Judge found guilty of income tax evasion

Claiborne

RENO, Nev. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Harry Claiborne was found guilty Friday of two counts of income tax evasion, making him the first active federal judge convicted of a crime committed while in office.

Claiborne, 67, of Las Vegas, could face up to six years in prison and a total of $10,000 in fines, in addition to the cost of the federal probe that brought the convictions. He vowed to appeal.

"The measure of a man is how he handles adversity and I've handled everything else like that in my life head-on. I'll pursue the appeal and continue the fight until my name is cleared," Claiborne said.

The federal court jury that found him guilty on the tax charges found him innocent of a charge of lying on a judicial disclosure statement.

Presiding Judge Walter E. Hoffman set Oct. 3 for sentencing, and said he would hear defense motions Oct. 2 for a new trial. If the motions are denied, defense attorneys said an appeal of the conviction is a certainty.

If the conviction stands, Claiborne would face possible impeachment and removal by Congress, a procedure that would begin with the House Judiciary Committee and end with a Senate trial.

Federal prosecutors charged he underreported his 1979 and 1980 income by $106,000 received in overdue bills from his law practice.

"I do not feel any sense of personal elation," prosecutor William Hendricks said after the verdict was announced. "I feel very sad that it's a member of the judiciary."

Chief government attorney Steven Shaw disagreed, however. He said the verdict "shows standards are the same for judges and everyone else."

They said he left a $375,000-a-year business for the $55,000-a-year judgeship he was appointed to in 1978 by former President Jimmy Carter and soon became desperate for money.

Claiborne's attorneys contended the judge gave his tax preparers correct figures but they botched the returns. They admitted Claiborne did not check any of their figures.

Defense attorneys also accused the Justice Department of having a vendetta against the judge, a controversial figure since his appointment.

Claiborne has frequently attacked federal Strike Force agents in Las Vegas, calling them "crooks and liars."

It was the second time Claiborne was tried on the charges. An earlier case in the same courtroom ended in a mistrial last April when jurors could not agree on any of the counts against him.

Congress begins recess, leaving items in limbo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress on Friday began a nearly four-week recess for the Republican National Convention, leaving a number of politically charged items for its return in September, including the overall federal budget, defense spending and immigration law revision.

All three measures ran afoul of presidential election-year politics.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., called for a rare, top-level meeting among House and Senate leaders after Labor Day to try to form a compromise on the budget and defense issues.

Still, despite earlier predictions by some congressional leaders that little would be accomplished, the brief session between the Democratic and Republican conventions produced a flurry of legislative activity.

Lawmakers prepared to leave for their August break after rushing through a compromise granting scaled-down emergency military aid for El Salvador. The $70 million voted in aid was two-thirds of what President Reagan had originally sought, but represented a major concession on the part of the Democratic-ruled House.

The House gave final approval 323-33 to legislation to expand the "superfund" toxic wastes cleanup program from its current $1.6 billion level to $10.2 billion.

Left in limbo were efforts to reach agreement on defense spending and the 1985 federal budget, two major measures Congress must deal with after it returns on Sept. 5.

Efforts to reach agreement on a defense bill are deadlocked in a battle over spending levels and over the MX missile between the Republican-controlled Senate, which generally favors the more ambitious program advocated by President Reagan, and the Democratic-run House.

The inability to reach agreement on defense spending levels also is holding up progress on an overall budget blueprint for the fiscal 1985, which begins Oct. 1.

Baker, the Senate majority leader, announced on Friday that he and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., would meet soon after Congress returns with all the principals on both the defense and budget issues to try to end the deadlock.

"I will sit down with the speaker and my colleagues on both sides of the aisle...and we will try to find a defense number."

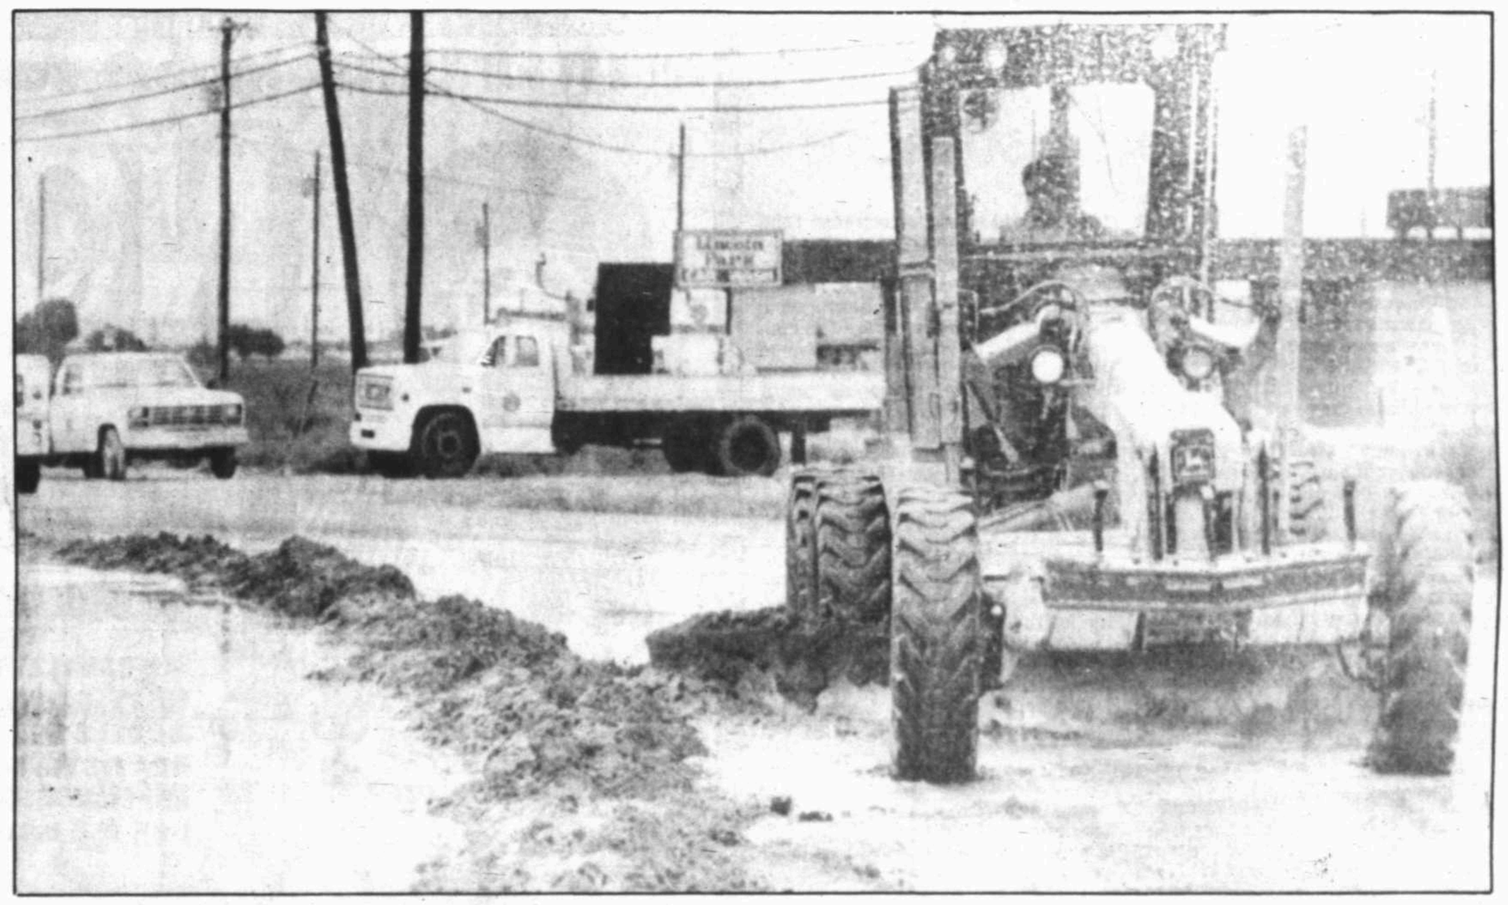

A Republican leadership aide, who spoke only on the condition that he not be identified, said the proposal for the unusual meeting of top legislative leaders, first suggested by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., had the backing of the White House.

"The main players are on board right now. It will be an attempt to arrive at a (defense spending) number to start working from," the aide said.

Another victim of presidential politics is a bill for a sweeping overhaul of the nation's immigration laws. The bill, which would grant amnesty to many illegal aliens now in the country while imposing stiff sanctions on employers who hire undocumented foreign workers in the future, had passed both the Senate and the House.

But efforts at reaching a compromise between the two versions came to a grinding halt after Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale promised to help work to defeat it. And Reagan, who earlier supported the legislation, signaled misgivings over elements of the House-passed version.

City of Hobbs street crews build a dike along a street to hold back the water being pumped from a north Hobbs subdivision into a field after 2½ inches of rain fell within a 30 minute period Thursday night. Storm details on Page 4A.

Midland skies should be clearing by Sunday

From Staff Reports

Rain clouds that have alternately poured and drizzled nearly two inches of moisture in Midland this week will slowly depart the Permian Basin, predict forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Although the clouds are expected to linger through today and hint at the prospect of rain, skies should begin clearing a little by Sunday.

Nearly half an inch of rain fell at the airport Friday. That brought the four-day total to 1.95 inches and the monthly tally to 2.07 inches. That represents nearly half an inch more than the average rainfall for the month of August.

Because meteorologists predicted this month's precipitation would be below normal, they expect the Midland area to receive little, if any, additional rainfall in the near future.

There is, however, a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms in the area today and tonight. Highs in the middle 80s and lows in middle 60s are forecast. Winds today are expected to come from the southeast at 5 to 15 mph.

Sunday will probably remain mostly cloudy with a slight chance for thunderstorms. A warmer day is anticipated, with highs reaching the upper 80s.

Friday's high was 83 degrees, considerably less than the record 104 set on that date in 1946. An overnight low of 68 was recorded, eight degrees above the record low of 60 that occurred in 1931.

U.S., French minesweeping units heading for Red Sea

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — French and U.S. minesweeping units headed for the Red Sea on Friday and Egypt, which suspects Iran and Libya of laying mines in the sealanes, said it would close the Suez Canal to any country proven to be responsible.

Egyptian Defense Minister Abdel-Halim Abu-Ghazala told reporters in Cairo that officials are studying "some unusual sailing patterns" by ships before the start last month of explosions that are believed to have damaged 14 ships.

"We are studying the timing of the explosions in relation to the timing of passage through the Suez Canal of certain ships. There is some suspicion that they are Libyan and Iranian ships but we don't have any proof," he said.

"There is also some intelligence information (implicating Iran and Libya) but it is not confirmed," he said. "We have to have solid proof before we do anything."

President Hosni Mubarak said Egypt would use the power given it in an 1888 agreement to close the canal to whichever country is responsible for the mines. Abu-Ghazala said Egypt also reserves the right to "retaliate in any other way that we think is proper."

Asked about an article in the state-owned Al Ahram newspaper accusing Libya and Iran of responsiblity, Mubarak said: "I think they may be both, though the Iranians have said they are not responsible."

Both Abu-Ghazala and Prime Minister Kamal Hassan Aly said the explosions were probably related to the Iran-Iraq war. Iran may have been trying "to block the export of oil through the Red Sea" in reprisal for Iraqi air attacks on Iran's oil export industry, Aly said.

Chain reaction explosion kills two, wounds 11

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A chain-reaction explosion set off by a militiaman's careless handling of a grenade ripped through a 10-story building Friday, killing two men and wounding 11.

Five explosions rocked mostly Moslem west Beirut overnight, and the army command warned of "attempts to sabotage the security plan" aimed at extending state control beyond the capital.

Police said two men were killed and 11 wounded in Beir Al-Abed, a southern suburb of Beirut, in a building that houses a security office and an arms depot of Lebanon's dominant Shiite Moslem Amal militia.

The police and Amal said the blasts began when a hand grenade went off accidentally as a militiaman was "toying with it." That explosion set off a nearby box of grenades. State radio said the initial explosions set off a series of blasts in an Amal arms deport in the basement of the building.

The militiaman who set off the first grenade was killed, along with a colleague.

The overnight explosions in west Beirut damaged shops but caused no casualties, police said. One blast was caused by explosives planted in a clothing shop, while the others were caused by rocket-propelled grenades and hand grenades thrown from speeding cars.

A bomb killed three people and wounded 20 in a west Beirut vegetable market on Thursday, the first fatal bombing since the Lebanese army separated warring militiamen in Beirut last month.

Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri and Druse chieftain Walid Jumblatt leaders went to Damascus, Syria, on Friday for talks with Syrian officials on a proposed plan to restore government authority to Lebanon's central mountains.

Syria earlier helped arrange a security plan for Beirut that culminated with deployment of the army in the capital and the effective abolishment of the "green line" that divided Beirut into Moslem and Christian sectors throughout the nine years of civil war.

Syrian officials now are helping the Lebanese government with a plan to gain control of the Druse-held Chouf and Aley mountains and the Christian and Shiite-held foothills east of Beirut.

The plan was approved in principle at a Cabinet session Wednesday. But Prime Minister Rashid Karami spoke of unspecified "existing difficulties" that must be ironed out before it can be implemented. The talks in Damascus are expected to eliminate those obstacles, government sources said.

Shiite and Druse officials said Friday that as many as 500 Palestinian guerrillas, who had been based in the central mountains around Bhamdoun and Aley since an outbreak of fighting last September, withdrew overnight behind Syrian lines in east Lebanon.

The officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said all remaining Palestinian guerrillas will be withdrawn from the region by next week in preparation for the Lebanese army deployment along the highway through the mountains. The officials said the withdrawal of the guerrillas was being supervised by Syrian army officers.

The deployment of the army along the mountain highway and the coastal roads linking Beirut with northern Lebanon and the Israeli-occupied south is the next goal of the Syrian-backed security plan to end Lebanon's nine years of civil war. The roads now are controlled by Christian, Druse and Shiite militiamen.

Two teen-agers thwart kidnapping, extortion attempt

STATE

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two teen-agers thwarted a kidnapping and extortion attempt when they called police after seeing a bank president's wife being detained by a gunman, authorities said.

Garland Wayne Bailey, 20, of Houston was jailed Friday on charges of kidnapping Morgia Lepick, wife of Frost Bank President Fred Lepick. Night Magistrate Ronald Prince set Bailey's bond at $75,000.

Authorities said they were searching for two men Bailey said had arranged the bungled extortion attempt.

Bailey was arrested Thursday, police said, after the teen-agers, David Campos and Dewayne Galvan, about 16, told police in nearby Converse that a man was holding a paper bag, apparently containing a gun, to a woman's back at a phone booth.

Police said Bailey had accosted Mrs. Lepick in her home in suburban Terrell Hills, forced her into the family car and drove her to Converse to phone her husband with the kidnapper's demand for a $50,000 ransom.

Bailey ran as officers closed in, but he was tackled by a service station mechanic, Jesse Ambriz, and arrested, police said.

Mrs. Lepick's mother, Morgia Graham, 78, was handcuffed to her bed at the home but was unharmed, Terrell Hills police chief Barney Flowers said.

No ransom was delivered, police said, but a search of the Hyatt Regency Hotel, where the money was to have been delivered, failed to turn up the other two men said to be involved.

Terrell Hills police Sgt. Felix Revulcaba said Bailey told investigators he discussed the kidnap plot with two men he met in a hotel two weeks ago.

Bailey had been living in a downtown hotel since arriving from Houston three weeks ago, police said.

Convention protesters may exceed estimate

DALLAS (AP) — Recent applications for demonstrations indicate there will be more protesters than originally expected during the Republican National Convention, city officials say.

"I'm worried about all the protesters," Assistant City Manger Levi Davis said Thursday. "There are more of them than we thought there would be."

Police have said they expected between about 5,000 demonstrators during the convention, but permit applications indicated there could be more than 28,000 people would attend protest events.

According to city records, demonstration groups have applied for 22 parade and assembly permits before and during the convention, which runs from Aug. 20-23.

City officials requested groups applying for permits to estimate how many people their event would draw.

He said the city may have to spend more money to provide police protection.

Davis added $457,000 to his original budget of $1.8 million for security after more it became apparent there would be more protesters than originally expected.

"Any additional protest costs more money," said Davis, whose original plans included heavy security on the Saturday before the convention starts when three groups applied for permits.

Davis said the city would begin issuing permits Friday.

Members of the Freeze Reagan-Bush Coalition have threatened to sue if they are not guaranteed at least four hours for its planned "Rock Against Reagan" concert on Aug. 21.

But Police Cpl. Dan Johnson said officials would limit the group to three hours, in order to allow time for another rally by another group, Concerned Christians for Reagan.

Both groups sought permits for the same site at a corner near the Dallas Convention Center.

Johnson said the Freeze group also was denied permission to face speakers toward the convention center.

The concert is expected to feature two punk rock groups — "Reagan Youth" and the "Dead Kennedys" — reggae bands and a folk singer.

Brothers electrocuted when scaffold hits electric lines

AMARILLO (AP) — Two brothers moving a scaffold so a federal investigator could photograph the site of a fatal accident died Friday when the scaffold came into contact with electrical lines, authorities said.

Hudy Putney, 67, and Melton Putney, 53, both of Amarillo, were pronounced dead at Northwest Texas Hospital, said police spokeswoman Helen Cruz.

Another worker, Glenn Price, 53, of Amarillo, was listed in critical but stable condition Friday, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Three other men who were helping move the scaffold about 8 a.m. at the Tri-State Fairground Coliseum were not seriously injured, Ms. Cruz said.

On Wednesday, J.W. Combs was electrocuted when he was on the scaffold and backed into a 7,600-volt power line.

"I can't believe two things like this could happen in one week," said Lynn Griffin, manager of the Tri-State Fair.

An official with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration was at the scene Friday and the six men were attempting to move the 25-foot high scaffold so he could photograph the previous accident scene.

"Evidently the moisture and rain caused the wires to sag or something had," Griffin said.

John Wheeler, 49, one of the three workers who suffered non-serious injuries, said the crew had no idea the scaffold would collide with the wire as they wheeled it away from the building to avoid a concrete pad beneath a drainage spout on the west side of the coliseum.

Bond faces opposition for first time since 1984

ATLANTA (AP) — His youthful face is beginning to age. His hair is beginning to gray. Eighteen years ago Julian Bond fought in court to take his seat in the Georgia Legislature. Now he is afraid of losing the political title he has come to enjoy.

Bond burst onto the national scene at the tumultuous 1968 Democratic Convention in Chicago, when he became the first black ever to have his name placed in nomination for vice president by a major political party, even though he was eight years too young to hold the post.

Now 44, he has toured the lecture circuit, written a nationally syndicated column and hosted a television talk show while serving in the Georgia Senate for the past 10 years.

Ironically, it is Bond's fame that led Hildred W. Shumake Jr., a 28-year-old black businessman, to challenge him — the first person to oppose Bond since he was elected to the state Senate in 1974.

Bond and Shumake meet in next Tuesday's Democratic primary for a two-year term as senator from the 39th District (Fulton County). No Republican is seeking the seat.

"I thought long and hard about it," Shumake said. "But I think fame belongs in Hollywood. When it's time to serve your community, you need to put fame and fortune behind you."

Bond, whose district is in Atlanta, denies the charge but says he is worried about the election.

"I'm scared to death. I'm serious. You know, nobody likes to be defeated," he said in an interview. "This guy may win. Stranger things have happened. But I trust the good people of the district to see me through."

Bond said he wants to stay in the Senate "to continue the work I've begun." Specifically, he is pushing for postcard voter registration in Fulton County, divestiture of state pension-fund investments from companies doing business in South Africa, and raising the legal drinking age from 19 to 21.

He also said, "Frankly, I enjoy" being in the Senate. "I like the give and take. I like arguing, and I like winning."

Bond noted that his last opponent, when he won the seat in 1974, "used this same tactic, that I was too famous to represent the district."

Bond served in the late 1960s as spokesman for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, a youthful, militant civil rights group, and in 1966 he obtained a U.S. Supreme Court order to be seated in the Georgia House, which had tried to bar him because of his public opposition to the Vietnam War.

Since 1976 he has presided over the Atlanta chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and, at one time, was considered for the position of national executive director of the NAACP.

Since the mid-1960s Bond has delivered lectures on the civil rights movement, black history and racial politics. He also has written a nationally syndicated newspaper column and hosted an independent half-hour television talk show called "America's Black Forum."

Bond, who said he earns more than $100,000 annually, said he could make more money if he wasn't in the Senate because he is in the greatest demand as a speaker in February, during Black History Month. The 40-day annual legislative session begins in January and usually lasts into March. State senators receive an annual salary of $7,200, plus expenses.

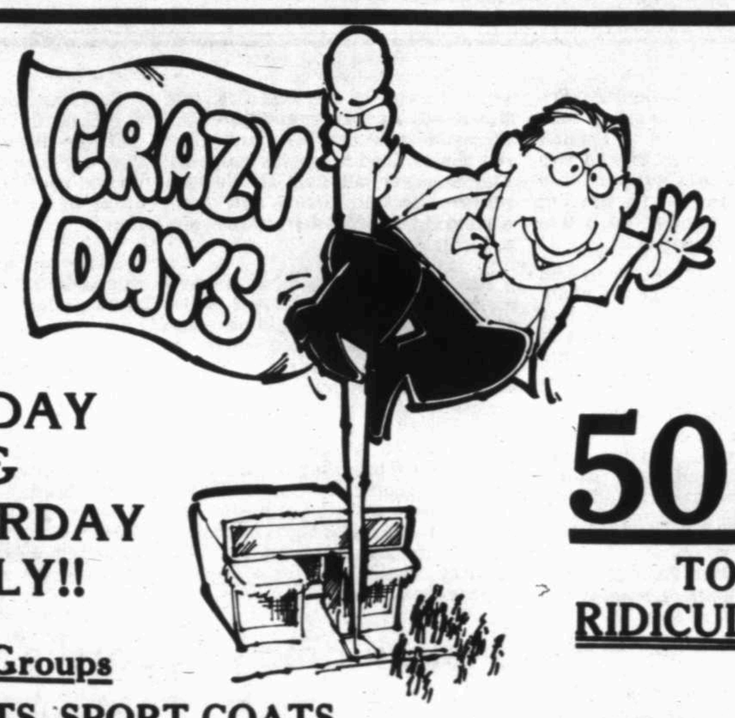

Shumake, who works for his father's construction business, ran unsuccessfully for Atlanta City Council two years and for the Georgia House two years earlier. He argues that Bond should not accept the speaking engagements that he does schedule during the legislative session.

He said Bond was the only senator to miss the vote last winter on a controversial bill that would have raised the statewide sales tax by 1 percent. Bond's flight home from an out-of-town appearance was delayed by bad weather.

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for today for parts of New Mexico, Texas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and parts of Virginia and the Carolinas.

Rains leave Hobbs in 6 feet of water

Associated Press

Lingering thunderstorms prompted flash-flood watches Friday in the Southwest, where heavy rains left Hobbs, N.M., awash in up to 6 feet of water.

A storm system which dumped a third straight day of rain on southeastern New Mexico and western Texas was stalled Friday, with no movement in sight, the National Weather Service said.

National Guardsmen in 4-wheel-drive vehicles were sent in to assist local authorities in Hobbs, after nearly 5 inches of rain fell in 24 hours, inundating roads and forcing 50 people from their homes overnight.

Floodwaters up to 6 feet deep swirled through the streets of Hobbs on Thursday night, trapping several motorists who were rescued by police, civil defense director David Hooten said. Two to 3 feet of water remained in some intersections Friday, the weather service reported.

New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya declared a state of emergency in Hobbs and nearby Sunland Park, where 10 homes were evacuated because of flooding, said John Ramming, director of special services in the governor's office. Anaya told officials to take whatever action is is necessary to assist citizens," Ramming said.

Anaya also declared Hobbs a disaster area, making the town eligible for up to $500,000 in state funds to restore public facilities damaged by the flooding, said press secretary David Roybal. "We know some state money will be needed, and the declaration will free up this money," he said.

The continued bad weather forced the governor to cancel a flight Friday afternoon to Hobbs, where he had planned to survey damage, Roybal said.

New Mexico 123, a main road from White Sands to El Paso, Texas, was washed out just north of the state line after more than half an inch of rain fell overnight, and traffic was being rerouted Friday, the weather service said.

Flooding also closed streets in Chaparral, Anthony and Carlsbad, N.M., and parts of the Lincoln National Forest were shut for the weekend because of high water, authorities said. Two feet of water covered parts of U.S. 380 near Tatum, shutting the road, and several streets in Clovis were also closed, state police said.

The storm system was expected to intensify Friday, pulling moisture from the Gulf of Mexico to feed a saturated lower atmosphere, said Stephen Corfidi of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center.

Flash-flood watches were in effect Friday across southern and east central New Mexico and southwest, west central and north central Texas, the weather service said. Nearly two-thirds of an inch of rain was reported in Lubbock, Texas, in six hours Friday morning.

STATE

Portions of West Texas got more rain than they wanted Friday, while other areas, including Central Texas, continued without a drop.

But the rain was too little too late,and was falling in too short a period of time to soak in and relieve drought conditions, the National Weather Service said.

Temperatures were extremely variable from one area of the state to the other. A cool front over Amarillo made for a chilly 67 degrees at 4 p.m., while at the same time the mercury hit 98 in Fort Worth.

Flood and flash flood watches continue through today for western portions of the South Plains and areas west of the Pecos, the weather service said. Lubbock registered 1.57 inches and El Paso had .55 inch in a short period of time.

Mondale to make 'full-scale effort' in California

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Walter F. Mondale will make "a full-scale campaign effort" to try to defeat President Reagan in his home state of California this fall, the head of Mondale's campaign said Friday.

After meeting with Mondale at his home in nearby North Oaks, Minn., James A. Johnson, chairman of the campaign, told reporters:

"We are very encouraged about the possibility of winning California. We have made a decision to run a full-scale campaign effort in California. We will run aggressively in California. We will spend substantial amounts of money and candidate time in California."

Polls have shown Reagan leading Mondale in California and there have been suggestions Mondale would not make a big effort in ths state because of its size and the expense of such a campaign.

Mondale spent the day quietly. The meeting with Johnson and aide Tom Donilon was the only one on the schedule.

Johnson said one plus for the Democratic ticket in California and West is Mondale's running mate, Rep. Geraldine Ferraro. Ms. Ferraro starts her first solo campaign trip Sunday, touring California and the rest of the West Coast.

CONGRESS

Growing opposition to the immigration bill from Hispanic groups helped put the measure on ice. At the same time, bills designed to satisfy particular constituent groups found ready bipartisan support during the election-year summer session.

Earlier this week, the House sent Reagan bills designed to give women equal pension rights with men and to beef up enforcement of child-support obligations, legislation the Democratic vice presidential nominee, Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York, helped guide to passage.

Congress also sent to the president's desk a bill permitting religious groups to use school property for after-class student meetings. And the House overwhelmingly approved legislation to assure pupils the right to prayer silently in public classrooms.

Efforts to win approval for a constitutional amendment to permit organized, spoken prayer in public schools died in Congress earlier this year.

Meanwhile, the Senate rushed to grant overwhelming approval to legislation to guarantee retirees a cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits even if inflation falls below 3 percent, the current trigger for such increases.

That vote came just two days after Reagan listed the item as one of a handful of measures he hoped to see Congress approve this session. House action on it is expected in September.

Congress also extended a hand to environmentalists with action on the "superfund" waste clean-up bill and Senate approval of a bill strengthening hazardous-waste control laws, a measure sponsors said was the most important piece of environmental legislation to pass the Senate since Reagan took office.

And both chambers approved resolutions denouncing Reagan's appointment of Anne M. Burford, the controversial former Environmental Protection Agency administrator, to an advisory committee. She declined the appointment, which she had described as a "nothingburger" anyway, as a result of the action.

In addition, Congress has passed a majority of the 13 spending bills needed to keep the government in operation in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 — good progress compared with this time in past years.

And lawmakers also approved a major portion of a package of anti-crime bills during the three-week period between the conventions.

"All in all, it has been a pretty good session," O'Neill said Friday.

Asked about claims by some Republicans that it had seen more partisan bickering than usual, the 32-year House veteran replied: "Probably those are fellows who have only been here for two or four years."

MINES

Abu-Ghazala cited remarks by Iranian speaker of parliament Hashemi Rafsanjani before the explosions, threatening to hurt countries that helped Iraq. Egypt and Saudi Arabia, both of which border the Red Sea, have supported Iraq in its four-year-old war with Iran.

"Libya is pro-Iranian, so there is suspicion that Libya may have cooperated with Iran," Abu-Ghazala said.

The Shipping Intelligence Department of Lloyd's of London said Friday that 14 ships had struck mines in the Gulf of Suez and the southern part of the Red Sea. At least 13 such incidents had been reported, but there had been some uncertainty about the cause of some explosions in other ships.

The Shreveport, a U.S. Navy amphibious transport dock, sailed from a base in Rota, Spain early Friday with four minesweeping helicopters aboard. In Paris, French Defense Ministry sources said two minesweepers and a support ship left Toulon on Thursday for the Red Sea. Britain has announced it was sending four minesweepers.

On Friday, in a broadcast by the official Iranian news agency monitored in Cyprus, Rafsanjani accused Western powers and news media of "falsely incriminating the Islamic Republic (Iran)" in the mining.

A day earlier Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini denied Iranian involvement, and he criticized state-run Tehran radio, which had praised the attacks and had attributed them to an extremist group, Islamic Holy War.

Abdul-Aziz al-Dali, Foreign Minister of Marxist South Yemen at the southern end of the Red Sea, told the Saudi Arabian newspaper Al-Sharq Al-Awsat that his country had not determined who was responsible. However, alluding to Western powers, he said "Israel and those behind it," benefited from the mining.

The official Libyan news agency on Friday accused the United States of laying the mines, but did not elaborate. A Pentagon spokesman in Washington said Thursday that a similar charge by Iran was "preposterous."

Officials in Athens said Friday that Greece probably would help France, Britain, the United States and Egypt search for mines in the Red Sea. But Foreign Minister Yiannis Haralambopoulos said his country would wait for a formal request from Egypt.

Egyptian minesweepers have been operating in the area since July 30, and Abu-Ghazala said: "We are sure that our shores, the canal and the traffic route in the Suez Gulf are clear of any kind of explosives now."

However, the Egyptians said the remainder of the Red Sea still had to be swept for mines.

In its first comment on the mining, Saudi Arabia said it was a "criminal act" aimed at destabilizing the region.

The Saudi defense minister, Prince Sultan, said in a statement that "Saudi Arabia and its sister states overlooking the Red Sea will deter with all firmness these provocative acts which seek to undermine the security and stability that the nations of the region enjoy."

JUDGE

Claiborne faced seven counts in the first trial, but the government dropped four which involved the testimony of brothel owner Joe Conforte. They said they felt the notoriety and coarse language of the Mustang Ranch operator "distrcted" jurors from the prosecution's case.

Claiborne had been accused of two counts of taking bribes from Conforte and one each of obstruction of justice and tax evasion.

Claiborne was Nevada's senior federal judge at the time of his indictment last December. He voluntarily stepped down from the bench at that time.

Area quiet during curfew

LAWRENCE, Mass. (AP) — About 70 helmeted, club-carrying police officers cleared residents off the streets Friday night as a curfew began in a decaying neighborhood torn by two days of violence between whites and Hispanics.

Youngsters breakdancing and cycling in the dusk headed for home, and women chatting on porches went inside their houses.

Lines of police blocking intersections sealed off the three-by-four-block area in this industrial town of 63,000 about 30 miles north of Boston.

Ten armed officers walked abreast down Oxford Street, the center of two nights of violence, sweeping youngsters before them into their homes.

Police Lt. Francis Inclopera reported an hour after the 8 p.m. curfew started that six people had been arrested for breaking curfew.

"So far, everything is quiet," he said. "It seems to be working."

City officials declared a state of emergency, ordered the dusk-to-dawn curfew and established a "rumor control" hotline after a closed meeting of community leaders and law enforcement officials.

Under the order, only police and emergency vehicles will be allowed on the street from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m., "places of amusement and entertainment" were closed and a ban on liquor sales, begun Wednesday, was continued. Violators will face up to six months in jail and $500 fine.

Alderman Raymond Johnson, who heads the city's public safety department, said about 85 Lawrence police — nearly the entire force — would be on duty Friday night and state police would be held in reserve.

"We tried to go easy last night and it just absolutely didn't work," he said.

Snelson among board's nominees

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — Former Sen. Pete Snelson, Midland, is among the suggested nominees for the new appointed State Board of Education, according to the Legislative Council.

A list compiled by the council shows Snelson as among those persons who have been proposed for appointment to the new board.

Other Midland residents listed are Beth Blakemore, Ronald A. Britton, J. Murphy Horton and Ann Clary Page.

Also on the list is U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, Pat R. Hankins and William Hammond Jr. of Odessa.

The council notes names are being added to the list and some persons for whom addresses were not available are also being considered.

Trucker drives rig into mobile home

From Staff Reports

A 28-year-old Odessa truck driver was out on bond Friday night after driving his 18-wheel rig into a mobile home in Odessa.

No injuries were reported in the 5:30 p.m. accident although the home, a power pole and a fence were demolished, according to a Department of Public Safety spokesperson. One man was inside the trailer at 7501 Mockingbird Lane.

The driver of the truck tractor semi-trailer was charged with misdemeanor offenses of unsafe speeding and driving while intoxicated. According to DPS reports, he was southbound and speeding on Mockingbird when he lost control of the truck on a curve.

He was released from Ector County Jail after posting $500 bond.

Former Midland policeman indicted

From Staff Reports

Former city police officer Lonnie Payne has been indicted for the alleged June rape of a woman transient under a bridge at Scharbauer Drive and North Big Spring Street.

Payne, 33, of Rt. 2, Midland, was indicted Aug. 1 on the complaint of a 25-year-old woman who told police she was asleep under the bridge about 3 a.m. on June 2 when a man woke her up, tied her hands behind her back with wire and raped her.

The woman has no permanent address, according to police. She is believed to be from the Lubbock area. Payne was arrested June 4 and remains free on bond.

DEATHS

Aubrey Gideon

Aubrey M. Gideon, 90, of Midland died Friday morning at his home.

Graveside services will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday in Holland Cemetery in Holland, Texas. Dr. Warner Bailey will officiate the services, directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Gideon was born Sept. 21, 1893, in Holland. He met and married Ruth Bailey there in 1913. They lived in Dallas for several years before moving to Houston in 1928. He retired from a Houston insurance company in 1969 after 45 years. They moved from Dallas to Midland in 1982.

Survivors include his wife; a son, E.N. "Ed" Gideon of Midland; a daughter, Mrs. Dale Honeycutt of Richardson; five grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren.

Delmer Woods

Delmer Woods

Delmer M. Woods, 63, of Midland died at his home Thursday evening.

Services will be held at 4 p.m. today at First Presbyterian Church with Dr. Ray Riddle officiating. Burial will be at 4 p.m. Sunday in Elgin.

Woods was born July 14, 1921, in Electra. He married Margy Ray Woods Sept. 24, 1944, in Port Arthur. He received bachelor and master's degrees from Texas Tech University and was an officer in the Army Air Corps during World War II.

A former district geophysicist for Gulf Oil Corp., he was currently engaged as an independent geophysical consultant and had ranching interests in Elgin.

Woods was an Elder in the Presbyterin church and a member of First Presbyterian Church of Midland. He was past president of the New Mexico Geophysical Society and a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and the Society of Exploration Geophysicists.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Delmer Woods Jr. of Dallas; his daughter, Kathyn Woods of Austin; a sister, Joyce Smith of Forth Worth; and two brothers, retired Maj. Boyce Woods of Elgin and retired Col. David Woods of Fort Worth.

Pallbearers will be E.K. Browning, Jimmy Floyd, Patrick Mackey, Daniel Vorhees, Cecil Rockhold and Michael Portie.

Barron Kidd

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Barron Kidd, 82, formerly of Midland, died Thursday in his Santa Barbara summer home.

Memorial services will be at 5 p.m. today at Highland Park Presbyterian Church in Dallas.

Kidd was born Nov. 12, 1901, in Brownwood. He attended Howard Payne University in Brownwood and received his BA and BBA degrees from The University of Texas at Austin in 1925. He held an honorary degree of doctor of law from Northwood Institute of Dallas.

His career as an oil operator and producer began in 1927 and continued until his death.

Before moving to Dallas in 1942 he was with Stark Lumber Co. in Orange and Fuhrman Petroleum in Midland. He was one of the early pioneers involved in oil exploration and services in West Texas.

Kidd was director of First National Bank of Midland until 1978; co-founder and chairman of the board of Cardinal Chemical Co. of Dallas, Midland and Odessa; and organizer and chairman of the board of OPI Ltd. of Edmonton, Alberta, Cananda. He was a member of Independent Oil Producer's Association, Independent Oil and Gas Association of West Virginia, Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, Kentucky Oil and Gas Association, IPAA and TIPRO.

Survivors include his wife, Ann Kidd of Dallas; a son, Barron Kidd of Dallas; a stepson, Anthony Chamay of Marblehead, Mass.; and four grandchildren in Dallas.

Memorials may be sent to Northwood Institute of Dallas or the American Heart Association.

Project bids to be taken

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING — Contracts will be awarded soon to the low bidders on the last major phase of the Beals Creek quality improvement project. The low bid was $1,954,713.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District will spend more than $4 million to intercept and divert low quality water in the Colorado River tributary five miles east of Big Spring. Good quality flood waters will overflow a low channel dam and go on down to Lake E.V. Spence.

Row-Wall Electric Company of Lubbock submitted the low bid of $1,065,336 for constructing the diversion pump station and channel dam on Beals Creek. This was about $27,000 below the second best bid.

Key Enterprises of Odessa was the low bidder for about 20,000 feet of 21-inch steel cylinder concrete pipe and 10,000 feet of 24-inch pipe in the amount of $889,377. This was more than $99,000 under the next best bid. Under terms of the bid, half the 21-inch pipe would be lined with an epoxy material to furnish the district a basis of comparing friction losses between standard and lined pipe.

Previously, a contract for construction of a side-storage reservoir on Red Draw was awarded to Price Construction Company of Big Spring for $1,597,948. Pumps were ordered two months ago for $99,236, and contracts were being closed for motors and valves for about $140,000. Engineering, estimated land and right of way costs and contingencies have put the total job cost to nearly $4.2 million.

O.H. Ivie, CRMWD general manager, said the entire project was to be in operation by April 15, 1985.

Joan Mondale writes family cookbook

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "The Mondale Family Cookbook" was published Friday and, yes, it has a recipe for blueberry muffins.

The 139-page book includes 10 of Walter F. Mondale's recipes — from turkey dressing to "Fettucine a la Pimento Mondale" — and is filled with pictures from the Mondale family alblum.

But the book, written by the Democratic presidential candidate's wife, gives no hint on how to make Mondale's favorite meal — a cheeseburger.

At a news conference to announce release of the book, Joan Mondale told reporters she is not worried about her husband's "cheeseburger addiction" despite his mild case of high-blood pressure.

"I have a very difficult time acting as a doctor because he wants to know how many years I went to medical school," she said. "I think the reason he is a healthy man, despite the cheeseburger addiction, is that he is very happy doing what he is doing. His mental attitude is so good, I don't worry about that."

The cookbook, with a color picture of the Mondale family on the cover, contains recipes from the candidate, his wife, his three children, parents, grandparents and friends, as well as menus from his days as vice president under Jimmy Carter.

There is a blueberry muffin recipe in the book, but this one is from family friend Barb Munger of Duluth, Minn., not Mondale's vice presidential running mate, Rep. Geraldine Ferraro.

Two weeks ago, Ms. Ferraro — the first woman to run on a major party national ticket — got into a discussion of blueberry muffin baking with Mississippi Agriculture Commissioner Jim Buck Ross.

The Mondale cookbook includes recipes by Rosalynn Carter for her cheese ring, Muriel Humphrey for beef soup and feminist Betty Friedan for garlic soup. It even has a recipe for "Fritz's Grits" by Betty Talmadge, ex-wife of former Georgia Sen. Herman Talmadge.

One of the least-difficult recipes comes from James A. Johnson, Mondale's campaign manager. An intense political pro known for his lack of interest in such matters as cooking, Johnson provided a recipe for "Hot dogs and Tab."

It includes detailed instructions on boiling and serving hot dogs, such as "When the hot dogs are fully cooked, take them from the saucepan and place them between the two halves of the buns — lengthwise."

The cookbook was paid for by the Mondale for President committee and will be distributed as thank-you gifts for those who have helped the campaign.

Joe Lockhart, a spokesman for the campaign, said the book would not be available for sale. Mrs. Mondale had said it would be available through the committee for $25, but Lockhart said campaign aides had failed to tell her of the decision not to sell it.

Ex-policemen convicted of taking bribes

NATION

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Seven former policemen, from a deputy commissioner to a beat patrolman, were convicted Friday of federal corruption charges for taking bribes in a $350,000 extortion ring to protect illegal gambling.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Howard Klein hailed the verdicts as "a message for justice and against corruption," but the convicted officers maintained their innocence and all seven defense attorneys immediately said they would appeal.

Found guilty of conspiracy, racketeering and extortion were former Deputy Commissioner James Martin, former Chief Inspector Joseph DePeri, former Capt. Dennis Linso, former Lts. George Katz, Theodore Murphy and Henry Pecic and former Patrolman George Morrell.

Martin and DePeri also were found guilty of obstruction of justice. Martin was accused of paying "hush money" to prevent testimony by two policemen who admitted participating in the ring, and DePeri was accused of ordering the destruction of records of payoffs from numbers writers and video poker machine vendors who sought protection for their illegal gambling activities.

The indictments came in what has been described as the biggest police corruption case in the history of the nation's fifth-largest city. Seven officers were sent to jail last year for taking bribes to protect pimps, prostitutes and gamblers from arrest, eight more go on trial next month, and the 4-year-old FBI probe of police on the take continues.

The jury in the latest trial, which began July 9 in the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Daniel Huyett III, deliberated for eight hours before delivering its verdict. No date was set for sentencing, and all seven defendants remained free without bail.

"I still maintain my innocence," said Martin, who resigned in April as the No. 2 officer of the 7,300-member police force and was the highest-ranking Philadelphia police officer ever indicted on corruption charges.

"I'll see what I can do in the appeal system," he said as he sat in the courtroom with his wife and five of his eight children, one of them a policeman.

But Pecic's attorney, Joseph Bongiovanni, said the defendants "never should have been tried together. It was unfair. They painted us all with the same brush."

Morrell's lawyer, Joel Slomsky, labeled the verdict "a miscarriage of justice" and added, "Lumping everybody in a conspiracy that never was proved to have existed was very prejudicial."

Eighteen businessmen testified that they paid bribes to policemen, but the government's key evidence came from two officers who admitted collecting bribes and passing on most of the money — as much as $12,500 a month — to superiors.

Senate OKs agency to aid in finding children

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new federal agency designed to assist local law enforcement, including a national center for missing and exploited children, won Senate approval Friday.

Each state will get a minimum of $250,000 a year under the new Office of Justice Assistance, which will replace the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration if the House goes along and the President signs the measure.

Included in the legislation is the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, which funnels money and assistance to law enforcement agencies and citizen action groups to help locate missing children.

The center will spend $10 million a year to operate a toll-free telephone hotline for people to call when they have information about abducted children and runaways.

The center is already open, funded by a temporary grant from the Office of Juvenille Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

"The safety of our nation's children depends on this effort," said Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., who led the effort to establish the center.

She called passage "another giant step in taking care of neglected, abused and exploited children."

The bill setting up the new Office of Justice Assistance specifies the types of programs that can be funded, but strips away what a House committee report called "frustrations of excessive regulation."

Programs that could be paid for with the funds include "Sting" operations where police set up phony front organizations to videotape criminals in the act, arson programs, victim-witness support, alleviation of overcrowding in jails.

The bill, which is similar to legislation passed by the House last year, must return to the House for approval of amendments attatched in the Senate.

Those amendments put the juvenille justice program under its own administrator in an effort to preserve its independence. The Reagan administration has opposed this approach.

The administration has also opposed a $70 million program to combat juvenille delinquency. The President's budget has asked no funding for the program for the last two years.

The total amount of money to be spent is not set in the legislation. That figure will be determined in the appropriations process.

Ferraro prepares for solo campaign swing on West Coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before setting off to the West coast for her first solo campaign swing, Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro filled out her campaign staff with the appointment of two blacks to top positions.

Michigan's Barbara Roberts Mason, a prominent education and labor activist, was designated a senior policy adviser and Charles Atkins, an attorney who joined her campaign two weeks ago as a political-issues consultant, was promoted to deputy campaign manager.

Atkins worked in the Carter White House and served as deputy director of the Democratic platform committee headed by Ms. Ferraro.

Ms. Ferraro praised Ms. Mason, of Lansing, calling her "an incredible woman...She's very good on issues and very politically astute."

Ms. Ferraro left Washington Friday morning for New York to spend the early part of the weekend before leaving for California Sunday.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson criticized Ms. Ferraro last month, calling her first appointments of two white women and a white man "unfair and unacceptable." Ms. Ferraro said at the time that if black leaders would give her time to make more appointments, "they're going to be perfectly happy" with her choices.

Anne Wexler, a Washington government relations consultant who is Ms. Ferraros' senior political adviser, said Friday that Ms. Ferraro will spend five days traveling through California, Oregon and Washington state "because they are targets of this campaign."

"We think we can win them and we're going after them," she said.

Ms. Wexler said that the three states, all carried by former Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart "are filled with lots of voters considered targets for us — the young, upwardly mobile."

Ms. Wexler said also that Ms. Ferraro had cancelled tentative plans to attend the closing ceremonies of the Olympics Games in Los Angeles after her staff and Olympic officials "mutully agreed that (her attendance) might put a political tone on the ceremonies and distract from the credit to the athletes."

At a national association meeting of district attorneys in San Diego, Ms. Ferraro will discuss government policies that have to do with crime and stress her experience as a former prosecutor and an assistant district attorney, Ms. Wexler said.

Patricia Bario, just appointed as Ms. Ferraro's press secretary, said Ms. Ferraro will use the trip to focus on the central theme of the Mondale-Ferraro campaign, that the Democratic candidates are "a team concerned about the future."

Mickey Kantor, head of the Mondale-Ferraro campaign in California, said Ms. Ferraro will meet with senior citizens in Sacramento and stress high technology jobs in San Jose.

Asked what chances the Democrats have of beating President Reagan in his home state, Kantor said, "It's an uphill struggle for us in California, but she can make a big difference. Whether we can pull it off is open to question. But no one has California locked up."

Ms. Ferraro also announced the appointments of Steven Engleberg, a Washington attorney and policy advisor to Mondale, as issues director; Madeleine K. Albright, a member of the National Security Council in the Carter White House, as senior foreign policy director; and Eleanor G. Lewis, her congressional administrative assistant for three years, as executive assistant.

Florida spring home for 'manatees with a mission'

HOMOSASSA SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Savannah and Sunrise are manatees with a mission, repopulating an endangered species. The pair of 550-pound, 5½-foot aquatic mammals are the first of their kind born in captivity to be released into the wild.

The duo of 2-year-olds were put into a special holding pen and trucked 6½ hours from Miami to a part of the Homosassa River on the Gulf Coast of Florida, where researchers from the Miami Seaquarium gradually will introduce them into the wild.

Savannah and Sunrise will live in a fenced-in area of Homosassa Spring adjacent to their wild cousins for about eight months while scientists monitor their adjustment.

"We've been working toward this for 15 years," said Seaquarium veterinarian Dr. Jesse White. "If this demonstration works, then we can expand the program to release 20, 30 or 40 a year."

Wildlife experts estimate there are only about 1,000 manatees left in U.S. waterways, most of them in Florida. That number has not changed in several years, but about 10 percent of the manatees die each year, many when struck accidentally by boats.

Eighty-one dead manatees have been found so far this year.

Sunrise and Savannah were carried to the water's edge on stretchers Wednesday. With a large crowd of picture-popping onlookers cheering, the two manatees feebly flapped their heavy tails as they were floated through the water on special platforms. White patted and stroked their stomachs and when they realized what was expected of them, they wiggled their bulky bodies into the river.

"Goosebumps. Goosebumps. That's how I feel," said White.

Tourists will be able to watch Sunrise and Savannah from an underground window at the spring.

The two young manatees — voracious vegetarians who could grow to 15 feet and weigh 2,000 pounds — were born in 1982 to injured animals taken to the Seaquarium.

Manatees are the only marine mammals outside of whales that spend their entire lives in water, but they must surface for air every 15 or 20 minutes. Their heavy, thickset bodies are fishlike, ending in a horizontally flattened fin.

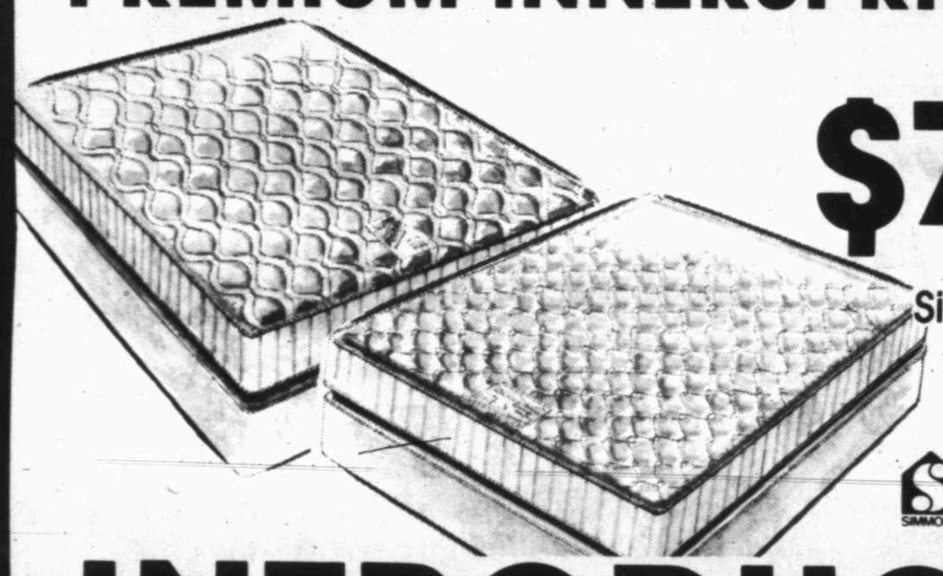

It has been speculated that manatees, often called sea cows, are the source of legends about mermaids. They are descended, scientists say, from a primitive group of land mammals that also gave rise to the elephant.

White hopes the wild manatees will teach Sunrise and Savannah a few tricks, including how to mate. But it will be six years before they are old enough to breed.

Nicaraguan priests risk being defrocked

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican said in a communique Friday that it has repeatedly asked Nicaraguan priests to leave their government posts, and one church official said the priests risk being defrocked if they continue in public office.

The communique — one of its toughest admonitions yet against priests in politics — did not specifically order four Roman Catholic priests holding top-level posts in the leftist Sandinista government to quit.

It was issued in reaction to a recent statement by one of the priests, the Rev. Fernando Cardenal, who said earlier this month that church authorities had expressed no formal opposition to his appointment as Nicaragua's education minister.

The Jesuit's statement, the Vatican communique said, is "surprising and almost incredible."

"Father Fernando Cardenal, and also the other Nicaraguan clergymen in government posts, in fact know perfectly well that ecclesiastical authorities have been insisting since 1979 that they leave their posts which are incompatible with their priestly mission," the communique said.

Asked why the Holy See didn't simply make the clerics resign, one Vatican source replied, "What is the Vatican to do?"

"It is up to them (priests) to understand the opinion of the Holy See and take action accordingly," said the source, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

The latest communique, he said, repeats frequent admonitions — including one by Pope John Paul II — that the Nicaraguan priests adhere to the church's ban on priests holding public office.

The Vatican commumique quoted the code of Canon Law that forbids priests "to assume public offices that involve participation in the exercise of civil power."

"The canon cited enunciates as a universal law of the church a categoric prohibition" against holding political offices, it said.

The Vatican also said the Holy See was in "full accord" with a warning last month to Cardenal from the Jesuit order that he faced "most painful" consequences if he did not give up his post, but did not elaborate.

On Aug. 6, Cardenal told reporters he was carrying out his new duties "without any obstacles," thanks to an arrangement with church officials made in July 1981.

The arrangement, he said, allowed the four priests to hold onto their political jobs, but it made clear they couldn't celebrate Mass, or administer any sacraments while carrying out state duties.

However, an official of the Vatican's Congregation for the Clergy, said Cardenal's explanation was "only words."

Cosmonauts call for end to arms race

MOSCOW (AP) — Three cosmonauts on Friday called on fellow citizens of the Earth to maintain a peaceful space frontier, and Soviet space program officials detailed plans for a photographic mission to Venus and Halley's Comet.

Commander Vladimir A. Dzhanibekov, flight engineer Svetlana Savitskaya — the first woman to walk in space — and researcher Igor P. Volk used their news conference to press for an end to the arms race.

Ms. Savitskaya, who also became the first woman to make two space trips when the Soyuz T-12 blasted off on July 17, told reporters she wants people to work together to preserve the beautiful picture of Earth she saw from the cosmos. The cosmonauts completed their 13-day mission July 29.

The 36-year-old veteran test pilot said she hoped her planet's inhabitants would always be there to greet "aliens who would come and look at our Earth."

Svetlana Savitskaya

Space officials accompanying the cosmonauts gave new details of the Soviet Union's plans for a photographic mission to Venus and to Halley's Comet at the end of this year.

Vladimir Kotelnikov, a vice president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, provided no specific date for the Venus-Halley's Comet mission, but said an interplanetary vehicle would drop a "descending craft" on Venus and then head for the brilliant comet streaking through the solar system.

"Comets are very mysterious to us, we know little of them" said Kotelnikov, adding that Japan and the European Space Agency also plan to send spacecraft aloft to watch the comet.

The officials also said three other cosmonauts who have been aboard the orbiting Salyut 7 space station for 184 days are prepared to stay in the cosmos past the 211-day mark set in 1982 by two other Soviet cosmonauts.

Vladimir Shatalov, chief of cosmonaut training, told The Associated Press after the news conference the three men aboard Salyut 7 — Leonid Kizim, Vladimir Solovyev and Oleg Atkov — will probably break the space endurance record in early September.

"There are only a few days left," he said, "Things are going well. If they continue to go well ...," they will probably stay longer than 211 days.

Ms. Savitskaya, who made her first space flight in 1982, described at length the "velvety darkness" that envelops the Earth at night and the brilliant lights of civilization visible from space.

"At some time the idea came to me that everything must be done so that the traces of human work, that those city lights, must be on Earth for thousands of years, so that cosmonauts would fly from Earth and back seeing those signs of civilization," the cosmonaut said. "And those aliens who would come and look at our Earth, would see the traces of human activity — that it is habitable."

Answering a question about astronaut Sally Ride, Ms. Savitskaya replied that "all American astronauts, like all cosmonauts, after their mission have the impression that our Earth is beautiful and that it is necessary to cooperate to preserve it."

Dzhanibekov, who commanded the 13-day mission that included a docking with the Salyut 7 station, was asked how the inclusion of women cosmonauts on space flights has changed the Soviet program.

He said the participation of women makes the work more complete.

"When only men were flying in outer space, we were like a body with one leg," Dzhanibekov said.

Volk, a physiologist and the only member of the T-12 crew who had never been in space before, linked his studies on weightlessness with efforts to cooperate in space research.

"Weightlessness is international. It does not spare anyone. It has no ideological or social barriers," he quipped.

Three Jewish families start settlement in Hebron

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Three families are working to establish a new Jewish enclave in Hebron on a dusty hill ringed with heavy barbed wire and surrounded by Arab homes.

It is the second Jewish settlement in Hebron, a city of 70,000 Arabs that is claimed as a religious site by Jews and Moslems.

The Jewish settlers — three couples and one child — brought in house trailers under cover of darkness Wednesday night. The next day, they put out flower pots and set up housekeeping, complete with water and electricity, as Arab prayer chants emanated from a mosque 100 yards away and their Moslem neighbors watched.

The settlement was accomplished with the approval of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's government, which sent a half-dozen armed Israeli soldiers to help set up the barbed wire and to protect the Jews. Two blue-and-white Israeli flags marked the area.

"We moved in under cover because we thought it would be safer," said Uri Karzen, 23, who emigrated from Chicago seven years ago. "But we believe most of the Arabs understand the Jews have reclaimed their city."

Hebron, about 30 miles south of Jerusalem, is the site of the tomb of the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Jews say it is their oldest city, but the Moslems also say Abraham is their forefather and the city is theirs.

The city has been the site of frequent friction between Jews and Arabs since Israel captured the West Bank from Jordan in the 1967 war. And the newest Jewish settlement has angered and frightened neighboring Arabs, some of whom say they fear losing their homes.

"There is nothing we can do. I am frightened even talking to you, because they might put me in jail," said a Hebron man whose home is 50 feet from the Jewish settlement. He refused to give his name.

Oscar-winning screenwriter says he's destined to write about Texas

By JULIA MARTINEZ

"You know, I may never see some of these people again. We were like a family for six weeks. I guess it's the curse of the theater."

— Screenwriter Horton Foote

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — Two-time Academy Award-winning screenwriter Horton Foote seemed a little out of his element in this small Texas town, where he has just finished filming his latest movie, "1918."

But Foote insisted, despite his heavy New England accent, that he's a Texan destined to write about Texas.

Foote, acclaimed in 1962 for his Oscar-winning adaptation of "To Kill a Mockingbird," won the Academy Award this year for his screenplay of "Tender Mercies," which also won Robert Duvall the best actor Oscar.

He breaks into a big grin when the Oscar is mentioned.

"I won once before and I wasn't there," he said. "This time I was there and it makes a big difference because you don't realize how excited that whole area gets.

"You suddenly become a movie fan. You forget that you're competing," he said. "All the fantasies about Hollywood come to life — the lights, cameras flashing, people screaming when certain people come up."

After the ceremonies and a night of partying, Foote hopped a 7 a.m. flight back to Texas for the second day of shooting "1918."

The movie, a period piece about a Texas family that copes with the ravages of a flu epidemic and World War I, finished shooting in mid-May in Waxahachie. The small town, located 30 miles south of Dallas, is eight miles from the site where "Tender Mercies" was filmed.

Foote and his Dallas-based crew were in the midst of packing up after 18 months of preparation and filming. As he arrived at the two-story, wood-frame house used in the film, neighbors poured out to greet him with hugs and kisses. He was visibly moved.

"You know, I may never see some of these people again," Foote later said. "We were like a family for six weeks. I guess it's the curse of the theater."

A fifth-generation Texan, Foote planned to return to New York after a brief visit to his birthplace of Wharton, Texas, near the Gulf Coast. He said he writes better about Texas when he's not here. He lives most of the year in New York and New England.

For "1918," everything down to the last piece of furniture was carefully planned. Foote even shipped his family's cream-colored bedroom set from Wharton.

"It was fashionable in those days to paint the furniture light," he said, running his hand over the dresser.

All around, there is a sense of a step back in time. The house, built in 1870, is surrounded by a white picket fence. From the front yard, a graveyard is visible at the bottom of the hill. The graveyard, town courthouse and two other houses on the street were used in the film.

"1918" stars Foote's daughter, Hallie, in the leading role of Elizabeth Vaughn Robedaux. Stage actor William Converse-Roberts plays her husband, Horace, and Matthew Broderick — most recently of "War Games" fame — plays her 17-year-old brother, known simply as "Brother" throughout the film.

Foote left home as a teen-ager to become an actor, not a writer. After several years as a stage actor on and off Broadway, he wrote his first play about Texas at the urging of a friend.

Though he had never written before, he won immediate praise from critics.

"I found myself with some kind of reputation and knew very little about writing," he said.

In the 1950s, he wrote his first Broadway play, "The Chase," which was produced by Jose Ferrer. Lillian Hellman later wrote the screenplay.

"For good or bad, I was now a writer," he said. "And I've worked hard at it ever since."

In 1962, Foote won the Oscar for his second screenplay, "To Kill A Mockingbird," which solidified his status as a screenwriter. Later, there was "Baby the Rain Must Fall" and "Tomorrow."

He plans to continue writing screenplays on the order of "Tender Mercies" and "1918" — stories he says he was raised on as a Southerner. He is scheduled to return to Austin, soon to begin filming "The Governor's Lady," a film about Texas politcs.

"It won't be anything sensational, mind you. There won't be any muckraking," he said. "It's going to be about human beings again and they're in politics too."

Linda Lavin says no more 'Alice' after nine seasons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Linda Lavin returns to taping her hit CBS series "Alice" this month, it will be her ninth season in the situation comedy and, she says, her last.

"There's comfort in playing the same character and making her grow," the actress said, but after filming 16 more episodes she plans to move on to other TV projects.

During her annual break from taping, Miss Lavin has been performing with the prestigious Boston-based American Repertory Theatre, a company she's worked with on and off since 1966.

Learning scripts, rehearsing and then performing plays on alternating nights isn't easy, Miss Lavin said in an interview.

"I guess the gears that are hardest to switch (are) that in 'Alice' I can learn the lines on my feet in two days," she said. "Also, they're not rhymed couplets from another century."

In addition to a spring engagement in Boston and a July stopover in Ann Arbor, Mich., the company has played at two festivals this summer: the Quebec International Festival and the Olympic Arts Festival.

Miss Lavin and her colleagues played to packed houses in Los Angeles, performing two contrasting works: the 18th century comedy "The School for Scandal," and Pirandello's thought-provoking "Six Characters in Search of An Author."

"The theater gives me a chance to stretch my range," said Miss Lavin, who plays a grieving old woman in "Six Characters."

"You don't get that much chance to spread out age-wise or character-wise in television or film."

In addition, she said, "There's something very special about this because the danger (of failing) is always there. You're on a tightrope in the theater."

Miss Lavin says there will be TV life after "Alice."

She has starred in four TV movies, including two she developed and produced for CBS, as well as her own musical special last year.

Her own production company is developing four films for CBS, in which she will star, as well as specials and a series.

Miss Lavin, who has directed two "Alice" episodes each year, is one of a handful of women directors in television. She plans to direct some of her future productions and serves on the women's committee of the Directors Guild, which is working to improve opportunities for women.

"It is hard if you don't have some clout, and clout in television is having a series," Miss Lavin said. "There are very few women directors who have a continuum of work. I don't know if it's getting any better."

BOSTON (AP) — WGBH, the station that produces "Masterpiece Theatre" and "Mystery!," has announced its schedule of programs for the 1984-85 season on public television.

"Masterpiece Theatre" debuts Oct. 28 with the whimsical "Barchester Chronicles," based on two of Anthony Trollope's novels. "Mystery!" begins its season Oct. 11 with "Rumpole's Return," the two-hour special starring Leo McKern as the feisty British barrister.

After "The Barchester Chronicles," which is an irreverent look at the conflicting egos and jousting for power among clergymen in an English cathedral city, "Masterpiece Theatre" will offer "The Jewel and the Crown," "All for Love" and "Strangers and Brothers."

"The Jewel and the Crown" is a 14-part dramatization of Paul Scott's four novels known collectively as "The Raj Quartet," focusing on the relationships during the final years of British rule in India.

"All for Love" brings five short stories to TV, all of which are about love. "Strangers and Brothers" is an adaptation of C.P. Snow's books about a 20th century British lawyer-politician.

The season will conclude with repeat performances of "The Citadel" and "The Irish R.M."

The new productions on "Mystery!" include five episodes of "Rumpole of the Bailey," "Partners in Crime," and dramatizations of a number of Agatha Christie stories.

Other originals will be "Praying Mantis," a miniseries adapted from Hubert Montielhet's story about the emotional turbulence of characters involved in a murder conspiracy, "The Adventures of Sherlock Homes" and Wilkie Collins' "Woman in White."

"Masterpiece Theatre" and "Mystery!" are funded by Mobil.

This guy can't land a date in 'Glitter City'

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — Read between the lines: "Garry Shandling, Alone in Vegas." Does it sound like some guy in Glitter City with time on his hands and money to spend who can't land a date?

"I'm taking my girlfriend, Patty," Shandling explains, and then, into the phone: "Hi, Patty, it's Garry. Wait a minute, don't hang up...No, you can't bring a guy named Dave...How about money? Will you come for money?"

You may recognize Shandling as a frequent guest on "The Tonight Show," but if you're not a fan of that late-night program, allow the modest fellow to introduce himself:

"Some girl just told me I look like a cross between David Brenner and Jimmy Carter," he says. "Is that true? Because they are ugly people."

Or, "I have 20-800 vision...which means I can date just about anybody."

He spends maybe a half-hour on the stage in hilarious self-deprecation, and that segment is the basis for "Garry Shandling, Alone in Vegas" which started this week on the Showtime pay-cable network. Part of the show is about Shandling getting there, and that's fun, too.

And there's a guest star:

"Beat it, Garry" (from behind the closed door).

"How'd you know it was me?"

"The wimpy knock," says Joan Rivers. "Don't you ever use all your knuckles?"

The hour-long special, taped in Las Vegas June 11-13, will be repeated three times this month and once in September.

Shandling claims he is the first to integrate his stand-up routine with a comedy sketch, and maybe so. He admits to borrowing another technique from George Burns — talking to the personified camera.

The best part is, Shandling maintains he's not making anything up.

"My goal is not to do anything that isn't true to who I am," he says in a biographical sketch. "What I've spent years doing is shedding any artificial technique so that the Garry you see on stage is the same as in the living room. I'm not out to become a show business personality."

Since Patty won't come with him, Garry decides to take the viewer as his guest. And he's a gracious host.

"There are 4,700,000 light bulbs on this street," he says. "Imagine what it must look like at night."

And later, inside the casino, "Here's a little tip from me to you. Don't actually follow the (roulette) wheel with your head. You'll get nauseous."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, August 12, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Mexican acting star Cantinflas, actress Jane Wyatt, Senator Dale Bumpers (D-Ark.), country singer Buck Owens and John Derek share your birthday. Also born on this date: baseball great Christy Mathewson and legendary Hollywood producer Cecil B. De Mille. A sad face does not become you. Put on a smile and set out to charm the world! Tremendous success will be yours once you learn how to promote your talents. Seek expert advice. A prominent friend will be flattered to be consulted. Family members offer their full support. Show your gratitude by sharing the applause. Romance has its rocky moments but is deeply satisfying.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An influential person you meet at a social function could affect your future in a big way. Put your best foot forward. Diplomacy helps you smooth over a difficult moment. Curb spending.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Change is part of today's plan. Stay on your toes! Finance and friendship will not mix. Do not judge a member of the opposite sex by your first impression; it could be wrong.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Expect less from others and you will have fewer disappointments. Partnerships of all types require special handling today. A budget revision could reduce tension. Guard loved one's secrets.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Doublecheck time schedules if traveling today. A change of scenery proves highly enjoyable. Seize an opportunity mix business with pleasure. You will make a wonderful impression on someone influential!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Domestic life runs smoothly as long as you show consideration for other people's plans. Be cautious when dealing with those who might want to impose on you. Romance is especially happy this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Home life could be a bit unsettled. Spend part of the day on your own. Decide for yourself where you will go and who you will see. Romance with a Leo is exciting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be careful about spending jointly-owned funds. Romantic partners at a distance remain on excellent terms. Avoid making exaggerated statements. An important decision merits very careful thought.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stay calm this morning and avoid conflicts with your loved ones. A brief encounter with a financial wizard could bring lasting benefits. Let others take the lead in making social plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You meet many people now who you would like to be friends with. Casual gatherings hold greater appeal than formal affairs. Maintain an air of calm when around someone who is nervous.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Postpone travel. An out-of-towner has some important news to share with you. Spur-of-the-moment entertaining can be great fun if you include people from different walks of life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A desire to act on impulse could lead to a family argument. Calm down. A compromise will smooth things over. New hobbies provide hours of enjoyment. A friend offers to play Cupid.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A social event introduces you to delightful new people. Look your best! Curb a tendency to eat or drink too much. Romance could play a trick on you. Know your own heart.

DEAR ABBY

AA members don't have to 'bare souls'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I notice that you keep plugging Alcoholics Anonymous. I know I need it, but I can't bring myself to go because I can't speak in front of a group.

I'm a 38-year-old housewife with a serious drinking problem. One of the reasons I drink is to overcome my shyness. I've telephoned AA three times to find out when they meet, but I've never gone to a meeting because I'm afraid they might expect me to pour my heart out in front of everybody, and I just couldn't do that.

In college I dropped a course after the first day because the teacher asked the students to stand up and tell the class something about themselves.

I wish I could go to AA, Abby, but I would rather die than stand up, introduce myself and explain why I'm there. — DRINKS TOO MUCH

DEAR DRINKS: I am glad you wrote, because others may have the same mistaken idea about AA meetings. New members are NEVER asked to stand and introduce themselves. Nor are they expected to "pour their hearts out" in front of the group.

You may attend meetings, sit inconspicuously without saying a word and remain anonymous forever if you wish.

Now, about your shyness: Many people drink to overcome their shyness. Why not deal with your shyness by getting to the root of it?

Your local mental health clinic may be able to assign a therapist who specializes in helping painfully shy people.

In the meantime, I urge you to try Alcoholics Anonymous. You'll be glad you did.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Decker's Gold medal bid nipped by Budd

American 'cut off' by Zola

By D. BYRON YAKE
AP Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — American Mary Decker, denied an Olympic gold medal in the past by injuries and politics, had her hopes shattered again Friday night when Zola Budd cut her off midway through the women's 3,000-meter race. Decker went down in pain and tears with an injured left leg and was helped off the field.

"Zola tripped me," Decker said, sobbing. "She cut in front of me and it was a matter of pushing her or me falling. When I went down, I felt something in my left hip. I tried to get up but I couldn't."

The race went to Maricica Puica of Romania, who sped away from the field, overtaking Budd and the others. She was clocked in 8 minutes, 35.96 seconds. The silver went to Britain's Wendy Sly, with the bronze going to Lynn Williams of Canada.

Boos went to Budd, the barefoot South African teen-ager running for Britain, who finished far back and was disqualified.

Decker's woes took some luster off a generally good day for the United States, which won a gold medal in women's hurdles and two medals in women's diving.

THE UNITED States even gained a gold medal in boxing, where the finals won't be held until Saturday. Yet another fighter's appeal for a gold medal bout was turned down.

There was some disappointment in the discus where 1976 Olympic champion Mac Wilkins had been expected to lead an American sweep. He missed the gold by a foot, with a West German winning. And there was disappointment, too, for Henry Marsh, of Salt Lake City, who had been favored in the steeplechase. He finished fourth. Kenya's Julius Korir won the gold medal.

Decker had been a favorite in the 3,000 along with Puica, but the spotlight focused on Decker and the tiny Budd, 18, who had little experience in international track competition.

Decker had waited a long time for a chance to win an Olympic medal to add to her world and national titles. Injuries kept her off the 1976 Olympic team. She was thwarted by the U.S. boycott at the 1980 Games. And fear of injury kept her from running more than one race at the 1984 Olympics.

She had just recovered from an Achilles heel injury and decided to concentrate on the 3,000-meters, foregoing the 1,500 women's race.

The race started with Decker in front for the first four laps. Then it was Decker and Budd side-by-side. Then Budd made a move to her left to get in front of Decker. But she cut too closely and Decker tripped.

As Decker went down she reached for Budd's jersey in what appeared to be a vain attempt to regain her balance. She rolled into the infield clutching the number she pulled from Budd's back.

While the incident appeared to be Budd's fault, Cornelia Buerki of Switzerland exonerated the tiny runner.

"I only saw that Mary fell when she tried to pass Zola on the inside," said Buerki, who finished fifth.

"No, it was definitely not Zola's fault," added Buerki, "because the one coming from the back has to watch out. Mary made the mistake."

DECKER HAD never before raced against Budd, who had left her homeland in South Africa, barred from the Olympics for its apartheid practices. She moved to England for a chance to participate in the Games. She was eligible for citizenship because her father and grandfather were both British citizens.

After the race, a male spectator wearing a grass skirt and carrying a flag that said, "Zola," ran onto the field and kissed the teenager. Security guards whisked him away.

While Decker's gold-medal chase ended on the infield of the Coliseum, Carl Lewis kept working toward his own goal — four track-and-field golds in one Games.

And as far as former decathlon champion Bob Mathias is concerned, Lewis needs work on his attitude. Mathias called him "cold and calculating."

IN BOXING, the disqualification of American light-heavyweight Evander Holyfield was upheld, but it also was ruled that Holyfield will receive a bronze medal.

Meanwhile another U.S. boxer, Paul Gonzales, had the way cleared for a gold medal, with his championship-bout opponent sidelined by a broken thumb.

Benita Fitzgerald-Brown of the United States won the women's 100-meter hurdles, nipping Britain's Shirley Strong at the tape. Kim Turner of the United States took the bronze.

China, winless for several days, won the gold medal in the women's 10-meter platform diving, where Zhou Jihong scored 435.51 points. Americans Michelle Mitchell, with 431.19, and Wendy Wyland, 422.07, took the silver and bronze.

Lewis and three teammates led the qualifying in their heat of the 400-meter relay. Their time was 39.90 seconds, more than two seconds slower than the world record 37.86.

Lewis anchored the team, bringing him ever closer to his goal of four gold medals that would duplicate the feat of Jesse Owens in the 1936 Berlin Olympics.

The U.S. men's 1,600-meter relay team — Sunder Nix, Walter McCoy, Willie Smith and Antonio McKay — led their qualifier with a time of 3 minutes, 00.19 seconds.

Mark and Dave Shultz, the American brothers who had each injured opponents in their first freestyle wrestling matches, easily won their matches, with Dave advancing to the final in his division.

Dwight Stones, the U.S. record holder in the high jump, and two other Americans sailed through qualifying for the men's high jump. China's Zhu Jianhua, who holds the world record at 7 feet, 10 inches, also qualified.

IN THE women's high jump, West Germany's Ulrike Meyfarth smashed the Olympic record, clearing 6 feet, 7½ inches on her first attempt. Joni Huntley of the United States won a bronze, behind Italy's Sara Simeoni.

Holyfield, easily the most dominate American boxer, was disqualified after knocking out his Yugoslav opponent. The American team protested, but it was rejected. Holyfield will still receive a bronze medal.

"I feel sorry or the young man," Col. Don Hull, head of the international federation said. But Hull added that the decision was the correct one because Holyfield broke a rule with an illegal hit.

"Games are played by rules," he said. "It was an illegal blow that knocked out his opponent."

One of Holyfield's teammates, Gonzales, had the gold in the 106-pound class handed to him. Gonzales' scheduled foe, Salvatore Tadisco, suffered a broken right thumb in Thursday night's semifinal. Gonzales, of Los Angeles, wins in a walkover.

Nine other American fighters will box for gold medals Saturday.

Tracie Ruiz of the United States splashed her way through the qualifications of synchronized swimming and on toward her second gold medal, and the U.S. men's 1,600-meter relay team breezed through its first-round heat.

The U.S. men's field hockey team lost in a shootout with Malaysia and finished last in the tournament. Brian Spencer of Canoga Park, Calif., scored twice in regulation and Gary Newton of Ventura, Calif., scored in overtime for the Americans.

And in tennis, American Jimmy Arias, top seed in the tournament, was upset by Stefan Edberg of Sweden in two straight sets, 6-2, 6-1. Arias will finish in third place in the demonstration event.

U.S. boxers seek Gold bonanza today

An AP Sports Analysis
By ED SCHUYLER JR.

LOS ANGELES — Here is an analysis of Saturday's Olympic boxing finals and predicted winner:

106

Paul Gonzales, United States, wins on walkover.

112

Steve McCrory, United States, vs. Redzep Redzepovski, Yugoslavia. McCrory, a former world champion, is fighting well after being inconsistent in 1983. He has good hand speed, hits hard and takes a good punches, but sometimes does not punch enough. This could hurt him against the standup Redzepovski, who like all Eastern European boxers, is extremely busy and well-conditioned. Redzepovski has good power. Pick: Redzepovski by decision.

119

Hector Lopez, Mexico, vs. Maurizio Stecca, Italy. Lopez, a 17-year-old high school senior who is lives in Glendale, Calif., has a lot of poise for his age. He has good ring sense and punches with accuracy and power, especially with a left-hook, but his offensive style leaves him open and he catches a lot of punches. Stecca, ranked No. 2 in the world behind champion Floyd Favors, who failed to make the U.S. team, likes to moves away and make an opponent lead so he can counter. Occaionally he will dart forward and flurry. Stecca obviously knows the international game and how to catch the eyes of the judges. Pick: Stecca by decison.

125

Meldrick Taylor, United States, vs. Peter Konyegwachie, Nigeria. Taylor is another 17-year-old whose poise belies his age. He feints well with his head and shoulder, moves well side-to-side and throws good short combinations to the head and body. Konyetwachie, a stand-up, aggressive fighter, can't match Taylor's hand and foot speed, but he hits harder, especially with right hand. Pick: Taylor by decision.

132

Pernell Whitaker, United States, vs. Luis F. Ortiz, Puerto Rico. The left-handed Whitaker, the world champion, is a veteran of international competition. He is an excellent feinter, has a good jab, throws good combinations and hits hard with either hand. He likes to counterpunch and sometimes is not busy enough. He has looked a little stale here. Ortiz fights straight up. He is a power puncher, especially with his right hand, and has scored two knockouts here. Whitaker is has too much boxing ability. Pick: Whitaker by decision.

139

Jerry Page, United States, vs. Dhawee Umponmaha, Thailand. Page throws a lot of punches, but isn't especially adept at defense. He hits hard with both hands, but has a tendency to loop the right hand. He looked like a tired fighter in the final rounds of his controversial quarterfinal decision victory over Dong-Kil Kim of South Korea and his semifinal victory over Mirko Puzovic of Yugoslavia. Umponmaha applies constant pressure and wears opponents down. He hits hard with both hands and take a good punch. His strength should tell here. Umponmaha by decision.

147

Mark Breland, United States, vs. Young-Su An, South Korea. Breland, who is 6-foot-2½, has height and reach advantages over everyone he fights, and he uses them well. The world champion with a 109-1 record, with 73 knockouts, had looked dull in three of his five wins in the Olympics. But he has not let frustration bother him, and he also has enough confidence in his considerable boxing ability that he doesn't go looking for the knockout. An is a typical Korean fight. He holds his hands wide apart, spreads his feet and moves in a hopping motion. He moves forward and tries to bull inside to throw flurries. His style seems made for Breland. Pick: Breland by second-round knockout.

156

Frank Tate, United States, vs. Shawn O'Sullivan, Canada. Tate and O'Sullivan have split two previous fights, O'Sullivan winning 3-2 and Tate taking the world title from the Canadian 5-0. Tate stands up straight and jabs very well. He also fights well moving backwards and has knockdown power in his right hand. He looked dull in his first two fights, but was sharp in stopping his quarterfinal opponent in the first round. Tate has an advantage in that he got a walkover in the semifinals, while O'Sullivan had a hard fight in scoring a decision over Christophe Tiozzo of West Germany. But O'Sullivan has stopped two opponents and can score a knockout at any time. Pick: Tate by decision.

165

Virgil Hill, United States, vs. Joon-Sup Shin, South Korea: Hill is not fast afoot or with his hands, but has good power, and fights well in the third round. Shun is another rough-tough Korean, who keeps punching when hurt.

Cubs rained out; play twinbill tonight

From Staff Reports

For the second time in three nights, the Beaumont Gators and Midland Cubs were victims of field-soaking thundershowers Friday night. Consequently, the five-game series, which is tied at 1-1, will resume at 6:30 p.m. tonight with a doubleheader at Cubs Stadium.

The nines conclude their series at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Another rainout and the Cubs would be forced to make up the lost game, or games, on the road, since this is the Gators last Midland visit.

In Thursday's twinbill, Midland won the opener 3-1 on the combined three-hit pitching of Doug Potestio and Ron Kaufman. Mark Parent spoiled the shutout by tagging winner Kaufman with a home run with one out in the seventh.

The Cubs led 4-0 in the second game on Mike Brumley's three-run homer in the fourth and appeared on the verge of their first doubleheader sweep of the season, but Beaumont rallied for five runs in the fifth for a 5-4 win.

Going into tonight's twinbill, Midland has split four doubleheaders and lost three others.

CUBICLES—The scoreboard dark for Thursday's games, apparently a victim of the weather. The repairman will have to come from Des Moines to fix it...Third Baseman Tony Woods' injured shoulder continues to leave Manager George Enright short-handed in the infield. Fortunately, Joe Henderson, Paul Noce, David Denton and Gary Varsho are capable of playing more than one position...

BRUCE CASTLEBERRY

Stardom consumes McEnroe

John McEnroe is gone, no doubt thousands of miles away from Midland mentally if not actually in distance.

McEnroe's brief stop in the Tall City was a rare spectacle. I've never seen a man more consumed with stardom. And not all of it is tennis-related.

Perhaps the scene would be much different if I saw the genuine article. At the U.S. Open, I don't think McEnroe's entrance onto center court will be met by fireballs, smoke and breakdancers.

In the course of observing McEnroe by devouring information in the form of press releases, articles, commercials, etc., you think you get a grip on the man. A person in the limelight as often as McEnroe gives off bits of himself. Plenty of tennis fans have seen and experienced the McEnroe persona.

And, mention his name to just about anyone and they would have an idea of McEnroe's personality.

When the 25-year-old superstar made his Midland stop on his lucrative Tennis Over America Tours last Thursday, he showed a side to himself I didn't truly realize was there.

Mac has gone Hollywood.

Anyone who witnessed the elaborate production that was his gig Thursday could see it. The whole thing was like a rock concert. First there was the warm up act, a lackluster mixed doubles match between four Midland College tennis players. They were surely starstruck, too.

I couldn't help thinking I was at a concert. All the ingredients were there. T-shirt sales with McEnroe's face splashed across, and highly priced. Only at most rock concerts, the concessionaires don't accept Visa, MasterCard or American Express. Or checks!

Dancers. Hell, it was so much like a rock concert that there was even rock music, and very loud rock music. Poor Chaparral Center got a shaking unlike any it has ever gotten before. The sound system couldn't fully handle the fury of the McEnroe production number. And he and Vitas Gerulaitis provided choreography Michael Jackson could never emulate, unless he trades his glove for a Dunlop Wimbledon Champion. Fortunately, Jackson could afford one like the McEnroe discard that went for $1,600 before the featured act Thursday.

But I guess what most made me feel as if I were watching a concert performance was seeing the man, the myth, the megamillionaire, McEnroe.

I've only seen one person up close that inspired a similar reaction to that I felt at the McEnroe exhibition. That was Mick Jagger of the rock group, the Rolling Stones.

And if there is somebody out there wondering who in tarnation Mick Jagger is, hopefully I've already lost them by this time.

I saw the Stones in 1981 in Dallas, and to this day there are some details that are fuzzy, and entirely because of the fact that I was at that particular concert. The thing is, Jagger's mere presence made him the center of attention. Rock fans know that the Stones are a group of talented musicians, but that day I could only focus on Jagger. I wanted to study a typically green-faced Kieth Richards. I wanted to check the rapport between Bill Wyman and Charlie Watts. I wanted to see nutso Ron Woods go nutso.

But all I remember is Jagger - strutting, prancing, doing his thing.

McEnroe had the same effect on me. Gerulaitis is probably a more personable guy, but I couldn't watch him. Everything that happened was secondary to the simple truth. McEnroe was the attraction.

Sure, Midland may have crammed into the Chap to see Jimmy Connors, or Martina Navratilova. But it was McEnroe who drew the attention.

But can he sing?

Joe Frazier, a butcher's apprentice from Philadelphia, was a last-minute substitute for Buster Mathis, who suffered a broken knuckle, as the American heavyweight in the boxing competition in Tokyo. Frazier, who later admitted he was fighting with a broken right hand, dispatched of four opponents to win the gold medal.

1980

Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia ended an eight-year quest for a gold medal when he won the 5,000 meters in Moscow. Yifter had missed the start of his heat in 1972 when he spent too much time in the bathroom. In 1976, Ethiopia was one of the African nations that boycotted the Games and the 5-foot-4 inch, 117-pound father of six again missed his chance at gold.

American League

From Wire Reports

ARLINGTON — Larry Parrish drove in three runs and Charlie Hough scattered seven hits Friday night to lead the Texas Rangers to an 8-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The Rangers scored four runs in the fourth inning to chase Boston starter Bpobby Ojeda, 9-10, and take a 7-2 lead. With one out, Donnie Scott doubled and Wayne Tolleson tripled. Tolleson scored on Curtis Wilkerson's squeeze bunt that Ojeda misplayed for an error. Billy Sample beat out a bunt and Wilkerson scored on Buddy Bell's single. Steve Crawford replaced Ojeda and Parrish greeted him with an RBI single.

The Rangers scored a run in the first inning. Sample led off with a single and later scored on Parrish's grounder. Texas scored twice in the third on RBI singles by Bell and Parrish.

The Rangers scored their final run in the fifth on Scott's sacrifice fly after Pete O'Brien led off with a single and went to third on George Wright's double.

The Red Sox scored their first two runs off Hough, 12-10, in the fourth. With one out, Tony Armas hit his 32nd home run, Mike Easler followed with a triple and scored on Bill Buckner's single.

Boston added two runs in the eighth on Jim Rice's RBI grounder and another RBI single by Buckner. The setback dropped the Red Sox into fifth place in the American League East, one game behind Baltimore and New York.

Yugoslavia claims bronze

PASADENA, California (AP) — Stjepan Deveric blasted a shot past goalie Franco Tancredi in the 81st minute Friday to give Yugoslavia a 2-1 victory over Italy and the bronze medal in the Olympic soccer tournament.

Deveric's left-footer was one of two goals scored by Yugoslavia in the second half.

Beniamino Vignola put Italy on the scoreboard in the 27th minute when he converted a penalty kick.

Garry Hallberg goes 11 under.

Adams one off pace

Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Gary Hallberg, finding confidence under an Indiana Jones-type hat, fired a 5-under-par 67 in Friday's second round to go to 11-under 133 and take a one-shot lead over Lee Trevino, Midland's John Adams and Payne Stewart in the Buick Open.

Eighty-four players from the starting field of 154 survived the cut at 2-under 142 on the rain-softened 7,014-yard, par-72 layout at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club.

One of the players who failed to survive the cut, however, was British Open champion Seve Ballesteros, making his first appearance in the Buick Open. The muscular Spaniard shot a 72 for a 143 total, missing the cut by one.

The tournament's other "major" winner, U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller was in at 3-under 141 after shooting a 1-over 73 on Friday.

Another casualty was defending champion Wayne Levi who carded rounds of 72-73 and failed to make the cut which came at the low 70 players, plus ties.

The lead heading into the second round had been shared by Hallberg, Adams, Tom Kite and Jodie Mudd.

Mudd came back with a 69 on Friday to go into a four-way tie for third at 135 while Kite soared to a par-72. Also at 135 were Russ Cochran and Scott Hoch.

Kite, who plays out of Midland's Green Tree CC, however, might be forgiven for a lack of concentration. He's waiting anxiously for a phone call from Austin, Texas, where his wife, Christy, is expecting to give birth to twins soon.

"Sometimes twins come early," Kite said.

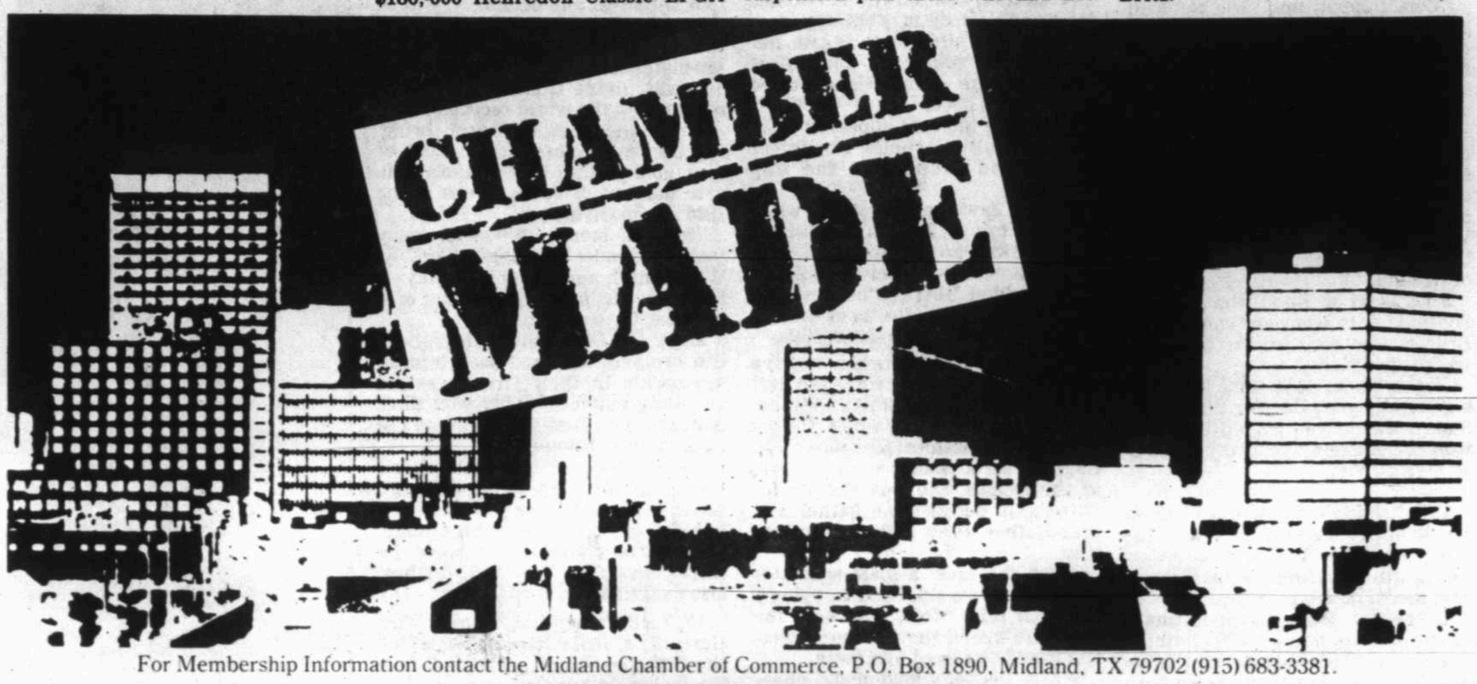

Hallberg, 26, who was the only four-time All-American in golf history while playing at Wake Forest in the late 1970s, won the Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open last year. This year, he finished second at San Diego and was third at the Greater Hartford last month.

Patty Sheehan shows rain-interrupted LPGA lead

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Patty Sheehan carded a 2-under-par 70 — moments before a heavy thunderstorm with vivid lightning forced suspension of play — and took a temporary second-round lead in the $180,-000 Henredon Classic LPGA tournament Friday.

One golfer was nearly hit by lightning during the first delay, and much of the field had not yet teed off when the second deluge struck. Those on the course at the time of suspension plus those who had not started were scheduled to start at 7:30 a.m. Saturday.

Sheehan's two-round total of 7-under-par 137 is three shots better than her nearest competitor Jerilyn Britz.

Rozier slated for Fame hall

From Wire Reports

FOOTBALL— Ten men, including Mike Rozier and Dean Steinkuhler of last year's Nebraska Big Eight champions, will enter the state Football Hall of Fame Sept. 15 at Omaha. The others to be inducted are Ray Richards, Clair Sloan, Frank Meier, Charlie Toogood, George Abel, Vince Ferragamo, Paul Blazevich and former Nebraska Coach E.O. "Jumbo" Stiehm. All are former Cornhusker players except Blazevich, who played for the University of Nebraska at Omaha, and Stiehm.

The USFL champion Philadelphia Stars are high on Baltimore's list of candidates. Stars' owner Myles H. Tanenbaum said he would seriously consider moving his team to Baltimore if the USFL switches from a spring and summer to a fall schedule. Without a schedule change, it is unlikely any USFL team could move to Baltimore because of a new three-year stadium lease between the Orioles and the city, which bans any football team that plays its regular season in the spring...

West Texas State University head football Coach Don Davis says his being removed as athletic director "is a good move." "I didn't want the job in the first place," Davis said after WTSU President Ed Roach announced Davis would step down as AD but remain as head coach. Davis has been athletic director since May 4, 1982, five months after he became head coach. Faculty representative Leon Trekell will assume duties immediately as the Buff's interim AD...

BASEBALL— Warren Cromartie blasted his 28th homer, a two-run shot, lifting the Yomiuri Giants to a 7-6 victory over the Yakult Swallows in Japanese League Friday night.

The Milwaukee Brewers have hired Frank Robinson as batting coach for the rest of the 1984 season. Robinson managed the San Francisco Giants for 3½ seasons, compiling a 268-277 record before being released on Aug. 4. He finished his playing career as a player-manager with Cleveland in 1975-76 before he turned to just managing the Indians in 1977. He had a 186-189 record with the Indians in 2½ seasons. Robinson, 48, will join the Milwaukee today in Chicago...

New York Mets outfielder Darryl Strawberry was "fined heavily" and benched by Manager Davey Johnson prior to Friday night's game with the Pittsburgh Pirates for arriving late at the ballpark. Strawberry was in the original lineup but was replaced by Jerry Martin. Johnson had warned the 1983 National League Rookie of the Year several times during ther season for showing up late...

Pace increases lead in archery

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Darrell Pace of Hamilton, Ohio, increased his lead in Olympic men's archery Friday with a record straight-shooting performance at the 90-meter distance.

China's Li Lingjuan, 18, had a four-point lead at the end of the day in the women's competition.

Pace, who led by 22 points after Thursday's rounds, extended his advantage to 35 points after the 90- and 70-meter men's phases. Japan's Hiroshi Yamamoto replaced American Rich McKinney for second most of the afternoon, but the two ended the day tied at 1,895. Pace's score was 1,930.

Pace scored 601 points with 72 arrows at 90 meters, an average of better than eight points per arrow and a world record for an International Archery Federation event.

An archer scores nine points when he hits the bull's-eye, which is less than 5 inches across, and 10 points when he hits the dot at the center of the bull's-eye.

"A tournament is never locked up until the last arrow," the cautious leader said. "It went casual today. All I tried to do was to shoot what everybody else did."

McKinney started out 16 points ahead of Yamamoto, but suffered his worst day of the competition. He had predicted Friday might be a make-or-break day for him, but didn't expect to do so poorly.

"Sometimes it's a semi-bad day, sometimes it's a real bad day," McKinney said.

Klimke captures Gold in Dressage event

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Reiner Klimke, who led West Germany to the Olympic team dressage championship this week, won the individual gold in the event Friday.

Klimke's team gold was the fourth of his career, but his previous best in individual competition had been a pair of bronzes in dressage, the school figures of classical horsemanship.

Klimke, 48, rode Ahlerich to a score of 1,504. Denmark's Anne-Grethe Jensen, 32, took the silver with a score of 1,442. The bronze went to Otto J. Hofer of Switzerland, who scored 1,364.

Hofer's mount, Limandus, had his own celebration, gobbling down the flowers his owner was given on the medal stand.

Klimke described his horse as the best of his long riding career.

"Such a super horse, to find again, is nearly impossible," said the German lawyer.

"I had to fight" to have the highest scores in both team and individual tests. "I must be very lucky."

The scoring was remarkably unanimous for a sport noted for erratic judging. All five judges scored the medalists in the same order.

After the three medalists took a victory gallop together, Klimke continued with reins in one hand and top hat in the other, performing the difficult movements from the test all the way around the ring. The crowd of 27,600 at Santa Anita Park roared.

The final equestrian event, individual stadium jumping, is scheduled Sunday morning, with the medals to be awarded as part of the closing ceremonies.

Springer takes title

From Staff Reports

Brent Springer of Abilene won the 16-17-18 year old division of the West Texas PGA Junior Tournament of Champions at Midland Country Club Friday, firing a final round 76 for a two-round total of 150 to beat out Phil Behrens of Canyon by four strokes.

The older division played from the blue championships tee boxes while the younger age groups played from the regular tees.

Tony Lara of Sweetwater was a four-stroke winner in the 12-13 division with a 163 on a final round 82.

Memo Valdez, San Angelo, shot a 75-147 for first in the 14-15 division, edging Jeff Hicks, Amarillo, by one stroke.

Pirates 4, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Tony Pena and Johnny Ray cracked RBI doubles in a three-run fourth as Pittsburgh handed New York its sixth straight loss and 13th in the last 16 games, 4-2.

John Tudor, 7-7, and Kent Tekulve combined on a seven-hitter. Tudor struck out four and walked two before needing help in the eighth from Tekulve, who posted his 10th save. Sid Fernandez, 3-1, was the loser.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead after two outs in the third. Mookie Wilson, who had a pair of doubles and a single, lashed his first two-base hit and scored on Kelvin Chapman's single.

But then in the Pirate fourth, Lee Lacy opened with a walk and took third on Jim Morrison's single. Jason Thompson's infield out scored Lacy and Pena and Ray followed with their doubles.

Reds 5, Astros 4

CINCINNATI — Skeeter Barnes' leadoff home run in the 12th inning gave the Cincinnati Reds a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros in the first game of a doubleheader Friday night.

Barnes hit the first pitch from Julio Solano, 0-2, deep over the left field wall. Gary Redus and Ron Oester tied the score 4-4 with consecutive home runs in the seventh.

The Astros took a 4-2 lead in the sixth on Enos Cabell's two-run double off Cincinnati starter Jay Tibbs.

The Reds opened the scoring in the second on Gary Redus' RBI single.

Three straight hits and a throwing error gave the Astros a 2-1 lead in the fifth. Cabell led off with a single and came all the way home when Terry Puhl topped an infield single and third baseman Wayne Krenchicki fired the ball beyond first base into right field. Puhl then scored on Alan Ashby's single.

Cincinnati tied it in the fifth on Dave Parker's RBI double.

Cardinals 3, Phillies 0

PHILADELPHIA — Tom Nieto's sacrifice fly and Willie McGee's two-run homer in the 10th gave St. Louis a 3-0 win over Philadelphia.

Darrell Porter drew a walk off reliever Larry Andersen, 2-2, to open the inning. Then the Phillies brought in Al Holland, who walked Chris Speier and then was charged with a balk that sent Porter to third and Speier to second.

Nieto followed with his fly to score Porter with the tie-breaking run. McGee then laced his fifth homer to give the Cardinals a 3-0 lead.

Bruce Sutter, 4-3, came on in the ninth and pitched two scoreless innings for the win.

Kurt Kepshire pitched the first eight innings for the Cardinals. He did not allow a hit until Ivan DeJesus singled with one out in the fifth and allowed only three hits in all.

Pirates 4, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Tony Pena and Johnny Ray cracked RBI doubles in a three-run fourth as Pittsburgh handed New York its sixth straight loss and 13th in the last 16 games, 4-2.

John Tudor, 7-7, and Kent Tekulve combined on a seven-hitter. Tudor struck out four and walked two before needing help in the eighth from Tekulve, who posted his 10th save. Sid Fernandez, 3-1, was the loser.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead after two outs in the third. Mookie Wilson, who had a pair of doubles and a single, lashed his first two-base hit and scored on Kelvin Chapman's single.

But then in the Pirate fourth, Lee Lacy opened with a walk and took third on Jim Morrison's single. Jason Thompson's infield out scored Lacy and Pena and Ray followed with their doubles.

Braves 3-4, Padres 1-10

ATLANTA — Steve Garvey and Bruce Bochy smashed RBI doubles to highlight a four-run third inning as the San Diego Padres broke a four-game losing streak by defeating the Atlanta Braves 10-4 in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader.

In the first game, the Braves topped the Padres 3-1 behind the strong pitching of Steve Bedrosian and Donnie Moore and back-to-back homers by Claudell Washington and Dale Murphy in the third inning.

The Padres knocked out loser Pete Falcone, 5-7, in the second game with four runs in the third. Bochy doubled home Garry Templeton for the first run, Alan Wiggins singled home another, Garvey's RBI double scored the third run and the fourth scored on a sacrifice fly by Kevin McReynolds.

Andy Hawkins, 7-4, allowed four hits in 6 2-3 innings to gain the victory. Goose Gossage worked the rest of the way, recording his 22nd save.

Washington's 15th homer in the fourth gave the Braves their first run but the Padres made it 5-1 in the fifth on Luis Salazar's RBI single.

The Padres scored three times in the seventh on an RBI groundout by Bochy, an RBI double by McReynolds and a run-scoring triple by Carmelo Martinez.

The Braves scored three times in the seventh on a bases-loaded walk by Gerry Perry and two-run single by Jerry Royster. The Padres made it 9-4 on Martinez's RBI single and Bochy's homer in the ninth brought in the final run.

In the opener, Bedrosian, 8-6, outdueled the Padres' Dave Dravecky, 8-6. He allowed six hits, walked two and struck out four in 8 1-3 innings before needing help from Moore, who posted his 14th save.

Washington homered in the third, his 14th, and Murphy followed with his National League-leading 27th. The Braves made it 3-0 in the fourth on Rafael Ramirez's sacrifice fly.

The Padres scored their only run in the seventh on Alan Wiggins' sacrifice fly.

Armstrong is indicted

DENVER (AP) — Former Denver Broncos running back Otis Armstrong, indicted by a Denver grand jury for illegally obtaining large amounts of a powerful and addictive pain-killing drug, said the seven felony counts will not stop him from getting more of the drug.

"It's not right. They're not considering the injuries I have," Armstrong said of the indictment, issued Thursday. "I'd go to the moon to get this medicine with the pain I have."

Armstrong said he needed pain killers because of numerous broken bones he suffered during his football career, and he suggested the indictment was prompted by a $24 million lawsuit he had filed against two Denver Bronco team doctors.

"You've gotta be kidding. An indictment on me. That's ridiculous," Armstrong said when told of the grand jury's actions by a reporter.

Armstrong said he is in "intense and chronic pain" and takes an average of eight to 10 Percodan tablets a day, as well as other medication. "That's how many it takes to get rid of the pain," he said.

'Brutal' Schultz boys win

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Mark and Dave Schultz, the American brothers who were accused of brutality earlier in the Olympic freestyle wrestling tournament, both won easily Friday, with Dave advancing to the final in his division.

All five Americans who wrestled Friday afternoon won, giving the U.S team a 29-3 record.

The Schultzes were watched by special mat judges because they had injured opponents in earlier bouts and were accused by International Wrestling Association officials of "excessive brutality."

After Mark, the younger of the brothers from Palo Alto, Calif., was ruled to have used an illegal arm lock Thursday in breaking the left elbow of a Turkish wrestler, the victory was reversed and given to the Turk.

Earlier, a Yugoslav wrestler whom Dave, a world champion, had pinned came out of the match with an injured knee. However, the Yugoslav was able to continue in the tournament.

Dave qualified for the 163-pound division gold-medal match against Martin Knosp of West Germany with a 5-0 victory over Han Myung-Woo of South Korea Friday afternoon.

Mark then beat Kenneth Reinsfield of New Zealand 16-7 in a 180.5-pound match. He started slowly and warily, leading only 4-3 after the first three-minute period, but opened up after the break.

The match was interrupted once, however, when one of the off-mat judges warned Schultz about the way he was applying an arm lock.

Bruce Baumgartner of Haledon, N.J., met Bob Molle of Canada in the gold medal super-heavyweight match Friday night.

And, Saban Trstena of Yugoslavia earned a berth in the 114.5-pound championship match Friday night against Kim Jong-Kyu of South Korea by pinning Mahavir Singh of India at 1:47 earlier in the day.

The U.S., which swept all three freestyle gold medals Thursday night, never has won more than four wrestling golds in a single Olympics. Americans won four in 1924 and three in both 1960 and 1972.

Dave Schultz three times was warned about holds around Han's neck, once by the off-mat judge, drawing boos from the partisan crowd at the Anaheim Convention Center. But Han also was warned once for the same thing and the match was generally uneventful.

Neither Schultz appeared in the interview area, but U.S. Coach Dan Gable said Dave Schultz told him as he came off the mat, "They're prejudiced," referring to the officials.

"They were stopping it too quick," Gable added. "Maybe they were trying to prove a point to him (Dave). He's going to have to be allowed to use all his techniques later."

After Mark's match, a New Zealand coach praised Schultz as an "outstanding wrestler."

"He only does what he's got to do to win," said Keith Breeze. "But I think Dave is the better wrestler."

Dave Schultz, now 5-0 in the Olympic tournament, led 4-0 after the first period and was never really challenged by the Korean.

Barry Davis of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, won his second match at 125.5, gaining a victory by technical superiority (12-0) at 1:57, while gold medal favorite Hideaki Tomiyama of Japan, a two-time world champion, stayed unbeaten in the same division with a 12-0 technical superiority triumph over Brian Aspen of Great Britain. The two are in opposite preliminary pools and could meet for the gold Saturday night.

Andy Rein of Stoughton, Wis., went 2-0 at 149.5 with a routine 13-4 victory over Rene Neyer of Switzerland, and Jukka Rauhala of Finland also stayed unbeaten, beating Steven Bailiss of Great Britain 10-3.

In the opposite pool of that weight, You In-Take of South Korea defeated Erwin Knosp of West Germany on technical superiority 14-2 at 3:58 in a battle of unbeatens.

Chargers ready Dallas ambush

SAN DIEGO (AP) — If it had been some other opponent, San Diego Coach Don Coryell might not have devised any particular strategy for tonight's National Football League exhibition game.

But the opponents are the Dallas Cowboys.

"We were just going to work on things we wanted to work on, and we'll still do that," Coryell said. "But with their defense, we've had to work on specific assignments. We can't go out there and just blow assignments."

The Chargers and Cowboys meet in San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium in the second pre-season game for both teams. San Diego nipped the Los Angeles Rams, 17-10, last weekend, while Dallas turned back Green Bay, 31-17.

Coryell and Dallas Coach Tom Landry are expected to give their No. 2 quarterbacks extensive work.

Landry plans to start Gary Hogeboom instead of Danny White, while Coryell says Dan Fouts will see only limited action, with Ed Luther getting most of the playing time.

"We have to find out who's good enough to play," said Coryell. "We're going to come up with the best team we can."

Cowboys

The Chargers may take the field without two of their starting offensive linemen and their top draft choice.

Tackle Billy Shields and center Don Macek, both seasoned veterans, walked out of camp earlier this week because of contract disputes. Their status for Saturday night's game was uncertain.

Mossy Cade of Texas, the Chargers' No. 1 draft choice, never reported to summer camp. Cade, a cornerback, is dissatisfied with San Diego's offer of $1.6 million for four years, and wants a contract valued at about $2.4 million.

Meanwhile, the Cowboys are in the process of filling holes created by retirement. Wide receiver Drew Pearson, offensive lineman Pat Donovan, defensive end Harvey Martin, tight end Billy Joe Dupree and fullback Robert Newhouse all called it quits after last season.

Dallas also is without the services of defensive tackle Randy White, who left camp following a contract dispute.

Oilers, Jets show off quarterback decisions

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers and New York Jets will put quarterbacking decisions on display tonight in the Astrodome when the two teams meet in a National Football League exhibition game.

The Jets sent veteran quarterback Richard Todd to the New Orleans Saints and put the job up for grabs to 1983 No. 1 draft choice Ken O'Brien and veteran backup Pat Ryan.

The Oilers signed quarterback Warren Moon in the off-season and expect the former Canadian Football League star to rally the team from last year's 2-14 record.

O'Brien was pronounced the starter prior to last week's pre-season opener and Moon has been the presumed starter since he donned an Oiler uniform.

Both will be in starting positions for the 8 p.m. kickoff.

O'Brien completed 14 of 27 passes for 166 yards in his first pro start last week in a 21-15 loss to the Cincinnati Bengals.

Houston Oilers

"Ken O'Brien just needs to get a lot of work," Jets Coach Joe Walton said. "His biggest pluses against Cincinnati were his toughness (he was sacked six times) and he didn't miss any keys. Given time, he should stack up pretty good."

O'Brien will play three quarters against the Oilers and Moon likely will play at least a half following last week's rough beginning in a 30-17 loss to Tampa Bay.

Moon completed eight of 20 passes for 112 yards and two interceptions while backup Oliver Luck hit five of six passes for 43 yards and directed both Oiler touchdown drives.

The Oilers will have at least five players sidelined with knee injuries including starting left guard Mike Munchak, who underwent arthroscopic surgery earlier this week and Earl Campbell, recovering from a similar operation.

Police block spectators after railing collapse at Cal State-Fullerton.

Four hospitalized in Olympic accident

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — A dozen people tumbled about seven feet when a railing broke as a crowd pressed to catch flowers tossed by athletes after an Olympic team handball medals ceremony at Cal-State Fullerton, officials said.

Four people were taken to Martin Luther Hospital in Anaheim late Thursday, but were released within a matter of hours, according to hospital spokeswoman Betty Bartley.

"All of them were discharged early in the morning," Betty Bartley of Martin Luther said today. "All the injuries were similar; just cuts and bruises."

"About 12 people fell, some on top of others," said police Sgt. Larry Lewis. "Some got up and walked away. All were treated and stabilized by the Olympic medical staff at the venue."

The accident occurred about 11:40 p.m. Thursday as spectators at Titan Gymnasium leaned to catch flowers tossed by medal-winning athletes after the Yugoslav women's team beat China in the women's final.

The accident occurred on a temporary structure. Only the railing and a facade holding a banner fell.

About 3,000 people attended the event and spectators had gathered 15 deep behind the 10-foot section of pipe metal railing that gave way, said Tom Megonigal, the commissioner of handball.

"It just couldn't hold that many people pushing against each other, nothing could have held. People just got carried away in the height of the celebration," Megonigal said.

Some of the spectators fell on two Olympic officials who were on the ground level, he said.

Nothing special these Olympics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sacajawea Hunter's friends back east in Washington thought she was going to the Special Olympics. She set them straight.

"It means a lot to me to be in the Olympics," she said Friday. "People asked me before I came here if I was going to the Special Olympics. I told them, 'No, I'm going to the Olympics, where all the stars are.' "

The 14-year-old amputee is one of 16 wheelchair athletes from eight nations invited to take part Saturday in the first wheelchair track events ever included in the Games.

By Saturday night, Sacajawea and her teammates hope to be stars themselves.

"We'd like to send a message loud and clear that we're athletes, and we're as serious about what we do as any other people here," added Sharon Hedrick of Champaign, Ill., a paraplegic.

The 16 athletes were chosen from among those with the best times at the International Games for the Disabled earlier this summer in New York.

Garnett starts for Texas

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Texas Class 5A all-state quarterback Rex Lamberti, with three starters from the Class 5A championship game in his backfield, will give Oklahoma all-stars a stern test tonight in the annual Maskat Shrine Temple football game.

Lamberti, of Odessa Permian, will direct the Texas all-stars as the Lone Star State team seeks revenge from last year's 27-3 Oklahoma victory.

In the backfield with him will be Chris Pryor and Chip Lambert of Converse Judson and Isaac Garnett of Midland Lee. Judson beat Lee 25-21 last December for the Class 5A title.

Pryor was the most highly recruited running back in Texas last year, gaining more than 2,800 yards and breaking the single-season Class 5A rushing record held by Craig James.

Oil Bowl

The Oil Bowl, in its 47th year, pits all-star high school football players from Texas against those from Oklahoma. The Texans own a 29-8-1 series edge.

The starting backfield for Oklahoma will include quarterback Reggie Smith of Tulsa McLain, tailback Brento Vann of Putnam City, fullback Tim Zimmer of Cache and wingback Neil Galbraith of Guthrie.

Texas also has punch in running back Milton Williams of Post and fullback Rodney Murphy of Lewisville. Williams gained 5,053 yards in three seasons and scored 86 touchdowns.

Oklahoma coaches had to fill their 27-player roster this year without recruits from the state's three major colleges.

Oklahoma University, Oklahoma State and Tulsa all began fall workouts this week and wouldn't allow their recruits to play in the Oil Bowl.

Central State University of Oklahoma, the 1982 NAIA Division I national champion, has seven recruits playing in the Oil Bowl. The University of Texas at Arlington has six of its signees on the Texas roster and Texas Tech has five recruits playing.

Coaches for Texas this year are Leo Brittain of Vernon, Louis Kelley of Lubbock Estacado and Jim Bateman of Denton. Oklahoma coaches are Ron McHenry of Coweta, Mike York of Hobart and Charles Witty of Stroud.

Proceeds go to crippled-children charities in both states.

Oddibe McDowell suffers injury in kitchen fall

ARLINGTON (AP) — Oddibe McDowell, the starting center fielder for the U.S. Olympic baseball team and the No. 1 draft choice of the Texas Rangers, is believed to have broken the ring finger on his left hand when he slipped in his kitchen Thursday night in Hollywood, Fla.

Japanese czar wishes Yankees would Go Home

By CLYDE HABERMAN
New York Times News Service

TOKYO — What some people think of as the great American pastime has too many Americans to suit the commissioner of Japanese baseball.

His message of recent months has been blunt, best summarized by an old wall graffito not seen in these parts lately: Yankee, Go Home.

Not that the commissioner, Takeso Shimoda, would ever use language so rough. He is an elegant man, a former ambassador to Washington and a retired supreme court justice. Nor has he translated his desire into a direct order yet.

Nevertheless, Shimoda believes that the two dozen Americans playing in Japan's Central and Pacific Leagues have overstayed their welcome. To his mind, they are overpriced and undertalented, a collection of over-the-hill major leaguers and never-quite-made-it minor leaguers who are not better than their Japanese teammates. Certainly, he says, their skills do not warrant salaries that are three or four times those given to Japanese players.

THIS YEAR'S favorite example for disenchanted Japanese is the $800,000 a year said to be paid to Reggie Smith, formerly of the Boston Red Sox and the Los Angeles Dodgers, now of the Yomiuri Giants and possessor of a batting average last spotted in the .225 neighborhood.

"After the war, we had to start from zero," Shimoda said in a recent interview. "We had to improve the technical level of Japanese players, and that's why we had to hire American players. It succeeded."

The commissioner offered a view heard in many other fields these days — the notion that Japan has nothing to learn anymore from the United States. "There's not much difference between the American and Japanese players, technically," he said, adding: "I think it's better to have only Japanese players on the teams."

FIFTY-THREE years after Lefty O'Doul and Charley Gehringer brought big-league ball to Tokyo, Americans would seem to be an entrenched part of the Japanese game. Each of the 12 major league teams has at least one American and nearly all have the allowable limit of two. Most were recruited from the minor leagues, although this year's crop includes a few names recognizable to major league fans, including — besides Smith — Warren Cromartie, Bump Wills, Steve Ontiveros and Leron Lee.

But these ballplayers, like foreigners in general, tend to be tolerated more than adored. And Shimoda is not the first Japanese to point out that from 1965 to 1973 the Yomiuri Giants had no foreigners, yet managed nine straight times to win the Japan Series, equivalent to the World Series.

Now the Giants have two former major leaguers from the United States, Smith and Cromartie, and they have staggered all year, barely playing .500 ball and lagging far behind in the Central League. Blaming the Americans, particularly the highly paid Smith, is almost a hobby for some Japanese.

While this finger-pointing is misdirected, the Giants are nonetheless in trouble. It would be hard to overstate the blow this has been to the national psyche.

For many people, the Giants are Japan, symbolizing all the presumed virtues of hard work, dedication, clean living, group loyalty and modesty. These are, it might be added, virtues that the Americans are often judged to be sorely lacking.

The Giants have won the Central League pennant 23 times in the last 33 seasons, and the Japan Series 16 times. Polls show that half of all Japanese identify themselves as Giants' fans, a front-runner mentality that contrasts strongly with the hatred that so many Americans felt toward the invincible New York Yankees of the 1950s.

KATSUMI TANAKA of Tokyo was so upset over the Giants' poor play, the local police say, that he set fire to 15 of his neighbors' houses. The less rabid suffer, too. When the Giants lose, the 21 daily sports papers in Japan find that circulation drops the next day by 10 to 15 percent because fans cannot bear to relive the defeat. Those losses are almost inescapable because all 130 regular-season Giant games are broadcast on national television.

What makes this year even rougher is that it is Sadaharu Oh's first as team manager. Oh is Japan's Hank Aaron and Babe Ruth rolled into one, a national hero and the world-record holder with a career 868 home runs. He has yet to hit his managerial stride, and many fans fear he is unsure of himself.

Still, they troop faithfully to Tokyo's Korakuen Stadium, hoping the team will snap out of it. Usually, they sit in silence, although that is true of almost all baseball fans here, regardless of allegiance. Unlike in the United States, bursts of invectives from the stands are frowned upon. The Japanese are quieter, except during brief periods of authorized cheering each inning when they follow whistle-blowing leaders and chant in unison.

There is not much time at those moments to worry about the place of foreigners in the Japanese game. However, Shimoda is not without his supporters. Among those who have expressed open scorn for the foreigners is Tatsuro Hirooka, who managed the Seibu Lions to Japan Series victories in 1982 and 1983.

"It's nothing personal," he was quoted recently as saying, "I just don't like American ballplayers."

Robert Whiting, an authority on the Japanese game and author of a book called "The Chrysanthemum and the Bat," reported that Hirooka had complained of the Americans, "They're only here because they are no longer wanted in the United States."

WHAT THE Seibu manager omitted is that whereas some of the foreigners are indeed burn-out cases, more than a few dominate the game. Greg Wells, once with the Minnesota Twins farm system and known here universally as "Boomer," is a triple-crown threat and a big reason the Hankyu Braves lead the Pacific League. With two-thirds of the season over, the four top hitters in that league are Americans.

An unkind observer might also mention to Hirooka that his champion Lions have lolled in fifth place all season. One factor may be the loss of Terry Whitfield, a top hitter last year, who returned to the United States to attempt what thus far has been a desultory comeback with the Dodgers.

"They don't have anywhere near major league skills here," said Tim Ireland, who played briefly for the Kansas City Royals and is now with the Hiroshima Carp. But Ireland sees other virtues in the Japanese game, especially a "group cohesiveness" that to him contrasts favorably with the Americans' tendency to selfishness.

"You forfeit individual expression," he said, "but you gain in production and nonconfusion."

By acclamation, the all-time No. 1 "Ugly American" remains Joe Pepitone, who played briefly for the Yakult Atoms in 1973. For a while, "Pepitone" was a synonym in Japan for foulup. This year's unhappiest player was Don Money, who left for home after playing about a month.

Seve, Greg stand in way of Watson sweep dream

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two foreign stars, Seve Ballesteros and Greg Norman, are the principle obstacles in Tom Watson's drive to complete a career sweep of golf's Big Four tournaments.

"I want the Slam. That's my big goal. And it'll remain my big goal until I get it," said Watson, who has never won the Professional Golfers Association title.

The tournament for that championship, the last of the season's Big Four events that also include the Masters, U.S. and British Opens, begins Thursday with a field of 150 chasing a purse of $700,000.

The site is the Shoal Creek Golf Club, a lush, gently rolling 7,145-yard Jack Nicklaus-designed layout that is being played in major competition for the first time since it opened in 1977. All fairways are lined by forests and it is laced by streams and creeks.

Nicklaus, 44, holder of a record-matching five PGA titles, will be among those testing the course for the first time, but most of the attention will center on Watson's effort to join the elite group that has scored career sweeps of the Big Four titles.

Only Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Gary Player and Nicklaus hold membership in that exclusive club.

Watson won the Masters in 1977 and 1981, the U.S. Open in 1982 and was denied a sixth British Open title by Spain's Ballesteros last month at St. Andrews.

A three-time winner this season, Watson also was second in both the Masters and British Opens. Despite that impressive record, he knows his position as the dominant figure in world golf is under attack.

"I welcome the challenge," he said.

Watson, Ballesteros and Norman of Australia appear to be among those most likely to succeed in the chase for a $125,000 winner's check.

Ballesteros, who had an indifferent season in the United States, harnessed his enormous talent for a spectacular victory in the British Open, pushing his list of major titles to four.

Norman, a British Open contender, won twice in the United States but lost both the U.S. Open and Western Open in playoffs.

Another foreign star, Bernhard Langer of Germany, has credentials to prove he's capable of winning the PGA but he failed to qualify for a place in the field. Langer tied with Watson for second in the British Open, won the Dutch Open the following week and made it two in a row with another victory in the Irish Open.

That burst placed him atop the European Order of Merit and gave him well over $100,000 in European earnings for the season.

But it came too late — after the July 1 cut-off date for consideration for inclusion in the PGA field this season.

Hal Sutton, who has played well without winning this season, is the defending champion. Other major figures include Masters title-holder Ben Crenshaw, U.S. Open king Fuzzy Zoeller, and Tom Kite, a two-time winner this year.

Other multiple 1984 winners are Peter Jacobsen, Bob Eastwood and Gary Koch.

Larry Nelson and David Graham, each a former U.S. Open and PGA champion, two-time PGA title-holder Ray Floyd, two-time U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin, Andy Bean, Bruce Lietzke, Curtis Strange, Cal Peete, Craig Stadler, Gil Morgan, Fred Couples, Payne Stewart and Lanny Wadkins are major contenders.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by ABC.

U.S. Cagers whip Spain

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The United States men's basketball team won its first Olympic gold medal since 1976 Friday night by crushing Spain 96-65.

Michael Jordan snapped out of his two-game slump and led the Americans with 20 points as they captured their ninth gold medal in 10 trys.

The Americans boycotted the 1980 games in Moscow where Yugoslavia claimed the gold.

The United States ran its record to 8-0 in this tournament and 77-1 overall. It was the 17th consecutive American triumph in the Olympics.

Spain finished with a 6-2 record for the silver and Yugoslavia won the bronze Thursday night by beating Canada 88-82.

Boxers

He was knocked down twice by Puerto Rican Aristides Gonzalez of Pueto Rican in the second round, but got up to hurt Gonzalez in the third round and win a decision. He applies constant pressure and hits hard, and more accurately than Hill. Pick: Shin by decision.

178

Anton Josipovic, Yugoslavia, wins on walkover.

201

Henry Tillman, United States, vs. Willie deWit, Canada. Tillman is a straight-up boxer who circles and jabs. He throws a good left-right to the head and is effective at throwing it while moving backwards. DeWit, the world champion, is a thunderous puncher, but a mediocre boxer. However, he throws lots of punches and doesn't just look to land a big one. Neither has been over impressive here, and it should be very close, possibly controversial. Pick: deWit by decision.

Super Heavyweight (over 201)

Tyrell Biggs, United States, vs. Francesco Damiani, Italy. The 6-foot-5 Biggs has scored 4-1 decision over Damiani in the final of the world championships tournament in 1982 and at a World Championships' Challenge Match here last April 13. Biggs moves well for a big man and throws one of the best left jabs in the business — amateur or pro. He also throws a quick right hand. Damiani is a brawler, a fighter who likes to pressure and opponent and bang away inside. Damiani's style is perfect for Biggs' point-scoring jab. Pick: Biggs by decision.

Video parlor offers films, comfort, privacy

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — When Jacque Spangler and her teen-age friends want to see a movie, they pay to go to a darkened, soundproof viewing room, pop the film of their choice into a video-cassette recorder and relax on a couch to watch.

The movie companies hate them, but entrepreneur John Leonard says his video parlors are here to stay.

The Nickelodean Video Showcase has changed the movie-going experience for hundreds of residents of this central Pennsylvania college town, said Leonard, of Erie.

If he can win a battle over royalties with eight Hollywood film companies, Leonard believes his formula can catch on in scores of other communities as well.

The parlor in State College, which opened in 1982, combines the privacy of 44 rooms of varying sizes with the ability to choose from any of 300 top films to be seen on 19-inch television screens.

A customer pays $1.95 for the film rental, plus an additional fee for the viewing room. Prices range from $2 for a one-person booth the size of a large walk-in closet, to $32 for a room designed to accomodate 16 people, according to assistant manager Andrew Miller.

Leonard, who owns a similar shop in nearby Lock Haven, said he hopes to open up to 200 franchise outlets in the next three years, mostly in the East.

But first he said he must win a suit with the film companies, which filed the action in federal court in Williamsport last spring, claiming Leonard is getting rich through illegal public showings of their movies.

"Mr. Leonard has a store with little rooms of varying sizes and the public can walk in and pick a picture they want to see," said Burton Hanft, an attorney for the plaintiff companies.

"But the law is very clear. Why should he be different than the theater down the street? It's great business if you can sell soap and cereal and never pay the person who supplies it," he said. The suit, which is pending, seeks an undetermined amount of damages.

Leonard, who also owns a video rental store in Erie that does not have viewing rooms, maintains that what his customers do with their rented films is their own business.

The viewer places the movie in the machine, not the employee, and customers are under no obligation to rent rooms to watch their movies, Leonard said. The rooms may be rented to view films from outside the store.

"We've bought the movies from the studios and we are renting them to the general public for a private, not a public performance," Leonard said.

Although he claims to be competing more with home entertainment systems than movie houses, Leonard's parlor retains many of the amenities of the neighborhood theater.

There is licorice, soda and buttered popcorn. Instead of an ushers shining flashlights in couples' faces, an attendant periodically patrols outside the rooms, making sure there are no disturbances.

"It's not a replacement of movie theaters. They have the big screen, the stereo sound and the first-runs. This is something different," Leonard said.

The Nickolodean can get a film from 30 days to four months after its release in theaters. The parlor's more popular films this summer include "Raiders Of The Lost Ark" and "Porky's."

People under 17-years-old are not permitted to rent R-rated films at the parlor, and no X-rated films are offered, said Leonard.

"We've been here three times this week. It's a popular hangout spot for double-dates," said Miss Spangler, 15.

Leonarda Dolan of State College said her ex-husband takes their teen-age children to the Nickolodean because he can plan the outings around his own schedule — instead of around showing times at theaters.

"This is how he spends a lot of his visiting time. It's really the convenience of it," she said.

The film studios challenging the Nickelodean are Columbia, Walt Disney, Embassy, MCA-Universal, MGM-United Artists, Paramount, 20th Century Fox and Warner Bros.

Bartender offers drinks with presidential flavor

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Bartender Steven Austin knows that one man's pleasure is another man's poison, so he's concocted two different alcholic cocktails to cool this year's presidential campaign fever.

The ingredients were suggested by readers of his syndicated advice column, "Straight Up with Steven the Bartender," he says.

For Democratic fans of Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro, Austin's cocktail offers sugar and spice and something different: vanilla ice cream for Mondale's cold Minnesota winters and Italian sweet vermouth and amaretto liquor in honor of Mrs. Ferraro's Italian ancestry. Blend with ice and garnish with blueberry or strawberry for a red, white and blue finish.

Strong but smooth with a touch of glitter is the GOP recipe, Austin says.

The main ingredients are tequila and triple sec, which are popular in Texas, Vice President George Bush's home state. Shake with California orange juice and top with California champagne for nose-tickling "glitter" and garnish the glass with a slice of orange for President Reagan's home state.

Have you heard about the fellow who said to a psychiatrist: "I have one of the finest homes in town, a swimming pool, a Cadillac and a country club membership."

The psychiatrist asked, "What's your problem?"

The man said, "I make only $75.00 a week!"

Faith Temple to hold 'Spiritual Explosion'

Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell St., will hold its 10th Annual Spiritual Explosion Monday through Aug. 19. Services will be held at 7:30 p.m. and seminars at 11 a.m.

The service will begin with a musical Monday, featuring gospel groups and choirs from Midland and the surrounding area. Special guest for the musical is recording artist and soloist Timothy Wright of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Guest speakers for the week include the Rev. Charles Blake, Los Angeles, Calif., Tuesday; the Rev. Charles Rodgers, Memphis, Tenn., Wednesday; the Rev. Jess Cortez, Amarillo, Thursday; Bishop Harold Benjamin, Philadelphia, Pa., Friday and Sunday; and the Rev. Richard White, New Orleans, La., Saturday.

Each night, the Rev. Eddie Jernagin, Los Angeles, Calif., and the Rev. John Price, Midland, will conduct the inspirational service. The Rev. Lemuel Thuston, Kansas City, Mo., will conduct the daily seminar.

The Explosion will be highlighted by a Founder's Banquet at 5:30 p.m. Aug. 18. The Rev. Daniel Vestal, pastor of First Baptist Church, Midland, will be the speaker. The banquet will be held at the Holiday Inn Holidome.

The Rev. W.C. Kenan

The pastor of Faith Temple Church, the Rev. W.C. Kenan, invites the public to attend.

Big-city folks riled over 'plot' to move Episcopal headquarters

RELIGION

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Once again, some Episcopalians are irked at "815," but this time, it's not the outlanders but the big-city folks that are riled. They suspect a plot to move their church's national offices to mid-America.

The Episcopal Church headquarters, commonly called "815" because that is its address on Manhattan's Second Avenue, like most denominational centers, gets the heat for whatever is bothering the members.

But in this case, it was the potential sale of that imposing, oft-belabored, 11-story edifice that brought the outcries, not from the hinterlands, but from nearby, metropolitan legions.

Protesting a decision by the church's executive council to sell the structure, the New York diocesan council called the move hasty and shrouded "in absolute secrecy," with no chance for wider consideration.

"What has been done can be undone," the New Yorkers insisted, adding that the action reopened the long-argued "problems and complications" about relocating church heaquarters somewhere in the middle of the country.

East Coast Episcoplians generally prefer to keep the center in the East.

Facing their protest and another from the church's second province, including New York state, New Jersey, Haiti and the Virgin Islands, officials have put a conditional brake on the impending sale.

Presiding Bishop John A. Allin and the negotiators said they decided that authorization of the sale would be subject to the next executive council meeting Oct. 29, requiring "a second passage" then.

That would give everyone five months to consider it, they said.

But they said this wouldn't bar an interim agreement, contingent on council approval. They said they had received a $26 million offer for the building only a week before the previous meeting, with no time for advance notification.

However, by a 21-to-13 vote, the interim governing council had authorized negotiators to complete the sale, on condition that the church be permitted to occupy 70 percent of the building on a rental basis for four years afterward.

Now, a temporary hold has been put on making the deal final until next fall.

The church's second province had objected that any decision to sell should await findings of a new feasibility study on moving headquarters to some other place.

Such a move has been pondered for years by the 3-million-member denomination. Previous studies have considered sites such as Kansas City, Mo., Dallas and Denver, but recommended that church offices be kept in New York.

A succession of governing Episcopal conventions have upheld the current location, mainly on the basis of better communications with other denomnations and with the world-wide Anglican communion of which the church is a part.

But for many Episcopalians outside the East, "a more central place for the church headquarters would allow more people to feel tied in to it," said the Rev. George Regas, pastor of All Saints Church in Pasadena, Calif.

RELIGION in brief

Kelview Heights to present 'Enriched Living' seminar

Verna Birkey will present a special workshop "Enriched Living for Women" at Kelview Heights Baptist Church, North Big Spring Street at Scharbauer Drive, Aug. 24-25.

Mrs. Birkey is the author of "You Are Very Special" and "You: A People Helper," in addition to compiling several books and casettes, including, "Input for a Rejoicing Heart," "Building Happy Memories," "God's Promise of Peace" and "The Mother's Answer Book."

Workshop hours are Aug. 24 from 7 to 10 p.m. and Aug. 25 from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. For more information call Deanna Dunn, 694-1356, or Lana Maxey, 694-3415.

'Daughters' to hold lunch

Christian Daughters is holding its monthly salad luncheon at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday at Energas Flame Room, 2402 W. Wall Ave.

Interested parties are invited to attend. For nursery reservations at Christian Life Center call 697-1227, 683-3069 or 684-9958. All children need to bring a sack lunch.

Christian Daughters is a non-denominational group.

Children to hold program

A program will be presented at 9:45 a.m. Sunday by the children who have attended the Vacation Bible School at Permian Basin Church of the Nazarene, 2813 W. Loop 250 North.

The school was held this week. The public is invited to attend the special presentation.

Answers not everything

GLORIETA, N.M. (AP) — A Southern Baptist career-guidance executive says some preachers bring unnecessary stress on themselves because they think they have to have an answer for everything.

"Frequently we give an answer, even when we don't have one," says the Rev. Brooks Faulkner, superviser of the career-guidance section of the Baptist Sunday School Board.

"We need to learn to say 'I don't knop,'" Faulkner said. "To deal with stress you have to learn to live with ambiguity."

Jews appeal to Israelis

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of American Reform Judaism has appealed to leaders of Israel's two major political parties to reject "pressure from the Orthodox parties" to amend Israel's Law of Return to gain support in forming a coalition government.

"Jewish unity must never become a bargaining chip on the table of political power," Rabbi Alexander Schindler said in identical cables to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Labor party leader Shimon Peres, designated this week after a close election to form a new government.

The present Law of Return gives every Jew the right to enter Israel and receive automatic citizenship.

Orthodox political leaders want to change the law to accept only conversions approved by Orthodox rabbis.

Amish won't hang reflectors on buggies

CANTON, Minn. (AP) — Normally, the Amish of southeastern Minnesota are a law-abiding people. They help strangers, wave to passers-by and make no trouble for their neighbors.

But many of these plain, innocent farm folk have become lawbreakers because they refuse to hang bright orange reflectors on the backs of their horse-drawn buggies.

The orange triangle is required by Minnesota law for all vehicles that move slower than 25 mph on public roads. It must measure 16 inches from tip to base and be visible from 600 feet, day or night.

The Amish believe they are under scriptural injunction to avoid bright colors. So they are routinely fined for driving their signless buggies along the roads in this hilly farming region near the Iowa border.

No major accidents involving Amish buggies have been reported recently in the area, but Fillmore County Sheriff Don Gudmundson said, "No one who lives in those communities won't tell you there's been some close calls — particularly at night."

Asked why his people won't display the orange triangles, Amish spokesman Dennis Miller said simply, "It's our religion." Miller, at 69 the oldest member of an Amish community of about 50 families, said the Bible instructs the Amish to wear subdued colors — dark blues, grays and blacks.

In an age of space shuttles and microcomputers, the Amish cling to the horse-and-buggy ways of their ancestors. Their farm homes are lighted by kerosene lamps, they use telephones only in emergencies and their buggy wheels are rimmed with wood and steel instead of rubber.

"We just never change," said Miller, a gray-bearded man who wears a straw hat, a blue shirt and dark pants. Amish women wear long dresses and bonnets, also of a dark hue.

The Amish moved from Ohio to southeastern Minnesota 10 years ago, brought by advertisements for uncrowded farmland. Miller estimated their number at between 250 and 300.

So far this year, the State Patrol has issued 18 tickets to Amish drivers on federal or state highways in Fillmore County, according to Capt. Richard Wiberg, commander of the local district.

"In our business, we can't take issue with the way the law is written. We just have to go ahead and enforce it," he said.

While a few younger Amish are displaying the orange reflectors in defiance of religious leaders, Miller said others are talking about going to jail rather than paying the fines.

"It would be a disgrace (to go to jail), but maybe we should," said Miller, who has been ticketed once for driving without the sign.

The problem has been particularly vexing for Gudmundson, who said he has a good relationship with the Amish. "I hesitate to tamper with a man's religion," the sheriff said. "But I'm not in a position to let some people violate the law."

Amish, Mennonites raise new barn for neighbor

BLACK EARTH, Wis. (AP) — Amish and Mennonites — some friends, others strangers — traveled hundreds of miles to raise a new horse barn in just one day to replace the structure Philip Skalet lost to a killer tornado.

Thursday morning, there was nothing but a concrete block foundation and a deck where Skalet's barn stood before the twister devastated the nearby community of Barneveld.

At one point, two dozen men straddled the barn's rafters, the clank, clank, clank of hammers striking nails filling the hot, sunny day as some 75 helpers of varying experience worked busily.

In an hour and a half the walls were up, the shy Amish in their broad-brimmed straw hats seeming to know what to do by instinct. Some said it was their fifth Wisconsin barn-raising of the season.

"Boy, these guys know what they are doing. There's not a moment of hesitation," Ethel Skalet, a Lutheran, said in wonder while her husband was off scouring nearby communities for more nails.

By suppertime, the improvised crew of Amish from Wisconsin, less-strict Mennonites from throughout the Midwest and Canada, and many of Skalet's neighbors had raised a barn measuring 84 feet by 30 feet.

"This is the way America should be," said Wesley Heddings of Muscoda, one of the local Mennonites who helped organize the barn-raising.

"The trouble in so many places is that people don't take one hour, one day to help others," Heddings said. "It's where you put your values."

Heddings said the outpouring of volunteer labor shows something good can come from tragedy.

"It has been proven a lot in the last eight weeks," he said. "It's been an inspiration to me."

"You've got to give them a lot of credit; the old spirit is there," gray-haired Albert Bakken of Black Earth said as the barn took shape. "They don't ask anything in return except something to eat and a place to sleep."

The Amish generally came from Wisconsin. Mennonites came from Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Manitoba.

The June 8 tornado blew Skalet's old barn up the side of a Dane County hill and claimed nine lives in Barneveld, an Iowa County community of 600 persons which lost most of its homes and businesses.

Catholics urge stronger food stamp program

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. Catholic Conference has urged legislation to strengthen the food stamp program, calling it the single most effective way of meeting the nutritional needs of many citizens.

The Rev. Bryan Hehir, the conference's social development secretary, said in a letter to a House subcommittee that the "needs of the hungry in America are far too great to be handled by voluntary agencies alone."

POSITIVE THINKING

New ideas aren't always impossible

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

A woman says, "I saw in the paper that so-and-so died of a heart attack."

She is asked, "What paper?"

She replies, "I don't rightly know what paper, but I saw it in the paper." She quotes the item verbatim.

A search of the files of newspapers discloses no such item. Inquiry establishes that the person in question has not had a heart attack. But, three days later, that person dies of heart failure and the newspaper story reads exactly as the woman had quoted in advance.

Black magic? No — but could it be precognition?

A little four-year-old girl, during World War I, calls to her mother: "Mommy, Daddy is choking to death! He is down a deep hole!"

Later investigation ascertains that the child's father, at that exact moment, had been down in a cellar under gas attack.

Witchcraft? No — but possibly clairvoyance!

A middle-aged man is driving his car along a New Jersey highway when he feels a terrible pain in his chest. It is so excruciating that he stops his car, thinking he is suffering a heart attack, but eventually it passes.

A few hours later, he learns that his son, driving in Colorado, had been killed at that exact moment, his chest crushed by the wheel of his car.

Coincidence? Not necessarily — but maybe telepathy!

This is the kind of story that was first investigated by Dr. J.B. Rhine of Duke Univesity, who pioneered in the development of the science called parapsychology, the systematic study of mental activity perceived by means other than the physical senses. What are these things that he describes as precognition, clairvoyance, telepathy?

What can they prove? Well, Dr. Rhine believed that these are only some of the powers of the human mind ranging the universe without obstruction of space and time.

Of course, there are always people who will respond to such ideas with the flat assertion, "It's impossible." Yet their only reason for saying it is impossible is that they have never heard of it before. I once met the man who developed the automobile radio. The banker he went to for the loan needed in getting car radios into production told him: "I never heard of such a preposterous idea! The time will never come when they will have radios in automobiles!" That is how an unimaginative mind often responds to anything that is new.

I believe that there is something in man beyond the physical, beyond the material. As Joseph Wood Krutch pointed out, if man is really the mere inevitable culmination of an improbable chemical reaction, then the fact that he has been able to trace himself back to it is indeed remarkable.

There is more to man than that — and it is always good news to know that science is confirming what faith has always known!

Russian Orthodox priest also fights fires voluntarily

LIMESTONE, W.Va. (AP) — Demetrios Serfes spends most of his time saving souls at St. Xenia's Russian Orthodox Church, but when the siren sounds at the Limestone Volunteer Fire Department, his work takes a more worldly form.

Serfes, 38, sheds his priest's cap and robe, fetches his firefighter's hat and jacket from the trunk of his car and heads up a winding road to the firehouse a few hundred yards away.

"It could happen four times a week at any time of the night — most fires seem to occur after midnight," he says.

The unpredictability can cause problems for Serfes, such as the time the siren blared on Holy Friday this year.

"We were having a service. At 7:30, the alarm rings and everybody looked at me and asked if I was leaving."

Threats won't keep woman from trial

DALLAS (AP) — The wife of the man accused of killing six people in a north Dallas restaurant says she plans to be at her husband's side when he goes on trial — despite the advice of friends and family and threats against her life.

Joanne O'Brien Belechheb was separated from her husband, Abdelkrim Belechheb, when six people were killed and another was wounded in a barrage of gunfire June 29 at Ianni's Restaurant and Club.

Belechheb was arrested a few hours after the attack, which witnesses said apparently was triggered by a woman's refusal to dance with a man.

Mrs. Belechheb said Thursday that she plans to stand by her husband, despite threats on her life and the urgings of family members and friends to "have nothing more to do with him."

"I feel a moral obligation to help him all I can," she said.

Mrs. Belechheb also said the Dallas County public defender's office has not tried to obtain psychiatric records from two Belgian hospitals where her husband was treated in 1967 and 1974.

"Justice cannot be served unless these records are introduced," Mrs. Belechheb said.

Public defenders have said they plan to use an insanity plea to defend Belechheb, who is charged with six counts of murder and one of attempted murder.

Chief Public Defender Ralph Taite said he was under a gag order and not allowed to comment on attempts to obtain psychiatric records.

Thirteen inmates indicted on various charges

ANGLETON (AP) — Thirteen Texas prison inmates, including seven accused of participating in a May 1 riot, have been indicted in Brazoria County on charges ranging from riot to murder.

The seven, indicted on charges of rioting and criminal mischief, were allegedly involved in a disturbance at the Ramsey II unit near Rosharon during which 190 windowpanes were broken.

Guards using teargas subdued the rioters, and no one was seriously injured.

Named in those indictments were Anthony Anastasiades, 30, serving 30 years for a Milam County burglary; Eduardo Miguel Chavarria, 25, serving eight years for a Chambers County robbery; and Billy Keith Evans, 24, serving 10 years for a Gaines County aggravated robbery.

Others were Georgio Lopez, 39, serving life for attempted murder and aggravated robbery in Polk County; Michael Ray McMahan, 26, serving life for a McLennan County aggravated rape; Fred H. Romangano, 31, serving 99 years for an aggravated rape in Tom Green County; and Jose Luis Soreano, 28, serving 35 years for an aggravated robbery in Dallas County.

Darrington Unit inmate Brian Mimier, 25, was indicted on charges he escaped the morning of April 3. He was caught 10 hours later about five miles east of the prison.

Four inmates were indicted on murder charges filed in the killing of Terrence Othro Brown, 19, who was stabbed 22 times in the chest in the Clemens Unit April 27.

Those indicted in the slaying are Jamie Garcia, 19, serving five years for a Dallas County burglary; Ruben Lopez, 18, serving nine years for an Ochiltree County burglary; Rosendo Martinez, 19, serving eight years for a Harris County burglary; and Martin Benito Montemayor, 20, serving 10 years for a Jim Wells County murder.

Another convict, Steven Leroy Helton, 28, was indicted on charges he tried to escape from the Darrington Unit near Rosharon. Helton, serving 60 years for robberies in Orange and Harris counties, disappeared while delivering water to inmates doing field work May 2. He was found in a Houston apartment nine days later.

Group of Jacinto City residents seek mayor's recall

JACINTO CITY (AP) — A group of Jacinto City residents is seeking the recall of Mayor Mike Blasingame, who was arrested at a nude dancing club last month with two other men, one of them charged with impersonating a police officer.

Blasingame was not charged himself because as mayor, he is considered a peace officer, a spokesman for the Harris County district attorney's office has said.

Group spokesman David Carter, who ran unsuccessfully for city council in 1981, said Thursday that Blasingame should resign because "his conduct was unbecoming of a city official."

"We're tired of being embarrassed in Jacinto City with city officials' conduct," said Carter, who must gather 370 signatures to force the recall.

Jacinto City is a town of about 9,000 east of Houston.

Blasingame, Jacinto City Work Director John Lee Cooper II and restaurant worker George Tracy were arrested July 27 at the Peppermint Palace after employees complained the three flashed badges and guns and harassed them.

Cooper was charged with impersonating a police officer. Tracy was charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Priest believes he has best of both worlds

DALLAS (AP) — The Rev. Jack Toner, who became hooked on the circus as a child, now mixes the word from above with "The Greatest Show on Earth."

Toner, who grew up in Great Britain, Conn., said he wanted to join the circus as a kid, but heard the calling from God instead.

"I had become so enamored with the circus and its people that the day after the circus would leave town, I would go to the sawdust circles where the tents had been and sit down and weep," said the 70-year-old priest.

For more than a year, Toner has been the priest for all 60 circuses in the country, traveling with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, which is in Dallas through Sunday.

"I guess you could say the Lord was looking over my shoulder, and he told me he had something different for me to do," said Toner, who kept in touch with circus friends during his 40 years as a missionary.

"I was faced with a choice to either go with the circus or to go with God...I guess you could say the Lord was looking over my shoulder, and he told me he had something different for me to do."

— The Rev. Jack Toner

His interest in the circus made him a natural choice when the former circus priest died in 1982 and the Bishops Committee on Migration and Tourism was searching for a replacement.

"Before they even finished their sentence, 'Would you like to be the circus priest?' I said, 'Yes,' " said Toner, a La Salette missionary.

Toner is known as Father Jack and travels with the circus caravan in his camper.

"He explains everything," said Debra Zitzelberger, who rides an elephant during the show. "He doesn't just talk at you like most ministers do, he talks to you. Most of them just read the Bible out loud, and you have to try to understand it yourself.

"But he tells us things that are important to us, that make sense to us that help us with our way of life," she said.

Toner said he has found the greatest people on earth while traveling with "The Greatest Show on Earth." He said said he is satisfied with his job, which pays "enough to get by on,' but sometimes he gets tired.

"I can feel myself slow down," Toner said. "The hardest thing is when we close a show, we drive all night long to the next site. And lets be truthful, that's tough when you're my age."

He said the circus probably would be his last assignment.

"I was faced with a choice to either go with the circus or to go with God," Toner said. "Now I've got the best of both worlds."

Unleaded gasoline scarce outside large cities in Mexico, AAA reports

HOUSTON (AP) — Unleaded gasoline is very scarce outside Mexico City and other large cities in Mexico, the American Automobile Association reports.

The car club's Texas offices reported Friday that the Mexican national oil company, Pemex, is apparently phasing out its unleaded gasoline, Extra. That will leave regular gas, Nova, as the only readily available gasoline, AAA reported.

Reagan wants income tax treaty between U.S., China

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan on Friday asked the Senate to ratify an income tax treaty between the United States and China designed to avoid double taxation.

In a message to the Senate, the president said the agreement provides "clear rules as to the tax consequences of investing or working in the other country."

It also reduces the tax that residents of one country must pay to the other on such income as dividends, interest, and royalties. And it provides limited exemptions for visiting teachers, researchers and students.

The president described it as "a balanced package of benefits and concessions" and said it was the first complete income tax treaty between the two countries.

Pershing missile passes test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Pershing 2 missile test-fired here Tuesday met all test objectives in hurling a dummy nuclear warhead to an ocean target area 981 miles away, the Army Missile Command reported Friday.

"Missile flight performance was normal in all respects," the command said after analyzing test data.

The 35-foot missile, which is being deployed with NATO forces in West Germany, had been alternately frozen and thawed and bounced over more than 1,000 miles of rocky roads to simulate several years with troops in the field.

Buildings to house artists

NEW YORK (AP) — Concerned that the housing squeeze might drive artists from the city, Mayor Edward Koch announced Friday that nine city-owned buildings will soon become new living and work space for them.

Artists groups will purchase the buildings for as little as $1 and rehabilitate eight of them with their own funds, turning them into moderately priced rental or co-op units, Koch said. The ninth will be rehabilitated by a developer.

Mother convicted in death

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A woman who allegedly fed her 5-month-old daughter a fatal dose of liquor has been convicted of involuntary manslaughter.

Patricia Mae Ohler, 26, of Connellsville, was also found guilty Thursday of endangering the welfare of a child in connection with the death of her daughter, Elsie Marie, last Oct. 6.

Assistant District Attorney John Wagner told jurors he sought a conviction of involuntary manslaughter because he didn't believe Ms. Ohler intentionally hurt her baby.

Man falls from Ferris wheel

SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP) — A man who fell 60 feet from a Ferris wheel to his death was reported by witnesses to have climbed outside a guard rail, according to the Douglas County coroner.

Coroner Allen Krahn said witnesses reported seeing Andrew Hudacek, 22, of Superior, sitting on top of the gondola car waving to people at a fair Wednesday night.

"The cause of death was massive head and chest trauma and a skull fracture," he said. Krahn said authorities were testing the man's blood for alcohol, and expected to have the results next week.

Hatfield investigation authorized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department authorized the FBI on Friday to begin a criminal investigation into whether Sen. Mark Hatfield supported a proposed $10 billion African oil pipeline because of a $40,000 payment to his wife, federal law enforcement sources said.

The sources said a formal letter requesting a preliminary investigation of the Oregon Republican was sent by Justice officials to the FBI in mid-afternoon.

The Justice Department probe, anticipated since the FBI recommended such a step at mid-week, comes on top of a Senate Ethics Committee review that Hatfield himself sought in a move he said was designed to clear his name.

Meantime, a key figure in the case, Greek financier Basil Tsakos said he has "nothing to hide" in dealings with Hatfield concerning the proposed pipeline or the $40,000 payment he made to the senator's wife.

Hatfield, 62, has said the $40,000 was paid to his wife, Antoinette, for her services in helping Tsakos find an apartment at the posh Watergate complex, decorate it and look for other investment property.

He said there never be any connection between his wife's real estate dealings and his Senate duties. Hatfield, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, is seeking re-election in November to his fourth term.

Tsakos and his Trans African Pipeline Corp. issued a statement Thursday, through attorney William Casselman, saying they have "nothing to hide concerning either the project or any connection with Sen. and Mrs. Hatfield."

Still saying he supports the pipeline project, Hatfield has acknowledged introducing Tsakos to federal officials and foreigners. The U.S. government has not taken a position on the pipeline, which would run through Africa linking Saudi Arabian oilfields to the Atlantic.

But at the State Department, officials acknowledged that two high-level officials, including Assistant Secretary of State Chester Crocker, listened to "a presentation on the TAPCO (Trans African Pipeline) project" in 1982.

That presentation was given by George Seignious, director of the arms control agency in the Carter administration, and Willis Armstrong, former assistant secretary of state, the department said, adding that Seignious was executive vice president of TAPCO Ltd.

"Neither we nor our embassies overseas have taken any position on the project, which is a totally private concern," the department said in a July 31 statement.

Other well-known Washington figures also were once involved in the project, according to Carl Shipley, a lawyer who is former president of the pipeline company and a member of the Republican National Committee.

Challenge to keep careers separate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antoinette Hatfield, a real estate agent whose $40,000 fee from a Greek businessman has attracted the interest of the FBI, is one of several of working Senate wives who face the challenge of keeping their own careers separate from their husbands'.

"It's just tough when wives have got to make a living, it's difficult," Anne Bingaman, a lawyer married to Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., said Friday.

"It's particularly difficult when you make your money off something to do with the government," said the 41-year-old attorney, who handles only civil cases that don't involve government.

At a time when many women, including those married to senators, are eager to work for financial and personal reasons, Mrs. Hatfield's case focuses new attention on Washington career couples.

The FBI wants to investigate allegations linking the money Mrs. Hatfield received from Basil Tsakos, to Sen. Mark Hatfield's support of a trans-Africa oil pipeline promoted by Tsakos. The Senate Ethics Committee is also reviewing the case.

The Oregon Republican, who has actively supported the proposed $10 billion, privately financed pipeline, has denied there is any connection between his efforts on behalf of the pipeline and the $40,000 paid to his wife.

Hatfield says he and his wife maintain separate and distinct careers, and there "was not, is not and never will be" any connection between their professions. Mrs. Hatfield received the $40,000 for helping Tsakos and his wife find and decorate their apartment at Washington's fancy Watergate complex, the senator said.

There has been at least some blending, however. According to the Senate financial disclosure statements filed by Hatfield, he loaned a small real estate firm Mrs. Hatfield ran, AKH Inc., between $15,000 and $50,000 in 1982. The statements for 1982 and 1983 listed a "note receivable" from AKH Inc., which had the couple's home as its most recent address.

Mrs. Hatfield, now an agent at the Samuel P. Pardoe real estate firm in Georgetown, the exclusive Washington neighborhood where the Hatfields live, was in Oregon and could not be reached for comment on her business.

So far, her husband has served as her spokesman in the case.

The mother of four children, Mrs. Hatfield was involved in 1976 in another real estate case that attracted attention because of her husband.

Mrs. Hatfield was representing the Saudi Arabian government in its attempts to buy a congressionally restricted, multimillion-dollar building owned by the American Pharmaceutical Association.

The deal, which was never culminated, would have required Congress to lift restrictions on the building. Hatfield said he would not have voted on the issue had it come before committees on which he served.

The current controvery over Mrs. Hatfield's fee shows that a working spouse of a high government official often faces peculiar occupational hazards.

One of the people involved in the flap indicated that the problem is especially acute in Washington. Carl J. Shipley, an attorney who was formerly president of Tsakos' pipeline company, said the capital is a place where business thrives on contacts and knowing the right people.

"There are many official wives in the public relations business, the real estate business, the consulting business...People like that going around opening doors, you know; it's Washington."

In the Senate, the best-known working wife is Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, wife of Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

Barbara Levin, wife of Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., recently quit her job as an attorney for the Interior Department in order to campaign for her husband, according to Levin's staff.

Other working Senate wives include Lee Hart, also a real estate saleswomen and wife of Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo.; and Ellen Proxmire, wife of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. Mrs. Proxmire is a partner is a successful business that arranges conferences and parties.

Rockwell International to close plant

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP) — Rockwell International will shut down its Kearney plant, which employs about 175 people, over the next 12 to 15 months, General Plant Manager Lonnie L. Carpenter announced Friday.

Carpenter said attributed the closing to the worldwide slump in the petroleum industry since 1981. The Kearney plant is one of six Rockwell plants in the United States and Canada that produces valves used in the oil industry.

Rockwell forecasters have concluded that "the business is not going to come back any time soon," Carpenter said.

He announced the phase out of the plant to employees Friday afternoon. He said corporate officials decided on the shutdown at Flow Control Division headquarters in Pittsburgh on Thursday.

Valve production at the Kearney plant will be transferred to Rockwell plants in Raleigh, N.C., and Sulphur Springs, Texas, Carpenter said.

Rockwell chose to keep those two plants open instead of the Kearney plant in central Nebraska because of their more strategic locations in the oil industry, Carpenter said.

"Numerous" employees from the Kearney plant will be offered transfers to either the Raleigh or Sulphur Springs plants or some other position in the company.

The July staff report showed the Kearney plant had 103 hourly workers and 71 salaried workers. At its employment peak in 1981, Carpenter said, the plant employed 508.

In recent weeks, the volume of orders picked up in Kearney and temporary workers were added, Carpenter said. But the demand for products made at the other Flow Control plants has remained low, with division plants operating at about half of capacity, Carpenter said.

The phasing out of the Kearney plant is expected to last up to 15 months because production machinery and workers will be moved in stages, he said.

The Kearney plant has produced valves for all of its 25 years, Carpenter said.

Bear hunting now 'bear eradication program,' critics claim

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Bear hunting in these parts has gone high-tech, and some local sportsmen are up in arms about it. They say it's unfair to the bear.

The use of radio transmitters on hunting dogs, the preseason training of dogs in mock hunts, and an upswing in use of hired guides have combined to produce "a bear eradication program," according to Gary Crockett, a land trader and commercial hunting guide himself.

"They go riding around with the dogs in their four-wheel-drive pickups, talk on their CB radios, use the radio collars on their dogs. Sometimes they have two sets of dogs," says Crockett. When the pursued bear climbs a tree, the hunter — the guide's client — shoots it.

"Where's the sport?" asks Crockett.

That question is being echoed by others as New Hampshire hunters prepare for the the 1984 season, which runs Sept. 1 through Dec. 2.

Capt. Henry Mock, assistant law enforcement chief for the Fish and Game Department, says the uproar has convinced many bear hunters they have to control their sport or lose it. Last month, the New Hampshire Bear Hunters' Association said it would support bans on commercial guiding for bears, as well as the training of dogs in the spring, when the bears have just finished hibernating and young cubs are in the woods.

The department is reviewing the proposals. But Mock says even if the proposals satisfy the department, they may not satisfy critics such as Crockett.

"These people, they're all hunters. Their qualms are, you're supposed to go out hunting using your instincts and your eyes and your nose," Mock says. "When you go out there with electronic devices, it becomes a moral issue. The bear can't compete."

Mock adds that with the legislature out of session until January, no one can change the rules for this fall. Harrie Ashley, president of the hunters' association, says he hopes critics will "ease off a little" anyway in light of the group's proposals.

Many of these critics, like Crockett, are from the northernmost part of the state. Crockett, whose father is from Virginia, says he doesn't know whether he's a descendant of frontiersman Davy Crockett. "There was a rumor when I was a kid that we were, but I really don't know," he said

Last year, hunters in the state killed 251 black bears, the most common species in North America.

New York City papers grapple for position

NEW YORK (AP) — When the New York Post managed to pose the publisher of the rival Daily News in an ad for the Post's latest Wingo lottery game, he replied not with outrage but with an insult.

Publisher James Hoge said he was "amused that the Post thinks that a doctored photo can help their soft circulation problem."

What the Post calls its "now famous Wingo photo" of Hoge is just the latest skirmish in an ongoing tabloid version of Greco-Roman wrestling — two giant newspapers grappling for position, often caught in amusing poses.

The battle has its serious side: analysts say it is an open question whether the city can support both the Post and the News in the long term.

In the short term, however, the fireworks can be spectacular.

One day, the News published a full-page ad that claimed the Post has lost advertising in most categories. The next day, the Post responded with its own ad: "The Daily News: Number One in Circulation Losses."

They trade giveaways — both papers distributed tickets to the Jacksons concerts — and contests. When the Post mailed millions of Wingo cards to households, the News announced it would print the winning Wingo numbers.

Now each paper prints its rival's winners.

The Post, says Hoge, who resigned as publisher of the Chicago Sun-Times when that paper was acquired by Australian-born Post publisher Rupert Murdoch, probably doesn't know about Wingo "because he hasn't spent much time in New York."

In a Daily News column, Jimmy Breslin said the Post is published by a crew of "rootless immigrants" from Australia and Great Britain. None of the top editors is a U.S. citizen, Breslin charged.

Bruce Thorp, a newspaper analyst for the firm of Lynch, Jones & Ryan in Washington, says the battle in print is just part of a larger conflict.

Thorp said the Daily News, after a rocky period, made $20 million last year — its largest profit ever — and will make about $10 million this year. It has cut its labor and printing costs, but resulting press problems have caused the loss of 139,000 readers in the past year, down to 1.37 million as of the end of March.

The Post, on the other hand, has maintained its circulation of more than 960,000. But while the News showed a modest increase in ad revenues, the Post made no gain, according to Thorp.

Thorp said the Post lost between $10 million and $12 million last year.

Steve Dunleavy, the Post's city editor, said he is unconcerned about the advertising and money figures. He boasted that "we are a very, very competitive newspaper. I think we show that every day when we beat the News on the streets, in Albany, in Washington."

The Hoge-Wingo picture, he said, was "just a bit of fun."

Post reporter Paul Tharp said he approached Hoge at a party and said, "Congratulations, Mr. Hoge, you are doing a wonderful job at the Daily News and we have one more thing for you."

He gave Hoge a facsimile of a Wingo card. A Post photographer snapped Hoge's picture.

Hoge said Wednesday the photograph was "doctored" because the Wingo card was actually a large replica designed especially for a photograph.

When the Daily News ran a brief item in Wednesday's editions quoting Hoge as calling the first picture "doctored," the Post responded by running three pictures of the Wingo episode. They showed Tharp handing the card to Hoge, the publisher facing the camera with the card in his hand, and Hoge turning the card around and looking at it.

Though Tharp claimed Hoge knew he was a Post reporter, Hoge claimed Tharp represented himself as a city official. "And I must say the misrepresentation seemed to come naturally to him," Hoge said.
