Jobless rate falls

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate fell in April for the first time in nine months, dipping to 7.2 percent as companies added 126,000 new jobs, the government reported Friday. Analysts welcomed the unexpected drop in the jobless rate as a sign that unemployment may finally be peaking, but they cautioned that further improvements are likely to be slow and irregular. "We are finally beginning to move," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co. "But it is at a crawl. This will be a soft and slow struggle upward." The Bush administration, which has seen a weak economy undermine the president's approval ratings, took heart from the upturn in the labor market./12A

Bush ends visit

LOS ANGELES — President Bush wound up two emotional days in riot-ravaged Los Angeles Friday promising to work harder in Washington to enact a "common-sense agenda" of conservative proposals to help urban America. "Things aren't right in too many cities across our country," he told community leaders and young people. "We must not return to the status quo. We must try something new." The president seemed moved by what he had seen in one of his rare visits to an impoverished area. He seemed stunned by the devastation./10A

Governor's praise

AUSTIN — Gov. Ann Richards on Friday praised a West Texas water pipeline project that she said will create jobs and provide needed water to the region. The 156-mile-long pipeline, one of the largest in the nation, will provide water to a large area of West Texas. Richards said the $115 million project "will bring water and jobs to that part of the state." It will run from Lake Ivie through San Angelo to the Midland-Odessa area and have a capacity of 90 million gallons daily./7C

Ex-sheriff gets maximum

Judge sentences Thompson, Chambers to life

Beery: Amount of illicit drugs was factor

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Richard Dee "Rick" Thompson, who in 1973 at age 27 was appointed sheriff of Presidio County, has spent most of his adult life in law enforcement.

Now, at age 46 and suddenly cast into the role of criminal, Thompson likely will spend the rest of his life in prison, a federal prosecutor said.

The ex-sheriff is prison-bound for his 1991 role in joining with Alpine rancher Glyn Robert Chambers in importing more than a ton of cocaine valued as low as $48 million and as high as $1 billion.

Both received life prison sentences Friday.

But Chambers may get a reduced sentence because of his cooperation with federal prosecutors in bringing other drug traffickers under investigation to trial.

However, there has been no motion for re-

PECOS — A former West Texas sheriff was sentenced to life in prison Friday in federal court for supervising a midnight haul of cocaine worth $48 million last December.

But ex-Presidio County Sheriff Rick Thompson and co-defendant Glyn Robert Chambers, who also received a life sentence, could have their terms reduced if they help investigators.

After sentencing by U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer of Dallas, Thompson's family burst into tears but the former sheriff's John Wayne-style swagger remained intact.

Thompson smiled to supporters and refused questions as federal marshals escorted him out of the courthouse.

"Rick's a tough guy," said his attorney Barry Crutchfield. "He got in over his head. He pled guilty and that speaks for itself."

Chambers also refused questions.

Midlanders, law officers honor 'fallen soldiers'

By Debbie Lincecum

Midlander Becky Carr remembers when her dad was killed on the job.

Gordon Smith, a Midland police officer, was shot and killed Nov. 28, 1961, by an ex-convict who had just raped and killed a woman.

"It didn't really sink in," said Ms. Carr, who was 8 years old at the time. "I remember I asked one of the (other) officers what had happened and he just shook his head. I knew daddy was shot but I thought he was coming home."

"I remember my mother standing by the couch, and then she fainted," said Sheila Riddle, Ms. Carr's sister, who was 6 when their father was killed. After that, their mother, Helen, raised four children on her own.

Smith was the last Midland County law enforcement officer killed in the line of duty. But throughout the state and across the country, the death toll among officers continues to rise.

Ms. Carr and Ms. Riddle were among those honoring their father and other "fallen soldiers" Friday at the sixth Midland Law Enforcement Memorial Service.

"These are people who dedicated their lives to the service of the United States and their individual departments," said Leonard Hendon, a police officer and president of the Midland Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 11. "Through their dedication, they've given us something to be proud of."

The Midland sheriff and police departments were working together late Friday night in an attempt to apprehend three men involved in several armed robberies.

The crime spree began about 5 p.m. Friday when a male, brandishing a pistol, approached a woman — also on foot — in the parking lot of Furr's Supermarket, located on the corner of N. Big Spring Street and Scharbauer Drive, officers said.

The man robbed the woman in the parking lot and then attempted to get into a car with a nearby female driver. The woman urged her children to lock the doors, and they escaped, officers said.

Northeastern senators warn of gas cartel

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Warning of an impending natural-gas cartel, northeastern senators Friday protested moves by Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana to restrict gas production.

In a letter sent to the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, 32 lawmakers said the proposed or recently enacted changes in gas production rules have "the potential to raise natural-gas prices artificially and undermine the competitive nature of the natural gas market."

In the energy-producing states of the gulf coast, wags are referring to the phenomenon as the "Red Neck OPEC," a takeoff on the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries that dominated the oil markets in the 1970s.

The lawmakers warned that an organized move to raise natural-gas prices could scuttle efforts in Congress to promote gas consumption for environmental reasons. Pending energy legislation and existing law included in the 1990 Clean Air Act amendments would boost demand for natural gas because of its clean-burning characteristics.

"These actions," the lawmakers wrote, "were premised on the existence of a free market for natural-gas supplies." They asked the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, chaired by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., to investigat the state actions.

"We will not countenance efforts that directly threaten a competitive marketplace for natural gas," the lawmakers wrote.

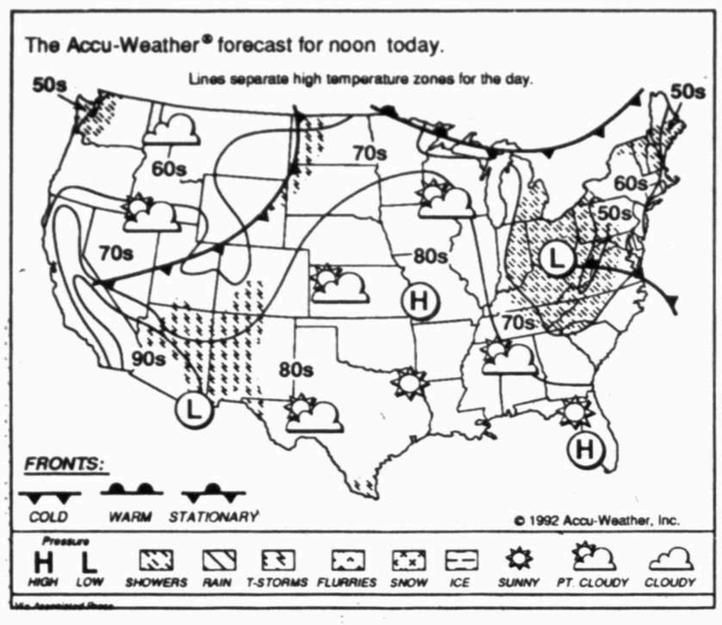
WEATHER SUMMARY



Chance of rain, 80s on tap

Today's forecast is partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms in the afternoon, a high in the low 80s, and winds south 20-30 mph and gusty, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight is predicted to be mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low in the upper 50s.

Sunday's forecast is partly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms and a high in the low 80s, the NWS.

Friday's high was 77, compared to the record high of 106, set in 1989. The record low for today's date was 42, set in 1969.

STATE

Texas was mostly sunny and warm Friday, although clouds in the south and west kept temperatures from climbing too high.

Readings reached into the 70s and lower 80s with light southerly winds at 10 to 20 miles an hour.

There were low clouds over North Texas, heavier cover in South Texas and scattered afternoon thundershowers in West Texas, with clouds over the Panhandle and South Plains.

The forecast for North Texas was for partly cloudy skies through Sunday. Highs were expected from the mid- to upper 80s in the west to the low to mid-80s in central and eastern portions. Tonight was to be partly cloudy with a slight chance of thunderstorms in the west and lows in the lower 60s. Highs Sunday were expected to be in the low to mid-80s.

West Texas was expected to be partly to mostly cloudy with widely scattered to scattered thunderstorms mainly over the western sections and Southwest Texas. Highs were expected to be in the 80s with 70s in the mountains. Lows were to be in the 50s with mid-60s in the Big Bend lowlands.

Forecasters said South Texas would be partly cloudy with increasing clouds tonight and an increasing chance of rain by Sunday. Highs were to be in the 80s with lows in the 60s.

NATION

Temperatures bottomed out at record lows Friday across the South, where more than 4 feet of snow had fallen on a North Carolina mountain, and rain was scattered from coast to coast.

Record lows, mostly in the 30s and 40s, were reported at 35 cities in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas, the National Weather Service said.

Several Florida cities dropped to morning lows that were records for the entire month, including 51 at Hollywood, 47 at Melbourne, and 58 at Miami Beach.

Baton Rouge, La., posted a record 46, lower than the previous record of 49 that had been on the books since 1898.

Miami's record low of 56 tied the low at Duluth, Minn. And International Falls, Minn., which calls itself the Nation's Icebox, was warmer during the early morning at 57 than Fort Myers, Fla., which had a low of 54.

In contrast to the South's cold, unseasonably high temperatures continued over sections of the northern Plains and the upper Midwest. Marquette, Mich., posted a record high of 77. At 1 p.m. CDT, the temperature at Billings, Mont., and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., was 78, compared with 75 in Florida at Key West and Miami.

Snow continued to fall at higher elevations of the Appalachians in northeastern Georgia and the western Carolinas.

North Carolina's Mount Pisgah had gotten 57 inches of snow since the storm started Wednesday, and 22 inches of snow had fallen at the top of Mount Mitchell.

The storm had brought as much as 5 inches of rain to lower elevations of western North Carolina. A flood warning was posted on the French Broad River between Blantyre, N.C., and Asheville, N.C.

At midday, rain and thundershowers, mixed with snow at higher elevations, extended across the lower Ohio Valley, the Tennessee Valley, over the central and southern Appalachians, and into southern New England.

In the West, showers were scattered over the Rockies, eastern Arizona, New Mexico and southwestern Texas. And light rain extended along the northern Pacific Coast and the southern California coast.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

SENTENCE: Thompson's family burst into tears

(From 1A)

Moments earlier, Chambers' voice cracked as he begged Buchmeyer for forgiveness.

"I didn't want things to work out this way," the 35-year-old Alpine rancher said. "It was the wrong thing at the wrong time and I am sorry."

Thompson reluctantly agreed to plead guilty Feb. 11 and resigned his office two days later. In return, the government recommended the minimum sentence, 10 years with no fines.

Chambers also pleaded guilty and told investigators he would cooperate.

Testimony revealed a sophisticated drug transaction with connections spreading deep into Mexico.

Chambers testified he and Thompson supervised a midnight delivery of 2,421 pounds of cocaine across the Rio Grande Dec. 3, 1991 and hired more than 20 armed guards to protect the shipment.

Chambers acknowledged organizing several meetings with an unidentified "Mexican drug organization" that owned the cocaine.

Drug Enforcement Administration investigator Dale Stinson said it was not the first time Chambers received profit for helping bring drugs into the country.

"Anybody that can move a ton of cocaine at one time has to be considered a major player in the world of drug trafficking," Stinson said.

Stinson's office, which headed the investigation out of Marfa, released a statement Friday showing Chambers helped transport approximately 10 tons of marijuana and another 10 tons of cocaine through the Big Bend area since 1986.

Thompson, 45, helped transport at least two loads of marijuana in November 1991.

An informant working alongside Thompson and Chambers led authorities to a ton of cocaine found inside a county-owned horse trailer at the Presidio County Fairgrounds Dec. 4.

Chambers' attorney, Rod Ponton, spent most of the morning arguing a motion to downplay his client's role in the drug transaction, putting much of the blame on Thompson.

"A mule is a person paid to transport," Ponton said. "Mr. Chambers was a mule."

Chambers testified he had no ownership interest in the cocaine and the attempt to transport the drugs out of Presidio County "would not have been possible without the sheriff."

Chambers testified he and Thompson were to split $1 million for helping transport the cocaine.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Beery said the government has filed a motion to have Chambers sentence reduced for his cooperation in the case. Beery said he would consider filing a similar on Thompson's behalf.

Before receiving his sentence, Thompson told Buchmeyer, "I have let a lot of people down. I have admitted that, and I have apologized." Thompson said. "That is really all I have to give. I know I have done wrong."

WARN: Lawmakers protest natural-gas restrictions

(From 1A)

Republican and Democratic senators signing the letter included all six from Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

The letter raised specific concerns about changes in "prorationing" law enacted in Oklahoma and under consideration in Texas and Louisiana, states that account for nearly 60 percent of all domestic onshore natural gas. Prorationing is a regulatory process dating back to the 1920s by which neighboring landowners control what they draw from a common underground energy supply.

The process is designed to prevent one large oil or gas producer from completely draining a well and depriving neighboring landowners of their share of the resource.

Lawmakers from energy consuming states are concerned that the new regulations could lead to sharply reduced natural-gas production and an increase in price.

In addition to a brewing producer-consumer conflict, the proration issue has generated heated debate within the energy producing states. Large energy companies and energy delivery utilities tend to support the status quo that allows a higher level of gas production.

Independent gas companies, who have suffered greatly in the depressed energy market of the last decade, favor the new controls as a way to protect their drilling rights. There concern is that there may not be any gas left by the time prices recover to the point where it is profitable to produce.

"This is not about gas prices," said Paul Taylor, spokesman for Anardko Petroleum, a Houston-based independent producer. "It's not an issue that ought to concern the Northeast delegation nor should it concern the consumers in the Northeast."

The problem, Taylor said, "is that people are stealing my gas and I want to be protected from that event."

SPREE: Lawmen investigate armed robberies

(From 1A)

Chevrolet stopped at a stop sign. He got into the car and demanded the driver, a 45-year-old male, drive to Ratliff Park, lawmen said.

After arriving at the park, the robber called two acquaintances over to the car. They demanded the driver's money, drove to a secluded spot and forced him to get into the trunk of his car, officers said.

The three then drove to a country store located at County Road 116 and South Midkiff Road. They robbed the store clerk and left the store, apparently suspecting they had been observed by someone, according to law enforcement reports.

The trio drove to County Road 130 and Highway 349. One of the robbers got out of the Chevrolet and approached a car stopped at a stop sign at the intersection, reports stated.

The driver of the car thought the man was going to ask for directions until he noticed he was carrying a gun, officers said. The driver then put his car into gear and attempted to drive away. The robber fired off a shot and wounded the driver in the hand as he fled the scene.

The robbers drove the vehicle to a section of S. Fort Worth Street, unlocked the trunk, and told the victim to stay in the car for 10 minutes. The three men then left in an unknown direction, lawmen said.

Midland County Sheriff criminal investigator Fred Stubbs and Police detective B.J. Johnson are conducting the investigation. They were taking statements and had no suspects at press time.

Stubbs urged anyone with information concerning the incident to contact the sheriff or police departments, or Crimestoppers at 694-TIPS. Callers may remain anonymous.

HONOR: Officers in uniform wear black bands

(From 1A)

iff's Office, Midland Police Department and all branches of law enforcement.

Although it has been 31 years since a law officer was killed in Midland County, each day brings uncertainty, said Richard Czech, police chief.

"I know it's only a matter of time ... before an officer's going to get up one morning, answer a routine call and pay for it with his life," Czech said. "It's a tough job. We have to remember that."

"Many times we probably take our law enforcement people for granted," said Mayor Carroll Thomas. "We forget the role they play in our community."

Fallen officers got the tribute of the Midland Police Department Honor Guard, the Alamo Junior High band and Cliff Sherrod's bagpipes. They were remembered by a flower wreath of the FOP symbol.

As Hendon read the names, police officers escorted members of the FOP auxiliary to place a red carnation in the wreath for each of the 14 officers killed in Texas last year.

Then they honored Smith and Brian Scoggins — the two Midland police killed in the force's 50-year history.

Scoggins was killed April 4, 1961.

Officers in uniform wore black bands across their badges, a sign of mourning.

A national service for officers killed in the line of duty will take place May 15 in Washington, D.C. Already a memorial stands there to honor those officers.

"But it's not a finished memorial," Hendon said. "Each year we are adding names. Within 100 years they expect it will be completely filled."

He urged local residents to wear or display blue ribbons during the month to honor fallen officers.

This year's service had a new touch officers said made for sharper appearances — three swords carried by members of the honor guard.

FOP auxiliary members pooled their funds to buy the swords. The group, open to the family of FOP members, supports the association in any way it can, member Elizabeth Hendon said.

CHEVRON: Joint venture is of 'export character'

(From 1A)

for layoffs in the Permian Basin might be offered jobs in Kazakstan.

Johnson also noted that the company was looking at a 40-year project in developing the oil field. It has been rumored that Chevron employees working in the field would be based in either London or Berlin and be on duty for one week and off for one week.

The ITAR-Tass news agency said a protocol creating the Tengiz-Chevron joint venture was signed by Kazakhstan's deputy premier Kalyk Abdullayev and Richard Matzke, the president of Chevron Overseas Petroleum Company.

Chevron Chairman Kenneth T. Derr, in a statement issued through the company's headquarters in San Francisco, confirmed the two sides had reached a "breakthrough." Chevron said it had "signed a protocol agreeing on principles of cooperation."

It remains unclear how much more negotiation would be necessary before work can actually begin.

The former Soviet Union is the world's biggest oil producer. But its production has been declining and various government officials have courted assistance from Western oil companies.

Derr said the project will involve an investment of about $1.5 billion over the first three years. ITAR-Tass did not cite a value for the deal but said the project will be funded on an equal basis by Kazakhstan and Chevron, though the largest part of the profits will go to Kazakhstan.

The joint venture, which will begin next year and be in effect for 40 years, is "of an export character" and involves building an oil pipeline that will run from Tengiz to one of the Black Sea ports, ITAR-Tass said.

Chevron and Kazakhstan had been negotiating for several years. Former Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze wrote last year: "It is no secret that the U.S. will judge our readiness to cooperate by the success or failure of this project."

Last July, the Soviet press fiercely attacked the deal, claiming Chevron would reap huge profits and Kazakhstan would get ripped off.

That dispute occurred before the breakup of the former Soviet Union following last August's failed coup and Kazakhstan's independence. Now, the republics are actively courting Western investment.

Kazakh President Nursultan Nazarbayev strongly backed the deal because Chevron's technology can unleash the riches of the Tengiz field, which is considered too complex for Soviet technology.

The Tengiz field — and numerous other Soviet oil fields — are among the best in the world. But the Kazahk oil industry does not have the technology to inject natural gas or drill horizontally in order to extract the oil, said a Western oil expert, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Junior Achievement held its annual recognition banquet Friday evening for teachers and volunteers, and were entertained by comedian Ed Yeager.

Fund-drive and classroom volunteers, along with teachers were honored by about 350 people at the Midland Hilton, said Joyce Matejek, executive director of Junior Achievement.

A Bronze Leadership Award, given by the national office to a board member that has made an outstanding contribution, went to Murphy Markham, president-elect for Junior Achievement and senior vice-president for Nations Bank.

The Texas Project Business Teacher of the Year Award, a state award for the most outstanding classroom teacher in the ninth-grade program, was given to Leonard Monroe of Lee Freshman High School.

Two $500 scholarships for senior high school students that participated in the Junior Achievement applied economics program went to Gina Short of Midland High and Amber Roemisch of Permian High.

In addition to the awards, Junior Achievement supporters were entertained by Dallas comedian Ed Yeager.

Before the banquet, Yeager — who has appeared on several stand-up comedy shows — said he got his start at a comedy club in Denver in 1980 — with Roseanne Arnold. But Yeager concedes, "I haven't seen her in $50 million."

Yeager — who acts and writes as well — said his love for comedy began when he was a youngster.

"I always wanted to be a comedian but there wasn't a Junior Achievement for comics," he said.

In addition to his television spots on stand-up comedy shows, Yeager opens regularly for the Smothers Brothers comedy team, does numerous corporate appearances and had small parts in the feature films, "Robocop II" and "Problem Child."

Yeager said he was hired by Junior Achievement two years ago for a part in a video and has since become further involved with the organization.

"It turned out to be a great association," he said.

The recognition event covered Junior Achievement programs in Midland, Greenwood, Odessa, Big Spring and Fort Stockton.

Junior Achievement of Midland was founded in 1962.

BEERY: There is no release date, prosecutor says

(From 1A)

duction of sentence for Thompson, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Beery of Midland.

"And I don't really anticipate there will be," Beery said Friday night after he had returned to Midland from Pecos, where Federal Judge Jerry Buchmeyer of Dallas had sentenced both Chambers, 35, and Thompson to life sentences.

"There is no release date (in a life sentence)," Beery said. "You will die in prison. You never get released."

Beery said he was not going to file a court motion for a reduction in Thompson's sentence "just because I feel sorry for him. I couldn't. It has got to be based upon substantial cooperation that leads to the investigation and/or prosecution of others for federal crimes," Beery said. "But, I am always open to that in the future."

If Thompson "can provide information that can lead to the prosecution of others, I will do it. Otherwise, I will not."

Unlike the Texas court system, the federal court system does not offer parole and hasn't since 1987, when the U.S. Congress enacted federal sentencing guidelines.

Beery said apparently neither Thompson nor Chambers "really fully realizes what would have" happened had the cocaine they were hauling gone through the drug market and into society.

"I have seen these people who are addicted to cocaine," Beery said. "And it is just a tragedy. There are people who die from overdoses of cocaine. There are people who are addicted to it and can't get off of it. It's a poison."

Congress has recognized that, Beery said, and that's why it "increased the sentences for distribution of cocaine."

Beery said he was not surprised at the life sentences because of the "gargantuan" amount of illicit drugs involved in the Chambers-Thompson case.

According to federal guidelines, Thompson's sentence took on more gravity "because he abused a position of public trust," Beery said of the ex-sheriff. "He carried a gun. He actually went over the life-sentence range."

Thompson was appointed sheriff following the shooting death of then-Presidio County Sheriff Hank Hamilton in late April 1973. Subsequently, Thompson was elected and re-elected to office. In 1984, he was elected president of the Austin-based Sheriffs' Association of Texas.

Beery said Thompson's "drug-trafficking career lasted about a month."

However, he said, Thompson had been "taking money and stuff" sometime before that from Chambers in drug-trafficking deals along the Rio Grande.

Court testimony indicated that Thompson and Chambers had agreed to split $1 million for their part in importing the ton of cocaine.

Beery said the judge's "message" in sentencing Thompson and Chambers is that "if you deal in gargantuan amounts of drugs, you are going to get life in prison."

AT&T braces for Mom's Day

BEDMINSTER, N.J. (NYT) — Starting about 6 a.m. CDT on Mother's Day, telephones will begin jingling in a gradual sweep across the country. More Americans are expected to try to make long-distance calls on this one day than on any other holiday, putting stress on many telephone networks, but on AT&T's most of all.

Aided by recent improvements in its call-routing computers, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. expects some 97.2 million calls to get through on its network, but many may not.

Who gets to say, "Hi, Mom," right away and who gets a recording that says, "All circuits are busy now, please try your call again later," will depend largely on the skill and flair of William C. Leach and his crew at the AT&T Network Operating Center in Bedminster, N.J.

While its rivals, MCI Communications Corp. and Sprint Corp., have similar operations, AT&T's is by far the world's largest.

The center, despite its essential role, is strangely subdued as it goes about its work. Voices are quiet, lights are low and people are tranquil. In this superego of telecommunications, even the phones have a muffled ring.

COMMENCEMENT: More than 180 receive Associate degrees in 1981-83, and John Cooper, trustee since 1979 and board president since 1990, received the first Award of Merit for distinguished service. The awards were presented by Midland College President Dr. David E. Daniel.

(From 1A)

Wright and Cooper both chose not to seek re-election to the board this year.

Five graduates normally are selected to receive Fasken Foundation scholarships and one to receive an Optimist Club scholarship, all for continued university studies.

Both groups of donors expanded the number of their recipients for 1992. Daniel lauded the vision and contributions of Murray Fasken, who served as one of the original Midland College trustees, for his early leadership, his underwriting for the "Top 5 Percent Scholarship" for students from area high schools, and the many contributions of the Fasken Foundation for the advancement of education both at Midland College and at numerous Texas universities.

This year there were six recipients of Fasken Foundation Scholarships for Midland College graduates who will be attending universities in Texas. The Fasken Scholarship awards $1,500 per semester, renewable for a total of four semesters. In previous years, there had been five Fasken Scholars annually.

Those selected include:

■ Michelle Aisner, 32, a single, disabled mother who seeks a doctorate in chemistry. She has been active in Phi Theta Kappa, national community college honorary academic society, and the Ecology Club. She will attend UTPB.

■ Haydee Avena, 20, a graduate of Andrews High School, daughter of Manuel and Ramona Avena. She plans to obtain a bachelor's degree in medical technology from Angelo State University.

■ Allen Shaun Bishop, 20, a graduate of San Angelo Central High School and the son of Joan Draper of San Angelo. He is a member of the Midland College golf team that was national runner-up in 1991, set a team record of 10 titles in 14 tournaments this season, is on Midland College team that won the Region V title and will compete for the national title next month. He plans to study engineering at Southwest Texas State.

■ Sheree A. Case, 29, is a single parent who seeks a degree in primary education at UTPB.

■ Royce E. Jones, 20, was editor of El Paisano, the college newspaper, this year and a staff member as a freshmen. A graduate of Kermit High School, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones, reside in Odessa. He will attend Texas A&M to obtain a degree in journalism.

■ Thelma Poole, 30, of Midland. A single parent who has been involved with the Midland United Way's Project Blueprint and with the Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, Inc., she will attend UTPB.

This year's winner of the Optimist Club Scholarship is Pamela Venett, 33, of Midland, who is the mother of three and works as a paralegal trainee. She plans to major in criminology.

Christina Hughes was a finalist for the Optimist Club Scholarship and will receive a scholarship provided by Midland Concrete, Inc. The firm is owned by Pat and Joe Hopkins. He was director of maintenance for Midland College from 1974-78, helping plan the campus and install much of the landscaping which graces the spacious grounds.

Mrs. Hughes, 27, is a political science major who plans ultimately to seek a law degree.

Receiving plaques of appreciation for their service were the following: Keith Greenwood, diesel mechanics instructor for 12 years, who is retiring; John Harmon, art instructor for 10 years, who is moving to Illinois; Dr. Wayne Holcomb, who began as an instructor 22 years ago and is chair of the Technical Studies Division, who is retiring; Bob King, graphic arts instructor and print shop manager for 18 years, who is retiring; and Johnny Moore, automotive technology instructor for 14 years, who is retiring.

More than 180 students received their Associate degrees during the ceremony. Guest speaker was Sharon Wilson, a member of the 1992 Midland College graduating class. She was named in April as one of the 20 first-team Academic All-American students by USA Today newspaper and the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges.

Police charge man

Staff report

A 22-year-old Midland man was arrested earlier this week for allegedly taking a little more than $20,000 from a McDonalds restaurant where he worked, police said.

Bruce Cunningham, who was a manager at McDonalds, 1111 Andrews Highway, is accused of taking the money over a period of four months, police said.

Cunningham, charged with theft over $20,000, remains free after posting a bond since his arrest, police said.

Jurors face a new trial after delivering Rodney King case verdict

By Robert Reinhold
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Nine days after they delivered the verdict that stunned the nation and set South-Central Los Angeles aflame, the jurors who acquitted the four police officers charged for beating Rodney G. King are variously frightened, defensive, agonized by second thoughts or firmly resolved that they did the right thing.

"My life is beyond hell. I cannot take anymore," said Alice Debord, a 43-year-old grounds worker at a local college. Standing outside her modest home in the verdant remote hills near Ojai, a 75-mile drive from riot-scarred Los Angeles, she looked shaken as she recalled getting death threats.

Other jurors have left their homes in various parts of Ventura County, a mountainous area northwest of Los Angeles that stretches from the far suburbs of the city, like Simi Valley, through vast citrus groves and strawberry fields, through oil fields near the coast in Ventura and over-lush horse country in the mountains near the resort of Ojai.

The courts ordered the trial transferred there on the ground that the Los Angeles police officers could not get a fair trial in the city.

According to Lt. Robert Klamser of the Simi Valley Police, his department and the Ventura County Sheriff's Department have been investigating threats to kill jurors and to burn and vandalize their homes.

"We're working with the jurors on a whole range of things to protect their safety," he said. "Even alternate jurors and prospective jurors who never sat on the panel at all have been threatened."

If the jury, whose 12 members included 10 whites, one Asian, one Hispanic woman but no blacks, was vastly different from polyglot Los Angeles, it was quite typical of suburban and rural Ventura County, where the problems of the city seem continents away.

Judging by the size and condition of their homes, none of the jurors appeared to be wealthy; a couple seemed to live close to poverty. Five were registered as Democrats, five as Republicans, one independent, one apparently not registered.

None had voted in any election since November 1990. Three are relatives of police officers. Three are members of National Rifle Association.

In retrospect, it was about the worst possible jury for the prosecution of police officers.

At the time of jury selection, the prosecutor, Deputy District Attorney Terry L. White, did not use up all of his peremptory challenges. The district attorney's office said at the time that they did not have great hope of obtaining a more favorable panel than those selected, judging from the written statements provided by the 264 potential jurors in the jury pool.

Only six of them were black; only two percent of the population of Ventura County is black. The county is also home to many law enforcement officers.

In the first few days after the verdict, the jurors were almost entirely unavailable for interviews. Apart from Ms. Debord, The New York Times obtained no interviews with the jurors. But in recent days they have begun to break their initial pact of silence.

From scattered interviews with other publications and television stations, it appears that a large majority were inclinded to acquit almost from the beginning of deliberations, and those members overwhlemed the three or four dissidents who briefly held out for at least one guilty verdict against one of the defendants, Lawrence Powell.

The holdout of the minority resulted in a hung jury on this one count, meaning that Powell could eventually be retried for it.

"It's like they wanted to see what they wanted to see," said one of the minority, Virginia B. Loya, in an interview with The Associated Press. "They already had their minds made up."

Ms. Loya, a hospital housekeeper in Ventura, said that she fasted, wept and prayed alone in her room at the sequestered jury's hotel during the deliberations, hoping to bring a couple more jurors to her point of view. She said some of those arguing for acquittal mocked her when she asked to see the videotape again.

DEATHS

Bessie Jones

Services for Bessie Jones have been set for 3 p.m. today at Mount Calvary Baptist Church. Burial will be in Austin Monday.

Ms. Jones died Thursday.

She was born to Pearl and Walter Johnson May 12, 1917, in Giddings. The former Bessie Thompson married E.L. Jones in 1934 in Giddings. Jones preceded his wife in death. Ms. Jones, a longtime Midlander, was retired from Snowhite Laundry & Dry Cleaners where she worked for 40 years. She was a member of Mt. Calvary Baptist Church.

Survivors include her sisters, Pearlie Louis of Sacramento, Calif., and Mary Jerrels of Austin; her son, Willie Louis Hunter of Copper's Cove; and a host of grandchildren, great grandchildren, nephews and nieces.

Joe Mojica

LAMESA — Mass for Joe Mojica, 61, of Lamesa will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the St. Margaret Mary Catholic Church with Father Jim McCartney officiating. Rosary will be said at 8 p.m. today and Sunday at the Branon Funeral Home Chapel in Lamesa.

Mojica died Friday in a Lubbock hospital following a lengthy illness.

He was born March 19, 1931, in Lockhart, and married Mary Acosta on July 6, 1949, in Lamesa.

He moved to Lamesa in 1940 from Lockhart. He had been a farmer in Dawson County for 45 years. He was a Catholic.

Survivors include his wife; six sons, Joe Louis Mojica of Wolfforth, Joe Mojica, Jr., of San Antonio, Joe Allen Mojica and Billy Joe Mojica, both of Lamesa, Michael Joe Mojica of Dumas and Daniel Joe Mojica of Lubbock; five daughters, Mary Jo McGrew of Levelland, Betty Jo Mojica of Carlsbad, N.M., Ann Mojica and Teresa Ann Volz, both of Midland, and Lu Ann Mojica of Lamesa; his parents, Wenselado Mojica of Lamesa and Lupe Mojica of Lamesa; three brothers, Julian Mojica of Gonzales, Demetrio Mojica of Denver City and Benjamin Mojica of Houston; and 13 grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Tony Baltazar, Louis Chapa, Ramon Vargas, Ramon Garza, Martin Garza and Manuel Ahuayo.

Midland Masons honor two LHS seniors

Staff report

Lee High School seniors Kristie Williams and Howard Griffin won the Midland Masonic Lodge No. 623 annual Mirabeau B. Lamar Awards Friday at the lodge, 1600 W. Wall St. The ceremony recognizes students for academic and citizenship achievement.

Williams

Griffin

Lamar was the second president of the Republic of Texas and was known as "the father of education in Texas" for his work in bringing public schooling to the state.

Masons trace their commitment to education to the early days of public schooling when the downstairs areas of two-story lodges were used for schools and in many instances local lodges paid teachers' salaries and furnished books.

Yugoslav army removes defense minister, 40 officers

Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Forty top Yugoslav army officers, including the acting defense minister, were ousted Friday in an apparent effort to purge Serb-led federal forces of old-style Communists.

It was not immediately clear whether the shake-up, reported by Tanjug news agency, will diminish military support of ethnic Serbs in the breakaway republic of Bosnia.

Some of the heaviest fighting of the 2½-month-old civil war raged Friday in Sarajevo, the capital, and elsewhere in Bosnia. At least 500 people have been killed since Muslims and ethnic Croats declared independence in February.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler was asked at a news conference if she knew "of an alleged secret deal between Croatia and Serbia to carve up Bosnia."

She replied that "leaders of Bosnian Serbs and Bosnian Croatian political parties" met Thursday and "announced a cease-fire and agreement on the outlines of Serb and Croat regions within Bosnia-Herzegovina." Bosnian Muslims comprise 44 percent of Bosnia's population, but were not represented, she said.

"The United States view is that no agreement is possible at the expense of the Muslims in Bosnia or the legitimate, democratically elected government." Croat and Serb representatives from Bosnia met this week in Graz, Austria, but there was no confirmation from officials in the republic that a formal agreement was reached. The continued fighting Friday suggested any pact that may have been agreed on was ineffective.

Friday's military shake-up — apparently orchestrated by Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic — came as the Serb-led federal army said it would pull some soldiers from Bosnia. The withdrawal will include troops with homes in Serbia and its ally Montenegro, which form the new, smaller Yugoslavia.

This could leave up to 80,000 troops who could continue to fight alongside other ethnic Serbs.

The action also follows increasing signs of a split in the army over its performance in Slovenia, Croatia and Bosnia — all of which have fought secessionist wars against the Serb-led army.

Some junior army officers say the federal military should have been tougher against the former Yugoslav republics.

Milosevic apparently wants to distance Belgrade from Serbian offensives in Bosnia to avoid sanctions from the West, which has condemned the army's actions.

But the new Yugoslav defense minister, Gen. Zivota Panic, is considered to hold the same hard-line policies as his predecessor, Gen. Blagoje Adzic.

Others ousted besides Adzic were Serbian Defense Minister Gen. Marko Negovanovic, the army's Bosnian commander Gen. Milutin Kukanjac, and Gen. Andrija Raseta, who commanded forces in Zagreb during fighting in Croatia last year, Tanjug said.

No replacements were immediately announced.

The move was apparently intended to streamline the armed forces by purging Communist-trained officers. But remaining on duty were prominent hard-liners Gen. Momcilo Perisic, Gen. Momir Talic and Gen. Ratko Mladic.

Perisic, in charge of the army in Mostar, has repeatedly bombed that southwestern Bosnian town. Talic and Mladic have criticized the army's decision to relinquish command of its forces in Bosnia.

Bosnia's President Alija Izetbegovic, a Muslim, told Sarajevo TV he believed the army would continue to support the ethnic Serb fighters.

Milosevic is widely blamed for encouraging the fight by ethnic Serbs, who oppose independence for Bosnia. On Thursday, after meeting with U.N. envoy Marrack Goulding, Milosevic called for a cease-fire in Bosnia.

In Sarajevo, Serb and Muslim street battles and artillery fire resumed Friday after fierce nighttime clashes that killed at least two people.

Thailand protesters march on palace

Associated Press

BANGKOK, Thailand — Thailand's prime minister on Friday renewed his refusal to quit, defying tens of thousands of flag-waving demonstrators marching toward the royal palace and the Parliament.

Carrying Thai flags and portraits of their king and queen, the protesters marched until they were blocked by baton-wielding police and soldiers manning barricades of barbed wire and fire trucks a half-mile south of the palace and parliament. No violence was reported.

The march capped five days of rallies that were Thailand's biggest in two decades. The marchers were led by pro-democracy party leader Chamlong Srimuang, who has been on a five-day hunger strike to demand Prime Minister Suchinda Kraprayoon's ouster.

"If you want to kill the people, you kill me, the first person!" Chamlong told police at the barricades. A strict Buddhist, Chamlong is immensely popular in Thailand and is considered to have great integrity. If he were hurt or killed, it could trigger upheaval.

The protesters want the prime minister to be chosen from the ranks of elected lawmakers. Suchinda, a former army chief who led a 1991 coup that ousted the elected government, does not hold a parliamentary seat.

"We really want our representatives to come from the people. If we don't do it this time, democracy in Thailand will be ruined forever," said Siriwan Santisakultarm, 35, one of the demonstrators.

The demonstrators were also upset that Suchinda had reneged on a promise not to accept the prime ministership.

No clashes with security forces were reported, but many marchers stayed at the barricades into the early morning hours Saturday, sitting down in the darkness or climbing atop cars.

A battalion commander, Lt. Col. Pichit Kultonta, said: "We will not attack. We have no bullets."

Suchinda had hinted that force could be used if the protesters provoked the military. "The situation seems to be getting serious and escalating enough to cause a riot," he said.

The march began an hour after Suchinda went on national television and vowed he would not step aside unless lawmakers forced him to do so.

Since the pro-military coalition that appointed Suchinda has a parliamentary majority, a vote to oust him is considered unlikely unless there are substantial defections to the opposition. The coalition reaffirmed its support for the prime minister earlier Friday.

The demonstrators, who had been rallying all day in a public field west of the police barricades, tried to return to the area in front of Parliament, where they had held earlier protests. They left the field after authorities said they needed to prepare it for a royal ceremony.

The government made a conciliatory gesture earlier Friday, when the ruling coalition called for a meeting with opposition parties Monday to discuss constitutional amendments.

These would require that the prime minister be an elected member of Parliament and would curtail the power of the military-appointed Senate.

But demonstrators — who include a broad cross-section of students, professionals, workers and some of the country's best-known social and community leaders — are pressing their demand for Suchinda's resignation.

Greece drops wiretap charges

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The government moved Friday to drop wiretapping charges against former Premier Andreas Papandreou, saying the action would help maintain national unity.

Thirty conservative government members, including Premier Constantine Mitsotakis, signed a proposal to drop the charges. It is to be debated in Parliament next Friday.

The proposal is almost certain to be adopted because it needs only a simple majority in the 300-seat chamber, where the ruling New Democracy party has 152 seats. Papandreou's socialist PASOK party has said its 121 deputies will abstain.

Tajikistan's president issues national appeal for peace

By Larry Ryckman
Associated Press writer

MOSCOW — Tajikistan's embattled President Rakhman Nabiyev issued a national appeal Friday for an end to the bloodshed in his Central Asian nation, where Muslim opposition groups have taken control of the capital.

In other unrest in former Soviet republics, fierce fighting persisted in an enclave of Azerbaijan despite the signing early Friday of an Iranian-brokered agreement between Azerbaijan and Armenia.

The agreement seeks to end the dispute between the two countries over Nagorno-Karabakh, the predominantly ethnic Armenian enclave within Azerbaijan. More than 1,500 people have died in the 4-year-old conflict.

The fighting focused on the town of Shusha, the last Azerbaijani stronghold inside Nagorno-Karabakh. Heavy casualties were reported on both sides.

Stepanakert, the regional capital of Nagorno-Karabakh, also was bombed by an Azerbaijani fighter-bomber, killing or wounding an undetermined number of people, ITAR-Tass reported.

Nabiyev, meanwhile, expressed sorrow over the violence in his nation.

"All my life I have been a consistent opponent of any violence. To my deepest regret, blood was spilled," Nabiyev said in a nationally televised address.

Nabiyev's whereabouts remained unknown, but it appeared he had not left Tajikistan.

After the appeal, a large crowd of opposition supporters in Dushanbe, the capital, converged on the buildings of the former KGB and the Interior Ministry, where many believed Nabiyev was in hiding, the Interfax news agency reported. They were stopped by government troops, who fired shots in the air.

Nabiyev, Tajikistan's former Communist Party leader, has been locked in a power struggle with Muslim opposition groups since his installation as president following the August 1991 Soviet coup.

The opposition has demanded greater religious and political freedom in the nation of 5.1 million people, bordering China and Afghanistan. Although the opposition was in control of Dushanbe, the situation outside the Tajik capital was unclear.

Thursday, Nabiyev lifted a three-day state of emergency that had banned rallies and suspended political parties, and agreed to share power with his opponents.

Thursday's concessions initially appeared to be a compromise designed to let Nabiyev retain power and avoid further bloodshed.

However, momentum was with the opposition, who Thursday seized the Supreme Soviet and radio center, the last key buildings in Dushanbe controlled by presidential forces. Tuesday they captured the presidential palace.

Opposition leaders continued to negotiate with Nabiyev on forming a new government, said Abdullayev Rakhmatullo, a spokesman for the opposition Tajikistan Democratic Party.

But Ayneddin Sadykov, a party activist, said, "We can't say that the victory is total and final. The struggle is continuing. We have beheaded the dragon, but his poisonous tail and claws are still here. We aim to stop the bloodshed, restore stability and create conditions for normal living and work."

Stores reopened in Dushanbe Friday and public transportation was running, commonwealth television reported.

Conservatives expand control

LONDON (AP) — Conservatives on Friday made their strongest showing in local elections in 15 years, wresting city and town halls across the country from the battered Labor Party.

The Conservatives, capitalizing on a fourth-straight national election victory a month ago, increased their vote in the northern heartlands, traditionally Labor strongholds.

Millions of disillusioned Labor voters stayed home for Thursday's vote.

"I am delighted ... particularly with the increase in votes in inner cities and Scotland," said Prime Minister John Major.

Thursday's ballot results reversed a pattern of Labor generally outstripping the governing party in local elections through the past 13 years of Conservative government.

Labor, ousted in 16 local authorities including Edinburgh, the Scottish capital, expressed disappointment.

"But we're by no means disheartened because across Britain many Labor authorities and Labor councilors will be there to defend their communities," said party campaign manager Jack Cunningham.

In Scotland, which is predominantly Labor, the Conservatives repeated their national election performance of modest gains.

The Scottish National Party failed to make significant headway on its platform of seeking a referendum on independence or some form of autonomy from London.

LA chief admits police mistakes in initial riot response

AP Laserphoto

By Laura Myers
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police Chief Daryl Gates admitted Friday that his force made mistakes in responding to initial outbreaks of rioting last week but insisted errors occurred only in one area and not citywide.

Residents and civic leaders worried about a return to violence as federal troops retreat. Gang members said at a news conference they were joining forces, but only to help rebuild the community.

Sheriff Sherman Block asked the National Guard to stay at least through the weekend, and White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater gave assurances that federal troops would remain on standby, if not on the streets.

"We want to make it clear to the people that they're not moving out," Fitzwater said in Washington.

Fifty-three people died in the nation's bloodiest civil unrest this century, 2,383 were injured and more than 15,000 were arrested. Looting and arson, which resulted in thousands of fires, contributed to an estimated $785 million in damages.

Gates conceded he personally made a mistake in attending a political fund-raiser at the time rioting began April 29.

He said other mistakes included waiting too long to bring in more forces and retreating from an intersection where rioters pulled bystanders from cars and beat them. But he placed most of the blame for those errors on Lt. Mike Moulin, who commanded officers in the South Central area.

Some members of the Simi Valley jury . . . have received threatening telephone calls, and some have gone into hiding.

Gates, who has said he'll retire next month, told a news conference that on-scene officers "chose not to use deadly force and backed away."

"Had we to do it over again, we would have used . . . deadly weapons to get into that," Gates said.

The wave of death and destruction began April 29, just over two hours after a jury acquitted four white police officers in the 1991 videotaped beating of black motorist Rodney King. The violence didn't stop until three days later after National Guard and federal troops were called in to help police.

The death toll was reduced by one Friday. Police and relatives said the death of one man was not related to the riot. However, he was still carried as a riot fatality on the coroner's list.

Some members of the Simi Valley jury that acquitted the four officers have received threatening telephone calls, and some have gone into hiding, according to police investigators. No blacks sat on the panel.

"Regardless of anyone's opinion of the verdict, threatening jurors is an attack on the core of the criminal justice system," said Simi Valley police Chief Paul Miller.

The Small Business Administration opened seven centers Friday to help businesses apply for $300 million to $400 million in loans available to business and home owners.

Only 500 federal troops and National Guardsmen patrolled streets, a small outward show of force, said Guard spokesman Mike Hedlund. But about 13,500 Army soldiers, Marines and Guardsmen, called up April 30, remained in the area.

Members of the Bloods and Crips street gangs joined forces this week, but denied they planned to target police.

"It doesn't bother me that the National Guard and the LAPD joined forces," a man who identified himself as Lil Monster of the Crips said at a news conference. "Why is it every time black folks get together it's a problem?"

LOS ANGELES — President Bush wound up two emotional days in riot-ravaged Los Angeles Friday promising to work harder in Washington to enact a "common-sense agenda" of conservative proposals to help urban America.

"Things aren't right in too many cities across our country," he told community leaders and young people. "We must not return to the status quo. We must try something new."

The president seemed moved by what he had seen in one of his rare visits to an impoverished area. He seemed stunned by the devastation.

During his two days in Los Angeles, he denounced the "wanton lawlessness" of the rioters, praised the heroism of firemen and policemen and won a standing ovation with criticism of the news media for focusing on negative news in covering race relations.

Bush began Friday with an unscheduled hospital bedside visit to firefighter Scott Miller, who was driving his hook-and-ladder truck to a blaze when a car pulled alongside and opened fire on April 29, the day the arson and looting began.

Miller, 33, a bullet still lodged in his throat, was too weak to respond to the president.

Bush also addressed community leaders and several hundred of the uniformed troops he had sent here to quell the worst civic violence of the century.

"The events of the past 10 days have been packed with emotion — raw and intense," Bush told the servicemen and law enforcement officers. "We've seen the worst that human beings can possibly do and we've seen the best."

Before an audience of community leaders and young people at the Challengers Boys and Girls Club of South Central Los Angeles, Bush pledged to work harder on behalf of urban programs he had previously embraced.

They include tax breaks and other incentives for businesses to locate in inner cities and allowing public housing tenants to purchase their units at below-market prices and with low interest rates.

He also called for "a radical change" in welfare programs to abandon a system that he said strips away "dignity and personal responsibility," passage of a plan to allow parents to choose the schools their children attend, and revamping the legal system so Americans have less reason to go to court and sue one another.

Bush offered no major new federal initiatives, but announced a $19 million grant to Los Angeles to fight crime in riot-torn areas through enhanced law enforcement against gang members.

Riots cut Los Angeles tourism

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — State tourism officials are sounding more upbeat about the effects of the recent Los Angeles riots, although a preliminary study released at a conference continued to offer high estimates of lost revenues.

The Los Angeles area alone could suffer $1 billion to $2 billion in revenue losses during the next 12 months, according to a study commissioned by the Los Angeles Convention and Visitors Bureau. The study was prepared by consulting firm Pannell Kerr Foster.

In 1991, tourists spent $6.6 billion in Los Angeles County.

George Kirkland, president and chief executive of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, said Friday that the loss figure is based on projecting the post-riot hotel revenue losses and using standard multipliers. But he added that "it was admittedly a very broad range."

Amid the bad news, however, was a report by California Office of Tourism Director John Poimiroo showing that with the exception of Japan, tourism contacts in world markets report little change in travel bookings.

In addition, both foreign and domestic media reports are showing favorable images of Los Angeles citizens working to rebuild areas affected by the riot, said Shelby Allen, the Visitors Bureau's vice president of marketing.

"From the international wire services, we see that the recovery message is out there," Allen said.

Jobless rate dips for first time in 9 months

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate fell in April for the first time in nine months, dipping to 7.2 percent as companies added 126,000 new jobs, the government reported Friday.

Analysts welcomed the unexpected drop in the jobless rate as a sign that unemployment may finally be peaking, but they cautioned that further improvements are likely to be slow and irregular.

"After over three years of depressed growth and recession and every kind of bad economic weather you could think of, we are finally beginning to move," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co. "But it is at a crawl. This will be a soft and slow struggle upward."

The Bush administration, which has seen a weak economy undermine the president's approval ratings, took heart from the upturn in the labor market.

Labor Secretary Lynn Martin said that since January businesses have added more than 270,000 jobs, with recent gains in retail sales, housing construction and factory orders continuing "to point the economy in the right direction."

However, Democrats, who are trying to make the weak economy a presidential campaign issue, noted that if this recovery were typical of past upturns, the economy would be adding 300,000 jobs a month, not the 98,000 it has been averaging this year.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md. and chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, said that at the current rate of job growth it will take the economy six years to gain back all the jobs lost in the recession, compared to one year for every other recession since 1945.

"This is the most anemic labor market situation we have experienced in the postwar period," he said.

The difference this time around is that the economy, still weighed down from the debt buildup and other problems from the 1980s, is expected to grow at a weak annual rate of about 2 percent this year.

The Business Council, composed of executives from 100 of America's largest corporations, issued an economic outlook forecasting that the unemployment rate will remain above 7 percent for the rest of the year because of the sluggish economy.

"Employment growth is going to be slower than all of us would like," said H. Brewster Atwater Jr., chairman of General Mills.

The unemployment rate hit a 6½-year high of 7.3 percent in February and March. Economists had expressed concerns that unless businesses started hiring workers soon, the fragile economic rebound that began in January could stall out, just as a similar recovery did last year.

The small April decline marked the first improvement since a similar 0.1 percentage-point drop in July. The 126,000 jump in payroll employment was the biggest increase in that category since last May.

For April, the hiring strength came from a 135,000-job surge at department stores, hospitals and other service industries. It marked the biggest increase in service jobs in almost two years.

Those gains offset a weakness in manufacturing, which posted a tiny increase of 8,000 jobs, and in construction, which lost 11,000 jobs as overbuilding for offices and apartments continued to depress the industry despite a pickup in single-family home activity.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan has said that he viewed a 2 percent economic growth rate as inadequate because it would not allow the economy to absorb new workers coming into the labor market while at the same time reducing the unemployment level.

Because of those comments, many analysts are looking for the Fed to move soon to cut interest rates further. The Fed last cut rates on April 9, when it reduced its target for the federal funds rate, the interest that banks charge each other, from 4 percent to 3.75 percent.

Another Fed rate cut would boost the economy by lowering a variety of consumer and business interest rates. The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported Friday that interest on fixed-rate mortgages averaged 8.75 percent this week. That was down from 8.84 percent last week.

New shuttle flies well in pursuit of satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Brand new space shuttle Endeavour put a half-million miles on the odometer Friday in its first day's pursuit of a $157 million satellite that's doomed without astronaut help.

The two spacecraft, each hurtling toward a meeting on Sunday, closed the gap to 5,000 miles.

Engineers for the broadcasting satellite's owners fired its thrusters by remote control for the third time, dropping the craft to a rendezvous altitude of 226 miles.

"Months and months and months of planning and rehearsals and debates are nearing completion," said Bill English, a mission commentator for Intelsat, which owns the satellite. "There are smiles on the faces of each of the team leaders."

Mission Control beamed up the song "God Bless the U.S.A.," and shuttle commander Daniel Brandenstein responded: "Every one of us up here is proud to be an American and, I think, from Challenger to Endeavour every American should be proud of America's space program."

Endeavour is the replacement for the destroyed Challenger.

Others were impressed. During a surprise visit to Mission Control in Houston, the president of Ukraine, Leonid Kravchuk, wished the seven astronauts good luck.

"We're looking very much forward to completion of this mission," Brandenstein told Kravchuk. "Hopefully, at the end there will be a communications satellite available to the world to better help communications around our globe."

Don't be the last to find out what's happening.

Tyson guilty again

PLAINFIELD, Ind. (AP) — Mike Tyson was found guilty Friday of threatening a guard and disorderly conduct following a hearing at the Indiana Youth Center.

As a result, the former heavyweight champion will lose good-credit time, setting back his earliest release date 15 days, to April 9, 1995.

The hearing had been scheduled for May 13, but was moved up after Tyson waived his right to 24-hour notice of the disciplinary hearing.

Joyner stopped

LOS ANGELES — Olympic gold medalist Al Joyner was pulled over and handcuffed twice Friday by police investigating stolen vehicle and hit-and-run incidents, then freed after officers realized they had the wrong man.

Joyner, a 1984 triple jump gold medalist and husband of sprinter Florence Griffith Joyner, said the stops when police had their guns drawn left him frightened and angry.

"I kept asking them, 'What did I do? What did I do?'" said the 32-year-old Joyner, who feared being shot.

"I didn't make any sudden moves because I remember Rodney King. Police consider any sudden moves hostile."

King, a black motorist, was beaten by officers following a traffic stop in suburban Lake View Terrace in March 1991.

Wichita pitching strikes again

Pam Hults/Reporter-Telegram

With Wichita's Chris Jelic (16) trying to make the tag, Midland's Tony Brown (21) comes in safely at third base after Rod Correia hit a flyball out to centerfield in the first inning.

■ Just 24 hours after Midland was no-hit for six innings, Wichita throws another tough-to-hit starter at Angel batters in the form of Tim Worrell.

By Bill Price
Staff writer

Tim Worrell's older brother Todd is a pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Friday night at Angels Stadium, though, it was the younger Worrell who looked like a big leaguer, as the Wichita starter tossed seven shutout innings to pick up the win in a 6-0 victory over Midland.

The decision caused the cellar-dwelling Angels to lose even more ground to the third-place Wranglers, as Midland's record fell to 10-18 while Wichita improved to 13-15 in the Texas League's West Division.

Though Worrell (3-2) displayed a mastery of the strike zone (seven strikeouts and just one walk), he said he has had better outings.

"I was hitting spots, but I didn't throw a very decent slider until the fifth inning," the 24-year-old righthander said.

"They're an aggressive team swinging the bat, and I got away with some fastballs and got a lot of flyball outs. I'm not usually a fly ball pitcher."

His success against the Angels pushed his scoreless inning streak to 17 and dropped his ERA to 2.37. And despite the double he gave up to Midland rightfielder Tony Brown in the Angels' first at-bat, it was one of the few times Wichita manager Bruce Bochy had reason to feel concern about his pitcher.

Brown hit a sharp ground ball down the first base line that was ruled fair to take second and earn one of three hits off Worrell.

"I thought it was foul, but I was told it was a fair ball. I tried to come inside on him," Worrell said.

MHS football players use spring to learn new coach's system

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

If there is such a thing as a "honeymoon period" for a new head football coach, it was clearly evident earlier this week that the period has passed for new Midland High field boss Ronnie Reeger.

Reeger was seen hauling practice dummies to the practice field prior to a spring training workout. The work has begun.

Reeger, his new coaching staff and the Bulldogs have completed Week 1 of spring training, and there is some excitement in the air despite the fact that this three-week training session is following a season that produced nine consecutive losses. It has been a time to "Regroup and Reload", so to speak.

Many of the Bulldogs seem to be thriving in the new atmosphere of new coaches, new systems and new ways of doing things in general.

"I really like the coaches and the things we are doing," said returing starting center Phillip Warlick. "There seems to be a new attitude that I haven't seen around here in quite a while."

Returning starting defensive back Corey Emerson also says there is a difference, but it is more a matter of learning a new system and position.

"The big difference for me is learning all the new plays," Emerson said. "I just played in the secondary last year, but they have me at fullback this spring also. There is just a lot of learning to do, but I've really enjoyed it all so far."

Offensive lineman Brian Booker, who missed most of last season with a leg injury, is just glad to be back on the field.

"The leg isn't bothering me at all. That's all gone and behind me," Booker said. "I've really enjoyed the spring workouts and I like the enthusiasm I've seen so far."

Reeger isn't ready to put his Bulldogs on the field with an opponent after one week of workouts, but he does say his early teaching process of the new Wing-T offensive attack and defensive scheme are "on schedule."

"We really think we're off to a good beginning with the kids," Reeger says. "They have been really receptive to learning the offense and defense we have. We've concentrated on being more aggressive, especially on defense, and it's coming around some. Our best workout was Thursday and we've seen some improvement with most every workout.

"Naturally, I'd like to be further along than we are, but I do feel like we are on schedule. The defense is about where we though it would be because we've stayed pretty much with a base situation. That has helped the offense since we aren't

Boston up one in East series

Associated Press

BOSTON — The Cleveland Cavaliers shot well for three quarters. The Boston Celtics shot well with the game on the line.

The Celtics, who made 15 of 21 shots in the fourth quarter, rallied behind the 36 points of Reggie Lewis to beat Cleveland 110-107 Friday night for a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 Eastern Conference semifinals and their 20th win in 22 games.

The last 14 of those games -- six in the playoffs — have been without Larry Bird, who is out with an ailing back, and the Celtics have won all but one. Their winning streak at Boston Garden is now 20 games.

Lewis scored 13 points in the final quarter, nine in the decisive 15-6 run over a 3½-minute span that put Boston ahead to stay.

MC inks top Texas golfers

Staff report

Five of the top high school golfers in Texas have signed with Midland College.

MC golf coach/athletic director Delnor Poss announced Friday that he had signed Brian Baize of Olton, Jason Brooks of Georgetown, Judd Burkett of Amarillo High, Greg Johnson of Amarillo Tascosa and Shawn Savage of Plainview to letters of intent to compete for the Chaparrals in 1992-93.

"These are young men who have proved they can play golf at the highest level. They know the golfing conditions in the Southwest and they are competitors," Poss said.

Baize was an All-South Plains selection in football and All-District in basketball. He was the Class 2A regional medalist in 1992 with rounds of 72-69 at Abilene. He has competed in the state high school golf tournament the past two years.

Brooks was a Class 4 regional medalist the past two years. He finished eighth in

Reds, Cubs wear out pitchers

NL Roundup

CHICAGO — The Reds and Cubs got a chance to test their pitchers on Friday — 14 of them.

Freddie Benavides' pinch two-run double keyed a four-run 12th inning as Cincinnati rallied from a five-run deficit to beat Chicago 10-7.

After starter Shawn Boskie, the Cubs used Ken Patterson, Bob Scanlan, Paul Assenmacher, Jeff Robinson, Chuck McElroy and Dave Smith.

"It was just one of those games where it wasn't meant to be," Cubs manager Jim Lefebvre said. "It was one of those games that will drive you nuts. That game was well under control. It slipped away quickly. The bullpen has been doing the job. Today, it slipped a little bit ... a lot."

Glenn Braggs led off the 12th with a single, his third straight hit. After Bip Roberts forced Braggs at second and Barry Larkin walked, Benavides lined a double off McElroy (2-1) to the left-center field wall.

"I was pumped up. I was emotional," Benavides said. "It was a big game to come from behind and win. It was a good win. I was just looking to put the ball in play, to hit it hard."

Paul O'Neill then singled off Smith to score Benavides, and Bill Doran followed with a triple.

Norm Charlton (1-0) escaped a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the 11th inning when he got Doug Strange to line out and McElroy to fly out. Rob Dibble got the last three outs, allowing Doug Dascenzo's RBI single.

Braves 2, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS — Charlie Leibrandt scattered five hits in eight-plus innings and Terry Pendleton homered as the Atlanta Braves beat the St. Louis Cardinals.

Despite the loss, Cardinals starter Bob Tewksbury ran his string of innings without a walk to 34 before walking Greg Olson on a 3-2 pitch to start the seventh. Tewksbury (3-1) has walked only one other batter this season, Montreal's Larry Walker on April 15.

Leibrandt (3-2) kept the Cardinals guessing with off-speed pitches, striking out four and walking one.

Ozzie Smith led off the ninth with a triple and scored on Felix Jose's single for the only run off Leibrandt. Marvin Freeman got the last three outs for his first save this season.

Pendleton, the former Cardinal, hit his third home run over the center-field wall with one out in the first. He also doubled off the top of the center-field wall in the third and is 6 for 12 in his career against Tewksbury.

Pirates 6, Astros 3

PITTSBURGH — Orlando Merced's three-run pinch double broke an eighth-inning tie, and the Pittsburgh Pirates withstood Houston pitcher Butch Henry's three-run inside-the-park homer to beat the Astros.

The Pirates trailed 3-2 before tying it in the seventh on Andy Van Slyke's sacrifice fly off Al Osuna, the fourth Astros pitcher.

Henry homered in the top of the second off Pirates ace Doug Drabek but left after a 2-hour, 5-minute rain delay in the bottom of the third.

Osuna immediately got into trouble in the eighth, walking Barry Bonds. Steve Buechele sacrificed Bonds to second and Don Slaught was intentionally walked. Jose Lind loaded the bases with a line-drive single to right field.

Osuna struck out Cecil Espy, who had been 7 for 8 as a pinch-hitter, for the second out. But after Doug Jones, the Astros' closer, replaced Osuna, Merced hit for Jeff King and hit a drive over center fielder Steve Finley's head to clear the bases.

Osuna, who was 3-0 with an 0.71 ERA before allowing four runs in 1 2-3 innings, took his first loss. Stan Belinda (1-0) worked the final two innings for the victory.

Giants 6, Expos 3

MONTREAL — Will Clark's two-run homer highlighted a five-run seventh inning as San Francisco Giants beat the Montreal Expos.

Marquis Grissom's homer and Gary Carter's two-run shot had given Expos starter Mark Gardner a 3-0 lead.

But Royce Clayton led off the seventh with his first major league home run and Kirt Manwaring followed with a walk, bringing on reliever Jeff Fassero.

Padres 6, Phillies 5

PHILADELPHIA — Tony Gwynn's two-run homer in the seventh inning helped San Diego beat the Philadelphia Phillies, snapping the Padres' four-game losing streak.

With two out in the seventh, Tony Fernandez singled and Gwynn hit a 1-1 pitch from reliever Curt Schilling (2-2) over the right-field wall to give the Padres a 5-4 lead. It was Gwynn's first homer of the season.

Gary Sheffield hit a three-run homer for San Diego in the third inning, his fourth, and Fred McGriff hit his ninth home run in the eighth.

The Phillies moved within one run on Mariano Duncan's RBI single off Randy Myers in the eighth. Myers pitched two innings for his seventh save.

Texas pitching gets the best of Milwaukee

AL Roundup

ARLINGTON — The Texas Rangers snapped a five-game home losing streak behind the pitching of Kevin Brown, Kenny Rogers and Jeff Russell in a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Brown improved to 5-2, allowing eight hits, striking out six and walking two in seven innings. Rogers pitched 1 1-3 innings, then Russell recorded the final two outs for his ninth save.

The victory halted a skid that saw the Rangers with a 3-9 record at Arlington Stadium, the worst home mark in the majors. It also matched the Rangers' poorest home start in team history.

The defeat extended Milwaukee's losing streak to six, its longest since last July 22-27.

The Rangers went ahead in the seventh off Bill Wegman (2-3) when Dean Palmer led off with a double and was safe at third as Wegman threw too late on Ivan Rodriguez's bunt. Palmer scored when pinch hitter Jack Daugherty grounded out to second.

Texas took a 2-0 lead on leadoff homers by Brian Downing in the first and Kevin Reimer in the second.

Downing's homer into the left-field stands was his 25th career home run leading off the first.

The Brewers broke through against Brown in the seventh to tie the game. Seitzer led off with a single and, when Brown missed a throw from shortstop Dickie Thon back to the mound, it allowed Seitzer to advance to second on the error. Seitzer scored on Scott Fletcher's single. With two outs, Pat Listach's single sent Fletcher to second and Robin Yount tied the game with an RBI single.

Brown escaped a bases-loaded, one-out situation in the first, striking out Dante Bichette and Franklin Stubbs.

Brown also worked out of trouble in the third. Paul Molitor doubled leading off, went to third on a fly ball, but was stranded when Brown struck out Greg Vaughn.

Molitor had hits in his first three at-bats. That meant he had hit safely in seven consecutive at bats and reached base 10 straight times. But Brown struck him out in the seventh.

Twins 7, Indians 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Kirby Puckett and Greg Gagne had four hits each Friday night, helping the Minnesota Twins' Scott Erickson to his first home victory.

The Twins snapped their three-game slide and Cleveland's three-game winning streak, breaking a fifth-inning tie on Chili Davis' sacrifice fly, followed by Gene Larkin's two-run homer.

With the score 3-3 in the top of the fifth, the Indians had runners on second and third with none out. But they couldn't score against Erickson (2-3). Carlos Baerga and Albert Belle struck out and Mark Whiten grounded out.

In the bottom of the inning, Charles Nagy (3-2) allowed singles by Puckett and Kent Hrbek before Davis drove the ball to right field for only his sixth RBI of 1992. Davis led all designated hitters with 93 RBIs a year ago.

Three pitches later, Larkin homered to center. He has four homers in 77 at-bats after getting just two in 255 at-bats last season.

Erickson hadn't won at the Metrodome since Oct. 5, his 20th victory of 1991, and entered Friday with a 7.84 home ERA this season. He improved his career record against Cleveland to 4-0 despite allowing 11 hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Angels 4, Blue Jays 1

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Rene Gonzales went 3 for 3 with a tie-breaking two-run homer against his former teammates, and Hubie Brooks homered as the California Angels beat Toronto, ending the Blue Jays' five-game winning streak.

Gonzales, who two pitches earlier in the seventh inning missed an opposite-field homer by a few feet, drove a 1-2 delivery from Dave Stieb (1-3) to left field for his fourth of the year. The homer gave Gonzales seven hits in nine at-bats while as he fills in at second base for the injured Bobby Rose.

Gary DiSarcina followed with a double off the glove of right fielder Joe Carter, advanced on Stieb's wild pitch and scored on a sacrifice fly by Luis Polonia. The victory went to Mark Eichhorn (1-2).

Royals 2, Red Sox 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kevin Appier, sporting the American League's best ERA, needed a pair of unearned runs to squeeze Kansas City past the Boston Red Sox.

Appier (2-3) yielded seven hits, walked two, struck out eight in eight innings and lowered his ERA from 1.45 to 1.40. Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his sixth save.

Joe Hesketh (0-2) saw his ERA drop from 3.47 to 2.59 while giving the Royals only three hits, walking two and striking out five. He was victimized by infield errors in the fourth and fifth as the Royals won for the fifth time in six games and the Red Sox lost their fifth in six.

White Sox 4, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE — Hot-hitting Frank Thomas had two homers, the second with two outs in the 10th inning, as the Chicago White Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles for their sixth straight victory.

Thomas, who had three RBIs, hit a 3-2 pitch from Gregg Olson (0-2) into the right field seats to break a 3-3 tie. It was the second homer Olson has allowed this season, compared to only one last year.

Cheever sorrowful for his friend Piquet

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — "Sweet madness." That's what Eddie Cheever calls these 230 mph laps around the narrow Indianapolis Motor Speedway oval.

Depending on weather conditions, the pole position for the May 24 Indianapolis 500, which will be determined Saturday in the first of four rounds of qualifications, could be as high as 231 or 232.

The high-tech, rocket-like open-wheel cars have been hurtling around the 2.5-mile oval since practice began last Saturday at mind-boggling speeds, some averaging over 233 mph and several reaching top speeds of 240-to-242 mph at the end of the two long straightaways.

"To go 240 into the first turn, you have to dig down pretty deep into your little well to keep your foot on the throttle," said Cheever, in his third year of Indy-car racing after spending most of his career as the only American driver in Formula One.

"I know I've asked more of myself in these last three or four days than any time in my Formula One career."

Cheever is just as courageous and determined as anybody who ventures onto the Indy oval at breakneck speeds. But he also is feeling the pain of his friend Nelson Piquet, who was in a hospital bed Friday morning.

Piquet, a three-time Formula One champion and considered one of the all-time greats in motor racing, came to Indy for the first time this year at age 39 and did everything he was expected to do and more.

But the charming Brazilian had something go wrong Thursday on a seemingly routine lap around the 2.5-mile asphalt oval. The car, traveling at nearly 220 mph, crashed nearly head-on into a concrete barrier and left Piquet with broken feet and legs and months, perhaps years, of pain and rehabilitation.

His friend, Cheever, went to the hospital Thursday night to sit and wait for Nelson to come out of surgery.

Friday morning, he came back to the track and, before going back onto the track, took the time to reflect on what can happen to race drivers on a highspeed oval.

"I'd like to just dwell a moment on Piquet," Cheever said. "I was with him in the hospital last night until about 12 o'clock. There were a lot of bad feelings about (the accident) because something like what happened to him shouldn't happen in his first year of racing here. It's a terrible thing," Cheever said, tears welling in his eyes.

But crashes won't slow these competitors down. Nothing will, except perhaps hot weather or gusty winds.

Teammates Jim Crawford and Roberto Guerrero have led the way, with Crawford turning a lap of 233.433 early in the week and Guerrero hitting 232.624 on Thursday, both driving Lolas powered by Buick V6 engines.

At Indy, which is run under somewhat different rules than the rest of the 17-car IndyCar circuit the Buicks are allowed 10 extra inches of turbocharger pressure or boost. That translates to extra horsepower and an advantage, at least in qualifying.

"Everybody keeps talking about engines, but it's the chassis where we've made the gains the last couple of years," Guerrero said. "The horsepower has been about the same, but the package is better now than it's ever been."

The main competition for the King Motorsports duo is expected to come from the Andrettis, 1969 Indy winner Mario and his son and teammate Michael, who are driving Lolas powered by new Ford Cosworth XB engines.

The younger Andretti, the defending series champion, said "You know you hae to be out here working and getting this together to be quicker and quicker and then, come Saturday, you'll be praying for the right conditions after all the work you did all week. It just may come down to who gets the best draw."

Others who are likely to at least take a shot at the pole include Piquet's teammate Gary Bettenhausen, with Buick power, and Cheever and his teammate and 1990 race winner Arie Luyendyk, the only others with Ford Cosworths.

Kite grabs lead at half-way point

Associated Press

PGA

MARIETTA, Ga. — Tom Kite, trying to end a 16-month victory drought, built a two-shot lead halfway through the Atlanta Golf Classic with a 7-under-par 65 on Friday.

"Any time you make the golf course soft, you make it a little easier," Kite said after taking advantage of the soggy conditions to make nine birdies, the longest putt covering 15 feet.

Kite had a 9-under 135 total for two trips over the hilly, 7,018-yard Atlanta Country Club course that softened up after two days of steady, light rain.

Jay Don Blake had climbed within one shot of the lead during his afternoon round before taking a bogey-5 on the 15th, the same hole he triple bogeyed in the first round. Blake shot a 68 for 137.

Mark Carnavale, a 32-year-old tour rookie, was alone in third place at 138 with a 68. The highlight of his round was a 35-foot birdie putt on No. 17.

Seven players were tied at 139 — Russ Cochran with a 66, Greg Whisman, Steve Lamontagne, Brad Bryant and former Masters champion Larry Mize with 69s, amateur David Duval of Georgia Tech with a 71 and first-round leader Mike Standly with a 72.

The only player to top $6 million in career earnings, Kite could go over the $7 million mark by finishing first or second on Sunday, needing just under $76,000 to attain the milestone.

"I got into some bad habits and wasn't putting well last year," said Kite, who won the season-opening Tournament of Champions in January 1991.

He didn't win again last year and failed to qualify for the Masters.

"One week doesn't make a year," he said. "I was disappointed, but the way I looked at it, you can't play every tournament, so I decided to skip Augusta."

Archer may soon grow fond of course in Frisco

Associated Press

Seniors

FRISCO, Texas — George Archer doesn't enjoy Stonebriar Country Club but he didn't play like it on Friday in the first round of the 54-hole Reunion Murata Pro-Am.

Archer survived potential disaster on the 399-yard, Par 4 No. 6 hole to shoot a 6-under-par 66 over Stonebriar Country Club to take a one shot lead over Jim Dent and Don Davis.

"I don't care for this style of architecture," Archer said. "But we are playing for a $450,000 purse here so I would even play on concrete fairways."

Archer had seven birdies but was proudest of a bogey he made on No. 6. He hit his drive just inches from the water and had to remove a red hazard the stake to hit his ball.

"It was just hanging by a straw," Archer said.

He slashed the ball forward, hit a sand wedge to the green, and two-putted for bogey.

"I was very happy I made a 5," he said. "This course is very tricky and the sixth is sort of a goofy hole."

Archer is fifth on the PGA Tour Senior money list with $177,437 but hasn't won a tournament this year.

"I haven't made a lot of birdies but the birdies started clicking in today," he said.

Dent said the key to his round was a 12-foot par putt on the short but dangerous 148-yard, par-3 No. 15.

"It was the putt I needed to keep my round going," said Dent. "Maybe this will turn my year around."

Davis, who led the qualifying for the tournament with a 65, turned professional last year. He's a Houston club player with limited experience but he had seven birdies and two bogeys.

"It was a good day and I putted well," Davis said. "It felt great shooting a round like this."

Dale Douglass and Jim Colbert fashioned 4-under par 68s over the demanding 6,737-yard course.

MC: Chaparrals' chance at taking title inches closer

the Junior World Tournament in San Diego last summer.

Burkett is a member of the Amarillo High team which won the 1992 district golf championship. He is a four-year letter winner for the Sandies. The 6-2, 200-pound Burkett also was a varsity basketball player and team MVP. He plays golf lefthanded, but is righthanded in all other activities.

Midland golf enthusiasts have either seen, or read about, Johnson's golf prowess. He captured the West Texas Junior Masters at Midland last summer with rounds of 66-69 at Hogan Park. One of his most memorable matches was last February at the Ector County ISD Invitational at The Club at Mission Dorado and Odessa Country Club. Johnson and Greg DiDonna of El Paso Coronado locked up in a playoff for second place that went six holes. Johnson had to hit a southpaw stroke with a putter after his ball landed at the base of a fence, followed that with a low 40-foot chip and a five-foot putt for a scrambling par to edge DiDonna.

Savage had eyes popping last summer when he won 10 of the 13 West Texas Junior Tournament events he entered, was runner-up in two, and third in another. His scoring average for those 13 events was 70.5 strokes. He was third in the West Texas Junior Tournament of Champions and sixth in the Wilson Cup Tournament of Champions. He was named first annual Titleist Player of the Year by the Northern Texas PGA Junior Golf Foundation. In 1991 fall tournaments, Savage had a first, second, and two thirds in four events.

Midland College currently is riding a hot streak, winning 10 of the 14 tournaments it entered this season. The Chaps won both the Western Junior College Athletic Association and NJCAA Region V championships this spring. After finishing as NJCAA runners-up in 1992, the Chaps are poised for a run at the national title next month in Scottsdale, Ariz.

BULLDOGS: Depth an early problem for Midland High moving around too much on the defensive side of the ball."

(From 1B)

Overall depth is still a problem for the Bulldogs.

"If we had to start playing today, we would have four or five kids going both ways, and I'm not sure we are strong enough to do that in this district," Reeger said. "We've had to bring the kids out of the weight room a couple of weeks early in order to do some teaching. That's kind of a trade-off right now. We were concerned about their work habits coming into spring training, but that really has been a positive so far."

The spring training grind will end May 21 with the spring game at Memorial Stadium, which will be open to the public. A time has not been set for that event.

There are still miles to travel before that spring finale, but defensive back Marc Atnipp seemed to speak for a lot of the Bulldogs going through this new experience.

"We're having a lot of fun out here," Atnipp said.

NOTE: Midland Lee, which is not having spring training this year, has filled its October open date with Dallas Jesuit, a non-UIL team. The Lee-Jesuit game will be played on Saturday, Oct. 31, at 2 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Italy tries to wrest cup from U.S.

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — The America's Cup final has been awash in talk of technology, soaring expenses and whether Bill Koch can sail a boat. Whatever happened to the battle between nations?

Italy will try to take the Cup from the United States when the best-of-7 series starts Saturday. But the pre-competition chatter lacks the nationalistic tinge that has enlivened the 141-year history of the event.

Those discussions have produced no consensus on a favorite. Il Moro di Venezia and America3 (America Cubed) are similar boats which could remain competitive through a range of wind and sea conditions.

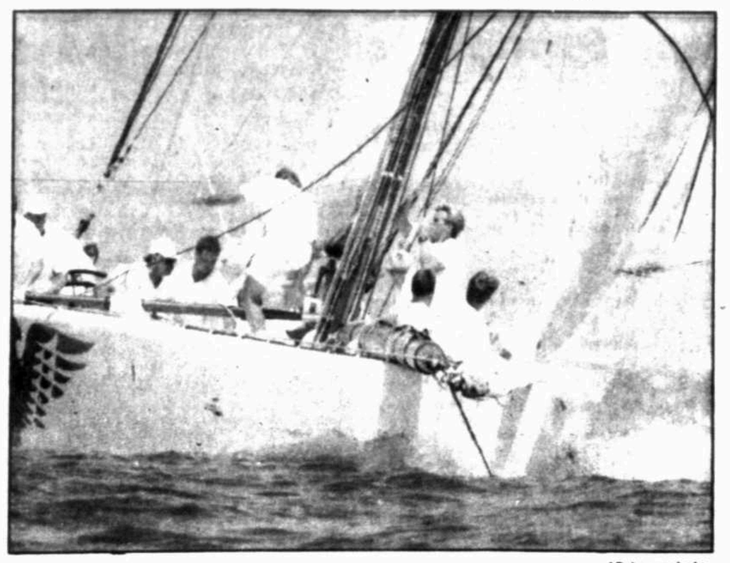
"I think we'll be able to maintain where we left off" on April 30, skipper Paul Cayard, a San Francisco native, said. That's when his Italian boat clinched the challenger finals over New Zealand.

"Our weakness is relative inexperience on match racing circuits," said Koch, the multi-millionaire president and sometimes helmsman of America3. "Our strength is we believe we have a good boat, good equipment and a good team."

Saturday's race ends a seven-day lull since America3 eliminated Stars & Stripes in the defender finals. Since then, both sides have been making changes on their boats.

America3 tactician Dave Dellenbaugh thinks he has a pretty good idea of Il Moro's changes, but said, "us sailors are always waiting to see the true evidence on the water."

There is little of the widespread excitement of 1983 when the United States lost the cup for the first time, falling to Australia. That spurred the quest, ultimately successful, to regain it in Fremantle, Australia, in 1987.



AP Laserphoto

The crew of the America3 readies for the America's Cup finals.

"It's a great day to be an American," Tom Whidden, the tactician on the winning boat, said when the U.S. boat clinched that series in four straight races.

On Friday, Whidden agreed that the patriotic motivation isn't as strong in the current match.

"I think if the U.S. loses it this time, maybe you'll find that there'll be a whole new overwhelming groundswell of support for the Americans to win it back," said Whidden, tactician on Dennis Conner's Stars & Stripes crew that lost to America3. "I just don't think there's quite the enthusiasm there was in Fremantle."

San Diego, much bigger and with a wider choice of activities than tiny Fremantle, hasn't been swept by America's Cup fever. And Americans are playing major roles in the Italian campaign.

"I'm a profesional athlete and the America's Cup is the pinnacle of my sport," Cayard said. "Three years ago when I started I didn't have Bill Koch's money nor did I have Dennis Conner's name so the reality of getting enough financial support to (compete for the Cup) was basically non-existent."

So he put together a program that has made the Italians the first European finalist in 28 years. And for the first time since 1977, Conner is not at the helm of the U.S. boat.

Just who is at the helm during the eight-leg, 20.3-mile race could play a major role in the outcome.

Dellenbaugh handles the starts, experienced Buddy Melges is the primary skipper, and Koch sometimes takes the wheel despite having sailed competitively only since 1984.

"This is a professional sport of the highest level," said German Frers, an Argentinian who designed Il Moro di Venezia. "To have somebody come and try to fit in without enough exprience or background or ability is a little strange."

"There's nothing wrong with my driving skills," said Koch, 52.

He finds plenty wrong about the spending, which he calls "obscene," by Cup syndicates. Even if he has personally bankrolled more than two-thirds of America3's $65 million effort, which is less than Italy's expenses.

"I have complained to the point of being obnoxious about these boats and the America's Cup. What more can I do?" said Koch, who explains that once he started his campaign he was reluctant to stop despite the mounting costs.

Much of his money has gone into technology that has improved America3's sails and hull and into computer analysis.

"The America3 boat seems to have a slight edge over us in speed," said Il Moro navigator Robert Hopkins, who was on Conner's design team in 1987.

"They're both big boats with a lot of sail area," Cayard said. "I think that there won't be that much (difference) in the boat speed. If there is, I don't see it necessarily changing with the conditions.

"We have a very good boat and we have a good team. We beat the odds-on favorite to win the Cup," New Zealand.

If Il Moro beats America3, giving Italy its first America's Cup, it could re-ignite the event's nationalistic fever.

ANGELS: Correia continues to impress defensively

(From 1B)

But he shook off that lead-off double, retiring the next three Midland batters to get out of the inning and went on to sit down nine straight.

The Wrangler offense went to work early in support of Worrell, posting three runs in the first two innings off Mark Holzemer (0-1).

In the first inning, Holzemer, making his first Class AA start of 1992 since being called up from Palm Springs, gave up a lead-off single to Darrell Sherman, the Wrangler centerfielder who entered the contest batting .352.

Sherman then stole second base with Vince Harris at bat, and took third with Chris Jelic at the plate. Jelic then grounded out to second base, but drove Sherman home in the process.

Tim McWilliam then followed with a solo home run to left field to give Wichita a 2-0 lead. The Wranglers padded their edge with Ray Holbert's RBI single in the second before Holzemer settled down.

Holzemer was unhittable for the next three innings, sending nine consecutive Wranglers to the bench. But then in the sixth Dwayne Hosey came through with a run-scoring base hit to make the score 4-0.

After Holzemer finished the sixth, Brett Merriman gave up a run in two innings of work as Jelic drove in his second run of the game. Holbert then batted in the final run in the ninth, as he took a Darryl Scott pitch to left field to score Pedro Lopez.

Mark Ettles and Royal Thomas each threw an inning to close the game on the mound for Wichita.

ANGELS NOTES: Midland shortstop Rod Correia improved his fielding percentage to .974 after converting four chances Friday. He has made two errors in 77 fielding tries. ... Wichita now leads the season series 5-3 and is up 2-1 in this five-game set. ... The Angels remain 7½ games out of first place as El Paso (18-11) lost to San Antonio Friday, 6-3.

1,200 compete in MSA tournament

The Midland Soccer Association recently held its first intercity tournament with approximately 1,200 youth participating over two weekends of play.

Children in the Under-6 and Under-8 divisions received participation trophies. Older divisions competed for team titles.

In the Under-10 girls division, the Hot Shots, coached by Jerry Knous, won first place honors with the Guy Nelson's Wildcats taking second and David Holland's Balsters placing third.

In the Under-10 boys, the Raiders, under David Entzminger, took top honors while the Warriors (Miguel Bustillos) and the Strikers (C.B. Lackey) took second and third respectively.

In the Under-10 Senior boys, Al Weinkauf's Blaze won first place and was followed by the Fighting Irish (Larry Walker), and the Sabers (Frank Nix).

The Bruisers of Bill Tiner won the Under-12 Girls while second went to Jim Nicholson's Steal Magnolias. The Dynamos (Steve Hill) placed third. The Under-12 boys title went to the Patriots (Drew Melton while Artie Callender's Excalibur was second. The Under-12 Juniors Gold division was won by Arsenal (Jerry Hancock) while Eclipse (David Chapa) took the Under-12 Seniors Golf crown.

In the Under-14 boys competition, the Raiders (Randy Lalk) won the title over the Untouchables (David Ham). The Under-14 Junior boys Gold title went to Steaua (Russell Jones).

The Union Jacks of Kathleen Duffy took the Under-16 girls crown while Trinity Charge (Kent Coco) won the Under-16 boys crown.

Permian to play AHS in bi-district

ODESSA — The Amarillo High-Odessa Permian bi-district baseball best two-of-three playoff series will begin at 4 p.m. Friday, May 15, at Max O'Banion Field in Lubbock.

The second, and if necessary third, game will be played at the same site, beginning at noon on Saturday, May 16.

Admission is $3 for adults and $1 for students. O'Banion Field is located at 34th Street and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock.

Correction

The Reporter-Telegram incorrectly identified a local golfer who shot his first lifetime hole-in-one Friday.

Burl Timmons hit the ace on Hogan Park's 165-yard, No. 6 hole.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

Blackhawks wrap up sweep of Red Wings

NHL Playoffs

CHICAGO — Brent Sutter's goal with 1:34 left in regulation ended a goaltending duel as the Chicago Blackhawks completed a four-game sweep of the Norris Division finals with a 1-0 victory over the Detroit Red Wings on Friday night.

Chicago goaltender Ed Belfour stopped 29 shots for his first playoff shutout.

The Blackhawks, who finished the regular season 11 points behind first-place Detroit, completed their first sweep in a best-of-7 series since beating Philadelphia in 1978. They will play the Smythe Division champion, either Edmonton or Vancouver, in the Campbell Conference final beginning May 16.

It was only the second playoff goal this spring for Sutter, who won three Stanley Cup rings with the New York Islanders before being acquired in a trade last Oct. 25.

Chicago's Michel Goulet, returning after aggravating a groin injury on March 31, had the best chance to break the tie midway through the third period when he picked up a rebound in the crease but banged a shot off the left post. The puck rolled along the goal line and Jeremy Roenick, lying on the ice, had two whacks at it but was unable to beat Belfour.

Oilers 3, Canucks 2

EDMONTON, Alberta — The Edmonton Oilers, minus most of the big names that made them a dynasty in the 1980s, still know how to win at playoff time.

Scott Mellanby's goal at 19:04 of the second period broke a tie and the Oilers beat the Vancouver Canucks to take a 3-1 lead in the Smythe Division finals.

Mellanby, scoreless in the first three games against Vancouver, fired the rebound of Dave Manson's slap shot past Kirk McLean to put the Oilers within a game of advancing to the Campbell Conference finals against Chicago.

Goaltender Bill Ranford, superb throughout the series, preserved the lead with several fine stops in the third period, including an arm save on Trevor Linden's snap shot from the slot with 3:25 remaining.

The best-of-7 series resumes Sunday night in Vancouver.

Graves suspended four games for belting Lemieux

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — New York Rangers center Adam Graves was suspended for four games Friday for slashing Pittsburgh star Mario Lemieux in Game 2 of the Patrick Division finals.

The suspension, announced in Toronto by NHL vice president Brian O'Neill after a 15-minute hearing earlier in the day in Pittsburgh, suspends Graves for the rest of the Rangers-Penguins series.

Lemieux sustained a broken metacarpal bone in his left hand and is out indefintely, leaving the defending Stanley Cup champions without the league's leading scorer. He is expected to miss the rest of the series.

The suspension would carry over into the Wales Conference finals should the Rangers win the division finals in fewer than seven games.

The 24-year-old Graves received only a two-minute minor penalty after his two-handed slash of Lemieux in the first period of the Rangers' 4-2 victory Tuesday.

As Lemieux fell to the ice in pain, Graves gave his body a shove. Rangers coach Roger Neilson bragged afterwards of what he called a club-record "104 hits" by his team on the Penguins and said, smiling, "It's great not having to worry about Lemieux."

After reviewing tapes of the incident, O'Neill decided Wednesday the infraction was severe enough to warrant a disciplinary hearing. Several hours after learning of the hearing, Graves scored the Rangers' first goal in their go-ahead 6-5 overtime victory over Pittsburgh.

"Graves did not attempt to play the puck, swinging his stick high and appearing to go directly for the hand," O'Neill said in a statement issued by the league. "Although the action by Graves is not deemed as a deliberate attempt to injure, it does fall in the category of being extremely reckless and careless."

Although deeming Graves' infraction was worthy of a four-game suspension, O'Neill said "the play did not warrant a match penalty for deliberate injury."

Penguins coach Scotty Bowman was unhappy that Graves played in Game 3 with a suspension likely. The NHL normally does not hold hearings on the day of games.

The suspension could leave the Rangers without any of their top three centers for Saturday.

Lofland takes lead in Crestar Classic

Associated Press

LPGA

CHESAPEAKE, Va. — Dana Lofland shook off a scare on her very first shot to card a 4-under-par 68 to tie Judy Dickinson for the lead in Friday's rain-shortened opening round of the Crestar-Farm Fresh Classic.

Lofland and Dickinson, both seeking their second victories of 1992, each had five birdies and a bogey on Greenbrier Country Club's soggy, 6,391-yard layout.

"We're so lucky compared to the people that won't finish today," Lofland said.

Because heavy rain all day Thursday and Friday morning delayed the start of the tournament by more than four hours, 61 of the 126 players were unable to complete their opening rounds. They will have to return at dawn Saturday and finish before the second round begins.

The leader among those stranded on the course was Ayako Okamoto at 4-under through 15 holes. At 3-under were Michelle McGann and Joann Pitcock, both through 15 holes, and Janet Anderson, through 11.

Laurel Kean was one off Lofland's lead after a 3-under 69, and a large group at 70 included Jan Stephenson, who is continuing her climb back to prominence after a 1990 mugging left her with a badly broken left ring finger.

Lofland, 24, who got her first LPGA victory at Las Vegas last month, thought she put herself in immediate trouble at Greenbrier. She pulled her drive on the 520-yard first hole, and it bounded off the fairway and toward the woods and homes that line the left side of the hole.

"Then the marshal out there starts waving like it's out of bounds," she said, "and I'm thinking, 'That's just great. Here we go.'"

Seles, Sabatini on course to collide at Italian Open

Associated Press

ROME — Top-seeds Monica Seles and Gabriela Sabatini stayed on course for another much-awaited championship match meeting with easy straight-set victories in the Italian Open on Friday.

In one of Saturday's semifinals, Sabatini will meet Mary Joe Fernandez, who mounted an impressive comeback against Anke Huber of Germany 3-6, 7-6 (7-2) 6-3 Friday night.

Seles, the world's top-ranked woman, defeated 10th-seeded Leila Meskhi 6-1, 6-4 in just over an hour to reach the semifinals. It was Seles' third one-sided match in the clay court tournament.

Sabatini, the defending champion, had an even easier time, crushing No. 7 Nathalie Tauziat of France 6-0, 6-1 to the delight of a large rooting section of Italian and Argentine fans.

Seles, beaten by Sabatini in the finals last year, will meet South Africa's Amanda Coetzer in the other semifinal. Coetzer, seeded 16th, defeated No. 14 Natalia Zvereva 6-2, 6-3.

"All the matches until now were pretty easy, but I have not played great, I will have to improve a lot in the next matches," said Seles, who has not lost a set.

Fernandez, the fourth seed, spotted the No. 5 seed a set and was down 1-5 in the second when she began her comeback.

Fernandez kept her calm and began scoring with her sweeping ground strokes and occasional volleys, while the hard-hitting German began to bend under the pressure.

The 17-year-old Huber had difficulty holding service and shots that before were winners down the line began to go out.

Fernandez said she was bothered by the lights and had a hard time getting her rhythm.

China's 'princes, princesses,' maneuver for power

HONG KONG — They gamble in Macao, party in Hong Kong, sell paintings in Japan and weapons to the Middle East. They study in the United States, sneak money out of the country and whisper into the ears of China's most powerful.

They are the sons and daughters of Chinese leaders. As the aging parents limp into history, their children could figure prominently in the struggle for power over the world's last communist giant.

Chinese call them the "princes," a reference to imperial China, when emperors passed the throne to their sons.

Indeed, these men and women, ranging in age from 30 to more than 60, fit neatly into a traditional pattern of succession in a country where much political power grows from one's family tree.

Most sons and daughters of Beijing's rulers are engaged in rather routine activities inside China, but those in a small circle nicknamed the "Princes Party," are jockeying for a say in the future.

"We are like the relatives of the emperor and his courtiers," said Wu Xiaoli, a 36-year-old businesswoman in Hong Kong whose father is a retired general. "If you look at us, you could think China — after all these years and revolutions — hasn't changed that much."

INFORMATION ABOUT the number of princes and princesses in China is hard to obtain.

Last year, the Hong Kong magazine Cheng Ming quoted a Communist Party report as saying children or immediate relatives of 1,700 high officials occupied 3,100 top positions in the government and military. It said 900 more were managing directors of foreign-trade companies.

It has not been possible to verify the figures, but Western diplomats say they appear plausible.

This could be a big year for the Princes Party. Several members are expected to be elevated to the 283-member Communist Party's policy-making Central Committee during the 14th party congress in the fall.

Their fathers fear outsiders would reverse the nation's course, especially after the Tiananmen Square killings of 1989 and the disintegration of the Soviet Union.

"Blood is thicker than water," as Ms. Wu said, but there are differences between the generations.

Among the most important is that the princes appear to lack loyalty to any ideology or "line," both of which have played important roles in communist China.

"THE PRINCES are no-nonsense realists," Daniel Kane, a scholar in the Department of Asian Languages at the University of Melbourne, Australia, wrote in an essay on the group. "Their political program is determined by their own interests or position at any particular time."

Two elderly princes illustrate the point.

Ye Xuanping, 66, is the popular former governor of freewheeling Guangdong province and son of Ye Jianying, a hero of the Long March. He favors rapid economic reform and decentralization of political power because, since he works outside Beijing, they would strengthen his hand.

Premier Li Peng, widely disliked, is the 64-year-old adopted son of the late Premier Chou En-lai. He supports a centralized economy and state because he is based in the capital and it serves his interests to do so.

Generally, China's princes and princesses are better educated and traveled than their parents, many of whom are from peasant stock.

The late Marshal He Long, for example, took pride in his near inability to read. His well-schooled son, He Pengfei, one of those said to be destined for the Central Committee, is an army major general and manages Polytechnologies Inc., a weapons company linked to missile sales to the Middle East.

Members of the Princes Party also seem more willing than their conservative parents to tolerate divergent views. Many agree that freedom of speech is necessary, for example, if science is to develop.

DENG YINGTAO, for example, met with Chinese dissidents during a trip to the United States in 1981. He runs an influential think tank on agricultural reforms and is the son of conservative Deng Liqun, 77.

In some ways, however, the children are as hard-line as the parents. Kane says that is because their influence stems from blood lines, not votes, and even minimal political reform threatens their ascent.

An internal document published in January by the Hong Kong magazine Frontline hints at the thinking of one of the most prominent princes: Chen Yuan, son of Chen Yun, a powerful 86-year-old conservative.

It was drafted by a research institute led by the younger Chen, 47, and argues that the Communist Party must drop its reliance on sloganeering and constant political education or risk "destroying itself with its own hand."

Continued adherence to such outmoded concepts, the institute says, will benefit "radical reformers" who promote pluralism and democratic reform.

The essay, called "Practical Plans and Strategic Choices Following Drastic Changes in the Soviet Union," also defends the Princes Party.

"Special privileges aid the running of the country," it says. "We should not overemphasize the need for a puritanical way of work."

CHEN IS a vice president of China's central bank. He was given the job after failing to win reelection to a Beijing government post in November 1988.

When it first appeared in the 1980s, the term "Princes Party" was associated with scandalous business deals by relatives of high officials. During pro-democracy protests that led to the 1989 crackdown, wall posters attacked the group, accusing the princes of nepotism and corruption.

Zhao Dajun and Zhao Erjun, sons of deposed party leader Zhao Ziyang, were said to have established shell companies in Hong Kong to send money abroad. When their father lost his post after the Tiananmen crackdown, they dropped from public view.

'The Thinker'

Forklift driver Andrew Lins moves Rodin's sculpture "The Thinker" from its pedestal in front of The Rodin Museum in Philadelphia. The 800-pound sculpture, moved this spring for the first time since 1929, was taken to the Philadelphia Museum of Art to be cleaned of corrosion.

Many people make Light of Bud's name

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — Yes, Bud Light says, that really is his name. It's it and that's that.

"When I introduce myself as Bud Light, people say, 'Yeah, right, and I'm Miller Lite,'" said the 32-year-old accountant, who was named after his father Bud Light Sr.

Not only does his name sound identical to the beer, but he works for the local Miller beer distributor.

Light received the same reaction on a cruise to the Bahamas where he met several celebrities who starred in Miller Lite commercials.

"None of them would believe me when I told them my name. I kept having to take out my driver's license," he said.

Almost everyone has trouble taking Light's name seriously.

"A college buddy of mine came into town and tried to get my phone number from a phone booth," Light said. "When he asked the operator for the number of Bud Light, she hung up on him.

The friend ended up calling the operator back to convince her it wasn't a prank call.

And, said Light, it isn't just his name people make light of.

"People would always say my dad was the regular Bud Light and I was the eight-ounce."

Wine may cut heart attack risk, researchers say

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Here's to your platelets.

Researchers are beginning to wonder if those little flat disks that float around in our blood and cause it to clot may have something to do with the tendency of the French to have far fewer heart attacks than Americans.

A little wine may keep the platelets under control, a leading heart disease investigator said Monday.

Dr. Curtis Ellison, professor of medicine at Boston University and a senior investigator in the Framingham Heart Study, said in an interview that the possibility that wine retards the tendency of blood to clot may explain the "French paradox."

Despite a national diet that contains at least as much saturated fat as the American cuisine, middle-aged men in France die of heart attacks at less than half the rate as those in America, according to the World Health Organization.

Dr. Ellison, who has previously suggested that the quantity and the manner in which French drink wine may explain their seemingly healthier hearts, said the key may be the fact that in France wine is consumed with meals.

"The alcohol may prevent the fat from going to the bloodstream and stimulating the platelets to form clots," he said.

He explained that coronary heart disease, the slow buildup of fatty deposits on the arterial wall, usually causes heart attacks in concert with a second development, a thrombosis, or a blood clot.

When a clot hits one of the arterial strictures caused by coronary heart disease, "you have a heart attack," he said.

"But when you cover your fat intake with a little alcohol, it could be that you are preventing the clotting effect," he said. Thus, wine consumed away from meals may have no beneficial effect at all.

Dr. Ellison delighted the wine industry and set off a national debate among heart specialists last year when he appeared on the CBS television program "60 Minutes" to talk about the French paradox and to suggest that regular wine intake may afford some protection against the developed world's biggest killer.

He appeared at a Washington news conference Monday, sponsored by an organization of California wine producers, to talk about his platelet theory and research he and other investigators are planning into the French paradox.

The type of saturated fat consumed by the French may be another clue to their better coronary health, he said.

"It turns out that most of the fat in their diet comes from cheese, rather than red meat," he said.

Two other possible explanations are the fact that wine increases the quantity of high-density lipoprotein cholesterol, the "good" cholesterol, in the blood, and that French food is traditionally prepared in ways that don't destroy so many of the anti-oxidants, such as beta carotene and vitamins E and C, he said.

Half of working force is stressed out, study says

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Nearly half of American workers worry about their jobs and feel pressure to prove their value as a result of the recession, according to a study recently released.

"When you add the effects of the recession, American companies have become pressure cookers," said Peggy Lawless, a researcher for Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., which conducted the study.

Four out of 10 workers said their jobs are very stressful or extremely stressful and 39 percent said they are thinking about quitting, the study found. Forty-six percent said they worry about their jobs and feel they must prove their worth.

"Over-stressed employees are less able to perform their jobs and more afraid to leave them," she said.

The study was based on a survey of 1,299 employees of randomly selected companies around the nation. The margin of error was 3 percentage points.

Four out of 10 workers said their jobs are very stressful or extremely stressful and 39 percent said they are thinking about quitting, the study found. Forty-six percent said they worry about their jobs and feel they must prove their worth.

The stress is taking a toll on workers' health, the study said. Of those who said they were highly stressed, 65 percent said they suffer from exhaustion and 45 percent said they had insomnia.

Muscle pain and depression were other commonly reported complaints. Twenty-one percent said they had taken sick leave in the past month.

Fifty percent of the workers surveyed said job stress reduces their productivity. Even though 45 percent said they must work overtime, 34 percent said that time is still too scarce to get their work done.

The study is part of a two-year research project by the Minneapolis-based insurance company. In a study released last year, the company said one in three workers expects to burn out on the job in the near future.

Bobcat finds life in city too wild

BEMIDJI, Minn. (AP) — A bobcat ventured into the wilds of Bemidji and got caught in the city's hectic pace before returning to more familiar wilderness on Tuesday.

The stray feline was first spotted in this city of 11,500 humans 190 miles northwest of Minneapolis. It was clawing at a window of the North Country Nursing and Rehabilitation Center.

Employees called 911, then saw the animal lope toward a busy street.

"I was so worried about it getting hurt, we headed it off, veering it away from the busy road toward the university," said Sue Cummings, a nursing center employee.

Cummings tracked the cat into a residential area where it leaped over a fence. Animal control Officer Ron Schlueter joined the chase until the animal vanished near Lake Bemidji.

Schlueter picked up its trail at Bemidji State University, where a student corralled the cat into a heating plant.

A veterinary hospital sent someone with a tranquilizer gun to subdue the cat, which weighed about 25 pounds. It was hospitalized for observation before its release back to the wild.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Luncheon, style show planned

A Ladies Luncheon, Style Show and Seminar with guest speaker Dr. Donald Whitaker is planned for Mid-Cities Community Church, 8700 W. Highway 191, May 16.

The event, planned for 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., is sponsored by the church's Ladies Ministries.

In addition, Whitaker will speak at 10 a.m. May 17 in the church's morning worship service.

Dr. Whitaker is host of "Calling Dr. Whitaker" seen weekly on the Trinity Broadcasting Network. Whitaker, a physician, surgeon and specialist in preventive medicine, is the author of two books, "Divine Connection" and "Nature's Kitchen."

His Midland seminar is free. For reservations call 561-9159.

■ Duplantis to speak at center

Evangelist Jesse Duplantis will be ministering Sunday through Tuesday at Odessa Christian Faith Center, 8860 N. Andrews Highway.

He will speak at 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

Duplantis' 30-minute television broadcast, "Voice of the Covenant," shown weekly, reaches more than 34 million viewers throughout southeast Louisiana, southern Mississippi and southern Alabama.

For more information call 1-368-7714.

■ Gray to present program

The Unitarian-Universalist Church, Neely at Midkiff, will host a program at 9:45 a.m. Sunday on "Is the Nicaraguan Revolution Over?"

Mike Gray, a student of revolutionary history and of Latin American history, will present the program. Gray is a long time critic of American support for counter-revolutionary forces, "the contras," that fought to depose the Sandinista government.

Gray recently returned from a four-week trip to Nicaragua and has written several articles about his observations for publication in El Paisano and Chaparral magazines.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Church sets school dates

St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive, has scheduled Vacation Bible School for June 15-19.

Hours for the school will be 9:30 a.m. to noon. Theme for the program will be "Festival! Worship with Jesus, Worship Today." Classes are planned for children ages 2 through sixth grade.

Registration cards are available at the church office and must be turned in by May 30. For more information call 689-8775 or 694-2544.

■ Mother's Day celebrated

Ranchland Heights Baptist Church will celebrate Mother's Day with a large bouquet of red and white carnations, each blossom placed there in honor of or in memory of a mother.

Following the 11 a.m. service, mothers in attendance will each be given one of the flowers.

The church holds Sunday worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.

■ Multi-media program slated

"Awakening Hearts," the multi-media presentation of photography and inspirational music, will be presented 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Permian Church of Religious Science.

The three-dimensional 10-minute feature "Dimensions of Love" will also be presented at the church, 2311 Elizabeth St.

There is no admission charge, but a love offering will be accepted.

For more information call 684-4230.

■ Hennigan to be interim pastor

J.B. Hennigan has become the interim pastor of Calvary Baptist Church. He will preach the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services Sunday.

Hennigan, a veteran of World War II with service in the European Theater, has served churches in Goldsmith, Monahans, Ft. Stockton, Leveland, Saratoga, Piney grove and Sun Country Baptist Church in Odessa. He also has been pastor of the Baptist Church, Monument, N.M.

A native of Louisiana, Hennigan has preached since 1948. He has published work entitled, "The Savior's Return," which was published prior to his retirement from the pastorate two years ago.

He will begin a study on "The Return of Jesus Christ" Wednesday.

Baptist call on Bush

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Baptist Convention U.S.A. Inc. is calling on President Bush to declare a National Day of Penitence and Confession to cleanse the nation's soul of racism.

"The Rodney King verdict is not the first, but only the latest injustice," said the Rev. Amos Brown, chairman of the Civil Rights Commission of the 8 million-member denomination. "Nor is the verdict the cause of our despair and pain, but only a symptom of an America that rewards exploitation of racial fears and hatred."

In his statement, Brown said the convention continues to support a path of nonviolence, and urged blacks to express their outrage by registering to vote.

"If the leaders of the nation will not call forth righteousness, then the people will call forth righteous leaders," he said. "We call on people not to vent their anger, but to store up a righteous anger and unleash it at the ballot box."

He said the message from the days of rage following the verdict is clear: "African Americans will not be content to be condemned to an endless cycle of victim and victimizer."

■ Home Week celebration set

First Baptist Church, corner of Louisiana Avenue and Garfield Street, is celebrating Christian Home Week Sunday through May 17.

Guest speaker for the CHW is the Rev. Dr. Calvin Miller, professor of Communication and Ministry Studies and Writer-in-Residence at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. His educational training includes a bachelor of science from Oklahoma Baptist University and a master of divinity and a doctor of ministry from Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

He is the author of such books as "Once Upon a Tree," "The Aardvark Parked on the Ark" and "Becoming: Your Self in the Making."

CHW begins with the musical "Family Portrait" by Ellen Woods Bryce, presented by The Young Musicians during Sunday's 6:30 p.m. worship service.

A Marriage Banquet is planned for 6:30 to 9 p.m. Friday at the Midland Hilton. Miller and his wife, Barbara, will lead the program.

Child care from birth to 6th grade will be provided at the church by reservation only and may be made by calling the church office, 682-1646. Child care reservations and tickets need to be taken care of before 5 p.m. Wednesday. Tickets, priced at $8, are available at the church. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Miller will preach in all of the church's services May 17. In addition, the church will recognize all graduating seniors during the 11 a.m. service that day. Other services times that day are 8:20 and 9:40 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

■ Langley earns ministry degree

FORT WORTH — Joe Edward Langley received the doctor of ministry degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary during commencement services this month.

Langley

Langley is the son of C.J. Langley and Vera Langley, both of Midland. He is married to Cheryl Langley, the daughter of Margie Johnson and the late Harold Johnson, both of Midland.

He is pastor of Park Meadows Baptist Church, Waxahachie.

■ Church hosts lesson series

The Family Ministry of Golf Course Road Church of Christ plans to present a series of lessons Sunday through June 21 that emphasize a different aspect of family life.

The lessons will include special recognition Mother's Day and Father's Day. Also, those attending will receive a folder each week that includes devotional planning, fun and creative ideas and inserts of advice and encouragement.

Each lesson begins at 10 a.m., immediately following classes for all ages. All interested parties are invited to attend.

■ Jean Shafer to speak today

The women of St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church invite the women of the community to a guest day luncheon to hear Jean Shafer of Lamesa speak on "An Ordinary Woman Loved By An Extraordinary God."

The luncheon is today in the church parish hall, 2900 Princeton. At 11 a.m., a craft boutique and cookie sale will take place with singing by the St. Nicholas' folk group. The pasta luncheon will begin at 11:30 a.m. with Mrs. Shafer's talk following. A nursery will be provided.

For more information, call 683-3947 or 683-2806.

■ Mother-Daughter luncheon set

The United Methodist Woman's Society of the First United Methodist Church will host a Mother-Daughter luncheon at 11:30 a.m. today.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under. They can be picked up in the church office or by calling Meg Haag, 685-7030, or Glad Rawlings, 682-4280.

High school choir makes appearance at conference

Staff report

Spirit Wind, the Northwest Texas United Methodist select high school youth choir, is among the performing groups participating at the United Methodist General Conference, being held now in Louisville, Ky.

Based in Midland, the choir has 128 members from the West Texas and Panhandle area. Bert Bostic, minister of program and music for St. Luke's United Methodist Church, is the director and administrator of the choir.

The Spirit Wind choir submitted a performance tape to a selection committee in 1990 along with 85 other performing groups across the country. The choir was chosen to be one of the 12 who are providing music for the General Conference worship.

The choir sang Friday at two worship services.

The Spirit Choir is an audition choir and is open to all 9th through 12th graders who are associated with the United Methodist Church. Bostic has been the choir's director for the past 11 years and has seen the membership increase from 18 in 1982 to 128 this year.

Members from Midland are Ryan Bromm, Chana Castle, Amy Erdwurm, Natasha Eustace, Kristin Gerhard, Melissa Gerhard, Jon Green, Kelly Grimes, Dustin Huber, Steven Jeffcoat, Eric Keathly, Tina Keathly, Jeffrey Larson, Ginger Looney, Rusty Looney, Kim Macferran, Kelly McClatchy, Brent McCartney, Scott McLeod, Janet Ramage, Casey Reid, Kristina Sanchez, Rachel Sanchez, Angel Strumpfer, Mark Templeton, Blake Tubbs, Megan Whiles and Stan Wyllie.

Junior legislators hatch plot to revive budget amendment

By Ron Hutcheson
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — At the height of the congressional check-cashing scandal, a group of junior lawmakers gathered at a Mexican restaurant near the Capitol to vent their frustration over beer and chile rellenos.

The outcome of their gripe session was a long-shot political strategy that has given new life to the 17-year effort to pass a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget.

Five weeks after the restaurant plotters hatched their plan, a proposal that had been languishing now seems likely to pass both the House and Senate by July. The amendment's long-time sponsors give much of the credit for the stunning turnabout to a handful of relatively unknown lawmakers with little seniority or influence.

"It seems to have caught on better than we ever could have imagined," said Rep. Pete Geren, D-Fort Worth, one of the restaurant conspirators. "The time was right."

Even critics of the proposal, including House Speaker Tom Foley, acknowledge that the amendment is likely to win the two-thirds majority required for congressional approval. The Senate is scheduled to vote on the issue this month, followed quickly the House.

The measure would then need to win ratification in at least 38 states to become a part of the Constitution.

Recent converts to the balanced budget amendment characterize the proposal as a bad idea whose time has come. With the federal deficit expected to soar to nearly $400 billion this year, lawmakers from both parties are looking to the Constitution to break the political logjam that has stymied previous efforts to control government spending.

The most popular version of the amendment, sponsored by Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, and Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., would require a balanced budget unless 60 percent of the House and Senate approve a waiver.

In theory, the constitutional prohibition against deficit spending would force lawmakers to make the hard choices needed to bring revenues in line with outlays.

One reluctant supporter, Rep. William Gradison, R-Ohio, said the amendment would combat what he calls the "entitlement mentality" among voters who resist cuts in Social Security, Medicare and other popular government programs.

"It would enable us to say to our constituents, "Sorry, we had no choice.' That's what it comes down to," Gradison said.

Another proposed amendment, sponsored by Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, and Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wisc., also would prohibit lawmakers from raising taxes without a 60 percent vote. The anti-tax provision, which won endorsement from the Bush administration last week, is designed to prevent Congress from balancing the budget by raising taxes.

There is little dispute that Congress has a miserable track record when it comes to complying with self-imposed budget constraints. The 1986 Gramm-Rudman statute, which triggered dire predictions of draconian cuts in government spending, was originally supposed to bring a balanced budget by 1991.

CNN: Records end hostage delay theory

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI surveillance records turned over to congressional investigators will deflate a theory that the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign conspired with Iran to delay release of 52 American hostages, according to a report broadcast Friday.

The report by Cable News Network said documents reflecting a five-month surveillance of Iranian arms dealer Cyrus Hashemi — together with accounts from an unidentified retired FBI agent — show Hashemi was in the New York area at the time of an alleged 1980 Paris meeting where the hostage deal was struck.

Former Carter administration aide Gary Sick contends in his book, "October Surprise," that Hashemi was among participants in a key meeting in Paris on Oct. 19, 1980, where Iran agreed with Reagan campaign officials to hold the hostages until after the November U.S. presidential election, helping ensure Carter's defeat.

Sick, in a telephone interview, took exception with the CNN report.

He said the heavily censored documents, made available under the Freedom of Information Act, show Hashemi made a telephone call from his New York office on Oct. 20 but do not account for the days just before that.

Hashemi flew on the supersonic Concorde when he traveled to Paris, and could easily have made it back to New York from a meeting the previous day, Sick said.

Federal law-enforcement and congressional sources say Attorney General William P. Barr has authorized the FBI to grant access to the surveillance records, including video and audio tapes, to investigators on a House task force investigaing the matter.

The material has been stored at a government warehouse at a military base in Newburgh, N.Y.

Armed federal agents raid nutrition clinic

KENT, Wash. (AP) — Armed federal agents raided a clinic run by a doctor of nutritional medicine, seizing vitamins, equipment and records, the doctor said. A state official said Friday they were looking for unlicensed drugs.

U.S. Food and Drug Administration agents assisted by police broke down the doors of the Tahoma Clinic in suburban Seattle before it was to open for the day Wednesday. A clinic employee said one agent had his gun drawn.

Dr. Jonathan Wright, clinic director, was detained briefly by FDA agents but wasn't charged.

But Don Williams, executive director of the state Pharmacy Board, said officials believed unlicenced drugs were being manufactured at Wright's clinic.

The Pharmacy Board assisted in the raid and in a 1991 seizure of dietary supplements at the clinic. A nearby pharmacy associated with Wright's clinic, the For Your Health Pharmacy, also was searched.

Wright is a licensed medical doctor who specializes in alternative treatments for allergies. He has written several books on nutrition therapy, including the best seller, "Dr. Wright's Guide to Healing with Nutrition."

DA reveals investigation of ex-priest

BOSTON (AP) — A district attorney said Friday he'd investigate a former Roman Catholic priest accused of molesting scores of children in the early 1960s.

District Attorney Paul F. Walsh made no promises in the case of James R. Porter, who told a television station he molested "50 to 100" children while he worked at the rectory of a Catholic school in southeastern Massachusetts.

"There are serious obstacles in the way of a successful prosecution," said Walsh, chief presecutor in Bristol County. "Something seven years ago is difficult, never mind three decades ago."

Porter, 57, who lives in the St. Paul, Minn., suburb of Oakdale, with his wife and four children, told Boston television station WBZ he wasn't sure how many children he molested while at the St. Mary's School in North Attleboro.

"I don't know . . . well, let's put it anywhere, you know, from 50 to 100, I guess," he said in a taped interview.

Friday, Porter refused to comment on the allegations to The Associated Press.

Steve Johnson, of Providence, R.I., said Porter molested him and other boys during a trip to his parents' beach house near Westerly, R.I.

Officers find truck missing 14 years

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — A black pickup truck that was stolen outside a movie theater 14 years ago has been recovered 1,000 miles away in Texas, in good shape but painted red.

Since his new four-wheel-drive Ford 150 disappeared in 1978, John Adams has married, become a father, purchased a new house and taken a new job.

The truck was stolen while Adams, now 33, and a girlfriend were watching a movie. The crime ruined the date but not Adams' faith. He kept an ignition key all these years.

"I told my wife I'd always keep the key, and if I ever found it, I would just start it up and take it back," he said. "I've been on the lookout for it ever since it's been gone."

Police told Adams the truck is still in great shape, but its black paint has been covered with red.

"I figured it would be in a million pieces by now. I'm going to see if I can buy it from the insurance company," Adams said.

The truck was in Irving, Texas, in the driveway of a man who moved from Ohio to Texas about the time of the theft.

Ex-death row inmate gets retrial in murder

TYLER (AP) — Former Texas death row inmate Kerry Max Cook will be retried for the 1977 murder of a Tyler woman Oct. 5, a state judge ruled Friday.

State District Judge Joe Tunnell said jury selection in Cook's retrial will begin Oct. 5. But Cook will be held without bond at the Smith County Jail until then.

Cook, 35, of Jacksonville was convicted and sentenced to lethal injection for the June 10, 1977, slaying and mutilation of Linda Jo Edwards, 21.

The University of Texas at Tyler secretary, who apparently bled to death after being knocked unconscious with a plaster statue, also had been stabbed repeatedly with scissors and a knife. Her sex organs were cut from her body while she was still alive, prosecutors said.

Cook, an unemployed bartender at the time of the slaying, lived in the same apartment complex as Ms. Edwards.

Last September, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, in a decision later upheld by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, vacated Cook's death sentence and ordered a new trial.

The lower court said prosecutors improperly introduced testimony in the sentencing phase of the trial from a psychiatrist who had examined Cook without warning him or his attorney of the possible consequences.

The testimony from the Dallas psychiatrist that Cook likely would be dangerous in the future violated a 1981 Supreme Court ruling, the state court ruled.

The high court had held defendants and their attorneys must be given advance notice before psychiatric examinations that are to be used to influence juries' sentencing decisions.

April 20, the U.S. Supreme Court refused to reinstate the conviction and death penalty for Cook, leading the way for a new trial.

Gas forces school evacuation

FORT WORTH (AP) — A high school was evacuated Friday after the release of an unknown chemical gas caused minor injuries to about 20 people, authorities said.

The chemical apparently was released in a first-floor restroom at Eastern Hills High School about 11 a.m., fire officials said.

Fire department Battalion Chief Ken Freeman said a hazardous materials team was conducting tests to determine the cause of the incident.

"At this point we don't know exactly what caused the situation," Freeman said. "It's very unusual. Schools don't have chemicals ... which would entail something like this inside, so we're dealing with an outside substance of some sort."

Richards praises W. Texas water pipeline

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards on Friday praised a West Texas water pipeline project that she said will create jobs and provide needed water to the region.

The 156-mile-long pipeline, one of the largest in the nation, will provide water to a large area of West Texas.

Richards said the $115 million project "will bring water and jobs to that part of the state."

It will run from Lake Ivie through San Angelo to the Midland-Odessa area and have a capacity of 90 million gallons daily.

Under contracts signed by the Colorado River Municipal Water District, the 60-inch pipeline is to be built by a Texas company, Gifford-Hill-American Inc. of Dallas.

Company spokesman Sam Yerby said the pipe would be manufactured at plants in Grand Prairie and Lubbock, creating about 150 new jobs. The company said laid-off employees would be called first. Its Grand Prairie facility eventually will add about 80 people, Lubbock about 40 and Victoria about 20.

Officials said the project is scheduled to be completed by Feb. 1, 1995.

"Not only will this project bring water to West Texas, it's going to bring jobs to West Texas, to Dallas and Victoria," Richards said.

Richards said the pipeline project was one of three items of good economic news for the state.

She noted that the St. Louis, Mo.-based Venture Stores had announced the Corsicana would be site for a five-state distribution center.

Richards had visited with Venture officials earlier this year.

The governor and Texas Department of Commerce director Cathy Bonner also hailed a new ranking by Financial World magazine which raised its rating of Texas from 27th to 11th among the states.

Critics: Less than a truckload ready for WIPP

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Energy Secretary James Watkins was criticized for pushing to open a nuclear waste repository in southeastern New Mexico when the department has less than a truckload of waste ready for shipment.

"Why does Secretary Watkins want to have the trucks roll when in May 1992 he doesn't have even one truckload ready to go?" asked Don Hancock of the Southwest Research and Information Center.

Hancock was one of the critics who spoke during a state Radioactive Waste Consultation Task Force meeting in Albuquerque on Thursday. They challenged Watkins' assertion that the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant must start testing with waste soon because it is costing taxpayers $14 million a month.

WIPP is a U.S. Department of Energy project designed to bury plutonium-contaminated waste from the nation's defense industry 2,150 feet below the surface in salt beds 26 miles southeast of Carlsbad. The repository has yet to open, pending resolution of safety and environmental concerns and the withdrawal of land around the site from public use.

Mike McFadden, the Energy Department's acting branch chief for operations, said three bins of plutonium-contaminated glassware are ready for shipment.

Teachers believe violence is increasing, survey shows

AUSTIN (AP) — Almost three-fourths of Texas teachers responding to a poll said they think violence is on the rise in their school district.

"This is a matter of great urgency. Incidents ... are becoming much too common," said Beverly Sinkey, president of the Association of Texas Professional Educators.

Ms. Sinkey, a Houston-area first-grade teacher, released the findings of her group's poll Friday. The organization has 54,700 members.

The poll, which has a 4 percent margin of error, was run by the group through the mail. Among the topics surveyed were parental involvement, teacher certification, school choice and school violence.

According to the respondents:

- 81 percent said the Texas Teacher Appraisal System requires too much administrative time.
- 46 percent spend 10 or more hours per week outside the classroom doing school-related work.
- 64 percent favor year-round schooling if they are accordingly compensated.

Perot backers deliver Texas signatures

By Thomas C. Hayes
New York Times News Service

DALLAS — At one o'clock Monday afternoon, Ross Perot is expected to leap across one of the first big hurdles in his probable race for president with plenty of room to spare.

To get his name on the ballot in Texas, he has to deliver petitions with the signatures of at least 54,275 qualified, registered voters at the capitol in Austin by that day, and Perot plans to be on hand with thousands of his supporters — and an overflow of signed petitions.

The low primary turnout in the March 10 primary, which drew 28 percent of eight million registered voters in Perot's home state, provided his supporters with legions of potential recruits.

State officials told reporters this week that they are bracing for more than 200,000 Perot campaign signatures. To qualify, signers could not have voted in the primary.

At an old-style political rally the last Sunday in April, Perot told 2,000 volunteers and their children that they and other supporters had collected "several times" the required signatures. "All the consultants said it couldn't be done," he said.

For what so far has been his only campaign-style rally, Perot appeared that day on a stage before an over-sized American flag, with a Dixieland band nearby wearing "Ross for Boss" T-shirts.

He spoke for less than 10 minutes to a cheering crowd, but the Texas billionaire signed autographs on dollar bills, "Perot for President" hats, signs and other paraphernalia, for nearly two hours.

The head of the Bush-Quayle campaign in Texas, Jim Oberwetter, said that while a vast number of signatures would demonstrate significant grass-roots support for Perot, Republican officials believe that his popularity will wane as his positions on issues become more defined and reporters analyze his record during the years he headed Electronic Data Systems Corp. and often ventured into political arenas.

Bob Krueger, a former Democratic congressman who ran Paul E. Tsongas' unsuccessful campaign in Texas this year, said Perot's appeal straddled a diverse group of Texas voters and that his slight edge over George Bush in a recent Texas poll reflected a disenchantment with the president and traditional politics.

"That clearly works to Perot's benefit," Krueger said. "When people are in desperate circumstances, they will turn to strong-minded individuals with simple solutions. Perot fits that.

"But he is still in the courtship phase. The time will come when both the courtship and the honeymoon will be over and that is when his testing time will be there."

For now, Perot's supporters insist that his reputation as a man who keeps his word, knows how to make money in business and can solve complex government problems will stand those tests.

Ray Burgin, a retired factory worker, said he voted for Gov. Bill Clinton in the primary, but joined the Perot camp mainly because of Perot's sharp criticism of the growing national debt.

"I see hard times coming," said Burgin, 77, who has been a volunteer answering telephones at the Perot Petition Campaign offices in Dallas for nearly two months. "Ross Perot is not a politician. He's the best possibility for the next four years."

Another volunteer, Roy Vokey, a semi-retired salesman who was trained as an aerial gunnery specialist in the Air Force during the Korean War, said he has organized military veterans for Perot in dozens of states, including Texas.

"There are 27 million military veterans out there, plus their families," said Vokey, 62. "These guys are workers, they vote and they don't mind participating in campaigns, for the most part."

In Denison, a town near the Oklahoma border best known as a haven for the boaters and fishermen who flock to nearby Lake Texoma, Perot supporters collected more than 4,000 signatures.

Many small factories in the area have trimmed their work force and overtime hours.

Inmates' lawyers criticize Morales

AUSTIN (AP) — An inmates' lawyer in the long-running lawsuit over prison conditions said Friday that Attorney General Dan Morales appeared to be backing away from an agreement his office made to settle the suit.

"There will be no agreement until the state's willing to make a commitment and stick to it," said lawyer Donna Brorby of San Francisco.

But Morales' spokesman Gray McBride said the attorney general already has signed the settlement document that both parties agreed to.

"The choice to approve or disapprove this agreement is entirely in the hands of the plaintiffs' attorneys. If necessary, the attorney general remains entirely prepared to try this case in court," McBride said.

The controversy is over a letter the inmates' attorneys want from the state prison board along with the settlement document signed last week by Morales.

The letter would detail how some settlement steps will be carried out by prison officials. For example, it would include such specifics as inmate access to television and recreation yards, which Ms. Brorby said are widely recognized as necessary to control inmates.

The settlement would allow 2,300 additional inmates into the prison system.

Ms. Brorby said inmates' lawyers were told by Morales' representatives during negotiations that such a letter would be no problem.

"This famous letter is merely something that explains what is meant by vague language in the agreement ... The letter doesn't provide any enforceable obligation on the part of the state that is different or in addition to the obligation imposed by the proposed settlement," she said.

McBride said lawyers representing the attorney general's office "have never endorsed or in any way indicated an opinion on the legality of a side letter."

Jury: Scientist innocent in murder try

CONROE (AP) — A scientist who was found innocent on a charge of trying to kill a colleague by poisoning nasal spray says the verdict has ended a "yearlong bad dream" for him.

A Montgomery County jury deliberated six hours before acquitting John Linner of attempted murder. The verdict Thursday capped a seven-day trial in Conroe, about 40 miles north of Houston.

Linner, 48, was charged with trying to kill fellow scientist Barry Van Winkle by lacing his nasal spray with a cancer-causing chemical called beta propiolactone.

Van Winkle said he suffered a burning sensation when he used the tainted spray on April 8, 1991, at the University of Texas laboratory in The Woodlands where he and Linner worked. He has reported no other ill effects since then.

Both Linner and Van Winkle testified.

"I feel very sorry for Barry Van Winkle," Linner said Thursday. "Obviously, he was the object of some kind of foul play, and I'm sorry he came to the conclusion I was the one responsible for it.

Prosecutors theorized that Linner was upset when administrators announced plans to shut down the lab where Linner and Van Winkle were involved in cell research.

Texas rock climbers aim at Himalayas

AUSTIN (AP) — A group of Central Texas rock climbers plan to aim high next year when they tackle some of the roughest spires in the world during an expedition to the Himalayas.

Austin parks board member James Crump, one of the climbers, said the group will videotape the adventure to show around Texas and, with luck, make into a television documentary.

Crump said it's the challenge of a lifetime for eight friends.

"We're a close-knit group of people who have been climbing together a long, long time," he said. "We're companions in adventure."

All eight learned the ropes of rock climbing around Austin and since have broadened their horizons with climbs as close as Enchanted Rock and remote as Bugaboo Spire in British Columbia.

"We all learned to climb here," Crump said. "I've been climbing since I was a 7-year-old kid."

The trip to Biafo Glacier in the Karakoram Himalaya of Pakistan is far from kid stuff.

The group will hike into a base camp at 16,000 feet and spend seven weeks climbing granite walls up to 20,000 feet. The site is not far from K2, the second-highest mountain on Earth.

While most people think of Himalayan mountaineering as climbs on snow and ice, Crump said the area also has some of the most spectacular rock faces anywhere.

The base camp, he said, is "surrounded by amazing granite spires and towers topping up to 6,000 meters."

The group's permit limits them to that height but allows them to climb any peak they like.

Between them, group members claim a century of climbing experience. Three have written climbing guides, and five hold elected positions in climbing organizations.

Crump said four of them came up with the idea for the Himalaya expedition during a two-week climb in British Columbia in 1990. They began talking about something farther and higher.

The trip begins in May 1993.

Diplomacy is more business than glamour

EDITOR'S NOTE: The schmoozing still goes on at cocktail parties, candlelight dinners and charity balls, but the glamour has worn thin on Embassy Row. The political clout and social prestige of the 143 foreign ambassadors in Washington have diminished somewhat in this day of "personal diplomacy" between heads of state. Today it's more working lunches and business suits than fancy receptions and white tie and tails.

By Robert M. Andrews
Associated Press writer

'There were many lavish embassy parties when I first came here in 1956. White tie and tails with medals on your chest. Now I . . . seldom wear a tuxedo. I wear business suits.'

— Costa Rica Ambassador Gonzalo Facio

WASHINGTON — The Scottish gardener is tending the rose bushes outside at 8 a.m. as the maid greets British Ambassador Sir Robin Renwick with a breakfast tray of toast and tea in a quiet, sun-splashed study of burnished leather and oak.

Renwick reads the morning newspapers and overnight cables, bids his French wife, Annie, goodbye and leaves the embassy mansion in the back seat of a dark green, chauffeur-driven Rolls-Royce limousine for another workday that probably will stretch until midnight.

In the Maryland suburbs a few miles north, brown leaves tumble across the front yard of his modest white-brick house as Kingsley C.A. Layne, the first Washington ambassador from the Caribbean republic of St. Vincent and the Grenadines, downs a hurried cup of coffee and a banana in his kitchen.

Then Layne, a bachelor who has neither staff nor limousine, packs his briefcase and grabs a cab to work. He may spend the day stifling yawns during long-winded speeches at the Organization of American States, or he may shuttle to New York for a week's duty at the United Nations. While he's gone, his friends at the embassy of Saint Lucia, which occupies a suite in a downtown office building, will take Layne's telephone messages.

RENWICK AND Layne share the same formal title — ambassador extraordinaire and plenipotentiary. And rich or poor, powerful or obscure, they have the same formidable mission in Washington: to win friends and influence people in high places.

The ambassadors of 143 countries, from Afghanistan to Zimbabwe, are competing aggressively to foster friendly relations with the United States and safeguard their nations' vital interests.

It's a job they pursue over lunch with international bankers or dinner with a U.S. senator, in corporate board rooms, the inner sanctum of a Cabinet member or — if they're lucky — in the White House Oval Office.

The schmoozing continues on the tennis courts, at cocktail parties, receptions, candlelight dinners and charity balls.

But the glamour has worn thin on Embassy Row. Gone are the glory days of the early 19th century, when the imperial Russian minister, Baron Krudener, rode the streets of Georgetown in a white barouche drawn by four black horses. Or when his successor gave a lavish dinner for Secretary of State Martin Van Buren followed by a gala ball for 500 guests and a midnight supper.

In an era of "personal diplomacy" between heads of state and the austerity imposed by global hard times, the ambassador's political clout and social prestige have diminished. Striped pants and receptions have given way to shirt sleeves and working lunches.

"There were many lavish embassy parties when I first came here in 1956. White tie and tails with medals on your chest," says Costa Rica's longtime ambassador, Gonzalo Facio. "Now I very seldom wear even a tuxedo. I wear business suits.

"IT IS much more businesslike today, with working lunches, small dinners and frank talk."

Today, too, ambassadors are deeply involved in a wide range of issues, such as trade deals and investments, that never bothered their predecessors.

"They're like the CEO of a small firm or the head of an international office who is trying to drum up business and do some public relations," says Craig Stoltz, former editor of Dossier magazine, the defunct chronicler of Washington's embassy scene.

"An ambassador cannot just sit in his embassy and read the newspapers," says Count Wilhelm Wachtmeister, who was Sweden's ambassador and dean of the Washington diplomatic corps until he retired in 1989. "The competition for access to the right people in this city is enormous."

"We are not the highest paid lobbyists in Washington," says Britain's Renwick, "but we are an enormous lobbying organization and we try to be among the most effective."

Enormous, indeed.

Renwick heads an embassy staff of more than 500 people with an annual budget of $32 million that also supports consulates, or embassy branches, in 11 U.S. cities.

Even so, says the State Department, it is not the biggest embassy in Washington in number of diplomats, or career foreign service officers. Until the Soviet Union dissolved, that embassy was the biggest. Now the Brits are outnumbered by the Chinese, the Japanese and Germans.

RENWICK RESIDES in an elegant, red-brick mansion in the Queen Anne style of English country houses. It is the showpiece of a 35-acre estate on Massachusetts Avenue that also includes a six-story office building, tennis court, swimming pool and lush gardens.

Embassy staffers sent from London live in homes owned by the British government in Washington and surrounding suburbs. They get cost-of-living and entertainment allowances, plus reimbursement of two-thirds of the tuition costs at private schools for their children.

The British say they're delighted to live in Washington, but it was not always so.

When John and Abigail Adams moved into the President's House on Pennsylvania Avenue in November 1800, only four countries were represented by ministers — Britain, France, the Netherlands and Spain — and all of them detested the city.

For years, Washington was regarded as a diplomatic hardship post. Housing was shoddy, restaurants were inferior, entertainment was scarce and the weather was loathsome.

"A pint of American summer would thaw all Europe in 10 minutes," Sir Charles Bagot, the first British minister after the War of 1812, wrote a friend in England. "Sir, it is dreadful — it is deleterious — it leads to madness."

If that weren't bad enough, the British were outraged by Thomas Jefferson's disdain for protocol, the universal code of diplomatic conduct that determines such matters as the order of seating at state dinners.

EVER THE egalitarian, Jefferson decreed a system of "pele-mele," meaning "sit wherever you find a place." The ensuing scramble for vacant seats at White House dinners offended British minister Anthony Merry, just as Jefferson had intended.

It was not until 1893, when the United States was emerging as a world power, that Congress elevated America's envoys abroad to the rank of ambassador. Other governments reciprocated, and Britain's Sir Julian Pauncefote led the parade of full-fledged foreign ambassadors to Washington.

Even today, following the script for ceremonial rituals is "deadly serious business," says Joseph V. Reed, a New York investment banker and boyhood chum of President Bush who recently stepped down as the State Department's chief of protocol.

Reed winces when he remembers the welcoming 21-gun salute for Senegalese President Abdou Diouf that never went off, the foreign flags flying upside down, the scrambled cue cards that explained why he effusively greeted an English-speaking African ambassador in flawless French.

Then there was the "talking hat" incident, when Britain's diminutive Queen Elizabeth II was hidden behind a podium because Bush forgot to pull out a platform for his royal guest. Reed dutifully took the blame for his fellow Yalie's gaffe.

As protocol chief, Reed was responsible for overseeing state visits and looking after the welfare of all the foreign diplomats and their dependents — 22,102 at last count — who live and work in Washington.

"I'm like the mayor of a good-size town with all the usual problems — deaths, robberies, drugs, auto accidents, late payment of bills, kids in trouble," Reed said in an interview before he accepted a new assignment in the U.S. Mission to the United Nations.

DIPLOMATS AND their families are nearly invisible among Washingtonians, except for their special, red-white-and-blue license plates, each bearing a "D" and a two-letter country code assigned by the State Department.

They attend PTA meetings, shop the neighborhood supermarkets, take weekend drives through the Blue Ridge Mountains in nearby Virginia and munch popcorn at Saturday night movies.

Now and then, however, they attract attention because of an important privilege that rankles some of their American neighbors: Under the laws of diplomatic immunity, foreign diplomats and their dependents cannot be arrested, searched, jailed or prosecuted for any crime committed in the United States.

Last year, these hands-off Washington residents were implicated in 15 serious crimes, ranging from statutory rapes and assaults to drug possession, bribery, auto theft and grand larceny.

In such cases, the State Department either requests a waiver of immunity to permit a trial, which the ambassador usually grants quickly, or expels the accused from the United States.

Diplomatic immunity, however, does not allow embassy staffers to duck traffic citations or parking fines, even though police are forbidden to boot or tow their cars.

The embassies' unpaid parking tickets have become a $7 million headache for the State Department and the District of Columbia, which aren't having much luck persuading them to settle accounts.

MAYBE THEY could learn something about persuasion from the ambassadors considered among the most effective diplomats in town.

Longtime diplomatic observers and foreign affairs experts on Capitol Hill give high marks to ambassadors Raouf El Reedy of Egypt, Juergen Ruhfus of Germany, Zalman Shoval of Israel, Switzerland's Edouard Brunner, Czechoslovakia's Rita Klimova and Michael Sherifis of Cyprus.

Standing above the crowd is the flamboyant Prince Bandar bin Sultan, the ambassador of Saudi Arabia who lives in a $9 million mansion overlooking the Potomac River in McLean, Va. He happens to be the nephew of King Fahd and son of the Saudi defense minister, which gives him uncommon clout in Washington.

"Bandar has extraordinary freedom to wheel and deal on his own," said a senior adviser to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who requested anonymity. "He has quite a hand in making policy."

The Saudi king was reported to have given the go-ahead for U.S. military intervention against Iraq during a coded telephone conversation with Bandar, who had called from Secretary of State James A. Baker's office.

'An ambassador cannot just sit in his embassy and read the newspapers. The competition for access to the right people in this city is enormous.'

— Count Wilhelm Wachtmeister, ex-Swedish ambassador

Later, when Syria balked at sitting down with Israelis at the Mideast peace conference in Madrid, Bandar persuaded Fahd to call Syrian President Hafez Assad and urge him to stay the course. Both complied.

"You handle Israel," Bandar reportedly told Baker. "I'll take care of Syria."

SOME MIGHT think Renwick has an easy task, given what he calls "the extremely close relations" between Britain and the United States. But he disagrees.

"Like most relations, you've got to work at it or you start drifting apart," he says.

Renwick spends a lot of time consulting with high-ranking U.S. officials on trade, banking legislation, the Middle East, nuclear arms policies, Soviet relations and Britain's $110 billion in U.S. investments.

He took over the British Embassy last August after a highly successful tour of duty in South Africa. Since then, he has visited major U.S. cities from Boston to Los Angeles and escorted Prime Minister John Major on his first official visit to the United States.

A fast learner, he already counts Katharine Graham, chairman of The Washington Post Co., and White House counsel C. Boyden Gray as regular tennis partners.

There's no time for tennis, not to mention sightseeing, for ambassador Kingsley Layne, who represents St. Vincent and the Grenadines simultaneously at the United Nations, the OAS and the United States.

The island republic of 118,000 people in the eastern Caribbean is best known for its bananas and Mustique, the vacation hideaway of such international personalities as Britain's Princess Margaret and Mick Jagger.

LAYNE'S PRIMARY mission is to protect St. Vincent's modest economy, which is based on banana exports to Britain, against the threat of devastation by a gigantic new European trading bloc in 1992.

Until Layne can find time to organize his nation's first embassy in Washington and hire a staff and chauffeur, he works in his suburban home and commutes to downtown appointments by taxi.

"It's kind of lonely up here," says the 42-year-old economist.

When he has a free evening to relax, Layne likes to invite a few close friends over for "a taste of Caribbean cuisine," which he prepares in his kitchen. His favorite menu includes curried goat with seasoned rice and peas.

The British ambassador is no slouch at socializing, either. Last year, Renwick's predecessor, Sir Antony Acland, had 136 overnight guests and entertained 1,583 people at dinner, 650 over lunch and 90 at breakfast. An additional 5,386 attended embassy receptions and 1,900 came for drinks or tea.

Renwick is an avid trout fisherman who has mounted a 6-pound trophy caught in the South African mountains — Renwick's dry fly still snagged in its mouth — over the fireplace in his library.

He likes what American author Robert Traver wrote about diplomacy and the "Machiavellian subtlety, guile and sly deception" of the trout fisherman.

Taxi passengers can sing while they ride

By Paul Shin
Associated Press writer

SEOUL, South Korea — Feel like singing the blues away? Or serenading a lover? All with orchestral backup provided, and best of all, in the privacy of your own taxi?

Call a karaoke cab.

Karaoke is a Japanese term meaning "empty orchestra." The taxis are equipped with special sound systems — a recording that provides the musical accompaniment and a microphone for the customer to fill in the vocal part.

The systems are popular in bars in South Korea, Japan and some other places, and have been seen in a few taxis in Japan and Taiwan.

But karaoke cabs are the new fad on the streets of Seoul. And Koreans, who love to belt out songs anywhere, are expected to become addicted.

The passenger pays an extra charge to star as the singer. The system's disc player can store up to 1,000 songs, and for those who can't remember the words to a favorite tune, the driver provides a book of lyrics.

Korean taxi drivers almost always play radio music and most hum and sing to themselves. Fitting out their taxis with karaoke music for extra income from a singing passenger is an easy step.

City officials say karaoke taxis are not illegal, but could cause safety problems by disturbing drivers' concentration. The music also might drown out warning blasts from car horns, increasing the danger of traffic accidents, they say.

It is not known how many karaoke taxis there are among the 23,000 commercial taxis in Seoul. One official estimated the number so far at about 100, but said it is growing.

"The number is expected to increase considerably," said Kim Sang-ho, a manager at the Seoul Taxi Association.

Some drivers charge 1,000 won ($1.30) per song. Others get up to 5,000 won ($6.50) from passengers and allow them to sing as many songs as they want while they're in the cab.

For years, going to karaoke bars has been popular in South Korea. Recently, a new karaoke business, called "video-che," has popped up, providing both video and music.

Despite the Japanese name "karaoke," the music here is always Korean or American pop songs. Japanese songs are prohibited in South Korea, a result of anti-Japanese sentiment persisting since the days of Japanese colonial rule, which ended in 1945.

The newspaper is a fun and exciting educational tool for my Second Grade Bilingual Class. It stimulates an awareness of events happening in our community and encourages us to use our English Language. We use our newspapers for activities in all subjects including ESL (english as a second language).

We have really enjoyed our newspapers activities, they've enhanced learning in any student's second language as well as in the other subjects.

Thank you NIE & Gool Office Equipment and the Midland Reporter-Telegram for the Newspaper and Education program.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MAY 9, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A key relationship can regain its former luster if you show patience and new understanding. A romantic triangle begins to dissolve by late summer. Clever business ideas will lead to a raise or promotion by November. Celebrating the Christmas holidays in a tropical climate holds fresh appeal. Making certain concessions early in 1993 will improve the bottom line. Wedding bells may ring in spring.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actresses Glenda Jackson and Candice Bergen, correspondent Mike Wallace, country singer Hank Snow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your practicality is one of your biggest assets. It keeps you from building up hopes that cannot be materialized. Start over from scratch if you come to a dead end.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be on your guard against trickery or betrayal by someone who would like to take your place. It pays to protect your original ideas. Give a loved one your complete support.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Blaze your own trail in pursuit of an important goal, even if you have to pass up a social or romantic engagement. Friends or relatives at a distance beckon you to join them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The realization of a secret wish makes you want to share your joy with someone close to you. Home has its special comforts. Put outdated opinions in mothballs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are "up" for an active day or will be, once you get going! Whether you work or play, you will want to make every moment count. Encourage youngsters to get more exercise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The warmth of genuine friendship brings special contentment. Grant favors. You often depend on your sharp wits to get ahead. Begin devising a bold plan.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A busy social life can cure the blues or perk up romance. But most of all, it makes you feel wanted. Be careful not to accept so many invitations that you become exhausted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A wild goose chase may be part of the picture. Travel plans or a friend's arrangements could go awry. Park yourself at home where everything is picture-perfect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): This is not a good day to plunge ahead. The emphasis is on maintaining harmony at home and presenting a united front in public. Refuse to let someone's peevish comments get under your skin.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A little patience goes a long way with VIPs. Turn to financial wheeling and dealing for the results you seek. Make key calls early in the day. Romance begins to heat up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stress clear and accurate communications. Approaching an old problem from a new angle helps you find a solution. You can get to the bottom of things and emerge on top.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spice up your home life with new recreational activities. Angry authority figures are your only worry today; keep them at bay and you will do just fine.

TODAY'S CHILDREN: Intellectual challenges and spectator sports appeal to these Taureans. They are highly competitive and know how to wage and win a tough campaign. Being financially secure is a top priority for those born on this date; stress over money matters can undermine their health. Hardworking and respectful, these children usually get excellent grades in school. They go all-out to impress those teachers they really admire! Honest and idealistic, these Taureans must work for an employer they respect.

Bruce Springsteen's new cuts don't sell well in United States

NEW YORK — Bruce Springsteen's two new albums are sagging in the USA, both on the charts and at the cash register.

But The Boss is still tops in Europe and he's expected to tour, which could generate momentum. And his appearance this week's on "Saturday Night Live" won't hurt, either.

Springsteen

The rocker will perform three of his new songs in his first live television appearance. Previously, Springsteen had been seen on television only in music videos and concert footage.

He released "Human Touch" and "Lucky Town" on March 31. They were his first albums since 1987.

"Human Touch" dropped from 100,000 copies sold last week to just more than 60,000 this week and "Lucky Town" dropped from 70,000 to 40,000, according to the New York Daily News, citing Soundscan figures.

In the May 9 Billboard, "Human Touch" was No. 12 after being No. 3 the previous week. "Lucky Town" went from No. 11 to No. 23. "Human Touch" entered the charts as No. 2 and "Lucky Town" as No. 3.

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Controversy has touched Jane Fonda once again, this time at The Citadel.

She plans to attend commencement ceremonies at the military school Saturday, but Korean War veteran Larry Kinard said her presence "defiles the institution."

Kinard, a Charleston resident, was one of several people who called the college this week to object to the visit.

Fonda, married to media mogul Ted Turner, was an opponent of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, took a trip to Hanoi in 1972 and posed for pictures next to a North Vietnamese anti-aircraft gun. She later apologized for her support of North Vietnam.

Turner will give the commencement address at The Citadel and receive an honorary degree, his second from the college. More than 400 students are expected to receive degrees.

"Jane Fonda will be treated with dignity and courtesy and with the utmost respect," Citadel spokesman Ben Legare said. "Everybody is entitled to their opinions."

Turner and Fonda have visited the campus together before. He has three sons who graduated from the school. The senior class invited Turner to give the commencement address, Legare said.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — Barbara Jordan, the former Texas congresswoman, said she's tired of see-through public officials.

"Do you not just long and yearn for real people, substantive people, people who are not plastic?" Jordan asked Thursday.

Jordan

"I am so weary of people who are so thin you can see through them. What we need and what we long for are people like Bess Truman and her husband, Harry. People of substance. People of integrity. People who are real."

Jordan, who teaches ethics at the University of Texas in Austin, was in Truman's hometown to receive the Bess Wallace Truman Award, established in 1990 to honor the former first lady.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country singer Steve Wariner said his wife makes a good sounding board for new tunes.

"She's a good gauge in a lot of ways because she's like the typical person out there that's listening," Wariner said in an interview in the May issue of the Country Music Association's "Close Up" magazine.

"She's not musical, she just knows what she likes and what touches her as a woman," he said of wife Caryn. "A lot of times, I'll have a song that I'm just absolutely in love with, and she may not like it."

In a 12-year recording career, Wariner has had 12 No. 1 records, most recently "Tips of My Fingers," which topped charts in April.

NEWARK, N.J. — Associate Justice Clarence Thomas of the U.S. Supreme Court canceled an appearance at the Seton Hall University School of Law in Newark on Monday after learning that a women's group was planning a protest.

Thomas had been scheduled to serve as a judge in the final round of a moot-court competition at the school.

"Before he was ever nominated by President Bush, Judge John Gibbons invited him to judge our moot-court finals," Ronald Riccio, dean of the law school, said in a telephone interview on Thursday.

Gibbons, a former chief of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, is the Richard J. Hughes Professor of Constitutional Law at the school and a longtime friend of Thomas.

"After the nomination and appointment and the Anita Hill controversy, he confirmed to Judge Gibbons that he would honor his original commitment," Dean Riccio said.

First, National cars are backed by the Industry's first "Buy Back Guarantee" If for any reason you are not completely satisfied with a car you buy from us, bring it back within 30 days or 1000 miles and we'll exchange it or buy it back.

Second, we sell only late model cars. And because we display the price on the window of each car, there's none of the usual haggling over price.

Third, we have a wide variety of cars to choose from. National currently has cars available to sell that were manufactured by General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Nissan, Toyota, Dodge, GEO and Mercury.

Additionally as an added convenience National accepts trade-ins and can arrange financing.
