ROOSEVELT ENDS QUIZ IN OUTBURST AT MAYOR

Jury Acquits Captain Lancaster As Women Spectators Shriek Approval

BRITISH FLIER EXONERATED OF CLARKE DEATH

Fashionable Crowd Plunged Into Near-Pandemonium Over Verdict

AVIATRIX DELIGHTED

Mrs. Keith-Miller Shares Relief With Former Lover-Adviser

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 17. (AP)—Capt. W. N. Lancaster, British flier, was freed of a charge of murdering Haden Clarke, young writer and his rival in love, today by a verdict which precipitated a courtroom demonstration that threatened to go beyond control of bailiffs.

The 12-man jury deliberated four hours and 48 minutes before acquitting him on one complete ballot.

He had been on trial since Aug. 2, in one of the most sensational hearings in the history of South Florida—a trial that brought out the secret love lives of himself, Haden Clarke and Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, in detail.

Women Shriek

Fashionably gowned women wept and shrieked in delight as E. B. Leatherman, clerk of circuit court, read aloud the jury's verdict of "not guilty."

Near-pandemonium followed, with bailiffs, deputies sheriff and police vainly striving to control the crowd that surged toward the freed man in an effort to grasp his hand.

In the midst of the uproar, deathlike stillness descended as Lancaster, nervously clasping and unclasping his hands, stepped forward before the jurors, still in their box.

Thanks Jurors

"Gentlemen," he said, "You have been very patient with my case. You have had to listen during the long trial of the case to many things. I want to give you my heartfelt thanks for exonerating me."

He clicked his heels as in salute, bowed briskly, and stepped away from the front of the jury box.

Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, third figure in the strange triangle, was not in the courtroom when the verdict was read, but quickly heard it in an adjoining office.

"I am delighted," she cried. "I knew old Bill would come through."

Dictates Statement

Lancaster a few minutes later made his way to the press table.

He dictated this statement:

"I am very glad to find that I am free to go out in the open air once more. . . .

"I owe heartfelt thanks to the many friends who have rallied to my support. . . .

"I consider my trial was fair and impartial in every way. My immediate plans are to rest up for a few days. After that my first desire is to find a job."

"Do your present plans include Mrs. Keith-Miller?" he was asked.

"Please do not ask me to answer that now," he said. "I don't know now what my answer would be."

Clarke was shot to death the night of April 21 in the room he and Lancaster occupied together at Mrs. Keith-Miller's home.

Tulsa Police Seek Underworld Link In Slaying Of Attorney

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 17. (UP)—Police here and in Fort Scott, Kan., tonight were investigating a possible connection between the slaying of J. Earl Smith, Tulsa criminal lawyer, and the trial in the Kansas town of Harvey Bailey, bank bandit and underworld character.

Only a few hours after Bailey was convicted on a charge of participation in the $32,000 robbery of the Citizens National bank of Fort Scott, Smith last night was called from his home by a mysterious telephone call.

"I'll be gone about 20 minutes," he remarked to his wife.

He never returned home. Today an officer patrolling the highway near the Indian Hills Country club here found his body lying beside his car.

He had been shot in the back of the neck, apparently after a fierce struggle in which other shots were fired by his assailant. There were bullet holes in the roof and windshield of the car.

At the time of discovery of the body, Bailey, under sentence of 10 to 50 years for his part in the Fort Scott robbery, was en route to Lansing, Kan., to the state prison, under guard.

There were, however, certain

Northwest Oklahoma Flood Toll Totals Four; Big Property Loss

Enid and Cherokee Areas Inundated After Cloudburst in Dark Hours Before Daylight

ENID, Okla., Aug. 17. (AP)—The death toll of flood waters that swept across northwestern Oklahoma plains following torrential downpours reached four tonight.

Ber Dillon, 55, father of W. A. Dillon, Alfalfa county attorney, and Mrs. Sam Cellan, 60, were drowned near Cherokee, where 12 inches of rain fell last night.

At Enid, Mrs. Maggie McFarland drowned as she attempted to flee from her home early today and an unidentified boy drowned this afternoon in swirling Boggy creek. The body of the woman was not recovered.

Damage to property and loss of livestock was estimated upward to $1,000,000. The plight of the citizenry with hundreds temporarily homeless brought hurried response fro mthe Red Cross. F. A. Winfrey, acting manager of the mid-western division of the organization, with headquarters at St. Louis, ordered a field representative to proceed to the stricken areas to direct relief work.

The flood waters, rising in the wake of rainfall varying from five inches to 12 inches, were rapidly running their course, bringing high crests at points southeastward.

FUGITIVES DO NEW DEVILTRY

Granite Convicts Accused Of Kidnaping

GRANITE, Okla., Aug. 17. (UP)—Fugitives from Granite reformatory were accused of additional acts of terrorism tonight as search was intensified for the 13 who remained at liberty.

Ben Shaddock, 25-year-old Hobart filling station attendant, was kidnaped by two bandits whom he identified after his release at noon today at Oklahoma City as two fugitive convicts.

Peace officers in southwestern Oklahoma were asked to search for Dee Walker, 34-year-old Altus auto salesman who disappeared last night after taking his sister to church. It was believed he had been kidnaped by the desperadoes.

Meanwhile, officers captured fugitive twins, Doyle and Donald Beene, at Anadarko. A pistol taken from them accounted for all the arms but one weapon stolen from the reformatory guards Sunday night when 28 desperadoes escaped.

Mrs. George A. Waters, woman warden at the reformatory, dispatched guards throughout the district in a determined effort to capture every one of the fugitives. Another guard, making the total eight, was dismissed by her.

Shaddock, his eyes half closed from fatigue, was barefoot as he walked into the sheriff's office at Oklahoma City and told a story of a night of terror at the hands of his captors.

Shortly before last midnight, two convicts robbed his station at Hobart of $34, and forced him to drive them away in his automobile. A pistol was pressed against his side during the flight.

Treasurer Leads Acting Governor in Wyoming

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 17. (US)—Maintaining his lead of almost 1,000 votes State Treasurer Harry R. Weston of Jackson, Wyo., seemed assured tonight of the Republican designation for the gubernatorial race. His closest rival was acting Gov. A. M. Clark, who had 14,800 votes as compared to 15,458 for Weston with 540 of the state's 660 precincts counted.

Leslie Miller of Cheyenne apparently had won the Democratic nomination over Thomas O'Neil of Big Piney, who trailed him by more than 2,000 votes. Miller's total was 12,630 with 540 precincts counted.

COLEMAN, Texas, Aug. 17. (AP)—Former Gov. Dan Moody, speaking here today in support of Gov. R. S. Sterling's candidacy for re-election, said that the Ferguson administrations had been "the most extravagant and improvident in Texas history."

He said Governor Sterling had reduced the state tax rate, practically balanced the state budget, reduced fee officers claims and increased the tax revenue from oil, sulphur and cigarets.

Produce Reaches Market Despite Farmers' Strike

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Aug. 17. (UP)—Trucks laden with livestock and produce moved into Sioux City tonight under guard as law enforcement officers sought to break a farm strike and milk war which has paralyzed farm activity for four days.

Confident their property would not be dumped on highways by irate strikers, farmers unsympathetic to the movement waved aside intimidations which strikers used, as the force of sticks and stones proved poor ammunition against armed deputies.

The strike was reported spreading tonight, however, under its new "persecution." Threats of reprisals were heard as news spread that 450 strikers who invaded the stockyards early today had been repulsed as they attempted to seize cattle which had been smuggled through their lines. There was no shooting, but 20 armed deputies faced the farmers and dissolved them.

Farmers in Dakota county, Nebraska, just across the Missouri river telephoned that they would close western roads before morning, and South Dakota farmers awaited news of their holiday leaders who were moving to Yankton for a meeting tomorrow.

Professor Points Out Loss in Voiding Debts

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 17. (US)—Cancellation of European war debts would cost the United States an immediate $250,000,000 yearly "and more than that later," Prof. John H. Williams, of Harvard university, told the institute of politics today.

Calling to mind the present crisis, Williams added:

"We can't play fast and loose with a quarter of a billion yearly."

Williams said there was no possible loophole in the legal argument that Europe should pay obligations it contracted freely.

WE'VE ALREADY WON ELECTION, GARNER STATES

Speaker Beams Optimism In Long Interview Before Starting Home

By CECIL B. DICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Confident that all the Democrats have to do is to "sit tight" until November, Speaker John N. Garner departed tonight for his Uvalde, Texas, home.

"We've already got the election won," the Democratic vice presidential nominee predicted as he faced nearly 100 newspaper men at the National Press club and cheerfully withstood an hour's barrage of questioning.

"If the presidential election was held today we would win by a 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 plurality vote," the Texan said. "Unless some great mistake is made, we'll win in November. I know we Democrats will be elected if we just sit tight and take it easy."

Laughingly, Garner said a prominent Republican "told me that Mr. Roosevelt and I could not make enough 'busts' to be defeated."

He said he felt much better in every way after his conferences with Governor Roosevelt at Hyde Park, and with Alfred E. Smith in New York City.

Questioned whether Smith would support the national ticket, Garner answered:

"I believe Governor Smith, a most excellent gentleman, will actively support the Democratic ticket. I have every reason to believe it."

The speaker left on a 6:30 p. m. train for Cincinnati, where tomor-

Approval Due On Sooner-U. S. Roads

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 17. (UP)—Plans for more than $1,500,000 of federal aid highway construction in Oklahoma today were submitted to the federal highway bureau in Fort Worth, Texas.

W. V. Smiley, senior federal highway engineer in charge of the Oklahoma City office, submitted plans of the Oklahoma Highway commission to C. E. Swain, federal district engineer for his approval. Swain's approval is all that is necessary for the projects to be advertised, Oklahoma officials said.

Approval was expected this week. The first block of plans for the $7,000,000 program includes 19 projects in 11 counties, the engineering department said. Both paving and grading and drainage were included although paving was favored in order to get this work completed before winter.

The plans call for use of $925,000 from the federal emergency relief fund. The projects are well scattered.

SPECIAL SESSION CALL DELAYED

AUSTIN, Aug. 17. (AP)—Texas legislators were awaiting tonight an official proclamation from Gov. R. S. Sterling convening them in extraordinary session to act on tax relief proposals.

Governor Sterling, campaigning in West Texas, promised to promulgate the formal call today, setting the date for the legislature to meet at Sept. 5, "or sooner."

The proclamation was not issued as promised, however. The governor speaking in Tarrant county in behalf of his campaign for renomination, said he hoped to make the call "within the next few days." He still was of a mind to fix the date for the legislature to convene at Sept. 5, he said.

Texas Cotton Smuggling For Mexico Mills Opens

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 17. (US)—Cotton, bulky 500-pound bales, are being smuggled across the Rio Grande river into Mexico.

Only a few years ago, customs officers on this side of the border were stopping the smuggling of Mexican cotton into the United States. Now the tables are reversed.

The reason for the revival of cotton smuggling is due to the $50 a bale cotton growers in Mexico are receiving for the staple as against $25 and $30 on this side of the border.

The price difference is traced to the demand of Mexican mills for long staple cotton and a 5 cent per pound duty on imported cotton.

YOUNG DEMOS STAGE RALLY

Speakers Extoll Merits Of Sterling, Ferguson

Conducting its first public meeting Wednesday night on the lawn of the Memorial auditorium, the Wichita Falls division of the Junior Democratic League of America began its study of political citizenship by hearing the candidacies of Gov. Ross Sterling and Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, as well as of district and county candidates, espoused by local speakers before a gathering of about 2,500 persons.

Purposes of the league were expounded by Phillip Kouri, chairman of the rally and president of the local organization, as designed to qualify young voters to vote intelligently in local, state and national elections. Odell Ballew, vice president and Lillard Jackson, secretary, of the Wichita Falls chapter, also spoke briefly.

Ferguson Platform

Introduced by Mr. Kouri, John Davenport urged the nomination of Mrs. Ferguson in the primary of Aug. 27 because "her platform indicates clearly that she will render better service in the office of governor than has been given during the past two years by the present incumbent."

"Foremost among the 10 excellent platform planks advanced early this year by Mrs. Ferguson," Mr. Davenport said, "is that which would relieve the common people of ad valorem taxes through the division of one-third of the gasoline tax revenue to the general fund. This would leave one-third of that revenue for the support of public schools, and the remaining third, or more than $10,000,000, for highway construction—an amount which we believe is more than adequate."

Mr. Davenport also commended Mrs. Ferguson's proposal to enact legislation reducing the rate of interest in Texas to six per cent; an equity of redemption law providing for redemption of foreclosed property within two years; and better support for public schools generally throughout the state.

Presented to advocate the candidacy of Governor Sterling for re-election, Judge Guy Rogers asserted that "this is a time to act and think with proper conservatism."

"Voters must not overlook the fact," the speaker said, "that in the past two years, Gov. Ross Ster-

WALKER DENIES FEE-SPLITTING IS UNETHICAL

Governor Goes Into Rage At Hesitancy of Replies to Queries

EXAMINATION CLOSES

Hearing to Reopen Monday With New Testimony By Witnesses

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 17. (UP)—In a blaze of anger at the "unresponsiveness" of Mayor James J. Walker's answers to his pointed questions, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today concluded his examination of the mayor, on trial before him for alleged misconduct in office.

The governor's persistent and increasingly angry proddings into "fee-splitting" by Dr. William H. Walker, the mayor's brother, provoked one of the most dramatic scenes of the ouster trial.

The mayor sputtered and hesitated, the governor pounded on his flat-topped desk, grew red in the face and "commanded" the mayor to reply.

Approves Fee-Splitting

The mayor, expressing ignorance of what his brother had been doing, finally asserted that he "saw nothing wrong in fee-splitting," adding that he had done it in his law practice.

But the fee-splitting in question, revolving around what Seabury has called the "medical trust"—a group of four physicians who did the bulk of the city's compensation case work, and who divided their fees with Dr. Walker (who did no work at all)—came under the direct fire of the governor's most scathing expressions.

The charge that Mayor Walker "neglected his duty" by permitting this fee-splitting arrangement was taken up after a dull session in which the governor probed deeply into Walker's association with his missing financial agent, Russell T. Sherwood, and his failure to produce him before the Hofstadter investigating commission.

Storm Gathers

Walker began his testimony regarding Dr. Walker by declaring:

"I have no knowledge whatsoever of the scope of my brother's business."

"I don't consider fee-splitting wrong," he said a moment later, and spectators sat back expectantly as the storm clouds gathered on the governor's face.

"If fees are split there must be two parties," the governor remarked, when Walker explained that his brother had some sort of a business arrangement with the other doctors involved.

"Don't you think it part of your duties to find out the propriety of these doctors continuing in the city employ?" Roosevelt blazed at the witness. "It was testified O'Mara (one of the physicians involved) received fees from the city for compensation cases, and that within two or three days thereafter, O'Mara gave him a check for exactly half the sum of these city fees. Dr. Walker testified he never did any city work. Do you consider this ethical?"

Walker Stubborn

"I don't see anything unethical about it," the mayor stubbornly persisted.

"Do you consider fee-splitting by city doctors a part of good government?" the governor asked, as though astounded at the mayor's reply.

The mayor hesitated and twisted nervously in his chair.

"Mayor, you are not responsive to my questions," the governor continued sternly, "answer the question please."

The mayor sat silent for a moment and again Roosevelt commanded, "Answer, mayor!"

"If he (O'Mara) owed him money, I think it perfectly ethical," the mayor responded.

"Don't you think that fee-splitting on the part of the city doctors tends to cost the city more because the doctors might lengthen the time of treatment and thus run up their bills?" the governor thundered.

"You're assuming—" the mayor began, only to be interrupted by another blast by the thoroughly angry executive.

"You're not answering my questions," he shouted.

"The regents of the state of New York and the attorney general are investigating this matter, and truth will be had without the help of this investigating committee," Walker said bitterly.

The mayor's direct examination was concluded with this phase of the case, each of the 15 points of the charges made against him by Samuel Seabury having been covered.

After another bitter wrangle with John J. Curtin, counsel for Walker, the governor ruled that Curtin might call witnesses originally heard by the Hofstadter investigating committee, and that the first one to be subjected to Curtin's cross-examination would be Samuel Hofstadter, chairman of the legislative group that investigated New York City's affairs.

"We'll continue this case tomorrow and Friday," the governor said, "and then resume on Monday."

Scientist Off For Second Trip To Stratosphere

DUBENDORF, Switzerland, Aug. 18. (Thursday) (AP)—Prof. Auguste Piccard left the earth in his balloon-gondola at 5:06 a. m. (10:06 p. m., central standard time Wednesday) on his second ascent into the stratosphere.

Rising easily and gracefully, the Odyssey Stratosphere, Piccard's balloon, hovered a short time over Zurich and then, gaining height and speed, glided eastward in the direction of the Austrian tyrol by way of St. Moritz.

Dr. Piccard had refused to leave the field for dinner and remained to direct the workmen in last-minute preparations. The wind was blowing toward east Germany and plans were made for a landing in Germany, Czecho-Slovakia or Poland.

Arrangements for the flight, postponed several times on account of the weather, went forward rapidly. The great balloon envelope was stretched out on the field for inflation and the aluminum gondola in which the men will ride was examined minutely to guard against accidents.

The maneuvering cords and safety valve drew particular attention. Mindful of last year's experience when the balloon was becalmed for hours at an altitude of more than 20,000 feet, every precaution was taken to insure the safety of the passengers.

An enlarged manhole will be operated from the enterior of the gondola as will be the safety valve, leading through a mercury tube from the balloon. The exterior of the gondola has been painted all white to reduce the heat inside. The windows have been increased from eight to nine to provide better observation.

SMALL SPEAKS FOR STERLING

Vernon and Crowell Hear Former Candidate

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Aug. 17.—Senator Clint C. Small of Amarillo, who opposed Gov. Ross Sterling two years ago in the race for governor, made his first speech in the present campaign Wednesday afternoon at a Sterling rally in Crowell and again spoke before 1,000 people here tonight.

J. S. Bridwell of Wichita Falls opened the rally in Vernon and was followed by Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, state secretary. Mr. Bridwell discussed the oil situation in politics and declared that 232 independent operators in the Wichita area had signed a petition favoring Sterling as against four found opposing the governor.

Mrs. McCallum detailed the pardon record of the Ferguson administration in 1925 and 1926, revealing sworn statements setting forth that during the last 29 days of that term, pardons were issued to 124 robbers, 127 liquor law violators, 133 murderers and 39 rapists.

Mrs. McCallum declared the governor had issued only 15 full pardons and one conditional pardon as compared to a Ferguson statement that he had issued 3,341.

"I am not backing down on any statement made previously, but between the two candidates I believe there is no question as to who should be elected," Mr. Small said. "The oil companies elected Sterling and he has done all he could for both major companies and independent operators. Operators in the Texas Panhandle should feel grateful toward Sterling for keeping their pools open.

"As a paid lobbyist of the oil companies Sterling formed the oil conservation law and I don't think the opposition should criticize his actions now," the state senator continued.

"I want to tell you the state prison system today is in the best shape it has been in for 25 years and will save one-half of the legislative appropriation this year," he declared.

Mr. Small discussed the highway situation in detail and warned against West Texans taking a chance on the chaos of another Ferguson administration in view of suspension of federal aid during a past administration. He endorsed the special session to open Sept. 5, to relieve counties of the road tax burdens through the gasoline tax.

"While some actions of the highway department may be considered extravagant, there is no evidence of misappropriation of the department's funds. The federal government now offers the state $7,000,000 aid to be matched by the state in road funds and an $8,000,000 fund that does not have to be matched, and we should not take a chance on losing it," Mr. Small added.

Oklahoma Flood Takes 4 Lives

With rain still falling in some sections through which the floods must pass, fear was felt that the dangerous inundations might extend their heavy toll.

Rescue crews spent long hours last night and today picking men, women and children from house tops, telephone poles and trees.

The three main cloudbursts, washing the entire northwest with a sheet of water several feet deep in spots, came in the dead of night. Virtually the entire city of Cherokee was inundated with a few minutes after a levee on Cottonwood canyon, at the edge of town, broke. Hotel lobbies, stores and residences were quickly flooded, before a general alarm could be given.

Dillon's body was found late today two miles downstream from where a wall of water struck his automobile on the highway west of Cherokee.

Clark Bishop, 20, who was accompanying Dillon to his farm, was washed into a shock of corn and managed to use it for a raft, floating for more than a mile before he reached shallow water. Exhausted, he was found at noon today unable to make his way home.

Dillon's widow and five children survive.

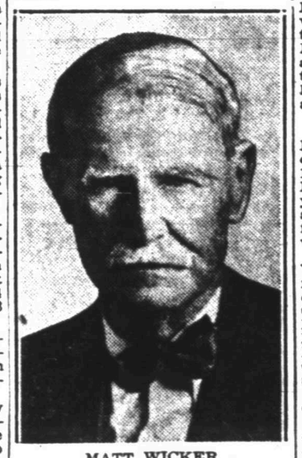

Euclid made all of his geometric tabulations on a smooth surface of sand strewn over the floors of his home.

The petrified jawbone of a saurian was found at Eufaula, Ala., by Levy Threatt, negro fisherman. The bone is 18 inches long.

John T. Woodhouse of Wichita Falls is the only other remaining veteran—three of the group died in the past year. They were George Norwood, "Uncle" Ben Ferguson and John Ground, all of this county. Mr. Woodhouse is confined to his home by illness and will be unable to attend the annual picnic.

Martin Chief Speaker

Judge P. A. Martin of Wichita Falls will be the principal speaker on the program and will appear at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Picnic games and contests for the younger members of the group are scheduled and the renewal of friendships of past encampments will be the order of the day.

Hundreds of pioneers of the Wichita area will meet at the park for the occasion and a full program of entertainment is planned by Camp Captain George H. Brown of Holliday. Dick Jones of Holliday, Pete Rayburn of Dundee, Joe McDonald of Archer City and Arthur C. Howard of Wichita Falls have assisted in forming the program.

A feature of the picnic will be a dance each evening.

Matt Wicker, who is now in his 85th year, arrived at the home of Arthur C. Howard Wednesday afternoon to attend the picnic and will remain in Wichita Falls several days. Mr. Wicker moved to Cloud Chief 32 years ago from Archer county where he served as tax assessor for four years.

Early Resident Here

Previous to moving to Archer county Mr. Wicker resided in Clay and Wichita counties and at one time served as county commissioner of Clay county for six years. His family came to Clay county in 1874 and the home was washed out in the flood of that year in the Red river bottom lands.

It was necessary that the family be brought out of the flooded area to escape drowning. The family moved to a higher location in Clay county after that time.

The Stonewall Jackson camp was organized about 40 years ago and many years ago secured 106 acres of land south of Holliday for establishment of the park. The five surviving veterans last year turned the park over to the sons and daughters of Confederates and new trustees were named.

Mr. Wicker was a charter member of the camp and is the last adjutant of the organization. He was present 40 years ago at the camp's organization.

links between the two men which led authorities to seek a possible connection.

Smith, a criminal lawyer by choice, who had defended many underworld characters, originally was scheduled to defend Bailey.

For some reason, he did not appear in the trial, and a Kansas City attorney replaced him. Yet he went to Fort Scott soon after Bailey was brought there after his arrest with two other "big shot" gangsters on a Kansas City golf course.

At that time he talked to Bailey. No one has been found who knows what they discussed. Again, only yesterday, he was in Fort Scott and talked with Bailey.

County Attorney Frank O'Brien of Fort Scott, said he believed it possible the Tulsan had been shot down by friends of Bailey.

"For what reason I don't know," he added. O'Brien went on to say, however, that Smith, due to the nature of his practice, might have had other enemies.

He was known to have defended such notorious figures as Matthew Kimes and Ray Terrill, bandits and killers, and Fred Barker, now sought for slaying a Missouri peace officer.

There was some speculation regarding possibility that Bailey had paid Smith money and had felt he was not getting full value.

That Bailey had many underworld friends there is no doubt. He was identified as a leader in the largest bank robbery in history, that in which $2,000,000 was taken from the Lincoln National Bank and Trust company.

He was believed to have been involved in some of the bank robberies executed by Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma killer, and he had admitted sheltering Fred (Killer) Burke prior to his arrest in Missouri more than a year ago.

Smith, a native of Tennessee, was 34. He came here in 1919, but since had lived in Oklahoma City and Ponca City, returning here in 1928. He was defeated in the recent primary for the Democratic nomination for county attorney.

Petrolia Couple Hurt In Auto Accident

D. B. Henson, 67, of Petrolia suffered a broken left leg about 6:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in an automobile accident near his home. Mrs. Henson, 21, suffered minor bruises about her back in the crash. Mr. and Mrs. Henson were admitted to the Wichita General hospital early Wednesday night for treatment. Details of the accident were not given at the hospital.

Druggists Take Steps To Meet New Competition

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Aug. 17. (AP)—Invasion of the drug business by groceries and other stores, which allegedly cut prices to provide leaders to the detriment, it was claimed, of the druggists and the public, was reviewed by speakers before the West Texas Pharmaceutical association at the first business session of its semi-annual convention here today.

An appeal was made to the public to buy from drug stores the varied merchandise always associated with that business in order that vitally important service may be maintained. Otherwise, it was stated, pharmacists will be forced to seek legislative intervention as in Pennsylvania, where none but drug stores may sell cosmetics lawfully.

Optimism was reflected in addresses by R. W. Earnshaw of Ballinger, association president, and other speakers. Edgar E. Witt of Waco, lieutenant governor of Texas, was toastmaster at a banquet tonight. Officers will be elected and the place of the next meeting named at the final business session Thursday morning. Invitations have been extended by Abilene, Big Spring, Amarillo, Ranger and Mineral Wells.

row he will board an airplane for San Antonio. From there he will motor to his home. He arrived here from New York last night and spent the day conferring with Democratic leaders at his office.

Defers Campaign

Asked when he would leave Texas to begin his campaign tour, he said with a smile:

"The latest date possible."

"I am just an errand boy," Garner volunteered. "I'm at the service of the Democratic national committee, and I'm going to do what I am told to do."

Asked if he had "convinced the people in New York and the East that you are not a radical," Garner, who is a banker and lawyer, leaned back in his chair and said:

"So far as I know, yes. I think I convinced them I am not going to eat them up."

Party Patriotic

Taking a serious vein, the Texan said the Democrats were as patriotic as any other party and that during Cleveland's and Wilson's administrations "the country did not go to the bow-wows."

"When the Democrats accept the responsibility of the government, they will preserve for the people their property, their rights and liberties," he said.

Questioned concerning what he told Smith in New York, Garner said:

"I said all I could. I have great respect for Mr. Smith."

Discussing President Hoover's remarks that tax legislation might have to be reviewed at the next session of congress, Garner said:

"I'll read what he says about it in December with great interest. He may change his mind between now and December on taxes or anything."

Sets Precedents

He was asked if he was not setting a precedent by running for both vice presidency and a seat in the house.

"I may be setting a precedent," he replied. "I have set many precedents and I may set more. I was a candidate for congress a year before I was nominated for the vice presidency. I was never a candidate for president. That came along last spring."

Garner said his candidacy for election to congress was a "dead cinch." He added that within 30 minutes, he could leave the house as speaker and begin presiding over the senate as vice president.

"And that's exactly what I am going to do," he concluded.

INVESTIGATE CANVASSERS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., (INS)—The federal government, at the request of the Travelers Aid society, the chamber of commerce and other civic and welfare organizations, may be drawn into the investigation of persons employing magazine salesmen to travel as members of a crew. Complaints have been numerous recently regarding the treatment received at the hands of crew managers, many of whom leave the young men and women stranded many miles from home.

ling, at the expense of his own private fortune, has placed Texas among the only five states in the union which are now on a sound financial basis."

Aid to Wichita Cited

Judge Rogers also commended Governor Sterling's declared intent to effect legislative action to exempt from state ad valorem taxes all homesteads up to $3,000 valuation each. According to figures obtained from Wichita county officials Wednesday, he said, this legislation would mean a saving of more than $100,000 annually to Wichita county taxpayers.

"We need Ross Sterling at Austin," the speaker continued, "to assure us that federal aid will be continued in our program of highway building. A total of $15,000,000 of federal funds now is available, with Texas putting up only $7,000,000, for highway construction, which will mean employment for thousands of men."

Judge Rogers declared also that because of the declaration of martial law in East Texas last year, the Wichita Falls territory is receiving daily for its oil output at least $1,000,000 more than it was receiving when martial law was made effective.

Judge John C. Kay was introduced by Mr. Jackson as principal speaker to members of the Junior Democratic league relative to their duties as citizens.

Kay Lectures Young Voters

"In entering upon political activities," Judge Kay said, "let me remind you of this: the opposition candidate is never so bad and mean as they say he is; and your candidate is not so good a man as you think he is. It is best to tell the truth in politics, because it will make your speeches short. The truth is circumscribed and limited. If a man talks too long, he just naturally begins to tell political lies, which are quite as bad as any other variety.

"Let me tell you how to vote," the speaker continued. "I'm too old and wise to tell you who to vote for, but I can tell you how, maybe. Always vote to simplify things. Democracy means simplicity. Any other form of government means a tangled web nobody can work out. Vote for only a few laws. The good Lord gave us only 10 commandments, but we have more than 8,000 laws in Texas. Vote intelligently. Know the history of your state and nation; know your constitutions."

District and county candidates were introduced by George H. Hodges, and each was given five minutes in which to plead for votes in the run-off primary election of Aug. 27. Speakers presented were the following: Charles H. Tennyson, and Miss Beth Perkins for Capt. D. M. Perkins, for the state legislature, district 111, place 2; Miss Elizabeth Hall and Julian McFall, county clerk; H. W. Fillmore and Walter Friberg, judge of the county court at law; Judge P. A. Martin and Wayne Somerville, judge of 89th district court, and Max Shumake and Jim Robinson, county tax collector.

Each of Wednesday night's speakers commended the organization which sponsored the rally. Music was furnished before the speaking began by the American Legion Junior band, directed by Lloyd Detlaf.

Face in Terrible Condition with Pimples. Cuticura Healed.
"My face was in a terrible condition with pimples that were scattered all over it. They festered and itched and burned badly, and when I scratched it caused sore eruptions. I lost a lot of sleep on account of them. The trouble lasted about two years.
"I used other remedies but they seemed to make the trouble worse. A neighbor showed me an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample of each. I saw improvement right away. I purchased more and after using two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, with the Cuticura Soap, I was healed." (Signed) Miss Lena Mae Cox, 210 W. Titmus St., Mexia, Texas.

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

"MY RIGHTS"

"All I want is my rights. I'm not asking father and mother for anything else. I have a right to do what I want to do. I have to live my own life, don't I?"

So often I hear that. Only a very young person can speak that way. The older ones know that rights are barren things, given to laughing in one's bewildered face. Rights are the husks of life. There is no sustaining nourishment in them.

The heated adolescent who resents his parents' control shouts for his rights. He wants to marry the wrong girl. That she is the wrong girl is clear to every one but himself. "I have the right to marry whom I please," he yells in a voice he longs to believe is thunder.

That is true. He has the right to marry whom he pleases and the only reason his people interfere ever so mildly, is the fact that he is unable to carry the responsibility that he is shouldering so aggressively. If he could go his way free of his family ties, free of any need of them, all would be well. But he needs his father and his mother and his relatives. He can no more live happily without their supporting influence than he can fly. Today he throws them off in childish rage but tomorrow he will return to them in childish helplessness. His rights won't sustain him.

The girl who announces that she has the right to live her own life usually means that she wants to have the approval of her people for doing something utterly wrong headed and childishly adolescent. She wants to leave home so she can be free of family supervision. Why? She wants the company of young people who defy the conventions, who keep late hours, who laugh at responsibility. She wants to keep one foot on the safe home base and the other in the questionable regions of adventure. She has a right to her life that is true, but she hasn't the right to mar other lives. How far will rights carry you?

Only far enough to meet yourself coming back. Only far enough to allow you to trample on your own toes. If your people stood upon their rights where would yours be, young Highty Tighty? A young man earned considerable money during the year and became enraged because his mother insisted upon his accounting for it. "It's my own money. I have a right to do with it as I please, haven't I?"

"Surely. Everybody has that right, but few of us exercise it. If you insist upon it of course you can but in that case I shall ask you to respect your father's rights as well. Here is a bill for your support for this past month. You can't spend your fathers' money while you use your own for fun."

That bill, item after item was set down with scrupulous care, was a shock. It called for more than the boy earned. It indicated something beyond his rights had been freely given him. He had been accepting privileges and demanding rights and the two never go well together.

Don't ask for your rights, my children. You might get them and you would not like them half as much as you think. They are starvation diet for soul and body.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

'DRY' OFFICERS MAY TAKE REST

Hoover Speech May Tend To Stay Enforcement

By CHARLES S. HAYDEN
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—What will be the immediate effect of President Hoover's pronouncement on federal prohibition enforcement? This is a question which Washington is asking and the answer as it develops will be watched with interest.

It is generally agreed here that President Hoover, in his acceptance speech, has shown himself wetter than his party, although he is still somewhat drier than Governor Roosevelt or the Democratic platform. The White House scribes have dug up previous expressions by the president on the subject of prohibition, his famous letter to Senator William E. Borah terming it "an experiment noble in purpose"; his guarded remarks in the acceptance speech four years ago; and his message transmitting the Wickersham report to congress. One of them, no doubt of Pennsylvania Dutch ancestry, waggishly remarked, "There goes Hoover coming back."

Enforcement May Lag

In the main it is believed that the immediate effect of the presidential pronunciamento will be to lessen the rigors of enforcement. Despite the implication that he is a "personal dry" the president clearly outlined the rising tide of resentment, particularly in the populous centers and frankly favors enactment of a new amendment restoring the power over alcoholic beverages to the states, with the sole proviso that no state may authorize the establishment of the saloon. It is argued that if this is the attitude of President Hoover it will be reflected to a greater or less extent by federal prohibition officers generally, but particularly in wet centers which the Republican party must hold if it is to win the election in November. In fact it will not be surprising if the enforcement officers and the bootleggers do not establish what almost amounts to an entente cordiale between now and election day.

The Democrats of course are assailing the president's attitude, insisting it is a straddle just as they did in the case of the Republican platform. They intend to try and drive that idea home particularly in centers like St. Louis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit and New York while in the dry sections of the West and South the effort will be to keep the dries from rallying to Hoover on the ground that he offers "the lesser of two evils." They insist that as it now stands Mr. Hoover has burned his bridges so far as the determined wets and the equally determined drys are concerned and must depend for support upon the moderates and only those of the Republican persuasion at that. It is contended that while President Hoover confidently predicted that American statesmanship is competent to so redraft the 18th amendment as to prevent the return of the saloon in any state he pointedly failed to indicate how this could be done. In this connection it is urged by the Democrats if the states are to have power to deal with the liquor traffic they must have the responsibility as well and that the best course will be for the federal government to wash its hands of the whole business.

Definitions Vary

Some interest is felt here as to just what definition President Hoover places on the word "saloon." The "bone dry" leaders look upon the saloon as any place where liquor is sold; the moderate drys limit it to places where liquor is sold by the drink; while the wets, as a rule, would restrict the term to places equipped with a bar and where liquor alone is sold and drunk on the premises. In New York and every other city of the North and East there are thousands of speakeasies, ranging all the way from so-called beer-flats to elaborate places with mahogany bars, luxurious furniture, mirrors and works of art equaling the most pretentious saloons of pre-prohibition days.

Students of the liquor problem insist that the same venality which permits these places to operate now in defiance of both state and federal authority could not be curbed by any such amendment to the constitution as suggested by President Hoover. Under it, they contend, there would still have to be federal enforcement officers, just as susceptible to bribes as those now serving. More than that they say that unless there is provision for the return of some sort of regulated drinking place one-half the economic urge for modification would be lost since, otherwise, the cities themselves could derive no revenue from it.

Texas Cowpuncher Fails To Stampede Scotch Marrying Smithy

GRETA GREEN, Scotland, Aug. 17. (INS)—Tex McLeod, former Texas cowpuncher and now a stage performer, dashed up to the ancient smithy here today expecting to be married to Marjorie Tiller, dancer and his stage partner.

Tex, clad in western garb, was informed by the blacksmith that the marriage was impossible because he had not resided in Scotland the requisite three weeks.

Keenly disappointed, Tex and Miss Tiller went back to London. They plan to be married in a registry office shortly.

THRONG TO SEE GUARD PARADE

Oklahoma Military Units To Pass in Review

LAWTON, Okla., Aug. 17.—Ten thousand persons are expected to witness the annual review of the Oklahoma national guard west of the encampment on the Fort Sill military reservation at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Relatives and guardsmen from every part of Oklahoma will attend.

Due to previous engagement Gov. William H. Murray will not be present but Lieut. Gov. Robert Burns and other state officials will be present. Maj. Gen. George E. Leach, chief of staff of the militia bureau at Washington, arrived at the camp by airplane Wednesday afternoon and was accorded an escort of honor.

All units of the national guard will participate in the parade which is expected to be the most representative in the guard history. Guardsmen will start breaking camp Friday night and before sundown Saturday the last troop train will have left the Fort Sill station. Officers state that this year's camp has been the most successful in the history of the national guard.

How to Relieve Headaches In Three Minutes

When you have one of those violent, nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, you can get soothing relief in three minutes with "B. C.," a reliable, pleasant-to-take remedy. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia; for reducing fever and quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold.—Adv.

Five Men and Woman Rescued From Schooner

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 17. (INS)—Five men and a woman were rescued today from the burning fishing schooner Hilda Marie adrift seven miles off Five Fathoms lightship. The fishing sloop Bobjack and the freighter Ohioan of the American-Hawaiian Steamship company participated in the rescue.

Those rescued were landed here by the Bobjack under command of Capt. Herman Roberg. They were Capt. Edward C. Brex, owner of the Hilda Marie, of this town, his wife, and four seamen. Their vessel burned to the water's edge, and sank.

The value of writing ink produced in the United States during 1931 was more than 20 per cent below the 1929 valuation.

PAPEN STANDS FIRM ON REICH

Chancellor Promises Suppression of Revolters

BERLIN, Aug. 17. (AP)—Chancellor Franz Von Papen gave assurances that Adolf Hitler will not use his storm troops to seize the German government, but in any event he will not hesitate to suppress any revolt by force of arms.

The chancellor made this assertion today in an interview in which he vigorously reiterated Germany's demand for equality in armaments with other nations, declaring that the fatherland no longer could submit to being treated as a second class nation.

Although the cabinet situation still is in a state of flux and there is no telling who will rule Germany after the new reichstag has been called into session late this month, the chancellor appeared serenely confident his government would stay in power.

Respect Constitution

Asked whether he expected to be chancellor next Christmas, he said: "We shall be in office for a long time."

There is no question of trying to avoid the reichstag, he said, for there is no government to replace the present one.

In the event of a vote of no-confidence, he laid down this policy: The government would take action according to the situation which then arose, meanwhile having every intention to respect the constitution.

Hitler has denied that when he conferred last Saturday with the chancellor he demanded full power. Lieutenant Colonel Von Papen asserted there was no doubt whatever on that point.

The Nazi leader admitted in that interview, he said, that during the last few months he had had a bad time with his impatient followers and could not accept a share of power but must demand all of it, and he could vote only for a government which identified itself entirely with his movement.

The chancellor was asked whether Germany would leave the League of Nations if her claim for equality in armaments went unrecognized. He was non-committal on this point, but he emphasized that it was a vitally important matter for his country which no longer can submit to discrimination and treatment as a second class nation.

No Desire to Arm

"Germany has no desire and no intention to arm," the chancellor said, "but she does want other nations to keep their promises to disarm."

"Germany still has aspirations to get some of her colonies back," the chancellor remarked, but no diplomatic negotiations on these subjects have been opened, he explained.

He expressed the hope that there was no danger of the Nazis resorting to illegal measures to obtain their end. He asserted he had received Hitler's assurance to this effect and had no reason to disbelieve him.

"As matters stand," the chancellor concluded, "the German people now again are united more closely than ever behind their supreme leader, the field marshal (Von Hindenburg), and are full of confidence in his wise leadership."

Austria Ratifies Protocol by 81 to 80

VIENNA, Aug. 17. (AP)—By a vote of 81 to 80, parliament today ratified the Lausanne loan protocol.

By this protocol Austria receives $42,000,000 under the auspices of the League of Nations. Most of it will go to conversion of short-term notes held by the Bank for International Settlement and loans from the Bank of England into long-term obligations.

Gotham Police Raid Assembly Of Murder Ring

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. (AP)—On the eve of a party at which police said they were to celebrate the extermination of adversaries, 14 men were arrested today in raids by 40 policemen and held on charges of complicity in the killing of John Bazzano, Pittsburgh restaurant man whose body was found in a bag in Brooklyn Aug. 8.

Police said the celebration was to have seen Bazzano's four executioners paid $5,000 each. After the wining and dining, according to the police, the four were to have been sounded out on a proposal to eliminate a widely-known New York racketeer, whom the police declined to name, at an increase in pay to $7,000 each.

All 14 prisoners, prosperous-looking men, said they were in the restaurant or grocery business.

Floydada Family at Work on Canning Project

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Aug. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miller and family this week started work on filling their contract for 3,000 No. 3 cans of field peas for A. & M. college of Texas. The work represents one of Floyd county's newest industries.

Mrs. Miller, Sand Hill Home Demonstration club woman, has her product standardized under the 4-H better products label and is filling her second contract with the college. Delivery is scheduled to be made by Nov. 1.

For years a member of a home demonstration club, Mrs. Miller was selected as one of Texas' master farm homemakers in the first year of the contest in 1928, was the first state winner of the improved kitchen contest in 1926, and was the grand champion garden demonstrator for Texas in 1927 in contests conducted by the extension service of A. & M. college and the United States department of agriculture. Last year she was a 4-H pantry demonstrator and an orchard demonstrator.

The Miller farm is a demonstration in balancing the farm business by living at home even to the extent of grinding the home-grown corn and wheat for meal and flour.

Bandit Slain, Another Caught After Robbery

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 17. (AP)—The companion of a bandit who early today held up and robbed the Peyton drug store here and was fatally wounded by deputy sheriffs at Marshall, Texas, was captured by a posse about five miles west of Marshall.

The wounded bandit died at a Marshall hospital about the same time that the posse closed in on his armed companion who left the wounded bandit in the car as he abandoned it after the shooting.

According to reports from the posse, the captured man gave his name as H. J. Taylor and the name of the dead man as Harry Cooper.

Gubernatorial Candidates Remain Quiet On Dry Issue In Primaries

Ferguson Is Known as Wet and Sterling as Dry But Neither Has Raised Issue During Campaign

By R. W. BARRY

AUSTIN, Aug. 17. (AP)—Although the prohibition issue has entered somewhat into the campaign for the three congressmen at large places in the run-off Democratic primary, little on that subject is being said with respect to the gubernatorial race.

Notwithstanding that the Woman's Christian Temperance union and some of the ultra-drys have announced their intention of supporting the renomination of Gov. R. S. Sterling, the wet and dry lineup seems to have been avoided.

Governor Sterling maintains he always has been a teetotaler prohibitionist. He was attacked in the first primary by M. H. Wolfe of Dallas, ardent dry, who wanted the nomination himself, as an insincere prohibitionist, but the Sterling forces paid little or no attention to it.

Ferguson Is "Anti"

The Fergusons have not said much about prohibition, although James E. Ferguson, during his tenure beginning in 1914 was an anti-prohibitionist. He always has been regarded as a teetotaler personally.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, the candidate this time, did not have anything to say about the prohibition question in her platform, and neither did Sterling.

The Fergusons were present in their home precinct convention when delegates were chosen to the state convention. James E. took a part in the debate upon a resolution endorsing the Democratic national platform demand for repeal of the 18th amendment, and proposing repeal of the Dean law, Texas state statutory prohibition statute.

He suggested that the subject be split into two resolutions, one commending the national platform and the other dealing with the Dean law repeal. He said to treat both proposals as one might be unfair to Democrats who were willing to be on record as to the national plank and not favorable to the Dean law change. His suggestion was followed and both resolutions were adopted.

Texans are apt to hear much of prohibition in the general election campaign next fall. While both major parties, since President Herbert Hoover's recent declaration in connection with his acceptance of renomination, are regarded as wet, it is very likely the drys will not consider the Republicans as "dripping" as the Democrats, in view of the latter's stand for out-and-out repeal.

The agitation bearing on the comparative dampness of the two major parties will arouse plenty of interest, which probably will be augmented by the Republican nominee for governor advocating retention of the 18th amendment and strict enforcement of all prohibition laws.

Bullington Dry

Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, the G. O. P. gubernatorial choice, snapped into action instantly for rigid enforcement of Texas prohibition laws a few minutes after he had been given the nomination.

Some one asked him how he stood on the Dean law while he was declaring for unequivocal support of the 18th amendment. He predicted that no party would ever again have the audacity to propose repeal after "the people speak next November." He wanted to know what the Dean law was and when some one told him he said he was for sending bootleggers to the penitentiary "from now on out" if that was necessary to stop the sale of "poison liquor to the boys and girls." He made the speech and his prediction of dire happenings to a party that proposed repeal of the prohibition amendment before President Hoover made the broad assertions he did on the subject in his speech of acceptance.

By producing all of his poultry feed at home, except fish or meat meal, John O. Smith, Clay county, N. C., farmer, says he is making money selling eggs at 12 cents a dozen.

HOME BANK TO PEDDLE STOCK

Campaign to Determine Sites for District Banks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17. (AP)—A stock selling campaign will be started soon by the Home Loan bank board to secure initial capital for the eight to twelve lending institutions to be set up throughout the country.

Three members are going into different sections this week to determine how much of the stock can be disposed of in the districts to be carved out. The amount of prospective subscriptions are expected to go a long way toward determining the geographical location of the districts and probably the cities in which the institutions themselves are to be established.

Franklin W. Fort, chairman, said he was making appointments to see leaders of financial groups in New England, New York and in his home state of New Jersey.

H. Morton Bodfish is going to Chicago to confer with representatives of institutions in that region, while W. E. Best will tour Pennsylvania and possibly Ohio.

As explained by Fort and Nathan Adams, another board member, the act creating the home loan system specifies that the board seek to raise the capital of not less than $5,000,000 for each bank through the sale of stock before drawing upon the $125,000,000 appropriated for that purpose.

The law provides that as soon as the board decides upon the location of the banks, books shall be opened for 30 days for the subscription of stock, and all institutions becoming members shall purchase an amount equal to one per cent of the aggregate of the unpaid principal of their home mortgage loans, but not less than $1,000.

The board will reassemble next Monday to consider the creation of the bank districts on the basis of information collected on stock subscriptions.

Boy Scout Activities To Be Consolidated

Special to The Record News.

DUNCAN, Okla., Aug. 17.—Consolidation of Boy Scout activities of the Stephens-Jefferson-Cotton county area with the Black Beaver council of Grady and Caddo county practically is assured, according to Nolen Fuqua of Duncan, head of the tri-county council.

Final arrangements are to be worked out at meetings to be held in Chickasha and Duncan this week. Preliminary arrangements were made at a meeting of representatives of the tri-county area with the Black Beaver council at Chickasha Monday night. The merger plans met with unanimous favor.

Lowered expenses, with activities of the five counties brough under the leadership of one executive, would be the principal benefit of the merger. Under tentative plans, expenses of the five-county area would be $4,900 annually. The budget of the tri-county area now is $4,100 a year.

Selection of an executive would be left to the new council after the proposed merger. Discussion of an executive has not entered into negotiations to date. W. I. Myers of Duncan is now executive for the tri-county area.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The Bystander regrets not having heard, or seen in full text Senator Hattie Caraway's maiden political speech at El Dorado, Ark., in the launching of her campaign to succeed herself in the senate for a full six-year term.

MRS. HATTIE CARAWAY

And Mrs. Caraway had unusual surroundings for that speech, since her ally, Senator Huey Long of Louisiana, had brought along with him the loudspeaker-equipped truck he had used in his own gubernatorial and senatorial campaigning.

The accounts of the opening of the Caraway campaign for the senatorial nomination—equivalent to election in Arkansas—which the Bystander saw were more taken up with Long's remarks and campaign methods than with Mrs. Caraway's own exposition of her political philosophy.

Cue From the Sphynx

It is an odd circumstance that any senator should have served as long as Mrs. Caraway has in that wordy body, both by appointment to succeed her husband and as the first woman to be elected to the senate, without having ever contributed a few well chosen remarks to the long-suffering Congressional Record.

Dressed in the invariable black of her widowhood, Mrs. Caraway made always a rather striking picture at her back row seat in the senate.

She seemed so small and frail, huddled in the huge senatorial chair, and by comparison with the many robust and hearty looking, not to say plump, masculine senators all about her.

There are a lot of big men physically in the senate—like Hiram Bingham of Connecticut and Henry Ashurst of Arizona, both of whom tower well over two yards above the floor level when in action. Or there is the former amateur heavyweight boxing champion, W. Warren Barbour of New Jersey.

In the absence of Mrs. Caraway's own exposition of her political and economic views, one is forced to fall back on Huey Long's speech about her to the senate. And that pictured her as sharing fully all the ideas about distribution of wealth and what-not Senator Long voiced so frequently and freely immediately on his arrival in the senate. He was an absolute contrast to Senator Caraway in that regard. No new senator was ever more vocal or active than Long.

Stephens Farmers Hold To Livestock

Special to The Record News.

DUNCAN, Okla., Aug. 17.—Stephens county farmers have been pulling through the period of low prices and tightened credit without making serious inroads on their livestock, the annual report of Tax Assessor Simeon Charleston reveals. Business leaders would not have been surprised at a drop in the number of farm animals, as the sale of livestock is one method of obtaining ready cash to pay taxes, mortgages and grocery bills.

The number of livestock in the county held about steady. The only important exception was the decline in horses, which totaled 4,503 in 1931 and 4,179 this year. Since the advent of autos, trucks and tractors, horses have been declining steadily, however.

One more cow was listed this year than in 1931. The figure for 1932 is 20,999. The figures on cattle were considered significant. In 1930, the assessor listed 19,434 head of cattle. In 1927, when a dairy improvement program was launched under auspices of county bankers, the tax rolls showed only 7,927 head of cattle in the county.

The assessor listed 3,695 mules on Jan. 1 this year, against 3,664 the year before, a loss of five. Hogs this year totaled 3,488 head, against 3,301 a year ago. The number of sheep and goats increased from 604 to 617 in the same period.

The average value of all classes of livestock declined. Improvements on land in which the title is vested in others increased from $148,170 to $162,490.

McFarland Addresses Voters at Electra

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 17.—W. D. McFarland of Graham, candidate for congress from the 13th district, addressed Electra voters Tuesday morning. McFarland was accompanied by a group of boosters and the Graham band. Following the concert by the band McFarland discussed the issues of the campaign. The first part of his talk consisted in a defense of his record.

He asserted that he was personally and politically dry. However, he stated, since Texas and the Democratic convention had voted favoring resubmission, he would vote to submit the question of the repeal of the 18th amendment to the people for their consideration. He announced that he favored the payment in cash of adjusted service certificates. Approximately 250 were in attendance.

Fifteen goats cleared a pasture area for W. K. Moore, Person county, N. C., farmer. He says there is not a bush or weed left.

The Weeks Park Bandit

THE warning to the public to stay out of the Weeks park area at night probably was intended in all kindness by Police Chief Dick Morris, and doubtless there is considerable wisdom in his advice. It reflects a sad state of law enforcement in Wichita county, however, if we must surrender the beauties of our only large outing place to the control of a degenerate criminal.

The Record News believes it is the joint duty of the city and county law enforcement officers to halt these outrages. To put it more plainly, we consider it as much the business of Sheriff Perry Browning as of Police Chief Dick Morris to return law and order to this area. Both officers have declared they are doing their utmost to put an end to these depredations and we feel they are sincere. Neither has attempted to shirk responsibility, but we are somewhat inclined to rejoice that the sheriff is as yet unwilling to call on the public to desert the park area.

This newspaper is not without sympathy for the problems of the police department with its reduced personnel, and it does not believe the public will be severe in criticism of minor shortcomings. Turning Weeks park over to the bandits, however, is a serious matter. The outrages attributed to one robber have been going on for weeks. Not once, not twice, not three times but a dozen or more times people have been robbed, abused and otherwise mistreated. One girl has been reported as the victim of an assault, another was saved from a similar fate by the courage of her escort and two married women were rescued by the determination of their husbands in the face of the bandit's drawn pistol. It seems to The Record News the people of this city have been very patient in waiting for the apprehension of this criminal, and that it is about time their forbearance is rewarded. Weeks park, its highways and by-ways, its roads and paths therein and thereout, ought to be safe for women, children and modern non-pistol-toting men; it ought to be safe for the moonlight picnickers and watermelon eaters; the campers and nature lovers, and the spooners. Yes, the spooners, the lovers, or the "neckers" as they are called today. Young men and young women have been at it since the dawn of history, and by and large it is a normal and very fine thing. Weeks park ought to be made safe for them, too, and we don't believe the public is going to be very sympathetic with Mr. Morris until it is.

Romance of the Man Who Strikes It Rich

THE recent death in Detroit of Albert Strelow, who was one of the original stockholders in the Ford Motor company, revives once more the gaudy story of America's greatest industrial bonanza.

Strelow put $5,000 into the Ford company when it was founded. In 1906 he sold out for $45,000—which, to put it mildly, was a very fair return on his investment. But that profit becomes insignificant by comparison with what it would have been if he had held on. His $5,000 would have grown, ultimately, to a great many million dollars. He would have become one of the richest men in the Middle West.

Of course, he had no way of knowing that; no way of knowing that that thriving little business was to break every record and dazzle the whole world. He acted prudently in selling out when he did. The only trouble was that he happened to be in a spot where prudence was a worthless virtue.

And that, probably, is why this nation never grows tired of hearing about the rise of Henry Ford. The whole story is really a frontier story; the story of the lone prospector who stumbled across a gold mine. In it, rashness gets rewarded and caution is left holding the bag.

Those bankers who refused to finance Henry Ford's fledgling company acted wisely. The hard-headed business men who cold-shouldered him did just what hard-headed business men ought to do. The men who risked their little savings with him ought, by all the rules, to have lost everything. It just happened that Ford's concern was the exception to all rules.

And it is probable that Americans will always take a keen delight in the whole story. We get so many copy-book maxims about prudence, caution and the like that it is extremely comforting to find a case which cuts squarely across all maxims.

For prudence and caution aren't, after all, deeply rooted in American life. The nation was developed by men who lacked those qualities; men who could risk all they had on a plunge into the wilderness. We'll always have a warm spot in our hearts for the man who strikes it rich and confounds the experts.

Rosenwald's Generosity

THE late Julius Rosenwald was famous for his many philanthropies. One of the things often overlooked, however, is the fact that when he distributed his money he didn't forget his own employes.

It was revealed recently in Chicago that in the great stock market crash of 1929, Rosenwald guaranteed the brokerage accounts of his employes. This, it develops, cost him just $7,825,000.

An action of that sort, of course, is not part of any employer's duty. If the people who are working for you want to invest their savings in securities, that is strictly their own affair and you aren't responsible. Rosenwald's action is simply one more indication that he never cared to confine himself to his simple duty. It was just one more instance in which he went out of his way to make his money helpful to others.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Ruth Chatterton had hoped to pull a Garbo and slip off the Bremen gangplank in the sotto voce manner . . . Radiograms to the local publicity offices were actually crammed with instructions to keep her arrival a secret, and as we go to press the lovely screemie star is disembarking from the ship at the Brooklyn pier . . . And, as you printed yesterday George Brent is speeding to New York from St. Louis to join her before they say good-bye to the East . . . Close friends insist that her divorce from Ralph Forbes has been completed and that the decree is in her baggage, which incidentally is smaller than that of any of the recently returning Hollywood queens . . . Ruth hurried back to NY sooner than she had expected (what with all that publicity George was getting with Loretta Young), and so neglected to buy all the flimsies and Chanels that the Parisian shops had to offer . . . Wonder who Loretta's next will be? . . . . You don't mind if I do a little wondering, do you? . . . here's plenty of riot up at the Inwood Country club as a result of several members and their wives going swimming in the lewd last Satdee yawning . . . And everybody wants to know where they got all that joy soup at that late hour, what with it being barred from the premises . . . The country clubs are having more than just "dues trouble" of late . . . Out at Fenimore the other week-end the porch-sitters were startled by a woman's yells coming from the vicinity of hole No. 6 on the golf links . . . When the curious members arrived on the scene they were in time to witness the tag end of a husband's wrath . . . . and the wife promised never "to do it again" as she rubbed her bruises.

There's a letter from Jimmy Durante, the schnozzola man . . . He simply wanted to tell you that his nose wasn't everything in life to him, and that he intended having a plastic surgeon enlarge his ears, his chin and, if possible, his forehead . . . The idea being, he explained, that if he could get as far as he has with a long nose, you can easily figure out how far he'd get with other prominent features . . . He also says he's all burntupp because a press agent compared him to the ancient Lycrugus and Solon, both of whom had noses 6¼ inches long . . . "Napoleon is my hero," he continued: "I don't care wot countries he conquered and how many pages he takes up in the histry books, the thing I admire him for most is the statement he used to make: 'Give me a man with plenty of nosé' " . . . Texas Guinan phoned from Montreal! . . . She says that even the most anaemic person has a lot of irony in his blood . . . It wasn't so long ago that they barred her from France and nearly started a war with America for permitting her to leave New York . . . Yesterday she received a bona fide offer to return to Champagnelianna and be the featured star at Deauville and Cannes during September and the mistress of ceremonies at the Montmartre cafe in Paris during the fall and winter . . . She may sail on the Manhattan on Sept. 7th . . . The cable told her to bring along the same girls who were bottled up in a seacoast jail on the last trip, and to name her own price.

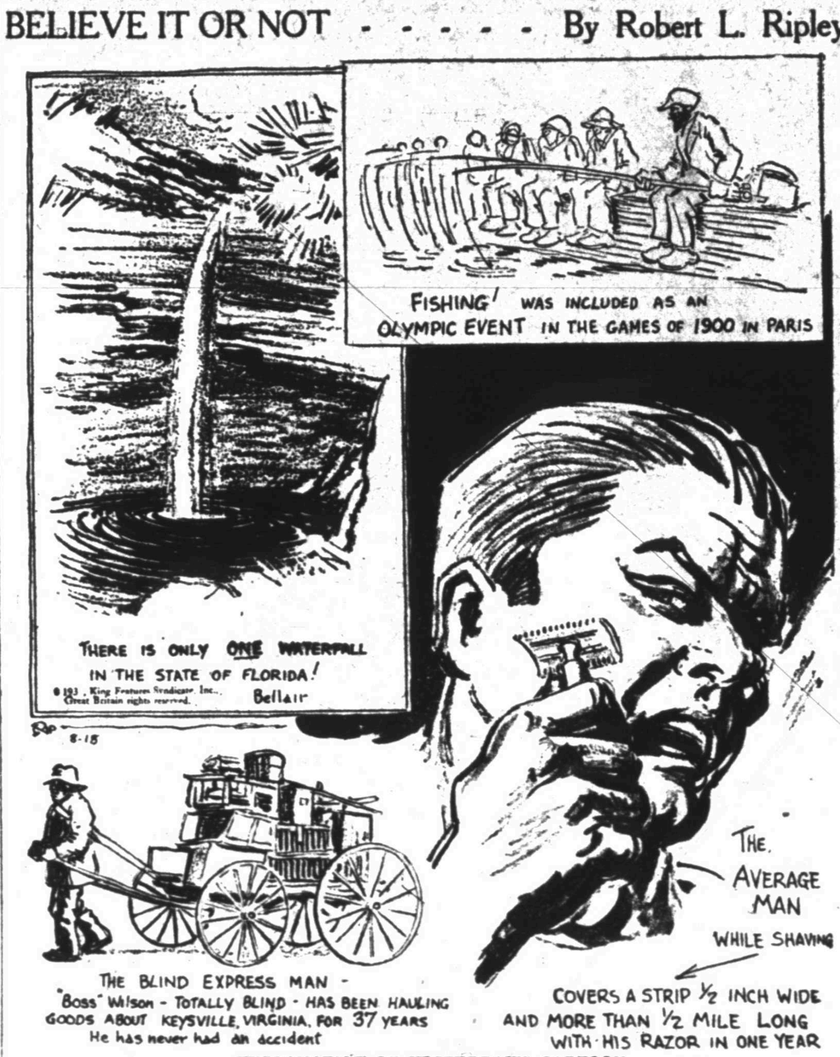

I saw the Marx freres in "Horsefeathers" last night and it's the first flicker I ever saw that can be described as being too funny . . . I mean that the laughs come so fast and furious that you don't get time to appreciate them, and before long you are so weary from laughing and trying to keep up with the pace that you simply slink back in your sit and watch the proceedings in silence . . . The high-spot in humor comes when Groucho says to the college-widow who is taking up all his son's time, "You are ruining my son; why can't you do as much for me?" . . . But very few in the audience heard it because it was sandwiched in between two other hilarious lines . . . Nevertheless, I wouldn't advise any one who likes the Marxes to miss "Horsefeathers" . . . Ozzie Nelson phoned . . . He wants to give you his prize saxophone—the one he received for a graduation present . . . I told him you didn't know how to play it, but he said that it wouldn't take you long to learn to play an instrument that requires blowing . . . Incidentally, he got the sax at his graduation from Rutgers where he studied law three years ago . . . He intended taking his bar exams in the fall and organized an orchestra for the Glen Island casino to earn a few dollars during the summer . . . Since then he has made so much money he's forgotten all about the legal trade . . . But I admire his modesty; he says he'd rather be a lawyer than a band leader, because a lawyer commands the respect of his community . . . So all I asked him was, "What community!"

It's a girl at the Arthur Tappers . . . A boy at the Ross McKinneys (Velma Thornton of the former "Scandals") . . . And twins at the Murray Oldhams (Mary Bandler) . . . I like Paul Forrest's definition of the electric chair: A monument to Franklin's kite and Edison's sleepless nights . . . Addie McPhail and Roscoe Arbuckle phoned . . . Please be sure to get in touch with them . . . Meyer Davis, the orchestra magnate dropped in, but refused to wait for you more than an hour . . . He has the pleasingest smile I ever saw on a musical man and that includes Bernie, Columbo and Olson . . . He killed a little time telling me the story about the time he sent Harry Rosenthal to conduct an orchestra at a swanky house party in Long Island . . . Harry was an excellent musician but at that time a novice in the art of directing. So, on his return Davis asked him how the guests had reacted to his program, and the young leader beamed enthusiastically: "It was sensational. They laughed all night long." . . . It seems that Myrtle Bard Sykes, the London danseuse, who went That Way about J. Cochet, the French millionaire, in the Argentine last May, will meet hi min NY next week for a sealing . . . Cochet is the lad who spends all his time riding the South American pampas and is a close friend of Luis Firpo . . .

I was sitting in Reubens last night when that hamateur who became an overnight celebrity ankled in with a doll on each arm . . . Before he took a table, he glad-handed everybody in the place and stopped to talk to an old pal of the split-week past . . . "Well, Charles," he chirped condescendingly, "You knew me when I was just a lousy actor" . . . And the buddy spat back at him, "Yes, and now—you're good and lousy" . . . Russ Niksur offers the simile: As bewildered as a salesman drawing his first pay check in 11 months . . . The depression has hit the Y. M. C. A. and they've posted signs over their large posters declaring that the initiation fee is no longer required . . . Sophie Tucker is spending three hours a day studying French so she will be able to fill that contract to appear in a Parisian musical this fall . . . The Charles Sandwins are having it renovated . . . Don't forget the stamps . . . There's one good proof that New York is a big city . . . The nearest town pump to Times Square is on a farm in Yonkers.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

UTAH'S NATURAL WONDER—The Rainbow Natural Bridge, one of the great natural wonders of the world, is located north of the Arizona-Utah state line, and spans a canyon through which runs a small stream called Bridge creek.

Formed of a salmon-pink sandstone it surpasses in size and symmetry any other natural bridge known. It is high enough to span the dome of the capitol in Washington. The Indians called it "Rainbow Turned to Stone," since its present name. It was proclaimed a national monument in 1910.

FLIGHTY

SYNOPSIS

Gypsy O'Malley, 22, and small, dark and lovely, lived with her pleasure-mad, hard-drinking family in a house on her wealthy grandmother's Long Island estate. Her 16-year-old half sister Angel was a Follies girl. Her half brother Jiggs drank hard, gambled and dodged creditors. Jim O'Malley, her father, lived beyond the allowance made by his mother, and Peg, Gypsy's stepmother, still good looking at 40, was vain and craved the admiration of men. Gypsy, thoroughly disgusted, went job hunting. Returning home in a storm, she heard an airplane circling in the dark. She lighted a pail of gasoline as a flare and Brent Jamison, famous transatlantic flyer, landed safely. He offered to teach Gypsy to fly and was assisted by Ted Colman. She loved Brent but he was captivated by Angel's baby-faced beauty. The O'Malleys, known for their escapades, achieved more notoriety when Fluffy Little, a Follies girl, her sugar daddy, Diggs' car into a pole and was killed. She was the wife of a wealthy Broadway spender. Then "Pinky" Delmar, owner of Jamison airport who had entered Gypsy in the women's air races, insisted that she see reporters and cameramen. One paper coupled her picture with that of Brent and said they were engaged. Brent was angry and told her he and Angel were to be married soon. Another paper said Mrs. Delmar was to sue for divorce, naming Angel. Gypsy knew that Angel had accepted a ruby ring from "Pinky." Ted finally got up courage to ask Gypsy to dine and dance with him and they started out in his wheezy flivver. Penelope.

INSTALLMENT XIII

Ted's face was radiant. Gypsy shook her head at him wonderingly, and voiced what she had been thinking a moment before.

"Ted, have you ever had a care in the world? Life has been one grand old party for you hasn't it?"

For a moment he looked straight ahead. Then he looked down at her again. She was puzzled at the look that had come into his hazel eyes. For a moment they looked almost tragic, then the look passed and he smiled again. But it was not his usual merry smile. It was tinged with bitterness. He answered her with a question.

"So, you really do think there's nothing to me but wise-cracks? That's why you've never taken me seriously, isn't it?"

"Seriously?" she asked, a little confused with his earnestness. "About what?"

He looked straight ahead again.

"You know I'm mad about you, Gypsy. Why kid around about it? Ever since the day you came to the airport I've been seeing cottages with little red roses. And you've laughed at me."

"Oh—" Gypsy said in a small voice, "I've never laughed at you. How—could I know? You've just clowned around—"

She stopped, not knowing how to go on. He slowed the car and drew up along the side of the road. She sat back and smiled at him a little uncertainly. Was Ted Colman, of all people, saying those things to lead up to an attempt to make love to her?

He reached and took her little dark hand. She sat quietly waiting. It seemed five minutes that he held to her hand and looked the other way. When he turned Gypsy was shocked at the pain in his eyes.

"Gypsy," he said in a muffled voice, "I don't want you to think I'm a clown. I can't bear it. I'm going to tell you something that may help you to understand me. Something I never tell—"

"Oh, don't if it hurts you." She put her other hand on his then. "Please—Ted, I think you're a wonderful boy. I—I didn't mean what I said."

"But you did," he smiled gravely down at her, "and you're tired of wit wits, I've heard you say so."

"Don't pay any attention to my foolishness—".

It was a lame attempt to prevent his telling something she felt would hurt him terribly. But he turned from her again, still holding her hand, and went on.

"What would you say if I told you I'm only 24 and that 12 years out of my life I was crippled and couldn't walk?"

Gypsy gave a little cry, and put her head over on his shoulder. Ted continued with a great effort.

"When I was six years old I fell from a swing and something happened to my spine. I didn't walk again until six years ago. Nearly all my education was with private tutors. My father was dead and mother took me to Europe. She spent every cent father left for doctors and six years ago a doctor in Vienna performed the miracle."

Gypsy raised her head and her eyes were swimming with tears.

"Where is your mother now, Ted?"

"She died in London a year ago. Mother was all I had."

Gypsy said, with a catch in her voice, "And you've carried on—and you always seem so happy."

"I promised myself," Ted held her hand tightly, "that I'd never let anything in the world keep me from smiling after I could walk again."

Gypsy reached up and put her arms around his neck in a loving little gesture of understanding.

"I think you're the most wonderful person in the world, Ted. Please—forgive me for not understanding you."

Her arms around him and her sweet sympathy sent the blood running to his face. Because he could not help it, he bent and crushed his lips to hers. She made no attempt to draw away. Her first impulse was to respond. But she knew it would not be fair.

Her heart beat painfully with uncertainty. What was it that made her ache to give him back kiss for kiss? It must be sympathy, she insisted to herself—for it was Brent she really loved.

Ted set back and dropped his arms from her shoulders.

"You're sweet—sweet," he told her then in a voice thick with emotion. "If you could only love me."

"I've never had a friend like you," she said, her voice trembling. How she wanted to help him. To make up for the terrible tragedy of his life. But she was too honest to tell him she loved him.

He looked at her in silence, then stepped on the gas.

"Forget it, Gypsy. I'm sorry I lost my head. Let's eat."

They scarcely spoke until they reached Fiddle Stick inn. Ted's face was set and unhappy. Gypsy ached with sympathy for him. The more she thought of him the more she marvelled at the courage that had caused him to take up flying, of all professions. She suspected very strongly he had forced himself into it, perhaps to conquer a fear within himself. For the first time she realized the strength of character and the real manhood back of his handsome, gay grin.

Ted and Gypsy had reached the turning point of the short road that led to the inn when Gypsy saw a long, blue sports roadster racing down another short road, which led, she knew, to a famous wet roadhouse. She was glad Ted did not notice her confusion. It was her stepmother and young Peter De Whittley. They were so absorbed in each other that they did not notice Gypsy in the flivver.

Peter De Whittley was a young society man—young enough to be Peg's son. But Peg had looked like a young girl beside him. She was radiant in pale yellow matching her canary hair. So—Peg was having another fling. And with one of the richest boys in Manhattan. Gypsy was sorry she had seen them together. Peg might be entirely innocent—Gypsy was inclined to give her the benefit of the doubt. But she was certainly foolish—a mother with a grown son and daughter.

At the inn Ted recovered his gayety and they ate and danced until the wee small hours. Gypsy found her troubles growing lighter and lighter in the feel of Ted's young strong arms around her and his grin, warm on her lovely face.

For a few days everything seemed quiet around the O'Malley house. Gypsy was telling herself that at last perhaps the family was acquiring a little much needed horse sense.

Jiggs was noticeably quiet since the night he had been in the crash with Fluffy Little. Angel had kept out of the papers since Mrs. Delmar had announced her intention of getting a divorce from "Pinky" and naming her. Apparently it was just another story. Gypsy saw her frequently with Brent and was beginning to feel that perhaps Angel was in love with the serious aviator, after all.

There was no money for entertaining and Peg and Jim seemed to be going their separate ways in the evenings. Jim was satisfying his poetic cravings with intellectual gatherings at the studios of some of his professional poetic friends in Greenwich Village. Gypsy had no idea where Peg was spending her time—she sincerely hoped it wasn't in the company of young Pete De Whittley.

Gram continued to keep the wolf from the door, despite frequent warm arguments with Gypsy who begged her to let the O'Malley men support their own household. But Gram was weary of the collectors that called at her house when Jim was hiding from them. Rather than listen to them she paid the bills—and kept the light and gas from being turned off.

One evening when Gypsy was at home alone she was in the very act of happily reflecting upon the quiet along the O'Malley front when the doorbell rang. If she had turned on the porch light and looked before she opened the door, she would not have done so. She stepped back in alarm when she saw the man in the tight fitting suit and derby who smiled at her fright.

"I—I think you have the wrong house," Gypsy stammered before he spoke. The man laughed.

"I ain't no woman kidnaper, lady. Don't run away. And I ain't got the wrong house. This is where Jiggs O'Malley lives, ain't it?"

"Y-yes." Gypsy paled with a premonition of trouble. "What do you want of him?"

"Never mind, kid. Is he home?"

"No—he isn't here. What do you want?"

The man's little, narrowed eyes looked to Gypsy like slits of dirty, dull gray. It took all her will power to keep from banging the door in his face and running. But she knew she would never rest until she found out whether Jiggs was in any serious trouble. When he waited, staring coldly, and did not answer, Gypsy decided to humor him.

"I am Gypsy O'Malley, Jiggs' sister." She forced a little smile then. "Perhaps if you tell me—"

"You're on the level that he ain't here?"

"Of course," Gypsy replied so earnestly that he knew she was telling the truth. "Why should I lie to you, Mr.—?"

"Bing Flynn's me moniker." He warmed a little then. "You look like an on the level jane so I'll tell you—I come to collect a grand he owes and I'm goin' to park right here till he comes home. I got orders to collect—or—"

Gypsy turned gold.

Q.—To what officials is the title "Honorable" applied?—J. J.

A.—In the United States, the title is used loosely, being given by courtesy to almost any one who holds or who has held important public office. It is especially bestowed on members of congress, governors, state legislators, judges of higher courts, and high federal officials.

Q.—How many consecutive years has America won the British Open Golf championship?—P. S.

A.—Gene Sarazen, by winning this year, made nine consecutive wins for America. His score was the best which has ever won the British open.

Q.—How many employes of the federal government are engaged in enforcing prohibition?—O. W. C.

A.—Approximately 2,400. This, of course, does not include the many state officers employed in this type of work.

Q.—Was the Crystal Palace in New York copied from the one near London?—T. A. G.

A.—It has often been stated that the prototype of the Crystal Palace in New York was the famous Crystal Palace Sydenham near London. The Sydenham Palace was opened in 1854 whereas the Crystal Palace in New York had been opened on July 14 of the preceding year. The New York Crystal Palace was destroyed by fire in 1858.

A.—Liszt emphasizes the fact that this composition is one of the earliest examples in modern music of a master composer's deriving inspiration from a master poet's work.

Q.—When was the first Prohibition party organized and what has been its voting strength?—T. P. R.

A.—The National Prohibition party was organized at a convention held in Chicago in 1869 and put its first ticket in the field in the 1872 campaign. In that year it polled 5,607 votes. Gains were made rapidly and the peak vote was attained in 1892 when 270,710 ballots were cast for the ticket. The last substantial vote, 182,711, was cast for the ticket in 1920. In 1924 only 57,520 votes were cast and the party is practically nonexistent, its issue having been taken over by the major parties.

Q.—Who was the first person to swim the English channel?—I. G.

A.—Capt. Matt Webb is officially credited with having made the first channel swim. But this is disputed. In a book written by J. W. Forney, "Centennial Commissioner in Europe," he states that Capt. Boynton, an American, performed the feat on April 10, 1875. Forney's book describes how Boynton was congratulated by Queen Victoria and supplies other data intended to show that the American was first to conquer the channel.

Q.—Who first called southern Illinois "Little Egypt"?—G. R.

A.—The name Egypt was first applied to the southernmost 36 colonies of Illinois by Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, the father of the "Illinois system of agriculture." Biblical historical similarities, the fact that several cities in this region were named after Egyptian cities, and the semblance of the land between the Mississippi and Ohio rivers subject to floods, are believed to have suggested the name.

Q.—What does auf wiedersehen mean?—R. W.

A.—It is a German phrase of farewell, meaning "until we meet again."

SPORTS 8, BUFFS 7

TYLER, Texas, Aug. 17. (AP)—Charlie Biggs pitched Tyler to its only victory of the three-game series with Houston here this afternoon as the Sports defeated the Buffs 8-7 before 3,500 fans.

The Buffs used three hurlers in an attempt to stop the Sports. Heusser started, but after being nicked for five runs in the second inning was relieved by Beckman. Payne pitched in the ninth frame.

Tyler's winning runs were driven in by Gilbert's home run in the seventh which found one man on base. Narlesky also hit for the circuit in the fourth with the bases empty.

George Washington, who had been on the Tyler injured list, returned to the game long enough to drive in three runs with a long double in the second. Score:

INDIANS BLANK CATS

FORT WORTH, Aug. 17. (AP)—Helped over a bumpy start by three successive double plays, Fabien Kowalik settled down to pitch the San Antonio Indians to a 7 to 0 victory over Fort Worth tonight. The manner in which Kowalik started for the Indians was encouraging to the Cats as they were putting the men on the paths.

But the happy moments did not materialize as Kowalik, despite other shaky innings, was there in the clinches and kept the Cats away from the plate. In so doing he allowed only six hits.

He was opposed by Dick Whitworth who was blasted from the mound in the fifth with Jim Parker and Roy Appleton following. All of San Antonio's runs came after two were down. Score:

Murray Waits Mine Report

Speeches Canceled at Threat Of Violence

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 17. (AP)—Gov. W. H. Murray kept in close touch with conditions in the eastern Oklahoma coal mine strike area today after taking personal control of law enforcement in the district.

He canceled speaking dates at Fairview and Cleo Springs so he might remain at his desk and receive reports of developments.

An appeal to the chief executive to call out the national guard was made by Jim White of Bokoshe, Le Flore county.

White was advised to request assistance from Sheriff Marshall Blaylock.

The governor directed Sheriff Blaylock to arrest at once any suspects in the beating yesterday at the Gillie coal mine near Bokoshe of Aubrey Tanksley.

Meanwhile, state operatives were sent to the scene to make a general investigation.

Reiterating that if operators will comply strictly with safety and labor laws he will protect them in operating the mines, the governor said Robert Brown, chief mine inspector, now is inspecting the fields. The inspector has filed a partial report with the chief executive.

Armed guards were placed about the Rees and Pitcock mine when an estimated 500 miners moved in at dawn and established a camp. They were unarmed. Union men picketed the mine.

JUAN AND BOB MEET AGAIN

Montgomery Seeks to Repeat Over Sheik

The second meeting between Juan Humberto and Bob Montgomery scheduled for Friday night in Govro arena, looms as one of the most promising bouts of the season. The two meet for the second week in a row as the headliner on the card. Montgomery stopped the sensational winning streak of the Mexican with his accurate aim last Friday night.

Montgomery knocked Humberto through the ropes, then drug him back through by the hair, much to the disgust of the Mexican who laid all the blame for his defeat upon the referee. Even while the Mexican is claiming Montgomery was unfair with him, the fans are expecting to see Montgomery come out from under cover this week and prove beyond all doubt that he is the best man of the two. Montgomery never seemed to come out into the open last week, but this week he is expected to open up with everything.

Pat O'Brien is back again this week after his draw with George Ligosky on the last card, and this week will take on Walter Stratton of Chicago in the semifinal. Stratton last week wrestled Promotor Govro to a draw and left a very pleasing memory of his work with the fans.

Flash Disheroon will appear on the preliminary with some wrestler from Dallas. Just who his opponent will be had not been announced.

EIGHTH TEAM JOINS LEAGUE

Merchants Loop Opens Play Monday

The Mack Taylor Wholesale Drug company rounded out the formation of the Merchants Playground baseball league when the entry of Flip Hoskins was accepted by Secretary Paul Whatley Wednesday. The league now has the full number of eight teams and play will get under way Monday with games on Harrison and Debus field.

Two or three other clubs were wanting the vacant post, but the Mack Taylor Pill Peddlers were given the place. The club will use as many employes of the company as care to play, with about five men expected, and others will be added to fill out the team. Flip Hoskins expects to use such outside men as Big Boy Ridling, Mack Turner and John Franklin with one or two more to be added.

Girl Olympic Swimmer Admits She's in Love

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Aug. 17. (US)—Josephine McKim admitted today that she is in love. But the young and pretty member of the American women's Olympic swimming team denied that she is engaged to be married.

"I'm only in love," she said, "and not engaged, if you please.

"And as to the identity of the man, that is very much my own secret."

Flying Club At Electra Organized

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 17.—Electra is expected to become airminded with the recent organization of the Electra Flying club which makes its debut Sunday. The club recently obtained an Eaglerock training plane with an OX-5 motor. Jack Overstreet moved to Electra Saturday from Wichita Falls and will be the chief instructor in the club. Overstreet was formerly connected with the municipal airport at Wichita Falls.

The airport west of town has been repaired, grass mowed, wind sock reset and other improvements made. Hangar space was secured through the cooperation of Mrs. C. F. Kolp and Abe Lincoln, Electrans, who own their own planes which are housed at the port. Lincoln owns a Moth plane and Mrs. Kolp owns a Spartan.

Five have already signed up for the course, Herbert Moore, Jim Dale, George Jennings, Jack Lebus and Walter Chapman. At least two ladies and a number of others are expected to become members of the club. Applications may be secured from the secretary, Herbert Moore, at the Electra Star.

Hoover Extends Boating Vacation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17. (AP)—So obliging were the fish of upper Chesapeake bay today that President Hoover extended his vacation a little longer than he had planned.

Radio messages to the White House from the commerce department boat Sequoia said the president and his party were headed for Annapolis for a landing late today and a motor trip back to Washington.

It first was Mr. Hoover's intention to debark about noon at the Maryland capital, but one more cast from a bobbing speedboat lured such a school of hungry trout that the president prolonged his excursion several hours. He was rewarded. His catch was described as the best of the three-day voyage through most of the bay's famous fishing spots. Yesterday he hauled in 15 trout off Tangier island, lower down the bay.

Upon arriving at the White House this evening, the president may arrange shortly afterward to go to his Rapidan camp in the Virginia mountains, or postpone his departure until early tomorrow.

Childress Man Hurt In Railroad Accident

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Aug. 17.—A freak accident was reported here when John Danner, employe of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad was brought to town for medical treatment. Danner, a pile-driver engineer, was coaling his machine for a trip from the local yards and had signaled the work train to pull up at the yard tank for water. As he started across a flat car at the rear of the pile-driver he passed under the coal-chute.

He was the only man on the flat car, and with the train moving a large lump of coal tumbled out of the chute, striking him on the head, and rendering him unconscious. A gash, two and one-half inches long was cut in his scalp.

He returned to his work following medical treatment.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. (AP)—Cotton was generally lower in early dealings, influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables, weakness in the stock market and a rainy Belt weekly weather report.

Rumors appeared to be acting for the cooperative interests were credited with selling considerable cotton last week as if the Presidential election is resulting or liquidation of large accounts.

American Telephone Dividend News Fails To Hold Stocks At High Mark

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. (UP)—The stock market today was greeted with the "good news" it had been hoping for most three, in the conventional habit, immediately proceeded to a substantial decline.

The news, if it could be called that, was declaration of American Telephone's regular dividend. Hardly a speculator expected a change in the rate even though it is widely known earnings of the company have not been up to the distribution. The revival campaign called for maintenance of the telephone dividend.

The market, however, was so thoroughly certain of the action that large-scale profit-taking developed prior to the announcement. Such selling and perhaps some additional offerings continued after the announcement, causing the market to dip rather sharply.

It righted itself just before the close to cancel most of the midway decline. All groups closed lower on the day.

Bonds also showed less vigor, though closing at a new average peak for the recovery.

Experienced market observers are emphasizing the wide fluctuations of the market. They point, for example, to the spectacular opening of Tuesday. Today, wide swings again were noticeable.

American Telephone fluctuated from a high of 115 during the day to a low of 108¾, finally closing at 110½, down 3¾ points net.

The day's swing in Allied Chemical amounted to more than 5 points, in American can 5 points, Case almost 7, Union Pacific 9¼ and similarly throughout the leading issues.

These wide swings indicate to experienced market people the lack of an active or passive short account. Since short-selling is forbidden on declining quotations, the bear interest naturally can only be reduced on a price setback.

But there is the danger of the short account being reduced to such small extent that it no longer exists as a cushion. It would seem to be to the advantage of the market, after its quite violent advance to date, to have a substantial short account always existent.

Another influence in the wide fluctuations is believed to be the tendency for "the public" not to stay put in stocks, but merely to speculate for relatively moderate profits. Such a tendency makes it difficult to distribute stocks, but the ever-ambitious pool operators are making every effort to attract the buying.

Today the motion picture stocks came in for aggressive pool attention and Paramount, Loew's and Warner were features of activity.

Some of the motion picture companies are none too sanguine over autumn prospects, but this makes no difference to the pools, who are mainly concerned with capitalizing the bull enthusiasm of speculators.

It is likely some of the motion picture companies will require reorganization, if conditions do not materially improve over the next few months.

The day's most active issue was Westinghouse. The stock is responding to a mild-western pool's activity.

New York Central reacted a little over a point. Steel common 2¾, Case 4 and outbacks were the rule throughout the list.

Wichitan Charged With Taking Shot At Neighbor's Mule

Shooting of a neighbor's mule by a farmer in this community resulted in the filing Wednesday of a charge of maiming an animal with intent to injure its owner, according to L. V. Abernathy, county attorney.

The animal received a charge of small birdshot in the neck when it wandered into the defendant's front yard, Mr. Abernathy was informed. State laws provide a penalty in the form of a fine of from $10 to $200 for conviction on the charge.

HOSPITAL WORK STARTS SOON

Wichita Institution Second Largest in State

The Wichita Falls State hospital will be the second largest institution of its kind in Texas with completion of a new ward building authorized by the board of control Monday, Dr. C. W. Castner, superintendent, said Wednesday on his arrival from Austin.

Dr. Castner and Architect Herbert Voelcker of this city attended the board of control hearing when contracts were awarded. The new ward unit will have a capacity of 220 beds and will give the institution a total bed capacity for 2,200 patients.

The hospital at San Antonio will be the only other Texas institution with a greater number of beds. A contract has been awarded for erection of a new ward building at the San Antonio hospital which will give it a capacity for 2,400 patients. The Wichita Falls hospital will have 14 ward and hospital buildings, two receiving hospitals, an infirmary and the new general hospital.

The general hospital building has only recently been completed and all scientific equipment has been installed, Dr. Castner said. Beds for 60 patients will be installed in the building at once and patients will probably be moved in next week.

The contract was awarded to the Jopling Construction company of Dallas on a bid of $64,790 and work is expected to start Sept. 1, in order that cement and brick work will be completed before winter. The building is scheduled for completion by March 1, 1933.

The building of an addition to the hospital laundry will double the capacity of the plant, Dr. Castner said. The contract was let to Bailey, Burns & Fitzpatrick of Dallas on a bid of $6,000 and Mr. Fitzpatrick will arrive next week to start work on the building.

Bids were scheduled to be received Wednesday at Austin for new equipment for use in increasing the laundry capacity.

KEEP COOL WITH O.G.

Science proves Old Gold
COOLEST, throat-easiest cigarette

When a cigarette is cool, that's proof of the finest tobacco quality. Coolness is the key to all the things you like in a cigarette. Throat-ease, freshness, flavor.

But which cigarette is coolest? Which has the choicest, purest tobacco? Science says: "OLD GOLD!"

In 75 repeated cool tests,* made by the Calorimeter method (a method used by scientists throughout the world) OLD GOLD was shown to be 112 to 156 heat units cooler than the other leading cigarettes.

That's because OLD GOLDS are just pure tobacco . . . made only from the choicest Grade "A" Turkish and domestic leaf, with no heat-making artificial flavorings added. Just sniff an open package, your nose will verify OLD GOLD'S tobacco purity.

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

*THE VERDICT OF SCIENCE
This is to certify that in 75 repeated tests made of four leading cigarette brands . . . measuring the heat content of each cigarette by the Calorimeter method . . . it was shown that OLD GOLD is from 112 to 156 B. T. U's. COOLER than the other brands.
