State Comptroller Seeks Black and Spanish Recruits

Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced a statewide effort to recruit blacks and Spanish surnamed Americans for new jobs opening this fall in the Comptroller's Department.

"Obviously, I can't hire everyone who walks in the door—and I wouldn't want to—but we can be fair to all the people of this state in making selections for every job we do fill," Bullock said.

He said that about 300 new jobs will come open in the department because of increased personnel authorized by the Legislature. The new jobs will be scattered throughout the Comptroller's 45 field offices across the state.

"I intend to make the Comptroller's Department the best agency in state government, and to do that I need alert, energetic people who share this goal," Bullock said. "I need qualified people and bright people who have the potential for training."

Bullock has called the department's previous record in recruiting blacks, browns and women, "a shame and discredit to state government."

More than 200 of the new positions are for tax compliance officers and auditors, job families requiring training, experience or aptitude for the broad fields of bookkeeping, loan office credit collection, accounting and numbers. The remainder of the jobs range from file clerk to certified public accountant.

Bullock said that interested applicants should apply to any of his field offices in Abilene, Amarillo, Arlington, Austin, Beaumont, Bryan, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Donna, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston, Longview, Lubbock, Nacogdoches, Odessa, San Angelo, Sherman, Tyler, Victoria, Waco and Wichita Falls.

"These offices are listed in the phone book. All anyone has to do is go by and ask for an application. They'll get a fair shake," Bullock said.

He said applications and further job information are available by mail by writing Personnel Department, Comptroller of Public Accounts, Austin, Texas 78774.

Bullock said the appeal for minority recruits is being published statewide in both English and Spanish and that he is asking all Texas radio stations to carry the message as a public service. Additional recruiting programs are being beamed at colleges and minority organizations and churches.

"It is not enough just to be fair when someone applies. To be totally fair, you have to make sure that everybody gets the opportunity to apply in the first place," Bullock said.

He described the Comptroller's Department as "the hardest working agency in government, but the best working agency" and pointed to the department's personnel improvements over the past eight months: a professional training program, "the best grievance policy in any state agency," fair competition for advancement within the agency, close relationship between field offices and the headquarters, and "a Spirit of helping Texas by doing an important job to perfection."

The dedication of a park at East Erskine and North Zenith, to be known as George Woods Park, will take place at 10:00 a.m. Saturday, September 27, at the park center.

The newly completed park contains 10.5 acres and among the improvements are such facilities as a swimming pool, a community center, double tennis courts, picnic units and playground.

Mayor Roy Bass is scheduled to participate in the ceremonies as is Hnery Huneke, Chairman of the Park and Recreation Board, and other members of the City Council and P&R Board have been invited.

Weather permitting, the ceremony will be held outside. The park sign bearing the name "George Woods Park" will be unveiled. A Portrait of Woods will be shown in the community center.

Following the ceremonies, refreshments will be served to guests in the center.

Woods came to work for the City of Lubbock in 1962. He worked for Lubbock Power and Light as a clerk until his retirement in 1973. Following his retirement he went to work for the Urban Renewal Agency where he continues to work at the age of 68.

Lyons Chapel Baptist Church Special Guest in Kansas

Lyons Chapel Baptist Church of Lubbock, was the special guest at the Second Homecoming and Annual Choir Day services at Community Baptist Church, 2525 East First, Wichita, Kansas. Rev. W.M. Jones, pastor. More than fifty (50) choir and church members made the trip.

The chartered T.N.M.&O. bus departed Lyons Chapel Friday night (the 19th) for Wichita, arriving there at about 7:30 a.m. where signs of "Welcome Lyons Chapel" were hung. Awaiting our arrival was a hearty breakfast and eager members of Community Baptist to make our stay a pleasant one. Many homes were open to us we took part in this very festive occasion; for, not only was this a church homecoming, but also a homecoming for our pastor, Dr. Floyd Perry Jr.

Once a resident of Wichita, a member of the old original Community Baptist Church (built in 1940 in a community in Wichita called Plainview), a teacher and principal in that city, Dr. Perry and Lyons Chapel were honored to be chosen their special guest this year. Many relatives and friends of Dr. Perry, along with numerous ex-Lubbockites now living in Wichita, came to worship with us both Saturday night and all day Sunday.

The hospitality shown to us while in Kansas is beyond explanation. Many homes were open to us along with a special tour of the city which included visits to "Cow Town", Joy Land, Boeing of Wichita, Beechcraft Air Craft Builders, Town East Mall, and the community of Plainview (where Community Baptist originated). After our "whirlwind tour" we went to our assigned homes for a rest before our first service Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. Sunday proved to be as rewarding as the rest of the trip, for the old original choir was there to sing also. To see the old warriors yet on the battlefield for Christ was an inspiration to us. Even though many of them have gone their separate ways, they come together once a year for this occasion.

Other members accompanying the Mass Choir were: Mr. Brady Baldwin, vice president of the Usher board; Mr. Tommy Ervin, church deacon; Mrs. Tommie Ervin, director of the youth department; Mrs. Roberta Hightower, member of the senior ushers; Gwen Bauchum, a member of the Junior Ushers; Shelia Hightower, daughter of Mrs. Hightower; and Cynthia Dotsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dotsey, (the Hightowers and Cynthia came down by car). The Choir and church members arrived safely in Lubbock Monday morning at 4:30 a.m.; a bit tired but very happy after an enjoyable and inspirational visit in Wichita, Kansas. This is one of many coming together of fellow Christian brothers and sisters planned for Lyons Chapel in the months to come.

A Deserving Man Is Honored With Dedication

We think the dedication of the George Woods Community Center and Park is most appropriate at this time. Mr. Woods has contributed many hard hours of work for the city of Lubbock. He came to Lubbock in 1928, and has worked for his community in many ways.

We hope that many citizens of Lubbock will be on hand Saturday morning, September 27, at 10:00 a.m. when this facility is dedicated.

Mr. Woods loves Lubbock. He believes that black people should utilize more self-respect. He is one of the images in the black community who believes one day black people will move up the socio-economic ladder.

We say congratulations, Mr. George Woods. You are a deserving man to be honored with a dedication ceremony.

President Ford Is Absolutely Right

It takes a strong and dedicated man to make the statement that President Gerald Ford made last Monday evening in a news conference at Andrews Airport after returning from his speaking engagements in San Francisco where an attempt was made on his life, by a woman in her mid-forties. He made it know that he will not give up the effort of being close to the citizens of this country. He believes in personal contact with Americans, and this is the way it should be.

It is sickening, however, to find a small group of sick people in this country trying to assassinate the man who sits in the chair of the highest office in the United States of America. We are, if not already, becoming a very sick society.

As President Ford suggested, regardless of the party affiliation of the man who holds the office of President, Democrat, Republican or Independent, that person should be able to contact and meet Americans. When this involvement is not allowed, we are a very sick society.

We applaud the courage of President Ford after his life has been threatened twice in seventeen days. We say hold on to your firm convictions and faith in America, Mr. President.

As I See It!

By T.J. Patterson

Another one of our young people has been assaulted in the halls of one of our high schools. This kind of incident is bad and should not be tolerated by any school administration. This incident, last Friday, happened in the halls of Estacado High School.

Although it has been reported to the Lubbock Police Department, the principal and administration of Estacado High School should see that these kinds of acts are taken care of in the proper manner. There are too many good people walking the halls of Estacado and the bad should be dealt with in the proper manner.

A Lubbock policeman told me Saturday afternoon that the young person involved will not pursue the matter and file charges. This writer hopes that young lady will prove him wrong and file charges against those persons who committed the simple assault. Really, there's no difference between a simple assault and an assault in my book. When someone beats up on me or anyone else, man, that's a plain old assault, and those persons responsible should be filed upon.

I hope the administration at Estacado will move in the proper direction to curtail this sort of thing in the future. As I See It, we don't need incidents such as this occurring in our schools, nor do we think they should be hidden from the public.

If the administration doesn't get something done, then the parents should do their part to help overcome things of this nature. Of course, the schools can't do it by themselves. The parents must do their part.

Because of incidents like the one Friday, black administrators should band together and come up with solutions to help the Lubbock Public Schools. If we don't get something started in the right perspective, we're all going to be sorry one day.

Thought of the Week: "If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar. For he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God, whom he hath not seen?" 'I John 4:20.

In Lubbock County, we have a water, hospital and other types of districts. Why can't Lubbock County have a weed district? This writer believes that such a district would help erase the weed problem we have in the county. With the rain situation in Lubbock and the South Plains, such a weed district would be proper.

This idea has gotten started in Crosby County, and it appears as though it is off the ground and running in the right direction. The Crosby County Commissioners Court met last week to discuss this matter and set Tuesday, September 30, at 10 a.m. as the time to determine if the creation of the weed district will become a reality.

All of this came about because there were citizens who cared about the weed situation in Crosby County. For that, petitions were circulated throughout the county, and the results were positive. People don't mind paying for something which will help them and the political sub-division involved.

Perhaps the Lubbock County Commissioners Court could look into the possibility of such a weed district in Lubbock County. This will make a lot of sense since weeds are one of our enemies several months during the year.

Crime is still on the increase in this country. It was quite interesting to read the August, 1975 issue of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) that Miami and Washington, D.C. are the safest out of 13 major cities in violent crimes. The rate of personal crime violence per 1,000 residents was 22 in Miami and 31 in Washington,

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

POWER STRUGGLE IN DEMOCRATIC PARTY

by Jack Anderson with Joe Spear

Washington—"I don't belong to an organized political party," the great comedian Will Rogers once said, "I'm a Democrat."

Rogers' witty observation is still valid. No matter how hard they try, the Democrats just can't seem to get along.

On Capitol Hill, for example, a brutal power struggle is shaping up over a successor to House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma. Albert hasn't shown any signs of quitting, of course, but that hasn't deterred some of his ambitious colleagues.

The furor started when Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri began spreading the word in the Democratic cloakrooms that he is a candidate for the Majority Leader's job, now held by Rep. Thomas "Tip" O'Neill of Massachusetts.

Veteran Democrats took this as a signal that Albert was stepping down and O'Neill was moving up. Albert and Bolling are good friends, the pols reasoned, so Bolling would never talk about moving up in the House hierarchy without the Speaker's approval.

Albert caught wind of the rumors and promptly issued a stern denial that he is planning to retire. Nevertheless, Tip O'Neill is quietly lining up support for the Speaker's seat.

He's not the only one panting for the job. Rep. Phil Burton of California, chairman of the Democratic Caucus, and Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio, chairman of the Administration Committee have let it be known that they want it, too.

The upcoming Presidential elections will present the Democrats will still another opportunity to display their three-ring political circus. Indeed, they've already begun tuning up their acts.

Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana, for example, recently jumped into the Presidential arena and landed on some delicate toes.

He has been pushing the oil issue and has proposed breaking up the major energy cartels. He has garnered a lot of publicity on the issue, and some of his colleagues are grumbling that he is a Johnny-come-lately.

Senators Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin and Phil Hart of Michigan, for instance, have been working quietly on the oil question for years. They didn't appreciate it, say our sources, when Bayh began stealing their thunder.

But no one was angrier than presidential rival Morris Udall, the Congressman from Arizona. He introduced legislation similar to Bayh's last spring, but it went virtually unnoticed.

The Democrats, in sum, managed to slice each other up in

STAR-SPANGLED HISTORY

HISTORICAL DRAWINGS BY JOSEPH BOGGS BEALE (1841-1926)

"NORTHMEN DISCOVER AMERICA"

The Northmen, or Vikings, were the first Scandinavians to visit the North American continent. Their visits are dated from around 1000 A.D. The Northmen tried unsuccessfully to establish colonies in the New Land, but due to the long distances from the supply colonies in Greenland and Iceland, colonization was given up after 12 years. In 1961, archaeologists found the remains of a Viking settlement as far north as Newfoundland. From the collection of American National Insurance Company, Galveston, Texas.

D.C. In San Francisco, for example, residents reported 71 personal crimes of violence in 1973; and in Minneapolis, residents reported 70 such crimes per 1,000 inhabitants.

In the other nine cities involved in the 1973 study on personal violent crime rates, the findings were quite interesting. In Boston 67, Cincinnati 63, Milwaukee 61, Oakland 59, Houston 53, San Diego 53, Buffalo 49, Pittsburgh 47, and New Orleans 46.

It means one thing about the times we are living in today. Crime is on the move and we, as citizens, must do our part in Lubbock and the South Plains to prevent it. We can if we get involved and do our part. For one, we can all report criminal activities in our community.

both 1968 and 1972, and thereby greased the skids for Richard Nixon. It's beginning to look as if they might repeat the performance for Gerald Ford in 1976.

Smoke Got In Their Eyes: Congressional lethargy on such critical issues as energy, health, and tax reform is legendary. But Congress can move, and swiftly, when there is a powerful special interest to please.

The tobacco industry recently picked up a $50 million subsidy in record time. While important national legislation languished in endless committee meetings, the tobacco bill zipped through Congress, bending the rules as it went.

Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., started it all when he took the extraordinary measure of calling his Tobacco subcommittee out of recess to act on the subsidy bill.

Then in the full Agriculture Committee, an important pesticides bill was put aside, and the subsidy quickly passed. One week later, the House passed the bill, after it was moved ahead of other legislation by unanimous consent.

In the Senate, the charade of public hearings was disposed of on a technicality and the subsidy was whisked directly to the floor. It was passed by a voice vote on Yom Kippur. Only four Senators were present.

The legislators who were adamantly opposed to the subsidy had been told that no important legislation would be taken up on the Jewish holiday.

President Ford and the Agriculture Department opposed the bill, but the President will probably sign it into law anyway, sources say. It is apparently part of a legislative horse trade the White House has made with Congress.

So whether you are a smoker or not, a portion of your next tax bill will subsidize the tobacco industry.

Cuban Consumer: Since Gerald Ford moved into the White House, relations with Cuba have been slowly warming. Washington and Havana are not exactly kissing cousins yet, but things are definitely improving.

Premier Fidel Castro, for example, has returned a few hijackers along with their booty. For its part, the United States has partially relaxed its 13-year-old economic embargo against Cuba.

What's behind it all? Who does Fidel Castro even want friendly relations with a country that has ostracized him for over a decade?

We've spoken to a number of intelligence sources, and to prominent people who have recently visited Cuba. They all say the same thing: Castro has little desire to sell sugar or any other Cuban product to the United States. He wants to buy American products.

Castro is especially interested in medical supplies, beef and farm products. And he's tired of the inferior vehicles he's been getting from East European countries. He wants to purchase American-made trucks.

He may soon get what he wants. Senators Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., and James Abourezk, D-S.D., have already introduced legislation that would wipe out restrictions against exports to Cuba. These bills are now under consideration by a Senate committee.

Police Beat

Burglary

Charles Mullins, 3703 East 4th Street, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown broke into his service station, Mullins Standard Service, one evening last week.

Both door glasses had been broken out, according to the police report. It was also learned that the cash register was forced open and the front office cigarette machine broken.

There was approximately $40 taken from the cigarette machine. The front door of the machine had been damaged.

Strong Arm Robbery

Willie V. Brentley, 1601 Avenue C, Apt. 33, (who is manager of the Trammel Terrace Apartments) reported to police an incident which happened in the apartments one evening last week. He told police that Earnie Rodriguez, who resides in the Alamo Courts, Apt. 44, was assaulted by two men.

According to Mrs. Brentley, the incident happened in Apartment 53 of Trammel Terrace.

Rodriguez, who was reluctant about talking, told police that the men took $50 from him. He did, according to the police report, have bruises and several skinned places about his head.

Rodriguez told police that he will not file charges against the men, but Mrs. Brentley feels different. "I will file charges," he said.

House Burglary

Clyde T. Vernon, 1802 East 27th Street, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown entered his house one day last week. Taken from the house was a stereo console tape and record player valued at approximately $400.

He told police that the only persons having a key to his house was he and his daughter.

What was funny about the burglary was when they came home, the front door was still locked and the stereo was missing. A very strange burglary!

Destruction of Private Property

A Lubbock man reported to police one day last week that his glass storm door was broken. "It was shot by someone," said the man. He told police that his son shot into the door and then threw the .410 shotgun through the glass door. The shotgun was lying in the living room.

The man said his son left in a hurry and didn't know where he had gone. "I will file charges against my son this week," he said. Do you think this man will file charges against his son?

Car Burglary

Ernest Lacy, 2416 East 8th Street, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown took approximately $175 worth of work tools from his pickup while it was parked in his yard one evening last week.

He sure would like to have his tools back.

Simple Assault

A sixteen year old girl reported to Lubbock police that three women, 18 years and older, whipped her in the halls of Estacado High School one day last week.

She told police that the three ladies knocked her down, hit her several times with their fists, and kicked her several times. The young girl had a cut on her head approximately one half inch long.

She stated that someone in the hall pulled them apart, but she didn't know who that persons was.

"I had a fight with one of the ladies at the football game last Thursday evening at Lowery Field," she said. "I will file charges this week," she continued.

Wisdom is the art of proportion.

Last Tuesday evening, Mrs. Annie Sanders was hostess to a special dinner at the Pancake House on University Avenue. Her guests were her mother, Mrs. Josephine Sneed of Austin, Texas; and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Marscella Fagan of Seattle, Washington. Also invited was a friend of Lubbock, Mrs. M. Terrell; and Mrs. Sanders' son, Mark. The meal was very delicious and all enjoyed the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Joe Evans and six months old son, Shon, were weekend visitors here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Melton and sons and the parents of Albert Joe. They reside in Langston, Okla.

Mr. D.C. Fowler of Loraine, Texas finished his classes here at City Hall and has returned home. He was guest of the E.C. Struggs family, his relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Tucker arrived last Saturday for a few days visit with Mrs. Tucker's sister and family, Rev. and Mrs. T.B. Reece.

Mrs. Freddie Miller of Fort Worth, Texas left Friday evening for home after spending several days here with her sister, Mrs. Mildred Lusk and family.

Mrs. Melba Odie of Los Angeles, California arrived here last Friday afternoon, via Continental Air Lines, for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Paralee Bell, who was quite happy. Sunday was a big day for Mrs. Bell with five grandchildren; six great grandchildren, and an ex-daughter-in-law, Mrs. Annie Ruth Woodard, all visiting her. She felt very honored and loved.

Mrs. Lovie Jean Cunningham and Mrs. Myrtle Wright left early Sunday morning for Albuquerque, New Mexico to carry Mr. Salone Cunningham back to the doctor for a check-up. He will spend a few days there, and hopefully, will return home soon again. His condition is stable now.

Mr. Jessie Hemanes is recovering from a flu virus. Mrs. Mary Lang was dismissed from Methodist Hospital last Monday in satisfactory condition after undergoing surgery. Mr. Skief is home from the hospital and recuperating nicely.

Mrs. Louella Caruthers Vesser, longtime resident of Lubbock, left Friday for her home in Denver, Colorado after spending several days here visiting old time friends. She was house guest of Mrs. Celestine Wilson.

The Parks and Recreation Department of the City of Lubbock will dedicate the new George C. Woods Park Saturday morning, September 27, at 10 a.m. The public is invited to attend. The park is located at North Zenith and Erskine Road.

Rev. M.J. Alexander, pastor of the Church of God in Christ, is at home, recuperating from major surgery. Pray for his speedy recovery.

Dianna Baldwin Named to New Position As Head of Adult Education at Midland

Dianna Baldwin, a former resident of Lubbock, was notified by James Bramlett, Director of Community Services at Midland College, of being selected to head the pre-vocational rehabilitation adult education classes at Midland College, starting October 1, 1975.

Presently, Dianna is employed by the State Department of Public Welfare where she does case work in the social service unit, a job she acquired through merit examinations. Dianna started work for state welfare April 25, 1975, and has done a tremendous job. She has worked with welfare clients offering such services as: family planning, check-ups, eye treatment, diagnosis and treatment for children, eye glasses, hearing aids and dentures. Dianna has worked closely with community agencies, schools, churches, law enforcement agencies and civic groups—laymen and professional, which has helped her in expanding her knowledge of the community and in making referrals.

Ms. Baldwin was recommended for the job by vocational rehabilitation staff and local state welfare administrators.

The pre-vocational classes are designed to help welfare clients who desire to improve their standard of living. However, in order for a client to enter the pre-vocational classes, he must be screened by state welfare caseworkers, vocational rehabilitation caseworker and vocational rehabilitation counselor. The client will then be referred to Ms. Baldwin for 3 to 6 weeks. After completing pre-vocational classes, the client is eligible to attend the college or training school he prefers in the Midland area.

Dianna is a 1967 graduate of Dunbar High School and attended Texas Woman's University in Denton, Texas where she majored in biology. Presently Dianna is attending University of Texas Permian Basin at night to obtain her degree in sociology.

Ms. Baldwin is very excited about her new job and hopes that she can do well. She is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Wilson Baldwin and resides at 408 Shandon Drive in Midland, Texas.

YWCA Continued Fall Program Enrollment Here

The YWCA will continue its fall program with some new classes as well as old favorites. Because of continued demand, another section of Macrame will be offered beginning Thursday, October 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. Other classes designed for the "creative you" include Needlepoint meeting Tuesday and Thursday mornings; beginning Upholstery, and cake decorating.

For women and men whose creativity is expressed in a different way, the Y will offer beginning bridge classes, guitar and conversational Spanish.

A well rounded program of physical fitness classes will continue through October and November. Tennis lessons at the beginning and intermediate level will be available Monday through Friday at 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. beginning Oct. 6. Yoga will be offered along with a noon exercise program for the working woman to fit into her lunch hour. Also classes in karate and belly dancing will be offered.

There are also classes scheduled for preschoolers to start at the end of September.

YWCA membership is required for participation in all classes. Advanced registration is necessary for every class or activity and registration is never complete until the fee is paid. For more information call the YWCA, 792-2723. The YWCA is a United Way agency.

Mt. Gilead Baptist Choir Finishes Job

Sunday, September 14, the Senior Choir of Mount Gilead Baptist Church presented its annual musical which was indeed a success, both spiritually and financially. The goal was $1,000 and was not quite fulfilled, and the program chairman would not quit. They made another effort to produce the balance.

The report now reads $1,001 with more promises.

The description of the attire during their performances was incorrect in last week's edition of the Times. The uniform attire was gold color instead of rust for the ladies gowns and men's shirts.

The former president for many years, Sug Johnson, will never be happy until her goal is reached, and she is a part of a loyal group of workers who always stand by and for her.

Pastor Roberts was unable to attend the affair, but he helped bring the needed balance.

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

Hey! Mumbblings of discontent in the ranks. You would almost think that New Mexico had beaten Texas Tech to hear the comments on Sunday. Ah, success, how fleeting is thy glory.

Forget that Tech is 2-0. The Raiders didn't mop up the Lobos as expected. Pass defense didn't look good. There were too many errors. The punting was weak. Boy! Four tough games coming up and if the Raiders don't do better, a month from now it will be 2-4.

And what is being said in defense? Not much, really. Even Coach Steve Sloan was not among the cheerleaders.

"We didn't play well the second half," he declared. "I guess we weren't ready mentally to play."

Steve even opened his postgame conference by saying that there probably wouldn't be as much humor tonight—and there wasn't. He was far more subdued, even though his own particular brand of drollness did creep in towards the end of his conference.

The Raiders didn't look sharp and no one can argue that point. The offense was shut down pretty well the last half, while turnovers plagued the team.

Fumbles and interceptions thwarted promising drives, penalties hurt and the Lobos stung with their passing and a belated rushing attack that kept the pressure on Tech. It was not an impressive victory, even though the Raiders came from behind to win.

Two plays, which offset each other in the long run, almost were forgotten. Sammie Williams dropped a pass that had seven points written all over it. That could have broken the game wide open.

The other was a pass on which interference wasn't called, although it appeared that Tech was guilty. That could well have put the Lobos in position to tie up the game and, with a successful two-point conversion, win all the marbles.

So, instead of optimism about Tech's chances of beating Texas Saturday, there was universal gloom. Man alive, Tech must play Texas, Oklahoma State, Texas A&M and Arizona on successive weekends—and three of those four games are on the road.

It doesn't look promising, but Tech doesn't need supporters with weak faith, it needs believers in miracles. And miracles are known to happen.

In two games the Raiders have used over 50 players in each. They have used a basic bread and butter offense with little trickery. They have played it pretty straight on defense.

In tough games I don't look for that many players to see action, offensively or defensively. I also think that you will see the pass used more and a little more diversity in the attack. In short, don't count the Raiders out on the basis of two games.

Texas, OSU and A&M don't use the pass like either Florida State or New Mexico, both of which have strong aerial games. Arizona will use it more like New Mexico did.

Instead, the first three teams are primarily ground teams. There's a big difference in preparing for such teams, compared to those with outstanding passing attacks. No, the first two games have been ideal for training against the middle part of the schedule coming up, the part that could make or break the Raiders.

Through the first two full weeks of play the Southwest Conference has done well, with 10 victories, 5 losses and a tie. It's a winning percentage.

There have been some shockers, like Oklahoma State beating Arkansas and Rice beating Houston. Otherwise, games have gone about as expected. Baylor apparently is for real and A&M was awesome beating LSU, while TCU may be weaker than expected.

There aren't many conference games for a while, with one this week, one next and no full action until Nov. 8. But by that time half the schools could be eliminated from contention.

Sofar everything upholds pre-season predictions that it will be between A&M, Texas, Arkansas and Baylor. Right now only Tech, Texas and A&M have perfect 2-0 records—and one of them will be 2-1 after Saturday.

By the time this hits the streets Pittsburgh probably will have clinched the National League East and will be set to play Cincinnati, while Oakland may have to wait a day to see if it's Boston or Baltimore—although that race, too, may be decided.

The stretch drive of the Orioles is unbelievable. As of Sunday, they had won 14 of 17, while the Red Sox again had faltered. If the Sox blow it, it will be incredible.

From the standpoint of fairness in competition, it's hard to believe that any court would uphold the NCAA's decision to limit traveling squads in college football to 48 members.

The home team already has an edge and the advantage in numbers makes it even greater. More and more coaches are playing a lot of men each game, especially with injuries dictating the role of substitutes.

But the rule was approved in the first place to save money and fewer players, more money saved. If you figure two to a room, it would be 24 motel charges compared to 30, with additional savings in meal costs, as well as air fares.

Still, to make it even, why doesn't the NCAA rule that the home team may have only 48 players in uniform? It might make no difference in the final score, but at least it would be equal treatment.

THE ROUNDUP—Windy Nicklaus, first Tech football captain, was an interested spectator at the Tech-New Mexico game. He also visited the postgame conference . . . John McGuire, assistant AD for the Amarillo schools, was a pressbox spectator Saturday . . . Amarillo is going to have Texas League baseball again next year. The Alexandria (La.) club probably will move to the Panhandle . . . E.C. Leslie, following surgery, isn't jogging yet, but he's walking in the neighborhood . . . If you want real entertainment, keep your glasses on Ecomet Burley and forget the other action. He's something to watch . . . Larry Dupre, who intercepted a pass Saturday night, is a son of former Baylor star, L.G. "Long Gone" Dupre . . . New Mexico is in the process of rebuilding, and enlarging, its football pressbox and modeling it on Tech's . . . The Albuquerque school also may host the 1981 NCAA basketball championship. They've enlarged their facilities to seat an additional 3,500 by installing a deck.

Looking Back Over the Years

"I Didn't Allow 'Sporting Women' to Walk the Streets When I Was Deputy Sheriff", Recalls Mr. M. C. Coleman

by T.J. Patterson

"I didn't allow the sporting women to walk the streets when I was deputy Sheriff", says Mr. M.C. Coleman.

(Editor's note: M.C. Coleman, the first black deputy hired in Lubbock County in March 1, 1929, came to Lubbock in 1920. This is one of two series with this man, who would arrest anyone who violated the law, white or black, in those days.)

Mr. Coleman, when did you come to Lubbock?

"I came to Lubbock the first of January in 1920.

Why did you come here, sir?

Well, I left Crosby County, Texas where I was on a cotton pick, and I decided to come to Lubbock. I am 82 years old now, but I was young and strong then. I was raised in Houston, Texas.

What made you come to West Texas on a cotton pick?

They (whites) were picking up cotton pickers then. They had so much cotton out here that they had to have someone to pick it. I worked for a guy named Chester Smith in Crosby County all of the fall of 1919.

What kind of job did you get when you came to Lubbock?

When I first came here, I stood on the street, because I didn't have a job. I ended up working for the Panhandle Construction Company. I was standing on the corner where First National Bank is now located, watching two white fellows shaking the plow with four horses. I was standing there looking at them and one of them asked me: "Boy, do you think you can shake that plow?" I told them I sure could because I came from South Texas where we knew how to shake plows. They told me if I could shake the plow they would give me two men's jobs. At that time, they were paying fifty cents an hour, but they agreed to pay me $1.00 an hour to shake that plow. I took over and plowed the street the rest of that day.

How long did you shake the plow for that company?

Until they finished that job. The first job I did was to plow up Texas Avenue, from 10th to 13th Street with a grader. When they put the concrete down, all I did was stand there. I also plowed up Avenue J, from 10th to 13th Street, then I plowed by Broadway (with four horses) to the railroad station, from College Avenue and Main Avenue.

I plowed up that street and graded the street. I did it all by myself, with the white man holding the horses. I also plowed up Broadway Avenue to the underpass. When they were laying the brick on Broadway, I would help them unload the brick.

Where did they get the bricks they used on Broadway?

They hauled the bricks in here on train cars. At that time, there was nothing here but mud holes and wagon and teams. Once in a while you would see a car, an old Dodge or something.

Did you enjoy working as a plower?

Oh, yes, I had just come from the country where I had worked in the oil fields. I also had a good job there putting in shell roads.

Where did you work next?

I worked at the Citizens Bank, the oldest bank in Lubbock, for six years.

How did they treat black people in those days?

There was no such thing as a hard time for black people in those days. If you were a working person, times weren't that hard.

Did you become a deputy sheriff in Lubbock County?

Yes, I did. I tell you what, this town was so bad at that time because Slaton, Texas was wide open. The city police couldn't go to Slaton. There were some tough people here in this area from Big Spring, Slaton and other places, who took advantage of the law.

When did you become deputy sheriff?

I became deputy sheriff on March 1, 1929. I was hired by a man named Wade H. Hardy.

Where was the county jail then?

When I came here, the county jail was where the old jail is now. They had an old house there with a fence around it. The sheriff lived downstairs and the prisoners were kept upstairs.

How bad was Lubbock?

This town got so bad in 1928 until the law was poor. There was a black woman, named Rosie, who had a house on Ave. A, where the elevators are now. She came here from Big Spring. There were women who came here from different towns, doing bad things at that house. The working white folks in Lubbock figured they needed a law to break up this bad situation. A lot of bad activity was going on in that big house. A guy by the name of Wade H. Hardy became high sheriff then. They talked with the chief of police in Lubbock about cleaning up the town down there on Avenue A where the prostitute house was located. But the chief told the sheriff they were making money out of that activity. At the time, about 1926 or 1927, maybe later, they had a big race riot in Slaton one Saturday. A colored boy butted up beside a white woman and that started it. They said they were going to come to Lubbock with the riot. They had a bunch of Klu Klux Klansmen there.

Was the KKK only in Slaton?

No, they had KKKs all over this part of the country. They kind of broke up the KKK outfit in Lubbock.

Is this when you were hired?

Yes, they said to keep the colored people and white people from mixing up here, we had to do something about it. We had the same kind of bad white people as we had colored people, so they said something had to be done about it. They didn't want the white gambler to mix up with the colored gambler or the white sporting woman to mix up with the colored sporting woman. They were afraid if they mixed up in Lubbock, there would be a race riot. So Mr. Hardy put out some papers to get a colored deputy. He told me if I would fill out the papers and send them to Austin, and they were accepted, he would hire me. He told me that I would be the same as he was in Lubbock County. He told me that I had to be under a $2,000 bond.

Were you placed under the bond?

Yes, I was. A guy by the name of Mr. W.O. Stephens and Mr. Milton Jones, both were on my bond. They were white. When the papers came back from Austin, they signed my bond and I became a deputy sheriff for Lubbock County. Mr. Hardy also signed the papers after I was bonded. The County Judge and the County Prosecutor also had to sign my papers. So you see, when they signed my papers, I had the authority to arrest anyone who broke the law in Lubbock, Texas and Lubbock County. If a white man came down to the colored part of town, he had to give account to me why he was there.

Is it true that you broke up Rosie's House?

Yes, I broke up Rosie's House. All the bad people started going to Slaton then.

What were those papers used for in those days?

This was in case any law official ran into me, I could show them my papers signed by the high sheriff, county judge and prosecuting attorney. The papers showed that I was for real. I was a plainclothes man, I could wear any kind of clothes I wanted to wear. When you violated the law, whoever you were, you didn't know anything until I put my hands on you and was ready to carry you to jail.

Would you only arrest black people?

No, I arrested anyone who broke the law, up town or anywhere. I was directed by the county judge to arrest anyone, black or white. He told me to make an arrest on only those persons who had to be tried by a jury. It cost money to try someone. We didn't want kangaroo courts in those days.

How much money did you make for being a deputy sheriff?

I got $90 a month for being deputy. I also got so much on an arrest when a person got stuck.

What do you mean by getting stuck?

If a person paid a fine, I made so much from that arrest. I would arrest white women and white men. I would catch them down at Rosie's House. There was a vacant prairie and the old white men would be caught there. The white men would drive through the flats area and see a man walking with his wife. The white man would stop the car and the woman would get in. The black man would keep walking about his business. That's the way the sporting women were doing in the flats then. But I would arrest the woman and white man. It wasn't long before I caught the man who was walking with his wife and arrest him, too. I would get all three of them and take them to jail. I can prove this by a lot of colored people who saw me do it. That was a bad street in those days.

You know, Mr. Coleman, they are doing the same thing today. Do you approve of whites driving in the flats and picking up sporting women?

No, I don't. You know what, they didn't walk down there when I had the authority. I didn't allow it. I know they didn't do it. (Next Week: Mr. Coleman talks about an exciting experience he had arresting four car loads of white men looking for "Nigger prostitutes".)

LUBBOCK COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT CITIZEN PARTICIPATION STRUCTURE

THE HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1974 DETAILS OF ACT/HOW PROCESS WORKS

In late summer of 1974, the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 was signed into law. The act is the final result of several years of effort by the Administration, Congress, and cities to simplify, streamline and consolidate various community development programs.

Congress stated that the block grants were for support of community development activities directed toward the specific objectives of: (1) eliminating slums and blight and preventing the deterioration of property and community facilities of importance to the welfare of the community; (2) eliminating conditions which are detrimental to health, safety and public welfare, through code enforcement, demolition, rehabilitation and related activities; (3) conserving and expanding the nation's housing stock; (4) expanding and improving the quantity and quality of community services, principally for persons of low and moderate income; (5) more rationally utilizing land and other national resources and better arranging residential, commercial, industrial, recreational and other needed activity centers; (6) reducing the isolation of income groups within communities and geographical areas and promoting an increase in the diversity and vitality of neighborhoods that have deteriorated to attract persons of higher income; and (7) restoring and preserving properties of special value for historic, architecture or esthetic reasons.

ELIGIBLE ACTIVITIES

Community Development programs to be assisted by funds provided under this Act may only include as eligible activities: (1) acquisition of real property (including air and water rights and other interests) which is (a) blighted, deteriorating, undeveloped or inappropriately developed; (b) appropriate for rehabilitation or conservation; (c) appropriate for preservation or restoration of historic sites, beautification of urban land, conservation of open spaces, natural resources and scenic areas, provision of recreational opportunities or the guidance of urban development; (d) to be used for the provision of public works, facilities and improvements that are themselves eligible for assistance; or (e) to be used for other public purposes. (2) acquisition, construction, reconstruction or installation of public works facilities and site or other improvements; (3) code enforcement in deteriorating areas in which such enforcement, together with other public improvements and services, may be expected to arrest the decline of the area; (4) clearance, demolition, removal and rehabilitation of buildings and improvements; (5) special projects to remove material and architectural barriers which restrict mobility and accessibility of elderly and handicapped persons; (6) payments to housing owners for losses of rental income incurred in holding housing units to be utilized for the relocation of persons displaced by community development program activities; (7) disposition (through sale, lease, donation or otherwise) of any real property acquired as a part of the community development program or the retention of such property for public purposes; (8) provision of necessary or appropriate public services not otherwise available to the concentrated community development area, if such services are appropriate to support other approved program activities and if aid for such services has been sought and denied or not made available within a reasonable period of time under other federal programs. These services must be directed toward (a) improving the community's public services (including those concerned with employment, crime prevention, economic development, child care, health, drug abuse, education, welfare or recreation) and (b) coordinating public and private development programs; (9) payment of the non-federal share required in a federal grant-in-aid program undertaken as part of the community development program; (10) payment of cost of completing existing urban renewal projects; (11) relocation payments and assistance for persons, businesses, organizations and farm operations displaced by community development program activities; (12) activities necessary (a) to develop a comprehensive community development plan and (b) to develop a policy-planning-management capacity to assist the recipient in rationally and effectively determining needs, setting goals and objectives, and devising and evaluating programs and activities; and (13) payments of reasonable administrative costs related to the planning and execution of community development and housing activities, including the cost of providing residents of areas of concentrated activities with information and resources related to the planning and execution of such activities.
