Democrats, GOP holding conventions

Democrats not fighting at convention

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — It seems Texas Democrats are experiencing something they've never known before and they like it.

Bambi Cardenas-Ramirez to be nominated as the Democratic Party vice-chair

—4A

Here at the state Democratic Party convention, the platform is traditional and uncontroversial, the candidates are the same ones from 1982 and intraparty fighting is nonexistent.

So what do all these thousands of Democrats packed inside the Super-Drum on the Univeristy of Texas campus do to kill the time? Make fun of Republicans and have a good time.

From Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower: "If you ever need a heart transplant, you better hope you get a Republican heart, because it's never been used."

Describing the Texas Grand Old Party, Hightower said it is made up of "right-wing reactionaries and Democratic rejects."

On the recent trend in Democrats switching to the Republican Party, Hightower said, "It's increased the intellegence on both parties."

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth, who will become Speaker of the House next year, said, "People better learn if they want to start living like Republicans, the better start voting Democratic."

Wright then gave a Texas History lesson, bringing up former Gov. John Reagan.

He said John Reagan was a great leader, "unlike the modern Reaganites who want to sell off our public domain to private profiteers."

Kemps calls for holding to party line

DALLAS (AP) — The Republican Party can survive squabbles and power struggles on either the Texas or national level so long as the 1984 platform is adhered to, U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp said Friday during an appearance at the annual Texas GOP convention.

Kemp would not comment on a developing rift among Texas Republicans. State chairman George Strake, who has the support of the mainline establishment, faces a strong challenge from vice chairman Diana Denman, who is supported by religious conservatives.

However, Kemp said at a news conference that he does not think the struggle — and similar moderate vs. conservative battles on the national level — will weaken the party as long as the 1984 platform is followed.

"I think that platform should be elevated above any internecine struggle," he said.

Kemp, one of four potential 1988 GOP presidential candidates attending the convention, said he wants to build on President Reagan's economic policy. He touted the tax reform bill, now being considered by Congress, as a pro-family, pro-growth measure and said he would tell convention-goers the legislation deserves their support.

Kemp, Vice President George Bush and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole are among those scheduled to address the convention. A fourth potential presidential candidate, Gen. Alexander Haig Jr., spoke Friday morning at a caucus of Hispanic Republicans.

Kemp said he will decide in 1987 whether he will make a bid for the presidency in 1988.

Although the well-known speakers won a good share of conventioners' attention, the underlying question was the race between Strake and Ms. Denman.

Sam Hoerster, an Austin minister also backed by religious conservatives, is a third candidate for party chairman.

Residents returning to hurricane-ravaged homes

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Thousands of residents living in Texas coastal areas hit by Hurricane Bonnie were still without electricity Friday, while others returned to homes damaged by heavy rains and winds that accompanied the storm.

Bonnie struck the Texas coast Thursday before dawn, killing two people, spinning off tornadoes and knocking out power. Thunderstorms covered large sections of eastern Texas and western Louisiana later in the day, dumping 10 to 13 inches of rain in some areas, the National Weather Service said.

The hurricane lost much of its punch after moving over land and was downgraded to a tropical depression. But heavy rains continued to batter some areas Friday.

In Beaumont, about 15,000 homes and businesses were without electricity Friday, Gulf State Utilities Co. spokesman Doug McCormick said. Electricity also had not been restored to some 4,000 homes and businesses in Port Arthur.

Power outages also remained in Orange, Bolivar Peninsula, and parts of Hardin County, McCormick said. Dry ice was being provided to residents without electricity while crews worked to restore power.

Meanwhile, residents in areas assaulted by the hurricane were busy cleaning up the mess Bonnie left behind.

"Well, everything is getting back to normal," Port Arthur Police Sgt. T.K. Donnell said. "We've got some power lines down. A lot of lights are out at intersections. Probably on Monday everything will be back to normal."

In northern Liberty County, an estimated 250 people evacuated from several subdivisions because rising flood waters threatened a dam began heading back to their homes Friday, authorities said.

Friday afternoon, some residents still were not able to return because the main road leading to Big Thicket Lake Estates was washed out.

No injuries were reported, but some homes were damaged by flood waters, said Tammy Cruce, a Liberty County Sheriff's Department dispatcher.

"The dam did not break, the water is down," Ms. Cruce said. "No one was hurt and people are already starting to go back to their residences."

The evacuation was ordered Thursday night by officials who warned residents that the dam at Big Thicket was in danger of failing. Big Thicket is a subdivision north of Rye in norhtern Liberty County.

Water was spilling over the top and sides of the dam, which is made of dirt and concrete.

Refugees to wed after long separation

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Four years of separation will end today when two young refugees marry in a little white church halfway around the world from where they fell in love but lost each other fleeing Cambobia.

Chamnon Koy and Huy Tan met at the refugee camp on the Thai border after escaping the Khmer Rouge, the communist insurgents who took over their country after the Vietnam War.

The couple soon had to part to go to different countries.

"At that time, we promised to ourselves that we would meet again," Ms. Koy said Friday from the home of her foster parents, Robert and Phyllis Agard, who will give her away to Huy Tan in the old, white-pillared North Congregational Church.

"I didn't think it was going to work out," said Ms. Koy, 26. "For Cambodian men, it's like, 'Out of sight, out of mind.'"

NASA: Shuttles won't be ready to fly until '88

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The space shuttles probably will not be ready to fly again until early 1988 because of the testing required to qualify a new solid fuel booster rocket design, an authoritative NASA source said Friday.

The source, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said a requalification of the booster system may require three full-scale tests "that will extend the program out some number of months."

The Rogers presidential commission which investigated the January explosion of the shuttle Challenger blamed it on a failed joint between segments of one of the two boosters and ordered that the whole booster system be analyzed and redesigned.

The source said engineers from the Marshall Spaceflight Center in Huntsville, Ala., and from Morton Thiokol, the Utah manufacturer of the rocket engines, have settled on two prime candidates for the redesign.

John Taylor, a spokesman at Marshall, said he could not confirm that engineers had selected prime candidate designs for correcting problems with the booster. He said John Thomas, head of the NASA redesign team, would hold a news conference Wednesday to give a status report on the redesign work.

James Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, announced earlier this year that the agency was aiming at a July 1987 target date for the first launch of a shuttle since the shuttle Challenger exploded in January.

But the NASA source said a redesign engineering team has determined that the work will take longer than first anticipated.

Figures indicate wider trade deficit

Associated Press

The United States last month imported more agricultural goods than it exported for the first time in two decades as the nation's trade deficit widened, the government reported Friday.

The report from the Commerce Department showed that the turnaround in the trade deficit expected from a weakening U.S. dollar has yet to materialize.

May imports totaled $31.6 billion, up from $30 billion imported the month before. Exports were $17.4 billion in May, down from $18 billion in April.

Agricultural imports totaled $2.2 billion in May, compared to exports of $1.9 billion — a deficit of $348.7 million, the government said.

Not since 1959 have agricultural imports exceeded exports, according to Agriculture Department analyst Tom Warden.

The merchandise trade deficit was $14.2 billion in May, up from $12.1 billion in April.

Bullock predicts state will be $2.3 million in the red

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — The state will be $2.3 billion in the red when the current budget cycle ends in August 1987, making a tax hike "inevitable," Comptroller Bob Bullock told lawmakers Friday.

State Treasurer Ann Richards told the Legislative Budget Board that the state might not be able to pay its bills by the end of this year.

"We are now reaching the point where there isn't a Band-Aid big enough to cover the problem. We are running out of rabbits to pull out of a hat," she said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said the updated revenue forecast makes a special legislative session this year — perhaps to raise taxes — "more and more" likely.

"I feel we have a responsibility to the citizens of this state to operate and try to maintain certain levels of service, and I will not deviate from that. If it requires a tax, I'll say at that time I think we need a tax," Lewis said.

Gov. Mark White, who has exclusive power to call a special session, said he planned to meet with Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby before deciding if a special session is needed. He said the Bullock figures are just "estimates."

"You have got to have a rather severe problem to call a special session four months before an election. It's a very difficult time, but we will just have to sit down and deal with it," he said in Victoria.

The tax talk came after Bullock said the oil price slump has caused unemployment hikes and a sales tax collection decrease that add up to "a crisis by anybody's definition." In February, Bullock predicted the state would be $1.3 billion short by the end of the current budget period, Aug. 31, 1987.

"Today I would raise that figure to $2.3 billion. And I would caution all those who deal with the budget in Texas that that figure may go higher," he told the LBB Friday.

Sales tax collections in May were down from the May 1985 level, Bullock said.

"This drop in sales tax dollars tells us the collapse of oil prices has now spread to just about every sector of the Texas economy," he said.

"For the life of me, I've looked at it and I can't see it as other than inevitable that the state of Texas is headed toward a tax bill in 1987. The question is not if there will be a tax bill. The question is how big it will be," Bullock said.

The 1985 Legislature approved a $36.8 billion state budget for 1986-87.

In February, White asked all state agencies to cut spending by 13 percent. Bill Hamilton, White's top budget aide, Friday told the budget board that the cuts have averaged 7.2 percent.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen and a budget board member, told Hamilton, "I applaud your efforts but I think the only way we're going to do it is get down here and do it by law."

Treasurer Richards said the problem needs quick attention. A solution in the 1987 regular session might come too late, she told the board.

"The state's cash flow problem is grave and it is getting worse," Ms. Richards said, adding that it will take "extraordinary means" to get through December.

That includes the use of "special demand accounts" in which the state borrows money from banks.

"Which, in your terms, is hot warrants," she said.

Lewis said another round of spending cuts would be the first priority. But he changed his tune about tax hikes, which he had been saying would not be needed.

"I told you a month ago my feet were not in concrete," he said Friday.

While Lewis said there is "no danger" that the money crunch would result in a state income tax, he said, "We are going to be looking at all areas of revenue enhancement."

"Sales tax seems to be the most accepted one of all, probably either increasing that or broadening of the base," Lewis said.

He did not agree with Bullock's assessment that a tax hike is inevitable.

"I don't want to say it is, but the possibility of it is increasing every day with the deficit growing larger," Lewis said.

Hobby had little to say after the Friday meeting of the LBB, of which he is chairman.

Sesquicentennial Wagon Train driver to be married on train

IRVING (AP) — While members of the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon Train fought Texas dust storms and broiling heat, Rudy Nelson was busy pitching woo to Jana Miranti.

"When I came down here all I had was a red pickup," said Nelson, 37, of Flagstaff, Ariz. "Now I've got two wagons, six red mules and Jana."

The couple is expected to wed today in a circle of the historic wagon train at Valley Ranch in Irving, with seranading from country singer Charlie Pride.

"It's exciting getting married on the wagon train, but I'd marry Rudy anytime, anywhere...I love him that much," Ms. Miranti said.

The two met at a wagon train stop in Amarillo and became engaged in a leaky camper on a rainy night in Windthorst.

Nelson — hunting guide and driver of the only stagecoach in the wagon train — spotted Ms. Miranti on May 19 in a crowd of wagon train spectators in the Pahnhandle city. Nelson took Ms. Miranti and her 6-year-old son, John, in the stagecoach as the wagon train rolled to Claude, then drove them home in his pickup.

"I just couldn't get him out of my mind," Ms. Miranti said.

The next week when Ms. Miranti heard her friends were going to meet the wagon train in Turkey, she jumped at the chance to join Nelson. Since then, she has spent most of her time on the wagon train.

The couple chose antique costumes for their wedding garb. A lace dress with ribbons for the bride and a stovepipe hat and tails for the groom.

Rochester bank 10th bank to fail this year

ROCHESTER (AP) — The Home State Bank of Rochester, the only bank in this town about 50 miles north of Abilene, failed Friday because of poor loan management and the oil-depressed Texas economy, officials said.

The failed bank — the 10th this year in Texas — will reopen Monday as Home State Bank, and depositors of the failed bank will become depositors of the assuming bank, said Julie Anderson, spokeswoman for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

"As might be expected, the current difficulties of the agricultural and oil economies have have somewhat contributed to the failure," state Banking Commissioner James L. Sexton said.

"But inadequate loan administration and losses on loans to insiders and out-of-territory interests were important factors in the depletion of the bank's capital," he added.

An examination of the bank earlier this year and a recent re-exemination by the Texas Department of Banking and the FDIC found extensive deterioration in its loan portfolio that led to losses in excess of the bank's capital and reserves, Sexton said.

Attempts to re-capitalize the 54-year-old bank, which had nearly $9 million in assets, were unsuccessful.

The new Home State Bank, chartered by the State Banking Board and owned by Rochester Financial Corp., has purchased and assumed certain assets and liabilities of the failed bank, Sexton said.

The new bank, led by president Bill Parks, will assume about $8.5 million in 1,600 deposit accounts and has agreed to pay the FDIC a purchase premium of $10,001, Sexton said.

It also will purchase certain of the failed banks loans and other assets for $5.6 million.

Broken bottle of vintage wine may be costly

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Dallas-based liquor distributor — accused of breaking a bottle of vintage wine while trying to make room for a $2.99-a-bottle of wine — could end up paying $20,000 for the mishap.

Johnny Gabriel, vice president of San Antonio Discount Liquor Inc., filed suit against Rick Yarbrough and American Wines and Importing Co. of Dallas over the 1900 Chateau Lafite Rothchild, which according to testimony broke when Yarbrough was making room for a 300-case display of Riunite.

The wine is considered one of the four best kinds of Bordeaux red wines in the world.

Yarbrough is accused of breaking the magnum-size bottle of expensive wine while moving a one-ton, steel and wood wine vault without Gabriel's permission.

The high-priced wine suit has turned a little sour for Gabriel after a San Antonio wine expert John W. Casey III testified the wine — despite being among the best — ordinarily would go for only $1,000 to $3,000.

"Nineteen hundred is not the greatest year for Lafite," Casey testified. "When you look at $3,000 for 48 ounces of wine, it has to have something more going for it than just grape juice."

But he said the price could rise above $3,000 at an auction.

Jeff Hawkins, attorney for American Wines and Importing, is contending in court documents that it was Gabriel's negligence — not the salesman's — that resulted in the broken bottle.

Former congressman writes book of life's drinking, homosexuality

By JOAN MOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Bauman, the former Maryland congressman, says he was introduced to homosexual sex as a teen-age page on Capitol Hill, and spent the next 25 years leading a secret, sordid life of gay encounters and heavy drinking.

"Why did I do it?" Bauman writes in his forthcoming book. "In many ways I was driven by a force over which I seemed to have little control. I was willing to risk my marriage, my wife, my children, even life itself."

Bauman, 49, was the darling of the conservatives and an acknowledged parliamentary wizard in the House until his defeat in 1980, a month after he was accused of soliciting sex from a 16-year-old boy. The charges were dropped after Bauman underwent counseling for alcoholism.

Excerpts of Bauman's book, "The Gentleman from Maryland," due out in August, are published in the July issue of The Washingtonian magazine. Bauman now works as an attorney in the nation's capital, but says he has had difficulty attracting clients and he wrote the book for money.

Bauman's book paints a picture of a man tormented by his sexual ambivalence, wracked by shame, remorse and guilt and desperately avoiding self-examination by plunging into the whirlwind of politics.

"My homosexual encounters were an aberration that plagued me, but I would overcome this by sheer force of will," Bauman wrote, adding that long after he was exposed "I was still fighting" accepting his homosexuality. "And to some extent, I still am."

Most of the time, Bauman said he felt a gnawing loneliness and an "inner powerlessness that I tried to abate by control, manipulation, domination and coercion of those around me."

His feeling of inadequacy was temporarily relieved by having sex with a "handsome, well-built man" — the "conquest over someone I deemed to be more perfect and attractive that I was — all this produced exhilaration."

He said his first homosexual experience occurred when he was a page in the early 1950s; he rented a room near a homosexual boarding house and had brief flings with men who frequented the place, including local toughs, congressional employees and college students.

In college, Bauman met his future wife, Carol Dawson. At first, they had a relatively normal married life, and Dawson, now acting chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, bore Bauman four children before the marriage was annulled in 1982.

Bauman said his secret life was dangerous. Once he picked up a hitchhiker and drove him to the American Conservative Union because the man had no place to go. There, the stranger "became a snarling animal with a switchblade" who demanded money.

COUPLE

But Tan, 31, said he couldn't stop thinking about his fiancee, with the long, dark hair down to her waist.

"We have a lot of memories that we can't forget," he said, recalling the times they didn't have enough food and had to share rice, or the times they helped each other cope with their sorrow over relatives lost or killed when the Khmer Rouge drove Cambodians into work camps in the countryside.

Tan, who was unable to find a sponsor to bring him to the United States so they could be reunited, ended up moving to Adelaide, Australia, in 1983, a year after Ms. Koy moved to this western Massachusetts town.

After Ms. Koy came to America in 1982, they wrote but didn't see each other until last summer, when she visited for three weeks in Australia.

They decided to be married in Amherst in front of Ms. Koy's foster parents and other Cambodians who settled here through the help of Quakers and Lutheran Church Services of New England. Among the approximately 100 guests, she also has invited her teachers from Amherst Regional High, where she graduated this spring.

Her friends and foster family helped her through rough times when it was difficult to concentrate on her studies and to socialize because of her loneliness and despair.

"I cried all the time, but I didn't cry in front of my foster family," Ms. Koy said. "I didn't do well in school sometimes. And sometimes I didn't feel comfortable when they held parties. I didn't want to go, but I went anyway. Now, I'm so proud of myself."

The couple's devotion even moved Agard, 70. "I'm not a romantic, but when I see them together, I feel great. They are just right for each other."

The story of their separate flights from Cambodia was as interesting as their romance, he said.

Ms. Koy's mother and two older brothers died and a younger sister disappeared during her country's reign of terror. She said it took her a week to flee on foot at night with other refugees in 1979 to the Thai border. "You had to follow the footprints in front of you. If you stepped somewhere else, you might step on a mine and get killed."

Fearing soldiers would find them, the other refugees left her when she began coughing after sleeping in wet clothes. Lost and alone in the woods, Ms. Koy said she climbed a tree to get her bearings and spotted another group of refugees. Once inside a refugee camp, Ms. Koy, who was 19, said she lied and told camp workers she was 14 so she could enter the children's center where conditions were a little better.

It was there she met Tan. He arrived a month later with his two brothers and two sisters after their parents died and a sister was raped and killed by soldiers, she said.

"I saw he was an honest man. He was a real sweet person, and he looked so handsome," Ms. Koy recalled. "Other girls there were so beautiful. I don't know why he liked me."

But Tan said Ms. Koy caught his eye because of the way she helped the children. "She was kind to everybody. I feel she is the right girl for me."

After their wedding and outdoor reception at the home of Ms. Koy's first foster mother, Sheila Hunter, the newlyweds will return to Australia to begin a new life.

SHUTTLE

"The July 1987 launch date is just not do-able," he said. "We could have delivery of the new boosters in the fall of 1987, which would probably put the launch into early 1988."

Both the Marshall and Thiokol redesign proposals call for incorporation into the rocket joint of a feature that would use the rocket's internal pressure to force the joint closed.

The Rogers commission concluded that the booster could have failed because internal pressure from the burning solid fuel forced the joint open, causing failure of two O-ring gaskets intended to seal the joint. Superheated exhaust gases jetting through the joint then sprayed against the shuttle's huge external fuel tank.

According to the source, a joint design by Thiokol calls for adding a third O-ring inside the joint to receive the first burst of pressure when the rocket is ignited. This design also would have an extra metal lip that would lock the joint together as the rocket ignition pressure caused it to expand slightly.

A design developed by Marshall engineers also would include the metal lip, but would not add a third seal.

The source said neither design would require the asbestos-based putty that was used in the joint on Challenger.

The source said the Thiokol design would include a second port or hole to enable technicians to inject compressed air to test all three O-rings for leaks. The Marshall design and the one used on Challenger had only one leak-check test port. Some engineers worried that test pressures from that single port could force the primary O-ring out of position, but a second port could counteract that.

The Rogers commission recommended that NASA consider a full-scale, vertical or launch position test firing of the redesigned booster rocket.

But NASA officials said the agency has no facilities for such a test. The source said Friday that an engineering analysis shows vertical tests may not be required, but that two to three horizontal tests will be needed.

"Some of the studies show that a horizontal test actually puts more stress on the booster than a vertical test," he said.

Any proposed redesign must be approved by an overview panel of experts from outside NASA. The source said this may take many weeks because the panel is just getting organized and will have to review all of the candidate joint designs before approving one or two for full-scale tests.

Democrats to elect woman as vice-chair

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Longtime political activist Bambi Cardenas-Ramirez has come out as heir apparent to serve as state Democratic Party vice-chair, becoming the second consecutive Hispanic women to hold that position.

The Mexican American Democrats caucus unanimously agreed Friday to nominate Ms. Cardenas-Ramirez for vice-chair during the nomination-and-voting session of the full convention today.

With no known effort to elect someone other than Ms. Cardenas-Ramirez and with MAD's unanimous approval, Democratic insiders expect her nomination and election to be routine.

Incumbent Vice-Chair Judy Zaffarini won the Democratic nomination to the state Senate and is not seeking re-election to her party post.

Chairman Bob Slagle faces only token opposition — from John Preacher Hays and Lyndon LaRouche follower Colleen Gibson — to keep his seat, meaning the election of the party's two top posts should be unanimous. Democrats hope that will show a sign of party unity going into the November elections.

Ms. Cardenas-Ramirez has served on the the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights since her appointment in 1979, despite attempts by the Reagan administration to oust the San Antonio educator from the commission.

Ms. Cardenas-Ramirez used her acceptance speech to blast the Republican Party, saying the GOP has tried to kill programs and to take away rights important to Hispanics.

"The difference between the Democratic Party and the Republican Party," she said, "is that the Democratic Party starts at the bottom and builds up, while the Republican Party starts at the top and dictates to the people down below."

A dozen Democatic leaders spoke to MAD's caucus, praising Democratic nominees to various offices, calling for party unity and bad-mouthing Republicans.

Ms. Cardenas-Ramirez pledged to be accessible and to travel to all Democratic funtion across the state.

"Our party needs more than a name, we need an advocate," she said in a fiery speech. "We have the right to be represented by people that give a damn about the people."

The official nomination and votes for party officials comes tonight near the convention's closing.

Republicans also are meeting this weekend at their convention in Dallas. Unlike the Democrats, Republicans have a heated battle for party chairman and vice-chair.

Much of MAD's caucus centered around GOP attorney general candidate Roy Barrera, who MAD members accused of carrying the water for big-money Republicans.

MAD Chairman Ruben Bonilla of Corpus Christi said Barrera does not represent Hispanics and shouldn't count on support in the Mexican-American community.

He said Republicans leaders put up Barrera in an effort to split the Hispanic vote, but predicted their effort won't work.

Bonilla said Barrera, who is at the Republican convention in Dallas and could not be reached for comment, is "a messenger boy" for Republicans who want the Hispanic vote but don't support issues Hispanics favor.

All of the speakers — including Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, Treasurer Ann Richards, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro and Party Chairman Slagle — vowed to work for Zaffarini's senate race.

Brothers arrested on drug charges

From Staff Reports

A Crime Stoppers tip led to the drug-related arrest of two brothers Friday morning.

Noel Fuentes Aguirre, 22, and Mario Fuentes Aguirre, 24, were charged with possession of a controlled substance, said Lt. Alex Nava of the Midland County Sheriff's Office.

Noel also was charged with intent to deliver, Nava said.

Nava said four grams of cocaine were found at the house of Mario Aguirre at 922 S. Fort Worth.

Bond was set for Noel Aguirre at $50,000 and $30,000 for Mario Aguirre. Mario Aguirre was released Friday on bond, the sheriff's department said.

Midland Police Department reported a burglary of Gary's House of Music at 12 South Meta Drive. The break-in occurred late Thursday night or early Friday morning, police said.

Reports showed that burglars got away with about $350 worth of property.

A car owned by Kathy Davidson was broken into Thursday afternoon at 3400 W. Louisiana Ave. Ms. Davidson's purse was stolen, police reports indicated.

BONNIE

Up to 13 inches of rain dumped over the area were responsible for the heavy run-off, which filled the subdivision's man-made lake, authorities said.

In addition to rains and flooding caused by Bonnie, high winds damaged homes and businesses as the storm tracked northward. A tornado was spawned by the storm near Fannett, southwest of Port Arthur.

There were reports of marinas and boats at Lake Sam Rayburn being damaged. Bill Webb, owner of the Shirley Creek Marina near Etoile, estimated wind damage from $750,000 to $1 million.

Across the lake, Hank Creek Marina near Huntington broke free from its moorings and floated into the lake, and parts of it were submerged, said Colleen Schroeder, dispatcher with the Angelina County Sheriff's Department.

DEMOCRATS

Attorney General Jim Mattox kept up the tradition he began three years ago and brought along Charlie, an ugly, yellow hound dog. He said when yellow-dog Democrats have to vote in a race in which there is no Democratic candidate, write in Charlie's name.

"Charlie's smarter than any Republican I know," Mattox quipped.

The two-day event ends tonight when convention delegate select a party chairman and vice-chair.

Incumbent Chairman Bob Slagle of Sherman is expected to win re-election easily. Incumbent Vice-Chair Judy Zaffarini of Laredo is stepping down to make a race for the state Senate, and San Antonio civil rights leader Bambi Cardenas-Ramirez is expected to take over as vice-chair without competition.

Inside the Dallas Convention Center, some delegates sported campaignin buttons supporting Ms. Denman or Strake, along with buttons that read, "God & Government" and "Pray For An End To Abortion."

Ms. Denman maintains she relies on widespread grass roots support and not just the new fundamentalist members.

"My challenge is really from the floor," she said. She described the present struggle as growing pains brought on as new members join the party.

"Before, we were so small that it was able to be handled in the country club fashion," she said.

Ms. Denman said she offers the party a grass-roots approach in leadership and will seek to broaden its appeal.

Strake contends he still has the support of the majority of Texas Republicans, although he said he welcomes the new fundamentalist members.

At a press conference Thursday, several fundamentalist leaders endorsed Strake's candidacy. Bill Price, director of Coalition for Life, said Strake opened the party doors to religious conservatives.

The three candidates for chairman spoke to dejegates at the end of the general session Friday. The elections will be held Saturday.

Radio hams' capabilities to be tested

From Staff Reports

"Field Day", an international test for Permian Basin radio amateurs designed to test their capabilities for 24-hour emergency operations, will be held today and Sunday.

The test, sponsored by the Midland Amateur Radio Club, is an opportunity for "hams" to join with thousands of their radio compatriots around the globe to practice and perfect the art of providing emergency communications.

In past emergency cases, such as the Sweetwater tornadoes, amateur radio has proved to be the only reliable communications from the affected areas.

For the local effort, the test requires that local hams operate with makeshift antennas and emergency powered equipment under the rigors of round-the-clock operating schedules in a contest to see which group can contact the greatest number of other stations.

Said Ed Meyer and Curt Fletcher, co-chairman for the event, "Hopefully, the skills and operating experience gained from this test will be just for fun, never having to be put to use in a Permian Basin emergency.

"However, preparation for such emergencies, as was demonstrated in the Sweetwater disaster, cannot be left to chance."

For more information, contact Don Mac at 684-5861 or Joe Milam at 687-1127.

Falling interest rates, meanwhile, were having an impact in the mortgage market, the credit markets and on Wall Street.

The government said the nation's federally insured savings and loan institutions issued a record $21.8 billion in mortgages in May. Analysts said declining mortgage rates have fueled a boom market for home loans.

Interest rates tumbled further on Friday, and the decline lifted prices of some long-term Treasury bonds by nearly $10 for every $1,000 in face value and pushed stock prices toward record levels.

Texas Rangers called lawless

(AP) — The Texas Rangers were alternately called scoundrels and saviors, depending upon the fight and who was doing the calling. They considered among their enemies Mexicans crossing the border from the south, Indians crossing any border to Texas and fugitives from the rest of the United States.

Early in their history Rangers had little patience for lawlessness of any kind and swift recrimination, often killing the "lawbreaker" on the spot, became their mark. Because of the Rangers' "shoot-first, ask-questions later" methods, Mexican Americans along the border called them "rinches." As folklorist Jose Limon points out, the similarity of the word "rinches" to the Mexican words "pinche," meaning small-minded or mean, and "chinche," meaning bug, is not merely a coincidence.

Ranger justice was said to match that of their enemies. One-time Ranger and storyteller Noah Smithwick told of rescuing a white child from Indians in 1835. After killing the Indians, the Rangers returned the terrified child back to his mother along with the Indians' scalps.

Nonetheless, the Rangers were men of the law, officially authorized by the Republic of Texas and later by the state. To the settlers who wished to be left alone on their land, unfettered by the forces against them, the Rangers were heroes. Even when the state's borders were relatively secure, Texas was still a dangerous place to live, the last harbor for outlaws and opportunists.

In the aftermath of the Civil War, historian Ben Procter says, Texans faced no greater problem than crime and lawlessness. With thousands of deserters flocking into the state, with a farflung frontier impossible to protect because law enforcement agencies were few, state officials had an almost impossible task of maintaining law and order.

As a consequence, Procter says, the state legislature created two "distinct" military forces in 1874 to protect the frontier and suppress lawlessness — the Frontier Batallion to control the "Indian menace" and the Special Force of Rangers, headed by Captain L.H. "Lee" McNelly, to control banditry along the Rio Grande and lawlessness in Southwest Texas. A list was compiled of 3,000 "known fugitives" in the state.

One of McNelly's assignments was an 18-month campaign along the Nueces Strip, Procter recounts. The Rangers ruthlessly fought — and often killed — cattle rustlers, Mexican banditos and the forces of Juan Cortina, the "red robber of the Rio Grande." Not only would McNelly uphold the Ranger tradition for invincibility and toughness — shooting first and asking questions later — but also for rugged determination by saying: "You can't stop a man who just keeps a comin.'"

When McNelly was forced to retire at the end of 1875 because of poor health, Procter says, one of his successors was Lt. John B. Armstrong. In 1877, Armstrong tracked down the notorious gunman John Wesley Hardin, who reportedly had killed 25 or more men. At a small station just outside Pensacola, Fla., Armstrong unexpectedly had to face Hardin and his gang of four men alone. At close quarters, after one desperado had fired a bullet through the Ranger's hat, Armstrong killed the man, pistol-whipped Hardin unconscious, and forced the other three to surrender. Armstrong thus projected the Ranger mystique of 'One Riot! One Ranger!"

Yet the invincible, heroic character of the Rangers has been persistently challenged by Mexican-Americans who recall stories of families on the receiving end of the Rangers' revenge. Anthropologist Americo Paredes tells of Mrs. Josefina Flores de Garza, whose family in 1915 experienced a terrifying raid by the Rangers in Brownsville. The Rangers were looking for "accomplices" in an uprising along the border. When the "executions" began, Paredes recounts, most Mexican-American families fled. But the elder Flores refused to abandon his ranch, telling his children "He who is guilty of nothing fears nothing." The Rangers arrived, called Flores out and shot him down. They then shot two of his sons who ran out to him. The Rangers searched the house, took a pair of chaps and left, Paredes says. A detachment of United States soldiers passed through, buried the bodies and took the family to town.

As conventional law became institutionalized on the frontier, the Rangers were forced to mend their ways and establish more civilized standards. They continued to be a hardy breed of Texan charged with protecting citizens of the state.

Man gives bags to Smithsonian

CHICAGO (AP) — Most people take shopping bags for granted, but Stephen Wagner believes they're art — and so does the Smithsonian Institution.

Wagner is donating his collection of more than 2,000 paper bags — all but a few favorites — to the Smithsonian's Cooper-Hewitt Museum of Design in New York. The bags feature reproductions of works by Andy Warhol, Henri Toulouse-Lautrec, Walt Disney and others.

"Most people think of shopping bags as something stores just print up. But the shopping bag has gone beyond that," said Wagner, 31, who began collecting them in 1978.

"We feel that shopping bags are one of the most au courant — or, I should say, up-to-date — ways for a museum to keep up with trends in graphic design," said Elaine Evans Dee, curator of drawings and prints at Cooper-Hewitt.

TRC's Nugent: OPEC can't be counted on for solution

AUSTIN (AP) — Americans should not count on OPEC oil ministers to come up with a solution to the oil price drop, Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent said Friday.

His comments came as OPEC officials entered a third day of meetings at Brioni, Yugoslavia. Rilwanu Lukman, cartel president, said "good progress" was being made toward an agreement that could lead to higher oil prices.

Nugent, a Democrat, said the Reagan administration should be "striding boldly forward" to aid the oil industry.

"Incredible as it seems, the administration is standing on the sidelines, wringing its hands, and hoping against hope that OPEC oil ministers will come to some agreement this week that will save the American oil industry," Nugent said.

He called for a national energy program that would encourage production in the United States by maintaining tax investment credits and keeping tax incentives.

"In America, we have a proud history of gritting our teeth, rolling up our sleeves and getting ourselves out of tough situations. And don't let low gasoline prices deceive you, we're in a very tough situation," Nugent said.

Some workers' jobs saved

HOUSTON (AP) — About 770 city employees who expected to lose their jobs through a budget crunch will remain at work after the city council opted for a 3 percent pay cut instead.

About 300 employees, however, still face layoffs Monday.

The pay cuts approved in a 9-5 vote Thursday will save the city about $15 million, supporters of the plan say.

Mayor Kathy Whitmire, who voted against the plan, said after the vote that she expects elected officials to accept the pay cuts along with other employees.

The vote was bitterly denounced by leaders of the police and firefighters' employee groups, who lobbied hard for its defeat.

The mayor said she will delay nearly half her planned layoffs while the council debates her entire $1.27-billion budget proposal.

Men sentenced in death

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men were handed 30-year prison sentences after they pleaded guilty to beating an electrican to death with ax handles in May 1984.

State District Judge Norman Lanford gave the sentences Thursday to Juan Antonio Arredondo, 21, and Armando Gonzales Pena, 19, both of Houston. The two pleaded to murder charges.

Prosecutor Roberto Gutierrez said the two men killed 40-year-old Charles "Bubba" Tuttle Jr., who had passed out in his truck outside a Houston bar.

The defendants started out to rob Tuttle, but began beating him with ax handles after he insulted them. Tuttle also was stabbed in the chest 18 times with a pocketknife, Gutierrez said.

The prosecutor said the pair dumped Tuttle's body in a nearby field and fled in his truck.

When police recovered the truck, they found two 1981 Milby High School annuals inside. The books contained Pena's name, which led to a quick arrest.

Mesa keeps some workers

AMARILLO (AP) — Mesa Petroleum Co. will take in about 230 Pioneer Corp. employees, which recently merged with Pioneer, while allowng another 50 to retire early, a Mesa official said.

David Bachelder, president of Mesa, said about 80 percent of the 356-member Pioneer workforce were offered permanent or temporary positions with Mesa.

Those taking early retirement will receive an average $480,000 each totaling $23.5 million, Bachelder said.

Bachelder said 5 percent of the Pioneer employees said they "have no intention of being employed by Mesa."

He said some of those workers already had taken other jobs.

Gas prices to go up

HOUSTON (AP) — Motorists will find gas prices during the July 4th holiday weekend up by about six cents per gallon compared with prices from the Memorial Day weekend, the American Automobile Association reported Friday.

On a brighter side, the gas prices per gallon are down by more than 25 cents from 1985. The self-serve unleaded prices dropping 34 cents per gallon, a survey of 270 gasoline stations indicated.

Triple A's Fuel Gauge survey indicates a price hike of about six cents per gallon in the self-service category. Prices have jumped by one and two cents-per-gallon in the full-service category since Memorial Day.

Beach Boys will play at Farm Aid

AUSTIN (AP) — The Beach Boys have been added to the list of Farm Aid II performers, a list that includes an eclectic combination of rock and country stars.

The line-up for the Fourth of July event at Manor Downs near Austin includes everything from heavy metal rock acts to the big names of country music.

Organizer Willie Nelson confirmed that the Beach Boys will perform before heading to New York for a Statue of Liberty celebration.

"They are a great asset and the American farmers truly appreciate their participation as well as that of the other artists that have volunteered," Nelson said.

The Beach Boys join a long list of pop and rock starts who have signed up, including Julio Iglesias, Judy Collins, Rita Coolidge, Joe Ely, Dave Mason, Delbert McClinton, John Cougar Mellencamp, Stevie Ray Vaughan, the Fabulous Thunderbirds, Steve Winwood and Neil Young.

The folk and country line-up includes Nelson, Waylon Jennings, Alabama, Boxcar Willie, David Allen Coe, Steven Fromholz, William Lee Golden of the Oak Ridge Boys, Arlo Guthrie, Emmylou Harris, George Jones, Kris Kristofferson and Jerry Jeff Walker.

Plans also call for a one-time teamup of rockers Vince Neil of Motley Crue, Nils Lofgren of Bruce Spreingsteen's E Street Band, and John Bon Jovi.

Lawyer who spent 13 years as fugitive aquitted of murder

Bingham

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — A lawyer who spent 13 years as a fugitive was acquitted Friday of murder and conspiracy by a jury that refused to believe he provided the gun that ignited a 1971 San Quentin prison riot in which six people died.

His supporters gasped as Stephen Bingham, who was accused of slipping a pistol to militant inmate George Jackson during an attorney-client visit, was acquitted of two counts of murder and one of conspiracy in Marin County Superior Court.

The prosecution said Jackson hid the 9mm pistol and two ammunition clips under an Afro wig, then used it later that day to force guards to release about two dozen other inmates who went on a rampage in his maximum security cellblock.

Jackson, a Black Panther leader, died in the Aug. 21, 1971, riot. Bingham disappeared that day and resurfaced in August 1984, saying he believed the political climate had changed enough that he now could get a fair trial.

The lawyer, who would have faced a maximum penalty of life in prison upon conviction, smiled as the verdict was read after a week of deliberations, but quickly became choked with emotion.

"I hope this verdict encourages people to try to do what they think is right," Bingham, 44, said. "I'm just happy. It shows that in 1986, the things we believed in in the 1960s and '70s endure," said Bingham, who was active in prison reform at the time of the incident.

"What's going on in the prisons is a problem," said Bingham. "People shouldn't forget and many people are trying to do something about it."

"I am disappointed," said prosecutor Terry Boren. "But by the same token, the jury's verdict was within the realm of reason. I don't quarrel with it."

As the verdict in the first count, conspiracy, was read, Bingham's French wife, Francoise, began crying. His father Alfred, 81, a former Connecticut probate judge who paid most of the $500,000 bill for his son's defense, also wept.

"I feel wonderful. Stephen Bingham really is the person I described to that jury," said defense attorney M. Gerald Schwartzbach. "I think the evidence and the facts compelled the verdicts, but the world should know he really is a great person."

Deliberations began late June 20 and were interrupted for portions of two days while jurors heard a reading of the testimony of a fingerprint expert and a guard who survived the bloodbath.

Bingham and his attorneys spent the week visiting supporters in the hallway outside Judge E. Warren McGuire's courtroom. Defense attorney Susan Rutberg described the wait as "torture," but Bingham remained outwardly calm and said repeatedly he believed he would be acquitted.

During the trial, guards testified that Jackson forced them to free the other inmates. Three guards and two inmate trusties died in the riot. Jackson was killed as he ran toward an outside wall, pistol in hand, officials said.

Bingham spent most of the next 13 years in Paris under an assumed identity before surrendering in San Francisco.

Boren, an assistant district attorney, argued Bingham fled because he knew he was guilty. He said a guilty verdict was the only logical conclusion because Jackson was searched before the visit with Bingham, but had the pistol minutes after the meeting ended.

Schwartzbach contended Jackson was assassinated by prison officials who wanted rid of him because he had rallied inmates around calls for revolution. Bingham testified he fled the country because he feared he would be killed if captured.

Thief steals sports medallions

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials appealed to a thief's sense of patriotism Friday as they urged the crook to return 40 stolen sterling silver medallions for Liberty Weekend's Sports Salute.

"We're hoping that maybe this person has a heart or something," said William Potter, vice president of National Standard Group, which minted the medallions. "I'm not really optimistic but it's a possibility."

The medallions were to be given to athletes including Bobby Orr, Muhammad Ali, Hank Aaron, Peggy Fleming and Billie Jean King at the July 6 Sports Salute to the Statue of Liberty at the Brendan Byrne Arena in New Jersey.

An unmarked cardboard box carrying the medallions was stolen Thursday from a van parked outside the Jacob Javits Convention Center.

A messenger went inside to drop off an envelope and "when he returned he discovered the right vent window had been broken into and a box removed from the front seat," said Sgt. John Venetucci.

The medallions were commissioned and paid for by the Sports Salute producer Don Ohlmeyer, as "a little thank-you present for the people participating in our show." The medallions, which cost several thousand dollars, have the Statue of Liberty on one side with the years 1886-1986 and a laurel wreath on the other, Ohlmeyer said.

Potter said if the medallions were returned his company would not press charges.

While they continue to hope the medallions were grabbed by someone with a conscience, Potter said his company is trying to get another set minted in time for the Sports Salute.

Plano Literacy Council helping people's simple dreams come true

By STEVE KNICKMEYER

Campbell

PLANO, Texas (AP)— Some dreams are coming true here. Simple dreams. Dreams like writing a letter to a friend of reading a book to a grandchild.

And each individual dream that comes true becomes a link in a collective dream, a dream shared by a group of volunteers whose goal is to make Collin County the most literate county in Texas.

It won't be easy. The Plano Literacy Council estimates that more than 18,000 people in Collin County are unable to read and write. In the 18 months since it was organized, the council has never had more than 19 students at a time. Its enrollment goal is 424.

"They are so elusive," says council member Jack Weidenfeld. "It's a matter of ferreting them out."

Most functional illiterates don't want to be found. They learn to conceal their deficiencies. But they do it by living in a closed world.

Opening that world requires a painful admission. The first step is the hardest.

A 25-year-old cook, who asked that her name not be used, recalls her first step: "I called the Plano ISD and said I wanted to go to school. They wanted to know why. After I called three times, I got my guts up and told them I had a reading and spelling problem.

School officials saw to it that the woman met Karen Campbell, the 36-year-old coordinator of the council's one-on-one tutoring program. The program, which is run out of the Gladys Harrington Library, is free and confidential. Ms. Campbell says secrecy is vital. "Some of our students don't even tell their spouses they're coming," Ms. Campbell says.

The fear of confession is followed by the fear of evaluation. The cook remembers: "I almost turned around when I had to do the testing. It was just the idea you had to let someone know what you could and couldn't do."

She didn't turn around. She took the tests. "It wasn't like I couldn't read at all," she says. "I can read labels. But spelling is the big problem. I never really understood a, e, i, o and u.

"I made it all the way to the ninth grade, then dropped out to get married," she says. "I was 15."

The cook attends two, two-hour sessions a week. She says she's more self-confident now. "This opens up a whole new world," she says. "I'm going to get my GED, then take courses in something I've always wanted to do — work with computers. After I get through this and become a really good speller, there's no stopping me."

Dreams.

Another woman in the program is 54. She has seven children, 28 grandchildren. An asthmatic reared on a farm near Palestine, she says she was never healthy enough to attend school for long. "I'd always see people reading newspapers and going to libraries and things, and I always wanted to do it.

"I never could read or write. When my children came along, I wasn't able to help them with their lessons at all."

Ms. Campbell says children are great motivators. With a fierce pride, the grandmother says all of her children are literate. When the last of them left home, it was finally her turn. "I just got up enough nerve one day to ask about help. I'm on disability, but I couldn't fill out those slips at the bank. And I've never been able to write to my sister in Houston."

Two months ago, with help from Ms. Campbell, the grandmother wrote her first letter and mailed it to her sister. "She was just so proud of me," she said.

Now she's reading Bible scriptures — and she can read stories to her grandchildren. "I feel wonderful," she says with misty eyes and a beautiful smile. "I just want to spread the word."

Ms. Campbell says word of mouth is the literacy group's best way of advertising. Illiterates don't read newspaper announcements. The program lives on referrals. "People in the program are our biggest referral source," she says. "So we must be doing something right."

The cook and the grandmother would agree.

Catholic group sets out to reclaim 'end of the world'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Members of a Roman Catholic church who founded a housing corporation to reclaim their declining neighborhood house by house have brought pride to a place some outsiders consider "the end of the world," the priest who heads the corporation said.

The people of Holy Name Parish founded the Holy Name Housing Corp. in March 1982 to revitalize their racially mixed neighborhood, to hire the unemployed and to provide good, affordable homes, said the Rev. Don Neureuther.

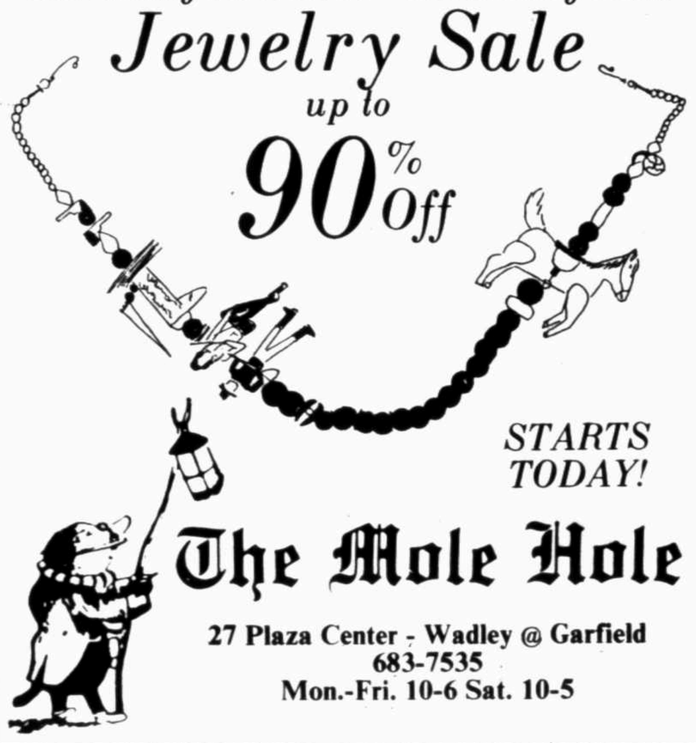

"I think the parish sees it as part of their responsibility not just to serve Catholics in a specific area, but to serve the neighborhood," said Neureuther, who left the parish staff to head the housing corporation full time. "It's like that old saying: Don't preach to me about love and care and concern if there's nothing in my stomach."

In four years, the corporation has bought 22 houses, including some that were condemned, and has sold 12 renovated homes. All but two of the homes were sold for less than $30,000, Neureuther said. On one block five houses have been renovated.

"That makes others in the neighborhood take an interest in fixing up their homes," said Sister Marilyn Ross, corporation director of research and development. "We encourage that. It doesn't do much good if we fix up a house and the one behind it is still a mess."

Families with an annual income less than $15,000 can qualify for 9.1 percent mortgages, she said.

Boy with rare disease busies himself with rare collection

By GRAHAM UNDERWOOD

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Anthony McCoy said it took a while for his girlfriend Brandy to get used to his tarantula collection.

She wouldn't touch them, he said, no matter how many times he showed how gently the furry spiders rested in his palms or walked on his shoulders. But she made the adjustment, he said, pleased with the outcome. "She's a dog, " he said, "a dynamite, outasite girl."

Expanding the tarantula collection is Anthony's primary goal. He said he wants a room with 6,000 of the creatures lining the walls. Another happy ending may be in store for the 10-year-old Wichita Falls youth. An experimental drug appears to have curbed a rare blood disease for Anthony. Blackfan-Diamond Syndrome is a form of anemia that keeps bone marrow from producing the red blood cells necessary for carrying iron and oxygen to the body's organs.

Afflicted with the disorder since birth, Anthony has had to have almost 200 blood transfusions to keep his bloodstream stocked with red cells. But even this treatment is only temporary, according to Wichita Falls oncologist Robert Delizio, because the body has no way of eliminating the iron deposited by the fresh blood. The mineral can reach a lethal level for the patient, he said. "As far as timing," he said, "I don't think he could have gone on much longer without some major complication."

AP Laserphoto

It's been five weeks since Anthony's last transfusion, double the usual interval. The youth is also packing his bags for his first trip to summer camp, an activity that was prevented by his medical condition.

Susan McCoy's determination lead her to Delizio, who had read of the disease being treated with a drug usually used to help transplant patients recover from surgery. He also knew of a Dallas specialist who was trying the drug on blood disease patients. Susan McCoy said she had only received dim predictions from physicians who told her to accept that her son couldn't be helped. "When you've got a kid with a disease," she said, "you...don't sit around and go with what one doctor says. Once the doctors say 'Give up,' you know they don't know everything."

Anthony said the worst part of the treatment was the medicine's taste. "Lo and behold," Delizio said, "he's making blood again."

Fair skies in forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for fair skies today with a high in the mid 90s. No rain is expected. Winds will be from the south at 5-10 mph.

The NWS forecast for tonight is calling for a low near 70 and a high Sunday in the mid 90s. No rain is expected tonight or tomorrow.

A record high temperature of 106 was recorded in 1980. During a hailstorm in 1985, temperatures dropped to a record low of 52.

STATE

Showers and thunderstorms produced by heat and unstable air dotted the state Friday as the remnants of Hurricane Bonnie moved into Louisiana and Arkansas.

The heaviest storms developed rapidly over the High Plains in the afternoon. Other areas of showers and thunderstorms were over the Trans Pecos, southeastern Texas and the lower Rio Grande Valley. Most of the rest of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies because of weak high pressure, the National Weather Service said.

NATION

The remnants of Hurricane Bonnie caused locally heavy showers and thunderstorms Friday with up to 10 inches of rain over parts of the southern Plains, and thunderstorms also developed over the Midwest.

During a 12-hour period, more than 10 inches of rain fell on parts of a region that included a large part of northwestern Louisiana, a small part of northeastern Texas and sections of southern Arkansas.

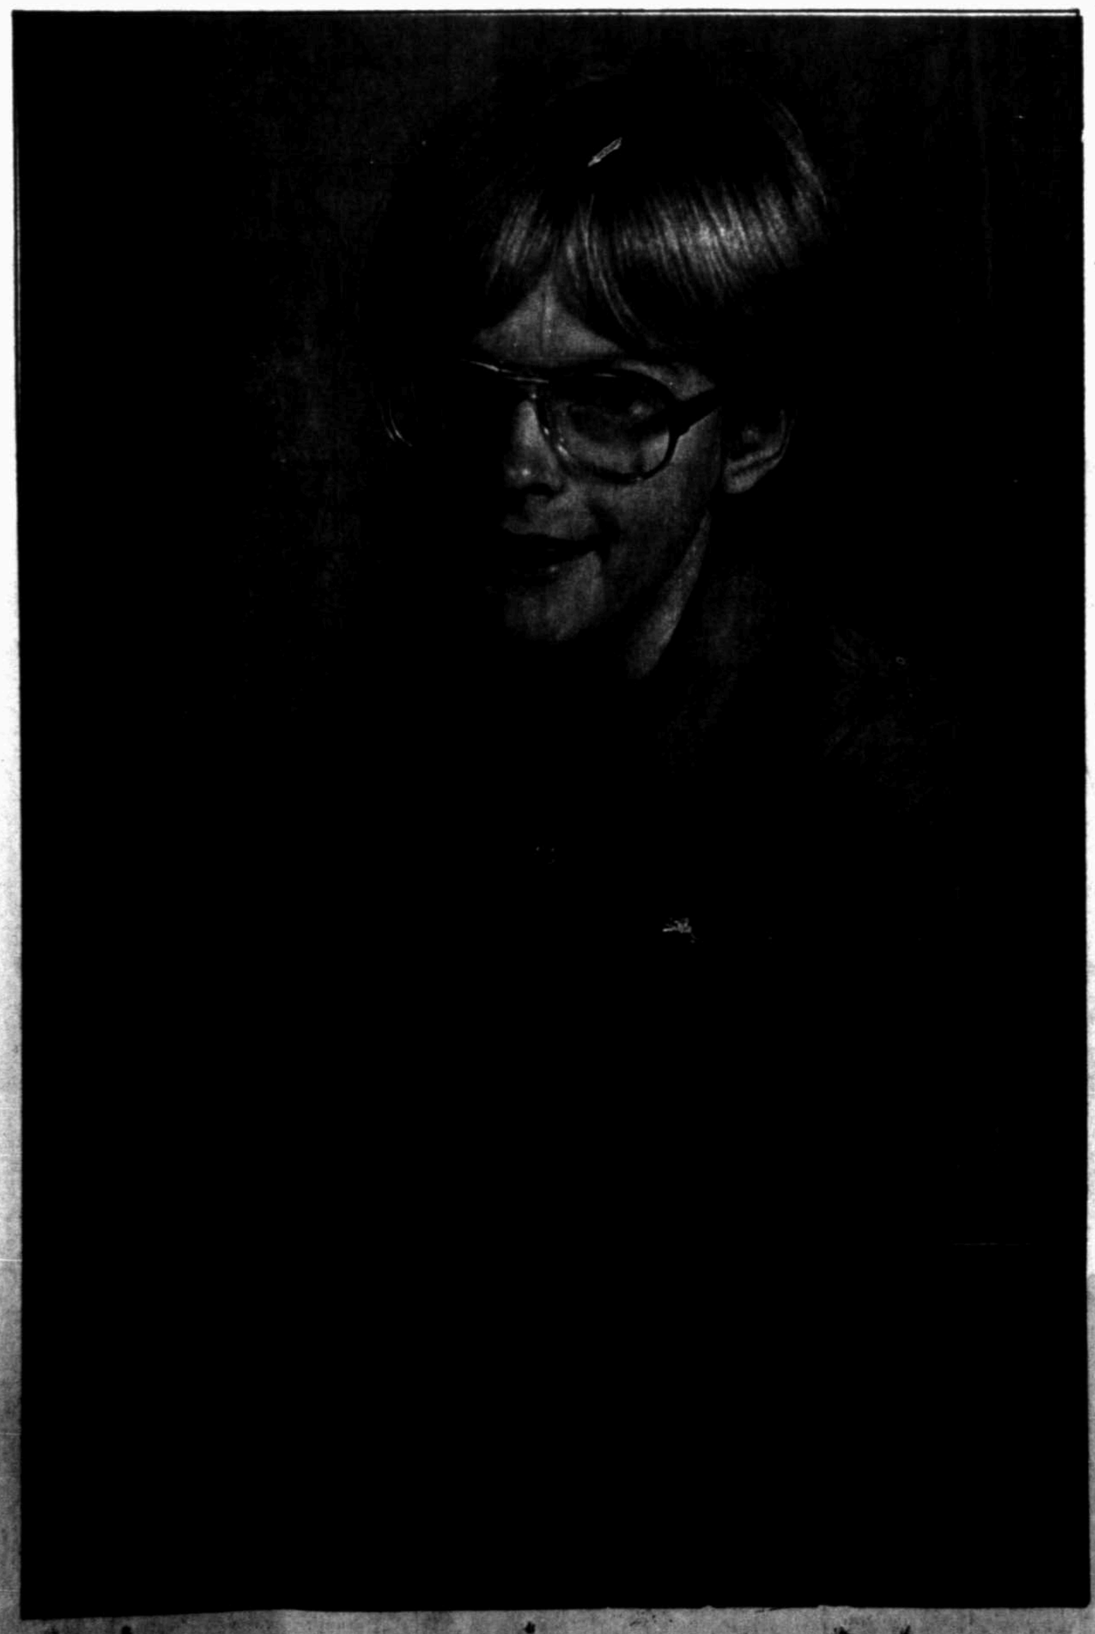

Near Waskon, Texas, 11.17 inches of rain fell while 10.20 inches fell south of Blanchard, La. Other amounts included 8.50 inches at Bossier City, La., 8.45 at Shreveport, La., and 7.67 inches at Keithville, La.

Two tornadoes were reported during the night in northwestern Louisiana. One touched down near Grand Cane and destroyed a mobile home and damaged an outbuilding. Another small tornado damaged a roof, knocked down trees and flipped over a plane near the downtown Shreveport Airport.

A few showers and thunderstorms also were reported across southern Florida and the lower Gulf Coast region, from northwest Missouri across eastern Kansas to northwestern Oklahoma, and from the western Dakotas through the northern Rockies.

Hot, humid weather across the central Plains prompted livestock advisories for all of Kansas and much of Nebraska.

For today, scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast from New England and New York state across Pennsylvania.

Pimentel, Tovar deliver Gators KO punch

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Midland pitching coach Aurelio Monteagudo eyes the action at Angels Stadium.

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

For the first four and a half innings Friday, Midland starting pitcher Rafael Pimentel was in a head-to-head, toe-to-toe Texas League battle with Beaumont's Mike McClain.

After Gator Randy Byers knotted the game at two with his seventh home run in the top of the fifth, Pimentel received the knock out punches he was looking for from Raul Tovar in the bottom of the fifth and sixth.

With James Randall on third from a single and two-base error on McClain's wild pickoff throw, Tovar connected for a single and a 3-2 game. After giving up a one-out single and pair of walks in the sixth, McClain was replaced with Bill Blount, who gave up an RBI single to Randall and a three-RBI double to Tovar for a 7-2 score.

What had once been a close ball game, turned into a 9-2 rout to keep the Angels on top of the Texas League West standings at 6-2, one game ahead of first half champion El Paso. The victory also upped Midland's winning streak to four games.

PIMENTEL GETS a lot of the credit for this one, allowing eight hits and no walks while striking out nine.

"He's been throwing the ball good," said Angel manager Joe Maddon. "Three of his last four outings have been very, very good. He has shown, (Mike) Cook has shown, Sherman (Corbett) has shown that you can throw a good game in this ball park."

Which goes against Midland tradition of high-scoring, out-of-hand games at Angels Stadium.

And, about Pimentel's no-walk effort, Maddon said, "That's the whole game right there. He had control of his stuff and when he doesn't give up walks or get behind deep in the count, he's very tough.

"If starting pitching will give you the time to do something, that's the key, if he gives you enough time to see the other pitcher a couple of times through the order."

"I felt pretty good," said Pimentel, a native of the Dominican Republic who has been bouncing around the minors since 1978 when he became a pro in the Blue Jays organization. He came to the Angels this year from the Milwaukee system.

"I got into a little trouble with my control but, in the last two game I didn't walk too many. I only walked two the last time out."

When Pimentel was in troulbe Friday, he called on his slider.

"I got my slider working pretty good tonight," said Pimentel. "My fastball, my slider and my palm ball."

BEAUMONT OPENED the scoring in the top of the first with a single by Bill Wrona and a two-out RBI single by Scott Parsons.

The Angels countered in the bottom of the second when Dante Bichette benefited from shortstop Mike DeButch's error at short, stole second and came home on David Heath's single to right.

Midland took the lead in the fourth with a Bichette single and, with two outs, a John Hotchkiss RBI single to right. The Gators followed with Byers' homer to tie the game before Tovar took over to drive in four of the next five Angel runs.

In the seventh, Bichette collected a solo home run over the left-center fence for an 8-2 score and Heath doubled and scored on Pete Coachman's single up the middle for the final run.

In all, the Midland attack produced 16 hits, including five doubles and a homer. Kevin King collected two of the two-baggers while Randall and Tovar led the attack with 3-for-5 hitting. Also, King, Bichette, Heath and Hotchkiss collected two hits.

After two three-up innings in the sixth and seventh, the Gators managed a rally in the ninth inning, loading the bases on Parson's single and, two outs later, an error by Coachman and an infield single by Santos Alomar.

Pimentel struck out DeButch to end the game.

ANGEL NOTES — Hotchkiss didn't enter the Midland lineup until the bottom of the second inning when starting shortstop Jeff Schaefer took exception to a McClain brush back pitch and charged the mound, clearing the benches of both teams. However, the brawl was limited and only Schaefer was ejected.

North Central awaits Eastern in finals

From Staff Reports

Little League

The Eastern Optimist ripped the Western Blue Braves 9-3 Friday at the North Central Little League Park to put some spice into today's 9 a.m. Joe Mowles Memorial American Little League city championship finals.

Eastern is the defending city champion and has had to work its way through the loser's bracket to gain another shot at the title. Eastern lost to Western by a 6-2 margin last Tuesday in the tournament's first round.

Eastern is now in position to regain that title, but North Central's rested Cubs pose the big obstacle. North Central earned a day off with a victory over Western Thursday and need only one win to nab the city crown.

Eastern will have to defeat the Cubs twice today in order to win the double elimination tournament. The second game, if needed, will be played at 6 p.m. at the North Central complex, located just across the street from the Lee High baseball diamond.

Smiley Carrasco went the distance for Eastern Friday night to pick up the win, giving up eight hits in six innings of work, but he didn't walk anyone.

Eastern's Nino Almergar and Jeremy Barton continued to display home run power with each connecting against Western. Both have three homers in the tournament. Carrasco and Marcie Marroquin also had big doubles for Eastern.

Western ended tournament play in third place with the loss. Raymond Dominquez went the distance in the loss. Dominquez, Mike Trevino, Steven Wooten and Mike Bolton all had doubles, but Western could count only three runs when all was said and done.

Wooten, Bolton and Dominquez each had two hits for Western while Almergar had two hits for Eastern.

Playing through the loser's bracket is a tough chore, but Eastern has won three games in a row to gain the championship finals. It would take a five-game winning streak to turn the trick and North Central knows it has the advantage with a day's rest and needing only one win to claim the title.

Passing the Torch

Midland runner Bob Jones, left, passes the Olympic Torch to Ralph Edwards, also of Midland, Friday evening along Loop 250. The flame is making its way to the National Sports Festival in Houston beginning July 25

Jerry Zachery could huddle with Eskimos

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Jerry Zachery, former Midland High and Texas Tech football player, has been given a chance to join the professional football ranks when the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League recently agreed to give him a tryout.

If Zachery's shot at turning professional works out with the Eskimos, he would be getting a rare opportunity to play with his brother, James, who is entering his second full season as a defensive tackle at Edmonton. James is another former Midland High standout.

"It would be great to play with James at Edmonton," said Jerry. "I really owe my shot to James. He told them about me and they think a lot of him up there and listen to him.

"It's my understanding that Edmonton has some strong running backs where I would play, but James says they are getting a little old and if I do well, there might be a chance to get some playing time."

EDMONTON HAS already played one exhibition game and will have three more before regular season play begins. Jerry plans on reporting to the Edmonton camp on July 14.

"James reported four weeks ago, but I needed more time to get my knee back in shape," said Jerry. "The Eskimos said it would be fine to report later and I think they are going to give me at least a month and a half look when I get there. I had knee surgery last November in Lubbock and I had screws put in and the whole works.

"Dr. King in Lubbock did the surgery and I haven't had any problems. I have a little swelling, but I'm feeling good. My weight got up to 228, but I'm down to 218 and running a 4.3 in the 40-yard dash. I think that's what impressed the coaches at Edmonton. There's not too many backs my size who can do that."

JERRY DID not have a great career at Texas Tech as he encountered "some problems," he wouldn't elaborate on.

"There are a lot of things that goes on at the college level that a lot of people don't know about, but that's past history and this is my chance to make it at the professional level.

"This is the break I need and it's up to me. I feel like I can go up there and make it if I'm not gun shy about the knee and it really hasn't bothered me much. I've had time to workout and still have some more time before I go."

Canadian football is much different than its American counterpart, but Jerry sees the Canadian game as a plus for him.

"The backs are in motion all the time and have to catch the ball. I feel like this could be to my advantage because I feel like I can catch the football and that is a must in the Canadian game for a back. I really feel like I have a shot at making it. I feel like I have to."

And if Jerry becomes a regular member of the Eskimos, there will be a Midland Zachery on both sides of the football. That would be rare, indeed.

Defending champ Becker getting back in groove

By BOB GREENE

Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Defending champion Boris Becker and the two No. 1 seeds, Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova, scored easy victories Friday, while yet another seed tumbled out of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

India's Ramesh Krishnan shocked sixth-seeded Joakim Nystrom of Sweden 6-7, 6-2, 7-6, 6-4 to move into the fourth round and assure that an unseeded player will reach the semifinals for the 10th straight year.

Becker, the 18-year-old No. 4 seed from West Germany, completed a 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 rout of American Tom Gullikson. Their second-round match had been halted by darkness Thursday night.

"With each win I get more confident," Becker said, "and I scare the opponents more when I go further and further."

WITH THE demise of Nystrom, Lendl and American Tim Mayotte are the only two seeds left in the top half of the men's draw. If they continue to win, they would clash in the quarterfinals.

On Friday, Lendl rolled over Israel's Amos Mansdorf 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, while Mayotte downed Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.

Also scoring third-round victories Friday were American Matt Anger, Slobodan Zivojinovich of Yugoslavia, West Germany's Eric Jelen and South Africans Christo Van Rensburg and Eddie Edwards.

In the women's singles, Navratilova paced five seeded players into the third round, crushing the not-so-lucky "lucky loser" Jane Forman of the United States 6-0, 6-4 in 61 minutes.

"She's a pesty little thing," Navratilova said of Forman, a scrappy right-hander from Providence, R.I., who gained a spot in the main draw when South Africa's Rene Uys withdrew.

OTHER SEEDED women advancing to the third round were No. 4 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, No. 8 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, No. 10 Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina and No. 15 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden.

Kohde-Kilsch beat American Alycia Moulton 6-2, 6-2; Maleeva stopped American Susan Mascarin 6-4, 7-6; Sabatini eliminated Catherine Suire of France 6-3, 6-3; and Lindqvist defeated Canada's Helen Kelesi 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.

Krishnan upset Nystrom on Center Court with his father, Ramanathan, who twice reached the semifinals, in the crowd watching. He did it with style and grace, the picture-perfect strokes eliciting applause from the audience that included the Duchess of Gloucester and the American ambassador to the United Kingdom, Charles H. Price, and his wife.

"I think he has a very good game for grass because he hits the ball very low all the time," Nystrom said of his conqueror, whose best finish in a Grand Slam event has been the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open in 1982. "You think you hit a good shot and then he's just standing there hitting the ball back.

"YOU HIT a winner, but he's reading the game so well. That's why he's very tough to beat."

Scott strikes fear into Dodgers with one hitter

HOUSTON — Since Houston's Mike Scott added the split-finger fastball to his pitching repertoire last season he has had some outstanding pitching performances, but none better than his two-hitter against the Los Angeles Dodgers on Friday night.

"I had a good split-finger, the best since I've been throwing the pitch," Scott said after he led the Astros to a 5-0 victory.

Scott, 7-5, the major-league strikeout leader, fanned 11 to tie his single-game high and increased his season total to 148, already his one-season best.

"I got a lot of strikeouts on the split-finger and I was keeping it in the strike zone," explained Scott, who finished last season with an 18-8 record and 137 strikeouts. "The split-finger is the difference. After last year, I knew if I threw that pitch more I would get more strikeouts."

The Astros, who had scored only nine runs in Scott's past five outings, spotted him a 3-0 lead after two innings.

"He had another outstanding game and we finally got him some runs," Manager Hal Lanier said. "He hasn't had a bad outing in 10, or maybe 11, games. He could easily have 10 or 11 wins if we had scored some runs for him." Bill Doran put the Astros ahead 1-0 in the first inning with his fifth home run of the season. Houston added a pair of runs in the second after consecutive singles by Kevin Bass, Jose Cruz and Dickie Thon loaded the bases. John Mizerock hit into a double play as Bass scored and Scott singled Cruz home.

"It makes a difference when you can get an early lead. You can challenge people right off the bat," Scott said after his second shutout and second complete game of the season. "I just wanted to go as long as I could and as hard as I could. Complete games don't matter to me; they're a thing of the past."

The Dodgers managed only three baserunners against Scott, who retired the last 16 batters. Ken Landreaux had both Los Angeles hits — singles in the first and fourth innings — and another Dodger reached on an error.

Jerry Reuss, 2-6, was the loser, going five innings and yielding all the Houston runs on eight hits.

Bass hit his 10th home run in the fourth to make it 4-0 and Doran scored on third baseman Enos Cabell's throwing error in the fifth.

NL Roundup

Giants 7, Reds 6

CINCINNATI — Mike Aldrete's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning gave San Francisco a victory over Cincinnati and kept the Giants in first place in the National League West.

Aldrete's game-winning fly ball came off Scott Terry, 0-2, the Reds' fifth pitcher, and scored Chili Davis, who walked with one out and went to third on Chris Brown's single.

Greg Minton, 3-4, the seventh San Francisco pitcher, allowed three walks but no hits over the final two innings to earn the victory that enabled the Giants to maintain their half-game lead over Houston.

San Francisco second baseman Robby Thompson was caught stealing four times, the first time that ever happened in the major leagues. He was thrown out at second base by Cincinnati catcher Bo Diaz in the fourth, sixth and ninth innings and was picked off by pitcher John Franco in the 11th, although the play went as a caught stealing when Thompson broke for second.

Braves 5, Padres 4

ATLANTA — Ozzie Virgil drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning as Atlanta edged San Diego.

Reliever Tim Stoddard, 1-3, walked Dale Murphy and Bob Horner to start the eighth and Craig Lefferts took over. Ken Oberkfell sacrificed and Rafael Ramirez was intentionally walked to load the bases. Virgil followed with a fly ball to medium center and Murphy scored easily ahead of Marvelle Wynne's throw, which was slightly off-line.

Murphy's three-run homer highlighted a string of five consecutive hits with two out in the fifth inning as Atlanta took a 4-1 lead. Pitcher It was only the third setback in the last 11 games for the Padres, who began play 1½ games from the top in the National League West and two games ahead of the fourth-place Braves.

Pirates 7, Expos 1

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh pitcher Rick Rhoden established a career high with 11 strikeouts while throwing a five-hitter to lead the Pirates over Montreal.

In his last two starts, both against Montreal, Rhoden has struck out 21 batters. He got his career high by fanning Wayne Krenchicki to end the game after issuing his only walk with two out in the ninth inning on a 3-2 pitch to Tim Wallach.

Jay Tibbs, 4-4, had a three-hit shutout when Rhoden lead off the sixth with a single. A walk to Barry Bonds and a single by Joe Orsulak loaded the bases and Johnny Ray doubled into the left-field corner to put the Pirates in front.

Sid Bream chased Tibbs with an RBI single and Bob McClure was greeted by R.J. Reynolds' RBI single before a run-scoring double by Tona Pena. Dennis Martinez walked Jim Morrison and Rafael Belliard drove in two runs with a single as the Pirates matched their season high for runs in an inning.

Mets-Cubs ppd

CHICAGO — The game between the New York Mets and the Chicago Cubs was postponed because of rain.

The Cubs waited one hour and 35 minutes before calling off the contest.

The game will be made up as part of a doubleheader on Wednesday, Aug. 6 at 12:05 p.m. CDT.

Bob Ojeda, who was scheduled to pitch Friday for the Mets, was moved back to Monday. Ron Darling will remain as New York's pitcher for Saturday's game and Dwight Gooden will pitch Sunday.

Dennis Eckersley, Friday's scheduled starter for Chicago, will be pushed back a day as will Rick Sutcliffe, who will face Gooden on Sunday.

Clemens still perfect, 14-0

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Unbeaten Roger Clemens won his 14th game, allowing seven hits and striking out 11 batters while pitching into the ninth inning as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles 5-3 Friday night.

Clemens is one victory away from the American League record for victories at the start of the season. The record is shared by Dave McNally of Baltimore in 1969 and Cleveland's Johnny Allen in 1937.

The major league record of 19 was set by Rube Marquard of the New York Giants in 1912.

Clemens walked Eddie Murray, who had two solo homers in the game, for his first walk of the game leading off the ninth. A single followed and Clemens gave way to Joe Sambito. Sambito got one out and Bob Stanley finished for his 12th save.

The strikeouts by Clemens raised his AL-leading total this season to 125. He gave up only two earned runs, and kept the league's best earned-run average at 2.18.

Clemens trailed 1-0 on a second-inning homer by Murray before the Red Sox scored three two-out runs in the sixth. The Orioles rallied to within 4-3 in the seventh, but the Red Sox added a run in the ninth.

Blue Jays 14, Yankees 7

NEW YORK — Jesse Barfield had a three-run homer and five RBI and Damaso Garcia tied a major-league record with four doubles as Toronto's 19-hit attack overpowered New York.

Barfield's 19th homer came with two out in the seventh inning and brought the Blue Jays back from a 7-6 deficit. It came off reliever Brian Fisher, 4-4. Garcia was 4-for-6 and scored three times. The doubles record is held by many.

Rickey Henderson drove in four runs for New York, two on his 14th homer of the season. Don Mattingly and Ken Griffey also homered for the Yankees, who had 18 hits.

The game, delayed 38 minutes by rain in the bottom of the seventh, was the Yankees' eighth straight loss at Yankee Stadium. The last time they lost eight straight at home was in 1940. Their record for consecutive home losses is nine, suffered at the Polo Grounds in 1915.

AL Roundup

Twins 6, Royals 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Kent Hrbek's triple powered Minnesota's three-run first inning, then the Twins survived a four-run Kansas City ninth to defeat the Royals.

Mike Smithson, 7-6, allowed eight hits over 8 1-3 innings. He brought a three-hit shutout into the ninth before the Royals rallied against three pitchers.

Rudy Law's one-out double, the first extra-base hit by Kansas City, drove in the first run. Run-scoring singles by George Brett and Jorge Orta brought on Frank Pastore. Pastore got one out, but yielded an RBI double to Steve Balboni.

Keith Atherton retired the one batter he faced, with runners on second and third, for his third save of the season.

Minnesota's three-run first inning came against Scott Bankhead, 3-1.

Kirby Puckett led off with a single. He was forced at second by Randy Bush, then Hrbek smashed a ball off the right-field fence for a triple, scoring Bush.

Hrbek scored on Tom Brunansky's grounder by knocking the ball from catcher Jamie Quirk's glove. Brunansky moved to second on the error, stole third and scored when Mark Salas singled to right.

Minnesota added two runs in the fourth. Steve Lombardozzi walked, was sacrificed to second and scored on Greg Gagne's double down the left-field line. Gagne scored on a single by Puckett.

The Twins scored their final run in the seventh. Roy Smalley doubled, moved to third on Salas' single and scored on a groundout.

Brett extended his hitting streak to eight games.

Tigers 4, Brewers 2

DETROIT — Kirk Gibson hit a two-run, 11th-inning homer into the right-field roof seats to give Detroit a victory over Milwaukee.

Lou Whitaker started the 11th with an infield single, just beating a throw by third baseman Dale Sveum. Alan Trammell sacrificed him to second and scored when Gibson homered on a 1-2 pitch from Dan Plesac, 4-5 for the Tigers eighth win in 11 games.

Gibson's shot made of winner of Willie Hernandez, 3-3, who took over for Detroit starter Frank Tanana at the start of the ninth.

Tanana gave up four hits. Juan Nieves pitched the first nine for Milwaukee and allowed two runs on six hits.

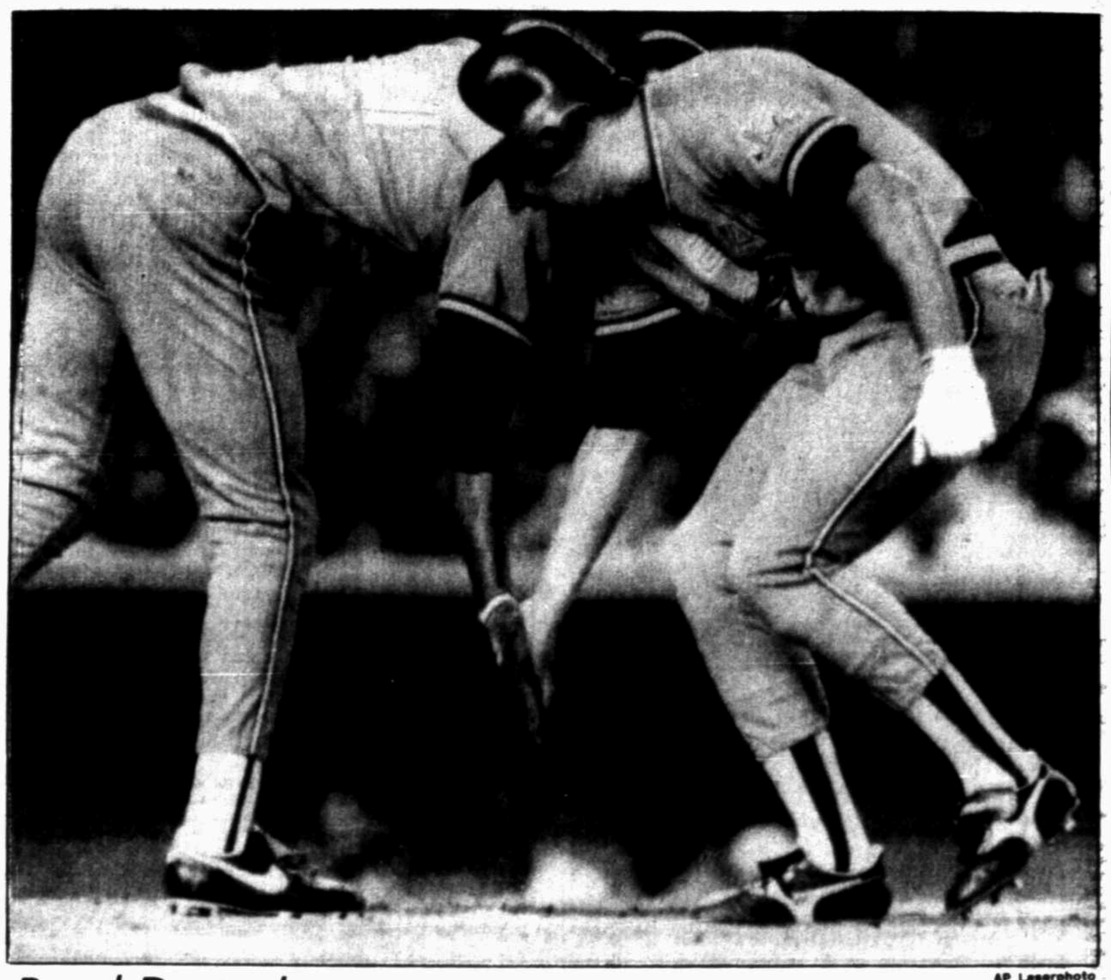

A's 8, White Sox 6

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jose Canseco and Mike Davis hit three-run homers and Jerry Willard had a solo shot in Oakland's seven-run sixth inning as the A's defeated Chicago.

Canseco has 19 homers, tying him with California's Wally Joyner and Toronto's Jesse Barfield for the league lead. He leads the AL in RBI with 64.

The two starters, Oakland's Chris Codiroli and Chicago's Neil Allen, pitched hitless ball into the fifth, when Davis slapped a two-out double.

El Paso group tries to buy Sunland

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — The general manager of Sunland Park racetrack said Friday a group of El Paso investors are trying to purchase the horse racing facility located near that Texas city.

Rick Henson told the State Racing Commission no firm agreement has been reached in the possible sale of the track now operated by Ruidoso-Sunland Inc. Henson also declined to name the El Paso investors involved in the negotiations.

"At this point there is a local group negotiating with us to purchase Sunland Park, but at this point their financing is not complete," Henson told the commission.

Henson said Sunland Park had been on the market "for quite a while." He said the decision by Ruidoso-Sunland to offer the track for sale was not related to the expanded racing season in Albuquerque or any other single event.

"The board of directors of Ruidoso-Sunland Inc. determined it was in the best interest of the company to put Sunland Park on the market and retain Ruidoso Downs," Henson said.

Henson said if a sale was negotiated, he expected the new owners would want to finalize the purchase before racing dates for the fall season at Sunland Park are set. The track is scheduled to apply for its 1986-87 racing dates at the next State Racing Commission meeting in July.

In other action, the commission announced it had awarded a $36,000 contract for a study on whether the state should have anymore race tracks.

The commission has been asked to approve plans for a new track in the Silver City area, and a group of Hobbs businessmen have said they may ask the commission to approve a track in that area.

The commission will hold a public hearing in August on the Silver City track proposal. However, Commission Chairman Nick Franklin said a decision on the proposal would not be made until after the feasibility study is completed this fall.

The contract for the study was awarded to the Denver office of Price Waterhouse and Associates. The study will consider, in part, the effects of new race meets in New Mexico and the feasibility of further expansion within the industry.

San Juan Downs General Manager Dale Wood told the commission the Farmington track is in good financial shape despite the slumping economy in the Four Corners area due to the state of the oil and gas industry.

"I think we're doing pretty well considering what this oil thing has done to us," said Wood.

Wood said track attendance was off 12 percent from last year, but the amount of money being wagered at San Juan Downs was about the same as in 1985.

The track is owned by San Juan County.

The commission members also approved permanent regulations controlling the use of Lasix and "bute," the only two medications that can be legally administered to racehorses in New Mexico.

Foreman, Gregg top inductees

DALLAS (AP) — Boxer George Foreman and former Green Bay Packer Forrest Gregg were among the eight sportsmen honored Friday night at the annual Texas Sports Hall of Fame induction banquet.

Unlike the programs of the past five years, however, there was to be no follow-up program Saturday at the Hall of Fame building in Grand Prairie because it has been closed.

The museum, which houses a variety of displays saluting Texas sports heroes, opened in May 1981 and ended its career in the area entertainment market on Labor Day last September, a victim of heavy financial losses and small attendance.

General manager Fred Graham and office manager Penny Scott still work in the building while the TSHF executive committee negotiates with interested parties about moving the museum to another location.

"OTHER THAN the museum being closed, the Texas Sports Hall of Fame is functioning," Graham said. "We're confident that the Hall of Fame will resume full operation."

Friday night's banquet, with a crowd of about 400, increased the Hall of Fame to 165 members and included Foreman, an Olympic gold medal boxer who became world heavyweight champion.

Also inducted were:

— Gregg, Southern Methodist graduate and Pro Football Hall of Fame lineman from the Green Bay Packers' dynasty years.

— Elvin Hayes, three-time basketball All-America at the University of Houston and 16-year star in the NBA.

— Ernie Koy, three-time all-Southwest Conference football and baseball star at the University of Texas in the early 1930s and major league outfielder.

— Odus Mitchell, whose football coaching career at North Texas State University and Texas high schools spanned 42 years, 433 games and 287 victories.

— Chuck Moser, who coached Abilene High School football teams to 49 straight victories and three state championships.

— Field Scovell, Dallas' sports ambassador and selection chairman for the Cotton Bowl Classic for almost 30 years.

— Carroll Shelby, winner of international auto racing fame as a driver, team manager, designer and builder.

A NINTH sports figure, the late J. Curtis Sanford, was honored last December at a dinner celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Cotton Bowl Classic, which he founded.

Other members include Babe Zaharias, Ben Hogan, A.J. Foyt, Tris Speaker, Randy Matson, Sammy Baugh, Tom Landry, Darrell Royal and Jack Johnson.

Guerrero beats Andretti to pole

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Michael Andretti is enjoying being the man to beat and Roberto Guerrero is the man who beat him, at least temporarily.

Guerrero nipped Andretti on Friday in the provisional qualifying for Sunday's Chase Meadowlands Grand Prix Indy-car race.

The Colombian driver broke the qualifying record by averaging 99.412 mph on the 11-turn, 1.682-mile circuit through the sprawling Meadowlands sports complex.

Palmer chases rare win

LPGA

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Sandra Palmer, chasing her first victory since 1962 and her 21st overall, shot her second consecutive 4-under-par 68 Friday to take a three-stroke lead over Jan Stephenson after the second round of the 72-hole LPGA Mayflower Classic golf tournament.

"I played almost flawless for 14 holes and then I kind of faltered," said Palmer, who at 45 is playing on the Tour for the 23rd year. "It's real windy today and I'm just trying to play the golf course. I don't care, really, what anyone else is doing."

Defending champion Alice Miller was third at 140 in the battle for the $52,500 top prize.

Miller, who won last year by a tournament-record six strokes, followed her opening round 69 on the 6,186-yard, par-72 Country Club of Indianapolis course with a 71. Stephenson, who began the day in a tie with Palmer, began with a birdie but never mounted a solid charge as she had a 71 with three birdies, two bogies and 13 pars.

Judy Dickinson, the winner of last week's Tour stop, Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth and Rosie Jones were another stroke back in a tie for fourth at 141. Whitworth, the winner of 88 LPGA events, moved into the title chase with a 68, shooting a 2-under 34 over her final nine.

"This is as close as I've been to contention this year. Today was encouraging for me," said Whitworth, who started the day with seven pars and a bogey before recording two straight birdies. "I hit the ball really well. I putted pretty good."

Seven other women, including 1984 champion Ayako Okamoto of Japan, were tied at 2-under 142. Second-year-pro Marci Bozarth, who helped Texas Christian capture the 1983 NCAA title, moved into the group at 142 with a 68. Bonnie Lauer, Barb Thomas, Betsy Barrett and Chris Johnson also had 142 for 36 holes.

Coaches shun Cup limelight

MEXICO CITY (AP) — While Carlos Bilardo of Argentina and Franz Beckenbauer of West Germany deflect the glory of their team's World Cup success to the players, it is clear that both coaches deserve just as much credit.

Argentina plays West Germany Sunday for the world soccer championship. For the Argentines, star striker Diego Maradona has been the major weapon. For the Germans, a rugged style and solid team concept have done the job.

Bilardo and Beckenbauer both took over teams in disarray. Neither has enjoyed much media support at home and have been criticized by players on the national squads, as well as those who did not make the Cup roster.

Juan Barber, who is not here, once called the Argentine coach "a coward." Defender Jose Batista, one of Argentina's best performers here, was so incensed at being replaced in the middle of a warmup game that he threatened to quit. Batista said he stayed only because "of my respect for my teammates."

Bilardo, a star midfielder in the late 1960s, coached the Colombian national team in 1982. He returned to Argentina in 1983 and took over as national coach after Cesar Menotti resigned.

"We all have setbacks, and I had mine in the last three years. In that period, 17 Argentine players went abroad," Bilardo said, explaining the problems he had in pulling together the current national team.

Despite such hardships, and with the world's best player in his stable, Bilardo has built a team which plays well together and complements the talents of Maradona.

When Beckenbauer assumed command of the German team after it failed to make the semifinals of the 1984 European Championships, his appointment was greeted with skepticism. "Kaiser Franz" had been one of the world's best players and led the Germans to the 1974 world title.

He struggled for months to find the right lineup, and was blasted by the press for whatever decisions he made. Prior to this tournament, goalkeeper Harald Schumacher — a standout here — said Beckenbauer was not a good coach and did not instill a winning atmosphere on the team.

Beckenbauer admits to being aloof, but he also stresses that the Germans have displayed enviable teamwork in the World Cup.

On Saturday, France and Belgium play for third place at Puebla. There were mixed reactions to participating in the game from both sides.

"The match for third place should not be played," French defender Maxime Bossis said.

Inflation eats up wages of Mexico workers

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Despite hefty raises this year, Mexican workers will see their wages nibbled away by soaring inflation and likely be left with less in their pockets to spend than last year.

Workers have seen their wages shrink so much that, according to one economic analysis, their purchasing power last year was back to the level of 20 years ago.

"The person who made the minimum wage in 1985 on average could buy exactly the same things as he could in 1965," said Jonathan Heath, senior economist with the private Mexican forecasting project, CIEMEX-Wharton Inc., in Philadelphia.

"He has exactly the same purchasing power. There has been no progress in 20 years," he said.

The minimum wage for unskilled workers in Mexico City is 2,065 pesos a day, or about $3.33. The minimum wage in the United States is $3.35 an hour.

Partly because of the effect on workers, Mexican officials are reluctant to agree to additional belt-tightening measures as they work out a fresh rescue package with the international financial community.

Indeed, they have said in recent days that they intend to seek enough financial help to restart the economy and make sure it grows 3 percent to 4 percent in 1987 and 1988. Analysts predict it will contract by at least that much this year, to register the third downturn in five years.

Mexicans are well aware of their plight.

"People are tired of living in this crisis," said Marco Antonio Torres Velazquez, 28, who drives a taxi and takes odd jobs to help support his parents and seven brothers and sisters still living at home.

For middle-class Mexicans, the crisis means canceled trips to the United States, fewer new cars, postponing major purchases and dipping into savings to pay bills.

For the poor, it means cutting back on the necessities of life.

Adelaida Bollo de Perez, who travels six hours a day by bus and subway to earn the minimum wage as a maid in a well-to-do part of the capital, can no longer afford to regularly buy milk for her four young children. They drink coffee instead.

They mostly eat tortillas, eggs, beans and soup. They buy chicken once every two weeks; meat is out of the question.

A few years ago, she recalls spending 2,000 pesos to fill a grocery bag.

"Now," she says, "that is nothing." She spends 5,000 pesos — about $8 — for three days of food and doesn't come home with a full grocery bag.

Since the economic crisis began in 1982, Heath said the minimum wage, after adjustment for inflation, has tumbled 32.4 percent. Starting in 1982, Mexico put in place austerity measures worked out with the International Monetary Fund as part of a financial aid plan.

There's little likelihood workers will regain their buying power this year.

The minimum wage was boosted 32 percent last January and 25 percent on June 1. But consumer prices rose 32.1 percent through the end of May. The inflation rate for the year is expected to be as high as 80 percent to 90 percent.

Private economist Rogelio Ramirez de la O forecasts that the minimum wage will decline by about 13 percent this year — if the inflation rate hits 80 percent.

Cubs' GM Green: It could be different

CHICAGO (AP) — General Manager Dallas Green of the Chicago Cubs says things might have been better if he hadn't re-signed pitchers Rick Sutcliffe, Steve Trout and Dennis Eckersley when they became free agents after the 1984 championship season.

"I don't think anybody in Chicago wanted to lose Sutcliffe, Trout and Eckersley. But if you look back on it, it would have been the best thing that ever happened," Green says.

"Collectively and individually, they haven't done the job."

The three starting pitchers were signed to huge free-agent contracts after helping the Cubs win the National League East title in 1984.

But they spent much of last season on the disabled list. And this year, they have a combined record of 9-16, with an ERA near 5.00.

Green says the performance of the entire club, with a 29-40 record going into Friday's game with the first-place New York Mets, has made him sick.

"I'm telling you, these guys have had my stomach turning in knots trying to figure out what the problem is," Green says.

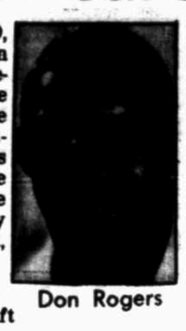

"I just can't believe we're that bad," he says. "But we're proving it every day. I mean, they're working at proving it. And that's very disappointing.

"I've stood up many times and said this is a good baseball team. And I mean that," Green says. "But I can't keep selling that. Sooner or later, they're going to have to sell it. They're going to have to sell it with their performance on the field.

"And it's the guys on the pitching staff who really have to get after it."

The Cubs' pitching staff was ranked last in the National League with a 4.70 earned run average going into Friday's contest. Sutcliffe, the 1984 NL Cy Young Award winner, was 4-9 this season with a 4.00 ERA. Trout was 3-3 with a 4.78 ERA and Eckersley 2-4 with a 5.91 ERA.

Browns' Don Rogers dies of cardiac arrest

Don Rogers

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Don Rogers, the Cleveland Browns' free safety and the American Football Conference's 1984 Defensive Rookie of the Year, died Friday of cardiac arrest, authorities said.

Rogers, 23, the Browns' No. 1 draft choice in 1984 and the mainstay of their defensive secondary, died at 4:31 p.m. PDT at Mercy San Juan Hospital, said hospital spokeswoman Connie Huff. She said he was brought to the hospital by ambulance, and died a short while later, but declined to provide details of the death.

Donna O'Ray-King, a spokeswoman for the Sacramento County Coroner's office, said initial reports indicated there was apparently no drug involvement in the death. "That's not what we were told. We won't know until we do an autopsy."

There were unconfirmed reports that Rogers was to be married Saturday in Sacramento.

The 6-foot-1, 206-pound Rogers, a native of Texarkana, Ark., who grew up in Sacramento, attended Notre Del Rio High School and attended UCLA, where he was a standout safety for the Bruins.

His brother, Reggie, plays football for the University of Washington and his sister, Jackie, plays basketball at Oregon State.

Rogers was Cleveland's 18th pick overall in 1984. He played in 15 games and started 14 as a rookie.

In his first regular-season game at Seattle that year, he forced a fumble and made a game-high 12 tackles.

In four years at UCLA, he averaged over 100 tackles per season, and he was second in the PAC-10 with seven interceptions as a senior.

In 1985, he was third on the team, behind linebackers Tom Cousineau and Eddie Johnson, with 109 tackles, including 83 solos and 26 assists.

He had one interception in each of his two seasons with the Browns.

Spaceman incites bean ball brawl

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — Bill Lee, a former pitcher with the Boston Red Sox and Montreal Expos, has been suspended for four games for his part in a brawl during a Nova Scotia Senior Baseball League game.

Lee, who was at bat for the Moncton Mets, charged the mound in a June 19 game against the Kentville Wildcats after a number of inside pitches from Kentville's Larry Hood.

Sun Bowl goes corporate with Christmas kickoff

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sun Bowl announced Thursday a three-year $1.5 million agreement with John Hancock Financial Services, as well as a new three-year contract with CBS-TV.

At news conferences in New York and El Paso, Texas, site of America's oldest college football bowl game with no conference tie-up, it was announced that the game will be played on Christmas Day from 1986-88 and will be renamed the John Hancock Sun Bowl.

John Hancock Financial Services, a promotional name for the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Boston and its 17 subsidiaries, will give the Sun Bowl $500,000 in each of the next three years, with one-year renewal options for 1989 and 1990.

CBS has televised the Sun Bowl for the past 18 years and will continue to do so for the next three, but the rights fees will be less than the $600,000 a year the network paid under the old contract. The new terms were not disclosed.

THE SUN Bowl will follow CBS' annual Christmas Day NBA telecast, starting at approximately 1:30 p.m., CST.

"Approximately six months ago, the Sun Bowl set out to reposition itself within the bowl business," said Jimmy Rogers Jr., television coordinator and past president of the Sun Bowl. "In order to accomplish this task, several commitments and an ideal permanent date were required.

"A strong new commitment was obtained from both business and government in El Paso. CBS pledged its continued support and the addition of John Hancock as our title sponsor was the final and key commitment.

"Regarding the date, a Christmas Day monopoly was appealing, but the Sun Bowl and John Hancock insisted that the telecast begin after traditional church services and family activities."

The Sun Bowl was founded in 1935 when the El Paso All-Stars, comprised of players from the city's four high schools, defeated a team from Ranger, Texas, 25-21. Two college teams, Hardin-Simmons and New Mexico State, played a 14-14 tie in 1936 and the Sun Bowl has featured major-college teams since 1963 when Oregon defeated Southern Methodist 21-14.

LAST YEAR, Arizona and Georgia played a 13-13 tie before a record overflow crowd of 52,203 and each school received a record payoff of $552,000. However, TV ratings have dropped significantly in the last three years because of direct competition with other bowl games and NFL wild card games.

"The bottom line (of the new contracts) is that the Sun Bowl will be bigger and better and the money will be more than ever," Rogers said. "We hope to go to a $750,000 payoff this year, with the potential to go higher, and $1 million by 1987. And the money is not contingent on a sellout."

US edges England in track

GATESHEAD, England (AP) — The United States defeated England Friday, 122-111, at an international track meet where Steve Cram, the world record holder over one mile set the fastest time of the year and then critized several of his fellow internationals.

Cram clocked three minutes, 51.43 seconds, demonstrating that he is in form and prepared to defend his Commonwealth 1,500 meters title in Edinburgh next monthy.

But he was critical that fellow English internationals Sebastian Coe and Steve Ovett had not competed after missing the national championships at Crystal Palace, London, last Friday and Saturday.

Both athletes who have held the world mile record decided to run on the continent to secure selection for England's commonwealth games team.

Cram said: "It is ridiculous and a disgrace that they couldn't be here tonight, and the AAA, (national governing for athletics) should have been a lot sterner."

He added: "It is nice to prepare in your own way, but they must show some responsibility for the sport in Britain. They have a couldn't careless attitude. They are just being selfish, and I wonder when it all will stop.

Nicklaus trying to 'hurry and get close'

Canadian Open

By BOB GREEN

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Jack Nicklaus found himself in position, five strokes back of Andy Bean with two rounds to go in the Canadian Open Golf Championship.

"I've got to hurry up and get close," Nicklaus said, a wry reference to his record in this national championship.

The six-time Masters champion has yet to win the Canadian Open, but has been runner-up seven times and has missed a title playoff by a single stroke two other times.

"Five shots in two rounds is not too much to make up. There aren't that many players in front of me (13) and I'm playing very well; I'm very pleased with the way I'm playing," Nicklaus said Friday after making birdie on two of his last three holes for a 69.

That left him at 143, one under par, at the tournament halfway point.

BUT HE was in contention only because Bean had some problems with short putts.

The big, red-haired guy also had a second round 69, and a 138 total, despite missing four times from six feet or less.

Three under par, he said, "is not bad, but it could have been a really good round.

"'Sooner or later, I'm going to make my share of putts," said Bean, winner of two titles already this season.

"If I keep having putts at it from that distance, I'm going to shoot a real good round before it's over," he said.

Paul Azinger also had a 69 — but in much more difficult conditions — and was second at 139, five under par on the Glen Abbey Golf Club course.

Ernie Gonzalez and rookie Davis Love III were another stroke back at 140. The long-hitting Love birdied all the par-5 holes in a 68 and Gonzalez, a left-hander, had 69.

THE GROUP at 141 included Mac O'Grady, first round leader Hale Irwin, Bob Murphy, Canadian Dave Barr and Bob Tway, winner of three titles this season.

O'Grady had a second round 68, Murphy 70, Barr and Tway 71s and Irwin 73.

Of the nine leaders, only Azinger and O'Grady played in the morning, when the course in suburban Toronto was raked by a squall that produced 40 mile per hour winds, heavy rain and chilly temperatures.

Bean was two under par for the day and tied for the lead when he went to the 16th tee. He played the last three holes one under par and took sole control of the lead, but it could have been better.

He missed a 12-foot eagle putt on the par-5 16th, made par on the 17th then 3-putted from 20 feet for par-5 on the 18th.

"I just threw away a shot or two there," he said.

Dale Douglass chips from a bunker as the Seniors tour rookie took a three-shot lead in the Seniors Open Friday.

Douglass pulls 3-shot lead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dale Douglass' golf game required some first aid, but through two rounds of the U.S. Senior Open, the rest of the field may be in the emergency ward.

"(My game) was bleeding out there all day long and I was looking for something to stop it," said Douglass after a second round 72 left him with the three-shot lead he held Friday at the start of the round. "It was an up-and-down day. But the key is I still feel good about how I'm playing."

The 1-over-par 72 left Douglass, who shot an Open first-round record 66 Thursday, at 4-under 138 through 36 holes.

One of Douglass' closest pursuers, Ken Still, said, "I don't think anybody in the tournament is playing Dale Douglass. On this golf course, he has shot two tremendous rounds. ... There's no need to keep an eye on him right now. With four or five holes to go, maybe three or four of us will get involved and start playing him match play. But if you start watching him now, you're going to get out of your game plan."

Sometimes I think my head is so big because it is so full of dreams—

Regulations in effect to govern public's viewing of Nixon papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 12 years of legal wars that are far from over, regulations go into effect this week to govern the way the public can get to see 2.5 million pages of documents that Richard Nixon was forced to leave behind.

But in keeping with a history that has yet to see a single document opened to the public, a public interest group was ready with a lawsuit to challenge an interpretation by the Reagan administration that Nixon has the final say on what will or will not be released.

The National Archives prepared to send letters in the next few days to President Reagan, Nixon and at least 60 other people who asked to be notified that it intends to allow access to the files.

A general notification also will be published shortly in the Federal Register, and those affected have at least 30 days to object.

The regulations went into effect automatically when a Wednesday midnight deadline passed without action by Congress to disapprove of the regulations. It was the end of a 60-day waiting period. As part of the regulations and before opening any papers, the archives is required to give the 30-day notice.

Past attempts to make the documents available have resulted in suits either by Nixon or people who generated the documents. Even if anticipated future suits don't materialize, the archives doesn't expect to release any papers until late fall.

Congress passed a law seizing control of Nixon's papers and the White House tape recordings in 1974 after he resigned the presidency. The law directed the fullest possible public access to the papers, especially those pertaining to Watergate, and directed the archives to draw up regulations for that.

Five drafts of those regulations were rejected for one reason or another, including five lawsuits by Nixon or his former aides. Last July, a final version was submitted to the White House Office of Management and Budget for review.

Those regulations provided that the archivist of the United States would rule on any Nixon objections to release of the documents on grounds of executive privilege and that the former president would be entitled to court review of any decision he disagreed with.

But when the rules were approved and returned to the archives, they were accompanied by a Justice Department memo that said the archives must honor Nixon's claim or go to court to overturn them. The memo also said Reagan had the right to stop release of documents on executive privilege grounds.

Frank Burke, the acting head of the National Archives, said during a congressional hearing that he had no choice but to comply.

Acting on a request by three senators, acting Comptroller General Milton J. Socolar studied the Justice memo and declared it to be contrary to the 1974 law and "fundamentally inconsistent with the final regulations." Socolar said the inconsistency precludes the archives from following the Justice Department rule.

Of the conclusion that the archivist must defer to any Nixon executive claim, Socolar said, "We see no way in which this conclusion can be read into the current regulations."

Science 86 will be sold to Time Inc.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Science 86, the award-winning popular science magazine that helped pioneer a trend toward glossy, technical publications for lay readers, will cease publication with its current issue and sell some assets to Time Inc., it was announced Friday.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science, which began publishing the magazine as Science 80 in the fall of 1979, said it is selling its Science 86 subscriber list and licensing the publication's name to Time for two years as part of the deal.

Carol L. Rogers, a AAAS spokesperson, said the 700,000-circulation magazine has had "incredibly successful circulation, but advertising revenue has been in a two-year decline."

Michael Luftman, a spokesman for Time, Inc., said the corporation would pay AAAS $5,750,000 for the assets, with $3,750,000 being paid at the close of the deal and $2 million to be paid over the next five years.

Luftman said Time would use the Science 86 subscriber list to try to boost the circulation and demographics of its rival science magazine, Discover, which has a circulation of 850,000 and a readership of 2.1 million.

Science 86 subscribers, who include a high percentage of professional and managerial persons and college graduates, will be a very attractive reader segment for advertisers, he said.

Roof Thatching

Miss Bertha's eighty-years did not show as she lay in the hospital bed facing surgery. We talked about the weather, the latest news, and about life in general.

Then, our conversation centered on faith. She told me the surgery was serious but she had no fear. "My roof is thatched," she said, and smiled as she noticed wrinkles of question marks forming on her young pastor's face.

"Your roof is what?" I stammered, searching for a handle of interpretation.

She took my hand in both of hers. "My faith in God was birthed when I was a little girl, and it has been growing ever since. Every day I have built my faith, and now that I face this unknown surgical journey, I have no fear. Nothing can harm me; nothing can scare me. My house of faith is firm, solid. I have covered the roof of my life with the teachings of God's word," and she took a deep breath, then called my attention to the beauty of the day reflecting itself outside her window.

"My roof is thatched."

Skeptics say prayer uncalled for if God presumably knows needs

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Praying — something most Americans say they do — generally is for help about some problem or need. But skeptics say that if God is all-knowing he must have already known about the situation beforehand.

Why have to remind him? Why keep imploring him about it, if he was already aware of it without being told? What's the use?

That's one of those convoluted peculiarities of biblical religion, which is laced with such paradoxes. Yet whatever curves are thrown at it, they're usually oldies repeatedly explained over the years.

About that prayer conundrum, a common answer is that any transaction in life necessitates participation of those involved, and prayer is the process by which human beings open and attune themselves to God on the issue at hand.

Such cooperation is essential to any mutual action, and it sometimes takes a lot of praying, church thinkers say, to sensitize the person to God's waiting concern and wisdom about the matter.

That's why prayer often is called "listening to God" — to gain some of his illumination and fuller perspective on the situation to increase readiness to share in the resolution of it.

Gallup polls find that 87 percent of Americans pray at times, most frequently for guidance, for family, for health for friends and family, and in thanksgiving.

Nevertheless, the old question recurs often — why keep appealing to God about something over and over again if he already knows about it anyhow?

The Rev. Curtis C. Mitchell of La Mirada, Calif., cites an added twist about the process — that it calls for "persistence," for continuing to press the case with God.

This is "perhaps the most unpopular concept" about prayer, he says, the idea of bringing the same requests to God over and over again, such repetition seeming to suggest lack of faith.

But whatever the misgivings about it, he says, "persistence is Scriptural," an essential quality. "Christ himself taught its necessity and importance," urging "dogged persistence," Mitchell says.

Mitchell, professor of biblical studies at Biola University in La Mirada, took up the subject in the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today, citing a parable of Jesus.

The story in Luke 18:1-8 says he told it to show his disciples "they should always pray and not give up." The story was about a needy widow and a hardhearted judge to whom she kept coming, pleading that he take up her case.

He refused for some time, but finally gave in, deciding to settle the matter for her, simply to stop her continual bothering him about it.

Jesus, noting that even the "unrighteous judge" finally did his duty, said that God will so much more fully vindicate those "who cry to him day and night."

As number of Catholics on incline, U.S. priest, nun population declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of U.S. Roman Catholics grew to a record 52.7 million last year, but the ranks of priests and nuns continued to thin, a new report says.

Totals for Catholic schoolchildren and for converts also were down in 1985, though there were increases for infant baptisms and for marriages, according to the Official Catholic Directory for 1986, released last month.

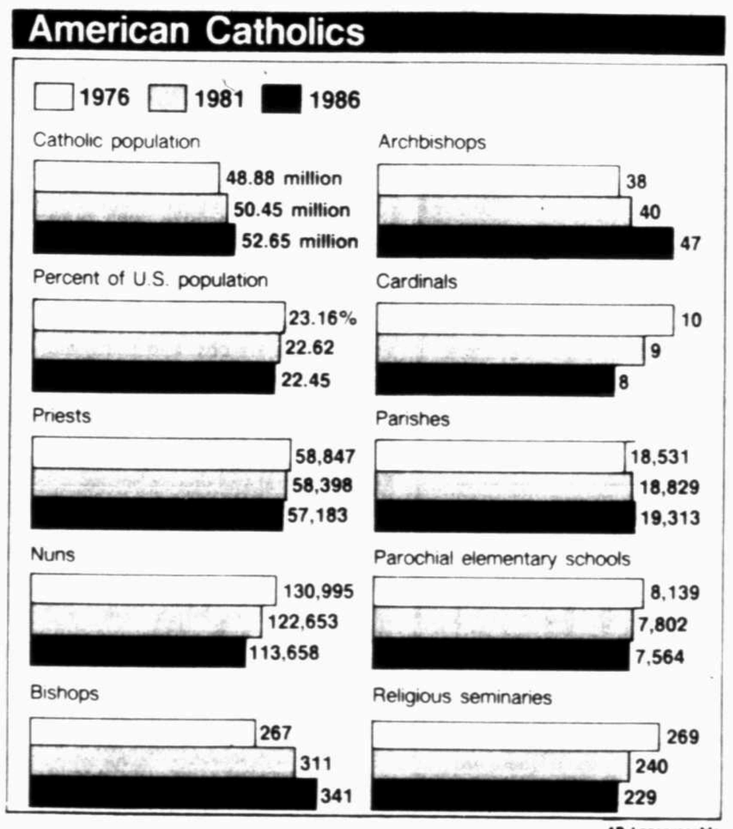

The overall increase of about 370,000 members — to a total of 52,654,908 — more than made up for the previous year's decline of about 100,000 and suggested no general slippage for the religious denomination that is the nation's largest by far. The second-place Southern Baptist Convention has about 14.5 million members.

However, the report said, the increase didn't keep up with growth in the general population, and Catholics now account for 21.99 percent of the nation's populace, compared with a bit over 22 percent in recent years.

In addition, the number of priests declined 134 to 57,183, and the number of nuns decreased 1,843 to 113,658, continuing negative trends now two decades old. Since 1966, totals have fallen more than 2,000 for priests and nearly 68,000 for nuns.

During the same two decades, the number of U.S. Catholics has grown by about 8 million. And the trends show no indication of change, with the number of new seminarians also continuing to decline.

In an effort to deal with the problem, church leaders have brought back the long-discarded idea of ordaining permanent deacons — men who can carry out many but not all of a full priest's duties and still be married and hold non-church jobs if

Mt. Carmel choir sings

Mt. Carmel Baptist Church and soloist Robert Dorn will be in concert at 6:40 p.m. Sunday at Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St.

The Mt. Carmel Choir is under the direction of the Rev. John Mitchell. Mt. Carmel Baptist Church is a newly organized church in Midland, and its choir has been the featured choir at several religious functions in the Midland area.

Dorn has been a Midland resident for 35 years. "He did not begin his solo career until after he became a Christian in 1973," said a church spokesman. "Since that time he has developed into an outstanding soloist. His aspiration is to serve God and be a blessing to people."

Bellview Baptist Church's pastor, the Rev. G.A. Magee, invites the public to attend. A nursery will be provided.

Dobson's film hits home

In Dr. James Dobson's new film series "Turn Your Heart Toward Home," this family life specialist brings his vast experience to bear on one of society's most pressing challenges, the protecting and strengthening of family relationships.

Kelview Heights Baptist Church, 402 W. Scharbauer Drive, is showing this film at 10 a.m. Sunday.

In this film, a church spokesman said, "Shirley Dobson shares intimate memories of her difficult childhood with her alcoholic father, and the influences which brought her to a loving God."

The church's pastor, the Rev. Frank Johnson, invites the public to attend. Child care will be provided.

RELIGION

Religion ignored in most history texts as publishers fear controversial topics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The role of religion in American history gets scant attention in most junior and high school textbooks because publishers fear controversial subjects, a liberal lobbying group said last month.

A study of textbooks by People for the American Way concluded that history textbooks are improving but many still are dull, deal inadquately with the role of women and minorities, play down violence and conflict and also neglect religion. The organization seeks to promote the protection of civil liberties.

Five educators and historians reviewed 31 junior and senior high school history texts. They included all history books submitted to the 1985 Texas State Textbook Committee for grades 8 and 10 and six popular textbooks available in other states.

"The treatment of religion as a force in U.S. history continues to receive short shrift," O.L. Davis Jr., professor of curriculum and instruction at the University of Texas at Austin and review panel chairman, said in the report.

"School histories, with only rare exceptions, treat religion by exclusion or by brief and simplistic reference," he said.

Anthony Podesta, president of the non-profit organization, said poor coverage of religion "is evidence that textbook publishers are still gun-shy about certain controversial topics."

"Students aren't learning about America's rich and diverse religious heritage because textbook publishers are still afraid of offending anyone, from moral majoritarians to civil libertarians," he said.

"The fact is, you can't understand American history without understanding the important part that religious people, religious values, religious leaders and religious institutions have played in shaping our society," he said.

Podesta said textbooks can cover the role of religion in U.S. history without indoctrinating students to one set of religious beliefs.

People for the American Way, based in Washington, was founded by television producer Norman Lear to protect constitutional liberties and to answer conservative lobbies such as the Moral Majority.

Textbooks submitted to the Texas board were selected for the study because of that state's influence in the textbook industry.

Churches, pastors more cautious of crime

DALLAS (AP) — Once a haven for those in need of spiritual or physical aid, churches today are becoming a target of robbers and vandals, forcing ministers to exercise extraordinary caution.

The violent assault and robbery of a minister last week is only a reflection of the rise in crimes against church workers and church properties, authorities say.

The trend is causing some to bar their windows, lock their doors and refuse visitors after hours.

"From now on, I have to be more cautious, more careful," said the Rev. Efren Ortega.

On June 10, Ortega admitted two men asking to talk to a priest at St. Edwards Catholic Church rectory. They clubbed him with a gun, tied him in a chair and stole a camera, stereo equipment and cash.

Although wariness belies the church's role of enthusiastically embracing all who come seeking solace or assistance, church officials say they must protect themselves.

"We keep a fairly tight security. We feel we owe it to ourselves and to the congregation to be alert," said the Rev. Phil Hanson, associate pastor at Oak Cliff Assembly of God church in South Dallas.

Last October, two men entered the Holy Family Catholic Church in Irving on a Friday night and, after breaking into the "poor box," robbed and raped a 33-year-old woman in the middle of prayer.

Several years ago a man forced the music minister and two women at First Baptist Church of Dallas to disrobe, then herded them into closets.

At St. Edwards in East Dallas, the late Monsignor John Brady was robbed and tied up twice by assailants in 1979 and 1980. He later had burglar bars installed on the rectory windows and began a policy of not answering strangers' knocks after nightfall, church workers said.

"Churches seem to be a constant target," said Jack Cobb of the Dallas Police Department's crime analysis unit. "There are very few days I don't have a few (church burglaries) come across my desk."

The allure of a church for criminals is strong.

"They're fairly safe targets at night because (burglars) know no one's going to be in them."

Now many churches are encasing windows in burglar bars, installing alarm systems, hiring 24-hour security guards and closing early. The Tyler Street United Methodist Church has spaced microphones throughout its buildings to detect any suspicious sounds at night. A live-in maintenance man listens in.

"When I was growing up, many churches were open all night," said Dave Furlow, general manager for the Catholic Diocese of Dallas. "That's unheard of now."

A pastor "could just close the door on everybody, but that defeats the whole purpose of being there," he said.

Church workers say the key is to control access and offer as much help as possible. But if someone attacks, they should be prosecuted, workers said.

"Forgiveness is one thing," Ortega said. "Justice is another."

Boatlike form atop Turkish peak generates fire among ark searchers

By ZEYNEP ALEMDAR

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A mysterious boat-shaped formation nestled more than a mile up a mountain in eastern Turkey has drawn attention away from the craggy slopes of nearby Mount Ararat, where the Bible says Noah's Ark came to rest.

Several American explorers have said the formation, on a mountain 14 miles south of Mount Ararat near the Soviet border, could be the legendary ark and should be dug out.

Explorers have long searched for the ark on the high slopes of Mount Ararat, Turkey's tallest mountain at 17,820 feet, where the biblical account of the Great Flood places it.

Then in 1957, Turkish air force pilots spotted the boat-shaped formation in Agri province while flying overhead.

The government did not pursue the sighting, however. The entire area, including Mount Ararat, was off limits to foreigners because of Soviet complaints that explorers included U.S. agents who spied on Soviet border fortifications.

When the government lifted the ban in 1982, fundamentalist Christians and mountain climbers rushed to the area.

In 1984, a team from International Expeditions, based in Los Angeles, visited the area near the village of Uzengili where the boat-shaped formation had been spotted.

Marvin Steffins, who led the expedition, said then that the team found the ark. But the group did not return to substantiate the claim.

Last year another team led by Ron Wyatt of Madison, Tenn., climbed to the spot, at the 6,385-foot level, and made an identical claim.

"The boat is there, it is only a matter of digging it up," Wyatt told The Associated Press at the time.

David Fasold, a marine surveyor from Stuart, Fla., who was with the Wyatt expedition, returned this year. He said in an interview that he was awaiting Turkish permission to excavate the 11,000-square-foot area.

That permission may never come. The governor of Agri province, where both the boat-shaped formation and Mount Ararat are located, has said only Turks will be allowed to excavate the area.

Gov. Kutlu Aktas said he has invited Turkish geologists and archeologists to study the formation and, if necessary, dig it out to determine the truth.

Women reject Bible's view of christianity 'favoring males'

Hearst News Service

Christianity and women's rights have endured an uneasy courtship, creating both repression and liberation. The same Bible that quotes Paul the Apostle, "I do not permit a woman to teach or to have authority over a man" in 1 Timothy 2:12, also says, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free, male nor female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus" in Galatians 3:28.

The former stance has led to religious suppression of women's rights in private and public life. In turn, many women have rejected religion for that reason.

"Inferior jobs, wife abuse, child abuse, incest, lower pay, limited promotions, inequitable divorce settlements and lack of skills to get a job to support children" have encouraged women to reject God because they see a Christianity that favors male supremacy, says the Rev. Ann Sherer, a Methodist minister.

"When the faith is used to denigrate a person and as a vehicle (for women) to not know their worth, then something tragic has happened, and (the gospel) is not redemptive good news to them. When persons have been hit by the church, we've lost them," says Sherer, superintendent of the Nacogdoches district of the Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, the first woman appointed to that post in Texas.

Those skeptical of religion and the institutions it supports have noticed this inconsistency regarding women. The late Simone de Beauvoir, a French intellectual and life-long companion of existentialist philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre, wrote that marriage is "an obscene bourgeois institution" because it reduced the joy of an equal partnership to a list of rights and duties. Many feminists credit de Beauvoir's 1949 book, "The Second Sex," with launching the modern women's rights movement.

In 1963, Betty Friedan's "The Feminine Mystique" was an appeal for a more active role for women in public life. The book's popularity led to the creation of the National Organization of Women a few years later. MS magazine, a leading feminist publication, started shortly after.

Major political goals of modern feminism have included the repeal of anti-abortion laws, easy access to contraceptives and the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. Conservative men and women have attacked these goals, criticizing them as "anti-family."

Yet much of modern feminism owes a debt to conservative Christianity. Many of the abolitionist, temperance and suffrage movements were led by women with passionate religious convictions that God created men and women with equal dignity. They saw that the U.S. Constitution did not allow women the right to vote and stated that slaves were worth three-fifths of a white man for purposes of apportioning representatives.

The women who opposed such inequities did so from strong religious beliefs, says David Scholer, dean of the Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, near Chicago.

"One could say that almost every leader in the women's rights movement came out of Christian convictions or as a reaction to them," Scholer says. "Many grew up in Christian homes, had conversion experiences and studied the Bible."

Most women leaders in the women's rights movements came from the revivals started by evangelists such as Charles Finney and other preachers from Wesleyan and Holiness traditions, he adds.

"The more Holiness types were open to social questions and were less doctrinaire" than Christians from Calvinist traditions, Scholer says. He will publish an essay on the meaning of 1 Timothy 2 in a forthcoming book on women by InterVarsity Press, a conservative evangelical publishing house.

Some of these women include Helen Barret Montgomery of Rochester, N.Y., a civic reformer who pioneered child care for working mothers and was later the first woman elected president of the American Baptist denomination in the 1920s. Scholer says.

Sojourner Truth, an uneducated black woman, campaigned for the rights of women and former slaves, he says, "all directly out of her religious experiences."

Francis Williard, a leader in the temperance movement, also wrote a book defending women preachers.

Harriet Beecher Stowe, daughter of a famous Connecticut minister, wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with the inspiration of abolitionist sentiments from the Lane Seminary in Cincinnati.

Another abolitionist, Susan B. Anthony, spoke against slavery, and for temperance and women's rights. Anthony even opposed the 14th Amendment, which gave blacks the right to vote, because it deliberately excluded women.

Women won the right to vote with the passage of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution in 1920. The year before that, women successfully influenced the passage of the 18th Amendment, which prohibited the manufacture, import, export and sale of alcoholic beverages.

The women's temperance movement recruited its members from churches, who in turn prayed, sang hymns and preached to persuade saloon keepers to shut down. They believed alcohol abuse would lead to a man's inability to work and provide for his family, dooming women and children to poverty.

Abolitionism, suffrage and temperance were "all one package, to liberate women from bondage, and it was almost always religious," Scholer says. After women gained the right to vote, however, the women's rights movement lost much of its force and the male-dominated church attacked what remained of its leadership, Scholer says.

But, says Sherer, interpreting Galatians 3:28: "It is possible to be a Christian feminist," she says. "Our loyalty is first to God and God's church. Out of that loyalty to God, one begins to struggle and search for the vision of what it is to be one in Christ, that women are not to be property."

Baptist convention praises Reagan for raids on Libya

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Delegates at the national convention of the General Association of Regular Baptist Churches have praised President Reagan for ordering reprisal raids on Libya.

The 3,500 delegates and guests "commended President Reagan for his decisive and courageous actions dealing with terrorist activity," Tom Rohrer, convention spokesman, said Thursday.

In praising the April 15 bombing, the delegates supported Reagan where other churches did not, Rohrer said.

He said the World Council of Churches, the United Church of Christ and the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) were among those who had condemned the attack.

The 55th annual convention of the association, which represents 1,600 churches with 300,000 members in 46 states, ended Friday, Rohrer said.

Man awarded $7 million

BOSTON (AP) — A maintenance man injured by an ice cream plant explosion that sprayed him with cold liquid ammonia has been awarded $7 million in one of the state's largest negligence awards.

Andy Wu, 36, of Boston, was injured May 21, 1983, at Dorchester Ice Cream Corp. Dorchester shares responsibility with Lewis Refrigeration Co., which modified equipment at the plant in 1981.

The jury on Thursday also awarded $1.5 million to Wu's wife and two children.

The accident limited Wu's life expectancy and left him with burns over 50 percent of his body, loss of sight in one eye and internal injuries, said James N. Esdaile Jr., one of Wu's lawyers. He estimated Wu's medical expenses at $1 million.

Alexander Pratt Jr., lawyer for Lewis Refrigeration, declined to comment after the verdict. Patrick T. Jones, lawyer for Dorchester Ice Cream, said he expected to seek a new trial.

Escaped inmate recaptured

MANCHESTER, Conn. (AP) — An inmate who escaped two weeks ago when he chased a foul ball into the woods during a prison softball game was arrested when he argued with a police officer while trying to hitch a ride, police said.

Joseph P. Lyman, an inmate at the Montville Community Correctional Center, was yelling at motorists who wouldn't give him a ride Monday when police stopped and told him to get out of the road, Officer Gary Wood said.

Lyman refused and got into an argument with the officer, who arrested him and took him to police headquarters, where he was identified as having escaped June 10, Wood said.

Warden William J. Maynard said Lyman was given permission to retrieve the ball when it was hit into the woods.

Lyman was serving a two-year sentence for burglary and larceny. Wood said he faced new charges of breach of peace, interfering with a police officer and escape.

Delegation to discuss MIAs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. delegation will make a two-day visit to Vietnam next week for discussions on resolving the issue of Americans still missing from the Vietnam war, the State Department announced Friday.

Department spokesman Charles Redman said the delegation hopes to bring about an acceleration of the Vietnamese government's two-year plan to resolve the issue.

The group will be headed by Richard Childress, director of Asian affairs in the National Security Council. The talks will take place in Hanoi on July 1 and 2.

Marchers will strut to different beat

WINDHAM, Conn. (AP) — Participants in this year's Independence Day parade will be marching to the beat of a different drummer.

Organizers, who have been unable to line up a band, instead are asking the town's 20,000 residents to carry portable radios tuned to a local station that will play John Philip Sousa music as they strut down Main Street.

"I look at this as sort of an alternate way of having a parade. This will be a slice of America," Kathleen Clark declared on Friday.

People who usually watch other parades will be the stars of this one, Mrs. Clark said. She is encouraging people to form marching units such as the "baby-boomer stroller unit," the "skateboard unit," and the "senior citizens unit."

The 45-year-old local government worker got the idea for the "boombox parade" after the town, located in eastern Connecticut, canceled its Memorial Day parade this year when it couldn't find a marching band.

Mrs. Clark said she approached Wayne Norman, the morning disc jockey for WILI-AM, and asked him if the radio station would be willing to broadcast march music between 11 a.m. and 11:50 a.m. on July 4 for a parade.

Although hesitant at first, Norman agreed. Mrs. Clark went to Town Hall, got a parade permit and paid $175 of her own money to hire the two police officers required for a public march.

Mrs. Clark first envisioned the parade as loosely organized and a kind of joke. But now she, some friends and WILI are giving the parade some structure and taking it more seriously. They met Friday to form their plans.

The first 100 people to show up carrying radios and dressed in blue jeans and white shirts will be given red, white and blue vests. They will be asked to be part of the "Official Marching Radio Band" that will lead off the parade.

Civic groups in towns, including local veterans associations and ethnic clubs, are being invited. WILI will provide a float: a truck decorated as a big, portable radio.

The organizers also are encouraging people to bring pets and ride bicycles, tractors and other farm or construction equipment. They are looking for a bus in which to carry senior citizens.

Thirteen-year-old Jason Chalifoux, who was busy setting caps on Main Street on Friday, said he thought the parade would be fun.

"All the kids would enjoy it, especially with those big radios. It will give them something to do," he said.

An adult resident, Carlene Bottaro, wasn't so sure.

"You'll get a lot of kids fooling around. There will be a lot of confusion," she said.

Tony Clark, Mrs. Clark's husband, remembers the disappointment residents felt a few years ago when another summer parade was botched. Spectators arrived, but only one fire truck showed up, he said.

"It was a disaster," he said. "We thought this year that everybody could march and there would be no spectators."

Lawmaker working to free hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., arrived in Syria Friday on a mission he hoped would lead to the release of the American hostages in Lebanon, his aide said.

Dornan carries a letter signed by 247 members of Congress, asking Syrian President Hafez Assad to use his influence to secure the release of the Americans, said Jim Skinner, the aide. Dornan received his visa for the trip on Thursday.

The congressman is staying at the home of U.S. Ambassador William Eagleton and has a meeting scheduled Sunday with Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Sharaa, Skinner said. But the Syrians have not guaranteed Dornan an audience with Assad.

The letter is addressed to Assad because the hostages are thought to be held by Islamic militants in the Bekaa Valley region of Lebanon, an area controlled by Syrian troops, Skinner said.

The hostages, all of whom were kidnapped on the streets of Beirut, include Terry Anderson, the Associated Press' chief Middle East correspondent; the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, head of the Catholic Relief Service in Beirut; William Buckley, political officer at the American Embassy, and David Jacobsen and Thomas Sutherland, professors at the American University in Beirut.

Skinner said Dornan paid for the trip from his own pocket. He is scheduled to return Monday.

Sparks from a fireworks display fall like a fountain of lights in front of a spectator at the sixth annual Expofiesta in Matamoros, Mexico, which is across the border from Brownsville, Texas. Italy's Premier Bettino Craxi resigns

ROME (AP) — Socialist Premier Bettino Craxi resigned Friday night after losing a secret parliamentary vote, ending Italy's longest-running government since World War II.

President Francesco Cossiga asked Craxi to stay on as caretaker premier until a new government is formed.

Craxi's five-party coalition has been in power for 1,050 days — since Aug. 4, 1983 — longer than any of the 43 previous post-war governments.

But the coalition was beset by feuding between Socialists and the dominant Christian Democrats over which party should have the premiership. The other government partners were the small Republican, Social Democrat and Liberal parties.

Craxi, Italy's first post-war Socialist premier, submitted the resignation to Cossiga at the Quirinal presidential palace after a 20-minute Cabinet meeting. "I hope that this critical situation can be rapidly overcome in the national interest," Craxi later told reporters.

He had rushed back to Rome earlier in the day, cutting short his stay at a European Common Market summit meeting in The Hague. "Whenever I'm away something like this happens," Craxi told reporters at the Rome airport.

WORLD

A controversial vote Thursday night in the Chamber of Deputies, the lower house of Parliament, prompted the resignation.

In a secret ballot, which the law allows on all legislative measures except votes of confidence, the legislators voted 293-266 against a government-proposed bill aimed at streamlining local financing.

Only minutes earlier, the government won a public vote on a confidence motion 338-230.

Left-wing opposition parties said the government's loss on a major piece of legislation — the local taxation and expenditures bill — meant the government should resign.

Christian Democrat and Socialist legislators blamed "franchi tiratori," or "snipers" from their own ranks for defecting during the secret vote.

Claudio Martelli, a top Craxi aide, called the secret vote an "ambush" and added, "It robs citizens of the faculty of controlling the people they elect."

In recent weeks, Christian Democrat leader Ciriaco De Mita said Craxi no longer had the mandate to remain in power and should be replaced by a Christian Democrat.

Christian Democrats, Italy's largest party with more than 30 percent of the national vote, have led or dominated all post-war governments. The Socialists received about 13 percent of the vote.

The two parties had joined together in an informal alliance to keep the nation's second-largest party, the Communists, out of the government.

"The decision to resign was a forced choice," said Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini, leader of the Republican Party. "For almost six months the majority was missing... and in fact the activity of the government was paralyzed on essential points."

Bettino Craxi

Craxi's Cabinet faced a crisis Oct. 17 when the small Republican party withdrew from the coalition over the premier's handling of the hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise liner.

But the coalition was quickly revived with no changes in the Cabinet makeup after the parties patched up their differences.

Soldiers break into church, kill teen, group says

LONDON (AP) — Amnesty International said Friday that South African soldiers using tear gas and whips broke into a church in a black South African homeland June 16, killing a 14-year-old boy and injuring at least 35 other people.

The human rights organization said its information came from reliable sources.

In previous statements this week, Amnesty International has reported that security forces detained three entire church congregations in South Africa on June 15 and June 16.

Today's report was the first involving a death and the first from a South African homeland. South Africa's white leaders set up the nominally independent regions called homelands in hopes of moving most of the country's 24 million blacks into them and reserving the rest of the country for the 5 million whites.

Amnesty International said it had received reports that troops entered the Mera Methodist Church in Mdantsane in Ciskei homeland during an interdenominational memorial service for the victims of the June 16, 1976, anti-apartheid uprising in Soweto, the black township outside Johannesburg.

The troops struck the congregation with rhinoceros-hide whips and set off tear gas, according to the reports.

At least one person, a 14-year-old boy, died of head injuries suffered in the attack. Amnesty International said. It said it was checking unconfirmed that another child may have died.

At least 35 people were treated at hospitals for injuries, it said.

Amnesty International said Ciskei authorities reportedly said the church service had become unruly, but the group said its information did not support this claim.

Amnesty International said Thursday that security forces using whips raided a black congregation June 16 at St. Peter Claver's Roman Catholic Church in Duncan Village in the eastern Cape province. Duncan Village is near the Ciskei homeland.

More than 100 people were arrested and about 70 are still held incommunicado under the emergency powers declared June 12 by the Pretoria government, Amnesty International said.

The South African government has confirmed that about 200 people were arrested June 15 in a church at Elsie's River. Amnesty International has reported that more than 500 people were detained June 16 from a church service in Graaff-Reinet. Both are black townships in Cape province.

Leaders tell South Africans not to state race on documents

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Religious leaders urged all South Africans on Friday to fight apartheid with its own weapon by refusing to state their race on official documents.

"If done on an increasing scale, this would eventually render the system unworkable," said a resolution adopted at the annual conference of the South African Council of Churches.

Such a mass public action would go "to the root of apartheid" and enable whites who oppose the discriminatory laws to show solidarity with South Africa's 24 million blacks, the council said.

The government reported six more blacks killed in unrest, including a Soweto policeman slain along with his dog by attackers who hurled two hand grenades at a black councilor's home he was guarding. It said the other five were burned to death by other blacks.

The deaths raised the official death toll to 72 since a nationwide state of emergency was imposed June 12.

Police said they conducted a house-to-house search for weapons in Nyanga, a black township adjoining the Crossroads squatter camp in which rival black factions have battled in recent weeks.

Four alleged guerrillas of the outlawed African National Congress were indicted for high treason and accused of planning to shoot down South African military aircraft with ground-to-air missiles. They were arrested June 13.

In London, Britain's National Union of Journalists said it had reports that a journalist who is the son of jailed African National Congress leader Walter Sisulu was abducted by four armed white vigilantes.

It said in a statement that the wife of Zwelakhe Sisulu, 36-year-old editor of the New Nation newspaper, told friends her husband was taken from his home in the Soweto township at midnight Thursday. Sisulu's paper is a politically outspoken bimonthly financed mainly by the Roman Catholic Church and aimed primarily at blacks.

His father is former general secretary of the African National Congress, the main black guerrilla group, and is serving a life prison sentence along with fellow ANC leader Nelson Mandela.

When asked about reports of Sisulu's abduction, the Bureau for Information said it had nothing to disclose. The bureau, which resumed daily briefings Friday after a two-day suspension, is the only source of official information under the emergency.

The South African Council of Churches, which represents major Protestant denominations other than the Dutch Reformed Church of the dominant Afrikaners, endorsed a campaign against race classification at the end of a week-long conference in Johannesburg.

Race will not be designated on new national identity documents that will replace "passes" for blacks and separate cards for whites over the next five years. South Africans are required to declare their race on other forms ranging from birth certificates to driving licenses.

The council urged people to erase the final digit, which denotes race, in the numbers of current identity documents for whites, people of mixed race and Indians, and not to state race on any other forms.

"This action goes to the root of apartheid. It is open to any and every adult South African," the resolution said.

Head of Egypt's Parliament sharply criticizes U.S.

BONN, West Germany (LAT) — The president of Egypt's Parliament sharply criticized the United States for blocking with "flimsy arguments" the Middle East peace process and the settlement of the Palestinian problem.

The official Rifaat El Mahgoug speaking to journalists at the end of a one-week visit to West Germany, said that the Reagan administration allowed Israel and "pressure groups" to constantly influence their policies.

He said it was incomprehensible that Washington should not only refuse to accept the Palestine Liberation Organization as a partner in Middle East negotiations, but also reject prominent independent Palestinians if they were thought to be sympathizers of the PLO.

Mahgoub asserted that the PLO had reached its limits in accommodating the United States, declaring in principle its readiness to have a peace settlement, accepting all U.N. resolutions on the Middle East and even giving up a claim to a state of its own.

W.H.O.: Cholera up

GENEVA (AP) — Cholera cases worldwide increased 40 percent last year to 40,510, largely because of an extensive outbreak in sub-Saharan Africa, the World Health Organization reported Friday.

It said the total could be higher because some governments had given incomplete or provisional information, and there was "strong reason to believe" some cases were not reported.

Barbie, right, of Bandi Co., Ltd., and her clone, Jenny by Takara Ltd., are at the center of a heated legal dispute between Japan's top two toymakers.

Japanese toymakers battle in court

American Barbie dollis focus of their fight

TOKYO (AP) — The Barbie doll failed in its introduction to Japan in the 1960s, but the long-time American favorite has been a hot item in the '80s.

And that success has produced a bitter legal battle between Japan's two biggest toymakers, which are in court trading charges of unfair competition and breach of faith.

Takara Ltd., Japan's No. 2 toy manufacturer, is suing a joint venture between Mattel, Barbie's American maker, and the Japanese toymaker Bandai Co. Ltd.

Takara had sold Barbie dolls, altered to Japanese children's taste, under license from Mattel from 1982. But Mattel abruptly terminated that agreement in January, because it felt Takara was not trying hard enough to sell other Mattel toys, and was leaking Mattel secrets to another American toymaker.

Now Takara claims Mattel and archrival Bandai cloned their new Barbie doll from the Barbie that Takara spent 19 months and 100 million yen, about $590,000, developing.

Bandai, Japan's top toymaker, began marketing the Barbie last month through the joint venture, MA-BA Corp.

"We promised Takara to make a different doll, and we did. If you ask a young girl if they're different she'll say yes. If you ask her if they're similar she'll say yes. There's a kind of similarity: two arms, two legs."

— Fred Tang of Mattel Asia Ltd.

"It's exactly the same thing as our old Barbie, so we sued under the Unfair Competition Prevention Law," says spokesman Shusuke Kubota of Takara, which changed the name from Barbie to Jenny.

Not so, says Fred Tang, managing director for Mattel Asia Ltd. "We promised Takara to make a different doll, and we did," he said in an interview. "If you ask a young girl if they're different she'll say yes. If you ask her if they're similar she'll say yes. There's a kind of similarity: two arms, two legs."

After unsuccessful attempts by Mattel in Japan in the 1960s to market its American Barbie, of which 1 million a week now are sold worldwide, Takara developed a Barbie that appealed to Japanese children, with a rounder face, huge eyes and small lips.

Takara sold Barbie dolls worth 5.6 billion yen, about $33 million, last year out total sales of 51 billion yen, or $300 million, paying Mattel about 300 million yen, or $1.8 million, in royalties, Kubota says. Takara sold 6 million of the dolls.

Things turned sour with Takara's 1984 tieup with Hasbro, the top U.S. toymaker, to market the successful Transformer robot toy series in the United States. Mattel worried that Takara could leak Mattel secrets to Hasbro, its chief rival.

Mattel approached Takara several times from 1983 to '85 to form a joint venture company to sell Barbies, but each time Takara refused.

Tang said Takara probably cared less about the 4.5 billion yen — $26 million — worth of Barbies it sold in 1984 than the 28 billion yen — $165 million — worth of Transformers it sold to Hasbro the same year.

Kubota insists that Mattel toys didn't succeed in Japan. "Takara tried — Masters of the Universe, (Verti-Bird) helicopter, pop-up pictures," he says. "But they just didn't sell."

Mattel says Takara didn't try. Figures such as Masters of Universe (He-Man) need stories on television to sell, but "Takara never tried to get it on TV," Tang said.

In January, Mattel abruptly ended its agreement with Takara and said it would sell a new Barbie in Japan. Takara's lawsuit seeks to halt MA-BA's Barbie production.

Tang, calling the suit "a lot of nonsense," notes that the new Barbie is one centimeter taller and twists and bends at the waist.

Miyuki Ishii, a toy salesclerk at Ginza's Matsuzakaya department store, said, "I can't tell the difference. Jenny seems to be selling better, but not many people seem to know there's a new Barbie."

Pope will be visiting Columbia

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II's 30th overseas tour is a week-long trip to Colombia, a country shaken in the past year by a murderous volcanic eruption, guerrilla warfare and a hard-fought presidential election.

The pontiff, who leaves the Vatican on Tuesday, will be making his seventh trip to Latin America. He will visit 12 cities ranging from guerrilla-controlled towns to industrial centers enjoying a boom thanks to coffee crops and clandestine cocaine traffic.

The Vatican views the pope's trip as a pastoral mission to a country which suffers from extreme poverty, terrorism and drug-related problems. About 95 percent of the country's 30 million people are Roman Catholic.

The pope is expected to make an appeal to the young, who are often divided between a conservative Catholic Church sympathetic to the government and guerrilla groups with strongholds in the countryside and among the poor.

From the moment he is greeted by President-elect Virgilio Barco, a former ambassador to Washington, and outgoing President Belisario Betancur, John Paul may have to weave his way through a delicate course of obstacles — political, natural and theological.

Barco, elected by a landslide in May, has inherited a legacy of continuing terrorist attacks, which have claimed more than 2,000 lives since 1983, and several hundred thousand victims during the last 40 years.

About 100 people died in November when the army stormed the Bogota Palace of Justice after it was seized by guerrillas.

There have been reports that guerrillas have threatened to attack the pope during his visit. But Vatican sources said Friday that the powerful guerrilla group M-19 has said it will observe a truce during the pope's visit.

John Paul has shrugged off the guerrilla threats, just as he did on his last Latin American trip to Peru, when guerrillas blasted Lima's power supply during his visit.

Earlier this month, guerrillas took over two seminaries in Bucaramanga and Medellin that the pope is scheduled to visit. Guerrilla groups requested a meeting with the pontiff in their hideouts, but the Vatican ruled out the encounter.

One of the guerrilla groups is the pro-Soviet FARC, which won 12 seats in the Colombian Parliament after the May elections. The Vatican said it had nothing against members of this group meeting with the pontiff when he receives other elected political representatives at the presidential palace in Bogota.

The pope will travel by helicopter to the town of Armero, where 22,000 people were buried last November in the eruption of the Nevado del Ruiz volcano. He will pray there for the souls of the victims of Colombia's worst natural disaster.

The pope also will tour Popayan, where an earthquake killed 300 people in 1983.

Colombia is the only Latin American country to have received the visit of two popes. Pope Paul VI inaugurated a Latin American Episcopal conference at Medellin in 1968.

That conference spawned "the spirit of Medellin" invoked by many prelates seeking not only to solidly put the Roman Catholic Church on the side of the poor but also to foster political activism by priests.

The Vatican, in a major document "On Christian Freedom and Liberation" issued in March, stressed the church's loyalty to the poor, and declared that Christians, in extreme cases, have the right to fight unjust governments through armed struggle.

The generally conservative Roman Catholic hierarchy in Colombia has often been at the focal point of the controversy over political activism by priests. But the Vatican denies that political activism within the Colombian church is a problem.

John Paul will address the Latin American bishops on his first day in Bogota and also fly to Medellin, Colombia's industrial capital. Aides say the pontiff has continued to brush up on his near-flawless Spanish.

Spellbinding law student awaits execution for heinous crimes

By DAN SEWELL

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — He was a living nightmare for the 1970s, one of the first "serial killers" to get widespread national attention, tantalizingly elusive to the law until his long, lethal cross-country wanderings wound up in Florida's death row.

There, convicted of three slayings, the handsome, articulate Theodore R. Bundy is to be executed Wednesday. The Supreme Court of the United States rejected his appeal last month.

From Jan. 4, 1974, to Feb. 15, 1978, an engaging young man stalked young women on college campuses, at shopping malls, in apartment buildings and grade schools in Washington, Oregon, Utah, Colorado and Florida.

In Washington, the sinister stranger, with magnetic appeal to women, had introduced himself as "Ted" to intended victims, and the "Ted case" it became to the small army of investigators who had pursued him ever since.

The FBI imputed 36 killings to Bundy when it placed him on its Most Wanted list shortly before his arrest in Florida seven years ago. He was convicted of killing two Chi Omega sorority sisters in their bedrooms at Florida State University and of killing 12-year-old Kimberly Diane Leach, his youngest known victim.

Most of Ted's victims came from solid families and had good reputations themselves. Most were apparently enticed to go along with this irresistible stranger, who sometimes appealed for help, claiming a broken arm, or posed as a police officer or fire investigator.

His victims all were pretty and wore long hair parted down the middle.

"All the girls I ever talked to said they just fell in love with him, his personality, his smile," recalls Jerry Thompson, a Salt Lake City sheriff's detective who led Utah's Ted investigation.

Usually the victims' skulls were crushed and they were sexually assaulted afterward.

When Ted was identified as Theodore R. Bundy, those who knew him were shocked. Those who would come to know him through exhaustive news coverage were no less incredulous.

"You go before America with a good-looking, intelligent, articulate, aspiring lawyer," reflected Mike Fisher, Colorado's Ted investigator. "Then you say: 'Listen, ladies and gentlemen, this is the guy who is killing your daughters, your wives, your lovers.' It's hard to accept that this normal-looking guy gets a kick out of killing people."

A near-cult status sprang up around Bundy. He taunted and outmaneuvered legions of police. Twice he escaped from jail. His winning smile, witticisms and confident vows to prove his innocence reached millions through television.

"Slasher" movies about grotesque, sadistic killers were becoming popular with young people and the handsome, real-life character accused of mass murder proved chillingly spellbinding.

"I don't know what it is he has, but he's fascinating," said Adys Acosta, one of the dozens of attractive young women who daily packed the courtroom for Bundy's 1979 trial in Miami.

The first death warrant with Bundy's name was signed in March by Gov. Bob Graham, but the execution was stayed by the Supreme Court. On May 5, the same day as the airing of the conclusion of a national network miniseries about Bundy, the court rejected appeal of his Miami conviction for the murders of the two Florida State sorority sisters.

Graham on May 22 signed a second warrant for Bundy, setting his execution for July 2. Graham six times has signed a third death warrant for an inmate, and three of those six are still alive. It's widely assumed Bundy has some last-ditch appeals up his sleeve.

Ted Bundy

"He's been sitting over there for a long time," says Pat Guerry, a Lake City nurse who in March sent a petition with 5,600 signatures, gathered in less than two weeks, to Graham supporting Bundy's execution.

"People were rabid about it. People I didn't know called me and talked about him for half an hour. Nobody thought execution was good enough for him."

It was in Lake City that Bundy's last and youngest known victim, Kimberly Diane Leach, was abducted from outside her school, brutalized and left dead in a deserted hog shed.

"It should be a national holiday. Fry Bundy Day," says Rona Burley, a teacher in Tallahassee.

She recalled that at the time of the Chi Omega sorority murders at Florida State, she was a young woman living alone in a nearby apartment.

"Sure I would have gone out with somebody as good-looking as that," she says with a shiver. "It just came too close."

The precise number of Ted's victims has not been conclusively established.

Investigators link him to seven to nine slayings in Washington and the slaying of a coed abducted from Oregon State University. In Utah, he is blamed for the slayings of two women, the never-solved disappearances of three others, and the 1974 kidnapping of 19-year-old Carol DaRonch, who got away and testified against him.

In Colorado, he was charged but never tried in the murder of vacationing Michigan nurse Caryn Campbell, and was linked to three unsolved disappearances.

A trail of gasoline credit card slips showed Bundy drove his favorite car hundreds of miles a day, cruising through California, Wyoming, Idaho and the other states.

"I think Theodore may be good for a lot more. Remember, he just loved to drive that Volkswagen," says Steve Bodiford, a sheriff's detective in Tallahassee.

Bundy has never admitted anything worse than stealing credit cards, food, television sets and cars. But his denials have sometimes seemed to dwell more on lack of responsibility than innocence.

In five late-night sessions with three detectives after his Florida arrest, Bundy used euphemisms to discuss a "problem" with women, a need to "possess" them.

Bundy talked of providing information about unsolved cases in exchange for life in prison in Washington. The detectives discouraged talk of a deal and said Bundy agreed: "Maybe I don't deserve it."

In a book written about him, "The Only Living Witness," reporters Stephen G. Michaud and Hugh Aynesworth detailed taped interviews with Bundy in prison.

Using the third person, Bundy "speculated" about what the mass murderer responsible for the slayings may have been like.

He talked of an entity that had grown within.

Novel's 50th anniversary attracts 'windies' to old south

By DAVID TREADWELL

ATLANTA — Many are bringing their hoop skirts, frock coats and Confederate army uniforms, and they're all carrying their dreams of reliving the moonlight-and-magnolia scenes from the one novel that, frankly, they really give a damn about.

It is the 50th anniversary of the publication of "Gone With the Wind," and Atlanta is playing host this week to thousands who are gathering for a gala celebration.

It was on June 30, 1936, that "Gone With the Wind" first hit the bookstands, capturing the fancy of a Depression-weary public with its compelling tale of a headstrong Southern belle and its uplifting theme of survival in the face of overwhelming odds.

The golden jubilee of the novel's publication has been largely ignored by the nation's literary establishment, which tends to agree with F. Scott Fitzgerald's judgment that the book "is a good novel (but) not very original." But that hasn't discouraged "Gone with the Wind" aficionados from descending upon Atlanta and the neighboring red-clay country of Clayton County — the site of Scarlett O'Hara's fictional family plantation, Tara.

"Windies," as "Gone with the Wind" lovers are often called, are not much for scholarly papers or literary pontifications on the subject of their favorite novel, anyway.

They prefer the kind of shindig Atlanta and Clayton County have put together, which includes fancy-dress balls, barbecues and fried-chicken dinners, showings of the 1939 film, a Scarlett O'Hara-Rhett Butler look-alike contest, a "Going, Going, Gone with the Wind" auction, exhibitions of "Gone with the Wind" memorabilia, excursions aboard a vintage train and a 5-kilometer road race that promises to leave runners — well, winded.

Planners of the commemorative celebration estimate that between 20,000 and 30,000 visitors will take part.

"This is a fantasy and dream fulfilled," said Michael Kopczynski of North Tonawanda, N.Y., who is visiting with his father and mother, his wife and their 14-year-old daughter. "My wife and daughter have their gingham gowns and I brought along a Confederate officer's uniform."

Not surprising for a book that has been translated into 27 languages and sold in 37 countries, the anniversary activities are also drawing a healthy sprinkling of overseas aficionados. Among them are Finn and Lilleba Galaas of Norway, who won a trip to Jonesboro, the heart of Taraland, as the grand prize in a "Gone with the Wind" trivia contest sponsored by a Norwegian magazine.

The book has sold more than 25 million copies and is still going strong. A special reproduction of the first edition that the MacMillan Publishing Co. of New York has put out in honor of the 50th anniversary has climbed onto the best-seller list.

The film, which starred Clark Gable as Rhett Butler and Vivien Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara, is Hollywood's all-time blockbuster, having earned the equivalent of $321,603,000 in inflation-adjusted dollars. That compares to $272,085,000 for No. 2 "Star Wars."

Margaret Mitchell, daughter of a prominent Atlanta family and one-time Atlanta Constitution reporter, began writing the novel in 1927 while recuperating from an ankle injury. An intensely private person, Mitchell found her personal life turned topsy-turvy by the publication of the novel.

"I am sure Scarlett O'Hara never struggled harder to get out of Atlanta or suffered more during the siege of Atlanta than I have suffered during the siege that has been on since publication day," she wrote in July of 1936.

So how would Mitchell, who was killed in 1949 in an auto accident and would have been 86 this year if she had lived, feel about all the hoopla on the book's 50th anniversary?

"I guess she would be flattered but not too enthusiastic," said Franklin Garrett, Atlanta's official historian, who knew the author personally and was a pallbearer at her father's funeral. "She was never one for a lot of fanfare."

Many of the activities are centered in Jonesboro, about 25 miles southeast of Atlanta. Stately Oaks, a restored antebellum plantation, is open for tours and demonstrations of Civil War-era crafts. There is also a "living history" Confederate army encampment, with soldiers, tents and authentic weapons.

A steam-driven excursion train is making daily trips from Atlanta to the Jonesboro train depot, the site of the terminal that Scarlett O'Hara used when visiting Tara.

"Gone With the Wind" memorabilia is on display at the Omni International complex, the Atlanta Historical Society and the Atlanta Public Library.

American experts wonder what lurks behind Soviet smiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The telephone at the Soviet embassy press section still goes unanswered at times. But under Mikhail S. Gorbachev the Soviets are clearly engaged in a campaign to explain his policies and persuade the American people through the media of the wisdom of their ways.

The voice at the other end is unfailingly pleasant. And while there is no instant response to the latest U.S. pronouncement, or immediate access to a Soviet diplomat, there is more coming out of the embassy in the way of information than at any time in years.

Reporters and television cameras were invited to a news conference last week at the embassy to hear the Soviet side of the superpower argument over the lack of progress in curbing nuclear weapons.

Under a glittering chandelier, Deputy Ambassador Oleg Sokolov and Vitaly Churkin, a stylish young diplomat who seems to be a rising star, criticized President Reagan's decision to abandon the SALT II treaty and vowed "our response would be proportionate."

Moreover, Sokolov went beyond normal bounds and proceeded to analyze the thinking within the U.S. administration. His suggestion that American policymakers were having "second thoughts" about abandoning the 1979 treaty was a display of diplomatic confidence that is quite unusual.

Last week in a more familiar display of Soviet public relations, a breakfast was held for reporters at the National Press Club in which Natalie Semenikhina of the USSR-USA Society, Nikolai Zlobin, a construction manager who is a deputy to the Communist party presidium, and the ubiquitous Churkin appeared.

Miss Semenikhina and Zlobin were on a 10-day "friendship" tour with stops in New York, Minneapolis and Madison, Wis. They answered questions in a friendly way. Zlobin paid his respects to the wonders of the American building trades, although he said the U.S. response to the nuclear disaster at Chernoybl "could have been more constructive."

Churkin stepped in to explain that while the Soviets appreciated the offers of American assistance, some of the media reports tried "to blow the scope of the accident out of proportion." He cited one account that some 2,000 people had perished. The Soviets say 26 people died.

Two weeks ago, Vladimir Posner, a Soviet television commentator who grew up in New York City and attended Stuyvesant High School, criticized his government. He told a session at the American Enterprise Institute that he thought it was a mistake to jam Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty broadcasts.

Posner also acknowledged the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan was not popular with all segments of the population back home.

Like Churkin, he seems completely comfortable in English. He is not so natty a dresser as the diplomat, but would pass journalistic muster in America.

The Soviets are also stepping up their public diplomacy abroad, especially at international conferences and during high-level talks with U.S. officials.

Vladimir Lomeiko, the spokesman for the foreign ministry, holds news conferences, accompanied sometimes by other Soviet officials. Assertions from the U.S. side no longer go unanswered very long.

The campaign, of course, has Gorbachev's explicit endorsement. The Soviet leader is the most outspoken of all the Soviets, both taking the offensive in public against the United States on arms control and other issues, but also shifting when it suits his policy purposes to publicly proclaim new approaches to banning nuclear weapons and easing superpower tensions.

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1986, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

By Jeane Dixon
Sunday, June 29, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Success will come more easily if you steer clear of emotionally draining situations. Your loyalty, especially to your family, pays rich dividends. Business picks up as you reach out in new directions. Try not to be so hard on yourself when you make a miscalculation. You never know what you can do until you try!

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: famed Minnesota surgeon William James Mayo, baseball's Harmon Killebrew, actress Ruth Warrick, singer Nelson Eddy, actor Slim Pickens, Dodger all-star slugger Pedro Guerrero and pitcher Rick Honeycutt.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A difference of opinion with mate should prove easy to resolve. Make family harmony a top priority this weekend. Include both relatives and friends in your recreational plans. Shower mate with affection.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Being stubborn will cause trouble. Show determination, not obstinacy. Keep any diet or exercise resolutions. Self-indulgence could undermine your health. Be candid when talking with a child. Speak from the heart.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Help but don't interfere with someone who wants to build a new life. This is no time to hide your creative talents under a bushel! Let others see what you can do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Where romance is concerned, you seem to be more interested in dessert than in the main course. Be sensible. Curb a tendency to hoard things. Invite someone special to share a homemade treat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You have a fantastic opportunity to broaden your horizons today. There is nothing abnormal about your desire for recognition. Step into the spotlight with confidence. Enjoy the applause that comes with success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The moment of truth will come sooner than you think. Better have the right answers or romance will fly out the window. A friend who thinks positive can be a big help today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): End an "impossible" relationship. You deserve much better than what you have been getting! Travel sends your spirits soaring. A romance is likely for someone young at heart. Enjoy each day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New opportunities for romance arise. Be choosy. Take your time when deciding whether or not to make a long-term commitment. Good fortune comes your way but don't press your luck. Curb self-indulgence.

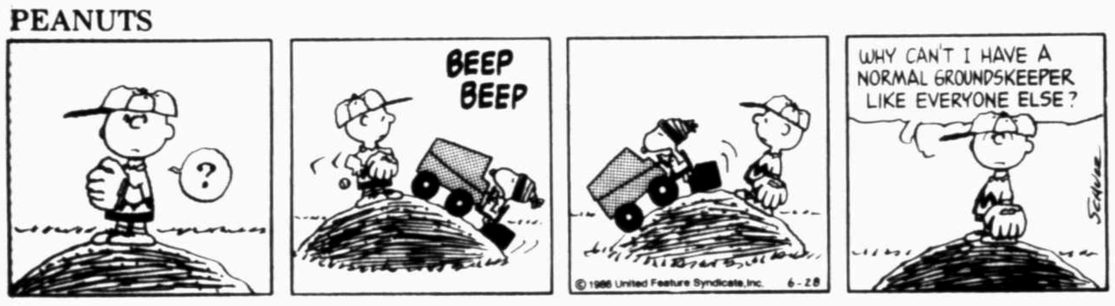

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Losing weight is easier now. A child will guide you through troubled waters if you pay attention to the signals he is sending. Open up to those closest to your heart. Share your hopes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good friend needs your help. Ignore another friend's jealous accusations and catty remarks. Time will prove which of you was right. Remain true to your high ideals Your instincts are excellent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Go through your wardrobe and give away those items you no longer wear. Romance will not be on hold forever. Plan ahead. Picking apart a loved one's every comment will only cause trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Proper eating habits are important for good health. Put work aside and relax with your family today. A church service could be the pick-me-up you need to face the busy week ahead.

Barbecue sauce company sues Foxx

Foxx

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Redd Foxx, who has been known to use spicy language in his comedy act, was hit with a breach of contract suit for failing to promote a barbecue sauce bearing his name.

The $1 billion lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court by Granite Ltd. and William Thompson Productions Inc., claims that Foxx reneged on a contract to help sell "Redd Foxx Barbecue Sauce" and "Redd Foxx Seasoning Salt" by acting as a spokesman for the products.

Foxx, who starred in the television comedy "Sanford and Son," never showed up for commercials and other promotions even though he signed an agreement in 1983 to promote the products in exchange for a percentage of the profits and part ownership in the company, said Rochester attorney Louis J. Balsamo, who filed the suit Thursday on behalf of Granite.

Granite Ltd. is based in Nevada, but filed suit in Rochester because Granite has an office there and because Balsamo handles all of the company's legal matters, he said.

William Thompson Productions is based in Hollywood, Calif.

Telephone calls to Foxx's company, Redd Foxx Corp. in Los Angeles, were not answered Friday.

The companies, which hired a contracter to make the sauce, took an initial order of 100,000 cases when the operation was forced to fold, the lawsuit said.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A sense of 1960s nostalgia prevailed as Bob Dylan and the Grateful Dead performed their first concert together this summer.

Dylan, who left Minnesota for New York City almost 25 years ago, hammered out 1960s protest tunes and hard-edged rock 'n' roll Thursday night in his first concert in his home state in eight years.

The Grateful Dead, who opened the show, played for hundreds of tie-dyed "Dead Heads" dancing on the field of the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome.

Dylan, backed by Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers and a four-woman chorus, drew a wild ovation from the crowd of 50,000. He opened his set with a new song, "So Long, Good Luck, Goodbye," before launching into 1960s favorites such as "Positively 4th Street" and "Just Like a Woman."

He referred to Minnesota in introducing his anti-war song "Masters of War."

"Here's a song I wrote a couple of years after I lived here," said Dylan, 45, who was born in Duluth. "It's nice to see it's still here."

Jackson

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Michael Jackson will be allowed to add a giraffe to the menagerie at his Encino estate as long as he promises to give the animal a good home, game officials decided Friday.

The reclusive singer, who already plays host to a chimpanzee, llamas, deer and a python named Muscles, had sought a license to keep the 6-month-old giraffe, which was spotted by a game warden earlier this month.

Jackson, 27, already has permits from the California Fish and Game Commission for the other exotic pets at his home 20 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

RYE TOWN, N.Y. (AP) — A life-size Beetle Bailey loafs happily in a hallway while Dagwood takes a bath. Alfred E. Neuman shares quarters with Popeye. Hagar the Horrible is in the men's room.

The beloved characters are at home in the Museum of Cartoon Art, a turn-of-the-century castle where more than 60,000 cartoon strips, comic books, Disney cels, Bugs Bunny videos and other works are preserved and displayed.

The non-profit museum, founded by a cartoonists' group chaired by Beetle Bailey creator Mort Walker, is a place where many adults relive their childhood, said spokeswoman Ashley Hunt.

A mixture of reverence and playfulness fills the four-story castle, perched on a hilltop along the border of Greenwich, Conn.

Parents can buy kit to test for drugs

CHICAGO (AP) — Parents who fear their children are involved with drugs will be able to find out for sure with a $24.95 kit that includes a specimen bottle, a mailing tube and a laboratory test.

But some drug counselors say such tests may create more problems for troubled families.

The "Aware" kit will be marketed by American Drug Screens of Dallas. Testing of the urine samples will be done by the American Institute for Drug Detection in west suburban Rosemont.

"The prime customer will be parents who think their kids might be involved with drugs," Don Shattuck, chairman of American Drug Screens and president of the institute, said Friday.

"That's who asked for it. The more the institute's reputation spread, the more calls we got from parents who asked if they brought in a specimen, would we test it," he recalled.

"Then we did market research for six months and found there were plenty of kids who wanted to prove they weren't into drugs."

Counselors question whether the issue is that simple.

"I've got parents calling me every day, saying, 'I think my kids are taking drugs. Should I take them for a drug test?' " said Jane Lee, executive director of Breaking Free, substance-abuse treatment program in nearby DuPage and Kane county schools.

"I say, 'Sit down and talk to them.'

"Parents don't know how to approach their youngsters," she said. "What is it going to prove if you have a test? You still have the problem."

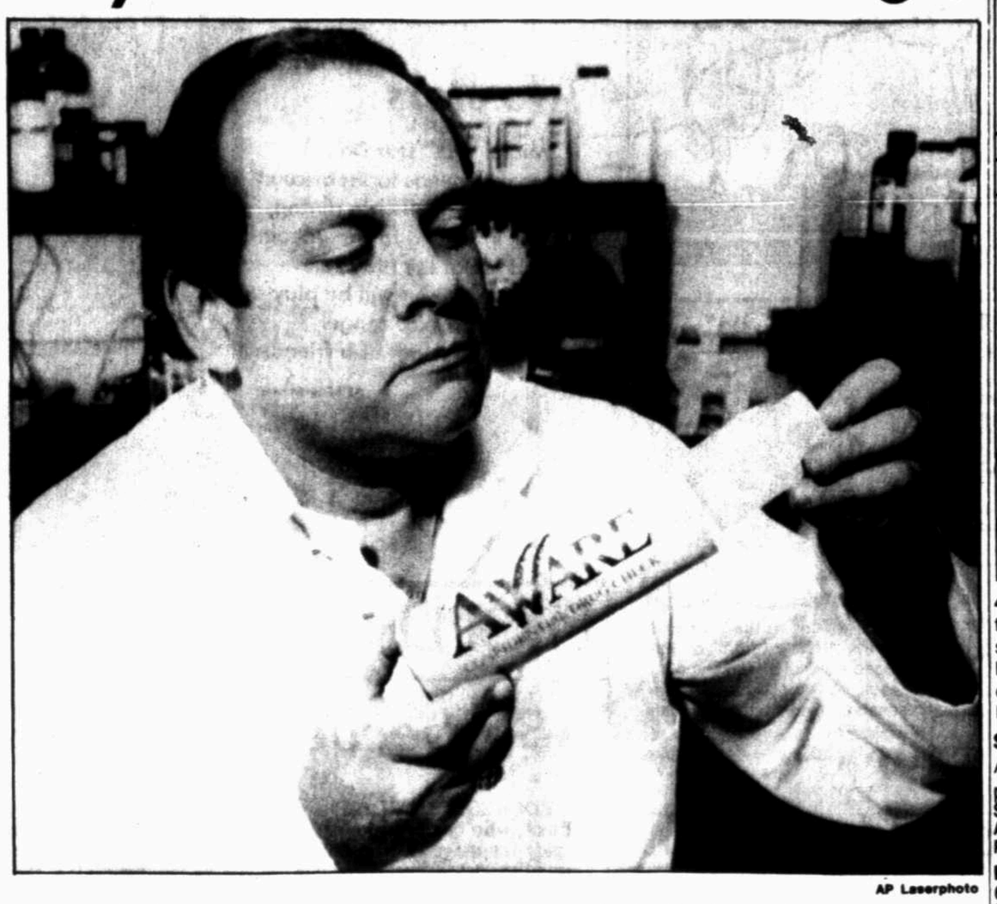

Shattuck put the accuracy of the tests at between 95 percent and 99 percent and said results would be returned to customers within 10 days on the average.

"Aware" should be available in the Dallas area with 60 days, he said. The timetable for national distribution hinges on negotiations under way with several food and drug store chains.

The institute — whose customers include the Chicago Police Department and corporate giants like Amoco and Exxon — will test for the presence of marijuana, cocaine, PCP or "angel dust," amphetamines, barbiturates and several prescription drugs.

Substances in some over-the-counter cold remedies and diet aids can skew results, particularly in testing for amphetamines, he said.

"We are taking some of the inconvenience and a lot of the cost out of the same test at a hospital or clinic," said Shattuck. "And we're giving parents a tool to eliminate some of the emotion from this issue and let them deal with it scientifically."

AP Laserphoto

Don Shattuck, chairman of American Drug Screening, shows a kit that parents will be able to use to see whether their children are involved with drugs. The $24.95 "Aware" test includes specimen bottle, lab test and mailing tube.

But counselors say separating the two issues may create more problems.

"Under proper supervision, urinalysis is a useful tool. But once you've got positive results, you want professionals to intervene. That's a benefit of having the test done at a clinic," said Herb Higgin, director of Gateway Foundation for substance-abuse prevention and rehabilitation.

"The problem with this is that when the adult feels he's got to force this test on his kid, he's already thinking, 'I wonder if the kid is lying to me?'" said Higgin. "There's already some deterioration in the relationship.

"Now you've got the results back, potentially angry people on both sides, and no guarantee that they'll go outside the family for treatment."

Buy now at lower interest rates... or buy later at possibly lower prices?

This is a dilemna currently facing many home purchasers, whether first-time, transfer or move-up buyers. It appears that, as predicted, interest rates have bottomed out and are beginning to creep up. Mortgages readily available 8 weeks ago at 9½%. are now costing borrowers 10½%. As a partial offset, however, local home prices have been moderating, and may possibly continue to do so.

How high will interest rates rise and how low will prices fall? It is anyone's guess, but let me point out that to offset even a modest 2% interest rate increase the value of a $100,000 property must depreciate 14.5% to $85,000 if a buyer is going to maintain equal monthly payments. As an example:

10½% todays' interest rate	12½% interest rates (2% rise)
$731.80 monthly PI payment will amortize	$731.80 monthly PI payment will amortize
$80,000 loan amount (80% loan to value)	$68,500 loan amount (80% loan to value)
$100,000 purchase price	$85,500 purchase price

We know interest rates are rising; the question for most would be home buyers is not only will property values depreciate, but will they depreciate enough to offset this rise?

Joanne Langston
