U. S.-Backed Regional Defense Plan Expected To Pass Today

FEROCIOUS BATTLE IS RAGING ON OKINAWA

Trusteeship Question Is Still Open

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16—(AP)—A United States plan guaranteeing to any group of United Nations the right to organize for collective defense goes before the world security conference today backed by enough votes to assure its eventual approval.

The plan is designed primarily to give the Pan-American defense system a strong and permanent position within the proposed world security organization.

Secretary of State Stettinius announced, on authority of President Truman, that the United States would invite the other American nations to negotiate a long-term mutual defense treaty following the conference here.

Formulation of the American plan, with the approval of virtually all the Latin American states and most of the big powers—Russia remains to be heard from—puts this conference over one of its biggest hurdles.

The greatest obstacle remaining, in the opinion of United States authorities, is the development of a formula for setting up international trusteeships that will allow the United States and other powers to develop military bases they believe necessary to security.

This country is especially concerned about retaining Pacific bases captured from Japan. The British delegation last night received London approval of a tentative Anglo - American trusteeship formula. But on this, too, Russia remains to be heard from.

The Pan-American conference to draw up a long-term treaty to replace the wartime pact made at Mexico City in March probably will be held at Washington in November.

The heart of the United States proposal is that any group of nations has the right to plan collectively for its own defense so that if the projected world security council fails to prevent an armed attack on one of them all the others can go to its assistance.

Now that the collective defense theory has been advanced with assurances of acceptance, fears of small nations about big power veto control of peace-keeping machinery appears to be vanishing.

Senator Vandenberg (R - Mich) yesterday submitted to a committee on powers of the assembly a Big-Five proposal designed to meet some, but not all, of the small nation demands for more power.

This would let the assembly recommend to the security council ac-

Churchill Sidesteps Question on Doenitz

LONDON, May 16—(AP) — Prime Minister Churchill declared today that in general it was the Allied intention that "the Germans should administer their country in obedience to Allied direction."

DOENITZ—the Unknown.

The Allies have "no intention of undertaking the burden of administering Germany ourselves," Churchill asserted.

He appeared before commons against a background of demands voiced in many quarters for the Allies to disclose the exact role of the regime of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz. But the prime minister made no direct mention of Doenitz.

Weighing his words carefully, Churchill said he wanted time to cast the form of his reply before answering one member's question as to what was "the authority which purported to broadcast from Flensburg in the name of the government alleged to be led by Admiral Doenitz."

"I am not sure whether any machinery of government, whether central or regional, can be said to exist at present in Germany and in any case I should prefer in replying to this question to speak of administration rather than government," Churchill said.

"In general, it is our aim that the Germans should administer their country in obedience to Allied directions. We have no intention of undertaking the burden of administering Germany ourselves."

Just before going to commons, Churchill conferred with Gen. Eisenhower, Field Marshal Montgomery, and Gen. Omar Bradley.

An Associated Press dispatch from Paris yesterday said a clarification of the status of the Doenitz government was believed imminent but that meanwhile there was no tendency at supreme Allied headquarters to regard the Flensburg group as anything more than an instrument of surrender.

Bill Would Tighten Grip On Gas Wells

AUSTIN, May 16—(AP)—The railroad commission announced at its monthly proration hearing today that it has under consideration a plan designed to tighten regulations governing production from condensate fields.

The proposed amendment to existing rules would provide that any well which has been classified as a gas well and which produces hydrocarbon liquids, a part of which are formed by condensation, must produce through an oil and gas separator and sufficient tankage be set up to recover such liquid hydrocarbons.

It would provide further that such liquids shall be adequately measured before leaving the lease on which they are produced.

Another amendment proposed would provide that where oil and gas are found in the same stratum and it is impossible to separate one from another, or where a well has been classified as a gas well, the operator shall install a separating device of sufficient capacity to separate the oil or liquid hydrocarbons from the gas, and that such device shall not be removed or its use discontinued without permission of the commission.

Report of Naha's Capture Unverified

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
Associated Press War Editor

U. S. marines, rebounding from a fierce Japanese counterattack, were reported today to have captured Naha, demolished capital of Okinawa.

The unconfirmed reports came from Reuters (British news agency) shortly after American press dispatches told of routing vicious, well-organized Japanese attacks on the outskirts of Naha, near Davao in the Southern Philippines, and in Central China.

Simultaneously, a Pacific fleet communique announced 326 enemy planes were knocked out as carrier planes hit Southern Japan in "the most damaging attack ever made by fast carrier task forces." The words were those of Rear Adm. J. J. (Jocko) Clark, Indian commander of the force whose planes bombed, strafed and rocketed 18 airfields on three Nipponese islands Saturday night, Sunday and Monday.

"We are not afraid of anything in the air over any part of Japan," said Lt. Cmdr. Marshall Beebe of Seattle after leading a victorious fighter squadron back to his carrier.

The succession of enemy reverses led a Chungking spokesman to warn against Nipponese attempts to surrender before the Mikado's armed forces are completely shattered.

Substantial Japanese forces were reported cut off from their threatened Poaching base in Central China.

Barbaric close quarter combat with rifle butts and knives marked the Davao and Naha battles. All but two men in one company of marines were killed during the Japanese assault on Okinawa, 325 miles south of Japan, where all action is so close that opposing artillery-

'Ike' Visits London For First Night Out

LONDON, May 16—(AP)—Gen. Eisenhower visited London last night for his first "night out" in three years, and in his own words, it was "the nicest night I've had since the war started."

In high good humor, the supreme commander exchanged banter with cheering West End throngs. People tugged at him, patted him on the back, shook his hand and shouted repeatedly: "Good Old Ike."

House Girds for Poll Tax Battle

WASHINGTON, May 16—(AP)—Signatures of 14 members are all that stand today between the house and its biennial poll tax battle.

They are expected to be affixed by week's end to a petition to force floor action on the controversial legislation outlawing poll tax payment as a prerequisite to voting in elections at which federal offices are at stake.

Disclosing that the signature of 204 members already have been obtained, representative Bender (R-Ohio) predicted the remaining 14 would be obtained by the end of this week. At least 11 members who have not yet signed the petition, Bender said, have promised to do so.

"There will be no difficulty" getting the other three, the Ohioan said in an interview, and even southern leaders conceded Bender was right. Seven southern states require a poll tax—Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

Under house rules, the earliest the legislation could be considered would be May 28, and that is the day, Bender asserted, on which he will demand action.

Opponents of the measure are pinning their hopes, as in past years, on the senate. With 218 signers to a petition they see little chance to stop the bill in the house.

Nazi Guilty Are Still Found Here, There in Reich

WITH AMERICAN OCCUPATION FORCES ON THE RHINE, May 16—(AP)—Nazi small fry still are swimming comfortably outside the dragnet of Allied justice in Germany.

This is an extremely sensitive subject for statesmen and generals alike. A number of censorship taboos are in force. Until now the Allied powers have not furnished the world with an exact definition of "war criminal."

The first few tentative gestures have been made at eradication of the nazi hierarchy and militarists in Allied-occupied Germany.

American junior officers who actually are attempting to clean out the centers of the nazi cult complain that legal technicalities tie their hands in many instances.

The nazis themselves can hardly be otherwise than pleased.

For a closeup of the nazi problem, here is the view of a young Lieutenant who became public safety officer of a Rhineland town and found out that "what we need is a policy with teeth in it."

He told his men, "I don't care if the Germans have to wait awhile before they get their water and lights turned on again—I think our first aim ought to be to round up the people who try to start another war if they go free."

Allied Armies To Govern Germany

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, May 16—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Gen. Eisenhower's deputy for the military occupation of Germany, declared today that "the Allied government in Germany is going to be military and the Germans know its going to be military."

"The United States is going to stay in Germany in all probability for a long time," Gen. Clay said.

He explained carefuilly that supreme headquarters Allied expeditionary force still is operative and that he was speaking for the U. S. group council which will take over after SHAEF finishes.

Clay said these would be the initial aims of the American occupation:

1. Smash all that is left of Germany's potential to make war.
2. Smash all vestiges of naziism.
3. Hunt down all war criminals to be brought to justice.

C. H. Walker Is Municipal Judge

C. H. Walker, former Pampa postmaster, today was appointed municipal judge by the city commission to fill the vacancy left when C. E. "Dan" McGrew resigned. The commission was in regular meeting this morning.

City Manager W. C. deCordova had been informed by Walker:

"I am not applying for the office, but I would accept it."

Chief of Police Louie Allen, who also was recently appointed to his position following the resignation of Ray Dudley, was called in on the meeting for recommendations and concerning the selection of a new judge.

Allen expressed the belief that former law experience is not a necessity for a municipal judge.

"Fairmindedness is the important thing," the chief of police said.

Talley Question Still Unsettled

Trouble over the Talley addition incorporation problem continues to brew, despite a recent election in which the majority of eligible voters favored incorporation.

City Attorney Bob Gordon reported to the city commission at its regular meeting this morning that an opposition group at Talley had indicated an intention of contesting the legality of the incorporation.

The commission resolved to adopt a "firm" policy in connection with the talked-of contesting, but delayed any final action.

"Our principal interest is to get an old problem settled," Mayor Farris Oden explained. "This thing has been a source of trouble for a long time, and the city has been losing money."

The commission this morning passed the ordinance, prepared by the city attorney for reading at the meeting, regulating the parking and traffic in Pampa of transport trucks hauling butane and propane gasoline.

April bills, totaling $5,394.74, were approved by a vote of the commission.

A motion was carried that the safety deposit box at the bank not be opened "unless in the presence of at least two city employees who are authorized to sign city checks."

Another motion carried by the commission this morning was that government bond number 2496, Series C, in amount of $5000, due June 1, 1945, be sold to the First National bank for its full maturity value, and that the proceeds be replaced in the original fund.

NAZIS HAVE FUN:

CAPTIVE ALLIED AIRMEN FORCED TO RUN GANTLET

NEW YORK, May 16—(AP)—The Herald Tribune in a special dispatch from Camp Kilmer, N. J., said that Wichita Falls, Texas, aerial gunner yesterday described how German civilians laughed while nazi prison guards with dogs forced 160 captive Allied airmen to run a three-mile gantlet.

The airman, Tech. Sgt. John M. Turner, said the weak were jabbed and clubbed, and exhibited a G. I. undershirt with 64 bayonet holes in it to substantiate his story.

"You can count them. There are 64 and I know how they were made," he said while fingering the holes in the shirt. "This undershirt was worn by Staff Sgt. Alex S. Blondek, army serial number 420111095, a New Jersey boy."

He was among the 3,098 liberated American prisoners of war just returned to this country.

The dispatch said Turner's story was corroborated by Tech. Sgt. Oscar S. Cox of (3121 Ross Avenue) Dallas, Texas, and Staff Sgt. Frank Bongiovanni of Newark, N. J.

"I don't know if anybody died as a result of this," Turner said, adding, "but you should have seen men are alternately looking down each other's throats.

Fiercest fighting of the Okinawa campaign grew out of a night counterattack on the 22nd regiment of the Sixth marines in a valley east of Naha, capital of the southern Ryukyu islands. Marines, caught in their foxholes, were driven back for 200 yards before reinforcements who weren't supposed to be in the fighting line at all helped check the surprise attack.

It took 12 hours of continuous hand-to-hand combat, largely with knives and grenades, before the 200 yards were regained and marines turned to attack Strawberry hill, and obstacles on their path to Naha. Both sides suffered heavy casualties.

The Japanese attack was timed with a suicidal amphibious landing in the rear of the Sixth marines.

The Okinawa battle was matched in fierceness in the hills near Davao, principal city on Mindanao island. Fighting with knives, helmets, fists, anything with which to kill, was common as Nipponese continuously infiltrated or attacked 24th division lines through 12 foot high grass.

Japanese infiltrations were so successful, temporarily, that they recaptured, re-loaded and replanted their own mines which had been dug up and disarmed by Americans.

without the help of war bonds than without the help of bullets. The bond-buyer is an indispensable part of the fighting front."

War bond leaders are now making preparations for selling more bonds to farmers during the Seventh than in any previous drive, according to M. L. Peedmore, chief of the agricultural section, war finance division, treasury department. With the help of country bankers they're out to convince the men who till the soil that they should convert their bank accounts into bonds.

"Farmers, like all Americans, have been building up bank deposits and currency holdings ever since the war started," Peedmore said. "On Jan. 1, 1920, agriculture held currency and bank deposits totaling slightly over four billion dollars. The 1945 figure is not available, but it is expected to be in excess of ten billions."

With larger operations and increased costs, farmers must have more operating capital than in 1940, but they don't need ten billion, in Peedmore's opinion. He believes farmers can and will put a substantial portion of these cash reserves into war bonds.

Turner told how British and American captives were packed into filthy box cars and transported to Kiefehiede in Eastern Pomerania, where they were met by young nazi navy guards.

"We were told to hit the road running. We carried everything we had with us, on our backs or in our hands. They started cutting this stuff off us with bayonets," Turner said.

"They also set the dogs on us. If you fell behind a big dog hit into you," he continued, adding that both civilians and guards grabbed whatever Red Cross packages were dropped by the men.

'Violators' To Get a Chance

Two glaring violations occurred at the city commission's regular meeting this morning.

All of the commissioners, the city manager, the city attorney, and even a News reporter, were parties to the violations.

The commission at its meeting today considered two different types of parking meters, one of which will probably be ordered for installation, although no definite decision has yet been made that meters will be installed.

In the course of examination, all of the persons present tested samples of the machines by inserting coins.

When the time was up, big red letters, making no allowances for the atmosphere, appeared which read: VIOLATION.

Chief of Police Louie Allen, who was present at the meeting, failed to take action. Maybe he decided to give the violators another chance.

More Stars for the Flag

The house of representatives of the territorial legislature in Hawaii has adopted a resolution requesting the United States to grant statehood, or short of that, legal permission to elect governors and lieutenant governors of the territory. If the petition for statehood should be pressed, we may hear from Alaska. That fine territory also may desire to become one of these states. A rivalry might develop to become the forty - ninth state, and this would enliven things a little in the serious postwar years. In such a contest, the runner-up would certainly become the fiftieth state.

But would the accretions end with these? There are other territorial possessions which, if not so rich and important, might insist that they should be given like recognition. Anyway the possibility of more stars in the flag must be recognized. The desire for independence of action is no stronger than the desire for greater security. And this war has strengthened both. This is a nice family to belong to, and our territorial wards know it.

The Case Against Doenitz

Without being conversant with the legal niceties by which war criminals are defined, we agree with the national maritime union that Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz should be included among them.

As commander-in-chief of a defeated enemy, Doenitz apparently would not be tried for war crimes. But he assumed that rank, as Hitler's successor, in the closing days of the war. Before that he was in command of the nazi U-boats.

It was Doenitz who scorned humanity as weakness and ordered his crews to machine gun survivors of torpedoed ships. Because of this utter disregard of the civilized rules which mitigate the uncivilized practice of war, most of the 15,000 United Nations seamen who died in the war against Germany lost their lives needlessly.

In consequence, the NMU has asked the war crimes commission that Doenitz be tried with the other nazi war criminals. We think that the union has a good case.

The Nation's Press

HANG OUT THE WELCOME MAT
(Fort Wayne News Sentinel)

Asinine as it is, the argument is still being advanced by persons who ought to know better, that any nation which didn't participate in the war has therefore no right to participate in the peace.

This would in the very beginning exclude Argentina, Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal and Turkey, all of whom are rather important nations in the world federation, and most of whom, if not all, could conceivably contribute a great deal to the peace discussions.

The idea that when a global war starts it must really be a big, all-out world affair, really only started with this war. Heretofore it was not considered either bad form or bad politics to remain neutral, if neutrality was possible.

Switzerland, for example, has been extolled by lectures and praised in the textbooks down through the years because of her ability to remain out of war.

The latter day conception is a curious combination of the modern with the obsolete. It recognizes the need for a world conference, but insists, as for instance the American Red Indian did, that to get entrance into the peace pow-wow the warriors must have a number of scalps hanging from their belts.

It will be remembered too, incidentally, that the Indian periods of peace were short-lived indeed.

One of the reasons for the new concept is the suspicion that, because a nation remained neutral, she therefore must have carried on a certain amount of trade with the enemy. People are prone to forget that the rights of a neutral to continue its trade with all nations has long been recognized in international law.

Indeed, it was over this very thing that neutral United States, during the first two and one-half years of World War I, had trouble with Great Britain. At that time, we insisted sharply upon our rights to continue intercourse with any nation we chose.

To exclude a nation like Sweden, which is a highly important country of the Eastern Hemisphere, or Argentina, which is a growing, vigorous and extremely important neighbor of the United States, would be utter folly. Such exclusion again could be based on nothing but ill temper and vindictiveness—both of which are poor foundations for a lasting peace.

Regardless of Argentina's faults, such as they are, or those of Sweden, or Spain or any of the others, they are a part of the world federation. Any peace agreement which bars them on the obsolete and asinine argument that they didn't help kill anyone and are therefore persona non grata at the peace talks, cannot do anything but create more hatreds.

At any and all the peace conferences which are to follow this war, we should hang out the welcome mat to any nation which we think can contribute anything of lasting value. To do otherwise is childish and short-sighted.

NO COLORED MARGARINE
(Cleveland Press)

There are some groups which put selfish interests first, even in wartime.

That is what happened in Columbus yesterday. The Senate Commerce committee, by a vote of four to three, made an adverse report on Sen. Margaret Mahoney's bill to permit the sale of colored margarine in Ohio.

The dairy interests had the prohibition written into law. They are responsible for the defeat of the Mahoney repealer. Householders can't get butter because of high ration point values. They must continue to waste valuable time coloring margarine—and paying more for the product because of discriminatory taxes.

Wheat Forecast Is Revised by USDA Officials

AUSTIN, May 16—(AP)—The United States department of agriculture has forecast the Texas wheat crop at 53,562,000 bushels, a reduction of 25 percent under that indicated April 1.

The sharp slump was attributed to unfavorable growing conditions in the high plains area of the state where lack of moisture had seriously curtailed production, the department said. On the other hand excessive rainfall had caused widespread rust in the north central wheat belt.

The indicated production of 56,562,000 bushels as of May 1 compares to the 74,746,000 bumper crop of last year. The yield per harvested acre of 12.6 bushels compares to 19 bushels last year.

While well above the ten year average, the condition of oats declined from 83 percent a month ago to 77 percent.

Pastures were better than average condition with an 87 percent against 75 percent for the same period last year.

Harvesting of the Texas citrus crop was practically over with grapefruit production for the season now estimated at 21,800,000 slightly higher and oranges unchanged at 4,000,000 boxes.

Egg production in April was estimated at 436 million for the second harvest production for April on record.

The Next Best Thing

Someone has wisely said that the next best thing to having a new idea or a new way of explaining a thought is to pass on to others the new ideas of someone else.

That is what this newspaper is trying to do in making available free copies of two folders: "Planning for Freedom" and "Raising the Workingman's Scale of Living."

These two folders, we believe, if properly read and understood, would help raise the standard of living of all the people in the land. We believe they explain the practical means of putting Christianity into practice. We believe they explain the only way of bringing about what all people desire; namely, a higher standard of living, a better community, a better nation, a better world.

Guaranteeing Our Illfare

Recently Rupert Hughes delivered a radio talk discussing a small book on "How We Live." He attempted to get people to read this recently published book written by Fred G. Clark and Richard S. Rimanoczy.

In the first three months 150,000 copies of this 39-page book have been sold. This is a large sale for a non-fiction book.

In this discussion Mr. Hughes said, "The men who are loudest in working for our welfare are often guaranteeing our illfare." This is true because too often these people are offering scheme for reducing poverty by the simple method of government fiat by the simple method of taking from one to give to another. This does not increase the size of the pie to be divided, but reduces it. The result is that instead of improving our welfare, they are developing our illfare.

Hughes quotes Fred G. Clark, one of the authors of the book, as laying the cause of people being confused concerning how living standards can be improved to our educational program. He quotes from a speech made by Mr. Clark as follows:

"America's vast educational program has been a tragic failure in the field of human relations and is directly responsible for the hostile antagonisms that exist between what is rapidly becoming (from a psychological standpoint) America's upper and lower classes."

It would seem that educators would sooner or later begin to wonder whether or not they are really educating or only training pupils to memorize and repeat what some dreamer proposes. But instead of our public educators taking stock of the fruits of their product, all they propose is to increase the doses. Like the communists, their only remedy is that they be given more power.

The question is how poor we will have to get before we realize our educational program is, as Mr. Clark says, "a tragic failure in the field of human relations."

WASHINGTON
By RAY TUCKER

ADMINSTRATORS — President Truman has voluntarily explained to a stream of White House visitors, especially to businessmen, that his will not be a "one man" administration. He intends to delegate authority to responsible administrators, and "to kick" them out if they don't make good.

His remarks suggest that there will be wholesale changes in his official family as soon as he can clean house without seeming to depart too openly from his predecessor's choice of men. And although he has never mentioned F. D. R. in this connection, he does not subscribe to the late President's theory of a centralized and personalized government.

Having little pride of authorishfp, he will take advice—in fact, seek it—and act on it when it is good.

"This is an overwhelming job," he said, in utter simplicity and humility, to one group. "It is enough to terrify any man. I am not a one-man operator, and I don't pretend to know all the answers.

"I am going to surround myself with the best administrators I can get, and they are hard to find. Sometimes you pick a man who looks good, and then you learn that he can't deliver. Sometimes you pick a man who looks like a scrub, and he does a swell job.

"I am going to turn the job over to my administrators because I know that I can't do everything myself. If I pick an administrator, and he turns out to be a good man, I am going to give him full authority in his field. But if he turns out to be a dud, then I am going to kick him right out."

Incidentally, even executives of the type associated with the U. S. chamber of commerce and the National association of manufacturers praise Mr. Truman and approve his actions so far, with a few exceptions. These include conservatives who once claimed membership in the "hate Roosevelt" club.

WEST—Harold L. Ickes is making a desperate effort to hang on as secretary of the interior. The self-styled "curmudgeon" has not delivered himself of an old-fashioned, rip-snorting attack on anybody for at least two months. He has temporarily abandoned his schemes to snatch other agencies, such as Rural Electrification and Tennessee Valley Authority, from their present holders.

But White House associates understand that his self-imposed restraint will not avail him. They believe that Federal Judge Lewis B. Schwellenbach of the state of Washington is under consideration for this post. The former senator had been mentioned as a possibility for labor after his recent visit with his old friends in the executive mansion, but it is thought that he would prefer the department which deals with so many western problems.

As the first beyond-the-Mississippi man to occupy the Presidency, the Missourian is expected to pay greater attention to that section of the country. He knows its needs and wants—more favorable railroad rates and conditions, retention of war-built factories, more business-like handling of land and irrigation matters.

At present the far west has hardly any representation in key offices and lacks influence in bureaus that will handle major postwar questions. There is not a real westerner in the regular cabinet or in any of the emergency positions.

Judge Schwellenbach's appointment would please the liberals, who are still slightly sulky over changes in Washington. Indeed, although he has no labor background, he would be satisfactory to most of the rival factions if he should head the labor department instead of interior.

RUSSIA—The underlying danger to basic American interests at the San Francisco conference is the prospect that the United States may become deeply involved—or caught—in the historic clash between Russia and Britain. Discerning diplomats and other observers maintain that questions of council voting and representation are only superficial differences, and that the more fundamental points at issue have been concealed.

England, for instance, does not want such a powerful nation as the Soviet Union wielding a dominant influence across the channel in France or the Scandinavian countries. Nor does she like the idea of recognizing a Polish government that is only a Red protectorate. 10 Downing Street fears the rise of communism in the wartorn continent anyway, and is apprehensive of artificial attempts to spread it there.

Stalin's growing sphere impinges on Churchill's empire elsewhere—in the Middle East and China. Moscow now sees a chance to obtain a warm water port, either in the Orient or at the Dardanelles. So the Kremlin plans to control, if it can, Turkey or China, or both. The possible proximity of a communist system across the border from India's teeming and restless millions affrights the Britishers.

Those are some of the untouched and unwritten difficulties which harass world statesmen bent on securing permanent peace.

Around Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD. — Anybody can collect stamps or old dishes or glass elephants as a hobby. There's no trick to it. But it is something else again when people collect people as a hobby.

That, my friends, is an art.

Jinx Falkenburg, the cover girl and movie actress, and her mother are the champion people collectors of three continents. In fact, there's a standing gag at the Falkenburg home. When you open the door of a closet there, people fall out.

The Falkenburgs just naturally like a lot of people around. Always have. They are not happy unless the living room looks like Grand Central station at a rush hour. Like a few night ago. Fourteen people were sleeping in the Falkenbur home. At 3 o'clock in the morning Jinx's 18 - year - old brother, tennis champ Bob, now in the air forces, arrived home unexpectedly with three air cadet pals.

"I gave 'em my bed," Jinx said, "and tripped over six people before I found the porch swing empty."

It was a dull day, Jinx said, when she collected us and we rushed home from the set of "The Gay Senorita" with her for a Mexican lunch whipped up by mama. There were only six of us. That is, inside the house.

SKY BLUE CEMENT

The back yard was swarming with Mexicans pouring a sky blue cement patio and remodeling the garage. The Falkenburg home is always being remodeled, Jinx said, to make more room for something. Usually people.

This time the alterations are for mama's latest adventure — selling Mexican dress woolens to her Hollywood friends.

"We'll be able to get about 75 people in the display room," mama said. "Paulette Goddard has been here already. See," she said, pointing to the cement floor. Paulette had left her footprints and signed her name in the cement.

Six people for lunch, Jinx said, was really a disgrace for the Falkenburgs.

Mrs. Gene Mako, wife of the tennis star, yelled from the kitchen that lunch was ready.

"Grab a plate and operate," mama said.

Everybody grabbed. It was wonderful food—tamale pie, black beans, enchiladas. Mama does all the cooking. Until Jinx was 16, the family lived in Spain, Brazil and Chile, and mama knows her tamale pies.

Jinx had been at the studio all morning and wondered if she had missed any calls.

"About 50 of 'em," mama said. "You've got a date for an exhibition tennis match at Santa Ana next week."

"Before five generals," Mrs. Mako added.

A FEW FOR DINNER

Jinx had to be back at the studio. In fact, she was late.

"I'm bringing home some people for dinner," she yelled to mama as we all dashed out the door.

"How many?" asked mama.

"Ten," said Jinx.

"Wonderful," said mama. "I'll invite some, too."

More Children Go to School by Bus Now

Despite shortages of vehicles, parts, tires and manpower, about 285,000 more children are being transported to school by school buses today than were transported in pre-war 1941, the highway transport department of the office of defense transportation stated today in a summary of school bus transportation.

By eliminating special services and reorganizing routes to provide all necessary school transportation with a minimum of mileage, school executives in compliance with an ODT statement of policy of November, 1942, have reduced school bus mileage by about 20 percent or a total of 156,000,000 miles annually.

WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
AP Foreign News Analyst

This column ventured the view yesterday that it's unsafe for the Allies not to treat the members of the German high command as war criminals and in some way remove them from circulation, because if these professional warmongers are allowed their freedom they'll be up to their deviltry again.

The situation is doubly dangerous, we added, because the German people aren't repentent. They're bitter in defeat and would provide fertile soil for another crop of Prussian aggression. This brought me a telegram from a newspaper publisher suggesting further discussion of the point.

Well, it strikes me that the first thing the Allies have to do is rid themselves of any notion that they entered the reich in the role of gallant knight rescuing beaueous maiden from the dragon. Hitler didn't ravish Germania. She accompanied him willingly—or let's say she didn't resist.

If the German people had wanted to get rid of the fuehrer they could have done so. And here enters a racial characteristic which we mustn't overlook. The Germans are highly susceptible to regimentation, and through the centuries have bowed the neck to constituted authority, good or bad. Thus even those who abhorred the dictator's works, never dreamed of rebellion.

That characteristic likely will prove useful to the Allied forces of occupation in maintaining order. But we must remember that the Germans are indeed bitter against their conquerors.

The period of reclamation will be perilous. The German folk will obey with their hands but not with their hearts. It's during this transition —which probably will last for years —that we must remove subversive influences.

The two most menacing influences today are the nazi leaders, big and little, and those Prussian militarists who for generations have kept Europe in turmoil. If they are allowed their freedom to play on the emotions of a defeated and unhappy people, grave things can happen. These leaders must in some way be "liquidated."

When our soldiers went abroad, the government gave them little dictionaries to help them get along in strange countries. Now that they're beginning to come back I think they should be issued a little book to help them understand things here. For instance:

"Don't you know there's a war on?" — stock phrase used by waiters, meaning "there isn't any butter." Also used by clerks too lazy to find what you ask for. Then there's a sign which you soldiers will see frequently which says "Sorry, no cigarettes." Properly interpreted, this means "if we know you, you can have a pack from under the counter."

Another sign, which may be very misleading to you boys who have been away, reads "butcher shop." This simply identifies an establishment whose proprietor has been too busy to change the sign to "fish".

Texans Can't Help Bragging

By JACK RUTLEDGE
Associated Press Staff Writer

You can walk up to almost any Texan, ask to look in his or her wallet or purse, and find therein a clipping either fantastic, humorous about Texas. Texans like to brag, and like to carry with them printed proof they're not exaggerating.

Here's another clipping to help the habit along.

John Randolph, a Texan, naturally, has written a book called "Texas Brags."

In it, Mr. Randolph says, among other things:

The Texas navy, man for man, ship for ship(dollar for dollar, was the best that ever sailed the seven seas. It paid its own way (with a little extemporaneous priacy) and when it needed money for repair bills, it hired itself out to fight another war for another nation. And won it.

The governor of Texas rules over more territory than any European King, President or Premier in the continental limits of his country (except Russia.)

Brewster county, the state's largest, has 6,208 square miles, and is larger than Connecticut and Rhode Island with four Districts of Columbia tossed in. Texas had 59 counties bigger than Rhode Island.

Dalhart, Texas, is closer to the state capitals of New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska and Wyoming than it is to Austin, the capital of Texas.

Texas has 973 miles of coastline, 3,900 rivers, bayous and lakes in addition to the two really big fishing places, the Gulf of Mexico and Denison Dam's lake Texoma.

Texas is larger by 144,000 square miles than the United Kingdom of Great Britain.

There is enough land in Texas to supply every man, woman and child in the world with a tract 20 by 200 feet and have enough left for all the armies in the world to march around five abreast.

Texas is in both the south and the west. Texans are neither southerners nor westerners—they are Texans.

And, says Mr. Randolph, could any other state cause proud California to put up signs in their cities during a recent war loan drive that read:

"Buy bonds and help Texas win the war."

Peter Edson's Column:
WILSON SAW A MUCH BETTER LEAGUE

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16. — Woodrow Wilson died with the understanding that it was right for the United States to stay out of the old League of Nations, in 1920. And the day before his death he prophesied this country would join a new League of Nations and that it would succeed, his daughter Eleanor Wilson McAdoo has just revealed, breaking a family secret closely held for 21 years.

Mrs. McAdoo is in San Francisco in connection with her war bond work and as a radio correspondent covering the United Nations conference.

This story of her father's death, making an important new footnote to history and today's big war news, has never been told before. Eleanor Wilson consents to its being told today because this seems the right moment to bridge the gap between the end of World Wars I and II; between the old League of Nations, which her father helped create, and the new United Nations tions, which her father helped create, and the new United Nations organization being created at San Francisco. Had Woodrow Wilson died as Franklin Delano Roosevelt did, at the height of his victories, the end of the League of Nations story might have been different.

The day before Woodrow Wilson died, Feb. 3, 1924, he lay on his bed in the house on Washington's "S" street, where the family had moved after they left the White House in March, 1921.

In the room with him, watching him, was his daughter Margaret, Eleanor Wilson's sister. The ex-president's eyes were closed. He spoke quietly:

"It was right that the United States did not join the League of Nations."

DEEP THOUGHT BEHIND STATEMENT

Startled, Margaret Wilson caught her breath, came to his bedside. Woodrow Wilson opened his eyes and smiled. Again he spoke:

"You think I'm raving, don't you? I'm not.

"But I've been thinking about this for a long time."

Her father had had much time to think, says Eleanor Wilson today. In Paris he had contracted flu. Asthma had developed from that, and with it came broken sleep. The ability to sleep, to relax completely for five minutes or an hour, had been one of Woodrow Wilson's greatest sources of strength. From a nap, or a full night's sleep, he could wake refreshed and able to cope with any new task. But now, with one arm paralyzed and one foot dragging when he could walk, in the long days and the longer nights of wakefulness, Woodrow Wilson had done much thinking.

There was nothing the matter with his brain, Eleanor Wilson declares, and he was anything but the broken - hearted man he has been so commonly and so wrongly portrayed. But he had been thinking about his battle for a League of Nations for a long time, and now he was telling his thoughts to his daughter Margaret:

"If we had joined the league when I asked for it," he said, "it would have been a great personal victory. But it would not have worked, because deep down in their hearts the American people didn't really believe in it."

SEEMED HAPPY IN HIS CONVICTION

Margaret Wilson rose then and bent over her father's bed. His eyes were clear, she told her sister Eleanor afterward, and they shone with a light as if he were happier in the assurance of what he had just said and what he was to say next:

"The time will come when this country will join such a league, because it will know that it has to be. And then and then only will it work."

He laughed a little.

"He was really a gay soul," Eleanor Wilson recalls today. "To us he was never the cold, austere professor so many people have tried to make him. And he was never an egotist.

"He was sincere, and he was a philosopher, and he was reverent at all times. But he had the grahdest sense of humor, and that revealed itself in his last hours and his last words with Margaret on the League of Nations:

"'You know,' he said, 'God really does know better than I.'"

THE expedition to the hill had originated with Lem Gott, who had chosen the spot, presumably, for convenient ascension into heaven. Once the word had got around, others decided it would be just the place for a good view —not only of the comet, but incidentally of Lem, making his preparations. Finally half the town agreed to go. The bold regarded it as an outing. The timid were hot willing to be left behind. There would be plenty of fresh air on the hill, they said, just in case . . .

My father approved of the expedition. Comets didn't come very often—he appeared thankful for it —and this was a good time to clear up a lot of nonsense about them. If people were together, he said, a few couldn't start a lot of foolish stories. He would go himself. Benjamin would drive all of us to the foot of the hill.

That morning Benjamin hauled his last load of gravel. When he came in for dinner, Mrs. Guptill was ready for him. He had promised to change the stove. Well, he could do it that very afternoon before he got tied up with something else. She started out again about her and Job.

He'd do it, Benjamin said. He wasn't one to go back on his word. But it would take two men for lifting. Boshy was no good. He was shaking so much now he couldn't lift a feather. They would have to wait for Jay.

NOW that spring had come Jay was on an earlier schedule. He came in at 6, and he and Benjamin changed the stove at once. He was just finishing his supper when I went down into the kitchen to tell them that the teams were almost ready.

"I'm not goin'," Mrs. Guptill said. "It's Wednesday, and I've got my bread to bake."

"Course you're goin'," Jay told her. "Your bread can bake without you hangin' over it. I'll come back myself and take it out in an hour."

At first she wouldn't hear of it. Other people could go gallavanting off to mountain tops, she said. She could hear the Town Clock strike 9 from where she was.

Jay winked at me. "I believe she wants to be left alone with Mr. Cutter," he said slyly.

That settled it. She went off for her coat, leaving Jay to build the fire. He crammed the stove with excelsior, put in some edgings and opened the draft. "You go on outside," he told me. "I'll stay here to shut it up when it gets goin'."

At 7 o'clock we started off, nine of us, filling a buckboard and a surrey. On the way we passed groups of people on foot. The Pettigrews. The Bowdens. The Sawyers. The Giddings boys.

"Give us a ride," they called out, laughing.

At the foot of the hill a number of teams were already standing. Benjamin tied the span, and we started up the narrow, winding path that led along the side to the top. Trees cut out any real view of the sky. It was still dusk.

"Seen anything yet?" we called to those ahead.

"Not yet."

I hurried to catch up with Benjamin. "Think, Benjamin," I said soberly, "I may never see you again."

He laughed and took my hand. "I wouldn't count on that," he said. "Come on, let's keep our eyes open for Lem."

WE found him at the very top of the hill, surrounded by an interested group of spectators. (No one was bold enough to laugh at him then. They would wait until 9 o'clock for that.) He was dressed in his best suit and reading aloud from the 12th chapter of Revelation. Every few minutes he would stop, look at his watch, and call out the time in a very loud voice.

"Half past 7. Just an hour and a half more to repent in!"

"Twenty minutes to 8. Just an hour and 20 minutes more!"

A few small groups stood apart, scanning the west. Mr. Havens was in one of them, offering comfort to Lily Poindexter, who had brought wet towels to protect her from breathing in the gases. In another Mr. McKinley, the principal of the Academy, was giving instructions to some of his students. "First find Regulus, at the end of the sickle." Sue and my father—keeping a tight hold on Boshy—joined them. Ada sat indifferently on a rock. My mother and Mrs. Guptill stood admiring the view.

In the west the last of the sunset had colored Wood's Pond a bright crimson. Ducks made dark lines against the sky. Frogs sounded like sleighbells. Now and then you could hear a loon crying.

Benjamin and I walked on. Just over the crest we came upon Jay and Julia, setting up the bottles. "Land, I used to have notions myself," Jay was saying.

"Seen anything?"

"Not yet."

I had seen something, not in the west at all, but in the south, where the village lay. It came again—a long, red tail of flame.

"Look! The comet!"

They looked.

"That's no comet," Benjamin said. "That's a fire!"

"It's high," Jay broke in. "Do you figger . . ."

"That's jest what I was figgerin'."

It was the American House.

Kennedy and Morton Gudebrod Are Disaccredited in Europe

PARIS, May 16 — (AP)—Supreme headquarters has just announced the disaccreditation of Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press on a charge of breach of confidence in breaking prematurely the story of the signing of the German surrender.

Morton P. Gudebrod of the Associated Press was disaccredited at the same time for taking "an active part in the premature release of a news story."

Kennedy and Gudebrod both were ordered to return to the United States.

Robert Bunnelle, managing executive for the United Kingdom for the Associated Press, was reinstated.

Kennedy and Gudebrod were ordered to leave on May 17.

Godebrod was granted an extension, however, by Brig. Gen. Frank Allen, Jr., chief of public relations, in view of the fact that he is ill in a hospital with pneumonia and is not expected to be discharged for two weeks.

Gen. Allen in a statement noted that "the Associated Press had published its profound regrets for distribution of the story in advance of its authorization."

"With this statement, this regrettable incident is considered as closed by supreme headquarters," Allen's statement said.

Kennedy in a statement issued after the disaccreditation said:

"My conscience is clear in this matter. I did what I considered to be my duty and informed SHAEF public relations in advance that I intended to do it. I am fully responsible for the action of Morton Gudebrod in this matter as he acted under my instructions.

Supreme headquarters issued this statement:

"Investigation of premature transmission and release of the story of the unconditional surrender of German forces written by Edward Kennedy has been completed.

"The following actions have been taken as a result of the investigation and on the authority of the supreme commander:

"War Correspondent Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press, having deliberately violated a trust reposed in him by prematurely releasing through unauthorized channels and deliberately avoiding military censorship a news story concerning which he was pledged to secrecy, is disaccredited and ordered to return to the United States.

"War Correspondent Morton P. Gudebrod of the Associated Press, having taken an active part in the premature release of a news story through unauthorized channels, thus violating existing military censorship regulations, is disaccredited and ordered to return to the United States.

"War Correspondent Robert Bunnelle of the Associated Press, who was suspended, has been reinstated.

"The Associated Press has published its profound regrets for distribution of the story in advance of its authorization.

"With this statement, this regrettable incident is considered as closed by supreme headquarters."

Dutch Scouts Go Into Action

By WILLIAM F. BONI

UTRECHT, Holland. —(AP)— Bits and pieces from Holland's first five days of liberation:

The Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, in their occupation of Amsterdam, have had as an entertainer a middle-aged Jew who certainly is one of the cleverest trick artists I've seen. He reached inside his coat pocket and drew out a five-pointed yellow cloth star with "Jood"—Dutch for Jew—written on it in black.

"I wore that for five years—I had to wear it," He said. "But the day you came in, I put it back on and told people that now for five years more I'm going to wear this and revel in it."

When the British 49th division's reconnaissance squadron and war into Utrecht an attractive, 19-year-old blonde attached herself to our vehicle. We took her along on an afternoon's sally to Amsterdam and back. But the day after that flower-strewn tour, the girl's father was arrested by interior forces. The story is that he has been under surveillance for a long time and warnings against him have been printed in the underground press. There is strong evidence to indicate that despite his outward profession of patriotism he actually was doing some sort of espionage, perhaps as a direct agent of the gestapo.

Throughout these hectic days, Dutch Boy Scouts have performed noble service, they've acted as guides, done auxiliary police duty.

One of their best jobs was controlling over - enthusiastic crowds. People generally respected them and obeyed their orders and requests without question.

Their organization, like all others, was forbidden during the nazi occupation. But, along with seascouts, they were among the first to appear in uniform once the German capitulation was announced.

Handshakes Not in Order at Reception

WITH THE U. S. SEVENTH ARMY, May 26-(AP)—The U. S. Seventh army issued an official statement Tuesday that "there were no handshakes or chicken dinners at headquarters of the Seventh army" for Reichsmarshal Herman Goering.

"As for special quarters for Goering," the statement added, "upon arrival at the army he was confined at a Seventh army detention camp."

Gen. Eisenhower issued a statement Monday condemning the treatment of nazis and high German officials on a "friendly enemy" basis. British and American newspapers had criticized the reception of Goering, who surrendered last week to the U. S. 36th division. The 36th is a unit of the Seventh army.

Americans Cannot Forget Task That Lies Ahead in Pacific

By JAMES THRASHER
NEA Editorial Writer

The civilized world is sick to death of savagery. It would like to think that enough life and treasure had been poured out on European battlefields to cleanse the earth of the revolting practices that have besmirched forever the history of the once-civilized nation of Germans.

But the purge of savagery is only half finished. Victory in Europe may have put out the cremating fires and halted the scientific, systematic destruction of "inferior peoples." But until victory over Japan is won, this other type of savagery will continue—not scientific and systematic but primitive and fanatical, savagery which has grown from a ritualistic madness ages old into a warped creed of chivalry.

The civilized world is sick to death of pictures like this. It would like to think that it had seen the last of them. Instead, the nations at war with Japan must turn from the sober rejoicing of V-E Day to face this picture and all that it implies.

They must realize that the picture is not unique, and that many Allied soldiers have received the same inhuman treatment as this flyer who fell in Jap-held territory. How many more are to meet the same fate will depend upon how fully all of us recognize that, though half the victory is won, a war remains that must be waged and supported not by half the previous effort, but with redoubled energy.

Palatial Kehlstein Hideaway Belies Hitler Simplicity Myth

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

IN HITLER'S HIDEOUT ATOP KEHLESTEIN MOUNTAIN, May 7 —(Delayed)—(AP)—The palatial dimensions of Hitler's aerie here atop 7,500-foot Kehlstein mountain expose the myth of the fuehrer's simplicity.

With two other American correspondents and a group of soldiers I climbed up to the so-called "tea house" where Hitler used to dream of world domination.

We were amazed at its size and expensive appointments.

The altitude of Kehlstein mountain is such that snow still covered the highest part of the well-constructed motor road leading to a point about 800 feet from the top, where cars were stopped before two huge bronze doors.

Formerly, after these swung open the cars proceeded some 25 feet into a tunnel, where a second set of doors opened. Then they entered an elevator which carried them to the top, a six-minute ride.

It took two years to build all this. As we were about to set out afoot for the top we encountered Fritz Bloos, Berchtesgaden electrical engineer, and an American officer coming down the mountain side. Bloss said the elevator had been knocked out.

Bloss said Hitler had not been there recently.

We climbed along narrow ledges with deep ravines yawning below us.

When we reached the chalet we first entered a circular living room 50 feet in diameter with walls as thick as those of a medieval fortress. It was constructed of Mauve colored sandstone and had a circular oak table in the center 12 feet in diameter.

Five huge windows and one smaller window afforded superb views in every direction.

The ceiling, about 14 feet high, had white oak beams.

There was a huge fireplace of chocolate marble streaked with white, on the inside were figures of medieval knights on horseback and the inscription: "Built in 1938."

Eight candelabra, each holding six big candles, lighted the room.

Stepping down nine concrete steps from the main living room we entered a 16-foot coffee room with comfortable lounging chairs for six persons. The dining room was done in white oak paneling with walnut table and 30 chairs.

Directly behind the dining salon was the smoking room, with red leather chairs and walnut-panelled walls and ceiling.

Behind the smoking room was the kitchen. It had the latest culinary gadgets with electric stoves, meat slicers, coffee makers, refrigerators and countless gadgets such as would have delighted any housewife.

The Chinaware for the main dining room consisted of costly meissen fabric manufactured near Dresden with a Chinese dragon motif. The linents and wine blasses all bore the monogram "A. H."

Running parallel with the three-story building, one of whose stories was underground, was a veranda eight feet wide and 64 feet long with five arches where Hitler's guests could drink with the most picturesque secenery in all Bavaria before them.

There were immense wine and liquor cellars stocked with the finest of beverages, including cognacs dating back to 1832 and the rarest of French champagnes. There were also vast stocks of food.

A preliminary investigation of the caves and tunnels branching out from Hitler's hideaway so far have failed to reveal any nazi records or important documents, but there are reasons to believe they are hidden in this area.

New Englanders are by nature conservative. We don't wear our hearts upon our sleeves and we are aware there is still much to be done.—Dean Edwin J. Van Etten, St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston.

CRETNEY'S

Policy Changes Affect Soldiers Who're on Leave

SAN ANTONIO, May 16 — (AP)— A change in policy affecting all officers and enlisted men of the army ground forces home from overseas on leaves or furloughs whose service credits leave them ineligible for discharge was announced Monday at the war department personnel center, Fort Sam Houston.

Personnel now at the W.D.P.C. who have completed their 45-day temporary duty furloughs will be transferred to redistribution stations for reassignment in the United States instead of re-joining their former units overseas. Hereafter, those arriving for temporary duty or rotation furloughs will receive a 30-day delay enroute to redistribution stations for reassignment in this country.

The new policy for overseas veterans was adopted under the army's redeployment plan, announced Saturday. Previously, personnel home on temporary duty received 45-day furloughs before returning overseas, whereas those on rotation leave or furlough had only 21 days at home before reporting for reassignment.

Overseas veterans arriving at the personnel center with point totals making them eligible for discharge will continue to receive their honorable discharges from the service if they so desire. Eighty five points are required for an enlisted man to qualify for discharge. The critical point score for oficers has not been announced.

Some Units Will Go Directly to Pacific

PARIS, May 16 — (AP) — Some American army units were earmarked for the war against Japan even before redeployment day May 12 and will proceed directly to the Pacific, Lt. Col. W. C. Hay said Monday.

The colonel is in charge of the redeployment plans branch in the European theater of operations.

The units mentioned will not stop in the United States. Selection of these units was based on military necessity and the desire to hasten reinforcement of Pacific forces.

Those units being moved directly to the Pacific before tabulation of their adjusted service rating scores are units whose members are considered essential. Such men cannot be discharged, no matter what their score.

Col. Hay said that the majority of men being discharged in the United States on the basis of the interim critical score of 85 are overseas veterans who had been sent home for rest and rehabilitation.

The 85 score is subject to revision by the war department which is expected to announce the final critical score on June 27, after receipt of all ratings now being tabulated The readjustment of all American enlisted personnel in the European theater of operations will begin one week later.

Col. Hay said boards of review composed of veteran officers will be set up in each major command in this theater for final screening of candidates for discharge.

The names of any candidates retained will be submitted to supreme headquarters by these boards, along with full reasons for their detention in service.

Col. Hay said all American troops who had been prisoners would be returned to the United States, but that it is for the war department to decide whether they will be discharged or redeployed.

Dodgers Down Pittsburgh; Giants Win from Chicubs

Cardinals Move Into Tie for Third Position with Bruins

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Father Knickerbocker was running one-two in the national league today with the Brooklyn Dodgers' 10-game win streak overshadowing the Polo Grounds antics of Mel Ott's leading Giants who had copped 10 of their last 11 decisions.

Lippy Lea Durocher continued to get by with his his pitcher-a-day routine, Vic Lombardi beating the Pirates, 6-3, but Ott had to fall back on his Van Lingle Mungo-Ace Adams daily double to get past Chicago, 5-4. Lombardi was the sixth Flatbush hurler to go the route.

Little Lefty Lombardi subdued the Bucs with five hits to tie the high for a Brooklyn team under Durocher.

Dixie Walker continued his hitting surge with three more singles on loser Art Cuccurullo and two successors. Luis Olmo ran his hitting streak to 13 contests on a seventh-inning single. The night turnout of 25,823 was Ebbets field's largest of the season.

Napoleon Reyes, the Cubanola third sacker, singled twice and walker twice to make his record read six hits in the last six official at bats while the Giants trumped Chicago's ace Paul Derringer.

Since the Ottmen started to pick on the invading Westerners, Reyes' bat had collected 16 hits in 26 at bats for a torrid .615 pace, boosting his season mark 68 points from .292 to .360.

The Mungo-Adams duo was beginning to rival the Oled Lefty Gomez—Johnny Murphy combine that used to bring home the bacon so often for the Yankees. The new Mungo had started six games and each time Adams had been summoned from the bull pen to finish the job.

Over generosity in passes sent him showererward yesterday in the 8th and Adams trudged in to save the day. Phil Weintraub's sixth homer that tied him with Ott for the league lead, actually provided the victory margin although it was just another run when it came in the sixth.

Billy Southworth called on his St. Louis Cardinal rookie pitchers in Boston and finally got away with it, 8-7, on the strength of Buster Adams' three-run homer in the eighth. Jack Creel took the nod over Hal Schacher but outfielder Tommy Holmes of the loser with a perfect 5 for 5 stole the show by boosting his average to a league-leading .435.

Things continued to go from bad to worse for the Phillies who dropped their 18th in 23 starts, bowing to Cincinnati, 7-3, under the Shibe Park arcs. Frank Dasso allowed 10 hits but came up with his second triumph with the help of seven unearned runs. Charley Schanz suffered his fifth straight setback.

The entire slate of American league games was postponed because of rain and cold weather.

Max Schmeling Turns up Alive In Prison Camp

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, May 16—(AP)—Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight boxing champion who was reported several times to have been killed in the war, sneered at the mention of Joe Louis when he was seen in a prison camp, Stars and Stripes reported today.

The army newspaper said Maj. Clement Wheeler, USAF officer from San Antonio, Tex., talked with "Der Maxie" for more than two hours recently when he visited a prison camp behind American lines to which Schmeling fled.

"Max was wearing civilian clothes and he looked prosperous," Wheeler said. "He told me he was making a tour of Allied prison camps (operated by the Germans) after having covered nazi army installations.

"I guess you would compare it to a U.S.O. tour."

Wheeler said when he mentioned Joe Louis, the last world champion heavyweight and now a U. S. army sergeant, Schmeling sneered and left the impression that he considered the American Negro "just lucky" in knocking him out in their second match.

In a slap at American sportswriters, Schmeling was quoted by Wheeler as saying:

"They never gave me a square deal in all the time I was in your country. Even when I won, they either said I was lucky or a big bum who could knock down a bigger bum."

Wheeler said Schmeling told him he was "through for good" and that his career as a fighter ended when he jumped on Crete with German parachutists in 1942.

"I broke my back when I landed and almost died," Wheeler quoted Schmeling as saying.

"When you get home, if you ever do," Schmeling told Wheeler arrogantly, "be sure and tell the softliving Yankees Max Schmeling is still alive."

Johnson's ODT Order To Affect Many High School Tournaments

WASHINGTON, May 16—(AP)—All post-season events and many high school tournaments were ruled out today by the office of defense transportation's voluntary travel curtailment program for athletics.

College and high school athletic association pledged their full support and an ODT spokesman, stressing the program's voluntary nature, said the agency will not be "hard boiled" about putting it into effect.

"The spirit of the program calls for immediate cancellation of many events already scheduled," he said, "but there will be some cases where that might work a hardship. In those few instances we won't expect compliance."

ODT officials also emphasized that New Year's day events would be permitted if the transportation situation eased sufficiently.

The program includes these points:

1. Elimination of high school tournaments that involve the use of transportation facilities beyond suburban area.

2. Localize and simplify schedules of athletic contests; exclude contests involving an absence of more than 48 hours from campus; eliminate all unreasonably long trips.

3. Schedule contests only for the home grounds of one or the other of the competing teams, or for fields located in cities between the respective home grounds of the competing teams.

4. Limit ticket sales for all events to the immediate vicinities in which they are played; discourage attendance at away-from-home contests by undergraduates, alumni and other sports followers not living in the vicinity of the contest.

5. Route team trips away from congested transportation centers and away from main travel arteries; reduce to an absolute minimum the number of athletes making trips; limit the number of coaches, cheerleaders and managers making trips, and exclude completely bands, etc., not essential to the competition.

6. Where feasible eliminate transportation of equipment through use by both teams of the home team's equipment; where feasible, replace home-and-home competition by two or more contests at a single location.

7. Eliminate from schedules all events not essential to the conduct of athletic events.

Chandler Has Big Plans for Sandlot Ball

VERSAILLES, Ky., May 16—(AP)—Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler has some big plans for the baseball-minded boys of America.

These plans, already advanced to the point of discussions with presidents of the National and American leagues, call for equipping as many sandlots as possible with balls, bats and gloves.

The proposed program is so extensive that Chandler suggested it might even eliminate the need for compulsory military training. It would accomplish the same purpose in keeping American boyhood physically fit, he said.

Baseball itself, he thinks, can finance most of the program by diverting some of the money it has been contributing to other purposes.

To accomplish all ends, he is considering a plan for soliciting the cooperation of the American league, the Y.C.C.A. and other national organizations which are already contributing to baseball.

To get the program started, the commissioner says it will be possible to obtain some of the surplus baseball paraphernalia used for recreational purposes by the army now that the European war is over.

Chandler says his heart is in the plan for the American boy.

"It was the everyday boy's game first," he observed. "I myself played when we had to level down corn rows to make a diamond. And when we had to wind thread around the ball after it was hit."

The boy's admiration for the major leaguer, he added, is the chief reason he intends to bar all forms of gambling to baseball players.

Texas Pilot Earns Keep Aboard Carrier

WASHINGTON, May 16—(AP)—Lt. Kenneth D. Smith, a navy pilot from Port Arthur, Texas, earned his keep as a guest aboard an Essex-class carrier in the Pacific.

The navy related yesterday that Smith decided to brush up on his flying while temporarily assigned to the vessel pending return to his own carrier. Joining a flight covering American forces on Okinawa, he destroyed one Japanese plane and chased another into the anti-aircraft fire of American naval ships just off shore.

Lt. Smith's wife and two daughters live at 748 Fifth avenue, Port Arthur.

SOCKS—PEORIA STYLE

PEORIA, Ill.—(AP)—Some men in these parts are wearing socks that don't match. They adopted the unconventional practice when they wore out one sock in mated sets, and decided to put on the serviceable survivors. An attorney donned an out-of-harmony pair as an experiment. "Nobody," he reported, "noticed the difference."

Market Briefs

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 15—(AP)—Buying continued notably selective in today's stock market and, while motors led assorted peace-favored issues on a good advance, dealings were among the slowest of the past month or so with many privotals unable to emerge from losing territory.

Post-war prosperity hopes provided the principal bullish stimulus. Transfers ran to around 1,000,000 shares.

In front fractions to more than a point, a number of peaks for the year or longer, were General Motors, Chrysler, Hudson Motors, Willys-Overland, Brill Motors, Bethlehem, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, Du Pont, Sears Roebuck, Bell Aircraft and United Air Lines. Among occasional stumblers were Goodyear, Woolworth, Texas Co., Santa Fe, Deere, Union Carbide and International Nickel.

Bonds steadied, as did commodities.

China Personnel Is Under Curfew

CHUNGKING, May 16—(AP)—An 11 p. m. curfew for American and Chinese military personnel in the China theater went into effect last night. Exceptions are Saturdays and holidays, when the deadline will be midnight.

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander in chief of U. S. army forces in the China theater, decreed the curfew for the Americans and influenced Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to apply it to the Chinese army.

In giving notice of the curfew Wedemeyer said its purpose was to assist in the maintenance of health and maximum efficiency in the furtherance of the war effort. He declared the curfew did not mean that plans for recreation and entertainment should be curtailed, but simply "that we must start earlier, come home earlier, get a good night's rest and be in better shape for the following day's work."

The China theater now is on the same war basis which long has prevailed in the Pacific and in certain commands in the United States.

There have been a number of instances of anti-foreignism involving Americans. In some cases Chinese girls accompanying Americans to restaurants have been insulted by hooligans. Anti-foreignism apparently still is very much alive among a section of the Chinese public.

Following today's action Togo conferred with Emperior Hirohito, and later called in Heinrich Stahmer, German ambassador to Japan to advise him of the action.
