Reagan Submits 'Recovery' Plan

TOPSOIL — A Longview woman driving this car Wednesday saw the dump truck beginning to tilt and scooted over a console and out the passenger side. Longview police said she probably saved her life by moving quickly. A fireman looks over the damage which includes the top and four flattened wheels. Officers said the truck apparently went out of control trying to miss another car and veered to where the unlucky car was stopped at a stop sign. No one was injured seriously. (AP Laserphoto)

Spending, Tax Cuts Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan urged Congress on Wednesday night to "act forcefully, and now," to cut $41 billion in spending and enact tax reductions worth $1,500 to a middle-income family of four over the next three years.

To the applause of a politically divided Congress, Reagan proposed the most drastic set of budget cuts ever recommended by a president, saying they were necessary to reverse the course of a government "somewhat out of control."

Reagan said his proposal, if enacted in full, would halve the inflation rate, create 3 million new jobs and balance the federal budget by 1984.

Lead Away From 50-Year Trend

Reagan's "program for economic recovery" would put the government upon an untested path leading away from spending and regulatory trends that date back almost 50 years to Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal.

"There is nothing wrong with America that we can't fix," he declared.

Reagan needs congressional approval for almost all his proposals. Republicans, predictably, said they will push for quick action; Democrats, who control the House, promised close scrutiny, but nothing more.

The president was greeted by a prolonged standing ovation from Congress, his Cabinet, his wife Nancy and spectators who watched from the House galleries. His speech was interrupted 14 times by applause, when he mentioned budget cuts and also when he promised to boost defense spending. There was only silence when Reagan pledged to save major social programs from the budget knife.

Reagan's far-reaching fiscal program is designed to trim the functions of government and stimulate business growth. In declaring war on the costs and purposes of federal regulations, he said:

"Legitimate Purposes"

"The taxing power of government must be used to provide revenues for legitimate government purposes. It must not be used top regulate the economy or bring about social change."

Nonetheless, he vowed, the nation's poor can "rest assured that the social safety net of programs they depend on" will not be cut.

The president unveiled his program in a nationally broadcast address to a joint session of Congress, saying: "We can no longer procrastinate and hope things will get better. They will not. If we do not act forcefully, and now, the economy will get worse."

Alternative Challenged

"May I direct a question to those who have indicated unwillingness to accept this plan? ... Have they an alternative?"

This was almost a dare to the Democrats, who held the White House and dominated Congress during the past four years as the economy weakened.

"Can we, who man the ship of state, deny it is somewhat out of control?" the president asked. In his prepared remarks, the word "somewhat" did not appear.

"The people are watching and waiting," he said. "They don't demand miracles, but they do expect us to act. Let us act together ... There is nothing wrong with America that we can't fix."

"Great Urgency"

The federal spending cuts would be coupled with a $44 billion reduction in individual income taxes in fiscal 1982. Businesses would receive a $9.7 billion cut in their federal tax bite. Reagan said the tax cuts must be approved "with great urgency," and he promised later to seek additional reforms, including an end to the so-called "marriage tax."

If enacted, the president's program, by shifting priorities and trimming growth, would set the nation on its sharpest shift since Franklin D. Roosevelt began a 50-year period of expansion at the height of the Great Depression.

Failure to follow his course, the president said, would mean that "inflation and a growing tax burden will put an end to everything we believe in and to our dreams for the future."

"For too long now, we've removed from our people the decisions on how to

Bigger Hike Targeted On Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense spending would grab a larger piece of the government's spending pie at the expense of "non-essential" social aid under the budget revisions President Reagan outlined to Congress Wednesday night.

Reagan proposed that military spending rise from 24 cents out of each federal dollar in 1981 to 32 cents of each dollar by 1984.

To make room for that increase, programs the president considers either non-essential or ineffective would be cut dramatically over the next three years, from nearly 30 cents of each dollar in 1981 to 18 cents by 1984.

Reagan told Congress he wants to boost military spending by $169.5 billion through 1986 "to rebuild the nation's inadequate defense capacities."

Reagan said a U.S. military buildup in the face of steady Soviet growth in armed power is an overriding priority in his plans for the years ahead.

"The consequences of permitting a growing divergence of military power to persist during the 1980s are so fraught with danger that a major effort to improve our defense posture must be made over the next five years," the new president said in a written report devoted mostly to laying out his program for economic recovery by slashing non-defense spending.

"There is no need to match the numerical dimension of Soviet forces, but the forces we procure must be fully capable of coping with the threat we will face during the coming decade," he asserted.

Social programs affected by the proposed reductions in the budget document that former President Jimmy Carter sent to Congress last month range from food stamps to dairy price supports and from

FOUR CRITICAL

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Four surviving members of a set of week-old quintuplets remained in critical condition Wednesday following the death of the first-born, a girl named Trisha. The five were born 12 weeks prematurely and each weighed less than 2 pounds.

Soviets Free Jewish Dissident

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Soviet Jewish dissident Yosef Mendelevich was unexpectedly freed Wednesday after nearly 11 years in a Soviet labor camp in what was seen as a possible human rights overture by the Kremlin to the Reagan administration. He received a hero's welcome on arrival in Israel and was immediately made a citizen of the Jewish state.

The 33-year-old computer engineer and devout Orthodox Jew had been sentenced to 12 years in the Ural mountain camp for his part in an abortive attempt to hijack a plane from Leningrad to Sweden in 1970.

His study of Hebrew while in jail and refusal to eat non-kosher food or work on the Jewish sabbath endeared him to Israelis. Several hundred Israeli citizens, many of them Soviet immigrants, gave him an exuberant welcome on his arrival at Ben Gurion International Airport.

His admirers hoisted him onto their shoulders and carried him out of the airport while the crowd swelled to more than a thousand.

Mendelevich, looking pale from what Jewish officials said was a months-long hunger strike, said in the near-perfect Hebrew self-taught during his imprisonment, "I don't see myself deserving such a reception. You say to me 'Welcome,' and I say, 'Blessed are those who are here.'"

His arrival in Israel "fulfills the vision of the forefathers of an ingathering of the exiles," the deeply-religious Mendelevich added. He drank a glass of wine and joined the crowd in singing a hymn, "The People of Israel Lives."

Immigration Absorption Minister David Levy handed him his citizenship papers, saying "Here you will fill your lungs with freedom. Here your trial ends."

An elderly lady pushed through the crowd and handed him a bunch of twigs, explaining they had once been flowers that Mendelevich had given her before being jailed.

Mendelevich's sister who lives in Israel, Rivka Drori, said she would take her brother immediately to the Wailing Wall. Judaism's holiest shrine, "and afterwards we're going home." During a stopover in Vienna, Mendelevich had said he wanted to walk directly from the airport to the Wailing Wall, 30 miles away in Jerusalem.

Jewish officials in Vienna credited the Soviet Ambassador to Washington, Anatoly Dobrynin, and other diplomats there with working out the release in talks with leaders of the World Jewish Congress over the past year.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said his government got a "hint" earlier this week that Mendelevich would be freed, but Western diplomats in Moscow said they had no inkling of his release.

Senior Western diplomats noted that Washington has insisted on policy changes by the Kremlin as a first step to

Hance Briefs Throng At Andrews Meeting On Budget, Tax Cuts

A-J Correspondent

ANDREWS — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance told an overflow crowd gathered in the district courtroom here Wednesday night "everyone in Congress is in agreement most everyone will get budget cuts as long as they are across the board."

Explaining the cuts will come through tax breaks, Hance said the first tax break will be given to the average citizen. "The first bill is real simple," the Lubbock Congressman said. "For individuals there will be a 10 percent tax cut for three years, and the second portion is acceleration of depreciation for business."

Hance's comments on the Reagan Administration's proposed budget cuts were well received by the citizenry here which, during the question and answer period, enthusiastically applauded an Andrews woman's statement supporting less federal aid.

Budget Cuts Applauded

"As a member of the majority of the tax paying segment of the population, I want you to take back my sentiment that my family is in clear agreement with President Reagan's budget cut proposals," the woman read from her prepared statement. "I'm not on a give-away program, but I think it's time to get back to the philosophy if you want a helping hand, look to the end of your own elbow."

She received a standing ovation from her fellow Andrews residents at the meeting, the first of 12 "Town Hall" sessions throughout the region Hance has scheduled for this week.

As for a break on the windfall profits tax, the representative said there was little or no chance on the repeal for this year. "Later, it might be possible to exclude certain groups like royalty owners," Hance added.

The Congressman said another factor working against the repeal of the windfall profits tax was the rising cost of gaso-

At Least 10 Perish In Bus Crash

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — A commuter bus crashed through a guardrail on Interstate 95 Wednesday afternoon and hurtled down an 80-foot embankment into a creek. Police said at least 10 people were killed, including the driver, and 14 were injured.

The bus driver "just went off the right side for no apparent reason. It's very mysterious," said State Trooper S.G. Gregg, who is in charge of the investigation at the scene about 30 miles south of Washington, D.C.

"As he started to the right lane everything was normal," said Wayne Richey, a Colonial Heights truck driver who witnessed the crash. "All of a sudden he just kept going to the right ... right into the guardrail, skimmed the guardrail, hit the corner of the bridge (over the creek) just like a piece of paper being blown by the wind. He just went airborne over the side of the bridge."

Donald Harvey and Wayne Mason, two Fairfax County fire fighters who witnessed the accident, helped some of the injured from the bus, which came to rest on its side in Chopowamsic Creek in about a foot of water. The front of the bus was demolished.

State police closed the southbound lane of the highway so U.S. Park Police helicopters could land to take victims to hospitals.

"It was complete chaos, mainly in the

Pope Urges China To Resume Ties

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Pope John Paul II urged China on Wednesday to resume ties with the Roman Catholic Church, bore a message of comfort to Manila's poorest slum dwellers and watched panicked security guards subdue a young man who rushed up to him.

During the second hectic day of his six-day visit to the Philippines, the pontiff also honored the country's 42 million Roman Catholics by giving them their first candidate for sainthood in a moving ceremony police said was attended by 3 million people.

In a series of appearences, the pope told the country's professional elite to serve the poor and not to worry about money and power.

Heated Partisan Debate Greets Economic Plan

Key members of Congress got an advance peek at Reagan's huge package of budget and tax cuts in a series of special briefings.

Republicans, who control the Senate, emerged praising the initiative and calling for quick enactment while Democrats — the majority party in the House — were more skeptical.

The biggest dispute to surface between Democrats and Republican was the question of how quickly Reagan could expect action on his program.

House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois took House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to task for arguing against rush action.

"Business as usual in the last Congress meant we sat idly by, fiddling away while the economy burned," Michel said in a House floor speech. "We can't afford more business as usual. We need the haste without the waste."

But O'Neill, who along with other top congressional leaders got a personal briefing on the plan from Reagan, called GOP hopes of speedy approval "very unrealistic."

O'Neill said the Reagan plan was slapped together in 30 days. "Does it contain inequities? You bet it does," he told reporters at his daily news briefing.

He said he remains opposed to current administration and Senate plans to treat the Reagan budget as something of an amendment to the budget submitted earlier this year by former President Carter.

O'Neill said Reagan's plan should be considered on a point-by-point basis, not as a single unit. "We have to get all the facts," he said.

At the same time, O'Neill denied that House Democrats will deliberately drag their feet on the Reagan program. "In no way are we going to obstruct it. We understand the will of the American people," the House speaker said.

O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., will meet privately with Reagan at 9:30 a.m. today to discuss ways Congress will handle the president's proposals.

Public hearings in both House and Senate are also scheduled today on the Reagan package.

O'Neill also met Wednesday with other Democratic leaders to discuss what approach they would take in reacting publicly to Reagan's budget.

Afterward, they issued a statement that said, in part: "the Democratic leadership will cooperate fully in trying to reduce inflation, reduce growth of government spending and promote economic recovery.

"As Democrats, the leadership is concerned that the budget cuts are fair and the tax reductions are equitable. It is important that the sacrifices called for in the proposed budget are shared equally and that the benefits of the tax cut are not reaped priarily by the few."

In other initial Capitol Hill reaction to Reagan's proposals, Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., broke rank with the Democratic leadership to praise Reagan's efforts to cut the government's synthethic fuel program.

Obey said huge profits of oil companies in recent years should provide "ample incentive" to develop synthetic fuels.

And Rep. Robert S. Walker, R-Pa., joined those blasting Democratic opposition to giving the Reagan program rush

District Judge Pondering Murder Suspect's Bond Reduction Motion

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A state district court judge is considering murder suspect Vernon Ray Gilmore's motion for reduced bond in connection with a recently filed auto theft charge — but the judge already has informed attorneys a high bond for a man facing several felony charges may not be unreasonable.

Gilmore was indicted for the Nov. 7 slaying of Richard Grier Luster, 28, of Spicewood. Luster's body was found on a sloping road leading to a caliche pit near Lake Ransom Canyon.

However, Gilmore and Samantha Jane Davidson, who also is charged with the murder, fled to Canada before they could be taken into custody. The pair was arrested in late December in Washington at the Canada-United States border as they attempted to return to the United States.

In connection with the murder charge, a bond of $250,000 was set but that amount was ruled excessive by Judge John R. McFall, who reduced it to $25,000.

Gilmore later was charged with an unrelated burglary and his bond set at $20,000 for that offense. District Judge Robert C. Wright ordered that bond be reduced to $12,000.

When Gilmore was charged last Tuesday with stealing a Jeep, bringing to four the number of separate felony charges the suspect faces, his bond was set at $25,000.

Gilmore's attorney, Danny Hurley, filed a motion to have his client's bond for the most recent charge reduced early this week.

First Assistant District Attorney Jim Bob Darnell argued in Judge Denzil Bevers' court Wednesday that "$25,000 is not too high for this individual." He cited the numerous charges pending against Gilmore as well as his flight to Canada as evidence that "this is an individual who would not return for trial if let out of jail."

Hurley accused the district attorney's office of "oppressing" his client through the repeated filing of charges against him. And he argued that an oral statement reportedly given by Gilmore and admitting the Jeep theft should be ruled inadmissable in considering the man's bond.

Bevers interrupted Hurley's summary to say that the district attorney's office is obligated to file any charges they feel are warranted against an individual.

"I guess that's the key, your honor," Hurley answered, "whether or not the state has proved the charge is warranted."

Hurley pointed to co-defendant Samantha Davidson, who was released from the county jail after posting a court-reduced bond and who was present in the courtroom audience. Miss Davidson faces many of the same charges, he argued, but has shown up for each of the legal preliminaries which have come before her trial.

Bevers informed Hurley and Darnell that he would take the matter "under advisement" and offer his decision at a later date, probably Friday. He warned the attorneys that the court's general opinion is that when facing multiple charges, a man perhaps has a better reason to run and that a higher-than-normal bond may be justified.

Calmer Day Expected Over Area

A-J News Services

Somewhat calmer winds and warmer temperatures are expected today in the Lubbock area, according to the National Weather Service.

On Wednesday the high temperature was 67 degrees, with a low of 38 in Lubbock. Winds reached 21 mph about noon Wednesday, with blowing dust reported. Gusts reached about 25 mph in the early afternoon.

Today's high is forecast in the mid 70s, with winds in the 5 to 10 mph range from the south. The overnight low is expected to be in the upper 30s, according to the weather service. The high Friday may reach the upper 70s.

The skies were fair Wednesday over the Lubbock area, and weather officials predict fair skies again today across the South Plains.

Wednesday morning, most of the eastern half of Texas had cloudy skies and light rain was reported in parts of the lower Valley. By late Wednesday afternoon, a weak cold front was in the area of Wichita Falls and Abilene and moving slowly eastward. Cloudy to partly cloudy skies were ahead of the front, with mostly fair skies behind it.

The extended outlook for West Texas calls for fair skies and cooler temperatures Saturday through Monday.

Elsewhere, record-high temperatures were recorded Wednesday from Michigan to New England, producing flooding in some areas as snow and ice on streams melted.

An ice jam triggered by the warmth acted as a dam and sent floodwaters chest deep into downtown Oil City, Pa., for several hours Wednesday until the jam broke, releasing the water from Oil Creek into the Allegheny River.

Ice break-ups also caused some flooding in Michigan. And the Kankakee River was expected to rise about a foot over flood stage at Shelby, Ind.

The temperature hit 73 degrees at Baltimore, where officials had expected cold weather and closed school for 230,000 pupils.

Changes In DA's Office Announced

Assistant District Attorney Travis Ware has been named Felony Division Chief for the Criminal District Attorney's office, replacing former chief Richard Howell who leaves the office to accept a private practice position in Dallas.

Ware, 31, a 1978 graduate of Texas Tech Law School, practiced law with district attorney John T. Montford before he took office in January 1979. As felony chief, Ware will be responsible for supervising all felony-related work in the office. Howell, who served as felony chief since Montford's first day in office, begins work in Dallas in March.

Mary Ann Wiley, who was graduated from St. Mary's Law School in 1973, was sworn in as an assistant district attorney Wednesday morning to fill the gaps in the office left by Howell's departure and the loss of attorney John Tabor more than a month ago. Tabor left Lubbock to accept a position in the Odessa district attorney's office.

Montford said Wednesday he feels lucky to have hired Miss Wiley. The Lubbock attorney worked in the district attorney's office from 1973 to 1977, leaving the job for a stint in private practice.

"I'm glad to have her back on this side," Montford said, adding that Ware would serve well as the new division chief because of his intense attitude toward work and thoroughness.

City Men Charged In Robbery

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Two Lubbock men remained in the Hale County Jail Wednesday night on robbery charges after being apprehended by an off-duty policeman minutes after the Tuesday night robbery of a convenience store here.

Ruben Garza, 23, of 2006 Ninth St. and San Juan Flores, 27, of 409 51st St. were being held in lieu of $50,000 bond each. Both men were charged Wednesday with aggravated robbery in connection with the heist at Brown's Grocery Store here.

The pair was arrested shortly after the 7 p.m. robbery by Det. Mike Carroll, an off-duty officer who heard the description of the suspect's vehicle broadcast over police radio, according to Assistant Police Chief Jerry Austin.

The woman attendant at the store told police a Mexican-American man entered the store, drew a small-caliber revolver and demanded money. A second man was waiting outside the store in a 1978 Lincoln Continental, Austin said.

The woman told officers she handed over about $180 from the store cash register and the robber walked out the door. A customer in the store followed the man outside and saw him get in the getaway car, Austin said.

The customer provided police at the scene with a description, which was broadcast to other officers, Austin said.

Carroll, who was driving in the area in his police car, heard the description and stopped the vehicle on U.S. 87 south of Plainview, about 10 minutes after the robbery.

The men were arrested without incident and a handgun was found in the front seat of the vehicle, Austin said.

Statistics Show Increase In Personal Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans made nearly 1 percent more in personal income last month, but they quickly spent that new money and more, the government reported Wednesday.

It also said that more new housing had been started and the nation's industries had produced at a greater percentage of their capacity in January than the month before.

Taken together, the figures indicated stronger-than-expected demand on the part of consumers generally thought to be jittery over inflation and high interest rates.

The Commerce Department said personal consumption spending rose twice as fast as disposable income in January. It also said new savings account deposits, caught in the middle, sank 10.7 percent to an annual rate of $88.1 billion, the lowest level in nearly a year.

The continued strong spending in recent months "has certainly been a surprise" to analysts, said William Cox, the department's deputy chief economist.

"We can clearly say that consumer spending, even for autos and housing, is holding up better than last spring," another period of rapidly rising interest rates, he said.

The housing industry, which suffered badly in last year's recession, had been predicting more tough times early this year because of lingering high interest rates.

But the Commerce Department said housing starts rose 3.5 percent in January to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.59 million units after falling 1.2 percent in December.

However, issuance of building permits dropped 1.8 percent in January, the department reported. It was the second straight monthly decline and an indication that building might be slow in future months.

The Federal Reserve Board reported Wednesday that the nation's manufacturers operated at about 80 percent of capacity in January, the sixth straight monthly increase in that figure.

The increase — from 79.8 percent utilization — was yet another indication of producers' confidence in the economy and another sign that a new recession is becoming less and less likely early this year.

The Commerce Department said personal income rose $21.3 billion, or 0.9 percent, from December's total to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2.3 trillion in January. The percentage increase was about the same as the one in December over November.

After-tax, or disposable, income gained about 0.7 percent to an annual rate of $1.93 trillion, but personal spending rose at twice that rate — 1.4 percent — to an annual level of $1.84 trillion, the report said.

Most of that spending — about $1.79 trillion — went for personal consumption expenditures, which also were up 1.4 percent in January. In addition, the report said, revised figures now show a 0.8 percent increase in personal consumption spending in December, rather than the 0.3 percent originally reported.

The report said December's savings added up to just 4.9 percent of disposable income, the lowest percentage since last February. Though the percentage has not yet been computed for January, the raw total for January was the lowest since the $87.4 billion of last March.

A department statement included in the report said January's nationwide personal income was augmented by about $2 billion because of a rise in the minimum wage but was decreased by about $8.8 billion because of a higher new base rate for Social Security taxes.

The report also said:

•Wages and salaries rose 1.4 percent in January to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.43 trillion.

•Transfer payments, such as old-age and health insurance benefits, rose 0.7 percent to an annual rate of $316.7 billion.

•Unadjusted per capita disposable income rose 0.7 percent to an annual rate of $8,601. Per capita disposable income adjusted for inflation has not yet been computed for January but rose 0.1 percent in December.

U.N. Peace Effort Under Way In Iraq

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.N. Special Envoy Olof Palme launched his third peace-seeking mission in the Iran-Iraq war Wednesday in a meeting with top Iraqi leaders, Baghdad Radio reported. Iran again vowed there would be no cease-fire before invading Iraqis retreat.

Baghdad Radio said the former Swedish prime minister met with Vice Premier Tarek Azis and other top officials in the Iraqi capital, but it did not indicate whether Palme offered specific proposals for ending the war, now nearly six months old.

The broadcast, monitored here, said he would meet President Saddam Hussein Wednesday night or today.

Baghdad Radio also said Husseln told the mother of an Iraqi soldier killed in action that the Iranians leave their dead on the battlefields despite offers through the International Red Cross to allow "the enemy...to evacuate his dead unmolested."

"They just leave their dead to decompose on the battlefield," he was quoted as telling the mourning woman.

Palme is representing U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim in efforts to bring about a cease-fire and negotiated settlement between the Persian Gulf neighbors who have been warring since Sept. 22. This is his third trip to Iran and Iraq since hostilities broke out.

Palme is also attempting to complete arrangements for the evacuation of an estimated 70 foreign-flagged merchant ships which have been stranded since the war's start in the Shatt-al-Arab waterway that separates Iran and Iraq.

Palme is expected in Tehran this weekend, where Parliament Speaker Hasemi Rafsanjani told the state-run radio Wednesday, "Only when the Iraqi aggressor is out of Iranian territory would we be willing to end the war."

Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai has told several Western European governments Iran will "fight for a century" if necessary to drive out Iraqi troops, an Iranian emissary said at a London news conference Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Iran's president and commander in chief of the armed forces, Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, was quoted by Tehran Radio as telling Iranians their "vigilance and fight against deviation and corruption should increase tenfold."

"You must not think that with the downfall of the shah's regime, the job is done," he said in a message which Tehran Radio said observed the anniversary of an anti-shah uprising in Tabriz.

"People of Tabriz...of all Azerbaijan, the slogan 'freedom, liberty, Islamic republic' epitomizes an historic movement in which you...have played a determining role," Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying.

The broadcast said he said, "You should know that no living nation would undertake the struggle against dictatorship and dependence so that it would then sit in a corner and allow any group to do anything they wished with its revolution, country and aims. The revolution is like an infant which should be raised in the bosom of the nation."

Tehran Radio also broadcast a war communique which claimed 250 Iraqi soldiers were killed Tuesday in the highlands of Gilan Gharb and Ilam provinces. Iraqi war communiques claimed 163 Iranian soldiers died.

Iraq has been getting most of its imports, including arms and basic commodities, through Jordan's Red Sea port of Aqaba since the start of the war.

RARE FIND

LONDON (AP) — A gold coin dating from the reign of Henry VIII, left lying around in a box because its owner thought it was a brass token, fetched $29,900 at a Sotheby's auction in London Wednesday.

ONLY HOPE FOR EXPRESSWAY

Route For I-27 Well-Advised

A GOOD TURNOUT in support of the recommended route and design of Interstate Highway 27 through Lubbock would be a clear signal at tonight's public hearing that the project has the backing of the community.

The Avalanche-Journal believes, along with the City Council, the County Commissioners Court, the Chamber of Commerce and other interested groups, that this is the single most important issue facing Lubbock today.

It is imperative that this project move ahead without further delay. It is our only hope for an expressway facility that will move traffic through Lubbock and disperse it in a way that does not strangle our already clogged thoroughfare system.

AFTER GETTING input from the citizenry at earlier meetings and hearings, highway engineers have narrowed an originally long list of route suggestions down to the one which their years of study have convinced them is the best.

All things considered, it is indeed the best. With an improvement here and there in the design, primarily related to the on-and-off ramps serving downtown and Loop 289 South, this route is one which will serve Lubbock's tri-ethnic citizenry best of all.

Generally, the route follows Avenue A from the north side of the city to 4th Street, passes just east of downtown and then veers westward to track Avenue H from about 30th Street to Loop 289 on the south.

Under existing law, moreover, anyone who is displaced by the project will be fully reimbursed and helped to find comparable housing elsewhere in the city.

The design will give East Lubbock better access to the central business district and a faster, safer route to suburban shopping centers in Southwest Lubbock.

IT WILL RELIEVE congestion on inner-city streets, including 19th and 34th Streets and various north-south avenues, by giving motorists an alternate and preferred route through and across town.

Highway traffic headed for an inside-Lubbock destination will not be bottle-necked and through-traffic likewise will be expedited.

Lubbock has waited longer than any other city of comparable size in the nation for an Interstate facility to serve it.

Now, time grows short. Any further delays could deny us our rightful Interstate connection because all funding is scheduled to expire for projects not under contract by September, 1986.

That leaves barely enough time to acquire the right of way and get it cleared for construction.

The Avalanche-Journal encourages progressive, self-interested and civic-minded persons to attend the public hearing at 7 p.m. today in the Memorial Civic Center and indicate support for I-27.

Stand up and be counted for a Better Lubbock down the road.

WHOLE STATE TO BENEFIT

Life Breathed Into Pay Bill

SUPPORTERS of a bill to get state funding for medical residencies in teaching hospitals are "guardedly optimistic" that the legislation will pass this time around.

That is good news.

The legislation, which came a cropper in 1979, sailed through the Senate Human Resources Committee, 8-0, this week and was assigned to what is described as a "friendly subcommittee" in the House.

If approved and signed into law by Gov. Bill Clements, the measure would authorize the state to pay a salary of up to $15,000 each for young doctors who are completing their educations as resident physicians.

Up to now, this cost has been borne by local taxpayers who support teaching hospitals, imposing on them an unfair and inequitable burden in educating doctors who will serve the state as a whole.

AS THESE COSTS have risen, efforts have been intensified to get the state to assume what is its rightful role in medical education.

Heretofore, opponents have pointed to clauses in legislation creating medical schools which prohibits the use of state funds for the construction, maintenance or operation of a teaching hospital.

That clause, however, does not preclude the state's paying for the educational costs of its students, whether it be in the form of a contract with a hospital or with a supplier of laboratory equipment.

Without the state's assumption of a share of the mounting costs which are its responsibility, teaching hospitals are faced with refusing to accept as many resident physicians as the medical schools need to place each year.

MORE ACTIVE SUPPORT for the legislation from the University of Texas system, which has medical schools in such major cities as San Antonio, Dallas and Houston, accounts for some of the optimism surrounding passage of the legislation this year.

Texas Tech, expanding its medical school programs in Lubbock and elsewhere, also supports the measure.

Passage of the legislation and its signing by Gov. Clements is essential to the continued well-being of medical education in Texas. We are pleased to see a growing recognition of that fact.

ART BUCHWALD:

With Chop, Chop Here And Chop, Chop There

WASHINGTON—When David Stockman, the head of the Office of Management and Budget, was a little boy, his father gave him an ax. The next morning, the father went out in the backyard and saw his favorite tree chopped down.

He called his son and said, "David, did you chop down this cherry tree?"

David replied, "Yes, Father, I did it, and it's only the beginning."

"You can't go around chopping every cherry tree just because I gave you an ax," David's father said.

"Yes, I can. Uncle Ronnie says any time I see a cherry tree I should chop it down."

"But there are good cherry trees and bad cherry trees. You have to use some discrimination in the ones you ax."

"THAT ISN'T what Uncle Ronnie told me. He said he wants the trees cleared out, across the board."

"David, you have to understand something about cherry trees. Some cherry trees give off beautiful blossoms, but don't bear any fruit. If you chop them down, you lose nothing. But other trees produce cherries and we need them or we won't have anything to eat."

"I don't have time to figure out which are the good cherry trees and which are the bad ones."

"Uncle Ronnie says he promised to cut all the cherry trees in Washington, except for those around the Pentagon. He said under no conditions could I touch them. Well, back to work."

"Wait, David. Are you sure you know what you're doing?"

"LOOK, FATHER, I'm not chopping down the entire cherry tree. I'm just lopping off the branches and part of the trunk."

"That's good for some trees, but it's very bad for others. Once you sink your ax into the trunk, the cherry tree will die."

"Well, we've got to get rid of the cherry trees, and this is the only way I know how to do it."

"Do you realize that every tree in Washington is a favorite of somebody? They don't mind your cutting down the other fellow's cherry tree, but they're going to get awfully mad when they find out you're going to knock down theirs."

"Uncle Ronnie knows that, and he's willing to back me up if anyone gets mad when I cut his tree.

"He says we can't afford all these trees and the only way he can get our yard in order is to knock down as many as we can, even if it means people are going to have to go without cherries."

A neighbor stopped by and said to David's father, "That son of yours swings a mean ax. What's he doing?"

"I'm not quite sure," the father said. "I gave him this ax and his Uncle Ronnie told him to chop down every cherry tree in Washington, except the ones around the Pentagon."

"He's not going to chop down my cherry trees, is he?" the neighbor asked.

"He chopped down mine, and I'm his father."

"That's some kid you've got there. I wonder what he's going to do when he grows up."

Timely Quotes...

Bop Hope said, "Ronald Reagan dispelled Jimmy Carter's accusations that he's a warmonger—after all, he took over an entire country with only one casualty."

Two people know they have had a meaningful conversation when each feels he has demonstrated his superior intelligence and wisdom.

JOSEPH KRAFT:

Polish Labor Pangs

WASHINGTON—Senior American diplomatic officials believe a Soviet military thrust into Poland has become inevitable. They foresee a catastrophe that will cast dark shadows over Soviet relations with this country and the rest of the world.

But for tactical reasons they are muting that extremely somber view. They do not want to deaden reaction by advance publicity.

They do not want anybody—particularly our allies—to shrug off the Soviet move as something in the cards all along, something to be expected, business as usual.

"Near anarchy" is the phrase used in the State Department to describe conditions in Poland. These are the elements of the situation as seen by the highest officials:

The Polish workers are out of control. The Polish farmers are out of control. The Polish students are out of control. Even the rank and file of the Communist Party is exceedingly restive.

Institutions for order and discipline have lost their grip. The trade union leadership of Lech Walesa would like to calm matters. But it has no authority over the vast number of workers and farmers now rising in spontaneous protest.

The Catholic Church believes in coexistence with the Communist authorities. But it cannot intervene against students who resist the compulsory teaching of Marxism.

The Communist Party leadership seeks to avoid confrontation with any of the constituent groups in the country—the more so as it might serve as an excuse for Soviet intervention.

ACCORDINGLY, THE Party leadership has been making concession after concession after concession.

It gave on wages in the first showdown with the unions last summer. Then on hours. Then on registering the unions officially. It also gave on ousting the former Party Secretary, Edward Gierek, and many of his associates.

It gave in accepting more access to the media for the trade unions. And for the church. It gave, most recently, in ousting Jozef Pinkowski as Prime Minister and replacing him with former Defense Minister, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Gen. Jaruzelski is known as a moderate nationalist. He is Soviet-trained and thought to have the backing of Moscow. As Defense Minister he refused to use force against the dissident workers.

HE HAS no political ambitions and apparently turned off a move to make him Party Secretary last summer. His appointment to be prime minister is seen here as a "smart move."

But perhaps not smart enough. The State Department likens the tactics of the Polish Party to the peeling of an onion. It has taken off one layer after another. Now it's very close to the core.

Soviet authorities, it is believed here, have gone along with the onion tactics. The Russians are thought to have little stomach for a full-scale invasion.

They understand well the toll that would be taken in military terms alone. Also the economic burden that would devolve upon Moscow. Finally, they realize the Soviet Union would receive a black eye all over the world.

IF POSSIBLE, it is believed here, the Russians would prefer Poland to do the heavy work. They would like Polish soldiers and Polish police to apply force. They would like Polish political leaders to give the orders.

If intervention is required, Moscow would prefer to be invited in by the authorities in Warsaw.

Accordingly, though unhappy about the evolution of events, the Russians have accepted the policy of concession so far.

That relatively tolerant attitude is expected to last at least through the Congress of the Soviet Communist Party beginning in Moscow on Feb. 23.

The State Department believes strongly the Russians do not want the Party Congress messed up by an invasion of Poland. But thereafter, it is thought, the Russians too will be reaching the core of the onion.

IF THE Soviets do invade, the Reagan administration expects a world crisis. Secretary of State Alexander Haig would fly immediately to Europe to confer with the heads of allied governments.

A total embargo on economic dealing with the Soviets would be applied. New Western defense efforts would be spurred forward. Political dealings with the Russians, particularly in arms control, would be suspended.

At the United Nations, and in other international forums, there would be moves for harsh condemnation.

Some hard-liners may even welcome a Soviet move on Poland as an opportunity—a chance to alert this country and its allies to the challenge posed by the Russians.

But that is not the view at the senior levels of the State Department. Here the prospect of a Soviet move against Poland is regarded as a foretaste of a genuine cataclysm.

One has the sense that there is brewing a storm that could shatter allegiances and shift the grouping of nations all over the globe.

ANDREW TULLY:

A Salute To Inman

WASHINGTON—"First Jimmy Carter and now Bobby Ray Inman," complained the correspondent for a British newspaper. "Where do you people find your public servants?"

He was informed that in the South and Southwest, Americans tend to be impatient with what they consider overly formal first names.

As to where Rear Adm. Bobby Ray Inman, the new No. 2 man at the CIA was "found," nobody had to look for him.

The admiral was right there—the director of the super-secret National Security Agency, acknowledged by both his peers and the government establishment as the nation's top spy boss.

RONALD REAGAN'S appointment of Inman, 49, as the CIA's deputy director was easily his most impressive nomination.

It would seem that Inman was born to be an intelligence officer. His dossier is filled with kudos from VIP's in the spying community.

Praise came to him as chief intelligence officer for the 7th Fleet; naval attache in Sweden; director of Naval Intelligence; vice director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, and finally during his four years as boss of the NSA.

At the NSA, Inman oversaw the nation's largest, most sophisticated and most complex intelligence organization.

The agency's mission includes cracking enemy codes, developing unbreakable ciphers for U.S. use, and the use of satellites to monitor, translate and analyze worldwide communications among the world's nations.

"IT'S A job in which goofs are almost expected," said an NSA official. "Bobby Inman breezed through it, unflappable, low-key, and above all leavening the products of a brilliant mind with a kind of Main Street horse sense."

In fact, Inman wanted to stay at NSA, where personal intelligence is the No. 1 requisite. He admitted wryly that he had come to the hearings on his nomination by the Senate Armed Services Committee, as a "draftee."

Inman's testimony before the Senate committee was, as Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, commented, "direct and forthcoming." Inman never hedged his opinions; his responses totally lacked political flavor.

HE STATED flatly that intelligence manpower levels had been steadily eroded over the last eight years. He hoped for "redress" despite the federal hiring freeze.

He wants more analysts who understand foreign cultures, religions, politics and economics, and who speak foreign languages.

He dared to say the intelligence community might have to find new ways to recruit and train language students even if it requires sponsoring programs in universities.

As they would say in Inman's native Texas, Ronald Reagan "has hired a hand."

JAY HARRIS:

New Old Mexico

ALTHOUGH THE spotlight is on El Salvador and the bloody strife there, the next chapter in U.S.-Latin American relations may well be closer home.

While what happens in Cuba, Nicaragua and other Central American nations will take a top spot in U.S. foreign policy, what happens between the U.S. and Mexico will be a case of its own.

How the Reagan administration fares in its efforts to rebuild admittedly frayed relations with Uncle Sam's neighbor to the south may well determine whether the Third World's unrest and terror come to America's and Texas' southern border, or are defused.

At the moment, although the Mexican people are friendly to visitors from the United States, the Mexican government and intelligentsia are hard leftists. With the U.S. taking a stand against any further Marxist inroads in this hemisphere, the U.S.-Mexican standoff is the stuff of which collision courses are made...

IN MANY WAYS, what is happening between the U.S. and Mexico is a carbon copy of what is happening in many places around the globe...

Emerging and formerly backward nations, with their huge reserves of oil and gas, suddenly have found themselves in position to bargain with the more affluent and powerful industrial Free World, both on a monetary and political basis.

Because the demand is there, with the money to back it up, not only OPEC nations, but Mexico find themselves in the position of being able to call the shots, not only on their supplies of the precious energy, but to a degree on foreign policy.

In most instances, the Third World needs the Free World much more than it needs the Marxist one, or even a flaunting of its new-found power. But, it doesn't always work out that way.

WHILE PRESIDENT Jose Lopez Portillo offered the hand of friendship to Mr. Reagan in Ciudad Juarez recently, it would be foolish for the American people to assume that all was roses and tequilla in U.S.-Mexican relations.

Recently, Anthony Harrigan, who pens a column under the auspices of the U.S. Industrial Council, cited several comments by top Mexican leaders to show how the wind is blowing south of the border.

In a ceremony marking an agreement for an oil and technological exchange with Cuba, Jorge Diaz Serrano, director of Petroleos Mexicanos, was quoted as saying:

"As a historian, I understand that what happened during this century is imposing, but what has been done and is being done in Cuba will go down in human history as an example of dignity."

WHEN PRESIDENT Reagan won the election and later when he named Gen. Alexander Haig as Secretary of State, Mexico's "controlled" press was critical.

One writer charged that Gen. Haig "already is brandishing the big stick." And Excelsior, a leading paper, said that "Haig has formed a frame of crude demagoguery" and warned of eventual action against the "bastion of social democracy called Nicaragua."

In another comment, Jorge Castaneda, the Mexican foreign secretary, spoke out against "intervention" in El Salvador, meaning American aid to the Salvadoran junta which is fighting Marxist terrorists. The U.S. only this week charged that the guerrillas were being supplied arms through Cuba and indirectly Soviet Russia and warned that the U.S. would step up its own aid to the ruling junta.

Thus the seeds for potential problems have been sown. How the two nations work out their mutual concerns and needs may become one of the major challenges of the Reagan administration.

HEALING PAST wounds and working toward common goals won't be easy.

In the first place, Harrigan notes, there are understandable historical roots for the anti-Americanism and infatuation with the Left in Mexico.

After all, the U.S. once invaded Mexico and in effect took over much of its territory, although seeking to make compensation of a sort later.

Mexico has a history of strong, centralized political control utterly at odds with that in the U.S. The long Mexican Revolution, with its nationalization and confiscation of private property, makes many Mexicans identify more readily with current Third World aims.

Too, the U.S. has been less than "savvy" in its dealings down through the years with Mexico. It often has sent officials who don't speak the language and others who looked upon the country as the land of manana, which it no longer is. In brief, Mexico is a nation still seeking its place in the sun.

BUT, HOW IT finds that place is the crux of things.

There are those in Mexico who want to expand the role of free enterprise and seek more friendly relations with the U.S.

But, they face obstacles. The government dominates the universities, keeps a hand on films and exerts pressure on the media through control of newsprint. The nation for all practical purposes is a one-party state. Corruption is reported to be widespread.

Mexico is a land of contrasts, with modern industry and imposing homes on one hand and vast pockets of poverty as bad as any in the world on the other. There are no quick answers to backward agricultural problems, nor a soaring population with a demand for food.

There are those who suggest the U.S. may work out some arrangement whereby American food is traded for Mexican crude. Currently, hordes of Mexican aliens flee their homeland daily to come to the U.S. to seek a better way of life. And to pose problems in the process...

There are no easy answers, but answers must be found. The best U.S. policy seems to be one of cordiality but firmness. The stakes for both the U.S. and Mexico are too enormous to blunder...

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

FROM THE Latin word "rapere" meaning to "seize," to "carry away," we get one of the most beautiful words, "rapture," and the ugliest, "rape." So reports our Language man.

No boater should go far to sea without a solar still. It's a sort of balloon around a smaller container. Pour sea water into the middle and fresh water condenses on the inside of the balloon's skin. It trickles into a collection bag beneath.

Pretty nifty. On a hot sunny day, it can give you from three to five pints of fresh water. Marine supply stores sell these rigs.

Attorney Chosen To Witness Death

MOORESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Convicted murderer Steven T. Judy has chosen only his attorney, Steven Harris, to witness his death in the electric chair on March 9, the lawyer said Wednesday.

"He's entitled to have 10 people, but he only put my name on the list," Harris said. "It seems like a lot of responsibility, and I don't look forward to seeing him executed. But I feel like it is my obligation to see this thing through."

Judy, 23, was convicted of raping and killing Terry L. Chasteen and drowning her three small children in April 1979. He steadfastly has refused to appeal his death penalty, saying he would rather die than continue to live in prison.

Harris said Indiana Correction Department officials informed him Tuesday that he was the only person Judy had chosen to witness his scheduled execution. He said he asked prison officials to find out if Judy can change his mind and later expand the list.

"I believe he chose me because I'm the only person he trusts who would want to be there," Harris said. Judy's foster parents, Robert and Mary Carr of Indianapolis, have said they do not want to witness the execution.

In case Judy changes his mind at the last minute, Harris said there will be a telephone at the prison March 9, connected directly to the governor's office. If Judy wishes it, Harris will request a stay of execution.

"I'm inclined to think he won't (change his mind), but I want to be prepared if he does," Harris said.

Judy, who has admitted to 13 rapes, 50 armed robberies and 200 burglaries, has some regrets about killing Mrs. Chasteen and her children, Harris said.

"One regret is being caught," he said. "He's not proud of what he did, but he doesn't regret it the way a normal person would.

"He hadn't slept before the murders. He'd had 12 beers and four diet pills, and he's a spontaneous, instant-gratification sort of person. He really doesn't comprehend the seriousness of what he's done.

"But he's actually a very likable and charming person. Even the prison guards at Michigan City like him. That's what makes it even more scary, really. He's so charming and so dangerous at the same time."

Reagan Plans Reduction In Federal Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan proposed a series of regulatory reforms on Wednesday that he claims will save the government $600 million more than under his predecessor's budget.

The proposals, which must be approved by Congress, also are intended to eliminate the work of more than 6,000 government officials through fiscal 1982.

The administration also said previous steps to postpone or withdraw about a dozen regulations will save business and individuals nearly $1 billion a year.

These savings appear modest in light of administration estimates that regulations now cost the private sector about $100 billion annually. However, Reagan vowed a full-fledged attack on federal rules.

"The program of regulatory relief is just getting under way," he said in his economic message. "Future regulatory reform efforts will be directed not only at proposed regulations, but also at existing (rules and) statutes that are particularly burdensome."

Although drastic spending and tax cuts have commanded the administration's greatest attention, Reagan considers regulatory reform a crucial tool in the battle to lower inflation and balance the budget.

"While there is widespread agreement on the legitimate role of government in protecting the environment, promoting health and safety, safeguarding workers and consumers, and guaranteeing equal opportunity, there is also growing realization that excessive regulation is a very significant factor in our current economic difficulties," Reagan said.

The administration's proposed reforms would cut $137 million in federal spending this fiscal year, when compared with former President Carter's budget, and another $484 million compared to the Carter plan for fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1.

As a result, the equivalent of 6,200 full-time government jobs can be saved, mostly in the energy, environmental and health care sectors, the administration said.

For example, Reagan wants to cut more than $140 million in fiscal 1982 by phasing out health planning agencies and professional standards review organizations, which he called "burdensome bureaucracies" that cost more than they save. The review organizations help regulate Medicare and Medicaid services.

Reform of environmental and energy regulations will cut more than $300 million in the next two years and reduce federal employment by the equivalent of 3,500 jobs, the administration says.

Oil price decontrol, while increasing consumer energy prices, will save taxpayers about $50 million in fiscal 1982.

In addition, Reagan proposes to "completely eliminate or replace" Energy Department price and allocation regulations, mandatory fuel-use restrictions, and a coupon rationing system to be used when gasoline is in short supply.

In the past month, the Reagan administration already has withdrawn or postponed about a dozen regulations it claims would add huge costs to the government and public.

Reagan Breaks Three Promises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although he followed through on his pledge to seek budget and tax cuts, President Reagan broke three campaign promises in the economic package he sent to Congress Wednesday night.

Barely a month in office, Reagan is no longer proposing a 2 percent cut in 1981 spending, a balanced budget by 1983 or a personal income tax cut as of Jan. 1. As a presidential candidate, president-elect and president, he had vowed to accomplish all three.

Candidate Reagan had said that 2 percent — about $13 billion — could be trimmed from the 1981 budget by eliminated waste, fraud and abuse. But the president's economic plan calls for reductions of only $4.4 billion for the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, and that optimistic estimate makes the uncertain assumption that Congress will approve the savings by July 1.

Reagan also is acknowledging now that he will miss his target for balancing the budget by at least one year. During the campaign, he said he could balance the budget by 1983, possibly even 1982. Wednesday's economic package, however, projects a $45 billion deficit for 1982 and a $23 billion deficit for 1983. The budget is balanced, but just barely in 1984, when a razor-thin $500 million surplus is anticipated. For 1985, a $7 billion surplus is predicted.

The three-year, 30 percent cut in personal income tax rates that Reagan advocated throughout his campaign is now slated to begin July 1, six months later than he had promised. His advisers said a delay was necessary to keep a larger-than-expected deficit of about $55 billion from climbing higher.

Reagan Outlines Overhaul In Energy Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan proposed a broad retrenchment in government energy programs Wednesday, recommending a complete overhaul in the strategy former President Jimmy Carter considered one of his top accomplishments.

Reagan's budget revisions would cut proposed spending for promotion of solar power by 62 percent, reduce by 77 percent Carter's planned efforts to spur conservation and totally eliminate the government's standby gasoline rationing plan, which Carter worked for two years to get through Congress,.

Carter's ambitious $20 billion program to build 40 plants making synthetic fuels from coal and shale oil also would be sharply scaled back.

Reagan's proposals will require congressional approval.

However, faced with strong synfuels support in Congress, Reagan dropped plans to seek a $5 billion cut in the amount of money the newly created Synthetic Fuels Corp. would be able to spend on loan guarantees and price supports.

But Reagan is going ahead with plans to halt Energy Department support for six synthetic fuel demonstration plants in Morgantown, W.Va.; Newman, Ky.; Noble County, Ohio; Perry County, Ill.; Memphis, Tenn., and a Tennessee Valley Authority project in northern Alabama.

Eliminating those projects could save up to $5.4 billion over the next five years while losing only 100,000 barrels a day of production, Reagan's budget document estimated.

Instead of taxpayers picking up as much as 80 percent of the tab for demonstration projects jointly sponsored by the Energy Department and some of the country's largest oil companies, Reagan focuses the government's synfuels effort in the corporation, which would provide loan guarantees but not direct cash support for synfuels plants.

The projects eliminated from the department's budget could apply to the corporation for aid but with no assurances that they would receive help. In fact, Reagan's budget document said one of the advantages to shifting synfuels development to the corporation would be to "insulate project selection from the pork barrel political process."

It was not at all certain whether Reagan would be successful in those cuts or in any of the other sharp changes he is proposing in Energy Department programs, most of which were passed in the past four years by Congress.

Reagan's variety of changes are focused on a belief that sharply rising energy prices are a much better spur to conservation and increased production in the private sector than government programs.

Reagan's budget cuts would:

•Slash proposed spending for solar programs by 62 percent including the total elimination of the $2.5 billion solar energy and conservation bank Congress approved last year to provide subsidized loans for homeowners. It was estimated 160,000 homeowners would have taken advantage of the bank in 1981, but Reagan's budget proposes revoking all funding.

•Scrap the planned $105 million program to set up a nationwide plan to ration gasoline in extreme shortages. Critics attacked as unworkable the proposal to distribute ration coupons based on 153 million automobile registrations

•Cut $677 million in Carter's proposed 1982 spending for conservation efforts. Eliminated entirely would be controversial programs to require new buildings and appliances to meet energy-use standards, to spur production of energy from city garbage and provide grants for state energy offices.

•Eliminate $1.2 billion Congress appropriated last year to provide subsidies for manufactuers of alcohol fuels from corn and other "biomass" products.

The Reagan budget document sent to Congress drops entirely a controversial proposal in its earlier drafts to decontrol natural gas prices by Sept. 30 of this year, more than three years ahead of the current timetable. Various economists estimated such a change could double heating bills next winter for homeowners using natural gas.

A Reagan administration source said various proposals to speed up the decontrol timetable were still being examined and a final decision probably would not be made for several weeks.

Reagan Says 'Safety Net' To Be Saved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration proposed sharp slashes in social welfare spending but insisted Wednesday that basic "social safety net" programs like Social Security old age benefits and unemployment insurance would be preserved.

Other social programs, however, like food stamps, low income energy assistance, Medicaid health services and housing aid among others, whose recipients are mostly poor, were marked for reductions either by altering their eligibility formulas to exclude the marginally poor or lowering the federal contribution.

Social program subsidies to middle and upper income Americans — those families of four with incomes exceeding $15,630 a year — also were targeted for cuts. School meal subsidies were slated to be trimmed to include only recipients in hard-core poverty. And two major student aid programs, guaranteed and basic student loans, were on the list of reduced programs.

And, public service employment under the CETA program, involving about 300,000 jobs, would be phased out if Congress adopts the president's "program for economic recovery."

Overall, Reagan outlined 83 changes in the fiscal 1982 budget that former President Jimmy Carter sent to Congress in January. If Congress approves Reagan's proposals, the new administration said they would yield more than $49 billion in savings in comparison with the Carter plan. Between 300 and 400 more program shifts were said to be in store when Reagan formally submits his budget to Congress on March 10.

The administration let it be known that seven of the government's social functions would be shielded from the budget ax.

These were Social Security old age and survivors benefits, Medicare payments, school lunch and breakfast programs for the truly needy, Supplemental Security Income payments for the aged, blind and disabled, assistance for disabled veterans, Head Start funding for children and summer youth jobs.

Reagan's proposals embody possibly the largest assault ever on a web of federal entitlement programs whose costs generally grow under laws that are not reviewed annually by Congress.

Officials Consider Boost For Grades

A-J Correspondent

HOBBS, N.M. — Members of the Hobbs Board of Education are considering some suggestions from teachers regarding the advisability of changing a grade of "B" in an honors class subject to an "A" when sending a transcript to a college or university.

An honors class is described as one where the subject material is much harder than in regular courses. Some teachers are suggesting that a "B" in such a class would be an "A" in a regular course.

Board member Dr. Jack Kernan and other members say that colleges "don't take into account the difference in a 'B' grade in an honors and a 'B' grade in a regular course."

Barbara Houston, assistant principal at Hobbs High School, said a student who transfers from an honors class to a regular class could have a "B" grade converted to an "A" grade in a regular course. She added it has been her experience, however, that a "B" student in an honors class "will probably continue to make a 'B' in a regular course since a 'B' student in the honors course could make an 'A' if he tried."

Monroe Harrelson, Hobbs High School principal, said a great many teachers felt the actual grade should be recorded and a notation could be made on the transcript showing that the grade was received for an honors class.

According to Harrelson, of the 14 or so students taking honors classes, "only three or four have less than an 'A' grade."

A decision on the matter by the board is expected after a study of the various suggestions has been completed.

Master's Degree Work Offered At Reese

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Course work leading to the master of science in management degree will begin March 6 at Wayland Baptist College's program at Reese Air Force Base, said Dan McLallen, Wayland vice-president for academic affairs.

The 36-hour course of study, a joint effort between Wayland and Houston Baptist Unviersity, will be launched with two courses during the upcoming 10-week term, McLallen said. Classes will meet on Fridays from 2 to 6 p.m. and from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m., 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Saturdays.

The degree includes a total of five "core" courses required of all students plus a total of seven other "electives" from a list of 13 major courses. The program is structured to provide for the development of basic business skills in the core program, while the major courses establish competence in the management of human resources, McLallen said.

McLallen said a bachelor's degree in any major will be accepted for admission to the program. The weekend class schedule will make it possible for students to complete the degree in as little as 18 months.

Dr. Roger Brooks, vice president for graduate affairs at Houston Baptist, will be in the Education Building at Reese from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. until noon Feb. 26 to counsel students.

Dr. Bill Hardage, director of special services at Wayland, will serve as director of the program locally. Information on the program is available by calling Hardage at 296-5521 or 762-3937.

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

By MARTIN SLOANE

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I can't believe the way egg prices have been going up. Today I paid more than $1 for a dozen large eggs.

I'm tempted to buy a smaller size, but I can't figure out whether I would be getting a good buy. What would a smark shopper do?—Nancy W. from Washington, D.C.

DEAR NANCY — After many years of steadily increasing production, the Department of Agriculture predicts that egg production will actually decline this year. This is expected to produce price increases of as much as 20 percent.

Compared with meat, eggs are still an inexpensive source of protein. But the price of each size of eggs — actually, eggs are priced according to their net weight per dozen — may vary considerably. It pays to know when the medium eggs are a better buy than the large ones.

To judge which size of eggs is the best buy, you must first figure the price difference between the two sizes that you are considering.

The Agriculture Department recommends buying the larger size under the following circumstances.

- When the price of larger eggs is 81 cents to 88 cents and the price difference is less than 11 cents.
- When the price of larger eggs is 89 cents to 96 cents and the price difference is less than 12 cents.
- When the price of larger eggs is 97 cents to $1.04 and the price difference is less than 13 cents.
- When the price of larger eggs is $1.05 to $1.12 and the price difference is less than 14 cents.
- When the price of larger eggs is $1.13 to $1.20 and the price difference is less than 15 cents.

So, if the price of a dozen large eggs is $1.06 and the price of a dozen extra-large eggs is $1.16, you will get more for your money by buying the extra-large size.

Does your family like its eggs scrambled? Buying the larger size may allow you to use one fewer egg each time you prepare them.

But if your family likes its eggs sunny side up, switching to a larger size will cost you money. Instead, try buying a smaller size, your family probably will not notice the difference.

SMART SHOPPER AWARD

This week's Smart Shopper is Jo Ann Doll of Montclair, N.J., for buying three jars of Vlasic Kosher Dills for a total of 33 cents.

The pickles regularly cost $1.39 a bottle, but Ms. Doll saw them advertised at $1.09. She used two 50-cents-off coupons, whose value the store doubled.

So, she paid 18 cents for the two bottles. Then she used the proofs of purchase for Vlasic's "Buy Two, Get One Free" offer.

Including the 15 cents in postage, the cost of the three jars was just 33 cents.

Mrs. Doll and other readers whose money-saving exploits earn them the Smart Shopper Award will receive the "American Coupon Club Refunder's Record Book." Write to me in care of this newspaper.

Tech Professor Receives Honor

Dr. James S. Whitlark, professor of English, has been named recipient of the eighth "New Professor-Excellence in Teaching Award" given by the Texas Tech University Dads Association.

The award will be presented at the Dads Association's mid-winter trustees meeting Feb. 28 at the university. The award goes to a professor who has been at Texas Tech no more than four years and who has demonstrated teaching excellence.

A $500 honorarium, given by the Hemphill-Wells Foundation, is included with the award. Whitlark is in his second year at Texas Tech.

English department chairman Wilkes Berry said in his nominating letter, "His students frequently praise him for his knowledge, enthusiasm, genuine concern, accessibility and patience. Dr. Whitlark is excited about ideas and the effective, graceful communication of ideas to young men and women who are willing to learn."

A freshman English student wrote that Whitlark "taught me more things about the English language than all of my high school years."

Another student taking sophomore English noted Whitlark was "by far the best English instructor I've ever had." That student also said, "His corrections are easy to understand, he grades fairly and gives interesting lectures."

Whitlark has published several scholarly articles and numerous poems. His articles have appeared in "Notes and Queries," "Annuale Mediaevale" and "Literataure East and West." His poetry has been published in the "Yearbook of Modern Poetry — 1976," "Janus SCTH," "Betterroot" an International Quarterly and the Detroit News.

Before coming to Texas Tech, Whitlark taught at Truman College, Roosevelt University and Loyola University.

Whitlark received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne State University. He earned his doctoral degree from the University of Chicago.

Love your way to Dallas.

Dumas Lawyer Candidate For State Bar Office

AUSTIN (Special) — Directors of the State Bar of Texas named James R. Lovell of Dumas as a candidate for the office of president-elect of the State Bar at a recent board meeting in Austin.

Lovell formerly served as a member of the board of directors of the State Bar and has been very active in Bar affairs. He received his law degree from Southern Methodist University and has contributed to various community activities in Dumas.

He is an attorney with Lovell, Lyle, Renfer, Moore and Duvall in Dumas.

Reagan Requests Foreign Aid Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked Congress on Wednesday to cut foreign aid by $1.8 billion below what former President Carter had requested, but the reductions were much less than initially considered.

The actual savings in 1982 would be $402 million, with the remaining reductions from Carter's proposal to take effect in future years.

Reagan left intact a Carter administration commitment for a three-year contribution of $3.2 billion to the World Bank for lending to the world's most impoverished nations through the International Development Association.

"All existing international commitments will be met," the budget statement said. However, it said some payments to the United Nations and other multilateral programs "will be stretched out."

Reagan proposed cutting funds for the Agency for International Development, the United Nations, the Food for Peace program and the Peace Corps, with details to be announced later.

White House budget director David Stockman originally had proposed slashing the World Bank-IDA money in half, but Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., with support from U.S. allies, succeeded in keeping the program intact.

However, instead of dividing the appropriation evenly over a three-year period as Carter had proposed, Reagan asked Congress to approve $540 million in 1982, $850 million in 1983 and $1.85 billion in 1984.

A source at the World Bank, who did not want to be identified, said the new payment schedule probably will be acceptable, but he noted it leaves open the possibility that the budget office will try to reduce the money again in 1983 and 1984.

The IDA money is loaned interest-free to finance such projects as irrigation, roads, water supply and electrification development in countries that are too poor to borrow funds in private financial markets.

Reagan's budget changes would cut Carter's appropriation for AID projects, which are bi-lateral development projects, from $2.4 billion to $1.9 billion. Although that is a reduction of 20 percent, it would still be more than AID received in 1981.

The budget document listed the total reduction in spending for foreign development aid at 26 percent under what Carter asked. It said Reagan proposed $5.39 billion in budget authority and $4.78 billion in outlays, compared with his predecessor's $7.25 billion in authority and $5.2 billion in outlays.

Carter had sought a total foreign aid package of about $8 billion, which included special economic and security assistance for Israel and Egypt, amounting to more than $1 billion apiece. Reagan did not propose reducing such assistance.

Polish Students Remain On Strike Despite Agreement In One City

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Rebellious Polish students occupied university buildings in at least five Polish cities Wednesday to back demands for education reforms. Students in Lodz won government agreement to form an independent student association.

Despite agreement to end a 28-day strike at Lodz, Poland's second largest city, students took over classrooms in Warsaw, Torun, Krakow, Roclaw and Szczecin, according to student and government sources.

The outbreak of student strikes — over issues ranging from mandatory courses in Russian to more money for books — meant new problems for the government of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, who took office as premier a week ago with a plea for 90 days without strikes. Jaruzelski nominated another military man, Brig. Gen. Michal Janiszewski to head the Cabinet executive office, Warsaw Radio said.

Warsaw Radio announced without elaboration Wednesday that meat rationing would begin in April. The nation, which suffers shortages of meat and other consumer goods, had announced meat rationing would begin in January, but that was postponed because of lack of an adequate rationing system.

Official Soviet media printed new attacks on Polish strikers and accused them of directly challenging the government at the instigation of the West.

The student strikes came at a time when the government and the independent trade union Solidarity appeared to have settled for the time being widespread labor unrest. And Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania was just back from trips to Czechoslovakia and East Germany where he tried to assure two of Poland's hard-line allies in the Warsaw Pact that the Polish leadership was in control of events.

Kania told the ruling Politburo Wednesday that his visit with East German leader Erich Honecker produced "numerous proofs of understanding for our difficulties" and promises of economic assistance. He said the Czechoslovak and East German parties are "interested in the stabilization of the situation in Poland," according to Polish Radio.

Warsaw television said Kania's meetings produced agreement among the three leaders to strengthen the socialist alliance through the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact, strengthen the leading role of the Polish Communist Party and oppose "interference by imperialist states in the internal affairs of the socialist states, which has recently been apparent in the case of Poland."

Student leaders in Lodz signed an agreement Wednesday with the Ministry of Higher Education to end their 28-day protest. A Lodz student leader read an appeal to thousands of students calling for an end to the sit-in and urged students conducting support strikes around the nation to end their protests.

A student spokesman said Minister of Higher Education Janusz Gorski signed an agreement that meets most student demands — including registration of a national independent students' association.

No text of the agreement was published and some remaining differences were reported outlined in a separate protocol.

But some 4,000 students at Warsaw University remained on strike, occupying classrooms, chaining all but one gate to the campus and allowing entry only to students or those with press credentials.

The Warsaw students said they would continue their strike until they had read and voted on the Lodz agreement.

Reagan Asks Chop In Spending, Taxes

dispose of what they created. We have strayed from first principles. We must alter our course," he said.

"We will continue to fulfill the obligations that spring from our national conscience," Reagan declared. "Those who through no fault of their own must depend on the rest of us, the poverty stricken, the disabled, the elderly, all those with true need, can rest assured ..."

"But government will not continue to subsidize individuals or particular business interests where real need canot be demonstrated," Reagan said.

He then went on to defend his proposed cuts in funding for education, food stamps, Medicaid, arts and humanities, synthetic fuel production, export loans, school lunch assistance, the space program and the postal service.

He said the Pentagon "is the only department in our entire program that will actually be increased over the present budgeted figure," Reagan said. But he added, even the Pentagon sought and found areas to cut costs of $2.9 billion next year.

Reagan's proposed cuts for 1982 represent the greatest reduction any president has recommended in federal spending, although the budget of $695.5 billion would be the largest in the nation's history.

The budget cuts are not actual reductions in federal spending. Rather, they are paper cuts in the budget proposed last month by Jimmy Carter during his final weeks as president.

Reagan's program represents the first modern test of the so-called "supply side" theory of economics.

The theory says that high inflation, unemployment and stagnant economic growth can be fought by increasing the flow of goods and services to meet increased demand. This would be accomplished through tax cuts intended to prompt individuals to save and businesses to invest in expansion. Conventional economists, who have been influential in previous administrations both Democratic and Republican, have used federal taxing and spending policies to adjust demand to fit supply levels.

Reagan's plan rests on optimistic economic assumptions. He forecasts an inflation rate of 6.2 percent in 1983, down from 12.4 percent last year. He says his plan would provide for 3 million new jobs, over and above 10 million jobs that would be created anyway.

Coupled with spending and tax proposals were proposals to change the federal regulatory process and "encouragement" for the Federal Reserve Board to slow the growth of the monetary supply.

Reduce Barriers

The regulatory revisions are intended to reduce "the government-imposed barriers to investment, production, and employment," said the president's inch-thick book "America's New Beginning — A Program for Economic Recovery."

Reagan's proposals would:

— Provide a net increase in 1982 defense spending of $4.3 billion, boosting the Pentagon's share of the federal budget from 24.1 percent to 32.4 percent by 1984.

— Reduce individual income tax rates by 10 percent a year for three years beginning July 1. This would save a family of four, with wages of $20,000, 28.7 percent of their tax bill, or $1,456, by the end of 1984, a treasury official said.

Speedier Writeoffs

— Revise business depreciation schedules to provide speedier tax writeoffs, at a cost to the treasury of $9.7 billion in fiscal 1982.

— Project a budget deficit of $45 billion in 1982 and $22.9 billion in 1983, and a $500 million surplus in 1984, the next presidential election year.

— Increase the percentage of the federal budget spent on what Reagan refers to as "safety net" programs protecting those who need government assistance to survive. This figure would rise from 37 percent in 1981 to 41 percent in 1984.

— Reduce some subsidies and benefits for middle and upper-income people. But it would not cut various features of the tax laws that benefit special groups such as homeowners, who are allowed to deduct mortgage interest.

Air, Waterway Fees

In addition, Reagan wants to increase the fees charged for the maintenance of inland waterways and for the support services the government provides for airplane travel, by $2 billion. One government official said this could cost air travelers $1 billion.

Reagan took pains to explain several of his budgetary decisions:

— "Terminating the Economic Development Adminstration ... There is a lack of consistent and convincing evidence that EDA and its regional commissions have been effective in creating new jobs."

— "The Food Stamp program ... We will save $1.8 billion in 1982 by removing from eligibility those who are not in real need."

Defense Spending Hikes

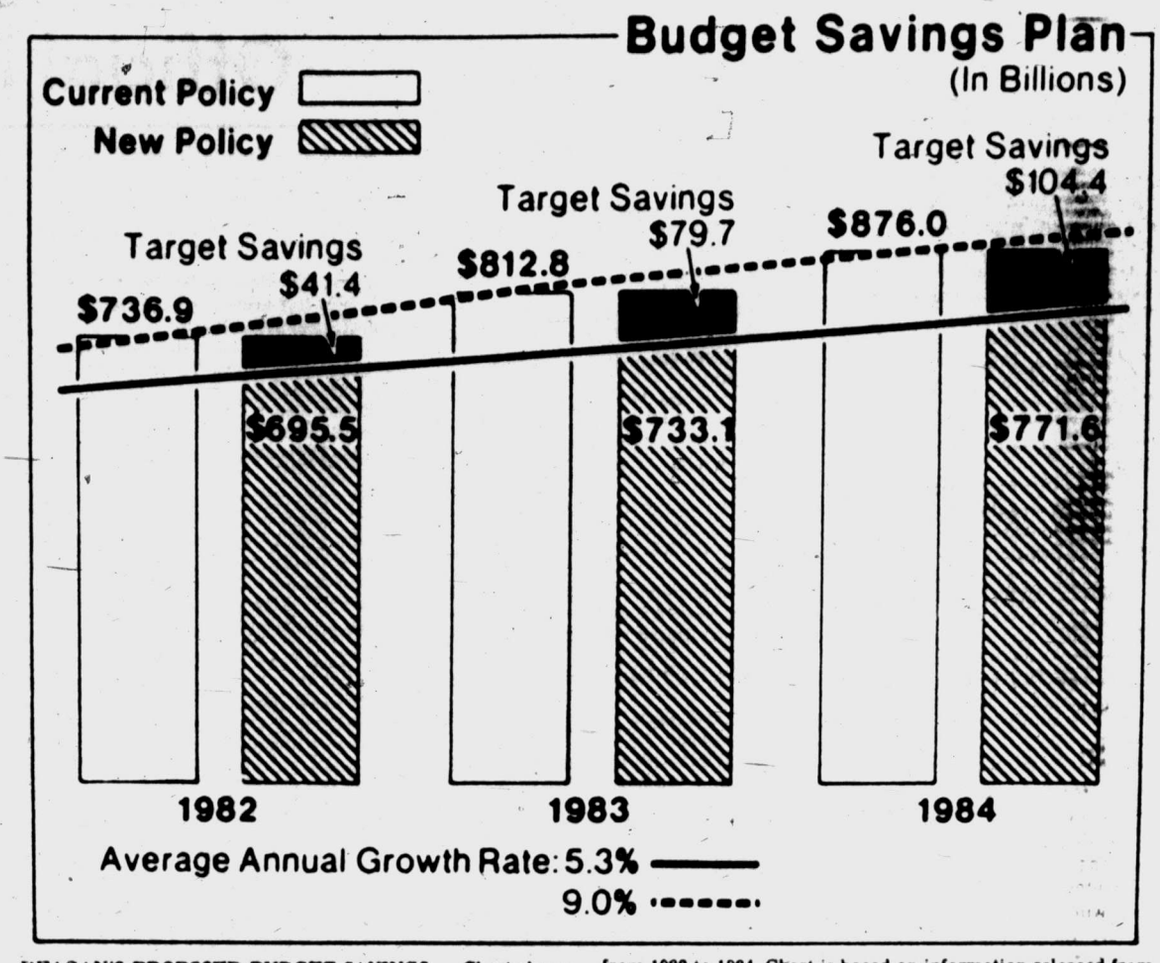
— "I believe my duty as president requires that I recommend increases in defense spending over the coming years," he said. "Since 1970 the Soviet Union has invested $300 billion more in its military forces than we have."

He said the Soviet spending has given Moscow "a significant numerical advantage in strategic nuclear delivery systems, tactical aircraft, submarines, artillery and anti-aircraft defense."

He acknowledged that there will be arguments that reducing tax rates "will be inflationary."

"A solid body of economic experts does not agree," he said.

For businesses, his depreciation proposal calls for a five-year write-off for machinery, three years for vehicles and trucks, and 10 years for plants.



REAGAN'S PROPOSED BUDGET SAVINGS — Chart shows target savings in President Reagan's new budget plan and annual growth rate compared to current budget policy projeted from 1982 to 1984. student assistance to aid for disabled coal miners.

The administration said so-called "safety net" programs that provide basic assistance to the nation's neediest would be spared the budget ax. These programs are defined as Social Security retirement benefits, regular unemployment benefits, veteran benefits and cash benefits for dependent families, the elderly and the disabled.

Spending on those programs would rise as a share of the total budget over the next three years, although not as dramatically as defense spending. Safety-net spending would increase from just under 37 cents of each federal dollar in 1981 to nearly 41 cents in 1984.

In Reagan's budget proposal for fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1, military spending is the only area targeted for a significant increase. The president would add $7.2 billion in new spending to the defense budget, but at the same time, existing defense programs would be cut by $2.9 billion to produce a net increase of $4.3 billion.

The Reagan increase would come on top of a $23.3 billion hike proposed by Carter, boosting the total budget for 1982 to $188.7 billion, or 27 percent of the entire federal budget.

Between 1981 and 1984, under Reagan's budget plan, total defense spending would increase from $158 billion to $250 billion, safety-net spending would rise from $239 billion to $313 billion and spending on other federal programs would decline from $193 billion to $142 billion.

Excluding defense savings, Reagan is calling for $38.5 billion in budget cuts in more than 100 programs that provide cash payments to individuals and low-interest loans and grants to state and local governments for projects ranging from economic development to sewage treatment.

Program reductions, intended to restrict aid to the "neediest," would affect food stamps, child nutrition, extended and import-related unemployment benefits, Social Security and loan aid for students, benefits for coal miners disabled by black lung disease, Medicaid, disability insurance, low-income housing subsidies and welfare. For 1982, the proposed savings would total $9.4 billion.

Also, public service jobs for 310,000 mostly poor, young people would be phased out by Sept. 30. Subsidies for Amtrak and other mass transportation would be reduced and Postal Service subsidies would be trimmed. Aid to education, health care, the arts and sciences and public broadcasting would be pared.

Grant, loan and subsidy programs also would be reduced or eliminated for dairy price supports, water projects, highway and airport construction, the Appalachian Regional Commission, Rural Electrification Administration and the Farmers Home Administration.

The bulk of Reagan's report to Congress and the nation was devoted to detailing the non-defense cuts, with specifics on his defense increase proposals to come later.

Mendelevich Released By Soviets

improving relations that have been strained by the Soviet's 14-month intervention in Afghanistan and most recently by Reagan administration charges that it promotes international terrorism.

The Western diplomats said Mendelevich's release might constitute an overture to the new administration, which has said it will link its position on strategic arms limitation talks to Soviet behavior around the world. Gestures in the human rights field, some diplomats said, would be particularly effective.

But the Western diplomatic sources said the move could also indicate the Kremlin's desire to generate positive news before the Soviet party Congress next week in Moscow, or be connected to the Madrid security conference where the Soviets have come under attack for human rights violations.

Mendelevich's release was announced Wednesday morning in Israel's Parliament, the Knesset, by Justice Minister Moshe Nissim, who told the gallery that the prisoner was on a plane flying from Moscow to Vienna. The Knesset session had been called in response to reports that Mendelevich had disappeared in the Soviet prison system and his relatives here feared for his health.

Mendelevich arrived in Vienna aboard a regularly-scheduled Soviet Aeroflot flight and departed aboard an El-Al plane less than three hours later.

Israel Singer, director of the World Jewish Congress, met Mendelevich in Vienna and later told reporters that he and the organization's president, Edgar Bronfman, had worked out the release with the Soviet diplomats in Washington.

Other Jewish officials said Mendelevich, the last of 26 Jews imprisoned for the 1970 hijack attempt, was taken from the camp to Moscow on Tuesday without explanation.

Moscow sources said two non-Jews were still being held — Alexei Murzhenko, 39, and Yuri Federov, 38.

Soviet police broke up the hijacking plot in June, 1970 at the start of a flight from Leningrad to Petrozavodsk on the Soviet side of the Soviet-Finnish border.

Jewish sources said those involved were arrested at Leningrad airport, but in its report at the time, the official Soviet news agency Tass implied the arrests came after the men had boarded the plane.

Tass said the would-be hijackers and carried a revolver, axes, knives, knuckledusters, and other equipment and that the plan, codenamed "Wedding," called for the aircraft to fly to Sweden.

There have been a few other hijackings and hijacking attempts in the Soviet Union in recent years, the best known in 1970 when father and son Panos and Algedas Braskaskas hijacked a plane from the southern Soviet Union to Turkey, in which a stewardess was killed.

The Braskaskas are currently in the United States and the Soviet Union has been demanding their return for trial.

Debate Opens On Reagan's Budget Plans

treatment. "The Democratic program seems to be to do nothing and to do it slowly....that's a prescription for economic ruin."

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker said he expects Reagan's economic package "will occupy us for all of the next year."

The budget cuts will move quickly, especially in the Senate, he said, but the tax proposals "may extend into next year."

Baker said he supports Reagan's proposed three-year tax plan, but asked about a one-year cut talked about by some Senate Democrats, he said, "It could come to that. It is a possibility."

"There is general support for a general tax reduction," he said, but conceded that there will be pressure in the Congress, especially in the Senate Finance Committee.

He said he hopes the reconciliation resolution has cleared the Senate floor by Easter. "It is my hope we can take the first step by Easter," he said.

Baker said he expects the Republican-controlled Senate to move more quickly than the House, especially on the budget cuts and the reconciliation resolution.

The American people, he said, "are buying both parts of it (budget and taxes)."

"People believe Congress is the culprit" when they look for causes for the country's economic situation and so there will be public pressure to speed Reagan's plan through.

Individual, Business Tax Cuts Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's tax cut would be reflected in individual pay checks after July 1, reducing the liability to Uncle Sam by 5 per cent this year and nearly 30 percent by 1984.

Reagan also urged in his nationally broadcast address to Congress Wednesday night a business tax reduction — retroactive to Jan. 1 — which would allow a gradually faster tax write-off, or depreciation, of the costs of acquiring buildings and equipment.

If Congress passes the bill, the average worker would get a 5.1 percent reduction in his federal taxes this year, effective in paychecks received after July 1. The proposal would result in a 27.3 percent tax cut when the plan is fully implemented in 1984.

Tax Cuts Cited

A typical four-member family earning $20,000 would realize a $114 tax cut this year; in 1984 the reduction would be $578. By 1984, the Reagan plan would save that family a total of $1,456, or 28.7 percent.

A single person earning $30,000 would get save $4,171, or 27.8 percent, through 1984, while a four-member family making $200,000 in salary and wages would save $25,513, a reduction of 16.2 percent.

Unlike most tax bills in recent years, the Reagan proposal makes virtually no attempt to redistribute wealth by providing proportionately larger tax reductions for lower-income Americans.

Percent Of Relief

Nearly 52 percent of the individual tax reduction would go to persons with incomes between $12,500 and $40,000, who now pay half the taxes. Those with incomes above $40,000 now pay 45.2 percent of the taxes and would get 42.4 percent of the relief. The 45 percent whose incomes are below $12,500 pay 4.8 percent of taxes and would get 6 percent of the tax cut.

Although Congress apparently is in a tax-cutting mood, there is no assurance the Reagan proposal will be enacted intact. Many members have their own ideas of how taxes should be cut to bolster the economy and how the benefits should be shared.

The president promised that if Congress would concentrate now on the across-the-board tax cut, he will submit later in the year a new proposal for "indexing" individual taxes to protect against inflation, tuition tax credits, removing the marriage penalty from tax laws and allowing a special charitable deduction for those who do not itemize deductions.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan told reporters the second tax bill might also include some proposals for raising revenues. He did not say how.

The Reagan bill would reduce individual taxes by $250 billion over the next 3½ fiscal years and business taxes by $60.8 billion.

Reduce Tax Rates

The proposal would cut individual taxes by permanently reducing tax rates an average of about 5 percent on July 1, 10 percent in 1982, 10 percent in 1983 and 5 percent in 1984. The total is about 27 percent because after the first reduction, the percentages would be applied to a reduced base figure.

By 1984, the current minimum and maximum tax rates of 14 percent and 70 percent would be cut to 10 percent and 50 percent.

Although the tax-rate cut this year would be only 5 percent, the rates at which taxes are withheld from paychecks would be reduced by 10 percent starting July 1. In the final three years of the program, reductions in withholding would be at the same rate as the tax cut.

Incentives For Work

Like the individual tax reduction, the business cut is aimed at increasing incentives for work, saving and investment. Treasury Department analysts say the faster write-off would encourage business expansion and job-creation.

A business would be allowed to depreciate vehicles in three years, machinery and equipment in five, owner-occupied factories and stores in 10, other non-residential buildings in 15 and rental residences in 18 years.

Industry uses depreciation as a deduction from taxable income, which allows it to recover and recycle money spent for plant and equipment.

Current law includes a complicated formula which requires businesses to estimate the useful life and salvage value of property when they figure depreciation. Some property must be depreciated over a 35-year period.

In addition to simplifying and liberalizing depreciation, the Reagan bill would expand the current investment tax credit for certain classes of property that are subject to the depreciation allowance. In general, the purchaser of a piece of business machinery now is allowed a 10-percent tax credit, but the credit is less if the machinery has a useful life of less than seven years.

Tax Cuts Prospect Outlined

line at the fuel pumps. "It's a sectional fight with the non-producing states," Hance said. "Every time gas goes up at the pump, they want a part of the windfall profits deal."

Commenting on his appointment to the House Ways and Means Committee, Hance said he can help his district more than when he was on the Agricultural Committee because the Ways and Means handles all gas laws and legislation dealing with agricultural exports and imports.

The representative also told the audience he was appointed to two subcommittees — trade and welfare. Hance said he was not happy with the appointment to the welfare committee, but predicted welfare revision would take place in this session of Congress.

In the military arena, Hance said the MX Missle System has less than a five percent chance of being placed in West Texas. The split-basing option of putting half the missles in West Texas-Eastern New Mexico and half in Utah-Nevada would cost $3.4 billion more than if the missles were placed only in Utah-Nevada, Hance said.

And he pointed out the MX project still is in the planning stage as studies are being conducted to put the missles on submarines instead of land.

Hance also told his audience he thinks Congress will develop a new farm bill where target pricing for farm products would be eliminated. He said Reagan probably would go along with loan programs where farm products would be taken as collateral, rather than a program which would give money to farmers in target pricing.

Students Ordered To Pay Teacher After Assault

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A district court judge has ordered two former North Iredell High School students to pay $30,000 to a teacher they were convicted of assaulting.

The $30,000 was the full amount sought in a November 1979 suit brought by teacher James Conger against the two students, Charles Wasson and Glenn Chambers.

Conger's attorneys and education officials said Tuesday the case offers an important precedent and gives notice that teachers will fight back — in court — when they're assaulted at school.

Conger said Wasson and Chambers began taunting him as he was supervising the loading of buses in April 1979. He said he told the two to leave school grounds.

BUS CRASH — Virginia state police said 10 to 15 people were killed Wednesday when a commuter bus crashed through guardrails and plunged down an embankment about 3 miles south of Quantico, Va. The bus, bound from Washington, D.C., to Fredericksburg, Va., landed on its side in a shallow creek. The bus was carrying 47 passengers. (AP Laserphoto) front of the bus," Mason said. "... The motor was still running. We turned that off, and water was running through the bus."

Gregg said it had not been determined how many people were on the D& J Transportation bus when the accident occurred about 5 p.m. right on the line between Prince William and Stafford counties.

Earlier, State Police Sgt. John Weakley in Alexandria had put the injury toll at 47, but other officials could not confirm that.

The bodies were taken to a temporary morgue at Mary Washington Hospital in Fredericksburg, where the bus was bound on its daily run from Washington.

"Ten bodies have been brought in from the scene of the accident," hospital spokesman Anne Ligon said. "We are not sure of the total body count."

Among the dead was the bus driver, Carl Frederick Earl of Stafford County. None of the other victims had been identified.

About four hours after the accident, The bus was pulled out of the water and set on the river bank by a huge crane that was standing on the blocked-off lanes of I-95.

At least 13 people were admitted to hospitals, 10 to Potomac Hospital in Woodbridge, Va., which was put on disaster alert. At least three of the patients there were in critical condition.

One person identified as Gordon Cutt, 35, of Stafford County, Va., was admitted to Mary Washington hospital and two people were admitted to Washington Hospital Center in critical condition.

Police said the bus was southbound from Washington to Fredericksburg 50 miles away, where many federal government employees make their homes. The crash site is just north of the sprawling Quantico Marine Corps base.

The D&J Transportation Co. reportedly had begun commuter service between Washington and Fredericksburg only two months ago.

Woman Hospitalized Following Assault

A Lubbock woman was hospitalized early Wednesday morning with injuries suffered in a reported 1:30 a.m. assault at an east Lubbock nightclub.

Gloria Salas, 32, of 212 31st St. was in satisfactory condition Wednesday night at Methodist Hospital with multiple injuries suffered in the assault in the parking lot of the Che-Che Lounge, 1819 E. Broadway.

The woman suffered a stab wound to the neck and bruises and cuts to her head and face, a hospital spokesman said.

She told police she was walking to her car when a Mexican-American woman yelled at her. The victim said she continued walking when the woman and two other Mexican-American women knocked her to the ground and began beating her.

Miss Salas told police she did not recognize the assailants and did not know why they attacked her.

In other activity, two roller-skating car burglars were arrested Wednesday morning after a witness watched them break into several cars in the multi-story parking building at Bromley Hall, 1001 University Ave., according to reports.

The witness told police he was asleep in his car in the parking lot when the two men, ages 23 and 17, woke him while attempting to break into his car.

The witness said he remained hidden after the men gave up the attempt. He watched them skate from one car to another and carry the stolen items to a gold Pontiac in the parking lot, police said.

When police arrived about 5:45 a.m., the found the 23-year-old suspect sitting in the lobby of the off-campus dormitory, reports show. The man was not wearing shoes, and he told officers he left them in a friend's car, reports show.

In the friend's car, police said they found a tool box containing assorted tools, a citizens band radio, an AM-FM radio and a case containing 24 cassette tapes — all believed stolen.

The men were arrested and jailed shortly after 6 a.m., reports show. The 23-year-old suspect's skates were found in the Bromley Hall lobby behind a sofa, police said.

A 29-year-old man was arrested shortly before 4 a.m. Wednesday after he allegedly broke into Hygeia Water Co. at 405 Ave. U.

Police said they answered an alarm down at the business and found a hole knocked in a south door. Officers entered and found the man, who reportedly admitted to burglarizing the business.

In separate arrests, two 18-year-old Lubbock men were taken into custody at 1:30 a.m. today after they were spotted allegedly siphoning gasoline from cars parked in the 5300-block of 11th Street.

Reports state the suspects quickly departed when police arrived. Officers at the scene said they could immediately smell a strong scent of gasoline when the teen-agers approached them. Gasoline cans also were recovered from the suspects' pickup.

A man wanted in Bryan for kidnapping was arrested by Lubbock police about 1:30 a.m. today after he ran out of a 42nd Street house allegedly carrying two grocery sacks, both half full of marijuana.

Police said when they received a teletype from Bryan, they went to the 26-year-old suspect's Lubbock residence to serve the arrest warrant, but the occupants inside refused to open the front door.

Reports allege the man then bolted out a back door, but was chased down by Det. Paul Mayfield. Officers said they also recovered two trays containing suspected marijuana inside the residence.

The man was jailed on suspicion of felony possession of marijuana and kidnapping.

Juvenile authorities said an 11-year-old boy's boasting about shooting another boy in the mouth with a BB gun resulted in the 11-year-old's being placed in custody Tuesday.

Reports state the 12-year-old victim was taken to Methodist Hospital and treated for a cut lower lip before being released. The boy's mother told officers her son was playing baseball in a vacant lot in the 3500-block of East Baylor Street when one of a group of passing boys shot the youngster in the mouth.

The young suspect was apprehended at his mother's house.

Billy L. Windels of 2507 66th St. said he lost about $9,500 in property, including jewelry, clothing and a television set, when his house was burglarized between 10:30 p.m. Tuesday and 12:15 a.m. today.

New Trial Scheduled In Death Of Child

Philip Carey Brasfield, whose capital murder conviction for the 1977 slaying of Johnny Turner Jr. was overturned by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, will be retried on the lesser charge of murder April 20 in Amarillo.

District Judge William Shaver, who will preside over the case during the trial, instructed First Assistant District Attorney Jim Bob Darnell to issue an order Wednesday setting the trial for late April. The trial will fall just more than two years after Brasfield was assessed the death penalty by a Wichita Falls for murdering the six-year-old child after kidnapping him from his East Lubbock home.

Brasfield, 30, formerly of Slaton, was convicted of capital murder March 1978 in Wichita Falls. But the appeals court ruled last February that evidence presented in the punishment phase of Brasfield's trial had not been sufficient to warrant the death penalty and that the wording in the indictment against Brasfield had been defective.

By omitting four words — "against Johnny Turner Jr." — in the indictment, prosecutors failed to adequately apprise Brasfield of the charge (capital murder) against him and the indictment should have been dismissed, the court ruled. The Turner child was named in the indictment as the murder victim, but not as the victim of the alleged kidnapping which constituted the capital murder charge.

After the court ruled a new trial was necessary for Brasfiled, a Lubbock County grand jury re-indicted him in July 1980 on the lesser charge of murder. Shaver ruled that Brasfield's new trial should be moved from the Lubbock on a change of venue.

17 Counts Faced In Burglary

Two suspects accused of participation in last week's break-in at a local pharmacy are facing 17 felony and misdemeanor charges following their arrest at a residence in Carlisle, where investigators confiscated almost $50,000 in narcotics.

Jim Clay Helms, 19 and Corey G Smith, 21 have been charged with multiple counts of possession of a controlled substance as well as possession of marijuana. But only Helms has charged with burglary of the Gordon Moore Pharmacy at 2609 Boston Ave.

Helms faces three felony charges and Smith is charged with one felony. The Criminal District Attorney's office has recommended that combined bond for Helms be set at $7,500 and bond for Smith be set at $2,500.

A third suspect was arrested in connection with the incident but had not been charged Wednesday evening.

Helms and Smith were arrested Sunday when sheriff's deputies and investigators from the district attorney's office converged on a residence in Carlisle.

Acting on an informant's tip, the lawmen maintained surveillance on the residence until the arrest warrant was served about 8 a.m.

Authorities recovered most of the 4,000 narcotic pills reported stolen in the Feb. 12 pharmacy burglary, as well as small amounts of marijuana, cocaine, assorted drug paraphernalia and a bank bag from the pharmacy.

Counties Get Lawyer Fee Relief

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Senate Tuesday gave final approval to a bill by Tahoka Sen. E.L. Short that would relieve counties from having to pay court-appointed attorneys in capital cases.

The Senate suspended constitutional rules requiring that a bill will be considered on three separate days and approved Senate Bill 12. Under SB 12, the state would assume the cost for compensating court-appointed attorneys in all capital cases.

Counties would continue to pay attorneys appointed to represent indigents in other criminal cases.

The bill is expected to save counties more than $2 million per year. In 1980, 154 attorneys were appointed by district courts to represent defendants in capital cases.

Citizens Cautious About I-27 Route Proposal

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Although some people who own businesses or live along the recommended route of Interstate 27 won't like having to move for the highway, most seem to have a cautious attitude on the project and are waiting before making up their minds, according to a telephone survey by The Avalanche-Journal.

"I'd hate to move," said Harold Massey, owner of M&M Auto Sales, 3650 Avenue H. "But, I'd rather have the interstate. The city needs it."

As long as the state gives him enough time to set up at a new location and tell his customers of the move, he said he wouldn't be opposed to the recommended route.

The recommended route begins at the intersection of the existing I-27 and Loop 289, following U.S. Highway 87 to Fourth Street. It would then cut between Avenues C and D until reaching 16th Street.

Here it would angle southwest joining Avenue H at about 26th Street. It follows on the west side of Avenue H, through the Tahoka Traffic Circle and on U.S. 87 to South Loop 289.

According to an environmental impact statement filed at the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in May 1979, Route 15 will require the relocation of 108 single-family residences, 112 multi-family units and 163 commercial or industrial enterprises.

Bert Lloyd, 5407 Ave. H, who lives on the east side of the street and may not be relocated, said he has watched the avenue grow from a winding suburban lane to a major traffic artery during the years he has lived there.

He said having an interstate highway at his doorstep would bother him, adding it bothered him when the street was widened, but that it didn't make much difference.

W.A. James, James' Barber Shop, 3408 Ave. H, said he "wouldn't be very happy" about moving.

Joe Jackson, of Joe Jackson's Automatic Transmission at 2804 Ave. H, said anytime a business moves it loses customers.

"It can't help," he said.

Mrs. Leila Robinson, 702 Ave. C, typified the response of some of the elderly contacted.

"I think it would bother anybody to move," she said. "As old as I am and as long as I've lived here, I'd be as nervous as a cat on a hot tin roof."

She said she had lived in her house for 45 years, but wouldn't reveal her age.

Mrs. Bea Bowling, who has rented a house at 904 41st Street for 18 years, said it might be more difficult to find a comparably priced home because of high rents.

Other people contacted said they either had no opinion, or were waiting for the public hearing scheduled for 7 p.m. today in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Banquet Hall Thursday before they made up their minds.

Some businesses contacted said the project wouldn't affect them much — leases would be up before the project should begin and they would move before then.

Junior High Transfers Encouraged

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock school officials are encouraging student transfers in an effort to help thin the ranks at overcrowded Evans Junior High, a victim of the desegregation battle between the schools and the federal government.

The district's top administrators discussed with trustees Wednesday morning the need for more space at several schools because of escalating enrollment, with the conversation focusing on Evans in the southwest part of the city.

The junior high, which already has about 1,380 students, is projected to increase in population by some 50 more next year. The only other junior high that approaches that enrollment figure is Mackenzie, with 925.

The factor that figures into the large student body at Evans is the complicated and prolonged desegregation litigation. A junior high south of Loop 289 that was included in the district's 1977 bond package would have helped to relieve the enrollment burden at Evans. But a lawsuit by the Justice Department placed the sale of the bonds on hold.

Since the 1976-77 year, four portable buildings have been added at the Evans campus to help absorb some of the population boom. School trustees were asked to consider the addition of more buildings Wednesday (the school needs two more rooms), but board members noted they would like to help relieve rather than just accommodate the overcrowding.

Administrators also told the trustees that a new portable building would cost $25,000 to $26,000, and some $9,500 would be the cost for moving a portable structure from a school that has less need for it to another school like Evans.

Supt. Ed Irons suggested that student transfers from Evans be encouraged.

E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration, explained following the meeting that students may qualify for transfers for several reasons. Majority-to-minority transfers, he said, would be granted automatically. That policy would allow an Anglo student, for instance, to

Officers Criticize Police Regulations

About 75 percent of city police officers are unhappy with current and proposed department rules and regulations, particularly the dress code, Darrel Crump, a representative of the Lubbock Police Officer's Association told the Civil Service Commission Wednesday.

"If they (police officers) are not happy with the rules they have to work under, they're not going to do their jobs well," he said.

Crump asked the commission to hold a review hearing on the rules and regulations to give officers a chance to comment on them.

Commissioners Max Addison and Joe Minkley said they didn't think they had any authority to tell departments how to handle their internal affairs. The third commissioner, Louis Trejo, was not present.

Don Vandiver, first assistant city attorney, told the commission it had no authority to change the rules, but that it could review them.

However, Minkley implied the matter should be taken up through the regular city grievance proceedure.

Although Crump said he had used this procedure and had not been satisfied with it, the commissioners told him they would not review the rules unless he could provide an outside legal opinion indicating they had the authority to adopt them.

Minkley asked Crump if he was not satisfied with the way the rules and regulations were adopted by the department, and Crump explained that he thought the selection of a committee to review the rules may have been stacked against any changes.

A review committee of eight supervisors and four patrolmen were selected to review the rules, including the code of conduct and dress code, he said.

The Lubbock Police Officer's Association presented the committee with a list of changes including allowing hair to extend over at least one third of the ear, allowing longer mustaches and the inclusion of a meritorious award system which would honor police injured in the line of duty or who performed exceptionally under stressful circumstances.

The committee voted 8-4 against adopting any of the suggestions. Crump said this indicated that patrolmen were not equally well represented on the committee.

He said firemen were allowed to let their hair grow over two-thirds of their ears and that current police department rules concerning mustaches "make us look like Hitler."

Another rule the association disliked was one which prohibited the cohabitation of an officer with the member of the opposite sex before a marriage license had been obtained, said Crump, adding the rule was an invasion of their private lives.

Police Chief J.T. Alley said he had deleted that rule himself, adding he was the final authority on rules and did not necessarily have to go along with the vote of any review committee.

He said he had gone along with a past committee's recommendation to allow mustaches and might go along with a suggestion to allow full beards "in about 20 years."

Crump said it was important to policemen to feel more a part of their age group, adding the only people currently wearing hairstyles like them are military personnel and those in the age group of the commission.

Minkley said the commission represented the type of person policemen dealt with most and that Crump's only complaint seemed to be that his association had lost the vote in the committee review.

"The rules govern patrolmen more than supervisors," said Crump, "therefore the lower ranks should have more say."

He said the only way the policemen could have their "say so" would be to appear before the commission.

Savings, Loan Association Airs Plans

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Lubbock Wednesday announced it has received official approval to purchase branch offices of Frontier Savings & Loan in Abernathy and Crosbyton.

The acquisition of the two offices will result in an addition of about $6 million in assets for the Lubbock savings association, which now operates four branch offices with corporate headquarters at 1300 Broadway.

First Federal President Charley Pope said the association was approached by Frontier and offered the purchase of any of its branch offices in Abernathy, Crosbyton, Olton and Earth. He said the Abernathy and Crosbyton sites were chosen because of the offices' proximity to Lubbock.

Frontier has headquarters in Plainview which will not be affected by the transition, Pope said.

Pope said the purchase serves as an endorsement of West Texas as an economic growth area and fits into First Federal's plans to expand into the West Texas region to the northeast, south and west.

Pope noted that the sale of branch offices from one savings and loan institution to another is unique, adding that the expansion will shoot First Federal assets over the $211 million mark.

The purchase was recently approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank for buildings at 211 W. Main in Crosbyton and 611 Avenue D in Abernathy. Pope said customer service at those locations would not change substantially, except that the institutions will be able to provide checking accounts made available through new federal legislation.

First Federal will begin operation of the two offices March 31.

Founded in 1934, the association opened its first branch office at 34th Street and Avenue W in 1960, its second at 50th Street and Orlando Avenue in 1971, and a third in Brownfield in May 1977. The Cumberland Square office at 7802 Indiana Avenue was opened on June 3, 1980.

Senior Citizen Interns Sought

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — Senator Lloyd Bentsen said last week he is looking for older Texans to work in his Washington office as Senior Citizen interns for one week, May 11-15.

The intern program offers the senior citizens valuable information on how Congress and the federal bureaucracy work and provides a forum for the mutual exchange of ideas on the problems of aging, Bentsen said.

The program also provides an opportunity to share ideas with concerned senior citizens from around the nation.

The interns will take part in working sessions with cabinet and agency officials, White House briefings and congressional committee hearings all related to the problems of aging.

Zoning Board To Hear Requests

The Grand Motel, 2101 Avenue Q, will be asking the Zoning Board of Adjustment for a variance on a sign which violates city codes at the Zoning Board of Adjustment's regular meeting at 8:15 a.m. today.

The sign, facing north and south, is perpendicular to the building and erected on its awning, said Zoning Administrator Jerrell Northcutt. It violates city codes which require the sign be erected parallel to the structure and because it is too large, he said.

The ZBA also will consider the request of Leland Fellows to erect a ham radio tower at 2518 30th street that would exceed height requirements in the city zoning ordinance.

Northcutt said returned letters from neighbors indicate there will be some opposition to the tower which could measure up to about 55 feet in height.

In other business, the ZBA will:

• Consider a special exception to city ordinances concerning the existing dance floor at Stanley's, 3003 Slide Road.

• Consider a speical exception to allow a non-conforming use (a bar at 4708-A Fourth Street) to expand to double its size.

• Consider two variance requests for Fox Photo Drive-ins to be built at 7020 Quaker Avenue and 4931 Brownfiled Highway.

• Consider another variance to change the set-back requirements for a building located at 1404 Avenue E.

Readers' Exchange

Hello, again! Because we've had some extraordinarily luscious desserts lately — and some of us are on diets — what do you say we have some main dish recipes this week?

GOURMET POTATO PATTIES
(Submitted by Betty Moreman, Brownfield)

1 pkg. 3-oz. cream cheese (softened)
1 tbsp. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. paprika
1 tbsp. dried parsley
6 tbsp. shredded cheese
2 tbsp. evaporated milk
1 tbsp. minced onion
1 egg beaten
2 bricks frozen, shredded hash browns (thawed and separated)

Mix cream cheese, flour, salt, paprika, parsley and other cheese. Add milk and onions; stir until smooth. Gradually add egg; mix well.

Lightly grease skillet and fry as pancakes (1/4 cup each and spread to about 3 inches in diameter). Fry until golden brown.

PEPPER STEAK
(Serve with hot rice)

1-1/2 lbs. beef round (2-in. thick)
3/4 tsp. meat tenderizer (optional)
3 tbsp. oil
2 large Bell peppers
3 scallions with tops
1/2 cup celery
1-1/2 cups bouillon
1 tbsp. cornstarch
1/3 cup molasses
3 tbsp. soy sauce
3/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. garlic salt
1-1/2 tsp. ginger
2 tsp. lemon juice

Slice beef into thin strips. If needed, add the tenderizer. On high, heat oil in large skillet. Add beef and sear until red disappears.

Add prepared vegetables, stirring often. Cook 5 minutes. Blend cornstarch in bouillon. Add this and the remaining ingredients quickly, stirring often until boils and thickens slightly.

We'd also like to use Barbara's recipe that follows.

SHORT RIB RUSSIAN STEW

2 cups water
1 lb. short ribs (beef) or stew meat
1 onion
2 Bay leaves
1 parsnip
4 stalks celery
2 tbsp. salt
1 tsp. pepper

Add the following and cook 1 hour.

1 8-oz. can tomato sauce
5 carrots, chopped
3 large potatoes, quartered
1 head cabbage, chopped
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 tbsp. brown sugar
1/4 tsp. ginger, powdered
1 tbsp. orange peel
2 large beets, diced (optional)

BEEF STROGANOFF
(Sent by Allene Hughes, Roaring Springs)

Cube 2 lbs. tenderized round steak and brown in a small amount of oil. Then, simmer until tender. Add a small amount of water, if necessary. (Note: You can use 2 lbs. ground meat, browned and crumbled.)

Add 2 cans golden mushroom soup and 1 8-oz. carton sour cream. Simmer for a few minutes and serve over hot noodles.

Forget we ever talked about diets and dieting ... for those who have requested this recipe (also courtesy of Allene), here is the recipe similar to that served by Furr's Cafeterias.

MILLIONAIRE PIE

1 15-oz. can sweetened condensed milk
1/3 cup lemon juice
1/3 cup chopped maraschino cherries
1/3 cup chopped pecans
1/3 cup crushed pineapple
1 8 or 9-inch baked pieshell, pastry or graham cracker
Whipped cream

Blend milk and lemon juice. Mix in cherries, nuts and pineapple. Spoon into pieshell. Chill 2 hours. Top with whipped cream before serving.

May we especially thank Ruth Pierce of Morton for taking the time to help out fellow neighbors who had difficulties with recent brandied fruit recipes. Here are Ruth's special tips and recipes.

BRANDIED FRUIT

To start the brandied fruit, use the following: 3 cups sugar; 1 cup pineapple; 1 cup cherries; 1 cup peaches and 1 package dry yeast. In two weeks, add: 1 cup fruit and 1 cup sugar (alternate pineapple, peaches and marashino cherries).

Note: Ruth stores in an inexpensive clear, cookie jar. When using fruit, always allow 3 cups to remain in jar.

BRANDIED FRUIT COOKIES

1 cup oleo
2 eggs
1 cup white raisins (1 cup nuts may be substituted)
1 cup fruit, drained
1/2 tsp. salt
1 2 tsp. soda
1 2 tsp. cinnamon
1 2 tsp. nutmeg
2 cups brown sugar
1/3 cup fruit liquid
2-3 4 cup flour (more flour may be needed)

Always add some flour to fruit before adding fruit to other mixture. Drop by teaspoonful on cookie sheet. Bake 10-12 minutes at 350 degrees.

SPORTY SPRING LOOKS — Sweaters are again a spring addition, especially in a lacey novelty cable in cool cotton. Shorts with dressmaker details are especially importatn this year. Note the buckle accent in back and longer bermuda length.

Coordinates Top Spring Fashion In Sportswear

Bright coordinate pieces are the major part of women's designer sportswear for this spring, according to a recent showing at the Dallas Apparel Mart.

The focus is as strong in fashion as it is in practicality.

In the various designer labels, coordinates are planned so wardrobes may be built piece by piece around them.

Each designer pivots his collection around a jacket, with many bearing the designer's signature. Major groupings include tennis shorts and skirts, bermudas, culottes and golf skirts.

Shapes are giving way to a softer, more feminine approach in basics enhanced with detailing.

Dressmaker-looking shorts are an important look. Other shorts have dirndl fullness below shaped waistbands or fullness from pleats. There are also bloomer legs for those brave enough to try them.

Cotton knits with appliques and ribbon trim are versatile and can be worn for all occasions. Motif sweaters with golf or tennis decor also are big.

Dating Service Caters To Elite

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK (NEA) — The Godmothers is coming! It's already in New York, Washington, Philadelphia and Boston and, in the next two years, Abby Hirsch, who founded the dating service in New York in December '78, plans to open branches in 12 more cities.

But hold onto your pumpkin. Unless you're an educated, accomplished, cultured professional, you can't sign up. Not even if you can scrape up the $250 fee for "three evenings" with three different men (or women) who, it's hoped, come closest to what you say you want in a date.

The Godmothers was not organized for the underprivileged. Says Hirsch, who also runs her own public relations business, "I started The Godmothers because my friends who are very interesting people had become boring. They kept lamenting the fact that there was no one around they liked going out with. Lo and behold, that applied to the men, too."

So Hirsch sent out a press release about her plans for an elite introduction service and the response put her into business. Now she says, "At any given time, I have several hundred people registered."

They're men and women aged 21 to 60, but mostly in their 30s and 40s ("the men go through their 50s"), doctors, lawyers, corporation presidents, stockbrokers, two restaurateurs, some journalists, one artist, a novelist, etc.

All doing well, except socially, all with the credentials to survive the screening procedure which goes like this:

First," she says, "you send us an autobiographical sketch including your last three relationships, how long they lasted, why they ran into problems, what you liked and responded to about the people and what you didn't, etc.

"In the third part, you tell us the sort of person you'd like to meet through us and the kind of relationship you want. We study all this and try to see if you would mix easily with our other clients and if your expectations are not too unrealistic."

If what you say is what they like, you're invited to say it in person. "We sit and talk about 45 minutes, asking you to expand on what you've written," she says. "I try not to think of whom you might like during the interview because I will start to hear things I would not hear otherwise. But the moment you leave, I start going through my files."

Promptness counts because The Godmothers claim it will produce your first "evening" in four weeks. "If we can't, we say here is someone pretty close, or we ask for more time," she says. "I've spent weeks trying to figure out whom somebody might be compatible with. All three evenings could take as long as a year to produce, but it almost never does. We try not to be sloppy, though."

After each encounter does take place, the Godmothers calls each party for his and her reaction. And that's when the trouble starts. "Two things sabotage people in relationships," she says. "Unrealistic expectations and the feeling that there's always something better around the corner."

People are quick to reject, lest they be rejected first, and they're slow to allow second chances. But, she says, "If I'm able to say to a client, 'Your date liked being with you and would like to go out with you again, are you interested?' the answer more often than not is yes, and a lot of initial criticism falls away. Also, people have to allow for differences in style. Some are more casual and warmer than others. Still, two people with different styles can get on if they go out again."

Thirty to 35 percent of her clients do continue some sort of relationship with one of the people we introduce them to," she says. "That's a vast difference from the world out there if you think of all the people you go out with once and never see again. Also, I have six couples who are living together, and they're not frivolous people."

Neither is the mature, New York marketing executive who is on his second three-evening round with the Godmothers. "I'm divorced and I was attracted to The Godmothers because I favor anything that suggests prescreening," he says. "You hear about all the fish in the ocean in the single world, but how much time can you spend chasing fish?"

Of the first three minnows The Godmothers supplied him with — two schoolteachers and one clinical hypnotist — the last came closest to his specifications. "An attractive woman vitally interested in some sort of dynamic endeavor." That worked out rather well up to a point," he says, "and then it had to go on or die and it died. I signed up again because I want to get out of the fish pond. I'm looking for permanency in a relationship. I do believe it's rougher for men being single again than women."

While he endorses The Godmothers' castings in his behalf, he has no illusions about its efficacy. "It's foolish," he says, "for any person to assume that you're home free having a third party make the selection for you. It just betters the odds a bit."

Minnows it down, so to speak.

ANN LANDERS

Teen Has Problem With Booze

Dear Ann Landers: I have been going steady with this guy for three years. I am 18 now. He was my first and only true love. A nicer person never lived.

I have cheated on my sweetheart at least 20 times. I don't know what the hell is wrong with me. I am 100 percent certain that he has never been near another woman. I must be some kind of a crazy. Whenever I get a few drinks and see an attractive man who is alone, I set something up for later. I have even slept with the steadies of some of my dearest girlfriends. The guilt afterwards is so terrible I want to kill myself.

After every cheat I make a vow it will never happen again — but then I get a few drinks in me and I'm off and running. One of these days my guy is going to catch me, and it will be all over. This I could never take. He is my whole life. Please help me, Ann. I know I'm playing with fire. — Atlantic Highlands Cheater

Dear A.H.: You're a sick chick. The first thing you must do is get off the booze. Completely. Look up Alcoholics Anonymous in the phone book. Find out when the next meeting is closest to your home and go. I have a feeling that if you never touched another drop of alcohol you would quit sleeping around. Get going, and good luck.

Dear Ann Landers: With so many people writing in and telling you what screwballs they are married to, I thought you might welcome a change of pace. This is a letter from a man who truly appreciates his wife.

I changed careers a few months ago. These last several weeks have been agony. I made some horrendous mistakes, but things are looking better. I know now that I made the right decision, and everything is going to be all right.

I never would have made it without this wonderful woman at my side. She was supportive and patient and ever-ready with wise counsel. I know she was worried and suffered just as much as I, but she never showed it.

I have always been the tower of strength in our family, but I know now, more than ever, that this tower could not stand without the foundation of support given to me by my wonderful wife. — A Grateful Man In Boston

Dear Man: What a beautiful letter. If your wife doesn't recognize herself for heaven's sake tell her she's the heroine in today's column.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 10-year-old son is very bright. He was an early walker and an early talker — way ahead of our other two children. But the boy has never done well in school.

I had a talk with Roger's teacher, and she says he may have a learning disability and we should have him tested. Does this mean he is emotionally disturbed? Please give me some information. Thank you in advance. — Concerned In White Plains.

Dear W.P.: Herbert Yahraes, an authority on the subject, says that just because a child has a learning problem it should never be assumed he has a learning disability.

Indications of a possible learning disability are awkwardness or poor concentration, slowness in learning to speak, confused speech patterns, inability to understand or follow directions, failure in reading, spelling, writing or arithmetic. Also, problems with other children.

Have your child tested at once. Roger's teacher can guide you. If he does have a learning disability, be aware that with remedial help and cooperation from parents and teachers, the child can become a high achiever. Thomas Edison had a reading disability. So did Albert Einstein and Nelson Rockerfeller.

It helps to read and talk to learning-disabled children. Remember they need calm and structured surroundings. When giving directions, make them simple and brief — and praise them unstintingly and give rewards for a job well done.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Car Dealership Provides CPR Training For Staff

By JACQUE HUTCHINS
Family News Staff

Many people are becoming certified in cardiopulmonary resusitation, a life-saving technique administered to heart attack victims. But few individuals have taken as intense interest as Larry Corbell, president of Don Crow Chevrolet.

Corbell has instituted a program for all his employees to become CPR certified. West Texas Hospital will provide, in conjunciton with the American Heart Association, the training necessary for the 55 employees to be certified.

The company president previously owned a car dealership in Slaton, where one of his employees died of a heart attack while at work. Corbell explained that because of everyone's inability to help the victim, he wanted to know what to do if the situation ever happed again. "We went through a situation where we were helpless to help. We were afraid to help because we didn't know what to do without causing more harm," said Corbell. After the tragedy in Slaton, Corbell saw to it that all his employees were certified. After coming to Lubbock he felt the same should be done. "We have too many employees that are of the age where that type of circumstance could happen again," said Corbell. For three consecutive Saturdays the employees that have not been previously certified will listen to lectures, view films and practice and demonstrate the technique.

Wanda Walser, director of community relations at West Texas Hospital, explained that it takes eight hours to be certified in CPR. "This is the largest class we have ever worked with," siad Mrs. Walser. "We teach CPR classes at the hospital and we have teams that go out and teach the business people."

In addition to CPR the teams also teach a technique to help choking victims. She explained that this service is free to the public. The classes are usually taught the second Tuesday of each month at the hospital from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Mrs. Walser explained that in order to be certified one must demonstrate the ability to perform CPR. The instructors demonstrate CPR using a "dummy" named Rususciannie. "She's the model used to practice on. A printout is read from the number of breaths to see how well the person giving CPR is doing," said Mrs. Walser.

The director explained that the technique is very simple to learn. Interested persons may call the hospital at 765-9381, Ext. 464, or 115.

Corbell stated he would assist local businesses in providing information for implementing the program. Interested business people may contact him at 794-4000.

Clip 'N' Cook

STUFFED ZUCCHINI

12 small whole or 6 large zucchini (3 lbs.)
½ lb. ground beef or lamb
¼ cup regular cooking rice (uncooked)
1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce, divided
¼ tsp. onion powder
¼ tsp. salt, divided
½ tsp. basil leaves, crushed
¼ tsp. oregano leaves, crushed
1 16 tsp. black pepper
1 can (15 oz.) whole tomatoes, broken up
½ tsp. garlic powder

Cut ends from zucchini. Cut large zucchini in half cross-wise. Using an apple corer, scoop out pulp leaving 1/4-inch thick shell.

In a medium bowl, combine beef, rice, 1/4 cup tomato sauce, onion powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, basil, oregano and black pepper.

Stuff into zucchini shells until 3/4 full to allow for rice to expand; set aside. In a large skillet, combine tomatoes, garlic powder and remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt and tomato sauce; bring to a boil. Add reserved zucchini, spooning some of the sauce over zucchini. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until zucchini and rice are tender, about 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serves 6.

Foods In Freezer Can Be Saved When Power Blackouts Occur

HERSHEY, Pa. (Special) — A common problem for all of us today is operating within our budget. And a most necessary and vital part of that budget is allocated for the purchase of food. That is why it is important that we know what to do in case of a power failure in order to salvage most of the food in our freezer. Here are some things to remember if you experience a power blackout.

•A freezer that is fully stocked, with food that is completely frozen, will keep temperatures at a satisfactory level for two days, provided that the appliance is not opened. A freezer that is half full will keep food only one day.

•Consider adding dry ice to a freezer which will be without power for an extended period of time. Twenty-five pounds of dry ice will hold the temperature below freezing in a half full 10-cubic-foot freezer for two to three days. Place the dry ice on a layer of cardboard and put between the food. Do not place the ice directly on the food containers.

•Partially thawed food can usually be refrozen. If the food contains ice crystals, it can be safely refrozen. The exception to this is fish. Fish tends to spoil very quickly and should not be refrozen.

•Completely thawed foods should be discarded or, if still good, used at once. Red meats and vegetables can be refrozen if you cook them first.

•Use refrozen items as soon as possible. They will probably lose some of their taste and will not keep as long as foods which have not been refrozen.

•Food stored in a refrigerator freezer, or in the refrigerator itself, is even more difficult to save. Do not eat any foods that look or smell spoiled.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Bleaching Prolongs Life Of Old Newspapers

DEAR HELOISE:

To bleach old newspaper clippings, I have used a simple formula for years which works beautifully.

To prove it, I have — in perfect condition — a newspaper clipping dating back to 1909! Here's what to do:

Dissolve one tablet or two tablespoons liquid milk of magnesia in a quart of club soda, then mix well. If using a tablet, be sure it's dissolved. Let the solution chill for eight hours or so in the refrigerator.

Next, pour it out into a shallow pan and soak the clipping in it for an hour.

Remove the papers, place them between paper towels or other absorbent materials and carefully pat them as dry as you can. Place on a flat surface and allow them to dry more fully.

This treatment counteracts the acidity which causes the newspaper to yellow and become brittle. The paper will be preserved, lasting indefinitely — as long as you can remember to repeat the process about every 50 years! (Should you be around so long!) — Nathan Raitt

There's always hope! At least they'll know how to preserve our obits! Thanks for sharing a neat trick! — Heloise

SAME SIZE LAYERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I bake cakes as a hobby for family and friends. When making a layer cake, I weigh the layer pans on a pair of kitchen scales as I fill them.

By having the weight equal, the layers are always the same size. — Lucy Bobb

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

I've decided to abolish "Blue Monday" with its weekend clutter to be cleaned up. I'll just get out of the house or find something interesting to do and tackle the chores on Tuesday.

To me, Tuesday is a different color entirely. — Barbara J.

A gal after my own heart! Don't make housework a drudge — keep it interesting. If this means postponing a dreaded chore a day or two, so be it. I've found chores keep most times and when my heart is in doing something, it's a whole new ball game. — Heloise

TABLECLOTH TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

I wanted a tablecloth for my kitchen table and bought some polyester knit on sale.

I found it made a fantastic cloth as it washes and dries quickly and beautifully and I can just put it back on the table with no ironing needed.

I have since made a pretty cloth for my dining room table as well as some as gifts for friends.

If you have a fancy stitch on your sewing machine you can really make these cloths something special — Mrs. C.J. Vogelsong

REFUND OFFERS

DEAR HELOISE:

We follow a sort of hobby of mailing in boxtops, labels, proofs of purchase, etc., for manufacturer's refund offers and we have found it a good idea to keep a record in a notebook.

We list dates, the items sent in, the address and amount of refund and the amount of time suggested be allowed before we should expect to receive it. Upon arrival, the entry is crossed out. Several times in checking back, we have discovered that a refund has not arrived even after several months. A follow-up postcard usually gets satisfactory results. — Betty and George Smith

Sounds like you're on the right track. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

People who suffer from all forms of arthritis or rheumatism, can get some relief by cutting off the arms of a wool sweater and pulling the sleeve up over the aching joint.

The added warmth from the wool over the knees or elbows will ease some of those aches and pains. If it's in the neck, wrap the sleeve around your neck.

I've told several people about this and they said it's really helped, so I'm optimistic you'll print this in your colum to help others. — William Deppe

If you haven't got a wool sweater you feel like you could cut up, try wool socks, doubled if necessary. — Heloise

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Coming to the last four boards of the 1966 championship, Jacoby and Fisher led Kreyns and Slavenborg by just four match points. The luck of the draw found both pairs playing the North-South cards.

On board one, Jacoby made an unusual decision and elected to pass Fisher's one-heart bid. The play started with a queen of diamonds lead. Fisher won with his king, finessed the 10 of diamonds at trick two and continued with the ace. East ruffed and John overruffed. Then John played his ace, king and queen of spades. West ruffed with the nine while John discarded a club from dummy.

That made one trick for the defense. West played ace and another club. John won in dummy and ruffed a low diamond while East chucked his last club. The deuce of spades was led and when West discarded a club, dummy got another ruff. Eventually, John made two more trump tricks to wind up with plus 140 and a very good score score.

When Kreyns-Slavenborg played the hand they played at one no trump and just made it. The swing was worth eight match points to Jacoby and Fisher, who now led by 12.

Patient Seeks Information On Test For Pancreas

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I was told a couple of years ago after gall bladder surgery that I had pancreas trouble. This spring after having stomach distress I went in for what was called an "E.R.C.P." test. I didn't understand the patient information sheet on this, but it worried me. Can you explain it, because I didn't remember anything about it after being put under. — Mrs. M.G.

Let's blow those initials up to size.

An endoscope is a viewing tube that is inserted through the throat and esophagus into the stomach, and finally into the small intestine. The ultimate destination is the place in the small intestine where there is a common opening for the system of passages that allow digestive juices to enter from the liver, pancreas and gall bladder.

When this area is reached by the viewing end of the endoscope, a tiny, soft hose is slipped out into it. Then dye is injected back into the opening, whence the term retrograde comes. X-ray pictures are then taken of the pancreas, gall bladder and liver — the cholangiopancreatography.

All of this takes a great deal of skill, but the result is evaluation of the drainage system, to see, for example, if residual gall stones are blocking it. Frequently, blockage may disrupt the flow of pancreas juice, forcing it backward into that gland, where it may begin digesting its tissue. This may or may not be the nature of the pancreas trouble to which your doctor referred. He will be able to give you a complete analysis from the E.R.C.P. testing.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have had brown fingernails for about a year and a half. Thought maybe they would grow out, but they didn't. Could you possibly know what might cause this? — Mrs. R.H.

Brown nails may result from fungal infection. Brown discoloration of the nails may result from infections around the nail beds. A few drugs can cause it. Does your work bring you in contact with any substance that might be staining the nail? It needn't be a brown-colored substance. It can be any chemical.

The fact that the brownness doesn't grow out suggests that it is a substance you are in constant contact with or that you have a chronic infection of the nail bed. For a discussion of various nail symptoms and treatments, see the booklet "Solving Your Nail Problems." For a copy, write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please discuss the Kegel excercises for urinary stress incontinence, and also the surgical procedure that may be used to correct the incontinence. — G.R.

Any unintentional leakage of urine is incontinence. Stress incontinence is the kind that occurs when the bladder is placed under sudden stress, as from coughing, sneezing, laughing or lifting heavy objects. The strain from these activities places direct pressure on the bladder. Control is lost and urine leaks.

In women, this understandably embarrassing condition most often results from a weakening of the muscles and ligaments that normally hold the urinary bladder firmly in place. Childbirth contributes to this weakening. The Kegel exercises are designed to strengthen those weakened muscles and hence strengthen the bladder control. Several times daily, the woman consciously contracts the muscles that halt the flow of urine. While actually urinating, she consciously stops the stream, starts the stream, etc. Again, the result should be the desired strengthening of the muscle support.

In more severe cases of incontinence, the doctor can elevate the bladder and construct a firmer foundation for it. Not all urinary incontinence is of the stress type. Other causes include a defective nerve supply to the bladder. The Kegel exercises are not helpful if this is the case.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please elaborate on the causes of puffy eyelids. What, if anything, can be done about them? — Mrs. B.G.

The skin of the eyelids is normally somewhat thin and loose. With age, the looseness becomes more pronounced, giving a puffy appearance to the lids. That is to be expected. Abnormal puffiness, however, can result from infections of the lids. Since the lid skin is so loose to begin with, whenever the body retains excess liquid, as in heart failure or kidney disease, the fluid often accumulates there to make the lids puffy.

A low level of thyroid gland hormone can also cause lid puffiness, as can allergic reactions. Treatment of the cause of the fluid retention, whatever it is, corrects the problem. If there is no basic illness producing the puffiness, the sagging skin can be corrected by a plastic surgeon.

Nurses Aid Class Will Be Offered By Local College

In order to meet current needs for nursing assistants in Lubbock hospitals, a Nurse Aide and Orderly course has been scheduled to begin March 2 at South Plains College in Lubbock.

In order to be admitted to the course, persons must schedule an appointment for Feb. 27, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Appointments may be made by calling South Plains College, 747-0576, ext. 27.

The five-week course will meet for the first two weeks at the college at 1302 Main St. from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. Monday through Friday. The last three weeks of clinical training will be done at Lubbock General Hospital Monday through Friday from 7 a.m.-3 p.m.

Nursing assistants are responsible for all bedside care of patients, including bathing, feeding, bed-making, and taking vital signs. Since area hospitals run three shifts each day, a great number of nursing assistants are required to meet patient needs.

The cost of the course is $87 and the book is $12.55. Another expense is uniforms, which are needed during the last three weeks of the course.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES

Timing Is Key To Savings

By RAY De CRANE
(Last of 14 parts)

The Internal Revenue Service makes it tantalizingly tempting for people to take a standard deduction instead of individually itemizing their deductions on their income-tax return.

The standard deduction — now knows as the "zero bracket amount" — greatly simplifies and speeds up the filing process.

Easy to use? Yes. Most economical? Not necessarily.

Instead of taking the easy way out with the standard deduction, try, instead, to take advantage of the tax system and use it for your own gain.

You take advantage of it by trying to shift deductions from one year to the next. In doing so, you alternate your habits.

In one year, you take the standard deduction. That's the year you have eased off on your deductible items.

The next year, you itemize. In that year you will pack in as many deductions as possible.

You can't beat the system unless you know the rules. The rules allow a standard deduction of $3,400 for a married couple filing a joint return and $2,300 for single taxpayers.

For your copy of the 1981 edition of "Cut Your Own Taxes and Save" by Ray De Crane, send a check or money order for $1.50 (plus 50 cents postage and handling) to "Cut Your Own Taxes" c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Consider the case of a married couple whose deductions usually total about $3,000 a year. Instead of itemizing, they elect the standard deduction of $3,400 and figure they come out ahead. But do they?

Let's closely examine their situation. Over a two-year period, they spend $6,000 for deductible items. Wouldn't it make sense if they could shift $1,500 of those deductions from one year to the next?

If they could, they would have $4,500 in deductions in one year and $1,500 the next. We haven't increased their spending, just changed their habits. Over a two-year period, the deductions still total $6,000.

But in the year in which they have $4,500 in deductions, they itemize. They claim the full $4,500. In the next year, when they only have $1,500 in deductions, they take the $3,400 standard deduction.

Now they have received $7,900 in deductions in two years instead of the $6,800 they had been claiming.

Do they save money on their taxes? Of course they do. Is it easy to do. It takes a little planning, but it is time well spent.

Here are some ideas:

No one would propose delaying surgery on a "hot" appendix, but some forms of cosmetic surgery and optional dental work easily could be delayed a few months to move them into another year.

There are many opportunities in the category of taxes. In many communities, it is possible to make four real-estate tax payments in one year and none the next. You would naturally make four in the year you are itemizing and none in the year of the standard deduction.

That final estimated tax payment for state and local income taxes generally is due in January. Move the payments up to December if you want extra deductions that year.

And time your purchase of a new car for the year you are itemizing. Then you will have that additional sales-tax deduction.

Certainly charitable contributions present the perfect opportunity for an alternating-years system. In the year you are itemizing, be overly generous. In the year of the standard deduction, hold back on your giving.

Over a two-year period, you will be just as generous as you have always been. No one will be cheated. You will just be changing your habits.

Timing is of the essence in this type of program. But it can be done and the rewards can be great.

Officials Claim Few Options Exist If Student Transfers Not Okayed

transfer from Evans, a predominantly Anglo school, to a largely minority junior high such as Alderson.

Students may also apply to transfer to Hutchinson, the district's newest magnet project, Leslie said, but only if the magnet school's requirements are met. The program is aimed largely at high achievers.

But the district will accept special transfers for students who simply want to attend smaller schools, the administrator said. He said the central office transfer committee, which considers applications for school switches, is being encouraged to approve such transfers if the other junior highs have room.

All but Mackenzie would have the space to absorb more students, Leslie said.

He admitted that few Anglo students probably would be willing to go to a minority school, but he noted that the youngsters could get more individual attention at a junior high with a smaller enrollment. And those students who face stiff competition in extra-curricular activities at Evans, might have a better chance in a smaller school, Leslie said.

Indeed, trustee Liz Sisco said parents have told her that some youngsters "are just lost over there (at Evans) because it's so big. The competition is so stiff for everything" at large schools, Mrs. Sisco said. "If you don't establish yourself as a leader in seventh grade, you won't have any time later. And some kids just aren't ready that young."

Mrs. Sisco said that if students do not find their niche in some extra-curricular activities, "it reflects on their academics." She said she is pleased that the magnet school (LEAP) at Lubbock High has allowed students "to have had the opportunity to come out and be somebody. They're in positions they wouldn't have tried for in other schools" because the competition would have been too tough, she said.

"It's hard for parents to take the lead and encourage their kids to transfer," Mrs. Sisco said. "But I would encourage parents to realize there are many options for their children in the Lubbock public schools."

Other than the addition of portable buildings and approval of student transfers, school officials have few other options available to ease the burden of too many people in too small a space at Evans. Mrs. Sisco noted that any attempt to change junior high attendance boundaries would have to be approved by the courts — the same courts currently deciding the school's desegregation case.

The outcome of that case "will be the answer" whether it mandates more busing or allows the new schools to be built, Leslie said. He said he would "hate to create any turmoil" by applying for a boundary change at this point. "We're living day to day."

Other schools that require more space next year are all elementaries — Hodges, Jackson, Parsons and Wester. Leslie said Coronado is overcrowded also, but that the district will not consider plans for a new high school for some time yet.

Girls' Ranch Plans Discussed At Tea

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS, N.M. — New Mexico CowBelles were in Santa Fe recently to attend "Legislative Day" and to co-host a tea with Alice King at the governor's mansion. Guests were the wives of the New Mexico legislators.

During the afternoon, approximately 125 guests called at the mansion. Each was presented with a CowBelle Beef Cookbook. A short program was presented by Addie Le Flint of Bard, N.M., New Mexico CowBelle chaplain.

Mrs. King spoke on plans for Girls' Ranch. She said 112 acres of land near Lamey, N.M., has been given for the ranch and another 200 acres would be added next year.

The land is in a beautiful setting with pine and pinon trees, according to Mrs. King.

Diaper Disinfectant Blamed In Babies' Illnesses

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — At least 1,062 babies have been sickened in the past 12 months by mercury contained in a disinfectant used by community diaper laundries in Buenos Aires, city officials say.

Three of the city's four major diaper laundries were shut down for several weeks as a result of a judge's investigation that has sent three laundry executives to jail and two others into hiding.

Medical authorities here believe this is the first such widespread poisoning by phenol mercury acetate, a fungicide easily absorbed by the skin and transformed in the bloodstream to inorganic mercury.

The infants have experienced skin discoloration, irritability, lack of appetite, sleeping difficulty, diarrhea, abnormal sensitivity to light and other symptoms of mercury intoxication.

No fatality has been reported, and doctors say they expect full recoveries in all known cases. But the Red Cross last month had to import large quantities of Cuprimine, a drug that speeds passage of mercury from the body, after Argentina's limited supply ran low.

"They worst damage phenol mercury acetate can cause is to the kidneys," said Dr. Carlos Gotelli, head of the toxicology laboratory at the University of Buenos Aires. "Even in the most serious cases analyzed here, the kidneys were not affected."

Newspapers began reporting the outbreak several weeks ago. The municipal public Health Secretariat, which had urged laundries to stop using mercury salts last Nov. 25, banned them outright on Jan 2, along with "all other potentially toxic disinfectants."

For parents, the measures were painfully slow, considering that the first cases came to light in February 1980.

"What wasn't done at the earliest moment cannot be corrected now," said Emilio Bianchi, waiting to testify in court. "Jailing those responsibile isn't going to solve anything. My two baby boys are still sick."

Juvenile court Judge Oscar Hermelo, who specializes in crimes inflicted on minors, began the investigation at the request of doctors who detected high mercury levels in the urine of two infant patients at Children's Hospital. Officials there suspected the mercury came from diapers supplied by the hospital and laundered at an establishment called Seven Seas.

In the court investigation, widened by hundreds of new medical cases, Hermelo is trying to determine whether there was criminal negligence by laundry executives or city inspectors.

Police acting on his orders in January closed Seven Seas, La Panalera and Forget, the three largest diaper laundries in Buenos Aires. Until they were allowed to reopen early this month on a challenge by their attorneys, their shutdown had posed another health hazard for the city — piles of unwashed diapers inside.

"We inspected these establishments regularly," Dr. Alberto Fridman, municipal director of Ecology and Sanitation, said. "But they were registered only as laundries, so we checked the diapers for nothing more than whiteness. Nobody knew that besides washing diapers, these companies were treating them with disinfectants."

Before his arrest and jailing on charges of "negligently endangering the public health," La Panalera president Jorge Young denied using mercury. But Seven Seas director Fernando Quintano, also jailed, told a magazine interviewer his firm "probably used" a mercury salt called Fungosol PA-5. "All the laundries here use it," Quintano said.

If convicted, the executives could be sentenced to three years in prison. The two fugitive laundry executives approached authorities through their lawyers, offering to testify if the arrest warrants were lifted. Hermelo refused.

Biochemists say mercury salts were used for decades in U.S. laundries without known human contamination and were banned there only to curb water pollution. They believe the Argentinian laundries erred not by using mercury, but by putting too strong a dose in each wash load.

Suit Names Attorneys Of Alleged Brothel Keeper

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A columnist for an anti-establishment newspaper who is threatening to publish a list of brothel customers surfaced long enough Wednesday to file a $7.5 million slander suit.

Pat Maloney Jr. said the suit was merely an attempt to use the federal court to usurp the state court's rights.

Mrs. Saldivar has been playing hide-and-seek the past eight days with sheriff's deputies trying to serve her with a temporary restraining order prohibiting the list's publication. But deputies showed up at her news conference and dropped the papers at her feet when she refused to take them.

Mrs. Saldivar's suit charged the Maloneys, who obtained the order, slandered her by alleging she was a "thief" who had no legal right to the list of 3,000 men — some of them allegedly among the city's most influential politicians and businessmen. The names appeared on a current "trick list" seized by vice squad officers at Miss Brown's house last October.

The columnist told reporters Miss Brown provided her an index card file which listed names, prices and sexual preferences. The confiscated list was compiled from this file, which dates back to 1962, she said.

"Some of them paid $35 just to kiss toes," Mrs. Saldivar said in describing the type of information on the list. "We have some abnormal sexual tendencies."

However, she said her newspaper, the monthly non-profit "El Pueblo," intended to publish only the names and not go into sexual practices.

"I will mention some of the sadistic and masochistic tendencies, but I will use no names in my column," she said.

Asked how she could be sure the names she is threatening to publish are authentic customers of the alleged bawdy house, and not fictitious names provided by the customers, Mrs. Saldivar said: "According to the police chief the reason they were not able to do anything was because she (Miss Brown) ran such a tight operation, carefully screening the customers. There couldn't have been any names just thrown in there.

"She (Miss Brown) was considered as among the upper middle class of this city. She was not considered to be a prostitute except by her customers."

One vice officer said Wednesday the names had not been verified and admitted that some names might not be valid.

The San Antonio Light has taken notes from the index card file but Managing Editor Jan Jarboe said Wednesday the newspaper would only consider printing the names if they were entered as court evidence.

"There's a lot of room for mischief, a lot of room for unfairness," she said, adding there was no assurance the people on the list actually visited the brothel.

One San Antonio Express-News editor said, "We've all been offered copies of the list and turned them down."

Mrs. Saldivar's slander suit also named as defendants State District Judge James Onion who issued the temporary order and the state of Texas, claiming they were attempting to violate Mrs. Saldivar's First Amendment right to publish the list, which she said was being copyrighted and was in a secret location. She said the list belonged jointly to her and the "El Pueblo."

Onion will hold a hearing Thursday to determine if the restraining order should be changed to an injunction.

Attorneys for Mrs. Saldivar and "El Pueblo" were scheduled to request the restraining order be dissolved as an infringement on press freedom.

Maloney has been representing Miss Brown since she fired her previous attorney and withdrew her plea, entered two weeks ago, of no contest to an aggravated promotion of prostitution charge.

Outside the courthouse, Mrs. Saldivar told reporters that the local FBI had expressed an interest in the controversy and that she talked by telephone earlier Wednesday with agent Joe Davis.

Tomatoes ripen better and more quickly if they are placed in a paper bag out of the sun.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Lennon Planned To Help Ringo

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The late John Lennon reportedly planned to contribute a song or two to fellow ex-Beatle Ringo Starr's new album, a recording that includes help from the other former Beatles Paul McCartney and George Harrison.

LENNON

Lennon and Starr were to begin recording the songs last month, and one of the Lennon songs, called "Life Begins at 40," was to have been a toast to the fact they both had turned 40 last year, Starr told the Los Angeles Times.

The album, to be released by Portrait Records in April, is Starr's first in more than two years.

Starr said he was in the Bahamas when he learned of Lennon's shooting.

"I just hired a plane and flew to New York," he said. "I knew there was nothing else to do. I just wanted to see Yoko (Ono, Lennon's widow). They were so close. They were like one person, with two identities in a way. So it was like she had lost half of her soul.

Starr said he had no regrets that the foursome never reunited after their 1970 breakup: "No, I have no regrets about that. We always said we wouldn't do it. We never thought of it, even when we got together to help each other on our own projects.

He also said there are no plans for the three remaining ex-Beatles to be reunited for a charity or benefit, even in Lennon's memory.

Hotel Gets Hold On Drinkers

DAWSON CITY, Yukon (AP) — An Alberta woman with nine toes has kicked in the missing ingredient for a drink that has made this gold rush city's Eldorado Hotel famous.

The drink is a sour-toe cocktail, a beer glass brimming with champagne and garnished with a pickled human toe instead of an olive or cherry.

Since 1973, more than 700 people downed the potion, leaving the toe behind for the next customer. But last summer a thirsty customer knocked back the works and digested a Klondike institution.

To appease the tourists, hotel owner Dick Stevenson, the originator of the drink, advertised for a new toe. And now he has one, corn and all.

The donor is an anonymous 55-year-old woman who lives near Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta, a few miles northeast of Edmonton.

She sold Stevenson the middle toe of her right foot, pickled in a jar of alcohol for the 19 years since it had been amputated because of a severe corn, for $100.

"It's way worse looking than the old one," Stevenson said with enthusiasm, the two diamonds in his front teeth sparkling as he smiled.

Rita Jenrette Writes Book

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Rita Jenrette, whose husband John resigned from Congress after his Abscam conviction, has written her life story, and a disc jockey has set the couple's troubles to country music.

Mrs. Jenrette's autobiography is scheduled to appear as a Bantam Books paperback about the same time her highly publicized Playboy magazine article about life as a congressman's wife hits the stands early next month, Bantam says.

Meanwhile, disc jockey Billy Smith is entertaining listeners in Jenrette's hometown of North Myrtle Beach with ditties such as "Ode to Rita" and "It Gives Me the Low-Down Blues Ever Since You Found Money Stashed in My Shoe."

Wedding May Not Happen

LONDON (AP) — The "ideal match" of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer may never take place, according to a London newspaper columnist.

Peter McKay in the Daily Mirror claimed 19-year-old Lady Diana resents an ultimatum from Queen Elizabeth II to decide by mid-April whether she will marry Charles if he asks her. But McKay said Tuesday that Charles, 32, is thinking of continuing his playboy life until he is 40 or older.

Buckingham Palace has tired of the publicity surrounding the Charles-Diana courtship, and an early summer wedding would increase the chances of sunny weather for the royal wedding processional, McKay said.

"Friends give 50-50 on the marriage taking place," McKay said.

Bowlers Wed In Fast Lane

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Two area bowling enthusiasts have tied the knot on "Lover's Lane."

Sheila Etzweiler and Harry Russell, who bowl a combined total of seven nights a week, were married on Lane 14 of the Plaza Lanes Bowling Alley here on Valentine's Day. They met several months ago while participating in bowling leagues.

Magistrate Catherine Thompson performed the ceremony under a banner that read "Congratulations Sheila and Harry." Next to it was a banner that read "Bowling For Dollars Jackpot."

Although the bride carried a bouquet rather than a ball on her "approach" to the altar, quests were "spared" the formality of a church wedding.

Presidents' Doctor Joins Staff

LUKASH

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Dr. William M. Lukash, chief physician for U.S. presidents for 14 years, is joining the staff of Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation.

Lukash, 49, said Monday he will begin work July 1 as a clinician in digestive diseases and preventive medicine through exercise.

After serving as assistant physician to presidents Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon, Lukash was named chief White House physician by President Gerald Ford in 1974.

He said he planned to leave, retiring as a Navy rear admiral, regardless of the outcome of last fall's election.

Taxes Cause Couple's Divorce

BALTIMORE (AP) — Angela and David Boyter have divorced and remarried so many times they aren't sure whether they are legally wed or not.

But they vow not to give up their fight with the Internal Revenue Service over the law which bars working couples from saving on taxes by filing individual instead of joint returns.

Several times in the last five years the Boyters have divorced and remarried. Are they married now?

"We don't know," Mrs. Boyter quipped. "We only know what the judge tells us."

The judge is Richard Wilbur of the U.S. Tax Court who ruled last summer that they are not legally divorced, at least for tax purposes.

The Boyters say they may spend more in legal fees than the $14,000 in unpaid taxes the IRS is seeking.

"Anyway," she said, "legal expenses are tax deductible."

Legislative Votes Recapped

WASHINGTON — Here's how area senators were recorded on major roll call votes immediately before the current presidential birthdays recess. There were no House votes.

DEBT CEILING — The Senate passed, 73 for and 18 against, and sent to the President a bill (HR 15532) to raise the temporary national debt ceiling $49.9 billion, from $935.1 billion to $985 billion. This should enable the government to pay its bills through Sept. 30, at which time the debt is expected to crash $1 trillion.

Supporter Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said, "I am going to hold my nose as hard I can and vote for it so that I can support" President Reagan's long-term economic recovery plan.

Opponent William Armstrong, R-Colo., noted the 180 degree turnabout from previous years when most Democrats supported the debt hike and most Republicans opposed it. He said that explains why "the American people think that the inmates have taken over the asylum around here."

Sens. Pete Domenici, R, and Harrison Schmitt, R, Lloyd Bentsen, D, and John Tower, R, voted "yea."

LOWER CEILING — By a vote of 52 for and 41 against, the Senate tabled and thus killed a Democratic amendment to increase the debt ceiling by $27.9 billion rather than $49.9 billion. This occurred during debate on HR 1553 (see preceding vote).

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kansas, a supporter of killing the lesser hike, said he had never seen Democrats so concerned about holding down deficit spending. He said, "We understand the game that is before us...."

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., an opponent of tabling, said the $27.9 billion hike would enable the government to pay its bills until April. At that time, he said, President Reagan's economic program would be more in focus and Congress could mroe accurately decide how high the ceiling should be raised.

Senators voting "yea" favored a $49.9 billion, rather than $27.9 billion,. hike in the debt limit.

Domenici, Schmitt and Tower voted "yea."

Huge Crowd Incorporated Into New Film

Actually, hundreds of thousands. Except most of them don't know about it.

British filmmaker Sir Richard Attenborough's movie about the life of the late Indian independence leader, Mohandas K. Gandhi, will feature such a cast in the form of massive crowd scenes. The film, being shot in the New Delhi and Bombay areas, is entitled, simply, "Gandhi," and will premiere in about a year.

Attenborough shot the biggest scene in the epic, the solemn procession in which a slain Gandhi is carried to his funeral pyre, here on Jan. 31. But he filmed the enormous crowd that will be seen viewing the procession five days earlier, at one of India's biggest celebrations, the boisterous Republic Day parade.

The producer-director stationed two cameras high atop the Indian Gate war mamorial at the foot of the Raj Path, the broad boulevard stretching from the Presidential Palace.

On Jan. 26, the cameras recorded the hour-long parade. That event drew an estimated quarter-million people just along Raj Path.

The same cameras, without being moved, also filmed the re-creation of Gandhi's last journey. But while Attenborough had invited all of New Delhi to come and watch, only about 50,000 or so people showed up.

Through a complicated bit of cinematic magic called "matte" photography, however, the sea of people that viewed the Republic Day parade will be married to the cortege of actors and extras in the funeral procession.

"It's pretty basic," said cameraman Robin Browne. "We've been doing it for 10 years."

It also is just one of many tricks of a trade which employs the latest technology and an army of skilled technicians and artisans to produce illusions for the silver screen.

"See that statue down there?" Jeff Reid asked from atop India Gate shortly before the cameras began recording the funeral march. "That's George the Fifth. We put him up this morning and we'll take him down tonight."

Reid, an assistant "chippie" (carpenter) with Attenborough's Indo-British Films Ltd., was pointing to a cupola a few yards beyond the salmon-colored war memorial, where a replica of the former British monarch and ruler of pre-independence India had suddenly reappeared.

The original statue of George V was removed by the authorities years ago, after angry patriots lopped off his nose. In order to re-create New Delhi of 1948, Reid and his mates provided a new one in cardboard.

"This really is a military operation," Reid continued, as thousands of policemen, soldiers, extras wearing the white cotton dhotis that were Gandhi's trademark, and curious onlookers flowed smoothly along both sides of the boulevard.

When the procession began a few minutes later, Attenborough's passion for precision was evident:

— The scene was being filmed exactly 33 years to the day of the actual event. The procession stepped off at 11:10 a.m., right on schedule and at approximately the same time as the real one.

— Gandhi's bier was a weapons carrier of the same vintage used 33 years earlier. Like the original, it was pulled by men in uniform, the engine of the war machine silent in deference to the memory of the man who practiced non-violence.

— The cortege was formed according to published photos of the acutal one (with Attenborough himself dressed in the uniform of a British army officer).

On that Saturday morning, Attenborough had ordered the assemblage of what may be the largest "cast" ever for a movie.

Had all of the nearly 345,000 people on the list appeared, there would have been: 14 principal actors, 1,060 members of various Indian military and police units, 1,000 members of a "mixed crowd," 3,000 members of the Indian home guard, 500 Gandhi peace movement volunteers, 30,000 "controlled spectators," 7,500 members of "scheduled" castes (those lower Hindu castes protected by Indian law), and 250,000 "specially invited guests."

Satellite Sees Possible Nuclear Blast

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The United States has detected another nuclear-type flash of light over a remote area of the South Atlantic, the Johannesburg Star reported Wednesday from Washington.

The newspaper, quoting U.S. Defense Department sources in a dispatch from its Washington bureau, said some U.S. intelligence officials "say they now strongly suspect" that South Africa is secretly involved in nuclear weapons testing. But the Star said "there is no conclusive evidence."

Suspicions that white-ruled South Africa is developing an atomic bomb were aroused Sept. 22, 1979, when a U.S. Vela satellite, designed to detect nuclear explosions in the atmosphere, registered a double flash of light in the South Atlantic south of the Cape of Good Hope.

News reports at the time said the double flash was the "signature" of a small atomic blast equivalent to 2.5 to 3 kilotons of TNT.

The Star, the liberal afternoon flagship of South Africa's Argus newspaper group, quoted the Defense Department sources as saying the new flash took place in the early hours of last Dec. 16 in the same general area as the previous flash.

The South African government has denied that it has tested nuclear weapons.

American experts disagreed over whether the September 1979 flash was a nuclear explosion or a natural phenomenon.

The Star quoted U.S. State Department sources as saying there is the possibility that flash and the latest one were "caused by a tiny meteor breaking up or striking the detection satellite."

The newspaper quoted an intelligence official as saying that the latest signals were not identical with those recorded in 1979.

But he added, according to the Star: "It is perfectly logical that a test program should produce two such events 15 months apart.

"If they were nuclear blasts they were small — too small for the Soviet Union or France, but about the right size for countries such as South Africa or Israel."

In the wake of the September 1979 flash, there was speculation and some allegations that South Africa and Israel have been cooperating in the development of nuclear wapons. But these reports were denied by both governments.

Times Of London Editor Selected

LONDON (AP) — Harold Evans, current editor of The Sunday Times, will be the new editor of The Times of London, Australian publisher Rupert Murdoch, who bought both newspapers last week, announced Wednesday.

Evans, 52, who takes over the editorship of the prestigious newspaper March 1, succeeds William Rees-Mogg, editor for the past 14 years. Murdoch is also publisher of the New York Post and other newspapers.

Evans, who began his newspaper career as a reporter on provincial newspapers in the north of England, was widely tipped to become Times editor.

Rees-Mogg, 52, announced he intended to quit after Canadian Lord Thomson of Fleet put the two newspapers up for sale last autumn. He becomes a director of Britain's General Electric Co.

Film Portrayal Of Hitler Disturbs Some Critics

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A recent attempt by television to humanize Adolf Hitler attracted a substantial audience nationwide and prompted a few critical phone calls from viewers, CBS said after broadcast of "The Bunker."

But the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith said it received "numerous" complaints from viewers who objected to what they considered an overly sympathetic portrayal of Hitler as a man "with human frailties." The CBS drama broadcast in Janaury was set in the underground bunker in Berlin where Hitler spent his last 105 days, and where he committed suicide.

Several other television productions dealing with Hitler and the Nazis are upcoming amid an apparently revived interest in World War II and the Nazi period in Germany.

Some critics, including the Anti-Defamation League and William L. Shirer, author of "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," have expressed concern over the renewed interest in Hitler and the period.

Writing in Panorama hagazine late last fall, Shirer suggested that "human beings, apparently, are more interested in monsters than in saints."

A CBS spokeswoman said "The Bunker," starring British actor Anthony Hopkins as Hitler, prompted a "minimal amount of phone calls" — slightly more than 100. A number of viewers objected to the program being broadcast so soon after the return of the 52 American hostages from Iran, she said, and others felt the film trivialized the Nazis.

"They expected to see criminals and instead ... they saw real people, not cartoon figures," the CBS spokeswoman said.

Still to come on American television are a three-hour CBS Adaption of John Hersey's "The Wall," a novel about the wartime Jewish uprising in the Warsaw ghetto; ABC's "Inside the Third Reich," based on the book by Albert Speer, Hitler's chief architect and munitions minister, and the same network's projected film on the Treblinka concentration camp.

NBC broadcast previously broadcast "Holocaust" on the plight of the Jews in Nazi Europe, as well as a new version of "The Diary of Anne Frank," while CBS showed "Playing for Time," based on the memoirs of Auschwitz survivor Fania Fenelon.

"Playing for Time" stirred considerable controversy because it starred Vanessa Redgrave, a supporter of the Palestinian cause.

Public television, meanwhile, recently broadcast a documentary called "Return to Auschwitz."

"The Bunker," based on the book by former Newsweek correspondent James O'Donnell, raised questions about the moral justification of trying to present Hitler as a monstrously flawed human being rather than as a monster in human form.

O'Donnell himself said in a telephone interview that he agreed with some critics that Hopkins played a "too friendly Hitler."

Seymour Reich, chairman of the Anti-Defamation League's Civil Rights Committee, said he thought the program gave short shrift to the "demonic" in an historic figure capable of ordering "the destruction of millions of people — Jews and non-Jews."

Democrat Reply To Air Opposite 'Dallas' Series

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats will get a chance to reply to President Reagan's economics address to Congress, but they'll have to compete with "Dallas" for the ratings.

Mike Willard, press secretary to Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said the ABC television network had set aside a half hour at 10:30 p.m. Friday for the Democrats' response to Reagan's speech.

This coincides with the second half of CBS's popular hour-long "Dallas" serial. NBC has a news-feature program, "Magazine," in the same time slot.

Byrd asked NBC, CBS and the Public Broadcasting Service last week, on behalf of Senate Democrats, for an opportunity to reply soon, in a comparable time slot, to the president's speech at 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Willard said CBS had told Byrd it is "planning a special broadcast to reflect the views of those other than the president" on the subjects covered in the speech. That program was set for 10:30 p.m. on Feb. 28, he said. A letter from CBS said the network hoped Senate Democratic leaders would be among those appearing.

Byrd's aide said NBC also had offered to make time available, and the time was being negotiated.

Mike Harrad, a PBS spokesman, said the broadcasting service does not produce programs but was arranging with WETA-TV, its Washington television outlet, to produce a Democratic response for network distribution.

Slaton Sausage Festival To Sport New Look

SLATON (Special) — The 11th Annual German Sausage Festival will have a new look this year, with a funfest and dancefest added to the regular wurstfest which draws lovers of German cooking from all over West Texas.

The dancefest, set for 9 a.m. Friday in St. Joseph's Hall and featuring Don Turner and His Humpah Players, already is a sellout for its premier performance.

All other events take place Sunday in St. Joseph's Hall, with the sausage-and-trimmings meal scheduled for 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and St. Joseph's School for the funfest of games, country store and auction.

More than three miles of sausage, prepared according to a recipe more than 200-years-old, will be made by parish members Thursday, noted Jerry Kitten, president of the Home School Association and member of the St. Joseph's School board.

Part of the 6,500 pounds of German sausage will be put aside to be the main event at Sunday lunch, sided by mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, green beans, sauerkraut and homemade bread and cake. The remainder will be weighed and wrapped to be sold by the pound at the school Sunday.

All proceeds from the wurstfest and activities will benefit St. Joseph's school, providing a third of the school budget.

The funfest begins at 11 a.m. at the school, with games for all ages and a big country store full of homemade goodies and handmade crafts. An auction of donated items gets underway at 2:30 p.m.

Meal tickets are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for those 10 and under, with take-out plates also available. Sausage will be $2.50 per pound.

Patricia Neal Story Told In Television Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The venerable Hollywood Palladium, one-time home of the big bands, was filled with people in formal attire, dining under a banner that read "An Evening with Patricia Neal."

No, it wasn't yet another dinner for a film industry charity. The guests were dress extras of the Screen Extras Guild, and Patricia Neal was 5,000 miles away at her home outside London.

The Palladium location was a sequence for a new CBS movie, "Gipsy House: The Patricia Neal Story." The old ballroom represented New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where Miss Neal made her first public appearance after the 1965 strokes that nearly ended her career and her life.

Anthony Harvey ("The Lion in Winter") was directing the dinner scene while executive producer Larry Schiller stood nearby. Schiller is the enterprising one-time photographer who packaged "Marilyn" and "The Executioner's Song" with Norman Mailer and produced the Monroe story as a television movie.

"I took a long chance on this one," Schiller admitted. "Producers have been after Patricia and Roald (Dahl, her author-husband) to dramatize their story, but they have always declined. I decided to have a script written first, and I hired Robert Anderson ('Tea and Sympathy')."

"Both CBS and Procter & Gamble accepted the script. Now I had to convince Patricia and Roald. I sent them the script through the regular mail. They wrote back: 'We love it. Go ahead.'"

Schiller said he sought director Harvey because of "The Lion in Winter" — "I wanted that same kind of contention, the love-hate relationship."

The producer added: "Casting the two leads was crucial. I Needed an actress who was strong and witty enough to remain vital even though immobilized for half of the picture. Glenda Jackson was the obvious choice. Dahl had to be played by someone strong enough to stand up to her. I wanted Dirk Bogarde, but everyone said he was retired and wouldn't be interested. I sent him the script — by regular mail again — and he loved it."

While Harvey was directing inside the Palladium, Glenda Jackson was out in the parking lot having a wig applied. "I'm not trying to look like Pat Neal; that would be impossible because we are totally dissimilar," said Jackson.

"I've never met Pat, but I did meet Roald before the picture started. He introduced me toVal Griffin, the therapist who helped Pat return to a useful life. Through Val I met a number of stroke patients. That research was helpful in the characterization, but one must be careful not to get bogged down in technical, medical detail.

"It's one thing to observe what happens to people who suffer a stroke. But it's equally important to add your own imagination. Otherwi e you might just as well make a documentary.

"The challenge is in finding variation in a character who cannot communicate in the normal ways — through speech, touch, movement, even the simplest gestures. Nothing could be more boring than watching someone who is totally immobile. Stroke victims are not vegetables; their intelligence continues to function even if they can't express it normally."

"Gipsy House" (the name of the Dahls' English cottage) is Miss Jackson's first television movie, and she admitted, "I've never seen people work at such speed." But, she added, "I quite like working fast."

The movie will probably reach home screens next fall and will be released in theaters abroad. After filming here, the company will suspend until May and finish the scenes of Miss Neal's recovery in England.

Vermont Town Changed For Movie

WOODSTOCK, Vt. (AP) — A blizzard-like snowstorm swirls around the fire trucks and rescue workers about to pull a body from the icy waters below the Milburn Bridge. Frightened onlookers crowd nearby.

But shouts of "Clear the set!" and the glare of motion picture lights intrude on the firemen's heroic efforts, and make it difficult for the crowd to feign concern.

As their fictional counterparts are caught in the web of a supernatural tale, the townspeople of Woodstock are held spellbound by the magic of the movies.

On most streets of this well-known tourist town, it was business as usual, but other parts had been transformed into the mythical town of Milburn, a place with a look of times gone by and the scene of the movie "Ghost Story."

Dozens of people strain to watch filmmakers prepare for the bridge scene. Long thick cables, lights and cameras circle the fire trucks and police cars that serve as background props for the scene.

In the center of the chaos, actor John Houseman calmly rehearses his lines alongside the local people cast as extras.

Fred Doubleday, a Woodstock volunteer fireman, is one of 300 who won parts in the motion picture. Standing next to Woodstock's fire trucks, which now say "Milburn Fire Department" on the side, he explained that "atmosphere" and a chance to appear in a movie persuaded him to get in line with about 1,200 people seeking a role.

For two weeks, townspeople watched as construction crews from Universal City Studios of Los Angeles created a fantasy world amid the quaint shops and sidewalks of Woodstock.

It took workmen 10 days to transform the office, said Debra Davis, a Universal spokeswoman. She added that the set would be used only one day before being returned to its normal function.

Problems Hit Popular Series 'Three's Company'

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's doubtful that trouble-prone Chrissy Snow of "Three's Company" could get herself into as gargantuan a struggle as actress Suzanne Somers has in her dispute with the series' producers and ABC.

The actress, now in her fifth year in the hit show, is seeking more money for her role as the effervescent blonde. She also has asked for a percentage of the series' eventual syndication income, which she said could reach $200 million.

"It's absurd that Chrissy's got to take on the network," Miss Somers said in a rare interview.

The dispute, which has seen Miss Somers' once-starring role pared to a walk-on, has reached the boiling point, and the actress said she plans to file suit against NRW Productions and ABC "for restraint of trade" in not allowing her to work on the series.

Network analyst Herb Jacobs forecast in a recent speech that ABC, sometimes in third place and sometimes runner-up in the weekly network ratings, is in danger of losing its Tuesday night stronghold unless it solves the "Three's Company" dilemma.

NRW said it has had to all-but-write Miss Somers out of the show to protect itself because her absences earlier this season caused serious problems in delivering shows to the network. A new actress, Jenilee Harrison, was added to the cast in the role of Cindy Snow, Chrissy's "country cousin."

Miss Somers said her co-stars, John Ritter and Joyce DeWitt, won't speak to her, that she is kept isolated and made to perform on a stage away from the rest of the cast. Producer Mickey Ross denied that. Ritter and Miss DeWitt, citing pending legal action, declined to comment.

Producers Ross and Bernie West were interviewed at the offices of NRW Productions, which they co-founded with the late Don Nicholl. They also produce "The Jeffersons" for CBS, and formerly produced "All in the Family."

Miss Somers was interviewed in the beachfront house in Venice she shares with her husband, Alan Hamel, who gave up his television career in Canada to become her personal manager. Most of the communication about Miss Somers' salary has been between NRW and Hamel.

"I asked for a raise," said Miss Somers. "I don't think that's bad. I want to work and they won't let me work. I feel the network is making an example of me. It's insulting."

Ross said, "It's a matter of priorities, I think. It's a matter of what's important, the show or her own personal career. There have been things that have happened over the past years which are not in the best interests of our show."

The salary disagreement began last March, but lay dormant until September when the show went into production after a delay caused by the actors' strike. Miss Somers did not work on the first show because of a Las Vegas engagement.

Ross said Miss Somers performed at Las Vegas after claiming she injured her back and ribs, then cited the injury as a reason for not reporting later for her TV work. Miss Somers said she performed in Las Vegas while wearing a back brace, appeared in the second show but was unable to work on the third program of the season when the injury was aggravated.

The producer said that last July 24, Hamel made a "serious" demand for a salary of $150,000 a week and 10 percent of the profit.

Miss Somers and Hamel said the demand was not serious and was made only in a "fit of pique and frustration" because the producers would not negotiate.

Ross and West said they have been generous with Miss Somers. She began the show in March 1977 at a salary of $2,500 a week. "Under her original contract for this season, she was supposed to be paid something like $6,500 a week," said Ross. "She has been given raises up to $30,000 a week."

As for paying Miss Somers a percentage, Ross said, "She took none of the risks going into this show. She's an employee. She's an actress."

Miss Somers said $30,000 a week for the fifth year of a show as successful as "Three's Company" is "absurd."

She contended that the fact she had signed a contract with CBS for a series, specials and movies figures prominently in the attitude toward her. Ross denied that.

"We are out to do our show the best way possible," said Ross. "I have no animosity toward her whatsoever. That I'm out to ruin her is not within my character at all."

Miss Somers, meanwhile, has a contract option for one more year on "Three's Company." She said her option has not been picked up yet but she has heard it will be and that she will be required to appear one minute a week next season.

"Well, to me that's the worst they can do to me," she said. "That's preventing me from working. That's not only not allowing me to work on this series, it's not allowing me to do my own series at CBS."

Actress Unsure Of Future In Hit Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The question Jenilee Harrison can't answer is the one everyone is asking.

Is she going to be a permanent replacement for Suzanne Somers in the hit ABC series "Three's Company"? The show also stars John Ritter and Joyce DeWitt.

The 21-year-old actress, only half a year out of the University of Southern California, where she was the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, was recruited last November as a result of a contract dispute involving Miss Somers, NRW Productions and ABC.

Miss Somers' character, Chrissy Snow, was sent off to her mother's for a prolonged visit, and her role was chopped down to a one-minute "phone-in." Miss Harrison was cast as Cindy Snow, her klutzy country cousin.

"I'm not a replacement for Chrissy," said Miss Harrison during a break in rehearsal. "Hopefully the public will accept me and the ratings will stay high. It all depends on me. So far this season, we're in ninth place in the ratings."

She said she has never met Miss Somers, nor does she consider her absence — or even her return — as a factor. "That doesn't affect it," she said. "It depends on myself and whether I do a good job."

Bernie West, a co-producer of the series, said, "When we introduced the new character we purposely did not want her to be a mirror image of Chrissy Snow. Because that would sort of be stealing from ourselves and ripping off a character.

"We wanted a completely different character. Actually, the two could play in the same show together. She's accident-prone, clumsy. We wanted a different type, not dumb."

Tom Werner, a senior vice president for programming at ABC, said Miss Somers' dispute was with the producers, not ABC, and that it would be up to them to settle the matter. "We'd be delighted to have her back," he said.

Miss Harrison does not play the dumb blonde characterization staked out by Miss Somers during her five years on the show.

"Cindy's from the country, so she's not real country," said Miss Harrison. "It's just that she's not up with big city life. But she can learn. She's a little klutzy, but not dumb. Just naive. She's bubbly and energetic and eager to please her new roommates.

"They call her 'Hurricane Cindy' because she opens doors real fast and has an accident. She'll help John fold an ironing board and it'll fall on his head. It's never really my fault — it's just the situation."

Miss Harrison's experience is limited, but she did earn enough from commercials to pay her own way through USC. It also paid for a condo, sports car and an investment in real estate. She was also a cheerleader for the Los Angeles Rams.

She has charm and warmth and a sunny smile that would melt the ice around an agent's heart. She works well with stars Ritter and DeWitt and seems to have a flair for comedy. She studied acting with James Best, who is the sheriff on "The Dukes of Hazzard."

Miss Harrison landed the role on "Three's Company" after almost getting a part in "Happy Days." When the call went out for an actress, the people at "Happy Days" recommended her.

She said, "It's good to have a job. Someplace to go every day. I just graduated from USC last year and I had been doing commercials. So I was used to the routine of interviews. It's just good to have a job."

She grew up in the Los Angeles suburb of Northridge as one of five children of an aerospace engineer and a school teacher.

"I've always been into a lot of things," she said. "I was in the Camp Fire Girls. I started competitive swimming when I was 8. I was junior high school student body president. A cheerleader in high school. I was in Jacob's Daughters, a Masonic group."

Miss Harrison, who had small roles on "CHiPs" and "240-Robert," said, "This is a difficult job. So other parts and movies aren't in my frame of thought right now. If I don't do a good job on this those future jobs aren't going to be around anyway."

Her family has been very supportive. "My mother comes to every taping," she said. "John always spots her and says, 'Hi, mom.'"

Looking ahead, she said, "My supreme goal is to win an Academy Award. I have a boyfriend but no future marriage plans. I'm 21, single and looking forward to a big career in front of me."

'Kung Fu' Star Wants To Direct New Movie

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — Actor David Carradine wants to direct himself in the movie version of his most famous role — the itinerant Caine in the long-running television series "Kung Fu."

But there are obstacles, not the least of them Carradine's oddball reputation with the studio types who decide such weighty matters.

Hunched over a glass of wine at the recent U.S. Film and Video Festival, Carradine admitted he's been bitten hard by the directing bug. His first film, "Americana," had a quiet premiere at the festival and may never be widely exhibited. But he said he believes "Kung Fu" would be a box office natural.

The actor who has appeared in such films as "Bound For Glory" and "The Long Riders" wants to make "Kung Fu" on his terms, with location shots at the Great Wall in the People's Republic of China.

Trouble is, Warner Bros. Inc. owns the rights, and whether Carradine will be entrusted with such a potential hot property still is being negotiated.

His hole card is that the movie needs him. That's because few actors have been so completely identified with a role as the 43-year-old Carradine with the soft-spoken, wispy-haired martial artist.

"Warner Bros. is not, nor should it be, in the business of selling its assets," Carradine said. "So that's where it's a little delicate in the ensuing negotiations. Aside from that, it's a shoo-in. There's almost no way you can fail with it."

Carradine is up against what he calls "the mystique of David Carradine" — Carradine the barefoot long-hair. Carradine the headstrong cutup who once broke into a neighbor's house, covering a piano with blood.

Carradine said that bizarre picture of him is a misconception arising from his refusal to justify or explain his actions.

'Stone Money' Not Affected By Inflation

YAP, Federated States of Micronesia (AP) — Inflation has not affected the stone money of Yap, the world's hardest currency. The Stone Money Bank at Balabat is as solid as a rock.

"You don't really need to use cash here," said Lt. Gov. Hilary Tacheliol. "I recently bought a house that would have cost $12,000 cash. I got it for $2,000 cash and stone money."

Yapese, citizens of one of the three Federated States of Micronesia, have been using giant doughnut-shaped stone disks as currency for possibly 1,500 years.

Stone money may not be sold to foreigners. There is no exchange rate, but the estimated value is about $150 a square foot.

Some of the moss-covered disks are 12 feet in diameter and weigh hundreds of pounds. They stand propped along the roadside and around the bamboo and thatch houses in the villages.

"They'll steal your hub caps around here, but they won't steal your money," Tacheliol said. "And it's not only because they can't lift it. Everyone knows who owns each piece.

"It's the history of it that makes the value," he continued. "You can't compare its value with dollars. Its value depends on how it's been collected, who owns it, what its history is."

The real worth of Yap stone money comes from the fact that it was mined in crystalline calcite caves on Palau, an island that lies 250 miles across open ocean.

The Yapese sailed there in flimsy canoes, quarried the stone with tools made of shells and towed it back on rafts.

The history of every stone is known, as are the names and deeds of those who labored and sometimes died to get it.

The first "foreign exchange dealer" into the islands was an Irish-American named David O'Keefe who was shipwrecked here in 1871. The Yapese called him "his Majesty O'Keefe."

O'Keefe became prosperous trading in copra — dried coconut — in a deal worked out with the Yapese whereby they supplied him with coconuts in return for transportation to Palau.

O'Keefe took the Yapese to the quarries, gave them steel chisels to hack out their money and brought it back for them in his schooner. But the money's value lies in the effort required to get it. The easier it became to get, the less value it had.

"We could get as much as we want now, but it's of no value if it's so easy," said Benny, a guide from Yap Wholesalers, custodians of the money bank.

Yap, population 9,000, is a sweltering backwater of the Pacific that has been administered by the United States since 1947. Before that, it was in turn a colony of Spain, Germany and Japan.

Despite its location in the South Pacific — 4,400 miles southwest of Hawaii — Yap is a long way from being a tourist paradise. Tourism decreased 27 percent in 1979, to 754 people.

Tourism was hardly helped by the fact that the Yap Lagoon is polluted, the water supply is irregular, the airfield is still littered with the wreckage of Japanese zeroes shot down in World War II and that Colonia, the capital city, has only 22 hotel rooms.

One of the two hotels is the driest in the Pacific. Not only does it not sell alcohol, it often has no water.

However, Colonia does boast O'Keefe's Oasis Club, a private membership club with cement floors and a big juke box. Merle Haggard and other country singers are popular selections.

The Yapese, who retain traditional dress styles such as loincloths and bare breasts, are trying to figure out how to pay their way in a world that doesn't accept stone money.

Gov. John de Avila Mangafel wants to get the island off a Coca-Cola economy and back to coconuts, through import substitution.

"We drink a lot of Cokes and we are trying to get people to drink coconut milk. We have a lot of coconuts," he said.

The Yapese import most of their food, at a cost of $1.5 million a year, and export products worth barely $600,000 a year — less than what they imported in beer, soft drinks and tobacco.

Their biggest export is copra and beetlenut, which sells for $5 a bag at the airport terminal.

The Yapese have a reputation in the Pacific for being tough, somber people, who before the coming of the Europeans had a rigid caste system. They used captured enemies as slaves. The 1980 statistical yearbook still ranks 11.4 percent of the population as serfs, 19.2 percent as chiefs and 32.4 percent as commoners.

In May 1979, Yap and three other groups in the Caroline Islands — Ponape, Truk and Kosrae — joined to form the Federated States of Micronesia.

The FSM initialed a compact of free association with the United States in November, giving them self government when the U.S. trust territory ends. The compact has to be approved by the local people, the U.S. Congress and the United Nations Security Council.

A popular story from the FSM capital in Ponape says the Trukese wanted to make their languge the official language of the federation. The proposal fell through when the Yapese agreed — with the provision that the official currency be stone money.

BIG BUCKS — Stone money rests outside a house on the island of Yap, one of the Federated States of Micronesia in the South Pacific. Citizens of the island have been using giant donut-shaped stone disks for currency for possibly 1,500 years. Home owners leave their money outside since it's pretty hard to steal and "everyone knows who owns each peace." (AP Lasephoto)

Oil Decontrol Decision Eyed By Executives

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's decision to decontrol domestic oil prices has been partly responsible for price increases of 7 to 9 cents a gallon for gasoline, oil industry executives said today.

But the executives of Gulf Oil Corp. and Chevron USA, a division of Standard Oil Co. of California, said some of the price increase would have occurred even without decontrol, and at any rate would have come about anyway if the controls had been lifted Sept. 30, as originally scheduled.

R.R. Bowles, general manager of Chevron USA, and Charles H. Bowman, senior vice president of Gulf Oil Refining and Marketing, also noted in testimony to a House subcommittee that an estimated 75 percent of the price increases are going to the government as federal taxes.

"The basic factors that make decontrol now a very timely decision are being lost in the controversy over the effect of decontrol on product prices," complained Bowman.

The testimony came before the House Energy subcommittee on fossil and synthetic fuels.

Reagan announced his decision to lift controls on domestic oil last month, with predictions by Energy Secretary James Edwards that the decision might raise gasoline prices by 3 to 5 cents a gallon. Instead, prices have soared by twice that amount.

But Bowman said factors besides decontrol are important. He said lower demand during the last quarter of 1980 eroded industry profits, keeping prices artifically low while crude oil prices were going up.

A principal cause of increasing crude prices was a $3 to $4 a barrel increase by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Bowman said. The original gradual decontrol schedule was adding about $1 a barrel per month to the cost, he said, and most oil already was decontrolled and thus matching the world market price.

"All of these factors added up to unrecovered raw materials costs of about 15 to 20 cents per gallon," Bowman said. "Of these total increased costs, we estimate that for Gulf, 7 to 9 cents per gallon is directly attributable to the effects of decontrol.

"The balance is due to factors already in progress at the time of decontrol and are increases that would have occurred anyway and had to be passed through to the consumer.

"Gulf has increased its prices by 8 cents per gallon since decontrol and by 12 cents per gallon since year's end, considerably short of the cost increases we have incurred," he said.

Neither official would speculate on future gasoline prices, saying they had no way of knowing what impact OPEC would have on world crude oil prices.

However, Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., pressed the issue by citing reports that some OPEC members want a $50 per-barrel price by late spring.

TECH SIGNS 22 TO NATIONAL LETTERS

Running Backs Top Red Raider Haul

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Jerry Moore made his first football recruiting campaign at Texas Tech a memorable one Wednesday by signing 21 high school prospects, including five of the state's most prized running backs, and one junior college transfer to national letters of intent.

National letter-signing day proved to be a fruitful one for the Red Raiders as they managed to keep every player who signed a Southwest Conference letter last week, outlasting Oklahoma for Greenville running back Robert Lewis and outdoing Nebraska for running back Jerry Zachery of Midland.

Those five running backs — Lewis, Zachery, Ansel Cole of San Antonio Jay, Gerald Bean of Houston Yates and Ronnie Thomas of Victoria Stroman — were Tech's biggest catch of the 1981 recruiting drive. They give Moore the fastest group of freshmen runners ever assembled at Tech.

The Raiders also recruited well in several other areas essential to Tech's success on the gridiron in the near future, namely linebacker, defensive line and tight end.

Tech landed two excellent linebacker prospects in Tony Pullins of Houston Aldine and William Harris of Stafford Dulles.

The Raiders' haul of defensive lineman included Sid Chambers of Burkburnett, Tim Crawford of Houston Kashmere and unheralded Willie Johnson of Shallowater.

Tight ends Mark Gold of Round Rock and Buzz Tatom of Richardson are both big, strong, fast and considered to be among the state's finest.

Tech's other 10 signees include quarterbacks Rusty Roark of Monahans and Kevyn Williams of Houston Lamar; running back-linebackers Wayne Dawson of Temple and Joe McMeans of Jayton; offensive linemen James Martin of Klondike and Scott Davis and Don Oberdieck, both of Plano; wide receiver Troy Smith of Amarillo Palo Duro; and defensive linemen Hasson Arbubakrr, a transfer from Pasadena (Calif.) City College, and Joe Walter of North Garland.

Moore picked up the Red Raiders' recruiting effort Jan. 6, two days after he was hired to replace Rex Dockery as Tech's head coach. Dockery resigned Dec. 16 to take over as head coach at Memphis State. It was feared that Tech's recruiting effort would suffer irreparable damage during the three-week layoff between the coaching change, but Moore and his staff proved otherwise Wednesday.

"We missed out on three weeks, but we came back strong," said a relieved Moore Wednesday afternoon. "We missed out on a few players, but it could have been a heck of a lot worse. It certainly was no disaster. We really did well with running backs."

Nine of Tech's 21 prep recruits — Lewis, Zachery, Bean, Cole, Williams, Gold, Smith, Chambers and Pullins — were named to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's Top 100 list. Seven — Lewis, Zachery, Cole, Thomas, Tatom, Pullins and Chambers — were members of Texas Football's Top 90.

Baseball Owners Ready Compensation Mandate

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball owners are expected to implement their free-agent compensation proposal Friday, leaving players with an option — acceptance or a strike.

And the players, according to National League player representative Bob Boone, will reject revised compensation. Neither Boone, a Philadelphia Phillies' catcher, nor Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, has threatened to call a strike — but neither has offered an alternative.

"I see no reason to change compensation and lose our bargaining power," Boone said Wednesday.

The issue of compensation — what clubs get in return for certain free agents signed by other clubs — was held in abeyance for a year when owners and players signed a 4-year basic agreement last May. That 11th-hour action averted a strike, but mandated settlement of the compensation question prior to the start of spring training.

Owners want to pick players from unprotected lists of other clubs that sign any of their players chosen by at least eight teams in the free agent re-entry draft. In the past, teams were entitled to an amateur draft choice. That would not change where a signed player was chosen in the draft by fewer than eight teams.

The owners want to select players listed on major league rosters but not named on proposed 15-man protected lists.

Players argue that this would reduce their value on the open market because teams would be reluctant to sign free agents with the knowledge they would lose major leaguers in return.

"What they are trying to do would handicap half of our players," said Boone. "We would never stand still for that."

Miller refused to predict a player strike, saying the owners themselves will dictate the next move. "I think they are well aware at the moment that there is no war," Miller said. "The players can't generate a war. The owners know that if they shoot first they are running the risk of starting a war."

Ray Grebey, head of the owners' Player Relations Committee (their negotiating unit), has not formally announced implementation of the plan. But there was no indication Wednesday that owners planned to back down on the issue.

"They have observed those deadlines very carefully," said committee spokesman Hal Middlesworth. "There will be an official announcement on Friday."

Grebey said Tuesday the compensation rule would be placed into effect if he and Miller were unable to reach an agreement during the latest bargaining sessions.

A decision by the players would be made when they meet Wednesday in Tampa, Fla. Under the existing agreement they must announce strike intentions by March 1 and set a strike date of no later than June 1.

Boston, Fisk Reach Impasse On Pact; Trade Being Sought

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox' bid to re-sign veteran catcher Carlton Fisk reached an apparent impasse Wednesday with the club announcing it would open talks with other teams in an effort to trade for "catchers and other players."

Red Sox general manager Haywood Sullivan waited for most of the day for a call from Fisk or his agent, Jerry Kapstein, before saying that the club was entering the trade market to try to acquire catching help.

Sullivan said that the Red Sox latest offer, made last Friday, was rejected by Fisk and Kapstein Tuesday night. Fisk was declared a free agent by an arbitrator's ruling last Thursday.

Sullivan said the Red Sox' latest proposal was a four-year guaranteed contract with performance clauses under which Fisk could "earn as much as any other catcher in major league baseball" during the four-year period.

Darrell Porter, who became a free agent after playing out his contract with Kansas City last year, became baseball's highest paid catcher Dec. 13 when he signed a five-year contract for $3.5 million with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"In our conversation with the Fisk group last (Tuesday) night we stated that we did not want them to be surprised if they heard the Red Sox are in the trade market discussing catchers," Sullivan said. "All acknowledged that they understood the Red Sox would be taking this step."

Sullivan said before leaving his office at Fenway Park that he would fly to Florida as scheduled today to prepare for the opening of training camp next week.

Chaparrals To Run In NAIA Nationals

Four Lubbock Christian College tracksters will compete in the NAIA National Indoor Track And Field Meet in Kansas City this weekend.

Dennis Willis will run in the 440-yard dash, Kyle Smith in the mile, Scott Grimes in the 60-yard dash and Sam Motari in the half-mile.

Willis will compete in the 440 prelims at 5:40 p.m. Thursday. Smith's semifinals of the mile will start at 8:35 p.m. Thursday and the finals will be at 8:55 p.m. Saturday. Finals of the 440-yard dash will also be held Saturday.

The half-mile semifinals will begin at 5 p.m. Saturday and the finals will start at 8:25 p.m. that evening.

Grimes faces the hardest road to the finals, having to run in the prelims at 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Friday, then again in the quarterfinals at 6:30 p.m. and the semis at 7:55 p.m. Friday. If he survives, he will run in the finals Saturday.

Smith's preliminary heat in the mile will begin at 8:35 p.m. Thursday with the finals at 8:55 p.m. Saturday.

If Willis' time in the 440-yard prelim is fast enough, he will run again at 9:45 p.m. Thursday, 9:10 p.m. Friday and in the finals at 6:50 p.m. Saturday.

Green, Phils Face Big Questions

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Manager Dallas Green of the world champion Philadelphia Phillies is confronted with some question marks as he prepares to greet his squad at its Clearwater, Fla., training base.

For example: will the Phillies keep long-time star Greg Luzinski, and if they do, can the outfielder regain his All-Star form? If he does, what do you do with Lonnie Smith, a budding star?

Can Pete Rose, who will be 40 in April, continue to perform every day in the style to which he and his legion of fans have become accustomed?

Will Bob Boone's rehabilitated knees permit him to do the kind of job that made him one of the best catchers in the game? And, if Boone proves able to handle the everyday job, what does Green do with young catcher Keith Moreland?

Larry Bowa is 35 years old, and last season appeared to lose a little off his gun-like arm and cover slightly less ground at the demanding shortstop position. What are Green's alternatives?

Outfielder Garry Maddox is an intelligent, sensitive type who sometimes had problems understanding the manager's manipulations.

Outfielder Bake McBride played much of the season on aching knees, and has a tendency at times to be moody. He, too, is of a sensitive nature.

Green admits he is aware of these problems, and in a recent interview, he provided his thoughts.

The manager doesn't envision a head-to-head confrontation between left fielders Luzinski and Smith. Luzinski batted only .228 last year with 19 home runs and 56 runs batted in, while Smith hit .339.

"When Greg Luzinski played the kind of baseball he's capable of, I just didn't pencil in Lonnie Smith very often," Green said. "But at the same time, I can't sit back and wait for Luzinski to get going. He has to come out of the chute physically and mentally ... He can do it. I know he can."

Green says Bowa went through a lot of personal problems in the first half of the 1980 season that interfered with his performance.

"You didn't look at the real Larry Bowa until mid-August ... I think he's learned that he has to concentrate on baseball. It may come to the point where he can't play everyday ... I think Luis Aguayo is a good backup. We have a promising youngster, Julio Franco, but I don't know if he's ready."

Green is a little concerned about Rose's age and admits he'd like to give him more rest, "but getting him to come out is like pulling teeth."

"I have to expect nothing but bear-down baseball from him," Green added. "You can't ever sell him short. He's physically ready most of the time. I'll have to watch him closely at his age. But I haven't seen any signs of him breaking down."

Rose, who slumped to .282 last year and failed to reach his usual 200-hit plateau, needs only 74 hits to become the all-time National League leader in hits. He has 3,557 to 3,630 for Stan Musial.

Should the wear and tear begin to show on Rose, Green is prepared to use utility man Del Unser and Moreland as first base relief.

Green says Boone's status is strictly up to the catcher. If Boone can do the job he's the first string catcher. If not ...

"I'm not hesitant to use Keith Moreland. He can and will play for me. I intend to give him several other gloves (outfielder's and first baseman's) ..."

As for Maddox, the manager said he thinks that the two got to know each other.

"I think he understands my motives and methods. He may not always agree, but he knows I'm sincere and do what's best for the team ... He's the best defensive center fielder in baseball. A little more consistent offense from him would help us."

Green had nothing but praise for McBride, saying the right fielder didn't get the credit due him for a .309 season with 87 RBI and a fine job defensively. Green said the same of second baseman Manny Trillo.

Concerning starting pitchers, Green said he didn't know if he'd get another Cy Young Award year from Steve Carlton, but that the 36-year-old left-hander, like Rose, can't be sold short. The manager is counting upon Dick Ruthven, Larry Christenson, Bob Walk, Marty Bystrom, and Nino Espinosa, plus any surprises from youngsters invited to camp.

Tug McGraw and Sparky Lyle, who both will turn 37 during the season, are the guts of the bullpen. Dickie Noles, Warren Brusstar, Ron Reed and Scott Munninghoff are available. Here too, some youth may break through, or a trade could strengthen the area.

Yankees Sign Righetti

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees signed left-handed pitcher Dave Righetti and three other players on their 40-man roster to 1-year contracts Wednesday.

Righetti, acquired in the deal that sent reliever Sparky Lyle to Texas, was 6-10 with a 4.63 earned run average last year at Columbus, champion of the International League.

Also signing were right-handed pitchers Brian Ryder, 21, and Gene Nelson, 20 and switch-hitting outfielder Ted Wilborn, 22.

Ryder was 15-9 and 3.04 with Nashville of the Southern League last year. Nelson was 20-3 and 1.97 as a rookie with Fort Lauderdale of the Florida State League. Wilborn hit .270 for Nashville, leading the league in triples with 14. He had two hits in eight at-bats for the Yankees last September.

Reds President Expects No Player Strike

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dick Wagner, president of the Cincinnati Reds, says he doesn't expect a strike to interrupt the 1981 major league baseball season despite threats by the players union.

"I don't think so, because there are so few players involved in the (compensation) dispute," Wagner said before leaving Wednesday for the Reds' spring training headquarters in Tampa, Fla. "I can't believe that 650 well-paid players would go out."

At issue are club owners' demands for compensation when they lose a player to another team after that player becomes a free agent. The players' association says that a compensation provision would limit opportunities and salaries of those who become free agents.

If there is no agreement in negotiations between the clubs and the players union by Friday, the owners can unilaterally implement their compensation plan.

The players then would have until March 1 to decide whether to strike and must implement any strike before June 1.

"I just can't see the players striking over something that could affect only a handful of them every year," Wagner said. "You've got an awful lot of high-salary athletes who would be giving up big chunks of money in the event of a strike."

A strike last year was averted when owners and players agreed on most points of a basic contract but agreed to delay a decision on the compensation issue until this spring.

Wagner acknowledged that the owners, with a year to prepare for a strike, had established a large strike fund and had taken out insurance to cover losses sustained in a strike.

"I don't have a good feeling," Grebey said Wednesday.

Philadelphia Phillie catcher Bob Boone, the player representative for the National League, said players would not accept the modified compensation plan offered by owners.

The owners want to receive an established player as compensation for a free agent who signs with another team. Boone said that would handicap many players in the free-agent market.

Rose Sets To Play With Custom Bat

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose is going after Stan Musial's all-time National League record for hits with a rose-colored Japanese bat. After that, he can take dead aim at Hank Aaron and the immortal Ty Cobb.

"I never like to look too far ahead," the scrappy 39-year-old first baseman of the world champion Philadelphia Phillies said Wednesday. "I have no trouble thinking about Musial and Aaron — they're not that much in front. But Cobb, man, that's something else, that's down the road a piece."

Rose, an 18-year veteran (the first 16 with the Cincinnati Reds), moved ahead of Honus Wagner and Tris Speaker with 185 hits last season for a total of 3,557. He could easily pass Musial's 3,630 this season and Aaron's 3,771 next year, leaving him behind only Cobb's 4,191 in one of baseball's most important categories.

Pete's 4-year, $3.2-million contract with the Phillies runs out in 1982.

"I may be good for a couple or three years after that," he said. "Baseball — that's men playing in a kid's game. If you play it for love the way kids do, you don't grow old so fast.

"When I can't cut it any more, who knows — I may play in Japan."

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

Texas Tech senior forward Ben Hill does not: a.) lead the Red Raiders in scoring; b.) own a flashy nickname, ala "Magic" or "Juice," c.) get a lot of recognition or, d.) ever demand much of same.

Exhibit A: The Hill motto, according to Hill:

"My main concern is always playing a solid game," he states. "I've never been bothered about scoring 20 or 25 a game.

"My role on this team is to do a little of everything. I mean rebound, pass and play defense. I have no specific job on the team, I just try to do everything well.

"I make whatever contribution I can," he expounds. "If a sacrifice has to be made, if it's going to help bring about a win, then that's what I want to do."

Against Baylor on Saturday, Hill was called upon to defend against Terry Teagle — one of the SWC's most prolific scorers and a sure bet as a future NBA star.

In the first half, Teagle hit just two of five field goal efforts and committed four turnovers as Hill set up shop in his hip pocket. Teagle finished with 17 points, but at no point in the contest was he able to take over and dominate the game — like he did earlier this year in Waco when the Bears beat Tech 69-61.

Hill, who scored six points himself and had four rebounds against the Bears, is the Avalanche-Journal Player Of the Week.

"Ben is just a steady basketball player," said Myers. "Without question he's our best defensive forward and he played his best defensive game of the year against Baylor.

"In the first half particularly, Ben did about as good a job as you'll ever see on Teagle."

Hill broke into the Raiders starting lineup midway through his sophomore year and has been a steady fixture ever since. And don't think he can't score. He's averaged just over nine points a game as a sophomore and junior and is currently scoring at an even 9.0 pace this season.

"Ben is a good team basketball player," says Myers. "And he's had some big offensive games. But the main thing he gives us is a solid team role."

Not often — but every once in awhile — Hill really lights up the scoreboard. For instance, he owns the single-game scoring high for the season by exploding for 32 points again Washington in the Pillbury Classic in December.

Hill made the all-tournament team primarily on the strength of that game. He also scored 22 against West Texas, 16 against Houston and 14 against Texas A&M this season. As a junior he had a high game of 22 against Vanderbilt.

But there are those nights when Hill settles for six or eight points.

Says Hill, "I always look at it like this: There are going to be game's where it'll all be there. Then there'll be nights when it won't be there so that's when I have to start getting the ball off the glass and looking for my shots that way."

Whatever the situation, Hill is reluctant to force a shot. He set a school field goal percentage record as a sophomore by hitting 61 percent of his efforts. As a junior he made good on 50 percent of his efforts. He's slowed down a bit this season, but still leads the team in that category with a 56.6 mark.

Hill and the rest of the Raiders must now ready themselves for a Saturday date with the SMU Mustangs in Dallas. With a 7-6 Southwest Conference record, Hill knows the team cannot afford a let-up at this point.

After that disasterous five-game losing streak, the Raiders have rebounded to win four of their last five contests.

"We're going to continue to try and get our game back in its proper perspective," said Hill. "We've got to try and get it back the way it was at the beginning of the season.

"I think we relaxed at both ends of the court," he said of the Raider slump, "and we let up on our concentration."

Raider Women To Face Tough Wayland Baptist

DENTON (Special) — The Texas Tech women's basketball team will be battling more than just the odds when they face the Wayland Baptist Flying Queens here today in the opening round of the TAIAW State Tournament at the North Texas State Coliseum.

The Raiders, seeded sixth in this eight team field by virtue of an 11-16 season mark, will go against WBC, seeded third with a 17-8 record, at 4 p.m.

The odds hardly favor the Tech crew in this afternoon's affair since the Queens have already defeated the Raiders three times this year, most recently on Feb. 10 by a whopping 98-69 margin. Coach Donna Wick is worried about Wayland's dominance over the Raiders and hopes the recent whipping won't have a negative effect on her club.

"This is a brand new game and we have nothing to lose," said Miss Wick. "If we play like winners, we'll walk away on top."

The champion of the TAIAW tournament will automatically advance to the 12-team SAIAW Regional Championships in Nacogdoches in March. Each state in this region (Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas) is guaranteed one represenative. Eight at-large teams will also be selected on their season records, quality of teams played and previous state and regional finishes. The 1979-80 Texas Tech team placed fifth at the TAIAW tournament and fifth at the SWAIAW regionals.

In the 1981 TAIAW State Tournament that will run through Saturday here, Stephen F. Austin is seeded first, the University of Texas is ranked second, Houston fourth and Baylor fifth, with SMU and Texas Women's University finishing out the bracket.

SFA plays TWU at 8 p.m. tonight, Houston and Baylor meet at 2 p.m., Texas and SMU tip off at 6 p.m., with WBC and Tech slated for a 4 p.m.

Tech will open with its regular starters. Freshman Carolyn Thompson, leading the team in scoring and rebounding, will be at the post with 6-0 junior Kathy Freberg and 5-11 Tammy Anderson at the forward spots with 5-8 sophomore Gwen McCray and 5-9 junior Reina Cherry at the guards.

Wayland will counter with the lineup of 5-11 junior Kelly Braisher at center, 6-1 sophomore Terri Henry and 5-9 senior Kathy Booth at forwards with 5-11 Jamie Horacek and Chris Kennedy outside.

The Tech team narrowly advanced this far in the tournament as the Lady Raiders escaped a strong second half rally by Texas A&M before pulling out a 71-70 win Saturday night.

Coach Wick will again concentrate on her team's defensive play against Wayland and expects to employ a man-to-man defense against the Queens.

"This will have to be an all out effort," said Miss Wick. "We have got to take chances, hope those chances pay off for us and execute to perfection."

76ers Find Perfect Chemistry

By The Associated Press

Basketball is a game of five egos playing with one ball. Winning basketball is a matter of getting those numbers to balance.

Too many chiefs and not enough indians can make for a very unhappy tribe. It is also not the best way to build a successful basketball team.

The Philadelphia 76ers had a galaxy of bright, individual stars in 1977, including Julius Erving, Doug Collins, George McGinnis, Lloyd Free and a frisky 20-year-old named Darryl Dawkins. But it was the Portland Trail Blazers — with role players like Bobby Gross, Dave Twardzik and Lloyd Neal — who won the National Basketball Association championship.

The lesson of that playoff series was not lost on Sixers management: All the talent in the world won't necessarily assure a title unless the right chemistry is present. So they got out their chemistry set and went to work.

Free and McGinnis were sent packing, pronto. Maurice Cheeks was given the job of playmaking guard, unselfish Bobby Jones was acquired to provide a spark off the bench at both ends of the floor and defense-minded Caldwell Jones was made the starting power forward (as well as backup center).

"One thing I learned right away," said Sixers coach Billy Cunningham, "is that I don't have the personality to deal wth a lot of people who are going to cause problems for a team. Then, all I would do is spend all my time worrying about them instead of worrying about what I've got to do — build a team that would run through a brick wall for me."

Cheeks and the two Joneses were just what Billy C. ordered. In a day when all too much attention is paid to the high scorers, it's refreshing to listen to the way they describe their roles.

Cheeks: "I am not a shooter. My job is to get the ball to the shooters. I just try to complement each of the players on the floor."

C. Jones: "My role is to play defense and get rebounds. The third thing is to score, if I get the opportunity. I've always thought that if you dominate the boards you'll win games and I've done that since I was a tot."

B. Jones: "I try to fit in. Whatever the coach wants me to do is okay. I don't care about not being the big scorer. I'm very selective in the shots I take."

District Playoff Slated Tonight

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The New Deal and Hale Center girls' basketball teams have each played 14 district games this season but are still deadlocked at the top of the 4-2A standings. Tonight at 8 p.m. they meet in Abernathy to settle the score.

"Rivalry isn't strong enough a word for what happens when New Deal and Hale Center get together," New Deal coach Jan Whisenhunt said earlier this season. "There is more than that between us. There's a certain tenseness between the two teams."

Mrs. Whisenhunt said that after her Lions had lost a 33-32 thriller to the Owls in Hale Center to drop into second place in the second half of the 4-2A schedule. New Deal won the first half without losing a game, including a 42-39 victory over Hale Center Jan 13.

In that first game, Melissa Mayo scored 17 points and Vickie Teal added 10 for the Lions. Kim Black, who scored 12 points, was the only Owl to eclipse the 10-point mark.

But in the second game, Hale Center held Misses Mayo and Teal to 10 points apiece while Lori Bigham also hit 10. For Hale Center, Miss Black and Melinda Cannon each hit eight points, but it was the Owl defense which received the praise of coach Cathy Harston.

"We knew we had to play good defense to beat New Deal," Miss Harston said. "The key was shutting down Vickie Teal and Melissa Mayo and we did.

"We'll have to do the same thing to beat New Deal again," Miss Harston said Wednesday. "We'll also have to be more aggressive on the offensive boards and rebound better.

"This game will be the biggest game of the year for us. The winner gets to keep going and the loser has to start track."

New Deal warmed up for the big shootout by defeating third-place Ralls 65-56 Tuesday night. The victory ran the Lions' recor to 24-5. Leading the way for the Lions, as usual, were Misses Teal and Mayo. Miss Teal poured in 27 points while Miss Mayo added 11. Miss Teal is averaging 23.8 points per game this season and Miss Mayo has an 18.9 average.

Hale Center blasted Petersburg 55-23 Tueday night as Cheri Nivens hit 13 points and Melinda Cannon chipped in 11. The Owls' record now stands at 19-9.

Tonight's winner will advance to bi-district play against the winner of the 3-2A post-season tournament which also begins today.

The tournament, which will be played in Hereford, will pit the top four teams in the final district standings in semifinal play. Today's winners will play for the district championship Saturday.

Tech Women Rip New Mexico State

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (Special) — The Texas Tech women's tennis team won four of six singles matches and swept the doubles to take a 7-2 victory over New Mexico State here Tuesday.

The Red Raiders, playing for the first time this season without senior captain Peggy O'Neil, had a relatively easy time with NMSU, but know they will have their work cut out for them when they begin play in the Arizona Invitational Tournament today.

The 16-team tourney has attracted eight of the nation's top 20 squads.

Coronado Netters Drop Lubbock High

The Coronado boys' and girls' tennis teams took a big victory over cross-town rival Lubbock High Wednesday, winning 22 of 24 matches.

"The score didn't indicated the closeness of the match," Coronado coach Jay Box said. "There very well could have been six or seven matches difference.

Box thought the LHS girls played very well, especially in splitting three doubles matches, but added that his boys played as well as they have in a long time.

The CHS boys shut out the Westerners 12-0, while the Mustang girls, playing without their No. 1 player Missy Johnson and No. 4 Mary Sobosle, won 10-2.

Irwin Looks For Second Straight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the first time in 1981, Tom Watson, Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino will be playing in the same tournament as the $300,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open starts on Thursday.

Watson will be be the defending champion over the Riviera Country Club course in the 72-hole event. He's been the leading money winner on the Professional Golfers' Association tour the past four years.

They'll play over a demanding 7,029-yard layout with a par 35-36 and face the challenge of Hale Irwin, who last week captured the Hawaiian Open by six strokes and was the champion here in 1976.

Watson, Nicklaus and Trevino have all played in 1981 tournaments, but not at the same time.

Nicklaus has won more than $3.5 million and four United States Open championships to lead the pros but never has won the Los Angeles Open.

Neither has Trevino, whose earnings top $2.5 million. Last year he earned $385,314, second only to Watson, and the Merry Mexican has captured two U.S. Open titles.

Watson won at Riviera last year with a par-saving putt on the 18th hole to edge Bob Gilder and Don January with a 276 total. He went on to earn a record $530,808 for the year.

With no rain recently, the greens at Riviera will be fast and the weatherman predicts clear weather though the tournament which ends Sunday.

January, at 51, finished second in Honolulu and must be a threat again here.

He admits the purse money is one of the reasons he continues playing, and said: "When I started playing, we used to play for purses of $1,500. There's a big difference between that and the $40,000 of today. You don't fool around a lot with that much money on the line. You win one of these tournaments and it can set your whole year.

"Believe me, you have to play better to make it on today's tour. These kids coming out of college can hit the ball so far.

"They're bigger, stronger and can really hit the ball. They have to because the courses are longer than what we used to play."

Bruce Lietzke already has won two tournaments this year and has a consecutive string of 18 rounds at par or better. He finished at 275 in Honolulu, 10 shots more than the tournament record by Irwin who lowered Andy Bean's 1980 mark by a stroke at 265.

Two Japanese stars, Isao Aoki and Masashi "Jumbo" Ozaki have entered this 55th annual event.

Aoki, Japan's leading money winner the past three years, was tied for th lead through the third round of last year's U. s. Open before losing to Nicklaus by two strokes.

Dooley Named Sole AD

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Georgia football coach Vince Dooley, who guided the Bulldogs to the No. 1 ranking in 1980, was named Wednesday as sole athletic director at the school, a position Dooley had shared since July 1979.

In making the announcement, Dooley named former Auburn University athletic director Lee Hayley as an associate athletic director at Georgia. Hayley, who has held the Auburn post since 1972, replaces Reid Parker, whose two-year contract ends June 30.

Dooley and Parker were named co-athletic directors at Georgia when Joel Eaves retired in July of 1979.

Hayley will assume his new duties July 1, but will begin working on a limited basis here within the next few weeks. He will take over many of the responsibilities currently being handled by Dooley and Parker.

Dooley, however, has asked Parker to remain at the school as a consultant for another year.

"This move is in keeping with the agreement made almost two years ago when the present administrative organization was developed," Parker said. "The plans were for me to fill the role of athletic director for administration for a short period of time, allowing Coach Dooley and the department to prepare for him to eventually serve as the single athletic director and head football coach."

It had been speculated that the 48-year-old Dooley had been upset with not being named the sole athletic director when Eaves retired. Last December, he considered leaving Georgia in favor of his alma mater, Auburn, for a reported five-year, $1 million contract.

Georgia president Fred Davison and Dooley, however, denied in December that the athletic director position had been a problem for Dooley. And after several days of meetings with Auburn and Georgia officials, Dooley announced he would remain at Georgia.

"I envisioned this type of setup — the structure we're working under now — two years ago," Dooley said, adding that Georgia's athletic board told him they wanted a two-man setup but that eventually he would become the sole athletic director.

"They did it to help me get my feet on the ground," he said. "That's why they came up with the dual position. I knew it was going to happen. It was just a question of when."

The availability of Hayley was the main factor in the timing of the changes, Dooley said, because the structure of college athletics today makes it impossible for one person to handle both jobs by himself.

"As long as I'm totally involved in coaching, there is no way I can give all my attention to the position of athletic director," Dooley said. "I am the athletic director and also the football coach. There is no way you can do both" without the aid of someone like Hayley.

Dooley, in 17 years at Georgia, has led the Bulldogs to a 129-56-6 record, 12 bowls and five Southeastern Conference titles.

Hayley, who was a football teammate of Dooley at Auburn, also was a football assistant at his alma mater and at North Carolina under Dooley's younger brother, Bill.

Terms of his contract were not announced, but Dooley said it was for at least two years.

Volatile McEnroe Meets Borg In Series

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — John McEnroe, the volatile second-ranked tennis player in the world, has given no indication he will keep his temper in check during the Benson and Hedges challenge matches starting today against Bjorn Borg in Sydney and Melbourne.

McEnroe, the U.S. open champion, and Borg met newsmen Wednesday after arriving at the end of a lengthy flight from the United States. Borg was still hoarse following a bout with a flu bug which forced him out of a tournament in Toronto.

The 22-year-old McEnroe, asked about the "bad-boy" image that has dogged him since the outset of his spectacular career, replied: "Some people don't go to tennis matches to watch the tennis — they go because they think they might see the player lose his temper. I don't think people should come to see you get angry.

"I get angry when I see people just come down to see things get stirred up. I can't say it won't happen again."

The head-to-head matches between Borg and McEnroe get under way tonight when they clash for the first time in Australia. Both this match and one Friday night in Sydney will be best-of-three sets. The final, Saturday in Melbourne, will be best-of-five.

They are competing for a gold racquet valued at more than $30,000 and an undisclosed sum of prize money. Sources say it cost about $1.3 million to bring the pair to Australia.

In their 12 tournament clashes so far, Borg has won seven.

Despite the great rivalry, McEnroe said he would not be treating the challenge as a grudge match. "We don't do much talking between ourselves," he said. "We just go out and play. We both still look to win the major tournaments. That's what we're shooting for. I don't think anyone ever pretended this was a grudge match or war."

When told a spokesman for the Australian Umpires Association had warned no "shenanigans" would be tolerated, the curly-haired New Yorker snapped: "I won't tolerate any shenanigans from them. That's fair."

The 26-year-old Borg said he regretted his actions during his only previous visit to Australia in 1973-74. Blasted out in the first round of the New South Wales Open, the then-teenager conceded he was more interested in trying out the Sydney surf than playing tennis. He left Australia vowing never to return.

But the undisputed king of world tennis said Wednesday the unfortunate visit had not been the reason for the long delay in his return.

"It's a long way down here and the Australian Open is the time of the year I usually have off," he said.

Western States Golden Gloves Tournament To Begin Today

Lubbock will get its chance to showcase its boxing talent against some of the top contenders in the nation when the Western States Golden Gloves Regional Boxing Tournament begins today at the Civic Center. Some 80 to 90 fighters will see be featured.

Action during the three-day tourney begins at 7:30 p.m. each night. Tonight's competition will feature preliminary bouts. More preliminary matches will be held Friday, beginning at 7:30, and the championship finals will be held Saturday evening.

Tickets may be purchased at the Civic Center Box Office, the Lubbock Police Department, Cardinal's Sport Center and Athletic Supply in South Plains Mall.

Seats will cost $6 for ringside, $4 for adults and $2 for students. All proceeds from this event will go towards sending Lubbock boxers to state competition. The top finishers in this tourney will advance to the State Golden Gloves Tournament, to be held March 10-17 in Fort Worth.

Lubbock Warriors members Gilbert Castillo, Terry Johnson, Oscar Ramirez and Tony Villanueza, along with Levelland's Dusty Price, will be among the featured boxers from the West Texas area. All will fight in the open classification.

Castillo, who weighs in at 132 pounds, will compete in the lightweight division. He is ranked No. 1 in the Western United States among lightweights.

Johnson, who tips the scales at 139 pounds, will fight in the light welterweight division. Johnson has a great love for boxing, and says, "Boxing has taught me that if you want something you have to go after it."

Price, who is currently ranked No. 1 in the Western United States in the light middleweight division, weighs in at 156 pounds.

"Our boxers are ready," Warriors coach Edward Hernandez said. "They've been working for this for a long time. We're confident we'll do well in this tournament."

Castillo said he's been training extra hard for this tourney because he wants to represent Lubbock with a good performance. "I really want to win," he said.

Benny Ussery, President of the West Texas Golden Gloves Boxing Association is confident Lubbockites will see some fine boxing.

"We've got some great kids here in Lubbock, and they're going to be heard from on the state and national levels," Ussery said. "We have some great representation here, and I hope the citizens of Lubbock will turn out to support them.

"We (the WTGGBA) started from nothing, and look what we have now, a regional tournament."

The weigh-in ceremony was held Thursday night and the matchups were scheduled immediately thereafter.

Pintor To Defend Crown

HOUSTON (AP) — There are likely any number of dessert connoisseurs in Mexico City today who once bought home-made ice cream on the street from Lupe Pintor.

After selling his ice cream, Pintor went to a second job at a grocery store where other citizens had their canned goods stacked by the ambitious youngster.

Pintor is no longer a street vendor or stock boy, but fans will be clamoring to see Pintor again Sunday, this time as the reigning World Boxing Council bantamweight champion in Sam Houston Coliseum.

Pintor, who will take a formidable 40-4-1 record with 33 knockouts into Sunday's nationally televised fight, also had a varied athletic career as a youngster.

"I played some soccer and I was a very good swimmer," Pintor said. "I tried bulldogging once but that cow turned me every way but loose."

Pintor dusted off his britches, decided fighting humans was better than wrestling steers, and started going to the gym--after he sold his ice cream and after he finished work at the grocery store.

The $100,000 he will earn for Sunday's 15-rounder is evidence he made the right decision.

It was a meager beginning in a poor environment for Pintor, forced to quit school at age 13 to earn money.

"I was a good student in school," Pintor said. "I wanted to be a school teacher but I had to help make some money. "I made the ice cream myself at home in an old hand-cranked mixer."

Pintor captured international attention June 3, 1979 when he scored a 15 round decision over WBC champion Carlos Zarate in Las Vegas, Nev. to win the 118-pound title.

He has since defended his title five times including a memorable 15-round decision over Alberto Davila Dec. 19 in Las Vegas.

In a tragic title defense Sept. 19, Pintor knocked out Johnny Owen in the 12th round.

Raiders Recruit To Fill Trouble Spots

Red Raider athletic department officials announced Wednesday that former SMU quarterback Layne Walker of Clovis, N.M., and former New Mexico running back Mark Williams of El Paso, who both transferred to Tech at midterm, will be eligible to compete this fall.

National signing day went pretty much as expected in the Southwest Conference, but TCU made several big strides in its effort to escape the conference cellar by outwrestling two Big Eight schools for a pair of high school stars.

Texas signed all but one of its SWC signees, including the Port Arthur Jefferson foursome of quarterback Todd Dodge, wide receiver Brent Duhon, running back Don Holloway and defensive back Robert Smothers. The Longhorns also inked blue-chip linemen Bill Heathcock of North Garland and John Stuart of Clear Creek. Texas ventured out of state to sign two outstanding linebacker prospects: June James of Kansas City and Tony Edwards of St. Louis.

Baylor inked blue-chip linebackers Alan Jamison of Houston Westchester and Kevin Hancock of Texas City, as well as blue-chip offensive tackle Brian Camp of Lewisville.

SMU, despite fears that the NCAA's ongoing investigation of some of the school's athletic programs would cost the Mustangs several recruits, signed all but one prospect Wednesday, including blue-chip linebacker Gary Spann of South Oak Cliff. The lone holdout was Andrews running back Van Pearcy, who is leaning toward Notre Dame.

Houston grabbed a pair of blue chips in linebacker Gerald Turner of Pittsburg and running back Patrick Franklin of Bay City. The Cougars also signed several outstanding players from out of state, including 6-6, 290-pound defensive tackle Eric Applewhite of Memphis, Tenn.

Rice made one of its best showings in recent years with the signing of highly touted running backs Herbert Payton of Houston Aldine, Kevin Trigg of Irving Nimitz and Charles Hester of Navasota. The Owls dropped into the junior college ranks to grab a dozen other players.

In Fort Worth, TCU head coach F.A. Dry beat Nebraska to the punch to sign Temple running back Kenneth Davis and then kept South Oak Cliff quarterback Anthony Gulley away from Oklahoma State.

Arkansas signed most of the top players in Arkansas and went out of state to sign quarterbacks Mark Calcagni of Youngstown, Ohio, and Lance McHan of Metairie, La., and highly regarded linebacker Marty Kobza of Schuyler, Neb.

SUNDOWN SIZZLER — J.D. Hughes, who operates a well-servicing concern at Sundown when not touring the nation's speedways, notched one of the biggest wins of his 25-year racing career earlier this month as he captured the 50-mile Copper World Classic at Phoenix International Raceway. Qualifying over the one-mile paved oval at more than 120 mph, Hughes put his 1981 Camaro in front when U.S. Auto Club defending champ Joe Ruttman blew a rear end, then fought off the challenge of Indy 500 veteran George Snider to post the victory. Hughes is a five-time season champion at Lubbock Speedway.

Oklahoma, OSU Rake In Talent

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma has signed another Sims, in fact two of them, but it may take a while to see if their names go into the record book along with Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims.

Fred Sims, a running back from Tucson, Ariz., and Greg Sims, a defensive lineman from Los Angeles, Calif., were two of the 25 national letter signees who landed on the Sooner roster Wednesday. The Oklahoma State Cowboys also inked 25 players Wednesday.

But the Sooners said they have pens ready for two more players today.

Fred Sims, 5-11, 205, had a sensational senior seson, rushing for 2,017 yards and 33 touchdowns. He had a career 3,573 rushing yards.

The Sooners signed highly sought quarterback, defensive back and safety Lawrence Hardin, 190, 6-2, from Stark High School of West Orange, Texas. Hardin was a Dallas Times Herald bluechipper who had six interceptions this past season as a strong safety.

The Sooner signed five signal callers in addition to Hardin. They are Danny Bradley, 5-10, 170, of Pine Bluff, Ark; Todd Tims, 5-11, 175, of Altus; Rodney Douglas, 5-11, 185, of Lawton; David Wood, 6-0, 180, of Putnam City and Randy Martin, 6-4, 204, of Roland, who is also a tight end and linebacker.

In addition to Sims, eight talented running backs were added to the Sooner roster. They are Tyrone Graves, 6-1, 187 of La Porte (Texas), who is also a linebacker; Scott Leggett, 6-5, 240, of Muskogee; Donald Brown Jr., 6-1, 195, from Annapolis, Md., Ronald Mills, 5-7, 185, of Muir High School in Altadena, Calif. and Alvin Ross, 6-1, 195, of West Aurora High School, Aurora, Ill.; Kevin Murphy, 6-2, 200, of Plano (Texas), who is also a linebacker; Scott Sewell, 6-4, 190, from Riordan High in San Francisco, Calif., and Kelvin White, from Esacado High in Lubbock.

"Brown possesses the speed, strength, integrity and most important — the heart and all the intangibles it takes to be an outstanding running back," Shimek said at the signing in Brown's home in Annapolis.

Brown earned all-conference honors as a senior, rushing for more than 1,200 yards and a 7.6 yards per carry average.

Other Sooner signees were Tony Casillas, 6-3, 250, center and tackle from Tulsa East Central; Paul Clewis, 6-1, 180, a wide receiver from Oklahoma City Millwood and defensive lineman Greg Sims, 6-5, 265, of Manual Arts High School of Los Angeles, Calif..

Also signing letters were tackle Paul Smith, 6-4, 225, of Sperry, and Ric Uhles, a 6-3, 210, center and tackle from Norman; wide receiver David Carter, 6-1, 180, of Altus; tight end Darin Berryhill, 6-5, 235, of Jenks; tight end Mark Gann of Lakewood, Colo.; Bill Littrell of Marlow, a 6-6, 215, tackle from Marlow and tackle Jeff Tupper, 6-5, 220; of Parkwood High in Joplin, Mo.

The OU Sports Information Office announced that Paul Ferrer, a center and tackle from Midwest City, would sign Thursday. OU coach Barry Switzer will sign Keith Stanberry of Mt. Pleasant (Texas) this morning. Stanberry, 6-1, 193, is a running back.

OU officials said Elbert Watts of Culver City, Calif., will not sign this week and Eric Robinson of Jefferson (Texas) will wait until the end of track season before signing.

While the Cowboys seem to have lost two quality quarterbacks, Alan Cockrell of Joplin, Mo., and Anthony Gulley of Dallas, they signed three other quarterbacks Wednesday.

Signal callers signed were Ike Jackson, 6-3, 195, Northside High School, Fort Smith, Ark.; Anthony Curtis, 6-2, 195, Stillwater and Mark Barre, 5-10, 196, Tulsa Washington. Tulsa University had also recruited Jackson.

The Cowboys signed running backs Eddie Goodlow, 5-10, 204, Altus; Jeff Lee, 6-0, 225, of Muskogee; Tim Hooks, 5-9, 194, Tulsa Washington and Kelly Cook, 5-11, 200, Midwest City.

Three Texas defensive backs were signed. They are Ronnie Manuel, 6-3, 184, and Rod Brown, 6-3, 175, both of Gainesville and P.W. Thompson, 6-1, 180, of Plainview.

Kicker Craig Benson, 5-9, 160, of Sallisaw, was also signed.

Receivers signed by the Cowboys were Ron Krushe, 6-1, 180, of Hominy and Terry Werner, 6-0, 175, of Parkwood High School of Joplin, Mo.

The Cowboys inked eight linemen.

They are Paul Blair, 6-4, 230, of Edmond; David Storey, 6-4, 225, of Altus; Paul Carroll, 6-2, 220, of Dallas White High School; Don Williams, 6-3, 210, Hurst Bell High School; Ralph Partida, 6-3, 225, of Dallas Kimball High; Alfred Kirkpatrik, 6-4, 236, of Houston Forest Park; David Thornton, 6-4, 205, Oklahoma City Douglass and Keith Brown, 6-0, 230, of Midland, Texas, Lee High.

Other lineman signed by the Cowboys are David Tucker, 6-2, 265, of Childress (Texas); John Washington, 6-4, 220, of Houston Sterling; Doug Maritan, 6-3, 210, of Tulsa Memorial and Jim Combs, 5-11, 190, of Joplin Parkwood.

Oklahoma is expected to lose four of the players it wanted — Norman guard Clay Miller, who is likley to go to Michigan; Lynwood, Calif., running back Burgess Scott, who is expected to choose UCLA; Jefferson, Texas, quarterback Eric Robinson, who will wait until the end of track season before signing.

Stock Mart Prices Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose Wednesday as the government provided more evidence the economy is continuing to grow and investors waited to see how President Reagan's proposals to cut spending and taxes will fair in Congress.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 7.42 to 947.10, more than five points of the gain coming in the final hour of trading.

For the second consective session, an impressive increase in the Dow average was not matched by other indicators.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 4-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, but there were more losers than gainers on the American Stock Exchange.

Reagan's proposals for tax and budget cuts, made in a televised speech Wednesday night, were generally known in advance but there was uncertainty over how Congress will treat the proposal.

The government reports showed an economy that is resisting a new recession. Housing starts rose 3.5 percent in January to an annual rate of 1.585 million units, although the volume of single-family home starts declined.

Personal income rose a seasonally adjusted 0.9 percent in January, the same as in December, while the operating rate of the nation's factories edged up to 80 percent of capacity from 79.8 percent the previous month.

NEW YORK (AP) — Wed's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Impact Of Reagan Cuts Likely Broad

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you ride the bus, own a yacht or an outboard, raise cows, have a kid in college, sell jetliners to the Saudis, mine coal, or sing operatic arias for a living, you ought to pay attention to what President Reagan is saying about spending. He's talking about you.

Millions of people would lose more than they gain, even though everybody who pays federal taxes would benefit from what Reagan laid out Wednesday night in the most drastic economic proposal since Franklin D. Roosevelt came up with the New Deal.

Reagan's idea is to take away or dilute government aid programs. This will affect the near poor and the very wealthy, but the great masses of middle class people who elected him will especially feel the change.

Reagan hopes the prospect of a quick, sharp cut in the inflation rate — benefiting everybody — will persuade Congress and the people to go along with him.

In his message to Congress, Reagan said programs that help middle-income families and the rich are where the big spending occurs and so are "an obvious focal point" of a plan to curtail inflation.

That means a family sending a youngster to college on a government grant or a low-interest loan may no longer qualify. The administration wants to revise loan and grant programs so that $30,000-a-year families will no longer qualify and other families will have to pay a bigger share of college costs.

Yacht owners — and owners, too, of outboards and all sorts of vessels aided by Coast Guard activities — are asked by Reagan to pay fees. The ideas is to compensate government for what it spends on their behalf for everything from maintaining buoys to providing rescue helicopters.

A boat owner who runs out of gasoline and has to be towed ashore by the Coast Guard would be charged a fee for that service, under Reagan's plan. He said the Transportation Department would submit the details in March.

Dairymen would see the removal of some government props under their livelihoods. Reagan proposed to eliminate an increase in dairy price supports that would go into place April 1. He predicted milk prices would fall. He also indicated that some dairy farmers would go out of that business.

Bus and subway riders would pay higher fares. Reagan proposed phasing out mass transit subsidies. he said fares have been artificially low since the 1973 oil embargo.

A taxpayer in Sioux City, Iowa should not have to pay taxes so that a Los Angeles commuter can ride the bus cheaply, the president argued.

Miners would have more trouble qualifying for black lung benefits. The administration said standards are lax and most recipients now cannot be proved to have the disease.

Grants would be harder for artists and scholars to land. Reagan said philanthropy should fill the gap. He wants to halve the budgets of the National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities.

Big businessmen whose customers finance purchases of tractors and jetliners through loans from the Export-Import Bank would find the going rougher, too.

Reagan proposed curbing the bank's loan levels and charging higher interest rates. Firms like Boeing and Westinghouse will be affected, and they say thousands of American jobs are at stake.

Scores of other programs which benefit millions would feel the effect. Almost all forms of transportation would be more costly if his cuts in Amtrak, Conrail, airport and highway programs are accepted. Air passengers would pay higher fees, folded into ticket prices.

Families which benefit from both food stamps and subsidized school lunch programs would get fewer food stamps. Postal rates would rise faster if Reagan's reduction of postal subsidies is approved. Cities would have to use their own resources for municipal waste treatment plants no longer qualifying for federal money.

Reagan proposed putting a quick end to the huge Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program which provides jobs for thousands of people — and a low-cost work force for scores of cities. He would end the program under which the federal government pays unemployment compensation for workers idled more than 26 weeks.

But Reagan said that the average American, even if affected by his proposed budget cuts, still would see striking benefits — an economy with more jobs, faster growth, lower taxes, more savings and a rising standard of living.

Marginally Poor Expected To Suffer Most From Cuts

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's proposals for sweeping reductions in the federal budget are designed to force nearly everyone to give up something in the name of fighting inflation. But it's the marginally poor who are hit the hardest.

The president protected from cuts the programs he said make up the "social safety net," which helps the most needy in society.

"We will continue to fulfill the obligations that spring from our national conscience," the president told a joint session of Congress Wednesday night. "Those who through no fault of their own must depend on the rest of us, the poverty-stricken, the disabled, the elderly, all those with true need, can rest assured that the social safety net of programs they depend on are exempt from any cuts."

Beyond that safety net, Reagan's program would require all Americans to pay a share of the cost of combatting inflation. Theoretically, it hits everyone — big guys and little guys.

"I hope I've made it plain," said the president "that our approach has been even-handed, that only the programs for the deserving needy remain untouched."

But it's the little guys, the working poor, who also are heavily dependent on federal aid, who will lose benefits in areas like food stamps, Medicaid, public service jobs, housing and aide to dependent children.

For them there is only a pittance from the tax cuts that benefit middle-and upper-income people far more than those at the lower end of the economic scale.

Earlier administrations and Congresses made decisions to include the working poor among those Reagan now calls the "deserving needy." It is these decisions that Reagan proposes to reverse.

The perception of a tilt toward the more privileged in society is likely to dominate congressional debate on the Reagan program and establish the political battle lines for the 1982 elections.

The Reagan program forces Congress to reassess decisions made over nearly 50 years to broaden the federal government's role in society and to expand access to benefits.

Most of those decisions were made when the Democrats controlled Congress and most of them are incompatible with the conservative outlook of Reagan and his budget director, David A. Stockman.

They reject the decisions which extended federal benefits beyond the most needy.

In the thick book containing the details of Reagan's program is this language:

"Extension of social safety net programs designed for the poor to all citizens is a prescription for inflation, high taxes, low growth and federally imposed mandates. Hence, the specific proposals in the president's reform plan dealing with middle-to upper-income subsidies should, when adopted, arrest divisive debate over such manifestly unsustainable programs as national health insurance, middle-income housing subsidies, universal college aid and similar initiatives."

Democrats are certain to question the accuracy of the claim that safety net programs have been extended "to all citizens" and that national health insurance is "manifestly unsustainable."

Belt-Tightening Predicted On Farms

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Wednesday gave Congress proposals to tighten food stamp and school lunch benefits and severely cut federal credit for farmers and rural electric cooperatives.

Reagan's budget outline also calls for ending an alcohol fuels loan program operated by the Farmers Home Administration and drying up some of the price support subsidies that go to dairy farmers.

Budget experts in the Agriculture Department said they were not sure of the overall impact of Reagan's budget proposals. Several, who asked not to be identified, estimated outlays might be held to about $25 billion in the 1982 fiscal year, which starts Oct. 1.

Many of the proposed changes would have to be approved by Congress.

In January, the Carter administration projected 1982 spending at $28 billion, compared with $20.9 billion estimated for this fiscal year.

Under Reagan's revision of the Carter plan, food stamp spending would be reduced by more than $1.8 billion in 1982 from the nearly $12.5 billion projected by former President Jimmy Carter.

Revised estimates place the cost of this year's program at $10.95 billion. But the Reagan plan calls for reducing those costs to $10.8 billion.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Newspaper stories about the stock market always state the Dow Jones industrial average was up or down a certain number of points to such-and-such level. For instance, the papers reported that, on Jan. 28, the "DJ 30" "dropped 6.91 points to 942.58."

I know that average is made up of 30 well-known stocks. When I tabulate the prices of those 30 stocks, as well as their individual gains and losses on a given day, I do not get the same figures quoted in the newspaper write ups.

How is the Dow Jones average — of 30 industrial stocks calculated?

A. First, by adding up the market prices of those 30 stocks, then dividing by the "divisor."

The addition will tell you the total market value of one share of each of the 30 stocks. And, you might assume that the divisor is 30.

It's not. That divisor has been revised downward, everytime one of the stocks used in the average has paid a stock dividend. Without those revisions, the average would be useless as a measurement of the ups and downs of stock prices.

As I write this, the divisor for the DJ 30 is 1.465.

To fend off a bath of mail, I should point out that the 30 stocks used in that average are listed every Monday on the next to last page of The Wall Street Journal. Also listed there are the 20 stocks used in the Dow Jones transportation average and the 15 used in the DJ utility average.

So, do your addition. Use the correct divisor. You'll come up with the same numbers reported in newspaper stock market stories.

Q. I sold some stock early last year. However, I have continued to receive dividend checks on a regular basis. The broker through whom I sold said the certificates have probably been misplaced by one of the brokerage firms involved in the transfer.

I was told nothing can be done about this. I am also told I should keep track of the dividends, because I will be asked to refund them when the transfer is finally completed.

I have received a Form 1099, listing the amount of the dividends, from the company whose stock I sold. I will have to report this on my income tax return and pay tax. Is there nothing I can do to clear up this situation?

A. You can't do anything, personally. But your borker certainly should be able to work the misplaced certificates. This is another example of the all-too-frequent foul-ups in brokerage firm "back office paperwork."

As long as the certificates are registered in your name, you'll keep getting dividend checks and the annual Form 1099.

You could include with your tax return a letter explaining the situation, along with the photocopy of the confirmation statement you received from the borker when you sold the stock. That might or might not satisfy the Internal Revenue Service.

Or, you could report and pay tax on the dividends. Then, when this situation is finally squared away and you're asked to pay back the dividends let the broker know that cooperation is a two-way street.

Tell him that, before you will turn over the dividends, you want his firm to file amended income tax returns for you — so that you can recoup the taxes you paid on those dividends.

If the broker says his brokerage house doesn't do tax work, tell him to have the firm's accountants handle it.

Cotton Producers Gather In Lubbock

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Cottonseed and lint quality, variety improvement and insect management led discussions Wednesday at the Western Cotton Production Conference at the Hilton Inn.

Producers and scientists from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arizona and California converged in Lubbock to consider the theme "Cotton's Challenges For the 1980s."

In addition to variety and genetic identity, percentage of pure seed, other crop seed, weed seed, inert matter and germination are important factors to consider with seed quality, according to Fred Woodward, assistant director of the Texas Department of Agriculture's seed division at Giddings.

Woodward said various seed quality tests are available at the TDA Seed Laboratories in Lubbock, Vernon, Stephenville and Giddings for a $6 fee.

While seedsmen are interested in marketing the very highest quality seed, Texas Seed Trade Association executive vice president Othel Neely of Waco said Mother Nature does not always fully cooperate with agriculture producers.

"The owner of a variety must commit himself for the production of planting seed approximately 12 months before the farmer needs the seed," Neely explained. "If Mother Nature fails to cooperate in allowing production of good seed, the owner has to try to salvage the most he can from his contracted acreage."

There is less optimism for the early release of a "successful" commercial hybrid this year than there was a year ago, but research and breeding efforts are steadily increasing, according to New Mexico State University professor of agronomy Dick Davis.

Davis said at least 13 commercial companies and several universities are striving to develop the first "successful" commercial hybrid.

"Reliable fertility restoration is still the primary concern with most breeders," Davis pointed out. "And ability for yield is expected to be as great a problem, perhaps even greater, than fertility has been."

Water efficient and drought tolerant varieties are a high priority research area for variety development, said Texas Agricultural Experiment Station cotton breeder John Gannaway of Lubbock.

Yield increase potential through salt tolerance, herbicide tolerance and disease and insect resistance are other areas being eyed, Gannaway noted, along with early maturing and glandless cottons.

Texas Pest Management Association executive Rob Anderson of Lubbock said economics have forced producers to be more than merely an agronomist in the crop production system.

"The producer has to be an integrated pest management practioner," Anderson said. "IPM involves not only management of insects, but disease, irrigation timing, fertility and energy costs.

"Without a reliable evaluation of infield pest population and also the brodding rates and moisture availability," he continued, "the producer is certainly in no position to manage a pest situation."

Cotton was produced on the High Plains prior to 1975 with little concern for pest problems and no key pests, said area extension entomologist James Leser, but bollworm and beet armyworm infestations have escalated since that time.

Bollworms spread from 10 percent of the total High Plains acreage in 1977 to 53 percent in 1980. During those four crop years, costs of controlling the pest rose from $2 million to $25 million, Leser noted.

Leser said changing crop patterns have had a major impact on increased pest problems. Greatly increased corn acreage since 1968 has provided the needed early host plant for massive population buildup prior to blooming cotton and a 50 percent reduction in grain sorghum acreage during the same period may have removed a potential source of beneficial arthropods.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

A COTTON MERCHANT FROM HOHENBERG BROS. discussed a number of current bullish and bearish factors at a conference this week in Greenwood.

Wendell Kruse told the Mississippi Agri-Marketing Conference that three bullish factors are a tightness of tenderable or high quality cotton, a low level of certificated stocks, and a possibility that a foreign customer suddenly will buy a large quantity of U. S. cotton.

High interest rates, the fact that gold has dropped $200 an ounce, and a stronger dollar in currency markets have been and will continue to be bearish factors, he said.

As a merchant, he said, he believes the December futures contract is undervalued at 81.40 cents (last week's closing level) and added that he definitely expects new-crop cotton to trade higher.

Some analysts who agree with that view say the relationship of November soybeans at $8.33 per bushel and December cotton at 81.26 cents per pound (the closes Tuesday) puts beans in a "real favorable" light in competition for acres.

THERE ALSO WERE REPORTS EARLIER that some crop contracts had been offered farmers as high as $7.56 per hundredweight for grain sorghum in South Texas, where many producers are said to be inclined to rotate from cotton this year anyway to help to alleviate wilt problems.

Thomas Bell, a cotton market analyst for Merrill Lynch, told the Mississippi conference there is no question that stocks of cotton of high enough quality to be delivered against futures will be drawn down.

Bell, who is moving to ContiCommodity Services, added that an incentive will exist to squeeze the market during the delivery periods.

Once the 1981-82 crop is planted, he said, the economic importance of the old crop will greatly diminish. He said he expects new-crop futures to return to the mid to high 80-cent area before weather becomes an issue.

Good growing weather could let new-crop futures drift back to the low 80-cent level, he said. But recurrent bad weather, he said, could put December futures back above 90 cents.

NICHOLAS HAHN, VICE PRESIDENT FOR sales and marketing of Cotton Inc., has been named the new CI executive vice president and chief operating officer.

Hahn was among seven Cotton Inc. vice presidents considered for the job by the board of directors. He is expected to take over management of CI in November with CI president J. Dukes Wooters staying on until his retirement in October 1982 to assure an orderly transition.

According to plans, Hahn will become president on the retirement of Wooters.

Wooters told the board that all the No. 2 men in Cotton Inc. had "pledged full support" of Hahn.

The appointment of Hahn was announced by the board at its annual meeting late last week in Raleigh, N. C.

COTTON FUTURES RALLIED TO 200-POINT limit gains in current marketing year months Wednesday on what was descri bed as strong commission house short covering.

Market volume, with approximately 700-800 contracts wanted by the close, was estimated at 8,000 lots. December advanced 91 points to 82.19 cents.

Analysts said the market found strength early on steady trade buying. A weekly report showing a 5.7 percent increase in the size of speculative short interest encouraged local and professional traders to buy in an effort to pressure Weaker speculators into covering short positions, dealers added.

Some analysts said it appeared that spot March, with first notice day coming Monday, was not being liquidated in a very orderly manner. Open positions in March going into Wednesday's session totaled 5,189 contracts, off 359 from the previous day and down 1,497 from a week earlier.

While speculative positions had been building on the short side in a declining market, analysts noted, overall open interest had been rising. The latest figures showed a market open interest of 35,424 lots, up 1,383 from the Previous day and up 4,150 from a week ago.

SPECULATORS AT THE END OF LAST WEEK had moved to a net short position, the first time in years that this has happened.

The trader commitments report showed speculators held 52.5 percent of the longs, do 1.5 percent from the previous week, and 57.3 percent of the shorts, up 5.7 percent, leaving them 4.8 percent net short.

Hedgers held 31.7 percent of the longs, down 3.5 percent, and 32.4 percent of the shorts, down 5.3 percent. It appeared that the bulk of the trade fixations for the week had been replaced with speculative shorts.

Straddles or spreads accounted for 10.2 percent of the open positions, up 0.4 percent.

One analyst said a review of records indicated this was hethe first time speculators have been net short since 1977. They went net short that spring and stayed that way for about five months, he said.

THE CARRYOVER WAS LOW AT THE TIME (2.92 million bales going into the 1977-78 marketing year), although not as low as now projected for the 1981-82 crop year.

But there was a bumper U. S. crop — ultimately totaling 14.4 million bales, including an all-time high of more than 3.2 million bales on the High Plains — which got off to a uniformly good to excellent start and December futures hit 49 1/2 cents before the contract went off the board.

The current carryover projection of 2.7 million bales for the beginning of the 1981-82 marketing season on Aug. 1 would be the second lowest on records checked back to the 1939-40 crop year.

There have been only four times in those four decades when carryover stocks have been below 3 million bales. The other times were in 1947-48 with 2.53 million bales, 1951-52 with 2.278 million, and 1952-53 with 2.789 million.

Taking all this and other factors into consideration, some analysts have continued to maintain that the market, despite the recent bearish psychology, still at some point could become explosive if 1981-crop weather is not accommodating.

ACTIVITY IN THE TRADE REMAINS QUIET, one analyst said Wednesday. Both domestic mill business and export business remain slack for this week, he said, adding that "oprospects at this te don't look promising."

Some analysts, however, look for another constructive export sales figure in the report scheduled for release Friday — a day late because of the Washington holiday earlier this week — on activity during the week ended Feb. 12.

Meanwhile, truck shortages that have delayed movement of High Plains cotton are reported to be easing. However, two warehouses in Texas and New Mexico reported shortages of boxcars and containers last week.

Trading again quickened on Telcot on a turnover of 8,803 bales, high daily volume so far this week, and an average price of 67.11 cents, an average of 2,779 points over the loan.

The market difference, which didn't follow futures down as much on the recent declines as the basis tightened, was up 50 points.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices closed lower Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade, with traders noting substantial speculative selling in corn and soybeans. Increased country selling of those commodities overnight also brought commercial interests into the futures market to hedge sell Wednesday, sources said.

Wheat reportedly got some support from traders who believe dryness in some winter wheat growing areas could result in smaller yields and tighter supplies.

Cattle Futures Close Lower

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 12 to 65 points lower on sales of 15,890 cars paced by April Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Prices swung inside a 90 point range.

Futures continued to erase earlier gains on commission house profit taking and light commercial and local selling. Action in the post month reflected liquidation ahead of its expiration on Friday.

Traders cited evening up ahead of President Reagan's economic policy speech Wednesday night which offset higher cash beef at noon.

Deliveries total 1,107 thus far. Wholesale beef was up 1 to 2 at 97 to 98 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were up $1 to off 50 cents with the best top $63.50 per hundredweight. Slaughter totaled 121,000 head. About 9,700 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 45 lower with only October posting a 2 point gain. Sales totaled 1,521 lots. Prices moved within a 80 points range.

Prices extended losses on spillover weakness from the cattle pit. Traders said lack of direction to the market dampered enthusiasm.

Squaring of positions ahead of Reagan's economic speech was also cited.

Cash feeders were up $4 to off $2 with the best top $93.50 per hundredweight at San Antonio. The major terminals are expecting about 5,500 head today.

Hog futures closed 15 to 85 lower paced by August on sales of 9,092 contracts. Prices moved within a 100 range.

Futures fell on commission house profit taking and local selling. Pressure stemmed from expectations of lower cash hog prices today and weakness in cash pork prices at noon.

Traders also cited evening up ahead of the economic speech. Commercials were on both sides of the market at the close but mostly buyers.

Deliveries total 213 thus far. Wholesale hams were unchanged at 68 to 71½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to up $1.50 with the best top $45.25 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill totaled 379,000 head. Receipts at the major markets are expected to total 25,000 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 72 to 175 lower on sales of 10,536 cars paced by August. Prices moved inside a 220 range.

Futures worked lower on commission house profit taking and local selling before recovering slightly at the close on local short covering. Early selling was linked to weakness in cash bellies, expectations of lower cash hogs today and evening up ahead of the economic policy speech.

Deliveries total 479 thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 3 at 48 to 51½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Bank Houses Millions Of Dollars Worth Of Exotic Artifacts

"There are tremendous rarities in that bank," said Leon Arkus, director emeritus of Pittsburgh's Carnegie Institute Museum of Art.

Rare and powerful pieces of art, some dating to 20,000 B.C., are on display at tellers' windows and in private offices in the bank.

Leff, 54, is considered an important collector of the artwork, Arkus said, though the banker has no formal training in the subject.

Leff described a handful of his favorites.

"She is exceedingly sensual," the banker said of a brass statue of a woman made in the 16th century by the Basohli culture of Asia. "That could be the finest item from that culture."

A long-legged, sand-colored horse from the Haniwa culture of Japan in 600-700 A.D. dominates one end of the counter.

"It's a mortuary piece made of clay. They were buried in a sand-like base. Those legs went into the sand. It's the largest and finest horse (of its kind) outside of Japan," he said.

Further down the counter is a necklace of 28 carved jaguar teeth, once worn by Mayan priests. Now it rests in a black velvet case. "As far as I know, there is no other complete necklace," Leff said.

The banker once owned about 3,000 pieces, but has refined the collection to 600 to 700 items.

In recent years, Leff has steered his buying to North American art. At first, he said, he decided an eclectic collection was too much trouble and aggravation. Later, he added a more philosophical reason.

"I am pessimistic about the condition of the world. I anticipate more violence than is in the world today. I'd like not to be responsible for the things that should be preserved.

"I'm concerned about the attitude in the Third World that they want it back and that we were evil for taking it. With very few exceptions, people were disinterested in these items ... that otherwise would have been destroyed.

"They became interested when the market value rose high enough. I don't need these kinds of problems," he said.

Leff owns most of the art privately, although the bank bought some pieces. As to the collection's value, he will say only that it is worth "millions of dollars."

Leff began collecting 35 years ago, buying oriental ivory carvings in New York City. Repeated trips to art museums to view old films, sparked an interest that continues today.

"I used to wander around and look at things in the museum. I'd find myself thinking about them and reflecting on them and telling myself there must be something more to art than I realized," Leff said.

Leff also traces his interest to his father, Samuel, who ran small hotels throughout southwestern Pennsylvania and decorated them with items bought at estate sales.
