Services tomorrow

LOTTER, Pauline — 2 p.m., Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors Colonial Chapel, Pampa.

Pauline Loter, 91

Pauline Loter, 91, of Pampa, died Saturday, Feb. 11, 2006, in Pampa.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Monday in Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Loter was born on Aug. 14, 1914, in Stigler, Okla., and was raised in the Childress, Texas, area. She had been a resident of Pampa since 1976.

She married T.I. Loter on Oct. 20, 1932, in Hollis, Okla. He preceded her in death on Sept. 13, 2003.

Mrs. Loter worked as a sales clerk at Gabriel's Department Store in Plainview for 15 years, and she worked in various garden centers in Pampa for about 10 years.

She was a member of First Freewill Baptist Church. She was known by her family as "Mama" Loter. She loved gardening, working with flowers, and quilting.

Survivors include two daughters, Eloise

Dowlen and Marilyn Howell and husband Jim, all of Pampa; two sons, Ronnie Loter and wife Weta and Lonnie Loter and wife Ann, all of Pampa; seven grandsons, Keith Dowlen of Round Rock, Mike Dowlen of Quanah, Glynn Dowlen and Barry Dowlen, both of Amarillo, Kelly Loter of Dallas, Trent Loter of Pampa, and Lance Howell of Las Vegas, Nev.; three granddaughters, Shannon Loter of Pampa, Amy Chapman of Amarillo, and Stacy Loter of Austin; nine great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents and by a brother and a sister.

The family requests memorials be to Meals on Wheels, 302 E. Foster, Pampa, TX 79065; Pampa Special Olympics, P.O. Box 375, Pampa, TX 79066; or Odyssey Healthcare, 1000 S. Jefferson, Amarillo, TX 79101.

Henry Urbanczyk, 91

WHITE DEER, Texas — Henry Urbanczyk, 91, of White Deer, died Feb. 9, 2006, in Amarillo, Texas.

Rosary will be at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 14, 2006, in Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel in Pampa. Funeral mass will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 15, 2006, at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church in Pampa with Bishop John Yanta, of the Amarillo Diocese, officiating.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery in Pampa under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Mr. Urbanczyk was born Sept. 22, 1914, in White Deer, to John and Rose Urbanczyk, one of the first settlers in the Texas Panhandle. He had been a lifelong resident of White Deer, graduating from White Deer High School.

He married Joy Griffin, and she preceded him in death in 1968.

He was a member of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church in Pampa and the Knights of the Holy Sepulcher. He was a farmer, rancher, businessman, and oil wildcatter.

He was a founder and supporter of the Genesis House in Pampa.

He was a contributor to the building of The Cross in Groom, and he contributed in the building of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church and facilities. He was a member of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and was a former president and member of the White Deer Lions Club, and he was active in the White Deer Independent School District.

Survivors include two daughters, J'Non Wright of Olympia, Wash., and J'Hon Lathy of Columbus, Ohio; two sons, Jonathan Urbanczyk of Miami, Fla., and Christopher Urbanczyk of Houston; one brother, Will Urbanczyk and wife Pat of White Deer; one sister-in-law, Isabelle Urbanczyk of Panhandle; seven grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Airline pilot arrested on suspicion of being drunk

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — An American Airlines pilot was arrested at Manchester Airport on suspicion of being drunk Saturday shortly before his flight was due to take off, police and the airline said.

One of three pilots on Flight 55 to Chicago had been arrested before the flight boarded on suspicion of being intoxicated, airline spokesman Tim Wagner said.

Greater Manchester Police confirmed that a crew member, a 45-year-old man from Ohio, had been arrested. He was released on bail pending the results of tests and was due to report to a Manchester police station Tuesday, a police spokesman said.

The flight, scheduled to depart at 10:30 a.m. local time, left the northwestern English city about an hour late and was due to stop in New York to pick up a new pilot before continuing to Chicago. Three pilots are required on flights lasting longer than eight hours.

The plane was expected to land in Chicago at 3:50 p.m. CST.

Wagner said the airline, based in Fort Worth, Texas, had begun an internal investigation into the arrest, which he called an "isolated incident."

Animal Control Officer Monty Montgomery shows a neutered male yellow Labrador retriever, one of the dogs available for adoption last week at Pampa Animal Shelter.

"The more information we can find out on a pet, the better chance we have of finding them a home," Burns said.

The number of animals awaiting adoption varies from day to day, with the highest daily count at 79, said Animal Control Officer Monty Montgomery.

Animals that do not have vaccination tags are kept at the shelter for 72 hours. Tagged animals are kept for six days.

"If it's a really adoptable dog or cat, we will try to hold it longer," Burns said.

Persons adopting animals at the shelter must sign a contract agreeing to have the pet spayed or neutered if the procedure has not already been performed on the animal.

"State law requires that the pet has to be spayed or neutered if adopted out of a shelter," Burns said.

A voucher for a current rabies vaccine is also provided with each adopted animal. Burns collects the used vouchers from local veterinarians to check on whether the adopted pets have been vaccinated. The new owner is asked to provide paperwork showing that spaying or neutering was accomplished, if the procedure was required.

New owners have 30 days to get an adult dog or cat from the shelter spayed or neutered. If the animal is a puppy or kitten, six months is allowed for the procedure.

Not all animals are adopted.

"It's just a fact of life that there are more pets than homes," Burns said.

Nationwide, six to eight million dogs and cats enter shelters each year, and half of them are euthanized because too few people adopt from shelters, according to The Humane Society of the United States, the nation's largest animal protection organization with 9.5 million members.

"Every shelter dog and cat can provide love and companionship, and deserves a lifelong home," said Stephanie Shain, director of outreach companion animals at HSUS. "However, some pets are better suited for you and your lifestyle than others, which is why people must take the time to make a thoughtful choice. After all, you are choosing a pal who will be with you for at least 10 to 15 years."

Shain suggests asking yourself the following questions before adopting at a shelter:

- Do I have the time, money and responsibility to care for a pet?

- How old is the animal? You may have your heart set on a puppy or kitten, but remember that young animals need much more training and supervision than more mature ones.

- How shy or assertive is the animal? An active, bouncy dog or playful cat may catch your eye on first glance, but a mellower one may be a better match if you do not have an active lifestyle that enables you to exercise or play with the animal as much as the animal may require.

More information, including tips on preparing for the arrival of a new pet, is available online at www.hsus.org. Tips are also available at www.PetsForLife.org. Persons wishing to help shelter animals but stop short at the idea of adopting a pet may donate to the Pampa Animal Shelter's Fund 12, a charitable fund that is not a part of the city's general fund and can be used by the shelter for needs not always covered in the shelter's annual budget.

For more information call Pampa Animal Shelter at 669-5775 and leave a message, or go by the shelter at Hobart Street Park between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. any day except holidays.

Bush wants to give needy elderly food stamps instead of food boxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The boxes arrive every month at churches, senior citizen centers and other sites for distribution to nearly a half-million poor elderly people. Each is stocked with a mix of nutritious foods such as cereal, peanut butter, fruit, vegetables and pasta. Sometimes volunteers deliver them right to people's homes.

Now President Bush wants to eliminate the program, one of 141 federal initiatives that his proposed new budget would scrap or cut dramatically. He is proposing to shift people in the Commodity Supplemental Food Program over to food stamps.

Defenders of the nutrition-in-a-box program say many elderly people are reluctant to sign up for food stamps, and, in any event, the commodity program often provides a more generous package.

"It really does come under the category, in the most extreme way, of balancing the budget on the backs of those who are most needy. And in this case we're not even balancing the budget," said Wisconsin Sen. Herb Kohl, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Appropriations agriculture subcommittee.

"I call it misplaced priorities. How do you justify doing something like this, while at the same time giving people like Herb Kohl huge tax cuts?" said Kohl, a multimillionaire.

The commodity program, run by the Agriculture Department, benefits mainly elderly people, although some new mothers and children also participate. The department wants to move recipients to food stamps in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. The program cost about $111 million this fiscal year, including a $4 million supplement for victims of Hurricane Katrina.

The program, which dates back to 1968, operates in 32 states and the District of Columbia.

Its lack of national reach is one reason the administration wants to eliminate it, according to USDA officials.

Kate Coler, the USDA's deputy undersecretary for Food, Nutrition and Consumer Services, said the department believes it can serve people more efficiently through food stamps and the Women, Infants and Children program, which are both nationwide.

"It's really a duplicative program," she said of CSFP.

But Tim Robertson, president of the National CSFP Association, which represents state and local organizations that administer the program, challenged the USDA's premise that people will switch over to food stamps.

"Seniors have repeatedly said they don't want to be on that program," Robertson said, because of the perceived stigma of using food stamps and the paperwork hassles.

The USDA's own statistics show that just 28 percent of seniors eligible for food stamps participate in the program.

Sherrie Tussler, executive director of the Hunger Task Force, which administers the program in Milwaukee, said the commodity program helps elderly people stretch their food-buying budget.

"Sometimes seniors are choosing between utility bills and prescription drugs and whether they get to eat," she said.

The Bush administration is proposing to provide CSFP beneficiaries with transitional food stamp benefits of $20 a month for six months, or until they are deemed eligible for food stamps, whichever comes first.

Sarah Mayek, 75, of Milwaukee, receives both the CSFP box and $10 a month for food stamps.

"You try to stretch your budget a little bit," Mayek said.

Perry takes jabs at Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Rick Perry took some jabs at his own party Friday, telling a conservative group that Republicans are spending like Democrats and may be in jeopardy for doing so.

He criticized the tens of thousands of earmarks — the congressional term for pet projects — passed in 2004.

Perry said "the public expects Democrats to spend because that's what they do."

"On the other hand, they elect Republicans to stop that from happening, and if Republicans keep spending like Democrats, the public will elect the real thing," Perry said in a speech to the Conservative Action Political Conference. The group billed the conference as the largest gathering of conservatives.

"It seems as if conservatives won the war at the ballot box and then let the opposition keep most of the land," he said.

Perry, who is seeking reelection and has minor opposition in the March 7 primary, counted himself as a Republican who has stayed true to conservative principles of less government and limited spending.

He told the crowd conservatism is not about dismantling government but making the right investments in the right priorities — such as border security.

"How many more Border Patrol agents could have been placed on the border if Congress lived with just 13,000 earmarks instead of the 14,000 contained in legislation in 2004?" Perry asked.

In reference to what some call "pork" in federal spending bills.

In the wake of recent congressional corruption scandals, some lawmakers have argued for an end to earmarks, saying they encourage ethical abuses.

Perry said President Bush's 2007 budget proposals to increase detention space, add technology and put more agents on the border are not going to happen soon enough.

Terrorist party reigns supreme in Middle East

Voters in Palestine (in the Middle East, not Texas) have voted in the Hamas terrorist party over the corrupt Fatah party.

If you will recall, the Fatah party was led by Yassir Arafat, who funneled millions (perhaps billions) of dollars in global aid to his own Swiss bank accounts. Money that was supposed to be spent on the poor and suffering in Palestine went into Arafat's pockets.

Hamas is the terrorist arm of Palestinian politics. They are the ones who strap on bombs and blow themselves up killing innocent people. Well, not all of them do that. The leaders brainwash the younger folks into doing that with promises of riches in heaven.

Now that Hamas is entering the mainstream of politics, it may be hard for them to put down their black masks, bomb-laden knapsacks and automatic rifles.

Can you imagine keeping the infrastructure buzzing along carrying around all that baggage?

Ah, here is a sewer problem. Ahmad, with his rifle on his shoulder and bombs strapped to his waist, cannot get through the manhole to see what the problem is. He summons one of his workers, Samasi, and tells him he must make the manhole wider so workers can check out the problem.

Samasi dutifully says a prayer, lays down on top of the manhole, pulls a cord and blows himself up, creating a crater that easily allows Ahmad and other workers to wiggle through the hole and fix the problem. Additionally, they have to repair the hole made by Samasi and his bomb.

Imagine a board room where Hamas fighters show up in their regalia and celebrate a close vote by firing their automatic rifles in the air. If there are people in rooms above, they are dodging bullets.

Of course those bullets fired in the air can only go so far before they come back down. Raining bullets cannot be good for the populace.

And, I noticed on a Fox News television report last week that thousands of Muslims in the Middle East are protesting the publication of cartoons that portray Mohammad in a bad light. The majority are men, and they are all off work, demonstrating, shouting, and burning flags and effigies. What happens to the infrastructure and economy of those areas if the work force is not working?

Muslim cartoonists portray Israel and the United States as butchers and killers in their newspapers. Is it OK to parody Jews and Christians, but not Muslims?

Last week I wrote about the MobilExxon profits that hit $36.1 billion in 2005. I paraphrased Dr. Margo Thorning, senior vice president and chief economist for American Council for Capital Formation, as saying a windfall profits tax in effect in the United States from 1980 to 1988 increased U.S. energy independence. The statement should have said the windfall profits tax increased U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

Dr. Thorning paraphrases Adam Smith, an 18th century economist, who said that when profits rise in any industry, a signal is sent to companies to produce more, and the response of producers will result in increased output and tend to drive down the price of the product for all consumers.

A windfall profits tax, she said, would discourage additional efforts needed to enhance both domestic and foreign oil supplies.

She added that low income families, which spend a larger share of their income on energy than do higher income families, would be the greatest beneficiaries of the lower cost oil.

That argument is sound on paper, and it would work if only we could trust that big oil companies would actually follow the script and lower their prices.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 2006. There are 322 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Feb. 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln, the 16th president of the United States, was born in present-day Larue County, Ky.

On this date:

In 1554, Lady Jane Grey, who'd claimed the throne of England for nine days, and her husband, Guildford Dudley, were beheaded after being condemned for high treason.

In 1733, English colonists led by James Oglethorpe founded Savannah, Ga.

'Priests are no more necessary to religion than politicians to patriotism.'

— John Haynes Holmes
American clergyman and reformer
(1879-1964)

In 1870, women in the Utah Territory gained the right to vote.

In 1909, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was founded.

In 1912, Pu Yi, the last emperor of China, abdicated, marking the end of the Qing Dynasty.

In 1915, the cornerstone for the Lincoln Memorial was laid in Washington.

In 1924, George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" premiered in New York.

In 1968, "Soul on Ice" by Eldridge Cleaver was first published.

In 1973, the first release of American prisoners of war from the Vietnam conflict took place.

In 1999, the Senate acquitted President Clinton of perjury and obstruction of justice.

Ten years ago: Bob Dole eked out a victory in Iowa's Republican presidential caucuses, while Pat Buchanan came in a surprisingly strong second.

Five years ago: The NEAR spacecraft touched down on Eros, completing the first landing on an asteroid. Scientists published their first examinations of nearly all the human genetic code. A federal appeals court ruled the Internet service Napster had to prevent users from swapping copyrighted music without charge. A computer virus pretending to be a digital photo of tennis star Anna Kournikova overwhelmed e-mail servers in Europe and North America.

One year ago: Former presidential candidate Howard Dean was elected the national Democratic chairman during the party's winter meeting.

Dry Bones PALESTINIAN "MAN IN THE STREET"

State of the nation's political theater ...

I didn't watch the president deliver Karl Rove's State of the Union speech. Mr. Rove fooled me once in the 2000 campaign. I don't give people a second shot.

It was appropriate that the State of the Union speech occurred close to the Academy Award nominations. They are both about theater, make-believe and dishonest hype. The last president to give an honest and substantive State of the Union address was Dwight Eisenhower.

Words are, of course, symbols, hopefully representing something that exists in reality. Words, however, are never the things they symbolize. Thus, the words about ending our dependency on foreign oil are not, in fact, any attempt to develop alternative energy sources. This is the fifth time President Bush has promised to end dependency on foreign oil. Presidents have been saying these words since Richard Nixon. The reality is that our dependency has increased.

You can judge honesty and dishonesty by the use of words. The honest man or woman will use words that as closely as possible correspond to reality. A dishonest person will use words that bear no relationship or only partial relationship to reality. The difference is, the honest person is using words in an attempt to communicate truth; the dishonest person is using words to fool people.

State of the Union speeches have become, like national political conventions, merely political theater — free political advertising, courtesy of network television, that refuses to recognize the reality. The cable-news companies, of course, have to knock the enamel off their teeth anyway, so they love to analyze what is essentially simple deception and a charade. We don't get an honest assessment of the nation or an honest statement of intentions. We get instead what the spin-masters have decided is a good campaign theme. President Bush wants very much to keep his Republican majorities in the House and Senate.

What's funny is that if you did believe the speech, then you would have to wonder why so many Americans are worried, unemployed, suffering from bad education and can't afford health care. To hear Karl Rove's dummy tell it, everything in America is wonderful, we are winning in Iraq and are winning the war on terrorism.

The Bush administration has created a considerable number of jobs — manufacturing jobs in China and India, and fast-food and janitorial jobs in America. If things are so great, why is Ford laying off thousands, and why is Dell computers building a new plant — in India? And if we are winning the war in Iraq, why is it that in 2005 there were 10,000 attacks with improvised explosives, compared with only 5,000 in 2004? Why can't we keep the lights on in Baghdad? Or get the oil out

Victoria Advocate on Texas' tax system:

The Texas Legislature and other elected officials have more than one reasonable way available to reform the state's antiquated, inadequate and inequitable tax system. But one — a state personal income tax — would work better than any other, although it, too, has flaws.

Likewise, Congress has more than one reasonable way available to reform the corruptive influence of deep-pocket special-interest money on the political process and the operation of our national government. But one — public financing of campaigns for all federal office — would be the most comprehensive and most effective in removing special-interest money from federal politics and governance, although it, too, has flaws.

The depth of the special interest pockets boggles the mind of the vast majority of Americans, those who earn enough to consider themselves middle class and those who earn less.

Consider the following, blurb on the www.publiccampaign.org Web site for Micah L. Sifry and Nancy Watzman's book, "Is That a Politician in Your Pocket? Washington on $2 Million a Day":

"Every day corporations and other wealthy special interests pump another

$2 million into the coffers of our elected officials in Washington and their party committees. For their money they get an estimated $160 billion a year in tax breaks, subsidies and other sweet deals. That's $160 billion lifted from taxpayers' pockets — or about $1,500 per taxpayer per year!"

This book came out in July 2004, before the full extent of the last federal campaign cycle fundraising and spending was known.

Campaigns for federal offices in the 2004 cycle raised more than $2 billion, according to the Washington, D.C.-based Center for Responsive Politics (www.opensecrets.org). Combining the primaries and the general election, the of the ground? What's so winning about religious parties aligned with Iran forming the government in Iraq?

Rove is a master at using language to deceive people. For example, he changes domestic spying to spying on terrorists, and then Bush accuses his critics of wanting to sit back and wait for the terrorists to strike. That is a complete falsification of the issue. Nobody objects to spying on terrorists. The objection is that when spying on terrorists also involves spying on American citizens, then Bush should get a warrant, as both federal law and the Constitution require.

Face facts, folks. This is the most intellectually dishonest and secretive administration in the modern era.

President Bush says he is a religious man, and I have no reason to doubt him on that point. I'm sure that as he ends his prayers every night, he adds, "Please bless Karl Rove and keep him safe from prosecutors, and thank you, God, for timid Democrats, a lap-dog press corps and a too-trusting public."

presidential campaigns alone raised more than $867 million, with campaigns for the U.S. House of Representatives not far behind at more than $696 million.

Campaigns for the U.S. Senate lagged a bit, raising only $488 million.

Out of a U.S. adult population of 220 million during the 2004 cycle, only a minuscule handful of Americans contributed money to campaigns for the presidency or Congress, the center reports: 0.52 percent gave $200 or more, while 0.12 percent gave $2,000 or more. Thus, individually, very few Americans had any real impact on the outcome of the voting or on the governmental decisions the election winners subsequently made and are making.

But looking at the numbers according to the "sectors," or related industry groupings, of donors shows a different impact. According to the figures the center tallied from Federal Election Commission reports, the Top 10 sectors of donors - both individuals and political action committees - to federal campaigns in the 2004 cycle were:

1. Finance/insurance/real estate: $332.8 million; 41 percent to Democrats, 59 percent to Republicans.
2. Other: $263.7 million; 53 percent to Democrats, 46 percent to Republicans.
3. Lawyers and lobbyists: $209.4 million; 71 percent to Democrats, 29 percent to Republicans.
4. Miscellaneous business: $206.9 million; 41 percent to Democrats, 59 percent to Republicans.
5. Ideology/single-issue organizations: $180.6 million; 62 percent to Democrats, 38 percent to Republicans.
6. Health: $123.7 million; 39 percent to Democrats, 61 percent to Republicans.
7. Communications/electronics: $101 million; 59 percent to Democrats, 40 percent to Republicans.
8. Construction: $71.4 million; 28 percent to Democrats, 72 percent to Republicans.
9. Labor: $61.4 million; 87 percent to Democrats, 13 percent to Republicans.
10. Energy/natural resources: $52.4 million; 25 percent to Democrats, 75 percent to Republicans.

Now, consider just a couple of examples Sifry and Watzman cite in their 2004 book:

— "The chicken you are defrosting? It may be infected with deadly bacteria, such as salmonella or listeria. If it is, there's a good chance that the feds know that the plant that processed it has had a list of sanitary violations a mile long - but it doesn't matter, because they lack the authority to shut it down. The livestock, poultry and food processing industries, who have contributed more than $101 million since 1989, have successfully fought all attempts to give the government this power. ...

— "The cable bill? It has climbed at three times the rate of inflation since Congress passed the Telecommunications Act of 1996, which was supposed to open up competition within the communications sector and bring prices down for consumers. Instead, the deregulatory law encouraged a handful of large cable companies to monopolize the market. Cable companies have contributed more than $32 million since 1989."

And on and on and on.

Congress is looking at a variety of reform measures in the aftermath of the Jack Abramoff-Michael Scanlon and Tom DeLay scandals. Some make good sense. But none - individually or collectively - would remove the corruptive influence of deep-pocket special-interest money and return the political process and the national government to the people who are supposed to own it. Public financing of campaigns for federal office is the only comprehensive way to do that.

Seniors Get The Cash and Keep The House

By Jeanette Damron

Most senior citizens require more income than social security provides. To fill this need a government insured program has been created. Doing home repairs, traveling or paying off an existing mortgage is a dream come true for thousands of seniors who have taken advantage of this program.

Let me explain - Reverse mortgages allow homeowners 62 and over to access equity in their homes. There is no payment on this money as long as you occupy your home. The money you receive is tax-free and social security and Medicare benefits are not affected.

Preferred Mortgage is a government approved reverse mortgage lender. Kyle Michels is our expert in this field. For more information, please call 800-549-0514 or 806-236-4464.

PUZZLED ABOUT EYECARE?

QUESTION: Does regular health insurance cover eye examinations?

ANSWER: Yes, Many insurance plans cover routine eye exams under the preventative care provisions of the policy. This examination includes screening for cataracts and glaucoma, and eye health examination and vision testing. If your examination is related to such concerns as diabetes, eye infection, eye injury or glaucoma for example then this examination will be considered medical and not routine. We are providers for many plans including: BCBS, Aetna, IMS, United Health, Icon, and First Care. Since coverage can vary we suggest that you call our office with specific insurance questions.

Agency sets production allowables, reports on other figures

AUSTIN — The Texas average rig count as of Jan. 20 was 658, representing about 53 percent of all active land rigs in the United States. In the last 12 months, total Texas reported production was 317 million barrels of oil and 5.7 Trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Texas natural gas production represents approximately 29 percent of total U.S. natural gas demand.

The Texas Railroad Commission's estimated final production for November 2005 is 28,757,166 barrels of crude oil and 441,807,193 Mcf of gas well gas.

The Commission derives final production numbers by multiplying the preliminary November 2005 production totals of 27,108,942 barrels of crude oil and 363,358,165 Mcf of gas well gas by a production adjustment factor of 1.0608 for crude oil and 1.2159 for gas well gas. (These production totals do not include casinghead gas or condensate.)

Texas natural gas storage reported by the Commission for December 2005 is 290,584,338 Mcf compared to 291,884,617 Mcf in December 2004.

The January 2006 gas storage estimate is 285,678,306 Mcf.

The Texas Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division set initial February 2006 natural gas production allowables for prorated fields in the state to meet market demand of 20,648,840 Mcf (thousand cubic feet).

In setting the initial February 2006 allowables, the Commission used historical production figures from previous months, producers' demand forecasts for the coming month, and adjusted the figures based on well capability.

These initial allowables will be adjusted after actual production for February 2006 is reported.

TDA hosting Rural Heroism Award

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs announced that March 1 is the deadline for nominations for the Texas Department of Agriculture's 2005 Rural Heroism Award.

Candidates must have performed a heroic, lifesaving act within Texas during 2005. The heroic deed should be related to farming or ranching and occur in a rural area. Automobile accidents or accidents caused by negligence will not be considered. Nominations should include a written account of the incident and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of everyone involved. If available, newspaper clippings and photographs should accompany all nominations.

Nominations must be postmarked by March 1 and mailed to Pal Scully, TDA safety coordinator, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

For additional information on qualifications, you can contact Scully at (512) 475-1611.

USDA Rural Development set to conduct value-added producer grant training session

AMARILLO — USDA Rural Development is accepting competitive applications for nearly $19.5 million in grants to develop value-added agriculture business ventures and alternative sources of renewable energy.

An informational meeting is scheduled for potential applicants at 9 a.m. Feb. 16 at the Texas A&M Research/Extension Center in Amarillo.

The meeting will cover in-depth information on the availability of grant funds, eligibility requirements, eligible uses, and the grant application process.

"USDA Rural Development promotes efforts to bring together agricultural producers and rural businesses to spur economic opportunities for rural communities," said Bryan Daniel, USDA Rural Development state director.

"During fiscal year 2005, Texas USDA Rural Development awarded over $1 million in Value-Added Producer Grants."

The competitive grant program supports the following two activities:

— planning activities needed to establish a viable value-added marketing opportunity for an agricultural product;

— activities to acquire working capital to operate a value-added business venture that will allow producers to better compete in domestic and international markets.

The maximum award for a planning grant is $100,000 and for a working capital grant is $300,000.

Grants are available to independent producers, agricultural producer groups, farmer or rancher cooperatives, and majority-controlled producer-based business ventures.

Value-added products are those agricultural products that gain value through processing, production, segregation or other means, or that produce renewable energy on a farm or ranch.

Applications must be completed and submitted no later than March 31, 2006.

For more information, contact Billy Curb, business and cooperative specialist, at (254) 742-9775.

Yearly cancer deaths show decline

By MIKE STOBBE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — The war on cancer may have reached a dramatic turning point: For the first time in more than 70 years, annual cancer deaths in the United States have fallen.

The number of cancer deaths dropped to 556,902 in 2003, down from 557,271 the year before, according to a recently completed review of U.S. death certificates by the National Center for Health Statistics.

It's the first annual decrease in total cancer deaths since 1930, when nationwide data began to be compiled.

The decline is welcome news in the medical community, said Arthur Caplan, University of Pennsylvania bioethicist.

"The war on cancer" has not always gone well in the public's eyes, Caplan noted. Despite decades of scientific research and screening campaigns, radiation and chemotherapy cancer treatments remained harsh and total deaths continued to rise, he noted.

"It's no surprise this dip in numbers would be greeted with joy by 'the commanders,' if you will, in the war on cancer," Caplan said.

For more than a decade, health statisticians have charted annual drops of about 1 percent in the cancer death rate — the calculated number of deaths per 100,000 people. But the actual number of cancer deaths still rose each year because the growth in total population outpaced the falling death rates.

"Finally, the declining rates have surpassed the increasing size of the population," said Rebecca Siegel, a Cancer Society epidemiologist.

Experts are attributing the success to declines in smoking, and the earlier detection and more effective treatment of tumors.

Death rates have fallen for lung, breast, prostate and colorectal cancer, according to American Cancer Society officials, who analyzed the federal death data.

Those are the four most common cancers, which together account for 51 percent of all U.S. cancer deaths.

The breast cancer death rate has been dropping about 2 percent annually since 1990, a decline attributed to earlier detection and better treatment. The colon and rectum cancer death rate, shrinking by 2 percent each year since 1984, is also attributed to better screening. The prostate cancer death rate has been declining 4 percent annually since 1994, though the reasons for that are still being studied.

The lung cancer death rate for men, dropping about 2 percent a year since 1991, is because of reductions in smoking. The lung cancer death rate for women, however, has held steady, a sign that reflects a lag in the epidemic among women, who took up smoking later.

The total number of cancer deaths among women actually rose by 409 from 2002 to 2003. Among men, deaths fell by 778, resulting in a net decrease of 369 total cancer deaths.

With such a small drop in deaths, it's possible they will rise again when 2004 data is tabulated, said Jack Mandel, chairman of epidemiology at Emory University's Rollins School of Public Health.

Cancer is diagnosed more often in older people than younger people, and the large and aging population of Baby Boomers may push cancer statistics a bit. Even so, that should be offset by treatment improvements and declines in smoking and cancer incidence.

"I still think we're going to see a decline," Mandel said.

Breakdown of deaths by specific cancers

By The Associated Press
Here is a look at the most common cancers and the deaths they caused in 2003.

Lung cancer: men, 89,964; women, 68,122

Colon, rectal cancer: men, 28,007; women, 27,951.

Breast: men, 380; women, 41,620.

Prostate: men, 29,554.

Study: Palmetto fails to improve symptoms of enlarged prostate

NEW YORK (AP) — A popular herbal pill used by millions of men doesn't reduce the frequent urge to go to the bathroom or other annoying symptoms of an enlarged prostate, a rigorous new study concludes.

The yearlong research found the plant extract, saw palmetto, was no more effective than dummy capsules in easing symptoms for the 225 men in the study. The results contrast with previous research that showed it helped.

"This certainly sheds some doubt on whether the product's effective and suggests that it might not work," said the lead researcher, Dr. Stephen Bent, of the San Francisco VA Medical Center.

More than 2 million American men take the herb to treat an enlarged prostate and it is widely used in Europe, the researchers said. Until their results are confirmed by more studies, men who take saw palmetto and feel it works should probably keep using it, Bent said.

The findings are published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

The saw palmetto is a small palm native to the southeastern United States. The extract comes from its olive-size berries and is sold over-the-counter in capsule form.

It is the third-highest-selling herbal dietary supplement in the U.S., after garlic and echinacea, according to the American Botanical Council. Unlike prescription drugs, dietary supplements do not need government approval.

The new study recruited men over 49 with enlarged prostates who had moderate to severe symptoms. They took 160 milligrams of saw palmetto twice a day or similar-looking dummy capsules.

BIRTH OPTIONS

What women should know about C-Sections

(NAPSA) — Women who are concerned about safely delivering healthy babies may want to find out more about the long-term implications of having a cesarean or C-section.

"Cesarean section remains one of the most frequently performed surgical procedures in this country, but the majority of pregnant women do not experience medical complications that would justify a cesarean section. Perplexingly, the C-section rate continues to rise year after year," said Katherine Carr, CNM, Ph.D., president of the American College of Nurse-Midwives (ACNM). "Women need unbiased individualized information concerning their birth options."

A HealthGrades study found a 20 percent increase in C-sections between 1999 and 2001. The increase in elective C-sections may be attributed to fear of litigation, a lack of understanding about the science of C-sections and a false sense of security about the risks and/or benefits of surgery.

"The increase in the Caesarean births is due to three things — malpractice, malpractice, malpractice," said

Dr. Joshua A. Copel, director of Maternal and Fetal Medicine at Yale University School of Medicine, according to a recent HealthDay.com report.

In 2004, 29.1 percent of all reported births were delivered by cesarean section, a new record high. Also of concern to many is that the rate of vaginal births after cesarean (VBAC) has declined from 31 percent in 1998 to just 9.2 in 2004. At the same time, newly published reports in The New England Journal of Medicine demonstrate that VBACs hold very low risks for women with less than 1 percent experiencing complications.

According to a recent article in

Digital desktop calendar maps health goals

(NAPSA) — Making healthy goals a daily reality may be easier with a free digital calendar.

A new calendar tool, the Choose To Move Digital Desktop Calendar, is part of the American Heart Association's Choose To Move 12-week program that helps busy women learn how to live healthily by incorporating physical activity and a flavorful and healthy diet into their lives — without creating new routines that take a lot of time and money.

"For women who want to get back or stay on track with their health, the calendar is a great tool," said Rita F. Redberg, M.D., M.Sc., professor of medicine in the cardiology division at the University of California-San Francisco National Center of Excellence in Women's Health. "It's easy to use. It's informative and inspirational. And it will help keep women accountable to reaching their health goals."

USA Today, many women who have been denied the right to have a VBAC feel that they are being denied their reproductive rights.

ACNM is concerned about the long-term consequences of cesarean sections including the significant risks that accompany subsequent surgeries.

The presence of certified nurse-midwives may help reduce the rate of cesarean sections. Nurse-midwives at the Plainfield Health Center in New Jersey helped lower the rate of C-sections to 22 percent, which is lower than the state average of 33.1 percent. The midwives worked with the patients to minimize potential complications, such as premature labor. Such interventions resulted in lower costs and better health outcomes for mother and newborn.

ACNM, the oldest women's health care association in the U.S., is asking Congress to explore these issues as part of their oversight role on public health matters, along with the question of the overall economic costs cesarean sections have on the delivery of obstetrical care. Pampa finishes third; Lubbock Estacado up next in playoff opener Tuesday

By MICHAEL J. STEVENS
Sports Editor

Lady Raiders 51, Lady Harvesters 49

The rubber game of the Pampa-Randall series was as good as expected, in spite of the referee influences.

The Lady Harvesters looked as determined and ready for this game as they have all season.

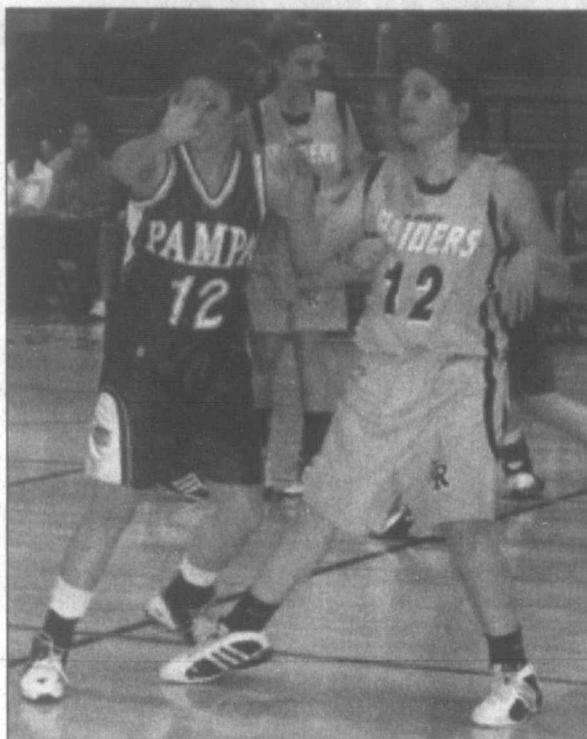

Pampa led 26-23 at the break, but lost the second half, 28-23.

Brittini Rice led all scorers with 23 points. Callie

Cobb scored 14.

The Lady Harvesters open the district playoffs Tuesday in Plainview where they will face Lubbock Estacado. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m.

The PHS Basketball Booster Club has organized a send-off for the girls. Fans are encouraged to gather in front of McNeely Field House at 2 p.m. to see the team off. A police and fire department escort will lead the team out of Pampa.

Harvesters battle Dons in 81-66 loss

By MICHAEL J. STEVENS
Sports Editor

Pampa did what they had to do in the opening period Friday night, keep Palo Duro close. But in doing so, key Harvesters Sharod Young and Jarrett Kotara found themselves in early foul trouble. Young would take the bench in the latter stages of the first quarter. Kotara would follow early in the second.

Beating PD is hard enough, to do so with two of your five starters missing adds to the challenge.

Still, Pampa played PD to a 19-19 first quarter tie. They were down just 41-33 at the half.

Justin Mason lit up the scoreboard with 36 of the Don's 81 points, most coming in the second quarter when it seemed everything he tossed up found the bottom of the net.

The Harvester scoring was led by Young, who finished the night with 23 points. Tyler Hall had 17 and Kotara ended with 16.

The loss drops Pampa's record to 22-6 overall, 7-2 in District 3-4A with just one game left in the regular season. The Harvesters will host Hereford at The Pit Tuesday. That game will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Pampa has locked-up second place in the district. Randall and Caprock are tied for the third and final playoff spot after the Raiders surprised the Longhorns Friday, 68-66. Caprock closes the season against Dumas Tuesday, while Randall will take on Palo Duro.

The winter games begin and Turin throws itself a bash to remember TURIN, Italy (AP) — The Italians loved it.

They danced on their chairs, screamed their support and braved winter cold to herald the opening of the Winter Games.

Passion was the theme of Friday's opening ceremony and passion was what poured from the audience, right up to the arrival of the Olympic torch, carried by skiing hero Alberto "La Bomba" Tomba, who ran up the stage steps and handed it off to a succession of Italian medal winners.

Ultimately it was Stefania Belmondo, a two-time gold medal winner in cross-country skiing, who touched the flame to a wire that ignited fireworks and lit the Olympic cauldron.

The cheering crowd screamed its delight just one of the many times it did so throughout the three-hour show.

But it wasn't truly over until the big man sang.

Luciano Pavarotti performed "Nessun Dorma" from Puccini's "Turandot," an aria that the tenor has turned into a signature piece.

While that closing number sent spectators home happy, it was the parade of nations that really got the party going.

More than 2,500 athletes arrived to the accompaniment of chest-thumping disco ranging from "YMCA" by the Village People to "I Will Survive," by Gloria Gaynor.

Italy, as host country, entered last and brought down the house. Dressed in silver fur-trimmed coats, they marched to the pulsating, popular Italian song "Una Donna Per Amico" ("A Woman For a Friend"). The crowd jumped to its feet, and cheered while ringing souvenir cow bells provided by show organizers.

"Hopefully, after such a show, Turin will no longer be seen as a drab city where you only go to sleep early and go to work in the morning," said businessman Domenico Devietti Goggia of Turin. "We also know how to have fun."

Second only to the audience's reaction to Italy was the roaring welcome given to the Americans. Around the packed stadium, fans stood and clapped as "Daddy Cool" blared through loudspeakers.

More than 200 U.S. athletes, wearing black and white coats and hats of blue and red, waived and blew kisses. Giant video screens showed a smiling first lady Laura Bush.

In an unusual security move, three guards in dark suits followed the Danish team as it marched — a precaution that responded to recent violence by Muslims enraged at derogatory cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad published in Danish newspapers.

Security was also tight for the arrival of Mrs. Bush and Cherie Blair, wife of British Prime Minister Tony Blair.

"Rhythm, Passion and Speed," promised the show's producers, and those watching — an estimated 35,000 at the Olympic Stadium and two billion tuning in — got all of that.

The program opened with Yuri Chechi, one of Italy's most famous gymnasts, swinging a mighty hammer onto a giant anvil that sparked tall flames. Rollerbladers in red body suits zoomed across the stage, two-foot flames shooting out the back of their heads.

Next came a tribute to the seven countries abutting the majestic Alps including Austria, Germany and France. Dancers wearing green sheaths pranced near brightly painted fake cows pulled on rollers. It was a homage to mountain life and livestock, and to cheer both, the stadium audience was supplied with the cow bells.

In what executive producer Marco Bacilli described as an "iconic moment," silver-clad dancers appeared with big, white bubbles stuck to their heads. Bacilli, who has staged concert shows for U2 and the Rolling Stones, said the balls signified snow, of which there is none in Turin.

This northwest city, home to both Fiat and Savoy mansions, has exhibited a certain ambivalence to the Winter Games, largely because of an ever-changing pattern of traffic detours and street closures. The weather, hovering in the high 30s and low 40s this week, melted more than a foot and a half of recent snow and prompted officials in the mountain venues to churn out the man-made kind.

For the first time, eight women carried the Olympic flag: Italian actress Sophia Loren, Chilean writer Isabel Allende, American actress Susan Sarandon, Nobel Peace-prize winner Wangari Maathai of Kenya, and three Olympic medal winners. They were Nawal El Moutawakel of Morocco, Manuela Di Centa of Italy, and Maria Mutola of Mozambique. The eighth was Cambodian human rights activist Somaly Mam.

Behind the scenes, 6,100 volunteers helped stage the event, for which they had practiced an estimated 10,000 hours. Cost of both the opening and closing ceremonies: $34 million.

Pampa's Nicki Cole qualified for the finals of the regional competition held in Lubbock over the weekend.

Cole qualified for the finals by finishing second in the 50-yard freestyle and fourth in the 100 freestyle. Finals were to begin at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

Kwan cuts workout short

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Michelle Kwan cut short her first practice because of a sore groin Saturday and left open the possibility of withdrawing from the Olympics if she's not 100 percent healthy.

The five-time world champion stopped short of saying she was considering dropping off the U.S. team. But asked directly, she replied:

"I really have to pay attention to how I am feeling these days. Dropping out, it's not something I want to do, but I have to listen to what my feelings are."

Kwan said a long plane ride and marching in the opening ceremony caused enough problems for her to skip a run-through one day after arriving in Turin. She planned to practice Sunday after getting treatment for the groin injury, which kept her out of last month's U.S. championships and forced her to get a medical bye into her third Olympics.

"Physically, if I'm not able to skate, I would give my spot up," she said.

If she drops out before the Feb. 19 draw for the women's event, then Emily Hughes, the third-place finisher at the national championships and younger sister of 2002 Olympic champion Sarah Hughes, would take her place.

The nine-time U.S. champion quit the 40-minute workout session with about 15 minutes remaining and smiled at assistant team leader Taffy Holiday when she left the ice. When she skated, though, she looked serious, even dour, and missing three triple flips couldn't have helped her mood.

When she stood by the sideboards and chatted with team leader Roger Glenn, he could be seen holding her hand or arm several times as if comforting the nine-time U.S. champion.

OLYMPICS

Winter Olympics open on NBC with colorful parade of nations

NEW YORK (AP) — With model cows twirling on ice, fiery skaters and women in lumpy dresses meant to signify the Alps, the Winter Olympics opening ceremony pulled back the curtain Friday on 17 days of NBC coverage.

American TV viewers will be force-fed an exotic world of halfpipes and skeletons, bobsledders and snowboarders, through a staggering 418 hours on NBC and its related cable networks.

"The games begin at an interesting, some say dicey, time in our world," NBC News anchor Brian Williams said at the ceremony's outset.

Williams and Bob Costas were the network's hosts for the ceremony and parade of nations. Katie Couric has helped handle those duties for the last few Olympics but, with her NBC contract nearing an end and CBS courting her, she was benched this time in favor of Williams.

Perhaps no entertainment event truly approaches an Olympics opening or closing ceremony for general loopyness, and this was no exception. There were girls raising flags mounted on the backpacks of men, an unfortunate fellow being forced to continually pound a fire-breathing platform with a mallet and those model cows being led around the ice.

Costas tried gamely, at first, to try to decipher it all: "The universal symbol of passion, the beating heart," he said.

But eventually he seemed to simply give up and the narrators allowed long stretches of silence.

The opening ceremony will be hard-pressed to reach the U.S. ratings heights of the Salt Lake City Winter Olympics in 2002. The first-night pageantry four years ago had an audience of 45.6 million people, according to Nielsen Media Research.

NBC's prime-time coverage for all of the Salt Lake City games averaged 32 million viewers.

NBC executives already are dampening ratings expectations this time. Generally, Olympics on American soil do better than overseas games, and Salt Lake City occurred during a time of lingering patriotism following the 2001 terrorist attacks, said Randy Falco, NBC Universal TV Group president.

The television world has also become increasingly fragmented, to the point where one-third of the nation's homes have access to at least 160 channels.

"It's really impossible to compare this to Salt Lake City," Falco said.

NBC said it has promised its advertisers an average Olympics rating of between 12 and 14 (Salt Lake City's overall rating was 19.2). That translates, roughly, to between 24 million and 25 million viewers per night anything less than that means NBC has to make it up to its advertisers with free commercials.

The network still estimates it will come very close to its Salt Lake City tally of 187 million different people who watched at least six minutes of the Olympics on either NBC or its cable networks. Between broadcast and cable, the coverage will average 24.6 hours a day.

Shell at Raider helm again; other weekend sports briefs

FOOTBALL

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — Art Shell was hired for his second stint as Oakland Raiders coach, ending the team's 5 1/2-week search for Norv Turner's replacement.

Shell had a 54-38 regular-season record with the Raiders from 1989-1994, leading them to the AFC championship game following the 1990 season. The Raiders have had only three winning seasons since Shell was fired.

The first black head coach in modern NFL history, Shell becomes the seventh one currently in the league.

GOLF

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Mike Weir closed with three birdies at Poppy Hills to finish with a 5-under 67, moving into the lead after two rounds at the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Aaron Oberholser followed up his first-round 65 with a 4-under 68 at Spyglass Hill to move into second place at 11-under, three shots back of Weir. Oberholser will play Pebble Beach on Saturday.

Jonathan Byrd and Fredrik Jacobson were tied with first-round leader Luke Donald at 10-under.

PERTH, Australia (AP) — K.J. Choi shot a 6-under-66 in the second round of the Johnnie Walker Classic to take a two-shot lead over Kevin Stadler.

Stadler had a 69. Adam Scott, who shared the overnight lead with Stadler, slipped four shots back with a 71.

Retief Goosen (72), U.S. Open champion Michael Campbell (74) and Colin Montgomerie (74) all missed the cut.

Gary Simpson shot a course record 9-under 63.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri basketball coach Quin Snyder resigned, one day after saying he planned to finish what had become a disappointing season.

Associate head coach Melvin Watkins is expected to coach Missouri (10-11) for the remainder of the season, starting with a home game Sunday against Kansas State.

Snyder's overall record at Missouri — his first head-coaching job — was 126-91. He had 20-win teams and NCAA bids in his first four seasons, including an appearance in the final eight. But the once-proud program is 42-42 since then, and attendance has plummeted despite a new arena that opened last season.

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State basketball coach Eddie Sutton was hospitalized after being injured in a car accident.

Sutton sustained a head injury, according to police, and bruises to his face but was expected to be released from Stillwater Medical Center on Saturday.

According to a police report, Sutton was driving north on Washington street in a sport utility vehicle when he veered left of the centerline, corrected and then struck another SUV from behind as he was traveling about 60 mph.

Sutton's vehicle continued traveling north for a short distance, then left the roadway and struck a tree, police said.

TENNIS

SAN DIEGO (AP) — James Blake won in straight sets to give the United States a 1-1 tie with Romania in the opening round of Davis Cup play.

Blake defeated Victor Hanesescu 6-4, 7-6 (5), 6-2 following Andrei Pavel's 6-7 (2), 2-6, 7-6 (8), 6-2, 6-4 upset of Andy Roddick, who grew nauseated and lost after he had a match point in the third set.

PARIS (AP) — Top-seeded Amelie Mauresmo knocked out defending champion Dinara Safina 6-2, 6-2 to advance to the semifinals of the Gaz de France.

Mauresmo, the Australian Open champion and world No. 2, will face Tatiana Golovin, an unseeded Frenchwoman who outlasted third-seeded Russian Nadia Petrova.

Mary Pierce needed two tiebreakers to defeat Emilie Loit of France and will face fourth-seeded Patty Schnyder, who cruised into the semifinals with a victory over fifth-seeded Elena Dementieva.

PATTAYA, Thailand (AP) — Nuria Llagostera Vives of Spain defeated Catalina Castano of Colombia 1-6, 6-4, 6-3 to reach the semifinals of the Pattaya Women's Open.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former Ohio State star tailback Maurice Clarett was indicted on charges of robbery and carrying a concealed weapon.

Clarett is accused of flashing a gun and demanding property from a man and a woman early Jan. 1. Police said he got into a sport utility vehicle with two men after he was identified by the bar owner, who happened to come out into the alley.

No one was injured, and only a cell phone was taken, police said.

BASEBALL

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Alfonso Soriano lost to the Washington Nationals in salary arbitration and will receive $10 million rather than his request for $12 million.

Even with the loss, the All-Star second baseman set a record for the highest salary awarded in arbitration, topping the $8.2 million Andruw Jones earned in 2001 when he beat the Braves.

SOCCER

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt won the African Cup of Nations for a record fifth time, beating Ivory Coast 4-2 on penalty kicks following a 0-0 tie.

Fun first, then Hendrick gets down to Olympic racing

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Chad Hendrick wants to take part in everything he can at his first Olympics. So forget about hunkering down in his room at the athletes' village the night before his first race.

Hendrick attended Friday night's opening ceremonies of the Turin Games.

"It's an important part of being on the Olympic team," he said.

The lure of participating in the pageantry outweighed any concerns Hendrick's coach had about the 28-year-old Texan being on his feet too long ahead of his first event on Saturday — the 5,000 meters. Usually, the ceremonies last three hours or more.

"It's such a kick to feel like a part of your country," coach Bart Schouten said Friday. "The Olympics are to be experienced, so I don't want to take anything away from him. You never know this might be his only one."

Hendrick opens his quest for five gold medals in the 5,000 meters at the Oval Lingotto, where first lady Laura Bush planned to cheer on her fellow Texan.

"I hear he's a favorite, and he's a favorite of mine," she said.

Hendrick joins Eskil Ervik of Norway, Sven Kramer and Carl Verheijen of the Netherlands, and home-ice favorite Enrico Fabris of Italy as the main contenders in the grueling 12 1/2-lap race.

Hendrick, Ervik and Kramer took turns owning the world record over six days in November. Ervik set a new mark during a meet in Calgary, only to see Hendrick take it back with a faster time in the next pair.

The following weekend, Kramer broke Hendrick's record by nearly a second. "It's going to be very competitive," Hendrick said. "The last three or four laps, you have to dig down deep and show everybody how much you want it. That's a big advantage for me. The last three or four laps, I'm going to hunker down and use my will to win."

Hendrick can't afford any slip-ups in the 5,000 if he hopes to tie Eric Heiden's record of five gold medals at a Winter Olympics.

Verheijen and Kramer are skating in the same pair, giving the Dutchmen a chance to subtly work together. They could take turns drafting each other while switching lanes on the back straightaway, thereby saving energy and improving their times.

DAR to honor Good Citizens

Las Pampas Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution will honor its 2006 Good Citizen winners at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the education building at Pampa's First United Methodist Church.

The seven Good Citizen winners were selected from seven area high schools.

DAR American Essay contest winners will read their essays during the upcoming presentation. Fifth grader Jessica Hooker of Travis Elementary School and Ashlyn McNeely of Pampa Junior High School will read their selections.

DAR Good Citizens are selected by their schools. Winners are judged on their dependability, service, leadership and patriotism. Each are presented a specially-engraved pin. Honorees are required to write an essay. The winning state essayist will be eligible to compete in the national competition.

The seven area DAR Good Citizens to be honored Feb. 12 are Ashlee Lucas, Pampa High School; Jynna Cleveland, Claude High School; Carmen Hamilton, Clarendon High School; Malorie Homen, White Deer High School; J'Shay McCasland, Wheeler High School; Kyra Stevens, Groom High School; and Carrie Thompson, McLean High School.

Ashlee Lucas. Lucas, daughter of Rex and JoLinda Childress, has participated in stock shows extensively, placing at state in dairy judging and in the top 10 in Region 1 Junior Livestock Association. Her honors, activities and accomplishments include 4-H member and council vice chair; varsity tennis; 4-H award-winner; stock show steer and goat exhibitor (steers, six years/goats, three years); grand champion steer exhibitor; National Houston Livestock Show third place steer award, second place Herdsmen award; PHS Outstanding Girl Tennis Player; and D-FY-IT, ASTRA and Concert Choir member. Lucas currently has 18 hours of college credit and plans to attend West Texas A&M University in the future.

Jynna Cleveland. Cleveland, daughter of Rod and Janet Cleveland, ranks first scholastically at her high school. Her honors, activities and accomplishments include FFA president; UIL competitor in headline writing and feature writing; 4-H Council delegate; student council delegate; outstanding girl (freshman and sophomore years); President's Academic Excellence Award winner; freshman class president; and membership in National Honor Society, FCA, and several rodeo associations. She volunteers in the summer with Baptist-St. Anthony's Hospital, helps her father on the farm and teaches horseback riding to 4-Hers. Cleveland is also active in her church.

Carmen Hamilton. Hamilton, daughter of Ray and Roxana Hamilton, placed in several UIL journalism competitions at both the state and regional levels and volunteers with her church food bank. Her honors, activities and accomplishments include NHS vice president; student council member; yearbook staff member; UIL one-act play; band member; reporter; National Merit Commended Scholar; Pantex Award recipient in math; and American Chemical Society award recipient.

Malorie Homen. After completing 30 hours of college level course work, Homen, daughter of John Homen and Brenda Broom, has already achieved sophomore status at college. Her honors, activities and accomplishments include NHS vice president; Who's Who in American High School award recipient; editor of her school newspaper; two-year editor of her school yearbook; student council; Tennis MVP; first team all-district basketball team player; Doe Award winner; cheerleading captain; academic all-district winner; Spanish award winner; Junior Citizenship Award winner; 4-H and FFA member; and eight-year stock show participant, exhibiting barrows. Homen is active in her church, volunteering with vacation Bible school, AWANA and Team Kid.

J'Shay McCasland. McCasland, daughter of Stacy and Lisa McCasland, has placed on the A honor roll every semester at her high school. Her honors, activities and accomplishments include FCCLA vice president; NHS member; regional qualifier in UIL Calculator; and varsity basketball, varsity track and varsity tennis team member. She has participated in many community service projects through FCCLA and NHS, raising money for Tralee Crisis Center of Pampa, victims of Hurricane Katrina and other worthy causes.

Kyra Stevens. Stevens, daughter of Terry and Laura Sue Stevens, is a Lions Club Sweetheart. Her honors, activities and accomplishments include NHS president; second place state UIL competitor; FFA state competitor; BPA competitor; high school cheerleader; varsity basketball team captain; and varsity track, tennis and cross-country team member. She has volunteered at the library, at the nursing home, as a tutor, and as a captain of food and coat drives.

Carrie Thompson. Thompson, daughter of Kelly and Kathy Raymond, has received numerous awards in drama such as best actress and all-star cast member. Her honors, activities and accomplishments include class president (two years); student council vice president; cheerleader; regional cross-country and golf qualifier; UIL physics first place winner; National Poets Society first place winner; Miss McLean; Miss Congeniality; and Miss Irish Rose pageant runner-up. Thompson sings the national anthem at her local football and basketball games and performs at church and at a local steakhouse. Her future plans are to attend WTA&M.

Enrollment shows modest gain for spring semester at WTAMU

CANYON — Slow but continued steady growth is reflected in West Texas A&M University's preliminary 12th-class-day enrollment for the spring 2006 semester.

Enrollment figures on the spring semester's 12th class day, Feb. 2, show WTAMU with 71 more students than at the same time a year ago, a 1.03-percent increase.

With 6,974 students presently enrolled in classes, West Texas A&M is staying the course that was set in 1998, when spring enrollment was approximately 1,000 students fewer than it is today.

Dr. Troy Johnson, dean of enrollment management, said the modest increase is gratifying for several reasons.

"It's nice to see enrollment go up, but it's not just a numbers game," Johnson said. "We're attracting better students and we're becoming more diverse. We are seeing increased success by our beginning freshmen, and we are delighted that people are recognizing West Texas A&M for the true educational value that it is."

WTAMU posted gains of 15.22 percent among Asian Americans, 9.33 percent among African Americans and 6.58 percent among Hispanic students. The University also has 14.16 percent more international students than it had during the spring 2005 semester.

Johnson points to increased participation in classes offered online, continued growth of the Honors Program and the addition of new academic programs like mechanical engineering and athletic training as reasons for growth in the student population at WTAMU.

Clarendon College offers new scholarship

CLARENDON — Clarendon College has received a second gift from the Martha Christine Johnson Schuhart Trust, bringing contributions thus far from the estate to approximately $720,000.

The college received the first distribution of approximately $400,000 in November 2005.

The second installment was distributed in January in the amount of $320,000.

Schuhart was a resident of Dalhart. The gifts were made in loving memory of her parents to establish the R.C. and Agnes Johnson Endowed Scholarship.

The scholarship is available to high school graduates who are of good character and ability and demonstrate a true desire to obtain an education beyond the high school level.

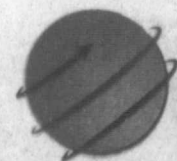

Preference is given to students graduating from high school in Dallam and Hartley Counties.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Marine Corps Pfc. Thomas S. Davenport, son of Shari L. and Roger A. Davenport of Miami, recently completed 12 weeks of basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego. Designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally, Davenport and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m., by running three miles and performing calisthenics.

In addition to the physical conditioning program, Davenport spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training.

The recruits performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training. The recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values — honor, courage and commitment.

Davenport and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour, team evolution culminating in the presentation of the Marine Corps Emblem.

Davenport is a 2002 graduate of Miami High School.

NORMAN, Okla. — Cameron Alexander Seger of Pampa was recently named to the President's Honor Roll at the University of Oklahoma's Norman campus for the 2005 fall semester.

Seger

To qualify for the President's Honor Roll, a student must maintain a perfect 4.0 grade point average while enrolled in 12 or more semester hours at the university.

Seger is the grandson of Don and Shirley Hoskins of Pampa and is a 2005 graduate of Pampa High.

DENVER, Colo. — Emily Terry of Pampa recently sold a first place hog for $3,200 at the National Western Stock Show's Auction of Junior Livestock Champions.

The purchaser of the animal was Nancy D. Petry.

More than 1,400 animals from 22 states competed in the show.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Bonnie Beth Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Holmes of Pampa, was recently named to the Dean's List at Vanderbilt University in Nashville for the 2005 fall semester.

To be eligible for the Dean's List, a student must maintain a minimum 3.5 GPA for the semester.

Senior Center Celebrates 30th

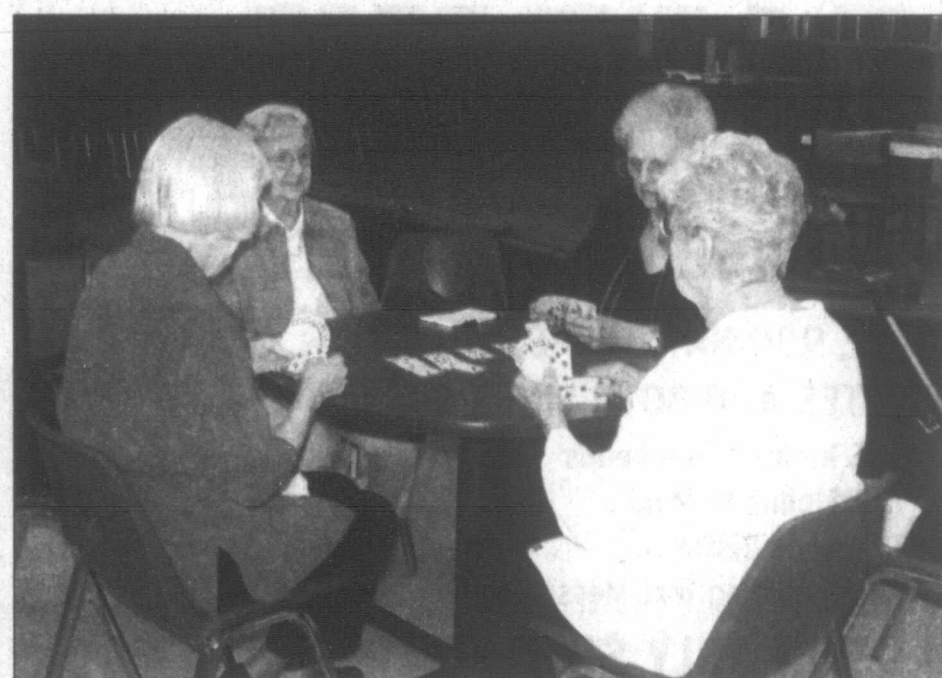

Pampa Senior Citizens Center opened Feb. 2, 1976, at 500 W. Francis, the site of a grocery store which was bought and renovated to use as a center.

Mary L. Brown is one of about 120 to eat lunch at the center every weekday. A choice of vegetables, desserts and entrees, along with breads, drinks and other dishes, is provided and served cafeteria-style by staff members which include a vegetable cook, a meat cook and a baker.

Janice Sackett, left, instructs Linda Long in watercolor techniques at the Senior Citizens Center. China painting, oil painting and other arts and crafts are also offered at the center.

About 90 guests attended Pampa Senior Citizens Center's 30th anniversary reception from 2 to 4 p.m. Feb. 5 at 500 W. Francis.

"We had a very good time Sunday afternoon. We'll do this again and not wait 30 years to do it," said Nancy Looper, center director.

Looper has been director for the past 15 years. Her assistant, Judy Ponce, has been helping at the center for 27 years.

The first director of the center was Wanda Talley. She was succeeded by Joyce Puckett, assisted by Penny Hinkle Stokes and Charlotte Hogan.

Looper was assisted by Yvonne Howdeshell Winegeart and then by Edie Hudson before Ponce became assistant director.

Senior meetings had been held long before the center was opened. Altrusa International of Pampa, Inc. began sponsoring meetings in 1952 in Altrusans' homes. By 1953, attendance at the meetings had outgrown homes, and the seniors, now named The Nokomis Club, began meeting at Lovett Memorial Library.

The meeting area at the library had become too small for the seniors by 1974. A committee of Altrusans arranged a city-wide meeting to secure a building for a senior citizens center.

A board of directors was elected at the meeting. They were Clyde Carruth, Milo Carlson, E.L. Green Jr., Don Lane, Jean Martindale, Libby Shotwell, Jerald Sims, Rex McAnelly, George Warren and Mary Wilson.

A fund-raising drive was held, and the former grocery store at 500 W. Francis was bought and renovated in 1976. Talley, the first director, supervised the remodeling of the building according to plans that she and her son, Doug Talley Sr., had drawn. The center cost approximately $210,350, and was free of indebtedness by December 1978.

The center currently has a membership of about 700 senior citizens age 55 and up who pay a nominal membership fee. The center is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Lunch is provided from 10:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. weekdays. The center also provides recreational activities including card games, dominoes, billiards, snooker, jigsaw puzzles, exercise bicycling, arts and crafts, arts classes and a quiet room for computers and reading.

Monty Ben Elkins and Patricia Anne Gardner

Elkins, Gardner wedding

Monty Ben Elkins and Patricia Anne Gardner were married in a small wedding ceremony held at her sister Kathy Gardner's home in Pampa on Jan. 14, 2006. Richard Bartel, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, performed the ceremony.

The celebration dinner was held at Dyer's Bar-B-Que and hosted by Kathy Gardner, Nanci Bergman, both sisters of the bride, Brandy Gardner, daughter of the bride, and ReDonn, Keith and Autumn Woods, daughter, son-in-law, and granddaughter of the groom.

Bride and groom will make their home in Pampa as both are employed by National Oilwell Varco in Pampa.

Duncan anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Duncan of Pampa marked their 25th wedding anniversary Jan. 27 at Dyer's Bar-B-Que in Pampa. Their children hosted the celebration.

Joe Duncan and the former Ginger Reid were married in 1981 at Lefors. Joe has lived in Pampa 28 years and Ginger 47 years.

Mr. Duncan retired from the Texas Department of Transportation in 1999 after 39 years of service. Mrs. Duncan is a homemaker. Both belong to Highland Baptist Church.

Children of the couple are Curt and Mindy Duncan of Mobeetie, and Amanda and Ed Copeland and Alana and Larry Etchison, all of Pampa. They have eight grandchildren.

Procrastination easier with new IRS rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dread doing those taxes? This year, the IRS made it easier to procrastinate.

The filing deadline is two days later than usual — Monday, April 17, because April 15, the normal deadline, is a Saturday. The Internal Revenue Service has also made it easier to get an automatic six-month extension beyond that.

Before, obtaining a six-month filing extension was a two-step process. Taxpayers filed one form to get an automatic four-month extension to Aug. 15, and a second form to obtain an additional extension, usually two more months. But the second extension wasn't automatic — taxpayers had to give a reason for the additional delay and the IRS could always deny the request.

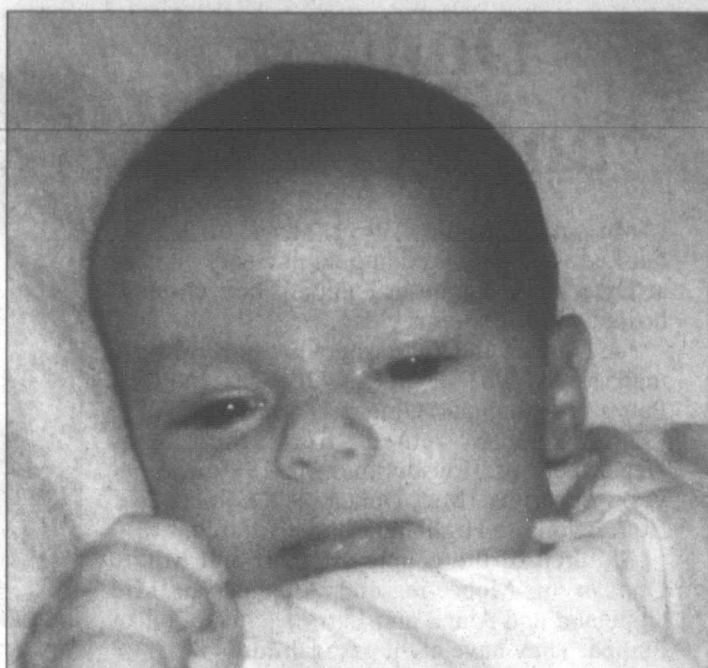

In a cost-savings move, the IRS eliminated or consolidated deadline-extension forms. Now, taxpayers receive an automatic six-month extension to Oct. 16, 2006, by filing a single form, Form 4868. They don't have to provide a reason or even a signature, only file the form by April 17.

Businesses seeking the automatic six-month extension file Form 7004. Before, only corporations could get an automatic six-month extension; now, most non-corporate business taxpayers, including partnerships and trusts, can use this option.

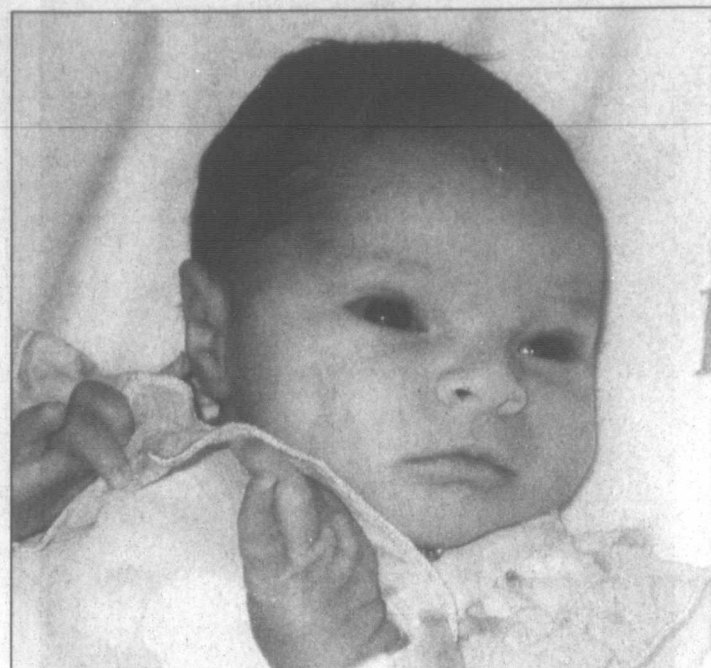

The IRS warns, however, that a filing extension doesn't extend the deadline for paying taxes. If you don't pay the taxes you owe by the regular filing deadline — April 17 — you will owe interest and perhaps a late payment penalty.

Cradle call

Brantzen Wayne Sober

Brantzen Wayne Sober was born at 8:04 a.m. Dec. 30, 2005, at Pampa Regional Medical Center in Pampa, to Jeff and Kim Sober of Panhandle. At birth, the infant weighed 7-pounds, 6-ounces and was 21-inches long. Relatives include his brothers, Christian and Brady; and his grandparents, Jimmy and Linda Sober of Miami and Keith and Margaret Cook of Panhandle.

Bethany Jae Henson

Bethany Jae Henson was born at 9:39 p.m. Feb. 1, at Pampa, to Jay and Deborah Henson of Lefors. At birth, the infant weighed 6-pounds, 13-ounces and was 20-inches long. Relatives include siblings, Savannah, Haley and Hayden; and grandparents, Jim and Sandy Henson of Pampa, and Robert and Helena Stubbs of Hale Center.

Pageant organizers seeking entrants

SHAMROCK — Preparations have begun for the 2006 Shamrock Saint Patrick's Day Celebration and the 14th Annual Lad 'n' Lassie and Pre-Teen Pageant.

The pageant committee would like to take this time to personally invite all boys between the ages of 0-6 years and all girls between the ages of 0-eighth grade to compete in this year's event.

The pageant will be staged at 1 p.m. March 19 in the Shamrock High School Auditorium, 100 S. Illinois.

The pageant will include the following age divisions:

- 0 to 12 months (boy/girl divisions)
- 1 to 3 years (boy/girl divisions)
- 4 to 6 years (boy/girl divisions)
- 7 to 9 years (girl division only)
- 10 years to eighth grade (girl division only)

"Pre-Teen Division"

First place winners from 2005 are not eligible to participate in the pageant.

All contestants from 0 to 9 years will wear their choice of casual or Sunday best wear. The Contestants in the Pre-Teen Division will compete in both casual and Sunday best wear (or formal wear).

Due to the overwhelming success of the pageant in the past, the pageant committee has been forced to limit the number of contestants in the pageant.

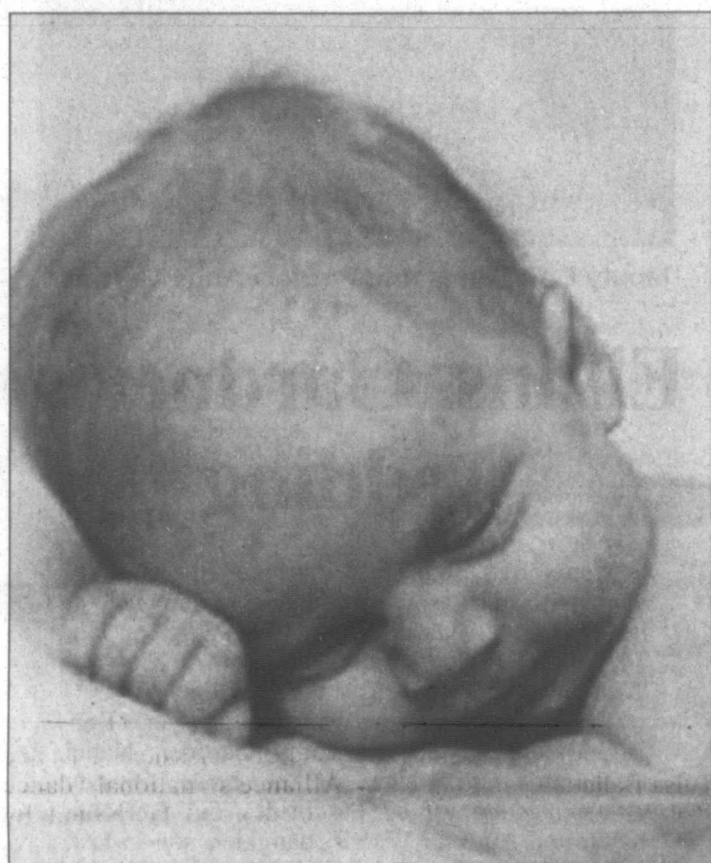

Entries will be accepted in the order received. The deadline to enter is March 1. Entries received after this date will only be accepted until the pageant is full.

Each contestant in each age group will need to provide a completed entry form together with two photos to be used for photo judging and to be published in the local newspaper.

Due to deadline restrictions, late entries may not be able to participate in the photo judging or be printed in the newspaper. Entries must be received by the deadline to make it into the newspaper and photo judging.

Jazz band, art film featured Thursday at Amarillo MOA

AMARILLO — Polk Street Jazz, an Amarillo jazz band, will perform once again at Amarillo Museum of Art during the museum's next monthly Third Thursday which will fall on Thursday.

Third Thursdays are free and open to the public.

Thursday, the jazz group will entertain and a 45-minute film titled "Fritz Scholder: Painting the Paradox" will be shown at 7 p.m. Narrated by Scholder himself, painting, collecting and Scholder's life philosophy are the focus of this film.

The museum currently has three works by Scholder on display in the exhibit "Stephane Janssen: The Collector."

This Third Thursday will last from 6-9 p.m. and will include an art activity, "Paint the Music," an art demonstration with Melissa Fenwick, and a coffee and tea tasting courtesy of Starbucks Coffee Co.

For more information on Third Thursday, contact the museum at (806) 371-5050.

the community and to university-bound students throughout the region.

Nikki Hefley, a senior agriculture business major of McLean, is one of the program's ambassadors.

Faculty throughout the division nominate outstanding students to become ambassadors. An application and interview process follows. Those selected must be full-time students and majoring in some aspect of agriculture. They also are required to maintain a minimum grade point average of 2.75.

Ambassadors are required to volunteer their time, sometimes at their own expense, to travel to no fewer than three organized events per semester, but most sign up for more than that, according to Amanda Beckford, a graduate student in agriculture from El Paso who coordinates the program.

Area rally to promote Team Amber Alert

A rally is planned next month in Pampa and Amarillo to marshal support for Team Amber Alert Texas Petition to pass Jessica's Law™.

The petition is being sponsored in Texas by Tonia Plemmons along with petition creator, Joseph H. Dawson Sr., Florida resident and author of "Child Protection Amendment," and their local sponsor Team Amber Alert.

The Texas petition calls for the following mandates:

Mandate and promulgate national regulations requiring all newly convicted sexual offenders or predators of children who abduct, injure, kill, engage or facilitate child pornography or perpetrate truly deviant or heinous acts be sentenced for a minimum term of 25 years to life imprisonment.

oment.

Mandate and promulgate regulations requiring all newly convicted sexual offenders and predators of children, who are not incarcerated, to wear one-piece, real-time active GPS ankle bracelets for a lifetime.

Establish Threat Level Assessment system based on a 1 to 10 rating of every convicted sexual offender and sexual predator to determine community risk assessment.

Mandate and promulgate regulations to require the state to put Threat Level Assessment numbers on all drivers' licenses, for all offenders classified beyond minimal risk to the community.

Mandate and promulgate regulations requiring every school to offer a curriculum in prevention of child abduction; preventions of child abuse; and offer a funded child fingerprint I.D. card for every child in the state.

Mandate and promulgate regulations prohibiting convicted sexual offenders and/or child predators from applying for any custodial guardianship of any child domestically or internationally including, but not limited to adoption, foster parent care, or temporary guardianship.

National sponsors include National Child Amendment Coalition, Child Protection Coalition and CATS Communication.

Team leaders are needed. To find out more, log onto www.teamameralert.net/news or call (352) 621-4653. To volunteer, call (806) 853-9400.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a wonderful woman for the past 16 months. She comes from a good family, is well-educated, is financially and emotionally stable, and has two great kids who hero-worship me. Last night she told me she has fallen in love with me -- and herein lies the problem. Although we have much in common and have a blast together, I'm only so-so attracted to her physically, and she's starting to notice. I don't want to lose her friendship, but I also don't want to hurt her or her kids, and I'm afraid I already have. What should I do? -- WANTS TO DO THE RIGHT THING

DEAR WANTS TO DO THE RIGHT THING: The right thing is to tell her how fond you are of her and her children and it's something that will never go away, but that you think of her more as a sister than a lover. It won't be easy to say or to hear. But honesty is the best policy in a situation like yours.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend, "Anne," who is in her 40s. She has never married and has dutifully taken care of her mother, whom she loves very much. Abby, Anne's mother is hypercritical, overbearing and unloving. She'll take her hairdresser's advice about her personal affairs rather than listen to the advice of her daughter, who only wants what's best for her mother. Anne desperately wants her mother's love and approval, but I don't think her mother, who is now elderly, will ever change. Poor Anne will never be happy because she can't let go of wanting her mother's love and approval -- which is all she ever wanted but never received. She can't afford counseling and probably wouldn't go if she could. Is there anything I can do to help her? -- WORRIED FRIEND, HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

DEAR FRIEND: Unless your friend wakes up and recognizes that her relationship with her mother is repetitive and unfulfilling, there is nothing anyone can do. However, one day when she seems receptive, you might point out to her that the way her mother controls her is by withholding the very things that she needs and wants the most.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a wonderful man I'll call "Howard." His mother, "Tillie," is driving me crazy. She's trying to plan our wedding with no regard to my feelings or Howard's. She is trying to dictate the style of the wedding cake, the food that will be served, the colors we'll use and the size of the wedding. (We want something small and intimate; she wants a large one.) Tillie has even bought a solid off-white dress to wear, which I think is tacky. Telling her how we feel does no good. Please help! -- EMBATTLED BRIDE IN TENNESSEE

DEAR EMBATTLED: Assuming that you are paying for this wedding, you should have the right to veto any "suggestions" from Howard's mother. Tillie seems to have run her son's life so far, and she will run yours, too, unless you and Howard form a united front to prevent it. I could suggest an elopement, but that wouldn't solve your ultimate problem. Howard's mother will take over your lives if you give her an inch, so unless you're 100 percent positive that once you're married Howard will stand with you, save yourself a lot of heartache and rethink your decision to marry him.

Flower growers facing stiff foreign competition bet on organic

WATSONVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Along a fog-blanketed swath of coastline waiting to burst forth with vivid colors, there are signs of the yesterdays, todays and tomorrows of the flower industry.

Empty greenhouses flank Josh Dautoff's farm, relics of the bust that came when cheap imports drove his neighbors out of business. Tiny yellow bulbineellas, tropical red-and-white amaryllis and more than 150 other varieties replace the daisies his parents grew in the simpler days of floral farming, when a family could make a living with one flower. A barren six-acre plot will soon hold the seeds of a future crop of organic sunflowers.

"People come to us looking for something different," said Dautoff, 29. "No one's coming to me now asking for organic flowers. But I have faith that they will."

Farmers who weathered a wave of cheap imports in the last decade by coaxing their fields to yield hundreds of harder-to-find varieties are increasingly betting on organic flowers, a nascent industry that is taking bloom on the heels of the organic food boom.

Though the market for organic flowers is still small — sales totaled $8 million in 2003, a fraction of the $19.4 billion consumers spent on all flowers nationally — it's growing fast as consumers wary of chemicals start looking for the same standard in other products such as soaps, clothing, cosmetics — and Valentine's Day bouquets.

There's no evidence that organic flowers are healthier, but consumers are increasingly willing to pay more for products made without chemicals harmful to workers or the environment.

Organic flower sales are expected to grow 13 percent annually through 2008, according to the Organic Trade Association.

Many in the industry hope the decision to go organic will eventually be an environmentally friendly but also a financially sound alternative for farmers trying to stay afloat, just as finding interesting new flowers, colors and shapes helped them survive when foreign competition was crushing local production in the 1990s.

"There's going to be learning curve, because flowers have to look good, and they're very susceptible to all kinds of pests," said Peggy Dillon, a spokeswoman with the California Cut Flower Commission. "But the organic foods movement took a while to leave the health food store, and now it's big business."

The trouble in the flower fields of Central California started in 1991, when the United States reduced tariffs on flowers brought in from Colombia and other South American countries.

For decades, California had supplied the nation's flower shops. But producers here couldn't compete with South America's lower wages and steady sunshine. Foreign growers also benefited from being able to use more pesticides to create beautiful flowers, but the chemicals left workers with blurred vision, trembling hands, headaches and dizziness.

California still grows 72 percent of domestically produced flowers. But today, about 70 percent of the flowers Americans buy are foreign, according to the Society of American Florists. Comparisons to previous years are difficult because the U.S. Department of Agriculture changed its record keeping in 1999, but for roses, 95 percent were imported in 2004, compared to 48 percent in 1991.

That shift left a sad stamp on California's coastal flower farms. There were 45 farmers growing roses in the Watsonville area in 1991. Now, there are about 10, Dillon said.

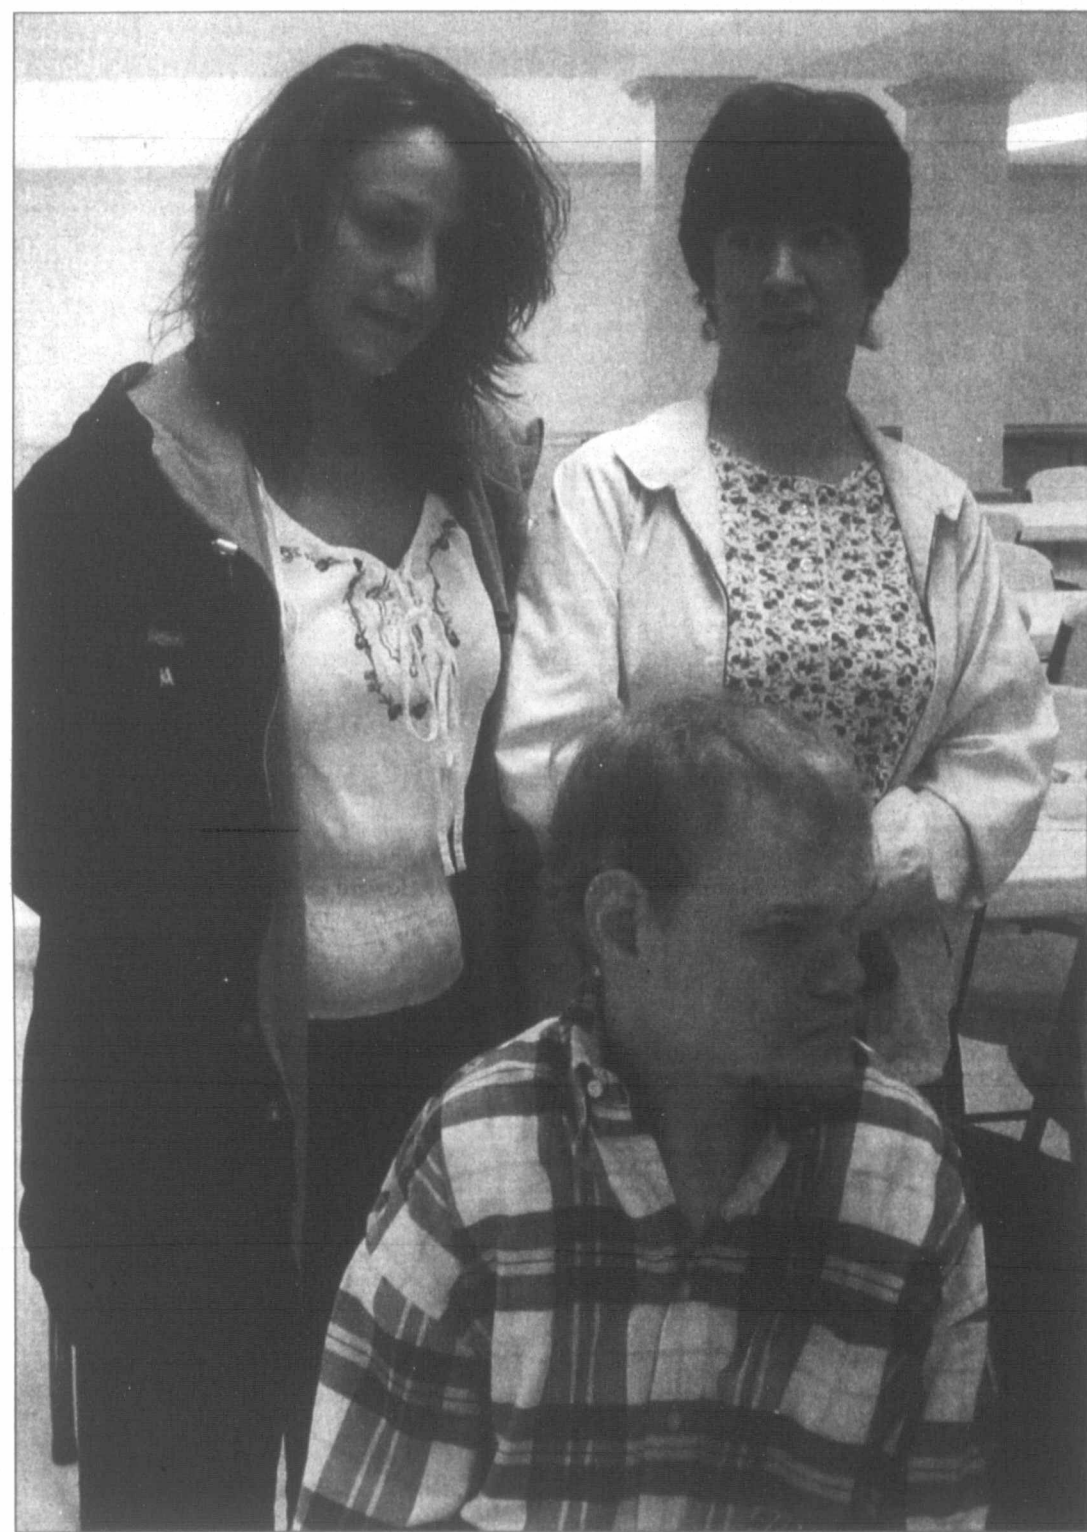

Great greenhouses, once fragrant with roses, loom empty in the chilly fog next to Dautoff's fields. Now it's cheaper for San Francisco markets to fly them from Colombia than buy the ones his neighbors used to grow.

"I can't compete on regular roses," said farmer Marc Kessler of California Organic Flowers, who grows over 100 varieties on two acres, then packages them for shipping around the country. "But organic gives us an edge, and I can compete with unique varieties, special colors and fragrances and freshness."

In spite of its promise, the organic market is still limited, and the financial risks are substantial, which makes it hard for Dautoff, who wishes his whole farm could be chemical free.

To halt the chemical cycle, farmers need to leave fields fallow for three years for pesticides to wash from soils.

WTC attack claims latest victim

NEW YORK (AP) — For James Zadroga, dying was as simple as breathing.

The highly decorated New York police detective was heading home from work on Sept. 11, 2001, when the news came across his car radio: A plane had flown into the World Trade Center. He rushed back to lower Manhattan, where the twin 110-story towers had collapsed into a toxic pile of burning rubble.

Zadroga spent 470 hours sifting through the smoldering ruins.

Inhale, exhale.

Twelve-hour shifts, nearly 40 of them.

Inhale, exhale.

More than 28,000 minutes, his only protection a thin, paper mask.

Zadroga barely avoided death when 7 World Trade Center tumbled down around him hours after the planes hit. The escape was temporary: By the time he was finished at ground zero, Zadroga was as much a Sept. 11 victim as anyone lost in the tower stairwells.

His breathing became labored within weeks, his health deteriorated over months, he was on disability in just over three years. On Jan. 5, 2006, the 34-year-old Zadroga finally succumbed, betrayed by his failing body; the World Trade Center had claimed its latest fatality.

Exhale, one last time.

Two years earlier, his wife died of a heart ailment that family members blame on stress created by Zadroga's fatal illness and his battle with city bureaucrats over its cause. Their 4-year-old daughter, born shortly after her father finished work at ground zero, is the newest trade center orphan.

In the days before Zadroga's final breath, his little girl came out of her father's bedroom and spoke to her grandfather.

"I knew my daddy was really sick," Tylerann Zadroga told him. "But I didn't think he'd die this fast."

Zadroga grew up in North Arlington, N.J.; his dad was chief of police in a blue-collar suburb of 15,000 residents. The younger of two sons, he was a nonsmoker and a bodybuilder with a rock-solid physique.

"I used to punch him in the arm, just playing around," recalled his father,

Joseph. "By the time he was 16, it started to hurt my hand."

Zadroga graduated from high school, went to a local community college, and then surprised his father by entering law enforcement. The son swapped his small town for the big city: He joined the New York police in 1991, and was soon working the streets of Greenwich Village.

"The apple didn't fall far from the tree," said Monsignor William Fadrowski, a family friend for nearly two decades. "Just like his father, he was a real genuine guy ... just a fine man."

A 1994 New York Times article detailed his work busting beer-drinking teens as part of the city's "quality of life" crackdown, but Zadroga was destined for bigger things.

He became a detective, earning 31 medals for excellence and seven others for meritorious duty during a decade on the job. He married Ronda in 2000, and they moved into their own suburban home two hours north of the city.

On the morning of Sept. 11, Zadroga was working in the elite Manhattan South homicide unit — "a pretty prestigious post," said Michael Palladino, head of the Detectives Endowment Association.

Zadroga was driving home after an overnight tour when he heard that a plane had struck the trade center's north tower. He reversed course, and headed toward the billowing smoke.

Zadroga was soon running for his life when 7 World Trade Center collapsed as he worked nearby. He spent the next month digging through the pile of concrete and chemicals and human remains.

"The first weeks were the worst," said Rev. Brian Jordan, a Franciscan priest who met Zadroga at ground zero in the days after 9/11. "We weren't sure what was going on. The fires were still burning."

The priest remembered Zadroga as conscientious, hardworking and determined to rescue his missing brothers. Day after day, often with just two hours of fitful sleep, Zadroga worked as all hope disappeared and the death toll climbed: 23 fellow NYPD members, 37 Port Authority police, 343 New York firefighters, 2,749 people in all.

"Reality set in," said Jordan. "We were not going to find anybody alive."

Career-ending injury pits player against team at Georgia

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Decory Bryant had been injured on the football field before. He'd bruised muscles, dislocated fingers, broken a few bones. This time, though, was different.

The pain in his neck was dull, but it was spreading.

As he stumbled off the field after returning a kick, trainers guided him to the bench and ordered him to sit. They asked him to hold his arms out, then pressed down on them to check that they were stable and strong. They asked to swivel his neck, swing his arms in circles, shrug his shoulders to see if he had lost any freedom of motion.

The hit had been vicious — so vicious that the National Athletic Trainers Association would eventually show it to high school and college players as an example of the dangers of headfirst tackling, hoping to scare them.

Still, the trainers decided moments later that Bryant was OK. He was the star of the defensive backfield for the University of Georgia Bulldogs; his coaches wanted him back in the game.

He didn't budge.

Something wasn't right.

Bryant knew his body well. For three grueling seasons, he had hurled it against some of the nation's quickest wide receivers and offered it as a human bull's-eye during kickoff returns.

He also knew that his body could easily crumble in the crucible of the football field. That very week, he had ducked into the office of Hoke Wilder, a hard-nosed assistant athletic director. Among his responsibilities: arranging insurance for players who wanted it.

The cornerback told Wilder his family was ready to stomach the $5,000 premium for coverage. The policy would pay $500,000 if an injury ended his career before he had an opportunity to sign a big contract with the National Football League.

It was already halfway into the season and just days before the team's showdown with the University of Alabama-Birmingham.

"Is it too late to get any insurance for the year?" Decory recalls asking.

"I don't think so," Wilder answered.

Later that Tuesday, Bryant waited at his locker for Wilder to bring by the insurance papers that needed his signature. Wilder never showed. Nor did he the next day.

On Thursday, the insurance company had given Wilder a notice that Bryant could be covered. But Bryant and Wilder didn't meet then, either.

All week, Bryant's mother, Betty White, called anxiously to make sure the papers were in order. White and her son had talked about getting insurance since the summer, months before the season began. She'd always worried about his safety but she was feeling more nervous lately.

"You'd better take care of it before the game," she told him Friday night.

Wilder was nowhere to be found.

After the game, Wilder's home phone rang. It was head coach Mark Richt, demanding to know if Bryant's insurance coverage was set.

"I would say it is probably less than a 50/50 chance," Wilder answered, according to his deposition. "What is the problem?"

Decory's injury, said the young coach, was much worse than we initially thought.

Each Saturday in the fall, thousands of football players like Decory Bryant put their lives on the line as their colleges earn big payouts and grab priceless national prestige.

At Georgia, where home games attract pilgrims from across the Bulldog Nation, Richt's latest contract guarantees him $2 million a year; his top assistants make six-figure salaries. The team's share for playing in one game alone, the 2006 Nokia Sugar Bowl, was $1.7 million.

Players get scholarships and housing, travel expenses.

Every year, as players get stronger and their opponents more talented, the risks become greater. Since 1977, 252 football players have had devastating injuries to their cervical cords and not completely recovered — 31 at the college level, according to a University of North Carolina study.

All NCAA players are automatically covered by catastrophic insurance which pays medical and other expenses, along with a disability benefit. But a few athletes with pro potential can buy policies to protect millions of dollars in expected income.

Bryant was certainly a member of that elite.

In Orlando, where he grew up, he knew he had a future in football from the moment he first took the field in eighth grade. Georgia coach Jim Donnan, impressed by that confidence, recruited him to play for the Bulldogs.

When Donnan was fired and Richt took over, Bryant suddenly became a fourth-stringer, squirming on the sidelines while waiting his turn behind a cast of All-Americans.

After watching a painful loss to a so-so South Carolina team from the sidelines, he brazenly approached position coach Willie Martinez.

"I understand you've got to do what you got to do to keep your job. But if you don't play me, you're going to lose your job," he said. "Let me know when you want to win."

By his junior season, he was starting every game. By October of his senior year, Bryant's NFL hopes were soaring. Coaches were telling him he had a realistic chance of being a first-round pick, which meant a shot at a starting job in the NFL and a salary of more than $1 million.

HOROSCOPE - SUNDAY FEBRUARY 12

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Feb. 12, 2006:

You will often go through the pros and cons of personal situations over and over until you are verging on redundancy. Your professional status could benefit from high visibility. You will get a pay raise or promotion if you are in the work force. If not, your community standing soars because you are willing to give it that extra effort and energy. If you are single, you will be unusually attractive. Boundary issues develop within a relationship. If you are attached, you might need to rebalance how much you give. Do you feel resentment or guilt? Use those feelings to guide you. LEO is a good time.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:
5-Dynamic; 4-Positive;
3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Today's Full Moon sets the tone for the next few days. You might enjoy the heavy social pace, but others might respond in a frenetic manner. You can deal with the confusion. A dear friend or loved one adds a lot of fun. Tonight: Ignore the fact that tomorrow is Monday.

This Week: Now, be all about work.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 You might feel as if you are caught between a rock and a hard place. You might want to hang close to home, but others seem to need you. Fortunately, a partner or dear friend pitches in and helps you lighten up. Tonight: Try to chill out.

This Week: Creativity infuses your days.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 News comes in from many different sources. The real issue is: What is news, and what is gossip? You might not be able to check out a situation as completely as you would like. Find a favorite hobby to focus on. Tonight:

This Week: Success follows you from

Monday on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 You are juggling much more than you originally thought possible. You will have knee-jerk reactions today. Keep your sense of humor. You are more buoyant than you originally thought. Try to detach. Tonight: Relax to a movie or a favorite musician.

This Week: Others want you to lead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Hold on to your wallet. Look in the mirror and practice saying no. You will need to lasso in your spending in the near future, if not today. You might want to rethink a financial partnership. Tonight: Let someone else be the big spender.

This Week: Look at the big picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 The Full Moon tosses you into the limelight. Evaluate more of what you want and expect from those in your life. You see your friends and loved ones in full, living color right now. Visit with an older relative. Tonight: Go along with the program.

This Week: Don't hesitate to depend on someone else.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 You might have higher energy levels than you realize. You might be lying low for your own well-being, or because it suits your purposes. Be careful with commitments. Others are changeable as well. Tonight: Try to calm down.

This Week: Others want their way. Let them have it.

HOROSCOPE - MONDAY FEBRUARY 13

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Feb. 13, 2005:

You have a lot to offer this year. Don't hold back. Rather, flow and reach out for others. Taking the initiative should become standard fare. Your self-confidence grows, and success naturally develops. Communication and security walk hand in hand. Your inquisitive mind needs an outlet. Some of you might take workshops, while others travel to remote areas of the world. If you are single, romance thrives. Don't get too caught up in the whirlwind and forget what you want in a relationship. You don't want that special person to slip by with all your flirtation! If you are attached, your relationship will flourish, as you cannot help but be romantic, creative and desirable. ARIES brings out the best in you.

This Week: Creativity infuses your days.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 News comes in from many different sources. The real issue is: What is news, and what is gossip? You might not be able to check out a situation as completely as you would like. Find a favorite hobby to focus on. Tonight:

This Week: Success follows you from

Monday on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 Express your playfulness, and others will join in. In fact, when you let your hair down and express yourself, you are irresistible. The natural need to relax comes into play this afternoon. Tonight: Get a head start on Monday.

This Week: You are entrenched with work through Tuesday night. Network all you want from Wednesday on.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Take your time making a decision, especially if this could impact your security and home life. Investigate and find experts. Late in the afternoon, play with a child, visit the zoo or go to the park. In this atmosphere, your subconscious will cook up answers. Tonight: Forget that tomorrow is Monday.

This Week: Your creativity flows naturally. By Wednesday, you focus this energy into your work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 You often say too much. Right now, you ask the right question at the right time. Use your verbal and creative skills to mend a bridge or make a relationship closer. Slow down this afternoon. Invite others to your home. Tonight: Choose a no-hassle dinner.

This Week: Anchor in, knowing what you want. Dig into your imagination for answers.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Pay bills before you dive into your Sunday plans. You won't worry about anything once you let go and plunge into your social whirlwind. Don't forget someone who often feels left out. You have the ability to make or break this person's day. Tonight: Carouse at a favorite spot.

This Week: Reach out for others. Schedule meetings. Anchor in from Wednesday on.
