Hartman, Trevey file for office

Five have now announced or filed as candidates for local offices

Ralph Trevey has filed for a second term as county commissioner of Precinct 1 and Michael W. Hartman has filed for a first term as county attorney.

Their action brings to five the number of people either announcing or filing as a candidate in local races for the March 12 party primaries.

Announcing last weekend were Kerry Fritz for county sheriff, and incumbents Rona Sikes for tax assessor and C.D. Gray Jr. for commissioner of Precinct 3.

Fritz and Hartman are running on the Republican ticket. Trevey, Sikes and Gray are all Democrats.

All five candidates are currently unopposed. Incumbent county attorney Pete Greene has not filed, and sheriff Keith Collier has announced he will not seek another term.

The filing period for the March primaries began Sunday.

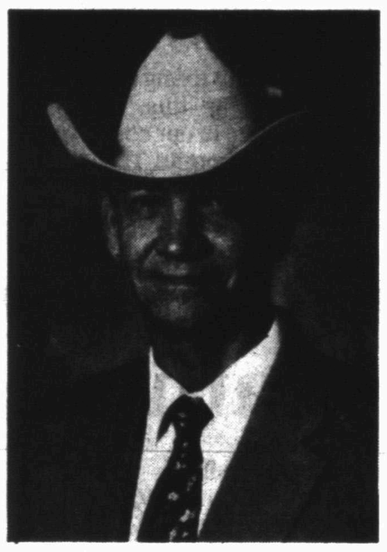

Hartman is a native of Santa Anna in Coleman County. He graduated from Angelo State University in 1978 and Texas Tech School of Law in 1991. He joined Rosser, Armstrong and Cooley — now Cooley and Hartman — in 1991 and has resided here since that time.

Hartman, 30, also teaches local, state and federal government on a part-time basis at Western Texas College.

He and his wife, Donna, have one son, two-year-old Travis.

"I throughly enjoy prosecuting criminal cases and Scurry County has a reputation of being tough on crime and tough on criminals. I would like to see that reputation continue and do my part in making this a safe county in which to live and raise a family. I feel like the best opportunity I have to accomplish that goal is through the county attorney's office," said Hartman.

Trevey is a deacon at First Baptist Church and a member of Scurry Masonic Lodge. He also serves on the Noah Project advisory board.

Ralph Trevey

Michael W. Hartman

Trevey is a lifetime resident of Scurry County, with ancestry in the county dating to 1883. He and his wife, Virginia, have three children: David, assistant band director at Snyder Junior High, and his wife Tara; Scott, a student at Lubbock Christian University; and Jennifer, a student at Texas Tech.

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank the residents of Precinct 1 and the citizens of Scurry County for allowing me the privilege of serving them the past three years as their commissioner. These years have been exciting times for our community and we can expect more opportunities for growth in the future," said Trevey. "It is my desire for Scurry County that it not only survive but also exceed all expectations as we strive to attract new industries. We have much for which to be grateful: airport renovations, coliseum operations and the acquisition of Lorber Industries. It has been a privilege to see these projects come about as the result of a cooperative spirit between commissioners court and other entities in the community.

"If allowed to serve the citizens of Scurry County another four years, I pledge to serve responsibly to the best of my ability."

There are nine local offices up for election, including tax assessor, commissioner of Precinct 1, commissioner of Precinct 3, sheriff, district judge, district attorney, county attorney, constable of Precinct 1 and constable of Precinct 2.

Potential candidates should file with their respective party chairman. Drew Bullard is the Republican Party chairman for Scurry County. The Democratic Party chairman is Charlie Freeman.

January 2 is the filing deadline.

'TIS THE SEASON - Snyder postal employee Dolores Ornelas knows it is the Christmas season as the local post office is seeing its seasonal increase in packages being mailed. Postmaster Steve Justice said the post office will be open Saturday, Dec. 16 from 9 a.m. until noon for the benefit of postal customers. (SDN Staff Photo)

Clinton pressed to come up with budget plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Appropriations. Reconciliation. Debt limits. Entitlements. Discretionary spending. As normal Americans get into the holiday spirit, this is the seasonal fare on Capitol Hill.

And if you can't figure out what's going on, join the club.

The budget debate rises to the pay-attention level when the government shuts down. With another deadline looming Dec. 15, there's no guarantee it won't happen again.

Shutdowns are only the most visible symbols of the conflicts simmering below the surface. There are three major fiscal elements in play:

1. The reconciliation bill. Renamed the "balanced budget act" by its Republican champions, it would reshape government in the GOP image. It would cut the Medicaid and welfare programs, send them to the states as fixed grants, and impose strict curbs on the growth of Medicare. It would also cut taxes for many families, corporations and investors and attempt to erase the federal deficit by 2002.

This bill is at the heart of the deeper conflict. It embodies Republican goals of federal fiscal austerity and greater state responsibility. But President Clinton plans to veto it. Democrats say its tax cut is too large, its priorities misguided; they want to restore money to social programs.

2. The 13 appropriations bills that fund the government. The fiscal year began last Oct. 1. However, only seven appropriations bills have been signed into law — those covering energy and water, the Treasury Department and the postal service, agriculture, transportation, military construction, the Pentagon and Congress.

There could be progress this week on bills that pay for the Court approves payment of bills

Scurry County commissioners disposed of a brief agenda this morning as they approved two line-item transfers and payment of bills.

Cindy Nix requested $250 be transferred from supplies to office equipment in the county's health department and Justice of the Peace Charlie Reynolds requested $670 be transferred to office supplies in his budget.

In doing so, $320 was transferred from communications and $350 was transferred in autopsy fees.

The court was also informed that Sheriff Keith Collier is advertising for a dispatcher/jailer position for the Scurry County Jail.

A jailer has resigned to take another job and the person hired will take her place. It is the county's policy to have the commissioners court be informed in any change of personnel, said C.D. Gray Jr., who presided at this morning's meeting in the absence of County Judge Ricky Fritz.

Besides Gray, commissioners in attendance were Roy Idom, Ralph Trevey and Jerry Gannaway.

Bosnia...

NATO soldiers begin arriving

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Two American sergeants arrived in Bosnia today to help lay the groundwork for a 60,000-strong NATO mission to enforce the Balkan peace.

The soldiers flew into Sarajevo on a camouflaged British C-130 Hercules transport plane carrying about two dozen NATO troops including British, French and Belgians.

A second plane to Sarajevo brought a seven-member British logistics team, and a third flight carrying troops was expected later today. In Croatia, 56 British communications experts arrived in the port city of Split.

A third of the NATO force will be Americans — the first U.S. peace enforcing mission sent to Bosnia during more than 3½ years of war.

"We'll be setting up the headquarters for the bigger force to come down," said Sgt. Matthew Chipman, of Beardstown, Ill., who arrived today with Sgt. Todd Eichmann, of Kansas City, Mo.

Chipman said the time frame for the rest of the troops' arrival was undetermined. "Everybody is hoping as soon as possible," said Chipman. He said he and Eichmann left their base in Augsburg, Germany, so quickly he didn't have a chance to say goodbye to his parents.

A British soldier who flew into Sarajevo as part of the logistics team said that serving with the NATO force would be better that his previous job as a U.N. peacekeeper in Split because he is now authorized to use force.

"It's the same job," Sgt. Eric Johnson said. "But it's easier this way."

The soldiers who arrived today are the first of 2,600 assigned to lay the groundwork for whole force. Some 60,000 NATO troops will take part in the mission.

Also today, France ordered its general in charge of U.N. peacekeeping in Sarajevo back to Paris after he said the Dayton peace accord was unfair to Serbs in the Bosnian capital.

Gen. Jean-Rene Bachelet said that under the accord, Serbs in Sarajevo would have to choose between "the suitcase and the coffin."

President Clinton gave the official go-ahead Sunday for the first small groups of U.S. soldiers to leave, but their travel plans were not clear. Some Americans were expected to arrive early this week in Kaposvar, Hungary, to set up a transit point.

The 56 soldiers who came to Croatia today as part of Britain's 7th Signal Regiment will start dealing with communications, logistics and supplies. Some will head for Sarajevo and Tuzla, and others will stay at Split, a key transit point for Bosnia.

A convoy of 15 to 20 trucks was set to leave a NATO base in Naples, Italy, on Tuesday for Zagreb, Croatia, carrying equipment for the operation's headquarters, said NATO spokesman Franco Veltri.

Clinton, speaking Sunday in Madrid at the end of a five-day European trip, brushed aside a defiant statement by the Bosnian Serb military leader, Gen. Ratko Mladic.

On Saturday, Mladic demanded a reconsideration of the peace accord's transfer of control over Serb areas around Sarajevo to a new Muslim-Croat federation.

Speaking to his troops, Mladic said Serbs will never permit themselves to be ruled by "butchers.'

"No, I don't think the treaty is in trouble, and no, I don't think the treaty has to be renegotiated," Clinton said.

President Slobodan Milosevic of Serbia "understands he has a responsibility to get them under control and we expect him to carry out that responsibility," Christopher said.

Short agenda set tonight for Snyder City Council

Snyder City Council will consider a relatively short agenda when it meets tonight at 6:30.

The council will consider two ordinances on second reading, including one that authorizes the city to issue $3,290,000 in certificates of obligation to finance a water treatment plant and improvements to the sewer system.

The other ordinance to be considered concerns setting rates at the landfill for residents and non-residents.

In other action, the council will consider three appointments to the city's electrical board, an ordinance closing the 1200 block of 32nd Street in order to construct the water treatment plant and a contract with Wes Tex waste to use the city's landfill.

Gramm official to cite sheriff's office, police

Hans Klingler, regional director in U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm's office in Lubbock, will recognize the Scurry County Sheriff's Office and the Snyder Police Department for their efforts to combat drunk driving.

The National Prevent Drunk Driving Month ceremony has been scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at City Hall.

Klingler will also read a letter from Gramm praising the coordinated efforts of government, law enforcement, the private sector and citizens groups to support driving while intoxicated laws.

"It is encouraging to see the team effort undertaken by government agencies, private industry and local communities toward drunk driving awareness and the elimination of the preventable accidents caused by drunk drivers," Gramm said.

Under Texas law, first-time DWI offenders can be fined up to $2,000 and jailed for up to six months. Second offenders can receive up to a year in jail and fined $4,000. People who are convicted a third time can be fined up to $10,000 and sent to prison for as long as 10 years.

Sen. Phil Gramm shrugs off polls, calendar controversy

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — Republican presidential contender Phil Gramm sought to quell a controversy over the primary election calendar by conceding that Iowa's leadoff caucuses will mark the first "real test" of the season.

"I believe we are exactly where we should be to have a real chance in Iowa," Gramm said. "I have spent more time, more energy, more resources in Iowa than any other state and more than the next 10 states."

The Texas senator opened his latest campaign swing for the Republican presidential nomination Sunday after getting hit on two fronts. A poll showed his support among GOP activists in Iowa was slipping, and he has been criticized for his role in an effort by Louisiana officials to leapfrog their delegate-selection process ahead of Iowa's caucuses.

But Gramm was unfazed, saying organizational backing that he has built in Iowa has yet to be reflected in the polls.

He also said he would consider Iowa's caucuses the first significant test in the string of primaries and caucuses that will yield a Republican nominee.

"I'm going to run harder in Iowa. I'm going to commit more time and resources here than any other place in the country," Gramm said. "Clearly, Iowa is going to be the first real test that the media is going to look at very closely."

The Louisiana effort has riled Iowa party leaders, who have demanded that presidential hopefuls pledge to ignore it. Most have done so, but Gramm has refused.

"I'm going to run in all 50 states,' he said. "Wherever they have a caucus, wherever they have a primary, if they are choosing delegates, I'm going to be there."

Gramm rejected suggestions that the controversy will damage his standing with Iowa activists who covet their status in holding the nation's first test of presidential strength.

Aides pointed to a hectic two-day swing through Iowa that began Sunday and said the extensive campaign time Gramm is devoting to the state will ease those worries.

'We've got 14 stops in two days," said Bob Haus, Gramm's Iowa campaign manager.

Gramm also said the flap is overblown. He said that during his town hall-type meeting no one asked him about the issue and he was forced to raise it himself.

"I know some people in the media are going to be disappointed because no one has asked me," he said.

Gramm also shrugged off a poll in The Des Moines Sunday Register that showed him with the backing of 9 percent of the likely caucus-goers questioned. His support in the same poll in September was 18 percent.

Businessman Steve Forbes, who has campaigned sparingly in the state, was at 12 percent, while Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole continued to hold the lead at 41 percent.

Gramm said he is concentrating on building a campaign organization that can turn out backers for the February caucuses.

"We're not trying to build up name ID and poll results," he said. "We're trying to build up caucus support."

Forbes' showing reflects only a heavy television effort, said Gramm, who added, "We just went on television three days ago."

With Dole the presumptive favorite in the caucuses, Gramm said his campaign is set to spring a surprise.

"Bob Dole believes that he is going to win a resounding victory here, and I'd like to show right at the beginning in Iowa that people are ready for new leadership," he said.

Gramm said his hard-line conservative pitch will work well in the long run with GOP activists who dominate the caucuses.

"We're not going to beat Bill Clinton by clouding the issues," he said.

Don't ignore abnormal bleeding

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A short time ago I found blood in my semen. I questioned my doctor and he didn't suggest I check it further. I'm concerned because the situation still exists, and I wonder if I should see a urologist or just let it be as my doctor suggests.

DEAR READER: I disagree with your doctor. Blood in the semen is ALWAYS abnormal and should be investigated. Happily, most cases are caused by a low-grade prostate infection or by trivial bleeding into the urinary tract. However, cancer can also cause this symptom.

Therefore, I urge you to refer yourself to a urologist, who may choose to perform an ultrasound of your prostate gland. Also, you might consider changing primary-care doctors to a physician who will take your health problems more seriously.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "The Prostate Gland." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss a fatty liver. Does medication, diet or surgery cause this? Will a low-fat diet help?

DEAR READER: As you might expect, the normal liver is composed of liver cells. Under certain circumstances, however, these healthy cells can be replaced by fat cells, which reduce the liver's metabolic efficiency and may lead to cirrhosis (scarring).

Common causes of fatty liver include chronic inflammation (hepatitis), malnutrition, metabolic disorders (diabetes and others), and the toxic effects of certain chemicals (notably carbon tetrachloride and alcohol). In the United States, alcohol abuse is probably the most prevalent cause of fatty liver.

Treatment depends on the cause, which is diagnosed by blood tests and biopsy. In general, once heavy drinkers abstain, their fatty livers recover. Similarly, once a deficient diet is corrected or diabetes brought under control, the fat deposits cease and the liver returns to its normal size.

Surgery and medication do not usually lead to fatty liver.

I assume from your question that your doctor gave you shocking news about your liver. At this point, his job is only half over: You need to know why the condition exists so that you can take steps to correct the situation before irreparable damage occurs.

Return to your physician and request a complete explanation of your health problem. If he is unable to comply, demand a referral to a gastroenterologist or liver specialist.

The cause of your fatty liver is not just an academic issue; you really need to know the score so that you can take corrective action.

Republicans want 'compact with Texas'

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Republican Executive Committee is working on a "Compact With Texas," a state version of the national party's "Contract With America."

GOP leaders hope the compact will help guide a takeover of the Legislature in next year's elections.

Also at a meeting Saturday, the executive committee rejected an effort to add a non-binding referendum on abortion to the March GOP primary ballot. Meeting behind closed doors, the committee voted not to place any referendum questions on the ballot.

State Republican Chairman Tom Pauken said the proposed Compact With Texas, still in draft stage, could be important in defining where the GOP wants to take the state.

"We think the time has come, as we approach a majority party in Texas, to lay out a conservative party alternative and agenda to the way business has been carried on in Texas for decades," Pauken said.

The draft version includes statements of long-held GOP positions as well as some specifics. The proposed compact, to be refined in the coming months, includes:

A freeze on state spending in order to funnel more money to public schools; local option elections for voucher programs that would allow parents to use tax dollars to help pay for private school tuition; a limit on welfare benefits below the federal poverty level and a requirement that recipients work in public service jobs; a requirement that criminals to serve at least 85 percent of sentences; a deregulation of some "consumer markets" such as insurance; and term limits and initiative-and-referendum to allow voters to petition for statewide elections on proposed laws.

Austin banker David Hartman, who helped write the draft version of the compact, said it could become as successful for Texas Republicans as the Contract With America was for GOP congressional candidates last year.

"What we are trying to do is get on the tide at this historical moment we see in our country and get it fired up here in Texas," he said.

In the Texas House, Republicans currently hold 64 of the 150 seats. They need to gain 12 in 1996 to take control of that chamber. In the Senate, Democrats lead by a margin of just 17-14, so the GOP needs to gain two seats to win control.

Michael Jordan tops Forbes' highest paid athletes report

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Jordan earned 10 times more off the basketball court than on it this year, keeping him atop Forbes magazine's list of the highest paid athletes in the world for the fourth straight year.

The Chicago Bulls' star who made a highly publicized return from retirement earned $43.9 million — $3.9 million in salary and $40 million in outside income, much of it from endorsing everything from the Nikes he wears to the Wheaties he eats.

Jordan has made $170 million since 1990, the magazine estimated in its Dec. 18 issue, and could make the leap to become the first athlete ever on the Forbes 400 list of wealthiest people.

Former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson, out of prison and back in boxing, was second on the list at $40 million — all in winnings. He made $25 million from his one fight and $15 million in signing bonuses.

Deion Sanders, the only two-sport athlete on the list now that Jordan has given up baseball, was third at $22.5 million. The outfielder and cornerback, who was 38th in 1994, made $16.5 million from salary and $6 million in endorsements.

Boxer Riddick Bowe, who wasn't listed in 1994, was fourth at $22.2 million. Basketball's Shaquille O'Neal, second on last year's list at $16.7 million, slipped to fifth this year at $21.9 million.

Boxer George Foreman at $18 million was sixth. Seventh was tennis player Andre Agassi at $16 million, up from ninth last year at $11.4 million.

Jack Nicklaus was the top golfer, finishing eighth at $15.1 million, including only $600,000 in winnings. He was third last year at $14.8 million.

Michael Schumacher, the top-rated auto racer, was ninth this year at $15 million and Wayne Gretzky was the top-rated hockey player at 10th with $14.5 million.

Cal Ripken Jr. was the top baseball player, finishing 16th at $11.2 million, including $4 million in endorsement income during the year he broke Lou Gehrig's streak for consecutive games played.

Drew Bledsoe, the New England Patriots quarterback, was 12th at $13.9 million.

Tennis player Steffi Graf remained the only woman on the list, 30th at $7.5 million. She was also the only female athlete on last year's list, finishing 19th with $8 million.

O.J. Simpson prosecutor inks movie deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Life is turning out to be more than just a box of chocolates for Christopher Darden.

A producer of "Forrest Gump" has reportedly signed with Darden to make a movie about his life, in a deal that could pay the O.J. Simpson prosecutor up to $1 million.

"The movie has to be about more than the O.J. stuff," producer Steve Tisch was quoted in today's Variety. "But I find fascinating Darden's life and who he is, before and after the trial."

The show business newspaper said Darden has agreed to co-write the script and co-produce the film with Tisch. Among those reportedly being considered to portray Darden on screen are Denzel Washington, Laurence Fishburne and Andre Braugher.

Darden will get $75,000 up front and could get as much as $1 million if the film is actually made, Variety said.

Federal officials investigate 'Windows'

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal investigators are reportedly looking at whether Microsoft intentionally set up roadblocks in its new Windows 95 operating system to disable rival companies' Internet access programs.

The Wall Street Journal reported today that the Justice Department has issued subpoenas to Netscape Communications Corp., the CompuServe Inc. on-line service, and Netcom On-line Communications Services, Inc.

The subpoenas indicate that Justice Department investigators are focusing on whether Microsoft's Windows 95 and its related Internet software improperly disable rival programs that let users access the worldwide computer network known as the Internet, the newspaper said.

A number of on-line companies, including Netscape and CompuServe, complained about the Windows 95 program when it debuted in August.

They said Windows 95 and an accompanying product called Plus!, which provides Internet access, essentially wiped out rival access software.

Microsoft executives said at the time and repeated on Friday that the problem was caused by weakness in the other companies' software, the newspaper said. Microsoft said it has helped the rival companies fix any snags affecting their products and said any problems created by its programs were unintentional.

The company did not comment on the Justice Department investigation.

Netscape also declined comment and CompuServe would only confirm that it had received the subpoenas but would not elaborate, the newspaper said.

Netscape's involvement is noteworthy because the company makes the most popular "browser" software for navigating the Internet's popular World Wide Web. Netscape and industry observers estimate that roughly 80 percent of World Wide Web users, or 17 million people, use Netscape's software.

Microsoft said Netscape hasn't notified it of any problems in operating Windows 95 and the Plus! program. It said problems only arose with pre-release versions of the system.

"It was a fairly minor issue that affected very few users," said Michael Conte, Microsoft's group manager for personal systems.

Netscape, however, complained publicly about the final version of Windows 95 after it was released, the newspaper said.

Conte said Microsoft would not deliberately make Windows 95 incompatible with rival products because such glitches would detract from the popularity of its product.

Meanwhile, Netscape and Sun Microsystems reportedly will announce later today that they are teaming to create easy-to-use computer programming language for Internet access.

The new programming, called Javascript, will be distributed free over the Internet. The programming is designed to allow even non-technical users to customize information accessible on the World Wide Web.

'Toy Story' remains No. 1;

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Disney's computer-animated "Toy Story" was the No. 1 box-office attraction for a second consecutive weekend with projected earnings of $19 million, industry sources said.

The latest James Bond adventure, "Goldeneye," finished second with an estimated $9 million, followed by the gangster film "Casino" with $6.3 million.

The new John Travolta film, "White Man's Burden," opened with only $1.8 million in receipts to take eighth place.

The new Jeff Bridges-Ellen Barkin Western "Wild Bill" only took in $1 million at 775 locations and didn't make the weekend top 10, according to preliminary estimates Sunday. Official box-office tallies will be released today.

The top 10 films:

1. "Toy Story," $19 million.
2. "Goldeneye," $9 million.
3. "Casino," $6.3 million.
4. "Money Train," $6.1 million.
5. "Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls," $5.7 million.
6. "The American President," $5.6 million.
7. "It Takes Two," $2 million.
8. "White Man's Burden," $1.8 million.

Company's recalls cause crisis confidence with drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warner-Lambert Inc. has recalled a popular epilepsy drug eight times this year alone, causing a crisis in confidence among patients, but no medical problems, according to federal regulators.

In a strongly worded message to users of Dilantin, the Food and Drug Administration said last week that there's no reason to worry. The 1995 recalls, and other problems with the drug dating back to 1990, were for minor quality fluctuations that were not medically dangerous.

"We have no evidence ... that the Dilantin available today is not performing as expected in patients," the FDA said in response to dozens of phone calls from epilepsy patients worried after Warner-Lambert pleaded guilty to a felony for hiding quality problems with the drug.

No patient should stop taking Dilantin unless directed to by a doctor, because stopping could cause serious seizures, the FDA emphasized.

But some patients question whether they can believe the reassurance. They say the FDA shouldn't have waited three years to unveil its investigation of Dilantin, and federal regulators should have publicized the recalls.

"How can I have any faith in the FDA or any drug ever again?" asked Betty Gruehl of South Euclid, Ohio, whose son suffered two days of life-threatening seizures while taking Dilantin in 1991.

"The FDA wouldn't necessarily know if there was a problem because they never told the citizens what was going on," added Gruehl, who says her 34-year-old son had never suffered serious seizures until 1991.

Many epilepsy patients suffer seizures despite taking medication, and the FDA has not detected any increased seizures by Dilantin patients since the fluctuations began in 1990. But patients asked that seizures — and at least two deaths — that occurred before 1992 be investigated.

Dr. Murray Lumpkin, the FDA's deputy drug director, said the FDA didn't consider it necessary to alarm patients by telling them of the recalls because they were for problems that didn't affect patient health.

Lumpkin said the recalls should give patients "assurance that if people are watching this drug this closely, then what they're getting is good drug. The system is forcing a drug that's hard to make to be made correctly."

Warner-Lambert agreed last week to pay a $10 million fine for concealing quality problems with Dilantin between 1990 and 1992.

Several batches of the drug did not dissolve at quite the proper rate — off by between 1 and 3 percentage points — but the FDA said the fluctuations were too minor to endanger anyone.

Federal records show Warner-Lambert recalled Dilantin eight times this year, mostly for the same quality fluctuations.

Patients may get more Dilantin information by calling the FDA at 301-443-5006 or Warner-Lambert at 800-221-5618.

Declarer, though, ducked the opening lead, hoping to take spade ruffs in the dummy. But West, believing his partner's discouraging spade three, switched to the ace and another heart. After drawing the last trump and unblocking the club ace, the declarer had to broach diamonds. Note that if South leads the king, West must duck his ace to stop dummy's queen from becoming an entry. Whereas if South leads the diamond seven, West must rise with the ace to block the suit. It is just the reverse of the normal procedure.

Should honors kill honors?

By Phillip Alder

If you watch a beginner playing bridge, he will cash aces and kings as quickly as possible. Then he will be told that he might do better to delay winning with his aces until they can capture opposing kings or queens rather than twos and threes. All well and good — but in bridge there is always the exception to the rule.

Against four hearts, West leads the spade king. How should the play proceed?

North wanted to rebid his club suit, but West's three-diamond bid made it awkward. Knowing they had at least eight hearts, North supported his partner. Note that five clubs will almost certainly fail.

It is possible to make four hearts by winning the first trick, unblocking the club ace and leading a low trump toward the dummy. Whether West plays low or wins with the ace, cashes a spade trick and exits with his last trump, declarer can hold his losers to three. His spade losers disappear on dummy's club winners.

Lady Tigers take second in tournament

BROWNFIELD — Despite losing in the finals, Tiffany Garza and Erica Garvin were named to the all-tournament team in the Brownfield Charity Invitational held over the weekend here.

The Lady Tigers reached the finals and played Ozona, but a cold shooting night saw Snyder go down in defeat, 44-23.

Ozona outscored Snyder, 20-6, in the first quarter and widen their lead to 28-8 at halftime. Ozona outscored the Lady Tigers by one in the second half, 16-15, to take the championship trophy.

"Ozona had a red hot shooting hand and were real quick," said coach Steve Qualls. "They hit shot after shot with us in their face. They are an outstanding team, the best we will face all year."

Garvin was high point for the Lady Tigers with 10.

Steelers sew up divisional title

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Apparently, the Pittsburgh Steelers have no problem saying goodbye to old friends.

Neil O'Donnell threw two touchdown passes on an otherwise off day and the Steelers wrapped up their third AFC Central title in coach Bill Cowher's four seasons by beating the Oilers 21-7 on Sunday.

The Steelers (9-4) ended their farewell tour against relocating division opponents, following up a 20-17 decision in Cleveland with their 20th victory in 27 games against Houston in Three Rivers Stadium. The Oilers (5-8) are set to move to Tennessee next season without first stopping by the playoffs.

"Only if we pick up the paper in the morning and it says we're 8-5 rather than 5-8," Oilers cornerback Cris Dishman said, "It's the same old cliches for the last eight years I've been here: Next year."

But this year looks like last year in the AFC Central. Despite being 3-4 in late October, the Steelers have won an NFL season-high six in a row to clinch the division faster than in any season since the 1970s.

Still, mindful of the premature celebration by some before they lost the AFC championship game to San Diego in January, the Steelers displayed no signs of being the first NFL division champion crowned this season.

There were no victory cigars or celebratory hugs in their locker room, only talk of next week's trip to Oakland, yet another opponent acquainted with relocation.

It might have been different if it weren't for Houston's breakdowns.

The only second-half scoring came on Morris' 30-yard touchdown run late in the fourth quarter.

Tigers take third in Denver City tourney

DENVER CITY—The Snyder Tigers came home from the 36th Annual Denver City Invitational basketball tournament with third place Saturday.

The Tigers defeated the host team, 67-60, thanks to a 19-point fourth quarter. Snyder enjoyed a 35-18 advantage at halftime and continued to lead the game.

"We played a lot better against El Paso Bowie and Denver City," said coach Bud Birks. "Bowie is an excellent team. When we went zone, they hit the three-pointers, when we went man, they ran their offense until they got a good shot.

"Anytime you beat the host team on their court, you have accomplished something. We could have won by a wider margin, but we missed too many free throws."

Snyder hit 18 of 31 free throws.

Three Tigers were in double figures in the final game, Marcus Byram had 16, Wayne Braziel 13 and Jeff Hobbs 10.

El Paso Bowie won the tournament with a 68-42 win over Lovington.

Redskins scalp Cowboys again

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys don't look like a team that's ready to wrest the Lombardi Trophy away from the San Francisco 49ers.

They let the lowly Washington Redskins land a second sucker punch on them Sunday and the Cowboys must win out to ensure the homefield advantage in the NFC playoffs.

Norv Turner worked his magic one more time against his former employers.

This time it was a 24-17 win as Washington swept the two-game series for the first time since 1987. It was the Redskins first road win of the year.

"If we win the next three weeks we'll still be where we wanted to be when training camp started in July," said Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman. "If we win them all, we can have homefield advantage throughout the playoffs."

Aikman is just glad he doesn't have to go against his former mentor again.

"Norv knows what he needed to do against us offensively and defensively," said Aikman.

Dallas still has a two game lead over Philadelphia in the NFC East. The Cowboys are at the Eagles next Sunday.

Terry Allen scored two touchdowns and Shuler passed for another as the Redskins (4-9) snapped a four-game losing streak. The Cowboys' loss to their former offensive coordinator prevented Dallas (10-3) from clinching a playoff spot.

"Norv knows something," said Dallas offensive tackle Mark Tuinei. "He knows how to play us. He taught Michael Irvin how to run routes, showed Emmitt Smith where to run, and taught Troy how to throw. They play us differently than anybody."

Turner said the Redskins desperately needed a win "against anybody."

"If there were 53 guys in this state who thought we would win they were all in our locker room and I'm not sure about all of them," Turner said. "This win reinforced our program."

The Redskins beat Dallas 27-23 in the fifth game of the season when Allen scored twice and gained 123 yards.

"We get up to play Dallas," Allen said. "I guess it's because they always overlook us."

Shuler hit Henry Ellard with a 10-yard TD pass and Allen scored on two short runs.

Dallas got to the Redskins 12 with 5:37 to play but Smith fumbled. Smith picked up the ball at the goal but officials ruled he was out-of-bounds and the Redskins were given a touchback.

"I know I had the ball in my hands when I went across the line, but I didn't get the call," Smith said. "There was nothing positive that came out of this day."

Aikman hit Michael Irvin with a 3-yard touchdown pass with 1:48 left but an onsides kick failed and Washington ran out the clock.

Allen got 98 yards on 25 carries this time and Shuler completed 11 of 24 passes for 154 yards.

"We didn't deserve to win right from the beginning," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said. "They ran the ball on us through huge caverns. Why wouldn't we be focused? This was a very important game. Now we have to win the next three games. Maybe winning three out of three will be more of a challenge."

Former Cowboy, safety James Washington, said, "We were more determined than they were. I don't understand that."

Smith rushed 21 times for 91 yards and Irvin caught 10 passes for 101 yards. Irvin set an NFL record with his 11th 100-yard receiving game. Smith scored his 22nd touchdown on a 7-yard run.

Cast dedicates show to Grinkov

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Thirteen days after the death of Sergei Grinkov, the remaining cast of his figure-skating tour took the ice and dedicated their show to him.

"What we're presenting, on Sergei's shoulders, is the best we've got, and I'm sure it's going to be good enough. We're going to give you something real special," headliner Scott Hamilton said during Sunday's annual preview show of the Discover Card Stars on Ice.

Grinkov, 28, who paired with wife Ekaterina Gordeeva to win gold medals at both the 1988 and 1994 Winter Olympics, collapsed on the ice and died of a heart attack Nov. 20, five days before the tour was to begin.

More prison beds needed for inmates

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record wave of new inmates flowed into state and federal prisons during the 12 months that ended last June, enough to require 1,725 new beds each week.

The United States also set another record for its rate of incarceration. It locks up a greater share of its residents than any other nation.

During the 12 months, the inmate population grew by 89,707. The previous record annual increase was in calendar 1989, when 84,764 inmates were added, according to the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics, which released its midyear report Sunday.

As of June 30, there were 1,004,608 state prison inmates, up 9.1 percent, and 99,466 federal inmates, up 6.1 percent.

The record increase "was a little higher than most years. But the annual average since 1980 has been 8.7 percent, so there's been steady growth," said Allen Beck, the bureau's chief of corrections statistics.

Despite some popular misconceptions, Beck said, "There's been no change in the level of overcrowding. Since 1990, new prison capacity has been keeping pace with inmate growth." Average time served has declined slightly, he said.

The report shows the largest prison inmate growth, up 27 percent to 127,092, was in Texas, where Beck said sizeable prison construction is under way.

The bureau said the overall incarceration rate as of Dec. 31, 1994, reached 565 inmates per 100,000 U.S. residents. That counts prison inmates, mostly sentenced to more than one year, and jail inmates, mostly sentenced to less than one year. There were 483,717 adults in jails at last count in 1994.

The U.S. rate tops the latest figures from Russia of 558 per 100,000 and is eight to 10 times higher than other industrialized nations in Western Europe, said Marc Mauer, assistant director of The Sentencing Project, a private group lobbying for alternatives to imprisonment.

By June 30 of this year, the felony incarceration rate reached 403 per 100,000, the bureau said. Mauer said that would push the overall rate to about 600 per 100,000.

The last year the nation's prison population dropped was 1968, when it dipped to 187,000 from 199,000 in 1967, according to Beck, a co-author of the report. The population has climbed steadily since 1973.

Mandatory sentences for drug and violent crimes and an increased likelihood of being imprisoned once arrested have caused the increase, Beck said.

Between 1980 and 1993, drug offenders increased from 25 percent to 60 percent of all federal inmates.

During the same period in state prisons, violent criminals, most convicted of aggravated assault, accounted for 40 percent and drug criminals for nearly 31 percent of inmate growth, Beck said.

The chance of going to jail for drug offenses rose more than fivefold between 1980 and 1992. It went from 19 imprisoned out of every 1,000 people arrested in 1980 to 104 out of every 1,000 in 1992. Similar increases were seen in incarceration rates for aggravated assault, robbery and sex offenses, Beck said.

The report said the number of black inmates has grown at a faster pace than the number of white inmates. As a result, 6.8 percent of all black male adults were in prison or jail compared with less than 1 percent of white male adults.

The difference results from the high concentration of blacks among drug and aggravated assault defendants, said bureau statistician Darrell K. Gilliard.

College seniors take heart:

Hiring of new graduates will increase

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — College seniors take heart: the real world is looking just a little bit brighter.

A hiring survey released today by Michigan State University projects a 4.7 percent increase in the number of new college graduates who can expect to find jobs next spring, the third straight annual improvement.

But starting salaries that employers will offer will inch up only about half a percent compared to last year.

"It remains a very competitive job market out there so the graduates by no means will find it easy hunting," said Patrick Scheetz, the survey author. "It is a modest improvement."

Scheetz, director of the Collegiate Employment Research Institute at the school, said the best job prospects are for engineers, computer scientists, business majors, health professionals and science majors.

Chemical engineers will draw the biggest pay — $41,183 — while journalists will be offered the lowest starting salaries — $20,154.

Scheetz said despite the projected increase, hiring still will be below the levels of 1988-89. Prospects are brightest in the nation's Southeast and North Central regions.

"There has been so much downsizing and re-engineering going on that many of the opportunities that once existed have disappeared. ... There are many jobs that have been lost in recent years and those probably will not return for many, many years," he said.

Federal agencies expecting tighter budgets are cutting staffing levels substantially while private employers are cautious about expanding too much, he said.

"The employers are all looking out of the corner of their eye at the economy," Scheetz said.

The survey of 527 businesses, industries and governmental agencies showed that chances of landing a job improved if the candidate had career-related experience, such as an internship.

Those surveyed said 48 percent of last spring's new hires had such experience.

Besides that, Scheetz said, businesses are looking for applicants with drive, enthusiasm and initiative, who are quick learners, independent thinkers and open-minded.

They also want applicants who know their way around a computer keyboard, work well as part of a group, have strong organizational skills and are respectful of other cultures.

"The employers absolutely want all their employees to be multiculturally aware," Scheetz said.

Teens Who Take Punishment Get Valuable Lesson in Return

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1995 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Upset Mother," whose teen-aged daughter was arrested for shoplifting.

My best friend and I were also arrested for petty theft. She had something in her pocket, and I had a lipstick in my backpack.

The police arrested, handcuffed and fingerprinted us. They took our pictures and we were taken to the police station, where we were not allowed to call anyone. We weren't read our rights either. Someone called our parents for us.

Our parents wanted to hire a lawyer because we were treated poorly and our rights were "violated." We told our parents that since we were guilty, we didn't want to get off on a technicality.

We went to court and were sentenced to 25 hours of community service, plus we had to write a letter of apology to the store, attend three classes on the judicial system, and write three pages about what we had learned. My friend and I were not allowed to perform our community service at the same place, either.

When our sentences were finally completed, we returned to court, where the charges were dismissed. We learned a lot from that experience, and we will never steal again.

Those parents should let the courts punish the girls. It will be an unforgettable learning experience.

LEARNED THE HARD WAY

P.S. We were also punished by our parents and haven't seen each other in more than four months.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing with regard to your recent response to "Disappointed in My Husband." You told the second wife that she had every reason to be disappointed in her husband because she was not part of the wedding pictures for his daughter's wedding and was "left to go to the church alone."

I was disappointed in your response. As a second wife (of six years) and a divorced mother whose stepdaughter was married a year ago, I was not upset to have been excluded from the wedding photos and left to go to the church alone. My mother accompanied me, and we sat directly behind my husband and his former wife (the bride's mother!).

My stepdaughter was not trying to re-create the family she once knew — these were the two people who gave her life and raised her. I was not a part of her life at that time. I am a part of her life now. I helped her select her wedding gown, made the ring bearer's pillow, the corsages and the bouquet she carried when her father walked her down the aisle. Her mother and father stood together in the receiving line.

When my husband expressed his concern that I might be upset because he would be sitting with his former wife, I replied: "No. I'm the one who will go home with you after the wedding."

NOT DISAPPOINTED IN GREAT FALLS, MONT.

DEAR NOT DISAPPOINTED: Your attitude is admirable. How sad that few women are as secure as you.

More Americans seek rural look, even in New York state

NEW YORK (AP) — Quilts. Flannels. Jeeps. If it smacks of the country, it's chic.

Hungering for comfort and simplicity, Americans are reveling in things rural.

They're trekking up mountains — or down Madison Avenue — in fancy hiking boots. They're splashing houses and apartments with gingham, baskets and, as Christmas nears, garlands and gingerbread houses.

Ask Kurt Abrams, who oohs and ahs about his new Ford Explorer, the best seller among the "sport utility vehicles" that constitute the fastest-growing segment of the domestic auto market for several years.

No matter that he's a New Yorker, born and bred. With such a car, the country beckons.

"I'm starting to contemplate taking my kids camping," says Abrams, a father of two who works for a pharmaceutical company. "I didn't think about it before. I'm trying to figure out things to do with the vehicle."

Of course, not everyone gets the gear first and then wonders what to use it for. Many people are rock climbing, hiking, hunting or quilting. But the numbers of Americans buying into the country look without the life shows the strength of the pastoral allure.

"You talk about wanting to live this country life," says Peter L. Horn II, manager of Beretta Galleries, a New York boutique opened by the Italian gun company in June to sell tweedy hunting and "apres hunting" clothes, along with $100,000 handmade guns. "People come in here just to buy clothes for the weekend. It has nothing to do with hunting."

Whatever happened to the glitz, the glamour, the sparkle of city things to covet and emulate?

After the ostentatious '80s, Americans seem to be clamoring for a warm, homey, outdoorsy look. No matter that it can cost as much as sleek did in the last decade — it evokes down-home goodness.

"There's a longing for a return at least symbolically to quality, to people who can be trusted, concepts that can be believed, products that will prove to be of value," says John Mack Carter, president of Hearst Magazine Enterprises and creator of Country Living, the most popular of the dozen or so magazines of the genre published today.

For the more urban or the young and hip, a streamlined country look offers less traditional furnishings.

"Sun-faded, soft colors, weathered furniture and fabric — Provencal would come to mind," Barbara Turf, chief buyer for Crate and Barrel, says of the style that the Northbrook, Ill., chain will push for a second year.

In the J. Crew world, pale women stand sternly beside stubbly bearded men in old pick-ups or fields. All sport flannel, corduroy and plaids.

Valerie Steele, an author and professor of fashion history at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York, says this style, which is defying the sales doldrums suffered elsewhere in the retail world, tap into an American prejudice against fashion. "People perceive these clothes as being not fashion but real clothes," she said.

Sales of Timberland boots and clothes more than doubled to $637 million last year. Yet many wearers aren't tackling mountains in them.

"We're seeing a lot of people buying our very technical hiking boots and using them to hike Madison Avenue," says spokesman Roger Rydell, referring to a line of footwear that costs $150-$200.

BIG NATE'S SECRET SANTA by Lincoln Peirce

Election of first black mayor jostles genteel southern city

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Three days after this regal coastal city elected its first black mayor, the campaign manager warned the staff: Beware of all packages delivered to the office.

No one had threatened violence but "we can't take any chances," he said.

In a majority black city that has thrived on all-white social clubs, segregated neighborhoods and separate debutante balls for each race, residents are adjusting to the latest shattered racial barrier.

"It was long, long overdue, but changes are happening in Savannah," said W.W. Law, a black historian who led the local NAACP chapter for 26 years. "Now, as the world's eyes look to Savannah, there will be an African-American at the helm and that's as it should be."

The city is in the national spotlight as site of the 1996 Olympic yachting events and setting for "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil," John Berendt's best-selling account of a murder in the historic home of a gay antiques dealer.

Before black newspaper publisher Floyd Adams Jr. narrowly beat white incumbent Susan Weiner last week, Savannah already had witnessed the admission of the first black to an elite all-white yachting club, the birth of a civil rights museum financed by local tax dollars and the lifting of a longstanding federal court order to desegregate the schools, all within the last two years.

The rotund, bespectacled Adams, an alderman for 13 years, knows he owes his 256-vote victory margin to a small white crossover vote.

"They have faith in me that I will work hard and I won't cause them any harm or damage," he said.

Georgia's oldest city (pop. 140,000) has long suffered subtle bigotry but never racial violence, thanks to its veneer of Southern gentility.

"Savannah never had a black lynching," said college professor John Duncan, who teaches a course on city history. "There's a sense of civility here."

But peel back that layer and Savannah reveals its quirky, scandalous side. As Berendt's book illustrates, Savannah is a odd mix of cotillions and drag shows, blue bloods and funky art students. While the city is tolerant of its natives' foibles, nothing is begrudged more in Savannah than outsiders.

"I don't know what race problems you're talking about," said former Mayor John Rousakis, who served 21 years before he was ousted by Mrs. Weiner in 1991. "I think we've done a hell of a job."

While millions of tourists flock each year to its cobblestone riverfront and stately squares dripping with Spanish moss, Savannah's black neighborhoods suffer the same blight as many inner cities: poverty and ramshackle housing. And blacks are typically missing from top corporate boards and social clubs.

While Mrs. Weiner has asked for a recount, the rest of the city is warily ready to accept Adams as their new leader.

"The black community is justifiably proud. The white community is holding its breath," said architect Eric Johnson, a white Republican state senator. "If Floyd immediately reaches out and shows that he's pro-business, then there will be a big sigh of relief."

Voters said personality was as big a factor as race. Mrs. Weiner, a former actress and teacher from New York, is referred to affectionately as "our Southern Yankee," and unaffectionately as "our Northern fluke."

She got off to a rocky start when her husband, Al, called the former mayor a pig. Later, when the City Council blocked one of his wife's proposals, Weiner said the combined IQ of at least four council members "would not equal mine." Adams, then one of four black aldermen, called the remark racist and demanded an apology.

UAW leaders relent in Caterpillar strike

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Workers who endured a 17-month strike against Caterpillar only to have their union relent with nothing gained were in limbo today, unable to return to work but no longer needing to picket.

Factory gates around Caterpillar's Peoria headquarters were peaceful this morning and strike shacks were abandoned.

The 8,700 remaining Caterpillar strikers in four states took a last symbolic swipe against the company Sunday when they rejected a contract proposal after being told by United Auto Workers leadership to go back to work no matter what the outcome.

The company has said it may take days or weeks to decide who goes where and what will happen to replacement workers. Until that is sorted out, the union is responsible for strikers' pay and benefits, the company says.

The union expected its workers to hear from the company today but that did not immediately happen, said George Boze, an executive board committee member at UAW Local 974.

Union officials offered no explanation for their decision to call off the strike, but it has been clear the world's largest manufacturer of heavy equipment has been able to set record profits with a combination of strikers who crossed picket lines, temporary workers and new hires.

"I think the company's in complete control," striker Jim Schmidt said. "We have to accept defeat."

Union members at nine plants in Illinois, Colorado, Pennsylvania and Tennessee voted Saturday and Sunday on the contract, which resembled offers made before the strike began. And many strikers said they consider it insulting.

The six-year contract would limit job security, create lower wage scales for some workers, limit union activity and give the company more power to schedule odd working hours without paying overtime. The proposal also does not require Caterpillar to rehire employees the union feels were fired illegally.

The company's offer "was turned down by a large majority of members," UAW leaders said in a statement.

"I'm ashamed that the company would do this to us, as hard as we've worked for them," said Jack Feltmeyer, an employee for 30 years.

The employees, who have not had a contract since 1991, struck June 21, 1994, to protest unfair labor practices at the world's largest maker of heavy equipment. The National Labor Relations Board has issued more than 180 complaints against the Peoria-based company.

Work stoppage halts many of France's services

PARIS (AP) — A strike by public workers intensified today with major unions urging the private sector to join the walkout and Prime Minister Alain Juppe calling an emergency meeting of his government.

The 11-day strike has idled French trains, buses and subways, unnerved millions of commuters and hobbled an already weak economy.

There was no immediate indication of what would be discussed at the Cabinet meeting tonight. Until now, the government has held firm to its plan to overhaul the social security system and slash the $64 billion deficit.

Some in the government have suggested President Jacques Chirac might dissolve the National Assembly and call early legislative elections to break the impasse.

Unions scheduled demonstrations in Paris on Tuesday to maintain pressure on the government in the most serious labor turbulence in nearly a decade.

Two unions flatly reject wage freezes for all 5 million public employees and cuts in their benefits. A third major union has accepted some of the proposed revisions in health and retirement benefits.

Police say...

With proceeds from robbery, man goes shopping next door

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Authorities looking for the robber of a convenience store had to look only as far as the Wal-Mart next door.

Hiram Daniels, 39, was arrested Saturday night in the discount store's parking lot after purchasing jeans, underwear and a Tasmanian devil T-shirt with the stolen cash, said police officer Chris Bell.

The man who robbed the convenience store used a toy gun.

"I had a real good look at him" on the store's security camera videotape, Bell said. "I thought to myself, 'Where would I go after robbing a place?' I figured I'd go shopping."

Bell planned to search every aisle in Wal-Mart. Before he got inside, he saw Daniels in the back of a cab that was leaving the parking lot.

Daniels admitted robbing the store and confessed to three other robberies reported earlier in the week, Bell said.

He was being held in the Knox County Jail on Sunday in lieu of $12,000 bond.

Man kills 2, wounds 3, kills self

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two people were killed and three were wounded when a man burst into a home looking for a teen-age girl he claimed had given him AIDS and opened fire with a semiautomatic pistol, police said.

The man reloaded his pistol and went back into the house to shoot several times as children and others fled through windows and back doors, witnesses told police Sunday.

The assailant shot himself to death at the end of the shooting spree, police said.

Police say the girl he was looking for was not at the house when the shootings occurred.

Thirty-eight-year-old Henry Lee Crawford, who owned the home, was killed in the driveway. The three wounded included two men and a woman, officers said.

Another man, identified as Timothy Davis, 27, died later Sunday at University Hospital.

The name of the gunman was not immediately available.

Other children were saved when a woman threw herself on top of them.

That woman, Brenda Crawford, and another victim, Larry Tate, were in good condition at Wilford Hall Medical Center. A third victim, Kevin McCaskey, was listed in fair condition at University Hospital. Their ages were not immediately available.

Police said the victims all were shot while eating, watching TV and enjoying a quiet family night at home. The man broke in about 6:30 p.m., CST.

The wounded victims were in a front bedroom, living room and garage.

The gunman was found dead inside the attached garage of the one-story house.

All the victims ranged in age from 22 to 34, police Sgt. Mike Self said.

"He (gunman) was heard by people inside the home saying that someone had given him AIDS," Night Detective Louis Martinez said.

John Barney, a neighbor who witnessed the shooting, said he also heard the gunman screaming that he had contracted AIDS.

Barney said he was in front of his home, along with nephew Ronny Snider, 36, admiring his Christmas lights when he heard popping noises that sounded like firecrackers.

Budget

Commerce, State and Justice departments; housing, veterans, environmental protection and other programs; foreign aid; the Interior Department; and the District of Columbia budget.

Also pending is the biggest government spending bill with the most direct impact on people: the one funding the departments of labor, education, and health and human services. The Senate hasn't even voted on it yet.

3. The debt limit. Congress has refused to extend the nation's borrowing authority. Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin is tapping federal trust funds to avoid default, defusing the urgency of the situation. But at some point it will have to be addressed, probably early next year.

Enquirer must defend privacy in Murphy case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to shield The National Enquirer from having to defend itself against an invasion-of-privacy lawsuit by actor Eddie Murphy's illegitimate son and the boy's mother.

The justices, without comment, let stand rulings that said a California jury should decide whether the tabloid newspaper's accurate report was "newsworthy" and therefore legally unassailable.

The court also:

—Upheld a ruling that states participating in the Medicaid health program for the poor must pay for abortions sought by eligible women who were victims of rape or incest.

—Let stand a ruling that Dan Coody, a candidate for mayor of Fayetteville, Ark., did not prove actual malice in a story and editorial in the Northwest Arkansas Times just before election day.

—Held the federal government may limit the work shifts of airline flight attendants.

—Rejected an appeal by Marvin Mitchelson, a divorce lawyer to the stars, who argued that his failure to report nearly $2 million income on his federal tax returns was an honest mistake. He faces a 2½-year prison term.
