MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By A. N. P.

Raymond Bischoff of Chicago made Charles Ponzi of Boston a veritable piker. Ponzi was an ex-convict. He became a Napoleon of finance and robbed the Italians of Boston of all their earnings. Raymond Bischoff is a product of the Hawkeye state. He is a former convict, deserter from the American army who served eighteen months in Alcatraz prison after he had advertised himself one of the Princess Pat's Canadian regiment. He won the confidence of sixteen thousand Poles and other foreigners in the stockyards district by a promise of 40 per cent on short term loans. In two years he acquired a magnificent home on Hyde Park Boulevard, a summer home in Michigan and became the financial patron saint of the foreign element in the stockyard district. He offered from 40 to 100 per cent profit on sixty to ninety-day notes. He paid the early notes and the news of the wonderful profits won for him additional dupes. His liabilities totaled 7 million dollars; his assets less than one million dollars worth of oil and gas stock of doubtful value. Bischoff has an attorney one, James J. Kelley, who says that his client has violated no law but has simply lost money by speculation. Federal authorities say there is no basis for prosecution. Bischoff admits that he owes millions. He also agrees that business is business, and that he is not responsible and should not be held responsible for the failure of Louisiana oil fields to produce the profits promised. Chicago is the home of highjacker politics, highjacker politicians, highjacker Napoleons of finance, highjacker promoters of blue sky piracy and piratical bubbles. Now the sleuths of the federal department of justice are on the trail and the dragnet has been thrown wide. "What fools these mortals be."

Governor Neff and his military advisors have decided to include all the precincts of Limestone county in the infected area or rather under the cover of martial law jurisdiction. Why should those who dislike rangers or military supervision rail or find fault with the governor? If highjackers, rum-runners, moonshine whiskey-makers, harlots, male advisors of harlots and all other underworld undesirables trample upon the law and vomit their stench into the face of decent society are in evidence down there just why shouldn't the soldiers and the rangers be turned lose upon them? This should be a government of law and order, law and decency and the derelicts of society as well as those who live in brazen defiance of all law should be given to understand that they are not to be tolerated under the Lone Star flag. If these conditions prevail in Limestone county or in any other Texas county for that matter the law-loving men and women are largely responsible. If they would place in office efficient and law-loving men and then back them up there would be no necessity for the presence of soldiers or rangers or military control over district or districts proclaimed by the governor in his martial law pro-

AMARILLO MAN ACQUITTED AT MURDER TRIAL

By Associated Press.

VEGA, Texas, Feb. 15.—Henry C. Harding, wealthy cattleman of Amarillo, was acquitted by a jury here today of the murder of D. E. Walker, who was shot and instantly killed on Harding's ranch, May 31, 1921. Harding pleaded self-defense. The jury was out but a short time.

CHARGE JUDGE VIOLATION OF VOLSTEAD ACT

Complaint Filed Here by Prohibition Agent Against District Judge Pearman of Gainesville.

Judge Ordered to Appear Here by Federal Commissioner; Alleged He Had Quart of Wine in Car.

A complaint charging the transportation of liquor in violation of the federal prohibition act was filed in federal court here Wednesday against C. K. Pearman, judge of the 16th district court. The complaint was filed by P. V. Petty, prohibition enforcement officer of Fort Worth. Acting under instruction from Henry Zweifel, federal district attorney for the northern federal judicial district, United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz, in charge of the federal office, said Wednesday night that Judge Pearman would not be summoned here for a preliminary hearing until an investigation had been conducted by the district attorney's office regarding the complaint.

According to the officer filing the complaint Judge Pearman was arrested while driving in an automobile from Montague to Gainesville, Monday. It is alleged that the judge had a quart of wine in a suit case. The officer released the judge on his own recognizance at that time with the understanding that he should appear for a preliminary hearing in the event charges were filed against him.

According to reports received here Petty was ordered to Gainesville last week by Governor Neff after a delegation of citizens had called on him at Austin in connection with the matter. Judge Pearman is judge of the district which includes Montague and Cooke counties.

MRS. OBENCHAIN VISITED BURCH, SAYS WITNESS

Two Defendants Declared to Have Continually Looked Out of Window Toward Kennedy's Office.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15.—A word picture of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain sitting shoulder-to-shoulder with her co-defendant, Arthur Burch, at the window of his room in a downtown hotel, both of them looking toward the office of J. Belton Kennedy in a building across the street, late today was given to the jury sitting in the woman's trial on the charge of murdering Kennedy.

Thomas Haley, proprietor of the hotel in which Burch stayed, gave the picture under examination by Asa Keyes, deputy district attorney.

"Burch asked permission to have the woman visit him in his room, saying she was his cousin, and said he would prop the door open," Haley testified. "I saw her four or five times. She and Burch always were sitting together, looking out of the window towards Kennedy's office. I also observed Burch daily from July 24, when he rented the room, till August 5, the day preceding the evening Kennedy was killed, sitting at the window."

Haley testified that when Burch rented the room, he looked out of the window, "instead of at the furniture of the room," and said he wanted the next room south, which, it was brought out, was more nearly opposite Kennedy's office.

The evening Kennedy was killed, Haley testified, Burch left the room with a package wrapped in newspapers, which "resembled a shot gun in two pieces."

Haley's testimony closed the court day, which otherwise was filled with reading of love letters written by Mrs. Obenchain to Kennedy. According to the state's theory, these letters showed the motive for the slaying. The prosecution attributes to Mr. Obenchain the rage of a "woman scorned." It is contended this is shown by such passages as:

"I wouldn't give two cents for the rest of life if anything happened to you," written in 1917, in the early part of the romance, and "you are a coward, laughing at a bleeding heart," written a short time before Kennedy was killed.

BUCK GARRETT'S CO-DEFENDANT RESIGNS OFFICE

By Associated Press.

HEALDTON, Okla., Feb. 15.—J. H. Langston, mayor of Healdton, against whom ouster proceedings by the state are pending, resigned late today after a consultation with leading business men who said they felt that the business interests of the community would be served best by such action. Langston's case will be dismissed immediately, officials said.

NAVAL FINANCE BLOW IS AIMED AT ANNAPOLIS

House Committee Proposes to Turn June Graduates Back to Civil Life Without Commissions.

Drive for Reduction From Denby's Appropriation Estimate Admitted to Be Gaining Headway.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The house naval committee, in trying to discover some way of reducing appropriations for next year's naval establishment was reported today to have agreed informally to recommend that the first class at Annapolis to be graduated in June, be turned back to civil life without naval commissions.

Although members declined to discuss this proposal it is understood that such a recommendation probably will be made, along with the further proposal that the number of men to be admitted to the academy each year be reduced from five to two, for each member of congress. Secretary Denby proposed that the reduction be cut on a congressional allotment from five to three.

There are about 540 members of the first class, all of whom expected to go to sea. A committeeman, urging that the entire class be dropped, declared final decision on this question would be reached at the earliest possible time in order to let the midshipmen know whether they could expect to remain on the government payroll.

While the committee continued today to hear naval experts tell of needs for the next fiscal year under what they described as "the treaty navy," house members were canvassing among themselves in an effort to find how much could be cut from Secretary Denby's estimate of $350,000,000 for the fiscal year. On all sides it was admitted that the drive for a reduction from that figure was gaining headway, although many leaders insisted that to cut much under the Denby estimate would put the navy below the ratio rating fixed by the arms conference.

MANY INJURED IN RENEWAL OF BELFAST RIOTS

By Associated Press.

BELFAST, Feb. 15.—Firing in the Stanhope street area, when the disorders broke out anew this afternoon after a lull of several hours, became so intense that police, hurried to the scene, were forced to use their arms to subdue the snipers. But disorderly crowds continued to gather, and a bayonet charge was ordered, in which a civilian was badly wounded. The district simmered with excitement through the afternoon.

About five o'clock there was a renewed outbreak of firing from the old lodge into Townsend street, one street removed from Stanhope. Here a storekeeper was shot through the head and was taken to the hospital in a dying condition; two persons were seriously wounded. Many others were taken to hospitals after the rioting earlier in the afternoon. With those injured in the latest outbreak, the number of casualties for four days passes the hundred mark.

The attack this afternoon on the Northern Spinning company mills in the Fall road in which the assistant manager, Wm. Duffin, was killed and a clerk wounded, was particularly savage.

Six men invaded the offices, drew their revolvers and fired indiscriminately. Duffin, busy at his desk, fell dead. Immediately some 15 shots were fired. Duffin is a nephew of Adam Duffin, member of Northern Ireland senate.

No Defense of Movies Needed, Says Griffith

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Asserting that there were in the movies men and women whom all would be glad to have in their families, David W. Griffith, motion picture producer, today warned the advertising club of New York against "the power of the sincere, fanatical minority."

In a speech which followed close the church debate between Rev. Dr. John Roach Stratton and William A. Brady, theatrical potentate, upon the relative moral standing of pastors and stage folk, Mr. Griffith declared no defense of the movies was necessary. "Shall we attack the banks when a banker gets into the newspapers, or the church when a minister gets into the newspapers?" he asked. "In this morning's paper I saw that a priest had been arrested charged with the murder of his brother. A few days ago I read that the records of the Atlanta penitentiary showed three minister inmates to each actor.

"Neither the actor nor the minister should be in prison. It doesn't mean anything against the religion of Christ if occasionally a minister falls from grace. The moving picture people are just the same as all the other humans, who people this earth."

Fire Threatens South Electra Field; Does Damage of $25,000

Fire, starting from ignited gas in a producing well, in the heart of the Griswold Oil company's Burnett lease, South Electra field, caused between $20,000 and $25,000 damage Wednesday night, and though still burning at 10:30, was believed well under control. Reports of the fire were telephoned to S. M. Griswold, the president, in this city, from his son, who is field manager, and who was at the lease when the fire started.

Two rigs were burned, a standard on the producing well and a rotary over the new well that was rigging up to start drilling. The fire originated in No. 12 well, which was said to be gassing heavily. The free gas was ignited by a spark from a fire at the No. 21, built by the crew for heating purposes. The fire was said to be quite threatening for a time, but the crews on the lease soon succeeded in confining the flames to the two rigs.

The heat was so intense as to collapse the casing at the top of the No. 12 well, it was also reported. Work on repairing the damage will start immediately, it was learned.

HOWAT WINNER IN FIRST ROUND OF UNION FIGHT

Tangle Over Status of Deposed Chief of Kansas Miners Halts United Mine Workers.

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 15.—Marked by the preliminary victory of Alexander Howat, deposed chief of the Kansas union miners, in his fight for union re-instatment of himself and his expelled followers, the convention of the United Mine Workers of America today abruptly stopped work, delaying until tomorrow its final decision whether it would consider the expulsion order of international president, John L. Lewis, and other administration officers.

In the stormy session today during which Mr. Lewis declared that his life had been threatened repeatedly during the last ten days, the delegates almost lost sight of their main work, the framing of the union's wage policy, and devoted themselves entirely to debate on the union's internal troubles.

A vain appeal was made by Mr. Lewis to direct the delegates to the wage question. He referred to the threatened coal strike on April 1 as "seemingly inevitable," and pictured the miners as a vast army that was asked to stop on the eve of battle to "wash its own dirty linen." He contended Mr. Howat violated the union's law in seeking a direct appeal to the convention.

"The only issue here, said Howat, in his appeal, "is whether we are entitled to a fair and impartial trial."

Further, the Kansas leader argued, that to follow the course held necessary by President Lewis would result in the expelled miners' case going again to union officials, who he said, "had kicked us out of the union."

Mr. Lewis' decision that Howat's appeal was out of order was over ridden by the convention on a rising vote of 977 to 864 but the administration forces immediately countered with a demand for a roll call of the delegates, contending that 125 Howat followers who were not entitled to vote, had been counted to give the preliminary victory to the Kansans.

The roll call, however, was delayed until tomorrow by the adoption of a motion of Frank Farrington, the Illinois leader and Howat's chief supporter, who protested against voting until the credential committee had completed its work of determining who was entitled to vote as delegates.

PLANS STUDIED FOR REDUCTION OF U. S. ARMY

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—In line with Secretary Denby's recent declaration that reductions of the naval establishment beyond those he has suggested must of necessity be made primarily in the navy yards and stations, cutting the army below its present authorized 150,000 enlisted strength undoubtedly would be reflected in abandonment of old army posts over the country.

Exhaustive study of the problem has been made in the war department. The specific results of the study have not been disclosed. The general theory on which curtailment must be made, however, are familiar to all officers, it is said.

The question of the strength of the army is to come up this week in congress. Army officials, it was learned today, will be ready to make it perfectly clear to the committee that they do not believe the present or future safety of the country will permit further army reductions.

At the same time to illustrate what reductions will mean if decreed by congress they will be able to present specific plans for the distribution of the army under various totals below 150,000 worked out with the idea of getting the maximum possible advantage for the nation out of whatever army is left. Abandonment of non-essential army posts, curtailment of the coast artillery force and consequent closing up in reserve of defensive works, reduction of the Philippine garrison and many other ways of contracting the army without compelling abandonment of its major missions have been carefully looked into in connection with this study.

FIGHT MADE ON BILL DESIGNED TO AID LABOR

Measure Providing Increase in Public Works in Slack Times Meets Bi-Partisan Opposition.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Unexpected and bi-partisan opposition developed in the senate today to the bill introduced by Senator Kenyon, Republican, Iowa, to aid the unemployment problem by empowering government officials to press public works during slack times and retard them during periods of prosperity.

After Senator Kenyon had obtained consideration of the bill and explained its provisions, Republicans and Democrats attacked it with the result that leaders declared its fate in doubt.

Senator Kenyon, chairman of the labor committee, said he was pressing the bill mainly in the interest of labor, the United States Chamber of Commerce and other organizations, he added.

Senator Pletcher, Democrat, Florida, said he feared the bill conferred too large powers on executive officials over government work, while Senator Sterling, Republican, South Dakota, declared it was paternalistic in spirit and was backed by "big business."

Most of the witnesses before the senate labor committee who spoke for the bill, Senator Sterling said, represented large business interests. It appeared, he added, that business concerns desired its passage not only for the profits they might make out of government work during times of depression, but also on the order that they might keep their working forces together in such periods.

Senator Kenyon said this was a concrete "result of President Harding's recent unemployment conference and its principles were recommended in resolutions of the conference."

Senator New, Republican, Indiana, objected to a provision of the bill which he said would have the department of commerce predict panics and bad business conditions. Senator Kenyon insisted that the bill did not call for such predictions by the department but only for publication of facts regarding business conditions.

NATIONAL COAL STRIKE EFFECT IS MINIMIZED

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—A national strike in the union coal fields can be maintained in the United States for several months without serious inconvenience to consumers, according to evidence by operators put before the I. C. C. today in the general rate hearing now going on.

The commission, taking cognizance of threatened stoppage of production in the union fields on April 1, asked J. D. A. Morrow, vice president of the national coal association, for statistics covering the situation. The resulting report filed today estimated that non-union coal fields have an annual output capacity of 295,145,000 tons or a weekly average production of 5,767,000 tons. This was on the basis of conditions in 1918, Mr. Morrow said, adding that alterations had increased the number and capacity of non-union mines to approximately 6,000,00 tons weekly.

Consumption of bituminous coal in the United States at present is 7,500,000 tons per week, the report showed, with a material decrease in sight after April 1, because of warm weather. In addition, 47,000,000 tons of coal were said to be in stock on January 1, with many consumers of coal increasing their supplies.

The only danger to consumers in the strike he said, would be from interruption in railroad traffic, which would stop the movement of coal from non-union mines.

TEXTILE STRIKE RANKS GREATLY STRENGTHENED

By Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 15.—The ranks of textile strikers in Rhode Island already 15,000 strong were strengthened today when between 400 and 500 operatives in mills in the Blackstone valley walked out to join the protest against recent wage reductions.

GRAND JURY'S LEGAL STATUS TO BE ATTACKED

Local Attorney to File Motion Asking Indictment Quashed Result Non-Observance of Statute.

Should Motion Be Sustained Either Here or on Appeal 98 Indictments of Session Would Be Wiped Out.

The validity of the recent session of the grand jury of the 30th district court which returned 98 indictments will be questioned this morning when one of the cases will be called for trial, according to authentic information obtained Wednesday.

Asked concerning the report Wednesday, the local attorney representing the accused in the case verified the statement that a motion to quash the indictment would be made this morning on the ground that the grand jury had violated a statutory requirement and for that reason its findings as regards to indictments was nullified. The attorney refused to state the specific irregularity alleged.

Should the motion be sustained either in a local district court or on appeal to the court of criminal appeals it would serve to render the entire recent session of the grand jury illegal, according to attorneys not interested in the case.

MOVE MADE TO GIVE WORK TO SHIP BUILDERS

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Proposals to relieve unemployment among navy yard workers caused by the suspension of work on ships and guns under the naval limitation treaty were submitted to Secretary Denby today by President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor and a committee of navy yard workers and have been referred to the technical experts of the navy department for consideration. It was said tonight that several of the suggestions made were manifestly impossible to carry out.

One of these was that the government complete as one of the battleships to be retained under the treaty the vessel now under construction at the government yard at Brooklyn, at Mare Island, California, or at Norfolk. As all of these battleships building in government yards are of the 42,000-ton class, however, it was said, this could not be done under the treaty which limits the size of battleships to 35,000 tons. In addition, it was pointed out, the treaty specifically provides that two ships of the West Virginia class are to be retained and the only three of this class under construction are the Colorado, Washington and West Virginia, all in private yards.

It was indicated also that navy officials generally regard the workers' proposal that scrapping of all ships be allocated to the navy yards or to navy crews was not possible of execution since a great majority of the work of scrapping is done by unskilled labor and practically all of the yard employes are skilled workmen.

Alabama Firm Makes Bid on Muscle Shoals

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Entry of the Alabama Power Company today as a bidder for the government's properties at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, was regarded by officials as offering rivalry to Henry Ford's proposal now before congress. Secretary Weeks probably will hurry the new offer to congress so consideration of the Alabama and Ford proposals can be undertaken simultaneously and the respective merits discussed before final action. The Alabama company's offer is for purchase of the Warrior power plant and transmission line and lease for 50 years of the other properties under provisions of the federal water power act. House military committeemen investigating the Ford offer learned of the Alabama proposal, but would not delay action on that already before them pending receipt of the other. Chairman Kahn explained that it was the duty of the committee to make a careful study of all offers alike in an effort to determine which was the best.

Today's meeting was devoted to hearing testimony of Governor Alfred Taylor of Tennessee, in addition to that submitted by Professor Milton Whitney, chief of the soils bureau, department of agriculture. The governor was accompanied by a Tennessee delegation, for whom he spoke in condemnation of the Alabama Power company which, he declared, was opposing the offer of Mr. Ford. He strongly urged adoption of the Detroit manufacturer's proposal and declared no person, company or corporation which opposed it was welcome in the state he represented.

First hearings to be held on the Ford offer by the senate agriculture committee were scheduled to begin tomorrow with the Tennessee governor and Major General Beach, chief of army engineers on the list of witnesses.

DOMINO PARLOR HABITUES IN 'VAG' CLASS AT MEXIA

By Associated Press.

MEXIA, Texas, Feb. 15.—General orders from General Wolters issued today made "playing dominoes or loitering in domino parlors in the military district of Mexia prima facie evidence that persons engaged therein are vagrants." Such persons will be arrested and charged with vagrancy before proper authorities, the order directs.

The military arrested 72 whites and blacks in a raid this afternoon on a domino parlor a few doors from the military headquarters. Police tonight arrested scores in similar raids.

NEW MEANS TO FINANCE BONUS IS SUGGESTED

House Leaders Study Plan for Providing Necessary Revenue by Slashing Appropriation Bills.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The soldier's bonus question was tonight still in the air.

Congress was without any official word from President Harding as to his views on the subject, and meantime, committees which have been handling the matter are marking time.

Among senators and representatives generally, there was considerable private discussion and conjecture with the revival on the house side of talk about a slashing of annual appropriation bills as a means of providing the necessary finances for the bonus.

Representative Mondell, republican, Wyoming, and some other leaders in the house were understood to be giving this proposal close study. Mr. Mondell called at the White House but did not see the president. He said afterwards that the supply measures would be examined carefully to determine whether much of the sum needed for the bonus could not be obtained from that direction.

This proposition met with considerable response from house members. There were suggestions that as a result of the agreement for a naval holiday $200,000,000 could be cut from the naval bill and that another large sum could be saved by cutting the army's size. Mr. Mondell and other leaders were not prepared, however, to make estimates pending more careful study.

With the executive known to disfavor either the suggested eight point tax program, or a bond issue, sales tax proponents pushed their campaign with renewed vigor. They were said to be hopeful that the president would suggest this tax in his expected communication to Chairman McCumber of the senate finance committee.

Some senators also thought Mr. Harding might make such a suggestion. Sentiment in both house and senate against a sales tax was said to be so strong that there was little probability that the bonus bill with a provision for this tax could be passed.

PHILIP MEYERS AND RECKLESS DRIVING CASE

Philip Myers, a reputable and well known business man, was made the victim of the linotype in a list of the settings for criminal week in the county court-at-law. Mr. Myers, who is in business at 1005 Lamar street and is a buyer and seller of cars, is a daily reader of the Record News. There were two cases called for Tuesday. This is the way the settings appeared:

"6439—State vs J. B. Quinn; receiving stolen driving.

"6416—State vs Philip Myers; recking and concealing stolen property."

Mr. Myers was charged with reckless driving; J. B. Quinn with receiving and concealing stolen property. This is the way it should have read:

"6439—State vs J. B. Quinn; receiving and concealing stolen property.

"6416—State vs Philip Myers; reckless driving."

It was a ridiculous error made by the make-up in the handling of the type, but an error is an error and the Record News cheerfully rectifies the blunder by making the necessary correction. This is the policy of the Record News. Its columns are always open to those who feel they have been placed in a false position or who have been misrepresented in any way. Mr. Myers was made the victim of the linotypes. Mr., Myers had a correction coming and for this reason the original story, as it should have been told, is given space in order that all who read may understand.

PLEA TO COMMUTE DEATH SENTENCE OF CHURCH IS DENIED

By Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 15.—Executive clemency was denied Harvey Church, Chicago murderer of two automobile salesmen, by Governor Small late this afternoon. Church has been sentenced to hang on Friday. The governor denied his plea for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment on recommendation of the state division of pardons and paroles.

TWO SENATORS SAY MELLON IS VIOLATING LAW

Heflin Backs Watson in the Statement That "Unconvicted Criminal" Has Charge of Funds.

"Law Forbids Secretary of Treasury Engaging in Any Other Business," Asserts Georgia Senator.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Secretary Mellon is holding the office of secretary of the treasury in violation of the law and can be arrested for retaining the place if anyone sees fit to swear out a warrant charging him with the offense, Senator Watson, democrat, Georgia, declared in the senate late today.

The law which Mr. Mellon is violating, Senator Watson said, prohibits the secretary of the treasury from engaging in any kind of business or commerce.

Senator Watson told the senate that Mr. Mellon could be impeached "any time we see fit," and read to the senate the provision of section 243 of the revised statutes, which he declared, expressly forbid Mr. Mellon to retain his place. He declared that by staying in office, the secretary was violating the law, adding that it was generally known that Mr. Mellon was one of the wealthiest individuals in the country.

The assertions by the Georgia senator were made in connection with several speeches on the accomplishments of the two major political parties. He informed the senate in the course of his remarks that the law, now listed as section 243, was passed in the first congress in the United States and that during the administration of President Grant, the name of A. T. Stewart had withdrawn after being named secretary of the treasury when attention was called to provisions of the act.

Senator Watson asked Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, for his opinion on "what the people will think of the way our government is being run when a criminal, unconvicted but disobeying the penalty openly and notoriously, committing a crime, is left in charge of our national funds and the refunding of debts of eleven billion dollars."

Senator Heflin said that Senator Watson had shown that Secretary Mellon was violating the law and that it was time for senators to speak out.

FISHER CASES TO LIKELY BE ENDED TODAY

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 15.—The end was in sight tonight in the investigation of the conduct of the office of Hugh C. Fisher, U. S. district attorney for the western Louisiana district, and contempt and disbarment charges against Fisher and contempt charges against R. A. Giddens, member of the republican state central committee. Judge J. C. Hutcheson late this afternoon adjourned the hearing while Fisher was in the midst of an argument in his own behalf.

Contempt and disbarment charges which had grown out of the proceedings against John B. Files, former counsel of record for Fisher, were annulled by Judge Hutcheson, presiding at the investigation in place of Judge G. W. Jack, recused and instigator of the investigation.

Judge Hutcheson, in the course of the day, practically cleared Emile Kuntz, national republican committeeman from Louisiana, also involved in the allegations from all connection with the case.

Judge Hutcheson admonished Fisher that there was strong grounds for the charges of contempt against him and also intimated that his opinion was that "Giddens had talked too much" on frequent occasions. Conclusion of argument by Fisher Thursday is expected to be followed by the rendering of his decision.

ALLEGED PLOT OF EXTORTION IS UNEARTHED

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15.—A terrorist program of international scope may be revealed through the arrest here last night of eight alleged members of a band of extortionists, it was said tonight by federal and other officers who participated in the arrest.

Three men arrested recently in widely separated American cities are believed to have had in their possession "unmistakable evidence" of affiliation with the men taken into custody here it was said. These three men were arrested in Salt Lake City, Des Moines and Cleveland, Ohio, officers said, and further declared clock bombs and duplicate written instructions were found on all three.

WELL MAKES NEW RECORD FOR 500 FOOT PRODUCERS

With a record of two two hundred and fifty barrel tanks filled since Friday night of last week, the No. 1 Waggoner of the Petroleum Producers company, a mile and a half to the west of previous production in the South Electra field, is believed to have set a new mark for shallow wells in this district. The well is five feet in the oil sand drilled at 480 feet, as was previously reported.

The well had an initial production of 100 barrels and Thursday's run amounted to around 85 barrels, according to reports from the field. It is being pumped.

There is considerable production at this depth in the South Electra district, but all previous completion records have been far outdistanced by this latest well. From five to twenty-five barrels is the average flush production for this depth.

The Petroleum Producers company is starting three more wells on their lease, and it is understood that a number of other tests are to be started in this vicinity as soon as conditions will permit. Considerable leasing activity resulted from this new strike, according to reports, a number of leases being made on parts of the Waggoner ranch which was yet unleased.

CONDITIONS AT OKMULGEE ARE ABOUT NORMAL

Judge Christopher Is Believed by Friends to Be En Route to Chicago to Join Relatives.

OKMULGEE, Okla., Feb. 15.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Judge H. R. Christopher of the Okmulgee county superior court from Coyle last Monday afternoon was partly cleared today when word was received from a local attorney at Kansas City that he saw Judge Christopher at the Union Station there yesterday morning.

The informant said that the jurist's family was not with him and this added strength to the belief among friends here that he was en route to Chicago, where he formerly resided and where his mother now lives.

Judge Christopher, with his wife and young son, left here last Thursday soon after he had dissolved a grand jury which had been called primarily to investigate the affairs of the defunct Bank of Commerce. His action precipitated a demonstration in the court room, led by county attorney James Hepburn, who charged that "under sinister influence" the grand jury had been dismissed just two hours before it was to have brought indictments against two state officials and a number of persons here in connection with the bank's failure.

Judge Christopher's resignation from the bench was mailed from Coyle Monday and received here late yesterday. It was demanded in resolutions adopted at a citizens' mass meeting this night following the court scene. E. J. Dick, local attorney, to whom it was addressed, announced he will leave tomorrow night for Oklahoma City to present it to Lieutenant Governor M. E. Trapp, acting executive in the absence of Governor J. B. A. Robertson.

Interest in the situation, which has been at fever heat since the summary dismissal of the grand jury Thursday, had noticeably died today and appears now to be centered in a new investigation of the defunct bank by a grand jury which will be drawn tomorrow and ordered to report February 27 and the activities of Attorney General Shortt in his plan to reorganize the bank.

TWO NEGROES HOLD UP MAN ON ELEVENTH

Two negro men held up and robbed L. L. Huff, boilermaker living at 1103 Scott street securing $11 in cash according to reports made to police shortly after 10 o'clock Wednesday night. Mr. Huff said that he was walking on Eleventh street between Ohio and Indiana streets when the two negroes compelled him to throw up his hands. Both negroes were armed he said.

A search of the neighborhood was made by police officers. Two negroes were arrested and questioned by officers.

SERVANT HOUSE ROW RESULTS IN LONG SENTENCE

A jury in the 78th district court after once reporting that they were hopelessly divided Wednesday afternoon sentenced Ben Little, negro to two years and nine months in the state penitentiary on a charge of assault with prohibited weapon.

Little was alleged to have displayed and fired a pistol in a shooting affair at a servant's house located in the Floral Heights addition. Two other negroes are also indicted for the same offense.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE ON SENTENCE

Unable to agree as to whether or not Anderson Lancaster should be given a suspended sentence following his plea of guilty to an indictment Wednesday morning charging felony theft, a jury in the 30th district court Wednesday morning was dismissed by Judge Ed Napier.

Lancaster pleaded guilty Tuesday to having stolen two bales of cotton and asked for a suspended sentence, and returned Wednesday morning for further consideration of the case. It was stated that the jury was divided 9 to 3. Lancaster, according to attorneys, will probably be tried again during the present term of court.

'EMPTY GRAVE' CASE VERDICT IS AFFIRMED

Court of Criminal Appeals Reverses and Dismisses Wichita County Case on Technicality.

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Feb. 15.—The "empty grave" case from Stonewall county was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals this morning. Byrd Jackson Cochrain, sentenced to two years for swindling a life insurance company out of $5,000, must now pay his penalty, the court ruled. This case received considerable notice at the time it was discovered.

Cochrain is alleged to have perpetrated a fictitious death and burial and collected the life insurance money from the insurance company. Two-year sentences of two of his accomplices have already been affirmed by the court.

The fifty-year sentence of A. J. Andrews, convicted in Liberty county of murder, was affirmed; also the 20-year sentence of John Chappell of Kaufman county for murder.

The 11-year sentence of Sam Williams, alias "Sad Sam," convicted in Cottle county for murder, was reformed and affirmed.

An instance of technicalities on which the court must by law reverse cases was brought out in the case of L. B. Gray, convicted of misdemeanor theft in Wichita county, which was reversed and dismissed. The words "in this case" were omitted in the sentence, "to abide judgment of the court of criminal appeals of the state of Texas." The court held omission of the three words demanded reversal and dismissal.

Brotherhood Of Firemen Win Decision

Insurance associations may issue policies providing that a board will act as sole arbitrator in any dispute arising regarding its provisions and this decision cannot be appealed to a court of law according to a decision announced Wednesday by Judge Ed Napier of the 78th district. The issue has never been adjudicated in Texas, according to attorneys.

The decision was announced in connection with the judgment rendered in the suit of Olan White against the Brotherhood of Railway Firemen to recover $1,600 alleged to be due for injuries while employed on a railroad. It was shown in the evidence that a clause in the insurance policy issued to the plaintiff by the brotherhood's insurance association provided that a board of arbitration should determine all disputes that might arise between the insurer and the insured.

It was maintained in the trial of the case that the provision of the policy was not legally binding, and the plaintiff had a right to appeal the decision of the arbitration board to a court of law.

Judge Napier also held that the fact that the plaintiff was injured so that he could no longer do railroad work did not mean that he should receive the maximum amount allowed by the policy for total disability. It was shown that the accused could do other work and this fact the court held barred him from claiming under the disability clause.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN ROUGH CHAPPED HANDS

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter-pint of harmless and delightful lemon-bleach lotion to soften and whiten red, rough or chapped hands. This home-made lemon lotion is far superior to glycerin and rose water to smoothen the skin. Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, because it doesn't irritate.—Adv.

LITTLE DELAY EXPECTED ON RAIL PERMIT

Frank Kell Does Not Expect Repetition of Delay Experienced in Building of Southern Extension.

Permit for the building of the Byers-Waurika rail extension, for which application has been made to the interstate commerce commission, is expected without the long delay which held up construction of the Southern extension for a number of months, Frank Kell said Wednesday in announcing the filing of the application.

Building of this line is not expected to cause the fight from competing lines which developed at the Southern hearing, which was held for the national body by the Texas commission, and which was featured by a fight against the issuance of the permit by four lines operating in the territory which the extension would penetrate.

Application of an Oklahoma charter for the part of the line beyond Red River has already been made. The Texas end will, it is expected, operated under the charter of the Wichita Falls & Oklahoma, the corporate name of the Byers branch of the Wichita Valley, which will be incorporated in the new line.

Former Local Ad Man Talks To Dallasites

From Dallas News:

W. W. Pigue, advertising manager of the Fort Worth Record, was the principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Dallas Advertising League at the Oriental Hotel Monday.

Mr. Pigue spoke on the advertising outlook for 1922, and declared that more attention and thought would be given to advertising this year than ever before. He said that national advertisers are beginning to realize that newspapers are the most effective means of reaching the buying public, and that much of the money that has been formerly devoted to magazine advertising will hereafter be spent with the newspapers.

MRS. HATFIELD SABINA, OHIO

In Pitiable Condition When She Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sabina, Ohio.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and irregularity. I was weak and nervous and could hardly stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal. I was this way for about a year and had tried several medicines and had a physician, but to no avail. My sister was taking your medicine and finally induced me to try it. I now feel fine and can do my housework without any trouble at all. You can use this letter for the sake of others if you wish." — Mrs. WELDON G. HATFIELD, R. R. 3, Sabina, Ohio.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so weak and nervous that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken when you first notice such symptoms as nervousness, backache, weakness and irregularity. It will help you and prevent more serious trouble.

To Demonstrate Flowing Device

Demonstration of the Kelly flowing device for oil wells is being made in a miniature oil well in the show rooms of the Gaines Motor Sales Co., according to a statement by H. M. Joseph, secretary-treasurer of the Texas Kelly Flowing Device company, who is here in the interest of its distribution. Mr. Joseph claims for the device, the ability to make the well flow with a small gas pressure without outside assistance and even increase the production.

The device has already been introduced in the Breckenridge district, according to Joseph, and he has made arrangements for its installation in a well of the Lewis Oil company and in a well belonging to M. L. Davis.

The device is claimed to be simple in construction, of sufficient durability to last during the life of the well, and "fool proof" in operation.

clamations. Ever for the enforcement of the written law of the land, H. N. F. is opposed to the rule of the highjacker and harlot in community or state or nation.

President Harding is opposed to the enactment of the special taxes suggested to finance the soldier bonus or to the return to taxes which have been repealed. President Harding is very much in doubt if it would be possible to raise the required amount to finance the cash feature of the bonus under an issue of bonds without appreciably advancing interest rates and destroying the financial tranquility which is sought by the administration. Secretary A. W. Mellon warned the President and he warned the congress a long time ago what the country could expect if the administration put over the Soldier bonus bill at this time. Secretary Mellon is a business man, a financier, a man of action who never hesitates to tell the politicians where to head in. Secretary Mellon has been trying to pull the country out of the hole. He is doing his best to bring about financial stability as well as normalcy. Senator Borah of Idaho is one congressional leader who has the courage of conviction. Although he did not need the Mellon warning, he accepted it. According to the Washington correspondent of the Kansas City Star the president, the administration and the congressmen are sweating blood over the sorry mess the party is in over the soldier bonus problem. Congressman Alice M. Robertson of Oklahoma is a Republican. She appeared before the Women's Republican club in the City of New York and rapped the bonus. Soldiers demanding a bonus, she said, lacked the patriotism of Americans who fought in the Revolution, Civil and Spanish-American wars. "Those veterans," said the congress lady from Oklahoma, "didn't put a price on their patriotism." In his senate speech attacking the bonus the gentleman from Idaho said that $1,175,600,000 had been spent by the Government already in caring for the disabled soldiers. Chairmen Warren of the appropriation committee interrupted to say that there would be a deficit of 93 million dollars on this item for this year alone. Senator Borah said that this was only the beginning, that in the next few years the annual item for caring for the disabled soldiers would amount to $1,500,000,000 a year, and that before the Government was through it would cost 15 to 100 billion dollars. He said he based this by the way the pension rolls increased after the Civil War, that a bonus measure would cost 3 to 5 billion dollars, and that such a sum could not be laid on the country without seriously impairing its ability to take care of the disabled. He warned the senate that there were more taxpayers than veterans and he attacked borrowing to pay the bonus as extremely dangerous and only deferring payment. "Are we any nearer restored financial conditions or are we just nearer an election?" asked the Republican senator from Idaho. Secretary Mellon stands pat. President Harding is on the rack. Congressional leaders do not know which way to turn. There is to be an election early this fall. Borah has thrown down the gauntlet. He says that there are more tax-payers than veterans and there you are.

Hell hath no fury like a film star stung. Will Rogers wanted President Harding to see his show when it played in the City of Washington. He invited the President. President Harding snubbed him and went to another show. Will Rogers is one of the noted comedians of America. He has been known as a rock-rooted Republican. After being stung this is the message he sent to the White House, "From now on I am a Democrat." He played five times in the city of Washington during the Wilson administration and every time Woodrow Wilson came and laughed at the cracks Rogers made at him more than he did at those Rogers made against the other fellow. This is the verdict of the famous fun-maker of the American stage, "It makes a fellow feel good and sort of at home when he finds a man like Wilson. If a big man laughs at jokes on him, he is all right." This is the snapshot speech that won for Rogers the hostility of the White House, "Heard the president's treaty message yesterday. I thought it about the best speech Secretary Hughes ever wrote." John A. Joyce was right: "Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone." President Harding should read the poem.

According to a correspondent of the United Press hunger, want and misery are stalking in the Hocking Valley in Southern Ohio. Hundreds of families are actually starving with no food in sight. Whole families are clad in rags. Children run around bare-footed in the cold winter. Mothers with babes in their arms walk for miles to beg a loaf of bread. Hocking Valley depends upon the mining industry for its existence. Ninety per cent of the mines have been shut down for more than seven months and for more than seven months the same percentage of miners have been out of work. Their savings of more prosperous times are gone. Merchants have extended credit to them beyond the degree of business safety. Only the most desperate cases can be aided by private charity. Herbert Hoover made an appeal for Russia and more than a hundred million dollars was appropriated or donated to buy bread for the starving Slavs. Ohio is an American state. Isn't it true that charity begins at home?

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

THIS VALE OF TEARS.

There is no country here below that can't prouce some brand of woe. I've traveled all the world around to find some hollow in the ground where one in comfort might recline, and cry aloud, "This country's fine!" I've lived where it is always spring and birds are ever on the wing, and there I found the noxious fly would recognize no time to die. I pitched my tent beside the sea and watched the billows wild and free, and thought at last I'd found a place designed to soothe the human race. And then I saw a fogbank creep from out the reaches of the deep; the fog was gray and dank and cold, as clammy as the graveyard mold; it soaked into my bones and thews, and filled my organs and my shoes, and rheumatism climbed my frame and broke my heart and left me lame. I built myself a little shack upon a mountain's rocky back; and there the air was pure and sweet, the view was fine enough to eat. But there large rats their council held, and all night long the bobcats yelled, and nameless varmints to their dens bore off my Poland China hens. If one's inclined to tear his hair, he'll gather lemons everywhere; he'll find no place beneath the sun where grief and trouble do not run. Contentment, like a thrifty tree, will grow wherever you may be, if you don't rake around to find some sorrows to disturb your mind.

BUSTER BEAR IS INTRODUCED

None of the little people who were there ever will forget how Buster Bear was introduced in the Green Forest. It was the funniest introduction any of them can remember. They laugh now whenever they think of it, though at the time some of them didn't laugh at all. No, indeed! The truth is some of them were too frightened to see anything funny. You see, it happened like this:

Jimmy Skunk had met Buster Bear up by the pond of Paddy the Beaver deep in the Green Forest and he had made Buster Bear get out of his way. Peter Rabbit had seen him do it, and of course Peter had told every one he met. Every one had expressed a great deal of admiration for Jimmy Skunk until Petter came to Prickly Porky the Porcupine. Prickly Porky had said it was nothing to make Buster Bear get out of the way and that he would do the same thing if some one would invite Buster Bear to come down where he was. Jumper the Hare had offered to go invite Buster Bear and Reddy Fox had planned to prevent Jumper ever getting near Buster Bear. So Reddy had hidden where he could jump out at Jumper and perhaps catch him. Along had come Jumper, and just as Reddy was getting ready to spring he heard a step behind him and turned to look right sraight in the face of Buster Bear.

Now, Reddy Fox is a coward. He always has been a coward. Perhaps he can't help it, but anyway he is a coward. When he saw who it was behind him he gave one frightened yelp and then he put his tail between his legs and he started for home faster than ever he had run before. His eyes looked as if they would pop right out of his head. His tongue hung out of one side of his mouth and his teeth would have chattered with fright if he had stopped long enough to close his mouth. My, my, my, he certainly was frightened, was Reddy Fox! You see, it was the first time he had seen Buster Bear. He had heard about him, but he hadn't believed all he had heard. Now, when he actually saw Buster Bear and how big he was, he couldn't get away quick enough.

The minute Reddy started to run Jumper the Hare started after him. Reddy can run fast, but Jumper, as you know, can run faster. So he had no trouble in keeping right at Reddy's heels. But Reddy didn't know this. He was so frightened that he didn't stop to look back, and when he heard some one just behind him he thought it was Buster Bear, and tried to run harder. As for Buster Bear himself he was so tickled by timid Jumper the Hare that he started after them as fast as he could go so as to see what would happen next.

At the foot of the tree in which sat Prickly Pocky were several of the little people of the Green Forest gossiping about Buster Bear and wondering if Jumper the Hare really would invite Buster Bear to meet them. No one excepting Prickly Porky believed he would. Prickly Porky knew Jumper better than the others because they had both come from the same Great Woods to live in the Green Forest. Suddenly there was a great racket. Everybody looked up to see what it meant. There came Reddy Fox running as if he thought his very last minute had come and right at his heels was Jumper the Hare! It looked just as if Reddy was running away from Jumper, and everybody shouted with laughter. Reddy didn't stop. Oh, my no! He kept right on. But Jumper stopped

"I've brought my old friend, Buster Bear, to introduce him," said Jumper.

"I've brought my old friend Buster Bear to introduce him," said Jumper, and as he spoke, with great huffing and puffing, Buster Bear himself came crashing into their midst.

All the laughter stopped right then and there. You never, never did see such a frightened scampering! Uncle Billy Possum and Happy Jack Squirrel got in each other's way as they tried to climb the same tree. Striped Chipmunk tried to crawl into a hole too small for him. Bobby Coon fell backward from an old stump on which he was sitting. Only Jimmy Skunk and Prickly Porky seemed unafraid. Buster Bear sat up and his little eyes twinkled and he grinned broadly as he said: "I'm ever so glad to meet you and I hope we'll get better acquainted when you are not in such a hurry."

And this is the way that Buster Bear was introduced to the little people of the green Forest by Jumper the Hare.

NEXT STORY—WHY JUMPER THE HARE WAS NOT AFRAID.

You Should Prosper

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Wide-awake business men have long appreciated that one of the greatest aids to business success is to be of helpfulness to others. In this belief they not merely make "Service" their business slogan, but come together in meetings and conventions for the generous interchange of helpful ideas gained from their personal experiences.

So with professional men who are really wide awake.

They do not look with a jealous eye upon fellow workers in the particular field of their professional activity. Friendliness, not animosity, governs their attitude to those who perhaps have achieved more success than they. The less successful they encourage, and in emergencies extend to them concrete aid.

From this enlightened policy all who adopt it profit in various ways.

Their character is strengthened, their personality expanded. They gain for themselves a large measure of good will on the part of others. All of which helps to keep them in a pleasurable mental state, and, because of the energy stimulating value of pleasurable mental states, they are able to apply themselves more and more effectively to whatever they undertake.

Unfortunately there still are many people who are far from recognizing the importance of this great psychological truth that he best helps himself who most willingly helps others. There are many, in fact, who actually seem to be animated by the desire to render as little help as may be to other people.

Such persons act as though they do not even want to be helpful to those who employ them.

They work, not diligently, but half-heartedly. They find innumerable pretexts to interrupt their work. They are the last to arrive at their working place in the morning, the first to depart from it when the working day is done.

Asked to do anything out of the ordinary, no matter how trifling, their sullen response is, "That's not my job." Unless liberally paid for overwork they feel aggrieved if overwork is ever expected of them.

Altogether, they make it unmistakably evident that, so far as their employer is concerned, to be really helpful is about the last thing of any moment to them. And because their employer, consciously or unconsciously, compels them to render something of the helpful service they would evade rendering, they go about in a chronically resentful mood.

Now, resentment is not a pleasurable mental state. Quite the reverse. And because it is the reverse it has a disturbing, a weakening effect on the whole organism. Let it prevail for any length of time and the most efficient of workers is well on the way to inefficiency.

Besides which, habitually to act in a mean-spirited, selfish way is to create about one a hostile psychic environment. The selfish repel where the helpful attract. Progress then becomes increasingly difficult, if only for the reason that business success is always to a large extent a matter of favorable human relationships.

"Because you did not help." That again might well be the answer returned to innumerable men, who, forced to confess lamentable failure, bitterly put the question, "Why have I failed?"

DUMM AND DUMMER ON PROPHET VOLIVA AND THE HANGING-LAMP SKY

"Wilbur Glenn Voliva is out again," remarked Senator Dumm as he threw his newspaper away with an air of exasperation.

"What's he done now?" asked Representative Dummer.

"He now declares that the sky is a vast dome of solid material like the roof of a Marcus Leow movie house and that the sun and moon and stars hang from it like chandeliers," explained Senator Dumm.

"Solid domes are plentiful enough without searching the skies for them," remarked Dummer. "Every man to his own dome, solid or not, say I. Who is this Voliva, anyhow?"

"He's a prophet," explained Dumm. "You know what a prophet is, doncher?"

"I know a profit when I see one and I know a loss, and I think Voliva talks more like a total loss than a profit," remarked Dummer.

"Mebbe you're right," agreed Dumm. "Certainly, when a feller gets to draping the moon and the sun and the contellations around under a solid dome like they was alotta cheap gas and electric light fixtures there must be sumpin the matter with him.

"Maybe before Voliva became a boss prophet he was an apprentice plumber and electrician's helper," remarked Dummer. "That might explain his odd ideas. I'll certainly tell the universe he is no piker when it comes to imagination. The sun certainly would make one swell looking hanging lamp and I've gotta admit that the moon would qualify as one grand and glorious porch light."

"And think of all the stars hanging down on wires like so many electric lights!" grinned Dumm.

"If Voliva ever proves himself right I nominate him for one fine job," declared Dummer.

"What's thtat?" asked Dumm.

"The job of replacing all the broken bulbs," returned Dummer. "He's a busy little bird, this Voliva, and it would keep him out of mischief."

"To me there is something offensive in his theory," went on Senator Dumm. "I regard the moon, the sun, and the stars as something infinitely more beautiful and well arranged than the fixtures in the lamp department of Kupplestein & Fishman's One Price Department Store."

"Ain't this guy Voliva the same one who said the world was flat?" asked Dummer.

"The very same," replied Dumm.

"Well, he has some grounds for such a belief," asserted Dummer. "It sure looks pretty flat to me these days. But even at that it ain't so flat except in spots. It may be flat in Zion City, and I guess it is, but have you ever seen Hoboken, New Jersey; Shelton, Connecticut, or even Atlantic City on a rainy day in February?" asked Dummer.

"What about 'em? asked Dumm.

"There are some fine flat places for you," exclaimed Dummer. "If Zion City is any flatter Voliva shouldn't be held responsible for what he thinks about the shape of the earth."

"Voliva also claims that there is a big wall of ice around the edge of the earth to keep people from falling off," continued Dumm.

"That's too bad," returned Dummer, "especially when you consider all the people that ought to fall off without oposition."

"Well, anyway, I don't suppose we should worry about it. If Voliva thinks the world is flat let him think so," said Senator Dumm.

"That's what I say," agreed Dummer. "Still, there is this much to be said in conclusion; if his followers gave Voliva a salary raise and a two months leave of absence to see some good cabaret shows he might not think things so flat after all."

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

ONLY BRONCHITIS

"What does the doctor say?" asked the elderly woman by the fire anxiously, as her daughter came downstairs after the physician had been up there at least half an hour.

"It's only bronchitis," said Mrs. Gerry, Junior, with a sigh of relief. "I was so afraid it was pneumonia. And Martha is such a slim little thing. I'm afraid of pneumonia, you know. But bronchitis! It really isn't anything."

And Mrs. Gerry, Junior, turned a smiling face toward the doctor as he came into the room.

"The chief thing about bronchitis, Mrs. Gerry," he said gravely, "is care. Many people do not appreciate the importance of bronchitis, and the need of very careful nursing during the attack and during convalescence."

Doctor Outlines Treatment.

"But I thought," began Mrs. Gerry. "That it didn't amount to much. Many people feel that way," the doctor said.

And proceeded to outline a routine of treatment that made Mrs. Gerry gasp, and made the older woman by the fire nod approvingly. She was one of these dear elderly souls who believe in the magic of an onion, baked in the ashes and bandaged around one's throat when it is sore; who put beefsteak on black eyes, and brew mysterious teas of herbs that accomplish wonders in their own way.

Mrs. Gerry learned that above all, in nursing cases of bronchitis, fresh air was indispensable. That draughts must be carefully guarded against.

Acute bronchitis, the doctor said, was an inflammation of the mucous membrance of the bronchi. Exposure to cold or wet causes the condition, but it may also arise from the inhalation of irritating gases.

The sore throat, general feeling of misery and constant cough, the doctor said, made the patient feel very ill indeed, and he advised Mrs. Gerry to keep little Matilda in bed for a week, and to take her temperature three times a day.

Had Two Faithful Nurses.

Grandmother Gerry put little faith in temperatures, but she heartily approved the poultices, the hot drinks of lemonade, and the steam inhalations the doctor prescribed.

After the doctor had gone Mrs. Gerry made a glass of hot lemonade and Grandmother Gerry made the poultice. Little Matilda was settled in the front room, propped up in the big bed against pillows, and wrapped warmly with a shawl, after which the windows were opened wide, a screen placed to guard the bed from draughts and a steam inhalation prepared to soothe the irritating cough which which made the pain in the little girl's chest so bad.

Sometimes Matilda did not want the glasses of milk and egg-nog, of gruel and soup that her two faithful nurses carried to her.

But when she understood that there is possibly no disease during which the importance of nourishing food is so great, she gave in. And swallowed obediently. And after she was able to sit up, a little weakly, in a chair, the quantities of nourishment began to tell. For fresh air and good food had worked their magic.

The Glut of the Superfluous

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

There is, always has been, and always will be, a great famine of the essentials and necessities.

There is, always has been, and always will be, a glut of the superfluous.

Nothing is more needed in this world than good cooks, good housekeepers, and good mothers. And it is difficult to get a good servant for love or money, as every woman knows. Of all the young ladies of my acquaintance, including college graduates, young ladies at home, and plain flappers, I do not know of one who aspires to cook. For some reason, the Almighty in His Infinite wisdom knows why, this most important and delightful profession is looked upon with scorn.

I know what I am talking about, for I myself like to cook and can serve you up a mess of hot biscuit and fried chicken as well as any cordon bleu I know of.

It may be, and often is at times, difficult to get a pound of decent butter at the grocery store and if you inquire at the butcher shop for real pork sausage like as not you will be told that they have none today; but there is no day in the year that you can not buy a pearl necklace if you have the money and beauty parlors, where they take beautiful, straight Anglo-Saxon hair and make it look like the wool that should have been on the top of the head of old Uncle Ned, are always open.

People are always pestering me to buy things I do not want, including encyclopedias, and stocks and bonds that are certain to rise in price, and all manner of labor saving devices for office use. There is profit enough in these things to keep an army of men employed peddling them from door to door. Yet when I start out to get something I do want, I can not find it.

If I ask at the grocery for oatmeal that has been cut and not smashed, if I inquire for the old-fashioned window shades that stay put and do not have to be jerked, if I inquire at the tobacco store for pipe tobacco that will not remove all the hide from the inside of my mouth, if I ask at the restaurant for some nourishing soup with vegetables in it and not all thickened up with flour that tastes like printer's paste, I am told that there is not any.

It sometimes seems that the whole business and social world is organized to give you what you do not want.

In fact, one of the simplest rules for success in the world is simply to find out what people want and sell it to them.

And suppose that you are starting out to find a wife. "Where a man," says Richard King, "can have a choice of a thousand girls who cannot even stitch a button on a pillow case, the feminine expert in domestic economy will go on economizing all by herself, until the only man who takes any real interest in her is the undertaker.

No official in human society is so important as the school teacher. In any just scale of human value, this profession ranks above all others. And he gets about money enough to keep alive and maintain himself in a mediocre condition of shabby respectability, while Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, and Charley Chaplin, whose sole occupation it is to divert our idle moments, shake their legs and contort their faces to the tune of millions of dollars a year.

CLOTHESLINES

"Can't you dry the clothes somewhere else, Janie?" asked Donald. "It isn't pleasant to find the bathroom thick with wet things, and you have even put a line across the living room."

"It is not any pleasanter to wash them," flared her tempered Janie. "Do you suppose I like to break my back bending over that bathtub washing? It is hard work, and they get yellowed and muddier looking right along."

"Clothes need the fresh air and sun," remarked Donald, thinking of lines of snowy pieces hung above thick green grass back home.

"I cannot do a whole washing at once, and I can only have a yard one day a week. I wash out something every day and keep things up that way, but it is steamy and horrid to have wet things dangling about."

Janie was extravagant. When she wanted a movie or tickets to the show she bought them, even if she used the housekeeping money, and, as a consequence she was always behind.

"I thought that the house-money allowed for laundry? Couldn't you send out the biggest pieces anyway? I don't want you to do work that is tood hard for you, Jane."

"I have to have some spending money, and the only place I can squeeze it out is the washing money. Mrs. Dickey called today to see if I'd take her back, but I told her I couldn't afford it. I guess she needs work badly."

Donald felt puzzled. The doctor had said that Janie must not bend over the bathtub to wash; that that caused her severe backaches. He would rather have gone without lunches than to come home and find her cross from the work her health would not permit, but he had found that no matter how much he deducted from the money he set aside for their savings account he always came home to the unpleasant flapping lines of half-washed cloth-ing. If Janie had extra money she spent it and gave only evasive replies to his questions. He knew that she went to matinees and downtown picture shows oftener than they could afford, but he had no idea of how much she really wasted in that manner. Her chum, Doris Murray, was not a good influence for her, and Donald often suspected that she permitted Janie to pay the major portion of the expenses when they went on their frequent jaunts. "Doris does not wash, does she? Her husband earns about the same as I," he said thoughtfully.

Janie shook her head. She knew that Doris was heavily in debt; she had been at her flat when a huge laundry bill had come in and had heard Doris put him off with actual falsehoods.

"You see, Janie, even if you save $2 on washing and I have to send for the doctor once that costs $3 for a visit, besides the prescriptions, and it's discouraging to have you ill so much. I cannot see why we don't save faster. I thought I could put $40 in the bank from this week's salary, but you were short on paying the rent, and when I make it up there won't be any surplus."

"If we could only live out in the suburbs where I could have my own laundry tubs and a yard I would feel lots better. It's leaning down over the bathtub that hurts my back, not the rubbing. I saw a splendid washing machine yesterday, but the lease won't permit electric washers to be used in flat kitchens and even if I could use it I'd have no place to hang."

"I didn't know you were downtown yesterday. Were you with Doris?" asked Donald, frowning.

"Yes," responded Janie, looking a little frightened. "You always act so funny about Doris that I——"

"Deceive me. I am shut up in an office working for you while you gad with that woman and waste our money. We can never get ahead if we don't save, and if you won't try to have I'll have to dole out the money to you each morning." And Donald flung out of the room, leaving his wife looking vastly ashamed.

At 11 o'clock Janie, red-eyed and worried looking, had not begun her washing. She had collected a pile of dingy wearing apparel and sheets when the door-bell rang.

"I came over to luncheon with you, honey," said Doris. "Then we'll go down to the matinee. I think we were so lucky to get those box seats, don't you? I never heard of getting them so cheaply."

"They didn't seem cheap to me," said Janie grimly. She hardly knew how she had come to purchase those tickets. Doris had said they would inquire the price and had stepped back politely at the ticket window, and Janie, confused, had asked the price. When the man had pushed out the two box seats Doris had nudged her and told her to hurry and pay, as there was a line behind them. Flushed and embarrassed, Janie had emerged holding the tickets, and her purse was the loser by the transaction.

Doris looked distastefully at the pile of clothes. "Surely you're not going to wash now?" inquired Doris. "I wouldn't slave like that for any man."

"I don't think I'll go. Donald wants to save and I had no right to spend all that money——" began Janie.

"The money is spent, anyway," giggled Doris, pulling out her lipstick and tinting her mouth. "There's a swell-looking man on the orchestra that I want to see closely; that's why I wanted to sit in a box. Isn't that thrilling?"

"If there is some one else who would go, you might—that is—buy the tickets," gulped Janie.

"Now, honey, don't act silly. You're all unstrung from staying at home. Run and telephone for some lamb chops. I like them rib chops—and we'll doll up and be on our way. I'll treat to sodas after the show."

At 6 o'clock Janie climbed the stairs to her flat. She was tired out and conscience-stricken. She invariably felt that way after a jaunt with Doris but she hardly knew how to break off with her. As she opened the door with her latchkey she was surprised to smell hot soap-suds and she found the flat strung with clotheslines that criss-crossed the entire flat.

"The office was being decorated this afternoon, Janie, and we all got off. Green went to a ball game, but I hurried home, thinking we'd go somewhere. He found the clothes on the floor and I thought I'd wash them out for you. Don't they look fine. I boiled them. I was pretty gruff this morning at breakfast, but I feel, somehow, that Doris isn't a wholesome influence for you. I was thinking that if you'd be willing to live in rooms for six months we'd get enough ahead to make a payment down. There are two rooms right near my work where we'd be mighty cosy and they only cost——"

To his amazement Janie began to cry. She tumbled forward against a line of wet clothes and he caught her in his arms. "To think that you used your holiday to wash my clothes, while I was down watching that horrid play. I'd like to move away from here. Doris just runs in all the time because she's too lazy to cook her own lunch. I believe!"—Janie looked at him wide-eyed at her own discovery—"that she works me to pay for tickets. I spent——"

"Never mind what you spent, dear. We all make mistakes and I believe Doris has been one grand mistake. Let's start fresh now and see what we can do."

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

Henry Dorr came in the office this morning to pay me a visit. Looked like a million dollars, did Henry. Well-cut suit, fancy necktie, good shoes, fine hat, new gloves—

"What are you doing now, Henry?" I asked.

"Same old thing," said Henry.

So I reported the fact to my wife, as in duty bound, and she stated that Henry is one of the very finest sons she has ever known. Perhaps THE finest son, in fact. Four years he has stayed in a one-horse store in a one-horse town because his mother is an invalid. No one but Henry is permitted to lift her from her bed to her chair and back again. Henry must be on the job each evening at dinner. After dinner Henry reads her to sleep. She can stay awake a mighty long time, too. If she went to sleep early Henry might get a chance to get out with the boys.

"His devotion to his mother is wonderful," said Mrs. P., with awe in her tones.

Wonderful is right. Also Henry is a fathead. He has had scores of chances to get out of that one-horse store and that one-horse town and make something of himself, but he has refused because his mother would not let him go. It is true that he has climbed almost to the top of the store ladder now, but, after all, that top isn't very high. The procession has passed him. He is doomed to stay in that one-horse town all his life. There were years when he was ambitious. He used to study at night after his mother had gone to sleep. He used to plan big things. There was a girl or two Henry might have married if it had not been for Ma. Now he doesn't care. He is reconciled to a life of petty detail and bachelorhood.

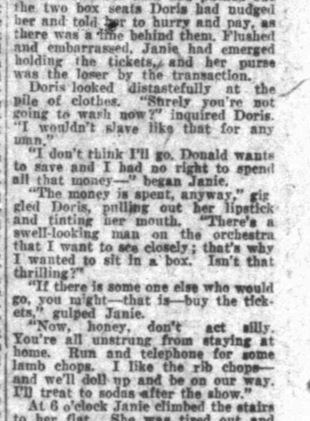

Do not think that I am attacking that sacred relation in which a mother stands to her only child. But this particular mother is a selfish old cheat. When Henry goes to New York on his buying trips she get along first-rate. She has a maid to look after the house and a little electric car to get about in and a telephone at her elbow and all the latest books for Mother. But she has spoiled the life of her son.

"Mother would die if I left her," Henry used to say.

Well, maybe. But—to get practical and cold and iron-faced for a moment—what of it? Henry's dead now from the neck up.

VALENTINE TEA PROVES SUCCESS.

Proving to be delightful social event as well as a success financially, the Valentine tea given at the parish house by members of the Guild of the Good Shepherd for the benefit of the Day Nursery, Tuesday afternoon, was largely attended. A neat sum was realized from the affair.

The parish house was attractively decorated in the red and white colors and motifs in keeping with the season. Tea was poured and served with cakes by Mesdames H. O. Cravens, M. C. McFarland, McElroy and E. E. Gwynn, assisted by Misses Dot and Denver Russell, Mavis Graham, Rhoda Willis and Dorothy Rugeley.

A short program was a feature of the entertainment program in which vocal numbers were given by Mesdames Ammann, J. W. King, I. L. Caircross of Chicago, accompanied at the piano by Miss Florence Sammons, and readings by Misses Lillie Graham, Frances Reid and Master Robert Collier.

Fashions for Americans

An Old Trimming in a Novel Design Is the Feature of This Frock.

The use of applique work as a trimming for children's dresses is not very new, but some of the motifs and colorings thought out for spring are new, or unusual, which amounts to the same thing. The frock shown in the sketch helps to prove this. It is made of a washable tweed in a gray and green mixture, and trimmed with a rather large parrot cut from bright green broadcloth or felt and appliqued on. A narrow belt is also of the plain green. Rows of green buttons finish the short sleeves. The new idea seems to be to use few motifs and have these rather bold in size. A clever little black taffeta dress recently seen, for a child of four, had no trimming at all except a large bouquet of multicolored ribbon flowers appliqued on the side front just above the hem.

There is little that is new in style line for children, color combinations, novel trimmings, etc., being depended upon for variety. One dainty little frock recently seen was of white crepe de Chine, to which was given a dotted studded rather thickly over it, red fagoting outlining the hem, narrow yoke and edges of the wide sleeves. Wide sleeves, by the way, are seen in quite a good many of the new spring things for children. Another frock distinguished by color contrast was of white wool crepe with band around the skirt, neck and sleeves of red crepe de Chine. The dress, a simple bishop style, was opened at one side in front and fashioned with a red silk lacing.

For the girl of eight to twelve, suspender dresses and sleeveless one-piece straight line dresses are to be popular this spring, with separate blouses of white or plain color fabric or of checked gingham.

A Wife or a Profession?

BY CAROLYN BEECHER

(Copyright, 1922, by Carolyn Beecher)

Chapter I.

She met him shortly after the armistice was signed, before the glamour of the war and everything pertaining to it had worn off, to be succeeded by the dull monotony of everyday life.

Annette Gilbert had done her bit in the canteens, the Red Cross stations, etc. A uniform had an irresistible fascination for her.

Howard Blake, just graduated from medical college, was a young man of good family, good looks and great ambitions. He would some day make his mark as a surgeon. He had a little money and a great faith in himself. Then came the war and he, like so many others, put aside all dreams, all ambitions to serve his country.

They met at a war relief meeting for wounded soldiers.

He was impressed by her evident sympathy, her beauty and charm.

She was intrigued with his good looks and his uniform, which she thought added to them. Then, too, he was so earnest, so wholeheartedly interested in "the boys," especially those who needed surgical attention.

He asked for an introduction.

She asked him to call.

So their short romance began.

"I shall have to work very hard to get a footing in a strange place," he told her. "But that will be easy with you by my side."

He was to go to a small town in the middle west and take a place in the office of an uncle who had ministered to the sick and ailing of Clarkstown for years.

"Sometimes I am almost jealous of your profession, it seems to mean so much to you," Annette said after he had explained to her that his means had nearly all been used up while he was abroad, that this opening was really a God-send to him, that his uncle was a clever man, that there was a large hospital in the town, and that he hoped through this relative's influence to become connected with it.

"It does mean so much to me, Annette. Next to you it is everything. Sometimes, since I first went 'over there,' I feel that to be a physician, a surgeon is next to being a priest. We are priests, ministers to the body, just as they are ministers to the soul."

But it was only occasionally during their short courtship that Howard was so serious. Most of the time he was just a gay young fellow, very much in love, and full of plans for making Annette happy.

Her girl friends envied her, which added to her pleasure. Although Claire Gordon said:

"I wouldn't marry a doctor if he were the only man left on earth! Women are always making love to them, staying to chat when they visit their offices, making excuses that they are sick when not a darn thing ails them. I know I should be horribly jealous if I married a doctor, and with your disposition—wooie! I see rocks ahead."

"Nonsense, Claire, how you do run on. We are going to live in a small town of about 25,000 people, not in New York. People in such places have something else to do than to chase a doctor unless they need him. They aren't running after other women's husbands.

"Wait and see! And when you wait until your dinner is cold and then find that he has been closeted for an hour with the prettiest girl in town, remember I warned you. And you'll be awfully lonely, too. Ask me to come and visit you, too, Annette. You'll need comforting."

"Of course I shall ask you to visit me, but not to comfort me. I'm not as pessimisitic as you are, Howard adores me, and I am sure will not neglect me, even for his profession."

"Better not be to sure."

Annette squirmed uneasily. The exchange of confidences had taken an unexpected turn. She had started in by boasting of her fiance's love for her; his efforts to please and make her happy. She had not dreamed that Claire would be so practical, that she would try to make her unhappy. Then a thought swept over her. Perhaps Claire wanted her to break off her engagement because she wanted Dr. Blake for herself. It was like Claire, some one of your dearest wish, and then having them beat you to it. Of course, Howard would have to see his patients. All doctors did. But as far as being locked in a room with pretty girls, that was all nonsense. Yet—perhaps she better ask him to let the old Dr. Blake, his uncle, see the young women who called at the office. Yes, that would be a good idea.

Annette was desperately in love with young Blake. Perhaps too much in love—if that is possible. She had been rather petted and spoiled at home. Her mother had passed away when she was ten, and she had been brought up and humored by a doting father and an inefficient aunt. Like all the girls in her set, the freedom given her had been augmented during the war, until she would have resented anything that looked like coercion, even advice. Her father and aunt had nothing against young Blake. But they knew Annette and feared she would be lonely in this unknown town, and so unhappy. Her aunt said:

"She hasn't the disposition to be a doctor's wife. She is too jealous, too self-centered."

K. OF C. FIVE NOSES OUT HI SCHOOL QUINTET 19-17; ELKS TAKE TEXHOMAS IN AGAIN

By "NICK" CARTER.

The dope bucket teetered dangerously on its edge in the City Basketball league race last night, fell over with a crash and spilled, was righted again—and its contents were churned to cage butter before the evening's frolic ended.

The Knights of Columbus, weakened by the loss of Don Faichney, upset all predictions by defeating the High School Five 19 to 17 in a whirlwind game, while the Texhoma quintet, after threatening to break at last into the winning column, lost a heart-breaking game to the Elks, 22 to 26.

The games were two of the fastest and cleanest played in the league this season. Fouls were few and the play was open and fast. By winning last night, the Knights of Columbus went into a tie for second place in the league standing with the High school, while the school's defeat assures the University club quintet of the city championship. The club five has still two games to play, one with the Gaines company team, the other against the Elks, but it can hardly be admitted that the league leaders will lose both these contests—and extremely doubtful if they lose even one.

The Red and Black five got away on the right leg last night, and pulled up lame at the finish. The first half found the school boys leading the Knights 10 to 8—but the Irishmen came back strong in the second half, fought an uphill battle and won it. With only two minutes to play, Kubecka tied the score with a goal from the foul line, and Gerald Coffey won the game a minute later with a neat shot from scrimmage.

John Coffey was th shining light of the Knights' attack. Alternating as guard and forward, John kept in the clear sufficiently to cage 5 goals from the field, greatly to the surprise of the spectators, of Brother Gerald and of John himself.

The high school tired badly in the second half. It is a peculiar thing, but the Red and Black five this season has lost every important game in the final period of play, after repeatedly getting away to a brilliant start. "Cherry" Johnson and "Dummy" Deems led the attack for the High school. Palmer Harrod was pretty thoroughly covered by the K. of C. guards, and in addition took a poke in the ribs early in the game that hurt the youngster badly.

The excited spectators had a brief vision of a Texhoma victory last night, and they rooted hard for the cellar champions to beat the Elks. The Red and White closed the first half leading 15 to 9, but the Elks played the faster game in the final half, knotted the score and won out. Luck played a part in the victory, as Heywood Weldon got away with two baskets that were cruel; blind shots that were beautiful, but pretty darn lucky, as Heywood probably will admit himself.

The score was deadlocked up to the final minute of play. Weldon broke the tie, then put his team in the lead by two points, and Gordon put the game on ice in the final 30 seconds with another goal from field.

WHO'S TO PLAY WHO WHEN IN NATIONAL LOOP

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The National League schedule made public today, provides for a season of 154 games, 77 of which are to be played on the home diamond and an equal number abroad by each of the eight clubs composing the league. The season begins on Wednesday, April 12 and closes on Sunday, Oct. 1. The opening games will bring Brooklyn to New York; Boston to Philadelphia; Chicago to Cincinnati and Pittsburg to St. Louis.

The Saturday, Sunday and holiday games are well distributed between the eastern and western clubs. The Brooklyn club receives the greatest number of Sunday games at home and Pittsburgh the largest number abroad. The Pirates also have the largest number of Saturday home games. Boston and Pittsburgh are scheduled for three holiday games on home diamonds and Chicago has an equal number abroad. Brooklyn and Chicago lead the league in the total of Saturday, Sunday and holiday games awarded with 51. New York and Cincinnati are second with 50. "DOC" JONES IS OWNER OF SOUVENIR OF 1920 CAMPAIGN

O. A. "Doc" Jones, assistant cashier of the City National Bank of Commerce, and who was treasurer of the Republican ad club here during the 1920 campaign, is the proud possessor of a letter from President Harding, with the president's own signature to the letter.

The letter came in request to a request to the president's secretary, George B. Christian, for the president's signature as a souvenir of the campaign.

In previous correspondence with the executive offices, the replies had been signed by the president's secretary. Discussing this with a prominent local attorney, who is a democrat, the attorney remarked that in several interchanges of correspondence with the executive offices he had never gotten a reply signed by a president, the remark giving Mr. Jones the idea of securing the signature as a souvenir.

SHRINE ORDERS 'HOT' UNIFORMS FOR BALL TEAM

"Dinty" Booth, A. Ellis, Horrace Robbins, Walter Cline and Frank Collier, as a committee representing the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, intend that Maskat Temple shall put a baseball team in the local field this summer that will be, at least, a thing of beauty. They expect the Shrine nine to be a winner but they're positive it's going to be a good-looker.

Three members of the committee went into executive session on the second floor of the sporting goods store of Collier & Landon yesterday, and after considerable debate they selected uniforms that are considered to be the last word in "hot stuff." The shirts and "britches" will be white; the stockings yellow and the caps green—and the word "Maskat" and the Shrine emblem will be embroidered in red across the front of each shirt.

The Shrine team "wants in" on any City or Twilight league organized here this summer. Frank Collier, as manager of the Maskat Temple ball tossers, already has issued a challenge to every other Shrine baseball team in Texas.

Demp$ey eek Opponent$ That Mean Bu$ine$$

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—"Open for engagement" is the position of heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey, who arrived here today looking for logical opponents for a title bout next summer. Dempsey is ready to fight any heavyweight or light heavyweight, either here or abroad, who will prove a financial drawing card, according to the statement of both the champion and his manager, Jack Kearns.

Promoters are not rushing to sign up the champion at attractive figures, however. Dempsey expects to remain in the east for at least a month.

If a championship bout is staged in this country, Dempsey's opponent probably will be selected from among Tom Gibbons, Harry Wills, Harry Greb or Jess Willard. If the champion is forced to look abroad for a match such a contest would be staged in or near London during the summer season and Georges Carpentier or Bombardier Wells would oppose the champion. Tex Rickard may be asked to stage such a bout if a match fails here. Under no circumstances, Kearns said would Dempsey fight in France.

WISDOM and WORSE

By C. F. C.

Football took the fancy of local fans when the baseball season closed last fall; then basketball proved a remarkable lure—and now it is surprising to find how many men there are in Wichita Falls who are all "het up" over the merits of bird dogs. Not for a long time has any event of an outdoor nature attracted more interest here than the coming field trials at Bowie, February 20th, of the Oil Belt association.

In an earlier story I named some dozen or more dogs, pointers and setters, owned in this city that would be entered in the Bowie trials. Yesterday I learned that more than 200 Wichita Falls citizens expect to attend the trials, and that there is a confident feeling that the judges will be forced to give more than passing attention to the thoroughbred bird dogs entered from this city.

Many of the greatest champions in the country have been entered; dogs with national reputations gained at trials held in every section of the United States. Wichita Falls will receive the biggest kind of publicity among hunters and breeders of bird dogs, if any pure blood dog owned here receives a ribbon in competition against such a brilliant field.

No, Mabel, you are mistaken about the habits of bird dogs; it is the pointer that puts his feet on the bird, while the setter always sets on the game.

The baseball holdouts, like the poor, we have with us always—about this time o' year. Every contract sent out by the local baseball association save one, has been returned unsigned, with a demand for more pay. Fred Beck, the new first sacker obtained from the Wichita, Kans., club of the Western loop, is the only exception. All the Spudder veterans are seeking more dough—but none of 'em probably will get it. Several are making most unreasonable demands, and should be glad to sign the contracts offered to 'em. But they'll all fall in line soon. This just happens to be the time of year for holding out; it's a habit, that's all.

The mighty Babe Ruth, report hath it, is holding out for 75,000 berries in 1922. Well, in Ruth's case, I don't know as I blame him. He knows he's got to get "the jack" now or never. The Bambino's service as a major leaguer has only a brief time to run. When he stops soaking the old apple on the nose for circuit smashes, he'll be through—and the big leagues will drop him in a hurry. As a fielder Babe can come in on fly balls fairly well, and grab 'em; but he can't go back, and he's a mess on ground balls. He knows wherein his weakness lies, and he's trying to get all he can before he blows up for good. Don't blame him at all.

Some Chest-Nuts

It was a thrilling story that McGregor had to tell.

"I had abandoned hope," he said. "As I sunk for the third time my past life seemed to rise before me in a series of grim, realistic pictures."

A murmur of sympathy rolled from the lips of listening friends; but just as McGregor was preparing to resume McTavish interrupted him sharply and hopefully. "And did you happen to notice," he asked, "a picture of me lending you a fiver in the autumn of 1919?"

A deaf man was being married and the clergyman asked the usual question: "Do you take this woman for your lawful wife?"

"Eh?" said the deaf man.

"Do you take this woman for your lawful wife?" This time a bit louder. The groom seemed to get angry.

"Oh, I don't know," he said. "She ain't so awful. I've seen wuss than her that didn't have as much money."

"Do you know anything about palmistry, Herbert?" she asked.

"Oh, not much," he answered, "although I had an experience last night which might be considered a remarkable example of palmistry. I happened to glance at the hand of a friend, and I immediately predicted he would presently become the possessof a considerable amount of money. Before he left the room he had a nice little sum handed to him.

"And you foretold that from his hand?"

"Yes, it had four aces in it."

Senator Oddie of Nevada hails from Reno, where the divorce mills work night and day, and he has been the subject of quite a bit of mild joshing from his colleagues on this account. The senator was in a group listening to some of these wise observations on his home city, and when he had an opportunity to get into the conversation he remarked: "Well, Reno is the only city in the world where the people go down to the trains to see the tied come in." For a second or two nobody got just what he meant, but about the minute it was beginning to percolate into the minds of his hearers he added with a smile: "And they go down to the trains to see the untied go out."

TODAY MARKS 54TH BIRTHDAY OF ELKS ORDER, AN ARMY NOW NUMBERING OVER 818,000 MEN

While no formal observance is planned, Wichita Falls Elks are reminded that today, February 16, is the 54th anniversary of the birth of their order, founded by the Jolly Corks in New York in 1868. Starting with 76 members in one lodge, the order has grown to a membership of 818,000 members in 1400 lodges in the United States. Efforts are being made to initiate the millionth member of the order by July of this year.

The local lodge, No. 1105, has enjoyed a prosperous existence from the early days of Wichita Falls, and has now, according to Howard English, secretary, a membership of several hundred.

A brief history of the order follows:

The dawn of February 16, 1922, marks an anniversary of keen interest to nearly 1,000,000 American men.

Fifty-four years ago—on February 16, 1868—a little group of 14 men sat in a stuffy room in New York City. Twice they voted on a matter they had been debating for weeks. On the second ballot, the now almost forgotten fraternal order of the "Jolly Corks" was disbanded. And the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was born.

The first membership report in the archives of the Elks is dated December 27, 1868. New York lodge No. 1, the Mother Lodge of the order, was then its only lodge. There were 76 members on the rolls.

The fifty-fourth anniversary of the order's birth shows a membership of more than 818,000 Elks in more than 1400 lodges that dot the United States of America. At Anchorage, Alaska, the farthest north Elk lodge stands amid almost polar ice and snow. Elk lodges rise at Brownsville, Texas, and Key West, Florida—farthest southern points of the continental United States. Our Canal Zone has its lodge at Balboa Heights. Our island possessions are starred with Elk lodges at Manila in the Philippines, at Honolulu and Hilo in Hawaii, at Guam, and at San Juan in Porto Rico. And the Elks of America are working to initiate their millionth member by July, 1922, when the Grand Lodge meets at Atlantic City.

The founder of this organization that is today America's greatest fraternal order? He was a strolling English actor! He never lived to know how well he and his little group of brother-actors had builded.

His body rests today in Mount Hope cemetery, Boston, Massachusetts, beneath a great granite boulder bearing a bronze plate with the inscription:

Charles Algernon Sidney Vivian. Founder of the Order of Elks. Died March 20, 1880. Aged 34 years. A lover of his king, who founded a great order and in so doing wrought much good."

Vivian, who was the presiding "Jolly Cork" at the momentous meeting in 1868 when the fourteen men voted to organize under the name of "Elks," died in Leadville, Colorado, after a life of theatrical vicissitudes that ranged from touring in artistes at the head of his own company, to being stranded penniless in Denver. There in Leadville his body rested, his grave marked only by a weather-stained pine board on which an inscription was scratched with some sharp instrument, until on April 28, 1889, Boston Lodge No. 10, B. P. O. Elks, exhumed the body, took it to Boston, and buried it there with splendid ceremonial.

Only in Elkdom's archives and the memories of the few surviving "old-timers" is the history of the Jolly Corks held intact. And only one charter membed of Elkdom still survives. He is "Joe" Norcross of New York.

The "Jolly Corks," actor-folk all, met in those days of the '60's in cafes and bar-rooms of New York's theatrical district.

The "cork trick" was their initiation ceremony. A group of Corks would bring in a candidate, who was assessed fifty cents. This was taken by Charles Vivian, and entered in a pocket memorandum book. Each "Jolly Cork" produced a champagne cork from his pocket.

The bar-keeper supplied the candidate with a new cork. The men lined up in front of the now-extinct American bar. Each man placed his cork in front of him on the bar. To the candidate it was explained that at the signal "Three!" of the "One, two, three!" called by the ruling Cork, the last man to lift his cork from the bar was "stuck for the drinks."

The signal would be called. The Jolly Corks, all initiates, would simply cup their hands over their corks and leave the corks on the bar. The candidate, with a swift swoop, always would be the first man to lift his cork. He would also be the last man to lift his cork. For he would be the only man to lift his cork. He bought the drinks.

One other law the Corks obeyed. Any Jolly Cork, meeting another Jolly Cork, was at liberty to challenge his brother by producing his own cork from his pocket. If the challenged man could not also produce a cork, he must pay for the drinks. The champagne cork became the insignia of the Order.

Stuart Robson, noted American actor of that period, was a Jolly Cork and the target of a deep-laid plot. It was at Robson's wedding. As the actor entered the church he found the aisle solidly lined with a double rank of Jolly Corks. At the altar awaited the minister. The organ was playing the Wedding March. As Robson started down the aisle, with the future Mrs. Robson on his arm, every Jolly Cork, with the precision of an army officer drawing sword and saluting, held aloft a new and shining champagne cork in salute.

But Stuart Robson was ready. Instantly he reached into the tail-pocket of his dress-coat, produced a champagne cork, equally new and shining, and marched down the aisle, his bride on his left arm, his cork held aloft in his right hand. History does not tell who bought those drinks. But it wasn't Stuart Robson!

New York's "Excise Laws," rigorously enforced in 1867 and 1868, closed all places of public entertainment on Sunday. The Jolly Corks installed a piano, a keg of beer and a box of sandwiches in the attic of "Mother" Gelsman's boarding house in the theatrical district, and met there, with music, songs, stories and mock-courts at which fines were imposed for various whimsical "offenses" to provide the fund for next week's beer and sandwiches. Their festivities cost them their home. Irate at the noise, "Mother" Gleisman drove them out.

Then they "hired a hall" and formed their fraternal order. It was nearly named the "Buffaloes," after the "Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes" of England, to which Vivian, the ruling Cork, belonged. The vote stood seven to seven, dead-locked on "Buffaloes" and "Elks."

Only a handful recall the name of W. L. Bowron of New York today. Yet it is to him that the "Elks" owe their name. On the second ballot he switched his vote from "Buffalo" to "Elk." Vivian, in the chair, though an ardent advocate of "Buffaloes," ratified the majority of one, and the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was born.

One other circumstance, little known, paved the way for the name of "Elks." The committe charged with selecting a name was to meet at Broadway and Ann street, New York. Some were tardy. Others, weary of waiting, strolled into Barnum's Museum on that corner, and wandered through the famous animal collection.

"Bears" was suggested, but discarded as animals of few inviting traits, coarse, brutal and morose. "Beavers" were brought up as examples of industry, but cast aside as too destructive. "Foxes" suggested, were voted down as too cunning and crafty. A large moose-head attracted attention, but was at last turned down. Then an Elk's head, with graceful, spreading antlers, met with general approval and divided honors with "Buffaloes," which Vivian had advocated strongly, but which half the committee opposed because they did not wish to copy the name of an existing order.

From the trip to Barnum's Museum the committee went to the meeting where the name of "Elks" was chosen.

Since then the Order has grown by giant strides. It embraces American citizens from the humblest, to Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, and life-member of Marion (Ohio) Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks.

In 1922, Elkdom, with gifts to charity already totalling more than $20,000,000, stepped out of the role of the purely fraternal organization into the rank of one of America's greatest humanitarian brotherhoods.

MILTON STOCK CONTRACTS TO REPORT EARLY

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 15.—Milton Stock, star third baseman for the St. Louis Nationals, has signed his contract for 1922, it was announced today.

In the contract was a clause in which Stock agreed to report at the Cardinals' training camp at Orange, Texas, not later than March 1. If he reports as agreed, it will be the first time since Stock became a member of the St. Louis Nationals several years ago that he has been among the athletes at the beginning of the spring preparatory work.

Receipt of Stock's signed contract brought to seven the number of players who have signed new contracts. Other players have contracts which carried from last season. Those signed are Stock, Lavan and Topper, infielders, and outfielders, Heathcote, Mueller, Mann and McHenry.

The signing of Stock, Manager Rickey said, removed the possibility of worry about him not reporting in good condition for the regular season. Last year Stock did not sign until the eleventh hour, missed spring training and reported only in time for the first game, but was not in condition to play.

TEMPLE, Texas, Feb. 15.—A movement to pave the pike between Temple and Belton is being vigorously pressed by the Temple and Belton Rotary clubs, which have been assured the co-operation of commercial organizations of both towns. Plans are under way to obtain state and federal aid in the project and the road will be widened and permanent pavement laid, provided the necessary funds can be raised.

MEXIA HOTEL BURNS.

MEXIA, Feb. 15.—Fire of the undetermined origin, destroyed the Derrick Hotel here tonight. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

DEMPSEY SEES HARD CONTEST IN THE OFFING

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15.—Jack Dempsey dislikes the idea of remaining idle from the ring, but he gets some satisfaction from the fact that the toughest fight of his life is still to come.

"You know," said the champion, "I have had some tough bouts, and right now there isn't a think doing, but some day I will have a battle on my hands that will make up for all the loafing I've had to do. Of course, that is providing I don't retire before losing the title.

"Did you ever stop to figure that the fight in which a champion loses his title is about the toughest he can have? Some young fellow comes along and the champion goes into the ring with some of his old stamina, and skill lacking. The young fellow slaps him on the chin and down he goes.

"Champion Can't Quit."

"A champion can't quit, so he gets up and takes another one. Naturally the crowd likes to see a new champion made and the cheers are all for the young gent with the wallop.

"Then after it's all over the fans will say: 'The old stiff started once too many times.'

"A month ago it looked as if I might get a chance to fight before long, but things are in a beautiful mixup now. Tom Gibbons seems to be the only heavyweight who hasn't got himself knocked out or put out of the running in some way.

"What if I box Gibbons and win, as I expect to do? I'll be high and dry and out of a job until some new material is developed.

"I don't want to appear chesty, but if I stay in the ring until I am knocked over, I don't believe the fans of today have ever heard of the boy who will turn the trick. Perhaps he hasn't even had a glove on at the present time.

"Corbett hadn't been going five years when he beat Sullivan.

"Fitzsimmons was a freak and took a long time in arriving, but Jeffries came up in three years and knocked Fitz for a goal. It took Willard about three years to win the title and I came up just as rapidly and beat him.

"Champions spring up in a hurry."

BROWNS WILL BRING SMALL SQUAD SOUTH

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 15.—A total of 19 exhibition games will be played in the South by the St. Louis Americans before the American League season opens, April 13.

Feb. 21 has been decided upon by Lee Fohl, manager of the team, as the date on which the batterymen will leave for the spring training camp at Mobile, Ala. The Browns plan to hold their first workout Feb. 23. The infielders and outfielders are scheduled to begin their training a week later.

The Browns' squad this year will be one of the smallest ever taken south, numbering thirty players. Last spring 43 players made the trip.

In the party of batterymen will be fifteen pitchers and four catchers. The pitchers are Shocker, Davis, Rayne, Vangilder, Kolp, Danforth, Wright, Smith, Meine, Holliday, Noel, Henry, Pruitt and Elliott. The catchers are Severeid, Billings, Collins and Heving.

The outfielders are Tobin, Jacobson, Williams, Shorten and Durst. Infielders are Sisler, Gerber, McManus, Ellerbe, Austin, Robertson and Mullen.

PRESIDENT OF PRAIRIE COMPANY IN GALVESTON

By Associated Press.

GALVESTON, Texas, Feb. 15.—James E. O'Neil, president of the Prairie Gas & Oil company, with several officials of the company, was here today looking over the South Texas oil situation. Mr. O'Neil informally expressed the belief that foreign oil companies, if encouraged, soon would tend to disorganize, if not demoralize, the present trend toward normalcy in the American oil industry.

Old Timers of Limestone County Recall Martial Law Enforced in Period Following War of States

By Associated Press.

TEAGUE, Texas, Feb. 15.—When martial law was proclaimed over Freestone county incident with the raids by federal prohibition agents and state military authorities into "moonshiners' paradise," east of here, on February 8, it was the second time the county had found itself under military rule since its organization in 1851.

Old citizens seeing the young men of the National Guard standing guard over the half-hundred prisoners taken in the raids recalled reconstruction days when they, as young men, had stood under the guns of negro soldiers on the court house square at Fairfield and marched in single file to vote for Richard Coke, "the Lion Hearted."

The old settlers for the most part stood grim and silent as they again saw the military in control of the county. Others laughed and joked as they saw the prisoners, some of whom had lived all their lives in Freestone county, charged with violating the prohibition laws.

Taken almost completely by surprise, those arrested offered no resistance. Firing of guns was first taken by the raiders as meaning armed resistance to them, but it was soon learned that "friendly neighbors," as remarked by Brigadier General Wolters, who directed the expedition, were merely tipping each other off to the approach of the officers.

Plans Well Laid.

The plans for the raid had been so carefully arranged that even the details of lunch served "on the field" were carried out minutely. For several days Lieutenant Y. H. Taylor had been scouting the area in an airplane loaned by The Mexia Telegram and had made complete maps of the district. Evidently no mistake was made by him, as the number of stills captured show. That Taylor's purpose was suspected is shown by the fact that two shots were fired at his plane and also that owners of some of the distilleries moved their places to better concealed territory.

The eastern part of the count is sparsely settled. Deep sloughs, bushy creeks and lakes cover the heavily wooded bottoms of the Trinity river which forms the boundary between Freestone and Anderson counties. So dense is some of the thickets that it is said only rabbit tracks mark them. In these fastnesses it is said a man can stay for months without seeing a human being.

For months it has been openly stated, the illicit manufacturing of liquor has been carried on in large quantities. Regular routes of travel for agents, it is alleged, had been mapped out. Automobiles were the principal carriers, but it is claimed in some instances liquor was smuggled abroad freight trains. From the number and size of the stills seized there is little doubt but what immense quantities of moonshine whiskey were manufactured—but now there is an air of desolation hanging over the whole section.

Since the striking of oil near Mexia, slightly over a year ago, interest in the numerous wildcat wells drilled in every section of the county has been uppermost in the minds of the citizens. For a time, however, very little thought was given to oil development. Interest was in the acts of the military forces and the disposition of the prisoners.

Just how long martial law will be maintained is problematical. General Wolters has announced that there will be no thought of lifting it until every part of the county is purged of moonshining. He has intimated, however, that he believes the military will have completed its work by March 1.

TEMPLE, Texas, Feb. 15.—Gray wolves have invaded the Bexes community on Cedar Creek, about fifteen miles from Temple, and are slaughtering many turkeys and sheep and goats. W. R. Moore, farmer, recently caught one of the animals in a trap and brought it to town for exhibition. Preparations are being made for a vigorous campaign against the wolves.

Cotton

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—While a big realizing movement took place in cotton today and forced prices at one time 21 to 29 points under the previous close on active positions, which carried May down to 17.27 and July to 16.76, the market received new and aggressive support on the decline which later in the day ran the whole list substantially above the previous night. A feature on this afternoon rise was the aggressive buying of the late deliveries for investment account by traders who seemed to be impressed with the idea that there was a country-wide movement on foot to advance farm products and that cotton would get its share of the upturn, which thus far has been most pronounced in the wheat market. The May delivery in the last hour reached 17.75 and July 17.22 from which there were slight reactions near the close although final prices were 11 to 23 points net higher.

Because of decided strength at Liverpool which was considered significant in view of the Irish situation. The local market opened firm and 7 to 13 points higher. Almost immediately, however, heavy selling pressure developed and was continued throughout the forenoon led by Wall street and the west was rather easily absorbed and the decline was checked around mid-day, when the renewed strength of the wheat market and reports of a better spot demand in the south, with a sharp reduction noted in the New Orleans stock as the result of a recount and reports that Southern mills were receiving cloth orders from China started a buying movement that continued quite general throughout the afternoon.

Wall street and other interests resumed their activity on the bull side and the general strength of the market checked any response to the New England mill strike news or the unfavorable reports from the local cotton goods market. Further general rains throughout the cotton belt today are likely to be followed by cold weather in the next day or two. Exports today 4,350, making 3,581,940 so far this season. Port receipts 9,510; United States port stocks 1,141,957.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.—A more general display of interest in the long side of the market sent the price of cotton to higher levels today. Following the first bulge of 12 to 20 points, prices reacted under realizing until they were 13 to 22 points under the close of yesterday, but a little later the real buying movement of the session started and it persisted until the trading months were 23 to 27 points higher than the finals of yesterday. March trading up to 16.94 as compared with the low price of the day of 16.46. Last prices were 9 to 20 points up net, with March at 16.79.

The early gains were due to a better Liverpool than expected and to continued unfavorable weather over the belt, droughty in some western sections, too wet to the eastward. After the fit of realizing wore off, buyers took charge of the market again getting fresh encouragement from the big reduction in the certificated stock here, and during the remainder of the session the market was much stronger, reaching its highest levels on reports of much snow in the belt, well down into its central portions. On such reports, October become the strongest month, rising to 16.05.

It was announced by the cotton exchange that the stock of certified cotton here had suffered a minus correction of 16,863 bales, reducing it to 38,734 bales as compared with about 67,000 bales not so long ago and with the figures on the board yesterday of 55,597.

COTTONSEED OIL

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Following an easy start, cottonseed oil got six to eleven points above the previous close through buying by the west and in sympathy with the rise in the other markets and in crude oil. Subsequently the market reacted on the bearish census report on hogs and finished one to three points net higher. Sales 32,300 barrels. Prime crude 8.25 @ 8.50; prime summer yellow spot 9.70; March 9.77; May 9.95; July 10.17, all bid.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Cotton goods showed a little more steadiness on the lower levels today and a fair volume of inquiry was reported on regular percales. Gray goods were steadier, yarns quiet. Raw silk was slightly lower. Burlaps were steady.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The stock market continued to move towards irregularly higher price levels today, although much of the advance was forfeited in the general profit taking of the later dealings.

Further lowering of local money rates and signs that world-wide monetary conditions are tending in the direction of greater ease, together with the small floating supply of popular stocks, were the sustaining factors.

Demand loans opened at 4 1-2 per cent but fell to 4 per cent before noon. In private transactions plenty of call money was available 5 1-2 per cent and prime mercantile paper of 30 to 90 days was sold at 4 3-4 per cent.

Reduction of the Cleveland federal reserve bank rate directed renewed attention to prospects of another reduction at the center. Private cables from London predicted an early cut in the Bank of England rate.

The greater part of today's fairly large business was restricted to steels, oils, equipments, motors and coppers. U. S. Steel making a new high since 1920 and retaining all but the smallest fraction of its gain at 90 3-8. Rails also showed further improvement but buying of those issues lacked the substantial character of the previous day's accumulation. Sales amounted to 800,000 shares.

Trade reviews again stressed the uncertain state of the steel and iron industry. This was strikingly illustrated in the annual reports of the Midvale and pressed steel car companies, which were in keeping with unfavorable forecasts.

Trading in foreign exchanges fell off perceptibly, the British and allied remittances reacting moderately. The Dutch rate also eased, but bills on the Scandinavian countries continued to strengthen with the Eastern European remittances.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The raw sugar market was firm and Cubas were established on the basis of 2 1-16c cost and freight equal to 3.67 for centrifugal, with sales of about 100,000 bags for February shipment to local and outport refiners at that level.

The raw sugar futures market was quite active and as orders were pretty evenly divided prices moved within very narrow limits.

The opening was unchanged to 1 point net lower under trade selling but a steady feeling prevailed later owing to the more settled feeling in the spot market and prices rallied partially on covering and renewed buying by commission houses. Closing prices were 1 point lower to 1 net higher. March closed 2.15; May 2.35; July 2.53 and September 2.66.

In refined there was a partial decline of 10 points with all refiners now listing at 5 cents for fine granulated. There was no improvement in the domestic demand.

Refined futures were without transactions, closing prices were unchanged at 5.50 for March and May and 5.65 for July.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The market for coffee futures was generally heavy again today on continued firmness in the Brazilian markets and an increase of commission house buying. After an opening advance of 3 to 6 points the market sustained a moderate reaction which carried March off to 8.44 and May to 8.55, or 4 to 6 points under opening levels after which there was an almost full recovery on trade buying on reports of a sharp advance in cost and freight offers from Santos. The close was 2 to 6 points net higher. Sales estimated at about 65,000 bags. March closed 8.45; May 8.55; July 8.65; September 8.67 and December 8.75.

Grain

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—New climbing of prices in the grain markets took place here today notwithstanding transient setbacks due to a decline in quotations at Liverpool. Estimates which tended to confirm reports of world-wide scarcity of wheat had much to do with the fresh ascent of values here. The Chicago wheat market close was unsettled, 1⅝c to 2⅝c net higher, with May at $1.41 to $1.41⅛ and July $1.23¼ to $1.23½. Corn gained 1¾ to 2¼@2⅜c, oats 1c to 1⅛@1⅝, and provisions 7c to 30 cents.

At first the dominating influence in the wheat pit was news of a drop in British prices. General selling resulted, and opinions were ventured in some quarters that the recent advance on both sides of the Atlantic had been overdone. After the Liverpool market had closed for the day, however, the numerous unfavorable crop advices which were current here began to attract more attention, and enlarged demand for flour acted as a further stimulus to buyers of wheat. The upward swing which ensued in the price of wheat was accompanied by a decided broadening out of the volume of trading, with many dealers attaching special significance to an authoritative statement that purported to show little if any margin between wheat requirements of importing countries and the expected world shipments this season. Talk of new export buying in progress was also heard, and despite heavy profit-taking sales near the end of the session the market finished but little under the top prices reached, although May had touched the highest point yet since the present series of advances began.

Active speculative demand gave independent strength at times to corn and oats. Both cereals scored new high price records for the season. Buyers took the position that 10c a bushel advance for corn of late was inadequate after the corn market had been going down for two years.

The provision market was governed chiefly by fluctuations in the value of grain.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief, its harmlessness, its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large sixty-cent case from any drug store, and then if you should eat something which doesn't agree with you, if what you eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all indigestion vanishes. It is the most efficient antacid known—the certainty and ease with which it overcomes stomach and digestive disorders is a revelation to those who try it.—Adv.

DEATHERAGE TO HEAD GUN CLUB IN '22 SEASON

A. G. Deatherage was elected president of the Wichita Falls Gun club at the annual meeting and election of officers of that organization, held last night at the Little Sporting Goods Company's store. "Doc" L. O. Landon drew the honorary position of vice-president, while the task of secretary-treasurer fell on the capable shoulders of Hunter W. Dempsey.

Every member of the club was elected a committee of one to bring a new member to the gun club shoot tomorrow at the club traps north of the ball park. Every member must either bring a new member or a visitor; gotta bring somebody, or he'll be used as a clay pigeon, that's all.

The annual dues were reduced from $10 to $5, and it was announced that programs would be arranged by the program committee to make the weekly gatherings interesting to the new shooters.

Will Daniels is the retiring president of the club, and C. J. Pate retiring vice-president. Pate, incidentally, is president of the Texas State Trapshooters association.

TRAIN WRECK IN MARYLAND INJURES FOUR

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Four persons were injured, two seriously, when the Pennsylvania Express from Buffalo due here at 8:55 o'clock, tonight, was derailed at Odenton, Maryland. Pennsylvania trains were being routed over the Baltimore and Ohio tracks tonight.

OIL MEN TO BE HEARD ON VALUE OF OIL PROPERTY

Owners of oil property in this county are to be given the oportunity next Monday to state the value of their property preparatory to making assessments for taxation for the coming year according to an announcement made Wednesday by Judge J. P. Jones of the county court.

Cards were sent out Wednesday from the tax assessor's office to the owners of oil properties in the county asking that they appear before the commissioners court Monday, February 20. The action is in line with the expressed desire of the court to reach a fair rendition value for oil property in the county based on the market value at the present time.

No complete report has been made as yet by the three local oil men appointed to confer with officials of the tax assessor's office regarding the scale on which renditions were to be made in assessing oil properties. G. Clint Wood, one of the members of the committee, has completed a scale which shows several changes in that adopted by the commissioners court several weeks ago.

The announcement as sent out Wednesday to oil operators was as follows: "The commissioners court will attempt on next Monday, February 20, to determine the value of the oil property in the county from the evidence of its owners. You are requested to appear on that date."

Holliday Is Named Acting District Atty.

Sam Holliday, who has served as assistant district attorney during the last two years, Wednesday was appointed district attorney of the 30th district court by Judge Ed Napier, of the 78th district court, pending an appointment by Governor Neff to fill the vacancy created Saturday when H. R. Wilson resigned to accept the appointment as district judge.

Mr. Holliday and County Attorney E. L. Fulton have been handling the criminal cases for the state which have been tried this week. According to attorneys the resignation of Judge Wilson left this county without an assistant district attorney. It is said that the latter office becomes vacant when the district attorney's office is vacated.

Governor Neff has as yet not decided upon the appointment to the district attorney's office, according to telephone conversations here Wednesday with the executive. According to those with whom the conversations were held he did not indicate when the appointment will be made. Confidence is expressed however, that the appointment will be made before the end of the week.

Building of Finger Home Under Way

Early this morning carpenters, brickmasons, plumbers and painters, giving their labor free, began work on a home for Mrs. B. M. Finger, whose husband and son lost their lives last month in a fire that destroyed the Finger home on Burnett street. The new house is being built on a lot on Grant street near the Sam Houston school, and it is expected the work will be completed tonight with the exception of the papering and other "finishing touches."

The lot was given to Mrs. Finger by J. A. Kemp and Bob Waggoner; the Coyne Lumber company furnished the lumber at cost, while donations obtained from various churches by the Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker and the Rev. Lem Keevil will be used to pay for all building materials.

The ladies of the First Christian church will serve dinner on the lot today to the workmen. More than 50 members of the building trades will rush the job to early completion. The house will be a five-room cottage.
