GOBEL CHARGED WITH DEATH OF 'FORMER FRIEND'

Wealthy Florida Realtor Is Held for Action Of Grand Jury

ATTEMPTS A BRIBE

Prosecutor Says He Was Offered $500 to "Fix Things Up"

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 20.—(AP)—John Gobel, wealthy Florida real estate operator was held tonight under charges of administering poison to Mrs. H. D. Hunt who died yesterday. A coroner rendered a verdict accusing Gobel of the crime after Deputy Sheriff P. C. Latham had testified that the realtor confessed administering the poison.

Gobel visited Mrs. Hunt Tuesday night at the jail where she was being detained on charges of theft of a ring preferred by him. While they were together Mrs. Hunt ran from the cell asserting Gobel had forced her to drink poison. She became violently ill and was removed to a hospital.

Order Him Held

After naming the poison which killed the woman, the verdict read: "We further say upon our oaths that said poison was given her, either forcibly or by inducement at the hands of one John Gobel and we therefore recommend that said John Gobel be held to await action of the grand jury."

County Solicitor Robert Taylor testified that while examining Gobel the latter offered him a $500 bribe to "fix things up."

Gobel he said denied giving Mrs. Hunt poison but admitted he had been on friendly terms with her previous to her arrest.

TEAM AND FANS WANT CAT FUR

Pennant Fund Started As Spuds Win

SPURRED on by another impressive exhibition of baseball Wednesday, Spudder fans yesterday rallied to the support of the Spudder pennant fund which is being raised in the interest of a Texas league gonfalon for Wichita Falls.

Testimonials of interest and support for the local team which yesterday annexed its eighth straight win and hung close on the heels of the sprinting Fort Worth Panthers were many and emphatic. Flagging spirits, engendered by a mediocre showing early in the season, has revived to a remarkable extent locally. Attendance picked up somewhat in the Thursday afternoon game and contributions to the pennant fund were sent in in pleasing profusion to secretaries of the various civic organizations who are acting as trustees for the fund.

The pennant fund idea was originated by the Kiwanis club last Monday and taken up by the Rotary, Optimists and Lions. These organizations are promoting the movement which has as its aim, raising of some $5,000 or more for the Spudders if they cop the second half of the league race.

WHAT THE MAYOR SAYS.

The Editor
Record News,
City.

Dear Sir:

Firmly believing in the value of a baseball team to the city, and personally appreciative of the efforts the Wichita Falls Spudders have been making in their pennant fight, it occurs to me that Wichita Falls should more vigorously assert its interest with greater moral support and more liberal patronage.

I believe the city this year has a team worthy of support; I believe a little stimulation will have a far-reaching effect; I personally want to give it all the support I can and on behalf of the Spudders implore a generous and active consideration from the community at large.

(Signed) R. E. SHEPHERD, Mayor.

It is requested that Wichitans desiring to contribute to the fund, mail their checks to the secretary of any one of the organizations named above.

A sample of the spirit behind the Spudders now is furnished in a letter from Mayor R. E. Shepherd to the editor of The Record News.

The mayor's letter is typical of many similar expressions from many of all rank in the city's life who are watching with interest the fight of the club.

That the pennant fund and campaign for greater support for the team will not be allowed to lag was evidenced by a meeting Thursday noon when various committees from the luncheon clubs here met to discuss the matter. Committees have been appointed by each organization, empowered to take such steps as may be needed to perpetuate interest and support.

LYRICS OF LIFE.
By Douglas Malloch.
The Year That.

You maybe think the flight of time
Is measured by the calendars,
The histories, the books sublime,
The deaths of kings, the dates of wars
You maybe think McKinley ran
For president in ninety-six.
Ah, no. That was the year the man
Shipped Dad that awful car of bricks

Oh, we recall the year the war
Began with Germany, of course,
A year we well remember, for
That year we sold the sorrel horse.
Yes, we remember; all folks do
Without a doubt such things as those
I well remember eighty-two,
The year that all the rhubarb froze.

Oh, yes, we have our arguments;
We often may not quite agree,
But not about the presidents:
Say, was it ninety-two or three
That Henry had pneumonia so?
But ninety I remember well,
When Father let the forty go.
He'd always said he'd never sell.

Though mighty men do mighty deeds,
And time records the hour and day,
We lesser folks have lesser needs,
And yet important, in a way.
What matter if we do forget
Some year the world was battle-torn,
As long as we remember yet
The year that little Jean was born!

Garber-Covington Forecasted As Next 100,000 a Day Field

WILCOX THERE MAY PROVE TO BE PROLIFIC

Big Well Falls Down Sharply After Showing 750 Barrels Hour

6,757 FIRST 24 HOURS

Scouts Look for Field To Become Best Producer In Oklahoma

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 20.—That the Garber-Covington oil field of Garfield county can easily attain 100,000 barrels a day in output, is the conservation opinion of many scouts. The Garber-Covington field itself covers approximately 4,000 acres of ground and the Wilcox, or deep sand, is estimated as being on 1,000 acres of this area.

Figuring one deep sand test to each 10 acres of ground, there can be drilled 100 wells and if they are only fair-sized producers, they will boost Garber-Covington's production figures accordingly.

The Mid-Continent Petroleum (Cosden) corporation and Marland Oil company No. 45 School, in the center of the east line of the southeast of the southeast of 13-22-4w, which blew in suddenly at 2 a. m. Tuesday and made 750 barrels the first hour, and 2,500 barrels in a five-hour period, actually yielded 6,717 barrels the first full 24 hours. This shows that the limey nature of the sand allows the pay to be drained very sharply with a resulting decline. The 45 School is now estimated at 225 barrels per hour.

It is easily Garber-Covington's best well—so far. It had the lime at 4,195 feet for its gusher like flow, that had it been maintained would have made it Oklahoma's greatest oil well, or 18,000 barrels a day. Although it fell off sharply it is still a wonderful well and assures the Garber-Covington operators of many more wells like it.

Oil Gossip

Today's alibi, as suggested by M. M. Garrett: "We had the lime high but the sand pinched out."

Plains, Kilcrease

Plains Production company's No. 8 Kilcrease, middle well on their lease in the south half of block 1809, TE&LCO survey, northeast extension to the Litchfield pool, north Young county, was on the pump yesterday, and expected to show about 75 barrels a day from the unusual sand around 1,000 feet.

The rig was skidded to the northwest corner of the lease for the No. 7 offsetting to the east the Petroleum Producers No. 2.

Okla.-Tex. Company Is named in Suit For Receivership

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Suit for $105,000 against the Oklahoma-Texas Refining Company and asking the appointment of a receiver for the company was filed in district court here yesterday by H. P. Downs, a stockholder in the Sagamore Oil Corporation, for himself and others.

Downs alleges that officers and the directors of the Sagamore corporation and the Oklahoma-Texas Refining company have conspired to cancel a contract made by the Oklahoma-Texas company with the Sagamore company for the sale of the output of a refinery at Grandfield.

The amount asked by Downs is what he claims would be the profit the Sagamore company would earn were the contract to remain in force.

The July output this year was 1,731,046 barrels, or at the rate of 55,841 barrels a day.

"Spook Ranch" Is Mystery Thriller Mission Screen

Hoot Gibson Has a Fast Role in Current Attraction

Unwittingly playing the leader of a gang of ruffians against his mutinous horde to the setting of a ranch house believed infested with ghosts gives many opportunities for the rollicking fun and rapid action with which Hoot Gibson's latest release, "Spook Ranch," is filled.

This picture, brimming with humor, is now playing at the Mission theater, where the many followers of Gibson and his Western comedy-dramas are seeing the popular star in his fastest moving and cleverest presentation yet produced under his contract with Universal pictures.

The story starts in the middle of the Mojave desert, "where it is 120 in the shade and there ain't no shade,' according to the opening subtitle. Bill Banks, the part Hoot plays, is a Texas cowboy who has purchased the gold mining rights of the desert. Heat may be heat but mules are mules, and the fun starts when Bill is forced to build a fire under his beast of burden to get action.

Arriving in town, Bill is arrested for hitting a restaurant owner when he wants to work for food. The sheriff, however, sees an easy way out of a dilemma he has been in and frees Bill and his negro man servant if they will solve the mystery of a deserted ranch house on "Spook Ranch."

U. S. Man, Victim Of Chinese Bandits, Officially Located

PEKING, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Dr. Harvey J. Howard, the American who was captured some time ago by bandits in Manchuria at the same time they killed Morgan Palmer, formerly of Plattsburg, N. Y., has been definitely located in a bandit camp some 40 miles from Fuchow-Hsien. Dr. Howard is reported to be well.

A Chinese prisoner released by the bandits recognized a photograph shown him as that of Howard. He said that Howard was being treated well pending payment of the ransom demanded by the bandits.

Troops are reported to have surrounded the district, making escape of the bandits impossible, but owing to the desire to avoid placing Howard in jeopardy through an attack they are being held back and negotiations for the release are proceeding.

WACO EXPERT LAUDS LOCAL LAKE PROJECT

Agricultural Agent Shows Value of Irrigation To Farming Interests

E. R Eudaly, farm agent for McLennan county and one of the best known agricultural experts in Central Texas, who was in Wichita Falls recently, is enthusiastic in his praise of the Wichita irrigation project, in an interview in a Waco newspaper. Waco water engineers and agricultural experts are advocating the building of a similar project in that city, to be known as Lake Bosque. Mr. Eudaly's interview in the Waco News-Tribune follows:

The Interview.

"I don't see how any of the skeptics could go to Wichita Falls and see what I saw and not be in favor of the Lake Bosque project." County Agent E. R. Eudaly said last night on his return from a visit to the big water reservoir at Wichita Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Eudaly have been visiting a sister of Mr. Eudaly's at Iowa Park. While in that section of the state Mr. Eudaly visited the Wichita Falls lake to study the irrigation advantages to be derived from such a project. He drove over a large part of the irrigated land around the city comparing the conditions of the irrigated crops with those which had not been irrigated. He was greatly impressed with the system and the benefits derived from it.

Three-Quarters of a Bale.

"The irrigated cotton," Mr. Eudaly says, "is in twice as good condition on an average as the cotton that is not irrigated. Much of the cotton that has been irrigated will make three-fourths of a bale to the acre, while some will make as much as a bale to the acre.

"The cotton that is not irrigated is in better condition, however, than that around Waco," he continued, "although it has not had enough rain."

Mr. Eudaly says that in a number of cases the farmer has used poor judgment and turned too much water on his cotton with the result that the crop is not in as good condition as the cotton which has been properly irrigated. "There seems to have been no one to instruct the farmer as to how to irrigate, and many have used poor judgment," he said.

Inspects Reservoir.

Tuesday Mr. Eudaly visited P. G. Remington, the new general manager of the lake system. Mr. Remington showed him about the reservoir and outlined a number of plans which he intends to carry out in the future. The new manager has had charge of the lake for only two months, coming to Texas from Idaho, where he was in charge of an irrigation project.

Mr. Eudaly saw a number of motor boats on the lake. "Fishing he says, 'is good, and the people are taking advantage of it."

Big Lake Covers 20,000 Acres.

Two dams have been built, Mr Eduly says, one lake covering an area of about 20,000 acres, and the other an area of about 5,000 acres. The former is some 60 miles from the city, while the latter is only 25 miles away. When the water in the smaller reservoir drops two feet below the normal level water from the large lake is allowed to flow down and fill it up again. All irrigation ditches and water mains lead out from the small lake, he says.

FORT WORTH AND RAILROADS

"The Denver will not be given a permit to build from Estelline to Plainview and Lubbock, for this branch line would rob the T. P. & G. of valuable territory west of Paducah."

In similar vein does the Fort Worth Record editorialize on the sprint for railway building in the south plains. It makes the frank admission that Fort Worth is after two trunk lines into the plains—one the "magnificent Denver road," and the other the proposed Texas, Panhandle and Gulf which Fort Worth capitalists are seeking to put through.

The views of Fort Worth are as follows:

Fort Worth was made by men who knew the strategy of railroad building. It was the genius of Major K. M. Van Zandt, Morgan Jones and their associates, which brought about the network of lines that converge and radiate at Fort Worth, making this city for all time the center for distribution of manufactures to West Texas, and for concentration of West Texas raw materials eastbound.

Fort Worthians who have inherited the wise and far seeing railroad genius of Van Zandt and Jones see the immeasurable importance of the Texas Panhandle ad Gulf Railroad, the four hundred and fifty-mile trunk line from Fort Worth to Tucumcari. It is no accident that K. M. Van Zandt Jr., one of the patriotic citizens of Fort Worth who compose the Texas Panhandle and Gulf Finance Corporation, is out campaigning in West Texas to induce subscription of full quotas to the T. P. & G. on the part of those communities which have not yet gone over the top.

Here, in a nutshell, are the principles of wise railroad strategy for Fort Worth:

In supporting the T. P. & G. Fort Worth is playing not for one trunk line that goes to the Plains, but for two.

The magnificent Denver road wants to get into the South Plains, and should be there.

But the Denver should not be there by a branch line from Estelline to Plainview and Lubbock, for this branch line would rob the T. P. & G. of valuable territory west of Paducah.

Therefore, the Denver will not be given a permit to build from Estelline to Plainview and Lubbock, when the T. P. & G. has been built. The Denver, however, has another approach to the Plains. Already the Denver gets to the base of the Cap Rock at Spur, reached via the Denver to Wichita Falls, the Wichita Valley to Stamford, the Stamford and Northwestern to Spur.

The state charter of the Stamford and Northwestern authorizes its continuation to Lubbock. That is a continuation which in all probability the Interstate Commerce Commission would authorize.

Now, when the Denver comes to operate such a round-about route to the Plains, in competition with the T. P. & G.'s connection at Tulia with the Santa Fe the Denver's route will hardly be competitive. To make this route competitive the Denver will be compeleld to build from Fort Worth to Stamford, over the old survey of the Stamford and Eastern. Once this is done, Fort Worth will have two great new competing trunk lines to the South Plains, instead of one new one.

Because this line of development is of the greatest advantage to Fort Worth, it is in the last analysis also of the greatest advantage to the splendid Denver road, whose destiny is linked with the rise of Fort Worth as the Chicago of the Southwest.

ROAD HOGS.

In Missouri, the Safety Council is taking steps to curb the activities of the road hog. Persons who are miffed by the road hog will take their license number down and turn them in to the authorities. In that way it is hoped to do away with many of the menaces and petty annoyances of the highways.

We much prefer the plan advocated by a friend not long ago. Said he:

"I'd like to have a thousand-horsepower motor car, with armor-plate fenders, vanadium radiator, and a 200-pound iron ram on the front end. Then I'd like for the authorities to commission me to settle the hash of the road hogs. Meeting one who refused to give half the road, I'd tear of his fenders for him and perhaps smash in his radiator. Overtaking one who refused to pull over and let me by, I'd knock his silly contraption into the middle of next week. And the bird that cut in ahead of me at street intersections would have to pick up the pieces of his car in a dustpan. Believe me, with a juggernaut like I have in mind, these road hogs would give me everything I had coming to me when I loomed up in the distance."

They probably would, but our friend's method would be just a little rough—just a wee mite too suggestive of strongarm tactics. We confess we have longed for a machine like the one he describes, but it probably would get a fellow into all sorts of trouble. These road hogs are given to talking loud about their own rights, and are impatient at the least suggestion of opposition on the part of long-suffering motorists who are not road hogs.

Still, our friends' suggestion has an element of beauty in it, not to mention utility.

OUT OF THE MUD.

Haskell county loses a $1,500,000 road bond election by a few votes short of the necessary two-thirds majority. But Haskell is a typical West Texas county, and will not remain in the mud much longer. This road-paving business grows in popularity. When Abilene started in to pave its streets, many property owners raised a kick about the costs, but they soon found that paving increased the value of property and today the city commission is constantly beseiged to approve new paving projects. Same way with paved roads—they increase the value of property on and adjoining the improvement. Here's a prediction—in five years there will be a paved road from San Antonio through Abilene, Anson, Stamford, Haskell, Seymour and on to Wichita Falls.—The Abilene Morning Reporter.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Economy of Effort.

Economy in effort is as important as economy in expenditure.

The man who works the hardest does not always accomplish the most.

The ant appears to be a very busy and productive creature.

But watch him for a time and you will discover that a great part of his energy goes for nothing.

The kind of activity that is described as "running around in circles" is common among ants.

They have some excuse for it, for they are not very liberally supplied with brains.

It is just as common among people, who have no excuse for it whatever.

The American Indian was never noted for his industry. Now that his wars are ended forever he sits on the porch of his shanty on the reservation, smoking his pipe tranquilly, and letting his women do all the work.

Yet very recently came the news from a western city of an Indian, who had learned the trade of a bricklayer, and had become so adept at it that he could lay 36,000 bricks a day. It required two hod carriers to supply him. He earned the wages of three ordinary bricklayers.

Now to do this, the Indian had to get economy of effort to the point of a fixed habit.

He could not make a single false or lost motion. His eyes and his muscles had to be trained intensively.

It is probable that the crowd which gathers around to watch him work can see little difference in the speed of his hands than in that of the hands of half a dozen men on the same job.

But his hands lose no time groping. Every movement counts.

You will notice the same thing in factories where girls are employed paring fruit or packing cartons with merchandize.

Those who do the most work do not seem to be any busier than the others.

But they have learned how to economize effort. They let no energy go to waste. And at night they are not nearly as fagged as their fellow workers who are continually doing the wrong thing, and having to do it over again.

Important as is economy of effort to those who work with their hands it is still more important to those who work with their brains, and who direct the work of others.

The bridge builder who can so lay out his work that one set of men will be ready to take up the work completed by another set of men, who will have parts delivered when they are wanted, and superstructure ready to mount on piers when the piers are finished, is an economist of time and labor, and worth a great deal of money to his employers.

The chain system upon which a well known make of automobiles is assembled is the last word in economy of effort.

It has made for its owner the greatest fortune in the United States.

The man who does not know his job must work hard at it, and will get little accomplished.

The man who knows exactly how to do every detail of it usually has plenty of time to rest, but at the end of the day he has far more completed work to show than any two of his more poorly trained companions.

ALL-YEAR SCHOOLS.

In Chicago a special committee of assistants to the superintendent of schools has recommended all-year sessions for both graded and high schools. The strongest reason given is that the long vacation is a serious interruption in the school life of the child. There is no need for this in cities, however desirable such vacations are where children live and work on the farms. Even for them, however, this applies only in the case of children of working age. In the cities thousands of parents "dump" the whole responsibility upon the schools for the physical, intellectual, moral and civic development of their children, who, when the schools are not in session, are let loose to shift for themselves. So far as urban parents are concerned, most of them will probably favor an all-year school. They know that with the streets for playgrounds and with no regular employment their children will be a constant source of anxiety. There is not only the physical but the moral danger of the street.

The plan does not mean that neither the child nor the teacher may have a vacation. The proposal is that there shall be five terms, of ten weeks each, in the year and that the pupil shall be required to attend at least four terms. He may, however, attend also the fifth term; and the teacher may serve four or five terms and be compensated accordingly. The parent could, therefore, avail to the fullest extent of the school facilities for his child. And as for the city, 50 per cent of whose high school facilities and 95 per cent of whose elementary school facilities are unused throughout the summer, it would be able to solve the problem of seating shortage by the distribution of the attendance over the five terms or a full year. This is, at any rate, what is hoped for the plan.

PUBLISHERS TURN WEST

To reduce costs of publication and distribution, Time, the national weekly news-magazine hitherto published in New York, is being moved to Cleveland. Not only will the new location save money, but it will save many hours in distribution in many sections of the country.

If the publishers of Time prove that a more nearly central location is a benefit to the magazine, other publications will probably be moved out of New York and nearer the national center of population, which steadily moves westward.

This may mean the beginning of the end of New York's dictatorship in all things literary. Ambitious young writers have long felt that they had to be in New York city to get their start toward success, just as all stage successes were supposed to win their laurels in the metropolis. In recent years, however, a number of plays have been decided hits, although they have opened far from Broadway and have gone there only after a considerable length of time spent in other cities.

This is probably a healthy development in American literature and drama. In a country as large as the United States there should be artistic opportunity in more than one locality. Music, drama, literature and other arts need the inspiration of wider scenes and a more varied life than that of even the greatest artistic capital.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

Leo

Today's planetary aspects reveal adverse and unfavorable conditions lasting until noon. Thereafter, they assume an entirely different character and become excellent, and this atmosphere continues for the rest of the day. During the forenoon, it will be wise to abstain from tackling any proposition of magnitude, or from making any changes, or departure from the ordinary routine. Under the protection of the auspicious signs that prevail later, new constructive effort, indicating initiative and originality is bound to meet with success. It is also a favorable occasion for individualism, and the conditions will awaken, or give birth to, romance, and it will be wise to heed the call.

Children born today promise to enjoy normal health, and to attain their majority without any serious physical "set backs," provided they receive proper alimentation and are surrounded by wholesome environment. In disposition and temperament, they will be rather shy in their early years, which, as they grow up, will develop into natural reserve. In character, a boy will be studious and painstaking, devoted to research and analysis, although not destined to successfully capitalize his efforts in this direction. A girl, however, will not have a very reliable character, nor will she prove to be popular. While not distorting the truth, her inherent reserve will be used by her very often to hide the truth.

If today is your birthday, your disposition is critical, and you are always finding some fault with the efforts of others. You are somewhat opinionated, and have very little patience with those who do not subscribe to your ideas. You are aggressive, and have the happy knack of being able to adapt yourself very readily to circumstances. No one can accuse you of selfishness, and you are always thinking to the exclusion of yourself, of the comfort and convenience of others.

You very frequently make errors of judgment, but, on the whole, you have both long and reliable foresight. You possess a great fund of personal magnetism, and can influence others very easily for either good or evil, as people instinctively follow your lead.

You are very fond of music, as well as of a bright and attractive home, and, if you have annexed a mate with the same taste, your home life will be pleasant, as well as happy.

Successful people born on this date are:

Oliver H. Perry, naval officer.
John Fritz, manufacturer, and engineer.
William Pepper, physician.
Frank A. Munsey, publisher.
William H. Dall, naturalist.

Lake Cisco to Be Fishing Center

CISCO, Texas.—Intention of the state to make of Lake Cisco here the greatest fishing lakes in Texas was expressed a short time ago by Turner Hubby, state game, fish, and oyster commissioner, just after completing a survey of the lake. Mr. Hubby said Lake Medina near San Antonio is the only other lake in the Southwest that is in the same class with Lake Cisco from the standpoint of fish propagation possibilities.

A large number of big brood fish recently were placed in Lake Cisco by orders of Mr. Hubby. Bass, white perch, salt water catfish, and rainbow trout are a number of the varieties that will stock the lake, the commissioner said.

Misplaced Coma Changes Meaning Of Gas Ordinance

A misplaced coma in the new gasoline ordinance passed recently by the city council has completely distorted the meaning of one section of the regulations and will probably result in the whole booklet being reprinted, it has been discovered.

In section five of ordinance 368 the following is found:

"All gasoline and other volatiles must be drawn from the tank by means of a National Board of Fire Underwriters suction pump or pumps, with automatic check valve between the pumps and the nozzle. This section applies to filling stations only."

Here is the way it should read:

"All gasoline and other volatiles must be drawn from the tank by means of a National Board of Fire Underwriters suction pump, or pumps with automatic check valve between the pumps and the nozzle. This section etc."

As now drafted, only one kind of pump can be used, that is those approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and which have automatic check valves on the hose. The drafters of the ordinance, however, meant to direct that any pump with an automatic check valve could be used whether approved or not by the underwriters.

The mistake in punctuation has therefore altered the entire meaning.

HOW IT STARTED

PARCHMENT AND ITS NAME

We are all familiar with parchment and its imitation parchment paper from their use in making lamp shades and for other decorative purposes. The original use of parchment however, was strictly utilitarian, the genuine and original parchment being the skin of a sheep or goat which men in an early period of our history prepared for material to write on.

The invention of parchment is credited to Eumens II., king of Pergamum, in Asia Minor, in the second centry, B. C., the circumstance being the prohibition by Ptolemy of Egypt of the exportation of papyrus, the contemporary writing material. In other words, the invention of parchment was the outcome of Egyptian conservation of home products!

The manufacture of parchment rose to great importance in Rome and its use spread all over Europe and continued until the invention of paper made from rags. It is from its birthplace, Pergamum, that the name "parchment" is derived, through the Latin "pergamina," and subsequently the French "parchemin."

France And Spain End Peace Parleys

PARIS, Aug. 20.—(AP).—France and Spain have broken off peace negotiations with Abd-el-Krim, the Riffian chief. The French and Spanish plenipotentiaries who were awaiting the Riffian emissaries at Melilla to submit the joint Franco-Spanish peace conditions have been instructed to return home.

Four Bandits Hold Jewelry Plant Workers at Bay and Loot Safes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Four robbers late today held up the offices of the Lazarus and Weil company, manufacturering jewelers, herded the proprietor and several employes into a corner, rifled five safes of jewelry valued at $250,000 mostly diamonds, and made their escape.

IRRIGATION

Concerning Wagon Wheel Ruts in the Waggoner Pasture.

Apparently every effort was made in the drawing of the contract between Mr. Waggoner and the irrigation district to see that Mr. Waggoner's rights were protected. We believe they are.

We quote one of the most unique provisions in the whole contract as follows:

If the party of the second part, (the irrigation district) in exercising the rights granted it by this contract to take sand, rock and gravel from the lands belonging to the said W. T. Waggoner which shall not be included in the submerged area created by the said two dams, shall in any manner cause damage to the lands belonging to the said Waggoner by causing wagon ruts across the same or otherwise, then the party of the second part agrees to pay the said W. T. Waggoner for all damage so caused, and it is further agreed and understood that if said W. T. Waggoner shall be damaged as contemplated under this clause, then the amount of said damage if any shall be left to arbitration—and the judgment of any two of said arbitrators shall be conclusive and binding upon the parties hereto."

The land which is covered by Lake Kemp was valued and paid for at about $15 per acre. Many people held that it was not worth that much.

From the above provision one might conclude that it was a beautiful lawn which would be severely marred by wagon tracks. As a matter of fact much of it is rough and rocky.

We do not believe that Mr. Waggoner has attempted to collect any damages so far from wagon ruts.

Jardine Ousts Taylor, Head of Economics Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Dr. Henry C. Taylor, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics of the agricultural department, has resigned at the request of Secretary Jardine.

Thomas P. Cooper, dean of the agricultural college of the University of Kentucky, has been chosen to succeed him.

Dr. Taylor quit the department where he has served since 1919 only after Secretary Jardine, with whose policies he does not agree, had directly requested him to do so. Some time ago the secretary indicated that a resignation would be acceptable, but Dr. Taylor declined to follow the hint. Instead he consulted a lawyer as to the legal right of a secretary who had been in the department but a comparatively short time to force him out of office.

The controversy came to a climax when Secretary Jardine from a sick bed at Walter Reed hospital sent word that the resignation must be submitted at once. He already had offered the place to Mr. Cooper, who had indicated he would accept. For some days, however, Dr. Taylor continued to transact the business of his office. Then he left Washington several days ago, ostensibly for a vacation, but he later sent word to his secretary to pack up his belongings in the office as he would not be back.

WANT MORE SHIPS

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 20.—(AP).—R. Stanley Dollar, who with his associates bought from the United States shipping board March 31 five liners operating between San Francisco and the Far East, arrived here today to arrange to buy the government vessels linking Puget Sound and the Orient.

THE STORY SO FAR

Ahmed Ben Hassan, son of a desert sheik, has, as he thinks, been betrayed by a girl. The supposed betrayal nearly cost him his life at the hands of three of her accomplices and he is saved only by the timely arrival of his two bodyguards, Ramadan and S'rir.

Vowing vengeance, he seeks her and finds her in the Cafe Maurer at Touggourt, a desert town. With the aid of a motley army of Arabs, he raids the place and carries her away, taking her to the luxurious home of a friend, where she protests her innocence of betrayal and reasserts that she loves him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

He had long since thrown aside his heavy, silk-bound turban, and the light from a hanging lamp above him shone brightly on his close-cut dark brown hair. The warmth of it, penetrating, seemed to oppress him, for he moved away, stripping off his short, embroidered jacket and wrenching his silk shirt more widely open at the throat before resuming his monotonous tramp. Up and down again he went, his feet lagging now, until at last, with a groan, he dropped on to a divan, burying his head in his hands.

She had lied to him—why should he spare her?

She had betrayed him—why should he not punish her?

He felt no pity for her helplessness. What gentleness had been in his composition was burnt out of him, gone with the love that had died so swiftly.

Moreover, he had sworn, and, by Allah, he would keep his oath! What was scruple to stay him? What had she done to deserve his mercy? She was his—to do with as he would!

The hold he had kept over himself snapped suddenly. Tortured by the physical longing that all at once became unbearable, conscious only of the overwhelming need that was driving him, he went swiftly, with fiercely beating heart and throbbing pulses. But on the threshhold of the innermost room he paused, with outstretched hand, his face tormented.

Then, with a smothered oath, he dashed the curtains violently aside.

It was but little past the dawn when he left her.

Slipping silently to his feet he lingered for a moment, looking down with weary, brooding eyes.

She was asleep at last, heavily, dreamlessly asleep, lying with a child's unconscious grace of pose, one tiny hand buried in the tangle of dark hair spread out on the pillow, the other stretched at her side, clutching tightly the silken coverlet.

Even in sleep her face was sorrowful, her parted lips drooping slightly, the thick, curling lashes that veiled her eyes still wet and matted with tears.

He bent lower, gazing at her intently.

How young she looked—and how beautiful.

But what was her beauty to him now? Merciful Allah, if he could only forget! But he would never forget, never forgive the treachery that seemed to have made of him a thing of stone.

He shivered suddenly at the remembrance of the night.

What had those hours of vengeance brought him?

He had done what he had sworn to do—and the pleasure he had anticipated had been denied him. She had paid for her faithlessness with tears and anguish, as he had promised himself she should pay—and his triumph was as the dust of ashes in his mouth. The satisfaction he had expected seemed strangely lacking, and there was a dull ache in his heart that he could not understand. With a half impatient, half bitter sigh he turned and went slowly away.

The atmosphere of the adjoining room, heavy with incense and stale with the scent of faded flowers, filled him with sudden disgust.

At that moment he would have given much to be able to shake the dust of Touggourt from his feet and ride away into the clean, exhilarating freshness of the desert, to leave behind him all he wished to forget, to go home like the prodigal and start life afresh.

But his work in Touggourt was only half done—and a few feet away from him was the girl.

He could not, would not let her go yet. He wanted her still, though he hated her!

His face hardened as he stooped to retrieve his burnous from the carpet where it had lain all night, and then passed on into the anteroom.

Still very early, the servants had not yet cleared the table, and the pocket book was lying where he had left it. Picking it up he went out into the open courtyard, and from there to the suite of rooms, in another wing of the house, which he had occupied until yesterday.

A bath, in a magnificent porcelain tub that boasted every modern convenience though it lacked the necessary water supply, but which had been filled for him overnight, braced him. And, having shaved, he sat down to write the few covering lines that were to accompany the suspicious pocket book he proposed sending to the commandant. An anonymous letter which implicated no one, but promised further information. That done, and the whole made up into a parcel, he set swiftly to work to prepare for his next move.

Half an hour later a ragged, dirty-looking, barefooted nomad stole silently through the still sleeping house down to the little courtyard from which a nail-studded door gave access to a narrow, winding lane that rane at right angles to the wider street on to which the main entrance opened. . . .

Through the southern suburbs of Touggourt, along the garden-lined road that led to the high dunes, and beyond them to the distant town of El-Oued, Lucien Marie Baron de Prefont—idler by inclination and Spahi from necessity—was riding with a couple of Arab troopers cantering slowly behind him.

Dragged from his bed at what seemed to him a preposterous hour, and annoyed at having to undertake what he considered mere police work, he was venting his ill-humor on the half-broken stallion which had recently become his property as the result of a gambling debt. The service was going to the dogs, he grumbled to himself as he alternately spurred and checked his nervous, foam-flecked mount. Soldiering was all very well and one had to take the rough with the smooth, bien entendup, but soldiering was not sweeping the streets of this sacre little hole of a town in search of ragtag and bobtail! What the devil did it matter if there had been a fracas at the cafe maure? There had been no damage done beyond broken lamps and a general exodus of terrified dancing girls. They would wander in in a day or two, and if they didn't it would be no loss—the dirty sluts. Everybody seemed to be developing nerves, these days. Even old Mercier wasn't the man he was, and all because of rumors! What with extra drills, and shooting leave stopped, and now this senseless order to scour the streets in search of suspicious-looking characters—Bon dieu, what a life.

He had worked himself up to a state of extreme exasperation when a beggar, darting suddenly from the side of the road, made his already over-excited horse rear almost perpendicularly.

"Allah blast thee, thou son of a mule," he snarled, cutting at the tattered figure with his riding switch and jerking his horse's mouth savagely.

"Mule yourself, Lucien," retorted the beggar in perfect French. That horse of yours will be in the ditch if you don't look out." His face, swathed thickly with dingy linen, was hidden in the deep hood of his burnus, but the vice was unmistakable. And, dragging his horse to a quivering stand, de Prefont bent low in the saddle with a great bellow of laughter. "Ahmed!" he roared, and thrust a gloved hand forward. The other's hands went up swiftly, as though in entreaty.

"Softly, mon vieux," he murmured, "and tell your men to drop back a bit."

Shouting to the troopers behind him, de Prefont walked his horse on slowly, motioning to the supposed beggar to follow him.

Beyond the reach of his escort's ears he turned again eagerly to his companion.

"What the devil, Ahmed," he spluttered. "Why this masquerade! How long have you been in Touggourt? Have you heard of the holy mess at the cafe maure last night? I'm supposed to be sweeping up the remains now. Old Mercier has got the wind up properly, I can tell you. The whole thing is a mystery—and can remain so as far as I'm concerned. From what I can make out it onl seems to have been a plaisanterie arranged by some young coquin up from the desert. With all due deference, mon cher, your countrymen are becoming a nuisance."

Ahmed winced as he fumbled in the inner recesses of his ragged garment. "It probably didn't give him all the pleasure he anticipated, poor devil," he said, with a bitter little laugh. "But enough of that," he added hurriedly, as de Prefont shot him a sudden odd look of curiosity. "I haven't much time, and your men will be wondering if we talk too long. Forget that you have seen me this morning, Lucien. And manage to get this packet to Colonel Mercier. Say you found it, or saw it dropped, or any likely lie that occurs to you. It's important, but I don't want my name mentioned. I have reasons, but I can't tell you—you'll have to trust me." And, pressing up close to the soldier's horse, he slid the packet into his hand. De Prefont took it quickly and slipped it into his tunic.

"That's all right, mon brave," he said, with a nod of intelligence. "I can be dumb on occasions, and blind, too, for the matter of that. What's the news from your part of the world? Of course you know Saint Hubert is in the town?" Ahmed started. The events of the last few weeks had driven all thoughts of Saint Hubert and his unknown brother out of his head. Mixing with no one since he had been in Touggourt, and venturing out only after dark, he had heard no local gossip. But Ramadan and S'rir must have known. Why hadn't they told him? He shook his head in answer to de Prefont's question.

"I didn't," he replied shortly, "and there's no need to speak of me if you see him, Lucien." Then natural curiosity overcame his reserve. "I suppose my brother is with him?" he said, rather hesitatingly. De Prefont's eyebrows shot up inquiringly. "Your brother?" he echoed. "Why, of course he must be. I'd forgotten that. Oh! la! la!" he gasped, rocking in the saddle in a paroxysm of mirth.

"Why la, la? What is he like?"

De Prefont gathered up his reins and set his horse dancing across the road. "Wait till you see him," he chuckled. "You won't catch, monsieur, your precise and estimable brother raiding a cafe maure and setting all Touggourt in a blaze. Au revoir, my bold bandit. And reassure yourself, I am silent as the grave. Now jump, my friend, and don't mind if I howl at you a bit. We've got to keep up appearances, you know." And letting out a sudden shout he spurred his horse, waving to his men.

And as the troopers clattered up he drove the almost frenzied animal straight at the tattered figure in the middle of the road, yelling vehement abuse in fluent Arabic.

Resuming his assumed character Ahmed leaped aside with overt manifestations of terror, and cringed against the low mud embankment of the nearest garden as de Prefont wheeled his horse with a parting execration and galloped back towards Touggourt.

Then, with a half smile, he squatted down on his heels and, pushing back the hood of his burnous, searched for a cigarette amongst the folds of his rags.

To meet de Prefont had been greater luck than he had hoped for. The packet would go directly to the commandant's hands, and his secret was safe with the sporting young Frenchman.

But his face grew gloomy again as he thought of the Spahi's laughing jest.

SAYS DARROW TO DEBATE HIM ON EVOLUTION

Preacher Claims Lawyer Has Agreed; Attorney Denies Acceptance

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Dr. John Roach Straton, fundamentalist leader, says Clarence Darrow, professed agnostic, has consented to debate publicly with him on evolution.

Dr. Straton who is pastor of the Cavalry Baptist church, New York city, has wired Mr. Darrow in Greeley, Colo., that he will take the negative side of the question, "Resolved, That the Earth and Man Come by Evolution."

He also has asked Henry Fructer of New York to arrange directly with Mr. Darrow a date early in the fall and preferably in Chicago.

DARROW DENIES HE HAS ACCEPTED DARE

GREELEY, Colo., Aug. 20.—(AP).—Denial that he has accepted a challenge to debate the question of evolution with the Rev. John Roach Straton in Chicago was made here today by Clarence Darrow.

"I will not make a definite decision in the matter until after I return to Chicago," Mr. Darrow said, but declared that "since I have received an actual challenge in the matter, I will take the matter under advisement."

Texas Judge In N. Y. Is Friendly To His Culprits

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Federal Judge William H. Atwell of Dallas, Texas, yesterday brought a philosophy of friendliness for criminals into federal court here where he is sitting temporarily. He said that he liked to make culprits who were brought before him "feel at home" and by talking in kindly fashion to them cause them "to love the law."

"I believe," he said, "when a man breaks a law he should realize that he has broken something that is his. When he steps on another person's foot he apologizes. When one bruises his government he makes his apology by settling. When he has settled he is just as good as he was before, if he keeps himself good."

When two young men pleaded guilty before him of transporting liquor the judge said:

"It is no pleasure to sentence young men such as you are. I can fine you a small sum or a large sum, but what is the use of fining you at all if you are going to pay your fine and go right out and do the same thing over again. The law which you have violated is not very popular, I imagine, in certain sections of the country. But whether popular or not it is the law of the land and must be obeyed. I would like to have you men say after I have finished with you, "I'm done. No more violating my country's laws for me."

The judge closed his remarks by saying:

"I now fine you the small sum of $100 each."

The young men left after promising to obey the law in the future and others who followed them and were similarly fined, made like promises.

"Dope" Thieves Busy In Dallas

DALLAS, Aug. 20.—Narcotics worth approximately $500 have been stolen in Dallas during the past two weeks by burglars breaking into drug stores or slipping behind prescription counters during the day and robbing drug closets, police declare. Burglars entered a drug store last night and took 245 grains of a drug, while yesterday afternoon a quantity of narcotics were taken from a safe which had been left open while drug clerks were busy.

Other Dallas drug stores have been similarly robbed this week.

Narcotic agents have questioned several persons in connection with the robberies. Officers say that a shortage of drugs among addicts caused by arrest of numerous sellers recently has caused the users to resort to other means of obtaining their supply.

STAR DRILLING CO. WILL OPEN IN CITY SOON

Sweet Mattress Factory Also Is New Industry Brought Here by C. of C.

It is reported that the Star Drilling Machine company of Akron, O., is progressing rapidly with plans for moving into this city, in accordance with announcement made a few weeks ago.

H. J. Larick will be in charge of the local plant and it is expected that final arrangements will be completed in a short time.

This company and the Sweet Mattress factory are two large and important industrial concerns to be secured here by the direct efforts of the industrial department of the chamber of commerce within the past thirty days.

The indstrial survey which is being conducted by this department is developing some astonishing facts as to the amounts of business being done, payrolls and other matters concerning some of the smaller industrial concerns of this city, it is stated. As soon as completed the results of the survey in totals will be made public.

Tire Company Surveys City.

The Dayton Tire and Rubber company of Dayton, O., has recently made a through investigation of Wichita Falls with the view of erecting a branch factory here.

J. J. Walden, president of the Southwestern Engraving company, which opened a branch here a few months ago, stated recently that he is extremely well pleased with the success of the new plant, declaring that instead of losing money as they had every expectation of doing for a few months, business has been so good that enlargement of forces and equipment are already necessary.

Mr. Walden declared that, even though the company has operated here only during what is usually considered the dull season, business has been very gratifying and he is entirely pleased with the move to this city.

Plan for Creamery.

Plans for the erection of the $100,000 plant of the Mistletoe creamery, another new industrial concern here, are assuming definite proportions, it is stated, and the business is expected to open here before winter sets in.

The policy of the chamber's industrial department is to encourage only those concerns which give definite promise of being successful here, it was stated.

Rail Station Nearly Wrecked By Safe Robbers

ABILENE, Aug. 20.—Robbers who placed a heavy charge of an explosive in the door of a safe in the Santa Fe railroad station at Tuscola, near here, early today, came near wrecking the station itself. The safe was blown to fragments, the door was blown through the roof and about $30 in currency was torn to bits. A large hole was torn in the floor and five windows in the room were shattered.

The burglars obtained $10 or $15 for their trouble. No arrests have been made.

MIXED BREAD TO GO.

Bulgarians Now Can Eat Wheat Bread Because of Good Crop.

SOFIA.—(AP)—One of the results of the promised bumper wheat crop viewed with favor by the Bulgarian people is the assurance of the abolition of mixed bread. Bulgaria will have plenty of wheat for its domestic uses and expects to have several millions of bushels for export. In anticipation of this, bakeries have begun to materially lessen the admixture of corn in wheat flour. The return of the unadulterated wheat loaf, absent from the counters of the bakeries for many months, now is looked upon as a certainty.

FORT WORTH AND RAILROADS

"The Denver will not be given a permit to build from Estelline to Plainview and Lubbock, for this branch line would rob the T. P. & G. of valuable territory west of Paducah."

In similar vein does the Fort Worth Record editorialize on the sprint for railway building in the south plains. It makes the frank admission that Fort Worth is after two trunk lines into the plains—one the "magnificent Denver road," and the other the proposed Texas, Panhandle and Gulf which Fort Worth capitalists are seeking to put through.

The views of Fort Worth are as follows:

Fort Worth was made by men who knew the strategy of railroad building. It was the genius of Major K. M. Van Zandt, Morgan Jones and their associates, which brought about the network of lines that converge and radiate at Fort Worth, making this city for all time the center for distribution of manufactures to West Texas, and for concentration of West Texas raw materials eastbound.

Fort Worthians who have inherited the wise and far seeing railroad genius of Van Zandt and Jones see the immeasurable importance of the Texas Panhandle ad Gulf Railroad, the four hundred and fifty-mile trunk line from Fort Worth to Tucumcari. It is no accident that K. M. Van Zandt Jr., one of the patriotic citizens of Fort Worth who compose the Texas Panhandle and Gulf Finance Corporation, is out campaigning in West Texas to induce subscription of full quotas to the T. P. & G. on the part of those communities which have not yet gone over the top.

Here, in a nutshell, are the principles of wise railroad strategy for Fort Worth:

In supporting the T. P. & G. Fort Worth is playing not for one trunk line that goes to the Plains, but for two.

The magnificent Denver road wants to get into the South Plains, and should be there.

But the Denver should not be there by a branch line from Estelline to Plainview and Lubbock, for this branch line would rob the T. P. & G. of valuable territory west of Paducah.

Therefore, the Denver will not be given a permit to build from Estelline to Plainview and Lubbock, when the T. P. & G. has been built. The Denver, however, has another approach to the Plains. Already the Denver gets to the base of the Cap Rock at Spur, reached via the Denver to Wichita Falls, the Wichita Valley to Stamford, the Stamford and Northwestern to Spur.

The state charter of the Stamford and Northwestern authorizes its continuation to Lubbock. That is a continuation which in all probability the Interstate Commerce Commission would authorize.

Now, when the Denver comes to operate such a round-about route to the Plains, in competition with the T. P. & G.'s connection at Tulia with the Santa Fe the Denver's route will hardly be competitive. To make this route competitive the Denver will be compeeld to build from Fort Worth to Stamford, over the old survey of the Stamford and Eastern. Once this is done, Fort Worth will have two great new competing trunk lines to the South Plains, instead of one new one.

Because this line of development is of the greatest advantage to Fort Worth, it is in the last analysis also of the greatest advantage to the splendid Denver road, whose destiny is linked with the rise of Fort Worth as the Chicago of the Southwest.

ROAD HOGS.

In Missouri, the Safety Council is taking steps to curb the activities of the road hog. Persons who are miffed by the road hog will take their license number down and turn them in to the authorities. In that way it is hoped to do away with many of the menaces and petty annoyances of the highways.

We much prefer the plan advocated by a friend not long ago. Said he:

"I'd like to have a thousand-horsepower motor car, with armor-plate fenders, vanadium radiator, and a 200-pound iron ram on the front end. Then I'd like for the authorities to commission me to settle the hash of the road hogs. Meeting one who refused to give half the road, I'd tear of his fenders for him and perhaps smash in his radiator. Overtaking one who refused to pull over and let me by, I'd knock his silly contraption into the middle of next week. And the bird that cut in ahead of me at street intersections would have to pick up the pieces of his car in a dustpan. Believe me, with a juggernaut like I have in mind, these road hogs would give me everything I had coming to me when I loomed up in the distance."

They probably would, but our friend's method would be just a little rough—just a wee mite too suggestive of strongarm tactics. We confess we have longed for a machine like the one he describes, but it probably would get a fellow into all sorts of trouble. These road hogs are given to talking loud about their own rights, and are impatient at the least suggestion of opposition on the part of long-suffering motorists who are not road hogs.

Still, our friends' suggestion has an element of beauty in it, not to mention utility.

OUT OF THE MUD.

Haskell county loses a $1,500,000 road bond election by a few votes short of the necessary two-thirds majority. But Haskell is a typical West Texas county, and will not remain in the mud much longer. This road-paving business grows in popularity. When Abilene started in to pave its streets, many property owners raised a kick about the costs, but they soon found that paving increased the value of property and today the city commission is constantly besieged to approve new paving projects. Same way with paved roads—they increase the value of property on and adjoining the improvement. Here's a prediction—in five years there will be a paved road from San Antonio through Abilene, Anson, Stamford, Haskell, Seymour and on to Wichita Falls.—The Abilene Morning Reporter.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Economy of Effort.

Economy in effort is as important as economy in expenditure.

The man who works the hardest does not always accomplish the most.

The ant appears to be a very busy and productive creature.

But watch him for a time and you will discover that a great part of his energy goes for nothing.

The kind of activity that is described as "running around in circles" is common among ants.

They have some excuse for it, for they are not very liberally supplied with brains.

It is just as common among people, who have no excuse for it whatever.

The American Indian was never noted for his industry. Now that his wars are ended forever he sits on the porch of his shanty on the reservation, smoking his pipe tranquilly, and letting his women do all the work.

Yet very recently came the news from a western city of an Indian, who had learned the trade of a bricklayer, and had become so adept at it that he could lay 36,000 bricks a day. It required two hod carriers to supply him. He earned the wages of three ordinary bricklayers.

Now to do this, the Indian had to get economy of effort to the point of a fixed habit.

He could not make a single false or lost motion. His eyes and his muscles had to be trained intensively.

It is probable that the crowd which gathers around to watch him work can see little difference in the speed of his hands than in that of the hands of half a dozen men on the same job.

But his hands lose no time groping. Every movement counts.

You will notice the same thing in factories where girls are employed paring fruit or packing cartons with merchandize.

Those who do the most work do not seem to be any busier than the others.

But they have learned how to economize effort. They let no energy go to waste. And at night they are not nearly as fagged as their fellow workers who are continually doing the wrong thing, and having to do it over again.

Important as is economy of effort to those who work with their hands it is still more important to those who work with their brains, and who direct the work of others.

The bridge builder who can so lay out his work that one set of men will be ready to take up the work completed by another set of men, who will have parts delivered when they are wanted, and superstructure ready to mount on piers when the piers are finished, is an economist of time and labor, and worth a great deal of money to his employers.

The chain system upon which a well known make of automobiles is assembled is the last word in economy of effort.

It has made for its owner the greatest fortune in the United States.

The man who does not know his job must work hard at it, and will get little accomplished.

The man who knows exactly how to do every detail of it usually has plenty of time to rest, but at the end of the day he has far more completed work to show than any two of his more poorly trained companions.

ALL-YEAR SCHOOLS.

In Chicago a special committee of assistants to the superintendent of schools has recommended all-year sessions for both graded and high schools. The strongest reason given is that the long vacation is a serious interruption in the school life of the child. There is no need for this in cities, however desirable such vacations are where children live and work on the farms. Even for them, however, this applies only in the case of children of working age. In the cities thousands of parents "dump" the whole responsibility upon the schools for the physical, intellectual, moral and civic development of their children, who, when the schools are not in session, are let loose to shift for themselves. So far as urban parents are concerned, most of them will probably favor an all-year school. They know that with the streets for playgrounds and with no regular employment their children will be a constant source of anxiety. There is not only the physical but the moral danger of the street.

The plan does not mean that neither the child nor the teacher may have a vacation. The proposal is that there shall be five terms, of ten weeks each, in the year and that the pupil shall be required to attend at least four terms. He may, however, attend also the fifth term; and the teacher may serve four or five terms and be compensated accordingly. The parent could, therefore, avail to the fullest extent of the school facilities for his child. And as for the city, 50 per cent of whose high school facilities and 95 per cent of whose elementary school facilities are unused throughout the summer, it would be able to solve the problem of seating shortage by the distribution of the attendance over the five terms or a full year. This is, at any rate, what is hoped for the plan.

PUBLISHERS TURN WEST

To reduce costs of publication and distribution, Time, the national weekly news-magazine hitherto published in New York, is being moved to Cleveland. Not only will the new location save money, but it will save many hours in distribution in many sections of the country.

If the publishers of Time prove that a more nearly central location is a benefit to the magazine, other publications will probably be moved out of New York and nearer the national center of population, which steadily moves westward.

This may mean the beginning of the end of New York's dictatorship in all things literary. Ambitious young writers have long felt that they had to be in New York city to get their start toward success, just as all stage successes were supposed to win their laurels in the metropolis. In recent years, however, a number of plays have been decided hits, although they have opened far from Broadway and have gone there only after a considerable length of time spent in other cities.

This is probably a healthy development in American literature and drama. In a country as large as the United States there should be artistic opportunity in more than one locality. Music, drama, literature and other arts need the inspiration of wider scenes and a more varied life than that of even the greatest artistic capital.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

Leo

Today's planetary aspects reveal adverse and unfavorable conditions lasting until noon. Thereafter, they assume an entirely different character and become excellent, and this atmosphere continues for the rest of the day. During the forenoon, it will be wise to abstain from tackling any proposition of magnitude, or from making any changes, or departure from the ordinary routine. Under the protection of the auspicious signs that prevail later, new constructive effort, indicating initiative and originality is bound to meet with success. It is also a favorable occasion for individualism, and the conditions will awaken, or give birth to, romance, and it will be wise to heed the call.

Children born today promise to enjoy normal health, and to attain their majority without any serious physical "set backs," provided they receive proper alimentation and are surrounded by wholesome environment. In disposition and temperament, they will be rather shy in their early years, which, as they grow up, will develop into natural reserve. In character, a boy will be studious and painstaking, devoted to research and analysis, although not destined to successfully capitalize his efforts in this direction. A girl, however, will not have a very reliable character, nor will she prove to be popular. While not distorting the truth, her inherent reserve will be used by her very often to hide the truth.

If today is your birthday, your disposition is critical, and you are always finding some fault with the efforts of others. You are somewhat opinionated, and have very little patience with those who do not subscribe to your ideas. You are aggressive, and have the happy knack of being able to adapt yourself very readily to circumstances. No one can accuse you of selfishness, and you are always thinking to the exclusion of yourself, of the comfort and convenience of others.

You very frequently make errors of judgment, but, on the whole, you have both long and reliable foresight. You possess a great fund of personal magnetism, and can influence others very easily for either good or evil, as people instinctively follow your lead.

You are very fond of music, as well as of a bright and attractive home, and, if you have annexed a mate with the same taste, your home life will be pleasant, as well as happy.

Successful people born on this date are:

Oliver H. Perry, naval officer.
John Fritz, manufacturer and engineer.
William Pepper, physician.
Frank A. Munsey, publisher.
William H. Dall, naturalist.

Lake Cisco to Be Fishing Center

CISCO, Texas.—Intention of the state to make of Lake Cisco here the greatest fishing lakes in Texas was expressed a short time ago by Turner Hubby, state game, fish, and oyster commissioner, just after completing a survey of the lake. Mr. Hubby said Lake Medina near San Antonio is the only other lake in the Southwest that is in the same class with Lake Cisco from the standpoint of fish propagation possibilities.

A large number of big brood fish recently were placed in Lake Cisco by orders of Mr. Hubby. Bass, white perch, salt water catfish, and rainbow trout are a number of the varieties that will stock the lake, the commissioner said.

Misplaced Coma Changes Meaning Of Gas Ordinance

A misplaced coma in the new gasoline ordinance passed recently by the city council has completely distorted the meaning of one section of the regulations and will probably result in the whole booklet being reprinted, it has been discovered.

In section five of ordinance 568 the following is found:

"All gasoline and other volatiles must be drawn from the tank by means of a National Board of Fire Underwriters suction pump or pumps, with automatic check valve between the pumps and the nozzle. This section applies to filling stations only."

Here is the way it should read:

"All gasoline and other volatiles must be drawn from the tank by means of a National Board of Fire Underwriters suction pump, or pumps with automatic check valve between the pumps and the nozzle. This section etc."

As now drafted, only one kind of pump can be used, that is those approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and which have automatic check valves on the hose. The drafters of the ordinance, however, meant to direct that any pump with an automatic check valve could be used whether approved or not by the underwriters.

The mistake in punctuation has therefore altered the entire meaning.

HOW IT STARTED

PARCHMENT AND ITS NAME

We are all familiar with parchment and its imitation parchment paper from their use in making lamp shades and for other decorative purposes. The original use of parchment however, was strictly utilitarian, the genuine and original parchment being the skin of a sheep or goat which men in an early period of our history prepared for material to write on.

The invention of parchment is credited to Eumens II., king of Pergamum, in Asia Minor, in the second centry, B. C., the circumstance being the prohibition by Ptolemy of Egypt of the exportation of papyrus, the contemporary writing material. In other words, the invention of parchment was the outcome of Egyptian conservation of home products!

The manufacture of parchment rose to great importance in Rome and its use spread all over Europe and continued until the invention of paper made from rags. It is from its birthplace, Pergamum, that the name "parchment" is derived, through the Latin "pergamina," and subsequently the French "parchemin."

France And Spain End Peace Parleys

PARIS, Aug. 20.—(AP).—France and Spain have broken off peace negotiations with Abd-el-Krim, the Riffian chief. The French and Spanish plenipotentiaries who were awaiting the Riffian emissaries at Melilla to submit the joint Franco-Spanish peace conditions have been instructed to return home.

Four Bandits Hold Jewelry Plant Workers at Bay and Loot Safes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Four robbers late today held up the offices of the Lazarus and Weil company, manufacturering jewelers, herded the proprietor and several employes into a corner, rifled five safes of jewelry valued at $250,000 mostly diamonds, and made their escape.

IRRIGATION

Concerning Wagon Wheel Ruts in the Waggoner Pasture.

Apparently every effort was made in the drawing of the contract between Mr. Waggoner and the irrigation district to see that Mr. Waggoner's rights were protected. We believe they are.

We quote one of the most unique provisions in the whole contract as follows:

If the party of the second part, (the irrigation district) in exercising the rights granted it by this contract to take sand, rock and gravel from the lands belonging to the said W. T. Waggoner which shall not be included in the submerged area created by the said two dams, shall in any manner cause damage to the lands belonging to the said Waggoner by causing wagon ruts across the same or otherwise, then the party of the second part agrees to pay the said W. T. Waggoner for all damage so caused, and it is further agreed and understood that if said W. T. Waggoner shall be damaged as contemplated under this clause, then the amount of said damage if any shall be left to arbitration—and the judgment of any two of said arbitrators shall be conclusive and binding upon the parties hereto."

The land which is covered by Lake Kemp was valued and paid for at about $15 per acre. Many people held that it was not worth that much.

From the above provision one might conclude that it was a beautiful lawn which would be severely marred by wagon tracks. As a matter of fact much of it is rough and rocky.

We do not believe that Mr. Waggoner has attempted to collect any damages so far from wagon ruts.

Jardine Ousts Taylor, Head of Economics Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Dr. Henry C. Taylor, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics of the agricultural department, has resigned at the request of Secretary Jardine.

Thomas P. Cooper, dean of the agricultural college of the University of Kentucky, has been chosen to succeed him.

Dr. Taylor quit the department where he has served since 1919 only after Secretary Jardine, with whose policies he does not agree, had directly requested him to do so. Some time ago the secretary indicated that a resignation would be acceptable, but Dr. Taylor declined to follow the hint. Instead he consulted a lawyer as to the legal right of a secretary who had been in the department but a comparatively short time to force him out of office.

The controversy came to a climax when Secretary Jardine from a sick bed at Walter Reed hospital sent word that the resignation must be submitted at once. He already had offered the place to Mr. Cooper, who had indicated he would accept. For some days, however, Dr. Taylor continued to transact the business of his office. Then he left Washington several days ago, ostensibly for a vacation, but he later sent word to his secretary to pack up his belongings in the office as he would not be back.

WANTS MORE SHIPS

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 20.—(AP).—R. Stanley Dollar, who with his associates bought from the United States shipping board March 31 five liners operating between San Francisco and the Far East, arrived here today to arrange to buy the government vessels linking Puget Sound and the Orient.

THE STORY SO FAR

Ahmed Ben Hassan, son of a desert sheik, has, as he thinks, been betrayed by a girl. The supposed betrayal nearly cost him his life at the hands of three of her accomplices and he is saved only by the timely arrival of his two bodyguards, Ramadan and S'rir.

Vowing vengeance, he seeks her and finds her in the Cafe Maurer at Touggourt, a desert town. With the aid of a motley army of Arabs, he raids the place and carries her away, taking her to the luxurious home of a friend, where she protests her innocence of betrayal and reasserts that she loves him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

He had long since thrown aside his heavy, silk-bound turban, and the light from a hanging lamp above him shone brightly on his close-cut dark brown hair. The warmth of it, penetrating, seemed to oppress him, for he moved away, stripping off his short, embroidered jacket and wrenching his silk shirt more widely open at the throat before resuming his monotonous tramp. Up and down again he went, his feet lagging now, until at last, with a groan, he dropped on to a divan, burying his head in his hands.

She had lied to him—why should he spare her?

She had betrayed him—why should he not punish her?

He felt no pity for her helplessness. What gentleness had been in his composition was burnt out of him, gone with the love that had died so swiftly.

Moreover, he had sworn, and, by Allah, he would keep his oath! What was scruple to stay him? What had she done to deserve his mercy? She was his—to do with as he would!

The hold he had kept over himself snapped suddenly. Tortured by the physical longing that all at once became unbearable, conscious only of the overwhelming need that was driving him, he went swiftly, with fiercely beating heart and throbbing pulses. But on the threshhold of the innermost room he paused, with outstretched hand, his face tormented.

Then, with a smothered oath, he dashed the curtains violently aside.

It was but little past the dawn when he left her.

Slipping silently to his feet he lingered for a moment, looking down with weary, brooding eyes.

She was asleep at last, heavily, dreamlessly asleep, lying with a child's unconscious grace of pose, one tiny hand buried in the tangle of dark hair spread out on the pillow, the other stretched at her side, clutching tightly the silken coverlet.

Even in sleep her face was sorrowful, her parted lips drooping slightly, the thick, curling lashes that veiled her eyes still wet and matted with tears.

He bent lower, gazing at her intently.

How young she looked—and how beautiful.

But what was her beauty to him now? Merciful Allah, if he could only forget! But he would never forget, never forgive the treachery that seemed to have made of him a thing of stone.

He shivered suddenly at the remembrance of the night.

What had those hours of vengeance brought him?

He had done what he had sworn to do—and the pleasure he had anticipated had been denied him. She had paid for her faithlessness with tears and anguish, as he had promised himself she should pay—and his triumph was as the dust of ashes in his mouth. The satisfaction he had expected seemed strangely lacking, and there was a dull ache in his heart that he could not understand. With a half impatient, half bitter sigh he turned and went slowly away.

The atmosphere of the adjoining room, heavy with incense and stale with the scent of faded flowers, filled him with sudden disgust.

At that moment he would have given much to be asble to shake the dust of Touggourt from his feet and ride away into the clean, exhilarating freshness of the desert, to leave behind him all he wished to forget, to go home like the prodigal and start life afresh.

But his work in Touggnort was only half done—and a few feet away from him was the girl.

He could not, would not let her go yet. He wanted her still, though he hated her!

His face hardened as he stooped to retrieve his burnous from the carpet where it had lain all night, and then passed on into the anteroom.

Still very early, the servants had not yet cleared the table, and the pocket book was lying where he had left it. Picking it up he went out into the open courtyard, and from there to the suite of rooms, in another wing of the house, which he had occupied until yesterday.

A bath, in a magnificent porcelain tub that boasted every modern convenience though it lacked the necessary water supply, but which had been filled for him overnight, braced him. And, having shaved, he sat down to write the few covering lines that were to accompany the suspicious pocket book he proposed sending to the commandant. An anonymous letter which implicated no one, but promised further information. That done, and the whole made up into a parcel, he set swiftly to work to prepare for his next move.

Half an hour later a ragged, dirty-looking, barefooted nomad stole silently through the still sleeping house down to the little courtyard from which a nail-studded door gave access to a narrow, winding lane that rane at right angles to the wider street on to which the main entrance opened. . . .

Through the southern suburbs of Touggourt, along the garden-lined road that led to the high dunes, and beyond them to the distant town of El-Oued, Lucien Marie Baron de Prefont—idler by inclination and Spahi from necessity—was riding with a couple of Arab troopers cantering slowly behind him.

Dragged from his bed at what seemed to him a preposterous hour, and annoyed at having to undertake what he considered mere police work, he was venting his ill-humor on the half-broken stallion which had recently become his property as the result of a gambling debt. The service was going to the dogs, he grumbled to himself as he alternately spurred and checked his nervous, foam-flecked mount. Soldiering was all very well and one had to take the rough with the smooth, bien entendup, but soldiering was not sweeping the streets of this sacre little hole of a town in search of ragtag and bobtail! What the devil did it matter if there had been a fracas at the cafe maure? There had been no damage done beyond broken lamps and a general exodus of terrified dancing girls. They would wander in in a day or two, and if they didn't it would be no loss—the dirty sluts. Everybody seemed to be developing nerves, these days. Even old Mercier wasn't the man he was, and all because of rumors! What with extra drills, and shooting leave stopped, and now this senseless order to scour the streets in search of suspicious-looking characters—Bon dieu, what a life.

He had worked himself up to a state of extreme exasperation when a beggar, darting suddenly from the side of the road, made his already over-excited horse rear almost perpendicularly.

"Allah blast thee, thou son of a mule," he snarled, cutting at the tattered figure with his riding switch and jerking his horse's mouth savagely.

"Mule yourself, Lucien," retorted the beggar in perfect French. That horse of yours will be in the ditch if you don't look out." His face, swathed thickly with dingy linen, was hidden in the deep hood of his burnus, but the vice was unmistakable. And, dragging his horse to a quivering stand, de Prefont bent low in the saddle with a great bellow of laughter. "Ahmed!" he roared, and thrust a gloved hand forward. The other's hands went up swiftly as though in entreaty.

"Softly, mon vieux," he murmured, "and tell your men to drop back a bit."

Shouting to the troopers behind him, de Prefont walked his horse on slowly, motioning to the supposed beggar to follow him.

Beyond the reach of his escort's ears he turned again eagerly to his companion.

"What the devil, Ahmed," he spluttered. "Why this masquerade? How long have you been in Touggourt? Have you heard of the holy mess at the cafe maure last night? I'm supposed to be sweeping up the remains now. Old Mercier has got the wind up properly, I can tell you. The whole thing is a mystery—and can remain so as far as I'm concerned. From what I can make out it onl seems to have been a plaisanterie arranged by some young coquin up from the desert. With all due deference, mon cher, your countrymen are becoming a nuisance."

Ahmed winced as he fumbled in the inner recesses of his ragged garment. "It probably didn't give him all the pleasure he anticipated, poor devil," he said, with a bitter little laugh. "But enough of that," he added hurriedly, as de Prefont shot him a sudden odd look of curiosity. "I haven't much time, and your men will be wondering if we talk too long. Forget that you have seen me this morning, Lucien. And manage to get this packet to Colonel Mercier. Say you found it, or saw it dropped, or any likely lie that occurs to you. It's important, but I don't want my name mentioned. I have reasons, but I can't tell you—you'll have to trust me." And, pressing up close to the soldier's horse, he slid the packet into his hand. De Prefont took it quickly and slipped it into his tunic.

"That's all right, mon brave," he said, with a nod of intelligence. "I can be dumb on occasions, and blind, too, for the matter of that. What's the news from your part of the world? Of course you know Saint Hubert is in the town?" Ahmed started. The events of the last few weeks had driven all thought of Saint Hubert and his unknown brother out of his head. Mixing with no one since he had been in Touggourt, and venturing out only after dark, he had heard no local gossip. But Ramadan and S'rir must have known. Why hadn't they told him? He shook his head in answer to de Prefont's question.

"I didn't," he replied shortly, "and there's no need to speak of me if you see him, Lucien." Then natural curiosity overcame his reserve. "I suppose my brother is with him?" he said, rather hesitatingly. De Prefont's eyebrows shot up inquiringly. "Your brother?" he echoed. "Why, of course he must be. I'd forgotten that. Oh! la! la!" he gasped, rocking in the saddle in a paroxysm of mirth.

"Why la, la? What is he like?"

De Prefont gathered up his reins and set his horse dancing across the road. "Wait till you see him," he chuckled. "You won't catch, monsieur, your precise and estimable brother raiding a cafe maure and setting all Touggourt in a blaze. Au revoir, my bold bandit. And reassure yourself, I am silent as the grave. Now jump, my friend, and don't mind if I howl at you a bit. We've got to keep up appearances, you know." And letting out a sudden shout he spurred his horse, waving to his men.

And as the troopers clattered up he drove the almost frenzied animal straight at the tattered figure in the middle of the road, yelling vehement abuse in fluent Arabic.

Resuming his assumed character Ahmed leaped aside with overt manifestations of terror, and cringed against the low mud embankment of the nearest garden as de Prefont wheeled his horse with a parting execration and galloped back towards Touggourt.

Then, with a half smile, he squatted down on his heels and, pushing back the hood of his burnous, searched for a cigarette amongst the folds of his rags.

To meet de Prefont had been greater luck than he had hoped for. The packet would go directly to the commandant's hands, and his secret was safe with the sporting young Frenchman.

But his face grew gloomy again as he thought of the Spahi's laughing jest.

SAYS DARROW TO DEBATE HIM ON EVOLUTION

Preacher Claims Lawyer Has Agreed; Attorney Denies Acceptance

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Dr. John Roach Straton, fundamentalist leader, says Clarence Darrow, professed agnostic, has consented to debate publicly with him on evolution.

Dr. Straton who is pastor of the Cavalry Baptist church, New York city, has wired Mr. Darrow in Greeley, Colo., that he will take the negative side of the question, "Resolved, That the Earth and Man Come by Evolution."

He also has asked Henry Fructer of New York to arrange directly with Mr. Darrow a date early in the fall and preferably in Chicago.

DARROW DENIES HE HAS ACCEPTED DARE

GREELEY, Colo., Aug. 20.—(AP).—Denial that he has accepted a challenge to debate the question of evolution with the Rev. John Roach Straton in Chicago was made here today by Clarence Darrow.

"I will not make a definite decision in the matter until after I return to Chicago," Mr. Darrow said, but declared that "since I have received an actual challenge in the matter, I will take the matter under advisement."

Texas Judge In N. Y. Is Friendly To His Culprits

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Federal Judge William H. Atwell of Dallas, Texas, yesterday brought a philosophy of friendliness for criminals into federal court here where he is sitting temporarily. He said that he liked to make culprits who were brought before him "feel at home" and by talking in kindly fashion to them cause them "to love the law."

"I believe," he said, "when a man breaks a law he should realize that he has broken something that is his. When he steps on another person's foot he apologizes. When one bruises his government he makes his apology by settling. When he has settled he is just as good as he was before, if he keeps himself good."

When two young men pleaded guilty before him of transporting liquor the judge said:

"It is no pleasure to sentence young men such as you are. I can fine you a small sum or a large sum, but what is the use of fining you at all if you are going to pay your fine and go right out and do the same thing over again. The law which you have violated is not very popular, I imagine, in certain sections of the country. But whether popular or not it is the law of the land and must be obeyed. I would like to have you men say after I have finished with you, "I'm done. No more violating my country's laws for me.'"

The judge closed his remarks by saying:

"I now fine you the small sum of $100 each."

The young men left after promising to obey the law in the future and others who followed them and were similarly fined, made like promises.

"Dope" Thieves Busy In Dallas

DALLAS, Aug. 20.—Narcotics worth approximately $500 have been stolen in Dallas during the past two weeks by burglars breaking into drug stores or slipping behind prescription counters during the day and robbing drug closets, police declare. Burglars entered a drug store last night and took 245 grains of a drug, while yesterday afternoon a quantity of narcotics were taken from a safe which had been left open while drug clerks were busy.

Other Dallas drug stores have been similarly robbed this week.

Narcotic agents have questioned several persons in connection with the robberies. Officers say that a shortage of drugs among addicts caused by arrest of numerous sellers recently has caused the users to resort to other means of obtaining their supply.

STAR DRILLING CO. WILL OPEN IN CITY SOON

Sweet Mattress Factory Also Is New Industry Brought Here by C. of C.

It is reported that the Star Drilling Machine company of Akron, O., is progressing rapidly with plans for moving into this city, in accordance with announcement made a few weeks ago.

H. J. Larick will be in charge of the local plant and it is expected that final arrangements will be completed in a short time.

This company and the Sweet Mattress factory are two large and important industrial concerns to be secured here by the direct efforts of the industrial department of the chamber of commerce within the past thirty days.

The indstrial survey which is being conducted by this department is developing some astonishing facts as to the amounts of business being done, payrolls and other matters concerning some of the smaller industrial concerns of this city, it is stated. As soon as completed the results of the survey in totals will be made public.

Tire Company Surveys City.

The Dayton Tire and Rubber company of Dayton, O., has recently made a through investigation of Wichita Falls with the view of erecting a branch factory here.

J. J. Walden, president of the Southwestern Engraving company, which opened a branch here a few months ago, stated recently that he is extremely well pleased with the success of the new plant, declaring that instead of losing money as they had every expectation of doing for a few months, business has been so good that enlargement of forces and equipment are already necessary.

Mr. Walden declared that, even though the company has operated here only during what is usually considered the dull season, business has been very gratifying and he is entirely pleased with the move to this city.

Plan for Creamery.

Plans for the erection of the $100,000 plant of the Mistletoe creamery, another new industrial concern here, are assuming definite proportions, it is stated, and the business is expected to open here before winter sets in.

The policy of the chamber's industrial department is to encourage only those concerns which give definite promise of being successful here, it was stated.

Rail Station Nearly Wrecked By Safe Robbers

ABILENE, Aug. 20.—Robbers who placed a heavy charge of an explosive in the door of a safe in the Santa Fe railroad station at Tuscola, near here, early today, came near wrecking the station itself. The safe was blown to fragments, the door was blown through the roof and about $30 in currency was torn to bits. A large hole was torn in the floor and five windows in the room were shattered.

The burglars obtained $10 or $15 for their trouble. No arrests have been made.

MIXED BREAD TO GO.

Bulgarians Now Can Eat Wheat Bread Because of Good Crop.

SOFIA.—(AP)—One of the results of the promised bumper wheat crop viewed with favor by the Bulgarian people is the assurance of the abolition of mixed bread. Bulgaria will have plenty of wheat for its domestic uses and expects to have several millions of bushels for export. In anticipation of this, bakeries have begun to materially lessen the admixture of corn in wheat flour. The return of the unadulterated wheat loaf, absent from the counters of the bakeries for many months, now is looked upon as a certainty.

More Truth Than Poetry

TO ABD. EL KRIM

Ignoring the pros and the cons
Of the quarrel we're bound to admit,
That you did pretty well with the Dons,
Who seemed well contented to quit.
Their soldiers sailed home with a sigh of relief
After fifteen or twenty reversals;
But bear in mind, Mr. Bedouin chief;
They hadn't had many rehearsals.

Your hard bitten soldiers of course,
Having all been brought up in the Riff,
Can fight from the back of a horse
Or shoot from the top of a cliff.
But what will they do when an areoplane fleet
Has sailed o'er the mountains and found 'em
And the bombs start to crack when they try to retreat
Above and below and around 'em?

We know you're courageous and game,
We know you will take a long chance,
But we'll give you a tip, just the same;
Don't get too darned sassy with France.
She fights pretty hard when she gets in a pique,
And we're perfectly willing to bet you
A photoplay star to a good husky sheik,
That, as soon as she starts, she will get you.

Get out while it's time, Mr. Krim,
Get out when it still can be done,
'Ere you see, growing faded and dim,
The fame you have recently won.
Though Marshal Petain is a gallant old chap,
In a battle he isn't too tender,
If you still hope to stay on your part of the map,
The wise thing to do is surrender!

Houston Severely Beaten As Spudders Win Eighth Consecutive Game

TANNER AND CALLAGHAN STAR AT BAT

Each Get Three Hits Out Of Four Trips to Plate. McCurdy Hurt

Skipper Tanner and his romping Spuds gave Marvin Goodwin's faltering herd of Buffs a severe beating in the final series game of the Thursday afternoon game here, 11 to 4. The Spudders put Lefty Barnes to flight from the mound in short order. Robert Osborn, tall El Paso slab artist, aided the good work of trimming the Buffs and giving to Wichita Falls her eighth consecutive win.

The only thing about the ball game that wasn't run off in perfect form took place in the second inning when Harry McCurdy's head was hit by a pitched ball. He was carried to the clubhouse unconscious. Goff finished the game behind the bat.

Scrap Iron Tanner, Spud manager, and Marty Callaghan, led the hitters with three out of four each, a pair of Marty's going for doubles, and one of Buddy's reached the same classification. The fielding features of the game were turned in by Howard Fitzgerald, Alex Metzler, and Homer Peel. The latter also was the only one who was able to knock one out of the lot for the Houston nine.

Bret Works Today.

Jimmy Bret will be used against the Bears today. He will have in his hand the ninth straight win for the Spud cripples.

The Spudders scored three runs as a starter in the first inning. Distel walked. Fitzgerald dropped a Texas leaguer in right, and Distel drew up at second. Bodie smashed a single to left, filling the bases. Tanner soaked a single to right, scoring Distel and Fitzgerald, and sending Bodie to third. Callaghan smacked a double down the first base foul line, Bodie scored and Tanner was thrown out at the plate, Compton to Fuller to McCurdy. Callaghan went to third on the throw in.

Storm Hits Park.

With the Houston club at the bat in the first inning the sand and wind storm broke with all of its fury over the park.

The Spudders went on a batting rampage in the second inning and hit everything that Barnes could dig up out of his old souper. Osborn beat out an infield hit to second. Metzler forced Osborn at second, Kane to Fuller, and beat the throw to first by a narrow margin. Distel singled between first and second and Metzler took third. Fitzgerald singled to right scoring Metzler and sending Distel to third. Bodie singled between first and third scoring Distel and sending Fitzgerald to third. Tanner singled between first and second scoring Fitzgerald and sending Bodie to third, and taking second on the throw in. Callaghan walked, filling the bases. Barnes then ambled to the cold showers and Burns went to the hillock. Dorman walked, forcing in Bodie. Bubber Jonnard then came through with a timely double to the right field wall, but was thrown out trying to make a triple out of it, Compton to Boggess. Tanner, Callaghan and Dorman scored.

Rob Bodie of Homer.

The high wind that blew in from left field robbed Ping Bodie of his thirty-second home run. The ball was sailing high and dry toward the outer side of the railings but the wind cut its flight short. Peel was forced to make a nice shoestring catch of the ball.

A walk to Peel, Boggess' long triple and a single by Frankie Fuller scored the first two runs for the Buffs in the fourth inning.

The Spudders had a great chance to score in the fourth, but the fielding of the Buffs was airtight. Callaghan caught Boggess playing close for a bunt and shot a single down the third base line. Dorman flied to right. Jonnard walked. The bases were filled when Bailey spilled Boggess' throw to first on Osborn's slow roller to third. Metzler hit one at Burns that the tall right hander was forced to field for personal protection and force Callaghan at the plate. Distel forced Metzler at second, short at second.

Howard Fitzgerald's great running catch of Powell's line drive and Metzler's one-handed catch of Burn's long drive to right were the features of the Spudder fielding.

The Spudders added another score in the sixth inning. Wee Freddie Dorman opened the inning with a long triple to the right field fence. Jonnard walked. Dorman scored when Osborn hit into a double play, Fuller to Kane to Bailey.

The Buffs' final pair came in the eighth. Compton singled to right. Homer Peel lined a home run over the left field fence, scoring Compton ahead of him.

FREAK HOMER GIVES PIRATES 2 TO 1 GAME

Cuyler's Bat Enables His Team to Down Dodgers

BROOKLYN, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Cuyler's freak home run in the sixth inning today gave Pittsburgh the margin by which it defeated Brooklyn 2 to 1 and made its advantage in the pennant race a full three games as New York lost to Chicago. Cuyler's hit appeared to be an ordinary single, but bounded high over Brown's head in center field and rolled to the exit gate. In the fifth, with Brooklyn players crowding the bases, Cuyler cut down a triple from Brown's bat with a sparkling gloved hand catch. Brooklyn's only run was a homer by Zack Wheat in the first. Cox, Brooklyn outfielder, who had hit safely in 19 straight games was unable to solve Kremer's delivery. Score:

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Blankenship registered his eighth consecutive victory today when Chicago defeated Boston, 11 to 7, making a clean sweep of the three-game series. Erratic fielding behind Ruffing and Zahnizer who were both hit hard in spots gave the locals their runs. Blankenship weakened in the seventh and was replaced by Connally who held the visitors safe until the ninth when a pinch hitter, Carlyle started a rally with a three-base hit. Fast fielding by Collins and Davis cut the rally short, however. Score:

Australians Win Twice From Japs

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Australia's tennis aces scored twice over Japan in the opening of play in the final struggle to determine the winner of the American zone Davis cup competition.

Gerald Patterson won a straight set victory over Zenzo Shimizu of Japan 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

James O. Anderson met more trouble in his match against Takeichi Harada, singles champion of Japan, dropping one set before he won, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

A victory tomorrow in doubles or one Saturday in singles would qualify Australia to meet France, European zone winner.

$5,000 Offer For Crumpler Refused

WACO, Aug. 20.—An offer of $5,000 made by the Philadelphia Nationals for the service of Roy Crumpler, left hander of the Waco Cubs, was refused due to the fact that an American League club also is bidding for the southpaw, announced President Charles Turner of the Waco club Thursday. President Turner left for Dallas today, where he will confer with Manager Dell Pratt and it is likely that a deal to sell Crumpler will be made today.

ST. The score was 7 to 6. Washington, by virtue of its 12 inning victory over Cleveland, now leads the American league by a six point margin. The Browns pounded Walberg and Groves for an even dozen hits, including two homers, a triple and a double. Five pitchers were used by Manager Sisler in stemming the Athletic tide. Dyke's home run with two men on base in the fifth inning featured. Marty McManus, second baseman of the Browns, also hit for the circuit. Score:

The PASSING HOUR

by Wm. B. Ruggles

THE AIR

Is Almost Any One of Mr. Lever's Verses.

The game crowns its few little stars—
It honors their deeds and it praises—
And after them cristens cigars
And Crowns them with chaplets of daisies;
But all of the roar of the mob
Is gloom and so all of their cheer is,
When the star puts the pep in his job,
But the club fails to land in The Series.

Of the rookie, quite little you hear—
In the game he is only an atom—
His name very seldom we cheer
Except when he happens to bat 'em;
But little he recks if his team
Cops the flag at the season's completion—
For what matters fame and its dream
By a bank account stuffed to repletion?

THIRTY British golfers stunned by bolt of lightning. Providence exercising acute justice at the point of contact?

JOCKEY CRUMP, tired of dieting, decides to retire. Quit dieting and a jockey don't have to decide to retire from the saddle.

He Wears 'Em Well

IN THIS prosaic and carping world, there are usually plenty of faults to find with the laurels atop the broad beams of the successful. That is one reason why the present amateur golf champion deserves as much notice from his personal side as he gets from the playing.

R. T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, otherwise the incomparable Bobby, really ranks as the outstanding American champion—not alone from the viewpoint that he is usually conceded to be the finest golf player in the country, amateur or pro, but because on the other hand he is representative of all that we like to see in those who lead.

First, there is his amateur standing. It has never been questioned; it never will be. In an age when the leading figures in amateur play are prone to run too much to broad expense accounts, young Mr. Jones of Atlanta has been the other way. His record is immaculate. Then, there is his evidence since his graduation this his business must take precedence over his play, although doubtless he would rather play golf than anything else in the world. And on top of that is the astonishing physical and mental phenomena that his game has not suffered appreciably as a result.

The only thing that critics have ever had to base a line on Jones is his long tenure as the "boy golfer." But this, of course, was a journalistic sin, not the still youthful Atlantan's. Indeed as manhood arrived it doubtless pained hi mvastly to be continually referred to in that guise.

Bobby Jones is popular everywhere in golf, but one place—the professionals are never overfond of his competing in the open.

GIRLS dare every perial to get husbands—headline in Post Dispatch. Even matrimony.

DEMPSEY says he will knock out Wills in three rounds. But it looks like three rounds in three years.

Was Spoke Right?

ANNOUNCEMENT that Birmingham has sold Outfielder Tex Jeannes to Washington does not mean much to anybody hereabout—except Tris Speaker, a person with a winter residence in Hubbard City. It means nothing to Tris if Jeannes drifts back to Birmingham or further next spring. But if he sticks, it gives Old Silver Top man's cherished privilege—that of sticking both thumbs under his suspenders, putting out his tongue and saying, "Yah! I told you so!"

Jeannes is a sort of cousin of Spoke's. Tris has been pretty good to the baseball ambitions of his family. He sees to it that it all gets a trial with Cleveland. Wayne Middleton had one. Young Jeannes got one.

Jeannes—truth to tell—looked like a speedy young outfielder who was light with the stick the spring he was with the Indians. Speaker unloaded his young relative on the Galveston club, where he drew pay for a week. He played the outfield seven days—and if memory serves aright, he never connected for a bingle.

Nelson Leopold, who had the Sand Crab franchise, shipped Cousin Jeannes back to Tris. "He can't hit," he wrote.

It was this that sent Old Silver Top to unexpected heights of wrath. "How in—(you know, the way the old folks can tell it aint' gonna rain no mo')," he inquired, "can he tell he can't hit in a week? I'm through with Galveston. They'll never get another player from me."

Probably they didn't. Leopold may have stuck his tongue in his cheek and inquired why if Speaker was so certain the young man could hit, he didn't keep him?

Jeannes has been around here and there since then. He is delivering for Birmingham. Next spring he has a chance to sho whether Spoke was right.

The Recipe

A half a million guarantee—
A twelve-round jig at night—
A private hand-picked referee—
Make up the title fight.

In Simple Warning

WESTWARD the course of the gridiron empire is expected to extend in the coming few years, if you accept as signs of the times the enthusiastic debut of Texas Tech under the veteran Ewing Freeland and the wave of enthusiasm that has greeted rising scholastic success in the league races.

True enough as far as the crowds are concerned—possibl as far as gridiron merit will be concerned eventually. The west has had to take its gridiron doses by telegraph and radio as fas as big games are concerned. The colleges feeding the section are strangled by close competition of too many in one location. Tech is expected to be the rallying point of the entire plains country and panhandle. The new school will give them a favorite to root for.

Herein lies a little peril that should be watched. Tech may have to go through the era that seems to do good, but never does anything but harm—of demanding results and going to lengths to get a winner. South, Central, Southeast and Northeast Texas have had it. The conference and the TIAA with their strict rules supply the answer.

Tech has at the head of its athletic department a fine, clean gentleman in Ewing Freeland, a personal believer in the ethics of amateurism.

He should be given every encouragement and every allowance made for the difficulties he faces.

The plains country is urged not to expect too much of Tech at the start, for that is a dangerous policy.

WHITE BACK, LEG NO BETTER

Al White, Spudder keystoner of passed days, arrived in town Thursday afternoon and reported his bad leg to be no better. White was at one time rated among the best second basemen in the league. Only a few years ago the combination of Adams to White to Beck was about the best, if not the best in the Texas league. Joe Berger, Al White and Hook Cotter were leading the league in double plays last season when White went out with an injured leg and the combination was broken.

CHAMPS WIN 12-ROUND GO FROM REDS

Washington Finally Wins From Cleveland Club 1 to 0

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Cleveland and Washington battled for 12 innings today before Washington kon, 1 to 0, in the final game of the series. Marberry took second base on Hodapp's wild throw at the start of the 12th. Rice singled. S. Harris hit to Hodapp and Marberry was thrown out at the plate. J. Harris fouled out, but Goslin's third hit scored Rice with the run that made it three straight for the champions. Although Washington made 13 hits off Miller, the collegian southpaw was effective with men on bases. He also received excellent support, the Indians executing three double plays. Washington also gave its pitchers good support, having three double plays also. Peck, Severeid, and Goslin had ten of Washington's 13 hits. Zachary, after holding Cleveland to five hits in eight innings, retired in favor of a pinch hitter and was replaced by Marberry, who went in as relief pitcher for the third consecutive day. Score:

British Net Threat Eliminated As Miss Ryan Is Defeated

KITTY M'KANE UPSETS STAR IN THREE SETS

Helen Wills Now Expected To Romp Through To New Championship

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan's contest for the tennis laurels of her native land after a long and brilliant campaign abroad came to an unexpected end today when the Californian bowed to her British rival, Miss Kathleen McKane, in a sensational three set duel, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2.

While Miss McKane was eliminating the woman generally regarded as the tournament favorate, Miss Helen Wills, 19-year-old defending champion, was herself forced to a stirring extra set match to take the measure of her young English rival, Miss Joan Fry, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

Greatest of Match.

These matches, the most thrilling of the championship tournament at the West Side tennis club put the visitors in the semi-finals.

Tomorrow Miss McKane will play Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory seven times American champion who today decisively defeated Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., 6-2, 6-1, while Miss Wills will play an American rival, Miss Elanor Goss, who put out the veteran international captain, Mrs. Dorothea Lambert-Chambers in a brilliant match, 6-2, 11-9.

Whether or not it had any effect on her game today, Miss Wills, starting her second set against Miss Fry as Miss Ryan went down to defeat on an adjoining court suddenly gained command of her strokes and bombarded her English rival into defeat quickly with a succession of stinging drives.

Wins In Straight Sets.

Miss Ryan, who conquered the champion in straight sets at Seabright, N. J., recently had been regarded all along as Miss Wills' outstanding rival. Her elimination has brightened the prospects that the Berkeley girl will win her third straight title, although Miss McKane on the strength of her dazzling play the last two days now looms as a more formidable threat than ever.

Miss McKane faces a real obstacle tomorrow in Mrs. Mallory, who herself is playing close to old time form, but the British ace will be a strong favorite if she continues to flash the game that crushed Mrs. Marion Jessup yesterday and broke up the attack of Miss Ryan today.

STECK GAINS IN RE-COUNT

Cuts Down Senator Brookhart's Lead in Iowa Contest.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP).—A further net gain of 31 votes for Daniel F. Steck, democrat, was shown today in the official senate re-count of Page, Palo Alto and Plymouth counties in the Iowa senatorial contest, bringing Steck's net gain to date to 938.

This gain was derived from the correction of clerical errors in the state count and through the counting of votes here which were counted in the state.

The figures do not include the several thousand votes challenged here by supervisors for Steck and for Senator Brookhart, his republican opponent. When the recounting began, Brookhart was credited with a majority of 1,385.

Sixty-one counties in which paper and not machine ballots were used have beep tabulated with more than 20 of such counties and the the machine ballots yet to be reached.

FROG FOOTBALL YEAR EXPECTED TO BE HARDEST

Green Team and Worst Schedule Yet Is Comment

FORT WORTH, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Despite the fact that Matty Bell, head grid coach, will have to fashion his 1925, T. C. U. Horned Toad eleven largely from inexperienced men, L. C. Wright, athletic director of Texas Christian University, has arranged a schedule that would do credit to an eleven composed wholly of star veterans. Three powerful southwest conference schools, Baylor University, Texas A. & M. and Arkansas University, will be met by T. C. U., as well as Oklahoma A. & M., one of the strongest of Missouri Valley schools, and Simmons and Austin College strong members of the T. I. A. A.

In addition to losing from his colorful 1924 eleven, the grid combination that was responsible for one of the major upsets of the Southwest last season in defeating the powerful outfit of the Oklahoma Aggies, such stars as Captain Jack, the one-armed hard fighting guard; Tankersley, "Big Jim" Cantrell, and Homer Adams, Coach Bell lost at the end of last season Bill James, line coach of merit. Coach James, who starred along with Bell, when the two were playing for famous "Praying Colonels" of Centre College, is now head line coach at Texas University.

It is fortunate that the 1924 freshman team of the Horned Toads boasted a number of promising players. Most of these promising youngsters formerly played for some Fort Worth high school.

Some of the members of last season's squad who are expected to star in 1925 are Herman Clark, splendid quarterback, who was nominated for All-Southwestern honors by more than one sport writer last year; Donald Frazee, fleet halfback; "Big Tom" George, gaint tackle or guard; "Jew" Levy, and "Bear" Wolfe.

Complete schedule for T. C. U. follows:

Sept. 26—East Texas State Normal at Fort Worth.
Oct. 3—Daniel Baker at Fort Worth.
Oct. 13—Baylor University at Dallas.
Oct. 17—Simmons College at Fort Worth.
Oct. 24—Oklahoma A. & M. at Stillwater, Okla.
Oct. 31—Abilene Christian College at Fort Worth.
Nov. 7—Texas A. & M. at Fort Worth.
Nov. 14—Arkansas University at Fort Worth.
Nov. 26—Austin College at Fort Worth.

"Honorary Consul" Is Fined $1,200 In Smuggle Attempt

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Eugene Labosse, who said he was "honorary Haitian consul" at Manchester, N. H., was fined $1,200 today by federal authorities for attempting to smuggle 240 bottles of champagne, vermuth and whiskey into this country.

Labosse was arrested when search of his baggage disclosed the liquor following his arrival today on the steamship Niquerie. Labosse said he thought his "honorary consulship" entitled him to immunity from customs search.

WANT "TWO GUN PETE."

Under Arrest in Florida and Sought In Navarro County on Assault Charge.

AUSTIN, Aug. 20.—Requisition for extradition of Pete Alexander, wanted in Navarro county on a charge of criminal assault, was issued today on the governor of Florida by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson. Alexander known in central Texas oil fields as "two gun Pete," is under arrest at Key West. About ten days ago, Governor Ferguson offered a $500 reward for his arrest. He is charged with having assaulted a young girl on the night of Aug. 8, near Corsicana.

DEPUTY LOSES ARM

CAMERON, Texas, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Doff Dunham of Rockdale, deputy sheriff of Milam county, fell beneath the wheels of a train today and lost his left arm. Dunhad had been to Austin and after leaving the train at Rockdale slipped on a rock at the side of the track, falling with his arm under the wheels. He was brought to a Cameron hospital.

Youngsters Shine In First Rounds Of Western Golf

Cleveland Man Shoots 57, Four Under Par, To Lead Field

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Remarkable scoring, largely by young players, today marked the first elimination round of the western open golf championship at the Youngstown country club and when the 261 entrants had finished the round, Larry Nadholtz of Cleveland, stood at the head of the class with a 67, four better than par.

Just as noteworthy was the score of 69 made by Donald Carrick of Toronto, Canadian amateur champion at the age of 18. The only other player to break 70, was Emmett French, veteran professional of the local club who tied Carrick. A half dozen players shot 70, which is one better than perfect figures for the 6,500-yard links and another half dozen including Walter Hagen formerly British and American open titleholder shot 71.

So many players scored from many 72 to 75, that it looked as though the 64 who remain after tomorrow's second qualifying round for Saturday's final 36 holes would have to return 150 or better for the two elimination circuits of the course.

There were few upsets today but many who thought that the Youngstown links could be played without effort awoke to find that the previous good scores as those of today were due to sharp shooting, for traps engulfed stray shots, and the rough played havoc with wild drives.

Nadholtz was almost unnoticed by the various large galleries that followed the stars of previous tournaments, sometimes to see only mediocre golf. The young Buckeye professional would have repaid any gallery, for he shot every hole except three in four or better.

HARRY GREB IS INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Middleweight Champion Of World Was on Way To Erie for Bout Tonight

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Harry Greb, world's middleweight boxing champion was seriously injured in an automobile accident near here early tonight. He was rushed to a hospital where a first examination revealed that he suffered two broken ribs, severe bruises and possibly internal injuries.

Greb and two other men had set out in the fighter's automobile for Erie, Pa., where Greb was to meet Jimmy Darragh in an American Legion boxing match tomorrow night. Twelve miles from here on descending a hill the fighter's car met two others. Slamming on the brakes, the wheels locked and the Greb car skidded and overturned. Passing autoists rushed Greb to this city. His companions were not seriously hurt.

Drouth Area Not Worried, He Says

DALLAS, Aug. 20.—Chief apprehension over drouth conditions in Texas apparently exists outside of the territory actually affected, Colonel C. C. Walsh, agent of the Dallas district federal reserve bank, declared today, in reiteration of his statement that bankers in those districts are well able to take care of their problems.

Though so far not a single appeal for help has come from banks in the drouth area, Colonel Walsh said, the federal reserve bank is prepared to "substantially aid them through rediscount of their paper."

BARN AND SILOS BURN.

BONHAM, Aug. 20.—A barn and a quantity of farm equipment valued at approximately $25,00 0was destroyed by fire on the farm of Ed Steger at midnight last night. Over 5,000 bushels of oats, a separator and engine, wagons and other farm machinery were destroyed. Two large silos were also burned down.

Valentino, Sheik of Screen, And Wife Are Separated

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Rudolph Valentino, original sheik of the screen, and his second wife, Winifred Dewolfe Hudnut Valentino, dancer and daughter of a perfume manufacturer, have agreed to separate.

The wreck of one of Hollywood's dearest romances was announced today by George Ellman, manager for Mrs. Valentino, but he emphasized that the rocks were nicely cushioned.

Separation Friendly.

The separation is entirely friendly, Mr. Ellman said, there being no idea of a divorce, no agreement for alimony, but merely the desire of two artists to pursue their own talents in different directions. He added, however, that he did not see how it was possible for either of them to return home after the publicity which is destined to be given the announcement.

Both will continue in motion picture work, Mrs. Valentino as a producer and he as star for United Artists. Mrs. Valentino came to New York on business last Monday. The separation agreement was signed in the palatial Valentino home on Whitney Heights, Hollywood, the preceding Tuesday. Mr. Ellman described the meeting as follows:

Seek Artistic Freedom.

"You know, dear, I have my work just as you have yours," Mrs. Valentino said.

"Yes," he replied, "and I wish you all the success in the world in your ventures."

"I love Rudolph and always will," Mr. Ellman said Winifred told him, "but I will never return to him."

"The whole case is simply one of two artistis temperaments seeking the freedom that each finds necessary for life's work," Mr. Ellman continued.

Rudolph and Winifred were married in Tijuana in 1922.

VALENTINO SAYS IT'S "MARITAL VACATION"

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 20.—(AP).—Rudolph Valentino, motion picture actor, said today that he and his wife, the former Winifred Hudnut, had agreed on a marital vacation.

"I took her to the train and kissed her goodbye," said the portrayer of sheik roles in the films. "Does that look as though we parted on anything but the best of terms? Neither of us is contemplating a suit for divorce."

As to the length of the "marital vacation" Valentino would not commit himself.

AMERICANS GET REVENGE.

The American Refining company team got revenge yesterday for a defeat it suffered earlier in the week. The Americans trounced the Texhoma Outlaws 16 to 0 in five innings yesterday afternoon. Earlier in the week the Outlaws had won their first game of a series, 2 to 1. Andros pitched a great game for the Americans.

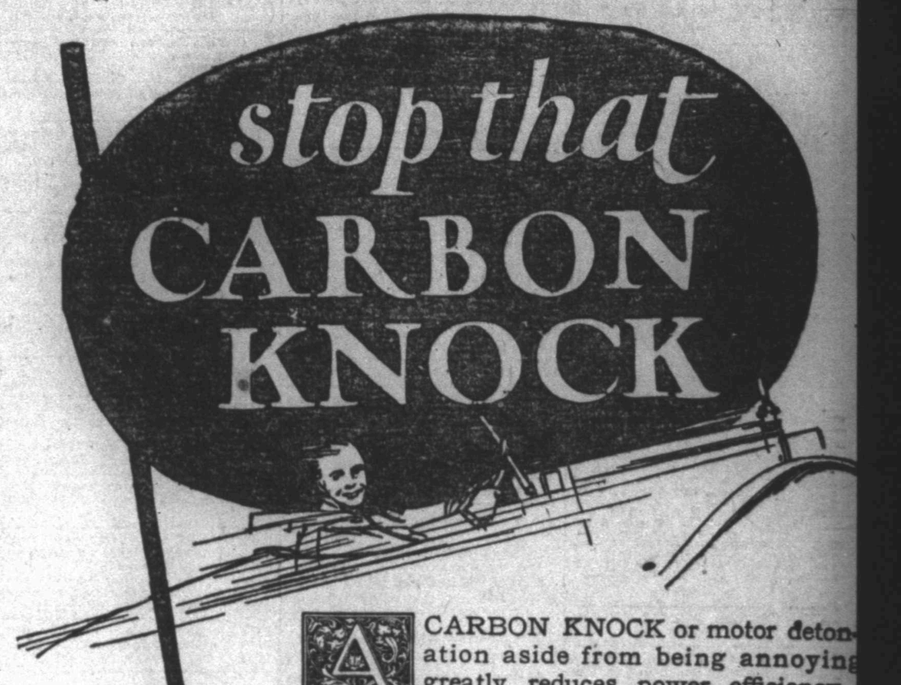

65 Heirs Contest $10,000,000 Will

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Efforts to secure the redistribution of the estate of Mark Hopkins, pioneer railroad builder of California, which was valued at $10,000,000 at the time of his death in 1878, was begun in court here yesterday in behalf of 65 alleged heirs living in North and South Carolina, Virginia, Texas, Tennessee and Washington.

The heirs are alleged to be descendants of four brothers and three sisters of Hopkins who were living in North Carolina at the time of his death and whose existence, it is alleged, concealed by his brother, Moses, a California resident.

NOCONA HOME BURNS

NOCONA, Aug. 20.—The residence and most of the household effects of Mrs. E. I. Reynolds of Nocona were destroyed by fire today. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

A CARBON KNOCK or motor detonation aside from being annoying greatly reduces power efficiency—combustion taking place before the complete rise of the piston. The mechanical method of correcting such knocks is to retard the spark which again reduces power efficiency.

Many gasoline mixtures have been devised which in a way might eliminate the knock but oftimes the remedy is worse than the ailment.

In NO-NOX Motor Fuel we have the remedy without a single harmful feature—it positively takes the carbon knock out of the motor, and any motorist knows that this means easier and quicker acceleration, smoother running motor and More Power, less gear shifts and generally a more satisfactory operation of the car at a lower repair cost.

Making Money

Some men make money in business—some in stocks—some by toil some saving of their daily wage. But we submit to you the unquestioned fact that more men have reached a comfortable competence through the ownership of property—houses and land which bring in a fixed income—than in any other way.

Business requires your sole attention—stocks mean sleepless nights and days of worry—property works by itself for you without your care.

Select it—set it to work—it takes care of itself and will take care of you.

A good example of this sort of investment is found in the FARM which we are offering for sale, and for which we are exclusive agents.

640 acres 3½ miles west and 3½ miles south of Tipton, Okla., Tillman county, about 600 acres of this sub-irrigated farm in cotton on share basis, and if sold within the next 30 days crop goes with place, about 75 acres rolling land, balance is level, lots of improvements and has one of the largest barns in the country, plenty of tenant houses and a dandy home for superintendent or manager. YOU CANNOT LOSE YOUR DOLLARS IF PUT INTO A PROPOSITION LIKE THIS and it will earn a good dividend on the price of $75 per acre. Can loan you 18 to $20,000 on this. A careful inspection will bear us out that this IS a bargain.

PROBE USE OF STATE'S ROAD MACHINERY

Official Investigation to Be Made by Commission Today

AUSTIN, Aug. 20.—Another chapter in the controversy over using of state highway equipment on private contracts by Sherman-Youmans Construction company of Houston, which spread to the governor's office, attorney general's department, and the highway commission, will be written Friday when charges of W. L. Kemp, executive secretary of the Texas highway and municipal contractors' association will be investigated by Frank V. Lanham, chairman of the commission.

Whether Mr. Kemp will be supported in his charges by the contractors association will be determined Friday, when members of that body arrive to attend a call meeting.

Moody Criticized.

Mr. Kemp first protested to former Governor James E. Ferguson over the use of certain road building equipment by the Sherman-Youmans company on private work and then asked the attorney general to investigate the contracters' association. Following that Attorney General Dan Moody filed a suit in district court in Houston seeking to restrain Sherman-Youmans from using state equipment on private contracts. Th injunction was denied as the cause of the suit was removed when the construction company ceased using the equipment. Mr. Lanham yesterday issued a statement criticizing the attorney general and Mr. Kemp for their actions.

Thorough Inquiry.

Today Mr. Kemp held a lengthy conference with Chairman Lanham, and the commissioner said that it was charged that an official in the state highway department had ordered paid a bill presented by the Sherman-Youmans company, which was alleged to have been in excess of the amount due.

Mr. Lanham said the charge will be thoroughly investigated. He summoned certain highway inspectors to Austin for an informal hearing in his office Friday.

SEEK DEATH

the door from the witness chair, crouching low in what foothall coaches would term a perfect "fall on the ball" position.

Goodman told of a ride to White Rock lake with Brown and two young women; of taking them home and of later stopping to repair a punctured tire. He said Brown colunteered to fix the tire while Goodman went after cigarets at a nearby restaurant and of being accosted by the nigth watchman.

Saw Man Take Aim

"Stand still or I'll kill you," Goodman said Swinney called out in a loud voice. At that time Brown yelled from across the street "hold on there a minute!" and at that time Goodman crouched, he said.

Goodman said he saw Swinney taking "desperate aim" at Brown, and upon viewing Brown's peril, he jumped out of the ditch and upon the night watchman, grabbing his pistol. In the scuffle Brown came to the rescue of his companion and Goodman said he was "grateful for the act," which he averred save his own life.

The remainder of the testimony given by Goodman was substantially as defense attorney Maury Hughes said yesterday would be the defense line of testimony.

Goodman answered questions in the calm manner which bore evidence of his military training.

Crippled Convict Makes All Tooth Picks for Prison

HUNTSVILLE, Texas.—By day, Carl Norvelle, crippled prisoner in the state penitentiary here, is the official toothpick maker for the prison, by night he is the maker of exquisite gifts that he weaves from glass beads. Necklaces, bracelets, handbags and rings are a few of the articles he makes.

Seven years ago, Norvelle, then 20 years old, was sentenced from Kaufman county to 25 years for murder. He is crippled and has to walk on crutches. For this reason he was appointed official toothpick maker. He supplies all the toothpicks used at the penitentiary here and at a number of the prison farms.

A keen knife, blocks of soft pine, and a hatchet are the only tools of his trade. After splitting with his hatchet the pine blocks into bits about an inch square, he whittles out the toothpicks. He uses great care on each pick, taking pains to see that it is as symetrical as he can possibly make it.

The same painstaking care he employs in the making of little bits of wood, he uses in the making of the gifts that his friends offer for sale to visitors who pass through the corridors of the prison. C. M. Davis, guide at the prison, pointed out a red bag, lined with red velvet, on which Norvelle had worked each night for four weeks. This beaded bag was beautiful enough to satisfy even the most exacting person, and for it Norvelle asked $4.

Delicately carved jewel cases is another line of articles made and featured by Norvelle. The cases are made of mahogany, and bear on their covers intricate designs, seemingly sketched by the hand of a skilled artist.

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 20.—Workmen for the city are busy laying a six-inch water main to the site of the two cotton compresses south of the city, according to J. J. Zumwalt, city water and light superintendent. The work is about half completed.

The main is being placed by the city at the request of the two pressing plants. Efforts to obtain an eight-inch main from the city proved unavailing and the proposition for the companies to pay the difference in the cost of construction between the six and eight-inch was turned down.

Irrigation Work Will Be Advertised

National advertising for the irrigated Wichita valley is a probability in the near future, it developed at the meeting of the publicity committee of the chamber of commerce yesterday. Several national advertising firms have submitted plans for such advertising in national farm and agricultural magazines and there is a strong likelihood that one of these will be accepted. To those answering such advertisements the new booklets on the valley will be sent gratis.

Plans for the distribution of these booklets were worked out at the meeting. Every member of the chamber of commerce may secure five of them for mailing, and more provided he has a definite mailing list. In the latter case the chamber of commerce will handle the mailing. The booklets have been rather expensive, it is explained, and every precaution is being taken to see that there is no waste in their distribution.

A number are to be sent to farmers in the drouth-tricken central Texas areas, it was announced following the meeting.

DENY RELEASE TO MEN HELD IN FORGERY

Writ of Habeas Corpus Refused Hilgartner And Cox by Judge Cook

Special Judge W. W. Cook of the seventy-eighth district court denied the application of A. Hilgartner and R. J. Cox of Fort Worth for release from custody on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday afternoon following a trial of the writ and presentation of the facts supporting the charges against the men. Bond in the case of either man was reduced, however, to $750.

Hilgartner and Cox were arrested last Saturday night by officers following the placing of an order with a local printing company for stationery and cashier's checks on a bank in Portales, N. M. They were arrested and charged with conspiracy to committ a felony, namely forgery, and their bond set at $1,500.

In their application for release on a writ of habeas corpus the men represented that there was insufficient evidence held against them to permit the state retaining them in custody.

An alleged written confession made by one of the men following the arrest, and a letter of credit from the New Mexico bank which was said to be a forged instrument, was introduced by the state in its fight against the writ.

No opposition was made to lowering the bonds, however.

Gather Data For History of Plains

CANYON, Texas, Aug. 19.—(AP) Invaluable material that is to be used in the writing of a history of the Panhandle-South Plains country is being collected from many pioneer settlers of those sections of the state, J. Evetts Hailey, field representative of the Panhandle-Plains Historical society, said. The organization Mr. Haley represents was organized in 1921 for preserving first hand accounts of the experiences of pioneers of the Panhandle-Plains country.

The history of this section of Texas is to be written, or rather compiled, from accounts of old settlers by Professor L. F. Sheffy, head o fthe history department of the West Texas State Teachers college. Professor Sheffy will be assisted by other members of the department of history.

"The accounts of personal experiences ,old documents and other historical data will be of great assistance to every history writer who may choose the Panhandle-Plains country as his field,' Mr. Haley said. "It is surprising how interesting are the accounts of every old settler I have interviewed for the purpose of gathering material for the society." Mr. Haley makes it his business to travel through the Panhandle and the plains collecting material. He stated the most valuable and interesting material came from personal interviews with early settlers.

JUDGES GIVE 10-ROUND GO TO MAHONEY

Looked Good for Draw; Kid Rich and Wildcat Monte Get Kayoes

Walter Varner and Jimmy Mahoney last night fought what appeared a ten-round draw in the American Legion arena but Referee Duke Trammel called the bout as the judges ruled it: Mahoney's fight. Both men were hard to hit, and but very few good blows were landed by either fighter. If a shade was to be given from the seats it looked like Varner's fight.

There were flashes of good fighting in the bout, but this was about evened up. Some hard licks that looked good from the seats were only weaker blows on the gloves and shoulders. Varner carried the fight to Mahoney and the Chicago mitten tosser was usually on the defensive.

Would Have Been Good Draw.

The open style that Varner used with Duke Trammel last week was not as open this week, yet it was open enough to lure Mahoney into still jolts. All in all it would have been a nice decision as a draw.

In the semi-final eight rounder Kid Rich made good his come back into the local ring with a knockout over Johnnie Huffman of San Antonio.

Both seemed to be going at an even fight until the final round when Rich landed a stiff one. Huffman hung on momentarily, and when Rich attempted to swing him free to land another the San Antonio welter went down to the matting for the count.

Monte Lands Kayo.

In a six rounder bout Wildcat Monte landed a kayo to George Story from Oklahoma City in the last round. Monte had Story on the mat the biggest part of the fight and could have easily won the bout without the K. O.

Story found Monte too fast and the blows came too thick for the Oklahoma City boy. Story averaged three falls to the round and could do nothing to Monte in the way of landing extra hard blows that counted in his favor.
