

HUGE DOPE CATCH MADE BY RANGER POLICE

GIGANTIC PUBLIC UTILITIES LOBBY AT WASHINGTON IS CHARGE

SENATORIAL PROBE MAY FOLLOW CLAIM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Charges that a gigantic lobby has been organized here by public utilities interests to defeat the Boulder Dam bill and open Muscle Shoals to private exploitation may precipitate a demand for another senatorial investigation at the coming session of congress.

Judson King, director of the national popular government league issued a statement naming the joint committee of National Utility associations as the hub of a power lobby organization.

"The principal objective of this super lobby," King said, "are to kill the Boulder Dam bill, deliver Muscle Shoals to the power combine, side track the resolution to investigate the power trust as proposed by Senator Walsh democrat, Montana, and turn over an invaluable power site belonging to the Flathead Indians of Montana to the Montana Power company without just compensation to its owners."

OVERDRAFT OF STATE IS $148,026

State Treasurer Says No Danger of Deficiency, Receipts Are Coming In.

AUSTIN, Dec. 2.—Texas went into the "red" Dec. 1 when the general revenue fund had $1,800,000 worth of warrants outstanding and only $1,651,974 in cash.

State Treasurer Hatcher says there will be no deficiency because expected receipts will come in before the warrants all arrive.

In effect the state is "kiting checks" for $148,026. Treasurer Hatcher says there is no danger of the state going on a deficiency. He says he has arranged with depository banks to carry all outstanding warrants in case of necessity.

On his recent trip about the state Hatcher says the banks promised hearty co-operation "in any emergencies that may arise."

It is alleged that deceased's death was caused by having been struck by an engine operated by the defendant.

Collects $2.00 Due from County Past 30 Years

W. B. (Uncle Bill) Ferrell of Eastland is $2 richer today as a result of collecting that amount from Eastland county which had been due him for almost 30 years.

The debt was for one day's service rendered the county as a special juror in county court on Sept. 17, 1898, or 29 years ago. Two dollars per day was the amount jurors drew then as compared to $3 now.

The old warrant, which Mr. Ferrell found among some old tax receipts at his home, was No. 433, issued when Richard Gray was county clerk, and signed by J. E. Counts as deputy clerk. E. P. Davenport was county treasurer and registered the warrant, giving it the number 1,098.

When the warrant was presented to County Treasurer Cooper he took the matter of its payment up with the commissioners' court which instructed him to pay it, which he did.

Cisco Constable Seeks Collection Fees and Expenses

Constable C. S. Looney of Cisco in a case on trial today in Justice of the Peace Jim Steel's court at Eastland, seeks to recover approximately $175 from Sheriff John Hart for fees and expenses Looney claims he would have been entitled to for returning Paul Dennison, who escaped from the Eastland county jail, to Eastland from New Mexico.

Looney claims that after Dennison, who was being held on a charge of robbery with firearms, had escaped from the Eastland county jail, he located him in New Mexico, wrote the sheriff there to arrest him, that the sheriff did so and Looney then secured a warrant or a certified copy of a warrant, and went after Dennison, but when he arrived in the New Mexico town where Dennison was being held, the sheriff had had a communication from Sheriff Hart telling him not to turn Dennison over to Looney, but that a member of Hart's force would come after him, and the New Mexico official refused to permit Looney to bring Dennison back to Texas.

SUPREME COURT DECISION DUE IN OKLAHOMA

Legal Questions of Special Session Legislature to be Settled.

By United Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 2.—The legal barrier of administration friends seeking to prevent an extraordinary assembly of the Oklahoma legislature controlled by insurgents talking impeachment of Governor Henry S. Johnson was expected to come before the state supreme court today.

This high point of the clash between Johnson and the "big four" of the malcontents falls on a red letter day of the state.

Twenty years ago today the first Oklahoma legislature convened in Guthrie, then the capital and Johnston, a young attorney of Perry, boom territory town, was elected president pro tem of the state senate.

Guthrie dispatches of that date reveal Johnson as the "whip" of the upper house and as one who "struck from the shoulder" in applying the lash to the legislation halted by "red tape."

Now ascended to the state executive chair he is assailed by enemies who ask investigation of him and his offices on charges of incompetency and "moral turpitude."

By United Press.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 2.—Bandits attacked the British steamer, Siam, killed three officers, wounded several passengers, and held Captain W. G. Lator for $50,000 American dollars ransom, wireless dispatches reported today upon the vessel's arrival at Ichang.

The British senior naval officer at Ichang was reported to be negotiating with Chinese generals to run attack on the bandits and the release of the ship's captain.

The attack occurred Wednesday night. Bandits looted the baggage and obtained $20,000 in cash.

Reuben Mitchell Dies at Home Of Parents in Ranger

Death invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mitchell of Ranger, early this morning and took from this home a little son, Reuben, following an illness of almost two weeks with pneumonia.

The death of any member of a family is always a hard blow, but in this case it came doubly hard, as just a little more than two years ago death removed another fine young son from this home.

Reuben O'Neil Mitchell was born on Oct. 4, 1918, and passed away this morning at 6:30 o'clock. Burial services will be conducted by Rev. J. A. Caraway at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Central Baptist church, followed by interment at Evergreen cemetery.

The deceased is survived by his parents, a sister, Miss Olga Mitchell, and a brother, Elton Mitchell.

Reuben was a pupil at Young school and attended the Central Baptist Sunday school. Those who knew him best said that he was a child that was greatly loved and a favorite with the neighbors and teachers, who with many other friends today are doing all they can to comfort the heartbroken ones who mourn his loss.

The meeting will open at 7:30 and after the program, which will consist of numerous "stunts" by the various scout divisions, refreshments will be served. The Astec Ticklers, the Lone Scout orchestra of Rising Star, will furnish the music for the occasion.

Scouts coming up for advancement will have their badges awarded at this meeting.

Ferguson Is Seen As Candidate For Governor Again

By United Press.

HOUSTON, Dec. 2.—That former Governor Jim Ferguson will be a candidate for governor again was indicated today when the Ferguson Forum attacked Attorney General Pollard's speech to the state teachers' convention at Houston, charging Pollard with antagonizing the rural schools.

Pollard has frequently been mentioned as a likely candidate for governor if Moody does not run again.

The Ferguson fans have turned on Moody in previous issues because Moody announced he would not determine his political ambitions until March.

John C. Donley Of Dundee Missing For Second Time

DUNDEE, Texas, Dec. 2.—Somewhat like the famed "off again on again Finnegan," John C. Donley is missing again.

This week relatives at Palacios advised local members of the family that Donley had been visiting in Palacios and was leaving for Dundee. He left Nov. 25.

Up to today, however, Donley has failed to arrive in Dundee, and no word has been received from him.

DRUG STORE ROBBERY GIVES TIP

Narcotics Scattered Along Street As Man Flees

CARIS ARSENAL

Carries Full Line Of Equipment For Using Dope

The biggest narcotic haul ever made in Ranger was made early this morning by Policeman S. E. Vire, when he arrested a man believed to be H. H. Harsha, following the alleged robbery of the narcotic vault of the Paramount pharmacy, and captured narcotics valued at between $6,000 and $7,000.

About 8:30 this morning a man about 35 years old walked into the Paramount pharmacy and asked to buy a bottle of iodine. He was served by Mr. Van A. Bruner and after making the purchase he asked permission to go behind the case and apply some of it to an affected part of his body. This permission was granted and Mr. Bruner strolled up to the front of the store. When he turned to go back toward the rear he saw the man's shadow falling across the narcotic case opposite where he was supposed to be applying the iodine. In an instant his suspicions were aroused and he reached the back just as the man was in the act of locking the case door with a skeleton key. The man instantly beat it and was on the way down Main street to where his car, a late model Peerless coupe, was parked on North Rusk street, near the Ranger State bank, when Policeman Vire, who was at the shine parlor in the rear of the hotel, got the alarm and started chase, capturing him just before he reached his car.

Arsenal In Car

He was brought to the police station and when examined $814 in cash was found on his person and several hundred dollars worth of dope. He attempted to throw away the cocaine and morphine taken from the Paramount Pharmacy and some of it was found in the weeds and grass near his car later on.

The cabinet in which the narcotics are kept is according to Herbert Stafford, owner of the store, a metal lined cabinet locked with a good lock and in addition to that secured with an iron clasp. Mr. Stafford said that he considered the man a professional of the first degree, as this door was never opened by those familiar with it without making a noise, but in this case it was worked fast, clever and without noise.

The car was an arsenal. When the doors were unlocked a loaded automatic shot gun and a loaded Derringer was found in it, as well as three pieces of luggage, a small salesman kit, a large case and a traveling bag, as well as a bolt cutter, a sledge hammer and various other tools, and several thousand dollars worth of narcotics, a complete hypo-kit, ammunition for gun, needles and fluid glasses. The traveling bag contained in addition to dope, articles of masculine and feminine apparel, all of fine material, and all heavy with the odor of Narcissus perfume.

Receipts Found

A receipt for a fine of $92 paid in McCamey on November 15, and made out to one Earl McIntyre, was found among his effects. A receipted bill from Harrison Peerless Garage, Fort Worth for $265, dated November 27, and made to H. H. Harsha, was also found.

A woman's picture was found in the back of a purse, which contained two poems, layouts of two buildings (Continued on page five.)

NO AGREEMENT.

It is no wonder that there was no agreement reached at the conference held recently in Dallas between the All-Texas Water rights committee and the Insull power interests. The conference was of a secret nature but when it is learned that the power interests wanted all the water of the Colorado river except that for domestic purposes and enough to irrigate a total of 80,000 acres of West Texas land, it is not surprising that the conference ended just where it started.

Surveys indicate that there are approximately 500,000 acres of land available for irrigation from the Colorado river and its tributaries. If that be the case then why should the committee agree to any such compromise?

It is apparently the contention of all West Texas as well as that of the water rights committee that the interests of the state will be far better served by appropriating the water for irrigation purposes rather than for power purposes. Water is an absolute essential for irrigation but power can be generated in other ways than by running water through a turbine.

Let us hope that the All-Texas Water Rights committee will never agree to any such concessions. We don't believe they will, for they have the interests of Texas and Texas people at heart. If West Texas is to develop and show the progress that it should show the water of its streams and the water that falls out in West Texas must be used for irrigation where needed, the desires and wishes of the power companies notwithstanding.

West Texas is just entering upon a development era that demands water rights to insure its continuance and success. If only 80,000 acres of land along the Colorado river watershed is to be irrigated it will certainly leave West Texas in a sad plight.

Over in India the other day a woman attempting to perform the ancient rite of suttee was severely burned on the funeral pyre of her husband before she could be rescued by police. Five thousand people had gathered to witness the self-sacrifice of the widow. Deep-seated faith, though it may be a mere superstition, is difficult to remove.

A great many sudden deaths were reported immediately following Thanksgiving day and we may expect a repetition of such news following the Christmas occasion. Did you ever stop to think why so many unexpected deaths occur on such occasions?

The marines in China have probably made a lot of interesting acquaintances by this time.

The experiences that do you the most good are those that you can laugh over later.

When a widow moves to a different town she is desperate.

Convincing arguments only make some people more obstinate.

ing the after-effects of being sainted.

of the Edward Arlington Robinson afternoon and Mrs. C. D. Woods presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Garvin Chastain, who was ill.

One does not really enjoy Robinson until his works are studied with others, for like Browning he leaves as much to be read between the lines as is expressed in the lines. Mrs.
Flewellen handled the subject of Robinson with ease, as did others on the program. Mrs. Lula Riddle gave a paper on Robinson as a link between the old and new poetry. Mrs.
Saunders Gregg gave some character sketches and readings, and Mrs. M.
H. Hagaman concluded the program with an analysis of "Ben Jonson En-

Mrs. C. E. Maddocks introduced Miss Blanche Gilmore of Dallas, who

Gripings By GUS

We didn't have a clean shirt to put on this morning because our other shirt was in the laundry and they said they didn't have enough gas yesterday to get the washing out.

Funny thing how you get stuck for a $2.00 minimum in the summer because the gas is there for you, if you want it, and if you don't get it it's your own fault.

Then when you want it right bad it ain't there, and you commence to wonder if it was there in the first place or not, and get sore and cuss, but that's all the good it does you.

There's one nice thing about it though—you don't have to pay for the gas you don't get this time of the year and when it does come back on strong like it did this morning you feel so good when you get warm that you don't feel like making much fuss.

We are a fine bunch of birds. We brag about how we furnish Fort Worth and Dallas with gas through this and that size line and all sorts of pressures and then the first cold snap—by heck, if they don't have more gas than we do.

That's one nice thing about living in one of these West Texas centers of population; we can say "we" about a thousand things that we don't have anything to do with.

A young lady called us up and eat us out a while ago about the way we reported a football game between two teams of the Sunday School league recently. We seem to have gotten her story all messed up and heck only knows what. We are sorry to have done all that and promise never to do it again. Well either run 'em just like they come in or else go out and get the dope ourselves.

to make everybody sore then, because we have never yet branched off into what the crowd was wearing—nor doing.

If we had seen that game we'd have probably said that "Doolittle" Murphy passed blindly for forty yards, trying to ground the ball in safe territory when one of the ends popped up from nowhere and snatched it out of the air, only to stumble and nearly break his neck.

We might tell how the punter kicked the ball against the seat of his own center's pants and it rebounded over the goal line and was recovered by the opponent for a touchdown.
Everybody don't see these plays alike.

Well, folks, you all want to be sure and get out to see the game between us and Central high Saturday. Confidentially, it looks to us like the best game of the season because it will be a fast, passing game and the boys will all be wanting to put out their best for Bo McMillan and Matty Bell. Not that they want to show off, or anything like that, but, you know how it is. If you was a driller and a guy came up to watch you that you knew was one of the world's best drillers, you'd naturally want to make a lot of hole while he was around.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Some of the wets and some of the dries who regard prohibition as an important national issue, are incensed because the two political parties are manifesting the same degree of enthusiasm toward grappling with the question as the ordinary Saturday night brawler does toward jumping into his tub with a porcupine.

One hears and reads their sneers and jeers every day. Biting remarks are made about the "cowardice" and "insincerity" of the parties. Criticism on both sides advances the opinion that the party which declared unequivocally for strict enforcement or modification, as the case may be, would ride atop a landslide in November. The ordinary citizen who is either very wet or very dry seems to feel that way.

Amid all the hubbub, certain pertinent facts are often obscured. The easiest answer to the whole question of course, is: What can you expect in a country operated by politicians and, to some extent, for politicians?

A prohibitionist is a prohibitionist first and politician afterward. A politician is a politician first and a prohibitionist afterward. If it were demonstrated that there was a strong majority demand in the country as a whole for either strict enforcement or modification, both parties would topple all over each other to prove to the voters that they were the party to find expression sooner and more effectively through one party than the other.

It may be that such a majority demand exists. There are many spokesmen for both sides who insist that it does. But no one can prove that the sentiment can be consolidated into voting strength sufficient to insure presidential and congressional victories to the party which might crusade on the strength of it.

The most important fact is, to the politicians, that while they know that a strong stand by either party which was not duplicated by the other would affect the ballots of millions of voters, it could not be foretold which side would reap the most benefit.

There may be more "drys" than knows which side can supply the greatest number of voters willing to disregard all other issues and vote only on the wet-dry issue?

The question already has shown its tendency to split parties. How can the republicans ride into large, important wet cities like New York, Chicago and Philadelphia on a bonedry platform or, for that matter, into states like New York and Illinois which have voted "wet" in referendums. The same question goes for the democrats.

That, at least, is the way the politicians have to figure. In their own home territories they may be as wet as the town drunkard or as dry as Death Valley, but in national politics the boys must have internal harmony—or else they'll nominate John W. Davis and take a terrible licking.

There's something to be said for the boys. Why break up a perfectly good political party? Can't a Bahaiist and a Seventh Day Adventist marry and keep peace in the family without either demanding that the other swap religious beliefs? Incidentally, there is more and more demand among democratic leaders for a hat money program, but one would be quite silly to predict its success at this early date.

Among republicans, it is noted

PRACTICAL BAG

A personal laundry bag for every member of the family is one of the marks of a well-ordered household and when one as attractive as this can be made for so little as ten cents, there is no reason for not having them.

The bag illustrated costs about that. It is made out of an empty flour bag, bought from almost any baker. To remove the stamping, cover the inked spots with lard or soak them in kerosene overnight. Then wash the bag out in lukewarm water. A single sack, folded in half, is large enough for the ordinary laundry bag for personal use. Two probably will be needed if the bag is for household use, such as sheets and table cloths. This bag has several good features. The top is stitched closed, with a heading and a case for running in a small rod or narrow slit of wood, such as are in window blinds.

The soiled articles are put in through the slash in front and taken out by undoing the flap at the bottom. The word "Laundry" may be worked in cross-stitch or the personal element can be emphasized by working in the owner's initials. The sides of the bag, the flap and the slashed opening are bound in colored bias tape.

Another style laundry bag has the usual opening at the top with a draw-string. Its unique feature, however, is an outside pocket twelve or fifteen inches deep. This is stitched down the middle to the front of the bag before it is made, forming two pockets, one for handkerchiefs and the other for silk hose. This saves a lot of sorting when wash day comes around. Like the other bag, it is made from a flour sack, bound with bias tape and decorated with some simple cross-stitch or outline pattern.

These bags will wear exceptionally well and can be tubbed as frequently as the garments they are made to hold.

Facts About Origin of Oil Brought Out in Connection With Thirty-eight Projects in Fundamental Research.

ONE of the first results of the recent studies made possible through the bequests of John D. Rockefeller and the Universal Oil Products Company to the American Petroleum Institute for pure research in petroleum is to throw important new light on the obscure problem of the origin of oil.

Even before man learned to appropriate oil to his own use he manifested considerable curiosity about it and as far back as historic records go he has puzzled over the true nature of this remarkable liquid.

With the development of petroleum which began in America in 1859 and the subsequent expansion which made oil fundamental to industry, intelligent inquiry took form and became widespread until within the past two generations students of geology, chemistry and physics have all concerned themselves with petroleum, its constitution and its origin as well as its uses. But knowledge of petroleum is still only fragmentary.

It has generally been assumed that it is the decay of organic remains, possibly assisted by bacterial activity, which makes petroleum. The recent contribution to knowledge on this subject through the American Petroleum Institute research projects is of particular interest because it proves that oil is actually generated by some forms of life before death intervenes. This would make oil a direct product of vital processes of living creatures rather than a result of slow decay and slow distillation of dead organic matter.

Prof. C. F. Tolman of Stanford University who, with several associates, is carrying on this research project in California, has made this discovery through the study of living diatoms. He found that at places along the modern beaches of the Pacific Coast "diatom epidemics" take place, through which thousands of tons of diatoms are washed up by the surf, and that this diatom debris contains a large proportion of oil. Moreover, the investigators were able actually to observe the direct manufacture of this oil by the living diatoms.

This is one of thirty-eight projects for research in physics, chemistry and geology which have been initiated by the American Petroleum Institute. A new era in research in the field of petroleum was begun when, in December, 1925, John D. Rockefeller donated $250,000 to the Institute for this work. Shortly after, the gift was matched by one of the same size from the Universal Oil Products Company. To determine just how its research funds should be expended for best results the Institute consulted with the National Research Council, a co-operative organization of the scientific men of America established to promote cooperative research, with the result that the Council established a central petroleum committee to recommend to the Institute the establishment of fellowships in various university and government laboratories.

The work on the individual projects is under the direction of men well-known in their respective fields, the list including such names as Dr. W. J. Mead of Wisconsin, Dr. C. F. Tolman of Stanford, Dr. David White of the U. S. Geological Survey, Dr. Hugh S. Taylor of Princeton, Dr. R. A. Millikan of California Institute of Technology, Dr. F. E. Bartel of Michigan, Dr. S. C. Lind of Minnesota, Dr. E. E. Reid of Johns Hopkins and Dr. J. B. Conant of Harvard.

At the Annual Meeting of the Institute in Chicago in December there will be a session on fundamental research devoted to a discussion of the research projects now being prosecuted, with particular reference to establishing a closer cooperation between petroleum technologists and the research fellows. Dr. H. S. Taylor, Chairman of the Central Petroleum Committee of the National Research Council, Dr. F. C. Whitmore of Northwestern, Chairman of the Division of Chemistry and Chemical Technology of the National Research Council, and E. L. de Golyer, president of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers and member of the Central Petroleum Committee, are contributing to the research discussion.

Basketeers At T. C. U. Battle For Positions

FORT WORTH, Dec. 2.—One of the hardest battles for positions on the T. C. U. basketball team since the university entered the Southwest conference looms as the largest squad of candidates ever to report for a Horned Frog varsity tryout on the court get under way in practice.

In spite of the fact that Coach Bell only has one experienced forward to work with this year, he seemed to be in a happy frame of mind at the earnestness with which the big squad of huskies began their work this week. Even the six letter-men who are back this year will have plenty of trouble retaining their laurels if the new prospects keep up their present pace.

It is hardly possible that another coach in the southwest is so liberally supplied with guards as Coach Bell is this year. Besides the veteran "Rags" Matthews and Albert Acker, both bidders for all-southwest honors last year, he has Lowell Parrish, Horace Wallin and Cecil Provine, three men who would do honor to any quintet in the circuit.

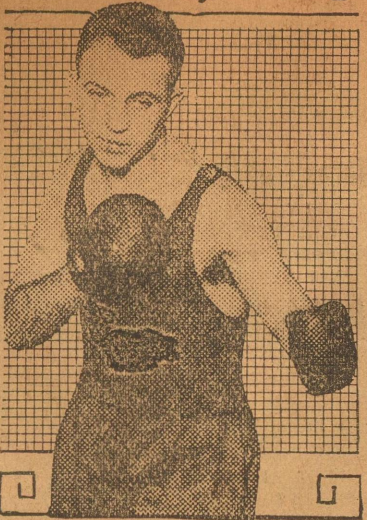

However, the coach's big worry now is in finding a running mate at forward for Captain "Slim" Steadman. Steadman worked in most of the games last year with Frankie Cantelmi and is expected to strike his peak in scoring this season.

The fraternity has 18 chapters located throughout the United States, in such schools as the University of Washington, Oregon State, University of Michigan, Ohio State, Penn State, Georgia Tech, Tulane, University of Oklahoma, University of Colorado, etc.

T. C. U. will probably not hear from her petition for a chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi before next semester.

CAMPUS POLITICS

Happy the college coach who works unhampered by campus politics.

Things got so bad at Ohio State this year that the athletic authorities were forced to introduce a striking innovation.

Hereafter, Buckeye teams will have no captains.

Dr. John Wilce and the other coaches will appoint a leader for each game, and after the season is over, the letter men may, if they choose, elect an honorary captain who can hold the ball when the group picture of the team is taken.

In this way, Ohio State hopes to offset the evils of a system whereby fraternities and campus cliques thought more of electing a member of their group to the captaincy than in helping to produce a winning team.

Most colleges will prefer to retain the system whereby a captain is elected each season and leads the team under the direction of the coach.

Sometimes, of course, the captain has more to say than the coach. Apparently this was the case at Penn State this fall.

Captain Roepke seemed to be in charge of practice, to assign the men to their positions and to run things generally, with Hugo Bezdek rather silent on the side-lines.

The Nittany Lions had a successful season, losing only one game, for all they were known as "communistic."

Ohio State certainly did not have a successful season, and the campus politicians were ready to destroy Dr. Wilce before the season was half over.

The coach stuck to his guns, however, and apparently has no intention of resigning, even now that it's all over. Dr. Wilce blamed the football team's poor showing upon "prima donna ball carrying backs."

It was demonstrated this season that an eleven has got to have good interference for its ball carriers before it can advance. Good interference was precisely what Ohio State hadn't. Eby and the others were great at running with the ball, but nobody wanted to take up the humble, less appreciated task of clearing the way for them.

At times, the Ohio State ball carriers reminded one of the giant negro who was introduced to football for the first time in a game against a rival colored team.

Taking the ball from the center on the first play, he charged around end, stepping high and shouting:

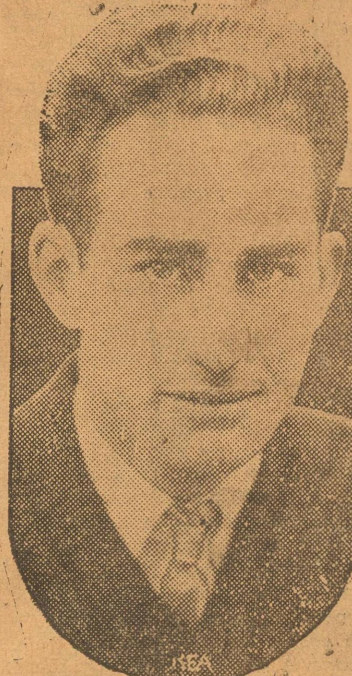

"Interference, follow me!" Yale and Notre Dame, two of the year's best teams, got where they did because of an excellent system of interference.

Next to a quick charging line, there is nothing quite so conducive to consistent advancement upon the gridiron.

This brings up a point for consideration in connection with the "All America" teams with which the newspapers are flooded just now. If your team contains four brilliant ball carriers for its backfield, but no Decker or Flanagan to act as interference, what then?

Now that the 1927 gridiron season is ended, let us look ahead for a moment to next fall before bidding football "au revoir."

In the East, some high class freshman material was apparent and undoubtedly varsity coaches of 1928 will profit thereby.

The freshman material was of good quality because prep school coaching has improved just as college coaching generally has improved as a result of increased interest in football and a corresponding increase in gate receipts.

The two best teams in the east this fall were Yale and Princeton. Yale will be hard put to keep its place at the top of the heap in 1928. In the first place, if "Tad" Jones persists in his intention to resign, a new head coach must step in and take charge at New Haven. In the next, Yale loses such stars as Captain Bill Webster, Al Poole, Bruce Caldwell, Bill Hammersley, Cox, the regular full back, and two of the best ends who ever flanked a line at Yale, Stew Scott and Dwight Fishwick. "Red" Quarrier also will graduate and a number of others who played on the varsity this fall are seniors.

As a nucleus for a 1928 eleven, Yale will have Charlesworth, Eddy and Greene in the line and Hoben, Decker and Garry in the backfield.

Princeton, on the contrary, suffers little through next spring's sheepskins. Bill Roper developed a great team this fall, and will have it intact for next season, save for his guards and one end, Captain Mosser, right end, graduates, but tinson, who alter-

Joe Caldwell, best of Princeton guards who was out during the latter part of the season, will be back next fall, so Roper has little to worry about. Wittmer, Baruch, Miles, Norman and 26 other varsity players will be available in 1928.

The Tiger's prospects are bright. Knute Rockne, out at Notre Dame, loses ten first-string men through graduation. But Knute long since has developed a system whereby his second team of this year is next fall's first string line-up, and so on. There need be no tears shed over Rockne's losses.

Notre Dame is to have a new stadium, costing millions. Presumably Knute will give the school another million dollar team.

It will be interesting to see which of this fall's stars succumb to the lure of C. C. Pyle's dollars and join the ranks of professional football players. The promoters must keep hands off until after graduation. It is no secret that they have their eyes on Bruce Caldwell and others, and are waiting with ill-concealed impatience for commencement day, next June.

Ford Showrooms Crowded By Eager Visitors Friday

The new Ford was present in spirit if not in body at Leveille-Maher Motor company's plant in Ranger today and it was viewed by at least 600 people from the time the show room opened this morning until the whistle blew for noon.

It was estimated that larger numbers would call this afternoon and evening as the show room will be kept open during the evening for the benefit of those who could not view the pictures of the new Ford during the day.

The story of the new Ford car is strikingly told in pictures at the Ford plant here. The showroom is decorated in blue and white, said to be Ford's colors, and handsome placards bearing reproductions of the various models of the long waited for and expected car are hung across the showroom and adorn the walls. Every model from a roadster to a truck were on display. Around a chart labeled "Model A Chassis" a crowd was gathered all morning, as this chart gave a complete display of all the working parts of the car, presenting to the trained eye the advantages in mechanism, just as the photographs of the models conveyed to the brain through the eye, the advantages in looks, over previous models.

"Orders to be filled strictly in the order received," was the information given out today when the question was asked as to who will be the first served with a new Ford. And, by the way, orders are surely piling in. Every indication is that the new Ford will be as great if not a greater favorite with the public than its forebears.

BILLY EVANS' SPORT TALK

For years and years Knute Rockne has been turning out remarkable teams at Notre Dame, yet when the season is over and the experts begin picking their all-America stars, you seldom find more than one man from Rockne's great eleven of that year in the first team lineup.

Recently I asked Rockne for an answer to that rather unusual condition and his immediate reply was: "As a rule some of my very best players do not get an opportunity to prove their real worth because they aren't in the game long enough. I naturally have a number of backs of nearly equal ability and I aim to give them all a chance."

"Such a system often keeps some particular player from getting the headlines he would have been permitted to play longer, thus giving him a better opportunity to display his stuff."

Since mulling over Rockne's answer to my query I am convinced that failure to play a greater length of time in the big games has kept many a Notre Dame player in the background who otherwise might have been an outstanding star.

Starless Team Wins Title. This year Coach Bob Zupke at Illinois won a Big Ten title with what the experts referred to as a "starless" team, yet Bob Zupke will tell you he had three or four truly great players who might have starred had he put their individual efforts before team success.

I know that Zupke considers Timm one of the best halfbacks in the country, yet in one rather important game this fall Timm didn't get into action until the final period, although in perfect condition to start.

Zupke picked the spot where he believed he would be of the most value to the success of Illinois, rather than catering to Timm and using him solely to give him a chance to shine and perhaps be of no great use when the crisis arrived.

Zupke, like Rockne, has been one of the country's most successful coaches, which proves the methods they often adopt, while unorthodox, are usually best for team success.

Chesty Fench. I am told that Rockne's stunt of starting his second-string players was first thought of as a ruse to keep the regulars from getting too chesty.

It was several years ago when Rockne's great team, featuring his "Four Horsemen" in the backfield, was running roughshod over the field that the Notre Dame coach got his big idea. I understand Rockne feared his team was about to suffer from a bad case of "swell headedness" and pondered as to how he might avert such a catastrophe.

When he sent in his second-string team to start an important game and left all the regulars on the bench, including the "Four Horsemen," most people thought he had suddenly gone crazy. However, it was simply his scheme to let the varsity know there were other good football players at Notre Dame.

It worked out great. The secondstringers held the opposition for a period. The regulars, fighting mad, went into the second quarter to do things, and did.

Unusual Ruse Very Effective.

The opposition, compelled to put forth its best efforts to hold the second stringers of Notre Dame, proved no match for the varsity team when it was sent in. The regulars ran wild.

Not only had his stunt had the desired effect on the regulars, but it also gave Rockne an idea. If the second stringers can take the edge off a rival team and soften it up for the regulars, why wouldn't it be a good idea to continue the stunt?

He tried it again with excellent results and has been doing it ever since. It's been a Rockne scheme that a lot of other coaches have followed.

But as Rockne says, his system of using so many players often keeps an outstanding star in the background because of the limited time he actually plays.

Huge Dope Catch Made By Ranger Police Department

with thickness of walls noted and location of safe.

Jim Ingram, chief of the Ranger police force, said that he recognized the man at once and asked him if he still went by the name of Harsha.

A check up of the hotels revealed the fact that a man and woman registered under the name of "J. Diamond and wife" of Tulsa, Okla., on the night of Nov. 29, walked out of the hotel Thursday morning without paying their room rent and acting on this tip, a clerk took a negro bell boy over to the station, who identified the man as that party. However, it was later established that the car was seen coming from the east early this morning and when filled with gasoline and oil at the A-1 Filling Station on the corner of Oak and Fifth, which leads to the belief that the dope bandit was in town on Wednesday night, went east Thursday and returned here today.

That he had operated in Lubbock was believed to be possible as a package filled with dentists gold and gold teeth, bearing the name of Hutchinson & Ingram, Lubbock, was found in his effects.

Similar Robbery A similar robbery was perpetrated on a Mineral Wells drug store several months ago. It is said that the iodine ruse was also used in that case.

H. H. Vaughn who waited on the bandit at the A-1 Filling Station said that the car was headed for the west when it stopped at the station and when he reached it the man had gotten out of the car and was standing there with the gun in his hand, however, Mr. Vaughn said he thought he was a traveling salesman and did not attach any importance to the gun.

"I put ten gallons of gas in the car," Mr. Vaughn said, "and he told me it would hold more and to fill it up. I put 13 gallons of gas in it and one quart of oil. He did not talk much other than to say, 'Fill it up.'"

Van A. Bruner, clerk at the Paramount stated he waited on the man and gave him permission to go behind the counter to use the iodine.

"I walked up to the front of the store and I heard a slight rattle and turning saw the shadow of a man on the narcotic case. I hollered at him and asked him what he was doing and he said, 'Pardon me, Doc,' and started out. I followed him out but I did not have a gun but thought I'd follow him to the Stafford Drug Store and get one, when I saw Policeman Vire and gave him the tip. He started after the man, who then started running."

Bruner, who is a young chap, laughingly said, "I didn't know what to do. I didn't have any gun," and expressed himself as believing that the man was a "dope head."

Narcotics Missing Four quarter ounces of cocaine and one ounce of morphine acetate, an ounce of morphine sulphate in cubes, was among the narcotics taken from the Paramount Pharmacy. A good part of it is said to have been recovered.

Visitors thronged the police station today looking at the evidence found in the car and in the luggage. Many thought that a bank robbery had been thwarted by the arrest and others thought that a professional dope pedler was under lock and key in the city bastille.

Ranger-Central High Game Will Be Hard Battle

Not once in a blue moon is the opportunity offered high school football teams to play a game officiated by none the less high personages in football than Bo McMillan, Matty Bell and Art Webber. This is especially true with teams that emerge from the season with anything less than a district championship. They will officiate at the game in Ranger tomorrow between the Bulldogs and Central H. of Port Worth.

There's lots of local fans that have never seen Bo McMillan, but yet to them his name is a common word, for it was none other than he who led the Centre college "Prayin' Colonels" to victory over Harvard a few years back.

It was in that same year that our own coach, Blair Cherry, won the distinction of being the only man to cross the Colonel's goal line.

Matty Bell and McMillan played together for two years and Matty was coach of the Haskell Indians a year before going to T. C. U.

Art Weber is an old University of Michigan man who played back in the days when football was sure nuff rough and the ball was still in play until the man hollered "down." He received all-American mention by Walter Camp.

The Bulldogs have been working out until dark every day this week and will be in good shape to play. They will re-double their efforts to put out their best, especially in the presence of such football men as McMillan, Bell and Weber, for it is rather unusual for men of their standing in the game to pay much attention to high school games unless there is at least a district championship involved.

It is also well to make it clear that this is not a game where second string men only will be used. There are a few men whom many have thought to be first string calibre, but who were ineligible, who will be used in a part of the game, but the main idea is to win and it will take every ounce of strength the Bulldogs have to do it.

Benny Winkleman, Central coach, is a former Arkansas Razorback star and is a smart football man himself and can take his team and give any team in the country a mighty hard game. This was proven when he took them up to the district finals in that district.

The team, coaches and the officials are expected to arrive in Ranger just before noon Saturday. The team will go straight to their rooms for a short rest period.

Arrangements are being made for several representative men and football fans to make proper recognition of Bo McMillan, Matty Bell and Art Weber, by having them as guests at a lunch shortly after their arrival. These arrangements will be handled by the athletic committee and further information may be obtained by getting in touch with any of them.

ATLANTA INSTALLING BEACON FOR AIRMEN

By United Press.

ATLANTA.—A giant beacon light to guide aviators to Candler Field, Atlanta's airport, is being installed. The lamp will be placed on a revolving tower 50 feet high and revolve every ten seconds, sending a ray of light of 2,000,000 candlepower into the southern night.

Boundary lamps will be used in conjunction with the beacon.

The newest coiffure is the "wind-blown bob." One more use for the vacuum cleaner.

Proper Feeding Is Stressed By Dairy Experts

At each of the series of fifteen dairy schools just held in Eastland county the importance of proper feeding of dairy cattle was stressed. In fact it was one of the most important subjects discussed by the experts in charge and one that the audience, especially those now engaged in the dairy business, showed interest.

The dairy cow, it is pointed out, is a "high powered machine" that produces milk from feed. Successful feeding consisting in maintaining the cow in good health and vigor; and, at the same time, getting the most milk from the feed at the least cost.

Daily feed requirements for a cow giving milk are high. A large percentage of the feed fed daily is necessary for maintenance from which the dairyman or farmer realizes no income other than the value of the manure for fertilizer. The profit comes from the amount of the proper feeds the cow eats—in addition to her maintenance needs—and utilizes in the production of milk.

Experts say that three mistakes often made in feeding dairy cows are "Not feeding liberally enough, not giving enough protein and lack of individual feeding."

Naturally all cows are not alike.

Some have more capacity for feed and more ability to produce milk than others. Those with the greater ability to produce milk must have more feed from which to produce the milk. For this reason, experts say it is important to weigh the milk from each cow to determine the amount she is producing, so she may be fed in accordance.

If a cow is in the proper condition at the time of freshening and is fed somewhere nearly the correct amount of feed, she will soon show her capacity to produce milk. If she produces forty pounds of milk daily, she should be fed sufficient feed to enable her to produce that forty pounds of milk from the daily feed. If she be fed only enough to enable her to produce twenty-five pounds of milk from the daily feed, she will attempt to hold up her natural capacity by drawing on reserves stored in her body. She cannot do this for any continued length of time and will soon show a falling off in the amount of milk she gives, the amount of production being in accordance with the amount of feed she is getting.

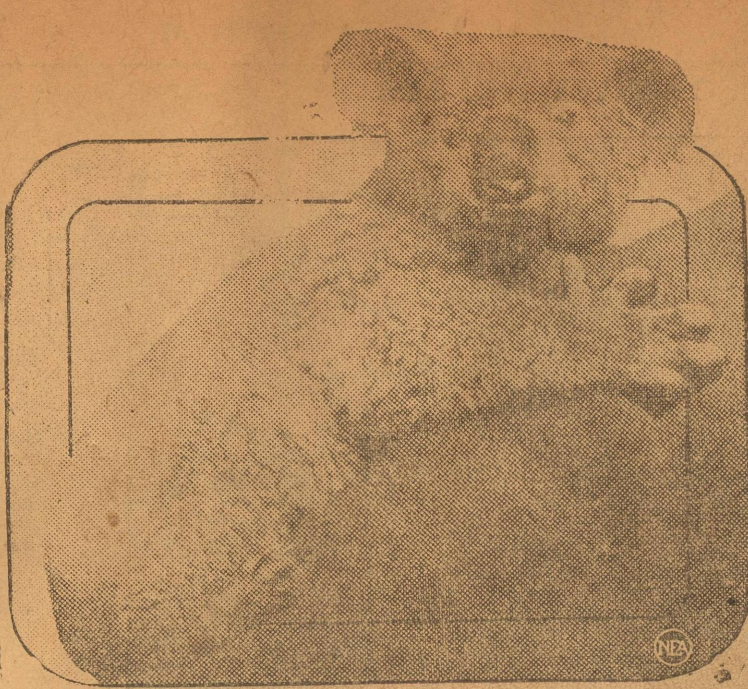

If the cow is receiving enough milk to enable her to produce forty pounds of milk and she produces less than this amount, it is due to her lack of capacity and the amount of feed should be cut in proportion to the amount of her production.

HORSE WITH JUDGMENT NICKNAMED "BRAINS"

By United Press.
CHICAGO.—There is one horse in America racing who has earned the nickname of "brains," as a result of his uncanny judgment in leading a field.

Those on the inside in racing constantly refer to Display as "Old Brains." Here's the reason: He won the $25,000 Washington handicap by a head. He won the 1926 Preakness by a head. And 95 percent his other victories have been won by the same margin.

'Lo, There, Snooper!

A born snooper is the inquisitively-nosed Koalas, rare new comer to the London zoo. Neither kangaroo nor wombat, to which he is a cousin, he combines many of the better features of both, being, among other things, a marsupial. Australia is his home.

Display seemingly goes out to win by just that margin. No amount of persuasion can entice him to get any farther than that ahead of his near rival, in a long race. Sometimes he makes the finishes so close that Jockey Maiben, who rides him most of the time, doesn't know whether he has won or not, until he rides back past the scoreboard.

According to Maiben, Display seems to know the minute he gets his nose in front of the field. He exerts every ounce of his strength until the nose sticks out in front. Then he slows down to the same pace as the rest of the field.

EASTLAND BUILDING PERMITS FOR MONTH

Eastland building permits for the month of November totaled $10,260, according to figures compiled at the city hall.

Of this amount the largest item listed is $5,000 covering the construction of the First Methodist church. The church is being rushed to completion, having been started about two weeks ago.

The majority of the amount, outside of the Methodist church item, was for repairs. Other construction projects given permits for the month were $850 to the A. M. E. church, $500 and to T. R. Valliant, $850 for construction of a new greenhouse. Permits for repairs for the month totaled $3,910 and were extended to the Majestic cafe for $2,000 and seven other individuals. Practically all of the repair items were for new roofs and additional rooms.

SWEETWATER.—Charles Lewis Blackwell, prominent Nolan county cattle breeder, made two important sales last week from his fine herd of Anxiety Herefords. He sold 20 head of coming yearling males to A. S. Gage, Marathon, Texas, which will be distributed among the members of the Highland Hereford association for breeding purposes.

The other sale was to Barney Carter of Goldthwaite and consisted of 10 cows and heifer calves, and one bull. The consideration was $150 each for the cows, calves and bull.

Cheney News

It seems like we ought to be gardening around Cheney, the weather is so warm for the last of November. But we feel sure of a cool snap soon so we can kill hogs as we all have fat hogs and want to kill on account of feed, while we all have plenty of hogs are ready to kill.

Brother Mattix of Gorman preached at Cheney last Sunday to an attentive crowd.

Cheney literary society had a good program Friday night, assisted by Cross Roads.

A good many from Cheney went to the literary at Cross Roads Thursday night. It was a Thanksgiving program all report a fine program well rendered.

Miss Bertha Lucas, Cheney's primary teacher, visited her parents near Stephenville Saturday and Sunday. Cheney school is going nicely all seem well pleased with a new faculty.

E. W. Howard and R. R. Browning were Desdemona visitors last week end.

James Howard came home last Saturday from Winart where he has been all the fall picking cotton. He says Eastland county don't look good to him now but it will as soon as he can find him another girl.

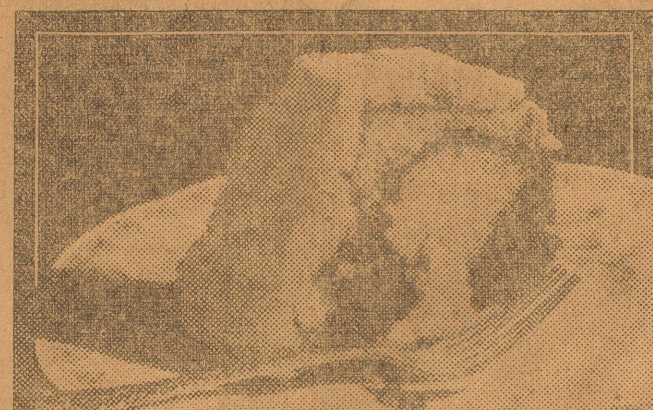

The rigs are up on the Hamilton and Blackwell places so we will soon have two wells going down close to Cheney.

Center of Church-State Battle

The church and state are entangled in Nashville, Tenn., with these three followers of a cult the center of strife in the courts. Daniel Brown, a follower of the Israelite faith, refuses to permit these two sons to be vaccinated at school. County health officials have indicted him for failure to comply with state laws and Mr. Brown declares they violate the Constitution of the United States, which gives him freedom of religious belief. To the left is Zinta, 9, and to the right is the seven-year-old Calvin.

Herman Browning is now with his grand parents and attending school at Cheney.

Tom Utly and family were Strawn visitors Thanksgiving and report a good ball game.

J. C. Patterson and Miss Ramey and other speakers of the demonstration department were at Cheney Tuesday and were met by Cheney's most prosperous farmers in a short discourse.

Mr. Frank Walker and family are moving to the J. H. Hamilton place. James Thomas and family are moving to the Aunt Nancy Fox place, vacated by Mr. Walker.

Dan Walton and family moved to the T. A. Jones place south of Cheney. Mr. Tom Kimbrough and family moved to the Lee Yardley place vacated by Mr. Walton. Mr. Hollace Snell and family moved to the E. C. Weeks place vacated by Mr. Kimbrough. Mr. Connie Lee and family of Salem is moving to the Dr. Duffer place vacated by Mr. Snell.

Mr. Earl Strickler has gone south with his thrasher but will soon be done this crop of thrashing. The sociable at Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Harpe's Saturday night was well attended and all who were present report a grand time.

EASTLAND PEOPLE ASKED TO CUT OFF GAS, WATER

Users of gas and water in Eastland are notified to cut off each not later than 11:30 o'clock tonight (Friday). At that time the city will be ready to start work repairing certain water mains, and it is necessary that both water and gas be cut off in order that heaters, boilers, etc., may not overheat and explode.

The notice is given by City Manager J. H. Cheatham.

Salvation Army Fund Chairman Issues Appeal

"You can say we are making a short intensive and economical campaign," said A. P. Hartman the chairman this morning, when interviewed in regard to the forthcoming Salvation Army call for funds to maintain the work in Ranger during the ensuing year. Continuing Mr. Hartman said, "We are not spending a lot of time and money in preliminary work; neither are we printing letter heads and sending stacks of letters through the mails. Conservation of time and money is the word."

"For several years past the largest sum raised in any annual appeal for the army in Ranger is $1,750. Now we all know that the maintenance of a moderate sized family would leave a mighty small balance from that budget, and I am sure that considered from that angle we will find ourselves wondering how the army has managed to do so much work of a poor relief character and meet all the expenses of carrying on the general work."

"It is not to be doubted that given a reasonable sum over their extremely moderate overhead, the local army will come to the front as a recognized indispensable factor in the spiritual, physical and moral betterment of the city. A world renowned preacher once said 'Take the Salvation Army out of London and you would have to increase your police force by 5,000 men', and it may safely be said that proportionately, that statement applies to every city wherein the Salvation Army is giving its Christlike service."

"We are asking for just what we need, no more no less," continued

GREAT ARTISTS TO BROADCAST CHRISTMAS EVE

Two Mexican Military Bands
Will Entertain for Two Hours Remote Control.

DALLAS, Dec. 2.—Texas will rule the air on the night of Dec. 24 with arrangements completed for one of the greatest programs in radio history, to be broadcast through five Texas stations.

On Christmas eve an assembly of the greatest artists and orchestras in the south and the high lights in commercial and public life in Texas and Mexico will parade before the "mikes" for four hours while millions listen.

A small fortune has been appropriated by the Texas Manufacturers' association for the greatest program ever planned, a special edition of "Texas Hour," well known radio institution with headquarters at station WRR, Dallas.

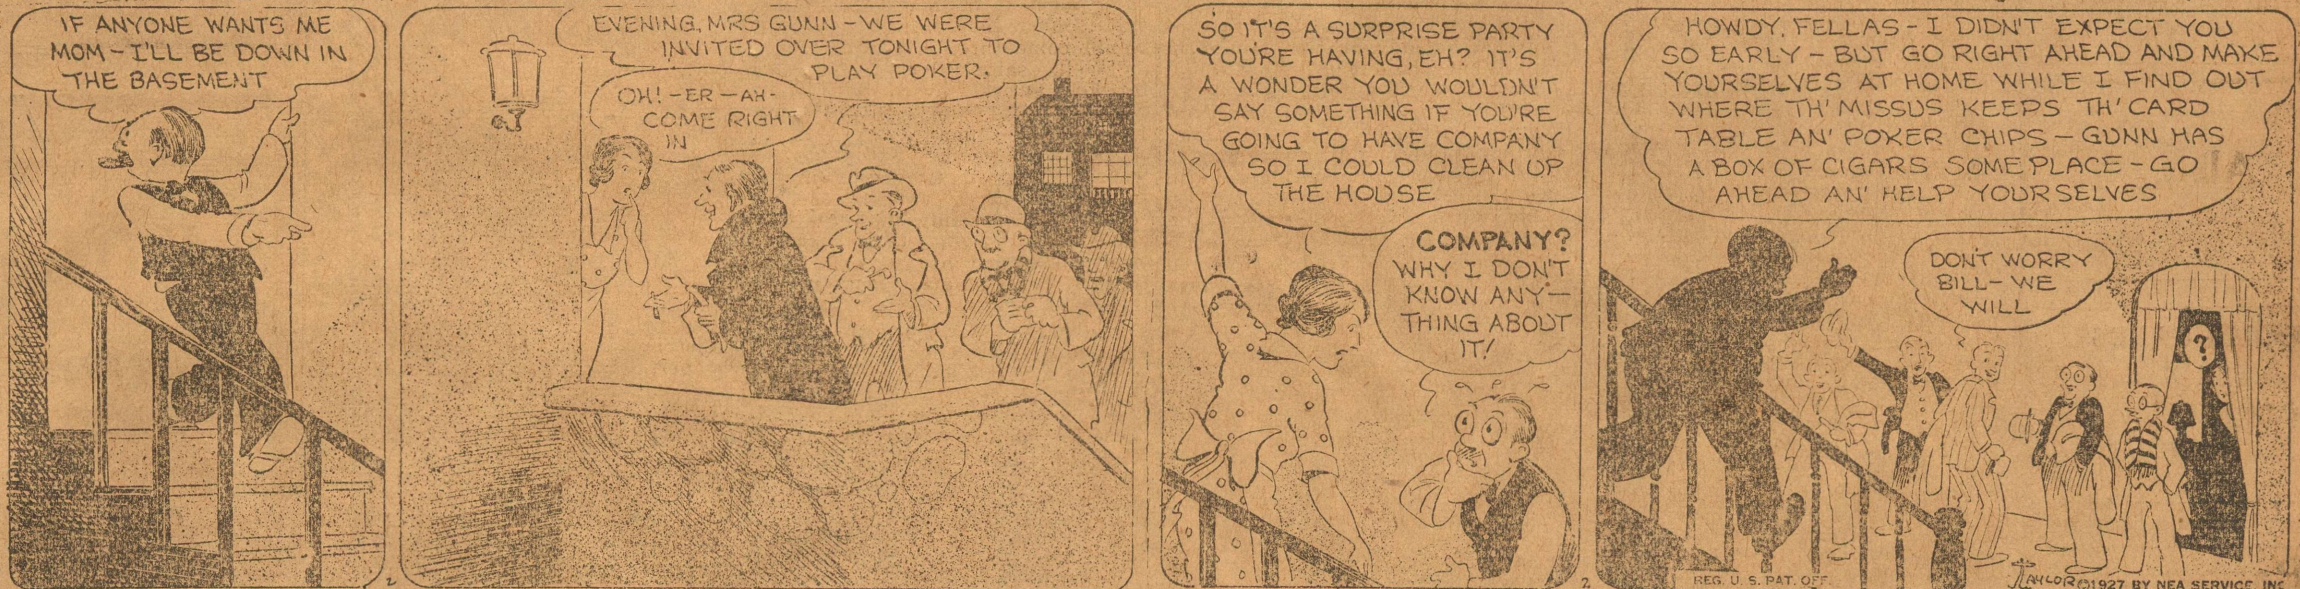

On that night Governor Saenz of Nuevo Leon, Mexico, two Mexican military bands will entertain two nations from Monterey, Mexico, for two hours by remote control. Monterey is hundreds of miles from the nearest station in the hook-up. When the program from Mexico has been concluded WRR will begin its broadcast, at midnight, and continue until 2 a. m.

During those hours pianists, organists, singers, stringed instrument artists and jazz orchestras will entertain, and $30,000 in merchandise prizes will be given to listeners, donated by members of the manufacturers' association.

A. G. Akeroyd, assistant secretary of Texas Resource society and conductor of "Texas Hour," will be at the WRR "mike" that night. The resource society is sponsoring the program. As a part of its program of advertising the radio event, John Thorwald, chief announcer for station WRR, is making a 5,500-mile air tour of the country in "Miss Jessie," an airplane named for Miss Jessie Akeroyd, daughter of the conductor of "Texas Hour."

Station WRR, Dallas; KPRC, Houston; WBAP, Fort Worth; WJAD, Waco, and KFDM, Beaumont, will unite for the big broadcast, the biggest radio event ever attempted in the south—the first time in radio history a program from a foreign country has been put on the air by remote control.

Preparations have been made to handle 100,000 telegrams into station WRR, broadcast headquarters, from participants in the prize contest, details of which will be given by the announcer at the beginning of the program.

GAINESVILLE—Discovery of another oil pool at a shallow depth has been made in Cooke county.

Oil was struck on the Ball ranch, 12 miles west of here at a depth of 154 feet. The well is estimated to run from 50 to 100 barrels a day.

Practically all of the oil in this county has been found at shallow depth and of very high quality.

GLEBURNE.—Reward of $200 is offered by the city council here for information leading to the location of a still which is polluting the Nolen river.

Following protests by citizens of Rio Bista that the water in the river was killing cattle and fish an analysis was made. It showed large quantities of acetic acid in the water. This, according to chemists, could be produced only from a still manufacturing whisky or distilling apple vinegar.

SINGERS INVITED TO OLDEN NEXT SUNDAY

Singers from this section are invited to meet with the Olden singing class at Olden Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock where an unusually good program of songs will be presented, according to Joe H. Norton of Olden.

The class at Olden was organized only a short time ago, but it numbers many good singers among its members and their singings are attracting much interest. The class has just received fifty new song books for use the first time next Sunday.

Mr. Norton stated that a number of song leaders from other towns had said that they would be on hand and take part in the singing.

Suggested platform to Albert B. Fall, if he should choose to run for president: "Oil is Well."

OUTLINE OF SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR SUNDAY, DEC. 4

Isaiah Teaches Right Living—Isa. 5:1-12.

2. Planted choice vines, vs. 2-7.

II.—The Failure, vs. 5-7.

2. Trodden down place, v. 5.
3. A barren waste, v. 6.
4. A parched desert, v. 6.
5. Such was Israel to Jehovah, v. 7.

III.—The Fruitings, 3-12.
1. They planted vineyards, but scanty results, vs. 8-10.
2. Built houses, but shall not inherit them, v. 9.
3. Sow seed, but the harvest small, v. 10.
4. Careless and carnal living brought them into captivity, vs. 12-13.
5. They were enslaved to strong drink.

Isaiah possessed literary and artistic ability of the highest order. No man's talent is too good for the service of God. The Jews were reveling in prosperity and worldly greatness and had lapsed into appalling sinfulness. The prophet invites attention by reciting a parable of a vineyard. "Now will I sing to my well beloved a song of my beloved touching his vineyard. My beloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill: Tnd he fenced it, and gathered out the stones thereof, and planted it with the choicest vine, and built a tower in the midst of it, and also made a winepress therein: and he looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes." The vineyard spoken of, and of which such care was taken is Judah. (Ps. 80:8-11) Israel had been brought out of Egyptian bondage, freed from distressing slavery and given a rich country, Canaan, and Jerusalem the capital with Solomon's temple as a place to worship God. How Judah repaid God for his care is shown by the fact that "wild grapes" was the product. Ingratitude is an outstanding weakness of humanity. Every care was given by Jehovah that the descendants of faithful Abraham would so influence the nations around them that they would be attracted to the law of righteousness and be crowned with heavenly protection. What a sad picture. Millions of heathens all round groping in darkness without hope and without God, drifting into eternity, while those having the light have covered it up with a bushel of business, a bushel of worldly pleasure, a bushel of luxury and ease, producing "wild grapes" for the devil, instead of luscious fruit for God their great benefactor. "And now, O inhabitants of Jerusalem, and men of Judah, judge, I pray you, betwixt me and my vineyard. What could have been done more to my vineyard, that I have not done in it? wherefore, when I looked that it should bring forth grapes, brought it forth wild grapes?" Life has been invested until there remains nothing more to give. Many a business man, when it was too late, has gone down with that sad outcry, "What more could have been done?"

God then had made every provision for the comfort and happiness of the people. They spurned their glorious opportunities. "What could have been done more? Nothing. Since then God has sacrificed His only begotten Son for the salvation of the human family. That marvelous, matchless sacrifice was prompted by pure love. What more can be done? Nothing, nothing but the sad consequence of sin. "And now I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard: I will take away the hedge thereof, and it shall be eaten up; it shall be trodden down: and I will lay it waste: Woe unto them." Two woes are indicated in verses 8-12. All protection would be removed and they would be exposed to the marauder who would without consideration or a semblance of mercy confiscate their wealth and drive them from their homes. Their worldly prosperity and greatness would be engulfed into poverty and distressing shame. The god of revelry enthroned on gold that they had worshipped at the shrine of, would be absolutely helpless. Their wealth would not save them, neither would their strong drink drown their thirst. This comparison is interesting and instructive. The desolation that Israel suffered resulting from their failure to live right, is vividly told in divine and secular history and is a finger-board pointing down through to our day a warning in the concrete. We should profit by their experience and not allow worldly pleasure, fashion and gain to interfere with our hope of happiness beyond the grave. We should cling tenaciously to the "Rock of Ages" which guarantees absolute protection against a crash of worlds and a wreck of matter, when time will end and Jesus returns. May the grapes be luscious and not sour, should be our constant prayer.
