Senate Debate Due

Fortas' Record Given Defense

By GENE BERNHARDT
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The majority of members of the Senate Judiciary Committee Saturday filed a point-by-point defense of Abe Fortas' record and asked the Senate to confirm his nomination to be chief justice without an "ignoble" filibuster.

But minority members, in their own reports, hammered away at Fortas in a foretaste of the debate that is expected to dominate the Senate for weeks to come. It is scheduled to start Tuesday or Wednesday.

The Judiciary Committee voted 11-6 last week to recommend to the Senate that it confirm Fortas as successor to Chief Justice Earl Warren and U.S. Appeals Court Judge Homer Thornberry to take Fortas' place as an associate justice.

'Well Qualified'
 "It is our opinion that Justice Fortas is extraordinarily well qualified for the post to which he has been nominated," the 11-man majority, including Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, said in its reports. Committee chairman James

O. Eastland, D-Miss., and Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Sam Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., sharply disagreed.

"I do so," Ervin explained, "because I love the Constitution and believe tyranny on the bench to be as objectionable as tyranny on the throne."

Said Eastland: "The main thrust of Justice Fortas' philosophy as expressed in his

Thundershowers In Pampa Visit

Heavy thundershowers struck the Pampa area twice over the weekend, dumping .62 inch on the city.

The first storm hit the city Friday evening, accompanied by some strong winds and a display of lightning. The moisture amounted to .49 inch. No damage was reported.

A light shower of short duration fell on the city Saturday afternoon. Another heavy shower then hit the city around sunset last night. A total of .13 inch had been recorded before press time early today.

Red Spaceship Thought Headed For Softlanding

Commiss Are Silent On Zond-5's Progress

JODRELL BANK England (UPI) — British radio astronomers said Saturday night the Soviet Zond-5 spaceship was believed to have re-entered earth's atmosphere from a voyage around the moon.

Spokesmen at the Jodrell Bank Observatory said the Russians may be attempting a softlanding for the unmanned probe. The feat would be another "first" in the Soviet space program.

Tass, the official Soviet News agency, was silent Saturday on the progress of Zond-5. A brief Tass item late Saturday night merely quoted Jodrell spokesmen as saying the launching of the spaceship was "a major contribution to the cause of exploration for outer space and the moon."

Russia space failures are rarely announced, and officials at Jodrell Bank said only an official Soviet communique could confirm recovery of Zond-5 if it was able to make a softlanding.

Sir Bernard Lovell, Jodrell Bank director, said the observatory contact with Zond-5 when it was less than 50,000 miles from the earth heading toward the South Pole.

"We have not recovered signals from the Russian spacecraft," Lovell said at 6:40 p.m. London time. "If it is still in orbit we would have expected to have received further signals by this time."

"Therefore, we presume it has reentered the atmosphere," Western scientists suggested.

Russia may have taken photos of the lunar surface to find suitable places for cosmonauts to land.

U.S. and Russian probes have obtained pictures of the moon but all have been radioed back to earth. None of the picture taking spaceships has ever been recovered intact.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, said Saturday Zond-5 was traveling at 25,000 miles per hour on its return flight.

'Propaganda' Said Purpose Of Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the Soviet Union's continuing threats to intervene in West Germany, high State Department officials said Saturday the Russian warnings appeared to be mostly propaganda not supported by troop movements.

They indicated that the Soviets are aware of the seriousness of a move against West Germany and West Berlin and that Moscow realized the outcome of such direct military intervention would be war with the United States.

But the officials did not exclude the possibility that the Russians may attempt to impose another economic squeeze on West Berlin later this year which could coincide with the West German Democratic party convention scheduled there the first week in November.

These officials were uncertain as to the exact reason for the bitter Soviet propaganda campaign against West Germany, but they did not reject the theory that the Kremlin is seeking to promote Communist bloc unity by raising the spectre of foreign threats following the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Moscow's threats have been simmering since November, 1967, when the Russians produced an argument which asserted they had the right to intervene under the United Nations charter to prevent the rise of racism and militarism. The State Department issued a formal statement Tuesday declaring the Russian argument invalid because West Germany is now a sovereign and independent nation and a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Bogus Bills Reported In Amarillo

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. Secret Service and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents Saturday pushed a probe into the spreading passing of counterfeit $20 bills over West Texas.

Agents have received reports from local law authorities in Lubbock, Slaton, Abilene and Amarillo as the bogus bills continue to pour in. All the counterfeit bills carry the same serial number—G4903661A.

The first bogus bill was discovered Thursday at a Lubbock bank. Since then at least four have been passed in Lubbock businesses, 15 in Amarillo, two in Slaton and one in Abilene.

Descriptions received by officials in Lubbock and Abilene of the counterfeit passer do not match, however. One was said to be a teen-ager, dressed like a college student, while the other was believed to be in his late 40s.

HEADING DOWNTOWN, the "Fair Share Parade" left Coronado Center Saturday morning to support the 1968 Pampa United Fund campaign drive. One of the entries, shown above, was the Pampa High School Key Club, with a pickup adorned with United States flags. Other entries included the Harvester band, girl's pep squad and entries from the various organizations benefitting from the drive.

'68 United Fund General Drive To Open On Tuesday

The United Fund General Solicitation Campaign will begin in Pampa at 7 a.m. Tuesday with a Kickoff Breakfast at the Coronado Inn.

By Oct. 18, the entire goal this year of $84,200 must be reached.

Drive leaders said, "Seeking to raise this money merits the wholehearted support of every thoughtful member of this city, for never before has the United Fund been called upon to fill as large a role as it does now. The money that we all contribute to this drive will be spread among twelve participating agencies that render vital services to our community."

"They each have a part of great importance in the lives of so many people in our area. The doors of those agencies are open to all, regardless of station in life and ability to pay. Their character building programs, health services, and casework services are a guiding light to our boys and girls of tomorrow. Although there are no new agencies or programs included in this year's Pampa United Fund, slight increases are required because of higher costs of goods and services.

"Also, an acute shortage of qualified professional workers, makes necessary higher salaries, and increased operating costs for continued operation of expanded facilities of several agencies.

"We are all involved in a search for a better way of life for those less fortunate. Your contribution, all that you spend, will be your personal demonstration that you are an active participant in that search. It is impossible to place a dollar and cents figure on the value of the Pampa United Fund's benefit to the people that these agencies help so well," drive leaders concluded.

Police Warn Litterbugs Here That Any Violators Will Be Prosecuted

Asst. Police Chief George Wallace warned indiscriminate can and bottle litterbugs Saturday that throwing cans or bottles on public streets or highways is a violation of state law punishable by a fine of up to $200.

The warning follows a rash of bottles and cans thrown in and around the Pampa area, Wallace said.

"If we catch anyone violating this law, we're going to press charges," Wallace warned.

Besides ruining tires, Wallace said, shattered glass cannot be picked up by the city's street sweeper machine and has to be picked up by hand, resulting in needless time and money spent.

GI's Fight Reds Near Saigon

By BERT W. OKULEY
 SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. infantrymen of the 9th "Old Reliable" Division, plagued by heavy rain and electric storms, battled 200 "well trained" Communists on the fringes of Saigon Saturday night.

Lightning struck a helicopter at division headquarters, detonating rockets aboard the aircraft which hit another helicopter. The accident killed one American and wounded three, reports from the scene said.

The fighting on Saigon's doorstep, 13 miles south of the capital in the paddy fields of the Mekong Delta, started Saturday morning when three Americans were felled by a booby trap explosion. One died of wounds. A short time later, two more Americans were hit by fire from a Communist bunker, triggering a fullscale battle.

There was no indication of the number of Communists killed in Saturday's fighting because heavy rain and darkness prevented a sweep of the swampy battlefield. U.S. losses were at least one killed and 13 wounded, UPI correspondent Roger Norum reported.

The Delta combat was just north of the scene of a firefight Friday in which 9th Division troops reported killing 41 Viet Cong.

Kiwanians To Change Club Year

The Downtown Pampa Kiwanis Club will hold a special meeting at next Friday's luncheon in First Methodist Church. Officers for 1969 will be elected.

It was announced that the Kiwanis year will be changed next year. Currently, officers serve through the calendar year, Jan. 1 to Dec. 31.

Club officers elected next week will take over Jan. 1 and serve only until Oct. 1, 1969, instead of the full calendar year, according to Joe Fischer, club president.

At Friday's weekly luncheon, the club was presented with a plaque of appreciation from the Salvation Army for its assistance in financing last year's Army Christmas party for Pampa's needy.

Entertainment was provided by the Salvation Army youth choir.

Judge Recommends Hughes Pay TWA

NEW YORK (UPI) — A U.S. district court special master recommended Saturday that billionaire industrialist Howard Hughes pay Trans World Airlines (TWA) $137.6 million for mismanaging the airline during the 1950s.

The recommendation, which represented the statutory tripling of damages suffered by TWA during the period, must now will be confirmed by District Court Judge Charles M. Metzner, who heard the original trust suit which TWA brought in 1961.

Special Master Herbert Brownell, the attorney general during the Eisenhower administration who was appointed special master with the agreement of both parties, announced his recommendation Saturday in order to avoid affecting the price of TWA stock on the exchanges.

TWA's suit charged that Hughes, the Hughes Tool Co., and former TWA executive Raymond M. Holliday improperly managed the airline by delaying the purchase of jet aircraft during the 1950s.

Metzner entered a default judgment against Hughes in May of 1963 when he refused to appear before the court with certain tax papers and other documents.

Women's Self-Defense Course To Be Held Today In County Annex

Self-defense for women will be the subject of a short course to be taught today at the Gray County annex building, just east of the city.

The program will start at 3 p.m.

"This is not a course on judo or karate," Fant said. "It's a course on simple measures that a woman can take to protect herself whether she is in her home, on the highway or on the street."

Rise In Texas Crime Is Primarily In Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The increasing crime rate in Texas' big cities outweighed a general decline in the rest of the state during the first half of this year resulting in a 23 per cent increase for the state so far during 1968.

An FBI crime report issued Thursday showed that the 23 per cent boost in crime for Texas during the first six months of 1968 compared with a 21 per cent increase across the nation.

The increase was based on a comparison with crimes in 1968 with a similar period in 1967. The survey was taken in seven major crime categories in all Texas cities with more than 10,000 population.

Statistics were released concerning murder, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny over $50 and auto theft.

Several Cities Listed

Texas cities included in the survey were Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Houston, Lubbock, San Antonio, Waco and Wichita Falls.

Houston led the state in every category.

The report showed 68,550 crimes were committed in the ten categories in Texas during the first six months, compared with 55,799 committed during the same period of 1967.

General decreases in crime or at least very slight increases, are shown in Austin, Corpus Christi and Waco.

Some Gains Noted

Nine of the 13 cities in the report showed increases in capital crime—murder and rape. Figures in those categories, by city (1967 figures listed first and 1968 figures listed second):

Abilene—murder 0-1; rape 2-3

Amarillo—murder 2-2; rape 7-6

Austin—murder 12-11; rape 12-18

Beaumont—murder 6-8; rape 0-1

Corpus Christi—murder 9-4; rape 16-14

Dallas—murder 67-95; rape 33-41

El Paso—murder 4-6; rape 19-38

Fort Worth—murder 35-52; rape 36-40

Houston—murder 119-125; rape 36-40

Lubbock—murder 7-8; rape 14-20

San Antonio—murder 38-44; rape 53-67

Waco—murder 5-4; rape 10-7

Wichita Falls—murder 0-6; rape 2-4

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

Atvidaberg is a pleasant little town of around 10,000 in southern Sweden. Its leading citizen is a lean, sandy-haired man named Gunnar Ericsson who undoubtedly soon would have been a government minister had the opposition and not the socialists won this week's national elections.

Between the town and the man lies in capsule form much of the explanation of Sweden, a nation with its roots deep in history, a monarchy ruled by a socialist government, socialist but with 95 per cent of its industry in private hands.

Quite apparently, so far as Sweden is concerned, the term socialist as used to describe the government is a misnomer and can be applied only inasmuch as Sweden is a total welfare state governed by what Premier Tage Erlander calls "regard for the individual."

Welfare State

No opposition politician or party would dare tamper with the welfare state despite the fact the Swedes pay the highest taxes in the world to maintain it. It was not an issue in the recent campaign, which centered more on "me-too'ism" from the opposition and "you never had it so good" from the socialists.

Atvidaberg is located in the minds of Sweden's only barony and 500 years ago was dependent for its existence on copper mining. When the mines ran out it turned to woodworking, drawing on the nearby forests—and making, among other things, spokes for wagon wheels.

When that became uneconomical, Ericsson's father turned it to its present chief industry.

Laura V. Hamner Funeral Set For 11 a.m. Monday In Claude Church

Funeral services for Miss Laura Hamner, Panhandle historian, who died Friday in Birmingham, Ala., will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in the Christian Church at Claude.

Officiating ministers at the last rites will be the Rev. James Todd, former Pampa and now pastor of the church, and the Rev. Ralph Odum, pastor of the Claude Methodist Church.

The body will lie in state from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. tomorrow at the church. Funeral arrangements are in charge of Blackburn-Shaw Funeral Home, Amarillo. Burial will be in the Claude cemetery.

Miss Hamner, 97, had resided for the past four years in Birmingham, where she made her home with a niece. Prior to that she had been a resident of the Herring Hotel in Amarillo for 30 years.

Miss Hamner contributed many historical articles to the Pampa Daily News and other Panhandle Newspapers in past years.

She was born in Memphis, Tenn., July 17, 1871. She came to the Panhandle at the age of 20 to teach in Claude where her father, James Hamner, bought the weekly Claude News a short time later.

She served 30 years as a teacher at Claude, became postmaster there, later went to Amarillo and was Potter County School superintendent for 14 years until 1934. It was then she began a full time career of writing. She had organized the Panhandle Pen Women's Club in 1922 and served as its president.

A collection of her writings, memoirs, books, newspaper interviews, clippings and historical photos was presented to the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum at Canyon in 1961 and are on display there today.

In 1958 Laura V. Hamner Week was proclaimed in Amarillo and then Mayor of Amarillo, John Armstrong, cited her contribution to the Texas Panhandle and the area she loved by stating in his proclamation:

"No one has done more to chronicle for future generations the significant lives and events of the Panhandle of Texas. To do this she has gone directly to the people who built an empire on the prairies."

Tracy Cary, president of the Pampa Historical and Genealogical Society, Saturday paid this tribute to Miss Hamner: "Utterly captivated by the indomitable spirit in the lives of Panhandle pioneers, Laura V. Hamner's keen insight made her realize the value and inspiration that the history of this last frontier would have for coming generations and she became a dedicated chronicler of the Panhandle story. Our debt to her can be evaluated only as the years go by and the scope of her work becomes increasingly apparent and appreciated by those mature enough to hold their heritage a sacred trust."

Miss Hamner is survived by her niece, Mrs. Florence Hargis of Birmingham; and four cousins, Mrs. Carl Gelin of Lubbock, Joe Christian of Brownfield, Jim Christian of Albuquerque and Charles Hendrix of Amarillo.

Brownell's recommendation came after a damage hearing that lasted more than two years. Oral testimony took up more than 10,000 pages of transcript and there were thousands of pages of written testimony and exhibits. Brownell's report itself was 323 pages long.

Hughes has kept himself out of the public eye for years. After he divested himself of his interest in TWA he began to invest heavily in Las Vegas, where he now lives in a luxurious hotel.

Warner To Speak For Credit Women
Pampa Municipal Court Judge John W. Warner will speak at Monday's meeting of the Pampa Credit Women's Club on the subject, "Responsibility of Young Adults."

In his talk, Warner will discuss the problems young adults have in obtaining credit, especially where they have no previous credit history, he said.

DUBLIN (UPI)—A link between the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) and the Fred Wales Army, demanding respectively independence of Northern Ireland and Wales, was believed found by police Saturday. Authorities were probing the disappearance of thousands of rounds of ammunition from army barracks in Cork and the Irish Press said IRA and Welsh Free Army members have been in contact.

PARIS (UPI)—A French air force plane on a practice mission crashed in the Alps Saturday, killing all six passengers, an air force spokesman said.

TO LEAVE PAMPA — Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tooley, shown here, have sold their interest in Richard Drug to Tom Beard and will leave Pampa for Gainesville Sept. 28. The Tooleys were honored at a meeting sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Thursday. Two gifts given to Mrs. Tooley on that occasion are shown here, the bouquet of red roses in the background and the "Top O' Texas plate" she is holding.

Pampa To Lose Civic Workers As Tooleys Go To Gainesville

Tom Beard, for several years a partner in Pampa's Richard Drug, is sole owner now, after purchasing the interest in the firm of Joe W. C. Tooley, widely-known Pampa druggist. Mr. and Mrs. Tooley are leaving Pampa, at least temporarily, and will move to Gainesville, where Tooley will be employed as a pharmacist in a drug store. The Tooleys, however, plan to maintain their house at 1318 N. Russell and will return to Pampa frequently, they indicated.

Tooley, one of the most active civic workers in the history of this community, first came to Pampa in 1929 from Dallas. He was employed here in Richard Drug by its original owner, F. P. Shaw, who had opened the drug store in 1925. Tooley held his job here only three hours, though, before being made manager of Richard Drug in Panhandle, a post he kept for 10 years.

In 1939 the Tooley family returned to Pampa with the breadwinner joining Harvester Drug, owned by H. C. Wilson, as pharmacist during World War II. Tooley, deferred from duty in the armed forces because of a foot injury, worked as a chemist for Cabot.

After the war he joined Southwestern Drug Company, where he traveled a territory including Pampa as salesman. The family lived in Pampa during that time, building their home in 1940.

In 1948, Tooley purchased Richard Drug and now, 20 years later, has sold to Beard effective October 1st.

Tooley said, "I promised Tom when he joined me that when I became 80 years old, I would sell him the drug store. I've kept my promise." Beard had been a partner in the firm prior to purchasing the drug store as sole owner.

The Tooleys (she's Dorothy), are the parents of two girls, Melinda Kay (now Mrs. Woody Stewart of Lubbock) and Bette (Now Mrs. Gregg Marnikusan of Los Angeles, Calif.) The Stewards have three children and the Marnikussians have five.

A past chairman of the board of First Methodist Church, Tooley has served on that board for 15 years. As he leaves Pampa, he is the first vice president of the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

Tooley has traveled thousands of miles in connection with his avid interest in and work on behalf of Lions, International. A member of the Pampa Noon Lions Club, in which he is a past Boss Lion, he has also served on the Lions District 27-I cabinet several times, holding each cabinet post with the exception of District Governor.

In recent years, Tooley has spent considerable time and effort in another field supported by Lions, eye banks.

He served as president of the Hi-Plains Eye Bank for two years, in 1965 and 1966, and is a past president of the South-Central Region of the Eye Bank Association of America, headquartered in Winston-Salem, N. C. He still serves on the board of directors of that organization.

Tooley served as Exalted Ruler of Pampa Lodge 1573, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks for two terms, 1951-1953 and, while in that post, originated the Gray County Welfare Index, an organization composed of representatives of all county welfare organizations which serves as coordinator of welfare activities in Gray County. He served that organization as president one year.

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce board of directors benefited from Tooley's services in 10 different years. He served on numerous CoC projects over the years.

He has been a director for the Pampa Chapter, American Red Cross, a director for the Gray County Cancer Association and is presently on the board of the Gray County unit, National Foundation, March of Dimes.

Tooley, who remembers attending meetings of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce during World War II when only he, "Drink" Altman and Joe Fischer were present, is currently president of the Top O' Texas Pharmaceutical Association. He was honored as a "Tip Top Texan" by the Pampa Daily News a number of years ago.

Countless residents of the area will recall receiving "Get Well" cards from him while they were recovering from some illness or operation in one of the two local hospitals. Tooley has sent "jillions" of the cards over the years.

Mrs. Tooley, an ardent supporter and member of the Altrusa Club, served on the board of the local Salvation Army unit for 10 years.

The couple will leave Pampa Sept. 28 for Gainesville, where their address will be Apartment No. 7, Normandy Arms Apartments, Old South Highway 77, Gainesville, Texas.

Sturgeon Hits Hard On Law And Order Theme
Ben Sturgeon, Pampa attorney, told the members of the South and West Amarillo Rotary Club Friday during their weekly meeting that America is beginning to experience a "grass roots" movement for a return to law and order and that all law-abiding citizens must get personally involved in this movement if the protection of the citizen and his property is to be achieved in the United States again.

In a speech titled "Not Guilty," Sturgeon declared, "There are many things that need to be done today to assist our law enforcement agencies, but these things will not be started until you stand up and say clearly—'Let it begin here with me.'"

Sturgeon continued "All law-abiding citizens must demand a return to law and order. The recent riots in Chicago, Cleveland, Dayton, are a disgrace and must be stopped. All participants in these acts of violence must be dealt with according to their acts—as criminals. Now is the time to begin the long road back to the point where our citizens and their property are safe from the threat of harm and destruction by criminals."

A graduate of Pampa High School, T.C.U., and the SMU Law School, Sturgeon is a practicing attorney in a Pampa law firm, returning to his home town after serving in the legal department of the U.S. Navy. Married and the father of two young boys, Sturgeon is active on the advisory boards of the Pampa Youth and Community Center, the Salvation Army, the district committee of the Boy Scouts, and his church.

The representative of the Gray County Bar to the State Convention this year, Sturgeon concluded his appeal for strict enforcement of laws "If destroying an individual's property is a legitimate exercise of free speech, then these rioters and looters are not reading the same Constitution I read. In the words of Abraham Lincoln, 'Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another; let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example, insuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built.'"

Canyon Girl On Hijacked Airplane
MIAMI (UPI)—A 16-year-old Texas girl, who was on the American Airlines jet hijacked Friday to Cuba, said she was luckier than most in getting good accommodations.

Terri Donovan of Canyon, Tex., traveling with her mother and brother, said, "We got a nice room. Everybody else said their rooms were buggy, but I guess we were lucky."

Miss Donovan lives at 22 Hunley St. in Canyon.

Va., commander of the 9th Division's 3rd Brigade, said the Communists were shooting at U.S. Air Force jet fighters-bombers as they pounded the area in support of ground forces. Groundfire hit a helicopter evacuating U.S. casualties, wounding a medic and another American.

"Any time you get them shooting at planes coming straight at them, you've got well-trained soldiers," Hun said, indicating that some of the enemy troops were North Vietnamese regulars.

Norum reported that the American troops were trying to surround the Communist force.

Elsewhere in the war, U.S. spokesmen disclosed that B52 Stratofortresses dumped more than 2 million pounds of bombs Friday on targets in North Vietnam behind 2,000 American Marines driving through the Demilitarized Zone to knock out infiltration routes and destroy weapons caches.

The Marine push began last Tuesday, and the U.S. Command said 110 North Vietnamese had been killed in the continuing drive which was reported to have uncovered 30 tons of Communist ammunition in two days.

In 1969, the "Black Friday" panic hit Wall Street as a result of an attempt by financiers Jay Gould and James Fisk to corner the gold market.

Final Action On Pampa's Budget Due

Final action on Pampa's $2,029,218 budget for fiscal 1968-69 is scheduled at Tuesday's regular meeting of the City Commission.

Another ordinance scheduled for second and final reading is one setting a tax rate of $1.72 per $100 property valuation. The rate is the same as the current year.

The budget figure for 1968-69 shows an increase of $122,924, due mainly to salary increases for city employees.

The new budget and tax rate ordinances become effective Oct. 1.

Second reading is scheduled for an ordinance covering sanitation control. This legislation also becomes effective Oct. 1.

A half dozen other routine items are shown on the commission's agenda, released Saturday by City Manager Charles Hill.

Two Fires At The Same Place Reported Yesterday

Firemen answered two alarms Saturday morning, 55 minutes apart, at the same residence at 637 N. Wells.

The first alarm came at 10:15 a.m. Firemen said a skillet of grease had caught on fire, causing heavy damage to the stove and a nearby refrigerator, and light damage to the rest of the house.

At 11:10 a.m. owner J. B. McNeill, which he was using to clean the stove, had caught on fire. Firemen reported additional damage to the house and said McNeill had suffered second degree burns on both hands as he attempted to carry the burning paint thinner container outside.

Bob Price In Salute To Area Firemen
Congressman Bob Price lauded firemen as a "special breed who must be prepared for something he hopes never happens" at the 69th annual convention of the Panhandle Fireman Association yesterday in Wellington.

An estimated 124 members of the association—the largest firemen association in the state—heard the Congressman from Pampa make the remarks at the all-day meeting, including Asst. Fire Chief Vernon Pirkle and fireman Austin Lavery of the Pampa Fire Department.

Price said firemen are "finally being recognized for their public service—the man who is always there when you need him."

He declared that pay raises were needed in many departments or otherwise "the skill, courage and dedication required in the profession cannot be maintained because such talent will be attracted to higher paying jobs."

He deplored, however, the "vicious cycle" in which "it seems that no sooner do we get a raise to pay than prices go up again," and declared the "only real answer is to stop the cycle and stabilize prices."

In 1950, Congress adopted the Internal Security Act, providing for registration of Communists.

Communist registration later was ruled unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Cigarettes, Money Taken In Burglary At Lefors Friday
Cigarettes and money with an estimated value of $51.50 were taken in the burglary of the pool hall in Lefors sometime Friday night, the Gray County Sheriff's office said Saturday.

Investigating officer C. L. Wallace said the burglary is thought to have occurred between 8:30-9 p.m. Friday. Entry was gained by breaking out a glass in a rest room after entering through a rear door, Deputy Wallace said.

The burglary was reported to the Sheriff's office by Lefors constable W. R. Combs.

The Family Lawyer

UNCLAIMED POT OF GOLD

Assets worth billions of dollars, unclaimed by their rightful owners, are being gobbled up instead by assorted government agencies. The process, known as "escheat," is gathering speed as officials become more keenly aware of this treasure trove within their reach.

How does it work? The key stone is the ancient legal doctrine that property, if left unclaimed too long, passes over to the government. As one court explained:

"When property has ceased to have an owner, it should be held for the benefit of the community."

This wealth accumulates in many forms: forgotten bank accounts, dividends on mislaid stocks, utility deposits that are never picked up, insurance proceeds that are never collected, legacies for missing heirs.

In recent years the amount of such unclaimed wealth has risen into billion-dollar figures. And an estimated one billion more is piling up every year.

As a result, all states have enacted escheat laws which, in varying degree, hasten a takeover by the government. Sometimes property is seized out right. Sometimes it is merely taken into protective custody, subject to being reclaimed by the owner if he turns up.

In any event, once the state has taken possession of an asset, getting it back is not easy.

source should be reported for federal income tax purposes.

Q—I have a selling job where I report to the office at the beginning and end of the day. My boss doesn't pay my driving expenses. Can I deduct them on my tax return?

A—If you have to use your car on business then the costs can be deducted. You may deduct the actual expense including depreciation, or if you prefer, a standard rate of 10 c a mile for the first 15,000 miles of business use and 7 cents a mile thereafter. Related parking fees and tolls may be deducted in addition to the standard mileage rate.

Q—I play the drums and from time to time I play with a combo at local dances. Do I have to pay tax on the money I make?

A—Yes, income from this claimant must bring himself strictly within the statutory requirements. Take this case:

After a man died, his family discovered that for many years he had failed to collect dividends on a certain stock. By the time of this discovery, the accumulated dividends had already been taken over by the state.

The family duly filed a claim for the money, but in vain. Under the local statute, a refund could be made only to the original owner of the stock—not to his heirs.

The best way to protect your assets from escheat is to be an "active" owner. That means keeping close tabs on investments, cashing checks promptly, giving notice of changes of address, leaving insurance policies where they will be found in case of death, having an up-to-date will.

Of course you personally might be willing, as a public-spirited citizen, to have your money go to the government. But if so, you might as well bring that about by an act of generosity, not just by neglect.

Income Tax Questions, Answers

Q—I just finished paying some big medical bills. What records should I keep in case I get audited?

A—You should have sufficient records to show that the expenses were deductible and that they were paid in the year for which the return was filed. Keep your cancelled check or receipts that will establish the amount of the expense, the date paid and the purpose.

Q—I worked on a farm this summer and the foreman said I will have to pay estimated tax on my wages. Is that right?

A—Farm wages are not subject to income tax withholding and you may have to file an estimated tax return to put you on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Q—I am due a refund but a question about my Social Security Number has held it up. If it comes after I move will the Post Office forward it?

A—The Post Office will forward the refund check to your new address providing you have filed a change of address card with them.

Q—I play the drums and from time to time I play with a combo at local dances. Do I have to pay tax on the money I make?

A—Yes, income from this

Nuclear Said Aid To

He referred to nuclear power as a "greatly expanded fuel source."

Nuclear Treaty Is Said A Possible Aid To Producers

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., has charged that language in the nuclear nonproliferation treaty could provide a "multi-million dollar governmental subsidy to oil and gas producers."

He referred to article V of the pact, which would require the nuclear powers to make available to the non-nuclear signatories any of the technical devices developed for peaceful uses of atomic energy.

"One such new technique already has been tested in New Mexico. Known as Project Gasbuggy, it involved stimulation of a natural gas field to greatly expand the amount of the fuel recoverable through present techniques."

Another which is being developed but not yet tested involves oil exploration techniques through the use of artificially induced seismicographic mappings of deep earth layers.

"Aiken said he was not yet sure whether the new controversy over the already beleaguered treaty would prompt him to vote against it in a scheduled Senate Foreign Relations Committee session today or later on the Senate floor."

"It may be we have reached the point in history where we should subjugate such economic aspects to the political implications of a treaty like this one," he told United Press International.

"It is just that I think the people have a right to know what it is they're voting on. This is not—as it has been billed simply an international agreement to stop the spread of nuclear nations and promise not to rain bombs on each other's helpless women and children.

New Policies
"It is also a commitment to broad new economic and commercial policies, and this fact should be considered."

Aiken's stand could prove the final blow to hopes for Senate ratification during this session of the treaty, which has been signed by 81 nations and which was widely hailed at the time of its conclusion as a giant step toward peace and, possibly, ultimate mutual disarmament.

Almost opposition to it existed when it was sent to the Senate last summer before the congressional recess for the national political conventions.

The Soviet-bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia, however, made some election-minded senators fearful of approving ratification at a time when it might be interpreted as part of an East-West detente.

FPC OK's April El Paso Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission has approved an April decision by one of its own examiners authorizing the El Paso Natural Gas Co. of El Paso, Tex., to spend $4.5 million on natural gas from a producer in the Kansas Hugoton gas field.

FPC examiner William L. Ellis issued a decision last April that involved one issue in a complex case decided by the FPC in 1967.

FPC OK's April El Paso Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission has approved an April decision by one of its own examiners authorizing the El Paso Natural Gas Co. of El Paso, Tex., to spend $4.5 million on natural gas from a producer in the Kansas Hugoton gas field.

FPC examiner William L. Ellis issued a decision last April that involved one issue in a complex case decided by the FPC in 1967.

Frank Warren, right, vice president Coastal Plains, Inc., Bearing Specialists Company, here presents Berry Smith, Panhandle District Manager, with the company's "Extra Effort Award" at a special dinner at the Villa Inn, Amarillo, recently. Company Honors Employees At Recent Amarillo Dinner Officers and directors of Bearing Specialists Company met in Amarillo recently to honor Berry Smith and the employees of Bearing Specialists Company in Amarillo, Borger, Dumas and Pampa.

W. R. Houghton, president of Bearing Specialists, came from the firm's home office in Dallas to preside at the dinner. Frank Warren, vice president and manager of Bearing Specialists Company presented Smith with the company's "Extra Effort Award" at the special dinner at the Villa Inn.

Bruce Spencer, vice president and general manager of Gifford-Hill Western and a director of Bearing Specialists Company, and Harold Banks, Gifford Hill Western vice president of sales, spoke of the importance of seeing things from the customers' viewpoint. They commended Smith and his fellow employees as folks who serve their customers, not only with quality products, but with technical knowledge and the desire to serve.

Houghton added, "Seldom in business does one find a man that gives as much 'Extra Effort' to his company, his people and his customers as does Berry Smith."

Smith became a part of Bearing Specialists Company when it acquired Seymour Bearing in 1966. He started his career with that company as a deliv-

EARTHQUAKE!!
So much has appeared in the news media concerning recent earthquakes in Iran, Turkey and other places over the globe that a natural topic of conversation has been... "Did we ever have any earthquakes here in the Panhandle, and if so, when?"... we wonder how many remember that sultry afternoon of July 30, 1925 when a tremor affected approximately 200,000 square miles of the Southwestern United States, and was reported from 70 different locations, 34 in Texas... the earth's movement was most violent on a line between Randall and Ochiltree Counties. The epicenter was at a point northeast of Amarillo.

Curtis Bishop recalled the event in 1948 and stated that practically no damage was caused by the quake, which varied in severity over the territory affected. Not all communities in its path were conscious of it.

There have been four tremors reported, according to Bishop, in Texas since Americanization of all of them affecting the Panhandle region. Scientists have found evidence of severe upheavals in the remote past, and Indian legends establish the earthquake which probably caused the formation of Caddo Lake as being in recent centuries Indian legends speak of a large river whose flow was diverted by the earth's upheaval, which presumably accounts for the numerous caverns in Texas and New Mexico if anyone has more recent data on this area... however, we doubt if any of these tremors were equal to some of the sonic booms we've experienced lately.

PIONEER COTTAGE HONOR ROLL

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Barton who recently moved from Pampa to the BARTON RANCH north of CANADIAN have presented the Pioneer Cottage with an antique coal-wood cook stove which was used in the kitchen at the ranch for many, many years... when dismantled it weighed just this side of a ton-and-a-half of solid iron and consisted of over 35 separate parts... the lower part of the stove containing the oven was too large to get through the doors and HUGH, MRS. BARTON, a teen-age friend, and I had to disengage the door frame to squeeze it through... it is a handsome addition to the Cottage and we look forward to the day when the ladies of the Pampa Genealogical & Historical Society will bake their delicious gingerbread on the stove, giving samples to guests visiting the museum. Many thanks to the BARTONS! DR. AND MRS. CHARLES BRAUCHLE have given several antiques to the Cottage this week including a washstand which has a place on top for the old fashioned wash bowl, a side tray for soap, a side metal bracket for a towel, and underneath a shelf for a chamber pot. The BRAUCHLE's also gave a bedspread dating back to the 1880's, two geography books ca. 1872 and 1877, and a fringed wash towel app. 80 years old... their many, many Pampa friends will certainly miss MARGE, CHARLES and the BOYS as they will soon be moving to Atholl, Massachusetts to make their home and where DR. will continue his dental practice... our special appreciation for these interesting items!

PIONEER FAMILY HISTORIES & PICTURES

Among the many interesting stories of Gray County Pioneers that the Survey Committee has received and which will appear in the published book is an excellent history of the C. L. UPHAM FAMILY written by a daughter, MRS. MAEEL UPHAM DICKEY OF Tulsa... C. L. UPHAM was born in Wisconsin and came to Texas in 1878, he was elected County and District Clerk of Gray County serving from 1911 to 1916... MRS. NONA NOEL COLE has written the sketch of the JESSEE GUY NOEL FAMILY who came to Gray County in 1906, the BARCLAY J. GEORGE FAMILY; and the IRVIN COLE FAMILY. BARCLAY GEORGE was a Union Veteran in the Civil War serving in the 13th Regiment, Co. B. Iowa volunteer infantry and enjoyed recalling the time MRS. ABRAHAM LINCOLN visited the hospital where he worked. Being of the Quaker faith, he didn't believe in bearing arms, and consequently faced greater danger than others as he, without weapon, picked up and cared for the wounded on the battlefield... BARCLAY GEORGE'S mother's maiden name was SALLY CARSON and she was a 1st cousin of the famed Indian scout, KIT CARSON... many thanks, MRS. COLE, for this data on these fine Pioneer folk, and the interesting sketch of FAIRVIEW SCHOOL which was located west of Pampa!

MRS. ALMA SEITZ of Miami a member of the TOTTY FAMILY, early day Gray Countians, has sent us some of the most interesting stories of her related families and neighbors that we have received... the SEITZ

FAMILY from their origin in Germany to their North Carolina migration in 1818... PINK SEITZ bought one of the old Fort Elliott houses and moved it to his Gray County farm where the family used it for a residence until 1913... ALMA SEITZ has the ability to recreate the delicious smells, sights, & tastes of by gone days when she tells how the JEFF SEITZ's made their own sausage; canned peas, beans, corn, made homemade kraut, hominy, & cottage cheese... and all the thousand and one facets of farm life in those days that are practically unknown to the present generation... after reading her marvelous stories of the delicious food prepared in their prairie kitchen I was reminded of the time my parents took me when a small boy about four years old to a big neighborhood gathering at Commissioner John White's home in the east part of Gray County... The outdoor tables were loaded with every kind of delectable dish you could imagine... I had never seen that much food at one time before our hostess got a good laugh when I said, "Mrs. White, this is the cake-iest and pie-iest place I ever saw!"

One rare item ALMA SEITZ has sent us in a photo copy of a check written to JEFF SEITZ on Jan. 7, 1914 by J.S. DENSON, Sheriff and Tax Collector of Gray County reimbursing MR. SEITZ for "an excess paid on taxes"... and the amount... thirty-five cents! How's that for an honest and conscientious public official! Other stories MRS. SEITZ has provided are of MRS. POLLY SAWYER PITTMAN who came to Gray County in 1911; several clippings from MRS. RICHARD FORD'S scrapbook... about C. M. GATLIN, a pioneer in the area between Laketon & Mobeetie, another fine sketch of ADAM MILLER RENNER who came to Gray Co. to visit F. M. TOTTY, father of Mrs. Seitz in 1896, stayed to make his home and lived to be past 90 yrs., and a story and picture of the I. E. HOWARD FAMILY who came to the Panhandle in 1905... Mr. Howard was the first man in Pct. 1 to terrace his land and was winner of the Centennial Farm and Home Demonstration contest in Gray County.

Report From Washington

By Rep. Bob Price

The House of Representatives last week approved the largest single appropriation bill ever to come before Congress. This was the $72.2 billion Department of Defense Appropriations Act for 1969.

This huge outlay was, however, $4.8 billion less than what the President had requested in his budget proposal. The Appropriations Committee had made the reductions on a selective basis. Rep. George H. Mahon, Chairman of the Committee supported the bill and contended that the cutbacks didn't represent any backing down or a posture of appeasement. Rather, he said, "This bill represents power, this bill represents strength, and this bill represents the view, in my opinion, of the great majority of the American people; that Communism remains a serious threat, that we must keep our guard, and that we will not subscribe to policies of appeasement or weakness." Those were Mahon's words on the House floor.

The ranking minority member of the Armed Services Committee, Rep. William A. Bates, pointed out in the debate that there undoubtedly will be a large supplemental appropriations bill early next year and that some of the savings in the Defense bill had been achieved through a stretch-out of various programs and could result in an over-all increase in the unit cost of items such as aircraft and helicopters.

Rep. Glenard P. Lipscomb, ranking Republican on the Appropriations Subcommittee on Armed Services, supported Mahon's position that the cuts would not weaken our defense posture. He also pointed out the "explosive expansion" of Russia as a maritime power. Soviet naval power now includes over 100 destroyers and about 20 cruisers and during 1967, the Soviets added a new class of guided missile cruiser and their first helicopter carrier. They are rapidly expanding their merchant marine of 1,400 ships and increasing their capabilities for specialized operations to include oceanographic research and intelligence gathering.

But the main USSR naval threat is their formidable submarine fleet. They are the only country to mass-produce submarines on a wartime basis in times of so-called peace. In terms of numbers of operation al submarines, the US has fewer than the Soviet Union. At least 250 of their approximately 370 subs are "attack" versions and about 45 of these are reportedly nuclear powered. Our 41 Polaris missile-carrying subs would be prime targets for the giant Soviet submarine force.

According to Lipscomb, the list of sophisticated superior Soviet weapons available to oppose our general purpose forces in the field continues to grow. An additional reason for this is that in Vietnam we have uncovered to the Soviets many of our own developments. In addition to the Communist-dominated regimes of Eastern Europe, at least 29 countries in Asia and Africa, and including Cuba, are currently reported to have Soviet manufactured military equipment. It's clear that Soviet arms figure heavily in most trouble spots and combat areas throughout the world. All of us want peace, but it is wishful thinking to believe that the Soviet Union has peaceful intentions when Communist Party Chief Brezhnev says, as he did recently, that the Communist Party of the Soviet Union is "waging an active struggle to strengthen the unity of the Socialist community and the world Communist movement." In that speech, Brezhnev among other things, pledged to continue to render to Vietnam the necessary aid and also said: "Our Arab friends can be assured that we will continue to render them all the necessary aid and support." So in the face of these stark realities and the apparently unchanged goal of the Soviet Union to wipe freedom from the face of the earth, we cannot do less than continue US defense efforts at the highest possible level and appropriate the funds necessary to maintain US military superiority.

Selective Service Answers

EDITOR'S NOTE — Below are questions now being asked at draft boards. The answers are by Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, State Selective Service Director, 209 W. 9th St., Austin, Texas 78701. He will welcome your questions.

Q—What are the various reasons for classification in I-Y?
A—There are too many to enumerate. There are physical, mental, and sometimes, moral reasons. Men so classified are deemed qualified for military service in time of war or national emergency declared by Congress.

Q—I'm 27 years old. Earlier, I had my liability extended to age 35. Is there a chance of my being inducted?
A—If more men are needed, you may be called. At present, with the exception of physicians and those declared delinquent, only men who have not reached age 26 are being ordered for induction.

Q—When must my appeal be forwarded by my local board to the appeal board?
A—Your file must be sent to the appeal board no later than five days after expiration of the period you were given to request appeal.

Q—I went to college two years and then my board deferred me in II-A for two years while in the Peace Corps. Now I want to finish college. Am I still eligible for I-S deferment?
A—Yes, provided you are still under 24 years of age. A man re-entering school to work on a baccalaureate degree who has been classified in either II-A or IV-D since his last full-time attendance must not be considered to have failed to meet the requirements pertaining to "satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction." You are eligible until you get the degree, fail in your full-time course, or reach age 24, whichever occurs first.

Everything Is Going Right For Nixon, Wrong For Humphrey

Campaign '68
By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Everything appears to be falling into place for Richard M. Nixon in the early weeks of the presidential campaign and to be propelling him toward victory, possibly along landslide lines.

Everything seems to have gone wrong for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who desperately needs to turn things around quickly and to generate enthusiasm instead of defeatism among his Democratic troops.

The voters will elect a new president to succeed President Johnson Nov. 5. They also will elect all 435 members of the House of Representatives, 34 of the 100 U.S. senators, 21 of the 50 state governors and hundreds of other state and local officials.

Assessments by UPI state capital reporters indicate that, if the election were held now, Nixon would carry 33 states with 281 electoral votes. Humphrey would carry only 4 states and the District of Columbia with 28 electoral votes. The winner needs 270.

Wallace Gains Support
The survey indicates that George C. Wallace as the candidate of the American Independent party is ahead in 7 states with 64 electoral votes.

Wallace appears to be hurting Humphrey to the point that the vice president is rated third in six states. He is damaging both major party candidates in fact — Nixon especially in the South and Humphrey among blue collar workers in northern industrial areas.

The current reading gives Nixon the edge over Humphrey, in varying degrees, in all of the seven states with more than 20 electoral votes apiece. With a combined electoral vote of 210, these states are New York, Illinois, Texas and California.

Nixon faced substantial but divided opposition at the Republican National Convention from critics who viewed him as a loser. Yet he won the nomination on the first ballot and emerged as the leader of a relatively unified and well-financed party.

The turbulent Democratic convention gave Humphrey a rocky start, even though he won an even easier victory on the first ballot. Then he found himself with a feeble party organization, short of money in many states, and badly scarred by the feuds created by the contest over the presidential nomination and by convention quarrels.

Johnson Tag Unpopular
Humphrey also is identified with the Johnson administration at a time when its popularity is rated particularly low. And he is floundering in his efforts to establish himself as his own man.

With the election less than seven weeks away, Humphrey could use more time to repair the party structure and to allow wounds to heal. Party officials fixed a late date for the convention last winter when they assumed that President Johnson would be renominated. Wallace remains a major unknown in the election outlook.

There was summer speculation that support would shrink for the Alabama segregationist after the major parties nominated their candidates. There is no support yet for this speculation.

The Gallup Poll last week gave Wallace 19 per cent of the vote, up one point from late August.

The UPI survey put Wallace in front in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina — although South Carolina was described as close to a three-way tossup.

Gets Third Rating
Humphrey was rated third, behind both Nixon and Wallace in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee, and possibly Louisiana and Wyoming.

The vice president was given a slight edge in his home state of Minnesota and a more comfortable lead in Maine, the home state of his running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie. He also was reported in front in Rhode Island, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

States listed as tossups in the UPI rundown were Connecticut, Florida, Hawaii, Massachusetts, Tennessee (between Nixon and Wallace) and Virginia. These states cast 63 electoral votes.

All other states were listed in the Nixon column by margins ranging from a slight edge in Delaware, Maryland and Missouri to certain victory in states like Nebraska and Kansas.

GOP Needs Landslide
The GOP needs 31 more seats to control the House and 13 more, plus the tie-breaking vote of a vice president, to control the Senate. Preliminary evidence indicates that control of the Senate is beyond the reach of the Republicans, and that it would take a national landslide to give them a majority in the House.

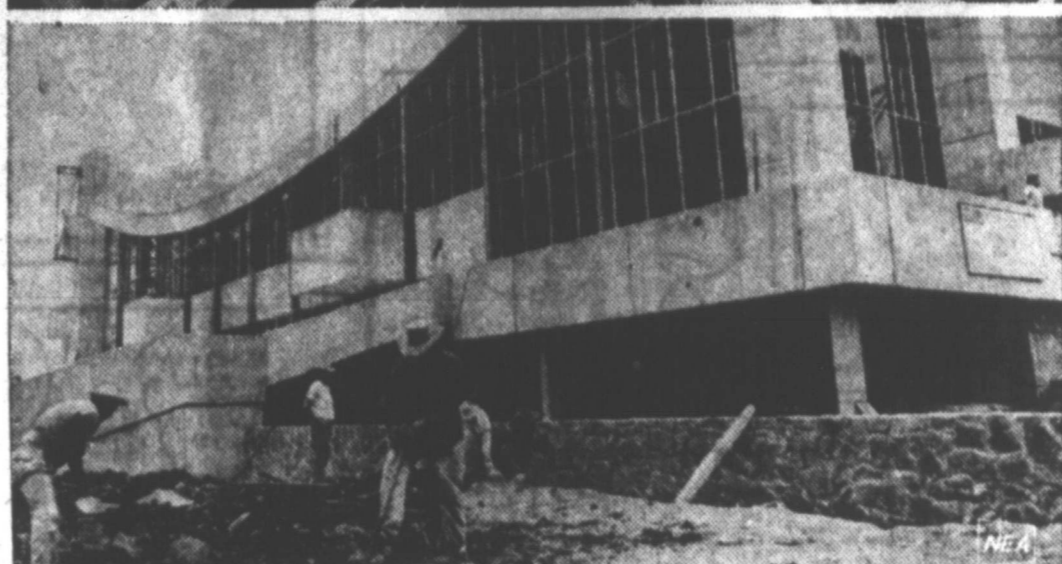

States in which the GOP is given a chance to gain more than one House seat include New Jersey, Colorado, Florida, Michigan, Pennsylvania and North Carolina. It also could lose two in Georgia.

Of the 34 Senate seats at stake, the Democrats now hold 23 and the Republicans 11.

The most vulnerable Democratic Senate seats at stake are in Arizona, Alaska, Florida, Idaho, Maryland, Missouri, Ohio, Oklahoma and South Dakota. In Arizona, former Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, the 1964 presidential nominee, is the GOP candidate favored to win the seat held by retiring Democratic Sen. Carl Hayden.

In 1965, President Eisenhower suffered a heart attack while vacationing in Denver, Colo.

Manuscript By Kennedy Is Purchased

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 25,000-word manuscript about the Cuban missile crisis by the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has been purchased for a record price of at least $1 million—about $40 a word.

The purchase was announced jointly last week by Henry E. Bowes, president of McCall's Corp., which bought worldwide rights to the manuscript, and Theodore C. Sorensen, representing the Kennedy estate.

Bowes told a news conference the $1 million was an advance. He said the ultimate payment for the manuscript would depend on disposition of the subsidiary rights.

The McCall executive said the manuscript will be published in the November issue of McCall's magazine, which goes on sale Oct. 22, six years after the crisis began.

Bowes said the manuscript, written by Kennedy about a year ago, is in rough form except for some minor editing by Sorensen.

"I think he (Kennedy) intended it for much later publication," Bowes said. "He makes some conclusions in it, and believe it was his intention that they should primarily be read by a President in power."

In 1964, Babe Ruth made his last appearance as a regular player with the New York Yankees.

Red Cross News

By LIBBY SHOTWELL
Executive Secretary ARC
We hope that the parade for the United Fund was appreciated as much as our office enjoyed it! When we were told that we should get three uniformed persons to ride in our float, we began to wonder what program we should promote. The Hospital Volunteers with their pretty blue uniforms, the Water Safety Instructors in their white sweat shirts with red letters, or the First Aid team. We came up with the part of Red cross that we know best — the link between the home and the serviceman. When we called Donald Dunn, who was home on 30-day leave, and asked him if he would ride in our float, he agreed! We asked another young serviceman, Lawrence Russell, who was home also on his 30-day leave to ride in our float, and again he said, he would be glad to do so. Both of these boys are home from Vietnam and we were proud to have them represent us. Then, we decided that we needed a nurse to complete the idea so since Mrs. R. O. Linville was on our Red Cross board, we called her and she was glad to help also. Thanks to all of you for making our float so meaningful in our UF parade!

The Mission of the Red Cross is the American Red Cross is the instrument chosen by the Congress of the US to help carry out the obligations assumed by the US under certain international treaties known as the Geneva or RC Conventions. Specifically its Congressional Charter imposes on the American Red Cross the duties to act as the medium of voluntary relief and communication between the American people and their armed forces, and to carry on a system of national and international relief to prevent and mitigate suffering caused by disasters. All of the activities of the American Red Cross and its chapters support these duties.
Nationally and locally the American Red Cross is governed by volunteers, most duties are performed by volunteers and financed by voluntary contributions.

Mrs. Frank Yealy and Ted Gikas, with Mrs. Libby Shotwell, attended the CST meeting at Dumas in the new Koni Kai Motel Tuesday morning. Mrs. Jo Cox, chapter executive secretary of Dumas, chaired the meeting and introduced each chapter present.
Jack Hopkins, Field Director of the American Red Cross, spoke to the group at the morning session. Hopkins reminded the Red Cross executive secretaries and volunteers that he and his secretary could be counted on their staff. That each executive secretary was a Service Officer and that he was in Waco to interpret the VA rules for us and to assist us with all cases that came before the Red Cross. Hopkins was so effective a speaker that the group voted to invite him to come to the next meeting in January at Amarillo Chapter House and continue the VA discussion for Red Cross workers. Dinner was served around the pool. Mrs. Leoti Deaton, Volunteer Field Consultant from Wichita Falls, spoke to the group during the afternoon session on Hospital Volunteer work. She stressed the wearing of the new blue uniform and showed the group how the hat was folded into a pill box shape. Each chapter reported the number of ditty bags they would pack and mail to San Francisco by Oct. 15. Each chapter was asked to report to their own chapters the need of filling Friendship boxes, chests and Friendship bags through the schools.

Business 'Games' Are Made Possible Through Computer

Thirty to eight points
By MIKE WESTER
LUBBOCK (UPI) — Businessmen of tomorrow can now practice success or failure of their decisions long before they put up their money.
The student of business is introduced in Texas Tech College classrooms to business "games," elaborate computer-based decision-making situations which simulate profits and losses, upward and downward trends and the frustrations and problems which must be resolved to compete successfully in business.

The latest to be formulated is "Texas Technological College business decision Game 1," by marketing and management professor Harry H. Elwell Jr., nationally recognized authority on business simulation. Elwell developed the game through state-supported research.

Available First Time
The published game is available for use for the first time this fall. It can be used either in the classroom or as a research tool by industry.

Elwell's work compiles and develops the better aspects of other simulations in existence, providing an up-to-date top management decision game.

Texas Tech Game 1 basically is oriented to the overall decision problems of top level management. It contains a mathematical model which simulates an industry of up to nine firms, each offering one to three products to a wide-range market.

The market is not designed to simulate any specific or existing situation. Instead it represents a group of businesses with economic characteristics which are developed and discovered by participants as play progresses.

Knowledge Applied
Participants make decisions by applying basic analytical tools used in accounting, finance, marketing and production management. The game is designed to emphasize the interrelationship of pricing, marketing research and development, design and styling, and production cost decisions as these affect inventory levels, production capacity, plant investment, overtime costs, administrative charges and cash flow.

In the game, the computer is used as a tool—not a decision-maker.
"It must be kept in mind," says Elwell, "that the executive must still choose which decision actually is the best one."

LSU Tops Aggies, 13-12

By MIKEL MILLER
BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Scrambling quarterback Freddie Haynes led Louisiana State to a 13-12 victory over Southwest Conference champs Texas A&M Saturday night, snapping the Aggies win streak at seven games.

The Tigers scored one touchdown in the fourth period with 7:47 left and converted the extra point to sew up the victory for scoring their first touchdown with only three minutes left in the second period.

The Aggies, who appeared on their way to their first victory over LSU since 1956, did all their scoring in the first half on a touchdown, safety and a field goal.

Haynes pitched out to splitback Jim West on the three-yard line to wrap up the win. The play followed four straight rushes by tailback Tommy Allen, who led LSU in rushing with 54 yards.

Splitback Frank Matte scored LSU's first touchdown, capping a 64-yard drive in the second quarter with a three-yard plunge. The drive was engineered by third string quarterback Jimmy Gilbert who took over from Haynes on the 34. The win for 1967's Sugar Bowl champions came before a crowd of 68,000.

Edd Hargett sparked the Aggies to their halftime lead and finished the game with 12 of 28 passes completed for a total of 22 yards.

Hargett's six-yard pass to wingback Bob Long in the first quarter put the Aggies ahead 9-0 after they scored a safety on a bad snap from center which grazed the fingertips of LSU punter Eddie Ray.

The kicking of Aggie Steve O'Neal was a big factor in preventing LSU from scoring until 3:08 of the second quarter. O'Neal had nine punts for an average of 47.4 yards, with one punt traveling 56 yards. The Tigers penetrated Aggie territory only three times in the entire first half.

Texas Tech In 10-10 Tie With Cincinnati

By MIKE WESTER
LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Quarterback Greg Cook and end Jim O'Brien connected on a 53-yard touchdown pass with less than four minutes left Saturday night to bring Cincinnati back to a surprising 10-10 tie with favored Texas Tech.

Tech, which scored early in the second quarter on a two-yard plunge by quarterback Joe Matulich, had led all the way until Cook combined with O'Brien for the tying tally. O'Brien also added the extra point which tied the game, and booted a second-quarter 47-yard field goal. Kenny Vinyard added the Raider extra point and kicked a second period 23-yard field goal.

O'Brien passed on two other field goal attempts, once in the second quarter from the Cincinnati 48 yardline and again in the third quarter from the 12. Vinyard also failed to boot a three-pointer on a fourth-down attempt from Tech's 48 yardline with 70 seconds left in the game.

The host Red Raiders won the toss and elected to kickoff. After holding Cincinnati to four downs, including a punt, Tech took possession of the ball at the Bearcat 12 after safety Larry Alford returned the punt 52 yards.

However, it took the Raiders five plays to punch on it for the touchdown, with Matulich carrying over from the two. Vinyard's extra point kick was good.

Cincinnati narrowed the margin with 11:24 left in the first half when O'Brien booted his 47-yard three-pointer after the Bearcats had gained the ball on the Texas Tech 42 following a short fourth-down punt.

Five plays later, after the Bearcat drive had stalled on the Tech 30, O'Brien put his foot to the ball and tied a school field goal record for distance.

Vinyard gave Tech its seven-point margin again with 7:12 remaining before half with a 23-yard field goal.

Oklahoma State Falls To Arkansas By 32-15

By CHARLES RICHARDS
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Arkansas slept for almost three quarters Saturday night, then erupted in a volley of touchdowns that swept Oklahoma State under, 32-15, behind the leadership of sophomore quarterback Bill Montgomery and the flashing running of tailback Bill Burnett.

Senior tailback David Dickey, No. 2 scorer in the nation last year, capped the first two TDs with scoring runs on one and six yards that gave him the Razorback school scoring record with 26 touchdowns.

Burnett scored the next one with four minutes left in the game, finishing a 70-yard drive with an 11-yard scamper around right end. Gary Adams' interception on the Arkansas 6 gave the Razorbacks the ball again with two minutes to go and they moved it in for a final touchdown in six plays, with tailback Russell Cody putting on the finishing touches with a 4-yard run. OSU's Cowboys took a 15-3 halftime lead on the strength of quarterback Ronnie Johnson's two touchdowns — of four yards to end Jerry Philpott in the first quarter and nine yards to wingback Terry Brown in the second stanza.

Bob White's 38-yard field goal with nine seconds to go in the first quarter was the Razorback's only mark on the scoreboard until Montgomery ignited the second half attack, beginning with 5:21 left in the third quarter.

Montgomery hit fullback Bruce Maxwell for 28 yards in the Cowboy 38 then Burnett carried six consecutive times hurdling and fighting his way for 23 yards and two first downs. Montgomery carried it to the one on an option play and then gave it to Dickey for the touchdown.

With 11:33 in the game, Cowboy Gary Goodwin fumbled and going first 8 yards with a pass

Rice, Washington In Wild, 35-35, Tie Game

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Ron Volbrecht kicked a 51-yard field goal on the last play of the game Saturday to give Washington a 35-35 tie with Rice in the wildest and highest scoring game seen in Husky Stadium since 1956.

It was Volbrecht's second field goal in the game. He had given Washington a 17-14 half time lead with a 40-yard boot on the last play of the second period.

Volbrecht's toe offset the heroics of Robby Shelton. Rice's talented 168-pound quarterback, who passed for two touchdowns, scored another and set up a fourth period score with a 27-yard run. Shelton hit end Larry Davis for two touchdowns in the third period, one going for 39 yards and the other 30.

He scored himself on a four-yard run in the second period and set up Tony Conley's second touchdown with his fourth period scamper. Conley scored the first touchdown of the game with a two-yard plunge over right tackle in the first period.

The Huskies came back with a 68-yard drive climaxed by Eo Cornell's one-yard dive over left tackle. Shelton then put Rice ahead again and Washington halfback Harvey Blanks tied it again with a 22-yard scoring dash before Volbrecht's first field goal.

The fireworks continue in the second half with Shelton's two touchdown passes, the 49-yard scoring drive by Washington, with the touchdown coming on a 14-yard run by Jim Cope, and Washington making good on a two-point conversion on a pass by Jerry Kaloper to Carl Wojciechowski.

Washington was down 35-25 midway in the fourth period when the Huskies moved 73 yards in eight plays to narrow the gap to 35-28.

That set it up for Volbrecht's grand finale. Montgomery completed 16 of 31 passes for 157 yards in the game and Burnett was the game's leading rusher with 81 in 20 carries. Johnson completed 11 of 14 for 133 yards, but had three intercepted.

By DAVID ANDERSON
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Texas and the University of Houston traded touchdowns and mistakes Saturday night to fight to a 20-20 tie, with the underdog Cougars missing two chances to win the game in the final minutes.

Houston sophomore Jerry Leiwke missed a 19-yard field goal with 10:28 left and with 3:34 left, after driving 45 yards to the Texas one-yard-line, the Cougars were unable to score.

Houston missed yet another scoring chance earlier in the game by fumbling a punt and Texas lost its final chance for a score when the Cougars intercepted a desperation pass.

Workhorse senior Paul Gipson scored all three of the Houston touchdowns in runs of one, 56, and five yards. Leiwke kicked the first two extra points but the third, which would have won the ball game, was wide.

Texas' speedy fullback Chris Gilbert scored twice for Texas on runs of 57 and eight yards. Fullback Ted Koy posted the other touchdown with a 4-yard plunge.

Like Leiwke, Texas kicker Rob Layne made the first two extra points but failed on the third. Houston scored the first time it got the ball, driving 59 yards with Gipson plunging into the middle of the line from the one.

Texas came back only a minute and eight seconds later. Gilbert broke through the left side of the line, broke one tackle, electrified the capacity crowd of 66,397 by going 57 yards for the score.

In the third period Gilbert took a pitchout in from eight yards out after Koy set it up with a 40-yard run on another pitchout.

Again the lead was short-lived. Only 18 seconds later, Gipson took a pitchout from quarterback Ken Bailey and a zipped 56 yards to tie it 14-14.

Three minutes later Houston took the lead briefly when end Royce Berry intercepted a pass by Bill Bradley and returned it 20 yards to the Texas 20. Gipson again took the ball the last five yards for the score.

It was Houston's turn to err as the fourth quarter started. Texas Tackle Bill Atesis recovered a Houston fumble that set up the final Longhorn touchdown.

Indiana Frustrates Baylor Bears, 40-36

ELOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI)—Quarterback Harry Gonso rolled around end and scored with 18 seconds remaining as Indiana came from behind Saturday to stop Baylor, 40-36 in a college football opener for both teams.

The Hoosiers, Big Ten champions and the loop's Rose Bowl representative last season, came from behind four times to stop the Bears on Gonso's rollout from the 3-yard line.

The score capped an 80-yard drive after Baylor had taken a 36-34 lead on a 30-yard field goal by Terry Cozy with 1:15 to play.

The Hoosiers, playing before a record opening day crowd of 44,362 fans, returned the ensuing kickoff to their own 20 and three plays later Gonso donned his Cinderella slippers as he did often last season and pitched a 50-yard pass to flanker Jade Butcher at the Baylor 23. Two plays later sophomore Rick Thompson toted the ball 15 yards to the three and set up Gonso's winning touchdown.

Thompson opened the Indiana scoring on a four-yard run in the first period, but Baylor came back to lead 14-6 on a pair of touchdowns. End Mark Lewis recovered a fumble by Baylor's Pinky Palmer in the end zone for a score and Erian Blessing ran five yards for another.

Then the Hoosiers, who were 9-2 last season, scored on a one-yard run by Bob Pernel and later on Thompson's 82-yard scamper to take a 20-14 halftime lead.

Baylor regained the lead on Alvin Flynn's 17-yard pass to Jerry Smith but Gonso passed to Butcher for an 11-yard touchdown and Indiana led by seven. Palmer brought Baylor to within one, 28-27, on a 3-yard run but the kick failed.

Then Palmer put the Bears, 1-8-1 last year, ahead with an 8-yard scoring run with 6:40 left. Butcher caught his second scoring pass of the game from Gonso, a 14-yarder, with 4:47 to play and Indiana led 34-33, setting the stage for the Cozy field goal and the Gonso touchdown.

Palmer led Baylor's rushing with 79 yards in eight carries. Gene Rogers carried seven times for 42 yards.

Little-Known Pros Climb Past The Hills In PGA Team Championship

By ED FITTE
UPI Sports Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Four of the golf tour's little known pros climbed past the hills of Michigan and into the third round of the $200,000 PGA Team Championships Saturday when Dale Douglas-Hale Brown and Rives McBee-Monty Kaser fired 17-under-par 198s for 54 holes.

Douglas and Irwin made the biggest jump with their seven-under-par 32-33-65 over the Club par 36-36-72 layout, while McBee and Kaser shot a 33-34-67 to move to the fore in search of the $40,000 first prize money.

Dave and Mike Hill, the brother combine which had led the rich tourney for the first two days with lazing sub-par rounds, faltered badly in the wind Saturday and had 17 pars and one bogey enroute to a 37-36-73 that dropped them into a three-way tie for fifth place at 15-under-par 200.

The pressure was tremendous on the leaders, with two teams — Tommy Aaron-Charles Coody and Tom Weiskopf-Dick Sikes — bracketed just one stroke back at 199, and with Bobby Nichols-George Archer and Billy Casper-Gay Brewer bunched at 200 with the Hills.

West Texas In 26-0 Win Over Wichita State

CANYON, Tex. (UPI)—Duane Thomas broke 77 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter Saturday night that opened the gates and sent West Texas State on its way to a 26-0 victory over Wichita State.

Thomas carried 19 times for 134 yards and his speedy running back partner Eugene "Mercury" Morris contributed 129 yards in 18 carries to the dominating West Texas rushing attack.

Thomas' run was the only score in the first half, but Morris added a 27-yard score and Dick Flynn scored on an 18-yard pass from quarterback Roy Winters in the second half.

Matis Garza contributed a 44-yard field goal and West Texas picked up a safety when Wichita quarterback Bill Lolla was tackled in the end zone in the final period.

Wichita could mount little in the way of either a passing or running attack, gaining less than 100 yards by either route.

Notre Dame Blasts OU ,45-21

By ED SAINSBURY
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Notre Dame spotted the Oklahoma Sooners a one touchdown lead Saturday and then spurred to a 45-21 victory on the golden passing combination of Terry Hanratty to Jim Seymour and three touchdown plunges by Bob Gladieux.

The Irish defense, which Coach Ara Parseghian feared would be porous, earned equal honors with the offense.

The defense gave up two touchdowns to the Sooners in the first 15 minutes on a 72-yard pass from Bob Warmack to Eddie Hinton and a 15-yard pass play from Warmack to Steve Zabel.

But then the Sooners made only one first down and completed only two of 10 passes until less than five minutes remained in the game when they made six first downs and Warmack hit Zabel for 11 yards and Oklahoma's last touchdown.

Meanwhile the Irish put on a flashy offensive show. Gladieux scored three times on one-yard plunges. Hanratty hit Seymour on a 10-yard scoring flip and then wiped out the Irish deficit with a brilliant passing show in which he completed seven of nine throws to take Notre Dame on a 76-yard march in 56 seconds, culminating in seven-yard scoring pitch to Seymour for a 21-14 halftime lead.

In the second half, the Irish marched 54 yards in 10 rushing plays for a touchdown, then interspersed rushing and passing for a 68-yard scoring push.

The final Notre Dame points came on a 31-yard field goal by Scott Hempel, who also converted after every Irish touchdown, and a seven-yard scoring run by Chuck Landolfi.

The Irish were nine-point favorites going into the game and, after their defensive lapses in the first minutes, they made the oddsmakers look good. Hanratty completed 18 of 27 passes for 202 yards before he rode the bench for the final quarter and Seymour caught nine throws for 101 yards. He became Notre Dame's leading receiver in touchdowns with 14. The Irish did not punt in the game.

Notre Dame amassed 357 yards on the ground and held the Sooners to 85 while the Irish picked up 214 yards, passing against 177 for their opponents.

The only fault for Notre Dame was that two of Hanratty's passes were intercepted, breaking up scoring drives.

Georgia Tech Topples TCU

By DAVID M. MOFFIT
UPI Sports Writer
ATLANTA (UPI)—Flanker Tommy Chapman made a diving catch in the end zone for a second period touchdown after it appeared quarterback Larry Good was tapped Saturday and Georgia Tech then went on defense to beat Texas Christian 17-7.

The favored Yellow Jackets were trailing 7 to 3 when Good, who completed 18 of 25 passes for 213 yards, climaxed a 72-yard march with a shot deep into the end zone which Chapman caught for the go-ahead score.

Georgia Tech padded its score with 31 seconds left to play when Denicis James swept left end from two yards out after Texas Christian had given up the ball on its own 14-yard line when a fourth down and four effort lost seven yards.

Georgia Tech drew first blood in the opening period when Johnny Duncan kicked a 21-yard field goal. The Yellow Jackets had marched 55 yards to the TCU four after recovering a fumble but called on Duncan for the field goal after its offense bogged down.

Texas Christian's only offense was the running of Norman Bullach and Ross Montgomery, a pair of 220-pound speedsters. The two drove the Horned Frogs on an 87-yard march following Duncan's field goal with quarterback Dan Carter going the final three yards for the touchdown that put Texas Christian ahead for the only time, with 2:44 having expired in the second period.

Wayne Merritt kicked the extra point to wind up the scoring for TCU. Merritt had a chance to tie it midway through the final period, but he was short on a 43-yard field goal attempt.

Bullach gained 97 yards rushing and Montgomery was close behind with 89.

The bride's mother was dressed in a beige lace A-line dress and brown accessories. Mrs. Swanson wore a pale pink chiffon and lace dress with matching chiffon and lace stole. Both wore glabella corsages.

"Charlotte Emerson Brown, the first president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, once stated, 'That was a happy thought in the organization that made its constitution and charter international,'" Mrs. Lawson said.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After being a widow for 4 years, I married George, a divorced man whose daughter is getting married in Syracuse next month.

I suggested that we go to Syracuse a day or two early as I have relatives there. It was then that George informed me that I was not invited to the wedding. I was furious. I took it for granted that as his wife I would be welcome at his daughter's wedding.

George said I could make the trip with him, but while he attended the wedding and reception, I could visit with my relatives. I told George that I was a lady and refused to be hidden away. All his people know that he has remarried. The only reason he has ever given me for his divorce was that he and his wife "didn't get along." Do you suppose that he's afraid if I go to the wedding I'll find out something he doesn't want me to know?

He says, "I can't imagine why you would even want to be there with my former in-laws and ex-wife present."

Please advise me as I am very unhappy over this, and am considering leaving him.

LEFT OUT LADY DEAR LEFT OUT: A "lady" goes only where she is invited. The day belongs to George's daughter, and if she had wanted you at her wedding, she'd have invited you. George should go alone. Trust his judgment.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and have known Betty since kindergarten. She is 17. We were neighbors, but last year Betty moved away. She keeps phoning me and we have long conversations. She always talks about boys and sex, and she's seemed to use very vulgar language. She kept wanting to get together, but I always made up excuses.

Finally Betty suggested she pick me up (she drives) and we go to visit a former teacher who is ailing. I agreed, as I liked this teacher. When I saw how hard and cheap Betty looked, I was shocked. Now I know I don't want to associate with her anymore, so when she calls, I ask my mother to say I'm out. My mother did this several times, but now she says getting rid of Betty is MY problem and she refuses to lie for me anymore. How can I end this friendship without hurting Betty?

SOFT DEAR SOFT: Answer the telephone and tell Betty you are too busy to talk to her more than a few minutes. And when she suggests getting together, be unavailable. I can't guarantee that you won't "hurt" Betty in the beginning, but I promise you'll be rid of her in the end.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman 31 years old and I have started keeping company with a man about my own age. It looks like it might become serious. (Marriage, I mean.)

Abby I would like to know if I am obliged to tell him that I cannot have any children due to two operations (removal of one ovary and half the other.) I had in the last 2 years? Or should I keep silent and maybe tell him after we are married? Thank you.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Tell him.

DEAR ABBY: Is it proper for a lady to wear an orchid corsage to her husband's funeral, I saw this with my own eyes and would sure like to have your opinion.

SULPHUR, LA. DEAR SULPHUR: If it made the lady feel better, then I would say it was "proper."

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK UPI Education Specialist

A high school program serves as the completion of a formal education for many students. An increasing number will attend colleges or participate in other advanced training. The school's purposes are twofold in that it must meet the present needs of students as well as prepare them to meet their future desires and obligations.

The parent's role is extremely difficult in working with teenagers. This age child needs guidance, but may not want it. Cooperation between school and parents is most important. Unfortunately communication seems to decline at this level.

Build On Basics In the academic areas, the elementary school is concerned with basic skills in arithmetic, reading, etc. The high school should build upon these skills with increasing specialization. The teenage student has developed abilities which allow him to approach experiences in depth. The student who is weak in fundamental skills will probably benefit from special individual instruction.

The health and social needs of a high school student are many. He should develop good health practices and understand the needs of his growing body. Physical activity, proper sleep, medical and dental exams, good eating habits, etc., should be regular activities. Social adjustment is an area of concern. The school and parent should combine their efforts in supplying many satisfying and healthy experiences. A student should develop the skills which will help him to earn a living. He needs guidance to make the best use of his abilities.

Develop Leisure Activities The development of cultural interests is important in connection with the increase of leisure time. Probably the best approach is through the constructive use of leisure time as a youth. As one grows to adulthood, he will build upon these early activities.

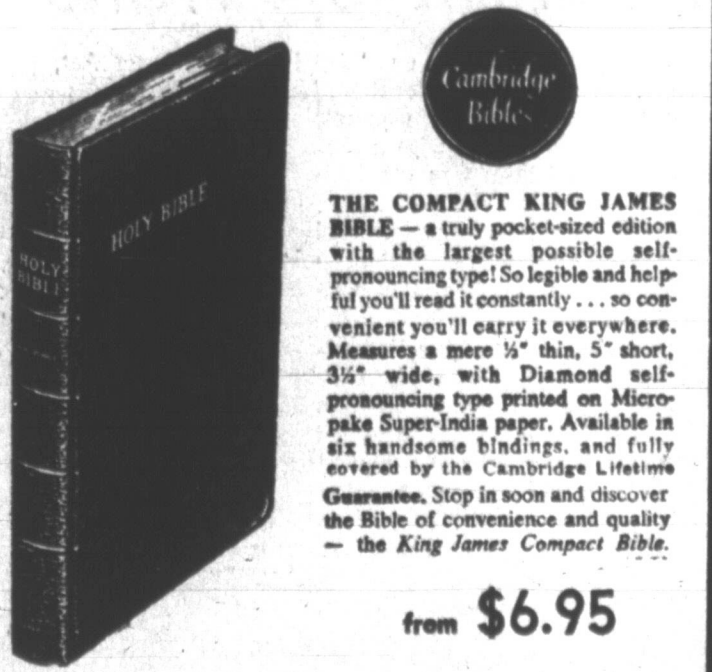

All of these aims are related in terms of preparing individuals to be useful participants in our democratic way of life. They must have respect and appreciation for other individuals. They should accept responsibility for community welfare.

As you can see, the high school program has the aim of preparing youth to become well adjusted responsible adults. Although many students are stimulated to participate in further educational programs, many will proceed directly into jobs. The successful accomplishment of all these aims is dependent upon the combined efforts of the school and parents.

Writer Reminds Women
Of Social Responsibility

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Perhaps never in recent years should we women be as concerned as now, and doing something about our concerns.

They're many, the problems we can have a hand in solving. Certainly, I'd say, there's the concern about racism and riots. Concern about the climate in which our children grow up, where marijuana and "dropping acid" (taking LSD) are a part of the teen scene. I heard of one college youth putting himself through school, in the grand manner, by pushing "pot" to high schoolers and cleaning up thousands annually.

Wild Life Concern

Concern envelops me in another way, too, when I think of the decimation of our wild life for the motives of vanity and profit. Would that Rachel Carson had lived to invoke the wrath of the world on those who threaten extinction of some animal species.

This matter of extinction of some of nature's own has been treated in this space before, but an advertisement of a New York store today hit home all over again.

It read in part, "jungle cats. Spectacular furs in all their natural glory, at prices that will make you purr." The ad continued, "...most incredible collection ever of these rarest of jungle furs. Leopards... cheetahs... tigers... ocelots... prized furs, every one."

Prized is right. For these are furs from animals whom conservationists say are increasingly rare and in danger of disappearing. The ad mentioned "bargain prices." A bargain at $4,700 for a leopard coat when the lives of several of these rare animals went into it?

Think Twice

In my opinion, any woman who thinks will think twice before asking her furrier for a coat from an animal whose population has shrunk into the 100's. And this is not to blast the fur industry in any way. Correctly, furriers say, if women want these furs, well. So the problem lies squarely with us.

We are not endangering an animal's future when we buy ranch mink. Fur ranchers have learned how to reproduce these little weasels by the millions. And I hear that the Russians soon may be, if not already, ranch-breeding sable.

Sea otter remains precious. But sea otter remains, only because the federal government years ago stepped in with strict controls on killing it. The otter had faced extinction. But as a result of the restrictions, now the population has multiplied sufficiently for limited harvest and sale of these skins.

Rebekah Lodge 58
Has Area Social

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) —Skellytown Rebekah Lodge No. 58 met recently in the 100F Hall with noble grand, Mrs. John Simmons presiding and Mrs. Clifford Coleman as vice grand.

Reported ill were Sam Woods, in the Groom Memorial Hospital at Groom, and W. I. Denton Wagner, Okla., father of Mrs. Bob Heaton. Mrs. Lulu Davis, Borger, is in Saint Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo. Cards were sent. Nine visits were reported made and eight cards were sent. Word was received of the death of Miss Lucille Hall, treasurer of the Rebekah Assembly of Texas. A sympathy card was sent to her mother, Mrs. Nottie Hall in Dallas. The Lodge Charter was draped in black in memory of Miss Hall by Mrs. W. S. Berry, Mrs. C. C. Coleman and Mrs. Bess Gilman, of Borger.

Mrs. Bess Bancroft of Borger, district deputy president, made her official visit to the Skellytown lodge and held a school of instructions.

During the social hour following lodge, a salad course was served to members and guests. Mrs. Bess Bancroft and Mrs. Bess Gilman, both of Borger, and an interest and curiosity in things.

During the meeting, five statistics concerning women were noted: At least 26 million women work in the United States today; more than 36 per cent of the nation's total work force is made up of women; more than one-third of all married women work; five million women are heads of households; nine out of 10 girls in school today will be employed, most for a large part of their lives.

Two reasons given for more women working were "A woman's life expectancy has increased from 40 years of age in 1900 to 74 years in 1967; and more skilled workers, executives and professional people are in demand."

It was announced the Delta Kappa Gamma regional meeting in Dumas will be Oct. 19. The chapter's next local meeting will be Nov. 9.

New officers named for the biennium are Mrs. James Poole, president; Miss Yvonne Goss, first vice president; Miss Sue Durham, second vice president; Miss Inez Clubb, recording secretary; Mrs. Paul Keim, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James McMurtry, treasurer and Mrs. Vida Brown, parliamentarian.

Hostesses were Mrs. D. V. Biggers, chairman; Mrs. Mary Bledsoe, Mrs. P. M. Scott, Mrs. McHenry Lane, Mrs. L. E. Penick, and Mrs. J. E. Gibson, Jr.

Glasses Need Not Keep a Girl from Getting 'Wolf Whistles'

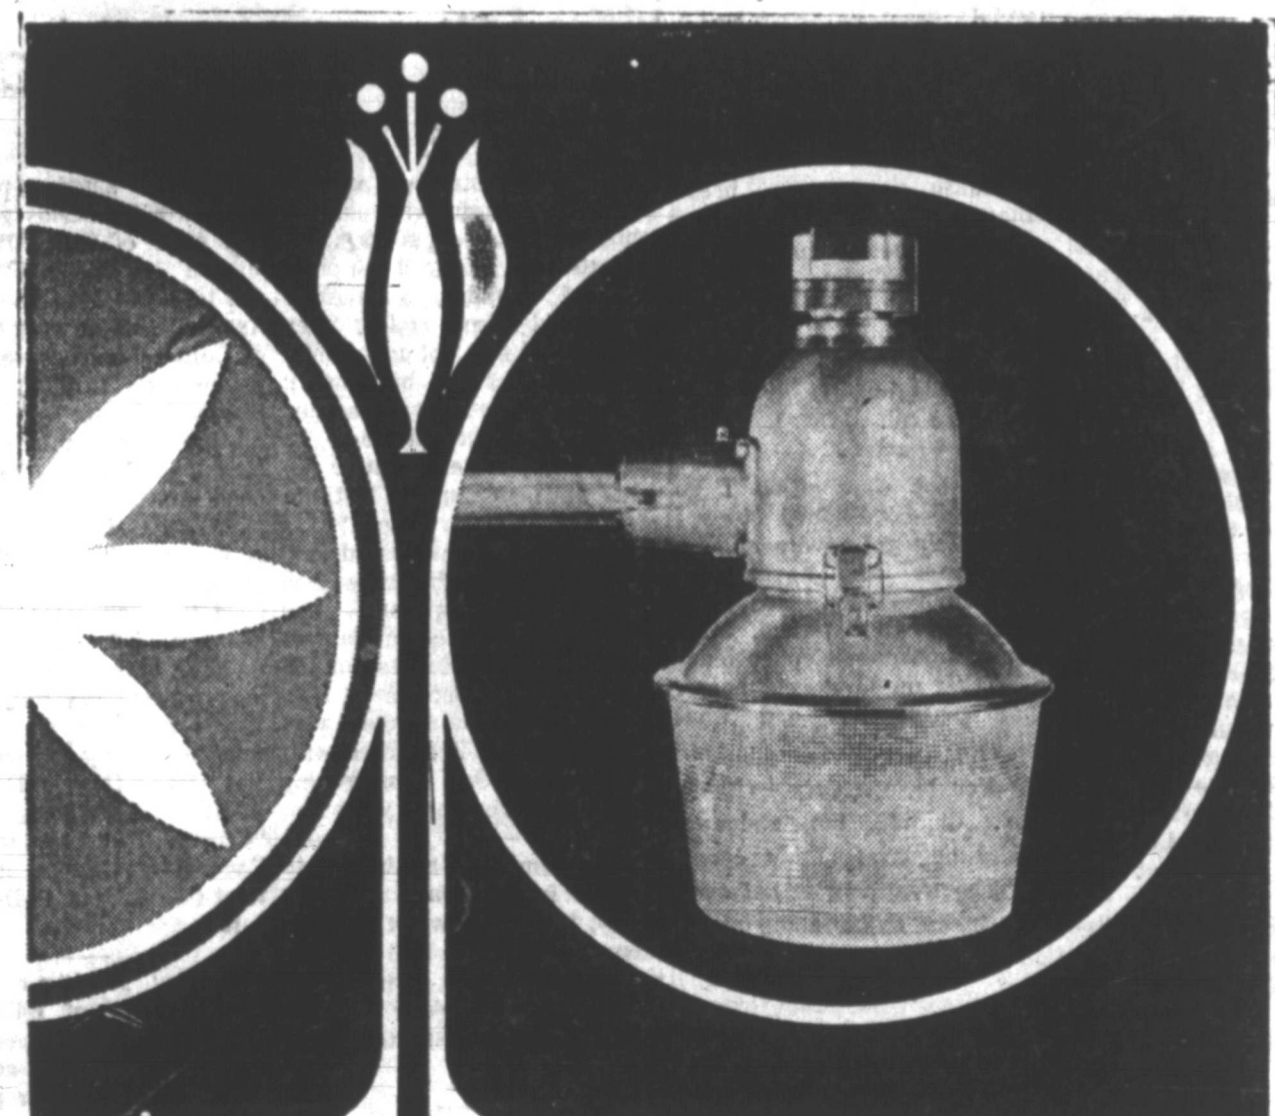

NEW YORK (Sp1) — "The thing I can't understand about Lisa is how she can wear glasses and still attract so many males. Honestly, on her, glasses seem to be part of her style. On me, they're just glasses."
That's the trouble, You haven't yet discovered how to make glasses part of you. The secret's the right type of frame — one that makes you look better with glasses than without them. In fact, if you're nearsighted as many people are and you get the right frame for your face and personality, most of your friends and acquaintances will see the difference right away.
You see, most nearsighted people have a tendency to squint in order to see better. And you know what squinting brings on — wrinkles! Lines around the eyes and forehead. So, for the girl with glasses, the right frame is a must.
Now, how to get the right one for you? It all starts with the shape of your face. Maybe you've heard that before. But maybe the lesson didn't sink in. Or maybe you had some poor advice or selected your frame too quickly. Start again from scratch.
BEAUTY IDEAL
First of all, don't forget the ideal of beauty is the oval face, as every woman knows. Therefore, your frame should be one which — whatever the shape of your face — tends to create that illusion.
In the panel at the right is the whole secret of "glamour in glasses" as worked out by a group of beauty stylists in conjunction with frame designers of an optical company one of the largest and best known makers of eyewear in the world.
Few people know the design of a new eyeglass frame is as thoroughly "prayed over" as the design of a Paris gown. The material from which the frame will be made, the colors, the shape of the frame, its trim — or lack of it — are just as much in the mind of a creative eyewear designer as they are in the consciousness of a Paris couturier.

For instance, frame designers watch Paris openings, work with hair stylists, cosmetic and color experts. They check with beauty and fashion editors, trek to college campuses to glean a knowledge of up-coming trends — then make hundreds of drawings similar to those shown in this article. (And a "designer's original" is as jealously guarded from rivals in this field as in the clothes fashion field.) These designers love to give their new frame creations exciting or romantic names too... like "Min," "Caper," "Girl Talk," "Showtime," "Coronation."
STYLE TRENDS
Style trends? Well right now frame designers are concentrating on "geometrics," the design trend that is so popular in today's costume jewelry, fabrics and clothes — hexagonal, modified ovals, squares and the "big round eye."
If you hear someone asking, "Don't such designs conflict with what you just said about picking the frame that goes with your face shape?" No, indeed. The big round-eyed frame goes with a triangular face in the accompanying chart; the "hexagonal," with the diamond face; a square frame, with an oblong face; and a "modified" oval with a heartshaped face.
NEW HAIRDOS
"But the new hairdos — the 'tousled look' and others — how about frames that go with them?" Don't fret. It is not the shape of the face that goes with the style of frame you should wear. After all, you probably do your hair many different ways from time-to-time.

Colors? Take it from the experts — amber and black tones are basic. Now we don't just mean plain amber or inky black because amber tones go all the way from "honey blonde" to "mock turtle" (believe it or not!) and black tones go all the way from light grey to jet black.
And here's a thought for any gal who must wear bifocals. All the things said about frames apply to you just as much as they do to your daughter. The big lenses, and the new "geometric" shapes are not only high style and youthful, but are easily adaptable to bifocal lenses, according to a noted designer and head of a company's frame design group. As the designer puts it — "A frame can either add or detract. It can make you look pretty or intellectual, delicate or dowdy, sexy or square — the same as the clothes you pick out to wear." So it pays to select your eyewear with the same care you use in selecting "the dress to impress."
As for that old bromide "Men seldom make passes at girls who wear glasses," it has a new tag line — "unless they have the right kind of frame"!

'Give Your Fair Share'

Why is the climate good for United Funds? Like everything else in our modern flux, we could call it "fall-out," or the wish to share the better life, or perhaps the sign of a civilization marching forward. It may be that some of the social upheavals through out the country have fostered a new awareness of health and welfare problems.
These services should act as a spur to begin a spirit of voluntarism; our people have perked up to the need for preserving and strengthening voluntary agency programs. In the old days, a large percent of gifts and pledges came from wealthy individuals and big corporations. Now anyone, regardless of how little his income, can know the deep satisfaction of helping his fellow man.
"Give your fair share" is the theme of this year's drive — one hour's wage per month for each month of the year is the formula the leaders of the United Fund would like for each person to consider in making a gift.

Never have so many people been more aware of the need for voluntary gifts and services, or the need to become more involved in helping others to help themselves through our local agencies. Our Pampa United Fund drive has many advantages. It puts the many, many drives into an orderly single campaign, saving time and money. It offers everyone the opportunity to share his time, talents and money to help his fellow man.
The great strength of the United Fund is the marked increase in the number of contributors during the last few years. We cannot afford to let this trend die, for it is with the total efforts of each and everyone in the community, giving and doing his and her part, that this year's campaign will be a success.

New 'Cruise Era'

There are new seas to sail for U. S. passenger ships.
Federal legislation recently signed by President Johnson liberalizing cruise routes for domestic shiplines has provided a strong impetus for the American Merchant Marine.
First to capitalize on this opportunity to compete with non-U.S. flag carriers in the burgeoning cruise business is American President Lines with its enactment of an entire new look in courses and schedules for 1969.
Long aware that the profitable route for passenger ships is the cruise route — in all varieties — APL was quick to raise a confident voice to confound those calamity howlers who would bemoan the fate of ocean travel and relegate it literally to a watery grave.
In announcing new and ambitious cruise plans for its luxury liners, the SSs Presidents Roosevelt, Cleveland and Wilson, American President Lines is leading the way to a new and prosperous era for shipboard travel.
An unprecedented variety of new routes in the Pacific and around the world will be instituted in the coming year. There will be 90-day cruises and 10-day cruises; circle-Pacific cruises and central Pacific cruises; round-the-world cruises and mini-cruises — cruises everywhere for everyone.
Pago Pago and Papeete. . . Samoa and the Seychelles. . .

faraway places that will become familiar locales rather than strange-sounding names with the inception of APL's dozen new cruises. Portugal, Morocco, Mexico and Panama, Australia, New Zealand, the Caribbean and Ball, Vancouver and Victoria, E. C., and Alaska — not a 47-variety gazetteer but new destinations in this new cruise emphasis.
American President Lines is selling more than transportation. It is selling a way of life for a vacation — a vacation that on a cost basis is competitive with any first class resort and with total costs of other travel when hotel and incidentals of the traveler are considered.
The U. S. flag will continue to fly from passenger ships throughout the Pacific Ocean and around the world as APL's liners ply their new routes with shiploads of vacationers taking advantage of the opportunities cruises offer for relaxation, romance, and the adventure of life at sea, combined with an absolute escape from the frenzied pace of today's cosmopolitan living.
The example of confident and positive action by one American shipping firm doubtless will encourage others and we can anticipate that steamship travel — rather than meekly face an ignominious demise — will enjoy a spirited revival as once again we discover the magic of the sea and the lure of an ocean voyage.

Let George Do It?

That old saw, "Let George Do It," has a special meaning in this election year.
Only once in the last century — the last 25 Presidential elections — has a third-party effort made an important difference in the electoral outcome. In 1912, Theodore Roosevelt received 27 percent of the votes; Taft 23 per cent. Had their votes been combined, Woodrow Wilson would have been defeated.
This year again, the pundits are saying that a third party will have an important bearing on the Presidential election. To our knowledge no responsible observer has seriously suggested that George Wallace is going to defeat Mr. Nixon and Mr. Humphrey. What is suggested, and what the Wallace supporters propound, is the prospect that Mr. Wallace will attract sufficient votes to prevent either of the major political candidate from being elected, in which event Wallace may do some bartering with the electoral delegates he wins, or force the election into the Congress.

But in the end, either Mr. Nixon or Mr. Humphrey is going to move into the White House. Not even George Wallace himself can really believe that he will be moving in.
In essence then, the third party is really saying to the voter: don't cast your vote for either Mr. Nixon or Mr. Humphrey. Don't make a choice. Vote instead for George Wallace and let him make the choice.
Stripped of the oratory and hoopla, this is the apparent meaning of the third-party candidacy. The voter may choose between Nixon and Humphrey, or he may transfer his vote to Mr. Wallace, and authorize him to make the decision.
If the polls are to be believed, a very substantial number of Americans are disposed to "Let George Do It." That is their privilege.

Cigarette Advertising Ban?

Do the bureaucrats of the Federal Trade Commission and the U.S. Public Health Service really want Americans to cut down on smoking? Or do they just want to gain some additional control over people in business?
The Public Health Service is demanding stronger warnings of the health hazards in smoking on cigarette packages and similar strong warnings on all advertising for cigarettes.

The FCC would go much further, suggesting prohibition of all radio and television advertising. In the interim the FCC is demanding that radio and television stations carry at their own expense "public service" announcements about the dangers of cigarette smoking in rebuttal

EDITOR:
The people who manufacture reducing pills and such concoctions must make more money than Mrs. Olsen gives away in cans of coffee. Not all people who are fat are total social losses, take Jackie Gleason, (you can have him). He is a very jolly sort, popular, and has scads of money, and that is what puts the sizz in the soda.

Back in the olden days there was a very fat girl in our gang who coined many funny phrases. When one of us pulled a weak joke she would say, "Well that takes the furlined bath tub". Perhaps she would quip, "Well that wins the crocheted bicycle."

These remarks made us split our stitches. One man we know had made some slight remarks to his wife about her weight. His meals got to be of a very poor quality. Finally one day he said, "Dear I had rather have 200 pounds of curves than one hundred pounds of nerves. (Why didn't I think of that in a recent discussion?)

The fat girl referred to above, was 18 years old at that time. At 21 she had slimmed down to a dream figure, and her Dad owned hundreds of East Texas acres crowded with oil wells. She was a millionaire, married to a millionaire.

I had nick-named her Tubby. . . Well, some people are like buttons — always poppin' off at the wrong time.

One man we heard of is going to make a fortune out of Lake Meredith water. The gentleman has a three hundred pound figure, and that takes a lot of maintenance. He is going to promote a huge plant to filter the salt and other undesirable elements out of Lake Meredith water, and sell to cities.

This man vows that he has already been promised a loan of one thousand dollars. As for me, my feeling of cleaning up Lake Meredith water is like the sentiment of a bachelor. It is reported that he held a newborn baby for the first time, and that he said, "I wouldn't clean it up for it."

Today is Sunday, Sept. 22, the 266th day of 1968 with 100 to follow.

The moon is new.
The morning star is Mars.
The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:
In 1692, the last persons to be executed in the American colonies for witchcraft were hanged.

In 1776, the British hanged American Revolutionary War hero and patriot Nathan Hale seconds after he uttered his immortal words: "I only regret that I have but one life to give for my country."

In 1937, a united front was established in China when the Chinese Communist party announced its support of the national government. The Communists took over China 12 years later.

of paid advertising by the manufacturers of the product the bureaucrats say is harmful.

If the federal bureaucracy really wants to do something to slow down the use of cigarettes why doesn't the federal government do something about cutting off the subsidies for tobacco? The U.S. Department of Agriculture continues to stimulate tobacco production through subsidies to growers in the form of price guarantees. If there were no guaranteed prices for tobacco, it is likely that many growers would quit producing tobacco. The probable result would be higher prices for the tobacco going into cigarettes.

Likewise, the State Department a couple of years ago was reported to be financing the advertising of American cigarettes abroad, and also was encouraging cigarette manufacturers to use "Turkish" tobacco which was imported from Yugoslavia.
We believe more people would be persuaded to quit smoking if the federal bureaucracy were to quit its double-talking and double-dealing about tobacco, if it were to quit doing its utmost to foster the tobacco industry by subsidies while demanding that radio and TV stations condemn its use.

WASHINGTON:

Stubborn Writers Defying Kremlin Edicts on Dissent

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some aspects of the current unrest in the Soviet Union must be extremely disturbing to the men in the Kremlin.

It is not primarily the amount of dissent that is significant. It's rather the stubborn persistence of the dissenters that must be taken very seriously. Unlike the old Stalin days, the dissenters haven't abjectly confessed when hauled into court. A significant number have fought all the way, challenging the judges on every step.

When he was put on trial, writer Vladimir Bukovskii told the Soviet judges they were acting like fascists and accused the KGB (secret police) of the court of attempting to operate in secrecy to hide their illegal acts. On learning his fate, he bluntly told the officials, "When I am free again, I shall again organize demonstrations."

Even tough sentences haven't seemed to discourage other dissenters. Each repressive decision has brought on new protests.

The dissenters haven't even been frightened off by KGB threats. They've retaliated by publicly attacking the secret police.

Valentyn Moroz, after being sentenced, said, "As always, they put people behind bars and, as always, deport them to the East. But this time these people did not sink into obscurity. To the great surprise of the KGB, for the first time in the last decade, public opinion has risen; for the first time the KGB felt powerless to stifle all this."

The dissenters have openly advertised their discontent in the West instead of keeping it in the family. Secret trials have been exposed, not allowed to stay under cover.

When Aleksander Ginzburg and Iurii Galanskov were convicted in a stacked court, Pavel Litvinov, grandson of famed Maxim Litvinov, former Soviet foreign minister, addressed a letter to world opinion. Litvinov reportedly has been arrested for his efforts, but that has not prevented other Soviet writers from persisting in their efforts to inform the West of what is happening.

The Kremlin has responded with a hodgepodge of counterattacks. Some writers have received exceedingly stiff sentences, some sent to insane asylums, some subjected to official campaigns of personal slander. Some, without trial, had all their writings banned from publication, even to the making of handwritten copies. Sometimes the police have raided a writer's home, collected items of a highly personal, embarrassing nature and seen to their publication.

This retaliation seems to have had little effect on the dissenters.
When the Soviet government sent writer-mathematician Aleksander Esenin Volpin in a mental hospital to keep him quiet, 95 scholars spoke out in his favor, including several winners of the Lenin prize and responding members of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

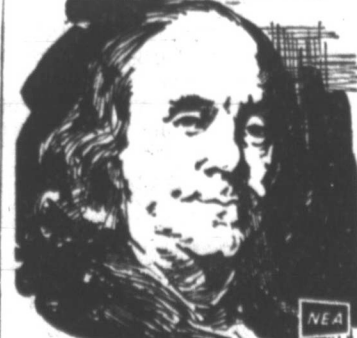

It is quite impossible, of course, to peer within the Kremlin and tally the degree of confusion caused by the stubborn resistance of the writers and their refusal to be cowed by traditional Soviet police-court methods.

But the Kremlin's mental disarray can be measured perhaps by the increasing number of stumbling and irresolute actions of the Red authorities, the inconsistencies in their crack-downs and the jerky on-again, off-again nature of some of their prosecutions.

The Soviet government has borne down hard with 13- and 15-year sentences at hard labor for some writers, but has hesitated to bring charges against others equally active. Sometimes officials have limited themselves to sarcasm.

One Soviet expert sees "a vast and powerful government dithering in irresolution in the face of a relatively small and basically quite powerless body of poets, novelists and literary critics."
This is a situation in which a totalitarian government might strike out blindly internally.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Benjamin Franklin avidly coined and collected maxims. The World Almanac notes. He often polished and made pithy the thought of others; consequently more adages are associated with Franklin than he originated. For example, Cicero's "I cease not to advocate peace; even though unjust it is better than the most just war," inspired Franklin's: "There was never a good war or a bad peace."

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT
Sniffing Gasoline Fumes Can Cause Brain Damage

The folly of gasoline sniffing has been well-publicized. Loss of consciousness has been observed in some persons who have persisted in this pastime. Now a recent report indicates that, because almost all commercial gasolines contain tetraethyl lead, serious lead poisoning may result from this habit. Small amounts of lead absorbed through the lungs can cause permanent brain damage.

It is far better to emulate Ferdinand the bull and smell the flowers for kicks. Their fragrance is sweeter than that of gasoline and their harmful side effects are nil.

Q—In hot days when I go into an air-conditioned store I immediately get severe abdominal cramps and have loose bowel movements. This also happens in winter when, after sleeping under an electric blanket, I get up in a cold house. What causes this and what will help?

A—You have a very irritable colon. Chilling the abdomen usually aggravates this condition. The treatment is not easy and usually requires the attention of a gastroenterologist.

Q—In a recent column you said that cholestyramine had reduced the blood cholesterol level of a number of persons with hardening of the arteries. My doctor never heard of it. Does it have any other name?

A—It is sold under the trade names Cuemid and Questran.

Q—In a recent article you said that taking cortisone during pregnancy would interfere with adrenal function of the fetus. How would it do this? Is Meticorten in this class?

A—Cortisone is derived from the adrenal glands. An excess of adrenal hormone in the baby's blood supplied through the umbilical cord removes the stimulus for the baby to develop his own adrenal hormone. Prednisone (Meticorten) is a synthetic cortisone.

Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON

Once upon a time, before the poverty program, a poor down-and-out shell of a man stood on a seventh story ledge of a Nashville building, and a fellow in the crowd below took the initiative in trying to dissuade the would-be suicide.

"Think of your dear old mother," he implored.

"She's dead," he replied laconically.

"Think of your wife and children!"

"I never married," he wept.

"Think of your God!"

"I have no religion," he said.

"Think of Robert E. Lee!"

"Who's he?"

There was only a slight pause before the Confederate Samaritan on the ground shouted: "Go ahead and jump, you Yankee so and so!"

As far as millions of informed conservatives, South and North, are concerned, since the Republican Party has again failed to give the people a choice, not an echo, it can go ahead and jump.

Most Republicans have a simple platform — get in.

Any unified GOP can only become the same thing as the unified Democrat Party, and unprincipled prostitute. I'm against "unity" and blind loyalties.

There is no person or institution in the world to which we owe or should feel blind loyalty. We should be for what we think is right, regardless of race, color or kin, or previous condition of misinformation.

When the so-called "conservative" party nominates and elects a party conservative to the Presidency, what and whom do real conservatives oppose?

Phony "conservative" Lyndon Johnson wheeled and dealt more socialistic legislation through Congress than Socialist John Kennedy could ever have done. I predict the phony conservative, Richard Nixon, if elected, will take us further into Socialism than Socialist Hubert Humphrey could ever do. Some say (but can't prove) that Wallace is splitting the conservative vote and will elect Humphrey. So what? I'm not sure we wouldn't have been better off with that one-world dreamboat Adlai Stevenson than with Eisenhower. The sure way to lose is to let them nibble it away.

We are too far gone for small "victories." We can't win with either Nixon or Humphrey, or their political parties. The Republican platform has all the succulent goodness and rib-sticking substance of boiled watermelon. The Democrat-Labor platform is warmed-over caviar with Russian dressing.

At a tender age, effeminate little Hubert Horatio Humphrey was vaccinated with a phonograph needle and was nicknamed "pinky" by his playmates. He grew pinkier and pinkier through the years. He was a founder of the left wing extremist organization "Americans for Democratic Action" — "Moderate."

Hubie was, for years Socialist Party leader Norman Thomas' "first and only choice for the Presidency." If Hubert Humphrey today is not a Socialist, then neither is Norman Thomas. Neither has changed his views. Yet the so-called "liberal" press calls Humphrey a "moderate." So is Brezhnev, compared with Mao Tse Tung.

It has been rumored that Hubie (nicknamed "old flannel-mouth" by his Senate colleagues) might withdraw on account of illness. This is a vicious lie. All he has is chronic palpitation of the tongue.

In conclusion and in a two-word nutshell, Richard Nixon can best be described as a C-edicated phony. And Hubert Humphrey can't be described. Don't throw away your vote on either! Make your vote count, with George Wallace.

Pull Up A Chair

Engineering students are usually ingenious individuals. Recently in California a group of students were assigned the problem of building a machine that would climb stairs. They built a robot that not only climbed a flight of stairs, but when it reached the top it turned around and fired a cannon at them. Another time some inventive students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology "stole" a steam roller near their dormitory overnight. The crew had dismantled certain parts and thought no one could tamper with it. But the students did and drove it to the front door of Harvard's president, a mile away, where they left it adorned with a placard "Our Engineering school is better than yours."

All elephants are called jumbo after P. T. Barnum's famous pachyderm of that name. Actually Barnum only exhibited his elephant for three years before he was killed in a train wreck. Prior to that Jumbo had been exhibited at the Royal Zoological Gardens in London for 25 years. Barnum bought him for $10,000 and made much more than that showing him off to customers. The original Jumbo's skeleton is on display at the American Museum of Natural History in New York, but his hide is a proud exhibit and mascot of Tufts University in Massachusetts.

The highest score ever recorded in a college football game happened "way back in 1916 when Georgia Tech clobbered Cumberland University with a score of 220 to 0. One of the Georgia Tech players scored 18 touchdowns in the game, which probably gave him an all-time record for scoring in a single game. If anyone ever topped it we haven't heard about it. . . Most baseball fans can quote you Babe Ruth's batting record, but few know that the famed slugger pitched in three World's Series games and won each of them. In 1916 he pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 2 to 1 win over the Dodgers. Again in 1918 he beat the Chicago Cubs 1-0 and came back two games later to do it again 3-2. Ruth would have been one of the all-time great pitchers if the New York Yankees hadn't switched him into becoming a hitter. . . He had a bunch of walkie-talkies and special telephones hooked direct into Walter Reuther who was busy over in the Sheraton hotel in a teamster's operation for Humph called "Drive." They was busy driving 304 Demo chiefs from 43 states and what-a-mile team it must have been. They was transporting "Borax" only in reverse, from Chicago to "Death Valley." Meaney says, "we can't do our job unless we got somebody in the White House who sympathizes. . ." So the three H's is their slave and he don't mind any words about it either. That is the only thing he is counting on, labor votes in the big cities. He has already conceded the southern states to Wallace and Nixon.

The Untruth Of The Obvious

By YALE BROZEN
(The Freeman)

Dr. Brozen is Professor of Business Economics, Graduate School of Business, University of Chicago.

The Fair Labor Standards Act was amended to raise minimum wage rates from $1.25 an hour to $1.40 on February 1, 1967, and to $1.60 one year later. It was obvious that a wage rate of $1.25 an hour would provide only $2,000 per year for a full-time worker. It was even more obvious that this was (and is) less than $3,000 a year, the official line which an annual income must cross if the recipient is not to be poverty stricken. Therefore, it was obvious that the minimum wage rate had to be raised to reduce the number of people in poverty because of low wages. It seemed equally obvious, then, that there ought to be a law raising the minimum wage above the poverty line.

Now that the minimum wage has reached $1.60, the income of a full-time worker employed at the minimum is $3,328. This, obviously, is enough to cross the poverty line (with due allowance for inflation) and eliminate all poverty resulting from low wage rates (in covered occupations). The question that arises, however, is whether the number of people in poverty has been decreased by eliminating all poverty resulting from wage rates below $1.60 an hour. Obviously, if no wage is paid of less than $1.60 no one at work (in covered occupations) will be in poverty because of a low wage.

The Unknown Effects of Minimum Wage Rates

Despite all this obviousness, the increase in the statutory minimum wage rate has increased—not decreased—the amount of poverty in America. Although the various upward moves in the statutory minimum have increased the incomes of some people, they have decreased the incomes of a great many others by causing them to lose their jobs. When the minimum was increased in 1966, for example, unemployment among teen-agers and women over 45 rose despite the fact that total unemployment was falling. Usually, when total unemployment falls, unemployment in these two groups falls twice as rapidly. However, this usual relationship was reversed by the rise in minimum wage from 75 cents to $1.00 an hour in 1966.

The fact that increases in the statutory minimum wage cause some people to lose their jobs is hardly debatable. The evidence is more than ample. Even the industries given special treatment who are allowed to pay less than the full minimum have laid off people because of a rise in their wage costs.

The Philadelphia Inquirer (January 22, 1963) reported that the Goodwill Industries sheltered workshops, which are allowed to pay as little as 50 per cent of the statutory minimum, were laying off handicapped workers at the end of January because the agency could not afford the even larger subsidy required that they were already paying to keep these people at work with the rise in the statutory minimum to $1.60 on February 1 and, as a consequence, a rise in the minimum for handicapped workers in sheltered workshops to 80 cents.

A New York Times story on February 13, 1967 from Greenville, Mississippi, said that spot checks by civil rights workers indicated that 100,000 people were deprived of all farm income because agricultural workers were covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act for the first time and they had to be paid $1.00 an hour. As a result, 100,000 farms jobs were wiped out.

A Wall Street Journal story on September 7, 1965, reported the lay-off of 1,800 women in North Carolina a crab meat packing plants when the minimum went from $1.15 to $1.25. A U.S. News and World Report story, in the August 17, 1964 issue, described the effects of the $1.25 minimum on the operation of a shop producing mountain-made novelties at Paintsville, Kentucky. The shop was closed, ending the jobs of 200 part-time employees when a new wage-hour office in Pikeville pressed for strict compliance with the minimum wage law. A Wall Street Journal sampling of retailers, reported August 31, 1961, found that package wrappers were being dismissed, work weeks were being shortened, and substandard employees were being laid off because retail stores were to be covered by the minimum wage law beginning September 3, 1961, as a result of new amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act.

The Southern Pine Industry Committee presented evidence in Senate hearings that imposition of the $1.00 an hour minimum in 1966 was a major influence in the closing of numerous sawmills in the South. Professor John Peterson, in his dissertation done in the economics department at the University of Chicago demonstrated that employment adjusted for output and trend fell in sawmills, men's cotton garments, and other industries when the minimum was raised to $0.75 in 1960.

A study of the seamless hosiery industry found a 13 per cent drop in employment in mills whose average wage was less than the minimum when the $0.35 an hour minimum was imposed in 1938 and subsequently raised to $0.325 in 1939. This did not include the decrease in employment in mills which went out of business.

Impact on Negro Teen-agers The incidence of unemployment caused by increases in the statutory minimum wage is falling most heavily on one group. It is a group toward which a great deal of governmental effort is being directed for the purpose of improving their lot—Negro teen-agers. Before the Fair Labor Standards Act raised the minimum wage to $1.00 in 1966, non-white and white male teen-age unemployment both were approximately the same, oscillating between 9 and 14 per cent of those seeking jobs, depending on the state of business. In 1966, when the $1.00 minimum went into effect, non-white male teen-age unemployment surged to levels 50 per cent greater than white male teen-age unemployment. White male teen-age unemployment has stuck at high levels since 1966, approximating or exceeding 14 per cent of those seeking employment in most years.

That is a figure in excess of the maximum unemployment among white male teen-agers in any year before 1966. Negro male teen-age unemployment, however, has gone to even higher levels than white teen-age unemployment since 1966, exceeding 21 per cent of those seeking employment in every year in the last decade. Since the full application of the $1.25 minimum in 1965, nonwhite male teen-age unemployment has soared to levels 100 per cent greater than white unemployment. Since the rise to $1.40 in February, 1967, nonwhite male teen-age unemployment has in some months been 150 per cent greater than white unemployment. This has occurred despite a more rapid decline in the nonwhite participation rate than in the white rate—a decline which carried the nonwhite rate to a level which has been below the white rate since 1961.

Disappearing Breed

(Newton Falls, Ohio, Herald)

Rugged individualism still lives. An AP dispatch from Cedar City, Utah, reports that a Utah rancher has sent uncashed Social Security checks totaling $4,497 back to the U.S. Treasury, because he could think of no church or charity which needs the money more. In a letter accompanying the checks, the rancher said, "I'm in good health and I am able to carry on the small livestock operation I have been able to put together over the years. I have attempted to find a worthy cause or some charity or church into which I could direct these checks. So far I have been unable to think of any place which needs this money more than the U.S. Treasury in spite of the fact our government is mismanaging its money supplies so badly that these dollars may be wasted."

If there were more people like the Utah rancher, there would be far fewer of the political breed that seeks to stay in office by butting up their constituency at the expense of U.S. sovereignty. The problems of inflation, the depreciating dollar, and the rising cost of living would be solved almost overnight.

'SEE? HE LIKES IT!'

Guaranteed Annual Income

(The Wall Street Journal)

A little discussed, but important, aspect of the proposals for a guaranteed annual income or negative income tax is the powerful inflationary punch they pack.

One man who is giving considerable thought to the problem is Sen. William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat and chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, and he finds no little irony in it. Here is Congress enacting the most restrictive fiscal measure in years (the tax-increase-spend-cut combination), designed to inhibit demand and increase unemployment, while simultaneously moving toward a massive, inflationary income maintenance program.

What has happened is roughly as follows: Practically everyone who has looked at the existing welfare set-up finds it a horrendous mess, super-costly, disorganized, overlapping, over-bureaucratized, often reaching the wrong people instead of the right ones, disruptive of family life. In addition, it is demeaning and demoralizing for the recipient.

Consequently some form of income maintenance, especially the negative income tax, is growing in favor in and out of Congress. In effect the idea is to give poor people a regular handout, much like Social Security payments, without all the present fuss. In theory it would supplant most or all current welfare programs.

At the same time almost all economists, liberal or conservative or whatever, believe the nation needs a tighter fiscal policy now to slow demand and retard inflation. Unfortunately, reducing demand and hence production, if that is the effect of the new tax-spending law, automatically means a rise in unemployment.

Enter the negative income tax, and the effort to slow demand would be largely undone. All persons would be assured of an income equivalent at least to a low-wage job; they would be effective consumers, they would swell demand, but they would produce nothing. In short, a highly inflationary state of affairs, as though we didn't have enough inflation as it is. To aggravate inflation, it might be noted, is no way to help the poor.

Proceed Cautionally Senator Proxmire says he has so far found no one able to suggest a persuasive or workable way out of this dilemma. Well, we have no solution either, but maybe a couple of comments are in order.

It seems plain that Congress should proceed cautiously on any moves toward a guaranteed annual income, and not only because of the inflationary impact.

We think it dubious principle indeed for the state to pay people whether they are willing to work or not; certainly it has little to do with the American tradition. In all probability, in many cases it would remove permanently any incentive for the individual to try to become a useful citizen and a productive member of society.

As a practical matter, the negative income tax or whatever the form of income maintenance would be unlikely to replace much of the existing welfare system. Politicians being what they are, the chances are that it would just be piled on top, or underneath, the unifying array of welfare arrangements now in operation.

Especially in view of that likelihood, more thought should be given to reforming the welfare apparatus before taking the radical step of a guaranteed annual income. What is wanted in an acceptable welfare program? Basically, just two things, it seems to us: To get the aid to those genuinely in need and not to those who regard welfare as a way of life. And to do it in such a way as not to break up families.

Should Be Seen Surely such real reforms should not be impossible for people so ingenious they can think up the negative income tax and other devices. If it could be done, it doubtless could be done at a fraction of the cost of the present mess, thus minimizing the inflationary push of huge Government spending and deficits.

Perhaps it is asking too much; perhaps the politicians are too immobilized, the bureaucracy too barnacled to make honest reform anything but a pipe-dream. But it seems a more rewarding approach, and more generous to those who through no fault of their own can't make their way in the world.

In any event, Senator Proxmire does a service in calling attention to the inflationary bias in the guaranteed annual income notion. That bias merits a lot more examination.

Unconscious Prestige

Foundation of Economic Education

What does lie within our reach... is the change in individuals who have, or create, an opportunity to influence others of like mind in their circle of acquaintance. I do not mean by persuading or preaching—I am thinking, rather, of the well-known fact that anyone who has insight into his own action, and has thus found access to the unconscious, involuntarily exercises an influence on his environment. The deepening and broadening of his consciousness produce the kind of effect which the primitives call "mana." It is an unintentional influence on the unconscious of others, and its effects last only so long as it is not disturbed by conscious intention.

Pakhtun Tribesmen And Their Free Society

By ASLAM EFFENDI
(Rampart Journal)

Aslam Effendi, forty-four, of West Pakistan, describes himself as a writer and thinker who has spent a great part of his life preaching world peace through a one-world market. He reports that his great grandfather conquered Afghanistan at the age of fifteen, and is considered the second greatest hero in Pakhtun history. Aslam Effendi makes the Pakhtun region his home "because this is one of the spots on earth where there are no taxes and where the government is felt least."

Prof. F. A. Hayek writes, "The fact is that if 'to rule' means to make man obey another's will government has no such power to rule in a free society."

The Pakhtun tribes, including the Mirmans, Afridis, Waziris, Masudis, etc., that live on the borders between Pakistan and Afghanistan, are an interesting people, for history has seldom recorded any period in which they were ruled by a formal government as we understand it.

Soldiers and fortune seekers such as Alexander of Macedonia, Mahmud of Ghazni, Babur the Mughal and others marched through their territory but left these freedom-loving people alone. If ever these tribesmen submitted to any law and order, it was the religious order of Islam.

This essay should be of special interest to such intellectuals as Dean Robert LeFevre, who has greatly influenced my thinking on political theory and maintains that formal government is not necessary for holding human society together. The Pakhtun society may not be a perfect example, but still such a society does work and smashes the theory of those who believe that with a formal government there would be chaos and that human civilization would be wiped off the face of the earth.

So in dealing with the Pakhtun society I have tried to keep three important questions in view. First, what is that force which prevents the Pakhtuns from completely destroying one another in a society that recognizes no formal government, or formal police or courts of law; second, what prevents the strong from grabbing the property of the weak in such a society; third, how do the Pakhtuns deal with problems of public interest in a society that recognizes no taxation?

Let's take up three questions one by one.

Law and Order

First, in the Pakhtun society law and order is based on an unwritten constitution which is respected by the tribes under all circumstances. Some of the features of this constitution are: meimastiya (hospitality), badal (retribution), tiga (armistice), nanawati, and jirga, among others.

Meimastiya (hospitality) plays a vital role in Pakhtun society and is an expression of the sense of self-respect and personal dignity of an individual tribesman. Each family or clan has a hujra (a sort of social club) which caters to the comfort and protection of a guest, whoever he may be. The hujra provides food and shelter to guests; it is a place where marriage and death ceremonies are performed, and also a sort of assembly house where problems of a political and social nature are discussed. A hujra that is visited by few guests is sometimes described by the rival hujra as sayrah, meaning desolate. In short, a hujra is a tribal institution that contributes in a big way toward cementing brotherhood in the Pakhtun tribal society.

Murders are few and far between among the Pakhtun tribesmen. Similarly, other crimes are very rarely witnessed. But if ever a murder or crime does take place, it probably occurs for very good and strong reasons. And if a Pakhtun murders, he places not only himself but his entire family in a very embarrassing and dangerous situation, for the institution of badal (retribution) comes into force. This arrangement itself acts as a marvelous check on crime and, according to my learned friend, Prof. Maulana Abdul Qadir of the Pakhtun Academy, University of Peshawar, there is one murder in Pakhtun society compared with one hundred in areas having formal government and police.

After a murder occurs a tribal ceremony takes place known as nanawati. Let's take an example. Suppose Dilbar Khan murders Shere Dil Khan. Then the relatives of the former along with the religious dignitaries of the tribe, will enter the house of the latter's family; this entering is called nanawati. After entry an attempt is made to offer apology. Such an approach invariably results in peaceful settlement of as serious an issue as murder. Settlement can take many forms; but in some cases the sister of the murderer is, by mutual consent, given away in marriage to the nearest relative of the murdered man to wash away the enmity. This ceremony is called sowara, a Pakhtun word meaning to send the bride to the bridegroom's house on horseback and with all the tribal ceremony.

In case of inter-tribal feuds (and this is very rare), firing may be exchanged on both sides. But this too, ends with the operation of a tribal ceremony, here called tiga (armistice). It is surprising how each individual member of the tribe respects the armistice. Not a shot is fired thereafter.

Property Rights And now we come to our second question: how safe is property in such a society? A Pakhtun society is a free society and therefore attaches the greatest importance to property, or, as a Pakhtun said to me: "Property is our birthright."

Now, property ownership is based on an interesting tribal institution called waish (or distribution). According to waish, each individual must have an equal share in whatever form the property of the tribe is—whether it is a mountain, dale, jungle, pasture, arable land, etc. This system is unique in the world, for it makes every individual an equal share holder with others, yet allows nobody the entire ownership of the community's property. Every individual has the right to keep or sell his share of the tribal property, which is quite unlike communism, which preaches ownership by the community as a whole but in fact it is not so. In the Pakhtun tribal society we often find some people with bigger property than others, and you may want to know why this is so, despite the fact that it is stressed that all will have equal shares. Well those belonging to bigger tribes have lesser shares compared with those of smaller tribes. The biggest share is called brakha, the lesser shares are called nemakal, teerao, nad'ai or adaya, pow or tanga, and paisa.

Prof. Maulana Abdul Qadir said to me: "The waish is such a surprisingly original system of property distribution, for there is no danger of anyone becoming a feudal lord. In fact I would welcome any economist anywhere in the world to communicate with me on this fascinating subject."

The Pakhtuns settle land, property, irrigation, and similar disputes through an institution called jirga, which is a meeting place of the elders of the various tribes. The elders as well as both parties in a dispute sit in a circle (and on the bare earth) to indicate complete equality before the law. This is so unlike the formal courts where the judges sit on daises or raised platforms to indicate their superiority over others. The jirga does not use compulsion, but only invites the consent of the parties to a dispute and its decision lies up to the extent that the honor, property, and freedom of the individual are not violated. Nobody, however, dares violate the decision of the jirga, but if any there be, he is socially boycotted and expelled from the tribe—and who dares face expulsion in such a social order?

The New Ordeal By Planning

Reviewed by Peter F. Witasak

The Experience of the Forties and the Sixties by John Jewkes (London Macmillan, 1966, 42 shillings)

In "Henry IV," Glendower proudly declares, "I can call spirits from the vasty deep." To which Hotspur caustically replies, "Why, so can I; or so can any man; but will they come when you do call for them?" During the past twenty-five years, Britain has twice fallen victim to Glendower's illusion. Twice within less than one generation the British electorate have submitted to the socialist fantasies of a Labour Party bent on summoning spirits from the bathos of economic planning. Twice the Labour Party has cried Britain into the abyss of economic despair.

Britain's postwar experiment with socialism inspired Professor John Jewkes of Oxford University to produce his memorable book entitled Ordeal by Planning (1964). It is an illusion, he argued, to believe that elaborately constructed economic blueprints, written by some socialist theoretician in London, can successfully determine the rate of growth and the general health of the economy. "I believe that the recent melancholy decline of Great Britain," he wrote, "is largely of our own making. The fall in our standard of living to a level which excites pity and evokes the charity of many other richer countries, the progressive restrictions on individual liberties, the ever-widening destruction of respect for law, the steady sapping of our instinct for tolerance and compromise, the sharpening of class distinctions, our growing incapacity to play a rightful part in world affairs—these sad changes are not due to something that happened in the remote past. They are due to something that has happened in the past two years. At the root of our troubles lies the fallacy that the best way of ordering economic affairs is to place the responsibility for all crucial decisions in the hands of the State."

The tragedy of the centrally planned economy, as the British experience has plainly demonstrated is that the plan almost invariably fails to achieve its promised ends. Indeed, more often than not, it backfires in unexpected and calamitous ways. But not even a succession of failures convinces the planner that the philosophy behind planning is all wrong. If economic disaster results from his sorts of fantastic planning schemes it should get back to its primary duties of providing for national defense, curbing internal violence, and maintaining the value of the currency. In recent years, the British government has failed in all these tasks. Instead, it has created a welfare state that is threatening the very existence of Britain as an economic entity.

"The people never give up their liberties," Edmund Burke wrote, "but under some delusion." It is clear that the British were deluded into believing the promises of both the Conservative and Socialist planners, and that they are only just now—at the nadir of their country's political history—beginning to face up to the evils of planning per se. Economically depressed, deprived of many of their traditional freedoms, they are fast turning away from the ideology of planning, hopefully toward the kind of free economy Professor Jewkes advocates. Until the fallacious thinking behind central planning is properly refuted, economic progress will be almost impossible. Professor Jewkes has written such a refutation and it is sincerely hoped that his views will reach a large public on both sides of the Atlantic.

Wit And Whimsy Mr. Wall (asked a friend whose aunt just died)—Why are you sad? You never cared for the poor old lady.

Mr. Webb—I didn't, but I was the one who kept her in a lunatic asylum during the last five years of her life. She has left me all her money and now I've got to prove that she was of sound mind.

"The trouble with a lot of young smart alecks is that they are not made to smart in the right places."

Everyone has a choice. He can either change his ways or endure the results.

A young bride of three months complained to her relatives about her husband's continued drinking habits.

Aunt Mary—if you knew he drank, why did you marry him? Sally—I didn't know he drank until one night he came home sober.

It is Professor Jewkes' firm belief that the British Government, like all governments, has only limited power to do good, but virtually unlimited powers to do harm. Government must get its priorities straight. Instead of experimenting with all sorts of fantastic planning schemes it should get back to its primary duties of providing for national defense, curbing internal violence, and maintaining the value of the currency. In recent years, the British government has failed in all these tasks. Instead, it has created a welfare state that is threatening the very existence of Britain as an economic entity.

It was hard for those Britons who endured the failure of the first wave of planning in the forties to accept, let alone understand the new wave of planning initiated by the Conservative Government of Harold Macmillan in 1961. In 1964 the Conservative Plan—a rather primitive attempt to stop economic growth and then get it started again when the planners felt the climate was right—was rejected by the electorate in favor of socialism, which promised "a coherent, long-term plan." The socialist plan was little different from the conservative plan, and in the end the entire country found itself in one of the most tragic economic binds in recent history.

Indeed, the present economic plight of Britain is so dire that many informed persons are now persuaded that the idea of planning has been permanently discredited. Certainly the population at large is fed up with planning. And yet, somehow the myth survives, and this is what horrifies Professor Jewkes. The planners will be defeated at the next General Election, simply because they have failed again; but this will not necessarily spell the end of planning in Britain. The British voter has thrown the planners out before and lived to invite them back again. Professor Jewkes fears yet a third renaissance of central planning and presents this volume, and all the new information contained therein, as a warning against just such a contingency.

It is Professor Jewkes' firm belief that the British Government, like all governments, has only limited power to do good, but virtually unlimited powers to do harm. Government must get its priorities straight. Instead of experimenting with all sorts of fantastic planning schemes it should get back to its primary duties of providing for national defense, curbing internal violence, and maintaining the value of the currency. Recently, we had two or three farmers asking about a farm storage loan. These loans are handled through the local A.S.C. office under the directions of Evelyn Mason. There is nothing new about these loans. They have been available for many years. The interest rate is approximately three and one-half per cent.

Loans are for the exclusive purpose of grain storage. Several types of low cost storage facilities are eligible under this program. In addition, the same loan is available for grain handling equipment.

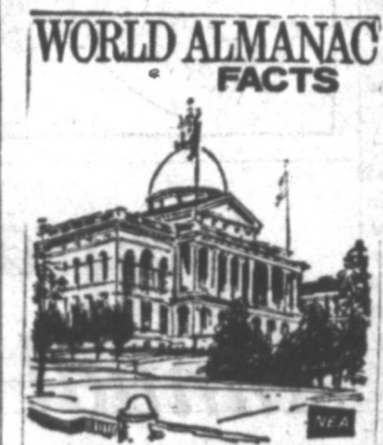

With the price of grain sorghum down to the government loan rate, it might pay farmers to take a new look at their private storage facilities. For instance a farmer can net $1.63 per CWT if he is storing his grain on his own farm. The same grain would net him only $1.48 per CWT, if placed in commercial storage after November 1st. The 15 cent storage cost would soon pay off the cost of a storage facility. To determine just what flat storage would cost, I suggest you check with a local builder. You might find that a new building would pay for itself.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Boston has long been known as "the Hub." The World Almanac says. The expression was coined by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes in his "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," 1857, where he wrote "Boston Statehouse is the hub of the solar system." Boston's monopoly of American cultural life reached its zenith in the decades before and after the Civil War.

Panhandle Water District News

By FELIX W. RYALS

We began a column last week on the history of water. Today we are continuing the history of water, the giver of life and both the master and servant of mankind.

By the year 1000 A.D. the scene for the history of water shifts to Medieval Europe and the days of the knights and chivalry. History records this period as the Middle Ages.

By this period we find that man's ingenuity had advanced to the level that he began inventing means to save time and labor in obtaining his supply of water. In a number of European cities and towns public well houses of Gothic design were built in the public squares. Some of the wells had gargoyle water spouts. Another invention of the period was the suction pump development. The first one was very unique since it made use of a hollow log with a plunger moving up and down in it. This gave birth to the hand life pump which soon was in widespread use. The early hand pump also made use of the hollow log.

On discovering that wind would cause objects to spin while suspended in the air, the windmill thus came into use, relieving man of the burden of hand pumping.

Other wheel innovations followed with the water wheel being placed into stationary position on an axle with the lower portion lowered into a stream below. The current thus turns the wheel in a reverse direction. A pulley was placed on the end of the now famous axle and a belt attached. The belt was attached to another pulley from an axis of the pump lift. In addition to pumping water, the now famous gristmill used by Colonial America to grind the grain into meal, wove its way into American poetry and prose and has never been forgotten by a sentimental America. The windmill, too, in Holland holds the romantic attachment of the entire world.

For perspective, Columbus discovered America in 1492. By 1583 Paris and many other cities had pumps driven by water wheels to bring water to them from some distance away. Wooden pipes hewed from logs were used for distributing water. They proved very durable and in some cases gave good service for nearly a century. Many American cities used the same type wooden pipe water line. Cities along the Mississippi River including Arkansas City, Ark., and New Orleans, La., even today excavate these old wood pipes while laying new metal ones. Wooden lines were also used for sewer lines.

In 1854 a giant water wheel was built on the Isle of Man and was used to remove water from copper and zinc mines. Water from a high reservoir rises inside the tower, flows horizontally under the platform onto the wheel and returns on the tower side again using the reverse turn of the wheel to accomplish other chores once done by hand labor.

BRUSH CONTROL

Individual plant treatment methods using basal pour of kerosene or 1, 4, 5-T mixed in diesel oil should be applied when the soil is dry enough to allow penetration of the material to the bud zone, report range specialists of the Texas Agricultural Service.

WINTER LEGUMES

By using legumes during the winter, pasturelands can receive an extra boost throughout the year, says Dr. Neal Pratt, Extension agronomist at Texas A&M University. He suggests a soil test for determining plant food needs on any pasture to be seeded with a legume. The legumes not only add to the quality of forage produced but their ability to store nitrogen in the soil gives pasture grasses a boost during their growing season.

HORSE SHORT COURSE

The eighth annual Horse Short Course will be held at Texas A&M University, Sept. 27-28, reports B. F. Yeates, Extension horse specialist. Lectures by outstanding horsemen and demonstrations will feature the program. Among topics to be covered are basic training of horses; fitting, showing and judging horses; horse nutrition and horse health problems.

SUNFLOWER PROBLEM

Results of a 2-year study conducted at Texas A&M University on chemical control of the sunflower moth may help push sunflower production forward in Texas. Neal Randolph and Geo. L. Teetes of the Entomology Department found that certain insecticides not yet cleared for use on sunflowers may be the answer to the economical production of the oil-bearing crop.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Something was noticeably missing from this week's premier of NBC-TV's private eye series, "The Outsider": Violence. There seems little doubt that the anti-violence campaign took its toll of the new, one-hour, Wednesday night show that stars Darren McGavin. For time and again the experienced viewer could always out. Actually, "The Outsider" was pleasant enough in the traditional private eye mold. But I don't think anybody would deny that it barely got off the ground in terms of being gripping.

What we saw was a basically likeable hero and format that got caught up in small talk. The characters were pretty routine. The plot—about card cheating in a men's club—was interesting but not overwhelming. And the wit was ordinary.

When you have the chance to use climactic violence, these aspects of a show may be forgotten, or glossed over, or just serve as transitional material to reach the final fight, but robbed of the no-think, kick-in-the-teeth climax, suddenly the characters, plot and dialogue are centrally important—more than usual in weekly video series—and one sees them exactly as they are.

No one of any intelligence regards the basic quality level of most television series as very high. But it is silly to blame the problem on writers, actors, producers, directors or networks simply there is too much television. No one can grind out superior stories for show after show, week after week.

Thus was the debut of "The Outsider" victimized by the anti-violence crusade. And other shows will be similarly affected, and many of them will not be as basically likeable as "The Outsider," and will suffer accordingly, especially those without as amiable a leading man as McGavin.

Motivated Violence
Don't expect hearts and flowers in every action series, however. There will be "motivated" violence in a number of shows—and of course truly dramatic showdowns in violent terms are justified if properly motivated. It is unnecessary to go again into the classics of literature that are full of violence.

The television showdown, however, will come when the shows that are downplaying violence are perhaps hit hard by the early-season ratings—the ones that make the difference in whether they stay on or go off the air.

We know that unmotivated violence is going to gradually be brought back on the air in large-scale terms when things cool down. But the ratings—and the millions of dollars at stake for all networks—may cause turnabouts quicker than expected, and a reshuffling of programs and scenes. For to wait too long in the shark-eat-shark world of television ratings may well mean the few statistical points that keep a program on the air.

Uprising in Mexico

Inspired by the ideal of world harmony, the organizers of the 19th Olympiad at Mexico City have commissioned the construction of 18 monumental sculptures to line an 11-mile "Route of Friendship" leading to Olympic Village. Here are six of the works, all of which are in concrete, ranging from 20 to 66 feet in height. Large photo shows the work of Pierre Székely, who was born in Hungary and now lives in France. From the top left down and to the right are sculptures of: Swiss sculptor Willi Gutmann; Angela Gurria of Mexico; Austria-born Herbert Bayer who now lives in the United States; Joop J. Boljon, Netherlands; Italian Constantino Nivola, who lives in the United States.

Illustrations Get Wide Use In State First Grade Reading Texts

By ANN WATSON

Limited Press International textbooks used in Texas public schools appear more concerned with teaching children to "read" pictures than words.

In all five of the state-adopted textbook series for first grades there is not a single page without an illustration.

Even more important, many of the pages have no words. The children see two to five times as many picture pages as they learn words.

Taught 20 Words

In the widest-used series, for example, a child is taught 20 words in the 63 pages of Houghton-Mifflin's "Tip."

Scott, Foresman's "Sally, Dick and Jane" has 18 different words in 48 pages; American Book Company's "On Our Way" has 12 in 52 pages, and Macmillan's "Opening Books" has 28 in 49 pages.

Harper & Row's "Janet and Mark" uses 20 different words and 30 pictographs. Not until the third book in the series does the child encounter as many "new" words as reuses—without counting the regular illustrations.

Use in Speech

Many of the pictography in "Janet and Mark" represent simple words such as "ball," "doll" and "bed" which children actually learn to read in other series.

Practically all the "new" words are only new in print to the children. Most first-graders already use the words daily in speech.

Although a typical first grader understands about 4,000 spoken words, the most he learns to read in his first four books in Texas public school reading classes is 79 words. (Some textbook series contain more words, but do not expect the child to be able to read them.)

The few words that are taught are repeated over and over again with the teacher—unless she disregards her manual—asking question after question to see that the child comprehended the obvious meaning.

Ask Questions

Often the manuals call for teachers to ask almost one ques-

BERRY'S WORLD

"Well, one thing's for SURE—we've got the 'druggist vote' locked up!"

THE LIGHTER SIDE
The Chili Dispute

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The disturbance that shook Chicago during the Democratic convention was by no means the most violent political upheaval in America this year.

It was, indeed, a rather pallid affair compared to what happened in Brownsville, Tex., on the evening of July 20.

The Brownsville blowup, or blowout, was not widely reported at the time, mainly because the survivors were in no condition to talk. They were having their stomachs relined.

Since then, however, scattered details have been drifting northward and it is now possible to piece together a fairly coherent picture of the horrifying event.

Basically, it was a confrontation between supporters of Wick Fowler, the Chili party candidate for president, and a rebellious faction along the Texas-Mexican border.

Heated Dispute
At issue was the question of whether Fowler's pepper policy made him a "hawk" or a "dove" when whipping up a pot of chili.

The border gang, most of whose members are affiliated with the Wide-Awake Public Relations and Septic Tank Co., had accused Fowler, whose power base is the Chili Appreciation Society, of being "soft on chili."

One of the rebel ringleaders, Ward Colwell of the Brownsville Herald, charged that Fowler's campaign promise of "two-alarm chili in every pot" was a snare and a delusion.

He asserted that the chili Fowler was offering the nation was hardly more lethal than "washed-over cream of wheat."

Stung by the charges, Fowler, who has campaign headquarters in Austin, grabbed his most incendiary recipe and headed south, bent on whipping the insurgents into line.

Battle Line
Chili party loyalists were met in Brownsville by the dissident forces, who had their own chili pot bubbling and were additionally fortified with something called "border butter-milk."

The two sides faced each other eyeball-to-eyeball, both of which were red. Then came the brutal showdown as to which had concocted the most throat-searing dish.

For hours they dueled with ladies, each trying to incinerate the other. No body count was made, but each side held firm until the last man had fallen. It was the Alamo all over again.

In the interests of party unity, Fowler has since made overtures of reconciliation, but Colwell has thus far refused to endorse him.

Impartial observers here now believe the chili party is hopelessly divided and that Nixon, Humphrey or Wallace will win the election.

Teen Center Is Groom Project

GROOM (Spl) — Use of St. Mary's School Hall for a Community Teen Center has been offered. Adults are needed to help sponsor and organize the project. Teenagers will be offered dancing once a week, and for those who do not dance, there will be games of dominoes, pool, ping pong and other sponsored entertainment.

Any adult wishing to serve on the board of directors is asked to call Mrs. Bob Clayton, 248-4471, representatives said.

ROCKET DELAYED

TANEGASHIMA, Japan (UPI) — Bad weather and fishermen who lingered near the launching pad Wednesday forced the Japan space agency to put off testing a dummy space rocket.
