SANTA FE CHANGES AGENTS AT THIS PLACE

A. W. McDuff who has been looking after the affairs of the North Texas and Santa Fe Railroad at this place for the past three months has been replaced by W. F. Maxwell of Amarillo. Mr. McDuff goes to Book-er to relieve C. T. Burchett. "Mac" has made many friends during his short stay and hereafter joins with them in wishing his continued success wherever he may locate.

Mr. Maxwell needs no introduction to the people of this vicinity, he having been agent at Glazier for several years. Of late Mr. Maxwell has been serving as relief agent out of Amarillo. The Herald welcomes this new family to our city.

ANOTHER BIG WHEAT DEAL

J. E. Rhodes of the Liske Grain Company informs us that he has contracted with S. R. George for 10,000 bushels of wheat to be delivered by July 15th. This is only about one-half of Mr. George's crop. Ochiltree county is fast coming into her own as the premier wheat county of Texas.

NEW COMMANDER OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

John C. Emery, the new national commander of the American Legion hails from Grand Rapids, Mich. He was born on the Fourth of July forty years ago. His election, which was by acclamation of the National Executive Committee, took place at the National headquarters at Indianapolis. At the same time Thomas J. Bannigan of Hartford, Conn., was elected vice commander, succeeding Mr. Emery, who now fills the vacancy caused by the death of F. W. Galbraith, Jr.

Mr. Emery is a real estate operator. He has served as president of the Grand Rapids Real Estate Board and as one of the commissioners of that city. He is president of the First Division Club. His military record dates from his entrance to the Second Officers Training Camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., August 28, 1917. He attended various schools in France and was assigned to the 18th Infantry of the First Division. He commanded F Company of this regiment in the Montdidier-Noyon and Aisne-Marne offensive and became a major September 1, 1918, following the St. Mihiel and Argonne offensives. He was severely wounded by shell fire October 9, and was immediately sent to the United States. He was discharged from the hospital and from the army March 31, 1919. He has been active in American Legion affairs ever since.

Mr. Bannigan, the new vice-commander, has served as adjutant of the Connecticut department of the American Legion three years. During the war he served as a captain. He is a member of the Legion's National Committee on War Risk Insurance and Compensation.

DEDICATED TO THE EIGH- TEENTH AMENDMENT

My Country, 'tis of thee,
Land of grape juice and tea,
Of thee I sing;

Land where we all have tried
To break the law, and lied;

From every mountain-side
The bootlegs spring.

My native country thee,
Land of home brewerie,

Thy brew I love;

I love thy booze and thrills,
And thy illicit stills;

The moonshine runs in rills

FIRST LOAD OF 1921 WHEAT MARKETED IN TEXHOMA

H. S. Hawkins has the distinction of having marketed the first load of 1921 wheat in Texhoma. The wheat was brought to town Monday and sold to the Texhoma Elevator for $1.30 per bushel. It tested 60 lbs. Mr. Hawkins reports the yield of his crop where this was cut as having averaged 27 bushels per acre. He has one thousand acres of wheat and is running two combine Harvester machines to harvest this immense crop. He says that he expects to market from ten to fifteen thousand bushels of wheat in Texhoma during the month of June.—Texhoma Times.

Mrs. David D. Shanks is visiting her parents at Abilene, Texas. David Jr. accompanied his mother.

Dr. E. R. Jarvis and family and sisters Mrs. Sam D. Burton and Mrs. H. S. Witt visited at the home of their mother, Mrs. Jarvis in Hutchinson county over Sunday.

AMERICAN THEATRE RE-OPENS UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

The American Theatre re-opened for business last week. Mr. Thos. Thompson, the new owner, has made extensive improvements which will add much to the comfort of his customers. Mr. Thompson reports a nice business and we predict for him continued success for he is showing a very high grade run of films. The Herald is glad to see such people as Mr. Thompson and his family locate in our city.

MRS. ELIZABETH FINLEY

Elizabeth Cates was born in Salem, Missouri, March 23, 1865. In early womanhood she was married to Roland R. Finley. Several years after the marriage Mr. Finley died, leaving the wife and the two boys, J. W. and J. E., both of Perryton. During her married life Mrs. Finley obeyed the gospel of Christ, continuing throughout life faithful to the church of Christ.

Bright disease and leakage of the heart led Mrs. Finley to her death, June 22, 1921, at seven o'clock in the evening.

The two sons, grandchildren, other relatives, and friends gathered at the Finley home four miles south of Perryton for funeral services the day following Mrs. Finley's death. Evangelist Arthur B. Tinney of Harper, Kansas who was in a protracted meeting with the church of Christ at Balco, Oklahoma, conducted the funeral.

As the deceased was beyond the help of human efforts, Evangelist Tinney confined his remarks chiefly to the living ones, urging them to copy the good they had seen in the life of Mrs. Finley and to live in constant obedience to Christ that death would be to them the beginning of their real happiness.

Mrs. Sam D. Burton of Norman, Oklahoma and Mrs. H. S. Witt of Roosevelt, Oklahoma came in Friday for a visit with their brother, Dr. E. R. Jarvis and family.

J. A. Garvin of the Harned Printing Co. of Dallas, Texas, was a visitor to the Herald office last Friday. Mr. Garvin and family were enroute to Colorado for a two months vacation.

FIRST WHEAT MARKETING BY HERB BRILLHART

Yield and Quality is Much Better Than Expected

The honor of getting the first load of new wheat on the Perryton Market goes to Herb Brillhart. On June 23rd Mr. Brillhart sold to the Horne Grain Company the first load which he had raised on his farm 5 miles north east of town.

From all reports the yield per acre is going much higher than even the most optimistic estimated it would. A majority of the farmers are getting from 20 to 30 bushels per acre. The grade of grain is exceedingly above the average, all of the wheat testing from 58 to 61.

We still need several hundred more harvest hands. Nearly every crew in the country is working short handed.

COMMERICAL CLUB MEETS MONDAY NIGHT

Do your duty and attend the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Courthouse, Monday evening. Every business man should attend these meetings, every business man should be a member and give his time and financial assistance to this organization. Now do your bit and quit that slacker role.

BIG BALL GAME AND DANCE HERE ON FOURTH

A rattling good ball game is in store for the ball fans of this section when Beaver and Perryton clash here on next Monday, the Fourth of July. Beaver and Perryton will both present strengthened line-up and a fast game is expected.

The American Legion extends an invitation to everybody to attend their dance in the evening. The best of music has been obtained. There will be plenty of room for everybody to dance as there will be 7000 square feet of floor space available for dancing purposes.

ANOTHER OLD TIMER RETURNS TO OUR MIDST

Jimmie Wilson and family arrived in Perryton Saturday and will make their future home here. Mr. Wilson will take charge and open up the new wholesale oil station for the Pierce Oil Corporation. We are mighty glad to see Jimmie back in this country for he is a live wire business man and is well known throughout this country, he having been identified with the early business days of Ochiltree. The Herald welcomes this most estimable family back to our citizenship.

TOM CONNELL

Tom Connell, one of the oldest settlers of Lipscomb county, died at his home in Canadian on Sunday, June 19, and was buried at Lipscomb on Tuesday.

Mr. Connell first came to the Panhandle in the latter part of 1877. In company with Al Barton and J. D. Eubank, he located on Gibson Creek in Ochiltree county, and at that time, along with A. U. Young, M. W. Hays and Geo. Anderson, they constituted the total white population of this end of the Panhandle.

Later, Mr. Connell moved across the county line into Lipscomb county where he resided many years, becoming, on the organization of the county, the first County Judge. From Lipscomb he moved to Hemp-hill county where he served for several terms as county commissioner, being re-elected to that office at the last election, but on account of illness he was obliged to tender his resignation.

Tom Connell was one of Nature's gentlemen. He lived the simple life of the pioneer, and he died respected by all. His passing leaves another void among the fast thinning ranks of the old timers, who, one by one, are crossing the divide from whose bourne no traveler has ever returned, and soon, all too soon, the men who conquered the wilderness of the west will have all departed, and only memories of them and their labors will remain.—Higgins News.

Rain began falling in the Spearman country Sunday afternoon and continued intermittently until Tuesday noon. Five and three-fourth inches of rain fell at Spearman during that time. Fortunately we have had no wind and very little hail. The wheat is getting dead ripe in many fields now, and a strong wind would do much damage. What we need most at this time is sunshine and harvest hands.—Spearman Reporter.

The first wheat of the season was brought to town by J. F. Latimer, who sold for $1.20 to the Cozart Elevator Co.—Higgins News.

DR. POWELL, The Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Specialist will be at Dr. Brewer's office in Perryton, July 7. Glasses, Tonics and Adenoids removed. Examination free, work guaranteed. 21-ltc

Fire Insurance On Grain in Field

As harvest time approaches and grain ripens, there comes a danger that fields will catch on fire (from trains, tramps, harvest hands, cigarettes, pipes, thrashing-machines, lightning and numerous other causes) and that whole crops will be partially destroyed.

Two years ago we introduced in this County a form of insurance covering this hazard against fire from any cause, including lightning. This policy covers on standing grain, after it is cut it covers in shocks, stacks or ricks, and after it is thrashed it covers in piles, sacks, barns, bins, or granaries; in short, this policy covers the grain in any condition it is in at any place on the farm.

We have paid several losses in the last two years on this form of insurance and have a number of customers who desire it each year. I am pleased to advise you that the rate on this policy has been reduced materially since last season, for example, I can write you $1000 insurance for a term of thirty days for $3.20, sixty days for $4.80, and ninety days for $6.40. You will note that this is a very small cost for the protection, and if you sell your grain before the expiration of the policy, policy can be cancelled and return premium paid you in cash.

These policies are recognized by the Federal Reserve Bank and if a loan on your grain is needed a policy of this kind will be required; loss payable clause can be made payable to any bank, or individual that you desire.

It will be impossible for us to make a personal canvass of the County to write this insurance but a telephone call or postcard is all that is necessary for us to bind the risk for you. We are also pleased to advise that we are in position to carry this premium until grain is marketed.

If interested, let us hear from you.

ANY INDUSTRIES TIED TO TOBACCO

Prohibition of Weed Would Mean Big Financial Loss to Allied Trades.

WHO USES THE MATCH?

The Smoker Mainly—Also Responsible for Spending Hundreds of Millions Annually for Licorice, Sugar, Coal, Cigar Boxes, Tin Foil, Etc.

By GARRET SMITH

"Got a match?" How many times a day is that question asked in these United States? How many more times is the question unnecessary because most pockets are kept well supplied with the useful little article? Anyhow, inasmuch as it is estimated that there are 80,000,000 tobacco users in the country, we would guess that the answer to that question would run into the hundreds of millions.

For if it weren't for the smokers in these days of electric lights how many matches would be used? A pretty small proportion of the number of these "sticks of blazing" produced in the country every year. Abolish tobacco and the match business would be shot to pieces.

But the match business is only one of a dozen or more allied industries which derive large revenues directly or indirectly from the tobacco trade and would suffer heavily if national prohibition of tobacco were to go into effect as some of our reformers would have it. The annual sales of tobacco products, based on retail prices, is estimated at $1,937,000,000. Of the cost of producing and selling this quantity of cigars, cigarettes and other forms of the weed, some hundreds of million dollars are paid out for other things than the raw tobacco and labor of making it up.

$25,000,000 a Year for Boxes

For example, the tobacco trade consumes each year 45,000,000 pounds of licorice, 50,000,000 pounds of sugar, both used in flavoring tobacco, and 650,000 tons of coal. It is estimated that the value of wooden cigar boxes used is $25,000,000 a year, quite an item to the lumber business and to manufacturers of the boxes.

In making these boxes 550,000 pounds of nails are employed. Other large items used in making and preparing tobacco for sale are tin and lead foil, paper for bags and cigarette wrappers, cloth for tobacco bags, labels, coupons, etc., involving the printing trade extensively.

Then building contractors and manufacturers of machinery are largely interested. Investments in plants and machinery employed in manufacturing tobacco are estimated at $102,000,000. Replacement, up-keep and interest on the investment make no small sum annually.

And let realty men note there are approximately $25,000 tobacco farms in the country, with a total estimated valuation of $160,000,000. Of further interest to real estate men is the fact that there are 700,000 retail establishments selling tobacco, involving a total rental and up-keep impossible to estimate, besides the large amount of office space occupied by administrative branches of the general business.

The insurance men, too, have their share of the pickings. The tobacco business pays out annually $7,000,000 in premiums in the United States.

And there are the railroads who reap revenue from 2,230,000 tons of tobacco products every year.

As for the advertising business, here again it is impossible to form any estimate of the enormous annual outlay.

The prohibition of tobacco would also knock a good-sized hole in the receipts of the United States government. The internal revenue receipts from tobacco for the fiscal year 1920 amounted to $296,809,355.44. Customs duties provided an additional $25,000,000 in round figures, making the total revenue return to the government $320,000,000.

Influence on Popular Sentiment

It is this interlocking of the tobacco business with so many other interests and the vast amount of financial loss that would be involved in the abolition of tobacco that is one of the most serious aspects of the proposal to prohibit the sale of tobacco, a proposal, however, which has little support by public sentiment if the newspaper editors of the country are correct in their estimate of that sentiment.

In a poll of the editors made recently by the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States, through the Press Service Company of New York City, 96 per cent of the 7,847 editors who replied expressed the opinion that the people of their communities were opposed to any law against tobacco. As these editors represent some 80,000,000 readers the results form a pretty general test of national opinion.

In their remarks accompanying their replies many of the editors expressed it as their opinion that the opposition of their communities to the abolition of tobacco was based to some extent at least on the damage such a change would do to the business interests of the community. This was particularly true in the tobacco growing states and centers where there were large tobacco plants.

But when the extent of the business involved in the allied interests of the tobacco trade is considered, as above briefly outlined, it is clear that there is hardly a section of the country that would not be affected directly or indirectly by abolishing tobacco.

As to whether high society is a union or open shop depends much upon how big a wad of money you have.

Pointing out the weeds in your neighbor's yard will not make those in your own garden more beautiful.

And there are other things around here which violate the speed limit besides automobiles.

The London Times is restricting its circulation, and all the other papers are wondering why. Maybe the subscribers don't pay up.

We are not going to allude to our legislators any more as salons. We looked the word up in the dictionary and find that it means a wise man.

Tearing another's character to pieces will not help your own, no matter how bad the other fellow's may be.

A swallow does not make a summer, but a few swallows of hooch makes some fellows think they are birds.

Old John Barlecorn is getting it now right where he has always been handing it to other people—in the neck.

The man who takes care of our automobiles receives more pay than the one who looks after the salvation of our souls.

This 1921 hooch is sure pizen. One man was run in by a policeman for scolding his wife on the street corner—the wife was not there at all.

One state legislature prohibited motion pictures which show the wind blowing girl's skirts. It will legislate against the wind blowing at all as soon as it gets around to it.

One town will get ahead while another stagnates. One Chamber of Commerce will bring industries, while another will accomplish nothing more startling than good eats and oratory.

One U. S. Senator made a speech about rivers and harbors and naval equipment that lasted twenty hours. That man knows more about wind than water.

Woodrow Wilson's ideals will some day be realized and he will be vindicated, but it will take another million years, for human nature will have to be changed, and civilization has only got a small start as yet.

We don't like to antagonize Sam Gompers or organized labor, but must suggest that the eight hour laws be suspended, in order that the fool killer, who is way behind in his work, can put in double shift and catch up.

It has been estimated that, while 48,000 American soldiers were killed or died of wounds during the war, 91,000 people were killed on the highways of the United States. The statisticians, apparently, are still trying to prove that the safest place of all was a front line trench.

The only redeeming feature about eating a picnic lunch out in the wilds, or rather sharing it with the ants and other bugs, is the fact that there are not waiters to tip. Waiters have sense enough to stay home.

Billy Sunday is holding forth at Cleveland, Ohio. He saved that wicked old town about two years ago, but it blackslid, and now he has to do it all over again. And that is the way with a lot of us. After we get saved we won't stay hitched.

As we have all been continuously donating to all the rest of the impecunious world for some years now, and given until it hurt, won't somebody be kind enough to start in over in Europe and make a drive for us? Wonder what kind of a reception they would get? Probably get killed.

HOME PATRIOTISM

It was "Flag Day" the other day, and some people put out a flag and hurrahed and gave three cheers, who never gave anything else. Patriotism is a grand good thing, but it ought to mean more than making a noise or hanging a banner. Incidentally, also, it ought to begin at home, like charity. It is a mighty poor patriotism that is wholly vocal; that wears a button or bouquet on the birthday of Washington or Lincoln and blows off a thumb on Fourth of July, but wouldn't help a crippled soldier because it would cost something. It is also a poor patriot who spends his money in some town other than the one where he earns it. We need local patriotism more than any other kind. If you would be a real sure-nuff patriot, do something for your home town, other than extending the glad hand and exercising your vocal chords. Boost for it, help it in every possible way, trade at home and thus keep money in local circulation, encourage all home enterprises, whether it be a merchant, a factory, a newspaper, a theatre, a church or a merry-go-around. Talk for home, fight for home, first, last and all the time, and then you will show the kind of stuff that men like George Washington, Abraham Lincoln were made of, and emulate the patriotism of the handful of men who fought for the flag against awful odds when there were but thirteen states in the Union.

A subscriber came in to tell us he started to bring in a quart of his own home-made brew, but that it had eaten the bottom out of the bottle and leaked out. We believed him, because after he went out there were blisters on our neck and hands from his breath.

That's all a mistake about the state of Missouri paying the railroad fares of former Missourians to come back to the home state in August to celebrate the centennial at the state fair. Fellows who were fool enough to leave Missouri and haven't got money enough to get back will have to stay where they are. Missouri is in the hands of the Republicans anyhow and it wouldn't seem like home any more.—"Cap" Mitchell, Shattuck Monitor.

One comic paper shows a little boy reading a novel at a window. A thunder and lightning storm comes up and he switches from the novel to the bible, but as soon as the storm abates he switches back to the novel. Now, ain't that just like all the rest of us? "When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be, but when the devil got well the devil a monk was he."

It may be none of our business, but just the same we are never going to do otherwise than fight the idea of women wearing pantaloons. A woman in trousers looks like hell. Now, kind reader, we do not say this to be profane, or anything of that kind, but just because there is no other word to express the fact. A woman sticks out too much both fore and aft to look good in pants, and besides that she is bowlegged. Now just listen to a lot of 'em snort!

John Wannamaker and Carnegie have both admonished men not to die rich, and as we have the highest opinion of both these worthy gentlemen we have resolved that we will heed their advice, and refrain from dying rich. Of course, this is a great sacrifice for an editor to make, but it has just simply got to be done, so here goes. Boy, go out and order us a steak for supper!

Why can't Perryton take the necessary steps to secure a camp site in the Rockies. Under a recent act of congress, it has been made possible for an incorporated town to secure a camp site free, the only condition being that sanitary and fire prevention regulations be observed. In the Santa Fe National Forest there are about 2500 sections open for camp sites, and it is said that the country is the most picturesque to be found anywhere. We think that one of these camp sites would be a fine thing for our town. A community house could be built for the use of everybody from this county who love the mountain air and scenery. Let's have one—who do you say?

Whether this wireless business is going to prove a blessing or not is still a problem. One can converse now 2,000 miles, but face a poor downtrodden henpecked married man who has finally managed to get that far away having his wife scold him just as easy as though he had remained at home.

ASSESSED VALUATION OF PERRYTON INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT IS $8,254,391

County Assessor J. W. Wright and County Treasurer Viola Rupprecht have completed the tax rolls for the Perryton Independent School District. The total assessed valuation is $8,254,391.00 of which about one-half is paid by non-resident property owners. In making up this tax roll real estate was assessed at approximately two-thirds actual value and personal property at one-half value. This means that the actual value of property in this district will reach a grand total of about $15,000,000.00.

The Fight for the Registry

By FREDERICK CLARKE

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"You did us a good turn once, Doc. We intend to return the compliment." Young Dr. Hector Fairbanks smiled pleasantly but inquiringly—in fact, almost suspiciously. The speaker was Dan Babbitt. As he stood garbed in his rude Tennessee mountaineer's costume, two holsters at his belt, strength, independence and grit showing in every strong lineament of his face, the doctor did not marvel that he had been made the leader of the famous "Midnight Riders."

It was a raw district, that of which the young physician had been a resident for about a year. There were two principal points in the county—Ridgeford and Princeville. It was at the former town that Dr. Fairbanks had taken up his abode. The two places were only five miles apart, and the "safety zone," as it was called, encircled them for an area of about twenty miles. Thence to the south of Princeville was a mountainous stretch infested by rough moonshiners known as the Breckitt clan. The same condition prevailed south of Ridgeford, where Dan Babbitt and his "Midnight Riders" held full sway. A broken ridge divided the two districts, the respective right and privileges of which were jealously guarded by either community.

For years a small but solidly built structure located just on the township line at a little settlement called Bryan had been the registry office of the county. All the official business of the district was carried on there, and there the county records were kept. One night the Breckitt raiders, wiping out a fancied insult from the main residents of the place, "shot up" the settlement, set fire to what little there was of it, and every structure in Bryan was consumed except the registry's office.

The state authorities were advised of this outrage and ordered a special election. The votes of the county were to decide upon a new site for the registry's office, with a view to locating it in a less isolated locality where its records could be protected. A central point was necessary, and the choice designated was between Ridgeford and Princeville.

Now, three days later, Dan walked into the office of Dr. Fairbanks with the words that begin our story.

The favor which the young physician had done to which Dan alluded was an exigency call for attendance on a wounded friend for whom the officers were looking. He rode twenty miles amidst all the perils of a dark, stormy night, saved the life of the refugee, braved a stray shot from the watching Breckitts and won the undying gratitude of Dan.

"I thought I would come and tell you how things stood about the registry office," continued the young out-law leader.

"Why, the election has settled that matter," observed Dr. Fairbanks.

"Not by a long shot!" dissented Dan vigorously. "An election isn't much in this county. Jed Breckitt realizes that and, we have accidentally learned, has sent for a house moving outfit to lug the registry's office, records and all, over to Princeville."

"You amaze me!" exclaimed the young physician.

"Just let them get that building over to Princeville," continued Dan, "and we'll never get it back. I want you to quietly get about fifty of the residents here who can be depended on, ready to act with my crowd to-morrow night."

"There's old Doliver and his gal—especially the gal, bless her pretty eyes!" Miss Dora—

Old Jonathan Doliver had been the registrar of the county from time immemorial. His daughter Dora was his chief clerk.

"You people make a stand here," ordered Dan to the doctor and his party the next night. "If we need you we'll signal."

Lanterns were flashing, men moving about. They had been anticipated. There was the registry office, moved about fifty feet from its original site, being slowly and cautiously dragged along the top of the ridge.

"Charge 'em!" ordered Dan at once. "Leave the rest to me," and then, as his men drove into the unprepared Breckitts, Dan sprang to the cable, his bowie knife in hand, and began hacking at it.

"Look out—she's coming!" his strenuous voice thundered out.

The startled and amazed contingent led by Dr. Fairbanks witnessed a fearful spectacle, as down the steep hillside the heavy, clumsy structure came hurtling. It toppled from grade to grade, then three hundred feet below at the edge of the road it landed with a crash, a mere kindling wood wreck.

There were shots overhead, then they ceased, and then the voice of Dan Babbitt was heard distinctly:

"We are two to one, you fellows. If it's a fight, come on—but no scrimmaging. The registry office is over on our side of the township line now, and we're ready to defend our rights."

The Breckitts made off sullenly. Dan came down with horses and drag. "Pick up the splinters, boys," he ordered. "Take special care of those iron record boxes. Doc," and he lowered his tone to a chuckling whisper. "I reckon that sweet Doliver gal will keep her position a little longer, eh?—until you give her a life-long one in that new home of yours."

A FEW CHOICE CAKES.

In making cake for every day use the ordinary flour is satisfactory. But a fine-grained cake of delicate texture is best made of pastry flour.

Ribbon Cake.—Cream a scant cupful of butter, add gradually two and one-third cupfuls of sugar, then add four eggs one after another with out previous beating. Add four cupfuls of flour with four and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and to the first mixture alternately with one cupful of milk. Beat thoroughly. Bake two-thirds of the mixture in two layer tins. Add to the rest one cupful of nut meats, one-half cupful each of cherries, currants, and citron, one cupful of raisins, two tablespoonfuls of cocoa, two teaspoonfuls of molasses, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cloves. Put the layers together with fruit jelly, cover with boiled frosting and decorate with halves of walnut meats.

Lemon Sherbet.—Take a one-pint can of condensed milk, extract the juice from three large lemons, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, stir until the sugar is dissolved, add the milk and fold in the whites of three eggs beaten stiff. Freeze.

Creamed Lima Beans.—Cook the beans gently in water until tender, using just as little as possible. When done, add two tablespoonfuls of condensed milk, two tablespoonfuls of water, a dash of paprika, a piece of butter the size of a walnut, and serve hot.

Imperial Cake.—Take one-half pound of sugar, the yolks of five eggs, the grated rind of half a lemon, two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice, one-half pound of raisins, one-half cupful of walnuts, one-half cupful of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of soda. Mix as usual, dredging the raisins with flour, and adding the nuts after the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a loaf.

As much depends upon the proper baking of cake as on the mixing. The heat of the oven should be such that it can be easily regulated.

A Lady of the Last Century

By MURIEL BLAIR

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Yes, Mr. Gurney, this is the old Epping Manor House," said the agent. "It has been in the hands of the Epping family for close on three hundred years. For rent, fully furnished, at—"

He named an absurdly low sum—at least, so the young American painter thought.

"You see," the man continued confidentially, "it's too quiet a place for Mrs. Epping and Miss Sylvia. While old Mr. Epping was alive it was a home to them. But since he's been dead they've wanted to get away from the sights that perpetually reminded them of him."

Gurney agreed cordially with this sentiment. He was spending the year in England and meant to have at least six weeks alone to finish his great panel painting of the destruction of Alexandria, the order for which from the public library in his home city had held out to him the hope of recognition and success after his many years of loneliness and poverty.

"Mrs. Epping's a bit of an invalid," the agent said one day, just after Gurney had moved in. "She says she'd be very pleased to make your acquaintance if you would care to call any afternoon at Chilworth."

"He seemed at one something awful," the agent told Mrs. Epping afterward. "He seems cut out to be a hermit, that young man does."

Yet, somehow the panel painting made little progress. The fact is, Gurney found what many people have found: that it is easier to be alone in company, than when one has one's own thoughts for companions. Life in this old English house proved delightfully puzzle-provoking. He explored every nook of the rambling old building. But he always came back to the long central hall, where the portraits of the Eppings hang.

Some of them bore names upon the frames, but she was unnamed, this beauty of the long ago, dressed in the big Gainsborough hat and wide-sleeved gown of the days of the third George.

Gurney was fascinated by this picture. And she must have been dead nearly a century!

Gurney's work was abandoned; he would spend hours before the picture.

"Work? He don't work any more," said old Mrs. Smith, the village gossip. "He just moons around and stares at the pictures. I think the young man must be in love."

In due time this piece of news reached the ears of the kind-hearted Mrs. Epping.

"Perhaps the young man lives too much alone," she said. "Martha, tell James to harness the pony to the dog-cart."

When the invalid made a decision she acted upon it. In little over an hour she had driven up to the manor house, and at the gate found herself confronted by a young man with wild eyes and tousled hair—and yet unmistakably a gentleman.

"Mr. Gurney?" she asked. "I am Mrs. Epping. And seeing that he made no move to ask her in, she added tactfully:

"I have heard about your paintings and thought I would ask you to let me see them."

In half an hour she had completely won his heart. She departed, carrying his promise to pay her a call at no distant date. He spent the night before the picture.

In the morning old Mrs. Smith found him lying in a delirium in the hall.

"Brain fever," pronounced the doctor. "The cause? Well, I should say overwork, combined with solitude, perhaps."

"I shall never forgive myself—never," said Mrs. Epping. "James, harness the pony to the dog-cart."

This time she had come to stay, as two well-filled trunks that accompanied her attested. She and Sylvia took up their residence at the Manor, and for two weeks they assiduously nursed Gurney through the crisis of his malady.

"When he wakes," said the doctor, "he will be in his right mind again."

Now whether Mrs. Epping had shrewdly guessed the source of the disjointed utterances, which escaped the artist's lips during his delirium and made her plans accordingly or whether it was kindly chance, nobody can say, but when Gurney opened his eyes again to reason he saw bending over him the face of the woman in the portrait. But it was the living face of a young and charming girl, and blushing red under the young man's earnest scrutiny.

"Well," said Mrs. Epping, entering the room, "you two are looking at each other as though you had never seen a person of the opposite sex before. Mr. Gurney, this is my daughter, Sylvia, whose portrait you may have seen in the hall, in fancy dress, representing a lady of the last century."

Gurney lay back on his pillows, utterly content. It was a miracle, the doctor said, which brought him back to health so swiftly. But Sylvia knew differently.

"You gave me back my life," he said softly, as they left the parish church together, man and wife, three months later, "and I am going to devote my life to you."

It is Sylvia's face which forms the central panel of Gurney's great painting in the Museum of Edinburgh—his masterpiece.

Dynamite Aids Cupid

By HAZEL SMITH

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"It seems," said Evan Bruce, salesman, "that I have come to this dead burg on a fruitless errand. Biddle & Co., quarrymen, have burned out, eh? Won't start up for sixty days. No train out for three hours. Suppose I go out to where he lives, and see if I cannot get an order out of him for future delivery?"

No sooner said than done. Just beyond the edge of a small stream running near a ravine he came upon a pretty country house. No one responded to continuous ringing of the door bell. Bruce was about to return townwards when he noticed the flutter of skirts near a pretty little cottage on the same lot.

It was pleasant to the tired traveler to meet Miss Verona Biddle and find that her father would return within an hour. It grew pleasanter still as she invited Bruce to rest on a comfortable porch seat, which she shared with him.

"I was tidying up the cottage here, which my married brother and his family have occupied until today," she explained. "Papa has just driven them to the depot. It will be lonely for us, but brother's business called him to a new location."

It began to rain shortly, and they had to go into the house for shelter just as Mr. Biddle arrived and joined them. Bruce handed his business card to the bluff old quarryman.

"Dynamite, eh?" observed Mr. Biddle, reading the card. "Sorry I can't give you an order. I might have taken some for later use, but this big flood has done worse than the fire."

It continued to rain. Bruce lingered another hour. Mr. Biddle went out and studied the heavy clouds.

"See here," he said, "just make up your mind to stay with us over night."

Bruce glanced at the trim figure and charming face of his hostess and under no duress. He held an umbrella over Verona while they ran for the large house. Then the deft little housekeeper busied herself preparing supper.

They had just concluded the evening meal when there came a harsh rapid jangle at the telephone. Mr. Biddle answered the call. He instantly dropped the receiver and ran for his hat.

"It's come!" he announced in a tone of deep concern—"the dam has broken and the flood is on. Can you hold me a bit, Mr. Bruce?"

"Why, surely," acceded Bruce promptly.

The young salesman knew little about floods as he assisted his host in getting some cattle from the low-lying meadows into the stables.

"We must be ready for a dash to the highlands if this grows worse," advised his host. "I've been through this before."

"Is it a question of the stream rising enough to reach the house?" inquired Bruce, with a speculative look in his eyes.

"Just that," was the positive response.

The young salesman returned to the house and took up his satchel. He had studied the contour of the surroundings and he knew his business.

Mr. Biddle and his daughter were standing on the porch wondering what had become of their guest. Ten minutes went by, then half an hour.

Crash!—a terrific explosion rattled the windows of the house. As father and daughter stood petrified with amazement, Bruce came into view bearing the empty satchel in one hand and a battery apparatus in the other.

"Look at your creek now," he spoke in something of a tone of triumph.

"You are a practical man," was the comment of Mr. Biddle, as he did look and was told what had caused the water to recede.

"I simply blew out the ravine wall," explained Bruce. "The dynamite did it. There's a vent now that may fill up the ravine, but you won't have any flood hereabouts."

So practical a man was Bruce, in deed, that Mr. Biddle offered him the superintendency of his plant when he started up again.

So sensible was Bruce, that he proposed to Verona within a month, married her in two, and the pretty cottage had new occupants.

Habits of the Eel.

The slithering eel is one of the commonest of fish, being found in nearly every ditch, pond or canal. Small eels have been found in water pipes and sometimes they come even as far down the pipe as the tap, causing the stoppage of water.

It is not known quite what eels feed on, but it is known that they are sometimes ferocious, and often snap off the legs of waterfowl and catch small birds that are unsuspectingly hopping on the ground. The eel also eats and enjoys the eggs of other fish and even attacks large fish.

Service.

"Our friend insists that he is anxious to serve his country," remarked Senator Sorghum.

"To what line of service is he inclined?"

"I think he is particularly anxious to help pass the pie."

Cynicism of All Eyes.

"Is she very pretty?"

"Pretty! Say! When she gets on a street car the advertising is a total loss!"—Boston Transcript.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Most of the critical things in life, which become the starting points of human destiny, are little things.—P. Smith.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Serve green onions often as well as asparagus, but vary the methods of serving. It takes 20 stalks of 8-inch asparagus to meet the allowance of one calorie portion. As most of the flavor vegetables lack fuel value, though rich in mineral salts, they are best served with a full allowance of some food which provides fuel.

Puree of Onions.—Peel, slice and parboil six medium-sized onions; drain and put into a soup kettle with one-fourth of a cupful of butter; stir and cook until a light yellow; add one-third of a cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of salt and stir until well blended; add one quart of veal broth and stir until boiling; add a second quart of broth and let simmer until the onions are tender; strain through a fine sieve, pressing all the onion through that is possible. Reheat and add salt, pepper, and serve with bread buttered and browned in the oven. When serving sprinkle a teaspoonful of finely minced parsley over the soup.

Spanish Steaks.—Have two pounds of round steak cut two inches thick from the top of the round. Leave the fat on the meat and pan broil in a hot frying pan until well browned on both sides. Add three-fourths of a cupful of boiling water and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes. Spread over the meat a layer of sliced onions, sprinkling them lightly with salt and pepper. Cover and let cook an hour. Lay the solid part of a can of tomato toes over the onions and return to the oven for 15 minutes. Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese and return to the oven long enough to melt the cheese. The steak should be very tender with a thick sauce. The cooking must be done in a moderate oven.

Luncheon Rarebit.—Melt one-half pound of cheese over hot water. In a separate dish turn a can of tomato soup. Beat and season well with paprika. Turn the melted cheese into the hot soup and beat. Turn the rarebit dressing over toasted rounds of heated bread and serve with crisp celery and hot coffee.

TOBACCO'S FOES LOSING GROUND

Canvass of 7,847 Editors Shows
7,393 Communities Against Abolishing Weed.

ANTIS LOSE THREE STATES.

Utah, Under Mormon Influence, Only Commonwealth to Adopt Prohibition Measure During Year.

"Is tobacco going to have its scalp added to the belt of the prohibitionist beside that of the lamented but as yet not altogether late alcohol?" is the question asked by Garret Smith in an article in the current issue of Leslie's Magazine.

The writer reaches the conclusion that while there has been increased agitation and legislative activity on the subject of tobacco following the success of the drive for prohibition of liquor the efforts of reformers seeking to abolish tobacco have no general support. This opinion is based on the results of the questionnaires on the subject sent out to newspaper editors of the country by the Press Service Company of New York City.

The questions asked were:
(1) Do you favor the enactment of laws prohibiting the personal use of tobacco by adults?

(2) In your judgment does the general sentiment of your community favor such legislation?

(3) Is the use of tobacco personally objectionable to you?

No arguments accompanied the questions and from their form it was impossible for any editor to determine the attitude of the questioners.

Out of 12,518 editors questioned, 7,847 replied according to the summary given. These editors, it is estimated, represent a combined circulation of 21,870,046. Of the 7,847 editors replying, 7,393, or 95 per cent, represent public sentiment in their communities as opposed to anti-tobacco legislation.
Only 200 editors, or 3 per cent of those replying believed there was any considerable sentiment favorable to tobacco prohibition. There were 174, or 2 per cent, in doubt, while 20 failed to record their judgment.

Editors' Judgment Unbiased

"It is of special interest to note that 569 editors in answering the first question, personally favored such legislation, although only 200 of them reported that public opinion also favored the prohibition of tobacco—an indication of the conscientious effort made by the editors to distinguish public opinion from their own personal opinions," the article continues.

"The highest percentage of replies reporting public opinion favorable to prohibition of tobacco came from Utah, where 42 per cent of the editors thought the public were for such a movement. Utah is the only state which has since adopted an anti-cigarette law. The result was forecast by several of the editors who stated that the influence of the Mormon Church was against tobacco. The Mormon Church is also strong in Idaho, which is the other state where the use of tobacco was recently prohibited, but the governor has signed the bill just passed, in which the prohibitory legislation is repealed. In this state 80 per cent of the editors estimate sentiment in their communities as against tobacco prohibition, which, nevertheless, is 6 per cent below the average reported opposition.

"The legislature of Tennessee some weeks ago passed and the governor has signed a bill repealing the anti-cigarette law of that state. The questionnaire showed 93 per cent of its editors believed the public against anti-tobacco legislation. The legislature of Arkansas has also passed a bill repealing its anti-cigarette law. In this state 94 per cent of the editors reported against tobacco prohibition.

Arizona's Practical Joke

"A bill, introduced in the current session of the legislature of Arizona to prohibit smoking in public dining rooms and other public places, was first amended to prohibit the consumption in public of peanuts, chewing gum, tea and coffee and then defeated by the senate. The questionnaire returns from that state were 92 per cent 'no.'

"In Iowa where the 'no's' were 95 per cent a bill to repeal the anti-cigarette law has been passed and signed by the governor.

"A bill to repeal the anti-cigarette law in Kansas, with 89 per cent 'no's,' is receiving the attention of its legislature. Last year a petition for a referendum in Oregon to prohibit the use of tobacco failed of sufficient signatures to bring the question to a vote, and 95 per cent of the editors declare their public against legislation.
In Oklahoma an anti-cigarette bill has been reported unfavorably in the house. The editors of that state reported 94 per cent against its public support.

"Outside of Utah, where Mormon influence predominates," the article concludes, "the anti-tobacco movement appears, as in the case of Tennessee, Arkansas and Iowa, to be losing ground and is not to any considerable extent supported by the people."

The friends of tobacco feel particularly elated over this showing, inasmuch as 1920-21 was a maximum year in legislative circles with 42 state legislatures in session and the tobacco subject received an unusual amount of consideration.

HELPFUL HINTS.

course of a day will drive away

Oranges, cut in small bits with the give to a fever patient who needs something often to cool the mouth.

If cracked ice is to be used in the sickroom, it will keep longer if a piece of cheesecloth is tied over the bowl and the ice kept in it. Cover the bowl with another and place a paper bag over both. This will save many steps to renew the ice.

For the bed-ridden who get so tired lying in one position, the following help will be greatly appreciated: Tie stout new cotton cloth strips on each side of the headboard or bed-frame, having a large knot in the end of each strip to hold. By grasping these supports one may raise up or change position easily. The knots may be slipped under the pillow when not in use.

For tired feet, a mixture of baking soda and talcum, sprinkled into the shoes, will give great relief. For corns and callouses, keep them covered with adhesive tape, renewing as often as the bathing of the feet removes the plaster. This keeps the hard places soft.

In applying adhesive plaster to a wound, use short strips with tapes fastened to the strips, which may be untied, the dressing changed and re-tied without disturbing the adhesive at all.

A simple method to clean silver blackened from use is to place the silver in an aluminum dish with a teaspoonful each of baking soda and salt. Do not boil too long for silver, which is thinly coated may be entirely removed. One may use a piece of aluminum in a granite dish as the solution will roughen a good dish.
