is making debut on the Midland golf scene. Christian played his college golf at Rice from 1985-89, capturing all-Southwest Conference honors two times.

From 1991-93, Christian played on the Nike Tour, placing 28th on the season money list in 1992. In 1993, he recorded a top 10 finish at the Nike Permian Basin Open.

Before this year, Christian says it has been four years since he played golf with any regularity. Even this year when he was ready to start up again, the Minnesota native was delayed after breaking his wrist playing hockey.

"It has been four years since I have played in a tournament and got to putt out," Christian said.

Coahoma rallies past Grand Saline

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Coahoma rallied from a four-run deficit after four innings to record a 7-4 victory in eight innings over Grand Saline in Class 2A semifinal action at the UIL State Softball Championships Friday.

The Bulldogettes (23-7) scored four runs in the top of the fifth to tie the game and added the three-run difference in the eighth to reach its second state final in two tries.

Coahoma will face Blooming Grove in Saturday's championship game. It will be a rematch of the 1996 final when Blooming Grove beat Coahoma 6-4.

Amber Bingham (3-2) came in relief for Tara Sterling to get the win for Coahoma. Kristy Lide (18-5) took the loss for the Lady Indians as she allowed 11 hits. Grand Saline finishes the year at 19-5.

Blooming Grove 10, Jarrell 6

Blooming Grove scored four runs in the second and sixth innings to post a win over Jarrell.

The Lions (29-7-2) reach the state finals for the third consecutive year. They won a state title in 1996 and will try to erase the memory of last year's loss in the title game when they face Coahoma in the championship game Saturday.

Blooming Grove was able to overcome five errors with 20 hits. Starting pitcher Brittney Coker improved her record to 13-5-1 as she limited Jarrell to eight hits while striking out seven.

Jarrell tried to rally with three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning but left two runners on base in the seventh to end the game.

Class 5A Semifinals
Galena Park North Shore 3, San Antonio Taft 1

Kristen Schmidt and Michael Parrott combined on a three-hitter to lead Galena Park North Shore to a 3-1 victory over San Antonio Taft.

Schmidt (18-1) got the win by pitching five innings, allowing one earned run on two hits and striking out seven. Parrott allowed just one hit and struck out two in two innings.

Taft's Nicola Lozano (15-1) pitched six innings, allowed two earned runs on seven hits and struck out four.

■ UIL State Softball

Taft scored its lone run off Schmidt on three errors and one hit in the second inning.

Galena Park tied the score at 1-1 in the third inning on a run scoring single by Ree-Ree Murr. Galena Park added two more runs on a RBI single by Holly Mehringer and a fielder's choice by Ja'Net Bryson.

Klein Oak 4, Irving Nimitz 3

Brandi Noles' fifth inning inside-the-park homer led Klein Oak to a 4-3 victory over Irving Nimitz.

Klein Oak scored three runs in the first inning on four hits. Nimitz came back with three runs on four hits in the third.

Klein Oak pitcher Shelley Laird (26-6) allowed three earned runs on seven hits, struck out 10 and walked none.

Nimitz starter Amber Mosher (23-2) allowed four runs on seven hits, struck out seven and walked two.

All four of Klein Oak's runs came in strange fashion. Kayla Schultz and Noles led off the first inning for Klein Oak with a single and a double. Laird then missed on a suicide squeeze bunt, but Schultz scored after a run-down and Noles went to third.

Laird then drove in Noles with a push bunt. After Klein Oak loaded the bases, Kristy Gandy scored when Nimitz catcher Deeanna Williams pulled her foot on a force out at home.

Noles's home run was a line drive that Nimitz right fielder Stacey White dove for and missed at Pleasant Valley Sportplex.

Class 4A Semifinals
Waco Midway 7, Colleyville Heritage 0

Senior Rebecca Brophy allowed three hits and struck out five to lead Waco Midway over Colleyville Heritage.

Midway scored three runs in the first inning on three consecutive singles. Sarah Rogers, Tammy Martinez and Becca Mellina each had run-scoring singles in the inning.

The Pantherettes scored two more runs in both the fourth and fifth innings.

Keller Fossil Ridge 4, Nederland 2

Kristi Mead allowed three hits and struck out seven to lead Keller Fossil Ridge to a 4-2 victory over Nederland.

Mead (21-8), a sophomore, allowed unearned runs in the first and fourth innings and overcame four Fossil Ridge errors.

Fossil Ridge, a second-year program, scored one run in the first inning on two Nederland errors. The Lady Panthers then scored two more in the second inning on a two-run error by Nederland third baseman Chantae Self.

Class 3A Semifinals
West 2, Medina Valley 1

A strong pitching performance from Cheryl Kilgo paced West past Castroville Medina Valley.

Kilgo (24-2), a sophomore, mixed speeds well, allowing one unearned run, striking out six, and outdistancing Medina Valley pitcher Ria Hoog (12-8) who pitched a fine game of her own.

Kilgo faced only 22 batters, one more than the minimum. Hoog faced 24 and struck out six.

Kennedale 2, Woodville 1

Kennedale's Miranda Mayse pitched a complete game and added the game-winning RBIs to beat Woodville.

Mayse (12-3) doubled in the only runs for Kennedale (24-5-2) in the top of the fourth inning. After Annie Kirkpatrick singled and sister Deedee Kirkpatrick reached on an error, Mayse lined the first pitch from Woodville's Kassie Strickland to left-center field, scoring both runners and giving Kennedale all the runs it would need.

New plan proposes dome for Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — The city of Dallas and a private foundation interested in turning the Cotton Bowl into a domed facility are getting down to specifics.

City officials presented a proposal Thursday to the Dallas Park and Recreation Board under which the nonprofit Cotton Bowl Dome Foundation would be given one year to raise construction money and three more years to actually dome the stadium.

If approved, the foundation would spend $140 million on renovation that would also include 80 luxury suites, 4,000 club seats and general repair work all over the 60-year-old stadium.

The Cotton Bowl is at Fair Park, about five miles southeast of downtown Dallas.

The foundation would lease the facility for 30 years and assume control of all bookings, marketing, maintenance, ticket sales and concessions.

The foundation would not be allowed to make a profit from Cotton Bowl operations. After breaking even, the foundation would direct any surpluses into an operating reserve and two trust funds — one for stadium repairs and another for work on other Fair Park facilities.

"It's still a work in progress," said Dianne Curry, park board president. "The board still wants the project to happen, but there are sill some issues to work on."

The deal looks like a good one for the city, she said.

"With private funding, the renovation and increased use of the Cotton Bowl will happen quicker," Ms. Curry said.

The park board has not set a date to further review the proposed Cotton Bowl deal, but city officials said they will try to present more information at the board's next meeting on June 4.

If the agreement wins park board approval, it would go to the City Council for its consideration.

Darrell Jordan, a Dallas lawyer spearheading the project, said the foundation has secured pledges of about $25 million toward the renovation and hopes to raise about $75 million through the sale of suites, seats and advertising rights.

Cowboys to visit Shreveport

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints and Dallas Cowboys plan a preseason practice and scrimmage Aug. 11 in Shreveport, La., Saints officials said.

"The idea for this came from a phone call from (Cowboys owner) Jerry Jones to (Saints owner) Tom Benson about holding something in Shreveport," said Saints general manager Bill Kuharich. "In north Louisiana we have a solid base of fans, as do they."

The work will probably begin at 7 or 7:30 p.m. and an admission will be charged.

The Cowboys workout increases an already busy training camp schedule for the Saints during the first two weeks of August.

Indy rookies come in variety of ages

By Paul Newberry
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — J.J. Yeley is a precocious 21-year-old who's raced most of his life on dirt tracks, but he hardly flinches when his car owner predicts he'll be the next four-time winner of the Indy 500.

With a smile shining through his bushy mustache, 46-year-old Jack Hewitt holds no such illusions. He intends to savor his first Indy experience because it just might be his last.

Yeley and Hewitt represent the young and the old of the Indy 500 — two rookies with opposing views of the future, yet equal beneficiaries in a feud that opened Indy's hallowed door at both ends of the generational scale.

"We've got the field covered as far as ages go," said Hewitt, who has Rocky-like appeal and thoroughly enjoys the Gasoline Alley requests for photos, autographs and even hugs. "I guess anybody in between can make it now."

Yeley, the youngest driver in the 33-man field by eight months, will be on the inside of the fifth row when the green flag waves Sunday. Hewitt will be three rows farther back, the oldest rookie ever to start at Indy.

"I've been running for 25 years," said Hewitt, a veteran of just about every genre of racing that can be held on a small-town, dust-covered track. "It's my silver anniversary and this is the present we got."

J.J. Yeley
...Indy 500 rookie

Without the guarantee of a team, Hewitt was reluctant to show up at Indy, despite the tug-of-war between speedway president Tony George and Championship Auto Racing Teams that has kept most of the best-known drivers away from Indy since 1995.

"I waited until the last minute before I even decided to come to rookie orientation," said Hewitt, who arrived 15 minutes late that first day. "I know this place can get to you. When you try to get in and then you're not a part of it, it gets you down."

But he found a ride, passed his rookie test, bounced back from a crash on his first day of practice and squeezed into the 22nd position at 216.450 mph.

Hewitt was just starting out when CART seized control of Indy-style racing in 1979 and seemed too old when George reopened the door to short-track racers in 1996.

"I thought at my age that time had passed me by," Hewitt said. "But we caught it right at the end."

The end is not something Yeley can see on the horizon. Though he finished 25th in his only IRL race in Phoenix two months ago, car owner Jeff Sinden already predicts that Yeley will someday join A.J. Foyt, Al Unser Sr. and Rick Mears as four-time winners.

For now, Yeley appears to be the most likely successor at Team Menard when Tony Stewart makes the jump to NASCAR in 1999. As if clearly designating the line of succession, John Menard bought a stake in Yeley's team.

"That's a great team with great cars and a great crew chief," said Yeley, who had the 13th-fastest qualifying speed (218.044). "If the opportunity comes along, it would be very good for me. I would be 22 and have the best ride there is out there."

Heady stuff for a guy whose asphalt experience is limited to four USAC Silver Crown events, four sprint car events and that one IRL race.

"The main thing you need to know when you come into the IRL is how to race," Yeley said. "You're always racing close to guys. It's more like Saturday night racing, guys running side by side, instead of in a straight line like some of those CART races. I think that's really helped me out a lot."

Still, he knows his limitations. Saturday nights on a quarter-mile dirt track are one thing. On Sunday, he'll be racing on a 2 1/2-mile oval at speeds approaching 220 mph.

"Experience is a big part of it here," said Yeley, who followed his father into racing and began competing in midgets at 14. "It tends to hurt the rookies more in the race than it does in practice. You don't get the same turbulence you do in a race. That was something that caught me by surprise in Phoenix."

But Yeley and Hewitt will have plenty of company Sunday when it comes to inexperience. There are six other rookies in the field, plus eight drivers making their second Indy start.

That worries guys like Raul Boesel, who's racing at Indy for the 10th time.

"There definitely is some concern," he said. "We've got a lot of new drivers, drivers with not a lot of experience. ... I hope this will help the experienced guys."

Rain, rear wings slow CART cars

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

MADISON, Ill. — Rain cut short Friday's schedule at Gateway International Raceway and forced CART to go to Plan B to determine the lineup for the Motorola 300.

After rain showers kept the track quiet most of the day, the Champ cars were able to get onto the 1.27-mile oval for only seven minutes late Friday afternoon before a downpour closed the track.

Since nobody got up to speed on Friday, CART reverted to the fast laps from the single practice session on Thursday — another rainy day — to set the lineup for Saturday's 300-mile race.

That put FedEx Championship Series points leader Greg Moore and 1996 series champion Jimmy Vasser on the front row. Moore turned a fast lap of 177.505 mph, while Vasser hit 177.161.

Those speeds are more than 10 mph slower than the pole speed of Raul Boesel — 187.963 — at last year's inaugural race here, thanks to a rule change by CART.

After complaints that last year's speeds, particularly in the turns, were too fast, CART decided to change from the short track rear wing to the smaller speedway wings, previously used on tracks two miles or longer.

Michael Andretti, who will start sixth on the 28-car grid, was delighted by the result of the aerodynamic change, which takes away downforce from the rear of the car.

"There's a big difference," said Andretti, who finished 11th here last year. "It's a lot better. It gives us a bigger braking zone, which means passing will be easier, and the cornering speeds are way down from last year when they were too fast.

"If you mess up and hit the wall now, you'll be going 20 or 30 miles an hour slower. But we're still flying on the straightaways."

Vasser, who was fifth last year, said, "The car has a lot less downforce and a lot less grip, but we're still achieving higher top speeds down the straightaways. It's a matter of working with the engineers to get more mechanical grip."

Mayfield pushes Winston Cup vets

By David Droschak
AP Sports Writer

CONCORD, N.C. — It hasn't taken long for NASCAR's new Winston Cup points leader to get to the top.

On the eve of one of the sport's biggest races of the year, 28-year-old Jeremy Mayfield has made it after only 66 career starts, leading the points race over such high-profile names as Jeff Gordon, Dale Earnhardt and Rusty Wallace.

What kind of a guy is Mayfield?

He is unselfish, conservative, unpretentious and goal-oriented.

While most young drivers are prone to poor choices and unnecessary risks that often lead to crashes and brushes with the wall, Mayfield has developed a solid reputation for taking care of his Ford — and he has the stats to prove it.

Mayfield has finished 99.8 percent of laps raced this season on the Winston Cup circuit and his 8.6 finishing average is the best among all series drivers.

"He's doing a great job," former Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip said of Mayfield. "He's got a good team and he's got a good head on his shoulders. He takes care of his car, he gets the good finish.

"I don't know if it's unusual for a young driver to take care of his equipment, but it's the mark of a championship driver. He's not flashy, but he gets the job done. It wouldn't surprise me if he wins the championship this year."

Mayfield, who grew up in basketball-rich Owensboro, Ky., said he learned at an early age of racing go-carts that being overly aggressive on the track isn't always a good idea.

"It's very important not to (wreck) in this series," Mayfield said. "When I came to Winston Cup, I noticed that owners didn't hire drivers who wrecked race cars. If you try to push it above its limits, you are not going to be successful in this business."

While his high school peers were playing basketball or going to parties a decade ago, Mayfield often would be working on a car in his parent's garage. When asked if racing took a backseat to basketball in Kentucky, Mayfield said, "Yeah, way back there, probably in the trunk somewhere."

But he persisted with his dream despite being a prep outcast.

Frazar hangs onto two-shot Colonial lead

Associated Press

FC T WORTH — PGA rookie Harrison Frazar is getting the breaks usually enjoyed by tour veterans.

The former University of Texas All-America continued his surprising run Friday, shrugging off a couple of bad swings to cling to a two-shot lead at the halfway point of the MasterCard Colonial.

"My swing felt a little jerky and a little funny," the Dallas native said after a 3-under-par 67 that hardly resembled the masterpiece of his opening 64.

But his 36-hole total of 131 was nine under par for two trips around the 7,010-yard Colonial Country Club course and propelled him into the weekend with the lead over Mark Calcavecchia, Kenny Perry and Jim Furyk.

"I hit a couple of bad shots but got some good breaks," said Frazar, 26, who emerged from obscurity last week when he finished in a tie for second at the GTE Byron Nelson Classic.

"I guess that's the measure of when things are going your way, when you're not feeling good and still shoot 67."

He said his scheme Friday was simply to "put it on the steer mode ... keep it in play ... and not hurt myself."

And while admittedly a "little shaky," he succeeded.

So what's his weekend game plan?

"I think it all depends on what happens with the weather out there," Frazar said. "If the wind blows it can get awful rough on this golf course. If it doesn't, I'm going to have to go shoot eight under par this weekend to win the tournament."

Calcavecchia and Perry both had 5-under 65s after opening 68s while Furyk posted a 67 after claiming a share of second place Thursday with a 66.

Another stroke back at 134 was a group headed by Tom Watson and John Cook, last week's Nelson champion. Both posted 66s Friday and shared fifth place with Jeff Sluman (67-67), Steve Flesch (68-66) and Phil Blackmar (66-68).

Calcavecchia, seeking a second victory this year, hammered "Hogan's Alley" for three quick birdies, holed a 95-yard approach shot for an eagle 2 at No. 7 and flirted with an easy birdie at No. 8 before surrendering a shot with a three-putt bogey at No. 9.

"If I start making some putts I'm going to be dangerous," he said with a smile, noting that he two-putted every green on the back side until drilling a 25-footer for a birdie at 18.

The shot of the day was Calcavecchia's wedge to the 420-yard 7th, which was no fluke.

"I knew it was a good shot," he said. "It landed about six feet short and looked like it rolled in the middle of the hole. I saw it all the way."

Burton storms to Corning lead

CORNING, N.Y. — Brandie Burton blushed. Her game was back and not even the cold could mask her delight.

Fighting early morning temperatures in the 50s that had several players donning gloves while walking the fairways, Burton shot a 6-under-par 66 Friday to take the second-round lead of the Corning Classic. Coupled with her opening 68, Burton held a three-shot lead over first-round co-leader Tammie Green and Britain's Stephanie Lowe, who were at 7-under 137.

"It's just nice to be up there again," said Burton, who had an eagle and four birdies on the day. "It's been a long time."

Ziegler, Douglass share early lead in Bell Atlantic

AVONDALE, Pa. — Larry Ziegler, following up his surprising win last week, shared the first-round lead with Dale Douglass in the $1.1 million Senior PGA Bell Atlantic Classic on Friday.

Ziegler, who won the Saint Luke's Classic in Kansas City last week for his first tour victory in nearly seven years, and Douglass shot 4-under-par 68s at the 6,911-yard Hartefeld National Golf Course.

Five players — Raymond Floyd, Jose Maria Canizares, Jack Lewis, Bruce Summerhays and Bruce Crampton — were a shot behind the leaders. Jack Nicklaus was in a group of six who were at 70.

Racing season starts at Ruidoso

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — They're off and running at Ruidoso Downs.

The southern New Mexico horse race track, known for its All American Futurity for quarter horses, set post time today at 1 p.m.

The track traditionally kicks off its racing season on Memorial Day weekend, but this year holds the unique position of being the only New Mexico track with live racing this summer.

The Downs at Santa Fe used to hold a summer meet, but that track's owner, Pojoaque Pueblo, closed it last year because of it was running at a loss.

Santa Fe's closing should mean Ruidoso will have full stables and full racing fields, said Ruidoso Downs spokesman and former general manager Scott Wells.

"We can virtually guarantee that 10 to 12 horses will participate in every race," he said.

An increase in horses means an increase in purses. The track has increased purses this season by 25 percent. Wells also said the purse for this year's All American Futurity will be $2 million, up from the $1.59 million of last year.

Williams sisters get wish for French

Associated Press

PARIS — Venus and Serena Williams got their wish for the French Open. It came at a steep price.

The sisters, who have moved up dramatically in the world tennis rankings in the past year, have never met in the final of a professional tournament.

Based on Friday's draw, that finally could happen in Paris. But it's unlikely, given their lack of experience on clay courts and a draw that left Venus with a particularly rough path to the final.

The sisters, who fascinate fans by hitting powerful groundstrokes as hundreds of beads flap in their hair, have met twice already this year — with Venus winning both matches easily.

They met in the second round of the Australian Open and in the quarterfinals of the Italian Open, a clay-court tournament earlier this month.

They ended up in opposite halves of the draw for the French Open, which begins Monday, but Venus ended up with a potential quarterfinal match against Martina Hingis, the world's top player.

Venus, seeded eighth, will have a first-round match against Tamarine Tanasugarn of Thailand. If she wins, she probably would face Ai Sugiyama of Japan — who at No. 17 in the world rankings is the highest-ranked player not to be seeded — in the second round.

Her most likely fourth-round opponent would be No. 9 Irina Spirlea of Romania, who bumped into Williams during a changeover at last year's U.S. Open — leading Williams' father to call Spirlea a "big, tall white turkey," a comment for which he later apologized.

If Venus survives all those tests, she probably then would face Hingis, whose all-court game is best suited for clay and who defeated Venus in the recent Italian Open final.

Serena, who at 16 is a year younger than Venus, is ranked 27th in the world and is not seeded at the French Open. But she cannot possibly face a higher-ranked player until at least the third round.

On the men's side, top seed Pete Sampras — who has won every Grand Slam tournament except the French Open — drew a first-round match against friend and American compatriot Todd Martin.

Andre Agassi, ranked 20th in the world and not seeded at the French Open, drew a qualifier in the first round and a potential second-round match against defending champion Gustavo Kuerten of Brazil in what should be an intriguing matchup of matinee idols.

Unseeded American faces Rios in first ATP final

ST. POELTEN, Austria — Unseeded American Vince Spadea reached his first ATP final Friday, beating defending Raiffeisen Grand Prix champion Marcelo Filippini 6-3, 6-0.

Czechs advance to final

DUESSELDORF, Germany — Australian Open champion Petr Korda had more trouble with the conditions than his opponent Friday as he led the Czech Republic into the finals of the World Team Cup.

The weather at the $1.9 million tuneup for the French Open had turned cold and wet overnight.

"That's hard for me, I was freezing — I've got no fat on my body," said the wiry Korda, the world's second-ranked player.

Korda ran his record to 3-0 at the round-robin event with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 victory over Mark Philippoussis of Australia. He then left quickly to take a warm shower, but first made it clear he wants to topple No. 1 Pete Sampras.

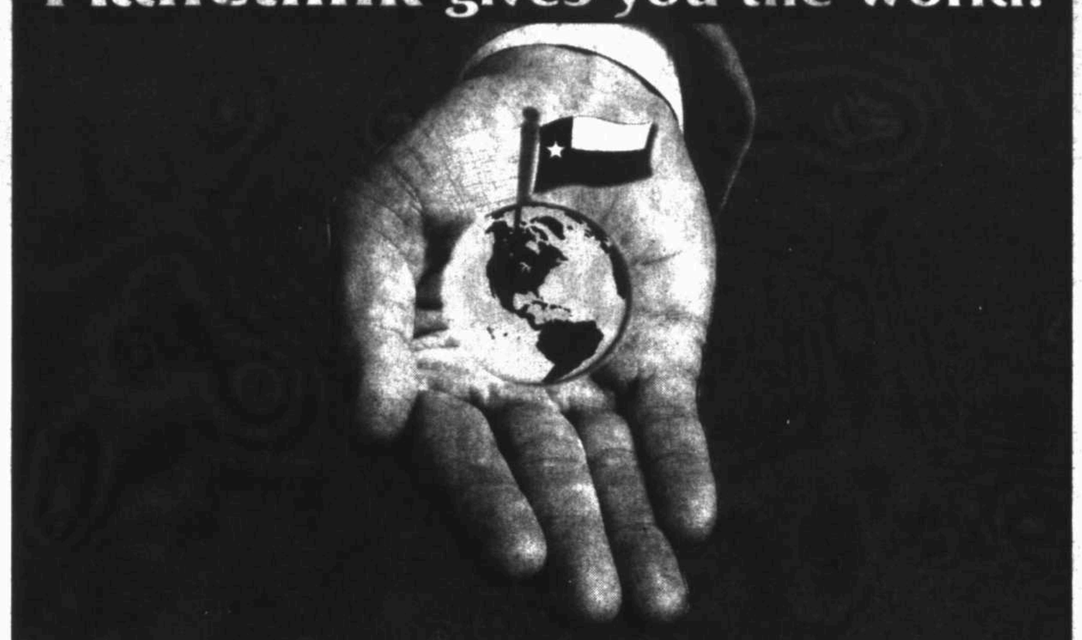

"I absolutely want to be the No. 1 — even if it's for a week," said Korda, who has tried and failed several times to dislodge the American on the ATP computer.

Slava Dosedel beat Todd Woodbridge 6-1, 6-4 as the Czechs won 2-1 and finished unbeaten in three group matches.

In Friday's other red group match, the United States finished with an 0-3 record, losing 2-1 to Sweden as Jonas Bjoerkman beat Michael Chang 6-2, 3-6, 7-6 (7-2) and Magnus Norman downed Jim Courier 6-4, 6-4.

Freddy Haltom spreads the word at busy truck stops in West Texas

By Amy Brasher
Staff writer

"God loves you truckers," reads the back window of Freddy Haltom's suburban which is often found at a local truckstop in Midland. Anywhere from seven to 12 truckers a night will stop and listen to Haltom share the message of Christ.

"When they see my truck, they honk and wave. It has been fun to go out and help people. I would rather spend my time helping people find God than doing anything else," he said.

Haltom is also a chaplain for five different motorcycle racing associations, including the Central Motorcycle Road Racing Association, where he travels with the team to Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma.

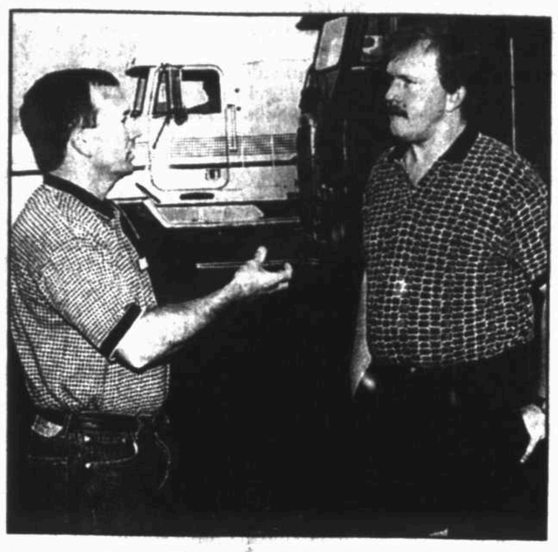

For the past five years, he has held a service every Sunday for the racers, which has grown from 20 to 150 attendants.

"Anytime there is a race, we have a little service as well as when someone is injured," he said.

Haltom began sharing his message several years ago when he realized that life had more to offer than just money and "lots of things." He said he reached out to God and asked for help.

"God reached out to me by giving me the gift of helping people. Now, it is just a natural feel-

The Good Books

Inspirational literature runs the gamut, from Christian-based help, to those books that may not mention Christ but often teach how to live by the principles taught by Christ.

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

They're everywhere.

And their simple abundance goes to prove one thing: People are hunting high and low for happiness, self-worth and the way to a simple, fulfilling life.

Inspirational books are hot items and they come mainly in two varieties: those with Christian-based messages, and those that, while they may not specifically mention Christ, faith or the church, contain messages that Christ certainly would have endorsed.

At least half of the books on the Family Christian Store's Top 10 non-fiction list are considered "inspirational," or detail how to live a better life. On the current New York Times Bestseller lists, four of the Top 15 hardcover non-fiction, two paperback non-fiction books and three of the top 4 "Advice, How-to and Miscellaneous" books are those that seek to better the lives of their readers.

The differences between Christian-based and secular inspiration is not a big one. Much of the help offered in the secular books, such as the incredibly popular "Chicken Soup for the Soul" series, contain stories that are at least based on the way Christ would

Not in God's house

By Berta Delgado

DALLAS —Joy Thornburg Melton's mother couldn't understand why she would write a book aimed at reducing the risk of child abuse at church.

And then it hit close to home.

A 12-year-old girl was abducted from a church near Mrs. Melton's mother's North Carolina home and raped during a Palm Sunday service. The abductor was a former church member who had asked the girl to help him carry flowers into the church, Mrs. Melton said.

"My mother said, 'Honey, now I know what you mean when you say it can happen anywhere, any time,'" says Mrs. Melton, a United Methodist minister and a family and church law attorney in Atlanta. "She used to think it only happened in big, faraway cities. Abuse of a child can happen anywhere, any time, in the blink of an

DALLAS — Experts have some tips on protecting children from abuse:

- Adopt screening procedures and conduct background and police checks on employees and volunteers who spend time with children. Rules should not be bent when people object to filling out forms and providing references.
- Wait 6 months to a year before allowing new church members to work with children.

Donohue's work helps revive Catholic League

By Larry McShane
AP National Writer

NEW YORK — It was only Tuesday, but it was already shaping up as a busy weekend for Bill Donohue: A new film starring Sinead O'Connor as the Virgin Mary was opening in three days.

"I'll want to get out and see that right away," Donohue said before last month's Manhattan debut of "The Butcher Boy."

Donohue is no aspiring Gene Siskel, no movie buff, and definitely no fan of Pope-hating Irish singers. Donohue is the president of the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights, a 350,000-member organization dedicated to fighting — in his own words — "Catholic-bashing."

Former inmate reaches out, ministers to others

William Bumphus keeps returning to prisons — 17 years after his release.

By Cassandra Lindsay
Associated Press

SHERMAN — At 51, William Bumphus is completely different from the heroin-addicted burglar he was 20 years ago, but he just can't leave the prison life behind him.

For the past 17 years Bumphus has been going to prisons all over the country to tell inmates how finding Jesus turned his life around. He said it gave him the strength to not become one of the 70 percent of offenders who return to prison on new charges.

"They all know crime doesn't pay because they're sitting in prison," he said. "I let them know they can change. I encourage them to get to a church when they get out."

The pastor of Faith Center Church in Indianapolis, Bumphus is married to his co-pastor, Anita, and has five children. It's a much more settled life than he was leading in 1978 when he was sent to serve four years in jail on burglary and theft charges.

"I was saved in prison," Bumphus said. "An outside volunteer sent in Christian literature to others and I read it and it told me about Jesus."

Bumphus credits his belief in God for his early release after serving 10 months of his four-year sentence. Also, he credits God for drawing him back to prison as he continues to walk into places known only to cops and convicts trying to convert the inmates to Christianity.

He started the Jesus Inside Prison Ministry in 1981 and visits 40 to 50 prisons across the country every year. Bumphus estimates "tens of thousands" of inmates have heard him give his testimony and of that approximately 1,000 a year have been saved.

Bumphus was in the area for a whirlwind tour of the county last week. He held services at Grayson County Jail, Fannin County Jail, Choice Moore Prison and a youth center. He gave two or three services at each place, focusing on how to stay out of prison.

"This is important because you don't want them to come out the same (person as) they came in," Bumphus said. "I go back (to prison) because it changes people's lives."

Bumphus' past gives him a unique perspective on the situation inmates are in compared to other prison ministers, said Choice Moore Prison chaplain Jerry Newton. Bumphus has been arrested 23 times and knows the ins and outs of prison life. He spoke to approximately 300 people in each of his three services at Choice Moore, about 25 to 30 percent of the total population, said the chaplain.

"He speaks from their perspective," Newton said. "he spoke their language, per se. They liked the idea that he could change his life."

The key, Bumphus said, is for the inmates to accept Jesus into their lives.

"There's the saying that 'Once a convict, always a convict,' that people aren't going to change," he said. "I stress that (inmates) will not be successful if they don't get to a church."

Going into the prisons can be hard for Bumphus. He sees people he has preached to before in the same small cells they were in on his previous visits. The faces of the inmates too often reflect a face like that of his sons, especially those of his 17- and 20-year-old sons.

"I see 18- and 19-year-old boys doing 40 years," Bumphus said. "They look like my sons and I wonder how they got here."

His goal is to make sure they don't come back to prison again by giving his testimony of being a convict who found Jesus in jail. A number of the inmates at Choice Moore made a commitment to turn their lives around after Bumphus' service, Newton said.

"Every service is different, every one is good. My favorite moment is seeing the guys who I've preached to and they are successful business men or preachers," Bumphus said. "When Jesus comes into a person's life, it changes him."

BOOKS: Bible stands alone as best self-help book

have hoped man would live.

"Whatever people can find that will help them grow spiritually is good," said Marshall Mason, a counselor and former associate rector at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. "Whatever my need is, I would look for someone who can say something that enriches me. But if I want Christian emphasis on a book that is secular, I'm responsible for bringing the Christian perspective into it."

Mason feels that with six "Chicken Soup" books in the Top 20, "that says something about the hunger that exists in society today."

The use of the word "Christian" in these inspirational books is not necessary, Marshall said, "if it speaks to people. I picked up a 'Chicken Soup' book and read a few pages and cried. I have a niece who is 13 and she's worn the cover off the one she has."

Darrel Schiel, manager of the local Family Christian Bookstore, on Loop 250 at Midkiff, has the option of carrying the secularly marketed inspirational books. Schiel opts not to carry those of a secular nature, despite the fact that a major Christian book distributor, Spring Arbor, makes the books available to Christian book stores.

Schiel said part of the reason for not stocking secular inspiration books is they can be found most anywhere; secondly, it is because of their failure to directly mention Christ.

"If they are not tied to Christ, they are a temporary fix," Schiel said of secular inspiration books. "We are a Christian book store. Much of what you find in (secular inspiration books) is in opposition to true biblical Christianity."

Instead, Christian book stores such as Schiel's offer the Christian version of "Chicken Soup," "God's Vitamin C for the Spirit."

But regardless of whether readers prefer secular or Christian inspiration, or a combination of both, Schiel said there is a real need for such books.

"I think ordinarily, people are looking for a justification of their being," he said. "People are discouraged with the shallowness of living. But even more than self-help, I think people are looking beyond themselves to the God who created them."

Schiel did not offer personal feelings on the "Chicken Soup" books, but felt that anything that "makes people better members of society" is a good thing.

From the Christian perspective, the one self-help type book most asked for is "Search for Significance," by Robert McGee.

Leslie Williams has written two Christian-themed books herself, including the just-released "Seduction of the Lesser Gods." She has no doubt as to the reason for the genre's popularity.

"People are yearning to develop a part of themselves that you can't see, that you can't put on a resume," Williams said. "And that's their spiritual side. And they're yearning to develop that side of themselves because we live in such a materialistic culture where the things that you can feel and touch and buy are measured and counted as successful. People know that the other side of that is really much more important, and that other side is the spiritual side."

Williams said she has read several secular help books, including "Chicken Soup" and "The Road Less Traveled," and said, "I find them very sound for what they do and for as far as they go."

The best self-help, inspirational book of all time? That's an easy one, Williams said.

"The Bible," she said, allowing that with all its inspiration, it also contains a lot of long historical narrative that many people don't take the time to wade through to find the inspiration.

"It's not quite as accessible," she said. "Some people think of the Bible as being only in the King James version. But there are some wonderful new translations that are easier to understand, including the Good News Bible and the New International Version."

DONOHUE: Takes job seriously

(From 1C)

The league's targets are rarely obscure: Louis Farrakhan, Calvin Klein, ABC-TV, The New Yorker magazine and assorted movie studios are among those who have raised the ire of Donohue and his constituency.

He has become a frequent presence on television and radio, delivering the Catholic line in his plain-spoken manner. He recently chatted with Jay Leno over a tasteless "Tonight" show joke involving communion.

"I said, 'Jay, had it been a Catholic schoolboy tradition, we wouldn't have said anything. We're not that politically correct,'" Donohue recalls, sitting at his desk on the 20th floor of the Terrence Cardinal Cooke building, on Manhattan's East Side. "'But you can't talk about the host in that vein. It's the real presence of Jesus.'

"He said, 'I get your point.'"

Most people do. Donohue, who took over as league boss in July 1993, has absolutely revitalized the organization that marked its 25th anniversary this spring. When he arrived, league membership had dwindled to 11,000, its finances were an unholy mess, and its profile was decidedly minor league.

Membership has since increased more than 30 times; the annual budget, all from member donations, stands at about $2.6 million.

Donohue often takes the unpopular side in his debates, a role he relishes. "We have a lot of people who hate us," he says with some pride. "I've been called every name in the book, which is wonderful."

His approach to TV appearances is unyielding. When TV producers line up two or three guests to oppose Donohue, he gives them this pointed little spiel:

"You can have 10 on the other side, but I'm getting 50 percent of the time. So I don't give a damn if they want to split up their 50 percent of the time amongst 10 people. They're wrong anyway."

ing to share that with others."

Haltom said he would talk to people about Christ at football games, on the street, or anywhere anyone would listen. He found that many people needed a place to come together to talk and help each other out, so he became pastor of the University Street Fellowship.

The church, which was originated out of street ministry, is filled with attendants who have been rejected or hurt by another church or don't necessarily fit into the traditional church because of their background, the problems they face or they're attire, according to Haltom.

"You don't have to wear a suit to get in touch with God. We have no dress code," he said.

In fact, Haltom said Street University Fellowship is one of the only churches in town where its attendants can drink cokes and coffee during the service.

"Our church is for anyone that would want to know God. The church doesn't have members, it is a family. It is not affiliated with a specific religion."

Haltom said he doesn't see the concept of religion "as a good thing. We should all have an open mind because God works with us individually."

On some occasions, people have come to church inebriated and admit they shouldn't be there, but Haltom said he would rather them come drunk then not come at all.

"I don't say that as an excuse to come drunk. We have people who come stoned out of their mind and leave totally sober while meeting God in the midst of it all."

He added, "what a better place to receive recovery and healing in the presence of God."

God uses many different ways to reach people, Haltom said.

"I may not be able to touch the president of General Motors, but I will be able to touch this truck driver or this guy at the motorcycle races or this drug addict or alcoholic, because that is where God has put me."

Every Sunday, members of the church prepare a meal for "anyone and everyone." Haltom said the "street people" and those who don't have anything are fed first.

"They even begin to take responsibilities, cleaning the floor and tables," Haltom said.

For nine months, he went out on the street every night for seven hours delivering his message.

"Sometimes you run out of energy, but it's like going to the lake, you never get tired. It is the joy of knowing Christ and the power of God."

Haltom said he will continue to run with perseverance because God has marked the race for him.

"I have no idea where I am going but I am on the road."

TIPS: Annual orientations for workers advised workers should be allowed in the nursery. No workers should be younger than 18.

(From 1C)

- Children should be checked in and out only by parents or another authorized adult.
- No adults should be allowed behind closed doors with children and youth.
- There should be no unlocked closets or crannies where people can be hidden from view, and all classrooms should have a half-door or a door with a window.
- Workers should be trained in first aid.
- Increase the awareness of the need for abuse prevention education with children and parents.
- Think about how worship and teaching convey the message that abuse is sin and unacceptable to God.
- Conduct an annual orientation for workers and volunteers to remind them of policies and details of state laws regarding child abuse.

ABUSE: Several books study why churches seem to be susceptible

eye."

And more and more cases are being linked to church leaders and members. Since January, nearly half a dozen clergy or church officials in the Dallas area have been charged, convicted or sentenced in cases involving charges of child molestation.

Several recent books tackle why churches are targets and what churches can do to prevent abuse.

"Churches have always been places based on trust," says Ernest J. Zarra III, who wrote "It Should Never Happen Here: A Guide for Minimizing the Risk of Child Abuse in Ministry" (Baker). "Family atmosphere, where 'brothers and sisters' worship together, lends to the trust."

Adding to that, historically, churches have not taken measures to screen volunteers and employees who work with children. If churches haven't taken precautions by now to safeguard against abuse within their walls, it is time, experts say.

Mrs. Melton says that according to the National Center for Child Abuse and Neglect, more than 2 million incidents of physical abuse or neglect are recorded each year. And she and Zarra cited national studies showing that one out of three girls and one out of seven boys are sexually abused before they're 18.

As the numbers grow nationwide, religious institutions aren't exempt. Zarra points out that, according to the Church Law and Tax Report, reports of sexual abuse of children at the hands of ministers, priests, deacons, elders, church volunteers and others are rising. But churches are still reluctant to report, he says.

"Churches often do not turn in their own when they suspect child abuse because they are put in positions of exposing that they did not have adequate mechanisms in place for screening and follow-up," says Zarra, a junior high history teacher in Bakersfield, Calif., who began writing his book while serving as an associate pastor for a Baptist church in New Jersey.

Mrs. Melton wrote the newly released "Safe Sanctuaries: Reducing the Risk of Child Abuse in the Church" (Discipleship Resources) for the North Georgia Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church. The conference decided in 1996 to make the reduction of child abuse a priority by providing churches with a resource to help them develop preventive policies and procedures.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) also published a book, "Surely Heed Their Cry," a guide to child abuse prevention, intervention and healing, in 1993. And Bill Anderson, a pastor in Michigan, wrote "When Child Abuse Comes to Church" (Bethany House) after dealing with abuse in his own church.

"Ignorance spells danger," he writes. "Education is the first line of defense in protecting our children. From powerful experience I know this is so."

An 11-year-old boy molested more than 60 children before Anderson became pastor, according to the book.

Experts agree that churches can begin protecting children by screening and conducting background and police checks on volunteers and employees and by making new church members wait six months to a year before participating in children's and youth ministries.

They also suggest keeping children from being supervised in closed quarters by a lone caretaker.

"Churches have failed our children in years past by not taking care of an incident or by covering them up," Mrs. Melton says. "We're not eliminating the problem as rapidly as we could, but I do see that happening in churches. We're not content anymore saying to the victim, 'We're so sorry and we hope you get over it soon,' and telling the abuser, 'Just don't do it again.' Because they move on, they go to a different community and abuse again and again until they pay meaningful consequences."

In the past few years, Mrs. Melton has traveled the country speaking to churches about the importance of safeguards.

"I've never spoken where at the end, someone didn't come and say, 'Thank you, I'm a survivor,'" she says. "All those who come up to me are adults, meaning they were abused 15 or 20 years ago. Finally, we have begun to let this abusive behavior get attention. Everywhere I go, people say, 'It's about time.'

"Maybe it won't be too late for our children."

Capacity crowds filled the 18,000-seat University of New Mexico Arena (the Pit), May 6-10, with thousands more watching on giant television screens in the university's football stadium across the street. A total of 103,369 people from across the state and as far away as Midland heard the Grahams preach. The senior Graham first visited Albuquerque in 1952, the same year the son was born, to preach a month-long crusade in a 7,500-seat arena that city leaders agreed to build for the occasion. In 1975, at the age of 23, Franklin volunteered for the first time to work at one of his father's crusades. that was in Albuquerque.

Memories of Billy Graham's previous crusades here remain vivid. A 16-year-old sophomore named Wallace Ford was inspired to become a minister as a result of Graham's 1952 crusade. Ford, now 61, oversees 480 churches as executive director of the New Mexico Conference of Churches.

Hundreds of attendees for this crusade indicated having been at either the 1952 or 1975 Graham crusades. New Mexico Festival '98 had the participation and support of 240 churches and the Archdiocese of Santa Fe.

On Youth Night, Graham Sr., wearing a denim Harley-Davidson jacket, joined his son on the platform and was met by a thunderous standing ovation. Also, Kip Heitzig told the crowd how in 1973 he committed his life to Christ while watching a Billy Graham Crusade on television.

Sport Coupe in Disguise:

'98 Chevrolet Cavalier Z24

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

During the last three model years, consumers have been introduced to a stream of new products from the folks at the sign of the bowtie. With the rallying cry of "Genuine Chevrolet", the largest division of General Motors went back to basics and began to deliver what American consumers had been demanding: quality products at reasonable prices. Using that simple recipe, the people at Chevrolet introduced the current generation Cavalier during the '95 model year. Light years ahead of the previous model, the new Cavalier put Chevrolet firmly back into competition in the small car segment of the marketplace. Hidden in the midst of all this wholesome value is a pocket rocket named Z24. I recently took the high end Cavalier coupe for a spin to learn more about it.

Top of the Heap

Built by General Motors in three assembly plants: Lordstown, Ohio, Lansing, Michigan, and Ramos Arizpe, Mexico, the Chevrolet Cavalier Z24 is available as a two door hard top and a new for '98 convertible, replacing last year's LS convertible model. The standard powerplant for the Z24 is the 2.4L Twin-Cam four cylinder engine, which is also the base engine for the larger Malibu sedan. The TwinCam makes 150 horsepower @ 5,600 rpm and 155 ft-lbs of torque @ 4,400 rpm. I drove a Z24 equipped with the standard five-speed manual transmission. The ($780) optional four-speed automatic transmission includes Electronic Traction Control. On the road, the Cavalier coupe delivered an endless stream of power that was very responsive. The suspension bits are complimented by beefy 205/55R16 tires that effectively keep the coupe firmly glued to the road and extremely nimble — even at speed through the twisties. The Cavalier Z24 manages to do all of this smoothly and quietly. Inside the cabin, a full analog display greets the driver, with good outward visibility. The remaining displays and controls are first rate. The single fold down rear seat back yields a nice-sized pass through that compensates for the small trunk opening. Underhood fluids are easy to reach and are clearly marked.

By the Numbers

Standard safety equipment includes: dual airbags, four wheel anti-lock brakes, side impact door beams, daytime running lights, fog lamps and PassLock theft deterrent system. EPA Fuel economy ranges from 23 city/33 highway for the five-speed manual to 22 city/32 highway for the four speed automatic transmission. Retail sticker prices start at $15,710 for the coupe and $19,410 for the convertible. Destination charge adds $500. Chevrolet is offering $1,000 in customer cash for all Cavalier coupe models and $2,000 for convertibles that ends June 30th. Supplies of the two door models are good and you should not have much trouble picking color and equipment.

Buick and Ford score well in first round of side-crash tests

The results of the first round of NHTSA's (National Highway Traffic Safety Administration) annual crash tests are in with good news for Buick and Ford. The one Ford model and both Buick models evaluated scored three out of five possible stars in the side-impact portion of the testing. The Buick Century and LeSabre four-door models along with the two-door Ford Mustang achieved the highest scores of the cars examined. The side-impact tests are part of NHTSA's New Car Assessment Program which has plans to crash fifty-six cars and trucks in 1998.

Consumers buying more truck and SUVs

People are more likely to buy a truck or SUV today than they were five years ago according to Automotive News, an automotive industry magazine. In 1993 sixty-one percent of vehicles bought were cars, but that slipped to fifty-eight percent by 1995 and fifty-five percent in 1997. The popularity of trucks and SUVs is on the rise and seems likely to continue. A lot of people are being drawn to the newer, more luxurious interiors offered coupled with the versatility for use at work and home.

Federal Luxury tax lowered

As of January 1st the luxury tax on higher priced vehicles dropped from eight to seven percent on transaction prices of $36,000 or greater. Any amount of the threshold transaction price over $36,000 is subject to a Federal luxury tax in addition to the applicable local and state taxes. For example, if you were to buy a car for $42,000, your taxable amount would be $6,000 and, at a tax rate of seven percent, your tax would be $420 as opposed to the previous eight percent ($480). The threshold amount will be adjusted every two years for inflation and will be readjusted again at the end of 1998. The tax will also decrease one point per year until January 2003.

Oldsmobile Intrigue goes X

Looking for something unusual to do this spring? If so, you might want to see if the "X-Files" Exposition will be stopping at a town near you. Oldsmobile's Intrigue will be sponsoring the expo which will run from March through May. The venues will include decommissioned military bases and will feature show props, games, photo opportunities and computer terminals for on-line activities.

Mercury Cougar sports coupe reinvented with new edge design

By BOB PLUNKETT
SPECIAL REPORT
Indianapolis, Ind.

— Grab a helmet, slip into a cool cockpit and buckle up for some speed-cheating tests of a new American sports coupe conducted at Road Atlanta, a closed-circuit raceway with 12 quick corners strung across red-clay hills in Georgia.

Vehicle for this test: Mercury's Cougar in a fresh design which pares the coupe to compact size on a rigid new platform, then installs sport-tuned hardware and drapes the package in a stunning shell which reveals hard-edged lines in a theme of rakish triangles.

faced analog gauges on the instrument panel swings toward red and lots of low-end torque propels the first tester Cougar to speed in a run up to third gear, which at Road Atlanta comes atop the first hill in turn two.

String through apexes of turns three and four and five and fly through the chicane Esses in a swoopy valley leading uphill into a sweeping new right for turns six and seven. Now run third gear to redline and shift up beyond a gentle turn eight for the straight that follows as speed builds to triple digits.

Despite such a fast clip, Cougar feels firmly rooted to blacktop and highly controlled, with scant evidence of noise from road or wind or engine.

Now brake hard and drop to third gear for a new tight left at turn nine set deep in a valley, then cut the steering wheel back to right at ten and haul over the hilltop turn eleven in a romp back to the start.

Safely in the pits, switch to a Cougar with the 4-cylinder engine and lap the course again. Speed won't reach above a hundred on the straight but it still feels lively, with plenty of torque reserved for lower gears.

The smaller of Cougar's two powerplants — the so-called "Zetec" iron-block 4-cylinder model, fortified by dual overhead cams, four valves in each cylinder and sequential fuel injection — comes together in Chihuahua, Mexico, while the lightweight aluminum "Duratec" V6, out of Ford's Cleveland, O., engine plant, also appears in Contour and Mystique in North American and Mondeo in Europe.

Horsepower for the base 2.0-liter Zetec four runs to 125, and fuel economy figures reach well beyond 30 miles per gallon for highway cruising. The strong dual-cam 2.5-liter V6 achieves 90 percent of its torque at low engine speed.

A notchy 5-speed manual transmission, built in Europe, works with either engine, while an automatic 4-speed with electronic shift control — made in the United States — serves as the option of both.

The independent subframe-mounted front suspension with anti-roll bar attaches by drop links directly to low-friction struts, while at the back Ford's Quadralink independent rear arrangement adds a form of passive rear wheel steering. Apply sticky tires and the resultant Cougar exhibits highly predictable driving characteristics when cornering, braking and accelerating.

Safety elements for Cougar range from a cellular body structure with crumple zones to high tensile boron steel door braces, dual airbags and anti-submarine front seats.

Optional front seat-mounted side airbags — a first for this class of domestic cars — are designed to shield not only the rider's torso but also the head. The new safety devices list for $375 extra.

Specify the V6 and Cougar earns disc brakes for all wheels, which is necessary for an optional anti-lock system. Another option with the V6, integrated traction control uses low-speed braking or high-speed torque intervention in twin balanced modes to prevent dangerous wheel slippage.

Cougar's interior includes twin front seats separated by console and a rear bench scooped for two positions. Rear seatbacks split and fold to increase cargo capacity.

Driver's seat, deeply contoured with firm side bolsters, fits snugly against the backside, as new glowing instruments and adjacent tactile controls on dash and door mount in ideal positions for driver's use.

The steering wheel, small in diameter and sporty in design, feels good to touch and requires only minimal effort to turn when whipping through curves.

A number of comfort and convenience items show up as part of the standard gear for Cougar, including integrated heating and ventilating system with air conditioning, audio equipment with AM-FM radio and cassette deck, and central locking with passive anti-theft device.

Never has Cougar looked so good.

It's daring and racy in a windswept statement designers call New Edge, due to defined creases in lines on shoulders and hood which interrupt so many fluid contours.

Triangles come from the shape of jewel-like headlamps and taillights, door handles and mirrors, plus the overall profile with graceful rise of the laid-back windshield and trailing roofline.

The New Edge styling of Cougar marks a moment in the design history of vehicles for Mercury and Ford as harbinger of new shape and tone for future products.

It also ...gnifies a bold new moment for Cougar, which in its last incarnation had evolved into a behemoth of a personal luxury coupe weighted with rear-wheel powerline and too much glitz.

New Cougar, tagged as 1999 issue, condenses to compact dimensions in a cleverly disguised hatchback coupe sporting two doors and 2+2 seating, plus a choice of thrifty 4-cylinder engine or a zippy V6 in front-wheel-drive format.

Behind that cutting-edge design, Cougar amounts to a stiffer coupe variation of Ford's Mondeo sedan from Europe and domestic siblings, Ford Contour and Mercury Mystique. Although produced in Flat Rock, Mich., many of these Cougars wearing a Ford badge will be exported to European markets.

Expect no equivalent coupe from Ford for the United States, however, as product lines for Mercury and Ford will henceforth segment into unique models which will not compete against each other.

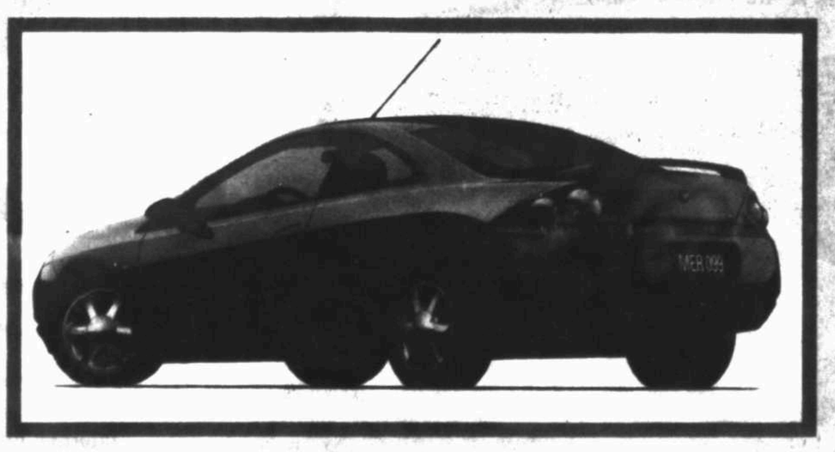

For that raceway test at Road Atlanta, Cougars with both engine variations await.

So crank up Cougar's V6 and tap into 170 horses tucked beneath a slanted hood. Slip the stick into first of five forward gears and at the starter's flag peg pedal to floor and rip it out of the pit.

First Baptist Church readies for 1,800 VBS kids, workers

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

There are a few certainties that come with the arrival of June in Midland: heat, sun and Vacation Bible School.

VBS at First Baptist Church is undoubtedly the most widely attended event of its sort in town. Yearly, it is estimated that 1,800 kids, teachers and volunteers take part in the huge undertaking. Fourteen-hundred of those are children who come for the educational experience.

"I think the quality of teaching is such that people know it will be a good experience for their children," said Carol Kleckner, who organizes First Baptist's VBS every year. "We teach the Bible as truth and I hope that is what people are expecting when they bring their children."

First Baptist's VBS runs from June 8-12 this year. School meets every day that week from 9 a.m.-noon. A community wide registration is scheduled June 7 from 2:30-4 p.m. at the north entrance of the church in the Fellowship Hall.

VBS is open to any child age 4 through 6th grade. Each year, Kleckner, also FBC's Minister of Childhood Education, said VBS grows by another 100-150 kids. Classes are designed to where the student to teacher ratio does not exceed 25:1.

"In the 1st-6th grades, they do several different things," Kleckner said. "We have Bible learning projects where children get to plan and do research. This year, they'll be studying the last week in Jesus's life, beginning with His triumphant return into Jerusalem. Grade school children will do a drama, some painting, put together a newspaper. We'll try to give them many choices in terms of how they are going to learn about the Bible."

Another feature during VBS week will be a mission room, where several current or former missionaries will talk of their experiences. A missionary couple from Kenya, John and Linda Witte, will visit, as will retired missionaries from Spain, missionaries to Mexico and from Estonia, a small country on the Baltic Sea.

Local mission workers who volunteer with agencies such as the Baptist Crisis Center will also take part in VBS, and a recreation team will lead kids in activities.

"On Wednesday night, we have family night. Our promotional theme this year is Starquest," said Kleckner. "On Wednesday night of VBS week, we'll have games and activities that parents and children can do together.

"We'll also have a worship rally every day. Our pastor (Dr. Gary Dyer) will speak to the kids and hear a Bible story," said Kleckner.

"Our main goal is that the children will learn about Jesus and His love for them," Kleckner said. "We have children attend who come to church every Sunday, children who are from another church, children who don't go to church often, and children whose only exposure to the church is through Vacation Bible School. We try to meet their needs, regardless of what needs the children bring with them. But the most important thing is they leave knowing Jesus loves them."

"For me, this is my favorite time of year. Bible school is a lot of fun for boys and girls. We will never turn anyone away."

Preparation for Bible school begins in January with teachers and volunteers beginning training in April, when they begin meeting weekly.

This will be the first year of VBS since the completion of the renovation and additions to the north and west side of the church.

"I guess the thing that is really important to know about this church is not seen as just a children's ministry. Nobody is gone this week," Kleckner said. "Staff members make themselves available to read Bible stories. (VBS) just wouldn't happen if it was left solely up to the children's ministry workers."

SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1998

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, May 23, 1998:
Your energy peaks this year, as does a tendency to be extremely blunt. Though you can be charming and witty, you might not always feel like putting forth the effort. Confusion surrounds travel, education and long-term plans. Be as direct as possible, especially in legal matters and contract negotiations. Being oblique backfires on you. If you are single, meeting others comes naturally, as you are gregarious by nature. However, carefully choose whom you allow close to you. You could become attached to someone who is emotionally unavailable. If attached, your relationship needs a lot of intimate discussion to move it along. Don't carry grudges, for both your sakes. TAURUS reads you clearly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Expenses could go to extremes. Discussions are animated and lively. Another clears the deck and tells you everything. Spontaneous parties are likely to happen. Make calls, reach for others and add an additional happening to your Memorial Day weekend. Tonight: Treat your friends well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ You are personality-plus, and others are clearly drawn to you. Confusion around a parent or strong personality in your life throws you off. Think before you leap into action. Weigh a decision to spend money or make a major purchase. Tonight: It's your treat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ You are unusually assertive at present. However, there is much you are brooding about. Unfortunately, you do not have all the facts. Sit back and relax. Take some time to yourself; think and evaluate. Make plans with a special friend. Tonight: Play it low-key, if you can.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Use caution when paying bills and dealing with money in any way. A mistake can happen out of the blue. Join friends for a fun gathering. Make the most of the occasion. Catch up on news, and exchange phone numbers with a new friend. Tonight: It could go to the wee hours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Take the lead. You might not like the role you need to play in a key situation. However, it is important to tend to all the details. Others appreciate your strong leadership. A partner is confused and upset about the distance between the two of you. Talk about your mutual goals. Tonight: Enjoy life!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Handle responsibilities, and be more sensitive to your options. Friends have strong feelings about your work, image and leadership. You will hear them! Take an opportunity to travel, visit and see pals. Not everyone sees eye-to-eye with you. Tonight: Follow the music.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Dig into your bag of tricks, and use that resourcefulness to make ends meet. A partner is demanding. Make time for that special friend, too. One-to-one relating offers more stability. Talk about solutions. Tonight: Take off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Others seek you out. You are flattered, and very busy. Allow confusion about plans and family to bounce off you for now. A heated discussion with a partner is very important. Clear the air. Recognize that you have alternatives. Tonight: Say yes, and yes again!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Dig into errands, join in and help a friend with a holiday gathering. You may like the process of getting ready even more than the party itself. Take time to be nurturing to a confused friend in need of your sense of direction. Tonight: Others are hot on your trail.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Stay anchored with funds. You might decide to let go and be totally carefree. Listen carefully to someone who has financial savvy. Taking risks comes naturally, whether financial or personal. For singles, a special encounter is likely. Tonight: Your sensuality speaks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Confirm plans, check messages and don't stand on ceremony. Take action only after you have cleared your mind. Make plans to get together with friends and family. Allow the action to be at your place, if necessary. Others pitch in. Tonight: A loved one acts up!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Be more direct with a loved one. Listen carefully to a family member who seems bent on uproar. Though it might be difficult to tell with such fussing, he has a valid point. Your convivial and caring nature makes peace where others want war. Tonight: Make the rounds of the social circuit!

Family says Culkin, Miner want children someday but both agree now isn't time

Macaulay Culkin and Rachel Miner are getting married but her family and publicist insist she's not pregnant.

NEW YORK — Macaulay Culkin and girlfriend Rachel Miner are getting married, but not because she's pregnant.

New York Post columnist Cindy Adams reported Friday that Miner looks like she's gained weight, and suggested she might be expecting.

Not so, said Miner's publicist, Bob Fennel.

Miner's family issued a statement Friday saying that "for people to suggest that they are marrying because Rachel is pregnant is unfair."

"Macaulay and Rachel would like to have children someday, but both agree that now is not the time," the statement said.

Miner is a 17-year-old actress who plays Anne Frank's older sister Margot in the current Broadway production of "The Diary of Anne Frank." She and the 17-year-old former "Home Alone" star haven't announced a date for their wedding.

NEW YORK — A new Terrence McNally play that features a homosexual Christlike figure isn't coming to Broadway after all.

The Manhattan Theater Club said it has dropped plans to stage the award-winning playwright's "Corpus Christi" this fall. The play features a Christlike figure named Joshua and has references to him having sex with his disciples.

"Because of security problems that have arisen around the production of this play, the Manhattan Theater Club is unable to mount this production responsibly," its producers said Thursday.

McNally would not comment.

The recent announcement of plans to produce the play sparked an outcry from religious groups.

LOS ANGELES — Frank Sinatra's death is breathing new life into his album sales.

Seven of his albums have vaulted onto the latest Billboard magazine chart, which tracks the nation's best-selling records, since his death May 14. None of the albums appeared on the charts the previous week.

Sinatra's death has also reverberated in the art world.

The day after he died, all 11 sets of pop artist Steve Kaufman's $25,000 "Sinatra: The Legacy Suite" series of paintings were snapped up by collectors, said Lucien Wolff of the Art International Trust.

Kaufman, an Andy Warhol protege, is only the second artist granted permission by Sinatra to create a series of portraits, Wolff said. Leroy Nieman was the first.

AUSTIN — Dan Rather says true leaders follow their conscience, not the polls.

The CBS News anchor told University of Texas students that in his 50 years in journalism, he has observed few leaders who have dedicated themselves to a cause and worked diligently toward it.

"In politics, we tend to confuse leadership with power," Rather said Thursday. "When you look at politicians today, you don't see profiles in courage. You see profiles in discourage."

Rather said Winston Churchill was a true leader.

"It was up to Churchill to persuade his people that it was in their best interest to oppose the Nazis," he said. "If Churchill had consulted public opinion polls, the results would have almost certainly been different."

NEW YORK — Geraldo Rivera was panned for his tell-all autobiography, but it's made an important contribution to one young woman's life.

Brenda Natal received paid tuition to Long Island University in Brooklyn thanks to Rivera's Miravilla Foundation, which was funded with the $350,000 advance he received for "Exposing Myself." The book detailed his drug use and sexual conquests.

"I took a lot of heat for the book, but it ended up doing some good," he told Friday's New York Times.

Rivera was in the audience Thursday as Natal got her degree in nursing.

"Most kids, when they get out of college you say, 'Welcome to real life.' These kids have been in real life their whole lives and they did college, too," Rivera said. "These kids have come through fire."
