Inflation hits four-year low

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

Inflation was held to its lowest level in four years during 1981 but the buying power of a typical wage earner also slipped, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Recession, which has cut consumers' demand for most products, was a major factor in reducing inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index to an 8.9 percent increase last year, the lowest rise since a 6.8 percent increase in 1977.

"Real spendable earnings," the money left after taxes and inflation for a typical worker with three dependents, fell 3.3 percent in 1981 after declining 5.1 percent the previous year, which was also hit by recession.

Hopes for a recovery of such distressed businesses as the auto industry are based on a rebound in real spendable earnings, especially after the next round of tax cuts in July.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll released Friday said 28 percent of the respondents believe their family will be better off financially in the next year, and 49 percent said they believe family finances will remain the same as they do today. Another 20 percent said they think family finances will get worse and 3 percent were not sure.

IN RESPONSE TO another question, 34 percent said they expect the economy to get better during the next year, 34 percent thought there would be no change, 29 percent expect conditions to worsen and 3 percent were not sure.

Meanwhile, some business leaders said they are beginning to question the president's economic program but have not dropped their support of the administration's approach. Many executives expressed concern about projections of record federal budget deficits over the next few years.

President Reagan left Washington for his Camp David, Md., retreat with decisions yet to be made on whether to seek higher federal excise taxes on cigarettes, alcohol and luxury items to reduce the budget deficit for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, urged the president to propose "some modest revenue increases." The tax measures under consideration are opposed by some Republican leaders in the House, however.

State governments are also feeling the pain of recession, according to a survey released Friday by the National Conference of State Legislatures, with the greatest financial difficulties reported among states in the Midwest and New England regions.

SINCE STATES, UNLIKE the federal government, cannot print money or run deficits, the budget crunch will cause most of them to cut back further on programs, raise taxes or both.

"With revenues and balances down for 1982, the states also are facing new program responsibilities and decreased aid from the federal government," state Sen. Ross Doyen of Kansas, president of the group, said in releasing the survey of 50 states Friday.

"We must receive some form of revenue turnbacks (from the federal government) to carry on with the services which are necessary to our people," Doyen said. "There is no doubt, however, services and spending must also decrease on the state level."

The survey found that 29 states are forecasting 1982 balances of 1 percent or less, and another 10 of them expect balances of 5 percent or less. By contrast, only 16 states ended last year with a balance below 1 percent.

Because they cannot run deficits, most states consider a 5 percent cushion in their budget essential to meet emergencies and adjustments in the economy and to stave off default.

AN EQUALLY BLEAK picture is shown in forecasted revenues. The survey found that 21 states reported revenue collections below the expected level for the year just ended, and only 10 percent expected to exceed forecasts.

The survey also notes that most of the state estimates are based on revenues collected through October "before the severity of the recession worsened."

In the face of a projected inflation rate of 9 percent for the coming year, 19 states reported they expect to increase spending by only 8 percent, a net loss in spending power. Eight others projected 8 to 10 percent increasess.

Interest rates rose in the nation's credit markets after the central bank reported late Friday that the nation's basic money supply, known as M1 and including cash in circulation and all kinds of deposits in checking accounts, rose $700 million in the second week of January, continuing rapid growth that began at the end of October.

The Fed is seeking enough monetary growth to stimulate the economy without rekindling soaring inflation. Several financial economists believe the Fed will stick to a restrictive monetary course, adding pressure to rising interest rates, until the growth of the money supply is brought under control.

Man shot by deputy

A sheriff's deputy attempting to serve a child abuse warrant on a westside man late Friday afternoon shot and killed the man after he emerged from his bedroom armed with a shotgun, according to an initial statement issued by the sheriff's department.

Dead is Robert Wayne Beauchamp, 39, of 4518 Brookdale Drive. He was shot once through the heart with a .357-caliber magnum pistol and was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

A Sheriff's Department spokesman Friday night said Sgt. Tommy Jones was serving the warrant alone shortly after 5 p.m. when Beauchamp went into a bedroom to get his coat and came out instead with a shotgun.

Jones pushed the shotgun aside and fired one shot from his service revolver, said the spokesman, adding: "We're all a little shaken up."

The shooting took place in Beauchamp's house and in the presence of his wife, according to the spokesman, who said she has corroborated Jones' account of the incident.

Hance says budget not cut enough

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

U.S. Congressman Kent Hance exhorted Midland bankers to be positive about their jobs and their country and not to lose hope for themselves and faith in their country.

"The only way that we can lose hope is failure to be positive and not to get in a position that will divide this country," the Democrat congressman from Lubbock told about 110 members of the Permian Basin Chapter of Bank Administration Institute (BAI) and their spouses Friday night in the Midland Holidome.

"When groups lose hope, that's when we will have a revolution," Hance said. "Be positive in your work, and be positive in your country. We can disagree without being disagreeable."

MUCH OF HANCE'S talk dealt with President Reagan's and the Congress' strides in tax relief and budget cutting, hope of saving the endangered Social Security System, cultivating solid and favorable foreign relations by a President who's inexperienced in foreign affairs, and in getting interest rates down so more families can afford to buy housing.

Hance, a former Lubbock lawyer and Texas Tech University business-law professor, noted that many of the nation's problems are keyed to a budget that has doubled in five years to reach $712 billion. He also noted that 76 percent of the national budget is spent on defense and entitlement programs.

"There are spending programs that are necessary," Hance said of the remaining 24 percent of the budget, and some of those programs are subject to misuse and abuse, he said.

He conceded that welfare, for example, is necessary but not in large doses.

"WELFARE PROGRAMS for the most part should be to help people get off of welfare and work and pay taxes," he said.

Hance related his role and those of the other "boll weevils," which the New York Times tabbed him and other conservative Texas Democrats, including Phil Gramm and Charles Stenholm, on the new Tax Bill. His work on the bill and that of the other "boll weevils" paved the way for the Individual Retirement Account (IRA), savings certificates, and other clauses to benefit taxpayers.

"Ninety-six percent of royalty owners will not pay windfall profits taxes," the congressman said. And by 1985, about 92 percent of Americans will not be subject to paying an inheritance tax, he said.

In order to get the tax bill passed through Congress, President Ronald Reagan invited Hance and 14 "swing votes" to Camp David to win them over, Hance noted of the workings of

ABC says Polish defectors passing vital information

NEW YORK (AP) — High-ranking Polish defectors, including a general with a wealth of intelligence information, have been seeking asylum in U.S. embassies, ABC World News Tonight reported Friday.

"They are telling CIA debriefers detailed information about Poland, Soviet tactics in controlling Warsaw Pact countries, and Russian military procedures nd capabilities," ABC Correspondent John McWethy said.

"Besides the two widely publicized defections of Polish ambassadors — one based in Tokyo, one in Washington — the CIA, according to one source, has been 'overwhelmed' by other Polish defections: influential industrialists, other diplomats and an assortment of military men, including at least one high-ranking Polish general.

"WHILE IN WESTERN Europe in late November, weeks before martial law was imposed, sources say this general asked for asylum with his family. The CIA moved him to a safe house believed to be in northern Virginia where the general laid out chapter and verse about what the new Polish regime was about to do.

"Sources say the vital information provided by the general was regarded as so sensitive that most high-ranking officials in the Pentagon and State Department never knew about it.

"This raises the question of whether top administration officials had enough of the available information as they assessed and attempted to counter the worsening Polish situation."

"ACCORDING TO ONE source," the televised report added, "so much highly sensitive information is coming from these defectors that in total it is now being regarded as one of the most important intelligence breaks in years."

Romuald Spasowski, Poland's ambassador to the United States, made his decision to defect on Dec. 20, saying: "The cruel night of darkness and silence has spread over my country."

Williams may be linked to other killings

ATLANTA (AP) — Fibers, blood and witnesses link Wayne B. Williams to the slayings of 10 young blacks in addition to the two murders for which he is standing trial, a prosecutor said Friday.

Assistant District Attorney Joe Drolet made the statement during a hearing on whether the prosecution should be allowed to present evidence on the other deaths during Williams' trial on charges of murdering Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21.

Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper, who opened the hearing after sending the jury home for the day, said he would not have a decision until Monday.

Earlier Friday, Harold Deadman, a fiber evidence analyst from the FBI in Washington, testified that fiber evidence suggests Cater and Payne may have been in Williams' home or car "in an undressed state" shortly before or after their deaths.

CATER AND PAYNE are two of 28 young blacks whose deaths over a 22-month period have been investigated by a special police task force. No arrests have been made in the 26 other deaths.

Defense lawyer Alvin Binder argued that evidence about the other victims would be highly prejudicial and would result in a mistrial. "The Supreme Court will reverse your honor" if the evidence is allowed, he said.

In order to introduce evidence of uncharged crimes, prosecutors first must prove that Cater and Payne died as a result of foul play and must show a criminal connection between Williams and their deaths, Binder said.

"YOU'VE GOT TO have a body that met death by foul play, and you have to have a connection between this defendant and foul play, and they don't have it," he said.

Binder argued that investigators had not found a pattern in the 28 task force cases.

"I don't think there's a law enforcement officer in Georgia or Washington that would tell you all were killed by one person," he said. "There is not a pattern."

He said eight of the 10 victims referred to by Drolet were children, while Cater and Payne were adults. Police had other suspects in several of the task force cases, he said, and family disputes were suspected in some.

STILL OTHER CASES had a homosexual connection, "and there's no evidence in this case that my client is homosexual," he added.

But Drolet maintained that a pattern could be seen in the killings.

"To say they are not part of a continuous transaction over a period of time is to simply ignore the facts," he said. "That pattern was so obvious it caught the attention of virtually the entire Western world."

Drolet said prosecutors have evidence that fibers similar to those found in Williams' home and car were found on the bodies of 10 other young blacks.

In two of the 10 cases, blood found in Williams' car matched the blood type of the victims, he said, and in three cases prosecutors found witnesses who would say they saw Williams with the victims.

Texas area forecast

West Texas: Fair Saturday through Sunday. Continued cold Saturday. Warmer Sunday. Highs Saturday 30s north to near 60 extreme south. Lows Saturday night teens north to 20s southwest. Highs Sunday 40s north to mid 50s Big Bend.

North Texas: Clearing and turning colder from northwest early Saturday. Mostly fair Saturday afternoon through Sunday. Cool Saturday and Saturday night. A little warmer Sunday. Highs Saturday 34 northwest to 71 southeast. Lows Sunday night 29 to 41. Highs Sunday 62 to 72.

Weekend to be moderate both ways

Midlanders will be faced by a weekend endowed with moderates: Saturday will be moderately cool with temperatures peaking out in the low 50s. Sunday will be moderately warm — in the mid-60s — for a winter day.

However, Sunday night will be visited by a temperature drop to the low 30s, according to the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Winds today are to be westerly to northwesterly at 15 to 20 mph.

Friday's high temperature of 61 degrees was far off the record high of 83 degrees for the date in 1950. The overnight low of 39 degrees was nowhere near the record low of 7 degrees the date in 1966.

ment. Neighbors said the couple had been married only recently and they didn't know them very well. Jones, 29, lives just across the street from the Beauchamp house. It is not known if the men knew each other.

The warrant was issued on a Tarrant County grand jury indictment charging Beauchamp with injury to a child, according to the spokesman. No other details on the indictment were immediately available.

Fort Worth police records show Beauchamp posted $2,500 bond on injury to a child charges in June of 1980.

An investigation into the shooting is continuing and the sheriff's department is expected to issue a more detailed statement sometime today.

Beauchamp's body was taken to the Ellis Funeral Home. Services are pending.

Judge lifts ban on Vietnam book

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — A federal judge Friday lifted a school board's ban on "365 Days," ordering that the book about Americans wounded in Vietnam be put back on the shelves of the Woodland High School library.

U.S. District Judge Conrad Cyr's 34-page decision orders the Baileyville School Board to make the book available to students and adults in accordance with normal lending practices.

Dr. Ronald Glasser's critically acclaimed book was banned by the school board last spring after a parent complained that it was filled with obscene language.

The issue came before Cyr when Michael Sheck, a former Woodland student, filed suit against the school board, contending that the book ban violated his First Amendment rights. Scheck was represented by the Maine Civil Liberties Union.

The school board argued that its elected members had an obligation to protect students from language that violates the moral values of the community.

During last month's trial, author Glasser testified that he could not have written "365 Days" any other way because tamer language could not portray the anguish of Americans who fought in Vietnam.

DEATHS

Services will be at 2 p.m. today in Alamo Heights Baptist Church with the Rev. Milo B. Arbuckle officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park, directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Pallbearers will be Richard Thomason, Bobby Boyd, Scott Smith, Mark Phillips, Lane Thornton and Gary Hightower.

Polish rule warns of more internments

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Poland's martial law regime warned of more internments Friday despite a protest by leading intellectuals and a strong church call for restoration of freedom to head off possible civil war.

Parliament is to meet next week for the first time since martial law was declared and the official news agency PAP said Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the premier and Communist Party chief, will deliver a speech to Parliament on Monday.

The government also decided to make substantial budget cuts, slashing official travel and government jobs, Radio Warsaw reported. No figures were provided for the anticipated savings.

DEPUTY INTERIOR Minister Bogusław Stachura issued the warning of further arrests. "In specially justified cases, there can be further internment of persons endangering the state or public order," he told the newspaper Zycie Warszawy.

He said about 4,900 people were already interned, that another 746 had refused to sign declarations to halt activities contrary to martial law, and that 12,655 did sign since military rule was imposed Dec. 13.

The interview indicated the authorities were still concerned about possible resistance or organizing by some activists of the now-suspended independent union Solidarity.

Union sources say that Solidarity activists have launched an underground movement and newspaper in the Huta Warszawa steel mill, and authorities say they seized underground Solidarity presses and subversive leaflets in Wroclaw.

BUT MOST OFFICIAL announcements have stressed Poland is returning to normal. For example, the official media have said that 9.8 million tons of coal were mined since Jan. 1, enabling slight increases to "some enterprises."

The speaker of Parliament, Stanislaw Gucwa, told a news conference that "the state of war (emergency) will gradually be turned into the normal political state." He said the Parliament would meet Monday and Tuesday either to approve martial law or modify it with an eye toward its eventual end.

The deputy speaker, Halina Skibniewska, denied that Parliament had received a protest from some 120 prominent intellectuals, writers, actors and filmmakers that criticized martial law, called for an end to internment of union activists and abolition of the state of emergency.

But informed sources said the Parliament had been sent the protest, which declared: "Whoever until now has tried to enslave our nation has met with resistance and anger. We remind this to those who introduced the state of war.

"THE METHODS USED to intimidate and enslave society cause our indignation and protest," the statement said, according to the sources.

It said indignation was caused by "attempts at splitting the nation, setting workers against soldiers and militiamen, worse treatment of interned workers and peasants and rank-and-file members of Solidarity than for interned representatives of the intelligentisa, and the blockade of communications."

The protest also criticized the "brutal breaking up of workers' strikes by the militia and army, shooting people, beatings, internment of many thousands of people," and loyalty oaths, which it called "blackmail of the authorities against people who refused to sign."

"We demand that the authorities put an end to the confrontation with their own nation, abolish the state of war, free internees, and stop repressions against Solidarity members," the sources said, quoting the protest. "We demand that dialogue begin with the legally constituted authorities of Solidarity and the church."

The call for talks also was in the church statement, which was drafted at a meeting of the Roman Catholic episcopate, signed by Archbishop Jozef Glemp, Poland's primate, and put in the form of a pastoral letter to be read in church pulpits.

The letter also called for return of the right of workers to "organize themselves in the independent, self-government trade unions and youth in unions convenient for young people."

politics. "If you get a chance to go (to the Camp David retreat), don't turn it down," he told the bankers. "It was nice." Hance was a sponsor of the Tax Bill.

"We needed to have a tax cut," Hance said. "That was in the right direction. The problem was that the budget cuts were not deep enough."

Hance supported certain tax cuts, including a cutback on welfare aid.

"You know," he digressed, "welfare mothers don't vote."

HANCE ALLUDED to another problem, which has become an obsession of many families across the nation: the dimming prospects of house buying for millions of Americans.

"The cost is prohibitive," he said in referring to interest rates, which are hovering around 17 percent on borrowed money, to construction and land costs.

Hance briefly dwelt on the Social Security System, which was set up in the Franklin Roosevelt administration in the 1930s, when the retirement age was set at age 65; early retirement age is 62. But with people living longer, Reagan has proposed an early retirement age of 65 and regular retirement at age 68. The new age guidelines would take effect over the next 18 years, said Hance. "That way, no one is ambushed."

Hance allayed fears that the Security System will go bankrupt; however, the system must be governed by prudent management to survive and must absorb more funds than it is dispersing.

"(Otherwise), the Social Security system will go broke and you won't have a Social Security check," he said.

Meanwhile, the national retirement plan is lumbering along.

"The benefits will not be cut," he said, "(but) the increases will be cut slightly. For example, Hance said a regular $40 increase on a $400 monthly check would be cut back from $40 to $34. We can maintain those benefits. We can keep the system sound to protect the senior citizens."

But a threat to the system is mismanagement, he suggested. "If we let people (fall victim to) demagoguery, the thing will not work."

ON FOREIGN relations, Hance said the President is "going to have to spend more time on foreign affairs."

"He has not had prior experience. His lack of prior experience is showing up," Hance said. "The same thing happened to Carter."

More and more, foreign heads of state prefer to deal with the president and not with Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

"He's got to get Secretary Haig under control," Hance said. "The president has spent a lot of time trying to calm people down" in the wake of brash remarks by Haig. One off-the-cuff Haig-comment was the detonation of a nuclear warhead "just for demonstrative purposes."

Hance termed Egyptian leader Anwar Sadat as "the greatest friend that we (U.S) had. He was a true statesman. He had vision. We lost a great friend when President Sadat was assassinated."

Culp to seek Democratic nomination for re-relection

Judge Vann Culp, presiding judge of Midland's 238th State District Court since 1977, today is announcing his intention to seek the Democratic nomination for re-election to the judgeship.

Culp, 52, pledged a continued dedication to the fair, impartial and speedy administration of justice. He has presided over the court since he was appointed to the bench by Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe five years ago. Culp, who will be seeking the Democratic Party's nomination in the May 1 primary election and another four-year term of office in the Nov. 2 general election, is one of three state district judges serving Midland County. Others are Judge Barbara Culver of the 318th State District Court and Judge Pat Baskin of the 142nd State District Court.

In announcing his candidacy, Culp expressed his appreciation to members of the State Bar of Texas for their continued encouragement, to law-enforcement officials, courthouse officials and citizen-jurors for their cooperation in the administration of justice.

"It is particularly gratifying to note that we have been able to maintain one of the most current criminal dockets in the state," the judge said.

Prior to assuming the bench, Culp practiced law in Midland, where he specialized in trial cases before the state and federal courts. He was authorized to practice law in all state courts, the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Texas, and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. He had limited his practice to litigation involving personal injury, oil and gas, patent, anti-trust and criminal law.

Culp is a former president of the Midland Bar Association and also holds memberships in the Texas Bar Association, American Bar Association, and adjunct professional organizations. He co-authored "School Discipline and the Law" for Texas Outlook in September 1955 and was editor of Subpoena in 1956.

Culp is a member of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, the Midland Downtown Lions Club and fraternal organizations, including Phi Delta Phi, a scholastic legal fraternity.

He is a native of Crockett in East Texas and received the bachelor's degree in 1951 from The University of Texas and the law degree in 1956 from St. Mary's University.

He and his wife, Marilyn McBrine Culp, have three children: Mrs. James Heck of New York City, Mrs. James Hanna of Walker County and Patrick Culp, a student at Midland High School.

Two Kentucky miners killed when roof collapses

PHELPS, Ky. (AP) — Two coal miners were killed Friday when the roof collapsed on them, the fifth in a series of Appalachian coal mine tragedies that have killed 33 miners in 2½ months.

Alice Mullins, deputy Pike County coroner, said both men died of massive head injuries in the No. 3 mine of Phelps Mining Inc., a small, family-run operation.

The vicims were identified as Curtis Adams, 61, of Phyllis, who had planned to retire soon, and Vernon Wilson Smith, 37, of Phelps, a cousin of the owners.

Tommy Smith, a roof-bolter who was in the mine 150 feet from the two, described the mine as well-run and the roof fall as a freak accident. He said no explosives were used in the mining.

Vernon Smith was operating a 30-foot-long, 4-foot-high mining machine at the coal face, 3,200 feet inside the 5½-foot-high coal seam, when the roof fell at about 9 a.m., Tommy Smith said.

HE SAID ADAMS, whose job was to place timbers to support the mine roof, was standing near the coal-cutting machine.

Pieces of the roof started giving way, he said. "They apparently saw it coming because they started to run."

He speculated that the two men might have survived had they taken shelter near the machine, with its steel safety cage.

Adams, also a minister at Bible Church in the nearby Grapevine community, had come to work at the mine five months ago, planning to work two to three years to qualify for United Mine Workers union retirement benefits.

Vernon Smith was a cousin of Jerry and Kenneth Smith, the mine owners, and a nephew of Tommy Smith.

Jerry Smith said the family operation employed 11 men and produced 450 to 500 tons of coal a day under contract to the Sovereign Coal Co. The mine is two miles south of Phelps, in eastern Pike County about 20 miles east of Pikeville.

HE SAID IT WAS the first fatal accident in the mine's six years of operation.

Jury still out in slavery trial

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jurors deliberated for a second day Friday in the trial of three migrant crew bosses charged with holding workers as slaves and causing the death of one laborer.

The three, plus a fourth man who has not been found, are accused of holding the workers at a Nash County camp between May 7 and Aug. 11, and forcing an ill man to continue working until he died. Last Sept. 25, FBI agents entered the camp and released the workers.

The U.S. District Court jury deliberated four hours Thursday. Friday's deliberations extended into late afternoon with no indication of progress.

Brothers Richard and Dennis Warren of Orlando, Fla., and John Lester Harris of Bullock, Ala., could receive life sentences if they are convicted. Dennis Warren and Harris face several other charges, each carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Dennis Warren and Harris are charged with holding two men, Craig Conners and Alvin Rhodes, as slaves. Dennis Warren, Harris and a fourth defendant, Halsey Norwood, who is still being sought, are charged with holding worker Harvey Rutherford.

Family, friends pay tribute to plane crash's mystery hero

MATTOON, Ill. (AP) — Family and friends paid final tribute Friday to Arland D. Williams Jr., the most likely candidate to be the hero who drowned after helping save other plane crash victims, saying his "finest quality was his concern for others."

The world may never know if Williams gave up his life for others, "but he was indeed capable" of doing so, Steve Schemering told about 80 people at a memorial service for his co-worker.

The 46-year-old bank examiner was the only victim of the Jan. 13 Air Florida crash in Washington, D.C., to die of drowning and exposure — leading authorities to presume he was the man who passed a line from a helicopter to others, helping five people to safety before sinking into the icy water of the Potomac River.

The Rev. William Burroughs, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, told mourners Williams probably made the ultimate sacrifice one person can make for another.

"There is increasing evidence that Arland was the one who helped five others to safety ... and with this act gave his life," the pastor said.

MARION Rivers, who also worked with Williams at the Federal Reserve Bank in Atlanta, said Williams "always chose the most difficult challenges, and that is how he ended his life."

Williams' parents; his daughter, Leslie Ann, 17; and son, Arland Williams III, 15, were among the mourners at the memorial service in Williams' hometown.

Williams' body has already been cremated and burial is set for Saturday at Dodge Grove Cemetery in Mattoon.

Authorities say they cannot positively identify Williams as the hero who disappeared into the icy water before the rescue helicopter returned. In all, 78 people died in the crash. Five of those aboard the plane survived.

Ray laid to rest; no further clues on murder

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Charles R. Ray, the Army attache assassinated in Paris, was buried Friday in a snow-covered hill at Arlington National Cemetery.

"This man has been the victim of dark forces loose in the world," said the Rev. Keith R. Ramey during earlier funeral services for the 43-year-old career military intelligence officer.

Ray was buried with full military honors as his widow, Sharon and teen-aged children, Julie and Mark, watched.

Six black horses drawing a caisson delivered Ray's flag-draped casket to the grave site, a bugler played Taps, and seven infantryman each fired three rifle volleys that echoed across the hillsides of the cemetery where many of the nation's presidents and military heroes are buried.

AMONG those paying tribute were Army Secretary John O. Marsh Jr. and Gen. E.C. Meyer, the Army chief of staff, and the U.S. Ambassador to France, Evan G. Galbraith.

On Monday, a lone man fired a single shot into Ray's forehead as he walked to his parked car near his Paris apartment. A witness saw a short man wearing casual clothing flee the scene.

An organization called the "Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Faction" later claimed responsibility for the killing, but there have been no other clues as to the motive since then. The French government promised a full investigation.

BEFORE his assignment to the U.S. Embassy in Paris in August 1980, Ray held a number of intelligence assignments in Washington and lived in the Virginia suburb of Springfield.

At St. Bernadette's Roman Catholic Church in Springfield, Ramey recalled a series of terrorist attacks over the last year, including the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and the attempt on the life of Pope John Paul II.

He said there is no answer as to why Ray would be singled out as the most recent victim of international terrorism.

Diverting water making it more tolerable

BIG SPRING — Someone is doing something about water quality for municipalities in this area.

Last year the Colorado River Municipal Water District diverted chloride-laden water from the main stem of the Colorado River and one of its chief tributaries, Beals Creek. This resulted in preventing 25,433 tons of chlorides (or about 50,000 tons of salt) from flowing into Lake E.V. Spence.

Since the diversions began 13 years ago on the river just above Colorado City and eight years ago on Beals Creek west of Big Spring, the district has prevented 254,452 tons of chlorides, or half a million tons of salt, from flowing to its lower main reservoir. While Lake Spence chlorides are still above desired levels, had it not been for the diversions over the years the water quality would be almost intolerable.

Since the diversion works were installed on the river in 1969 when Lake Spence began to catch water, the district has diverted — and sold to oil companies for secondary recovery purposes — 16.3 billion gallons of water at Colorado City containing 156,056 tons of chlorides. Since the Beals Creek works were made operative in 1974 between Three and Four-Mile Lakes west of Big Spring, 2.05 billion gallons of water containing 98,396 tons of chlorides have been diverted.

Anti-abortionists mark court ruling

AP Laserphoto

Anti-abortionists march towards the U.S. Capitol as they mark the ninth anniversary of the Supreme Court decision to legalize abortions.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan reaffirmed his opposition to abortion Friday as thousands of people on both sides of the issue marched and held religious services here, nine years after the historic Supreme Court decision that legalized most abortions.

"Government has the responsibility to opt on the side of life for the unborn except on those rare occasions when the mother's life is in danger," said Reagan in a message delivered to an anti-abortion rally. The message was read by Richard Schweiker, secretary of health and human services.

Reagan called for "greater protection for the most defenseless and innocent among us — the unborn child" and said he looks forward to signing some form of anti-abortion legislation.

Reagan has said for several years that he supports a constitutional amendment banning abortions except when the life of the mother is endangered.

Demonstrators gathered south of the White House on the Ellipse, then marched to the Capitol to lobby Congress for what they called a "Unity Amendment." Police estimated the crowd at 25,000.

MEANWHILE, ORGANIZATIONS supporting free choice in abortions held an interdenominational religious service at a church several blocks away.

Nellie Gray, president of March for Life, Inc., and other anti-abortion leaders met with Reagan before the rally. She called the session "very positive," but said Reagan made no commitment on any specific legislation.

Another participant in the White House meeting, Moral Majority leader Rev. Jerry Falwell, said Reagan "reaffirmed his unswerving commitment to the pro-life cause."

Larry Speakes, deputy White House press secretary, said Reagan told the anti-abortion leaders to support one piece of legislation. "Everyone agrees on the goal. They just don't agreee on the way to get there," Speakes said.

Falwell said anti-abortion leaders neither asked nor received any specific pledge of leadership.

"We're not looking to the president to cure this issue," he said. "He didn't cause it. The ball is in our court. We've got to muster the votes on the hill. We've got to strengthen our position in 50 state houses."

The Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights said about 1,500 people attended his pro-choice rally, including the leaders of 30 national religious denominations.

THE ABORTION RIGHTS group said it was asking again to meet with Reagan, though it was not optimistic since two similar requests have been previously denied.

Within the next month, the Senate Judiciary Committee is expected to vote on a proposed constitutional amendment sponsored by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah. It would let states restrict abortions.

Another bill pending in the Senate would define life as starting at conception.

Miss Gray said she did not support the Hatch amendment and some signs at the demonstration read: "Down the Hatch."

Earlier Friday, the National Abortion Rights Action League announced an advertising campaign to increase opposition to proposed anti-abortion constitutional amendments.

"We have seen a chipping away of the Supreme Court decision and we are taking the offensive," said Judith Widdicombe, interim executive director of the league.

"AFTER 1973, PEOPLE thought the battle was won," she said. "Obviously it isn't. It will probably go on into the 21st century."

An Associated Press-NBC News poll found that three of four Americans oppose a constitutional amendment to let Congress ban abortions.

The nationwide telephone poll of 1,597 adults in a scientific random sampling on Monday and Tuesday asked, "Do you favor or oppose an amendment to the Constitution which would give Congress the authority to prohibit abortions?"

Business leaders beginnning to question Reaganomics

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the economy in a steep recession and interest rates and unemployment at high levels, some business leaders are beginning to have questions about President Reagan's economic program.

Still, the nation's business executives, who were key supporters of the program when it was unveiled early last year, are nowhere near the point of abandoning ship, according to interviews this week with business representatives.

"There is no significant crack in the support (of the business community) but there are questions," said Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the 12,000-member National Association of Manufacturers.

SHELDON WEINIG, president of an Orangeburg, N.Y., high technology firm, said he is "beginning to be questioning" after being "a patient, diligent watcher" of the administration's approach.

Purdue University economist William Dunkelberg, who conducts surveys of the small business community, said many small business owners are "puzzled" by what has happened to the economy.

"The economic program sounded so right, they expected some real miracles and didn't really understand it was going to be pretty tough making the transition" from old to new economic policies, he said.

DESPITE ANY SECOND thoughts, few are suggesting changes in the program, which includes business tax incentives and reductions in personal income tax rates, the federal budget and federal rgulations.

"Stick to the game plan," said Robert Mosbacher, an independent oil and gas producer in Houston.

Reagan's "policies are very consistent with what the business people have wanted for a long time," said Jack Albertine, president of the American Business Conference, which represents 75 high-growth companies. "So obviously they will stick with him."

"THEY DON'T SEE any alternative,'omist of the 218,000-member U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Many of those interviewed, however, expressed concern about the large federal budget deficits projected over the next few years.

"The issue of federal deficits raises questions of equity and public policy that will continue to require careful handling," said Exxon Corp. chairman C.C. Garvin Jr., still a strong backer of the program.

Dunkelberg said small business owners always have been the red ink. "They never understood why the government continues t rates also cause concern.

Weinig said he doesn't see how the president's program can have a big impact as long as interest rates remain high. The rates, he said, are a "tremendous deterrent to serious capital investment."

The housing industry has been hard hit by high interest, and one economist contended the Reagan administration has shown an "anti-housing bias."

THE PRESIDENT "HAS NOT been good for housing. His policies have been hurtful to housing," said Jack Carlson, executive vice president and chief economist for the 700,000-member National Association of Realtors.

But in general, most interviewed accepted the current downturn as something the economy has to go through to regain its strength.

"It's belated, necessary — albeit disagreeable — medicine that the nation was simply tardy in taking," said Ford Motor Co. economics manager John V. Deaver.

"It is not an easy course. No one should expect it to be a painless one," Garvin said.

Ford saved reasons for pardon of Nixon for own memiors

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford has testified that he withheld the reasons behind his Watergate pardon of Richard Nixon because they were unimportant at the time and were better presented in his memoirs, the National Law Journal reports.

Ford said he saved the material on his "subjective feelings" at the time of the pardon for inclusion in his book, "A Time to Heal," the paper says in its Feb. 1 issue.

The Journal said its information came from a copy of a deposition in a suit against The Nation magazine, which published an article about the ex-president's memoirs.

The Journal said the deposition was taken Jan. 6 in New York.

The suit, filed by Harper & Row and Reader's Digest, claims unauthorized publication of The Nation article breached federal copyright laws by disclosing the contents of the then-unpublished Ford book.

The Journal quoted The Nation as arguing that its publication of the material was covered by the "fair use" doctrine of the First Amendment.

In the deposition, Ford said he felt it was important to include his reasons for the Nixon pardon in the book, so that his performance could be judged accurately, the Journal said. But Ford felt his personal reasons were not significant at the time of the pardon in 1974, it said.

Describing the period around the time of the pardon, Ford reportedly said he was "deeply hurt by the fact that Nixon had repeatedly assured me that he was not involved in Watergate and the evidence would prove his innocence."

"I had believed Mr. Nixon because of his repeated assertions," Ford is quoted as saying.

During the deposition, Ford repeated that the basic reason for pardoning Nixon was for "public policy reasons," the Journal said.

Ford said one-quarter of his time during the period "was spent listening to lawyers argue the pros and cons as to what to do with the tapes and documents and so forth," the report says.

"I finally decided that the country needed a hundred percent of my time on the public business and not 25 percent of my time on Mr. Nixon's problem."

Lyn Nofziger, President Reagan political strategist, puffs on a cigar during his last press briefing at the White House Friday.

Nofziger finds serving in White House no pun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyn Nofziger, Ronald Reagan's longtime pal, political strategist and resident punster, checked out of the White House on Friday — irreverent, ornery and linguistically ludicrous to the end.

How about Reagan's botch-ups? "You think we've got botulism here?" Well, what about news leaks? "If we can't have leeks we'll have onions."

Why's he jumping ship? "Just athletically inclined," he said. What's he going to miss most? "The bathroom in my office."

It was vintage Nofziger as he presided over his first — and last — White House news briefing.

As a scowl and a smile competed for place on his face, Nofziger said, "My relations with the media have, I think, improved immensely over the last year as I've seen less and less of them. My relations with the White House, I hope, will improve on that same basis in the next year."

Nofziger left the White House to make his living as a political consultant, writer and public speaker.

Per usual, Nofziger was wearing a Mickey Mouse tie, open several inches on his neck, and clutching a stubby cigar as he paid his farewell to the press corps, including many reporters who flew with him in 1980 when he was Reagan's chief campaign spokesman.

—Budget director David Stockman's critical comments of the Reagan economic program had no lasting effect among voters, Nofziger said, but "It still remains to be seen if there was any lasting damage on Capitol Hill."

—He said conservatives who are unhappy with the administration's first year will be back in Reagan's fold once they see who the Democrats offer in the next presidential race.

He said Reagan has not become "ideologically mellow or soft."

—Recalling his personal crusade to oust Democrats from the bureaucracy and replace them with conservatives, Nofziger said, "There are more people in this administration — some holdoovers and a few who are not holdovers — that don't really agree with the president's philosophy that I would like to see in government."

He surprised reporters by saying he wasn't opposed to news leaks. "I just want to leak my leaks, not you're leaks," he said. "We've done a good job of leaking."

von Bulow wife's blood tests ruled admissible

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A judge ruled Friday that prosecutors may introduce blood tests made on Claus C. von Bulow's heiress wife as evidence that he tried to murder her with insulin injections.

In asking the judge to bar the blood test evidence, defense attorney Herald P. Fahringer had argued that a laboratory mixup made doctors test the wrong blood sample after Martha "Sunny" von Bulow went into a coma in December 1980.

The attorney contended von Bulow was wrongly blamed for the high insulin levels found in his wife's body because the doctors who treated her confused two blood samples and tested the wrong one.

JUDGE Thomas H. Needham, however, denied the attorney's request to bar any reference to the blood samples or the tests from the Superior Court trial.

Von Bulow, 55, is accused of using insulin injections in two attempts on his wife's life during Christmas visits to their Newport mansion in 1979 and 1980.

Arguments resume Monday on a defense motion to bar testimony about a hypodermic needle tainted with insulin found at the mansion where the Danish-born financial consultant allegedly tried to kill his wife.

ALSO pending is whether a statement von Bulow gave to a state police detective without counsel present should be admitted.

Mrs. von Bulow was rushed to Newport Hospital on Dec. 21, 1980, shortly before she fell into a long-term coma. In the emergency room, Fahringer said, doctors had blood drawn for analysis.

"On that very same day, additional blood was drawn ... but that was after doctors had administered large doses of glucose, which causes the pancreas to produce insulin in a normal person's body," Fahringer said.

"The two tubes of blood go to the lab, and a test is ultimately done that shows a high insulin level. But we don't know from which tube that blood sample came," he argued.

Fahringer maintaned the evidence was based on the second blood sample. He noted the blood samples have since been destroyed.

BUT prosecutor Stephen R. Famiglietti said witnesses will prove the incriminating sample was taken from Mrs. von Bulow before the glucose was administered.

The defense motion was one of several argued by Fahringer. Earlier, Needham denied the attorney's requests to:

—Bar reporters from hearings in which Fahringer will argue against use as evidence of the hypodermic needle von Bulow allegedly used in attempts on his wife's life and a statement he gave a detective.

—Dismiss the indictment because the grand jury declined to review some Newport Hospital records that could have been favorable to von Bulow.

Mafia hit man killed by shotgun blast

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — A self-professed Mafia hit man who bragged of 53 contract killings and wrote lurid accounts of murder has died of a single shotgun blast in the back, authorities say.

Max Kurschner's only known conviction was for not paying taxes on royalties from books written as the infamous hit man "Joey." But he claimed he began killing at age 16, and listed his occupation on arrest as "salesman-contract killer."

The 49-year-old Kurschner was shot Wednesday night as he walked to his car in a San Mateo motel parking about 15 miles south of San Francisco, police said. He died in a hospital 2½ hours later.

No arrests were made, officials said.

In death, Kurschner was sharply dressed in sports clothes and a leather jacket. The San Mateo County coroner's office said the shotgun was found a few feet from where he lay outside the Los Prados Motel.

There were no signs of robbery, San Mateo police said.

Police said Kurschner flew to California from Seattle on Jan. 9 and then checked into the motel, giving a San Diego Post Office box for an address.

Kurschner was convicted of income tax evasion in Seattle in 1976. He was accused of failing to pay taxes on $100,000 in royalties from 1973-74 book sales. He served eight months in a federal penitentiary.

Barbara Joyce of the Seattle Times said she had spoken to Kurschner frequently over the past six months and he didn't mind admitting he was Joey.

"No, he was kind of a braggart about it. He was a strange person to talk to. He called regularly, all the time, for a while.

"He wanted some publicity...he wanted (people) to know he had been double-crossed by the FBI because now somebody knew where he was...he figured they'd get him," she said.

Mailer would help Abbott again

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Norman Mailer, who championed the cause of jailhouse author Jack Abbott, said Friday he feels responsibility for the case that led to his protege's conviction for killing a young waiter.

But Mailer said he would extend help again, if needed, to the critically acclaimed writer who was found guilty of manslaughter Thursday.

"I'll be continuing my relationship with him," Mailer said at a news conference Friday. "If I feel he has a chance on the street again, yes, I would help him."

"I feel my responsibility in this is large and I'm not going to walk away from it," Mailer added, saying he could have spent more time with Abbott, or "'run with him', as they say on the street."

THE Pulitzer Prize-winning author of such novels as "The Naked and the Dead" described Abbott as "neither happy nor unhappy" at the prospect of returning to prison, where he already has spent 24 years of his life.

"He was resigned," said Mailer, who talked with Abbott by telephone Thursday night. "The feeling I got from it is when people get out of jail, they feel both too strong and to weak to handle the world. What can I say — the man is used to jail. Jail, sadly enough, is his home."

Mailer sponsored Abbott's entry into the ranks of successful authors with the convict's grim account of life behind bars, "In the Belly of the Beast."

In addition, Mailer had been influential in having Abbott transferred from a Utah prison to a Manhattan halfway house, and gave him a job as a researcher.

ASKED after the verdict what he would say about charges by Adan's father-in-law that Mailer had blood on his hands, Mailer said, "I'd say he's right."

Despite the conviction on a lesser offense, Abbott's laywer, Ivan Fisher, said he would appeal the verdict.

Water too hard for infant formula

The Midland City-County Health Department is asking residents of Midland County to stop using water from private wells to prepare infant formula.

Water in these wells is hard and contains an excess of 45 miligrams per liter of nitrates.

According to the county health officer, Dr. Patrick Y. Leung, the hard water condition exists in all wells throughout the county and not in one area.

"There is nothing to be panicky about," he added. "The wells are not contaminated; there are just too many nitrates in the water."

Dr. Leung explained that the nitrates combine with fetal hemoglobin, "rendering the hemoglobin non-effective. It causes a cyanosis condition and affects the oxygen-carrying capacity of the blood."

He advised parents to use bottled water in mixing baby formula.

The warning doesn't apply to city water, he said, noting the nitrates are removed during the treatment process.

Water flow shut off

BIG SPRING — Service has been restored to the western part of the Colorado River Municipal Water District system after an interruption to replace an electric substation.

The project called for replacing the wooden superstructure which has supported the substation since its installation in 1952 and beefing it up so it can carry the load for larger pump impellers when they are needed for summer peaking.

To accomplish this, the entire Martin County station had to be shut off, and that meant no pumping of water to Midland and Odessa. However, both had sufficient reservoir reserves to carry them through the 36 hours that the station was not pumping.

The district also is installing new equipment for the further automation of the entire pumping system.

Parents, do you want your Junior or Senior to improve their S.A.T. scores? Most universities require a minimum score of 1000 for admission. Permian Basin High School will begin S.A.T. prep classes on Feb. 2nd. Classes limited to five students. Call glen Walton, 683-4448.

Two Midlanders receive Silver Beaver award

ANDREWS — The 58th annual Recognition Banquet of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, was held here Friday night at the Andrews Civic Center.

Richard Bentley, director of the South Central Region for the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, was the featured speaker. The South Central Region covers a five-state area, including Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas. Master of ceremonies was K.D. Van Horn of Midland.

Four adult Scout leaders, including two from Midland, received the Silver Beaver Award, the highest award that can be presented by a Boy Scout Council for outstanding volunteer service. Receiving the award were Dr. David Norton and Ken Peeler, both of Midland, Melvin Moeling of Colorado City and Jeanine Lewis of Odessa.

The Silver Beaver is given for "noteworthy service of exceptional character to boyhood by registered Scouters within the jurisdiction of the Buffalo Trail Council," according to Scout officials. Dr. Paul Hollinshead of Kermit presided over the recognitions.

Approximately 300 adults from throughout the 18-county Buffalo Trail Council attended the banquet.

George Eng of Midland was installed as president of the Council for 1982. Guy McCrary of Midland was named treasurer and J. William Milner of Midland assistant treasurer. Named Council vice presidents were Frank Cowden Jr., Robert M. Leibrock, Rudy Wright and Peeler, all of Midland; J. Arnold Marshall of Big Spring; and Homer Stewart and Judge Gary Watkins, both of Odessa. Charles Ross of Odessa was named council commissioner.

Van Horn, the outgoing Council president, was presented with a special oil painting in recognition of two years of distinguished volunteer service to the Council.

Named district chairmen for 1982 were Larry Speck of Big Spring for the Lone Star District; Alan Hale of Midland for Chaparral District; Hailey Brookshire of Pecos for Sand Hills; Dr. Tom Scannicchio of Snyder for Lone Buffalo; and James Haley of Alpine for Big Bend District.

Grady Cunningham of Big Spring was named as a new adult member of the executive board of the Buffalo Trail Council. The executive board is composed of 50 volunteers from the 18-county area of West Texas served by the Buffalo Trail Council.

Eagle Scout Malcolm Upton, a member of Scout Troop 9 of Colorado City, was recognized as winner of the 1981 National Boy Scout Public Speaking Contest for Area IV of the South Central Boy Scout Region, which includes West Texas and New Mexico.

Outlaw changes name for trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Outlaw, the drug suspect who said he'd rather go on trial as Eleanor Roosevelt or Reggie Jackson than reveal his real name to a jury, settled Friday for just plain Archie Simmons.

"That's the name he came up with. Don't ask me why," said Outlaw's lawyer, Joseph Klempner, after acting Justice Robert M. Haft approved the use of the new name for Outlaw's trial in Manhattan's state Supreme Court.

Outlaw, a 34-year-old New Yorker charged with possession and sale of heroin, had moved for permission to use an alias at trial claiming that his name would "prejudice me in the eyes of a jury."

Outlaw, who is being held in lieu of $500 bail at Rikers Island.

Navy journalist authors book about carriers

By SCOTT M. BUSHNELL
Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — It was two decades ago when Peter Kilduff was a "bright-eyed young kid" that a tour of duty aboard the USS Lake Champlain initiated a career, a love of aircraft carriers and, now, a book.

"I just couldn't believe the Navy would pay me to ride on a carrier and report on its operations," Kilduff recalled of his days as a Navy journalist serving on the Champlain in 1960. "It was a heady trip."

Ten years later, the aviation historian spent four days aboard a carrier of the same class as his old ship, writing an article for a British magazine.

"It was a great experience. It brought back all the memories and I think that was when the idea of a book about carriers really began," said the 40-year-old New Britain resident, author of "U.S. Carriers at War." Published in Great Britain last fall, it has now been issued in the United States.

The book was five years in the making, Kilduff said. Initially, it was going to be a full issue for a British aircraft quarterly, but publisher Ian Allen suggested that it be expanded into a book.

Kilduff focused on American carriers of World War II, but tried to make the book more than a recitation of major battles in the Pacific campaign.

"I wanted to mention the three types of carriers — escort, light, and battle carriers — and I wanted to touch on the major theaters of the war. Most people don't know about the carrier activity in the Mediterranean and in chasing U-boats in the Atlantic," he said.

"The aircraft carrier was really the 'American blitzkrieg weapon' during the war," he said. "The American carrier fleet gave the U.S. Navy a fast, mobile strike force unprecedented in the history of warfare."

Kilduff's book includes a chapter on the "Navy's Ace of Aces," David McCampbell. A Medal of Honor winner, McCampbell shot down 34 enemy aircraft, including nine in one 90-minute battle.

But "U.S. Carriers at War" focuses more on average American pilots — and not just fighter pilots, but also torpedo-bomber and dive-bomber crews — whose mere survival, the author maintained, was often remarkable.

Englishman makes living chasing after locomotives

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Colin Garratt makes a living by traveling the world taking photographs of steam locomotives.

A rarity in the developed world, steam trains are so plentiful in other places around the world that Garratt says he may never find them all. "I am racing against time and I am losing the race."

Having visited 32 countries on four continents over the past 12 years, Garratt complained: "Well over half the remaining countries are running steam and their locomotives will outlive me."

The 41-year-old Englishman, interviewed by telephone at his home in Loughborough, Leicestershire, said he worked 110 hours a week at his self-appointed task.

His travels occupy six months of the year, and after that he earns his livelihood by giving lectures, with color slides, and by writing books about steam trains. He estimates each slide costs him $162 to acquire.

Garratt is anxious to get to China.

"The Chinese are the only nation in the world still building steam engines. They've got the coal and they believe steam is not an outmoded form of technology if labor is available.

"I believe in steam. I drive a car but whenever possible I go by train. I think they are sensible when the world is rapidly drinking up all its oil, and there's nothing to compare with steam for nostalgia.

"The steam engine is discredited. The developing nations want to ape the modern world and have diesels — it's become a worldwide fad. But the Chinese are building first-class steam engines and running very heavy trains with them."

In Britain, which pioneered steam passenger trains in 1825, steam was phased out in the 1960s. But state-run British Rail occasionally runs a steamer as a curiosity and sells every seat.

Garratt, however, is not interested in museum pieces and that's why he has not visited North America. "No working steam left there," he said.

More interesting to him is the 108-year-old locomotive still at work in India and the model aged 109 in Hungary which he hopes to track down.

Garratt spoke of an "amazing discovery" on the tiny Atlantic island of Sao Miguel in the Portuguese Azores.

He went there in search of a railway hauling stone from a quarry. He found the line disused and the job being done by trucks, but under a pile of debris he discovered what is probably the last relic of the 19th-century battle of the gauges, a British-built locomotive that ran on a track 7 feet wide.

Pioneers George and Robert Stephenson ran their trains on a track 4 feet, 8½ inches wide. Their rival, Isambard Kingdom Brunel, built the Great Western Railway from London to Bristol on a 7-foot gauge, so that his trains carried greater loads with great economy.

South Korean dress code eased

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The government has eased the dress code for students in South Korea.

Beginning March 1, male students will no longer be required to have their hair cropped close in crew-cut fashion. Female students, while not subject to such stringent shearing in the past, will be allowed to let their bobbed hair grow longer.

And, beginning with the freshman class of 1983, students will not be forced to wear the military-style uniforms of past school years.

Since President Chun Doo-hwan's decision was announced in early January, the dress code changes have been a favorite topic of conversation among young people and adults, and have filled newspaper columns.

Many have hailed the move as a step toward a more liberal society.

The Ministry of Education announcement on the changes said the government reached its decision "as the nation has reached a stage where deregulation of students' appearance is necessary with the attainment of political and social stability and the elevation of the national status."

It also was described by the ministry as being designed to help youths grow to more active and creative personalities through the cultivation of a sense of beauty.

While praised generally, some mothers have expressed concern about extra costs of buying more and varied clothes.

Newest version of 'Little Me' worth seeing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — Good news. Silly business is back on Broadway. Sure, the new version of 1962's "Little Me" sags here and there. And you do have to lower your brow, leave your sense of shame at home.

Otherwise, you'd feel guilty attending a musical whose poor, busty heroine, from Twin Jugs, Ill., attracts a rich, dense lad simultaneously studying medicine at Harvard and law at Yale because:

"I hope someday to be a legal doctor."

You may even feel that "Little Me," which opened Thursday, offers broad humor. I felt that myself in Act Two when the rich hero says he and his rich wife got "divorced in St. Patrick's Cathedral."

Well, the show, its jazz-tinged score by Cy Coleman and Carolyn Leigh, its book by Neil Simon, does throw cultural caution to the winds. But the result is grade-A goofy at least 75 percent of the time.

And that's sufficient reason to catch this daft tableau, based on Patrick Dennis' comic novel about the rise of lovely Belle Schlumpfert from abject poverty to...Hackensack, N.J.

I never saw the original edition, being a guest of the Army at the time. But I'm told Sid Caesar was dynamite in all the major roles save Belle, a part then occupied by Virginia Martin.

In this effort — those in charge say it's no revival, what with two new songs and some new scenes — young Belle is essayed by Mary Gordon Murray, with Victor Garber and James Coco respectively capering in four and six major parts.

Jessica James, late of "Gemini," also is present here as the bawdy middle-aged Belle of the present — she's quite good, too — who narrates the life and times of Belle of the past.

One can wind up in a canvas tuxedo trying to summarize the goings-on, but they have young Belle (sort of a Midwest Daisy Mae at first) sweetly and innocently seeking true love in a wicked world.

Garber, as the richest young snob in town, loves her ("I have a feeling for you that I could never have for a nice girl," says he).

George Benson just keeps breezin' along

George Benson has a problem a lot of performers would like to have. Every time he decides to slow down and not work very much, he gets another big hit record.

That puts him in demand for more recordings, concerts and other appearances and projects right away.

Last June, he staged five sold-out concerts in London's Wembley Arena. "There was a seven-week U.S. tour, with six concerts at Carnegie Hall," Benson says. "And I did a lot of bits and pieces, running back and forth a lot. It was a very busy year; I didn't plan it to be busy. You come out with a blockbuster record and your peace will end."

BENSON HAD a big single in 1980, "Give Me the Night," and a big single in 1981, 'Love All the Hurt Away," a duet with Aretha Franklin.

"To get as far as we have with records and throw it all away by not touring seems ridiculous," Benson says. "If I wouldn't take advantage of a hit record, it would be irresponsible. I try to keep things in perspective. When things do slack up, I won't be unhappy.

"But if Aretha and I make a duet album, which I'm inspired to do, I can see us doing stadium dates."

Another achievement of Benson's that other performers can envy is his records' propensity for selling in more than one category. His latest single, for instance, "Turn Your Love Around," is No. 8 and climbing on the pop best-selling chart. The Warner Brothers album it's from, "The George Benson Collection," is No. 20 and climbing on the pop chart, No. 9 and climbing on the rhythm 'n' blues chart and No. 1 on the jazz chart of Jan. 16.

HE WINS honors that way, too. In 1981, he won a Grammy for best rhythm 'n' blues vocal, male, for "Give Me the Night." And he won a Grammy for best rhythm 'n' blues instrumental performance for "Off Broadway" and a Grammy for best jazz vocal, male, for "Moody's Mood." Both "Off Broadway" and "Moody's Mood" are tracks on the "Give Me the Night" LP.

The current "Collection" album is being called a retrospective instead of greatest hits. Benson had the idea of taking musicians from some of those past tunes and playing the "Collection" in concert in New York and Los Angeles.

Then, he decided, he could get more mileage — a possible live album — if they didn't duplicate numbers on an album just released. He says, "Earl Klugh and I recorded together on 'White Rabbit' in 1972. We did a new version of it. The rest of the tunes were jazz standards, basically, plus some new things."

Benson was born in Pittsburgh, lives now in Hawaii and has six children, ages 2½ to 20.

Growing up, he both played guitar and sang. He first became known in the music world as a jazz musician. The first of his four albums to be certified platinum, "Breezin'," is considered the all-time jazz album best-seller. The other three platinum LPs are "In Flight," "A Weekend in Los Angeles" and "Give Me the Night."

It is often said that when Benson was on jazz-oriented CTI Records, in the first half of the 1970s, he didn't sing. "I had several vocals," he says. "I had a disco hit, 'Supership.' I didn't particularly like the song but it became very popular. It made the top 10 in England.

"It was written for Esther Phillips but she couldn't make the date. I was in CTI's office; they were playing a tape. I heard it and said it was interesting. They asked if I would like to try putting a vocal on it. It was in the wrong key for me. I asked them if they would put a new instrumental track on it for me. They said absolutely not. Those were desperate days. I put my voice on her track the next week."

BENSON doesn't do things like that anymore.

Though he plays mostly pop-oriented rhythm 'n' blues these days, Benson enjoys playing jazz. "The freeness of the music really allows musicians to be what we can be.

"It's nice to just lay back and swing a little. You don't have to worry too much about it; you play it like you want and play what you feel. It is freer than anything.

"You know, it's fun to play background, too. You're just doing rhythm, still you have a certain freedom there. There are a lot of different ways of connecting chord changes and making harmonic passages. I like to try as many as I can."

And what about the audience for jazz? A jazz combo's propensity to draw out a tune at length and for each instrumentalist to take a long solo cuts down the audience for jazz, Benson believes.

"WHEN PEOPLE come out at night, they want to be refreshed. If you take up too much of their time with the same thing, they get restless. They like to put a little variety in their lives.

"For some segments of an audience, jazz is new. I think if it is done right, with a good feeling, they're ready for it. But I don't think jazz would be their choice to hear in most cases."

Another producer came up with "Love All the Hurt Away" for the Benson-Aretha Franklin duet. "I think she's the greatest."

3M salesman is award-winning writer

By SUSAN OKULA
Associated Press Writer

LYME, Conn. (AP) — To even an amateur sleuth, it was apparent that Frank Sisk was up to something.

Every night he was on the road, the middle-aged, blue-eyed traveling salesman went to a public telephone to call home at exactly 6:15. Then he ate dinner — usually alone.

Next, Sisk would saunter to his hotel room, lock the door and wouldn't be seen again until morning.

Sisk, now 66, has retired from sales. He no longer has a regular telephone appointment with his family.

The award-winning short-story writer still locks himself in a room every day, but now it's in the basement of his rural home. His more than three decades of effort have resulted in about 250 published articles and short stories, as well as an international reputation as a respected suspense writer.

His latest published short story won first place last summer in a competition sponsored by the Third Crime Writers International Congress in Stockholm, Sweden. Sisk's "A Visit With Montezuma" was judged best of 400 entries.

Sisk, a native of Norwich, likes to call his work "psychological suspense."

His stories have been published in several editions of "Best Detective Stories of the Year" and many magazines. His is also a familiar name to mystery-story fans in 14 or 15 countries where his work has been translated into almost as many languages.

"Montezuma," set in Manhattan, tells of the mugging of a retired Marine colonel and the disastrous happenings that follow.

Sisk, a former reporter, says he doesn't read much fiction, but lists Shakespeare and James Joyce as his favorite authors. His paneled living room is lined with books, including a generous portion of history, and at least one shelf holds his published pieces. He lives with two of his sons.

Sisk says he first knew he would become a writer when he was 8 years old. His formal schooling stopped after high school. At 19, he landed a temporary job with the Bridgeport Post and, at 20, in the midst of the Depression, set out to roam the country, spending many nights in flophouses and hours in breadlines.

He wrote for several publications, eventually landing a job as editor of a small daily newspaper and a weekly magazine in a North Carolina resort area. At 23, Sisk married his first wife and they had a son.

When World War II broke out Sisk was first a civil servant. Then he joined the Marine Corps as a combat correspondent, but never saw combat. At the end of the war, he and his wife divorced. Sisk briefly worked in advertising and public relations.

In 1948 he joined the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. as what he called a "political salesman," with the government as his main customer.

He married his second wife, Barbara, in 1952, and they had five children. Sisk says that's when he started to write again — when he was spending nights in hotels away from his family.

Sisk was with the company for 24 years. But when his selling career ended, and even when his wife died earlier this year, he continued to write.

Vaults under Jerusalem tell city's story

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Buried deep under the bustling streets of Jerusalem's Old City, where Arabs peddle goods on donkey-back as they have for centuries and pilgrims trudge past the monuments of Christ's life and death, lie cavernous vaults that help tell the story of this ancient city.

Some of these underground remnants of history are in the bowels of churches built around them 1,000 years after Christ died. More often they are simple Roman rooms now cast away as storage space. Many are still hidden, either intact or filled with debris.

City engineers and archeologists are uncovering roads, guardrooms and passageways displaying the wealth and power of the great Roman and Byzantine empires. They stumbled on some of these discoveries while repaving roads or replacing a sewage system, part of which dates back to Roman times.

"We tell our staff that if they find anything, don't touch it," says Yitzhak Yaacobi, head of the government-owned East Jerusalem Development Co. "Then we call in the archeologists."

Man has lived, fought, built and rebuilt in Jerusalem for 5,000 years. Conquerors built on the ruins of the vanquished as the city changed hands at least 28 times in recorded history. But remains of earlier civilizations were preserved in cavities as the city rose layer by layer.

The place where Pilate judged Christ was once the highest spot in the city, but today it is marked by a slab of stone in the cellar of the Greek Orthodox Church of Ecce Homo. Paving stones from what could be the original Via Dolorosa were found 12 feet under current street level.

Quick trip costs $200 parking bill

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Mark Moffler took a state car for a quick trip to the airport. Three months later his boss got a parking bill for $202.50.

Mark Moffler, an employee of the Department of Natural Resources from St. Petersburg, had been in the Tallahassee area on state business, but didn't get back until after the motor pool closed at 5 p.m. so he used the car to go to the airport for his flight home.

"Through a breakdown in communications, the department's motor pool was not notified of the car's return to the airport," according to a memo to the state auditor's office.

"Also through error, the motor pool's record of the car's status was erased from the chalkboard used for

The Newspaper BIBLE

HAD ME FOOLED, BUT NOT FOR LONG

Well then, am I suggesting that these laws of God are evil? Of course not! No, the law is not sinful but it was the law that showed me my sin. I would never have known the sin in my heart--the evil desires that are hidden there--if the law had not said, "You must not have evil desires in your heart." But sin used this law against evil desires by reminding me that such desires are wrong and arousing all kinds of forbidden desires within me! Only if there were no such laws to break would there be no sinning.

That is why I felt fine so long as I did not understand what the law really demanded. But when I learned the truth, I realized that I had broken the law and was a sinner, doomed to die. So far as I was concerned, the good law which was supposed to show me the way of life resulted instead in my being given the death penalty. Sin fooled me by taking the good laws of God and using them to make me guilty of death.

But still, you see, the law itself was wholly right and good. But how can that be? Didn't the law cause my doom? How then can it be good? No, it was sin, devilish stuff that it is, that used what was good to bring about my condemnation. So you can see how cunning and deadly and damnable it is. For it uses God's good laws for its own evil purposes.

Book's contention of Jesus' marriage causes some furor

By MARK S. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — To call "The Holy Blood and the Holy Grail" controversial would be an understatement.

The book, published here Monday, suggests Christ married and had a child by Mary Magdalene, staged and survived his Crucifixion, and has living descendants among European noble families.

"Academically absurd," says the Right Rev. Hugh W. Montefiore, Anglican bishop of Birmingham. "It's worthless. (It contains) howler after howler."

"Absolutely obnoxious," said the Duke of Devonshire who, according to the book, is one of Jesus' descendants.

The derision is inevitable, says writer and filmmaker Henry Lincoln, 51. "We've been expecting it."

Lincoln, a Briton, and co-authors American Richard Leigh, 39, and New Zealander Michael Baigent, 34, spent more than 10 years researching the book.

In the book, published by Jonathan Cape, the authors say their version of events "is a plausible hypothesis which makes coherent sense...It constitutes a more likely account than any we have encountered of events and personages which, 2,000 years ago, imprinted themselves on Western consciousness."

Research began with Lincoln's preparation of a 1972 British Broadcasting Corp. documentary on a 19th-century French priest, Berenger Sauniere.

The cleric reputedly amassed great wealth after discovering and deciphering four parchments hidden in a hollow pillar of his church at Rennes-le-Chateau, a hilltop village in the south of France.

The authors say they have discovered those parchments, or facsimiles, still exist and disclose the existence of a secret society called the Prieure de Sion, founded in the 11th century at the start of the Crusades. Its aim was to guard the Holy Grail — according to medieval legend, the cup used by Jesus at the Last Supper.

The authors claim the society remains active, and that its adherents over the years included Isaac Newton, Andre Malraux, Victor Hugo, Claude Debussy and Charles de Gaulle.

According to the authors, the words "Holy Grail" are a mistranslation of early French words for "royal blood," and the true purpose of Prieure de Sion is to protect alleged royal descendants of Jesus and prepare the way for their accession to world power.

To bolster their description of the society, they provide several chapters of scholarly references from legends, romances, paintings, documents and the Bible.

All this is controversial enough, but author Leigh said it led the three to re-examine the conventional interpretations of the New Testament. That study led them to propound a "hypothesis" that:

— Jesus literally had a claim to being "King of the Jews" and was descended from the royal house of the Israelite King David.

— He married Mary Magdalene and had at least one child by her.

— He and sympathizers staged his Crucifixion and Resurrection and he survived into old age somewhere outside the Holy Land.

— Mary Magdalene and her offspring made their way to southern France — then Roman-ruled Gaul.

— Jesus' bloodline mixed with that of the Franks and started the Merovingian dynasty of the early Middle Ages.

AND WHAT ABOUT HEAVEN?

Bob Blazek
Preaching Minister

If there is no hell then there must not be a heaven. Actually Jesus said more about hell than He did heaven. But He said enough for us to be sure there is a heaven, and that it will be an extremely desireable place in which to spend eternity. I recommend you try it!

PRODUCTION SYSTEMS NODAL℠ ANALYSIS

A ONE-WEEK COURSE
February 8 thru 12
Holiday Inn (Odessa)

A Nodal (new and revolutionary) systems analysis approach for oil and gas wells.

This course is designed for Engineers, Managers and Field Foremen associated with Production Systems and Artificial Lift Planning.

Instructor:
Kermit E. Brown, Ph.D.

Each participant will receive Dr. Brown's three new books:

- Technology of Artificial Lift Methods, Vol. 1, inflow performance, multiphase flow in pipes, the flowing well.
- Technology of Artificial Lift Methods, Vol. II, beam pumping, gas lift, electrical pumping, hydraulic piston pumping, jet lift, plunger lift, other methods of lift and comparison of methods (2 books).
- Vol. III, 2200 pages of new gradient curves including vertical multiphase flow, horizontal multiphase flow, gas production and gas injection curves. (Scale 20,000 ft. by 5600 psi.) (2 books.)

This course will show you how you can SAVE MONEY and INCREASE PRODUCTION by:

- Changing the separator pressure
- Changing the flow line size
- Changing tubing size
- Increasing perforation shot density
- Placing well on Artificial Lift
- Applying Nodal Systems Analysis to entire system
- Knowing how to predict flow capacity of oil and gas wells

QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED IN THIS COURSE

- Production rates possible — oil or gas?
- Tubing size correct?
- Flowline size correct?
- Enough perforations?
- Completion problems — gravel pack or other restrictions?
- Safety valve sized and set correctly?
- Is surface choke necessary and is it sized correctly?
- Should be on Artificial Lift?

The above questions will be answered in detail by:

- Showing methods for predicting the flow rates possible from oil and gas wells.
- Showing how to use gradient curves and computerized multiphase flow correlations to select tubing sizes for vertical or directional wells.
- Presenting a complete systems analysis to show the effect of perforation shot density. A standard shot density of 4 to 8 shots per foot may not be sufficient.
- Applying the Nodal Systems principle to check the effect of restrictions such as gravel pack.
- Applying the Nodal Systems approach to see if the safety valve is sized correctly and check to see if it will close correctly.
- Applying the Nodal Systems approach to correctly size a choke for a certain flow rate and to see if the choke should be eliminated.
- Applying systems analysis to see what effect the separator pressure has on the entire system. A correct setting of the separator pressure, in particular for a closed rotative gas lift system, may show a tremendous rate of return on investment.
- Working example problems to show: (a) the rate possible by natural flow, (b) the rate possible by artificial lift.

WE WILL SHOW YOU:

- How a change in separator pressure will save money with no loss in production.
- How a change in flowline size or separator pressure may prevent buying additional compressor H.P. for gas lift.
- How increasing the perforation shot density may double the production on gas wells.
- Why the tubing size may be too small or possibly too large.
- How to predict the flow capacity of oil and gas wells.
- Other production problems.

COURSE OUTLINE

Ability of oil or gas wells to produce fluids
Oil Wells
1. Predicting present-day IPR curves Constant PI case, Changing PI case Vogel's solution, Standing's solution — for flow efficiencies 1.0. Fetkovich flow after flow and isochronal tests, flow equations and making use of pressure build-up and fall-off tests to prepare inflow curves.
2. Predicting future inflow curves. Standing procedure, Fetkovich procedure others

Gas Wells
1. flow after flow tests
2. Isochronal tests
3. Modified Isochronal tests
4. Pressure build-up and fall-off

Multiphase flow in pipes
Vertical, horizontal, directional and inclined flow.
1. Best correlations
2. How to use gradient curves and computer applications
3. Effect of rates, pipe sizes, GLR's, fluid properties, etc.
4. Practical problems on correct selection of pipe size, find flow rates, wellhead pressures, GLR's, etc.

The flowing or Artificial Lift well
Applying systems approach to:
1. Size tubing and flowlines
2. Correctly predict rates
3. Analyze wells

Evaluation of completion
Sufficient perforations or not?
1. Prediction of flow rate through reservoir with no restrictions
2. Determining DeltaP occuring across perforations, gravel pack or other restrictions.

Nodal systems analysis
An over-view of the entire flowing or artificial lift system to evaluate:
1. Separator pressure
2. Flowline
3. Surface choke
4. Tubing string
5. Safety valve
6. Any other tubing restrictions
7. Completion efficiency, (a) perforations, (b) gravel pack, (c) skin

Summary for planning
This new course will tell you
1. Sufficient perforations
2. Pipe sizes correct or not
3. Flow rates possible — now and future
4. When Artificial Lift is needed

This course makes use of new technology applied to everyday practice in the field.

ROGERS FORD HAS THE BEST SMALL CAR OFFER IN AMERICA.

ESCORT— Fordcare plus a Bonus!

The Escort is outselling every imported car line in America* And Escort is retaining the highest percentage of original value of any car in its class And now, we are giving you more good reasons to buy... with the best small car offer in the country. Fordcare plus Bonus! Take delivery by March 13, 1982, and here's how you're ahead.

1. COST-FREE MAINTENANCE.

For the life of your warranty Ford will provide free scheduled maintenance. That means you won't have to pay for things like oil changes, fan belts, filters—even wiper blades. You won't have to pay a cent—parts or labor. It's an offer without equal on any small car in the country.

2. WORKMANSHIP COVERAGE.

Now! Two years or 24,000 miles—whichever comes first. Protection from virtually any problem that might come up. The only things not covered are fluids, tires, abuse and accidents. Legally, we have to call it a limited warranty. But compare it to any other small car warranty.

3. 5% CASH BONUS FROM FORD.

Take delivery of a new '82 Escort by March 13 and you'll get a bonus of 5% off the base vehicle sticker price directly from Ford. That's a 5% savings that you can keep or apply to your down payment. Rebels, Bulldogs to stage Tall City showdown

Lee spills Abilene High, 80-65

ABILENE — Midland Lee coach Paul Stueckler called the Rebels' performance against Abilene High Friday nigth at Eagle gym his team's best effort of the year. And for the Rebels it couldn't have come at a better time.

Lee defeated the front running Eagles, 80-65, to throw the already hectic District 5-5A race into a real mess. Midland High, a 69-64 winner Friday night over Abilene Cooper leads with a 5-1 record. Lee, AHS and Cooper follow with 4-2 marks. The first half of district play concludes Tuesday ngiht with Abilene High playing Cooper and Lee meeting Midland High. And Lee can either force a three-way tie or hand MHS an outright first half title.

"I think it was the best game we played this year," said Stueckler. And what about the importance of the game with Midland High Tuesday night? "I don't know about that, I'm just glad to win this one."

The Rebels led from start to finish. They jumped to eight point advantages on nine occassions in the first half, including a 36-28 lead at intermission. They did it by shooting 46 per cent from the field and grabbing 30 rebounds, including 15 on the offensive end of the floor.

"They did shoot the ball well," said Abilene High coach Dub Pierce. "They got a lot of second, third and fourth shots."

It was Randy Pepper, who did most of the damage early. Pepper carried a hot hand, scoring eight points in the first quarter and adding another four in the second period before picking up three fouls during a 64 second stretch midway through the quarter. Pepper, however, had plenty of help. Alvin Dunson and Andre Van Buren chipped in four apiece to give the Rebels their eight point halftime lead.

Abilene High, meanwhile, was having its trouble getting untracked. Playing without starting point guard Brett Enzor, the Eagles scored just 12 in the first quarter and added only six more in the final 4:51 of the first half. Enzor, who injured an ankle in the Eagles' win over San Angelo Tuesday, played late in the first half and most of the second, but was never a factor while going less than full speed. He finished with just three points.

"We had a special defense set up for him," said Stueckler, not aware of Enzor's injury.

Pierce downplayed the importance of not having Enzor at full speed.

"I don't know if it made that much difference. We did a lot of standing around," Pierce said.

In the meantime, Lee stretched its lead to 50-37 on a Dunson breakaway layup with 3:31 left in the third period. The defecit became 15 points when Pierce disputed a blocking foul and was assessed a technical. Barry Blackwell converted four straight free throws to make it 56-41 with 1:56 left in the third period.

Abilene High pulled to within 59-47 at the end of the period and a John Chalk follow shot with 3:06 left in the game made it 67-59. Chalk had an opportunity to reduce the margin to seven points when he was fouled on the play, but the 6-6 senior missed the free throw.

The Eagles didn't help their cause any at the free throw line, where they made just five of 15 shots.

Everybody got a share of missing them," said Pierce. "I can't remember us making any."

Lee finished strong, scoring 13 in the final 2:54. It was Van Buren who put the game away with 10 fourth quarter points, most coming on shots from inside off the Rebels' fast break.

Van Buren, with 20 points, led a balanced Lee attack. Pepper had 17, Dunson added 16 and Blackwell finished with 14.

Chalk and Mike Simmons had 15 each for the Eagles now 18-6 on the year. Shannon Daniel added 11.

Midland Lee (80): Brett Blackwell, 5-4-14; Randy Pepper, 7-3-17; Alvin Dunson, 8-0-16; Steve Cherrybomes, 0-1-1-3; Oben Smith, 2-0-4; Andre Van Buren, 10-0-20; Kenneth Brown, 3-0-6. Totals: 36-8-80.

Abilene High (65): Eric Jordan, 2-1-5; Mike Simmons, 7-1-15; Brett Enzor, 1-1-3; Shannon Daniel, 5-1-11; Les Hines, 3-0-6; Kyle Elliot, 4-0-8; John Chalk, 7-1-15; Tim Robinson, 1-0-2. Totals: 30-5-65.

Midland High's Don Sharnowski (24) makes a pass under the basket at Chaparral Center Friday night on their way to winning at least a share of the District 5-5A first half basketball crown against Abilene Cooper.

Pack claims at least title share

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The Midland High Bulldogs clinched at least a tie for the District 5-5A basketball title Friday night by posting a 69-64 victory over Abilene Cooper at Chaparral Center.

Even though the Bulldogs are 5-1 in district play, there is still a possibility of a tie for the title between MHS, Midland Lee (4-2) and Abilene High (4-2) or Cooper (4-2). Lee was an 80-65 victor over AHS Friday in Abilene giving the Rebels a shot at a portion of the title. On Tuesday, the Bulldogs and Rebs will square off at Chap Center. If the Bulldogs win, the title is theirs. If not, three teams will share the honor. Cooper and AHS will also play Tuesday with the winner hoping for a Lee victory and a share of the crown.

The Bulldogs, behind the 28-point performance of senior post man Preston Robertson, opened up a good early lead in the game. Cooper got the first bucket of the night for its only lead of the game on 20-footer by wing man Greg Dusckas. But the explosive Bulldog attack quickly took it away and ran it up to 8-2 before Cooper could score again and held a 22-13 lead at the end of the quarter.

With a minute gone in the second quarter, the Bulldogs had built up a 28-13 lead and kept it around that margin until it reached 45-29 at the end of the half.

The Bulldogs jumped out to their bigest lead of the ball game with only 50 seconds gone in the third quarter, 49-29, and seemed to be ready to finish off Cooper in routing fashion. But the lead wasn't to last. Within the next three minutes of play, the Cougars had knocked it down to only 14 points and ended up getting one of their biggest breaks when Midland's Raymond Parker picked up his fourth personal foul followed 15 seconds later by his fifth.

Before the Bulldogs could get untracked and get back into their offense, the Cougars had cut that 20-point margin down to 10, 51-41 and finished the quarter trailing by 13 points, 57-44.

Midland was able to hang on to that point spread most of the final quarter and things really started looking good when Cooper post man Scott Youngblut was whistled for his fifth personal foul. Cougar post man Greg Mendenhall made the Bulldog lead look even better when he left the game with five fouls 19 seconds later and Midland holding a 65-51 lead.

But in the final 3:30 of play, the Bulldogs were only able to add four points to their total while Cooper was fighting desperately to pull out a victory. The Cougars were able to get within five, but time ran out.

"One thing I've got to hand to them was they didn't quit," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "They kept coming. They had every chance in the world to quit but they kept coming. We lost our concentration in the second half."

But the Bulldogs got the victory and it "sets up a big game on Tuesday night with Lee," said Stephenson. "We've had some real good ball games with Lee before and I expect this to be a good one also."

Going into the game it looked like the Bulldogs might be without the services of Parker. On Monday, the 6-foot-2 forward injured his ankle in practice and missed all of the Odessa High game. Stephenson didn't make the decision to put Parker into the lineup until the warmup before the game.

"He didn't get to play that much tonight," said Stephenson. "I could tell that he was fearful of hurting his ankle again."

"I started off kind of slow, my foot was hurting," said Parker about his injury. "After the first quarter I got it together and it stopped hurting and I could run."

Parker was surprised by Cooper's play saying, "I didn't think Cooper was all that good of a basketball team, but they proved they were."

Coach Stephenson was also surprised, but not by the Cougars ability but by their style of play.

"They came out throwing everything at us," he said. "They surprised me because they came out in a press and I wasn't really expecting them to do that. They did a good job with it too.

"Coach (R.M.) Currin had done a heck of a job with Cooper. He brought them along much, much farther than I thought they would get and they still have a good shot at it (the title)."

Behind the 28 point performance of Robertson, the Bulldogs got 17 from forward Don Sharnowski and eight for post man Jim Gunnels. The Cougars were led by guard Kyle Coody with 15 and Dusckas with 14.

In junior varsity action, four Cougars broke into double figures to help Cooper score a 75-56 victory. Bob Estes led the foursome with 21 points followed by Greg Wilcox with 15, Alfred Estrada with 13 and Joe Nelson with 12. For the Bulldogs, Johnny Pannell, Terry Magowan and Jerry Johnson each scored eight points.

Jackson becomes an Angel

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — After five turbulent seasons with the New York Yankees, free agent slugger Reggie Jackson agreed Friday to a multi-year contract with the California Angels.

The Angels announced they had corraled Jackson just minutes after the Yankees said they were pulling out of the bidding for the controversial outfielder.

The Angels said no terms of the agreement would be made public except for the fact that it is a multi-year contract. Earlier published reports said Jackson had agreed to $900,000 a year for three years.

Jackson was in Key Biscayne, Fla., for ABC-TV's "Superstars" competition this weekend. The Angels quoted him as saying he was "very happy to join a club that really seemed to pursue and wanted me. With the Angels, I get a chance to play. I guess everything being equal, the most difficult decision for me was whether to go to Baltimore or California. Both clubs have really fine people. I guess the overriding factor for me was it was just time to come home."

Jackson lives in Carmel, Calif., near San Francisco.

Jackson becomes the fourth member of the Angels to have won the American League's Most Valuable Player award. He won it in 1973 with the Oakland A's. California's other MVPs are Rod Carew, Fred Lynn and Don Baylor and the Angels said all would be at a news conference with Jackson next Tuesday at Anaheim Stadium.

"The Baylors, (Bobby) Griches, Carews, (Rick) Burlesons and Lynns certainly entered into my thinking and all added to the incentive to rturn home," the Angels' announcement quoted Jackson as saying.

"I've knonw Buzzie (Bavasi, the Angels' executive vice president) since I was in college. I was extremely impressed meeting Gene Autry (Angels' chairman of the board). The area, the people, the stadium ... all are excellent. When you meet a guy like Gene Autry, it's easy to understand how you can get back into the saddle again."

Autry said he was "delighted" that Jackson has joined the Angels. "He is an exciting ballplayer and one of the most colorful stars in the history of the American League," Autry said.

Arthur E. "Red" Patterson, Autry's assistant, said the signing of Jackson too "a lot of negotiation — a five-hour conference on Wednesday, we talked almost all day Thursday by telephone and we still had a lot of conversation until about 3 (PST) this afternoon, tightening up all the terms of the contract."

Patterson disclosed the contract contains a clause based on attendance. He declined to comment, however, on which player the Angels might send to the Yankees as compensation.

Bavasi said earlier in the week the California club would compensate the Yankees if it signed Jackson. His statement drew an angry reply from Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, who pointed out that signing Jackson did not require compensation since he is a free agent for the second time in his career.

Shortly before the Angels confirmed the signing, the Yankees said they were pulling out of the bidding. A statement by the Yankees said that after a lengthy phone conversation between owner George Steinbrenner and Gary Walker, Jackson's agent in Phoenix, Ariz., "it was agreed that it was in the best interests of all parties concerned that negotiations be discontinued."

The Yankees' statement continued: "Reggie had expressed a desire to finish his career on the West Coast, which is his home. More importantly, one of the big points made by Walker was Reggie's desire to play the outfield every day, which the Yankees could not commit to at this time, since that is the responsibility of Manager Bob Lemon. The Angels offer is an extremely lucrative one and Reggie evidently could not turn it down."

The Westchester-Rockland newspapers in suburban New York reported Friday that Jackson had agreed to a $2.7 million, three-year deal with the Angels. Several sources on the club confirmed that an announcement regarding Jackson was expected Friday night.

Tim Mead, team publicist, said telephone negotiations were being held between E.J. Bavasi, Angels executive vice president, and Gary Walker, Jackson's agent.

Mead also voiced optimism that Jackson would sign with California.

In his story, Westchester-Rockland sports writer Al Mari attributed the report to a source close to the negotiations. According to the report, the contract includes bonus clauses based on the Angels' attendance.

Jackson, 35, played out his option with the Yankees last season and became a free agent. He was picked by seven teams in last November's reentry draft and the Yankees retained negotiating rights. But in recent weeks, Jackson had narrowed his choices to the Angels, Yankees, Atlanta Braves and Baltimore Orioles.

He was a member of the first free-agent class in 1976, coming to the Yankees after a year with the Orioles. Yankee owner George Steinbrenner signed Jackson to a five-year, $3 million pact — the biggest contract in baseball at the time.

"I am the straw that stirs the drink," Jackson said, and he quickly proved his worth by leading the Yankees to the World Series championship in 1977, a Series highlighted by Jackson's three home runs in the final game.

But he also brought controversy. His attitude of instantly being the Yankees' No.1 player upset many of his new teammates, most notably the late catcher, Thurman Munson.

In the seasons that followed, Jackson's feuds with teammates, managers and Steinbrenner made headlines. His on-field conduct and clubhouse statements were involved in Billy Martin's firing as manager of the Yanks in 1978. Martin was later rehired, but he and Jackson never patched up their differences.

Last season, Jackson had a poor start at the plate and was just getting into the groove when the players' strike began in mid-June. He wound up the split season batting .237 with 15 home runs and 54 runs batted in.

Permian upsets Angelo; OHS rocks Big Spring

In a battle of non-contenders in the District 5-5A boys basketball race Friday night, Odessa Permian stopped San Angelo 63-58 while Odessa High clipped Big Spring 54-47 on the Steers' floor.

Mojo evened its first half record at 3-3 and upped its season mark to 10-13 while San Angelo dropped to 2-4, 12-10. Odessa High climbed to 2-4 in district and 11-13 on the season while the Steers lost their sixth straight loop outing and fell to 9-14 for the year.

Balanced scoring was the key for Permian as four plaers hit double figures for the Panthers. Mike Woolley led Mojo with 13 points while Billy Brown clipped in with 12 and John Taylor and Terry Anderson gunned in 10 points each. Jeff Kasner stopped the Bobcats with 20 while Hercules Miller added 16 and Lorand White collected 12.

San Angelo jumped in front 15-12 after the first eight minutes, but Permian came back to outscore the Bobcats 18-11 to take a 30-26 lead at intermission.

The Panthers extended their lead to 46-39 at the end of three and then weathered a late Bobcat charge in the fourth quarter for the victory.

In Big Spring, the Steers's hopes of gaining a district victory were dashed as Jimmy Gilliland tossed in a game-high 21 points to lead Odessa High to the victory. Joning Gilliland in double digits were Tommy Stahl with 15 points and sophomore Eugene Bell with 10. John Green kept Big Spring in the contest as he connected for 20 points. He was the only steer to hit double figures.

The Bronchos led by one, 13-12, at the first break and upped the margin to 27-23 at intermission.

George Gervin's 29 lifts Spurs above Hawks

ATLANTA (AP) — George Gervin scored 29 points and Mike Mitchell added 20 as the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Atlanta Hawks 115-107 in the National Basketball Association Friday night.

The win marked only the second time the Spurs have defeated the Hawks in their last eight meetings.

Led by John Drew, who scored 27 points, Atlanta cut a Spurs lead to two points, 94-92, with 6:07 remaining.

Solomon back as coaches predict high scoring Super Bowl

Meanwhile, coaches of both teams predicted a high-scoring game, with the winner needing at least four touchdowns, and pronounced their clubs ready to go.

Solomon, also the 49ers' punt returner, was hurt in a passing-drill collision Thursday with cornerback Ronnie Lott.

"The unfortunate part about it," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh said during a Friday news conference, "is the fact that there was more and more soreness to the knee as (Thursday) progressed. ... They (the team physicians) don't think it's serious but it might be debilitating when you think about a game in the next 48 hours."

But a few hours after the news conference, Solomon worked out for about 15 minutes with no apparent ill effects. The physicians said there was no swelling around the knee and that the soreness was reduced. Walsh then upgraded Solomon's condition.

In the National Football League's lexicon, "probable" means there is a 75-25 chance he will play.

If Solomon can't play, rookie Mike Wilson will, said Walsh. Wilson, drafted by Dallas in he ninth round out of Washington State, then cut by the Cowboys during training camp and signed by the 49ers, caught nine passes for 125 yards and a touchdown during the season.

Even before Solomon's condition was upgraded, Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg said he expected to see Solomon in the lineup. And although Walsh had said a benched Solomon "could have an effect on the game," Gregg downplayed that, too. Solomon didn't play in the 49ers' regular-season game in Cincinnati, Gregg noted, and San Francisco won anyway, 21-3. Wilson caught a pair of passes for 28 yards in that game.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who was to have conducted his annual "State of the NFL" news conference following the coaches' briefings, begged off because of a persistent strep throat — although he did attend a pre-Super Bowl party for the league's owners in Detroit Thursday night.

Instead, the NFL issued a Rozelle "position paper," which included comments from the commissioner on:

—Contract negotiations. "If the union sticks to its demand for a percentage of the gross, there could be trouble ahead."

—Congressional hearings. "We are hopeful that Congress will act on a sports antitrust bill during the second session that begins next week in Washington. We are not looking for any broad legisation. We simply want to be treated like any other single business under the antitrust laws."

—Expansion. "We cannot even consider expansion until the antitrust questions are answered."

—Draft eligibility. "Every year questions are raised about the NFL's eligibility rules and why we don't allow underclassmen ... to be drafted. The NFL adheres to its rules because we've been urged to do so by those who would be hurt most without them (the colleges) and those who have told us that they think the rules are entirely reasonable (the U.S. Congress)."

During his news conference, Walsh again took the NFL to task for requiring his players to adapt to a three-hour time difference in the workouts leading up to the Super Bowl.

But Gregg said he likes the system just fine.

Walsh's voiced dripped with sarcasm as he discussed how the 49ers were assigned the morning press briefings at their hotel and morning workouts at the Pontiac Silverdome, while the Bengals were given the afternoon sessions.

"The most ultra-scientific and computerized system of deciding who would practice first — we flipped a coin," Walsh said. "And the team with the three-hour time difference was given the morning practice, which is great, really timely administrative thinking.

"I think at some time in the future that kind of thing should be clearly discussed at league meetings," he added. But, he said, the 49ers had adjusted to the time change.

It was Gregg who called tails — and tails it was — when the time came to establish workout times. Asked at his news conference (about half an hour after Walsh's) whether he preferred to maintain the existing method or change it, Gregg smiled, tossed an imaginary coin in the air and said: "Flip it. I'll take my chances."

Both Walsh and Gregg said they believed it would take four touchdowns to win the Super Bowl.

"I see it as the same kind of game as the Dallas game," said Walsh (the 49ers beat the Cowboys 28-27 in the National Football Conference championship). "I just can't believe the game will go with one team not scoring four touchdowns. I believe that'll be the case."

And Gregg observed: "I don't think 21 will win. I think it'll take 28 or more to win."

Although the game is indoors, there's still the matter of getting some 80,000 people to the Silverdome. The National Weather Service's long-range forecast calls for scattered show showers and high winds Sunday, with the afternoon temperature in the 10-to-14-degree range.

Thursday night's pregame festivities resulted in the deaths of a 29-year-old man and a 24-year-old woman, killed in a vehicular accident during what was billed as a "Super Bowl Pub Crawl."

It was a bus tour of various taverns in Detroit. The rear side door in a crowded bus was forced open and the couple fell to the street.

Tech women set win record

RUSTON, La. (AP) — Louisiana Tech's women set a national collegiate basketball record of 52 consecutive victories Friday night, crushing Oral Roberts 94-53 behind Pam Kelly's 19 points and 12 rebounds.

It also was the 200th career victory for Coach Sonja Hogg, who created the Louisiana Tech women's program just seven seasons ago. Since 1974-75, she has put together annual records of 13-9, 19-10, 22-9, 20-8, 34-4, 40-5, 34-0. So far this season the team is 18-0.

The victory shattered the record set from 1974-76 by Delta (Miss.) State, whose coach at the time, Margaret Wade, was a courtside guest Friday night.

The Lady Techsters tied Delta State's record of 51 wins in a row with a 74-46 victory Tuesday night over 10th-ranked Long Beach State.

Against Oral Roberts, the Lady Techsters led 51-26 at halftime and improved that to 89-45 with 6:14 left.

All 14 Tech players saw action and all but two scored.

Four players joined Kelly, a 6-foot senior center, in double figures — sophomore center Janice Lawrence with 14 and 9 rebounds; freshman guard Pam Gant with 11 points; and forward Lori Scott and senior guard Angela Turner with 10 points apiece.

Party kicks off big weekend

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's foul weather, unemployment and auto industry depression vanished Friday for 3,500 people who reveled amid a mock assembly plant in a salute to pro football's Super Bowl XVI.

"America On Wheels" was the theme for the bash — a prelude to Sunday's National Football League championship game between San Francisco and Cincinnati at the Pontiac Silverdome.

It's the first time the Super Bowl and its hoopla have come to the frozen North. Temperature at party time was 17 degrees. Winds gusted to 30 mph and snow and rain were falling.

But those attending the party at the posh Fairlane Club as guests of the NFL didn't seem to mind the weather as they sipped a hot welcoming cocktail called "Bloody Mary Soup."

"There's a lot of vodka in it," said Pat Willis, beverage manager for the nearby Hyatt Regency hotel, which catered the event. "You start with that principle and build from there."

Willis said 700 cases of liquor were ready to be poured.

Eight indoor tennis courts were converted to a replica of an auto plant for the party. That required 1,700 sheets of plywood and 50,000 square feet of carpeting seamed with tape.

Nearly 100 oversized replicas of car parts hung from rafters. Fourteen buffet lines made to resemble flat-bed trucks carried food for the guests.

Broadway set designer Tom Schwinn laid out the setting, which Sandy Bain of New York's Marketing Plus — planner of the National Football League's super party for the seventh year — called "the most demanding we have ever attempted."

"By the time the party's over guests will have consumed a ton of corned beef, a half-ton of spareribs, 100 pounds of onions, 35 cases of apples, a quarter-ton of rice, 1,000 pounds of sole and 3,200 chicken breasts," Bain said.

Specialties included "Michigan Apple Soul" — a cored apple filled with rolled beef and covered with lobster sauce — and "Barbecued River Boat," which was baked potato skins with sliced beef, spareribs with barbecue sauce.

Shortly before guests began arriving, the management announced it was "15 minutes to game time."

"I wasn't nervous up till that point, but when I made the announced my knees started knocking," said Brent Christian, the hotel's executive assistant manager for food and beverage.

Entertainment was scheduled by Up With People, and the Lionel Hampton, Peter Duchin and Carmen Cavallero

Forget the plane, Madden takes train

By GUS STEVENS
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — One day this week a train pulled into the Detroit station and America's best-known Amtrak passenger lumbered off.

He is John Madden, headed for Pontiac's Superdome where, beginning at 1 p.m. Sunday, he and Pat Summerall will broadcast Super Bowl XVI for CBS.

John ("I'm not that same crazy coach who used to run up and down the sidelines") Madden says he cannot fly because of his mental hang-ups.

"My problem with planes is I have claustrophobia," Madden, 44, said as he was preparing for his Super Bowl color assignment.

MADDEN IS a huge bear of a man who looks as though he ought to have pads and claws instead of feet. If he can't fly, it may be because there's no airplane that can lift him.

"I've never had a bad flying experience," Madden said, "but it (claustrophobia) happened to me three times. I decided that was enough. When I was a coach I didn't have any choice, but now. ..."

Madden says he has, indeed, settled down since those hectic years when he was a successful (103-32-7) coach of the Oakland Raiders, tearing up sideline turf and ramming his belly into game officials.

"You have to have an attitude toward trains," Madden said, sounding as placid and patient as a naturalist waiting for a bird egg to hatch.

"When you ride the train, you learn to take whatever happens. Trains don't bother me because I know I can get out, so I don't have to get out.

"On the train you don't worry about what hour you're going to arrive where you're going. You wonder what day it might be."

Incredibly, Madden planned to spend three days getting from Los Angeles to Detroit — just in case.

In any event, he'll be in the broadcast booth Sunday afternoon when the Cincinnati Bengals and the San Francisco 49ers kick off in their quest for the National Football League title.

(Madden, speaking in Los Angeles just before the semifinal playoff games between Cincinnati and San Diego, and San Francisco and Dallas, picked the Cowboys to beat the Chargers in the Super Bowl. So much for his vision of the future.)

MADDEN IS expected to be using a new CBS gimmick to help entertain and inform television viewers. It's the "chalkboard," an electronic gizmo that enables Madden to freeze a picture on a screen and then diagram a play on the football field.

"I think it's a great thing," Madden said. "I saw it for the first time on a Saturday before we used it on a Sunday. I think if it's not overdone it could help fans understand the game.

"As a former coach, I think TV coverage is too tight, so you don't get to see all 22 players on the field at once.

"They never show those poor linemen. As an old lineman I know the camera only comes in on them when they hold. The official never stops the play to say, 'Did you see that great block the guard put on?'"

As a former coach and as an expert in the game, Madden said, he can see everything from the sidelines.

"I've developed an ability to see what all 22 players do on every play," he said. "All coaches have that ability. I was always down on the sidelines. The toughest thing (as a broadcaster) was feeling disconnected up on the third deck of the stadium.

"I loved broadcasting games from the very first time they asked me to do it. It's a way to stay in the game. From the beginning of your football career your whole life is built around a season. I would have had a hell of a problem doing without that."

Madden said there's no way he'd return to coaching. "I knew the only way to get out of coaching was to get fired, own the team or quit. Al Davis had a lock on the ownership at Oakland and I didn't want to wait around to be fired."

ABOUT THE Super Bowl: "No matter how a team gets there, the Super Bowl is the epitome. It's for the world championship. That's the true No. 1. It's not like a wire service poll that people can argue about. It's the time in a player's life that he can say he was truly No. 1. Watch what happens to the loser. Between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. the loser is dumped out of sight."

About football officiating: "As critical as I've been about the officials, I think they do a good job. I don't see how we could use a TV monitor to help call plays. The official would have to admit he didn't know what was going on. Then he'd need a director who might not have a picture."

About his game preparation: "I spend all week reading. On Friday I go to the town where the game is. On Saturday I go to practice. I watch game films. I keep a file on every team. I go into locker rooms to talk to coaches and players."

Madden said he once mentioned on the air that he thought place-kickers were a strange breed.

"Rafael Septien (the Dallas kicker) told me his wife was upset about what I said," Madden said. "I was talking with him in the locker room and I saw that he had two mouthpieces, a big one and a little one.

"He told me, 'I wear the little one when I kick in a game because I get headaches. I wear the big one in practice because it helps relieve my groin injury. I never would leave either one in the hotel because people would steal them.'"

Madden rolled his eyes. "Then I apologized because I upset Mrs. Septien when I said place-kickers were not your usual kind of football player."

CBS will have about 200 people working Sunday's Super Bowl. There will be 23 cameras, including three on the "Super Bowl Today" set (the pre-game show runs for 90 minutes) and one in a helicopter.

THERE WILL be four Chyron graphics generators for printed statistical information, 14 videotape machines, a Telestrator (Madden's "chalkboard"), three digital effect generators, 25 equipment vehicles, 100 microphones, 20 miles of cable and 100 television monitors.

An estimated 100 million people will see the game in the United States. It also will be carried live in 16 other countries and on a delayed basis in a dozen more.

Now if only Madden's train is on time. ...

Sherill crosses country to find coaching staff

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — In his first action as Texas A&M University's new athletic director and head football coach, Jackie Sherill Friday announced he is bringing in a group of assistant coaches from across the nation.

"The only position still open is that of offensive line coach," Sherill said.

The coach, hired by A&M after compiling a 50-9-1 record in five seasons at Pittsburgh, retained one member of former coach Tom Wilson's staff and brought in aides from Southern Cal, Clemson, Nebraska, Southern Methodist, Oregon State and Pittsburgh.

Greg Davis will stay at A&M to coach quarterbacks. Other offensive coaches are George Pugh, Pittsburgh, tight ends; Jim Helms, SMU, running backs, and Jerry Pettibone, Nebraska, receivers.

R.C. Slocum of Southern Cal will be the defensive coordinator and linebackers coach. Other defensive coaches will be Curley Hallman, Clemson, secondary; Bobby Roper, Oregon State, defensive ends, and Bob Matey, Pittsburgh, defensive line part-time coach.

Sherill also announced that Paul Register and Dan LaGrasta will remain at A&M through recruiting before a final decision is made.

The eight coaches who will recruit with Sherill are Davis, Pugh, Helms, Pettibone, Slocum, Hallman, Roper and Register.

Slocum coached at A&M nine seasons before going to USC last year. Hallman was a safety on A&M's Southwest Conference championship team of 1967 and later coached at Alabama and Memphis State.

Roper was a defensive end at Arkansas and has coached at Wichita State, Citadel, Virginia, Iowa State, Pitt, Tennessee and Oregon State.

SMU grid staff is now complete

DALLAS (AP) — The football coaching roster at Southern Methodist is complete, now that head coach Bobby Collins has decided two current members of the Mustang coaching staff will join the six assistants he is bringing with him from Southern Mississippi.

Collins was hired as SMU's head football coach Monday, after three seasons at Southern Mississippi, to replace Ron Meyer.

The two Meyer assistants Collins will keep are receiver coach Ken Pope and defensive end coach Mike Barr.

Collins will be bringing with him offensive coordinator Whitey Jordan, defensive coordinator Billy Clay, and assistants Milo McCarthy, Jeff Bower, Bootsie Larsen and Robert Henry from Southern Mississippi.

Bengals will win it, say NFL coaches

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Bengals will edge the San Francisco 49ers in Sunday's Super Bowl, with the running game the key to the match between teams with potent passing attacks, according to coaches whose teams played both conference champions this sesson.

Coaches Ed Biles of Houston, Sam Rutigliano of Cleveland, Ray Malavasi of Los Angeles and Leeman Bennett of Atlanta all picked the Bengals to win. Coach Bum Phillips of New Orleans declined to pick a winner, but agreed with his four colleagues that the game would be close.

"They're both good football teams. Their offenses are both very strong," said Phillips, whose Saints beat Cincinnati 17-7 and lost twice to San Francisco, 21-14 and 21-17. "Both quarterbacks avoid the rush well and neither team turns over the ball much."

The Saints play in the National Conference Western Division, the same as the 49ers, but the support for the Bengals, American Conference champions from the Central Division, cuts across conference and division lines.

"I have to go with Cincinnati, although I'd like to see our division win it," said Malavasi, whose Rams lost to San Francisco 20-17 and 33-31 and to Cincinnati 21-3.

Workers at the Pontiac Silverdome put finishing touches on the stadium turf Friday as they gear for Sunday's Super Bowl XVI.

Lombardi would have loved this week

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Vince Lombardi would have loved it here this week.

Lombardi's name is inscribed on the trophy which goes to the winner of the Super Bowl, as well it should. It was, after all, his Green Bay Packers, the very model of businesslike ferocity, who won the first two of these games, long before the National Football League came up with the idea of roman-numeralizing them.

Lombardi, it is commonly believed, was also a football purist. Presumably he felt you could take all this attendant hoopla and boot it.

Not so.

"Loved it! He would have absolutely loved it!" Fuzzy Thurston, the All-Pro guard and point man on the famed Packer sweep, exclaimed with a rasping laugh. "It would've given him a chance to be nasty in front of the press. Hell, if there's nobody around, how's he gonna be nasty? He loved to show how tough he was. He had to show the press, his players."

Ray Nitschke, the fearsome Packer linebacker of that era, clapped Thurston on the knee and, with a laugh, added: "You knew when there were media people in the area — on the practice field, in the hotel — that he'd perform for them. He had an ego. He wanted people to recognize him and he was driven by his ego, much more than anybody I've ever seen."

Super Bowl I wasn't really called that. It was the AFL-NFL Championship game, the first meeting of the two leagues. The press quickly latched onto the "Super Bowl" nickname first dreamed up by Lamar Hunt, the owner of the AFL's Kansas City Chiefs, the Packers' first victims. It took another three years for the NFL to officially put its imprimatur on the name.

Things were different in the pre-Super Bowl era. None of this one-week buildup, with an invasion by the media and the league's precision orchestrated pageantry. The team showed up in the championship city (a home team's city, not a neutral site) on a Saturday and played on a Sunday. The Packers and Chiefs weren't ready for the weeklong stay in California, nor for the 100 or so sports writers and broadcasters who showed up — one-tenth of this year's media blitz.

But even before the Packers and Chiefs met in that first-of-a-kind spectacular (which, in fact, wasn't all that momentous, thousands of Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum seats going unsold), Max McGee knew something special was about to happen.

He didn't though, know quite how special.

And he'd be hooted down by his teammates.

McGee, a wide receiver, was in the twilight of his career. He'd caught all of four passes during the entire 1966 season which preceded that game against Kansas City. He'd figured he'd spend that Sunday afternoon lounging on the bench, cutting up a few touches with his buddy, Paul Hornung. In fact, having spent the previous night out on the town, rather than in his own motel-room bed, McGee had counted on it.

"Oh, sure, he admits to that now," Thurston said with a smile, recalling McGee's penchant for nocturnal sojourns. "He waited until the coach passed away, then he admitted it."

The game had barely begun when Boyd Dowler went down with an injury.

Purtzer gallops into contention

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Hometown boy Tom Purtzer finished off a 5-under-par 66 and moved among the leaders Friday in the rain-delayed completion of the first round of the $300,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

Larry Nelson, who completed play Thursday before torrential rains flooded the 6,726 yard Phoenix Country Club course and stranded half the field, retained the top spot with his 63.

Purtzer, however, felt the advantage had swung in his direction despite the 3-shot discrepancy.

"Three shots is nothing after the first round," said Purtzer, a graduate of Arizona State and a long-time resident of Phoenix. "Larry had a fantastic round, but he's got to come back and keep on playing good. It probably was a disadvanage for Larry not to be able to play today. He had things going, then all of a sudden he has to stop for a day, almost two days. It's hard to keep the momentum with a break like that."

The rain-interruption forced officials to spread the first round over two days, throwing the tournament a full day off schedule. The second round now is set for Saturday and the 72-hole event is scheduled to end on Monday.

Purtzer said he, too, felt the effect of the rain-delay.

He was among the 72 players who had to mark their positions on the course Thursday and resumed play from that position Friday.

"I was 3-under after six holes and had some momentum going," he said.

"Then I came back out this morning and didn't know what to expect. I just went along making pars for a while, then finished strong. But the delay did effect me."

It also bothered Johnny Miller. Miller had it 3-under par when the rains came, got it to four early Friday, then backed off to a 70.

Going into Saturday's play, Nelson held a 2-shot lead over Lanny Wadkins, who finished his 65 Thursday.

Purtzer and Eastwood followed at 66. Eastwood also finished play Thursday.

The group at 67 included U.S. Open title-holder David Graham, Morris Hatalsky, Jim Simons and Chi Chi Rodrguez. Graham, the defending champion, and Hatalsky finished their rounds Friday. Simons and Rodriguez played Thursday.

Bill Rogers, the 1981 Player of the Year, opened his American season with a 70. Bruce Lietzke, a three-time winner last year, matched par 71 on the flat course that drained very well but still had some casual water on the fairways.

Purtzer, in his eighth year as a touring pro, was well back until he put on a birdie-birdie finish.

He scored 10 consecutive pars after the over-night break, then hit a 7-iron to within five feet on the 17th and chipped to six feet for a birdie on the final hole.

Gays told to drop 'Olympic'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Organizers of this year's Gay Olympic Games have been told by the U.S. Olympic Committee to drop the word "Olympic" from their name or be sued for trademark infringement.

Dr. Tom Waddell, organizer of the week-long international event scheduled for August, said he didn't think the USOC had the right to exclusive use of the Olympic name.

"I don't see why they're getting at us, much less how any committee can take a word that has been in use for 2,500 years and decide nobody else can use it for their games," said Waddell, a member of the 1968 U.S. Olympic team as a decathlete.

In 1978, Congress passed the Amateur Sports Act which gives the USOC exclusive use of a number of Olympic-related phrases.

Young's Sunday brings a spotlight

By TOM CUSHMAN
Copley News Service

PONTIAC, Mich. — When Charle Young first dropped in on Philadelphia during the summer of '73, it was like a 747 rumbling down a landing strip that had been constructed to handle Piper Cubs. The Eagles, a battered squadron of flimsy craft, had not seen anything resembling this model. Noise pollution was about to become a way of life in the stadium locker room.

"Like the jet plane changed the air industry, I shall revolutionize the position of tight end," said Charle — who spelled it Charlie at the time — in his opening statement.

IT WOULD be four seasons before Charle sailed off the end of the runway, and vanished in a column of smoke. The interim years were memorable. "I had visualized the Eagles as a majestic bird, soaring among the clouds," Charle was recalling here yesterday. "When I arrived in Philly, I discovered that they were a pitiful little chicken, afraid of themselves.

"I had a choice. Either I could be docile like the rest, or I could do as General Motors and Sony do — advertise myself. I chose the latter approach. It was very refreshing. Not only did I talk about how good I was, I went out on the field and proved it."

That he did. Charle Young was named rookie of the year in '73, led the league in receptions the following season, twice was designated an All-Pro. Meanwhile, the Eagles continued along their path of misery, losing with studied consistency.

Enter Dick Vermeil, who does not wear ear muffs even in the chilled climes of the Northeast, whose tolerance for distracting noises is low, who was in desperate need of a quarterback. Charle was shipped to Los Angeles for Ron Jaworski.

FROM THE Rams' standpoint, it was an odd exercise in barter, arranged by General Manager Don Klosterman, without the approval of the coaching staff. The coaches had committed themselves to Terry Nelson, acquired through the draft, as their tight end. Thus Charle Young, who claims to have been the highest paid member of the roster, became a reserve, a mishap that affected his speech. Where words once had flowed in waterfalls, there now was silence.

"For three years I lived a life of peaceful, suspended animation," he says now. "I knew I should be starting, Terry Nelson knew it, the coaches knew it. They told me they had to go with the people who got them there — wherever that was."

In January of 1980 it was Pasadena, Super Bowl XIV. Finally arriving at a stage he long had envisioned for himself, Charle was handed a mop, told to sweep up the litter and check the brooms.

"It was an incredible waste of talent," Young admits. "In a game the Rams could have won (they instead lost to the Steelers 31-19), I played only in short-yardage and goal-line situations. Can you imagine having the greatest tight end in football, and using him for window dressing?

"The next day I asked to be traded. Three years had gone by — they figured they had me softened up — so they sent me off to San Francisco for a couple of draft choices. What they forgot is that if you have a Cadillac, just because you put it on blocks for a while doesn't mean it has lost its efficiency. Once the carbon's blown out, it will run as well as ever.

"Funny thing," Young added, "as soon as I was gone the Rams got rid of Terry Nelson. Now they have a tight end problem. I refuse to talk about my years with the Rams, though. I don't deal in negatives. Negatives you sweep up and leave for the garbage man to carry away."

WHILE YOUNG was busy not talking about the Rams, it occurred to several of us familiar with his history that the new stage made available by the 49ers may help him recover from the attack of modesty suffered while in Los Angeles.

Young awaits the Sunday adventure with eyes that dance, and an obvious thirst for attention long denied. Restored to his proper role as a starter by the 49ers, Young has no difficulty envisioning the Super Bowl as a personal vehicle.

"I'll do my job effectively, whether that means clearing zones, catching passes to keep a drive alive, blocking, or scoring touchdowns," he promises, "but I do hope the coaching staff uses me in a way that will benefit me as well as the team.

"There will be 160,000 eyeballs focused on us in the Silverdome, and millions more watching on television. It's like being in Carnegie Hall, or Buckingham Palace. I'd like to be able to utilize all my skills so that everyone can see what they've been missing.

"I can do more than catch the ball," Young added, while developing this theme. "I can run with it. If necessary, I can pass it. I don't throw quite as well as Montana, but if I get a lateral sometime Sunday, I might step back and kick it off."

BILL WALSH, whose novel approach to the business has helped Young recover not only his honor but his voice, suggests that Young's major contribution to his team has been as a leader.

This information was passed along to Young, who seemed surprised. "In the sense that a great leader wouldn't ask anyone to do something that he can do better himself, it's probably true," he decided. "But I don't want you writing this so it sounds like I'm bragging.

Houston Astros ink Tony Scott

HOUSTON (AP) — Tony Scott, who batted .264 for the Houston Astros last season after replacing Cesar Cedeno in centerfield, has signed a three-year, $1.25 million contract.

Scott's signing Thursday made him the second million-dollar signee of the week. Third baseman Ray Knight, traded from Cincinnati Dec. 18 for Cedeno, signed a five-year, $2.6 million contract Monday.

Scott came to the Astros last June 6 from St. Louis in a trade for pitcher Joaquin Andujar.

Knight signed a five-year, $2.6 million contract Monday and general manager Al Rosen said the former Reds All-Star would start at third base with Art Howe, last year's third baseman, shifting to first.

Scott has a lifetime .254 average with 14 home runs and 202 runs batted in.

Three persons sentenced in point shaving scandal

NEW YORK (AP) — Declaring that the Boston College basketball point-shaving scheme had an "immeasurable" negative impact on college sports, a federal judge Friday sentenced three of five men involved to prison terms ranging from four years to 20.

U.S. District Judge Henry Bramwell meted out the stiffest punishment to James Burke of New York, whom he said had "significant involvement in organized crime" and a long criminal past that included 30 arrests, 10 convictions and five prison terms.

Burke, 51, received the maximum 20-year sentence for conspiracy to commit racketeering and two maximum five-year sentences for conspiracy to commit sports bribery and violation of the Travel Act. He also was fined $30,000.

The sentences were to be served concurrently following a term Burke now is serving for parole violation.

Anthony Perla, 36, received a total of 10 years in prison for all three counts and his younger brother, Rocco, 25, received a total of four years. The brothers, of Braddock Hills, Pa., remained free on bail pending the outcome of their appeal.

The Perlas, Burke, former Boston College basketball player Rich Kuhn, 26, and Paul Mazzei were convicted Nov. 23 of conspiring to shave points and fix games during Boston College's 1978-79 season to benefit their betting syndicate.

WEEKLY COMMODITY MARKET REVIEW

Commodity markets were mixed with interest rate fears weighing on financial markets while weather fears were major factors in the strength of some agricultural commodities.

Precious metals traded erratically as the market attempted to assess whether or not the Federal Reserve Board would tighten credit following recent surges in the money supply data.

Weaker dressed beef prices furnished lower cattle futures early in the week, but reversed as weather factors turned the market around late in the week. Winter weather continued to disrupt the flow of hogs to market and this was constructive to the pork futures complex.

Wheat eased on an upward revision of Southern Hemisphere crops. Corn firmed on cold weather curtailing marketings and indications that there would not be a limit on the amount of grain allowed in the farmer-owned reserve. Reserved soybean meal interest in Europe tended to firm the soybean and soybean complex. There were additional comments on the dry weather in the Southern Hemisphere growing area.

Cotton prices were under pressure as slow cash demand continues. Market is beginning to assess the amount of cotton to be placed under government loan which could create tight supplies near-term.

California tear gas users relinquish year-old fad

By MARIE DENUNZIO
Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — Tear gas is fast becoming a weapon of the past in the state that began the craze, California.

In the first six months of 1981, more than 341,000 Californians took a two-hour training class enabling them to be certified to carry tear gas in the state. Fewer than 26,000 took the class from July to December, and many who have taken the class are now disillusioned about the product.

The reasons for the tear gas rage last year were simple. State regulations were relaxed in 1980, making it easier for private citizens to carry the weapon. Several tear gas training schools, charging an average of $35 for the class and a canister, opened soon after and began intensive ad campaigns.

That was just about the time a number of gruesome murders, including the Hillside Strangler slayings, were reported, and there was a general increase in crime. Tear gas became a lucrative business.

One reason for the loss of interest is that many people have heard that tear gas is either ineffective or impractical. Much of that criticism has come from those who have taken tear gas classes.

They said it was too much trouble to carry the tear gas canister or too hard to remember to do so. Some said it would be too difficult to spray an attacker in the eyes. Others said they lost their canister and haven't had the motivation to replace it.

Even more people said they just didn't think tear gas worked.

Jane Greyson is one of those who took the class and thinks tear gas is worthless.

"I came out of the class feeling very secure with my little can of tear gas," she said. "But then I got home and accidentally sprayed it on my father's leg and it didn't do a thing."

Donald McWhirter, a Los Angeles police officer who taught more than 5,000 private citizens how to use tear gas, attributes the failure of the tear gas campaign to misinformation.
