PENNY GOES ON HUNGER STRIKE

Firemen's Mascot Refuses Food After Chief Hurt In Accident

By CLIFF BLACKBURN
Avalanche Staff Writer

IT'S been a "dog's life" the last few days for Penny.

Penny, a brown and white dog of unknown heritage, is the mascot of the Lubbock Central Fire station and the apple of Chief W. E. Twitty's eye, and vice versa.

Since the chief's injury early Saturday morning when his car smashed into an abutment of the East Broadway underpass while he was on his way to a fire, the canine pet has refused to eat and has staged an unscheduled reducing act.

The dog has been a steady member of the city fire department for the last three years. She arrived in Lubbock at the age of nine months while on a visit with friends from Idalou and was adopted by the Central Station and Twitty, who has been with the fire department for the last 36 years, most of that time as chief.

Penny was an avid fire fan and rode on all calls, the men

Woman Hit On Head With Meat Cleaver

Beatings, Shooting Keep Police Busy

PEACE on earth, perhaps, but not in Lubbock Sunday.

Violence in four separate cases took the form of a shooting, a meat cleaver applied to a skull, a metal pipe swung on a man's head and a blow on the noggin of another man with an unknown sharp instrument.

Miraculously all four victims, three of them negroes, received injuries which required only emergency treatment at local hospitals. All were dismissed after their wounds were examined and bandaged.

In chronological order, the activities began when one Charles Raymond Franklin, 22, of Addington, Okla., by his own signed admission, swung a 10-inch piece of metal pipe against the head of Walter Earley, 32, of Lubbock route 5.

This came shortly before 5 p. m. in a vacant house on North College avenue where the two men had been camping while working together as boll pullers.

"When I saw what I had done," Franklin said in a signed statement before E. G. Pharr, assistant district attorney, "I picked him up and brought him to West Texas hospital." Franklin was being held in county jail while the investigation continued. Earley received a laceration on the back of his head.

The next two outbreaks came so close together that officers aren't exactly sure which came first, but both were around 8:30 p. m. and both involved negroes.

Robert Lee Wilkinson, 22, was taken to Lubbock Memorial hospital by Rix ambulance after being shot in the right arm at Pleasure Garden, negro night spot in the 2000 block East Ave. D. His

Barkley's Plane Has 'Near-Miss'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—A plane carrying Vice President Barkley came within 50 feet of a collision with a blimp over the Pentagon Thursday night, Boling Air Force base disclosed tonight.

Barkley's plane was near a landing at National airport en route from Paducah, Kentucky. It was a special mission B-17 operated by the Headquarters command of the Air Force.

The blimp is one used for advertising purposes.

Barkley did not see the incident, Bolling field said.

The pilot, Capt. William R. Humrichouse, 33, of Danville, Ill., did not see the blimp and was not told of the near accident until after the plane landed at Washington National airport.

The near-miss occurred about a mile from the spot where 55 persons died Nov. 1 in the collision of a P-38 fighter and an Eastern airlines DC-4. That was the worst airplane crash in history. Only the Bolivian pilot of the P-38 survived.

Shamrock Cotton Picker Shot To Death; Suspect Is Sought

AMARILLO, Nov. 13 (AP)—An 18-year-old cotton picker was shot to death at Shamrock tonight in what county officers said was an "altercation during a dice game." Police were seeking a negro laborer in connection with the slaying of James Clinton Wise, a white laborer from Winslow, Arkansas.

County Attorney Homer Moss said three white men and possibly two negroes had witnessed the shooting which occurred in a cafe operated by Leon Peace.

Workers Probe Lake For Drowned Youths

SEYMOUR, Nov. 13—(AP)—Workers with grappling hooks probed Lake Kemp by searchlight tonight for the bodies of two Wichita Falls high school boys.

Two divers made ready to descend into the murky water if the bodies of Bert Brown, 16, and Jackie Parr, 17, weren't found by morning. The boys disappeared in the lake yesterday after their boat capsized in a windstorm.

A third boy, Dawson Ward, jr., 16, hung onto the boat until it was driven ashore by the wind-whipped waves which first filled it with water and then upset it.

Ward told of seeing his friends slide into the water as they clung desperately to the metal bottom of the boat. Ward drifted with the craft some five hours before reaching shore. The boys had been hunting ducks.

NAVY OFFICER'S CLAIM SCORED

Atomic Bombing Expert Urges Speedup In Defense Planning

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(INS)—A government atomic bombing expert today urged a "speed-up" in preparation of the nation's civilian defenses against atomic attack.

Dr. George M. Lyon, atomic medicine advisor to the Veterans' Administration and one of the Bikini atom test scientists, said the U.S. should have recognized the need for atomic bomb defenses in key production areas "four years ago" after the first bomb was dropped on Japan.

Lyon said the nation's military experts have acquired valuable technical information on atomic defense since the bombing of Japan, but he warned that "possession of this information in itself is not the complete answer to atomic attack."

The scientist deplored the "confusion in the public mind" about the capabilities and limitation of atomic bombs. He termed "unfortunate a Navy officer's recent claim that persons standing a mile away from the atomic blast would escape injury.

The statement Lyon referred to was made by Comdr. Eugene

Lewis Makes New Bid For Coal Talks

By NORMAN WALKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—John L. Lewis bid again today for peace talks with coal operators, saying he awaits their "convenience" now that the steel strike is virtually settled.

The United Mine Workers chief moved to get contract negotiations renewed as government labor officials studied their next step in trying to avert a new mine walkout on December 1.

That is the day a truce expires which Lewis ordered last Wednesday to end a 52-day soft coal strike.

In view of Lewis' expressed willingness to meet with the mine owners, another government attempt to get him and the operators into contract talks may be made.

There was a question whether the operators were ready to talk with Lewis, in view of their far-apart views on contract terms. Previous talks apparently got nowhere and the operators dropped out.

So more positive White House steps still are being considered. If the government is to change course a decision may come this week.

Cyrus Ching, federal mediator, sought to have operators and Lewis sit down with him Thursday but Lewis said he couldn't be there until Monday. Ching, having other business Monday, called it off.

Lewis was still in New York today but a spokesman at headquarters of the United Mine workers union here said he is returning.

The spokesman said that Lewis, "having concluded business in New York City, will be at his desk in Washington tomorrow morning, awaiting the convenience of the coal operators.

"The next move is up to these coal operators.

"Now that the operators are relieved of their commitments to the steel industry and associated financial interests, there is no reason for continuing their stubborn refusal to meet with the union.

"The coal operators walked out of negotiations, the mine workers walked back into the mines voluntarily as a contribution to the American public.

"It is time for the coal operators to walk back into collective bargaining."

Lewis had first bid for talks

NARROW ESCAPE — The two Lubbock men in the picture above probably consider themselves pretty lucky. They were in the pickup truck, shown right, which crashed into a residence at 1827 Texas avenue at the dead end of Nineteenth street early Sunday morning. Thrown to the ground and unconscious above is William C. Floyd, 37, who suffered a shoulder injury. In the left background is Howard E. Russell, who suffered a laceration on his head. Floyd was identified by investigating officers as driver of the pickup which clipped off a traffic light and scattered brick from the porch after hitting a car in the driveway. Car Smashes Into House

W. L. GILMORE lives at 1827 Texas Avenue—and he's not so sure he likes it.

It sounds like an ordinary address in Lubbock, and is except for one little thing—it happens to be at the dead end of Nineteenth street.

Mr. Gilmore is beginning to be just a little bit irked—and rightly so—because motor vehicles have an annoying habit of failing to turn to the right or left onto Texas avenue. Result: they plow into his car, his house and break up his sleep.

Third Time In Year

It happened again early Sunday morning, and Gilmore sleepily staggered out of his house to tell newsmen on the scene that it was the third time in less than a year and he was getting pretty tired of it all.

Two men in a 1938 International pickup chose the unhappy hour of 4 a.m. to keep going straight ahead when they should have zigged or zagged.

Neither man was seriously injured, but they got transportation to Lubbock Memorial hospital, courtesy of the McDonald funeral home ambulance, and remained in the hospital for observation Sunday night.

Driver of the truck was identified by police as William C. Floyd, 37, of 1007 Fifteenth street, while the passenger was Howard E. Russell, 33, of 1901 Broadway, owner of the truck.

Floyd was on the ground, unconcious, when the ambulance arrived. Russell was bleeding about the back of his head. Hospital attendants said neither man received any broken bones and both were "doing fine" last night.

Lubbock's city fathers have planned for many months to make a through street of the busy nineteenth street as a part of the city's highway dispersal system but the move is still in the planning stage—as the two men found out Sunday night and others have learned before.

Policeman Evades 'Moving Roadblock'

Truck Load Of Beer Taken After Chase

By TOM DAVIS
Avalanche Staff Writer

BEER makes a good chaser, some say, but City Patrolman Nolen H. Lassiter, jr., turned it around in Lubbock Sunday and chased a truck load of beer, finally taking the "grand prize."

Just chasing a truck isn't much, but Lassiter had a slight handicap in the form of a speeding 1947 Nash which tried to aid the truck's getaway.

A Canadian Mountie couldn't have done better. Lassiter got two men—the driver of the truck and the driver of the nagging Nash.

200 Cases Also Taken

Driver of the truck, which was loaded with about 200 cases of verboten beer, was identified by police as Cecil Everett Baker, 27, of the 2800 block North Seventh street. He was released on bond to his attorney, and the Liquor Control board said charges would be filed today.

Charged with driving the Nash in a reckless manner was Alfredo Albridrez, 31, of the 100 block North Ave. K. He was released on $200 bond.

Lassiter, alone in his patrol car, said it all began shortly after 11:30 a.m. Sunday in the 100 block North Ave. K.

Police Car Spotted

He spotted Albridrez and Albridrez spotted him. Lassiter said he saw Albridrez waving frantically to a truck to keep moving.

The truck, a 1949 ton-and-a-half Chevrolet, turned down an alley and Lassiter followed in his patrol car. The truck headed toward the Plainview cutoff.

Then the Nash came ginning up and got between the truck and the patrol car. Lassiter said Albridrez whipped the Nash sideways across the road in an attempt to block the street.

"I swerved, missed the Nash and continued after the truck," Lassiter said in his report.

Then the truck turned onto the Plainview cutoff, and from there turned north at the traffic light at the intersection with North College avenue.

As Lassiter turned north, here came the Nash again.

"It turned in front of me and tried to force me off the road," Lassiter related. "The front fender of the police car hit the bumper of the Nash, causing me to swerve sideways but I kept going."

The truck took off down a dirt road, headed north.

Lassiter said the Nash, again

Alaskan, Hawaiian Statehood Urged

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13. (INS) Newly appointed Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman declared today that he will press for immediate statehood for Hawaii and for Alaska.

Chapman, who will take over the post Dec. 1 succeeding Julius A. Krug who resigned, told a news conference in San Francisco:

"I have been working for statehood for Hawaii for a long time and I shall continue to press for its immediate realization.

"I am convinced that their interest and that of the country as a whole would be better served by having Hawaii as a state."

He said that there were "some honest differences" to this viewpoint and said many persons feel that since Hawaii is not connected with the mainland, it should best remain a territory. But Chapman added:

"I feel with the tremendous developments we made in transportation this argument is immaterial."

He said that he also "feels just as strongly" in favor of statehood for Alaska.

Four Residents Of Lubbock Are Hurt

Sidney G. St. Clair, Lubbock, And Curtis D. Weaver, Seagraves, Dead

EMMETT SHOCKLEY
Avalanche Staff Writer

TWO persons were killed, one a Lubbock man and the other a Seagraves resident, and four members of a Lubbock family were injured in a spectacular three-car collision early Sunday morning near Seminole.

Dead are Sidney G. St. Clair, 21, of 2808 North Eighth, and Curtis D. Weaver, 24, of Seagraves, both employes of the Hearn Motor Freight lines, with offices throughout West Texas.

The accident occurred about 5 a.m., on U.S. Highway 180, approximately 13 miles west of Seminole, investigating Highway patrolmen said. The deaths brought the South Plains traffic mishap toll to 21 in the past 15 days, 14 of those in the past eight days.

Dies On Way To Hospital

St. Clair died in the ambulance on the way to the Gaines county hospital in Seminole. Weaver died at 11:30 a. m., in the hospital from head and chest injuries received in the accident.

Other Lubbockites involved in the crash were Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Timmons, ages 55 and 51, of 601 Ave. E; a son, Delton, 18; another son, Murrell, 20; and his wife, Dorothy, 19.

Only Dorothy Timmons was injured seriously enough to require hospitalization. She was transferred to West Texas hospital in Lubbock Sunday afternoon from Seminole General clinic-hospital by a McDonald and Sons ambulance. She suffered several broken ribs, bruises, and lacerations. Her condition was not considered serious by attendants Sunday night.

The elder Mrs. Timmons was not injured and the other three occupants of the car, other than Dorothy, suffered only minor injuries.

Highway patrolmen said a 1941 Ford sedan, occupied by St. Clair and Weaver, was traveling east when it struck the rear of a 1938 Pontiac sedan, also going east, and overturned into the left lane, directly in the path of the Timmons car, a 1941 Plymouth sedan, which was traveling west. Dorothy Timmons, who was driving the west bound car, applied the brakes and attempted to swerve out of the way, but did not succeed, they said.

The occupants of the Pontiac, Jack O. Cline, and L. E. Powell,

Germans Talk With Acheson

By MORRIE HELITZER
INS Staff Correspondent

BONN, Nov. 13. — A German spokesman said tonight that U. S. Secretary of State Acheson declared today that German workers who have demanded a halt to dismantling "can have hope."

Acheson's statement on dismantling was made to West German government and political leaders with whom he conferred for several hours during a brief visit to Bonn.

Speaks With Leaders

Acheson spoke with President Theodor Heuss, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, Social Democrat leader Kurt Schumacher and other German leaders. Later Acheson told a news conference:

"We have no desire—and it would be impossible if we had any such desire—to substitute our will for that of the German government.

"We can not substitute our energy for that of the German people."

Acheson expressed the hope to Heuss that "Germany will become in the very near future one of the great and respected members of the commonwealth of Europe."

Acheson at his news conference pursued the same secrecy on western dismantling policy details as displayed by the American, British and French foreign ministers' communique at the close of their two-day Paris conference on German problems.

He talked to government officials about dismantling but the Germans expect that their full briefing will have to wait until Tuesday when they confer with the western high commissioners.

Acheson was asked by a reporter whether he had any discussions with the French and British foreign ministers in Paris on German leaders at Bonn on the possibility of

Ideal Weather For Harvest Is Forecast

South Plains weather today and Tuesday promises to be ideal for the cotton harvest, with the weather bureau promising clear skies, warm days, and little sign of wind similar to those which plagued area football games on Armistice day Friday.

Temperatures this morning and Tuesday morning probably will not go below 36, and daytime highs may be in the upper 70s.

The mercury dropped to a freezing 32 shortly before sunrise Sunday, but quickly climbed to 52 by 9:30, and reached a high of 72 Sunday afternoon.

Texas Violence Claims 12 Lives

(By The Associated Press)

Violence took 12 lives in Texas this weekend in two days of spectacular accidents and slayings.

A train-automobile crash killed three negroes; a three-car collision killed two South Plains men; a bus-ambulance wreck killed a negro. Two teen-aged boys drowned in a stormy lake. Another accidentally shot himself to death. A woman was shot to death before a startled policeman. A Houston doctor took his own life. An elderly man died in flames that swept his house.

An east-bound Texas & Pacific passenger train, trying to stop, smashed into an old model car Sunday on a crossing 50 feet from the railroad station at Petty in northeast Texas. Killed were Robert Hall, about 50; his mother, Lorcena Collins Hall, 70, and Ernest Adams, about 50. All were in the automobile. A negro girl in the car, Mary Helen Kinnerson, 12, was critically injured.

FHA MAY CURTAIL PROJECTS

Building Boom In Higher Rent Apartments Hits Housing Crisis

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. — A "terrific" building boom in high-rent apartments is dealing a heavy blow to that phase of the housing shortage, officials said today.

By the time construction of FHA-approved projects in that class is finished, the need for this type of apartments largely will have been met in many areas, it was forecast.

In nearly every major city, a Federal Housing administration spokesman said, the agency has called a halt to its financing of new projects in the "luxury" class.

The liberal, 90 percent FHA mortgage insurance remains available, it was stated, but in most areas only the builders of lower-rent apartment developments need apply.

Rental limits within which apartment construction will be approved for FHA help vary from city to city, depending on local building costs, realty practices and unfilled housing needs. In some areas the cut-off point is $60 a month or less; elsewhere building of higher-cost apartments still is

Teen Talk

High School Set Discovers Classical Plays, Music

By VIVIAN BROWN
Associated Press Staff Writer

MIDWESTERN teen-agers, reports Betty Prosser from Chicago, have fallen in love with culture. Plays or concerts now are popular objectives for dates, and Illinois moderns consider them "acey."

Betty got the lowdown from Alice Wylie, 15, a junior at New Trier high school in suburban Winnetka. Says Alice:

"Until lately, you only went to concerts or plays with your parents, than which nothing could be schmoey-er. Now all the kids go, and they think culture is terrific-real gone."

Even Classical waxings are listened to by the hot-rod set. This doesn't mean Billy Eckstine or Vaughn Monroe are being neglected. The kids say they are just branching out.

Clothes are getting more conservative. No more flapping shirttail. For outdoor play, but not for school wear, it's shirts and levis - shirts tucked in and levis skin fitting. For school, it's dresses or sweaters and skirts dyed to match, worn with loafers and bobby sox by the upperclassmen but with nylons and ballet slippers for freshies, who still follow the long and full-skirted "new look."

Argyle hose, preferably knitted by the wearer, are popular. Handmade argyles as a gift for her "ace" will make any girl a "queen," 'tis said.

One Illinois high school has a number of unofficial girls' clubs. Their badges are ribbons, different colors for different clubs, tied in tiny bows and sewn at odd places on members' clothes. One club's bows may be sewn at the left front hem of a skirt; another's to a shoelace.

A new twist is that most terms of approbation are phrased negatively by the teen-agers. Practically anything is a "revolting development." If a boy says "She's not SO cute," (accent on SO) you can almost bet she's a dream. "It was non-fine" means just the opposite. "It was no great dance" compliments one's partner nicely.

Lucky is the boy who doesn't have to use the family car. He can take his jalopy and "rod it up," which can mean adding plastic butterfly wings and plastering signs in the interiors. Some of these boil down to "Don't bother the driver." Anything good about the car makes it "roddy." A boy who has a car "has wheels."

A determined eccentric among masculine teen-agers is a "hood," short for hoodlum, but the term doesn't denote criticism. A good student is a "Brain." Last year's fun expression "D. D. T." (drop dead twice) has been dropped dead. This year, it is "shut your hairy mouth." To this a "big dealer," this year's term for "sharpy," would reply, "What does that make me, an Elk?"

Friday and Saturday are the date nights. Movies, bowling, or parties—as well as concerts and plays—are popular. Once a year, there's the Prom, when kids really stay up late. They drive in crowds from the dance to another dance spot. It's breakfast before they go home.

The girls love to have "hag parties." Usually, the boys crash. And, most of the time, the girls expect them to. Usually charades or Twenty Questions is played, and Canasta, the new card game. Canasta, says Alice Wylie is T. T. (The Thing.)

Be-bop is hard to dance to, so popular music still has a large teen following. Bop expressions—except for real gone (something good)—haven't found their way into teeners' lingo.

But if an Illinois teen-ager were to say to you, "It's been REAL," you'll know you're not SO good.

BOON TO BUS DRIVERS... No longer will the little woman have to rummage in her handbag to produce carfare. The new "Money Mitt" glove has a zippered pocket in the palm for change. Glove was invented by Stephanie Frey, New York.

NEW LOOK FURNITURE—The smart hand-rubbed finish can be done at home without rubbing or sanding with a "new mode" paint which dries satin smooth in two hours.

Get Out Paint Brush, Work Miracles In Old Furniture

You don't have to throw scratched and chipped pieces of furniture in the junk heap, if you can't afford to have them refinished There are so many new stains and camouflages in paint stores, that you should be able to massage your furniture to a new look. There are books available also which describe in detail finishes and decorations which can be used on new and old furniture, to further your decorating scheme.

There is a "new mode" coating available that can produce a hand-rubbed finish on new or old furniture and woodwork in a jiffy. It dries in two hours with a satin luster, free from brush marks, and eliminates laborious rubbing with sandpaper, pumice and rotten stone to achieve a hand-rubbed effect.

It can produce a good coating on pine, gum or poplar unfinished woods and resists grease, moisture and alcohol. It also is available in a clear varnish for use in refinishing old varnished surfaces. It protects limed oak, pickled pine, and other pigment stains.

A little of this clear finish mixed with burnt umber will do a fine antiquing job. Apply it over furniture, then mottle it and rub with cheesecloth before it dries. If you want to turn your unpainted furniture or a piece that has been scraped down to its original finish into a blonde piece, coat it with a primer coat of white and then coat it with the clear finish.

If you like a high luster on furniture there also is a paint that will produce a waxed effect. Usually it is difficult even with acid, oil, water and benzol to get that wonderful all-over sheen. Now you can finish your furniture with this new waxed effect stain without danger of lapping or raising the grain. It will toughen wood surfaces and form a firm foundation for subsequent coats.

There is a glass frosting paint available that will frost bathroom windows, panels, glass partitions and other glass where privacy is desired. It can be sprayed directly on any clean glass, or can be brushed on with a small pad of cheese cloth used to mottle the surface by twisting the wrist slightly on contact with glass.

Another paint, originally used on the slippery decks of ships during the war, is a non-skid paint that is ideal for steps and floors in homes, particularly where there are children. It is fine for using on cellar ramps, basement floors or on the floor of the laundry room. It can be applied simply with a brush.

Anne Crenshaw Is To Sing Operatic Role

Miss Anne Crenshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Crenshaw, 2324 Tenth, has been asked to sing the leading role in the opera, "Hansel and Gretel," to be presented by her voice coach in New York where the young woman is studying this winter.

Miss Crenshaw will sing the role of "Hansel." The opera likely will be staged during the Christmas holiday season.

Dimaggio Signs Contract With Jack Dempsey For Filming Story Of Baseball Star's Life

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
INS Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—After weeks of talk and many conferences, Jack Dempsey has that contract with Joe DiMaggio at last. The agreement is between Jack, Harry Popkin, and Sam Steifel, and gives the popular Joe approval on all scripts on his life story.

Moreover, because of income tax problems, the agreement is worked out so that DiMag is paid from the earnings of the picture over a period of years.

Joe, who is in the high income brackets, would not otherwise make a cent out of this story which has been in demand ever since he became baseball's top hero. Joe is good looking enough to play himself, but I doubt if he will.

Maureen Set For Work

Maureen O'Hara, whose curves are her own and all in the right places, wears pants and male attire in "Sons of the Musketeers." But any resemblance to a musketeer is merely eyestrain!

Yes, redhaired Maureen, frequently hailed as queen of technicolor, returns to RKO to costar with Cornel Wilde in the swashbuckling opus. Jerrold T. Brandt is the producer — and it is in technicolor, same as usual with Maureen.

The picture starts in two weeks which means Cornel will have to be back by then. Then we will see what we will see about that divorce of his and Pat Knight's.

Granger Gets Contract

Sam Goldwyn played Santa Claus before Christmas to Farley Granger. He called Farley in his office, handed him a bonus and a five-year contract.

That isn't because Farley is one of the handsomest young men in town and a nice boy, but because he has definite talent. Sam believes he is on his way to becoming the top bobby-sox favorite. Sam won't have an argument with me on Farley. I know how popular he is from the many letters I receive.

"Edge of Doom" starts rehearsals tomorrow with Farley as the young boy and Dana Andrews as the preist.

Here comes Matty Kemp again! In the long ago days, Matty was a handsome leading man and played opposite Sally Eilers in her first picture. Now he is a producer. He writes a note telling me that Maurice Chevalier and he are talking business. Says Matty:

"Chevalier will probably come to Hollywood for 'French Line,' and I don't mean steamships."

Chevalier has not been here since he walked out of Hollywood 13 years ago. But I'm here to tell you that in spite of his 60 years of age he still has what it takes to entertain audiences.

Play At John Alden

Thank you, Linda Darnell. If I repeat it, I hope I won't be considered conceited, but this is the way the story came to me.

Sydney Poitier, young negro actor in "No Way Out," confided to Linda that he is very much in love, but doesn't know whether his girl friend will accept his proposal. Said Linda:

"Well, tell me her name. I'll tell Louela Parsons, and she'll do a John Alden and ask the girl, in the column and over the air, to marry you."

Said Poitier, "Louella Parsons! Oh, that would make me famous—and that would make me nervous!"

Ann Sheridan Home

Well, here's a surprise — Shelly Winters and Tom Drake doing the night spots, Mocambo and Ciro's, together.

Judy Garland and Vincente Minnelli were at Mocambo to hear Vic Damone. Judy is looking extremely well. Too bad that these girls have to be underweight to photograph right, because she looks so well a little heavier.

Ann Sheridan is back from New York, but she has been practically in hiding ever since. In New York she and Steve Hannagan made no secret that they had taken up where they had left off and were just as much in love as ever.

Sid Grauman owns a piece of the show, "A La Carte." The first night at the El Capitan theater, next Wednesday, is going to be a gala occasion with many top names.

Five Italians Convicted Of Stealing Sunken Destroyer

NAPLES, Nov. 13. (AP)—For the theft of a destroyer, five men were sentenced yesterday to two years' imprisonment and a 15,000 lire fine ($25) each.

Using diving suits, the five had dismantled a destroyer sunk off the harbor of Naples during the war. They sold the scrap to Neapolitan dealers.

A high-pressure, high-temperature turbine run by hot air instead of combustion gases, as in the case of the now familiar gas turbine, can use low-grade, cheap fuels instead of the high-grade, expensive ones.

Texans Okay Fight Against Reds In Europe, Back Aid To China

By JOE BELDEN
Director, The Texas Poll

AUSTIN, Nov. 13.—Texas congressmen who are now at home feeling the public pulse will find general support for the "cold war" against Communism in Europe. At the same time, the congressmen may be interested to learn that about four out of every ten adults believe it is just as important, if not more important, to fight the spread of Communism in China.

A statewide survey by The Texas Poll shows:

1. A majority of adults is keeping up with conditions in China.

2. Most of those who have some information about the situation think the United States should help the Chinese solve their problems.

3. Among those who haven't heard or read anything about China recently, the weight of opinion favors a hands-off policy.

4. About three out of every ten think it is equally important to fight Communism in Europe and Asia. One out of every ten would emphasize the "cold war" in Asia, while three out of every ten would stress it in Europe.

Aid To China Halted

Congress recently voted several billions of dollars for Europe, deciding at the same time it would withhold direct aid to the Chinese until our diplomatic experts create a new policy toward China. Our old policy of helping Chiang Kai-shek and his cohorts against the Communists was discontinued several months ago.

Interviewers for The Texas Poll put these questions to a representative cross section of adults:

1. "Have you heard or read anything about conditions in China recently?"

Yes (informed)	57%
No (uninformed)	43%

2. "Do you think the United States should leave China alone to solve its own problems, or do you think we should help China to solve its problems?"

Leave China	Informed	Uninformed	All
alone	34%	41%	37%
Help China	54	32	45
No opinion	12	27	18
	100%	100%	100%

3. "Which do you think is more important—for the United States to fight the spread of Communism in Europe, or in Asia?"

	Informed	Uninformed	All
Europe	35%	21%	29%
Asia	11	10	11
Both equally important	34	30	32
Neither important	6	9	7
No opinion	14	30	21
	100%	100%	100%

In September, 1948, when a comparable cross section of adults was asked, "Do you think the United States should leave Europe alone to solve its own problems, or do you think we should help Europe to solve its problems?" 71 per cent favored aid to Europe, 21 per cent voted against, and 8 per cent had no opinion.

The latest survey indicates people who have at least completed high school are generally more concerned about the plight of China. In the lower educational levels, people aren't as interested because they are relatively uninformed. More than half of those who did not complete high school say they haven't heard or read anything about China recently. By way of comparison, two out of every three of those who completed high school have recent information about China.

Rocket Mail Service Proposal Is Studied

GLENDALE, Calif., Nov. 13. (INS)—The possibility of 10-minute mail service between Los Angeles and San Francisco will be discussed tomorrow at a public meeting of the rocket research institute.

The institute is made up of Los Angeles area rocket fans, most of whom are in their late teens and early twenties. Last year they flew a rocket loaded with mail across the Colorado river from Arizona to California.

George James, director of the organization, said today that mail could be flown from Los Angeles to San Francisco in a modified version of the German V-2. He suggested a postage rate of $1 an ounce.

James said:

"German scientists flew a winged version of the V-2 before the end of the war.

"It had a range of 350 miles and slight improvements should enable it to make 450 miles. Such a rocket could carry a ton of mail."

James went on to say that the mail rocket would be guided by a string of radar stations along its route and that as it neared its destination a radio signal would release a parachute which would lower it to the ground.

The institute plans to conduct a mail rocket demonstration with small rockets at Searles lake, in the desert to the north, on Jan. 14.

The substitution of yellow lamps for white lamps of equal wattage markedly and definitely reduces the number of insect pests attracted by any outdoor lighting. There is no "magic" in these lamps, the simple fact being that insects are less attracted to a yellow lamp than to a white one of equal wattage.

RESTRAINED BY POLICE — An unidentified man is restrained by police during a disturbance in front of a south side Chicago home. Crowds have been gathering around the home for the past five nights in the mistaken belief, police said, that a negro family was about to move into the property, located in a white neighborhood. Sixteen persons were charged with disorderly conduct following sporadic disturbances which included pelting the home with stones. (AP Wirephoto.)

Reserve Board Head Opposes Any Boost In Price Of Gold

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(INS)—Chairman Thomas B. McCabe of the Federal Reserve board warned today that an increase in the gold price would be an "awkward and dangerous" step and would "expose the economy to great inflationary dangers."

McCabe fully supported President Truman's emphatic refusal to raise the gold price in submitting to the joint Congressional Economic committee detailed answers to a long list of questions on monetary and credit policy.

The federal reserve chairman proposed many changes in existing law to strengthen operation of the credit management mechanism, opposed restoration of gold coin to circulation, and recommended again that the reserve board be given permanent control over consumer credit.

He protested against the action of Congress in raising salaries of reserve board members from $15,000 to only $16,000 a year, and said that to attract the high caliber men necessary the salaries should be increased to the $22,500 now paid cabinet officers.

McCabe pointed out that for many years reserve board members salaries were at cabinet level. He emphasized that it would be difficult to exaggerate the importance" of having highly competent men at the nation's credit helm.

He explained that, since he was "in no way dependent on my salary," he was actuated only by a desire to increase federal reserve effectiveness. McCabe is independently wealthy.

Prominent Houston Surgeon Is Found Shot To Death At Home

HOUSTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—Dr. Edgar Henry Lancaster, 65, prominent Houston surgeon, was found shot to death at his home today.

Justice of the Peace Tom Maes returned an inquest verdict of suicide.

Homicide Detectives E. B. Olive and C. F. Langston said Lancaster had been shot three times through the chest with a .22 caliber revolver. They said they found such a revolver in a partially open desk drawer.

The body was on the floor near the desk.

Lancaster had practiced medicine and surgery here 40 years. He came to Houston after serving several years as a state health officer in Austin. He was a graduate of the University of Texas and its school of medicine at Galveston.

Two Killed, Four Hurt In Accident

both of Seminole, were uninjured.

Passing motorists took the elder Timmons couple and their son, Delton, to Hobbs General hospital, where Timmons was treated for severe lacerations of the face and arms, and his son was X-rayed for a possible broken clavicle. Both were released after treatment. Mrs. Timmons was not injured.

Murrell Timmons and his wife were taken to Seminole General clinic-hospital. He was treated for bruises and lacerations and was released.

Mr. and Mrs. Timmons were enroute to El Paso with their sons and their daughter-in-law to visit another son who is a patient in the veteran's hospital there.

Highway patrolmen were continuing an investigation of the accident late Sunday.

Services Not Set

St. Clair's body was taken to the Singleton Funeral home in Seminole. No arrangements have been made as yet, but attendants there believed that burial probably would be Tuesday in Cooper, where his parents are living.

Survivors include his wife, Doris, a son, Michael, 18 months; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest St. Clair of Cooper; and an uncle, M. L. Copeland, of Lubbock.

St. Clair had lived in Lubbock, for two years, having moved here from Cooper in 1947. His wife, who left Lubbock a few days ago to undergo surgery in Paris, where her parents live, was believed to have been there at the time of the accident.

Lived In Seagraves 14 Years

Weaver's body was taken to the Webb Funeral home in Seagraves, where funeral arrangements are pending.

Weaver had lived in Seagraves for 14 years.

He is survived by his wife, Alma; a daughter, Palma Kay, 18 months, living in Denver City; four brothers, Ceberne W., of Spearman, J. D. jr., and C. W. of Odessa, and Joe F., of San Angelo; and four sisters, Mrs. Mack Alderson of Wellington, Calif., Mrs. S. T. Clark of Alberta, Can., and Mary Ruth Weaver and Martha Jane Weaver, both of Seagraves.

Weaver had been released from West Texas hospital only a short time ago after recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

Heavy Toll Soars

Three Anton residents were injured in another accident at the intersection of Avenue H with the Plainview highway north of the city at 12:48 a. m. Sunday.

Sunday's fatal accident near Seminole brought the year's traffic toll for the year on the South Plains to an appalling 76, the 21 deaths in the past 15 days establishing what is believed to be an all-time record in the area. More than 635 persons have been injured during the year.

THREE ANTON RESIDENTS HURT IN CRASH HERE

Three Anton residents received minor injuries in a two-car collision about 12:40 a. m. Sunday at the intersection of Ave. H with the Lubbock-Plainview highway.

Treated at Lubbock Memorial hospital and dismissed were Durwood Chandler, 16, William Belcher, 25, and Vernon Belcher, 23. Chandler received a back and neck sprain. The elder Belcher received a sprain of the right ankle and a laceration on the forehead, while Vernon Belcher received a laceration on the left side of his chin.

The trio was in a 1947 Ford coach driven by William Belcher, which collided with the rear of a 1941 Ford coupe driven by Alvin A. Chapman, 18, of Abernathy. Chapman was not injured.

According to police, Chapman had stopped at the traffic light before entering the main highway when the other car collided with the rear of the Chapman vehicle. The Belcher car, heavily damaged, was hauled in by a wrecker, while the Chapman car was driven away.

The injured were taken to the hospital by a McDonald Funeral home ambulance.

Two cars and a truck came together about 4:30 p. m. Sunday at the intersection of the Brownfield and Levelland highways at the west edge of Lubbock, but none was injured.

According to Texas Highway Patrol officers, all three vehicles were going west. Driver of the lead car was identified as Mrs. Frances Louise Gibbins of Rushland Park, Lubbock.

Driver of the second car, which was damaged an estimated $300, was William Q. Rikard of Shallowater.

Bringing up the rear was a Chevrolet truck driven by Carl Hunt of Pauls Valley, Okla.

Prince Charles To Observe Birthday With 'Party' Today

LONDON, Nov. 13. (AP)—Prince Charles, who will be one year old tomorrow, will have a birthday cake almost twice as heavy as he is—but he won't get a bite of it.

He will look at it, and he may be permitted to blow out the flame of the single candle which will be its chief ornament.

The cake which will be the center of a little party at Clarence house, weighs 40 pounds. The prince himself weighs 24 pounds, eight ounces.

Cake Baked With Rum

And why shouldn't he have at least a tiny taste? Because it's baked with rum, and rum is not for year-old princes. There is seaman's tradition about the cookery at Clarence house because the prince's father is the enthusiastic sailor, the Duke of Edinburg. Cake in a sailor's house is made with rum. Twenty students baked the massive cake at the Manchester School of Technology. They put in a half a pint of rum. This and a host of other intimate details were revealed as the London press broke out with a rash of "biographies" of the royal infant. His mother, Princess Elizabeth, still does her utmost to rear him quietly and to shield him from excessive curiosity. But it was obvious that on his first birthday Prince Charles becomes a public figure, conspicuous in the spotlights that play on British royalty.

Word from Clarence house was that the birthday party will be a small and a quiet affair for tiny children who will visit the prince in the white and blue nursery. The cake will be eaten by their parents and other grown-ups of the household. Some may be sent to nearby Buckingham palace.

Howard Smith, 21, negro ambulance driver, was killed in Dallas Saturday when a city bus rammed into the side of the ambulance The ambulance burst into flames before Smith could be rescued.

Bert Brown, 16, and Jackie Parr, 17, both of Wichita Falls, disappeared in Lake Kemp near Seymour Saturday after storm-whipped waves swamped their boat and capsized it. Dawson Ward, jr., 16, also of Wichita Falls, hung onto the upturned boat until it was blown ashore.

Mrs. C. C. Crowson of Wichita Falls was shot to death Saturday in the driveway of her home. W. S. Bourland, 53, a next-door neighbor, was charged with murder. Police officer Ernest Deaton said he saw the shooting and grabbed a shotgun from Bourland immediately after Mrs. Crowson fell.

Dr. Edgar Henry Lancaster, 65, prominent Houston surgeon, was found shot to death in his home Sunday. Justice of the Peace Tom Maes returned an inquest verdict of suicide.

Albert S. Thomas, 82, retired carpenter, died Sunday as fire swept his Houston home. His body was found crouched against a wall.

between him and the truck, kept swerving from side to side to prevent him from passing.

Finally, the Nash passed the truck, and the driver looked back to motion to the truck driver to keep coming, Lassiter said.

"Then I was able to pull up beside the truck and force it to pull up and stop," the patrolman said. He said he didn't have to shoot, but that he had his gun ready.

The Nash? Very obliging. Lassiter said Albridrez put it into reverse and came back to join the police car and the truck. Lassiter said the police car had little more than a bent fender from the touch-and-go collision at the intersection.

COKEY By DUANE BRYERS

HE'S JUST A LITTLE FELLER — This Mexican eagle, captured near Dallas, is only half grown, although his wings are more than six feet from tip to tip. He is held by Gus Story, farm hand, who wounded the bird with a shot. The captive was taken to an animal hospital for treatment arranged by Dick Burnett, owner of the Dallas Eagles of the Texas Baseball league. The eagle will become the team's mascot. Burnett said he would build a permanent home for the bird in front of the ball park. (AP Photo.)

Judith Coplon, Hiss To Face New Trials

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—The trials of Alger Hiss and of Judith Coplon and Valentin Gubitchev, both involving alleged efforts of Russian spies to get U. S. secrets, are scheduled to begin this week.

It will be the second trial each for Hiss, one-time high-ranking State department official with a brilliant record, and for Miss Coplon, former U. S. Justice department employe.

Both will be held in the federal courthouse in lower Manhattan where 11 U. S. Communist party leaders were convicted last month on conspiracy charges after a nine-months trial.

The trial of Miss Coplon and Gubitchev, the Russian engineer she said she once loved, is to begin Monday. Gubitchev, a suspended United Nations employe, was not a defendant in her first trial in Washington last spring.

The Hiss case is set for next Thursday. He is accused of lying when he told a grand jury he never gave State department papers to Whittaker Chambers, then a Communist courier, for transmission to Soviet agents.

The first Hiss jury disagreed last July after a seven-weeks trial. It stood eight to four for conviction.

Atomic Bombing

Tatom in the recent congressional investigation of the Navy-Air Force controversy.

Lyon said "there would be nearly 100 percent casualties" within a one mile radius of an atomic explosion. Between one and two miles, he added, "there would be many serious injuries" and "between two and three miles there might be many injuries, but most of them would not be serious."

Protection Called Vital

Lyon, one of the atomic experts who developed the first U.S. bombs in the World War II Manhattan project, emphasized the importance of prearranged civil protection to victory in any future war. He added:

"A sound scheme of civil protection which would be characterized by effective leadership at the community level would do much to reduce the impact of atomic attack.

"A most important phase of any plan for preparedness must be a sound program for information of the public not only as it relates to the problems of atomic attack but as well to the problems of civil protection in any form of bombing attack.

Lyon said medical experts consider the "mechanical," or blast effects, of the A-bomb the greatest producer of casualties. Thermal burns from the tremendous heat generated in an atomic explosion rank next in danger, he said, with radiation effects causing the fewest casualties.

The scientist, interviewed on the Gannett newspapers "Capital Memo" radio program, said he believes "we are pursuing a sound course at the present time" in regard to atomic development in the U.S. but he added:

"Perhaps there is nothing more important than to make it possible for those of our scientists who are capable of doing pure or basic research to do s. under the most favorable conditions and with a maximum of encouragement and support."

Organized Reserves To Receive New Identification Cards Soon

Identification cards for Organized Reserve corps personnel soon will be issued to all officers of the ORC, the local ORC instructor's office has been informed.

Col. Oscar B. Abbott, chief of the Texas Military district, announced Saturday in Austin that officers holding commissions will be issued cards as soon as practicable with the district making distribution of the application forms in the near future.

Cards issued to officers of the Honorary Reserve will be stamped "Honorary Reserve" across the seal of the card.

Reserve officers will be notified that identification cards must be in their possession at all times and upon their person when in a duty status, unless withdrawn by proper authority.

The card will be of the same type now used by members of the regular establishments — with photograph and laminating process finish.

At first, cards will be issued to officers only. Later, when appropriate instructions are received, enlisted Reservists also will be furnished identification cards.

Building Boom

being approved.

In Washington, for instance, the agency announced it will welcome projects in the "low rental" class, $45 to $55 a month for one bedroom and up to $65 for two bedrooms.

Volume Surprises Officials

Building of apartments under FHA's "section 608," under which the builders need put up only 10 percent of the cost in cash, surged forward this year in a volume surprising to many officials.

The section was credited with being a major factor in the 1949 housing boom, which may set an all-time record for new homes started.

In the upper-rental brackets, the completion of presently planned projects may bring the apartment market close to saturation in a number of areas, officials said. But they predicted a long-time need for less costly accommodations.

Up to the start of last month, FHA had issued "section 608" approvals for 322,400 apartment units over the country—enough to house almost 1,000,000 persons at three to a family. To this must be added the unknown volume of apartment construction being undertaken with other than FHA financing.

Backlog Is Held

In addition, FHA had a backlog of applications totaling another 60,000 family units.

Some 79,000 units had been completed on Oct. 1, and about 202,900 were reported to be then under construction.

Section 608 was extended by the last session of Congress until next March. Housing and home finance Commissioner Raymond H. Foley had sought a full year's extension, until next October, but the legislators decided they would like to look at it again in the early spring.

FHA officials said it is now uncertain whether they will seek an extension of "608" in its present form next spring or, possibly, try to revise the housing laws to provide continued encouragement for lower-rental apartments only.

"We feel there is a big need remaining for apartments in the $45 to $65 class," said one spokesman. "But I don't think it's possible to say what we'll lay before Congress until we size up the situation again in February."

Some housing officials predicted the volume of apartments becoming available in the next year or so will discourage landlords from raising rents on present quarters as federal rent ceilings are lifted through federal or "home rule" decontrol actions.

at the station recalled, until she ran afoul of a live wire at a blaze last year. "She took off on the run," a fireman reminisced; "and we didn't see hide nor hair of her for three days."

After she limped home to the fire station, Penny withdrew from an active fire fighter's duties. She still makes an occasional tour of the city in the chief's automobile but when the gong sounds now at the station house, Penny yawns and just relaxes.

Penny's main diet consists of chewing gum and candy, varied, of course, by the chief's insistence, with more stable foods. She hasn't eaten a bite since the chief's admittance to West Texas hospital, despite the pleas and offerings of the station house personnel, Central Station firemen said Sunday night.

Penny was the proud mother of a litter of puppies last year, following a romance with another station house habitue. And, following family tradition, saw the puppies all safely farmed out to other city fire houses when they were old enough.

Her main resting place is the chief's bed and her current duties consist of checking on any and all human and canine visitors to the fire house.

"The chief misses Penny just as much, if not more, than she misses him," a fireman stated. "When he is discharged from the hospital this afternoon, Penny you can bet will be there on the front steps to greet him."

Barkley's Plane

ing officer of the Air Force Headquarters command at Bolling Air base, authorized a statement describing the incident.

The airline, with a crew of six, had left Paducah at 5:25 p. m. Thursday with the vice president. First Lt. Elmer Witten, 29, of Lampasas, Texas, was co-pilot on the flight, made under visual flight rules, indicating clear weather.

When the plane passed Mount Vernon the pilot told a crew chief and assistant engineer to watch out for other aircraft.

"While the aircraft was in a normal traffic pattern flying at 1,000 feet over an area south of the Pentagon building and west of the National airport," the Bolling field statement said, "the right wing of the B-17 passed within 50 feet of and over the top portion lengthwise of a blimp.

"Co-Pilot Witten said 'the distance between the aircraft and the blimp was so close that the glare of the exhaust made a reflection on the top skin of the blimp."

"The co-pilot turned to the assistant flight engineer, Staff Sergeant Otheller B. Hoke, 39, Mineral Wells, Texas, who was in the engineer's position to the rear of Witten and said, 'That was close'."

Hoke also saw the blimp.

Sgt. Ted E. Elliott, 30, Portsmouth, Va., radio operator who was in the nose section of the B-17, said:

"There were no lights visible until we were over the blimp, then it lit up from its broadside with a glow of lights."

Lewis Makes Bid

with the operators at a news conference in New York Friday night. Their reaction then was there was little use resuming negotiations with Lewis.

The operators want a renewal of the old contract, expired last July 1, plus some concessions by Lewis.

Lewis wants more wages and shorter hours for miners, together with a boost in the 20-cent royalty on coal production which finances the welfare fund.

In the past few weeks Lewis has been trying to wangle a pace-setting agreement with one segment of the industry after another, but without success. The operators have stood firm on their position against any cost increase.

Conference Planned

Ching, federal mediation service director, was planning a new conference with the White House tomorrow.

It may be decided then which of three courses to follow:

(1) Seek to go ahead with contract talks with Lewis and the operators in hopes they will lead to a peace pact.

(2) Appointment by President Truman of a fact-finding board to recommend settlement terms, like the one which functioned in the recent steel dispute.

(3) Invoke the Taft-Hartley law emergency provision. This would also call for a fact board, but one lacking power to make recommendations. Its report would pave the way for a court injunction to block a new strike.

NEWS BRIEFS

Lubbock firemen answered three minor alarms on Sunday. The first, to McGuire's Drive In at 1313 Thirteenth street, came at 3:47 a. m. An electric motor was blamed for the call. At 1:33 p.m., firemen went to McKenzie park to put out burning grass and a fire at a foot bridge. At 5:55 p.m., the alarm came from 1200 block Fourteenth street, where 150 pounds of cotton in a pickup truck was burning. Damage was slight in all three calls.

Dr. and Mrs. R. Maurice Hood and two children, Billy, 18 months old, and David, a month and a half old, are visiting Dr. Hood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hood of 1119 Eighteenth. Dr. Hood will leave shortly for San Francisco, for further assignment to the Naval Base hospital at Guam. He is a lieutenant on active duty in the Navy Medical corps. Mrs. Hood and the two children will remain here for about a month.

Pickup Hits House

the street showed brakes were applied, but the pickup skidded 27 feet to the curb, and wound up about 25 feet from the curb against the porch pillar of Gilmore's house.

Hits Traffic Light

On the way in, the truck hit the regular "stop-go" traffic signal light post, sheared it off near the ground and carried it 25 feet. Still moving, the truck hit the left rear fender of Gilmore's 1940 Ford coach parked in the driveway and knocked the car about 15 feet.

The truck then turned sideways and came to rest facing north against the pillar of the porch. Gilmore and his family were awake by this time.

The pickup was damaged on the left front and right side, and the windshield was broken on the passenger's side. Bricks from the porch post also were scattered about. And one of the passengers was tossed from the car and left unconcious against the porch itself.

Live wires of the signal light were left exposed where the post was sheared off.

So as a word of caution from Gilmore and police—Nineteenth street is still a dead end street. Turn right or left when you come to Texas avenue. Don't go straight ahead. That's where Mr. Gilmore lives.

Mrs. F. H. Bauers, Pioneer, Dies Here

Mrs. Frank H. Bauers, 67, Lubbock county resident for 32 years, died at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, in St. Mary's hospital, after suffering a broken hip in a fall Wednesday at her farm home north of town.

Mrs. Bauers and her husband came to Lubbock in 1917. Until 1920, they managed the Merrill hotel, which was located at the site of the present Hilton hotel.

They managed the Cova hotel, located where the present Lubbock hotel stands, in 1922 and 1923. Since that time, Bauers has been farming.

Funeral arrangements are pending the arrival of a brother living in Chicago, but the services probably will be at the St. Elizabeth's Catholic church. McDonald and son Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

Survivors are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Haskell Speer of Lubbock; and a brother, Thomas O'Donnell, of Chicago.

Germans Talk

western Germany's participation in the defense of Western Europe. He replied:

"No. That matter was not discussed."

Acheson described results of his talks with the German leaders today as "very satisfactory."

He said he discussed the Paris decisions on the problems of Germany—including the key question of halting dismantling of German factories—and added cryptically:

"I have explained that at the meetings in Paris the foreign ministers gave the high commissioners authority over a wide field and that the high commissioners will go forward with that authority."

Germans Oppose Dismantling

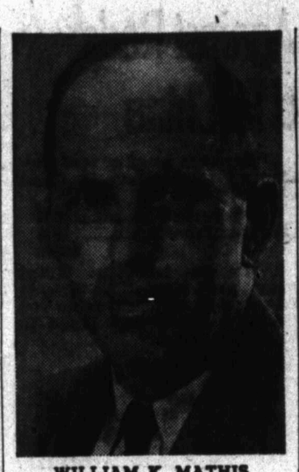

With German workers, who faced prospects of increased unemployment, German officials have been keenly opposed to continuation of the dismantling program and were reported to have proposed as an alternative payment of reparations out of current production.

The British and Americans are less opposed to halting dismantling than the French, who are understood to have agreed tentatively to changing the dismantling policy provided this move does not boost Germany's steel production level and does not jeopardize French security.

Acheson stressed to newsmen that the United States is anxious to help Western Germany but said the Germans must first help themselves.

He said the problem of unifying Eastern and Western Germany still lies with the Soviet-sponsored East German regime, recognition of which is not contemplated by the United States.

West German leaders were represented by a spokesman as feeling that the visit of Acheson to Bonn from Frankfurt, where he has been staying pending his return to Washington, was tantamount to the acceptance of western Germany, into the western diplomatic orbit.

Police Kept Busy

wound was slight.

Police locked up a 19-year-old negro man after finding him and a pistol at a house in the 100 block East Twenty-second street, and the investigation continued.

Then came the meat cleaver job. A negro woman identified as Pearl Carol Richardson, 38, of 1709 Ave. A was taken to Lubbock Memorial hospital with a gash in the top of her head.

She told police she did not wish to file charges against a 31-year-old negro man. Police reported she had fired three shots before the cleaver came into play in a cafe at 1714 Avenue A.

Police Handed Pistol

Police got the tip on this affray when an unidentified negro came up to their patrol car in the 1700 block Ave. A and reported a shooting, handing them a pistol.

The nightcap came about 10 p. m., and it was Frank Proctor, about 40, a negro from Bryan, who got it.

He told the sheriff's department that he hired two negroes to take him from Lubbock to the Roy Boyd farm where he was working as a cotton puller.

All went well until they reached the farm, Proctor said. He paid his fare of $2 and in the process dropped a box of matches.

He stooped for the matches and that's all he remembered until fellow cotton workers picked him up and brought him to West Texas hospital. He was treated for a laceration on his forehead. The sheriff's department said the blow apparently had been delivered with a sharp piece of metal. Proctor was not robbed.

While these four cases kept officers busy enough, they had a heavy run of drunks and other minor offenses, along with several automobile collisions. Both city and county jails were crowded with the offenders, a great number of them Latin-Americans in the area for the cotton harvest.

Burglars broke into the Chuck House cafe at 327 N. Ave. H, police were told at 9 a.m. Sunday, but apparently nothing had been taken. The break-in was reported by Clarence Wade.

A window was pried open on the south side of the building, and an unsuccessful attempt was made to remove money from a juke box.

Weldon Worthan of Abernathy route 1 told police that a .22 bolt action rifle and a school jacket were stolen in Lubbock. The items were valued at $35. The jacket, gold and green, bore the letters, ND.

Mrs. Sula Butler of 1712 Eighth street informed police of the theft of a gold locket from her home.

Theft of a 1940 black Ford coupe, AS4741, was reported by Billy Hall of 2412 Fifteenth street at 4:30 p.m. Sunday. He said the car was stolen from the 1000 block Broadway.

Recovery of a car stolen Saturday night was reported by police. The car, a 1941 Chevrolet sedan, was found wrecked in the city dump ground at 4:05 a.m. Sunday. E. M. Copp of 608 Twenty-third had reported the theft.

The sheriff's department said that a 1940 Chevrolet truck owned by Francisco Garcia was found abandoned Sunday morning on the Lubbock-Idalou highway after it had been stolen earlier in Lubbock.

South Texas Fair At Kingsville Reports New Attendance Record

KINGSVILLE, Nov. 13. (AP) — The South Texas fair and exposition ended today with 19,000 visitors, largest crowd of its six-day run. The crowds totalled nearly 100,000.

A survey of visitor opinion, conducted by Texas A & I college students, showed only one complaint—not enough drinking fountains.

Livestock exhibitors have asked for more space next year.

LORDS FACE POWER CURB

LONDON, Nov. 13. (AP) — The parliament bill, which strips the House of Lords of some of its authority, will receive its third reading and is expected to become law tomorrow. The bill cuts from two years to one the period in which the House of Lords may block measures adopted by the House of Commons.

Valley Farmers Turn Back Rat Invasion

RIO GRANDE CITY, Nov. 13. (AP)—A horde of rats is vanishing from Rio Grande valley tomato fields since farmers began garnishing their crops with poisoned grain.

"That poison does the business," grower Ralph Jones said today. "It's stopped the losses."

But you have to get up early in the morning to see the evidence.

Hawks, crows and cats innocently make away with the poisoned carcasses and probably wind up with severe cases of strychnine hangover.

The rats began swarming into tomato and green pepper fields near La Grulla about three weeks ago. They spread methodically up and down the Rio Grande until the invasion covered a 15-mile strip, one to two miles wide in places. First pickings were completely lost in several fields.

Then J. B. Talcott, Starr county farm agent, ordered poisoned grain to be placed at strategic spots in the fields. Farmers began using the grain last week. They're still doing it to save fields that will be ready for picking this week.

The damage already done by rats is serious. It takes in 2,000 irrigated and cultivated acres.

Soviet Ambassador Scores Baruch Plan

CHICAGO, Nov. 13. (INS)—Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin tonight charged that the Baruch plan for the control of atomic energy is "aimed at creating an American atomic supertrust."

Speaking before a meeting of the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Panyushkin lauded Russia's diplomatic policy as one of "peace and friendship among all the peoples of the world."

He criticized non-Soviet proposals for disarmament and the control of the atomic bomb and hinted an allegation that the North Atlantic pact was a definite step in the preparation for "a new war."

Declaring that Russia has long been a leader in the search for world peace and, more recently, in the problem of the control of atomic energy, Panyushkin said:

"As far back as at the first session of the General assembly (of the United Nations) in 1946 the Soviet Union submitted a proposal on the general reduction of armaments and prohibition of the use of atomic energy for military purposes." The Russian continued:

"As is known, the ruling circles of the countries which are planning a new war, did not dare to reject off-hand the humanitarian and peaceful proposals of the Soviet Union."

Panyushkin declared that these circles introduced a plan of their own which he termed — "the so-called Baruch plan."

16-YEAR-OLD CASE REVIVED

Woman Doctor To Seek Pardon, Denies Slaying Daughter-In-Law

By JOSEPH RAITI
INS Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Nov. 13—Dr. Alice Wynekoop vowed today she will spend her last days on earth in a final attempt to erase the murder charge that sent her to prison after the mysterious death of her daughter-in-law 16 years ago.

The 79-year-old Dr. Wynekoop, paroled in 1946 after serving 13 years of her 25-year term, announced her attorneys are preparing an appeal to Governor Adlai E. Stevenson.

Will Seek Pardon

They will attempt to obtain a pardon for the frail ex-convict in the case of Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, the wife of her son Earle, whose nude body was found on the doctor's operating table with a bullet in her back.

Dr. Wynekoop said:

"Before I die—and I haven't much time left—I want a full pardon. I didn't kill her and I don't know who did. I was innocent, but I served 13 years and nine months in prison for the crime."

The mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of young Earle's pretty wife were brought to the attention of police on Nov. 21, 1933, when they were called by the undertaker Dr. Wynekoop had summoned to remove the body.

Police questioned the woman doctor for two days. They wanted to know why she had called the mortician before notifying police and why she told them there were no insurance policies on Rheta when actually there were policies for $11,000.

Police cleared the young woman's playboy husband of any connection with the case on the basis of a trip to Kansas City he made at the time.

Unaware that her son had been exonerated, Dr. Wynekoop broke down after days of questioning and signed a confession. In it she explained that Rheta had been ill and had submitted to a physical examination by her mother-in-law.

Dr. Wynekoop said she allowed the girl to sniff chloroform to deaden the pain and that the patient died from an overdose. The physician said she fired a bullet into the lifeless body to cover up her bungling.

The Chicago criminal court jury which heard the case found her guilty of murder in 1934 and she was sentenced to 25 years in the Illinois women's reformatory at Dwight.

Defense attorneys contended the chloroform story has been proved false since Rheta's body showed not a single trace of chloroform. They ruled out the insurance motive on grounds that Dr. Wynekoop owned $100,000 worth of real estate.

The new appeal for a pardon will be based on their contention that the doctor "confessed" in belief that she was saving her favorite child Earle from prosecution.

Earle is now dead, the victim of a Colorado auto crash. Also dead is Dr. Wynekoop's older son Walker who succumped a year ago from cancer. Still living is her daughter Dr. Catherine, a married, practicing physician who is her mother's support.

Billy Carle, 34, a barrow boy in London's Piccadilly Circus took a night off to go to the dog races, ran his last $24 up to $4,400 and at 3 a. m. next morning was back

Chennault Expects Chungking To Fall

TOKYO, Nov. 13 (AP)—Arriving in Tokyo for a two or three-day visit, Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault declared today, "Chungking is the most seriously-threatened spot in China right now."

Asked how long he thought the Nationalist capital could hold out against the Communists, the retired U. S. Army general said he gave it "one to six months."

Chennault declined comment on the purpose of his visit to Japan but said it was not connected with his Civil Air transport line in China. He came from Hong Kong via Formosa in one of his line's planes.

He said he expected to see General MacArthur but no date had yet been set.

Texas Solon Rapped By Russian Papers

MOSCOW, Nov. 13. (AP)—Three leading Soviet newspapers today lashed out editorially at Rep. Poage (D-Texas) for his proposal that the United States maintain a mercenary German army as a bulwark against Russia.

The newspapers are Izvestia, the government organ; Pravda, the official paper of the Communist party, and Red Star, the Russian army paper.

They assailed Poage as representing a "breed of cannibals," and called him "bookkeeper of death."

(Poage disclosed his views Nov. 8 in a newly issued appendix to the Congressional Record. He said an army of German mercenaries would be the "most practical and most hopeful method" of preventing war.)

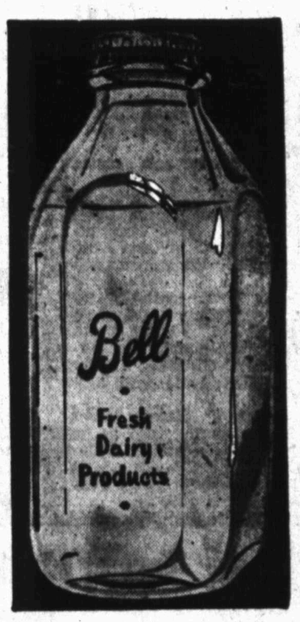

Izvestia declared "It's true that Poage does not report how many cents exactly a German head will cost on Wall Street." The newspaper said speculators on Wall Street "sell everything and buy just one thing—blood—the blood of Germans and Japanese."

Littlefield Plays Slaton Here Friday In District 4A Title Game

Jones Stadium Decided On At Meeting Held Sunday

By CHOC HUTCHESON
Avalanche Sports Writer

The Littlefield Wildcats and Slaton Tigers will meet at 2:30 p. m. Friday at Jones Stadium in Lubbock for the District 4-A football championship.

Use of the neutral field for the title playoff game was agreed on Sunday at a meeting of school officials in the Hilton hotel.

Other major arrangements for the game also were made at Sunday's meeting, at which Joe C. Hutchinson and P. L. Vardy, superintendents of schools at Littlefield and Slaton,

Ticket Prices Announced

Ticket prices, tax included, will be $1 for adults, 50 cents for Texas Tech students, and 30 cents for high school students.

There will be no reserved seats.

Ducats will go on sale later this week in Littlefield, Slaton and Lubbock, at sites to be announced when tickets are ready for distribution.

Officials Are Chosen

At Sunday's meeting, the east stand of Jones stadium was designated as the Slaton section, while Littlefield partisans were assigned the west stand.

Texas Tech will receive a rental fee of $150 from the competing schools.

J. S. Fikes, coach of the north half champion Littlefield team, and Clarence Tillery, mentor of the Slaton eleven which captured the south zone flag, agreed on game officials for the playoff tilt at the conclusion of Sunday's session.

Assigned to officiate were Harvey Dunn, referee; Curtis Barrett, umpire; M. O. Pittman, head linesman; and Earl Ince, field judge. All reside in Lubbock.

Other school representatives at Sunday's meeting were Bill Barnett, assistant coach, and J. H. Freeman, high school principal, both of Slaton, and Forrest Martin and Pat Patterson, assistant coaches, and Jack Yarbrough, school board member, all of Littlefield.

The winner of Friday's fray will advance to the bi-district round of the state Class A grid playoff. Should the game end in a tie, the victor will be decided on the customary Interscholastic league basis: (1) 20-yard line penetrations, (2) first downs, (3) yardage gained from scrimmage.

Littlefield and Slaton clinched their zone championships with victories last week. The Wildcats downed Levelland, 20-13, to bring their overall season record to seven triumphs, one loss and one tie. Slaton won the 4-A South crown by edging out Post, 7-6. Since losing their first three starts this year, the Tigers have won six in a row, including four in conference competition.

The 4-A champion will go against the District 3-A kingpin in the bi-district round next week.

At present, Spur is the 3-A leader, with Floydada, Lockney and Crosbyton in contention. The title may be decided Friday night when Spur invades Floydada. Spur can take the crown outright with a victory, while a Floydada triumph will send the race into a three-way, or perhaps four-way, deadlock. Should a first-place tie occur, the District 3-A playoff representative will be determined by lot.

Last week's play completed the regular schedule in both zones of District 4-A. Final results were:

Trinity Makes Gulf Coast Title Bid Against Houston Saturday

(By The Associated Press)

Trinity makes its bid for a share of the Gulf Coast Conference championship this week against University of Houston.

These teams play at Houston Saturday. Houston U. already is out of the race, but Trinity, which has lost its only start in conference play, could wind up in a deadlock with Hardin and North Texas State for first by winning its next two games—against Houston U. and Hardin Nov. 24.

North Texas State goes outside the conference to play its traditional rival, East Texas State of the Lone Star Conference, at Commerce Saturday. North Texas already has clinched at least a tie for second place with two wins and one loss.

Last week Hardin crushed Oklahoma City university 60-16 in an inter-sectional game while North Texas State was eliminating University of Houston 28-23. Trinity played a scoreless tie with East Texas State.

Jack Barry of Hardin went ahead in the scoring race as he counted 18 points against Oklahoma City U. He now has a total of 65. Ned McNeil of North Texas State is second with 54.

Spur Almost Has Crown

Coach Sam Hawkes' Spur Bulldogs are just one step from the District 3-A grid crown—but that one step is a big one.

The Bulldogs can pull down the pennant this week by defeating Floydada's Whirlwinds. That, however, is quite an assignment in itself, particularly since the game is to be played at Floydada.

Four Way Tie Possible

Spur took over undisputed possession of top spot in 3-A last week by dumping Ralls, 29-0 while Floydada was dropping a 14-6 verdict to Crosbyton.

A win for Spur Friday night would close out the championship race. However, should Floydada trip the Bulldogs, the scramble will end in a three-way deadlock and should Crosbyton come through with a triumph over Ralls, it would be a four-way tie.

District 3-A officials agreed at the beginning of the current season that if three or more teams tie for first place, the district representative in the state playoff will be chosen by lot.

Three Games Friday

Teams retaining a chance for a share of the title are Spur, Floydada, Lockney, and Crosbyton.

Lockney finished its schedule last week by trouncing Paducah, 19-7. It was the sixth win against two setbacks for the defending champion Longhorns in conference play.

In the other 3-A tilt last week, Tulia turned back Abernathy, 13-7.

In addition to Spur-Floydada and Ralls-Crosbyton, this week's docket lists Paducah at Matador.

McMurry Can Clinch Texas Title Saturday

(By The Associated Press)

McMurry's Indians this week can sew up their second straight Texas Conference championship, but Brad Rowland will have to score and score if he wants to end up the nation's leading scorer.

Howard Payne went down to the Indians, 27-6, last week, but Rowland failed to score a point. His total for the year stands at 108 points.

Austin college upset Abilene Christian, 27-14, and Texas A & I squeezed past Southwestern, 7-3, in other games.

McMurry meets Southwestern Saturday night and Austin takes on Texas A & I. Howard Payne and Abilene Christian are idle.

Floyd Sampson and Weldon Day led McMurry to victory last week. Sampson scored two touchdowns and Day scored one and kicked three extra points.

John Duke paced Austin's victory, blasting over for two touchdowns to run his total for the year to nine. Sampson and Gene Greene, Texas A & I, also have 54 points each. Alton Green has 60 and Day 59.

Menke scored A & I's lone touchdown, while Koch booted a field goal for Southwestern.

Crane Stands In Way, While Andrews Has Outside Chance

Wink Wildcats Need One Win To Become District 5A Champs

Wink's high-scoring Wildcats retained their spot at the head of the District 5-A grid standings last week by grinding out a convincing 34-12 triumph over the Kermit Yellowjackets.

The Wildcats, boasting a 7-1 record in district play, now need only a victory over Crane this week to walk off with all the marbles.

Andrews, with six wins, one loss and a tie, is the only club with a chance to overtake the top-rung Wildcats. The Mustangs close out their regular schedule Friday afternoon at Seminole.

Andrews smothered McCamey, 33-0, last week while Seminole was blanking last-place Denver City, 14-0. In other tussles, Monahans outlasted Crane, 12-7, and Pecos whipped Fort Stockton, 24-13.

This week's slate, in addition to the games listed above, finds Pecos at Monahans and Fort Stockton at McCamey. Kermit faces Hobbs' Eagles, currently the top-ranked team in New Mexico.

Detroit Beats St. Louis 31-14 In Mo-Val Tilt

DETROIT, Nov. 13 (INS)—University of Detroit moved closer to the Missouri Valley Conference title today in whipping the St. Louis university eleven, 31 to 14, before 7,382 fans at U. of D. Stadium.

The Titans must take a victory at Wichita Thanksgiving Day to become undisputed conference leaders.

Today's victory not only gave U of D its .500 mark for the season, but also was the eleventh Titan win over the Billikens since 1920.

Halfback Ed McCluskey, 190-pound St. Louis U sophomore, scored both Billiken touchdowns despite a hampering knee injury.

Mike Kaysserian, one of 14 U of D seniors playing their last home game, sparked the Titan squad.

The Detroit team collected 244 yards rushing and 136 yards through the air, as compared with 112 on the ground and 121 passing marked up for the visitors.

DIMMITT FINISHES SECOND

Olton Mustangs, With District 3-B Title Clinched, Await Bi-District

With the District 3-B scramble all but over, the records show that Olton's Mustangs well deserve the championship pennant they nailed down two weekends ago.

Coach T. M. Cox's Mustangs downed defending champion Hale Center 19-8, last week to round out a perfect nine-game conference record. In addition to the circuit's only unblemished won-lost standing, the Ponies boast the loop's top offensive and defensive marks.

Olton has scored 283 points while allowing the opposition only 27 in district play. Dimmitt, second in the standings, is runnerup in both point total departments, with a 243 to 63 record against 3-B opposition.

Dimmitt clinched second place last week with a 27-0 triumph over Spade, while Springlake took third by trimming Farwell, 20-0.

Only one game remains on the 3-B slate. Hale Center journeys to Anton this week in the season finale.

Olton will open its bid for the regional Class B crown against the winner of District 4-B. At present, unbeaten, untied Meadow is leading in 4-B, but New Deal and Whiteface still have a chance to gain a tie for the crown.

Quarterbackers To Hear Coaches Tell About Friday Tilts

Quarterback club members expect to get the lowdown on the Lubbock 7 to 6 victory over Odessa when they meet in the Lubbock hotel at 8 tonight for their usual weekly meeting.

Looming as the principal speaker on the program is Coach C. R. Pattison of Lubbock High school, whose Westerners remained undefeated in the District 3-AA race by only a hair Friday afternoon. Lubbock had to come from under a 6-0 deficit in the second half to bring out victory.

Also on hand to explain away a 26-6 loss to San Angelo will be Coach Damon Hill of Dunbar. The Panthers turned in a creditable performance in holding the heavily favored visitors to that score, but Coach Hill will be asked to tell about the game.

Coach Allie White of Texas Tech's freshman team also will be on a spot. He'll have the task of explaining that 21-13 victory the Hardin-Simmons Buttons turned in Friday at Abilene. It was the second defeat of the season for the Picadors, who also have won just two. They have one to go.

Without a game last weekend, Coach Dell Morgan will be off the hotspot. He will be called on to predict the outcome of the New Mexico game this Saturday and possibly to explain the Hardin-Simmons loss to West Texas State at Canyon.

Pictures of some game played this year will round out the program.

District Titles Will Be Decided In Schoolboy Play This Week

Four Races Hinge On Single Games

By WILBUR MARTIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Doors swing open to district throne rooms this week in schoolboy football.

At least four championships hinge on the results of single games. Several other clubs can about close out competitors.

The big games match Wichita Falls and Vernon for the District Two title; Baytown and Galveston for District 12; Austin and Corpus Christi for District 14 and Temple and Corsicana for District 13 All of these game sare in Class AA.

The City Conference race can be a puzzle right down to the Nov. 26 deadline for certifying champions, if the right combination comes up.

Thomas Jefferson of San Antonio took a healthy step toward the San Antonio title in the City Conference last week beating San Antonio Tech, 20-13.

John Reagan of Houston had its title hopes jarred on a 6-0 loss to Lamar of Houston.

Sunset of Dallas has clinched at least a tie for this title, while in Fort Worth there are a couple of clubs in the running.

Paris cinched the District 7-AA championship with a 13-7 victory over Gainesville last week. Virtually "in" as district winners are Lubbock, Highland Park (Dallas), Alice and Harlingen, which can make it official by beating Brownsville this week.

Wichita Falls, Port Arthur, Corsicana and Lubbock are the only undefeated, untied teams in the Big Two divisions of the Interscholastic League's football program. Baytown, a narrow, 14-13, winner over Freeport last week is unbeaten, but tied. John Reagan dropped out of this classification.

Lubbock had to come from behind to win over Odessa, 7-6, but the victory virtually assured it honors in District 3-AA.

Port Arthur and Beaumont pace District 11-AA, and their meeting will decide this championship.

Austin of El Paso leads District 4-AA, Abilene 5-AA, Breckenridge 6-AA and Lufkin and Conroe 8-AA.

Some of the top games this week include:

Sunset-Woodrow Wilson (both of Dallas); Carter-Riverside-poly (both of Fort Worth; Reagan-San Jacinto (both of Houston); Lubbock-Midland; Yaleta-Bowie (El Paso); Abilene-Big Spring; Breckenridge-Mineral Wells; Texarkana-Kilgore; Palestine-Conroe; Port Neches-Beaumont; Alice-Laredo.

Cowboys, Sun Devils Tied For Second

Buffaloes Lift Raiders Into Border Lead

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 13. — A rampaging Buffalo herd from West Texas State college pushed Texas Tech into first place in the Border Conference.

The Buffs did it by dumping the Cowboys of Hardin-Simmons university 19-7 Saturday—the first time they've downed the crew from Abilene since 1924.

Tempe In Salad Bowl

That left the Cowboys tied for second place with the Sun Devils of Arizona State college at Tempe who thumped a slightly favored University of Arizona eleven 34-7 at Tempe. The Devils, who concluded their conference schedule are assured of at least a share of second place and perhaps a tie for first. They also become host club for the 1950 Salad Bowl game at Phoenix.

Texas Tech has three conference victories and no defeats. Hardin-Simmons' loss dropped H-SU into a second place tie with Arizona State. Each has a 4-1 record.

Day Of Upsets

It was a day of upsets all around, with a single exception. The New Mexico Aggies defeated Arizona State at Flagstaff, as expected, 35-0. Other eye-openers saw an improving New Mexico university squad spill favored Colorado of the Big Seven, 17-15, and an underdog Texas Western club tie West Virginia, 13-13.

As the conference race now stands to date, Texas Tech has two games left—against New Mexico next Saturday and Hardin-Simmons the following week. H-SU has left only the game with the Raiders of Tech. Arizona State at Tempe has finished its conference schedule. Other teams have no chance of winning or sharing in the border title.

Tech Needs Two

Tech can win undisputed possession of a third straight crown with two victories. Should Hardin-Simmons beat Tech, H-SU would take the title as the Cowboys play one more game than the Raiders. If Tech should lose to New Mexico and beat H-SU, the Raiders and the Sun Devils would share the top spot.

The two additional games involving Border teams this week are both non-conference. Arizona plays host to the strong Michigan State Spartans and New Mexico A & M entertains Colorado A & M.

Lamesa Back Is Schoolboy Star

DALLAS, Nov. 13. (AP) — Two linemen—End James Gist of Marshall and Tackle Art Alderson of Galveston—won top honors in the Dallas Morning News' weekly roundup of schoolboy stars.

Gist caught seven passes from Quarterback Jack McMurry for 102 yards in Marshall's 19-to-0 victory over Longview. Townsend Miller of the Marshall News-Messenger said Gist "played his usual great game on defense and his offensive play this week firmly established his as one of the greatest ends to come out of E... T... in years." Tony Zoppi of the Longview News agreed, pointing out that Gist's "circus catches" set up all three touchdowns and adding that "Gist is All-State in anybody's book."

Alderson was "a whiz on both defense and offense" according to Bill Johnson of the Galveston Tribune. Johnson reported that the big Galveston tackle set up two touchdowns with fumble recoveries, that he intercepted a pass, was in on the majority of tackles and did some fine blocking. Alderson also kicked four extra points as Galveston beat Pasadena, 28 to 7.

Schoolboy stars nominations are made by sportswriters throughout the state. Other stars on this week's honor roll:

Ronald Fraley, Sweetwater back: Scored three touchdowns on runs of 4, 35 and 46 yards as Sweetwater upset San Angelo, 27 to 14. Fraley carried the ball 20 times for a total of 151 yards, returned a punt 32 yards and played a great defensive game.

Dick Echols, Lamesa back: Gained 110 yards rushing in nine carries as Lamesa beat Brownfield, 25 to 0.

Dickens Watches Wilson Game This Week In Hopes Of Tie

DICKENS, Nov. 13. (Special)—Dickens High school's six-man football team today awaited the oucome of Friday night's Roaring Springs-Wilson tilt at Wilson with hopes of a Roaring Springs upset victory that would leave the 4-B race in a three-way tie.

Dickens closed out its regular schedule last week with an impressive 54-20 triumph over McAdoo. It was the local aggregation's sixth win against one setback this season.

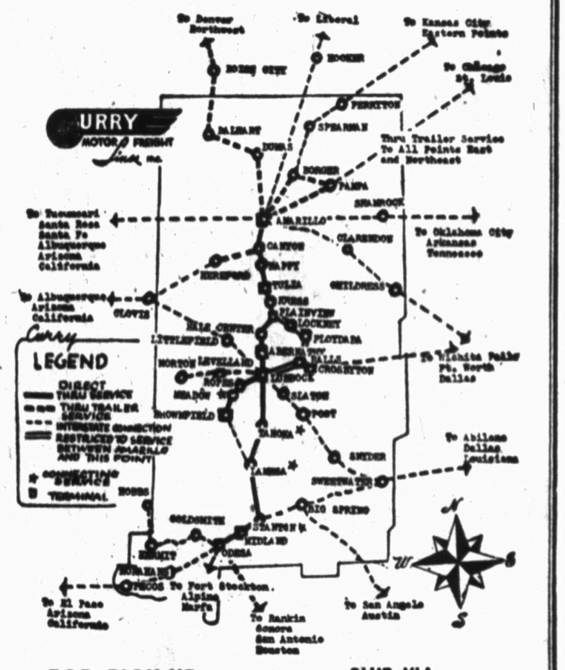

John L. Koonsman paced the Dickens attack, along with Mickey Green, a lineman who was shifted into the backfield for the tilt because of injuries to other Dickens backs.

Bird sparked McAdoo's offense, while Ross was the visitors' defensive standout.

RAMS MANAGE TIE

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 13. (INS)— The Los Angeles Rams finally managed to score with 25 seconds left to play today to gain a 7 to 7 tie with the Pittsburgh Steelers in a mud-splattered National Football League game in Pittsburgh.

Four Teams Still In SWC Race But Rice Owls In Driver's Seat

TCU, Baylor And SMU In Running

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

The Southwest Conference football race, with the Cotton Bowl pot of gold at the end, enters its final two weeks with four teams still in the fight, but two of them holding only a bare chance. The Rice Owls still are thunderous favorites to take the title.

Rice peers from its unbeaten vantage point at Texas Christian and Baylor—the last foes on the schedule. Baylor has lost one game, Texas Christian two. Southern Methodist has dropped one and tied one.

Three Teams Out

Texas, Arkansas and Texas A. and M. are through. Texas and A. and M. waits until Thanksgiving Day to play their final game. Only the tradition of an ancient struggle gives this game any prominence at all.

Arkansas has finished up its conference slate with two wins and four losses and looks toward intersectional games with William and Mary and Tulsa before ringing down the curtain.

Upset At Austin

Rice went its methodical way Saturday with a 13-0 victory over Texas A. and M. Southern Methodist licked Arkansas 34-6 with one of its better performances. But the upset came at Austin where Texas Christian outfought Texas 14-13.

Figure this out please: Baylor beats Texas Christian 40-14, Texas whams Baylor 20-0, yet Texas Christian wins over Texas. That's Southwest Conference football in November.

While a full slate of conference games was being played, Baylor was wrecking Wyoming's undefeated, untied record with a 32-7 victory to bring the Southwest's intersectional record for the season to 13 wins, 5 losses and 1 tie. Arkansas' tilts with William and Mary and Tulsa and Southern Methodist's clash with Notre Dame Dec. 3 are the last games against outside foes on the schedule. If the Southwest wins these it will give the circuit its best intersectional record in history.

Two Loop Games

The Arkansas-William and Mary tussle will be at Little Rock Saturday.

In conference struggles Rice and Texas Christian get together at Fort Worth, while Baylor travels to Dallas to engage Southern Methodist.

Doak Walker was the big star of the conference last week. He put on a great show against Arkansas, scoring three touchdowns, kicking three extra points, passing for 113 yards and one touchdown, carrying the ball 18 times for 98 yards and averaging 49.0 yards punting.

Sophomore Billy Burkhalter was Rice's mighty man in the conquest of Texas A. and M. He roamed for 109 yards and tallied both touchdowns. The Aggies' bulldozing, Bob Smith, was stopped without a score. Smith managed for 45 yards carrying the ball, however.

Burk Stars Again

Homer Ludiker, who does nothing except kick extra points, was the difference in TCU's win over Texas. He planted two between the crossbars. Lindy Berry sparked the Christians with 44 yards rushing and 86 passing, making one touchdown and setting up the other. Paul Campbell of Texas passed for 181 yards and both Longhorn scores.

Adrian Burk, who passed for 138 yards, set up three Baylor touchdowns. Bobby Griffin contributed largely to the Bear victory, his 88-yard touchdown run with an intercepted pass breaking Wyoming's back.

Walker climbed within two points of the conference lead in scoring. He now has 62 points. Randy Clay of Texas has 64.

MAJOR TEAMS CONSIDERED

Bowl Game Officials Are Doing Their New Year's Shopping Now

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (INS)—Officials of the annual major post-season bowl classics are doing their New Year's shopping early as usual this season, but as yet no definite selections have been made.

Every year about this time, when the college football campaign nears the wire, speculation arises as to which teams will gain the prestige and loot that go with an invitation to one of the bowl games.

The big four of the post-season classics are the Rose, Cotton, Sugar and Orange bowl encounters.

Out on the West Coast, California's undefeated Bears are front-runners for a bid to the 36th Annual Tournament of Roses at Pasadena. But the Bears have a toughie coming up next Saturday in Stanford.

The Indians have lost one Pacific Coast Conference game and one outside the conference. U.C.L.A.'s record is similar to Stanford's.

If Stanford beats California and U.C.L.A. takes Southern California, the race will end in a tie. Theoretically only conference games count in the selection with the team going to the Rose Bowl last getting the least preference.

Independents Considered

That would work against the Bears, since they represented the Coast last Jan. 1.

Among the independents, undefeated College of the Pacific and Santa Clara are the standouts.

The West Coast's opposition must come from the Big Ten, according to an agreement between the two conferences.

Ohio State plays Michigan Saturday for the championship of the Big Ten, but no matter who wins, the Buckeyes are closest in line for the bid.

Michigan went to the Rose Bowl in 1948 and there's a three-year "gimmick" rule that prohibits them from returning.

Outside possibilities are Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Rice Has Edge

Rice seems to have the inside track on the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. Beaten once along with Baylor, the issue between the two Southwest kingpins should be settled two weeks hence when they meet.

The possible guest list includes undefeated Oklahoma, Stanford, and undefeated Virginia.

The lineup for the Sugar and Orange Bowl games at New Orleans and Miami, respectively, is tremendous.

Some of the aforementioned teams are candidates along with Tulane, Kentucky and Tennessee.

These three teams are the only ones in the Southeastern Conference that are eligible for bowl bids. A conference rule says that a team must win three-fourths of its league games to accept a bid.

Tennessee has lost one conference game to Georgia Tech. The Volunteers have Kentucky and Vanderbilt left on their schedule.

Kentucky Is Scouted

Both Tulane and Kentucky are unbeaten in sectional competition. The Green Wave has one league game left against LSU.

The Colonels have two games to go. The Conference approved a request that its game with Miami count as a league contest, since Kentucky only plays five league games and six are required.

Orange Bowl officials scouted Kentucky's game with Florida last Saturday which the Colonels won 35 to 0.

In the Southern Conference, Maryland is a top contender. It has lost only one game, to Michigan State, and last Saturday knocked Boston U. from the ranks of the undefeated.

NAMED PGA GOLFER OF YEAR — That broad smile on the face of Slammin' Sammy Snead is genuine. He had just been told of his selection as golfer of the year in a PGA-conducted nationwide poll. Beside him in the shop of the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where he is head pro, is the PGA trophy.

Spotlight On Big Ten, Pacific Coast

College Grid Teams Making Final Bids

NEW YORK, Nov 13—(AP)—College footballers shoot the works this Saturday and Thanksgiving Day in final bids for conference championships, bowl berths and the glory of perfect campaigns.

There will be scattered firing after then, but almost every league race will be decided in dramatic duels Saturday and a week from Thursday.

Rose Bowl At Stake

Although there will be heated competition all over the nation, the spotlight naturally falls on the four big battles in the Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conference. In these showdown affairs, league titles and the Rose Bowl nominations will be at stake.

In the Big Ten Ohio State (4-1) tackles Michigan (4-1) and Wisconsin's surprising Badgers (3-1-1) tilt with the bulky Gophers of Minnesota (3-2). In the Far West, California's all-conquering Bears (6-0) face the keyed-up young Indians of Stanford (4-1) and UCLA's Bruins (5-1) meet the Trojans of Southern California, who are out of the running.

If California and Ohio State win, the league faces and bowl teams will be automatically decided. Otherwise there's liable to be complications since Michigan is ineligible for the Rose Bowl.

Dozen Upsets Registered

These collisions, and others on the program, should be something to see, judging by Saturday's fireworks. At least a dozen upsets were registered, headed by Dartmouth's 16-7 victory over previously all-winning, sixth-ranking Cornell, and Oregan State's last quarter triumph over eighth-ranking Michigan State.

Other shockers, large and small, included Nebraska 7, Iowa State 0; Auburn tying Georgia, 20-20; North Carolina State 27, Wake Forest 14; Texas Christian 14, Texas 13; Tulsa 10, San Francisco 0; New Mexico 17, Colorado 15; Syracuse 47, Holy Cross 13; The Citadel 19, Virginia Military 14; Virginia Tech 28, Richmond 13 and Arizona State (Tempe) 34 U. of Arizona 7.

Two Powers Beaten

Cornell and Michigan State were the only two members of the country's first ten to bow, but Boston U. and Wyoming joined Cornell in the once-beaten class. Boston was edged 14-13 by Maryland's fine, once-defeated club, and Wyoming was clipped, but good, by Baylor, 32-7.

Only six major teams, including the big four, are left with all-winning stakes. They are Notre Dame, Army, Oklahoma, and California, the nation's first four ranking teams in order, tenth-rated Virginia, and College of Pacific, the little wonders of the Pacific Coast.

Army almost got bounced out by fired-up Pennsylvania. The Cadets just squeezed by 14-13 for their 19th consecutive game without defeat.

Notre Dame was given the fight of its life by North Carolina for one half. Then the awesome power of the Irish asserted itself and the Notre Damers went on to a 42-6 victory and its 35th straight unbeaten contest.

Oklahoma rolled past Missouri, 27-7, en route to another bowl berth. The Sooners captured the Big Seven championship again and racked up their 18th win in a row.

Upsets Sunday Block Roads To Pro Flag Bids For Rams, Browns

Steelers And Bills Tie Both Leaders

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. — Upsets blocked the road for the Los Angeles Rams and the Cleveland Browns in their National Football League and All America Conference title bids today.

Los Angeles, Western Division pace-setters in the National League, was tied by the Pittsburgh Steelers, 7-7. The Browns, front-runners in the All-America Conference, were held to a 7-7 standoff by Buffalo.

Last Minute Score

The Rams gained their stalemate in the 11th hour, Fred Gehrke cracking over from the one on second down with only 24 seconds of play remaining in the last quarter. Bob Waterfield converted to tie it up.

Cleveland rolled to a touchdown in the first period with Otto Graham crossing over on a quarterback sneak. The Bills tied it up in the second, Chet Mutryn skirting right end with the marker.

The unexpected results cut Los Angeles' edge over the Chicago Bears to one and one-half games and sliced Cleveland's lead over the New York Yankees to a half game. The Bears withstood the Detroit Lions, 27-24 and the Yanks stopped the Chicago Hornets, 14-10.

Other Results Given

Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Eagles, Eastern Division leaders in the National, flattened the Washington Redskins, 44-21, while the runner-up New York Giants conked the Green Bay Packers, 30-10. [illegible] the Eagles by two games. In the other National League game the Chicago Cardinals [illegible] New York Bulldogs, 65-20.

San Francisco's 49ers, after a stiff first half duel, went to town in the final half and crushed the Los Angeles Dons, 41-24, in the remaining All America Conference game.

The 65 points scored by the Cardinals were the most ever tallied in a regular season game in the league.

Meadow, Last Unbeaten Class B Eleven On Plains, Faces Lions

Meadow's high-flying Bronchos, the only perfect-record Class B team on the South Plains, face the last hurdle in their path to the District 4-B crown this week when they face the powerful New Deal Lions.

New Deal currently is tied with Whiteface for second place, just one game off Meadow's torrid pace. The Lions, by upsetting Meadow, could clinch a tie, while Whiteface could make it a three-way deadlock by defeating Ropesville.

Coach Lloyd Hunt's Meadow crew coasted to an easy 46-7 win over Frenship last week in a final "tune-up" for this week's crucial clash with New Deal.

In other 4-B games, Whiteface downed a stubborn Cooper team, 25-13, and New Deal blanked Petersburg, 26-0. Ropesville, playing without the services of its star back, Kenneth Means, dropped a 26-12 non-conference go to the Lubbock Pioneers.

Petersburg tries the Lubbock Pioneer squad this week, while Idalou journeys to Happy for another non-district joust. Frenship is at Plains for the game which will decide the 1949 cellar occupant.

SECURITY MOVE

German Re-armament

THE first meager reports from the U. S.-British-French foreign ministers' conference in Paris last week encourage optimism that the conversations have marked definite progress toward increased security from whatever threat the Soviet States may pose to the democracies.

The clear implication emerging from the conference was an agreement that the first line of defense of the democracies in case of attack should be the very edge of the Iron Curtain. The general idea seems to be that the democracies will be safest if they are prepared to strike the instant the Soviet attempts a belligerent move outside its domain.

Any such planning as this naturally must consider and should utilize to the fullest whatever strength can be recruited from Western Germany to aid in repelling the first attacks and, if possible, to carry the war instantly into enemy territory. It is a plan which seems to dictate, as the course of common sense, a limited rearmament of the Western Germans so that they would have something with which to fight in case of attack. They could and probably would be an extremely potent force for the democracies because they have more a score to settle with Russia than with any other nation.

The certainty that any proposed armament of any portion of Germany would encounter opposition was apparent from the outset. The French, in particular, have good reasons to fear any move that would place any sort of weapons in the hands of Germans.

But it seems self-evident that the chief threat to the democratic world now, and for long to come, is and will be Russia rather than Germany. If the Germans can be used to reduce that danger, it would be foolish not to do so—but making sure of sufficient safeguards to guarantee that nothing reminiscent of Nazi-ism will be given the opportunity to rise again.

The Krug Resignation

NOT even his most ardent admirers are likely to claim that Secretary of the Interior Julius A. Krug, who has resigned effective Dec. 1, will be ranked among the great figures who have served in presidential cabinet positions.

But even his critics probably will concede that he is well above the average of the cabinet members of the New Deal regime which started in 1932. His outstanding abilities are conceded and the diligence and conscientiousness of the service he has rendered are beyond question. He has devoted such time and effort to his duties that his health has suffered, according to reports to Washington.

However, there is a good deal of speculation among those close to the Washington scene concerning Mr. Krug's hopes and plans. Health consideraticns unquestionably might be an ample and entirely plausible explanation for his retirement. So also would be the fact that, beyond doubt, he can earn more money outside the government than in it.

But there could be another intriguing factor which might have contributed to his decision to resign. It is an open secret that Mr. Krug's ambition to be President is almost an obsession. As a member of the cabinet, the door to the realization of that ambition would remain closed as long as the possibility remained that Mr. Truman might be available as a candidate.

As a private citizen, Mr. Krug will have much greater freedom in any effort he might make toward the realization of his White House ambitions. He might maneuver to put himself in better position to seek the nomination if President Truman is unavailable or unacceptable in 1954.

True, political considerations may not have entered at all into Mr. Krug's decision to resign. But they are a possibility and a "Krug for President" boom would not be surprising further down the line.

When a man gets a stronger economic footing he immediately quits walking and starts riding.

Voluntary cash contributions in a campaign are sometimes not as voluntary as they sound.

The Cameo

I

PERCHED on the platform of a tall stepladder, Hagar Blair found her eyes level with the long, narrow window near the ceiling of her storeroom. As she gazed outward, her strong, tanned fingers fumbled with a useless pencil, passing the ruptured point idly across the face of the inventory pad propped on her knees.

She had called for extra pencils, and presumed that Stephanie, her young assistant in the Three Wishes Gift Shop, was getting them. "From Timbuktu, probably," she muttered.

While waiting for the boat to land, one could, of course, look out the window and enjoy the view. That was the nice thing about Dolorosa — wherever you looked, you saw something worth looking at. The little town was spread out in bright patches over rolling terrain—its backdrop, the hills in October colors; its foreground, the Pacific Ocean.

So it was that Hagar, a disciple of Rodin, an acolyte of Malvina Hoffman, was engaged in the bothersome process of listing and storing away summer stock in the rear of her small shop.

She thought about Stephanie! The girl was gentle, beautiful, and intelligent, but somehow, unfathomable. Occasionally, she reminded Hagar of a cat, a Siamese cat, because of her coloring and lithe, strong body.

Not only did she not fathom the girl, Hagar didn't even know where she came from, or exactly why. Stephanie had seemed to spring up all of a sudden like a wild mushroom. She had nothing to say about herself, except that she was a writer and that she had come to Dolorosa to work and write.

Hagar had been pleased at the prospect of helping a struggling young writer, she had pictured consultations, late coffee and comraderie, but the girl hadn't entered into the spirit of the thing. She never brought her writings to Hagar for advice or criticism, she was downright secretive about her writings.

Hagar's thoughts came whirling back to the half-finished inventory.

"Great graven gods! Are you getting those pencils, Stephanie?"

Stephanie glided in, her walk much swifter than usual, her crystal-blue eyes much wider. Her slender hands with their short, pale nails were clasped tightly in front of her—and she carried no pencils!

Hagar promptly started down the stepladder with jerky movements of her bony, slack-clad legs.

Stephanie had put a finger across her lips: "He's out there," she whispered, "the man Neil O'Neill's always with!"

"Who?"

"That Martin Falter!"

HAGAR frowned. "So what? So it's Martin Falter," she whispered back. "He's been in here before—you've seen him before. Don't tell me you've fallen for that fur-trimmed old renegade!"

She brushed past Stephanie and went out to confront the visitor. She rammed her fists into her pockets as she advanced to where Falter stood, his head bent over the cabinet containing her collection of cameos.

They faced each other in the manner that had become typical of their encounters—wordless, and with the uncompromising calculation of a pair of unacquainted dogs.

Hagar stood, inwardly raging, while Falter's narrowed eyes swept over her figure. Helplessly she sensed what he was totting up: Thin body, lean chest—made even leaner by her black, pullover jersey—shapeless hips in shapeless black slacks, and the whole composition topped by her uncontrollable gray hair.

"Well, all right!" she burst out. "So I look like an up-ended floor mop! What do you want?"

Her eyes fastened disdainfully on the black, curling hair revealed by his open collar! The man was so perdition vain about his virility that he wouldn't even button his clothes against the wind! Grudgingly, her sculptor's eye went over his wide shoulders, flat stomach and slim hips. Not bad for his age—he must be 46 or so.

He gave her what he probably thought of as a charming smile:

"You'll be more cordial, Hagar, when I tell you why I've come."

* * *

HE turned and let his glance range through the cameo cabinet: "Nice collection. From what I hear in the breeze, though, there is much more of it, much rarer items. Right?"

"Miss Blair has cameos from all over the world."

Hagar and Falter glanced at Stephanie who suddenly had arrived beside them. Hagar appeared annoyed; Falter, detached and contemplative.

"This one," the girl continued, pointing out a carnelian, "came from Florence. It has an unusual double engraving. If you'll look closely—"

Hagar jerked, making a kind of empty grab in Stephanie's direction: "Oh, pot! Stop with that summertime spiel, girl. Falter's not interested in cameos!"

Falter grinned and in a leisurely way took a cigaret from a pigskin case and lighted it. He reached into his jacket pocket and brought out a silver box about four inches across its gently mounded top. With an elaborate gesture, he placed it on the glass surface of the cabinet and stepped to one side.

Hagar strode over picked it up and opened it:

"Hey!" She couldn't control her amagement and delight. "Great lords of creation, man! Where did you get hold of this?"

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. — The passing show:

It may fall the lot of a top-ranking tennis star of the recent past, Sidney B. Wood, jr., to swing U. S. public sentiment in favor of recognition of Spain. At least, he'll take a swing at it.

Wood, one high-ranking amateur who went on to business success, has opened a public relations office and one of his first accounts is Spain. He plans to stimulate travel to that country, in the hope of bringing about a re-awakened interest in the land of Franco.

Wood and Don Budge, fresh from triumphs at Wimbledon, Forest Hills and in Davis Cup competition, entered the prosaic business of taking in laundry — just before the war. Budge's activity in the firm slackened, but he is now opening a similar establishment on the coast. Their original venture had grown to a $500,000 a year business in New York, directed from the seven-story Budge-Wood building.

Wood's success in getting mentions of the laundry in New York columns led to his entrance into public relations. Several friends asked him to handle their own publicity problems. He attended to that, too. Then his friend Igor Cassini suggested that he open an office.

Show Does Go On

Show must go on note: Ethel Merman, the only lady singer we ever heard who made the lyrics coherent beyond the tenth row, was stricken with an appendicitis attack a few hours before she was scheduled to sing at Bugs Baer's Banshee luncheon the other day.

She yelled for an ice bag and fought off attempts to stash her away in a hospital. Then she took the stage at the Waldorf party and, as usual, toppled the walls. When she was done, she took a cab to the hospital.

PEARL BUCK, in a special foreward to the reprinting of her 20 year old "The Good Earth," will take a view of modern China that seems wholly out of line with what most authorities have been writing since that nation began to recede behind the Iron Curtain.

IN WASHINGTON PROBE

Lobby Groups Scored

BY RAY TUCKER

Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON: — The devious methods by which lobbying organizations financed by great corporations take small business for a ride in their operations at Washington and throughout the country have been unearthed by investigators for the Wright Patman Committee, which was established by the House to protect the interests of merchants and manufacturers on the corners and down the side streets of our cities.

The two organizations now under fire are the National Tax Equality Association, which was formed in 1943, and the National Associated Businessmen, Inc. The NTEA's proclaimed purpose is to obtain legislation that will wipe out the exemption from taxes enjoyed by farm and other co-ops, or by any enterprise not now tapped by Uncle Sam's internal revenue agents.

TUCKER

The NAB professes to be the champion of small business, and it has units in thirty-two states as well as here and in Chicago. It has always registered under the Lobby Law, but NTEA did not comply with the statute until January of this year.

NTEA raises about $500,000 annually in contributions, while NAB collects approximately $100,000 a year from the individuals and firms it is supposed to aid.

SCREENS: Although officials of the two organizations maintain that they have no connection with each other, Representative Patman's sleuths have evidence which, in their opinion, links the two groups. Their records also reveal that NTEA is supported almost entirely by contributions from large corporations, especially public utilities.

The private power industry's principal grievance, it is noted in this connection, is the freedom from taxes enjoyed by the TVA and similar federal projects, and also by the Rural Electrification Administration.

Mr. Patman contends that the utilities, as well as grain, insurance, chemical and chain distributors, use both NTEA and NAB as screens to enlist small business men in their campaign against these agencies.

PAID: The two men who direct the operations are Vernon Scott, a professional fund-raiser from California, and Loring Schuler, a former editor of the Ladies Home Journal. They have their own business listed as Scott and Schuler, organizers and counselors, with offices here and at Chicago.

Mr. Scott is executive vice-president of NAB and Mr. Schuler is executive director. Despite the contention that NAB is not associated with NTEA, their only offices are located in space for which the rent and telephone bills are paid by the two organizations.

They admit that they receive a salary of $58,000 annually from NTEA and NAB. It is paid jointly, $48,000 from NTEA and $10,000 from NAB.

INTERLOCKING: Moreover, NTEA and NAB have interlocking officers. Mr. Patman maintains that while NTEA professedly aims to assist small firms by making their various competitors liable to taxation, it is really playing the game of the larger corporations in their fight on other projects that do not injure the little fellows in business.

He contends, for instance, that double taxation, which is NTEA's principal target, does not fall heavily upon individual firms or partnerships. He also points out that many of these "little fellows" benefit from the very federal agencies which both the lobby groups are attacking.

GIVERS: In view of the apparent association between the two organizations, Chairman Patman regards the list of contributors to NTEA as proof that it is really working for the large corporations, while mobilizing and collecting from small business men under false pretenses. Here is a sample of the givers to NTEA.

The Alabama Power Co., the Arkansas Power & Light Co., the Connecticut Power & Light Co., the Florida Power & Light Co., the Louisiana Power & Light Co., the International Minerals and Chemicals Co. of Chicago, the St. Paul Fire & Marine Insurance Co., the St. Paul Live Stock Exchange, the Tex-O'Kan Flour Mills of Dallas, Tex., the Chain Institute of Chicago, the Samson Cordage Works of Boston, and the Southern Agricultural Chemical Co. of New York.

SCOPE: A typical NTEA report of its disbursements indicates the scope and kind of its operations here and throughout the country.

Pay roll, $100,000; salaries and expenses $60,000; legal $15,000; expenses for ten key persons, $4,500; state secretaries, $35,000; telephone, $45,000; rent and light, $15,000; advertising, publicity and travel, $135,000. Incidentally, NAB's thirty-two state secretaries, who receive approximately $200 a month, are paid by NTEA.

TRIBUTE: Committee investigators do not contend that either organization has violated any law, although the NTEA should have registered under the Lobby Act before last January, inasmuch as it was organized in 1943.

But they do warn that these organizations, as well as several others also under investigation, levy tribute on small business men while actually working for corporations whose interests and objectives are frequently hostile to the "little fellows" existance and prosperity.

Believe It Or Not -

ONE-PARTY SYSTEM DANGEROUS

GOPs Need To Regain Standing

BY THOMAS L. STOKES

Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, — King Canute, as we know, couldn't sweep the ocean back with a broom.

It has been fairly well demonstrated now, too—and last Tuesday's elections offered the latest bit of proof—that Republicans can't stop a trend, as it is called in politics, by shouting and shaking their fists and calling names and raising up bugaboos that just don't frighten the American people that are a sensible sort.

This trend, which has been going on now for some years, is the very simple thing of people wanting to get more of the good things which our American productive system—agricultural and industrial — can provide and, at the same time, wanting to be protected from the inevitable periodic adversities inherent in such a complex system and in human beings, themselves, such as illness, unemployment and old age.

STOKES

Controls Are Needed

Government has come to be a sort of governor in the mechanical sense of the word to keep the delicate productive machine in balance, to conserve and develop our natural resources, which belong to all of us, so that all can share in their use, to see that, in many ways, the strong do not take advantage of the weak, and the like.

Natural human impulses can, of course, get out of hand. Everybody can demand too much and combined pressures could in time, if encouraged by the government, create an all-powerful government that might become the master rather than a servant, as Republicans point out. Also, as they point out, restraints are needed always.

The tragedy of what has happened to the Republican party is that it is getting into position where it cannot operate effectively as a restraining force such as is needed for a second major party under our system. It has lost public confidence.

This, it is suggested, is because it has taken such a negative attitude in Congress as a party in its now many long years out of power, despite moderately progressive platforms and presidential candidates during that time. It has consequently become identified by a majority of the public as "agin" necessary adjustments and changes which it is the function of Congress to make, even though this is not the attitude of so many Republicans in and out of Congress.

In the last few months the most conservative element of the party has raised the loudest voice to the public. It has called for an all-out attack on the proposed reforms of the Truman Fair Deal which are neither new nor revolutionary. This is not even an honest attitude, and it distinctly is not fair to the party, itself. For when you break down the program, which is called "statism," into its component parts you find that many individual Republicans in Congress, and some outstanding leaders such as Senator Taft of Ohio, have not only voted for some of the measures—housing, minimum wage, federal aid to education, social security expansion—but have actually sponsored them.

Senator John Foster Dulles, the Republican candidate in New York, took that "all-out" line. It didn't work, whatever else might have been involved in his defeat. Now, following the elections, you find three divisions of counsel in the party as to future strategy.

One group calls for formulation of a moderately progressive program that will become a party program in congress. A third looks for a man who can win, a personality so engaging that principles and policies will be submerged in the glow. Accordingly, a boom is starting for General Dwight D. Eisenhower, who meets the specifications. That this is catching on is indicated by his top rank in the Gallup Poll among 1952 Republican prospects.

THAT might do the trick—if the President of Columbia university decides to recant on his famous statement of renunciation last year.

There is a chance, of course, that this might not be enough. Some sort of reformation from within the party may be necessary. It might have to be drastic to gain the very simple objective, which is to get a majority of the people to believe that the Republican party, as a party, will actually carry out a program in keeping with the times, even though a restrained, moderate program in line with its philosophy.

Some man or group of men who could do this for the party would deserve not only the thanks of their party, but of the nation.

We can't afford to become a one-party country.

Tribute To Be Paid Late Publisher

Statue Of G. B. Dealey To Be Unveiled At Dallas Today

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Nov. 13.—A 12-foot statue of G. B. Dealey, late publisher of The Dallas Morning News, will be unveiled tomorrow.

Dr. Umphrey Lee, president of Southern Methodist university, will give the dedicatory address.

The now-veiled bronze statue is in Dealey plaza at the corner of Main and Houston streets, just across from the Dallas county courthouse.

It stands on an eight-foot granite base. Four bronze panels in bas relief from a peristyle behind the statue. They depict the four main fields of Dealey's life—journalism, civic leadership, philanthropy and history.

Papers Are Sealed

Papers relating to Dealey's life and work were placed in a metal box and sealed in the base of the statue last Wednesday.

Former Mayor Woodall Rodgers, chairman of the G. B. Dealey Memorial association, said the group was formed by some 50 leading citizens after the publisher's death in 1946. The originators accepted contributions from others who wanted to help memorialize Dealey.

Miss Jeanne Norsworthy of Dallas, oldest great grandchild of the late publisher, will unveil the statue. Dr. Frank C. Brown, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Dallas, will give the invocation.

After Dr. Lee's address, Rodgers will introduce E. M. (Ted) Dealey, president of the News and son of the late civic leader. Mrs. G. B. Dealey will then be presented to the audience.

To Present Sculptor

The sculptor, Felix De Weldon, of Washington, D. C., will next be presented. The Rt. Rev. Harry T. Moore, retired bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Dallas, will pronounce the benediction.

The sculptor has supervised the placing of the statue.

The sculptor was commissioned early in 1948 and began work in his studio in Washington. In the later stages of his task a daughter of Mr. Dealey, Mrs. James M. Moroney, sr., of Dallas, spent some time in the fall of last year in Washington. She supplemented the study of Mr. Dealey's personality which the artist had already made from numerous character sketches, portraits and photographs.

The clay model of the statue and the forms of the four panels were finished near the end of November of last year. They were cast in plaster in December and then sent to the Bedi Rassy art foundry in New York. The final bronze forms were cast early this year and stored until their recent shipment to Dallas.

The statue weighs three tons. The granite base on its concrete foundation weighs thirty tons.

Dancer Continues Routine

It is refreshing, after a year of watching young athletes crack up playing their games, to watch the incredible Tony DeMarco carry on with his equisite nightly routines on the dance floor of the persian room.

The Buffalo-born son of an Italian immigrant has been the best ballroom dancer in the country since World War I. His legs have taken a thousand times the punishment taken by the legs of an ailing sports star you can name. But the man never had even the hint of a charley-horse, and he's better today than ever.

THE National Committee for Education on Alcoholism, a division of the Yale plan on Alcoholism, forwards some arresting (if not appalling) facts on the nation's guzzling.

More than 4,000,000 Americans of all classes are confirmed alcoholics, and in need of medical attention. The wage loss from drinking amounts to $432,000,000 a year. Some 60,000,000 people in the U. S. drink, mostly in moderation.

The committee, which has other statistics on hand at 2 East 103rd street, N.Y.C., believes that we are slowly but surely coming to the realization that it is as preposterous to jail a drunk as it is to jug a sufferer from, say, cancer. It wishes there were more firms like Consolidated Edison, which has set up a rehabilitation program for those of its alcoholics who can and will respond to treatment.

GERMANS WELCOME RUM

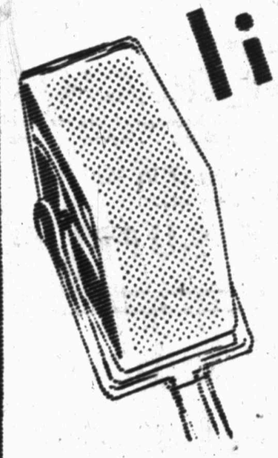

FLENSBURG, Germany, Nov. 13—(AP)—The first shipment of rum to reach Germany since the war arrived here today. Thirsty Germans welcomed it with a cheering crowd and a brass band. The 63,402 quarts of rum came from Batavia under a German-Dutch trade agreement.

Scurry Activity Continues In Spotlight

Southwest Test Is Completed

Cities Oil company has completed its No. 1-H Johnson as a one-half mile northwest extender for the north side of the Diamond M-Canyon field in southwest Scurry county.

The well made a calculated 24-hour potential of 641.68 barrels of 42.8 gravity oil, flowing through a three-quarter inch tubing choke. Gas-Oil ratio was 685-1. The pay zone was treated with 2,000 gallons of acid.

Well Now On Production

The 24-hour potential figure was based on an actual six hour flow. There were no signs of formation water. The new producer is now on production.

Top of the Canyon reef was at 6,681 feet, to give the well a datum of minus 4,253 feet. Total depth is 6,808 feet.

TWO NEW PROJECTS ARE SET IN NORTH SCURRY

Two new projects to test the Canyon reef lime have been planned for the North Snyder field of North Central Scurry County by Standard Oil Company of Texas. Both of the explorations will be drilled to 7,000 feet.

Standard No. 4 L.S. Herod will be 660 feet from east and 1,980 feet from north lines of the west half of section 383, block 97, H&TC survey. That makes it eight miles north of Snyder.

The company's No. 5-4 J. W. Brown is to be 1,980 feet from west and 680 feet from south lines of section 441, block 97, H&TC survey. It is on the northeast side of the field. The drillsite is ten miles north of Snyder.

Operations are to begin immediately.

DISCOVERY NEAR SNYDER IS TAKING NEW TEST

R. W. Baxter, and associates No. 1 Feldman, central-east Scurry county Ellenburger discovery, ten miles east of Snyder, was swabbing to test and complete on the entire Ellenburger zone between 7,308 feet and the total depth at 7,357 feet.

The zone between 7,308 feet and the bottom of the 5½-inch casing which is cemented at 7,340 feet, will be tested through perforations which now cover the full section. The open hole between 7,340 feet and the total depth at 7,357 feet is also included in the testing.

The well had previously swabbed and flowed at the approximate rate of nine barrels of oil per hour from perforations at 7,314-26 feet and from the open hole at 7,340-57 feet.

No formation water has developed. The well so far has failed to

Reds Score New Gains In China

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 13 (AP)—Communist columns, driving to split the Nationalist armies in two, were acknowledged tonight to be only 25 miles from Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow province.

Fall of Kweiyang, 210 miles south of Chungking, will practically accomplish the Red objective. It controls all except one extremely poor road between the Nationalist positions in Szechwan province to the northwest and Kwangsi province to the southeast.

Reinforcements Move Up

A Nationalist defense ministry spokesman said the Reds under Gen. Chen Yi had taken Machangping, 25 miles east of Kweiyang. He said bitter fighting was in progress and Nationalist reinforcements were being dispatched, but gave no details.

The military news agency said radio contact was being maintained with Kweiyang. This is an ominous phrase which usually precedes loss of a city.

The defense ministry also reported the Reds were attacking Yuyang, in Szechwan province 140 miles southeast of Chungking.

Gloomy prophets in Chungking predicted that this provisional capital would be untenable well before Christmas.

There was much new speculation as to where the government might go next. Kunming, 400 miles southwest of Chungking, has been mentioned frequently, but some persons argue that the Reds could drive there from Kweiyang as easily as they could come to Chungking.

Moving to Formosa, stronghold of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, appeals to many gover..ment people. This, however, would involve a loss of prestige in leaving the mainland and also could be expected to sharpen the friction between Chiang and acting President Li Tsung-Jen.

Outstanding Leaders To Attend Course

Dairy Manufacturing Meet Slated At Tech

The latest in flavor will be the chief topic of discussion Wednesday through Friday as approximately 200 representatives from throughout the Southwest convene on the Texas Tech campus for a dairy manufactures short course.

New developments in flavoring ice cream and other dairy products as well as the most efficient manufacture of finished creations will dominate addresses and roundtable talks during the three-day meet, according to Dr. J. J. Willingham, head of the Tech dairy manufacturing department.

Leading Figures To Speak

Leading figures from outstanding commercial companies in the United States will be among the speakers for the event. These will include such men as W. A. Wentworth, New York City, of the Borden company; Harry Wilson, Chicago, of Kraft Foods, N. C. Angevine, St. Louis, of the Meyer-Blanke company; Roy Conkey, Dallas, of the Diamond Alkali company; Dr. C. A. Abele, Chicago, the Diversey corporation; and George Illes, Dallas, of the A. E. Illes company.

Registration for the short course will be conducted at 8 a.m. Wednesday in the agriculture building, followed by a welcoming address from Dr. W. L. Stangel, head of the Tech Agriculture division. Stories of vanilla and cottage and cheddar cheese combined with an overall view of the dairy situation in America will consume most of the day Wednesday.

Dinner Slated Here

The Bell Ice Cream and Milk company of Lubbock will be hosts that night at a dinner in the Hilton hotel. On Thursday the technicalities involved in caring for milk and in the scientific preparation of it for market will be entered into by the group. Problems of butter manufacture and latest methods of cleanliness and equipment sterilizing will be discussed also, Dr. Willingham declared.

Emphasis Friday, however, will move more into the best means of getting the most from flavors in ice cream and other dairy products, with Dr. Willingham giving results of research conducted, on the Tech campus.

"We hope to explain how the proper amount of flavoring can give the public the most for its money," he asserted.

Dr. G. M. Trout of Michigan State college is scheduled for several addresses during the short course, including one Thursday on Good Housekeeping practices and another Friday concerning homogenized milk. A panel discussion with all the speakers participating will top off the conference Friday afternoon.

Sweeping Victory Is Indicated For Quirino

MANILA, Nov. 13 (INS)—Philippines President Elpidio Quirino's Liberal party appeared today to have gained a sweeping victory, not only of the presidency, but of senatorial and house of representatives races in last Tuesday's election.

According to latest unofficial figures compiled by the Manila Chronicle, Quirino has a lead in the presidential race of 305,406 votes. The totals gave Quirino 1,454,409 votes to 1,150,003 for Nacionalist candidate Jose Laurel and 380,200 for Jose Avelino, candidate of a dissident faction of the Liberal party.

In the lagging official returns from the election commission, Quirino had 1,202,607 votes, Laurel 905,344 and Avelino, 269,632.

The official figures represent complete returns from 75 per cent of the major Philippines towns.

Official returns indicated that the Liberal party is winning a sweeping victory in the senatorial races and that 80 per cent of the party's candidates for the house of representative were in the lead.

Present returns indicate that Quirino's party will have 60 seats in the house to 32 for the Nacionalista and five for Avelino's party.

Final tabulation is expected to be completed by Wednesday. The three typhoons which swept the islands within the past two weeks badly damaged communications and slowed the election count.

Teachers Hold Session At Tech

Sixty business teachers from all over West Texas attended the annual meeting of the Panhandle section of United Business teachers of the National Education association, held Saturday at Texas Technological college.

Dr. Karl Ashburn, McMurry college faculty member at Abilene, was named president. Other new officers were Miss Clara Linderholm, vice president, faculty member at Amarillo college, and Miss Nelda Snow, secretary, member of the Tech faculty.

Haskell Taylor, Tech faculty member and outgoing president, presided at the afternoon meeting which opened in the Extension auditorium.

Business teachers from colleges, high schools and business schools attended the session.

Group meetings were held in four fields. Accounting teachers had as their study subject, "Visual Aids in Accounting." Miss Marian Simmons, Sears personnel department, spoke to the secretarial administration group. Separate sessions also were held by marketing and economics instructors.

A Saturday night dinner in the Navajo room of the iHilton hotel concluded the meeting. Dr. E. N. Jones, vice president of Tech, was the speaker.

Plans were made for a two-day session at the next annual meeting. The meeting is held at Tech each year because of the central location.

Lubbock Boy Suffers Serious Eye Injury

A ricocheting B-B shot may mean the loss of an eye to a 15-year-old Lubbock youth injured at 4:30 p. m., Saturday.

Attendants at Lubbock Memorial hospital said Edward C. Hogan, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hogan of 2112 Eighth, was "resting comfortably" Sunday night, but that they were not sure they could save the eye.

The accident happened while the youth was shooting at tin cans near his home. He told his parents a shot ricocheted off a can and struck him in the left eye. A passing motorist took him home, whereupon his parents took him to the hospital.

The youth is a student at Carroll Thompson Junior High school.

SOLUTION TO PROBLEM SOUGHT

Lack Of Grain Storage Plagues Many Farmers Over South Plains

By TOM DAVIS
Avalanche Staff Writer

Down Seminole way, Editor Neil Vanzant sounds the alarm over lack of storage space for South Plains grain.

"Lack of storage for grain has created a pressing problem for grain producers and elevator men," he writes. "With most of the South Plains grain crop yet to be harvested, the growers are discovering that most government storage facilities are already full.

"Unless some solution is reached quickly, thousands of tons of grain may have to be dumped in piles on the farms where it is produced."

He notes that acreage in feed in Gaines county this year is nearly three times greater than that devoted to cotton, and that if the grain can be harvested and sold, or placed in government loan, the feed crop of the county undoubtedly will produce a greater income than the cotton.

Economic Chill Hits Newsman

Buford Davenport, editor of The Abernathy Weekly Review, reports he had a high fever followed by a cold chill last week.

"The fever was caused by our sudden desire for a rather attractive new automobile," he wrote. "We liked the make, the body style, extra accessories and the color."

"The cold chill came after finding out how much and how long the monthly payments would run," Davenport gloomily concluded.

Improved Soil Plans Urged

Although "dust bowl" years have long passed, a Texas Tech scientist has warned that lean years might return to many South Plains farms unless progressive agricultural methods are adopted at once.

Dr. A. W. Young, head of the plant industry department at Tech, said he recently has noted visible evidence of neglect which has led to wind erosion.

With sweeping winds the main problem in West Texas, Dr. Young says one of the best ways to retain topsoil on farms is through the proper management of crop residue.

Residue Aids Soil

"Every piece of residue left on the surface of the soil serves as a natural wind-break or dam, and each piece of stubble helps to stimulate water penetration of the soil, and thus aid in producing a vegetative cover which binds the soil," he said.

The crop residues also are returned to the soil as organic matter in the cyclical process, and this decomposing organic matter also can act as a binding agent to hold soil particles together in spite of strong winds, Dr. Young said.

Soil tests at Tech indicate that once native sod is broken for cultivation, as much as 50 per cent of the organic matter may disappear in two years. Only proper care of the soil can prevent further organic losses through erosion.

Not Local Problem Alone

"Solving the wind and water erosion problem is not a local matter," Dr. Young pointed out, "but in West Texas, the wind is an unusually important factor to consider."

Dr. Young said that besides the use of the crop residues, chisel-type plows with sweeps, allowing the farmer to work the soil underneath the residue without turning it under, also would help decrease the erosion problem immeasurably.

"The residue plan will not eliminate the dust storm menace," Dr. Young confided, "since science goes on the theory that there were dust storms on the South Plains long before man ever touched the soil with a plow.

"However, the proper use of crop residues will eliminate the famous 'black dusters' which once carried off hundreds of tons of top soil."

FIRE DESTROYS GIN

BLACKWELL, Tex., Nov. 13, (AP)—Fire caused an estimated $50,000 damage as it destroyed the Blackwell gin. It broke out shortly after noon yesterday and firemen from Sweetwater still worked today to extinguish the blaze in 100 tons of cotton seed. The fire was believed to have started from sparks from a cotton burr incinerator.

Scurry County Continues To Hold Spotlight In Area Oil Activity

flow regularly and consistently. It is expected that operators will install a pump during the current week to agitate the fluid and make it come to the surface steadily. Up to now no pump has been installed.

The new field opener is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 63, block 3, H&TC survey.

POSSIBLE PRODUCTION IS SEEN IN GAINES TEST

More signs of possible production have been developed in Central-South Gaines county at Magnolia Petroleum Company No. 1 H. T. Wolfe.

This venture is one mile west of the nearet completed producers from the Clear Fork in the Flanagan field. The latest show was in a drillstem test at 7,165-7,240 feet in the Clear Fork.

The tool was open two hours. Recovery was 210 feet of heavily oil and gas cut drilling mud. The project is now bottomed at 7,250 feet in lime and is taking another drillstem test.

This venture had its first show of oil and gas in the Clear Fork below 6,415 feet. The section from there down to the present level of operations has had fair signs of possible production.

The development is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 7, block A-23, psl survey.

Magnolia No. 1 Williamson, another Flanagan area exploration to about 7,500 feet to investigate the Clear Fork, had reached 7,046 feet in lime and was making more hole.

KENT COUNTY TEST AREA CONTINUES DRILLING

Drilling & Exploration Company No. 1 Connell, Southwest Kent county wildcat to 7,20[illegible] feet to explore into the Canyon reef lime, had reached 2,438 feet in lime and shale in the middle Permian.

It ran a one and one half hour drillstem test at 2,340-70 feet, which was likely in the San Andres.

Recovery was 515 feet of heavily oil and gas cut drilling fluid and 150 feet of salt water. There was no free oil.

This exploration is two miles southeast of Polar and 660 feet from north and east lines of section 19, block 5, H&GN survey.

PERMIT TO DRILL IN PECOS COUNTY FILED

Hunt Oil Company has filed an application with the Railroad Commission of Texas requesting a permit to drill three shallow wildcats on its large block in Central Pecos county, near Chancellor. All of the projects are to be drilled to 3,200 feet.

No. 17 Elsinore Ranch will be 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 83, block D, GC&SF survey.

Location for No. 18 Elsinore Ranch is 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 80, block D, GC&SF survey.

The other project, No. 19 Elsinore Ranch will be 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 56, block D, GC&SF survey.

The company has also filed application to plug three prospectors drilled in that area. It is understood that where possible the wells will be used as water wells for the ranch.

No. 6 Elsinore Ranch was abandoned at a total depth of 1,340 feet. Location is section 31, block C, GC&SF survey.

The company's No. 15 Elsinore Ranch was abandoned above a total depth of 1,120 feet. It is located in section 41. block D, GC&SF survey.

No. 16 Elsinore Ranch was abandoned after drilling to a total depth of 1,366 feet. It is in section 16, block D, GC&SF survey.

DRILLING TO START ON GARZA COUNTY WILDCAT

George Calliham of Abilene is to begin drilling soon at his No. L J. C. Dorward, contracted 3,100-foot wildcat in extreme southeast Garza County, six miles southeast of Justiceburg.

The prospector will be located 330 feet from north and west lines of the southwest quarter of section 114, block 5, H&GN survey.

Cable tools will be used to dig the venture.

Lack Of Storage

publican organization is a broke concern, with only ninety thousand dollars in the kitty after having $832,000 a while back.

"Somebody has been throwing a lot of loose change around at the Republican headquarters, and too, they don't have a thing to show for it but a lot of lost elections. Who wants to buy stock in a concern like that?"

Analyzing the problem, Suits adds: "They haven't kept their business up-to-date. They are still using old methods. Why don't they start a 'give away program.' Oh, well, if they did that they would not be Republicans, so just let 'em go bust."

"Rumor has it," The Hereford Brand reports, "that some woman came into City hall to pay taxes and, after paying, asked if they gave green stamps."

Sports Study Puzzling

Trying to get the low-down on the latest sports lingo and the fortunes of football teams, Editor A. M. Jackson of The Slaton Slatonite has been conducting some research by reading articles in popular national magazines.

"Results: I am more befuddled than before," he reports. "The football teams have been having the biggest setbacks of the season, all of the coaches have ulcers, inferior complexes, the squads have taken rugged punishment, and none of them ever believe they can win a game.

"Most of the players are cripples and the sorriest in the bunch usually grab the ball and run for most of the touchdowns.

"From now on I do not intend to read a thing about what happened on the sports page, I'm gonna look at the results on the top of page 1 of the Sunday papers and see which coaches actually told the truth."

Pies Made For Caution

Writing in The Muleshoe Journal, Editor J. M. Forbes urges caution on the highways.

"There is more traffic on the roads these days than this writer remembers having ever seen before. Trucks are whizzing to the elevators with grain, to the gins with cotton, and back home for another load. Transient cotton pickers in cars and trucks are adding to the normal passenger traffic and all told the highways and even country roads are busy places.

"Therefore," Editor Forbes continues, "it is a time for all of us to be especially vigilant while using the roads or highways. A little carelessness or inattention will bring disastrous results, and the chance for accidents seems to be more favorable than ever."

Sixty-three per cent of all cooperative frozen food lockers are in the north central states, a recent survey shows.

She's Really Regal In Public, But "A Scream" In Private

Britain's Princess Margaret Doesn't Want To Be Suet Pudding All Of Life

Margaret Rose, Britain's 19-year-old princess royal, maintains stoutly, "I don't want to be a suet pudding all my life."

What does she want, this diminutive girl of many sided character who can be rigidly regal in public and "a scream" in private?

What is the "perfect picture-book princess" really like? Why are her intimates positive she will marry only for love?

Charles A. Smith, manager of the London bureau of International News Service, who first met Margaret Rose three years ago, herewith tells the story of "Little Maggie" in his portrait of a princess.

BY CHARLES A. SMITH
INS Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. — Shake hands with Princess Margaret Rose of Britain — personification of the modern, streamlined royal teenager.

She is 1949 right up-to-date—no mad-cap but nonetheless no blue stocking.

This diminutive, 19-year-old princess of the British blood royal has a many-sided character. It explains why she is loved — and sometimes criticized — by the British nation.

In public and "on show" as she puts it, she is well-dressed, exquisitely mannered, poised and elegant beyond her years, always the perfect picture-book princess.

At home, whether it is at London's Buckingham palace, Scotland's Balmoral castle, or Norfolk's Sandringham house, she is the devoted daughter.

Ripe For Pranks

The girl who sings to her mother's piano accompaniment, listens to the radio, plays "hot" disks on the phonograph, sometimes reads to her father, plays with her dogs and dutifully attends to her mail, goes around in a sweater and skirt and flat-heeled shoes. She also studies languages.

In her own "off duty" hours she is an out-and-out teen-ager, always ripe for a prank, adores having high-spirited young men and women friends around her. She also likes wearing gay party clothes, enjoys the social whirl, good food, vintage wines, the theater, ballet, movies, and any modern dancing that's "hot."

In toto, Margaret at 19 is a product of the mid-twentieth century, who refuses to let the swaddling influence of court life and her position in Britain suffocate her, who knows what she wants and most of the time gets it.

Some of the things she does cause a lot of heart-burning among the old-timers at court and from time to time arouse more than behind-the-hand criticism in the British newspapers. She knows it, and is completely unrepentant.

Margaret's latest break with royal convention — one that caused more tut-tutting than genuine concern — came at a charity Hallowe'en ball, when she smoked a cigaret. The old-timers said neither the queen nor Princess Elizabeth had ever done that.

She feels she has a public and a private life, that the two are sharply divided. She believes that working hard at being a royal princess and all it means in Britain entitles her to have her play time in private, and she says

"I don't care to be a suet pudding all my life."

This writer first met Margaret almost three years ago. She was a tiny, shy little girl who obviously was having an unsuccessful stab at using make-up.

She wore "little girl" clothes unsuited to her, was inclined to walk with a slight stoop, had a slightly sulky expression, and caused a certain amount of sympathetic clucking from onlookers who watched her trail behind her mother and father, apparently doing her best not to look bored to the teeth.

Today Margaret has emerged completely and successfully from the thick cocoon of royalty. She is slim, carries herself well and walks well. She is an extremely self-possessed young woman in public, a "scream" in private when the fit takes her.

Dances Well

Seen in some smart but exclusive restaurant, or at a not-too-public dance in some restaurant or hotel, she bubbles with vivacious gaiety, hums most of the melodies being played by the band, seldom misses a dance, and generally gives the impression that she is having a whale of a time.

She dances an elegant rhumba or samba, is not afraid to kick up her heels—and her skirts—in a censored version of the French can-can or in a gay highland fling.

Her gift for repartee has become something of a byword in her set and is sprinkled with Americanisms learned from her very good friend and confidante Sharman Douglas, 21-year-old daughter of U. S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas. Her ready wit coined a natural when after the birth of sister Elizabeth's baby Prince Charles, she invited her intimate friends to call her "Charley's aunt."

But with it all it is essential to remember that Margaret at no time has thrown or attempted to throw convention to the winds. If at times her unconventional ways have caused rumblings among the top layer of Britain's impoverished but still very blue-blooded aristocracy, she has had no qualms about it.

Girls Annoyed

It is factual for example that top-level British society, and many in the lower levels, didn't think it at all funny when Margaret joined Sharman Douglas and ten other youngers at the U. S. embassy in London to perform what was admittedly a subdued and sedate version of the can-can.

Yet Margaret had done nothing outside her code, and both she and Sharman were annoyed that it aroused criticism and was "made to look like something out of the folies bercere."

When on the job Margaret does it faithfully and well. Only those who have knowledge of what it means to be stared at incessantly in public and in semi-private, followed around, and almost poked at "like some prize animal," know what it means for a 19-year-old to undertake public duties of a royal nature in Britain. Hence the natural search for "off duty" relaxation.

Margaret has acepted an ever-increasing round of public chores since her sister's marriage and motherhood and her father's long lay-off caused by his leg ailment. She has conquered her initial shyness as a public speaker and now speaks simply and well.

She has learned the hard-to-acquire tricks of never looking bored, never to frown at a photographer, always to be ready to bring the "royal smile" to her face, always to appear interested in whatever she is doing, no matter how much her feet may hurt her or how boring her surroundings and her company.

Romance Awaited

Now that she is approaching her twenties the matchmakers, and that means the British nation as a whole, wait for word of a romance, speculate about whom she will marry and when she will marry.

She is in truth the most carefully chaperone and watched teenager in Britain, perhaps the world.

Her intimates have laughed themselves sick at some of the stories reporting a romance or near-romance with lord blah or sir somebody.

They point out that a little quiet reasoning will show that a girl who always has her lady-in-waiting with her in public, is extremely carefully chaperoned in private, who is always watched by a personal guard whenever she is outside of the royal home, has scant opportunity of discovering whether a slight case of calf love might be the real thing.

The men around Margaret are hand-picked and know their place down to the barest fraction. Some of them are so scared of her and her position as to call her "ma'am."

Respects Parents

They figure around the court that when love comes to Margaret it will be from a direction probably approved in advance by the girl's parents and allowed to grow into the real thing much as was the romance between her sister Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

And despite her unconventional turn of mind, her dislike of stuffiness and stuffed shirts, male or female, it is 100 per cent certain that Margaret although wanting to marry for love will do so only with her parents full and wholehearted consent.

Filial devotion and respect is ingrained in her. She adores her father and mother and is unlikely to kick over the traces by disobeying them in any major matter.

The people who know her best think Margaret is set on seeing more of the world, on enjoying life as she finds it, in this her twentieth year.

They know that romance will hit Margaret and that she will marry, but they say it won't be just yet. Right now they say she is more interested in getting parental permission to have her own car.

Which makes her a very normal teen-ager.

New Management For AEC Urged By Solon

DES MOINES, Nov. 13. (INS)—U. S. Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) tonight expressed hope that what he called a "new capable management" will be installed over this country's atomic energy program.

The senator, who recently led a congressional investigation of the Atomic Energy commission, said the "new management" was needed so "we can forge ahead with the vigorous progress and development that the American people and our national security have every right to demand."

In a statement released by Iowa Republican headquarters at Des Moines, Hickenlooper charged that the Atomic Energy commission has made "little actual scientific or technical progress" during the last 30 months compared with the wartime accomplishments of the Manhattan district project.

Hickenlooper, a member of the joint Congressional Atomic Energy committee, recently charged AEC Chairman David Lilienthal with "incredible mismanagement." In tonight's statement, he declared that "scientific criticism which has cropped up in the past few weeks fully confirm my charges."

"It is the failure of the AEC to set up certain programs which the joint committee thought to be vital which is responsible for much of the present controversy," Hickenlooper said.

New Ore Discovery Of Possible Importance In Atomic Research

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 13. (U.P.)—Discovery of a new mineral in Angola, Portuguese West Africa, has been reported.

The mineral, to be known as cianitis, is derived from a natural silicate of aluminum and iron oxide.

Cianitis is capable of withstanding the highest temperatures, a factor which should make it useful in connection with atomic energy projects.

American industrialists are reported to be keenly interested in the new ore.

Rutgers Engineering Prof Has Written More Than 100 Songs

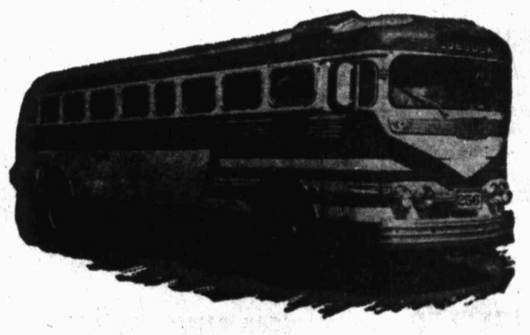

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 13 (AP)—"I have a little bit of music in me, and every so often it comes out," Parker H. Daggett, Rutgers University professor of electrical engineering, admits with a grin. But that 'every so often' has resulted in more than 100 songs —everything from football songs to musical comedy hits. His latest, "Old Rutgers" was introduced this year, the third he has written for the university.

Forty-three years ago, Daggett was undecided whether engineering or music was to be his life's work. They've been blended in harmony.

American Engineer Doubts Soviet Atomic Power Claims

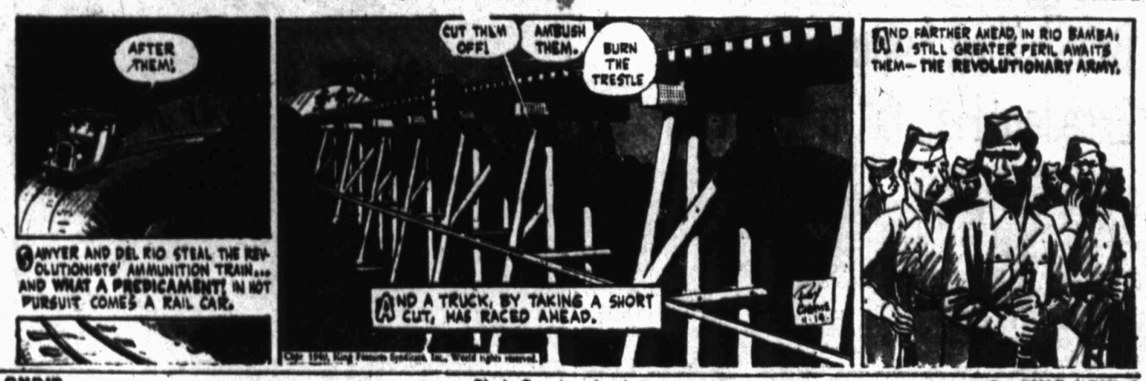

DETROIT, Nov. 13—(AP)—The head of the American Society of Industrial Engineers said today he doubted Russian claims of wonders wrought with atomic energy.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky and his political advisers are "way off their rockers" with claims of mountain moving and jungle clearing, ASIE National President Robert L. Crinnian said.

SLIGHT LIMP HAS DISAPPEARED

British King Appears To Be In Excellent Health On Ship Visit

By JAMES E. BROWN
INS Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 13. — King George VI appears to have lost all traces of his slight limp and to be in better health today than at any time since his illness last year.

These impressions are based on the King's recent round of activity topped off by his visit to the U. S. heavy cruiser Columbus at Portsmouth.

It was a cold day at Portsmouth with raw winds blowing across the harbor, but, while shivering American sailors manned ship in the traditional dress ceremony, the king came aboard looking cheerfully comfortable without an overcoat.

Made Tour Of Ship

He stood rigidly to attention while the band played God Save the King and then shook hands with staff officers presented to him by Admiral R. L. Conolly. After his inspection of sailors and marines, he began an informal tour of the ship.

It was then that his early naval training came into evidence. He examined many features of the cruiser thoroughly; he asked a multitude of questions, and there was no doubt that he was enjoying himself.

Accompanying him for a full day, this reporter noticed that the king's limp seemed to have gone and not once did he show signs of fatigue. He joked constantly with the officers and men.

Talks With Sailor

Seeing one of the sailors wearing an Army decoration, the king asked him how he happened to win such an honor. The sailor, Seaman Donald Kinsey, of Bronxville, N. Y., replied:

"I served six years in the Army, your Majesty."

"And how long have you been in the Navy?" asked the king.

"Three years, sir."

"Which service do you like best?"

"The Army, sir," said Kinsey.

This answer amused the king a great deal, and, as he walked away laughing, he said to Captain McLean,

"There's an honest man."

Cooks Are Complimented

The kitchen facilities also held his attention, and he complimented the cooks on the efficiency with which they feed 1,000 men daily. Later, he came up on deck to pose for a group photograph with Admiral Conolly, U. S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas, and other officers. There was an awkward pause while the party waited for someone to tell the king where to sit. He solved this situation himself by saying:

"Who's the boss around here? I'll sit where I'm told."

This incident characterized the mood of the whole visit. As one officer remarked, it was more like a courtesy exchange call between British and American ships, with officers of each battleship visiting the other.

Lunch, however, was the high point for at least one member of the Columbus' crew. Elihu Dillahunt, of Little Rock, Ark., negro steward, had baked an elaborate three-foot high cake in honor of the occasion.

Huge Cake Presented

Working for more than 43 hours, Elihu had completed a replica of what he thought Buckingham palace was like with the royal standard flying on top and the British and American flags on each side.

Elihu, however, had never seen Buckingham palace, and the cake had more resemblance to the Hollywood version of an old southern mansion than to the king's residence. His majesty, nevertheless, was delighted with it and asked Captain McLean to express his thanks to Dillahunt.

Before leaving the Columbus, the king witnessed some documentary films of the war in the Pacific and said he was particularly impressed with those showing the battle of Okinawa.

The visit to the Columbus was perhaps the most strenuous of the king's recent activities, but he had a busy day preceding it. He and the queen attended the British Legion festival of remembrance at the Albert Hall, and, the next day, Nov. 6, his majesty stood to attention for a quarter of an hour at the Cenotaph. Then, on the following night, he attended the royal variety show.

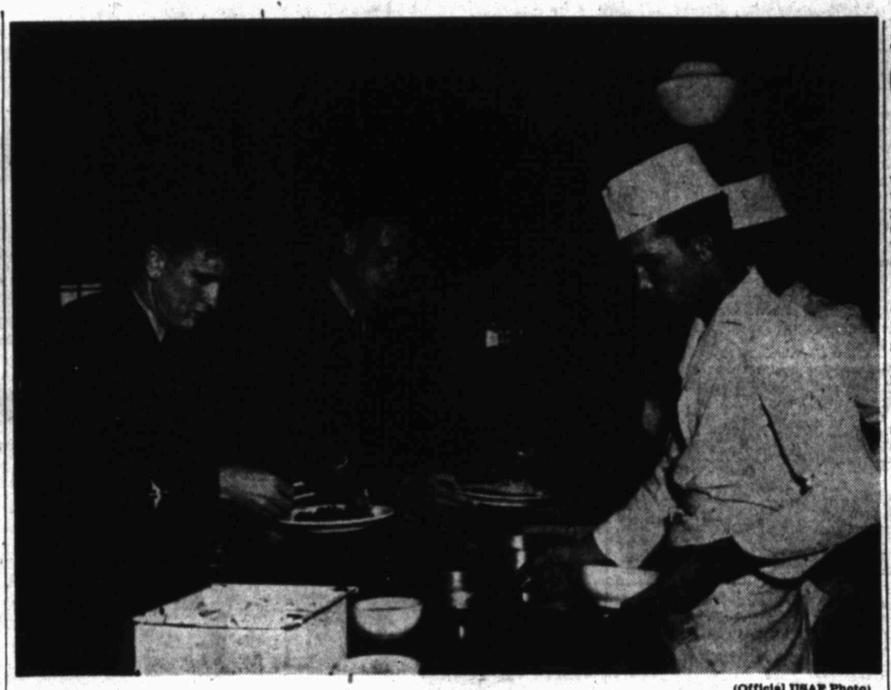

Now he has gone to Sandringham for a week's stay with the queen, and it is said that he hopes for some shooting over his big Norfolk estate.

The fact that his doctors permit all this activity is ample proof of the improvement in his health.

Six Dead, Six Missing After Spanish Ship Explodes, Sinks

ILFRACOMBE, Eng., Nov. 13. (AP)—A Spanish freighter exploded and sank in a gale near Lundy island today, leaving six of her crew dead and six missing.

Rescue vessels, bucking heavy seas to answer a dawn SOS from the 3554-ton Monte Gurugu, picked up 24 survivors and one reached shore in a tiny rowboat, with a companion dead from exposure. The ship, whose home port was Bilbao, Spain, was carrying coal from Newport to Genoa.

Brannan Says Administration Is Seeking New Farm Proposal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (INS)—Agriculture Secretary Brannan today said the administration is wide open for suggestions on a new farm plan so long as it provides the farmer "a decent return" and helps consumers.

Brannan, appearing on a radio program with Sen. Myers (D-Pa) declared that better farm income and lower consumer food prices are the goals of both factions in the bitter congressional fight over farm legislation. He added:

"The administration has recommended certain ways of meeting these outstanding problems. But if anybody can find better methods of doing the same thing, and if the Congress will agree they are better methods, the administration will wholeheartedly undertake to make those new methods work."

Brannan agreed with Myers that the farm law enacted in the recent session of Congress was an "honest compromise, fought out in the traditional American manner of give and take."

Swedish Papers Hit Back At U. S. Solon

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 13 (INS)—Swedish newspapers had some harsh words today for Sen. Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) amid mounting resentment over what many Swedes consider a slur by the American on their country.

In Vienna yesterday, Thomas, head of a Senate subcommittee group touring Europe, called for an end to Marshall plan aid for Sweden.

He charged Sweden was not doing her share in European recovery and had failed to help anyone militarily for 135 years.

The traditionally neutral Swedes lost no time in junmping on the senator who was accused of feeling the way he did about Sweden because of his belif that he had been denied special attention by the Stockholm government.

The Stockholm Tidningen in a bitter editorial said Thomas "in slighted vanity, said things about Sweden that was the height of insolence, ignorance and mendacity" and added the reply of Swedes is:

"You are a lubber and liar, Mr. Senator."

The newspaper said Sweden's contribution to postwar world relief matched that of the United States in proportion to the populations of the two countries.

The Dagens Nyheter earlier referred to the stand on Sweden taken by other American officials and said "thank God for quite another sense of responsibility than the one demonstrated by Sen. Thomas."

Seven-Man Congressional Group Leaves Vienna For Athens

VIENNA, Nov. 13. (AP)—A seven man congressional committee investigating occupation costs, Marshall plan expenditures and the military aid program left here by plane today for Athens.

The party, headed by Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla) was originally scheduled to leave tomorrow. Plans were changed to take advantage of the clear weather which permitted flying over the Brenner pass instead of by the longer route via Marseilles.

State Teachers To Convene For Annual Meet In Fort Worth

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (Spl.)— Nationally-known leaders in education, business and government fields will be the principal speakers at the three-day annual convention of the Texas State Teachers association at Fort Worth Nov. 24, 25, 26.

An estimated 12,000 teachers will give up their Thanksgiving holiday to attend the general sessions and numerous special meetings, Charles H. Tennyson, public relations director of the association, said Saturday.

In addition to the general sessions, teachers will have some 70 sectional meetings and 20 breakfasts, luncheons and dinners from which to choose. Every phase of education of interest to Texas instructors will be explored in these sessions.

Gov. Allan Shivers, Price Daniel, Texas attorney general, and Lyndon B. Johnson, junior United States senator from Texas are among the leaders in government circles who will address the convention.

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Pictures Association, Inc., governing body of the motion picture industry, and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is the principal representative of the business world who will speak at the general sessions.

The chairman of the new state board of education and commissioner of education, if he is appointed before the convention, will also be invited to speak.

Panel Discussion Planned

A panel discussion of the Gilmer-Aikin laws will be led by L. P. Sturgeon, Austin, director of the Minimum Foundation program temporarily administering state school funds; Henry Foster, president of the Texas Association of School administrators and Tennyson.

The theme of the entire convention is "Individual Responsibility — Heart of American Democracy".

Dr. W. R. White, president of Baylor university, will preach the Thanksgiving day sermon.

Joe C. Humphrey of Abilene, president of the association, and Miss Waurine Walker, Waco, first vice-president who is without opposition for election to the presidency, will preside at the general sessions.
