Over opposition of mayor

City administrator post created

By Pat Blair

In the face of strong opposition from Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr., who delayed an initial vote on the matter, Rockport's city council created the position of city administrator by a 4-0 vote Monday night.

The item sparked the only battle among council members during a long-running meeting of the council that also saw appointment of officials for Rockport's upcoming city elections.

Falk opened the discussion of an item on the agenda on proposed creation of a city administrator position referring to an earlier council workshop at which the matter was brought up: "It was my position at the workshop," he said, "and my position now that we should have in writing from the city attorney (an opinion on) the legalities of a city administrator."

Falk maintained that the post of city administrator is synonymous with the position of city manager — a position that must be created by an election changing the form of city government.

In reply to a question from Alderwo-man Betty Jean Ward, City Attorney Allen Lee told the council that a city administrator may be appointed by the council under Article 977, governing general law cities. Lee pointed out that this appointment does not alter Rockport's form of government — that the mayor remains the executive head of the city.

Creation of the administrator's post was requested by City Secretary Herman

Johnson who told the council that an administrator "would basically have the same responsibilities I have today, but with certain authority a city secretary doesn't have."

Johnson said he was suggesting the post because he plans to retire within the next year "and I thought this would sort of lay the groundwork" for a better understanding of the duties of whoever succeeds him.

Johnson has also recommended that Helen Braffett be promoted from assistant city secretary to city secretary and the Rita Brunig be appointed tax assessor-collector. No action was taken Monday on these requests.

Alderman W.B. Allen asked, "Any more money involved?" referring to the proposed administrator's post.

"No more money," Johnson replied. "And in my opinion no more authority is involved. I would not be making any more decisions than I am now."

Alderman Murray McMillan said, "I think we're all talking about the same thing and it's a matter of semantics." Reading a job description of a city administrator, he listed the duties which include administration of city laws and ordinances, preparation of the annual budget and administration of approved programs and budgets.

"I think that's what he (Johnson) does now," McMillan said.

Mrs. Ward asked Lee, "Is there any legality that prevents us from doing this?"

"What you're doing," Lee said, "is consolidation of (city) departments under one official as a working base. They still have to follow your control. The mayor is still executive head of government — there is no loss of (council) control."

Alderman Burt Mills told Falk, "Mayor, since this has come up, I have not found one person other than you not in favor of it (creation of a city administrator). I move to do it."

Mrs. Ward seconded the motion. There followed a long discussion in which Falk again expressed his opposition to the matter. He then asked Lee, "Legally, Mr. Attorney, a motion was not called for, is that correct?"

Lee replied, "A motion has been made and has been seconded. I do not believe a mayor can stall an action that has been made."

Board okays computerized system

By Becky Werhan

A computerized curriculum management program, which is expected to free elementary school teachers from much paperwork, allowing them more time to teach, was approved for use in this district by the school board at their meeting Monday night.

Superintendent Joe Randow unveiled the district's plans for the Computerized Instructional Management System for the first time at the meeting, saying that the plan was something he, the elementary principals and the board had been looking at for some time. "We feel that this system will give our teachers a tremendous amount of help. Once we get it going it will be well worth the time and effort it will take to set up."

The system was formulated by Dr. Wayne Bliss, a well-known former Corpus Christi school superintendent. It is designed to assist teacher in the management of teaching programs in language arts, reading and math, the fields which were subject to the new grouping program in this district for the first time this year.

The program would be started in grades 3, 4 and 5 and would be moved up with those students through the higher grade levels, said Randow.

The computerized system would be programmed with the goals and objectives of the elementary school teachers here. It would further be programmed with an inventory of materials, tests and individual student profiles.

Randow explained that a teacher testing students would take the finished tests, feed them to the computer and within two days or less, the computer would provide a written report and specify what students were not mastering the subject of the test.

Randow further emphasized that an important feature of the system was the reinforcement capabilities it had. The computer, upon specifying which students were lacking, would provide the teacher with a source list of materials to go back in to the classroom with for retesting.

At present with the newly-implemented grouping program, teachers spend much time evaluating the individual students' progress and keeping a record of where they stand in their mastery of the subject at hand. The computer system would further provide regular printouts to the principals on the progress of teachers and students. Also receiving printouts would be the administration office and, according to Randow, more importantly students' parents.

Once the system is implemented, parents would be given "extensive inservice training" on how to utilize the printouts for their child's development, said Randow.

Nav. Dist. approves Harbor repairs

By Ted Norman

In a late afternoon emergency meeting Friday, Feb. 5 the Aransas County Navigation District commissioners voted to allow approximately $3,000 in emergency repair work to be done on a seawall in Cove Harbor that collapsed during dragline work at lots 44 and 45 in Cove Harbor.

During the meeting Harbor Master Bernie DeForest told the board members that about 100 cubic yards of dirt had been dredged from in front of the seawall and placed on the lots behind the seawall before it collapsed.

DeForest said he didn't believe the large amount of dirt placed on the lot was the cause of the collapse. He said that a preliminary investigation showed that the seawall was a very shallow one — about four feet — and that the tie rods were rusted through.

DeForest said the contractor, Sam Linney Dragline Service of Rockport could raise the seawall and stand it up and make minor repairs for $2,500 to $3,000, perhaps less.

DeForest said Linney would put some fill behind the seawall, stand the wall up then drive pilings in front of it to keep it from sinking or falling again.

Commissioner Hillis Dominiques, acting chairman during the meeting, made a suggestion that four foot seawalls not be allowed in the future.

Commissioner Dave Maguglin said he thought Laguna Construction Company had built most of the seawalls in Cove Harbor around 1962 or 1963.

Asked how long the damaged bulkhead will last with the temporary repairs DeForest said it should last as long as any of the other bulkheads like it do.

Commissioner Hal B. McKnight made a motion that the contractor make the repairs to the seawall and that the repairs not exceed $3,000. Maguglin made a second to the motion and it passed.

Commissioners adopt revised redistricting plan

"Maybe it will fly this time," said County Judge John Wendell after the county commissioners voted to accept a revised plan for the redistricting of Aransas County.

"Plan 2D," the plan voted on by the commissioners this Monday, Feb. 8, divides the county waterways among the four precincts. This reflects the input last week of a group of citizens unhappy with the original "Plan 2," which put all the water in one precinct.

That plan had been designed in accordance with requests from the County Attorney James Anderson and Sheriff Bob Hewes. Complications in water-related deaths and games violations had arisen in the past as a result of, as Anderson put it, "nebulous" boundary lines cutting across the water.

Putting all the water in one precinct, under the jurisdiction of one Justice of the Peace was favorably accepted by the commissioners and Paula Marvell, representative of the San Antonio firm hired to do the redistricting, L. Tucker Gibson and Associates. The plan, designated "Plan 2" was drawn up and the court was expected to accept it at their last meeting, held Feb. 27.

At that time, attorney Lola Bonner, chairman of the Democratic Party in the county, and citizens Zora B. Casterline, Louise Wilken and Molly Freeborn appeared at the court session and voiced their dissatisfaction of the plan. The consensus of this group was that putting all the water under the jurisdiction of one Justice of the Peace granted too much power to one person. Despite an explanation of the motives behind the action, the group expressed a desire to have the plan reworked.

Judge Wendell contacted Marvell, who appeared this Monday with four alternate plans, each splitting the water areas in different ways.

The plan accepted will put all of Copano Bay in Precinct 2 and St. Joseph Island and most of Aransas and Redfish bays into Precinct 3. Precinct 1 lines would extend from the precinct boundary lines out to the Intracoastal canal.

Falk files for re-election

Walter S. Falk Jr., Rockport's mayor for the past 10 years, filed for re-election to that post Monday morning, Feb. 8, at Rockport City Hall.

In announcing his candidacy for re-election, Falk said his decision was based, in part, on a number of projects that have begun under his administration and that he wants to see through to completion.

As examples, he cited "the pending annexation of the Rockport Country Club Estates. And," he continued, "I want to see that we continue to have a sound fiscal policy, to continue to be on a cash basis."

Falk emphasized that he wants to continue to see Rockport operate without an increase in taxes and that he sees the "possibility of putting through a $5,000 exemption for all property owners in Rockport."

In addition to his years of experience as mayor, Falk said his recent election as chairman of the Coastal Bend Council of Governments "should place me in a position to look after the best interests not only of Rockport but of Aransas County."

Another recent appointment — to the Texas Municipal League's committee for a long-range solution of Texas' water problems — will also give Falk the opportunity to work on an issue "of vital interest to Rockport. We are at the end of the line of the present water system," he said.

"My desire is to try to maintain the government of the city of Rockport in as simple and inexpensive a condition as possible — with as inexpensive costs for sewers, water and trash pickup as possible — but still provide the citizens with good government."

This plan was recommended by Wendell as "the easiest and my preference for simplicity's sake." County Attorney Anderson agreed with Wendell and saying that the plan put the "high concentration" areas, such as Estes Flat within single precincts and easily definable boundaries.

When asked for his preference, Sheriff Hewes said, "My preference is the original plan the attorney and I asked for. I don't see any reason for changing. No J.P. would have more authority than any other." Hewes explained to the group objecting to the original plan the difficulties that were often involved in getting in contact with the correct J.P. when a drowning occurred.

"Sounds to me like you need to train your J.P.s better," said Mrs. Casterline, to which Hewes replied, "I don't train J.P.s. They are elected officials just like the commissioners and I. Their business is their own. I'm a catcher and a keeper. I don't train J.P.s."

Judge Wendell agreed with Hewes, saying, "We can't tell a J.P. what to do."

Following more discussion, the plan was approved and voted on by the commissioners.

Marvell then asked for permission to begin preparation of the plan for the United States Justice Department, which has the final authority in regards to acceptance.

The only item left undone is the designation of voting stations and some discussion of this occurred. Tentative plans call for the voters in Precinct 2 to use the VFW Hall, in 3 to use the courthouse and in 4 the high school or the Fulton fire station. A station for Precinct 1 has not yet been found.

Voting stations will have to be finalized before submission to the Justice Department. According to Marvell, the plan could be filed without this and a subsequent plan filed to include the stations, but Judge Wendell indicated that he preferred one submission.

Telemetry broadens capabilities

A doctor in Corpus Christi will now have a "direct line" to a heart attack victim in Aransas County, able to monitor the patient himself while he radios instructions to paramedics at the scene.

It's all thanks to the new telemetry equipment installed recently by the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service (EMS). According to the Paramedic Leonard Collier, the new equipment as of Monday was "not in line yet" because of a missing cable but installation was expected to be completed "any day now."

The equipment consists of a portable unit that can be carried by a paramedic to the patient — whether in his home, at the scene of a highway accident, or in a land.

"The beauty of this," says Chief Paramedic Bill Aston, "is that we can take the portable unit places where an ambulance can't go."

The portable unit consists of an electrocardiograph (EKG) machine and a radiotelephone. At the scene, the paramedic attaches the EKG machine to the patient then dials an emergency channel on the radio.

The signal is relayed through a repeater in the modulance unit — which does not have to be at the scene — and from the mod-ulance, the signal goes to a microwave relay in Port Aransas.

The microwave sends it on to Corpus Christi, to Spohn Hospital or Memorial Medical Center. There, another EKG machine — part of the telemetry receiving equipment at these two hospitals — prints a "picture" of the patient's heartbeat for a waiting physician, who can then call his instructions back to the paramedics.

What this means, Aston and Collier emphasize, is that the physician is not dependent on the paramedics' interpretation of what they see on the EKG. He can see it for himself, virtually simultaneously with the paramedics, and base his instructions on first-hand observation rather than reports.

Costing about $11,000, according to Collier, the telemetry equipment is an all-radio system. Aston feels this is safer since it isn't dependent on telephone lines which might be knocked out during a hurricane.

The equipment is installed in the EMS' "new" modulance unit — actually a rebuilt modulance mounted on a new 1982 chassis. Aston said the decision was made to redo the existing modulance at a cost of $30,000 rather than buy a new one at a much higher price. The unit was cleaned up and refurbished inside, repainted outside, a storage compartment was enlarged and new weatherstripping installed for the price.

Collier said telemetry equipment has been ordered for Enterprise Medical Clinic which will be the base station for the service. That equipment is expected to arrive and be installed later this year.

And, he added, the new Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass will have telemetry capabilities.

West Oso escapes with 81-73 victory

Nine seconds represents only a fleeting period of time, but to the Rockport-Fulton Pirates nine seconds gave them both the chance to hold the basketball world in their hands, and then see a dream-come-true shattered as Willie Harper shot from midcourt to knot the score at 67-67 to force the game into overtime where West Oso eventually won 81-73 in Rockport Friday night.

Before the Pirates took the floor Friday night, Coach Bobby Flanagan said, "I never know who's going to take the floor, Dr. Jekyll or Mr. Hyde (referring to the terrible game the Pirates had against GP Tuesday)." Friday night the best side of the Pirates played on the floor of Pirate Gym, giving the West Oso Bears a run for their money. The game was in the hands of the Pirates in the final seconds of regulation play, but failure to convert on either of two free throws by Orlando Pina left the Pirates with only a two point lead as the Bears fed the ball to Harper who sent up a cannon shot from the corner at midcourt, and the ball snuggled through the nets as the buzzer sounded, tying the score at the end of regulation play.

Rockport had dominated the game from the early going with a controlled attack and some exceptional play as a team. Oso found themselves behind by as many as six points in the first quarter, basically on the good shooting by Micheal Simmons who hit seven of his 19 points in the opening quarter. The Pirates managed to stay out front to lead 17-13 after a quarter.

The Pirates continued to increase their upper hand, moving ahead 27-17 with 4:10 remaining in the second quarter. Strangely enough, the Pirates must have felt they were too far ahead because on three successive times down the court, the Pirate shooters offered up terrible, low-percentage shots. Before the Pirates could get back in the team-concept groove, the Bears had erased the eight-point effort in the quarter by Tim Redden to trail only 33-31 at halftime. During that string of bad shots, the Pirates were saddled with a key officiating call. Jon Shaw, in the game for Rory Morgan who had collected his third foul in just a short period, was called in the lane too fast on a free shot. The call was debatable, but more importantly, instead of the Pirates having the ball with a five point lead after rebounding the missed free shot, the shooter converted both shots and the Pirates were whistled again for a foul which sent the Bears to the line again. The play was a seven or eight point turnaround.

Still in control, the Pirates started fast in the third period, gathering a seven point lead following a shot by Zach Green and a jumper by Simmons. Two costly Pirate turnovers gave the Bears the ball, and they quickly erased the Pirate margin, cutting it to only a point and then moving ahead of the Pirates at 3:09 remaining in the third period. The Bears continued their hold on the lead at the end of the quarter, leading 49-45.

Dennis Hull sparked a comeback by the Pirates as he hit to draw the Pirates to within two. Simmons tied the game on a pair of free shots at 49-49. The lead would change hands five times before the final quarter came down to the last few seconds.

Rockport got behind in the fourth period by as many as seven points at 61-54 before erupting with a frenzied brand of play that brought them back even with the Bears and then to go on ahead. Hull and Simmons held the Pirates close enough until Tim Redden, who cashed in for 19 points in the game, busted a shot to close the gap to one point, 63-62.

Oso had the ball with a minute to go, and the lead. James Walls and Hull timed a pass just right and stole the ball, and Hull went the length of the court to score two of his 21 for the night, putting the Pirates on top 64-63. Oso saw that the Pirates were not in position defensively and used a court-length pass to set up a shot where Walls had to take his fifth foul, a key loss for the Pirates.

In the final minute, more basketball plays took place than throughout the entire game. Oso tied the game. Redden untied the score with a pair of free throws.

then only to return to the charity line when the Bears called on time-out too many and drew a two-shot bench technical foul. Redden buried both shots to give the Pirates 67-64 lead with but 23 seconds to play. Not only did the Pirates have the lead, they had the ball.

A key traveling violation against Simmons turned the clock back to the Bears. With nine seconds on the clock, Rockport fouled Dexter Kellough of the Bears. He hit the first shot, then missed the second. The Pirates got the rebound and got it to Pina. Kellough came across the floor and deliberately fouled Pina by knocking him into the stands. At that point, in the opinion of many, he (Kellough) could have been put out of the game for the flagrant hit.

Pina took the foul line where he is usually very effective, being placed in a situation that athletes dream about. This time, however, his fate was not to succeed. The Bears got the rebound of the second attempt, moved it to midcourt, and Harper bombed the tying basket.

The Pirates were stunned and in a sense looked defeated as they left the court to get ready for the overtime. West Oso didn't even hesitate, getting a second breath of life, burying the Pirates with 14 overtime points.

Lady JV Pirates at work

Girls lose close one

Playing as well as they have all year, the Lady Pirates of Rockport-Fulton came within four points of pulling off the upset of the year before West Oso went on to beat the Pirates 41-32.

With four minutes to go, the Lady Pirates were within striking distance of one of the top teams in District 15-4A. The Lady Bears have been one of the toughest teams in the district, but the girls from Rockport played them one-whale-of-a-game.

After a quarter, the Bears held a slim one-point lead at 13-12. Diana Herman had accounted for six of those 12 points and Mona Cowen had picked up a pair of baskets.

Then the Lady Pirates fell on hard times as they hit for only four points in the second quarter, letting the Bears extend their lead to 21-16. But even at that, they were still close enough to strike.

In the third period the Lady Pirates made a move, outscoring the Bears 12-10, making the game a close 31-28 at that point. Cowen, Missy Krogsgaard and Lee Anna Cassel all helped the Pirates stay close.

Continuing their good defense, the Lady Pirates fell into another drought in the shooting department, scoring only four points in the final eight minutes.

Herman was the leading shooter for the night with nine points and Maggie Kiker had eight. After the game Coach Jim Hatfield said of his players, "We played so much better. We ran the offense perfectly, except we didn't hit the big basket when we needed it."

Bears down JV

Pirates, 69-49

Being stone-cold can get a team in hot water, and that is exactly what happened Friday night in West Oso when the boys' JV managed to get only 12 points on the scoreboard by halftime. Meanwhile West Oso was rolling with 44 on their way to a 69-49 win.

The Pirates got only two baskets from the field in the first half, and with a new crew on the floor in the second half, the Pirates made a game of it before losing by 20 points. Charles Showalter came off the bench to lead the Pirates with 15 second-half points. Jay Roberts picked up eight of his 11 points in the second half as well. Rusty Stovall contributed eight points to the total.

In the second half, the Pirates outscored the Bears 37-25, but the first half margin was just too great.

Pirate freshmen

back on track

Rockport-Fulton's Freshmen got back on the winning track by coasting to a 46-41 win over the West Oso Bears at West Oso.

The game was not as close as the score indicates because Coach Ronnie Ormand emptied his bench and gave the Bears a chance. Bill Mott led the Pirates to a 25-11 halftime lead as he scored 12 first-half points.

Steve Odom picked up the slack in the second half, getting nine of his game high 14 points.

Going into the final quarter, the Pirates were ahead 39-21.

By the end of the game, Mott, Odom and Frank Canchola all had reached double figures.

Lady JV Pirates run over West Oso

Behind the ten point performance of Troy Hollinhead and a nine point effort by Carolyn Carpenter, the Rockport-Fulton Lady Pirate JV ran past the West Oso JV 32-24, this despite the Pirates not scoring in the final quarter.

Rockport opened a lead during the opening quarter and never trailed again. After a quarter the Pirates were ahead 8-5, and then stretched the amount to seven points, 18-11.

With a big 14-point effort in the third period, the Pirates established a 32-15 margin. Both Hollinhead and Carpenter popped for six third quarter points. At that point Coach Pat Noble cleared her bench and let the subs play the remainder of the way.

The game could have been won in even larger fashion if the Pirates had improved on their two of 12 from the free throw line.

Protect your pet from the weather

Pet talks

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the college of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University.

Is it cruel to keep dogs outside in all kinds of weather?

Not necessarily. Some breeds are outdoor dogs, such as Samoyed, husky, German shepherd, St. Bernard, collie, etc., and even the toy breeds can be healthy and comfortable outside if you do certain things.

First, have your puppy or adult dog inoculated against distemper, hepatitis, leptospirosis and parvovirus. Also examine for intestinal parasites and if present have the pet wormed. Worms lower a dog's resistance. Also consider heart worm preventive tablets which can be started on puppies.

Remember that booster inoculations for the infectious disease should be given at regular intervals.

A veterinarian can advise you about this.

Second, and just as important, a dog must have shelter that provides a dry environment, a dog house to go into when the winter winds are cold and ferocious. In the summer he should be able to get in out of the blistering sun.

Your dog house should be constructed so it will be large enough to allow him to stretch out in comfort. Place the house on legs or concrete blocks so that air can circulate under it which keeps the floor from becoming cold and damp. The doorway of the house should be away from the prevailing winds in the winter months and turned in the opposite direction in summer. A piece of canvas can be hung over the door in the winter, attached only at the top. For more protection, a removable partition can be built inside the house that extends half the width of the area, so your pet can go to the backroom. Make your dog house so the roof is removable or hinged. This allows you to clean it easier, and to change the bedding regularly.

The best bedding is cedar shavings or chips, at least four inches deep on the floor of the house. Cedar shavings will help to keep your dog smelling cleaner and they are considered a repellent to fleas, as moth balls are to moths.

Select a location for your dog house near your residence so your dog can give you more protection against prowlers, and it should be within an enclosed yard. This enclosure eliminates the need for tie out stakes and allows your dog more exercise and freedom.

If your pet is a toy or small breed dog you can provide extra warmth in severe cold by running an electric extension cord with a lighted electric bulb into the dog house.

We make our residences warmer with insulation. When you build your dog house, why not do the same to the floor, sides and roof for your dog?

I have a cat and a dog. My wife is allergic to cat fur. As a result, our cat is not allowed inside our residence, nor does the cat like to come in. Our schnauzer dog is an "inside-outside" dog and is allowed in our house. However he always prefers to sleep outside at night with our cat in their own dog house.

Remember, the outside pet still needs one other important ingredient that is so inexpensive. I am referring to plenty of love, care, petting, praising and companionship.

From your pet's best friend. The one with a warm heart for cold noses. Dr. Hap Lutz.

COLLEGE STATION — Marshall E. Carpenter from Rockport received an undergraduate degree in marketing at Texas A&M University's fall commencement exercises.

A total of 2,071 degrees were awarded, including 1,665 undergraduates, 314 master's and 92 doctorates.

Building code decision deferred pending changes by council

A decision on a building code for Rockport has been deferred pending some changes in the proposed ordinance as a result of Monday night's public hearing at City Hall.

The hearing, at 7:15 p.m., followed a public hearing on proposed annexation of 4,009 acres of land adjacent to Rockport's Memorial Park. A decision on the annexation was also deferred because of state law that now requires two annexation hearings, one of which must be in the area to be annexed.

The council called for a meeting at 5 p.m. Monday, Feb. 22, at the site.

City Inspector Mike Henry read the proposed building code ordinance to a packed City Hall, explaining that the code is based on the Southern Standards Building Code with some amendments to fit Rockport's requirements.

A decision on the ordinance was deferred in part because of some suggestions from members of the audience and in part at the request of City Attorney Allen Lee who said there are "some constitutional questions" he needs to discuss with Henry.

Among provisions of the ordinance as read Monday night was requirement of a bond to be submitted to the city by every contractor or builder involved in construction work. The ordinance proposes a $1,000 bond. Henry said Aransas Pass requires a $5,000 bond.

Other requirements include firewalls which, Henry said, "a lot of buildings around here don't have."

The code would require that all buildings that are educational, institutional or designed for "assembly-occupancy" — such as theaters — or that contain more than 3,000 square feet of floor space must be designed by a "registered architect or licensed engineer."

Henry said an architect or engineer is also required for design of piers in the city limits.

The proposed new ordinance would increase permit fees and would require periodic inspections during construction of buildings in the city. It would also require issuance of a certificate of occupancy before a new building can be occupied or before occupancy of a building can be changed.

The ordinance would establish a building code board of appeals consisting of four members of which one must be an architect or engineer, one general contractor, one member at-large from the building community and one member at-large from outside the building community.

Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr. observed that these requirements would have to be revised. "I don't believe we have a resident architect or engineer in Rockport," he said.

A section on proposed regulation of pier construction brought the most comments from the audience, several of whom objected to a requirement that a pier must be constructed at least three feet above mean tide level.

Ed Armstrong argued that a lower pier has a better chance of surviving high storm tides in the area.

"Once the tide covers it (the pier) up, you're home free," he said.

Alderman Murray McMillan asked, "Why put height requirement on a private pier?"

Also questioned was a requirement that piers be constructed to withstand a pressure of 100 pounds per square foot. Several members of the audience commented that this figure was

Meeting with more favor was a provision that would require removal or repair of damaged piers within one or two years. Falk asked members of the audience whether they would like to see the period set at one or two years and received an almost unanimous response of "One."

The ordinance would require that no private pier, piling or boat docks could be constructed within city limits without issue of a permit and would require use of treated materials in construction.

Stolen car sale leads to shootout

Arnold Frieda Jr., 38, of Corpus Christi was charged with attempted murder and auto theft after a stolen car sale turned into a shootout with local law enforcement officials late last week.

Aransas County Sheriff Bob Hewes said Tuesday morning Frieda was in the county jail on $50,000 bond on both charges. The bond had been reduced after first being set at $250,000.

Hewes said the incident began about 12:45 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 4, when he and an undercover officer, two Texas Rangers and two undercover officers from the Texas Department of Public Safety in Corpus Christi set up the sale of a suspected stolen car.

A meeting took place at Glenn's Hunting and Fishing Resort south of the Bayside Causeway, Hewes said. After the alleged stolen vehicle left the scene, Hewes and his agent "blocked in the seller (Frieda)."

Frieda opened fire on the officers and the other agents converged on the scene. Frieda was wounded in the shoulder by a .44 magnum bullet fired by one of the Corpus Christi undercover officers, Hewes said.

He added that one of Frieda's bullets struck his (Hewes') car in the windshield on the side where Hewes was sitting. The bullet was not large enough to penetrate the glass, Hewes added.

After Frieda was taken into custody, he was taken by Aransas County Emergency Medical Service to Enterprise Medical Clinic in Rockport then by county officers to Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi.

He was released Sunday and returned to the county jail.

THE SIGN BEHIND OUR NEW SIGN

Allied Live Oak Bank

There is a sign on a wall in an office that says, "If it works, don't fix it."

If it weren't for that sign, and the philosophy it stands for, there might not be an Allied Live Oak sign going up outside our bank right now. Because Live Oak Bank works. And it's always worked. And if it didn't work — day in and day out — in the best interests of the folks in Aransas County, we'd never have been as successful as we have.

Allied Bancshares recognized that. In fact, that's the kind of bank Allied wanted to merge with — one that's already doing it right, and one that can only benefit the community even more with Allied's help.

So while there are some exciting changes in store for us all, there are some things we wouldn't change for the world. The people, the friendliness, the attitudes, and the concern for Aransas County that you knew at Live Oak are still the same at Allied Live Oak. All the checks, envelopes, deposit slips, and other forms you have are still good, and you can use them 'till you run out. And we know that when it does come time for you to have new ones printed, you'll be as glad to see "Allied Live Oak" on them, as we are to see our new sign.

Because the only changes that are being made, are for the better.

Commissioners discuss emergency co-ordinator

An Emergency Management Co-ordinator to serve the area in the event of hurricanes nuclear attacks and other disasters was a subject of discussion at the meeting of the commissioners' court, Monday, Feb. 8.

The matter had already been before the city of Rockport and City Secretary Herman Johnson, with Mayor Falk, appeared before the court to provide information for the commissioners.

One such co-ordinator each could be picked by the county, the city, of Rockport and the city of Fulton. More economical and practical is the assignment of one co-ordinator for all areas, explained Johnson. County Judge John Wendell agreed, as did the commissioners.

The need for such a designation arose after the 67th Legislature dictated the mayor of each city and the judge of the county are Emergency Management Directors. They in turn, must appoint a co-ordinator(s).

Such a co-ordinator would attend all training sessions sponsored by the state as well as classes and seminars. Such training would include the necessary expertise to apply for disaster relief and the handling of other, more routine, paperwork.

An Emergency Management Co-ordinator's salary would be decided upon by the entities involved in his appointment, explained Johnson. The state would then match these funds. Also, explained the secretary, the state pays for 75 percent of the expenses involved in the co-ordi-nator's travel and training.

The commissioners agreed to go ahead with a joint co-ordinator, serving both cities and the county. Some discussion of the right person to fill the post occurred, with Commissioner Pete Sanders suggesting Aransas County Taxpayers' Association president Mitch Ammons. No final decision on any individual was made.

In other action, the commissioners called the April 3 local option election for legalized bingo. Such bingo, if legalized would be for charitable purposes only.

Also, the commissioners voted to put out bids for the purchase of road machinery. The group agreed on the need for a new maintainer to be used in addition to the present one. Bids will be opened at the next meeting of the court, Feb. 14.

Bids for new copiers for the sheriff's office, the district clerk and the veteran's service office were also authorized.

A request for the county to accept maintenance on a railroad crossing into Bahia Bay at mile post 16.55 was made by a representative of the builders of the project. Such maintenance was accepted by the county prior to the development changing owners. Also in relation to Bahia Bay, drainage was discussed. The drainage system to service an area of previous complaints, near Palm Harbor street of Ocean Drive was explained by the engineer at the court session. All commissioners appeared to be in favorable opinion of the system.

Volunteers are 4-H backbone

COLLEGE STATION — 4-H, the youth program of the Cooperative Extension Service in Texas and across the nation, owes much of its success to a dedicated legion of volunteer leaders. They devote their time, energy and resources to support the nation's largest youth organization and its motto — "To make the best better."

Texas boasts some 22,000 volunteer leaders who work closely with County Extension agents in helping about 140,000 youth engage in some 60 different project opportunities and in organizing clubs in virtually every community in the state.

"The evidence of 4-H volunteer leaders is probably greatest this time of the year as they work with youth who will be exhibiting animals at the various livestock shows across Texas," points out Dr. Warren Mauk, 4-H and youth specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "These leaders take time away from their jobs to make sure the youth and their animals get to the various shows and help them get their animals ready for the show ring."

Of course, this is but one of the many activities that volunteers engage in, adds the specialist. They help lead various project groups, teach youth certain subject matter, and provide facilities, equipment, supplies, recognition and awards.

"4-H volunteer leaders spend an average of 15 to 25 days a year supporting various educational programs and activities geared to youth aged nine to 19. They each contribute an average of $1,000 a year in time and resources because they care about the future of young people," points out Mauk.

Nationally, 4-H volunteers contributed some $200 million a year in time and resources, more than double the current annual investment of public and private sector funds.

"While 4-H was born in the early 1900s to teach the latest principles of agriculture to club members, it now provides learning opportunities for youth in all walks of life, giving them a chance to grow and develop to their full potential," says Mauk.

He adds that how much they learn and how well they become prepared to deal with the complexities of life that lay ahead depends a great deal on the dedicated band of volunteer leaders who care about the youth of this country.

Separation anxiety is a common phase for preschoolers

The little girl loved nursery school. She was well-adjusted and social. But suddenly her happy and independent manner dissolved and she became a clinging, terrified, hysterical child. She cried and fought and refused to go outside to play. She wouldn't let her parents out of her sight for a minute. She would throw a tantrum when it was time for school and would scream uncontrollably when left. Her parents were frightened and shocked. They were at a loss to understand what had caused the sudden change in their child.

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, calls this phenomenon "separation anxiety." It is a fairly common stage among children in preschool years and often marks the child's first separation from home and parents.

Separation anxiety is a very natural response for a child, but one that is not easy to cope with. The child is experiencing her own shortcomings for the first time. She recognizes her own dependence on her parents. She is testing herself, trying on her dependence/independence for size. And she is testing her parents, as well.

Sometimes the change can be related to a parent's illness that requires hospitalization or a period of bed rest at home. Sometimes a mother's absence for the birth of another child can trigger the anxiety. At other times, no one can put a finger on the cause.

In searching for possible reasons, parents often begin to feel guilty. They make excuses for the child. They wonder if they have been "bad" parents. In their guilt they allow the child's behavior to manipulate them and disrupt the family pattern. The child, meanwhile, feels less and less secure as she gets away with more and more. She needs to feel that her parents love her enough to guide her properly, to set boundaries for her behavior, and to make decisions in her best interest. She recognizes and fears her own lack of experience. Through the tears, clinging and temper tantrums, she is saying again and again, "Reassure me. Tell me what I should do. Help me grow in confidence and independence."

Separation anxiety becomes worse as Mom and Dad allow themselves to be manipulated into staying home from a party because the child cries and clings to them, or by permitting the child to stay at home instead of going to school or outdoors to play. It is not easy to carry a kicking, screaming child to the car, take her to school and deliver her, still screaming. It is equally difficult to pry open your child's desperately clinging hands and turn away from her tear-stained face. But it can be done.

The reversal from parental compassion and permissiveness to firm action must be accompanied by careful explanation on the preceding day or weekend. The child should be gently told that she is too young to make a decision about going to school; that Mom and Dad decide when she goes to bed, what she eats, and where she plays — and that they have decided that she will go to school. Tell her that you know she will enjoy being with other children, that you are sorry she isn't happy about it, but the decision has been made. Then take her — and leave her.

Each succeeding day the process will become easier for both you and your child. You will have regained control over your family life, and your child will know what is expected of her. Although she may fight against the new situation for a short time, she will feel secure in the knowledge that her parents care enough to make grown-up decisions on her behalf. Her world will no longer be a scary place with no protective boundaries to keep her safe. Instead, it becomes an orderly world where by making small decisions first, she can grow up learning how to make more important ones.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

Robert C. Calvert files for office

Robert C. Calvert paid the filing fee for the office of State Comptroller in the Democratic primary.

Mr. Calvert, who had previously announced his candidacy at a Fort Worth news conference on Jan. 21, 1982, stated that he does not belong to any political "clique", owes no favors to any political or special interest group, is not wealthy nor is he a professional politician. At this time he is personally financing his campaign.

Mr. Calvert retired from federal service in 1981 after a 27 year career in law enforcement. He is a veteran, having served seven years in the U.S. Marine Corps from 1947 to 1954.

Mr. Calvert expressed his belief that the voters of Texas are ready to depart from a long-standing tradition which almost dictates that only a professional politician or a millionaire can be elected to public office.

Welding equipment taken

More than $3,000 in welding equipment was reported taken by thieves who hit a workshop on South Verne Street last week.

The business belongs to Howard N. Gilliam, father of Rockport Police Officer Mark Gilliam who reported the incident to sheriff's deputies following its occurrence last Tuesday, Feb. 2.

Gilliam said there were two trailers chained and locked together at his father's South Verne St. Marine Service shop and that thieves unlocked and removed one trailer and a welding machine. The trailer was valued at $200 and the welder at $1,500.

Also taken were assorted welding tools valued at more than $1,300.

Dogbite

An Aransas County youth, Chris Haight, was the victim of a dogbite while at a residence on Verne Street. The youth was treated for a lacerated lip and two chipped teeth and released and the dog was placed under quarantine.

The incident occurred Wednesday, Feb. 3.

Nursery burglary

Pearson's Garden Center was burglarized between 11 p.m. Monday, Feb. 1, and 1 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 2. A large plate glass was broken out on the east side of the building, according to deputies.

Administrator

"May I have that in writing?" Falk asked.

This was followed by more discussion until Mrs. Ward said, "A motion was made and seconded."

Mrs. Braffett asked if the council wished to include a job description in the ordinance creating the administrator's post and upon Lee's advice that a job description was not needed in the initial ordinance, McMillan said, "We can go ahead and set it up and have a workshop on the job description."

"I'll entertain a motion that this be table until we've had a workshop," Falk said. No one made the motion and Falk commented, "We're back to square one. Any further discussion?"

Receiving none, he asked Mrs. Braffett to read the motion then again called for discussion. Receiving no further comments he called for the vote and the matter passed 4-0.

Following the vote, Mrs. Ward said, "I think we all have the best interests of the community at heart, so I respectfully request that the mayor accept the wishes of the council."

Later in the meeting, Lee asked that the vote be taken again because of a legal technicality. The council rescinded the original motion then adopted it again with no further discussion.

In other action during Monday's meeting, the council appointed Rachel Garcia judge and Joel Zapata alternate judge for the April 3 city elections in which the posts of mayor and two city aldermen are up. Elections for absentee and for both city wards on election day will be at City Hall.

The council also approved a rate of pay of $4 per hour for election officials plus $25 to the presiding judge for delivery of returns. Johnson pointed out these rates are set by State law and cannot be changed.

Also approved was a request of the new owner of Moonshell Galleries for a sidewalk sale in front of the shop on March 11, 12 and 13, and a date of March 15 was set for Rockport's "Clean-up Week." During that week, city trucks will pick up all trash at no charge.

The council discussed but took no action on a proposed city-council Emergency Management Plan in which Rockport, Fulton and Aransas County will jointly hire an emergency management coordinator.

Falk asked for suggestions of people to fill this position.

The council heard from the owners of Charlotte Plummer's Sea Fare Restaurant, Fulton Beach Restaurant and The Schrenkeisen's requesting sanitary sewer service to their businesses but said this is outside Rockport's sphere of influence and the city cannot now extend service lines to these businesses.

Police Chief Hinojosa presented the monthly police and animal control reports for January.

System

The program designed for each district are made expressly for that district, explained Randow. "This is not a mass-produced thing," he said. Our program will be designed for Aransas County."

Since most of the data fed into the computer is analyzed by Dr. Bliss's staff, the materials needed by the district for participation in the program are minimal. An micro-computer, of the IBM, Radio Shack, Commodore Perry or Apple band, a printer, a scanner would be purchased at an estimated cost of $11,000. This, coupled with the cost of the program participation and other factors, would give a two year cost factor of approximately $30,000 said Randow.

He stressed that other uses for the computer should be considered when thinking of the cost of the unit. Areas where the computer will be utilized include management of student activity accounts, analysis and recordkeeping of maintenance, financial analysis of cafeteria management and special education programs.

Principals Norman Spears, Manual Rocha and "Buster" Gillis all spoke of the system in a highly positive manner. "This will save my teachers hours and hours of time," said Spears. Also concurring was Joel Mixon who said, "We have to face it, this is the coming thing and now is the time to begin. We need to go on with it."

Randow said that it would be a year or more before the program is functional in Aransas County.

Following the board's vote to go ahead with the project, visitors were given the floor for opinions on the action. Speaking first was Mitch Ammons, president of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association, who spoke of computers in education saying, "This is almost a Pandora's box. If everyone jumps on the bandwagon, there will be a tremendous cost increase. If it goes the other way there will be a substantial expense involved with under utilized equipment."

Ammons' main thrust was "teachers should be in at the bottom of this thing right now, not have the program come down on them from above. If it's forced on them they're going to be apathetic. There should be teacher input now, at this stage.

Get them involved, otherwise they may balk at it."

"On the other hand," Ammons said, "if they get involved, get ready and grab your back pocket."

Also speaking was Ed Brennan, who referred to his past experience with computers and told the board he felt they were not looking at the total expense involved in computer maintenance and other areas. Concurring with Brennan was Horace Naquin.

Board member Gene Gregory addressed Brennan's comments, saying, "We haven't heard anything positive yet. We get this and all we hear is criticism."

Brennan stressed that he was not criticizing the action, "merely providing input."

In other action, the board voted, following a second reading to adopt a revised Board Policy Manual. The board has been working with the Texas Association of School Boards, their governing body, on the new manual since August, said Randow. Working with the board on the manual is TASB consultant Pat Connor, who called the manual "one of the best." Board president Oattie Mundine said of the new manual, "we've never been this thorough before."

In the section of the meeting reserved for visitor opinion, James Metzner, member of ACTA and regular attendant at school board meetings asked the board to place an item on their agenda for the March meeting. "I would like to request that you consider the matter of candidates in the upcoming election who don't receive a full majority of the vote. I would like to see these candidates have a run off within 30 days. This is something that would update you with the rest of the state. I would request that you put it on the agenda." No comment from the board on Metzner's request was given.

The board, during the meeting, had called the April 3 trustee election and had appointed election officials.

Appointed were absentee judge Valera Denman; clerks, Beth Foitlik, Joan Truelove, and Frances Watkins; election officials Gertrude Baugh; judge Ardeth Rodgers and Mavid Lloyd; Billie Franklin and Emma Corpus, clerks.

Boosters sponsor Italian dinner

Italian food, anyone? The Rockport-Fulton Choir Boosters are having an Italian Dinner Monday, Feb. 15 to raise funds for the high school choir. The "dinner" is actually two meals, from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. and 5-8 p.m., held in the Rockport Elementary cafeteria.

Plates are $3.50 for adults and $2 for children. To-go plates will be available.

Like the Cajun dinner earlier this year, this dinner is a fundraiser for the choir's trip to the International Youth and Music Festival held in Vienna this spring. The Rockport-Fulton Choir, under the direction of Martha Luigi, is one of 20 choirs invited to this prestigious festival. Approximately $2,000 per student is necessary for the group to make the trip.

EMS responds to 98 calls in January

Aransas County's Emergency Medical Service (EMS) responded to 98 calls during the first month of 1982, with heart attacks being the leading single reason for calls.

Twenty-three of the calls during the month were to aid heart attack victims.

Accidents involving vehicles accounted for 14 of the calls with 12 auto accidents, one motorcycle accident and one auto-pedestrian mishap.

Industrial and recreational accidents accounted for three emergency calls each during the month according to the EMS January report.

Other calls included 12 to aid victims of internal bleeding, 10 victims of falls, six stroke victims, one burn victim, two assault victims, two victims of respiratory distress and two cases of diabetic complications.

Paramedics received four calls on drunks, 15 miscellaneous calls and one false alarm during the month.

The Life-Pak was used 32 times during the month, 14 patients were given drugs and IV's were administered in 23 cases. Sixty-six persons were transported with nearly half — 30 — being taken to the Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass.

Twelve persons were taken to Spohn Hospital and 10 to Rockport's Enterprise Medical Clinic. Six were taken to Memorial Medical Center.

Ten of the patients treated during the month were not transported. Units were cancelled en route five times, 13 patients were dead at the scene when the unit arrived and four patients refused service.

Fifty-three calls originated in Aransas County, 34 in Rockport and seven in Fulton. Paramedics responded to four calls out of the county. The three units logged a total of 3,980 miles during the month.
