Pride of The City—Tell The Public—Where Is The Market?—Ready For Thanksgiving

Wichita Falls' new auditorium, still in an uncompleted stage, houses its first great gathering in the Baptist state convention which opens here today. Little chance will be given to the majority of Wichita Falls residents to inspect the structure during the next few days, but to those who are connected with the convention, its entertainment, or who merely attend as spectators, it must bring a feeling of pride, or more truly a feeling of awe at the spirit of this city reflected in a magnificent building.

Comfort and spaciousness are the predominating impressions of the interior, but these characteristics blend well with the beauty of detail and structure which has been carried out. Streets approaching the auditorium are all that could be desired, and the exterior, now practically completed, is as striking as the interior. The new municipal auditorium is a magnificent structure. Every Wichita Falls resident should inspect it from top to bottom at the first chance.

At the suggestion of Walter Curlee, the Real Estate board Tuesday voted to ask the city for a financial statement of the water department for consideration in connection with the proposal to bond the water system for new improvements. Commissioner P. B. Curd assured the board that the statement will be gladly prepared. If possible, the city officials might go a step farther and present the statement to the voters of Wichita Falls. The great majority of the citizens of this city know the need of water improvements, but they remain to be convinced on the efficacy of bonding the city's entire system for the money.

As explained by Mr. Curd, the bonding of the water system is more advantageous than the ordinary bond issue against property values. Incomes of the department above operating expenses would be sufficient to care for the interest and sinking fund, it was pointed out, while the retiring of about $600,000 in bonds outstading at present would allow an actual reduction in the tax rate. Should the city at any time be unable to meet its payments from water department revenues, it would still have the privilege it now has—of providing for the same through bonds or direct taxation.

Officers of Clay county, acting on information from Sheriff W. G. Bralley and aided by the Wichita officer, seized a 1000-gallon still and a couple of truck loads of material for liquor making. It is a right seizable haul for these prohibition days. Is there a market in Northwest Texas for 1000 gallons of liquor a day? If so, it's going to be short for a while at least.

The turkey growers of the Quitaque section and other areas in Northwest Texas are beginning to market the Thanksgiving bird. The price is around 25 cents a pound, and as far as Wichita Falls is concerned, there is a scarcity of available birds. There is money in turkeys. There is money in poultry. There is money in many crops and many things for the farmer besides cotton. The wise men on the farm are cashing in on this demand.

Historic House Burned At Chancellorsville

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Nov. 15. (AP)—The historic chancellor house, located in the center of the battlefield at Chancellorsville, where occurred probably the bitterest fighting of the Civil war, was destroyed by fire last night.

The celaring occupied by the house was raked by gun and artillery fire on May 2 and 3, 1863, and repair work where a federal shell crashed through the west side was plainly visible. It was in this clearing that General Lee rallied his troops after the battle on May 4.

YATES NO. 2-C SETS RECORD FOR SECTION

Only Two Other Wells In World History To Exceed It

SAND AT 965 to 993

Oil Men "Flabbergasted" At Prospect of New Record Production

TULSA, Nov. 15. (AP)—The No. 2-C Yates well in the Yates pool of Southeastern Pecos county, Texas, today had developed into the third-largest oil well ever found in the world and the second largest ever developed in the United States. This afternoon's test showed it flowing at the rate at 65,880 barrels a day, its developers, the Transcontinental Oil company and the Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company announced.

The well is in section 60, block 1 of I. & G. N. survey, one and one-half miles northeast of the discovery well in the Yates pool.

Records show that it is exceeded in size by only the Mexican Petroleum company's No. 4 Cerro Azul, which came in May 14, 1901, for an initial flow of 260,858 barrels and the world's largest oil well.

California's largest oil well, the Lakeview gusher, came in March 15, 1910, for 60,000 barrels a day, and the sixth day it quit entirely.

Shallow Well.

The McIlroy's of Amarillo, completed a well recently in Hutchinson county, the Panhandle, for 24,000 barrels a day.

The new Yates well had an initial flow of 800 barrels an hour after hitting the shallow sand at 965 to 993 feet. It was pinched in and allowed to make only a small amount of oil and Tuesday morning on the hourly pro-ration test it produced 2059 barrels in a 45-minute period through two four-inch lines and traps and one four-inch line direct.

At this rate the new gusher would have made 2745 barrels for the full hour and 65,880 barrels a day.

Oil Men Amazed.

Mid-Continental oil men are frankly flabbergasted at the productivity of the shallow pay formations in the Pecos sands, and now realize that it could easily attain a daily output of one million barrels.

The famous Spindletop well in Texas, brought in in 1901, flowed at more than 100,000 barrels a day and still holds the American record.

ONE WELL NEARLY EQUALS PRODUCTION OF AREA.

Wichita Falls oil men, when advised Tuesday that a well in the Yates field of Pecos county was flowing more than 65,000 barrels daily, pointed out that this lone well in the world's greatest shallow field is flowing two-thirds as much oil as the entire Wichita Falls district, which comprises 10 counties with many hundreds of wells.

The oil produced in the Pecos field, however, is classed as "heavy" and has a high sulphur content, making it necessary to mix oil such as is produced in North Texas with it before refining. The Pecos crude brings a posted price of 65 cents per barrel while the average price for North Texas crude is $1.30 per barrel. At its present rate, the production of the well is worth $39,528 per day.

The monster gusher has been flowing since Saturday. Its increase in yield was presumably caused by deepening.

It is the forty-fourth producer in the Yates field but far outstrips any of the other wells. The second well drilled in the pool had an initial output of approximately 32,000 barrels daily.

The big well is in section 60, block 1, I. & G. N. survey.

RAIN AND HAIL IN WILBARGER

Temperature Here Nears Freezing Point

Possibility that Wichita Falls would experience the first freeze of the season was seen here early Wednesday, when the thermometer hit the low mark of 40 degrees at 1 o'clock. The maximum temperature Tuesday was recorded at 79 degrees, the minimum, 37 degrees.

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Nov. 15.—In the northern part of the county precipitation totaling 1.29 inches fell today, accompanied by a terrific downfall of hail for about 20 minutes. The storm covered the section north of the Pease river and extended into Vernon late Monday evening.

Trees in Vernon were stripped of many of their leaves and some automobile tops were filled with holes. The storm did not extend south of Vernon to any extent and the damage north of the river was reported lighter than might be expected because the cotton crop was well picked.

SOUTH TEXAS YET TO FEEL COLD BLAST.

DALLAS, Nov. 15. (AP)—Although still showing its teeth and menacing the state more or less disdfully, the heralded "blue norther" had barely reached a pale azure stage Tuesday night. Panhandle points were the only ones reporting what could be called winter weather, while South Texas was still waiting to be shown that the unprecedented warm fall weather had broken.

Amarillo, who experienced a sharp drop in temperature Monday night, reported "clear and cold." Abilene reported colder weather with frost predicted Tuesday night and Wednesday.

The temperature at 7 p. m. stood at 43 degrees at Dallas with freezing predicted by morning. Tuesday morning the temperature was down to 40 degrees. Waco reported "rainy and chilly, temperature falling." Some rain fell over the greater part of Central Texas and a flurry of snow fell at Georgetown, melting as it touched the ground.

White had 21,932 votes and Knauss 18,001. The congressional district takes in Denver only.

CONTROL BOARD SEEKS RELIEF

Plan Up to Moody Would Allow Hours Cut

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—Women employes of state institutions will be required to work only the legal 54 hours weekly prescribed by law for women in industries, if a plan mapped out by the board of control and other agencies Tuesday wins Governor Dan Moody's approval.

Dr. C. W. Cashner, superintendent of the Wichita Falls insane hospital, has been charged by Charles McKemy, labor commissioner, with violating the 54 hour law. Former Senator J. D. Parnell, representing Dr. Cashner, the labor department and the board of control, are now at work preparing a deficiency budget for emplacment of additional women workers at the five insane hospitals to be submitted to Governor Moody. If Moody grants the deficiency appropriation to employ additional help the state will immediately begin observing its own law governing hours of work of employed women, it was announced. R. E. Walthall, member of the board of control, recently declared it would be "little short of criminal" to lock up hundreds of women inmates of the hospitals without attendants, the only way by which the state could observe the 54 hour law with present funds.

Pastor Transfers Meetings From Theater

After failing to secure the Palace theater here for his addresses, the Rev. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth announced Tuesday night he would speak at Bellevue park until a tent which he has ordered arrives here and is set up.

The Rev. Norris will give his address at 1 o'clock this Wednesday, speaking on "Signs of the Times."

"I shall also tell what is back of the Palace theater cancellation," the Fort Worth minister declared, "and shall answer the Tulsa World editorial."

It had previously been announced that the Rev. Norris would speak at the Palace, but Tuesday Manager T. E. Noble Jr., made the cryptic announcement "the theater is not for rent." Mr. Noble said that he had referred the first request of the Rev. Norris to the Dallas office, the matter had then been referred back to Wichita Falls, and no second application had been made.

The Rev. Norris said he had been granted permission by Mayor R. E. Shepherd to use Bellevue park Thursday at 1 o'clock he will speak on "The History of Evolution Among Texas Baptists," he announced.

7:00—Baptist General Convention opens.

Assembled in the new municipal auditorium for the second series of meetings in anticipation of the Baptist convention of Texas, hundreds of ministers of Baptist churches in Texas gathered early Tuesday night to complete the first day of the Pastors' and Laymen's conference, which opened Tuesday morning. The assembly was estimated to have consisted of approximately 3000 people, being the first group to meet within the halls of the new auditorium, and one of the largest assemblies of Baptist ministers ever held in Texas.

Many Volunteer

The session Tuesday evening was devoted largely to a discussion of the problems of the foreign missions and the consideration, and the passage of a series of resolutions introduced by J. W. Lowe, missionary to Chinese fields, designed to augment interest in this work. The resolutions, which provided that each church, B. Y. P. U., and Woman's Missionary society in Texas unite in conducting an annual school of missions and stewardship, was enthusiastically received by the conference, and several hundred rose to the call for volunteers to establish these schools in their churches. The resolutions read as follows:

"1. That church schools of missions and stewardship be recognized as a most effective method of enlisting all our people especially our layman, in our great missionary enterprises at home and abroad.

"2. That every pastor be urged to conduct a school of stewardship and missions in his church, or a group of churches, annaully and report the results to our general secretary, Mr. F. S. Groner at Dallas.

Foster Schools.

"3. That our B. Y. P. U.'s and W. M. S.'s be requested to foster these schools in co-operation with the pastor, and to plan a missionary program quarterly in every church in our association.

"4. That the teachers and students in all our schools be urgently requested to co-operate with our state secretary in holding these schools in a statewide campaign of information regarding our world-wide missionary work.

"5. That we recommend that these schools be conducted in the month of February, 1928, or some earlier date, if it is so preferred.

"6. That world missions be featured in Sunday school men's Bible classes."

The resolutions were presented to the conference after Dr. Lowe had made a short talk on "Church Schools of Missions as a Method of Informing Our People."

The missionary system as practiced in China, where on Sunday the people gather for sermons and devotionals, and where during week days graded school classes are conducted for the benefit of natives, was outlined by the speaker. The progress of this work, however, has been considerably hampered by a lack of support to the missionaries.

Missionary's Plea.

"We work hard with our mission schools, and do our best to accomplish our purposes, and when we return home we find our own pastors and more, our own laymen, taking no interest whatever in our work. We find that we have no money with which to carry out our dreams of enlarged mission schools, and we find everything against us, yet we carry on."

The plea for more interest in the mission department of the churches took on large proportions in the address given before the conference by W. B. Glass, also one time mission worker in Hwanghien, China.

Dr. Glass introduced the subject, however, with broadside penetra-

AL SMITH MEN FORM IN TEXAS

Followers of Wilson To Back New Yorker

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—Al Smith supporters have launched a statewide campaign in a secret Austin meeting to win a solid Texas delegation of 40 votes in the national democratic convention, it became known Tuesday.

Work is now under way to create Smith campaign organizations in every county, and a corps of field workers have been set out to begin the ambitious program of selecting "Al for president" chairmen in counties and precincts.

Smith Leader Talks.

This was revealed by one of the leaders in all state meeting here on condition his name should not be used. He is an influential and widely known Texan, who has been among the most active representatives of the public in shaping legislation in Texas during the past ten years. He is believed to be directing the field force in the Smith campaign.

"Al Smith will be nominated, and he will carry the south" this campaigner declared emphatically. No intention was given of any effort to name a Texan running mate for Smith.

The meeting was called by a number of the influential Smith followers in Texas, and was held here behind closed doors. Its purpose was declared to be to put an effective working machine into operation long before the precinct and county conventions are held next year and to convince the organized democracy of Texas Smith is the only hope of party success. The campaign will undertake to bind the entire delegation by instructions to the Smith cause from the first ballot to the last, it was revealed. Its leaders believe this will be accomplished, the spokesman said.

Wilson Men Helping.

"Some of the same powerful leaders who were behind Woodrow Wilson are the men who are bringing Al Smith into the race," he said.

"And it might be pointed out," he continued "that Al Smith is no more of a wet than Woodrow Wilson was.

PLEA FOR CHRISTIAN EDUCATION, NEFF'S MESSAGE TO W. M. U.

STATE NEEDS RELIGIOUS AID

Church and School Go Hand in Hand

tions to the heart of the Christian religion. "The center of the Christian religion," he said, "is the cross. And the cross means death. We have come in these later years to give an adapted meaning to the cross, a meaning that suggests the problems that are borne by the individual. But originally it meant death. Christ bore his cross, but he left a cross for you and me; and it is up to us, messengers of the church, missionaries, church workers, to bear out our commissions in the spirit of Calvary."

The session was opened by a song service, led by Robert Coleman, and the invocation, given by Dr. H. A. Bardon. W. S. Dickson, evangelist, who recently completed a successful revival meeting at San Marcos, gave a vocal solo, "I Remember When My Burdens Rolled Away."

"We Baptists of Texas have our denominational troubles but we have them because we have talked to each other more than we have talked to God," declared Dr. Layden Maddox, Belton, in delivering the principal address before the session.

Dr. Maddox issued a strong plea for more prayer in the church, asserting that the thing needed most in the church is prayer.

His address consisted in treating five points relative to increased prayer. They were:

Recognition of the presence of God in praying; earnestness of prayer; the importance of being impressed to pray; the necessity of praying "through;" and definite prayer.

By praying "through" Dr. Maddox explained that he meant to first pray through our sins, through ourselves to God and most important of all, through the devil, who, he said, is always present.

"More prayer will do more good than more preaching. We preachers need to pray and more prayer is needed in the pews," he declared.

The conference met in annual session Tuesday morning in the new auditorium, with the Rev. Jefferson Davis, president of the convention, in charge. Principal speakers on the morning program were W. T. Conner, J. L. Yelvington, L. E. Posey and W. M. Harrell, all of whom spoke on some phase of the general topic of morning, "Stewardship and Tithing."

The afternoon session, held in the First Presbyterian church, was given over to discussion of the topic, "Evangelism." T. F. Harvey, spoke on the theme, "Bible Evangelism"; W. F. Ferguson spoke on "Pastoral Evangelism"; and Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor university, spoke on "Laymen Evangelists."

Convention Opens at 7

Meeting as an adjunct of the convention proper, which convenes in the auditorium Wednesday evening, the pastors' conference will continue Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The program of the convention, now being arranged by a special committee, will get under way at 7 p. m., after the conference, and the Women's Missionary union, which has conducted its sessions at the First Baptist church, have come to a close.

The Missionary Union, likewise a part of the convention, opened its sessions here Monday morning, with an attendance that has repeatedly filled the church auditorium to overflowing and which is regarded as the largest crowd ever to assemble for a meeting of this kind in Texas.

Pat M. Neff, president of the Texas Baptist convention which is now convening in this city, addressed more than 1000 women at the afternoon session of the Woman's Missionary Union held at the Baptist church Tuesday on the subject of "Denominational Coaling Stations."

"In war and in peace nations have their coaling stations for the refurnishment of ships that they may continue on their course; the railroads of the nation maintain their coaling stations and Colonel Lindbergh has recently said that airplane traffic could not progress unless "coaling" stations were established in the country, just so a state cannot grow and a denomination cannot live that does not have its coaling stations"; were the opening words of Mr. Neff's address.

Christian Education.

The general discussion pertained to intellectual coaling stations —"the state and church would become ossified without these intellectual coaling stations, and youth must drop anchor here long enough to transmute knowledge. The church and state coaling stations have much in common and working together they make for free churches in a free state.

"The state itself functions in public education, but the state cannot function in Christian education, therefore the duty and the obligation of Christian education is placed on the church. The state and church which do not maintain education are destined for ruin and destruction.

"It may seem that a large number of students are attending our religious institutions, but only eight out of every hundred students in Texas are in denominational institutions, and those men who have come from denominational institutions have shot through the whole fabric of government with mortality."

Neff asked three vital questions of the women: "Is there no work to do when 200,000 boys and girls in Texas above the age of ten can neither read nor write? Is there no alarm when 200,000 of this 200,000 hold poll tax receipts? Why not discuss the high cost of ignorance to this state instead of the high cost of education when the cost of ignorance is more than the entire output for education?

Convicts Poorly Educated.

"More than 700 of the convicts of the penitentiary have never seen the inside of a school house—more than 2100 of them have gone no further than the sixth grade—making more than one-half of the convicts of the penitentiary illiterate, and it costs more to send a boy to the penitentiary than to send him to school. Why doesn't someone do something about this staggering cost of ignorance? The value of education among the rank and file of people must not be underestimated.

"Builders of the government and builders of churches have always been founders of educational institutions. Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth and other education centers of this country are all older than the government and were established before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the government coming directly from these institutions.

"Thomas Jefferson, the founder of Virginia university, has said, 'If you expect to be free and ignorant, you expect what never can be.' The government and religious denominations cannot be carried on the back of ignorance. Educated citizenship must be entrenched behind the church and school. The church and school house have always traveled side by side and one cannot live without the other.

"The state cannot maintain religious education and it is therefore the church's duty to see that spiritual and moral education is carried on. The Baptists are the richest denomination in Texas, they have the oldest denominational institutions of learning in Texas, and they are the largest denomination in Texas, and now the time has come when it is the duty of this denomination to lay their gold by the side of their girls and their bounty by the side of their boys so it may be said that there is no greater spiritual education elsewhere than in the schools of Texas."

Mr. Neff's address was most enthusiastic received and Mrs. P. S. Davis, president of the W. M. U. thanked him in glowing terms for his message.

In the absence of Mrs. W. E. Glass, Mrs. George Truitt of Dallas gave the devotional at the opening of the meeting, and Mrs. J. E. Leigh led the prayer.

The second feature of the afternoon was a talk on Howard Payne college delivered by the president of the college, Dr. Edgar Godbold. Dr. Goldbold made a plea for loyalty to the boys and girls of the state by sending them to the Texas Baptist schools. He also announced that last Saturday Mrs. J. C. Walker, a member of the board of trustees of Howard Payne college, gave a $40,000 trust fund to the college. He asked that the college be given a place in the sympathies, prayers, and plans of the women of the W. M. U.

Mrs. McGarity gave a report from the special committee on education and made several recommendations concerning the observance of a season of prayer in connection with various programs

Mrs. B. W. Vining of Waco made the recommendation that schools of missions and stewardship be held. This motion was adopted.

Mrs. Lawrence offered the use of the graded system of books for study in the different branches of the organization to be secured from the Home Mission board.

A motion that Pat M. Neff's address be printed in leaflet form by the W. M. U. of Texas was made made by Mrs. Dalton, and was passed.

The afternoon session closed with a prayer by Mrs. Byers.

Morning Program

The Tuesday morning session of the W. M. U. opened at 9:30 o'clock with the singing of the hymn, "I Love to Tell the Story." Mrs. Collard accompanied on the organ and Mrs. I. E. Reynolds of Seminary Hill, Fort Worth, led the singing. The devotional was given by Mrs. W. L. Robertson of Wichita Falls and was based on the subject of "Enlistment," the lesson being taken from the twelfth chapter of Romans. Mrs. Stokes of Corpus Christi led the opening prayer.

Recognition of visitors and missionaires was made by the president, Mrs. F. S. Davis of Dallas, who presided over the meeting.

Greetings from Wichita Falls, the hostess city, were given by Mrs. A. W. Eichenberger, president of the local branch of the W. M. U., and was responded to by Mrs. Charles T. Whaley of Sweetwater, who is the wife of the pastor of the Baptist church of that city and chairman of the Abilene district as well as head of the young people's association.

"Organized Christianity must meet the responsibilities in every realm, said Mrs. Davis in her annual president's address to the women.

"The Baptists of Texas and of the south are depending on the fidelity of the women who have been the bulwark in every great undertaking."

Following her address Mrs. Davis was presented with a corsage and a motion was made that her speech be printed and sent to the various branches of the organization so that the young people may read it.

Special music was given by Rev. W. S. Dixon of Dallas, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Collard.

Attendance Record.

The report on credentials showed that 527 delegates had registered, 152 visitors, and six missionaries, with registrations still continuing, making this the largest single state convention of the W. M. U. held so far.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. E. Leigh of Dallas, gave her report discussing the Ruby anniversary, the budget, seven-fold conquest campaign, and a live Y. M. A. in all the colleges of the state. She reported that Texas brought back three banners from Louisville for the largest number of new chapters of Y. M. A., R. A. and G. As.

The treasurer and office executive's report was given by Mrs. Olivia Davis of Dallas.

Three-Minute Reports.

Henry is thinking about that refinery he is going to own and operate when he grows up—he used to think owning a filling station would be about the grandest thing of all, but now that he has seen a real refinery, a filling station seems childish.

Besides making money, he is interested in music, but the two, of course, are not at all related. Probably he will grow up to make his money in oil and will spend his leisure time in playing the saxophone.

In the accompanying photo, Henry does look as if he would enjoy keeping the neighbors awake with his sax. While we can't say as to the child's sax ability, we can say that he sings well. He sings right along after the radio, and he likes popular songs better than he does other types.

The Record News will run Henry's brother's picture one of these days and let you judge which of the two boys is handsomer. The boys have two older sisters, Mizelle and Margaret Marie. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hodge, 1601 Monroe street.

Recent Bride Given Miscellaneous Shower

Mrs. Leslie McCoy, recent bride who previous to her wedding was Miss Crystal Seale, was honoree at a delightful miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Fay Rhine, 1602 Kemp boulevard, when hostesses were Miss Rhine, Leda Chambers and Sue Power.

Pink and orchid was carried out in all decorations and refreshments with table covers, score pads, tally cards and nut cups of the two colors. Little Peggy June and Laura Jayne Shoop presented the gifts to the honor guest in a pretty manner, representing Cupid drawn in a wagon of pink and orchid and bearing the gifts for the Honoree.

Five tables of bridge were played. Refreshments bearing out the colors of pink and orchid were served to the following: Misses Virginia Wilkes, Lucile Malacord, Neva Scott, Katherine Mentor, Jessie Lucile Raley, Mary Beth Sharpe, Cleo Power, Edna and Ida Ort, Mesdames Richard Warren, F. E. Shoop, M. H. Seale, Bill Seale, Floyd Randle, Ward Harding, C. E. Flowers, Olga Ort, R. H. Rhine and E. O. Power.

WOMEN SUFFER MORE PAINS THAN MEN

If there is one point on which all physicians are agreed it is that woman's nervous system is more highly organized and, therefore, more sensitive to pain than man's. Especially during the colder months of the year women suffer much with neuralgia and periodic pains, headache, and pains in the back and sides.

To relieve these pains some women have unfortunately resorted to opiates and habit forming drugs. This is entirely unnecessary for Capudine relieves these pains quite as well as opiates and without the slightest possibility of creating a habit. Capudine reduces nervous strain or nerve tension, thus removing the cause of these pains. Every woman who suffers with pains of this kind should get acquainted with Capudine. She will find it a most helpful friend. All drug stores sell Capudine in 60c and 30c sizes.—Adv.

Musical Numbers and Lecture On Program of Forum Music Department

Sharing honors for excellence with three department members who appeared on the performers' program for the afternoon, Miss Erma Nala Voss, supervisor of music in the public schools, gave an interesting and well arranged lecture on "How Song Developed" at the November social and performers' meeting of the music department of the Womans Forum, Tuesday afternoon in the auditorium of the club house.

"Feeling is the basis of all human sounds—some say the dance came first, and others believe the song was the first expression of feeling in the human race.

"Beautiful music in time became the outcome of the ugly sounds that were at first uttered by the human voice. From the beginning man has expressed his feelings through sound but as he has developed from the savage state, he has begun to find pleasure in the sound of his own voice. From this has evolved the beautiful music of today.

"Then the song and dance through all the ages has been man's expression for all his emotions—the savage days and even today, it is used in all ceremonies, the hunt, the burial, the lullaby, in healing, in wooing, and in celebrating a victory.

"All music is divided into two classes, cult and secular music. The song and the dance is a part of all secular music."

In her discussion of folk song, Miss Voss said that all folk songs reflect various conditions in the life of a nation—climate, social conditions, economic conditions, religion and government.

"If the nation is oppressed, the dances are wild and the music sad as in the case of Russia whose dances are rough and whose songs have wailing strains. Folk songs are the foundation of all music and the masterpieces we enjoy today bear traces of the primitive beginning."

Miss Voss concluded her talk with a brief history of the music of today carried through the Greek, Roman, Norse, English and the modern day periods.

On the musical program which was made up of violin, vocal and piano numbers, three music department members shared honors, Mrs. Harwood Stacy playing "Ballade" of her own composition; Mrs. Luella B. Thompson giving two vocal numbers, "Sappic Ode" by Brahms, and "House o' Dreams," by McDermid in her rich contralto voice and two violin numbers "Swing Song" by Barnes, and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" by Hartman by Mrs. J. E. Hall, accompanied on the piano by Miss Voss. Mrs. Thompson was accompanied by Mrs. E. O. Nicholls.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Nicholls who is chairman of the department. Mrs. Nicholls announced that there will be no December meeting of the department due to a conflict with the Christmas season. The next meeting will be held on January 17, when officers of the department will be elected. Tea was served following the program.

Present were the following members and guests: Mesdames O. E. Nicholls, J. E. Hall, Luella B. Thompson, Clyde A. Stuckey, E. D. Steward, E. M. Noe, J. F. Bailey, C. M. McFarland, C. E. Pross, L. B. Victory At Convention and Work For Wichita Chest Reviewed By Ad Club

Community chest and echoes of the El Paso convention held the spotlight of the Ad club meeting Teusday noon. James V. Allred of the speakers' bureau of the chest gave a brief outline of the work of the various organizations and A. E. Kelly of the work of the club in the drive. V. N. Armstrong and C. A. Spraggins, delegates to the El Paso convention, gave short reviews of the meeting.

Mr. Allred in reviewing the nine organizations spoke of their work and told of the vast amount of help to the needy the Salvation Army had done and gave figures to back up his statements. The Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls he called organizations that were hitting at the root of evil by stopping the tendencies of youth in that direction.

Asks Club's Aid.

The Y. W. C. A. was described as the organization helping to establish the homeless and friendless girl and that the very nature of the work was such that it was not one to get great publicity. Good done by both day nurseries in the care of the babies while mothers worked was described as being worth the whole efforts of the chest drive. It was also recalled that negro citizens had raised money among themselves to help their nursery so the burden on the chest would not be so heavy.

The Family Relief association has cared for many needy families and relieved temporary distress for others. The Travelers Aid work has been too apparent to need any comment.

"If you gentlemen," said Allred, "will throw your full power behind this drive to get 93 cents per capita for this work and have it so we can say there is not a family in distress in the city you will have given us the best advertising the city has ever had. I say to you this community chest work is the greatest investment we can make. We must aim at the root of the evil. We cannot neglect the unfortunate so let us all work to put this drive over."

Mr. Kelly said that his committee had been meeting each day and the work has been outlined. He urged that each member of the club give full co-operation and the drive would have the greatest publicity of any that has been held in Wichita Falls. He also said that it was a matter of the club getting the credit and not any individual.

Praise for Willgus.

Mr. Armstrong praised highly the work of Alva Willgus in leading songs at the convention and for advertising Wichita Falls. The next convention was brought here by personal work rather than by speeches. He also told how telegrams of invitation came at the right time and aided greatly. Members of the club were urged to get busy at once and match the manner in which El Paso entertained the delegates.

W. S. Abbott, elected second vice-president of the tenth district, at the convention, made a brief talk thanking those who had been responsible for bringing the honor to him. He also thanked local newspapers for the manner in which they handled the convention news.

The sun has shrunk 800 miles in circumference in the past three years, according to scientists.

Burk Rabbit Breeders Form Association

A rabbit breeders' association was organized at a meeting at the chamber of commerce in Burkburnett Tuesday night. The meeting was sponsored by John Musick, one of the most successful rabbit fanciers in Wichita county.

County Agent G. C. McGown attended the meeting and assisted the Burkburnett men to perfect their organization.

"The new organization promises to be one of the most active associations of the kind in Texas," Mr. McGown said. "There are several outstanding breeders in and around Burkburnett who have been anxious to effect a local organization ever since the state meeting was held in Wichita Falls during the Texas-Oklahoma fair. Incidentally, several of the ribbons at the rabbit show were won by Burkburnett breeders."

New Airship Proves Worth in Flight

Fulcher Armstrong and Roy A. French of the Wichita Falls Air Transport company were still exuberant Tuesday over the action of the plane that brought them from Denver to the company's field two miles out on the Henrietta road. The ship, according to Mr. Armstrong, handled perfectly. It will soon be put into regular service and a flying school established at the field.

Big Bill and Frank O. Lowden

FORMER Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois invited Governor Len Small and Mayor Big Bill Thompson of Chicago to his office to smoke the pipe of peace. Small and Thompson are hereditary enemies of Lowden. A conference was held. Perhaps the pipe was offered, but there was no smoking. All three agreed that the Republican party, to succeed next year, must pick a candidate from the middle west. Mayor Big Bill, however, was said by the Chicago Tribune to have made it plain that his choice for a middle western candidate would not be former Governor Frank O. Lowden.

Governor Len Small is the country boss of Illinois; Mayor Thompson is the city boss of Chicago. These two bosses play with a third boss, United States Senator Charles S. Deneen. Deneen is a former governor and before he held the office of governor he was prosecuting attorney of Cook county. Deneen and Thompson and Small are the men who will control the Illinois delegation next year. Frank O. Lowden realizes it. He must make peace with the trio or his name will not go before the convention—that is, it will not be presented by the Illinois delegation.

There are cabinet positions to bestow in the event of Republican success. There are ambassadorships to be handed to the lucky ones. There are federal jobs galore, the fruit to fall when the trees are shaken. Frank O. Lowden is a practical politician. He served as governor four years. There is a way to pacify Big Bill. There is a way to pacify Governor Small. There is a way to conciliate Senator Deneen.

A Texan On Deck

REPRESENTATIVES of the American Tax Payers' league are urging the repeal of the federal inheritance tax. Former Speaker Lee Satterwhite is one of the representatives. John N. Garner of Texas is a member of the house ways and means committee. Satterwhite and Garner have indulged in numerous clashes. Satterwhite is for repeal; Garner isn't.

According to a Washington news story J. A. Arnold is manager of the American Tax Payers' league. According to his own admission he receives a salary of $1000 a month. According to evidence given the house ways and means committee the league has paid workers in several states.

It isn't a criminal offense for an American citizen to advocate the repeal of the inheritance tax or any other tax. This is said to be a free country and the right of petition hasn't been curtailed.

In Old Kentucky

ALL the returns are in and Kentucky will have a Republican governor and a Democratic general assembly in 1928. Judge Fleming D. Sampson of the Kentucky court of appeals is the governor-elect. Both branches of the general assembly will be controlled by the Democrats. Judge Sampson is a liberal. He is a liberal in thought and action. He had the opposition of the Anti-Saloon league and the voters who do not believe in racing or racing associations. Beckham had their powerful support. Thousands of Democrats bolted Beckham. This is the reason why the Democratic donkey was given a rude jolt on election day in the blue grass country.

Patience

DR. PAUL STRAUSSMAN, great Berlin doctor now visiting in America, is amazed by some things in the United States. He finds we have imagination reflected in great buildings, and he is impressed by the life and speed of our great cities. He is interested in prohibition. He says: "Perhaps prohibition will be a success in one, two, or maybe three generations, but not yet. You can't change a country's habits in one year or five."

Dr. Straussman might have added that a nation doesn't change its habits entirely in a generation. Just because prohibition is a new and difficult idea is no reason that the experiment will not in the end prove successful. Anything that is right in principle will endure. It takes patience.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Sooner or later, your New Yorker of any prominence becomes a hypochondriac. As his eminence increases, in the same ratio will his fondness for nursing imaginary ills increase. All geniuses have been associated with bodily ailments—or at least a great many of them have been so afflicted. Ergo, your man of prominence, not to be outdone, must conjure up a few choice disabilities, thus proving, however naively, his eligibility to the hall of fame.

With a brave little smile, and a wistful voice, the man of letters will tell you of the tremendous difficulties under which he is performing his truly masterly labors. He has been born with a weak constitution, or he sprained an ankle when he was eleven, and it still pains him, or he is fast placing himself in a way to contract tuberculosis. The terrific pace of his busy life is telling upon his sensitive nature. Even he cannot see quite the reason why he has not collapsed. And the diplomatic listener will agree that the narrator is indeed a very superior fellow, to thus carry on so nobly under such a strain.

One fellow I know believes that he is anaemic. He says he never gets enough to eat because he has not time to stop for meals. Will you agree that he is undernourished, when you have seen, as I have, his real gastronomic schedule for an average day? Rising at about 12, he hastily gulps down a mere snack, consisting of fruit, cereal, bacon and eggs, toast, marmalade and coffee. Thus meagerly fueled he staggers forth, only to consume a sandwich and a glass of milk a half hour later. Another hour, and he unwillingly throws a sop to his underfed constitution by lapping up a two-pound sandwich and a glass of beer. This last meal, he will repeat about four times more in the course of the day. Then, too, he felt in duty bound to feed himself some of the automats, well known pork and beans in between times. At six he has a modest seven-course meal and at 12, he likes wheat cakes and sausages. Along about 3 a. m. he feels the need for a steak and French fried potatoes. On this miserly fill, he drags his weary feet through many a day. Queerly enough, he really believes that he is underfed. Even more strange is the fact that he is always thin.

Then there is the legion of entities who continually yearn for a little shack far from the city, out in God's open air. This mad city, they will tell you, these petty city dwellers are murderous to their own magnificent souls. All this conversation is quite appropriate as they stuff themselves with city delicacies and drown their sorrows in metropolitan liquid poison. At the same time, they are enjoying the music of a first class orchestra. They also believe that they would be perfectly content in the country, even though they have not the slightest intention of ever leaving the city.

These people are really ill, if being a hypochondriac constitutes illness. But it is a complaint they have deliberately and foolishly brought upon themselves. No wonder many a doctor makes a living prescribing bread pills for imaginary ailments.

Only one genuine case of sickness, overwork, mental strain—what you will—have I seen recently. That happened when I had as my guest a magazine editor. He complained of weariness, due to spending the last week at work with little or no sleep. I dismissed his complaint from my mind, thinking it merely another conventional gesture. Later, I reversed this opinion when he suddenly took a virtual dive on a couch and in a moment was sound asleep. He could not be awakened within the next two hours. The party continued, accompanied by the snores of our genuinely weary editor.

HATTIE

A STORY OF LOVE AND SACRIFICE

By SAMUEL MERWIN

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe.

LUCILLE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Pictures studio where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture. With her go

GRANDMA, old and lame, and

ALICE, Hattie's married sister, and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man. De Brissac makes love to her and wants her to go with him for a vacation on his yacht, but she refuses. She leaves his company and works at another studio, but is not successful away from De Brissac. Lucille advises her to go back to him. Alice's husband,

ARTHUR, who has deserted her comes back, making another for Hattie to support. De Brissac's picture is a success and he offers Hattie a new contract at a much higher salary. She wants to give up pictures and be married and keep house for Henry, and when she finds he has no idea of this she breaks her engagement and goes back to De Brissac. It is decided that Hattie and the director will go to New York and make personal appearances together at the showing of their last picture. Then

JULIAN DEMPSTER, a young magazine writer comes to interview her.

Her Eyes Met His Full

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

"It is, I am tired." She leaned back against the window casing, very still and almost without color. But her thoughts—the reverie that filled her mind most of the time and that she could never wholly control—were beginning to go fast, as they did at night when she couldn't sleep. If she didn't watch out she'd find herself not quite catching what he said, because she was looking at him and thinking about him. He had, for a blonde, unusually long lashes that were a little darker in color than the brows. And his eyes were blue. There was a pause that began to grow embarrassingly long. How young he was! She'd supposed the highbrow writers were old gentlemen with spectacles . . . . Very puzzling . . . . She looked down, and fingered the edge of a cushion. Of course she ought to say something. Her breath caught; she inhaled deeply, and then abruptly looked up. Her eyes met his full; held the gaze until she felt the blood creeping from her cheeks and temples. He was coloring, too.

He spoke, hesitatingly, with a shy little laugh, and then hurried on with it.

"I've got to write something about the pictures. Something or other. It was hard to think what, until I learned that you were here. You see, I'm not a fan. Most pictures bore me to death. Especially the big ones that cost so much. They bore me to death with their over-emphasis, over-elaboration, over-everything. Worst sort of vulgarity. And those mugging close-ups! . . . I hope you don't mind my saying these things. Perhaps I'm too frank."

She contrived a faint smile and moved her head in the negative.

"Of course, it's perfectly dreadful of me to pop in on you and criticize your profession and—stare at you like this. You see, I can't get over your being so young; you're the realest artist on the screen today—an amazing person, really—and yet—right now you seem hardly more than a child. Of course, I really ought to—"

She moistened her lips, and said, in a voice that was hardly more than a whisper—

"I'm eighteen."

"It is perfectly amazing."

"I'm not an artist."

"Oh, now, really—you are!"

"It's Mr. De Brissac."

"It can't be. I've studied his work closely just to see if it could be. He's a showman. Essentially just that. I grant you he has power I'm coming to see, out here, that it takes a strong man to drive a big picture through and get anywhere with it. But De Brissac—forgive me!—is vulgar. You—I'll simply have to ask you to forgive me again—are exquisite. I've seen 'Bagdad' four times and 'Pharaoh's Daughter' seven times. Now, honestly, nothing on earth but your artistry, your amazing instinct for truth—the true thing—could drag me seven times to one picture. Don't you see, it's because you're so different from all the familiar types of the screen. It's your delicacy and your utter simplicity."

He caught himself, colored slightly again, and sank back in his chair. As if her blankly bewildered countenance suggested that he was pounding at her. There was another pause.

"It's only what Mr. De Brissac makes me do," she persisted, doggedly.

"Do you really mean to tell me that you get these charming effects without knowing what you're doing?"

She inclined her head. She felt stupid. The other stars, the one she though of as the realstar, wouldn't weaken like this. They pick up the cue like a shot and talk about their 'art, or, if the didn't know enough, they'd at least have the sense to keep still and turn all of their charm. She couldn't even do that.

"Of course that doesn't make you any the less interesting," said he reflectively, studying her with those blue eyes. "It's pure gift, that's what it is! In time you will learn to handle it. If they don't spoil you. That would be too awful to think about!"

He sprang up, so unexpectedly that her nerves responded with a nervous little shiver, and walked around the table to the window and then part way back. He was light and quick on his feet. It seemed now that he could be hardly more than a few years older than herself. There was something fascinating in the way his hair grew carelessly down nearly to his temples and softly curled there.

She hoped he'd go on talking. His voice had an earnest ring of which he was unconscious. The handsome young actors of her acquaintance had all cultivated their voices and used them with deliberate skill. She liked his natural way better. And she liked the words he used and the way he put them together and pronounced them.

"Tell me how you go to make a picture" . . . . he was standing over her . . . . I mean the very first steps. Does De Brissac give you a script to study or do you just go out on the lot and do as you're told?"

"Why—we talk it over some, and then . . . . oh, I don't know . . . . I just . . . ."

"You just do as you're told?"

She inclined her head again.

He laughed softly. "Sounds easy, doesn't it?"

She laughed softly with him. She felt quietly, but more nearly happy than ever before in her life. Her body was warmly alive. She couldn't take her eyes from the soft curls on his temples. And when he turned, still chuckling, and carelessly pushed a book about on the table she looked at the darker eyelashes. De Brissac seemed to be lurking in her thoughts. He mustn't even learn that she knew this man.

(To Be Continued.)

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

EXERCISE AND DIET FOR CONSTIPATION

In yesterday's article I explained that the first step in curing constipation is to take daily colon irrigations for several weeks in order to cleanse the intestines of any accumulated feces and to keep the membranes clean so as to bring about a cure of colitis or any inflammatory condition which may exist.

The next thing to consider is the need for more vigorous exercise. Daily walks should be taken, covering several miles each day, starting, of course, with a short distance and gradually increasing the distance each day. At least one hour should be spent every day in taking these walks.

The principal thing to remember in the diet for constipation is to eat plenty of greens, both in the cooked and salad form. These supply a large quantity of bulk and roughage which furnish material to fill the intestines and encourage peristaltic movements.

It is a good plan to cut down slightly on the foods of a high caloric value, such as the starches and proteins, and to use two or three times as much of the green vegetables.

After the enemas have been used for two or three weeks, and long walks are well started, the next thing to do is to begin taking a course of "setting-up" exercises each day. It is better if these are taken two or three times during the day, starting carefully at first so as not to produce too much soreness of the abdominal muscles. These exercises should take from ten to twenty minutes. The time does not need to be increased, but the exercises can be taken more vigorously as the muscles improve in strength.

After four or five weeks of the regime with walking, exercising, and eating more greens, it is then all right to try the experiment of waiting for the bowels to move voluntarily. At first, discontinue the enemas for at least two days, as the colon must fill up sufficiently before enough feces can reach the rectum to produce a normal movement. If the bowels do not move in two days, take an enema and then wait again for two days.

After trying this experiment for not over two or three times it will be found that the bowels will begin to move naturally two or three times daily.

Unless there is some abnormal kink in the colon, the method I have described will always bring about a cure of constipation, no matter of how long standing, but the exercising and dieting must be kept up to assure a permanent cure.

QUESTION: Mrs. Roy H. asks: "How can I take the reducing diet with a nursing baby without injury to it?"

ANSWER: It is not wise for you to try to reduce your weight while you are nursing your baby, as the baby's supply of nourishment will surely be cut down. Do not nurse your baby for longer than six to eight months, and then you can start reducing.

QUESTION: Mary L. asks: "Are butter substitutes as nutritious as real cow's butter?"

ANSWER: While butter substitutes do not contain exactly the same kind of food material as cow's butter, these substitutes are in no way inferior in quality or wholesomeness. For instance, oleomargarine which is so widely used, is a nutritious substitute, being composed mostly of animal fat. The nut butters are good substitutes also, the best butters being made from ground pecan or almond nuts, or from roasted peanuts.

QUESTION: Myron H. writes: "Have pains in kneecaps which were diagnosed as water on the knee. Kindly advise a cure for this."

ANSWER: The formation of water on the knee does not usually cause pain. Maybe your trouble is some form of rheumatism. By all means have an X-ray examination made of your knee and find out what is causing the trouble. I cannot very well suggest a cure without knowing more about your case.

QUESTION: M. W. asks: "Should Melba toast be buttered?"

ANSWER: Melba toast should be buttered fresh as it is being eaten. By actual experience I have found that there seems to be some interference with the other foods eaten with Melba toast when the butter is allowed to melt on the toast as it is being made. This may sound a little unreasonable, but my advice is to butter each bite as it is taken.

J. FRANK NORRIS

Speaks Every Day at 12:30 from Wednesday to Saturday at the Palace Theater on:

The Second Coming of Christ

Dr. Norris also will speak Sunday at 3 p. m. under the big tent on:

Six Reasons Why Al Smith Should Not Be President of the United States

This address will be distributed in printed form at the close of Dr. Norris' lecture Sunday afternoon.

With reference to what Dr. S. P. Brooks said about Mr. Norris in the morning paper, it is not a personal matter. The only issue before the Baptists of Texas is whether Dr. Brooks and his faculty will continue to refuse to sign the Anti-Evolution resolution passed by the Southern Baptist convention which reads as follows:

"That this convention accepts Genesis as teaching that man was the special creation of God, and rejects every theory, evolution or otherwise, which teaches that man originated in, or came by way of lower animal ancestry."

Simmons University, Decatur College, Howard Payne and other institutions have signed.

Last week the Oklahoma Baptist convention by a vote of five to one rejected the "Beast Ancestry" theory of man's origin and required every agency and institution to sign the anti-evolution resolution of the Southern Baptist convention before receiving any funds from Oklahoma Baptists—that's progress.

Dr. Norris will answer at Bellevue Park, one block of Auditorium Wednesday noon the editorial in the Wichita Falls Times of Nov. 14 and will tell what is back of the Tulsa World.

MODISH MITZI — Mitzi Changes Her Type With Her Hat — By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi decides to give her adoring friends a photograph of herself for Christmas. But after all one pose isn't enough. There as so many effects one can get just from hats. A picture wearing this demure little cloche with the rhinestone trimming will be just the thing to give the family.

Her new felt hat with the irregular hair line—up over one eyebrow and with the glycerine ostrich brush trimming on the side—gives just the degree of sophistication that she'd like some of her friends to notice. An earring may be worn on the exposed ear. This photograph will go to her friends in Paris.

The felt hat with a brim—made to fit the head, of course, has a crown with felt lacings and a bow in the front. The brim ripples over one eye. This photograph will go to that perfectly stunning Polo player whose kingdom is a horse.

It would never do for a photograph—this new Reboux black felt cap with chenille dots and the slight veil across the eyes. But this is the hat Mitzi will wear — and make her own picture in.

Tomorrow—Lingerie.

Three Stages of Marriage Must Be Met and Overcome Says Dix

We Never Really Know the Strangers We Marry and We Idealize Them for Much During Courtship—So Marriage Brings to All of Us the, Three Steps: Acquaintanceship, Disillusionment and Adjustment.

There are three stages of matrimony. The first stage is the getting acquainted. No man or woman ever really know each other before marriage, not even if they made mud pies together in their infancy and have lived next door to each other all of their lives.

The greatest surprise that matrimony brings to the newlyweds is that they are united to utter strangers with whose real selves they have not even a bowing acquaintance.

John would have sworn that he knew every thought that went on in Mary's pretty little head, and that he could have accurately diagramed her every complex and reaction and inhibition. Mary was perfectly sure that she understood John and had his number pat to the very last figure.

Why, hadn't they known each other for ages? Why, hadn't they really tried to get to know each other so that they would make no mistake in selecting each other for life mates?

Hadn't they spent hours upon hours in long heart-to-heart talks in which they threshed out every subject under the sun?

Hadn't they even told each other of all of their faults and weaknesses? Mary confessed that she didn't like to sew, and John admitted that he had a penchant for poker! Perish the thought that they did not know each other, through and through. Other men and women might be foolhardy enough to marry strangers that they recognized by wearing white roses on their breasts, but they were taking no such risks. They knew what they were getting.

And then to their amazement they found that the John and Mary to whom they were united in the holy bounds of matrimony were no more like the girl and boy they had gone to school with, and had played around with, and to whom they had been engaged, than if they were entirely different individuals. In some ways they were better. In other ways they were worse, but they were different.

John had qualities that Mary never dreamed he possessed. He had funny little ways and habits, little peculiarities of mind and temper of which she had never had an inkling in all the time she had known him. Mary had traits of character that John never suspected her of having concealed about her person, little prejudices, points of view, little notions in which she was set, that made her as unfamiliar to him as if he had never set eyes on her before.

So the first stage of matrimony is when these two strangers, who have thrown their lots together, look each other over and take stock of each other, and begin to get really acquainted.

The second stage of matrimony is disillusionment.

That is inevitable, because courtship is a fairy tale and marriage is reality. In the days of courtship a man and woman strut their stuff. They put the best foot foremost.

The woman sees the man only when he is barbered and brushed and pressed, and is looking his best and is doing his best to win her. He is chivalrous and gallant to her. He is lavish in spending money upon her. Her wishes are his law, and he flatters her by telling her that she is the most beautiful and wonderful woman in the world.

The man only sees the girl when she is dolled up and is looking her prettiest. She also is anxious to please, and she is soft and amiable and pliable. She listens to the man as if he were an oracle, and laughs at his jokes and encores his stories.

But marriage does away with the high-pressure love-making and sweeps away the camouflage, and the new husband and wife see each other as they really are.

The woman discovers that she has not married a little tin god, but a very human man who gets in a vile temper if dinner is ten minutes late, and who swears a blue streak if his collar button rolls under the chiffonier. The man finds out that he has not espoused an angel, nor a living picture, but a woman who isn't much to look at in the morning before she gets on her complexion, and who does not know how to cook, and who is given to petty jealousies and nagging.

And both of them realize with a sinking of the heart that marriage isn't what they thought it would be. It doesn't come up to their expectations by a million miles. They had expected to be utterly supremely happy, and they have found a thousand flaws to their bliss. They had thought that they would ask nothing else of fate but just to be forever in each other's company, and they are yawning in each other's faces. They had thought that there never would be any discord between them, and here they are quarreling over bills and burned steak and watery potatoes and whether they shall go to the movies or stay at home and a thousand other foolish trivial things.

It is a bitter disappointment to the young couple who have expected much, and it is a good thing that marriage licenses cannot be returned within three months, if found unsatisfactory, or else very few husbands and wives would weather the period of disillusionment.

The third stage of matrimony is that of adjustment, or of divorce. The quitters, who have not the grit to stand by their bargain and make the best of it, cry out that marriage is a failure and beat it to the divorce court.

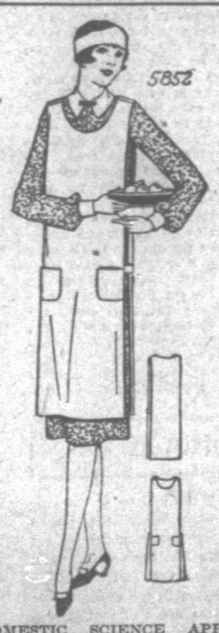

But the great majority of men and women have the courage to carry on, and the wisdom to adjust themselves to their fates, and to realize that if marriage does not come up to all of their rosy dreams of it, it can bring them a real, solid, substanial happiness that nothing else in life can give them.

John recognizes that although Mary may not be all that his fondest fancy painted her, she has a thousand virtues, and is an admirable helpmate, and so he learns how to sidestep her peculiarities and to call her temper "nerves," and generally to rub her fur the right way. Mary admits to her secret soul that John isn't the hero of her girlish dreams, as she thought he was, but he is a mighty good provider, and so she learns how to manage him, and they get along in mutual peace and helpfulness.

"How beautifully you two get along together!" exclaims a man in one of Mr. Howell's novels to a serene and happy old couple. "Ah," replied the wife, "but it took us forty years to establish the understanding that you admire so much."

SALLY'S SALLIES

A woman can explain anything but a gray hair.

DEAR MISS DIX—What is your opinion of a woman who is so curious about the ages of her friends and neighbors that she takes the trouble to go down where the vital records are kept and look up their birthdays?

B. L. G.

Answer:

I think she is an unutterably vulgar Polly Pry, with very little to interest and amuse her.

But why do you care? What difference does it make? Age is no disgrace, and, besides, everybody who knows us has a pretty good line upon how old we are.

Of course, we kid ourselves into thinking that we look 10 years under our age, and that everybody thinks we are mere flappers, and we tell everybody that we married very young, and that we are prematurely gray, and so on. But the one we fool is ourself.

However, any woman who will take the trouble to look up the official record of her friends' and neighbors' ages certainly has a genius for making herself unpopular. The first thing you know that woman is going to be mysteriously poisoned.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl at that awful age 17, when you begin to feel independent and self-sufficient. Now, I have an older brother who thinks he has a right to interfere and say what boys I shall go with. Has he?

SUE.

Answer:

Well, of course, he hasn't any real right, Sue. Your parents are the only ones who have the privilege of bossing you; but, all the same, if I were you, I'd listen to what my brother said.

A brother is a mighty good friend to have and a wise adviser, because, you see, he goes around among the boys and knows them as you can't possibly know them, and you won't go far wrong if you take his tip about the ones who are gentlemen and safe for a young girl to go with and the ones who are cads whom she will be wise to pass up.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It cannot harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper does that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fever and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Ill., and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

This Day in Our History.

PRECISELY at 7 o'clock on the morning of November 16, 1864, Sherman began his famous march through Georgia. There was music with this march, the 60,000 Union soldiers caroling "John Brown's Body" and "Glory, Hallelujah!"

AUTUMN ROMANCE

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Summer Flirtation May Blosom or Die with Time

By Beatrice Fairfax.

An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

OF Summer love affairs there are countless varieties. Among the most common is the light flirtation that does not outlast the Summer.

There is another type of Summer friendship, however, which strikes deeper root and often outlives the season. In the Autumn I begin to hear reports from these romances. And reports are still reaching me, as a rule, when Winter comes.

I hope at least a few of these vacation romances may be destined to survive the storms of Autumn and chill of Winter and culminate in June weddings. But many of them are undeniably at a trying stage of lingering dissolution.

"Last Summer," writes Kitty, "I came to the city three times, for a period of five da s each time. On my second visit, I met a fine young man from my home town.

"We became very friendly and went out together practically every day. Almost every time we went out, he told me how much he cared for me.

"Now that we re both home again, I see him at club dances. At each dance he tells me he cares for me, but he pays more attention to the other girls than to me.

"The other evening, when I was out with my friends and two young men, he saw us and came over to speak to me. Then he deliberately walked away and left me in order to talk to another girl. When he came back I walked away. I think that made him angry. I haven't seen him since. Please tell me what to do."

Be friendly when you see him, Kitty, but let things rest as they are. You can't force romance. Not every pleasant friendship leads to lasting love.

There are many other young men in the world. Enjoy all the new friendships Fall and Winter bring. Who knows? One of these may prove far more congenial than that of last Summer.

Cheer up! Why be depressed in a world of brilliant Autumn sunshine and charming people!

"Troubled Brown Eyes" is also haunted by a phantom of Summer-time.

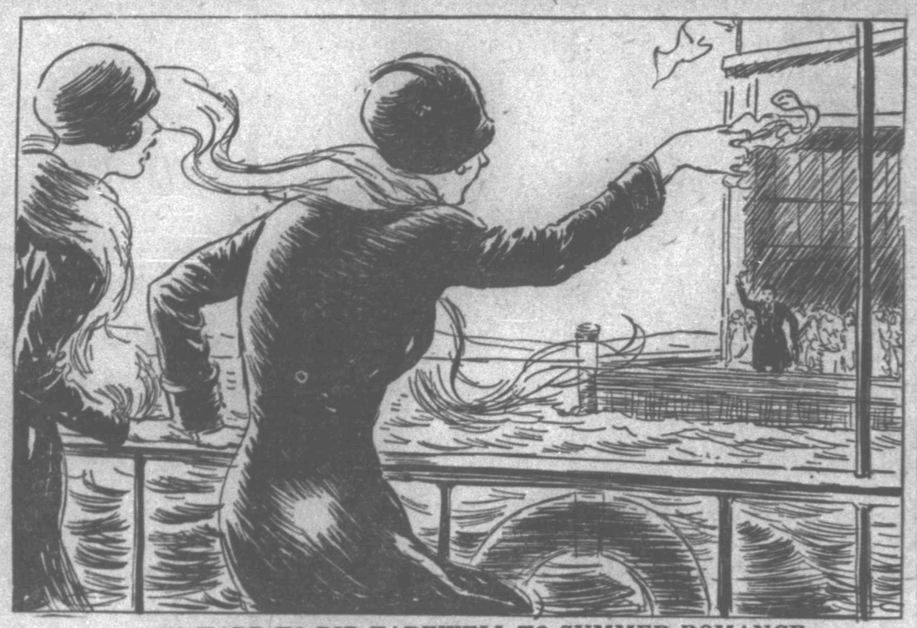

"Dear Miss Fairfax," she writes. "This Summer on my vacation I met a young man I shall call Jack. He was devoted to me.

"He spent all his spare time with me. I grew to love him and I believe he loved me. He told me he did.

"When I came home Jack promised to write. Weeks and months have passed, but I have not heard from him. I feel sure he loves me. I sometimes feel so lonely for a glimpse of his face.

"You offer such good advice in your column, won't you please advise me about this problem?"

Dear Brown Eyes, why do you think Jack loves you? Because he told you so last Summer? Men do not always pledge unchanging love when they utter the words "I love you." And they may fancy themselves in love many times before they settle down contentedly to just One Girl and marriage.

IT'S HARD TO BID FAREWELL TO SUMMER ROMANCE

AUTUMN MAY BRING NEW, SOUNDER INTERESTS

New Season May Bring a Saner, Happier Love

Possibly some one from him by-gone! Jack's fancy for the time being, however shown he was last Summer. Edgy on much thinkably on he either, but do not take it heavily—unless it is accompanied by a proposal of marriage.

In the same mail comes another echo of last Summer's romance:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"During the Summer, while I was abroad, I met a charming American, whom I was with practically every day for three consecutive months. We were engaged.

"When the day came for me to sail back to America he was not at the boat to say good-bye as he had promised. Possibly you can advise me as to what to look for.

Have you written your fiance, telling him of your anxiety about him? Illness or an accident may have kept him from the boat. He may have lost your address.

If I were you I would write him a registered letter and arrange with the post office to be notified when he receives it. Try to learn his address if you haven't it.

Write sensibly, affectionately. But ask whether his silence means he wishes to be released from the engagement.

Only a small proportion of Summer romances will survive the Autumn. They were simply too fragile to weather storms of adversity and stand the test of absence.

But Autumn brings its own romance—sometimes more wise and sound than Summer's. Fleeting friendships are not wasted if they were wholesome while they lasted. Be grateful for them and have faith that one day the finest friendship of all will deepen into love and lead to the happy marriage of you and The Man.

YOUNG TYRANTS

By L. Lamar Matthews

ACROSS the street from where I write there lives a tyrant and her three victims. The tyrant is exactly two years and four months old. The victims are her brothers, aged six, eight and twelve years and perhaps a few odd months.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

If Bobby is playing with his own train and Dana decides she wants it, she makes known the fact. If Bobby hesitates she sets up a yell. If that doesn't bring him to terms she begins to shriek and scream at the top of her voice. Then Bobby gives her the train. If he doesn't do so willingly an older brother makes him.

Barkley, being eight years old, is above playing with silly toys; but sometimes he wants to read his story book or shoot his marbles in peace. Does he have the opportunity? He does not. Who is Barkley to imagine that he can sneak off to himself and remain unmolested for an hour at a time? Here comes the tyrant and Barkley gives way to her whims sooner or later.

Dick is a big boy with long pants on; so, of course, he humors his baby sister. He is crazy about her he says and thinks everything she does is funny—especially what she does to her face when she is very, very mad.

Now, of course, this indulgence of their little sister doesn't hurt those boys. It probably induces a little extra bigness in their natures. But it is ruining her chances for popularity or happiness. She is gradually developing a disposition that means trouble for her in the future—near future at that.

The mother says she doesn't make the boys give way to Dana. They just do so because she is little and cute and is the only girl in the household. She shouldn't allow it. It is unfair to the baby.

Down the street from the Tyrant's house there is a family of five children. And being so nearly of the same age they have lots of quarrels among themselves. The oldest boy and girl have their difficulties and fight them out between themselves. The two youngest boys come to blows occasionally, but they never whine. But the middle child is different. When his adversaries get the best of him he begins to whine. Sometimes he yells loudly for his mother's protection and he always gets it. He teases and provokes the other children until he brings down their wrath upon him, and then he depends upon his mother to protect him.

She says he was "a sickly baby" and they had to humor him so much that he has always been a sort of "Mamma's boy."

It is quite often the case that mothers rush out in defense of the youngster who yells the loudest. But it only seems fair that she should investigate before she passes sentence upon the other children. If one of the children seems to have been hurt by another, she forthwith punishes the other, no matter what caused him to arise in his might.

It is a very good idea to let children alone sometimes when they quarral among themselves. Quite often their quarrels are violently interrupted by a superior force, only to be taken up again, later on, in some secret way. The anger of an older person added to the fire doesn't mend matters. It only aggravates the flames.

Before rushing in to settle your children's disputes inform yourself as to the causes and extent of their offenses. If it seems necessary to punish them mete out correction with justice, with dignity and with calmness. That will improve the conduct of the whiners as well as the fighters.

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Jill Arrives at Tony's

"YOU wouldn't marry Jill Hathaway now!" Roy Scarlett protested.

"If she would have me," Mac Shannon answered, "in spite of the fact that I've been pretty darn—spineless about her, and am still a man with gray hair and fifteen years' seniority—and have added a limp to my other handicaps, I'd marry her all right."

ANN LISLE

Vivian Scarlett said nothing. She continued to smile through narrow amber eyes and to occupy her curved lips with a cigarette holder and to hide behind the smoke screen of her Turkish tobacco.

"Did you ever hear so much nonsense in one evening?" Roy asked with a grave effort to be facetious. "The heir to the Shannon fortune, the head of the Shannon hotels is humbly suing for the hand of Folly Duane's—nameless brat . . . Humbly, mind you. Are you out of your head, Mac? If we could have found the girl before she cast in her lot with the wop she eloped with, I'd have adopted her. I owe that much to Viv. But you owe something else again to your name and position. . . ."

"My only debt is to love," Mac said so grimly that not even the light in his steel gray eyes could make it sound anything less than a declaration of war.

Vivian took her cigarette holder in a hand which trembled a bit. There was a slight sneer on her lips and her voice was as dry as the ashes she flicked in the tray on the table at her side as she said:

"Strange what heavy debts love sometimes exacts of us! To love where we don't feel a particle of admiration or respect must be—perdition. Wasn't it our old friend William Shakespeare who made one of his characters say: 'Why, this is hell, nor am I out of it'? And that's how it must be to love—the wrong person and not be able to stop." She paused for a moment and smiled briefly and then her hand gestured with an awkwardness quite foreign to her and the cigarette tray was tipped over and its contents spilled on the rose rug at her side.

"Roy! please,"—she said in a housewifely tone. And as Roy bent to gather up the half-smoked cigarette and matches and ashes she had scattered, she said suddenly to Mac:

"If you should locate Jill and find her guilty of half of what we women think nothing of forgiving every day, tell her I'm going to insist on my rights—to give my little sister in marriage when she finds the—one man for her. And there is a certain bit of jewelry that always goes to the daughter of the Heath house—that's for Jill."

"From the younger daughter of the house for the older," Mac suggested.

Just then Roy arose from collecting the ashes Vivian had scattered. So Vivian did not correct Mac's reply. She did not tell him that Jill was legally the only daughter of the Heath house. She did not think he had a right to know that unless he offered his name freely to a girl whom he had no reason to believe had any name of her own. Vivian imagined the thrill of quiet satisfaction that would come to Jill when her older sister told her that she, Jill, was really the legal heir of Nathaniel Heath and that Vivian was Hagar's child . . . Of course, Vivian had no way of knowing that Jill had dealt with ashes and that the document that dishonored Vivian and her mother no longer existed.

But while Vivian was planning Jill's future, Jill faced the immediate present of the day after she had accepted the key to Tony's apartment and promised to come to him at nightfall. And because she had red hair and was impetuous, Jill decided to surprise Tony by coming to him bravely and gaily in the full light of day. So she rose early, packed, slipped out without her big bag and hastened away before it was noon, so she might return to Beppo's in time for lunch and a little speech she had rehearsed.

"I have moved away," she meant say. "I have gone to Tony. You cannot stop me. My things are all at his apartment already. I will go on working for you, Beppo, if I may. I cannot pay the debt I owe you for being the first to stand by me after Folly died. But now I cannot be a burden to you. So I am going to live with Tony and work for you."

She meant to deliver it with a toss of her head and a stamp of he foot and a great air of wisdom and poise. And to prepare for it she must burn her bridges behind her by taking her possessions to Tony.

When she rang the door bell on arriving; there was no answer.

"Maybe he is still sleeping," she thought in panic. And then remembering that she was now a poised and worldly woman, she put her key in the lock and went into the apartment. It was gay and garish—and yet strangely quiet. It was neat, tidy, not a bit like Tony.

She stood in the hallway and called: "Tony! Tony—I've come. But I'm scared. Come and get at once. I'm afraid if you don't—I'll go on silently as I came."

There wasn't a sound in reply. Jill looked around uneasily. Then she laughed. She realized subconsciously that Tony had not expected her till night, that he had affairs of his own, that he had a life of which she knew nothing that he was not a moon-struck idiot to sit all day anticipating her arrival which had been set for the evening.

Then she heard the click of a key in the lock.

FASHION FADS AND FANCIES

By Mildred Ash

"LESS than the Dust" can well be applied to the new shade of silk chiffon hosiery that is a trifle lighter in color than the tone known as "dust," which has been so very popular.

Drawn through a Ring of lightweight composition of the same color, woolen scarfs of shorter and narrower oblong shape or of triangular form are held in place by the inside of the ring being corrugated. In modernistic allover designs these sports scarfs usually combine two shades of the same color.

Finding their Way Home seems a gift all too rare to be possessed by umbrellas, no matter how smart they may be. The smarter they are, the less apt to return. One of the latest practical novelties is an umbrella with an old ivory composition handle, which has an ornamental tassel that encloses an address tag. Beneath the silken sheath, which finishes the wrist-cord, is an ivory strip upon which should be written the owner's name and address. Many of these umbrellas, with imitation old ivory handles, are decorated with pigskin bands or inserts of watersnake.

Worshipping the Golden Calf has never been more openly done than now when gold and silver flowered kidskin is Fashion's offering upon the altar of shoe and purse styles for evening use. Purses and slippers of the same glistening leather supply the accessories of the formal dinner and dance costumes of the Fall and Winter.

Conspiring to Be Conspicuous, many of the wearers of black-heeled, gunmetal, chiffon hose are pasting little black "shadowettes" on any part of the leg. Worn under dark hose, these little silhouettes depict dogs, cats, mice, lizards, bats and any number of other types of animals, birds or insects.

SHADOW KIDS

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman.

Man's Place!

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly explain where a man should sit when he is out with two ladies and they have the three end seats in a theatre. Does he sit in the middle?

2. How is it proper to sit when there are two couples? Do the two girls sit in the middle?

3. How should I introduce a girl friend to my mother?

4. Do you like my writing paper? A. A.

NO, he should sit in the seat nearest the aisle.

2. Yes, the two girls in the middle.

3. "Mother, this is Miss Alice Bright," or "Mother, this is Miss Bright," or "Mother, this is Alice Bright."

4. Yes, pretty well. It is a bit too vivid for my taste. The same kind in a lighter blue or in white or light-gray would have been so much better, I think. It is of a good texture, however, and of an excellent size for your handwriting.

Proper Address

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My friend says that it is proper to address a doctor's wife as Mrs. Dr. Blank, but I say that a doctor's wife should not use the title of doctor, but only her husband's first name, as Mrs. G. M. Blank. Which is correct? V. G. B.

YOU are right. It is a terrible social error to address a doctor's wife by her husband's title. She is Mrs. Gregory Mason Blank.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

STUFFING A CHILD

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU are fortunate if none of your children ever has had an upset stomach. This is the condition that doctors are in the habit of calling a "gastric attack."

It is most commonly seen in children between the ages of two and seven, and is perhaps commonest in those of five or six. The child refuses his tea, seems tired, out of sorts and a little feverish, and shortly afterward relieves his parents by vomiting, during the evening, some of the food taken with his dinner. Then, like a sensible person, you wait for the doctor. When he comes he finds the patient with a temperature and a dirty tongue, drowsy, irritable and still refusing food. He doesn't do much except take nature's hint and let the child follow its best for eating. After a few days the child recovers.

Of course the disorder varies enormously in different children. In some it may show itself as a feeling of sickness, lasting only a comparatively short time. Others may vomit horribly, with or followed by bad diarrhoea—a condition formerly spoken of as "cholera morbus." Still others may be constipated, with pain movements.

Now the usual causes of these gastric attacks are (1) infections in the stomach or the bowel, (2) faulty feeding, (3) over-exertion and excitement.

The first of these is the commonest. For instance, a chill with recurrent infection of the tonsils may have periodic vomiting attacks of just this kind without complaining of its throat. This means that the infection, confined from the throat, has spread to the stomach, bowel or even the liver. The remedy is to remove the tonsils.

In this, nervous, dyspeptic children chronic catarrh of the nose or chest may be at fault. In rare cases the cause may be chronic disease of the kidneys.

During the influenza season these attacks are often called "gastric flu." The onset is extremely sudden. The vomiting is often accompanied by diarrhoea. There is little doubt that in these cases, the cause is an inflammatory infection of the stomach or bowel.

Next, with regard to faulty feeding. The severe chills of this age does not have half enough trouble as the result of slight errors in diet. Attacks of this kind are, therefore, not likely to be simply the result of "over-eating." They may be, but are not likely to be. In all such cases infection is more probably at the bottom of the attack.

Then there is a type of child that seems to have an inborn tendency to "biliousness." One of the parents may have been troubled in childhood and subject to headaches when ailing on a train or steamer. The child itself—usually a boy—is of the type called the "nervous child." It is too generally an "only one." Such a child has gastric attacks at fairly regular intervals, which, however, get longer as he reaches the school age. He is often coaxed on milk, cream and eggs, and has an over-anxious mother, distressed at his frail little body, who piles him with what she considers the most nourishing food.

It would be better if she were carefully to study his digestive capacity for different foods. To make him "fat and strong" she has probably overdone the fat and cream business. She would do much better to cut down the fats in his diet, stop giving him cream and reduce his eggs to two a week and his milk to half a pint of skim milk a day. Then, when his stomach has rested and the fats gradually return to these necessary items of diet. But don't stuff him with them. Stuffing is poor feeding and defeats it own purpose.

Canned Peaches for Cooking

By Hannah Wing.

THE last peaches of Summer have scarcely disappeared from our market places when the new crop of canned peaches is ready to take their place. And this is fortunate, for there is no fruit whose refreshing fragrance, flavor and color are more missed, and with perhaps no other product do the canners do a better job. When used in cooking, there is little difference between fresh and canned peaches.

Peach Rice Fluff.

One cup diced canned peaches, 1 cup cooked salted rice, 1-3 cup chopped almonds, ¼ cup powdered sugar, 5 marshmallows, cut up; ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup cream, whipped. Combine all ingredients, folding the whipped cream in carefully at the last. Chill thoroughly.

Molded Peach and Cheese Salad.

Two tablespoons gelatin, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 package cream cheese, ¾ cup diced canned peaches, 1 green pepper, chopped; 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Soften the gelatin in ¼ cup cold water and dissolve in 1½ cups peach juice. Add the sugar, peaches and lemon juice. Chill half the mixture until firm in a mold rinsed in cold water. Make balls of the cheese, seasoned with paprika and green pepper, and arrange on the jellied mixture. Add the remaining mixture and chill until firm. Serve on lettuce, with mayonnaise.

Baked Peach Souffle.

Half cup peach syrup, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Make a white sauce of butter, flour and peach juice. Add peach pulp, sugar, lemon juic, and egg yolks. Fold in the egg whites, beaten stiffly. Bake in a pan of water in a moderate oven (250 degrees F.) for 30 to 40 minutes, or until firm. Serve immediately with cream.

Our Rhyming Optimist

By Alice Michelis

WHEN day is done so many hopes pass with the setting of the sun they fade, as light from mountain slopes, when day is done. When day is done so many plans are ended with the sunset glow; we see joy's freighted caravans down darkness go. We lose the courage that, with dawn, walks up through all our veins anew. Our footfalls when light is gone groom dimmer, too. But, strangely, with the evening star comes peace to smile at us again,[sic] and where the mists of twilight are faith knows no wane. And though day's tasks were incomplete, few finished which we had begun, still all the plans and toil seem sweet when day is done. For men their eager strife resign, forgetting vanity honors won, and all life's phases grow more fine when day is done.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

In using the rind of a lemon for flavoring purposes, be careful not to use the white pith. It is only the yellow part that holds the oils; the white often imparts a bitter taste.

The best way to wash a dirty chiffon blue is to wind it round a long board and scrub the line with a brush. This prevents it from becoming tangled, and makes it easy to wind when dry.

McCallum Fears Coyote Team May Become Too Confident For Saturday

AND—

A Column of Et Ceteras in Sport

BY VON

Members of the University of Texas Longhorn football squad are not all rich men's sons by any matter of means. Consequently they resort to many and varied occupations to bring in the necessary income to keep the wolf away from the door while going to college, according to an article in the Austin American-Statesman written by Ike Sewell, first string guard for the Longhorns.

"Many and varied methods are inaugurated," says the hefty Longhorn lineman in his article," by members of the University of Texas football team to keep the bill collector away from the door.

"Like most other football teams," the article continues, "the Longhorn squad is composed of fellows of insufficient financial resources to get through the university without doing outside work.

* * *

"Many tales have been told of nearly every college in the country of the old grad who dips deep into his pockets and dishes out money to athletes so that they can devote all their time to playing and still remain in school. But the patriotic old fellow has failed to come out our way.

"Longhorn gridsters of limited funds work for all they get. Washing dishes, and sweeping floors is one of the favorite sideline diversions of the athletes. Some indluge in the selling of everything from oil to advertising, some manage boarding houses, and one is making his expenses by writing.

* * *

"Captain Ox Higgins, the joval Steer leader from Dallas, sells oil by the gallon and at meal times slings hash as head waiter at the Longhorn training table, and thus makes his expenses.

* * *

"Joe King, stellar quarterback, is an enevitable manager. Last summer he managed Sandi Esquival, a collegiate boxer, on his summer tour. He was manager of the year book at Oak Cliff High school, Dallas. This year he is continuing his managing tactics by handling the business affairs of the training table. His preliminary work along the line of managing enterprises will, he hopes, equip him to enter the field of business management on graduation from college.

"Dusty Rhoades, end, sweeps part of his financial troubles away by working more than two hours every morning cleaning up the men's gymnasium.

"Rhoades, Higgins and King are old companions having played three years together on the Oak Cliff team. Higgins and King have been together as roommates and teammates for four years in the university. Rhoades has been with them on the varsity squad for two years.

* * *

"Big-Un" Rose, halfback, former star of the Highland Park, Dallas, high school team, spends three hours a day as a waiter endeavoring to satisfy the voracious appetites of the brawny athletes at the training table.

"Bill Ford, also a former Highland Park star, makes his room and board by handling the financial affairs of his fraternity, Phi Delta Theta.

Gordy Brown, former all-state tackle and tower of strength of the forward wall of Bryan High, Dallas, is on the job every morning with Rhoades in cleaning up the gym.

* * *

"Eddie Beular, quarterback, known over the state as "the Texas Cyclone," who prides himself as hailing from Beaumont, is another of the players who stars in the field of slinging hash as well as in the field of football. This is Eddie's first year on the varsity squad, because of his spectacular record thus far in the season, much is expected of him in the next two years.

* * *

"Big Leo" Baldwin, halfback, the "Wichita Phantom," would by virtue of the training received at his daily job, make some man a good wife, for Leo spends his spare time as housekeeper of the men's gymnasium. Good luck has failed to smile on Leo this year, as much of his time has been spent on the sideline due to injuries.

"Putsy" Allen of Luling, halfback, whose sensational run for a touchdown in the Texas-Baylor game last Saturday snatched a victory from defeat at the last moment, makes his three squares a day by handling the business affairs of his fraternity, Delta Tau Delta.

"Ben Wetsell, Little Rock, Ark., claims the all-university championship in the dish-washing line, for Ben makes part of his expenses by shoving a dish-rag around over plates and saucers.

* * *

"Harry Phillips, guard, Dallas, is manager and takes care of the bunch at S.A.M. fraternity house. Charlie Reynolds, Houston, is an assistant trainer on the football squad. Jack Cowley, Paris, is manager and solicitor for a university boarding house. "Big Tex" Hughes, Fort Worth, is a waiter at his fraternity house. "Red" Wray, tackle, Donna, works on the training table. Many other of the athletes have part-time jobs that enable them to go through school and still give enough time to athletics. Others borrow money to carry them through the school year, and spend the summer earning enough to pay off the loans.

"In addition to the hours of strenuous training each day on the football field and the other hours of work in earning expenses, each player must attend classes just as the other students and pass in just as many courses as those other students. The average of the grades of the football players is, according to the university professors, as high as the average for the general student body. There is work attached to being an athlete and being a poor one, according to members of the Longhorn squad."

Wedding Bells to End White Sox Kids' Trouble

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 15. (AP)—Chalmer W. Cissell, shortstop sold to the Chicago American league baseball club for $123,000, was married today to Miss Bernice Ryner of Valley Junction.

Their marriage is expected to end a charge of seduction filed against Cissell by Miss Ryner before he returned to his home in St. Louis after playing baseball with the Portland, Ore., Pacific Coast league club.

"We always wanted to get married," Cissell said as he purchased a wedding ring and obtained a marriage license.

COACH WORKS CHARGES HARD

Allred May Start Against Plainview Club

Coach Alvaro McCallum of the Coyotes seems now to have but one fear. He is worrying lest that biggest devil of all football players, over confidence,, shall steal upon the Pack. Bud knows that no team can go into a game overconfident and not lessen its chances of copping the grapes by about 50 per cent.

"I hope none of the boys get too cocky," said McCallum, "but you can tell the world that if any of them do, they just won't start. I am going to send an eleven onto the field Saturday that will really do battle. I sure liked that about the Quanah team. We licked them to a frazzle but they never quit battling and several times I could hear some of our fans asking why we did not send the big boys back instead of leaving the mosquito fleet to do battle."

McCallum Was Battler.

Many remember McCallum himself when he was sporting the colors of the University of Texas. He was always battling and never knew what stop meant. Anytime he tackled a man he stayed tackled. Much of the same fight has been put into the Coyote pack and they have been showing better with each game.

Perhaps the most pleasing thing of all Tuesday was that Allred was again able to pass the ball. The halfback has been nursing a sore fin for several days but it is believed he will be able to start Saturday with his mates. With both Black and Allred in the game it makes the attack more varied for either man can pass well. Allred is also good at skirting the ends. Both men work into the lateral pass plays well. Dickey is a good man but does not possess the power of the redhead.

Ends and Tackles Work.

Most of the afternoon was spent in defensive work for the ends and tackles. These points have not done any too well in halting the sweeping type of end run but Tuesday looked much better. The line as a whole is charging better than it did for a time and McCallum is drilling into his boys they must get the jump all the time to win football games.

The interference in the Quanah game is the best that has been shown by any high school in District 1 this season. The leading backs seemed to know what to do to block the opposition wings from messing up plays. This gave the ball toters a chance to spread their stuff and several of the long runs were directly due to some guard or tackle breaking through and bowling over a secondary man.

Regulars Will Start.

Much of the work for the rest of this week will deal with Amarillo as much as with Plainview. The boys must get by Plainview first if they are to still have a chance for the district title but if they do win Saturday, Amarillo will come next and there will be but two real work days in between the two games.

The regular backfield of Black, Mitchell, Mills and Allred is expected to start against Plainview. They will be kept in there as long as they are needed. Judging from the game the Bulldogs flashed last week the regulars may be forced to go all the way. It would be tough to have to play two games so close together but McCallum thinks the boys can and will do it if they have to.

Should Plainview show signs of tiring it is a cinch that Williams, Hambrick, Perkins and Dickey will be rushed in to run the opposition down further. This mosquito fleet can flash the speed and one or two of them have learned change of pace with speed.

SORDS POINTS---By Jack Sords

The Damaging Part of a Golden Tornado

Probably one of the most powerful Georgia Tech teams assembled in some years represents that school on the gridiron this fall. And one of the big reasons for the Tornados' success is found in the work of Stumpy Thomason, sawed-off, speedy and elusive little halfback of the southerners.

Not since the days of Wycoff have been treated to such an exhibition of backfield art. But Thomason is not a Wycoff—not yet. He is only a sophomore playing his first year of "big time" stuff, but with a couple of years ahead of him should develop into a wonder.

His change of pace and ability to reverse his field marks him as one of the south's outstanding stars. Once out in the open it's just too bad for the opposition.

Don Miller, backfield coach of Georgia Tech, is quite enthusiastic over Thomason's possibilities and is ever ready to sing his praises. And Miller, being one of the far famed "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame in 1924, should know a back when he sees one.

Wallace Wade Tells of Reason For 'Bama's Grid Successes

By Universal Service.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 15.—"No inferiority complexes. Ninety-nine and forty-four hundredths per cent 'Alabamism.' Hard work."

In his slow southern drawl Coach Wallace Wade of Alabama university thus summed up the phenomenal football success over the past five years of the nationally famous Crimson tide.

Ironically enough it has required a lean gridiron year at Alabama to call attention to the four bumper seasons that preceded it. When Georgia Tech surprised with a two touchdown victory over Wade's three time southern conference champions early this season statisticians found some interesting facts tucked away in their note-books.

Team Honored Much.

It was 'Bama's second conference defeat in five years. And for the last two years 'Bama had been selected from among the elite in the east, the south and the midwest to meet the western representatives, Washington and Stanford in the big national intersectional post-season classic, the tournament of roses game on the coast and had survived undefeated, winning from the strong Washington huskies in 1925 and tying Stanford last year.

Coach Wade elaborated on his epigrammatical introductory sentences. A Tennesseean by birth, educated at Brown university of "Iron Men" fame where he was named as all-American guard and for seven years intimately concerned in the football activities of two of the leading southern conference elevens, as assistant coach at Vanderbilt and head coach at Alabama, Wade is above all the typical southerner.

He said:

Believes In Self.

"When Alabama meets an opponent, whether it is in the conference or a coast team in the intersectional post-season affairs it confidently expects to win. Inferiority complexes receive rough handling on 'Bam's practice field.

"'Bama does not underrate its opponents but is taught rather to believe implicitly in its own power.

"I believe that it was Georgia's confidence, that had much to do with the Crackers' sensational early season victory over Yale's great team.

"Then an Alabama team is just that. Almost to a man our players have been born on Alabama soil and raised within a few hours' ride of the university.

"They are most of them farmer boys, husky and quick to take to discipline. They come from the purest kind of American stock."

Uses No Pet System.

"No," Coach Wade answered to a question by the interviewer, "there is no particular system to which Alabama success in the past can be attributed. Just hard work."

The "hard-work" formula sounded a bit odd from the mouth of a son of the ease-loving southland but an hour on the side lines at Denny field where the stockingless crimson jerseyed squad perspired under the hot sun was convincing evidence.

Wade is a booster for the new rules and believes that the elimination of the fumble punt danger removing the possibility of a costly break and making the game more scientific, one of the biggest steps forward. He did think, however, that the rues changes came too often and favored a rules committee which would meet every five years.

Ed Beular Victim Of Hard Trick of Fate

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—Ed Beular, former Beaumont star and now quarterback on the Longhorn football squad at the University of Texas, missed the hall of fame for long runs on the gridiron field by a hard turn of fate Armistice day against the Kansas Aggies. Beular made a 75-yard broken field run for a touchdown only to be called back and have the score cancelled because of roughness by one of his teammates.

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—Ike Sewell, guard on the Texas Longhorns football squad, played through the Texas-Kansas Aggies game on Armistice day, when the steers won 41-7, with a broken thumb. In order to make it possible for Sewell to play, his thumb was encased in steel plates and a heavy bandage. Examination after the battle showed that the plates had been twisted because Sewell refused to let the protected injury bother him.

CARDS MULL ON BUFFALO CASE

Breadon Announces Price Rise After Dec. 1

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 15. (AP)—The question of whether the St. Louis Cardinals will sell their Houston, Texas, farm, one of the most important cogs in the St. Louis Nationals' mull league organization, will be decided within the next two weeks, President Sam Breadon said here yesterday.

"We are not contemplating any major league deals until the December meeting," Breadon said, "but we consider the Houston question of much importance and according to our agreement with the Texas league owners we will have a showdown by December 1. According to that agreement, a price of approximately $535,000 has been fixed as a fair value and we will be forced to sell if an offer of that amount is made before December 1. If no offer is made we will be guarantee against future objections to our presence in the league."

Breadon said if no offer were made by December 1 he might still consider offers during the minor league meeting at Dallas December 6, that is, offers of $535,000.

The Cardinals acquired an interest in the Houston club in November, 1921, and since then Houston has advanced in importance, drawing power and value.

Sunset High Voluntarily Withdraws From District Three Class A Race

Sports Done Brown

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

Howard Jones, one of the famous football Joneses, and the one who once coached the University of Iowa football teams, pays three one-time members of the Hawkeyes pretty compliments by nominating them as all-time all-stars.

The three are Gordon Locke, Duke Slater and Aubrey Devine.

Locke was the greatest fullback ever produced at Iowa, Devine was an all-American selection for quarter in his day and Slater ranked as one of the greatest tackles, by unanimous consent.

Jones calls Divine the most dangerous, the fastest and brainiest quarter he has ever seen; says there will never be another fullback who can hit the line as hard as Locke did, and gives Slater credit for being the hardest hitting tackle he has ever known.

Of Slater, Jones says: "He could knock down two men with one arm and then grab the ball carrier with the other and throw him for a loss."

The eventual disposition of Kiki Cuyler by the Pittsburgh Pirates is going to keep Barney Dreyfuss' club as much in the limelight all winter as though it had trounced the walloping Yankees instead of losing four straight.

Scarcely a day passes but what Cuyler is taking a different train for some big league city.

All of these trade rumors include some kind of a second baseman as part of the trading material offered by rival clubs. In other words it's a foregone conclusion that when Cuyler goes the Pirates will get, in return, what they needed most last year—and especially in the world's series. That was a good second baseman.

Grantham is a first baseman by profession and desire. He was shoved into the gap at second because he was the only man available, all efforts to promote a new second baseman before the stores closed last summer availing nothing.

A survey of the National league clubs produces very few infielders of the class Donie Bush would hope to get in whatever deal he finally makes. The Cubs might part with Sparky Adams. The Phillies have a great little infielder in Fresno Thompson. There is Eddie Farrell of the manager-tossed Boston Braves and Travis Jackson or Freddie Lindstrom of the Giants might work into Bush's scheme of things, even if he did have to shift his infield.

However, Bush would also like to get a hard hitting outfielder with a strong arm to play center. Lloyd Waner hasn't the powerful whip needed there, although he may develop it.

And Bush could also use a southpaw pitcher of dependable caliber.

Jimmy Welsh, Boston Brave outfielder, is mentioned in the rumors regarding possible overtures for Eddie Farrell. Jess Petty, sturdy southpaw of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is also mentioned.

Only one thing can be taken as positive fact. That is that Cuyler's going to move on.

And that without the jolly public ever knowing the exact truth about the conflict between the little manager and the Kiki one.

Owner Baker of the Phillies is up to his old tricks again, according to rumors emanating from reliable sources in Philadelphia. He wants to change managers to improve his ball club.

According to reports from the Quaker City Baker would like to come to terms with Stuffy McInnis, manager last season, and release him from his contract which runs another season.

This is almost unbelievable in a way. Baker gave McInnis a minor league ball club and added one good minor league player to it later. The one player was Fresno Thompson, who apparently had learned considerable baseball with Buffalo after being cast off by the Pittsburgh Pirates a year or so ago.

McInnis' presence and his labors to rebuild the ball club gained the Phils some attention early in the season and for a time some ball games. The pace was too hot for them, however.

One Philadelphia scribe expresses Baker's policy as follows: "As long as he nets the stockholders eight per cent he's happy."

PLAYER'S AGE CAUSES ACTION

Principal's Move Not Big Surprise

DALLAS, Nov. 15. (AP)—Sunset high school of Dallas, district three champions in the class A interscholastic championship race, voluntarily withdrew from the contest Tuesday through its principal, J. A. Wilson. Disputed eligibility of Tyler Duncan, Bison guard, involving the 20-year age limit, was given as the reason.

ACTION NO SURPRISE TO FOLLOWERS OF WILSON

Those who have been in touch with the situation over Duncan will not be surprised at Mr. Wilson's action. He first declared he believed the boy to be ineligible but when evidence was offered to R. L. Paschal, principal of central high school at Fort Werth and president of the district three board, that the player had not yet reached his twentieth year he was declared eligible.

Mr. Wilson was not satisfied and dug through past vital statistics records at the Dallas city hall and found the birth records showed Duncan to have been born in 1907. He presented this evidence to the board but it was unanimously voted to allow Sunset to continue as the school through Mr. Wilson had been absolutely fair about the matter.

Jack Wilson, as he is familiarly known over the district, built up a record for squareness at North Dallas high school when he was coach of the Bulldogs. When Sunset high was opened two years ago he was made principal and it was "Watch Sunset" that became a slogan. His teams were always good sportsmen and one of them was never seen to argue with an official or with the coach.

"The only thing you have to watch Jack about," said E. S. Farrington, director of athletics in the Fort Worth schools, "is that he does not lean over backward and hurt himself in his effort to be fair."

The race in this district will undoubtedly be badly muddled with a possibility that all teams will have to play another round to decide the title.

Grid Captain

SAINTS WORK FOR GOAT GO

Daniel Baker to Austin For Saturday Game

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—Coach Jack Meagher and his crew of St. Edwards' university gridiron artists are making determined preparations this week for the home-coming day with Daniel Baker college next Saturday. The game will be played in the University of Texas Memorial stadium.

Although disappointed by the ill luck that cost them their game with Howard Payne on Armistice day—and incidentally cost them their chances for a championship, inasmuch as they are playing no more conference games this year—the Saints are nevertheless looking forword to two more mighty interesting contests before they doff their moleskins for the last time this year.

The two remaining games are with Daniel Baker and the Southwest Texas Teachers college—the Bobcats. Both games are due to be "humdingers," for both schools are ancient rivals of St. Edward's. There has long been a splendid spirit and an intense athletic rivalry between St. Edward's and Daniel Baker, and the Saint football men will find almost as much satisfaction in wiping out the defeat at the hands of the Hill Billies last year as they would in walloping their Texas conference rivals.

There is no illusion at St. Edward's about the strength of Daniel Baker. The licking that the Billies have handed to Simmons university and the Bobcats stamp them as a team that is strong both offensively and defensively. Moreover, the Brownwoodites have on their roster several men who placed on the all-TIAA team last year, besides having much the same veteran aggregation that defeate dthe Saints at Brownwood.

Besides having the ambition to vanquish a worth and traditional foe next Saturday, the Saints will also be spurred on by the presence in the stands of a delegation of former St. Edward's students, who will be back to participate in the festivities of their old school's second annual homecoming day. The group will be headed by Dr. C. L. Koscky of Yoakum, president of the association.

Garvey, Chicago, 156 shares of stock in the Cleveland baseball club, thus closing the deal whereby Cleveland financiers secure full control of the local American league club.

BIG 10 CLOSES HECTIC SEASON

Saturday Games May Yet Decide Champs

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Saturday brings to an end the most hectic season in big ten conference history. It closes a series of upsets that have startled the mid-west.

Touted as highly ranking teams at the start of the season, Purdue, Northwestern and Ohio State have fallen into oblivion, partly through the loss of valuable players and partly because of such a stiff schedule.

Teams which have received little rating at the start of the season have shown up as the real contenders for mid-western championship honors. These honors will be contested for Saturday.

But not alone championship honors go with the games. Traditional emblems of supremacy are at stake. At Michigan, Minnesota and the Wolverines will fight for the possible honors and the glory of capturing the Little Brown Jug, so dear to the hearts of the Gophers and Michigan.

There is no emblem except mental tradition in the Illinois-Ohio State battle, but the big ten champions may emerge from the battle.

At Bloomington, Ind., Purdue and Indiana will clash for the right to the Old Oaken Bucket, which will hang not in the well but in the trophy room of the winning team for the next year.

The other games, between Chicago and Wisconsin and Iowa and Northwestern will decide which of the elevens will keep out of the cellar position.

The situation is this. Two teams have a chance to win the championship. They are Minnesota and Illinois. If the latter wins from Ohio State, they will be the champs no matter what the result of the other games.

Minnesota may win the title by defeating Michigan, providing Illinois loses to Ohio. In case both Minnesota and Illinois lose, then Michigan.

Aggies Start Drilling For Game With Longhorns On Thanksgiving

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 15. Following a brief rest of three days the Texas Aggies Tuesday settled down to intensive drilling for their annual Thanksgiving day game with the University of Texas Longhorns, to be played this year on Kyle field.

With a single exception, the Aggies are in perfect physican condition, as Conover who has been out for over a week with a broken hand, is the only Aggie suffering from an injury. It is possible that he will recover before the season is over, for it will be remembered it was a similar injury which forced "Ox" Dieterich, stellar Aggie tackle and captain, out of the lineup last year just two weeks before the Texas game but he was sufficiently recovered in time to play the Longhorn contest.

The Aggies have the advantage over the Longhorns in the games won and lost column this year and are favored by most dopesters to win but the uncertainty of football as a whole, and especially the uncertainty as to the outcome of Aggie-Longhorn games makes prediction in favor of either team risky.

The Aggies will be fighting for a conference championship as well as a victory over their most ancient rivals and they will be playing on their own stamping grounds, historic Kyle field, and there is little doubt that the Steers will have to play great football to hold them in check.

The conditions surrounding this game bear a close resemblance to those under which the 1925 game was played. In that year, as will be thecase this year, a victory over Texas meant another championship for the Aggies and in that year the game was played on Kyle field, the Aggies winning by a 28 to 0 score. The Aggies had been defeated only once that year, T. C. U. turning the trick and this year the Horned Frog eleven is the only team which has been able to stop the driving Aggie offense although the game with T. C. U. this year resulted in a scoreless tie. In 1925, however, the Longhorns too were fighting for a championship and all they needed to cinch the pennant was a tie game. This year the Texas team does not stand a shot at the championship.

SAM MANDELL BEATS MEYER

Lightweight King Changes Boos to Cheers

By Universal Service.

COLISEUM, CHICAGO, Nov. 15. They booed Sammy Mandell when he entered the ring at the Coliseum tonight but they were cheering him when he left it. In the 10-round engagement with Spug Myers of Idaho, which marked Mandell's first local appearance since he won the lightweight championship, Sammy was a revelation to those who had him card-indexed as a safety first bicycling battler.

In Meyers he faced a rip snorter, who likes nothing better than to go in there where the battling is. And Mandell met him more than half way, out-slugged him, outslapped him, out-speeded and outgeneraled him, winning the 10 rounds in such hollow fashion that the last half of the contest, for all of Myers' willingness, was decidedly one-sided.

Mandell in turning fighter for the pleasure of the mob, lost none of his elusiveness, or his knack of keeping trouble away from him, and Myers, whatever else he may be, is trouble.

Sammy showered rights and lefts on Myers' head, from all the known punching angles, and a few that were hitherto unknown.

As early as the sixth round he had Spug's ear cut and bleeding. In the next round a solid punch split Myers' nose, and the fight from there on was a gory spectacle with Sammy's classic countenance covered with blood from the cuts on Myers' face.

Airport Fund Totals $11,000

Stock Subscriptions Near Half Way Mark

The aviation finance committe which is conducting the drive to sell $25,000 in stock in the Wichita Falls Airport company will meet at the chamber of commerce at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to sum up the results of the campaign to date and to determine if a meeting of the stockholders shall be held Wednesday night.

Approximately $11,000 worth of stock in the airport company had been subscribed late Tuesday afternoon, according to Wilbur Cahoon, chairman of the committee. Mr. Cahoon expressed the belief that Wichita Falls business and professional men will rally to the support of the proposed airport corporation by subscribing to its stock in the amount asked.

"We hope that all the stock will be taken by Friday night," Mr. Cahoon said. "We have been delayed somewhat because of the convening of the Baptist convention here. Some of the most enthusiastic supporters of the airport have been busy at the convention and they have been unable to work with us or to take any stock. These delays, of course, are but momentary. The committee is optimistic and believes the sum sought will be subscribed by the last of the week."

Liberal Response Given Vernon Welfare Drive

Donations apparently are averaging $2.50 for each individual and business houses are more generous.

COTTON SEASON ABOUT ENDED

Receipts Here Light; Prices Gain Half Cent

Cotton advanced 20 points on the New York markets Tuesday, with the result that half a cent was added to the price paid for middling by Wichita Falls buyers.

Middling was quoted Tuesday at 1½ cents, with a range upward from 17 cents for average snaps.

Only 25 bales were received at local cotton yards. A large amount of the cotton being brought in no whas been picked for two or three weeks, or longer. With the exception of a few scattered fields where late cotton escaped much of the damage from weevils, fully 99 per cent of the crop has been picked, it is said. Some farmers are going over their crops a second time.

Seeed was quoted at $35 a ton.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (AP)—The cotton market showed a steadier tone today, recovering a good part of yesterday's losses on less favorable weather reports and relatively steady Liverpool cables. January contracts sold up to 1.90, or 20 points net higher, and closed at 19.85, the general market closing steady, at net advances of 15 to 22 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 7 points. Further December liquidation caused irregularity after the call. Offerings were absorbed by spot house buying against sales of later deliveries, however, and prices turned steadier on covering, probably promoted by reports of colder weather in the southwest. The apparent willingness of spot houses to buy December at about 26 points under March, appeared to make a favorable impression on sentiment. Business was only moderately active but there appeared to be some trade buying and covering, while southern selling was very little in evidence.

December contracts sold up to 1.84 and March to 20.10, during the afternoon, net advances of 20 to 23 points. The close was within 4 to 5 points of the best.

Part of the buying here was said to be for European trade interests, presumably in the way of fixing prices, and there was buying for both Liverpool and New Orleans account which was supposed to be on the differences between the various markets. December liquidation was largely in the way of switching from near to late months, and the absorption of the near month contracts at about the recen differences between months was regarded by some traders as indicating that a basis for the evening up of the position had been pretty well established.

Cable advices reported India buying in the LYiverpool market on heavy rains which were checked by hedging and liquidation, the market showing an absence of active speculative interest.

Exports today 77,859, making 2,662,700 sof ar this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15. (AP)—The cotton market was slightly firmer here today on account of favorable cables, bad weather inland, better trade demand and more inquiry for spots. The general market closed 13 to 19 points net higher.

After easing off to 19.92 in the early trading January advanced to a high of 20.12 in the late afternoon, which was 21 points above the lows and closed at 20.06.

Liverpool was 3 to 4 penny points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 3 to 9 points. The advance continued until December rose to 19.92 and March to 20.07, or 7 to 9 points above yesterday's close. During the first hour, however, the market eased off 6 to 9 points on December liquidation. Trade buying and price fixing brought about a rally and prices improved slowly until near the end of the session when December sold at 20.05 and March at 20.20.

In the final trading the market eased aff 4 to 7 points on a little realizing and closed steady with spring months showing the largest gain. Exports for the day were 77,859 bales.

DRYGOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (AP)—The gray cloth market was quiet today and quotations were softer through re-sale offerings at under mill levels. Rayon, silk and cotton mixtures, all cotton and other dress goods moved too slowly to afford converters a profit. Blanket lines for the coming year are beginning to be priced on a basis at least 6 to 8 per cent higher than apply to 1927. Burlap prices in Calcutta were firm to a shade higher, and unchanged in the local market, business being quiet.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (AP)—The cotton seed oil market was quiet and featureless today, fluctuating narorwly on a mixed local trade. Active months closed net unchanged to four points lower, the decline being the result of further December liquidation and hedging by refiners against crude purchases. Sales 16,700 barrels. Prime crude 9.12½; prime summer yellow spot 10.70; December closed 10.78; January 10.86; March 11.00; May 11.16; June 11.30.

WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, Nov. 15. (AP)—Dealers stock of wool on September 30 amounted to 181,700,000 pounds according to quarterly official reports issued today. The figures show 36,500,000 pounds less than for June 30 and 32,000,000 less than for September 30 a year ago. Mills show 175,400,000 pounds of wool on hand September 30. This is 8,000,000 pounds greater than for June 30 and 13,500,000 pounds greater than on September 30 last year. Stocks reported for the entire country were 28,500,000 pounds lighter than in June and 18,600,000 pounds lighter than September 30 a year ago.

U. S. TRADE FIGURES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. (AP)—A sharp increase in balance of trade favorable to the United States for October is indicated today by commerce department trade figures for the month.

October exports from the United States expanded to $490,000,000 as compared with like exports of $455,301,000 while a shrinkage in imports between the two periods resulted in a total of $356,000,000 for October, 1927, against $376,865,000 in October, 1926.

The month's favorable balance for 1927 was thus $134,0000,000 as compared with a like balance of $78,433,000 in October, 1926.

All patent leather used in British India is now being made in other countries.

Profit Taking Causes Rails and Industrials to Slide As Money Continues Easy Despite Treasury's Move

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Considerable profit taking found the stock market in a rather tired condition today, and as a result both rails and industrials slipped lower on the average. Individual stocks added to their gains under special influences, with the sugar shares growing in prominence following announcement of agreement between Cuba and other countries to limit output. The stock dividend guesses aroused by the tax discussions were floating around as thickly as ever but failed to exert as great a bullish influence as they did in Monday's trading.

The foreign exchange market was a little quieter with the guilder registering a new high and the yen slipping to a new low for the move. Commodities ruled stronger with both cotton and wheat options recovering as professionals covered. Call money held in good supply at 3 1-2 per cent throughout the session.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS GOOD

Most traders and many brokers were agreeably surprised at the continued ease in the money market despite the stupendous operation conducted by the treasury in retiring the outstanding second liberty loan bonds. Coincident with the favorable money conditions came highly optimistic utterances as to business conditions from the administration. Professional traders inclined to sell short were rendered uncertain as to just who and what they would be fighting, so that what pressure there was applied to the leaders was without serious unsettling effect.

Steel, Allied Chemical, Atchison and most of the other "stock dividend" shares all slipped. Those who scoffed loudest when the report was first published here that steel would be split up next year are among those who now make the most of the melon-cutting expectations. Capitalization of surplus in the form of stock dividend or splitting up of shares is not always as bullish as appears at first hand. In the case of steel common it would mean simply that instead of receiving $7 a share on a $100 par value stockholders would receive $4 a share dividend on the two shares of new stock given in exchange for present holdings. Such possibilities, however, are potent in keeping the trading public in a buying mood.

RAILS SLIP SOME

Lehigh Valley and Southern Railway held strong for awhile on favorable dividend rumors but lost all of their gains before the close. Earnings of both companies apparently warrant the increase in dividend talked of and should their revenue hold up after the turn of the year a higher payment in 1928 would not be surprising. There were private wires broadcast to the effect that several of the carriers were to place large equipment orders in the next week. The equipment shares failed to respond, however. It would seem that if such larger business were immediately ahead those who control both the railroads and the equipment companies would know of it.

CORN BULGES TO TAKE SPOT

Wheat Overshadowed But Not Neglected

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15. —A sharp bulge in the price of corn drew the attention of the grain trade today. A change in sentiment regarding the golden cereal brought a number of active local operators on the buying side and disturbed a rather large short interest in the market. It was the largest trade witnessed in some days, although there was room for improvement as far as general interest was concerned.

Wheat Shows Strength.

Wheat, although overshadowed by the big upturn in corn, was by no means neglected and gave quite an exhibition of strength itself. A good portion of the buying of wheat was in the nature of back-spreading with Winnipeg. Oats reflected the firmness of the other grains, while rye continued to work higher.

At the close of the session wheat showed a net gain of 1⅛@1⅞c, while corn was 2⅜@3⅛c higher. Oats closed ⅝@1c higher and rye ⅝@1⅛c higher. Export sales of upward of 1,000,000 bushels of wheat were reported at the seaboard. Practically all Canadian, with 150,000 bushels of rye, 150,000 bushels of barley and 70,000 bushels of corn also worked.

No Reason for Move.

There was nothing in the news of the day to account for the big advance in corn, but the market displayed conspicuous strength and trade was the best in some time. A number of active local traders bought corn in a liberal way some of them selling wheat in way of a spread. It is probable that they had formed the opinion that the market was now well liquidated and that the bearish features had been discounted by the decline in prices.

Oats reflected the strength of corn.

Rye was higher with wheat but trading rather light.

RULING HALTS BRIDGE SALE

C-C Undecided On Action To Secure Payment

Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce officials are as yet undecided as to what they will do regarding the latest move of the Wichita county commissioners court in canceling advertisements for the sale of material in the old Burkburnett toll bridge. Charles I. Francis, vice president of the chamber, Tuesday received a copy of the order of the court made Monday cancelling the advertisement.

Cancel Order

The order cancelling the previous order of Nov. 7 was not placed on the regular court docket Monday when it was passed. The advertisement for the sale of the material in the old toll bridge was passed in an effort to cure an error made over a year ago.

The county at that time was in need of funds to finance the new free bridge that has since been opened for traffic. The chamber of commerce raised $20,000 to provide for the purchase of the material in the old bridge and the money was used after it was paid in, to help build the new bridge. The understanding at that time was that the county would repay the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Francis said that he would have to go to the bottom of the new move before he would decide what legal action he would propose to the directors of the chamber. He will after several days study make a recommendation to the board.

Suggest Suit

The members of the court explained they had been given a ruling from the attorney general of the state that at the time a sealed bid accompanied by a bond should have been delivered to the court.

They further pointed out that if the chamber of commerce or the individuals who financed the loan for the chamber filed suit and recovered judgment they would be relieved of all legal responsibility. County Auditor E. P. Walsh has objected to the manner in which the court has handled the matter and sought the ruling of the attorney general to keep himself in the clear. It is upon this ruling that he has been objecting.

The engine and two cars had passed safely over the switch when the accident happened. No one was injured except the mail clerk who escaped from his car after it had overturned. Lower Insurance Key Rate Seen With Proposed Water Improvements

Improvements planned for the Wichita Falls water system if the $1,800,000 loan is approved Dec. 10 were outlined by P. B. Curd, commissioner of public utilities, at the meeting of the Real Estate board Tuesday noon.

Probable lowering of the key insurance rates for Wichita Falls will be one of the results of the proposed improvements, Mr. Curd said. The present key rate is 20 cents. It is believed that by the proposed changes it may be possible to lower the rate by several cents.

There have been considerable reductions in the estimated costs of several of the improvements since they were first proposed, Mr. Curd said.

A committee composed of Roscoe Staton and A. L. Huey was appointed to collect additional data on the proposed improvements so that the realtors may make a further study of the situation.

John Monroe, first vice president, presided in the absence of J. M. Baber, president.

Police Fail In Effort to Trace Identity of Man Slain Here

Further than to reiterate their beliefs that the man slain in a gun battle with Police Officers Homer Bentley and Ellis Summers early Sunday morning was responsible for recent roadside attacks on women, city and county officers here late Tuesday had progressed little in establishing definte identity of the purported knobknocker who tried, and failed, to resist arrest by police officers.

Police Chief Frank Burns Tuesday gave up work on the clue that had led officers to believe the slain man, known only as "Blackie," had identification paper in the Oklahoma state penitentiary. Officials of the Oklahoma institution wired here to the contrary. Likewise, the chief said, efforts to trace the man's past to the New Mexico state penitentiary were futile.

Sheriff W. G. Bralley, who is concentrating his efforts to establish the man's identity as the "road bandit," announced he would bring one of the victims, now a prisoner in the Montague county jail, to Wichita Falls soon in an effort to make a positive identification. This victim, Sheriff Bralley said, has a positive description of the bandit, and was brought from the Montague jail only about three weeks ago when a suspect had been arrested in connection with the roadside outrages. The last suspect, however, who was arrested in Vernon, was not identified as the guilty man.

Raymond Hall, arrested by police after the fatal gun battle, and subsequently charged with burglary, has confessed to police he has served three terms in the Oklahoma state penitentiary, Chief Burns said. Prison records checked to verify this, showed he had served two terms for burglary, and one for forgery.

Eastern Buyers Take 900,000 Pounds Wool

KERRVILLE, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—Nine hundred thousand pounds of fall wool were sold here today by the Schreiner Wool and Mohair Commission company to A. C. Emery of Studley and Emery of Boston at prices ranging from 33 to 35 cents per pound. Eleven other buyers bid on the wool.

The total amount of wool and mohair shipped out of Kerrville this year amounts to nearly 6,000,000 pounds including 3,500,000 pounds of wool and 2,483,000 pounds of mohair.

TECH CLUB PLANS DINNER

H. R. Voelcker Elected President

Election of officers and plans for the annual Christmas gridiron banquet occupied members of the Technical club Tuesday night in a meeting at the Wichita club. H. R. Voelcker, architect, was named president to succeed C. F. Helmcamp. The new president announced he will name a secret committee to have charge of the gridiron dinner. None but the president himself is to know the personnel and it was hinted that one committeeman might not even know his coworkers.

The gridiron banquet is an affair that is feared by those who are placed upon the "hot plate" and relished by others.

New directors of the club elected Tuesday night are I. G. Kilgore, Bert Adrian, P. A. Waltz, John Tancred and A. H. Howard. Old directors returned to the board include C. F. Helmcamp, H. R. F. Holland, H. R. Voelcker, A. M. McPherson and A. H. Douglass.

Officers other than the president are Mr. Tancred, first vice president; Mr. Adrian, second vice president; and Mr. Helmcamp, secretary-treasurer. The officers are chosen from the directorate.

NOTICE OF ELECTION.
ORDINANCE NO. 959.

An ordinance providing for the holding of an election in the city of Wichita Falls, Texas, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said city a proposition to encumber the water works system, the franchise, and income thereof, to secure the payment of water works bonds of said city in the amount of $1,800,000 for the purpose of refunding the existing indebtedness of said water works system and to purchase additional water powers, riparian rights and to build, improve, enlarge, extend and repair said system and declaring an emergency.

Whereas, the Board of Aldermen of the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, deems it necessary and expedient to borrow money on the credit of the waterworks system of the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, in the sum of $1,800,000, and to secure the payment thereof by encumbering the said waterworks system, the franchise and income thereof, and everything pertaining thereto, acquired or to be acquired, for the purpose of refunding the existing indebtedness of said water system, and to purchase additional water powers, riparian rights, and to build, improve, enlarge, extend and repair such system.

Now, therefore, be it ordained by the Board of Aldermen of the City of Wichita Falls, Texas:

SECTION 1: That an election be held in the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, on the Tenth day of December, A. D., 1927, at which election the following proposition shall be submitted:

Shall the Board of Aldermen of the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, be authorized to encumber the waterworks system of said city and the franchise and income thereof, and everything pertaining thereto, acquired or to be acquired, to secure the payment of bonds to refund the existing indebtedness of said waterworks system, to purchase additional powers, riparian rights, to build, improve, enlarge and extend and repair such system, such bonds to be in the sum of $1,800,000, to mature serially from one to forty years from the date thereof, bearing interest at the rate of 4 3-4 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually.

SECTION 2: The said election shall be held at the city hall in the Wichita County Courthouse in the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, and shall be conducted by the following named persons:

WALTER ROBBINS,
Presiding Judge, Courthouse box.
HOMER KARRENBROCK,
CLARENCE DODGE,
MERLE WAGGONER,
Clerks.

NAT L. INGE,
Presiding judge, City Hall box.
L. B. JENNE,
C. B. DOOLEY,
ADOLPH FRIEDMAN,
Clerks.

Voters living east of Lamar Street and northeast of Wichita River, and southeast of Wichita Valley Railroad tracks, in said city, shall vote at the City Hall box. All voters living west of Lamar Street in said city, shall vote at the courthouse box.

SECTION 3: The said election shall be held in accordance with the general election laws and only qualified voters in said city shall be allowed to vote.

SECTION 4: The ballots to be used at said election shall contain the proposition as above set forth followed by the words: "For the encumbrance of the waterworks system" and "Against the encumbrance of the waterworks system."

SECTION 5: Notice of said election shall be given for at least thirty days by the mayor, by publishing in the Wichita Falls Record News, a newspaper of general circulation in Wichita County, Texas, published in the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, and such notice shall be made by publishing a copy of this ordinance with the words "Notice of Election" prefixed thereto, once a week for three consecutive weeks in said newspaper, and the first publication to be made at least thirty days preceding said election.

SECTION 6: That because the present waterworks system is inadequate to furnish a proper supply of pure water to the citizens of Wichita Falls, thus endangering the health of said citizens, creates an urgent necessity demanding and requiring that the provisions of the city charter providing for the reading of ordinances on three separate days and providing that ordinances shall not go into effect until thirty days after passage, be suspended, and this ordinance is passed as an emergency measure and shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, and it is so ordained.

Passed and Approved, this 8th day of November, A. D., 1927.

R. E. SHEPHERD,
Mayor.

100 WOMEN TO AID CHEST

Names of Community Workers Listed

A hundred Wichita Falls women are ready to start their part of the Community Chest campaign Monday, Nov. 21, this large group, composing the Woman's Division, having met at the Wichita club Tuesday to hear plans for the campaign outlined by Harry Hines, acting chairman.

Important Work

Mr. Hines declared that the women have a very important part in all community movements but particularly in such a campaign as this, calling attention to other cities in which the women's committees have secured as much or more money than the men proportionately.

Mrs. C. R. Hartsook, chairman of the Woman's board which is composed of ten members announced a meeting of this group of ten at her home at 2715 Ninth street, for Thursday morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of dividing the territories and working out other details of the women's work. This group is also expected to attend the luncheon meeting for all workers at the Wichita club Monday, Nov. 21, to receive final instructions and supplies which they will pass on to their committees who will be ready to report back to their captains by Tuesday at noon, it was stated.

The members of the Women's division with the chairman of each group are as follows:

"Ben-Hur," with its magnificent chariot race pictured in a death-defying contest on a vast circus arena—the knightly Ramon Novarro and the wicked Francis X. Bushman as the opposing heroes—comes to the Strand theater Friday.

Theatergoers greatly enjoyed the stage "Ben-Hur" and vividly remember Bill Farnum, Bill Hart, Emmett Corrigan, Mary Shaw and others of the old casts. It was the most popular stage spectacle ever produced, touring America for twenty-two seasons. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, have made a new and greater "Ben-Hur" in the newer art of the motion picture that outtops the former achievement even as the wizard-like powers of the Twentieth Century surpass the inventions of our forefathers.

You see forty-eight horses—twelve teams—start abreast in their mad dash over the seven laps of the Antioch race course, and you can not forbear a cheer as Ben-Hur wrecks Messala and forges to the front! Roman and Pirate navies contend in realistic death-grapples on the Mediterranean. The towers and turrets of Zion rise anew. From the exquisite Madonna to The Last Supper and the Procession of Palms, the masterpieces of art are re-enacted, often in color. The beautiful love story of Esther and Ben-Hur, a contemporary of the Saviour, dominates the grand spectacle which is characterized by a fine reverence in the sacred part of the portrayals. Among the leading actors are Ramon Novarro in the title role, Francis X. Bushman as Messala, May McAvoy as Esther, Betty Bronson as the Madonna, Carmel Myers as Iras, Frank J. Currier, Mitchell Lewis, Nigel de Brulier, Clair McDowell, Kathleen Key, with no less than 150,000 persons in the "support."

Who's Who in the Community Chest

The Boy Scouts.

Boy Scout work has, within the past few years, become a world-wide organization and one which every community of any size gladly and proudly supports.

Loyalty, helpfulness, friendliness, courtesy, bravery, cleanliness, reverence, thriftiness, cheerfulness, kindness and obedience are the qualities for which these boys strive and if each boy acquires even a few of these characteristics the work is well worth while.

In constructive welfare work such as Wichita Falls hopes to be able to do to a greater extent than has been possible in the past, the Boy Scout movement is of vital importance. Boys who have had the training given by this organization stand little chance of ever becoming charity cases. In training our boys of today we are making sure that our citizenship of tomorrow will be of a high type.

Funds from the Community Chest campaign are not used to buy the suits and other equipment for the boys but only to maintain the organization which gives the boys of this city the wonderful training and character building work which means so much in developing them into the highest type of man.

A large group of Wichita Falls' finest men serve as scoutmasters for the different groups of the city and a board of directors composed of men who are vitally interested in boys' work direct the activities and policies of the organization. J. H. Allison is chairman of this board and other members are R. E. Shepherd, Luther Hoffman, N. M. Clifford, Joe Dickey, Morris Marcus, W. D. Cline, Dr. C. E. Hartsook, Harry Hines, Ralph Myer, Sam Kruger, J. L. Jackson Jr., J. C. Mytinger, W. Daniel, Joseph Huckins 3rd, Lester Jones, Leonard Grayson, J. W. Fund and C. J. Coffey.

School - College Notes

Registrar A. K. Presson presided over a program furnished by the students Tuesday morning at the Junior college-high school assembly.

The first number of the program was a reading by Betty Love Rugely, on "The Homesick Tree."

Ben Duncan gave a declamation, an excerpt from a speech by ex-Governor Robert L. Taylor of Tennessee, to a gathering of Confederate Vterans. The students listened to the speech in profound silence and applauded heartily at the close.

"A Vienna Waltz" by Freeman Gardner was rendered on the piano by Maurine Parnell.

In introducing the next number on the program, Mr. Presson said, "Although you may not know it, We have with us a poet. I am only the goet."

The number was the reading of a number of original poems by Edwin Erwin. The first poem he read was "Friends of Yours." He also read "God's Gold" and "Spring." According to Miss Eva Weber, teacher of college English, the thought that goes to make great poetry is present in Erwin's work.

The concluding speech was one on patriotism by George Nelson, in which he read "Flanders Fields."

GYM CLASS ACCIDENT

Elna Stovall was painfully, but not seriously injured Tuesday afternoon while she was participating in the activities of the girls' gymnasium class. She was accidentally struck in the eye with a stick by another girl, in the course of one of the games.

TICKET SALE FOR AMARILLO GAME

Seldon Hale announced in assembly Tuesday morning that the pep squad would meet Thursday afternoon.

"The band will go to Amarillo for the Thanksgiving game, stated J. Lewis Foster" but it will be necessary for every member to come out and practice diligently from now until then."

Madie Rae Thornton announced that 100 tickets had been sold to the merchants of the city and 50 remained for the students. She said that if the entire 50 were sold the price would be $6, but if not the price would be $8.25 each.

PEP MEETING

A pep meeting was held by the high school pep squad Tuesday afternoon. They made plans for the game Saturd y and for further meetings this week.

WRITERS' CLUB

When answering the roll call Tuesday each member of the Junior College Writers' club gave a quotation and the author of it.

Original essays were read by several of the club members. "Aspirations and Realizations" was read by Dorothy Reed. "Observations From Life in a Study Hall," by Virginia Allen, and "Autumn Leaves" by Mrs. Fay Yauger. Sarah Walton, the president, was obliged to be absent from meeting but she sent in her essay which was read by Mrs. Yauger.

SENIOR GIRLS ADOPT CLASS COSTUME

A costume for the mid-year senior girls of the high school was decided on at their meeting Tuesday afternoon. The costume will be of blue and white print and will be worn on Wednesday of each week. A slumber party was planned for Saturday night at the home of Hazel Diestlehorst.

Corpus Christi Key Rate Given Eight Cent Boost

AUSTIN, Nov. 15. (AP)—An increase of eight cents in the fire insurance key rate of Corpus Christi effective November 18, was announced today by Fire Insurance Commissioner T. M. Campbell Jr.

The rate now is 27 cents but will be raised to 35 cents because of "deficiency in fire department equipment."

Schedule Changes Made By Wichita Railroads

Changes in schedules of passenger trains on the Wichita Falls and Southern railroad and the Waurika extension of the Wichita Valley, which, it is said, will materially improve service for patrons of the lines, were announced Tuesday from the union station ticket office.

The Wichita Falls and Southern train No. 24 which previously arrived in Wichita Falls at 11:30 a. m. now arrives at 1 p. m. Train No. 23 now departs for Dublin at 2:15 p. m.

The Wichita Valley train No. 9 now arrives here at 4:30 p. m. and train No. 10 departs for Waurika at 8:30 p. m.

These schedules which have been in effect several days, allow passengers to make more satisfactory connections with other trains in Wichita Falls, it was said.

Mexico has had two floods in the valleys of the Lerma river, storms on the west coast and heavy rains in other parts of the country recently.

Deserted Girl Wins Place With New Parents

One morning about three months ago an old covered wagon, of the "prairie schooner" variety, passed through Wichita Falls, drawn by two moth-eaten mules.

The wagon held a man and woman of uncertain age, a few pieces of broken furniture, some nondescript bedding, and a tiny little girl about three years old, dirty, ragged, hair matted and eyes sore; nothing attractive about her; nothing to commend her except the appeal of her babyhood and neglect.

Somebody in the trail of the wagon called Mrs. Mellam of the Wichita Falls Family Relief. She questioned the wagon folks and they told her they were stranded and without food—or anything to buy it. That they would manage, if she would take the baby girl.

"It ain't ours; somebody put it in the wagon this morning just before we drove into town, when we were asleep." They were evidently telling the truth, and somebody on the edge of Wichita Falls had carried the poor little waif and put her somewhere where probably it was hoped she might be taken care of.

Mrs. Mellam took the child to the office of the Children's Aid in Wichita Falls and there followed a regular formula of hot bath, clean clothes, physical attention, food and milk and temporary board in a good home.

Saturday morning of the past week a young couple who had no children came to talk to Miss Bonnick about an adoption. A little yellow haired, blue eyed mite was sitting in one of the big chairs in the office, just back from a trip to the clinic, and she looked right up into the young wife's eyes when she came in—a wistful, engaging, baby look.

It wasn't 15 minutes before the same blue eyed baby girl—the wretched little waif of three months before—was being surrendered "on probation" to the young couple. And one more child entered into its rightful heritage of mother and daddy love and a home through the work of one of the finest charities in Wichita Falls.

Kemp and Harrell Build Fine Barns For Herds

If winter delays its coming for another week or so, three huge barns which are being erected in Wichita county will be completed in time to protect large herds of sheep and cattle against the chilly blasts, for the construction of the big barns for well under way on farms belonging to J. A. Kemp and J. T. Harrell.

Two of the barns are being erected on land belonging to Mr. Kemp, one on his Moss farm on the Seymour road, and the other on his farm south of Iowa Park. They will be 100 feet wide by 250 feet long, when completed. They are being built of frame structure, covered with sheet iron, according to L. E. Cowling, from whom the material was bought. One of the barns will be between 30,000 and 40,000 each, said Mr. Cowling. They are being erected to afford winter protection for approximately 10,000 sheep on Mr. Kemp's farm.

The third barn is being built on Mr. Harrell's farm, near the Perrin Gardens. It is being built of material similar to that in the Kemp barns, and will be of about the same size. It will be used for both cattle and sheep, it was said.

Acid Stomach Ruins Appetite

Thin, pale people—the despondent sort who never have an appetite, and complain of headaches, indigestion, dizziness, biliousness, usually have too much acid in their stomach. Acid unless they displace it, any food they eat turns into sour bile and foul gases, which poison their system.

Pape's Diapepsin dissolves that poisonous acid, sweetens the stomach, and digests your meals. Now thousands of people have brought back the appetite of the youth and gained weight simply by observing one of the pleasant habits of Pape's Diapepsin after meals.

It does what it promises. That's the reason five million packages are used a year—ask your nearest druggist for it.—Adv.
