Police say program is showing results

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

A serious crime is committed. Police leads are turning up little; they need help from citizens who may have seen something.

That's where Big Spring's Crime Stoppers comes in, and police officials say the program — which guarantees anonymity and offers rewards up to $1,000 — is starting to make a dent in the local crime problem.

"I'm very optimistic," said Big Spring Police Chief Rick Turner. "It's just now starting to take hold, but we are seeing results."

Statistics released by the department's detective division show that Crime Stoppers, Inc. has helped capture 12 suspects and clear 14 offenses in the first six months of 1983.

The organization this year has paid 6 rewards totaling $2,784.

Crime Stoppers: How it helps

Offense	Cases cleared
Burglary (residence)	1
Burglary (business)	4
Homicide	3
Narcotics	1
Rape	1
White collar	1

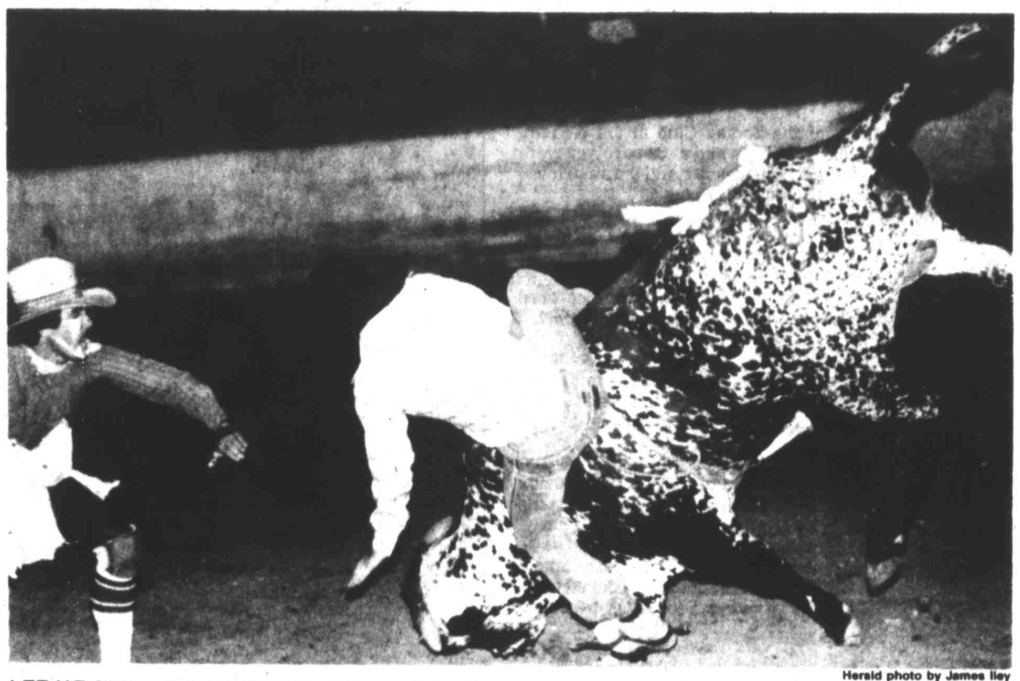

According to the statistics, 59 calls have been received by the department. Twenty-three of those have been in narcotics cases, resulting in the clearing of one case. Five calls on burglaries of businesses have led to the clearing of four cases.

The statistics also show four homicide calls for three cases, five burglary of residence calls for one case, and three calls on white collar/organized crime leading to one cleared case.

One call on a rape helped clear the case. Detectives have also received a call on burglary of a vehicle, two calls on robbery and five calls on thefts.

"This completes a tripod of police, media and community involvement in fighting crime," said Capt. George Quintero of the detective division. "Before, people have seen crimes committed but they've been afraid to come forward. Now there is a way."

Odessa bullrider Tim Waller — in town for Big Spring's junior rodeo this week — hopes a positive Christian attitude will bring him success on the pro-rodeo circuit.

This is the last year the 19-year-old will be eligible for the youth contests, but he says he prefers the financial — not to mention physical — risks of professional bullriding to the stability of a regular job.

"West Texas is the place to be," Waller said before last night's performance. "You can go to the national finals by just competing around here.

"That's what I'm going to do — stay in Texas and try to win what I can. I don't want to start traveling around up north and run out of gas in Colorado or something."

He has been in 12 rodeos so far this year and has several more, including contests in Abilene and Odessa, set for the coming months.

"Things aren't going too good right now," he said. "I've had a pretty bad case of round-butt lately — I've been throwed off a lot. If I don't win some money here tonight, I may be out of it for awhile."

Waller is the first in his family to take up bullriding, which he says is a sport and requires an athlete's hard work and dedication.

He's been riding bulls for six years and said he has learned on his own and with friends. But the learning has been difficult and he hasn't escaped injury.

"I got put in the hospital a while back," he said. "I got hooked and had a concussion, but it was nothing major. You have to get used to the danger. It's always going to be there."

Competitors in junior rodeos must make their own schedules and pay their way.

"I haven't been lucky enough yet to get a sponsor," Waller said. "I've got some friends who help out, though. And my father backs me all the way."

He keeps his eye on professional bullriders and tries to learn from their example, he said. He is particulary impressed by cowboys' attitudes.

"People think bullriders are real tough and just drink beer all the time," he said. "But a lot of cowboys are pretty good Christians and keep a strong Christian attitude. It really helps.

"In bullriding, you need a good attitude," he said. "You've got to keep telling yourself that you're going to ride that bull or die trying."

BOWLER SIDELINED — T.K. Price is an avid bowler, and has the trophies to prove it. Although he has been sidelined due to a muscle disease, Price hopes that he will soon be able to bowl again. In the photo at top, Price shows his form in a 1959 photo.

Strikes and spares

Big Spring bowler down but not out

A small bowling trophy gleams in the front window of the home at 3612 Dixon. It is a weak indication of the incredible interest the persons inside the house have for the sport.

Once inside the home, the weight of bowling's appeal to Mr. and Mrs. T.K. Price begins to become more balanced. A paperweight and a door-stop in the shape of a bowling pin are in the living room. A closet holds Price's six bowlir.g balls. And down the hall is a series of shelves holding more than 100 trophies adorned with little gold and silver bowlers rolling imaginary strikes.

Up until seven months ago, before contracting a rare muscle disease, Price bowled at least five times a week. Clifford, his wife, competes in city and church leagues.

Price will be 81 years old in August. Clifford is 77.

The Prices began their sport when most people think about retiring from athletics. He was 51 when he first started worrying about strikes and spares, and she was 48.

"I tell people I like to bowl because it keeps me out of the rocking chair," Mrs. Price said. "I suppose we got into it (bowling) because when we got older and the kids were grown we had more time for it."

Price, who sports a lifetime average of about 180, has bowled in state competitions and pro-ams, as well as local city and church leagues.

His devotion to the sport is almost limitless.

He watches all the bowling matches on television, he has kept records for leagues even when his eyesight began to fail because of the muscle disease, and he has given away many of his old bowling trophies to children bowlers he feels should be recognized for their accomplishments.

"He just takes his name off the trophies and gives them to the bantams (children)," Mrs. Price said. "He figures someone should get some use out of them."

About six months ago, the disease myathenia gravis, which affects the muscles in the neck, tongue and face, began to take its toll. He began to have trouble breathing, his coordination lessened, he couldn't hold his head up and his eyelids sagged over his eyes. Currently, he has to tape his eyelids up if he wants to see.

Price estimates he had the disease about three years before medical experts were able to diagnose the rare ailment.

In spite of his physical problems, Price still bowled two 155 games the week before he stopped the sport in January. Once, afflicted with double vision the disease causes, Price bowled an astounding 233.

Now, he rests at home hoping prescribed medication will send the disease into remission long enough for him to get his bowling skills back. If the medication will hold up its end of the bargain, Price will supply the desire.

Most urban areas report slight unemployment increase in June

From staff and wire reports

AUSTIN — Most local urban areas reported slight increases in unemployment during June, the Texas Employment Commission reported.

The exceptions included the Sherman-Denison urban area which had 8.3 percent of its work force unemployed during the month, compared to 8.5 in May, according to a report released Thursday.

The Wichita Falls area remained unchanged at 6.5 percent.

The Houston area unemployment rate reached 10.1 percent in June, a record high, compared to 9.5 percent in May.

Earlier, the TEC reported that statewide unemployment was 8.5 percent in June, compared to 8 percent in May.

After three months of holding at 8.7 percent, the jobless rate in Big Spring climbed to 9.4 percent as students flooded the job market searching for work — a trend that most of the state experienced.

According to local TEC manager Joe Wallis, the ranks of the labor force grew from 17,953 in May to 18,279 in June — an increase of 326 persons.

The number employed, however, could not keep pace with the number entering the market. Figures show 16,562 persons were employed in June compared to 16,392 in May, an increase of 170.

"Every June there is an increase like this," said Pat Richardson, labor market analyst at the TEC headquarters in Austin.

"It's mainly because of high school students looking for summer work and college graduates looking for a job. When they enter the work force it increases the figures and it increases unemployment if there are no jobs readily available."

Wallis said between May and June of last year the jobless rate in Big Spring rose from 6.2 percent to 7.2 percent — a full percentage point.

Ron McMonagle, TEC market labor analyst in Houston, pointed out the May to June increase this year, from 9.5 to 10.1, for the six-county metropolitan statistical area was the smallest increase reported "since we started keeping these numbers in 1974.

"It shows that seasonal factors are not having as big an invluence," McMonagle said.

Laredo, which recently was declared the area with the highest unemployment rate in the nation, had a June rate of 26.6 percent, compared to 26.2 in May.

The McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg area jumped from 16.9 percent to 18.5, Brownsville-Harlingen-San Benito from 16.8 percent to 16.1, and Beaumont-Port Arthur from 14 percent to 14.9.

Two areas with some of the lowest unemployment rates in the nation, Austin and Bryan-College Station, also showed slight increases for June.

Bryan-College Station's unemployment increased from 3.9 to 4.1 percent and Austin from 4 to 4.2 percent.

Q. I just returned to Big Spring and was wondering what happened to the beautiful antique lamps on the old bridge over the railroad tracks?

A. According to Public Works Director Tom Decell, who says he searched high and low for the illuminants, no one seems to know what happened to the Owen et bridge lamps.

Joe Thomas Rodriquez, 17, of 1501 N.E. Ninth was arrested at his home at 11:58 a.m. and charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Augilar, 21, was found lying wounded on the front porch of his home at 1109 N.W. Eighth. He had suffered a single stab wound to the abdomen, police said.

Rodriquez is being held on $15,000 bond set by Howard County Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Police reports also show the following:

- Mike Hughes of Hughes Rental and Sales at 1228 W. Third said $1,920 in rental property, including a living room set, has not been paid for since April. He said the person renting the items had moved from his listed address.

- Two windows were broken and a door lock and window frame were reported broken at a concession stand at the Roy Anderson Complex on the north service road of Interstate Highway 20.

Workers at the complex said the theft occurred sometime Wednesday night. Nothing was reported stolen.

Neeto and a passenger on the motorcycle were treated and released at Hall-Bennett Hospital, a hospital spokesman said. Hernandez was ticketed for failure to yield right of way, according to police reports.

Woman held in ax murder

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman charged with capital murder had "a long-standing grudge" against a man who was hacked to death with an ax-like weapon, a police lieutenant said.

But Lt. J.C. Mosier would not elaborate Thursday on the source of the alleged feud between Karla Tucker Griffith, 23, and Jerry Dean, 26.

Dean and 32-year-old Deborah Thornton were found slain in Dean's apartment on June 13.

A mattock — a tool resembling a pick-ax — used in the killings was still embedded in Ms. Thornton's chest, police said.

TALKING ROBOT — Children gather around HCA4U, a robot which answers questions about health care. HCA4U will be at the Big Spring Mall today and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. to meet with children and adults at the Big Spring Health Fair, under way now at the Mall.

Traveling robot offers health care advice to area children

He's not very tall, but he has flashing lights and a head that swivels 360 degrees. He pivots on wheels, and he is affected — sometimes erratically — by radio waves. His function is talking about health care, but he is all circuits and wires.

"He" is HCA4U or "Hickah," the talking robot. The friendly mechanism will be part of the Big Spring Health Fair Saturday.

The two men responsible for Hickah are Barry Ford and Rick Siegel, both of North Carolina. They are currently part of Hospital Corporation of America's Healthcare Express, a traveling tractor-trailer talking-computer health-care unit.

Ford says kids responded extremely well to the robot, often running to tell their parents some of the health information they have learned.

Hickah was "born" in January, Siegel said. The bearded HCA employee said he learned how to operate the robot, but turned over the controls to Ford since he enjoyed it the most.

"I do the truck; he does the robot," Siegel said with a laugh.

While Hickah is particulary popular with kids, Ford says their parents and other adults almost always express interest in the machine.

"They may walk by, but they always come back to talk to him," Ford said.

Hickah is radio-controlled and his voice is supplied by the operator. Despite his sophisticated circuitry, occasionally he goes a little awry, Siegel said. Once in Oklahoma while on an outdoor exhibit, the robot "took off on his own," following a 100,000-watt radio station signal, he said.

The robot joined a line of preschoolers waiting to be fingerprinted by police as part of a special program, Siegel said.

"He went right up to the front of the line about third, moved right in and stopped," Siegel said. "You couldn't have directed him better."

Ford said the main purpose of the robot is to impart health information to people.

Bowler

His zeal to bowl is best exemplified by the story of his broken wrist in the early 1960s.

Price, who was a pilot trainer at Webb Air Force Base for 29 years, was repairing his roof one day when the ladder he was standing on slipped and he crashed to a concrete patio, shattering his right wrist and dislocating his right arm.

In spite of the awkwardness of bowling with a cast, Price switched to rolling left-handed while his hand healed.

"He probably would have never gotten back into shape if he hadn't been so crazy about bowling," Mrs. Price said.

"It's just a matter of wanting to," Price added.

Price still manages to hang on to his independence. One day last week, in his weakened condition, he struggled outside to pull some grass from the flowerbeds around his home.

"He sure misses getting out there and rolling that ball. That's the only hobby he really ever developed," Mrs. Price said.

For right now, his competitive outlet is dominoes and board games. He says he enjoys the games because they keep his mind active.

"You'd think the way his eyes are and the way he holds his head that he's not all there, but he's pretty sharp once he gets to playing a game," Mrs. Price said.

Price and wife are optimistic that he will once again return to the hardwood lanes. She already has plans for his comeback.

"I've been thinking that when he gets a little stronger of taking him to church (the Family Life Center at First Baptist Church is equipped with lanes) and seeing if he couldn't roll a ball or two."

"All I'm waiting for now is to get a little stronger — I'm down, but not out," Price said.

If desire were all Price needed, he would already have had the bowling ball out polishing it for practice.

Crime Stoppers

"It took awhile for people to learn about it, and we've been fighting fears that people have to identify themselves," said Tom Watson, first president of the two-year-old citizens organization and now its vice president. "But the calls have been picking up, and we've authorized three new rewards this week."

Anonymity is the key to the program's success, according to police detective Lt. Alvis Jeffcoat.

"There was a little mistrust at first," he said. "But now we tell people that we don't want their name and assure them they aren't being taped."

The Crime Stoppers number is 263-1151. Calls are received by detectives who take down the information on special forms. Callers are assigned indentification numbers and told to call back in five days. This gives detectives time to check the information.

The sequenced numbers are used in remaining transactions between the caller and police. Names are not revealed at any stage of the investigation, including trial and grand jury indictment, Turner said.

The Crime Stoppers board decides the size of the reward after indictment in the case.

The board is made up of 13 local citizens drawn from the city, county and Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. Officers for 1983 are Denton Marsalis, president; Watson, vice president; LeRoy Tillery, secretary; and Jerry Mancill, treasurer.

Other members are Bob Smith, Sam Barron, Jeff Brown, Ralph McGlaughlin, Wendell Shive, Buster McCartney and Loyd Underwood.

Watson said he is convinced the program is helpful.

"We'd like to be able to do more in the way of crime prevention than pay rewards," he said. "But right now we want to preserve funds for the rewards. We try not to have any operating expenses."

To increase public awareness, the board has been distributing donated bumper stickers and phone stickers and has issued public service announcements to local media. The city picks up the cost of the phone line.

Since the line is only open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Watson said the board is looking for ways to have night callers tie into the state's crime stoppers program. Any messages received would be relayed to the local police department.

Similar programs in Austin and San Angelo have reported that serious crimes in their areas fropped as the programs gained momentum, Watson said.

"Crime Stoppers can be successful, but we also need good effective law enforcement and good stiff punishments," Watson said.

"I don't think we can be too critical of the police department's efforts, but we need effective prosecution across the board," he said. "We have too damn many dismissals."

The new success of Crime Stoppers has presented a problem for board members: money. Funds for rewards come from local donations.

"We hope to raise enough money so that rewards can be paid out of interest on savings," Watson said.

"We're getting to the point where the board needs to start shaking trees," Quintero said. "Otherwise, we'll spend all their reward money."

Round two of Junior Rodeo offers action

Over 100 persons were treated to action at round two of Big Spring's junior rodeo last night.

Several bullriders and tiedown ropers were frustrated in their attempts last night at the rodeo arena, and a couple or contestants narrowly escaped serious injury.

Gary Otwell's horse in the bareback competition was bucking so wildly that it fell to the ground. Otwell was thrown hard, but he was able to get out of the way.

PREMIER INTERVIEWED — Polish Premier General Wojciech Jaruzelski gestures during an interview with Barbara Walters Thursday in Warsaw, for a segment of ABC-TV's 20/20 to be aired Thursday.

Polish martial law lifted, tough new laws go in effect

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — After enduring 19 months of martial law, Poles awoke today with civilian government reinstated but with tough new laws in place to suppress dissent.

Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Communist Party chief, told a nationwide television audience Thursday that he was rescinding martial law today because of what he called a return to tranquility after months of unrest.

But Jaruzelski's speech came after the Communist-controlled Parliament granted the civilian government emergency power to suspend civil liberties and passed legislation to strengthen the police and tighten restrictions on workers, students and academics.

"Anarchy will not return to Poland," said Jaruzelski, dressed in full military uniform. "Any attempts at anti-state activity will be curbed no less unswervingly than during martial law."

Jaruzelski decreed martial law Dec. 13, 1981, to crush 16 months of strikes and political challenges by the independent Solidarity union. Solidarity was suspended under martial law and formally outlawed last October, although the union and its leader, Lech Walesa, remain popular.

Today's return to civilian government coincides with Poland's national day, and was accompanied by a limited amnesty freeing about 800 martial-law violators. But the amnesty does not extend to seven fugitive members of Solidarity or others considered a political threat to the Communists.

"Organizers of counter-revolution should harbor no illusions whatsover," Jaruzelski said. "The lifting of martial law is not tantamount to the cessation of struggling with evil and crime. Law enforcement organs should hit hard at this dangerous fringe."

Jaruzelski's warning came less than a month before the third anniversary of Solidarity, formed during Gdansk shipyard strikes in August 1980. Walesa and underground Solidarity leaders have hinted there will be anniversary protests.

Lebanese civilian killed while at Beirut airport

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Militiamen rocketed and shelled Beirut airport from nearby mountains today, killing a Lebanese civilian and wounding 12 other people, including a U.S. Marine peacekeeper and a U.S. Navy air controller, officials said.

In the mountain town of Aley, a roadside bomb exploded as an Israeli patrol passed this morning, wounding 11 soldiers, 10 of them slightly, the military command in Tel Aviv reported. Troops searched for suspects, the command said.

It was the first attack on the airport since it reopened 10 months ago. Ambulances and fire brigades rushed to the airport, which Public Works Minister Pierre Khoury ordered closed. Incoming planes were diverted to other Middle East cities.

Police said the Lebanese civilian burned to death after his car was hit by a rocket near the airport entrance. Four other civilians and six Lebanese soldiers were wounded, police said.

U.S. Marine spokesman Maj. John Shotwell said a Marine lance corporal was wounded by shrapnel as he stepped out of the mess tent near the airport and a Navy air controller was injured by flying glass in the control tower. Neither was identified.

Two private planes parked in a hangar were destroyed by one shell and another shell damaged a Lebanese army helicopter. Sixteen cars parked near the airport also were damaged.

U.S. Marines, who are based at the airport fire station, and the Lebanese army reported 11 rounds hit the airport area.

Western military officials and the Lebanese army said the shells were fired from the mountains where Christian and Druse militiamen have battled intermittently for three days.

The intensifying violence underscored the deterioration of security conditions since Israel announced Wednesday it would pull its forces out of the mountain region.

It was not clear which militia fired at the airport. But Christian-run radio stations claimed the shells claimed from Druse and Syrian mountaintop positions in central Lebanon.

The airport is the base of the 1,200 U.S. Marines serving with the four-nation 5,400-man force. A small British contingent are deployed across from the Marine zone in view of the airport.

A Marine spokesman, Warrant Officer Charles Rowe, said the barrage lasted about 15 minutes.

State radio said the Lebanese army's air base in the airport compound was the target of the mid-morning shelling and that pilots immediately flew the air force's Hawker Hunter jets away so shells would not hit them.

The shelling came only hours after stray shells from a Christian-Druse shootout hit the coastal Christian areas north of Beirut and the Christian populated mountain resort of Beit Merri.

Police said the overnight militia fire killed two civilians in the mountains, downed power lines to Beirut and knocked out a satellite station in Syrian-controlled central Lebanon, blacking out nationwide television coverage of President Amin Gemayel's visit to Washington. The downed lines forced Beirut officials to ration power in the capital, police said.

The Christians and Druse have been warring for months in the Chouf and Aley mountains overlooking the Lebanese capital. Hundreds have been killed and abducted.

Today's airport shelling coincided with Gemayel's meeting with President Reagan today at the White House to seek more aid, peacekeeping soldiers and diplomatic pressure aimed at getting 28,000 Israeli troops, 50,000 Syrians and 12,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas out of his country.

Killer heat wave doused by ferocious thunderstorms

Ferocious thunderstorms broke into the nation's two-week heat wave, knocking out power to over 100,000 customers and dousing a Diana Ross concert in New York's Central Park, where 400,000 fled as rain turned the Great Lawn into a "great lake."

By Thursday the deadliest hot spell since 1980 had caused the deaths of 37 people and was also killing cattle and dogs. More than 300 people around the country had suffered from heat-related illnesses.

Hail-packed thunderstorms brought a mixed blessing to the East and Midwest, breaking the heat but leaving tens of thousands of electric power customers in darkness Thursday.

"New England may be one of the nice places to be this weekend," said Rick Cundy, a meteorologist with the National Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo. "They should be cooling off today as the front pushes through. But for the vast majority of the country, it's just going to be another hot, muggy day."

One of several thunderstorms that ripped through Maryland knocked down a century-old downtown Baltimore building that was being restored as part of a multi-million dollar hotel project.

"It looked like a brick snowstorm," said police officer Richard Morris. "It just fell."

In New York, the same thunderstorm that washed out Miss Ross's concert left some 20,000 homes and businesses dark on Long Island.

Miss Ross sang soul standards like "Baby Love" in Manhattan's Central Park for 45 minutes, and belted out "Stop! In the Name of Love" with her hands pointing toward the heavens before rain and lightning forced her to send her sopping fans home.

"The Great Lawn is a great lake," said Adrian Benepe, a spokesman for the Parks Department. Department officials said they hoped the concert could be held tonight anyway.

In Lisbon, Ohio, a power outage forced The Morning Journal to cancel today's edition because there was no electricity to run the presses, said the newspaper's managing editor, Jay Thwaite.

Up to 30,000 customers were without power in Akron on Thursday and 10,000 were blacked out in Toledo, utility spokesmen said.

At least 25,000 in Detroit were without power Thursday night, as were 11,500 more customers elsewhere in the state.

In Delaware, Milford radio station WAFL was knocked out of service after its building was apparently struck by lightning, according to Chuck Marcus, its news director.

"We were struck twice," said Marcus. "I'm looking at the clock right now and the clock stopped at 9:07."

The storms also closed major roads in six Maryland counties, police said.

In Illinois, the heat wave continued to shrivel the corn crop as temperatures remained above 90 degrees for 12 consecutive days and no rain fell for the 17th day in a row.

"We're at the critical stage," said Dan Zwicker of the Illinois Farm Bureau. "We're shaving yields off from the bumper crop level. If we don't get rain in the next five to 10 days, the corn crop is very much in jeopardy."

In Minnesota, 36,000 customers in Minneapolis and St. Paul were without power for the fourth day today after winds of more than 100 mph toppled lines. Crews were working 16-hour shifts to restore electricity to those who have been in the dark since Tuesday.

Work has been slow because trees have continued to fall onto power lines, said Wayne Kaplan, Northern States Power Co. spokesman.

"Also, with the heat and humidity, some equipment is burning out," he said. "Customers who have been without power for two days go back on, turn on everything for a couple of hours and the power goes off again."

Fifteen people have died in Missouri, where triple-digit temperatures led officials in St. Louis to declare a heat emergency. Ten have died in Georgia, according to state officials, including an elderly man who had turned on the space heaters and stove in his home.

WHEN ARE WE GOING TO ACT OUR AGE!

From Adam to the atom . . it has been a long process. But process does not necessarily mean progress. Only when we recognize our need for God will we begin to come of age. Then, and only then, will process mushroom into progress.

Shameful misconduct

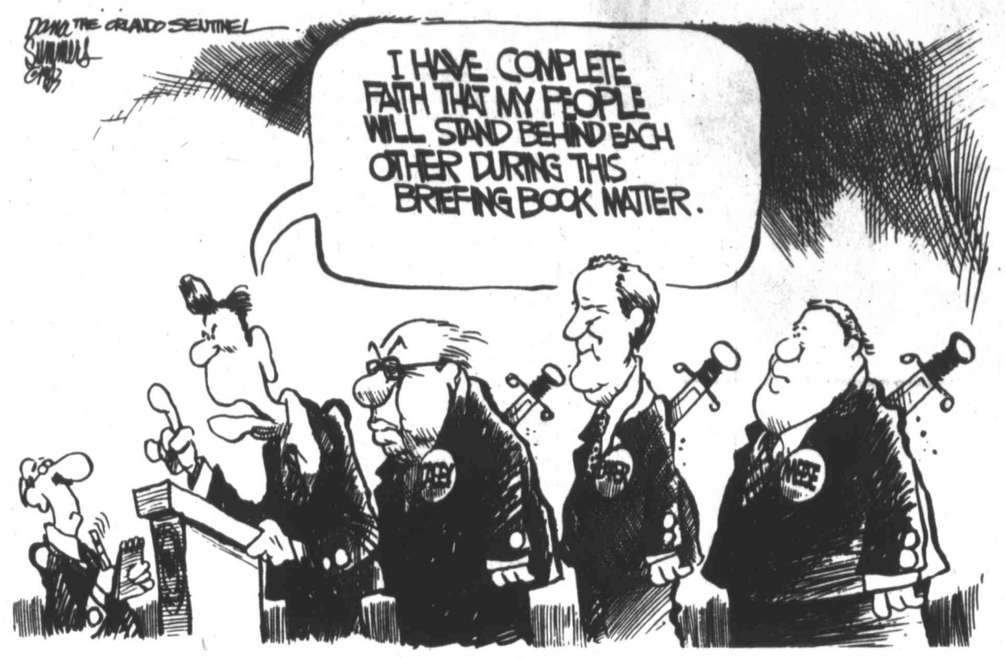

The teenage pages who run errands and perform other chores on Capitol Hill are little more than children whose welfare has been entrusted to Congress. It is especially shocking, therefore, to learn that two members of the House have violated this trust in sexual liaisons with 17-year-old pages who, in effect, were their wards.

The House Ethics Committee has urged official reprimands be given Rep. Daniel B. Crane, R-Ill., and Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass. But the recommended punishment would amount to a mere slap on the wrist for Crane, who had a relationship with a female page, and Studds, who had a relationship with one male page and who tried to seduce two others.

Expulsion from the House would be a far more fitting punishment for the congressmen who have grossly misused their positions in the seduction of impressionable teenagers. In some states, Crane and Studds would be subject to imprisonment for statutory rape.

Although Crane's apology does not mitigate his behavior, at least he has admitted it was wrong. Studds has compounded his ignominy in brazenly defending his actions as nothing more than an attempt to lead a "meaningful private life."

Studds and Crane ought to resign forthwith. If they refuse, the House should reject the Ethics Committee recommendation and vote to expel them for their shameful misconduct that has violated all standards of common decency.

City of crime wants a crusade

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We live in an area where there is a lot of crime, drugs, prostitution, etc. How do we go about getting you to come to our city for a Crusade? I really think that would make a big difference in our area. — W.P.L.

DEAR W.P.L.: There is no doubt that the Gospel can bring a change — not only to individual lives, but to whole areas as well. This has happened time after time in history, because Christ has the power to change lives for the better.

My associates and I consider many things when we are making a decision about a Crusade. We come at the invitations of the churches in an area, and we prayerfully consider each invitation to determine God's will because we have many more invitations than we can ever accept.

But I hope you will realize that an evangelistic crusade is not necessarily the best way or the only way to touch your city for Jesus Christ. I believe there is a place for such things, of course. But the Bible also emphasizes that every Christian is called of God to be a witness for Christ. I find that often people tend to depend too much on a visiting evangelist, or expect too much from a series of crusade meetings. They have their place, but they can never replace the day-by-day witness of Christians who are committed to Jesus Christ, are praying for their neighbors, and are sharing the Gospel with them as God opens the doors.

Do you remember what Paul said about the witness of the Christians in the Greek town of Thessalonia? They encountered many difficulties but they sought to spread the Gospel to those around them. "The Lord's message rang out from you not only in Macedonia and Achaia — your faith in God has become known everywhere" (1 Thessalonians 1:8).

Pray that God will give new courage to those who are Believers in your community — and that he will help you also to be a witness for him. God wants to use you to touch the lives of others for Christ's sake, if you will make yourself available to him.

Photo opportunity

This is a true story which has more significiance for Americans than whether Wayne Newton or the Beach Boys have sung on the Mall on the Fourth of July.

It concerns a man whom we shall call John Doe, who attended an anti-war demostration near the Vietnam Memorial on the July 4th weekend. He came with his camera to photograph whatever was going on.

While looking around he noticed quite a few photographers standing with the park police taking pictures of the people who were against war.

Suddenly he had his theme for a photographic essay. He would do a series of pictures on laws enforcement officers taking photos of people lawfully demonstrating on public land.

As Doe was shooting away, he was approached by a senior officer from the Park Police demanding to know what the blank he was doing. Doe explained that there had been many photo exhibits of demonstrators held in America but very few of police officer taking pictures of them. Doe told the officer he hoped to win a prize.

The officer demanded identification from Doe, which my friend refused to produce, citing the Supreme Court case, Brown vs. Texas, that a person did not have to identify himself to the police unless the officer can articulate he has committed a crime, or that he is about to, or that public safety is endangered.

Then the officer wanted to know if Doe was a member of the KGB. John denied it, claiming to be an ordinary American citizen who liked to take photographs of cops taking photographs. Later on, he thought to himself, had he admitted being a member of the KGB the Park Police would have probably left him alone. It was Americans they objected to taking pictures of them.

It was more than the Park Police official could deal with. Doe was bundled nto a Park Police car and taken off to the station, where it was hoped he would break down and tell the real reason why he was taking photos of innocent police photographers taking pictures of people that didn't like war.

In true tradition, Doe was permitted to call a lawyer. He called an old friend from his ACLU days and said, "Barry, I've got a great case. I've been taken into custody for taking pictures of Park Police undercover photograhers. We can make legal history."

Barry, who was at home, said he'd come down, but his relatives were in town and he was looking forward to spending the Fourth with his kids and he wasn't about to spend the weekend in court with John Doe arguing the merits of Brown vs. Texas.

"But Barry, if we don't fight for our rights who will?"

"Lawyers who don't have their relatives in town."

The police officer seemed to be losing patience and said that if Doe did not identify himself he would be taken to St. Elizabeth's, Washington's mental hospital, for observation.

"But," protested Doe, "that's what the police do in the Soviet Union. Are you sure you people don't work for the KGB?"

By this time Barry the lawyer showed up and a deal was struck. Doe would not have to identify himself, keeping the Brown vs. Texas principle intact, but he would have to promise not to take any more photos of police offiers taking photos.

Unfortunately, the main legal questions was never resolved. Is someone crazy for taking pictures of police taking pictures of people demonstrating or are the Park Police crazy for thinking you shouldn't be allowed to do it? It would be nice for us camera buffs to know.

Around the Rim

By CAROL HART

That's life

I must admit I have an interesting job. Working on a newspaper is different every day. But I'm certainly not the only one doing this kind of work. There are thousands of journalists all over the world.

Maybe you've felt like I do sometimes. You get this feeling that what you're doing is a little routine. Certain things must be done every day. Teachers, policemen, doctors, nurses, and countless others have interesting jobs but they, like journalists, have thousands of counterparts.

That's why I read with great interest about people who are making a mint, or at least raking in some fame, by doing something different. Recently the news wires carried a story about a man named Wingo who walked around Europe backwards. That was more than 40 years ago and the guy is still being recognized.

Wingo, like others who think up unique attention grabbers, wrote a book about his experiences. The key is thinking up something that will interest other people enough to pay to hear about your experiences. It doesn't have to be outrageously unique, it just has to catch people's attentions.

WHY, WHY, why, I ask myself, didn't I think about touring the country eating in restaurants — like authors Jane and Michael Stern. The two drove around the country for three years, ate in all sorts of places at least three times a day, and kept a list of what they liked and didn't like. Then they published all this information in a book called "Goodfood."

Of course, a career like this could have its drawbacks. On most of my vacations, I've eaten some pretty terrible food in some pretty ratty restaurants along the road. In fact, I'm become rather ill on some of that roadside fare. I guess every career has its risks.

Another author — William Least Heat Moon, traveled the United States and made deliberate stops in towns most of us bypass. He named his book "Blue Highways" and toured such places as Dime Box, Texas. He told about the people and the atmosphere he picked up along the road.

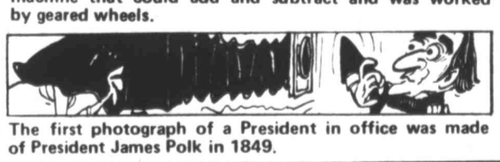

There must be thousands of ideas out there to try, if we could just think of them. Another guy, Bob Speca from Philadelphia, made a career, toured the country, starred on the Tonight Show, and wrote a book about toppling dominoes. I've toppled dominoes on my kitchen table but I never thought about doing it for a living.

I must sit down one of these days and try to think of something unique — before I read about some other guy doing it first.

The man has enemies

WASHINGTON — Hafez Assad, the Syrian dictator whose intransigence has been the main stumbling block to the pullout of foreign troops from Lebanon, is actively conniving to depose PLO leader Yasir Arafat. Yet Assad himself is in a vulnerable position, according to secret intelligence reports.

Assad's enemies within Syria include senior army officers, the majority Sunni Moslems, elements of his Baath party supported by Iraq, the Moslem Brotherhood and even members of his own minority Alawite sect. He stays in power through the naked repression of a 20,000-man security force run by his corrupt brother, Rifaat.

Secret CIA and State Department reports seen by my associate Dale Van Atta assess the threats to Assad's rule from his many enemies. Any one group has abundant reason to wish for Assad's ouster or assassination — but whether any has the nerve and the skill to get rid of him is debatable. At 53, Assad has ruled Syria for 12 years; like his adversaries Yasir Arafat and Jordan's King Hussein, he is a survivor.

Here's the intelligence rundown on Assad's opposition:

— Moslem Brotherhood: This radical Islamic group has been Assad's most obvious rival, but Rifaat's tank-equipped "defense companies" decimated the brotherhood. They began with an attack on several hundred of its members in Hama in February 1982. Rifaat's thugs then went on a two-week rampage in the city that reportedly left 20,000 dead.

— Sunnis: "As Syria's first non-Sunni Moslem president, Assad has always had to contend with opposition from the country's predominantly Sunni population," the CIA reports. "To placate the Sunnis, he built a team of technicians and economic planners drawn from the educated Sunni elite, (and gave) many Sunnis highly visible and ostensibly important government posts."

Although these posts included the defense and foreign ministries, "the Sunnis remain effectively cut off from real power and are resentful of the domination of Assad's small Alawite sect."

— Baath Party: Assad has stacked the Syrian Baath Party with Alawites, but "some members, and doubtless some military officers as well, would be willing to support an Iraqi-sponsored coup attempt against Assad," the CIA predicts. The Iraqi and Syrian Baath parties have long been at odds, and Baghdad maintains ties with exiled Syrian Baathists in Beirut and elsewhere.

— Alawites: Even this minority Moslem sect is divided into four tribes and four religious subdivisions; in other words Assad is a member of a minority within a minority. "Dissident Alawites confront two choices," a State Department report explains; they "can either remain united with Assad and fight to the last Alawite, or (they) could take it upon themselves to clean out their own community."

Much of the Alawites' anger centers on brother Rifaat, whose venal ways offend the devout and who is held responsible for the 1972 murder of a respected Alawite leader, Muhammad Umran.

— The army: Assad's most serious opposition, according to the CIA, has been among senior military officers. At least 50 officers were believed to have been involved in an abortive coup attempt in January 1982.

To counter the threat from the military, Assad keeps several senior officers under close surveillance and arbitrarily dismisses or imprisons the most suspect as "an obvious warning to others." The State Department notes that Assad has tried generally to "dominate the military by personally clearing all promotions, transfers and retirements." He also seems to believe that no coup will be attempted as long as an external threat from Israel remains — which helps to explain Assad's persistent efforts to sabotage any overall peace proposals.

Despite the individuals strengths of the various opposition groups, Assad should not be counted out. As the CIA points out: "Assad is a skilled political operator who would be difficult for even the most determined opponents to outmaneuver."

And he always has his brother to put the fear of Allah into his enemies. Or does he? Last August, Rifaat bought a $1.1 million estate in Potomac, Md., a ritzy Washington suburb. Was he getting ready for a sudden departure?

MAIL MASSACRE: President Reagan is supposedly the champion of private charity and small-town America, but his budget director, David Stockman, doesn't seem to have gotten the message. He wants to cut more than half of the $879 million subsidy Congress has proposed for second- and third-class mailers.

Stockman reportedly believes that the mail subsidy primarily helps so-called "junk mailers" and nationally distributed newspapers and magazines. But this is just not so. Mike Ferrell, staff director of the House postal affairs subcommittee, points out that these big mailers pay the full cost of their mailings.

Noise, dirt disturb resident

Dear Editor,

I believe as apparently others do, that it is about time for all to know about further mismanagement of our public offices.

After many months of suffering from the noise and dirt from a neighbor's lawn mower machine shop repair shop in his back yard I called the office of Dewey Byers and was told he would investigate. This is in a residential zone of Mt. Vernon off Washington Place. The call was placed May 13, 1983.

I called back the following day and was informed he had been out and visited with three men in the alley talking. Men that had nothing to do with this immediate location except one. The question at hand is this operation and very visible to the eye since it is now a lawn mower junk yard from his back door to the alley. I was informed there would be a letter mailed. This evidently has not been done for the man is still operating in full.

After my calling and nothing happening a neighbor witnessed a truck load of mowers being delivered and she called Mr. Byers. Mr. Byers did finally catch the man in his back yard and talked to him. The operation still goes on.

I have called the City Manager and the Director of Public Works, with the promise they would talk to Mr. Byers about this. The noise and the dirt from the mowers being started on the dirt is still going on after this length of time; it is excruciation and must keep my house closed up all the time. When can we expect something to be done of this violation in a residential zone? You certainly are very quick to raise our taxes for revenue yet pass this opportunity to collect in a commercial zone!

An irate taxpayer of the City of Big Spring,

Triplets together after 57 years

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Nearly 40 years ago, John E. Jones discovered he strongly resembled a boy who worked in a nearby town. But it was many years before Jones found that the stranger was his brother — from a set of identical triplets.

The triplets, separated shortly after their birth in 1926, gathered for the first time Wednesday, a joyous meeting punctuated by jokes and wisecracks.

"I've seen enough," said James Hahn of Cape Girardeau, Mo. "I got off the plane and saw these two jokers and they looked so much like me, I could hardly stand it."

"I feel like I've been in an electric chair all afternoon," cracked Jones, of Santa Pablo, Calif., after meeting Hahn and John Clay Burch of Warren, Ark. "I just kept getting shocked."

Aside from the jokes and gentle ribbing, the reunion raised other emotions among the brothers.

"I've had so many feelings that are so varied and mixed," said Jones, the security director for the University of California at Berkeley. "I don't know where to start thinking about our relationship and where it's going to lead. It's going to take some time for us to be together, to sit down and really start feeling that closeness that I think is bound to follow from this meeting."

The triplets were born Feb. 2, 1926. Abandoned by her husband and struggling financially, the mother gave her three babies to a St. Louis orphange shortly after their birth.

The mother kept her 5-year-old son, eventually remarried and had a daughter. She died in 1978 without seeing her triplets again.

None of the brothers was told by their adoptive parents they were triplets. All were raised by different families in different cities.

Once, Jones, who lived in Kennett, Mo., happened to walk into a drug store in Poplar Bluff, a Missouri town about 40 miles northwest of his home. The store's owner was struck by Jones' resemblance to a boy working for him.

Hahn, too, was surprised to find someone who looked just like him. The boys discovered they had the same birthday, but had no idea they were brothers. Thinking the resemblance was just a quirk, they never met again until Wednesday.

In 1971, Burch was reading some documents belonging to his late father. He discovered at that time he was adopted, but didn't know until last year he was a triplet. The revelation came when he asked the Children's Home Society of Missouri for a birth certificate.

Burch found Hahn by using a phone number supplied by the orphanage. The brothers then found Jones by using clues provided by children's home officials who didn't have his address or phone number, but knew his adopted name and where he worked.

Two months ago they contacted each other by phone. After many long-distance calls, the brothers decided to meet in Wichita, the home of their older brother and half-sister.

"We just grabbed one another and put our arms around each other," Jones said.

So far, the brothers have discovered they share a fear of heights, had similar milk allergies while growing up, enjoy singing and have ringing in their ears. Each has a son named John and a daughter named Mary.

Jones, for one, tried to compare the reunion to other exciting events in his life.

"But how many other things could happen in a person's lifetime that could be more exciting than this?" he asked. "I can't think of very many that would be."

Test scores of minority students move forward

NEW YORK (AP) — Math and science scores of minority students have lagged behind national averages, but specially designed programs to boost those skills are now achieving results.

"On the California Achievement Test, 11th graders went from grade 9 in math to a level of 11.1 — a two-year jump this year in math," says Moses Clark, acting director of the Math and Science Alabama Regional Plan at Tuskegee Institute.

"For the first time in the Tuskegee public elementary school, we had youngsters in the 3rd and 6th grades going to the public mathematics tournament this year," he said.

Tuskegee was one of 17 institutions to receive grants totaling $1.7 million from the Ford Foundation in 1981 to help raise the math and science skills of black, Hispanic and other minority students. It received $341,000.

According to a report this year from the National Assessment of Educational Progress, at the age of 9, black youngsters averaged 45.2 percent or 11 points below the national average of 56.4 percent.

The report from the federally financed testing agency which surveys the educational skills of students aged 9, 13 and 17, further said that black 13-year-olds averaged 48.2 percent, or 12 points below the national average; and black 17-year-olds averaged 45 or 15 points below the national average.

Tuskeegee has 109 students from rural Macon County studying 3rd and 6th grade math and computer science. Pre-calculus is also given for high school youngsters.

In addition to the summer session, special classes are held on weekends and after school during the school year.

"We want them to decide and find early careers in math and science," said Clark, an associate math professor at Tuskegee. "The hope is that they'll like math and do a better job and choose math as an area."

The Mathematics and Science for Minority Students program at Phillips Academy in Andover, Mass., is designed to have minority students go into scientific fields.

Thirty 10th graders enter the intensive summer program each year and complete it after three summers. After the third session, they receive college counseling.

"We have to work very hard here to get a 'B' or a 'C,'" said Paula Saenz, 17, who goes to Science High School in Newark, N.J. "In school, it's easy to get an 'A.'"

Miss Saenz, who plans to major in medicine in college, is in the third year of the summer program at Phillips. "The good thing about the program," she said, "is that I learned a lot in terms of school work and also about myself and other people ..."

Eric Bibb, 15, of Louisville, Ky., started his first year in the program this summer. "'I just want to better myself. It's hard," he said. "It makes you work, but you get used to it."

According to Patricia Edmonds, director of foundation and corporate support at Phillips, the 200-year-old preparatory school started the program to help increase the number of minorities in engineering and science and "to have some impact on math and science teaching in inner city schools."

Ms. Edmonds said the students in the summer program tend to have an influence on how math is taught once they return to their home schools. One Chicago high school, she said, had to revamp its math curriculum to accommodate the increased math skills of returning students.

The program was started in 1977 and received a grant from Ford for $316,400. About $1 million has been raised from other foundations and corporations, Ms. Edmonds said, including International Business Machines Inc., The New York Times and Standard Oil Co. (Ohio).

Lincoln University, a predominantly black institution outside of Philadelphia, Pa., received $50,000 from Ford.

"Essentially, we're trying to encourage youngsters to take four years of college math and take advantage of the new technology that's out there," said Dr. Earle Winderman, vice president for development.

The school recently received an additional grant from the National Institutes of Health for $500,000 to encourage students to go into doctoral programs in the bio-medical sciences.

Some programs are designed to assist the teachers of math and science rather than directly work on student skills.

"If we can get teachers in a mode where they can perform at maximum proficiency, a lot of these other problems will go away," said George Baker, project director of the math improvement program at Xavier University, a predominantly black Catholic institution in New Orleans.

Xavier received a grant of $29,780 to assess the teaching of mathematics in junior and senior high schools in Louisiana.

Iowans upset by license plate motto

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — To show off Iowa's intellectual mettle, the governor wants to emblazon the slogan "A State of Minds" on license plates, but many residents are saying the motto is embarrassing — and they don't want any part of it.

Some Iowans asked Wednesday if they could cover up the slogan, approved by the Iowa Transportation Commission, while a state legislator said he would try to override the decision.

"Can I send to Illinois for my license plates?" asked Ken Schriner, a member of the Linn County Board of Supervisors in Cedar Rapids.

State Sen. James Gallagher said he was not amused and was preparing legislation giving lawmakers the power to veto the Transportation Commission's decision.

"I think it's silly. It's not something we need, especially if it costs any money," he said.

The seven-member commission, following last-minute telephone calls from Gov. Terry Branstad and Iowa Development Commission Director Jack Bailey, voted unanimously Tuesday to put the slogan on 1985 license plates.

Most commissioners had opposed any motto until hearing from the governor, who appoints the commission.

The motto is the theme of a development campaign to woo high-technology businesses and is intended to showcase Iowa's schools and educated workforce.

Iowa produces "the most literate society on this nation and on this earth," Bailey said.

But the slogan, based on residents' reaction Wednesday, is about as welcome as a pothole. "It sounds like a grammatical error," groused Linn County Supervisor Joe Rinas.

WHO "Talkradio" host John London estimated that 99 percent of the callers to the Des Moines station Tuesday afternoon disliked the "A State of Minds" motto, with some suggesting transportation commissioners certainly were out of their minds.

KRNT radio personality Steve Gibbons in Des Moines joked with listeners that if they'd mail him $1, he'd send them royal blue paint — the color of the new plates — and a brush to paint out the motto.

Transportation officials said based on a 1977 U.S. Supreme Court decision involving New Hampshire's license plate motto "Live Free or Die."

No damage reported following Reno quake

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — A minor earthquake shook the Reno, Nev., area, according to the National Earthquake Information Service here.

Scientists at the U.S. Geological Survey office here said the quake, with a preliminary reading of 3.2 on the Richter scale, occurred at 10:49 p.m. MDT Wednesday. It was felt in Reno but did no damage.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

Dr. Donohue

Neurofibromatosis outlook is unpredictable

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 26-year-old female and have multiple neurofibromatosis. I would appreciate knowing what it is. I already have developed pigmentation brown spots. Is there anything else I can expect to happen? Please answer. — R.L.

One of the symptoms of neurofibromatosis is the development of six or eight light, coffee-colored spots on the skin, and the other feature is the neurofibroma, a growth of the sheaths surrounding nerves. More on that later.

The spots you refer to are larger than 1.5 centimeters (0.6 inch) and they are usually present from birth, but take months to appear, then may increase in size and number. Except their cosmetic effect, they are not a problem. In fact, a good number of cases of neurofibromatosis are diagnosed incidentally when people seek treatment for the cosmetic problem.

The more serious aspect of the disease is the neurobibroma. If you can visualize a nerve as an electrical wire coated with an insulating sheath, you get a picture of what happens. The growth occurs on the insulation portion. If the nerve sheath growths are close to the skin warty masses may appear.

I wish I could tell you what you may expect. But there is such a wide variablility in the progression of this illness that I cannot do that. You may have only a few more neurofibromas develop. If they cause pain or are unsightly they can be removed.

But I must also tell you that neurofibromas can develop within the body, too. So you have to be faithful to you checkup schedule to be sure that an internal neurofibroma is not beginning to press against a body organ. And you must watch for certain possible complications of this illness, like hypertension.

Indeed, none of these things need happen to you. I understand your frustration in being uncertain. But given the unpredictable course of this genetic illness, the uncertainty is one of those things in life we have to accept. Another name for this illness is Von Recklinghausen's disease.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you please tell me the difference between Tietze's syndrome and costochondritis, if any? Also, how can it be cured? I can't stand the pain anymore. — Mrs. B.N.

Teitze's syndrome and costochondirtis are one and the same illness. It's inflammation of the cartliage (chrondo) that joins the ribs (costo) to the breastbone. There is pain, swelling and tenderness over the inflamed cartilage. The cause is not known, so all that can be done is to control the symptoms. The pain can generally be treated with common pain relievers, like aspirin. Or the area of inflammation (usually in the upper rib region) can be numbed with Novocaine-like drugs. Also, steroids can be injected into the area to relieve inflammation.

"Tips on How to Stop Smoking," is a booklet that will help you give up the habit. For a copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped enevelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer indivudal letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Marriage tips for couples

DEAR ABBY: After you published 10 tips for brides on how to have a successful marriage, a man requested 10 tips on how to be a good husband, and you accommodated him.

A few years ago, I clipped the enclosed "Five Tips for a Happy Marriage" — author unknown. I hope you think they're worth sharing.

JULIE IN LONG BEACH

DEAR JULIE: I do. And here they are:

1. Look not for perfection in your mate. You will not find it and it's just as well. Living with a saint could be very tiresome.

2. Let your love be stronger than your hate or anger.

3. Learn the wisdom of compromise, for it is better to bend a little than to break.

4. Believe the best rather than the worst. People have a way of living up or down to your opinion of them.

5. Remember that true friendship is the basis of any lasting relationship. The person you choose to marry is deserving of the courtesies and kindnesses you bestow on your friends.

P.S. I am almost reluctant to ask the author to come forward. Lately when I have published an unsigned piece and asked the author to come forward, an alarming number of people have claimed authorship. This is baffling and discouraging. Whatever happened to integrity?

DEAR ABBY: It's surprising how few people know that infants cry during airplane take-offs and landings because they are n severe pain due to the change in air pressure.

Adults know enough to swallow to clear the passage of the eustachian tube, but infants do not.

If mothers would encourage infants to nurse (or suck on something — even a finger) it would alleviate the pain. Some flight attendants suggest this to passengers when they board with infants. I wish they all would.

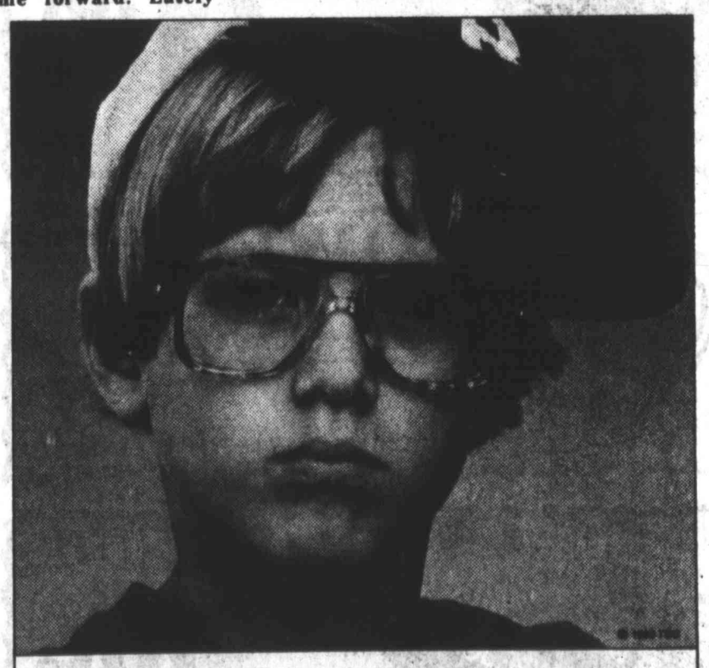

CONCERNED M.D.

DEAR CONCERNED: Thanks for a helpful hint.

Health Fair offers medical screenings

Medicare reimbursement information will be available at the Medicare booth at the Big Spring Health and Safety Fair, Saturday.

The exhibit will feature pamphlets and literature on Medicare. Medicare specialists will be on hand to answer questions about the federal benefit program.

★ ★ ★

Young parents, elderly persons, oilfield workers and industries concerned with on-the-job safety will be interested in the Council On Aging's fair booth and its Vial of Life program.

A white vial, imprinted in red, holds a form inside on which medical histories of the person or persons is recorded. The vial is taped under the top shelf of a refrigerator in the home, or to the visor of a car or pickup. A red adhesive sticker is also available to place on the refrigerator door, to alert rescue persons that medical information is in the refrigerator.

★ ★ ★

Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center will provide screening for speech and language development, gross motor development, and fine motor development for infants and children up to three.

The screenings give a quick overview of the child's development in these areas. It's necessary that a parent be present at the screening to answer questions about the child's development. Each screening will take about fifteen mintues, and will be offered in the following time frames: Speech and language, 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; Fine motor, 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.; Gross motor, 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

★ ★ ★

Screenings for colon and breast cancer will be provided at the Health Fair by Malone and Hogan Clinic.

Detection of cancer can be made early if regular checkups are a part of one's health goals. The screenings involved the use of Hemmoccult 11 slides. Instructions will be given as to how to perform the test at home, and those who have the test done will be asked to return the slides to the Clinic, for testing. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will be provided for returning the slides to Malone-Hogan.

If a test is positive, the individual will be notified so they may contact their family physician for a thorough checkup.

The self-breast examinaion is a simple, 3-step procedure, which takes five to ten minutes once a month. A mannequin will be used to demonstrate the self-exams. Pamphlets to supplement the instruction will be given.

SCREENING FOR DEVELOPMENT — Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center will provide screening for speech and language development, gross motor development, and fine motor development for infants and children up to three at the Big Spring Health and Safety Fair, Saturday. Kaki Morton, physical therapist, checks Jennifer McClure, 5, for gross motor development.

Information also will be available concerning skin protection. "Skin cancer is the most common type of cancer in the United States, and especially prevalent in the West Texas area," Mrs. Brown said.

A diabetic screening will be offered by the American Diabetic Association and Best Home Care. Forty percent of those with diabetes are not yet aware they have it and aren't receiving medical attention, says an ADA spokesman.

The types of diabetes and the warning signs will be given at the diabetes booth in addition to the screening.

★ ★ ★

The Permian Basin Dental Society and Permian Basin Dental Hygiene Society will co-sponsor dental screenings at the fair.

Early warning of weaknesses makes injury prevention programs possible. A good place to stop by if you're wondering what type of exercise program will be best for you.

★ ★ ★

Arthritus and back pain pamphlets will be available at the orthopedic booth, which will offer scoliosis screening. Slide presentations on "Total Hip Prosthesis," "Osteoarthritus," and "Knee Joint in Rheumatoid Arthritus," will be shown. With the help of local physical therapists, Dr. R.K. Reddy and Dr. Carroll T. Visitors' knowledge of how nutrition and exercise work together to produce what is known as "good health" also will be tested.

Phamplets, "E For Energy" and "Shape Up Sensibly," will be available at the booth. Dieticians and a home economist will be on hand to answer questions about nutrition.

A program, a card to keep track of screening results, and an evaualtion form are among the official handouts for visitors who attend the Health & Safety Fair at the Big Spring Mall, 10 to 6 p.m., Saturday.

A card, listing the various screenings with space for the visitor to record individual results, can be picked up at booths in the mall's main entrances.

Newborn baby panda dies in mother's arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Afer seven years of hope, Ling-Ling gave birth to America's first panda cub Thursday morning, but within three hours the baby died, cradled in its mother's arms.

Ling-Ling clung to her cub throughout the day, as National Zoo workers looked on with sorrow.

The cub, which at first appeared normal, was born in the panda cage at 3:18 a.m. It was the sixth giant panda born outside China.

"At 6:30 a.m., the young panda seemed to stop moving," said Dr. Devra Kleiman, who has supervised the zoo's extensive panda research since 1972.

She said that for hours after the baby stopped breathing, Ling-Ling gently tended the cub, licking it, picking it up in her arms and cradling it against her.

"We have no theories why the cub died," Ms. Kleiman said at a zoo news conference after the cub's death. "Ling-Ling's behavior was more than adequate to keep the cub alive. But it was hard to tell if she nursed the baby because she was cradling it so constantly close to her."

Ms. Kleiman, the zoo's acting assistant director for animal programs, said the baby was vigorous and active for three hours, squealing and running around.

Videotape of the birth, taken by National Geographic magazine, showed the baby pop out of Ling-Ling, who was lying on her side, groaning. The cub fell about 12 to 18 inches onto a concrete floor and lay motionless for several minutes until Ling-Ling knocked against it.

The tape shows that when the baby started wriggling and squealing, Ling-Ling picked it up in her mouth, then took it in her arms and cradled it.

Dr. Kleiman said that although Ling-Ling was an inexperienced mother, she doubts she injured the baby: "She was extremely gentle with it."

Zoo doctors doubt also that the baby was injured when it fell at birth because infant mammals usually survive such trauma.

"Look at giraffe babies," she said. "They drop quite a distance."

Because of a mother panda's large size and the tininess of the baby, it is difficult to tell if a panda is pregnant. Several days ago one zookeeper noticed Ling-Ling's mammary glands, usually invisible under her thick fur, were enlarged. And by Wednesday afternoon, Ling-Ling was reported building a nest with bamboo. She refused her afternoon meal and rubbed carrots against her body.

The cub was born 123 days after Ling-Ling mated with the male, Hsing-Hsing, last March. For the next two consecutive days of her heat period, she was artifically inseminated with semen from a British panda, Chia-Chia.

Zoo officials say it may never be possible to determine the cub's paternity.

"If we retrieve the infant and do an autopsy, we may be able to determine who the father is, but there is no guarantee we can," Ms. Kleiman said, explaining that blood and tissue samples are compared with Hsing-Hsing and the sperm donor. "But the infant may not be sufficiently fresh to do it."

For seven years, zookeepers had been hoping Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing would have a baby. Every spring Ling-Ling, now 13, would come into heat. But each time, Hsing-Hsing, six months younger, couldn't figure out what was expected of him.

Consulting with panda experts from around the world, zookeepers analyzed Ling-Ling's health, charted her moods, put her on a diet, imported lovers, and televised her trysts.

At one point, zoo public relations officials issued a news release explaining that the pandas "have been unable to align themselves in an effective breeding posture." At another, they solemnly assured reporters the pandas were not homosexuals.

Eastern whacks locals

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

For three games, Big Spring American had good pitching, good defense and good hitting. Thursday night, all three phases of their game collapsed under pressure applied by Midland Eastern.

American pitching gave up 10 hits, the defense committed three errors in a 3-run Eastern fourth inning and only Brent Hartfield could hit pitcher Pete Reyes as the Midland team whipped Big Spring 6-1.

In an elimination game in the District III tournament, North Central scored five times in the second inning and held on for a 5-4 victory over rival Tower.

With its victory, Eastern advanced to the tournament finals Saturday night. The unbeaten Midland team will face the winner of tonight's American-North Central game which is scheduled for 8 p.m. tonight at the American ballpark. Radio station KBST will broadcast the contest, beginning at 7:50 p.m.

Winning their first three tournament games, American and Eastern steamed into the winner's bracket finals and the matchup promised to be a thriller. It was for three innings, before havoc rained on American's defense.

Big Spring was clinging to a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning, gained when Hartfield singled and scored on a variety of passed balls in the first inning. That narrow margin quickly evaporated.

Nicky Villarreal opened the Eastern fourth with a single. Ray Soria bounced back to pitcher Mike Calvio who had all day to get the chunky Villarreal at second but instead threw the ball into right field. Reyes bounced into a fielder's choice for one out and when Juan Dominguez hit another comebacker to Calvio, there was hope of getting out of the jam.

Calvio threw wildly to first on the play, however, allowing Villarreal and Reyes to score. Dominguez moved to third on a passed ball and kept coming home when catcher Junior Lopez fired wide down to third on the play.

Villarreal's RBI single in the fifth — his third consecutive hit — made it 4-0. American was forced to change pitchers and reliever Chris Crownover surrendered two more runs in the sixth. Dominguez doubled and Farris Strambler walked, both scoring on Joe Herrera's infield hit to deep shorstop.

American had its chances to get back in the game over its last three at-bats. Crownover was left at thrid in the fourth when Reyes fanned the last two outs. Harfield doubled with two out in the fifth but Calvio struck out. In the sixth, Eastern made its only two errors of the game but Jason Phillips was out trying to score on a passed ball and Reyes whiffed two more batters.

Both teams muffed early chances to score. Villarreal singled and Soria doubled to lead off the second but Calvio forced three straight ground balls to get out of the jam.

American's chance came in the third when Jimmy Miller and John Covington walked ahead of Hartfield's single to shallow left field. Reyes again applied strikeout pressure, fanning Calvio and Phillips to escape the problem.

Reyes finished with a three-hitter — all by Hartfield — walked fourth and struck out 13.

Across town, North Central bundled up its offense for one inning and then fought off Tower to become one of the final three teams.

In the second, Scott Melzer knocked in one run and two more scored when catcher Ty Chambers reached on an error. Bobby Hopkins capped the rally with a two-run single. No. Central had all four of its hits for the game in the inning.

The rally erased Tower's 1-0 lead gained in the first when Terry Delk doubled and scored on a passed ball. Tower edged closer with a run in the fourth on John Crigler's RBI single and moved to with a run with a two-run fifth. Pinch-hitter Chris Kennedy knocked in B.J. Parrish and Mike Pearson with a single.

Tower outhit Central 7-4.

BEATING THE THROW TO THE BAG — Big Spring American baserunner Brent Hartfield, right, heads for the back edge of third base in the first inning of Thursday's game with Midland Eastern. Hartfield was safe on the play, advancing on a passed ball, and later scored his team's only run of the night. Eastern third sacker Nicky Villarreal — who had three hits in the game for his team — takes the throw but can't make the tag on the play. Eastern won, 6-1.

White gives TV to NCAA

Universities who hoped to negotiate lucrative television packages for their football teams have had their plans squelched by a U.S. Supreme Court justice who once was an All-American halfback.

Justice Byron R. "Whizzer" White, a star at Colorado in the 1930s, ordered Thursday that control of college football television must be restored to the NCAA. White's order postponed the effect of a federal appeals court ruling that the NCAA violated antitrust laws when it negotiated contracts with ABC, CBS and the Turner Broadcasting System.

"We're absolutely delighted," said NCAA President John Toner.

The College Football Association, a group of the top collegiate powerhouses, had hoped to put together its own television package. Individual schools also wanted to make deals with national networks.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has $281 million worth of contracts with the networks over four years, but lower courts had held that schools must be free to cash in on their own.

The universities of Oklahoma and Georgia had led the fight for schools to independently control their telecast rights. Thursday's decision, said Oklahoma attorney Andy Coats, will cost the two schools "millions of dollars."

Oklahoma and Georgia are guaranteed only one football appearance each in the NCAA package this fall.

White's stay will remain in effect at least until the full Supreme Court can consider the case. October would be the earliest time that would happen.

"In the meantime, college football will continue on television in 1983 as in the past and we hope it will be both exciting and successful," CFA executive director Chuck Neinas said. "Eventually, we trust the final Supreme Court decision will enable a more innovative approach to college football television in 1984."

"The stay works to the benefit of virtually all the football-playing members of the NCAA who clearly want the continuation of national controls," said Toner, who also is athletic director at the University of Connecticut.

But some of the large football schools might argue with that assessment.

"Our reaction is one of disappointment," said Mike Treps, sports information director for Oklahoma. "We had hoped to free-market our product. Our hands are tied until the courts reach a final decision."

Marvin Francis, assistant commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, said if the ruling had not been in favor of the NCAA, the ACC would have proceeded with its plan to regionally televise games in North Carolina, similar to the way ACC basketball is handled.

But Wayne Duke, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference, saw White's ruling differently.

"The total interests of college football and all but a few selfish institutions are best served by Justice White's decision, which hopefully will permit the orderly presentation of college football on television this season," he said.

Many reacted not to the merits of the case, but expressed relief that a mad scramble for individual television contracts was averted.

The networks were predictably pleased.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last month that the NCAA had violated the Sherman Act, an antitrust law, by controlling the televising of college football.

The appeals court upheld a similar ruling by a federal trial judge in Oklahoma City in a lawsuit filed against the NCAA by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association.

Campbell picks Orange, Rebs

The San Angelo Bobcats and Midland Lee Rebels are the teams to beat in District 4-5A football this fall, according to Dave Campbell's 1983 version of Texas Football.

With 21 lettermen and nine starters back from last year's playoff team, the Bobcats have been picked No. 6 in the state in Campbell's publication. Lee, one of four teams involved in a second-place tie last fall, is tabbed second.

Big Spring, perennially picked at the bottom of the heap, was picked ahead of Abilene Cooper. The Steers were 4-6 last year and return 11 starters.

Permian, the district champs and regional finalists, are picked third. Mojo linebacker Britt Hagar was named to the magazine's all-state team.

Golf Roundup

Simpson beats heat for record-tying 64

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Scott Simpson was unperturbed by the sweltering heat that had other contenders seeing spots and spouting Latin.

He matched the course record with a 7-under-par 64 Thursday and took a two-stroke lead in the first round of the $350,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

"It was uncomfortable," Simpson said of the 102 degree temperature and high humidity, "but you get used to the weather after a few years out here.

"I just drank a lot of water on every hole — it evaporates immediately — and kept wiping my hands with a towel."

Sammy Rachels and Terry Diehl, tied with Tom Weiskopf and defending champion Cal Peete for second at 66, did not agree completely.

Diehl, who has cashed checks in only three of 20 tournament starts this season, went to Latin to describe his discomfort.

"Vine perspirere," he said, and translated: "I came to sweat."

Rachels, who holed out a 110-yard wedge shot for an eagle and added seven birdies, said "it was bigtime hot.

"Playing 9 and 10 I was getting dizzy and seeing spots in front of my eyes."

Peete, however, said the heat helped loosen a muscle pull in his back which forced him to withdraw from last week's British Open. He, like Simpson, did not make a bogey in his round over the 6,746-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course on the banks of the James River.

Hal Sutton, the year's leading money-winner, topped the group at 67, three shots off the pace. Also at that figure were Tim Norris, Ed Dougherty, Bill Sander, Chip Beck and Pat McGowan, who had second alone until he double bogeyed the final hole.

PGA titleholder Ray Floyd topped a big group at 68 and Morris Hatalsky, who has won and lost playoffs in his last two starts, was at 69.

Simpson, a playoff loser at the Kemper Open earlier this summer, said "the best round I've played in a long time" was completely unexpected.

"I took the last two weeks off," he said. "I took my family to Hawaii for a vacation and left the clubs at home. I didn't touch a club until last Saturday and I wasn't really expecting very much when I came here.

Washam, Howe tied

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Jo Ann Washam and Lauren Howe, helped by an early morning start that saw them finish before temperatures climbed into the upper 90s, shot 5-under par 67s Thursday to share the lead after the opening round of the $200,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association Mayflower Classic.

Laura Hurlbut, a 24-year-old Los Angeles resident who was a member of Tulsa University's national championship team, just missed moving into a tie for the lead with a bogey on her last hole. Hurlbut, in danger of losing her tour card after a year in which her best finish was a tie for 49th back in January, finished the day tied with Vicki Tabor at 68.

Hurlbut, who has missed the cut eight times this year and been disqualified in another tournament, has earned only $1,608 this year and needs to reach $7,000 to keep her card.

"I was hitting my irons very, very well," said Hurlbut, who tied her low round since joining the tour in 1981 with birdies on all four par 3 holes.

Washam and Howe, both began their rounds on the back nine of the 6,101-yard, par 72 Country Club of Indianapolis course and got off to quick starts. Each had six birdies and one bogey.

Tabor, who recorded her best tournament start this year after a previous low of 72, had a 35-33 to share the runner-up position.

Golfer collapses, dies

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Robert Ross Grant, a 62-year-old golf pro from Boca Raton, Fla., collapsed Thursday on the third green of the Hazeltine National Golf Club and died without regaining consciousness.

John Morris, director of communciations with the U.S. Golf Association, said Grant died of cardiac arrest and was pronounced dead at St. Francis Hospital in nearby Shakopee.

Grant, the last of 149 golfers to tee off in the first round of the U.S. Senior Open, was listed as a pro at the Lakeview Golf Club in Delray Beach, Fla.

It was the first time he had qualified for play in the U.S. Senior Open.

Dr. Marianne Kanning of Chaska and several paramedics from a first aid station about 75 yards away arrived soon after the golfer collapsed at 4:20 p.m.

"We were working on him for 30 minutes," Ms. Kanning said. "He was not breathing when we reached him and was on artificial respiration the entire time. He was not conscious," she said.

Despite 94 degree heat, Morris said there is no indication the heat contributed to Grant's heart attack.

2 Cowboys missing at camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — All-pro cornerback Everson Walls was an official holdout today and faced a $1,000 fine for each day he misses of Dallas Cowboys' training camp.

Walls, who's asking for a three-year, $900,000 contract, carried out his retirement threat late Thursday and missed the deadline for veteran players to report.

Dallas is offering a five-year pact for $1.25, including $175,000 for this season.

Walls still has two years remaining on an old contract, but Cowboys' management was renegotiating because of his two sensational seasons as the National Football League's leading interceptor.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who admitted "I didn't expect it to come to this," began looking at Ron Fellows and Rod Hill at Walls' position.

Walls wasn't the only camp no-show.

Safety Dextor Clinkscale, locked in an argument over whether he has a vaild contract for this season, missed his plane.

Federal arbitrator Sam Kagel is to rule on the case Aug. 1.

Landry said of Clinkscale's absence, "It's kind of unusual for someone who hasn't done anything yet not to come to camp. I'd show up if I wanted a job."

On another matter, defensive end Harvey Martin, whose name has surfaced in recent cocaine investigations, issued a prepared statement, saying he has never been involved with the drug.

Texas cools Jays

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Frank Tanana probably can't throw a fastball by anybody anymore, but after more than two years of recovery from arm injuries, he finally is getting batters out.

Tanana relied on his curveball and changeup to keep Toronto off balance as he picked up his first complete-game victory of the season — a 3-2 decision over the Blue Jays Thursday nigt.

The Rangers have won only four games in 16 since the All-Star break but remain only percentage points behind Chicago in the American League West.

"The win is the big thing. The complete game is icing on the cake,' said Tanana, who set the American League on fire in 1974 with California and won Rookie of the Year honors.

The Rangers got one run back in the bottom of the inning on Parrish's double off Jim Gott, 5-8, and George Wright's RBI single.

Brewers 7, White Sox 6

The Brewers countered Chicago's three-run eighth inning with one of their own to drop the White Sox into a virtual first-place tie with Texas in the West.

Paul Molitor's tie-breaking double capped Milwaukee's comeback after the Brewers had tied it 6-6 on singles by Ted Simmons, Ben Oglivie, and Rick Manning, a sacrifice and a wild pitch by Juan Agosto. Pete Ladd got the victory despite giving up Chicago's eighth-inning runs.

A's 9, Orioles 7

Oakland's Ricky Peters drove in three runs, including the game-winner with a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the eighth inning, as the A's beat Baltimore and left the Orioles tied with Toronto atop the East.

Rickey Henderson tripled before Peters lofted his decisive fly ball — and Davey Lopes added insurance with his 13th home run of the year. Eddie Murray hit his 18th homer for the Orioles while Dwayne Murphy and Jeff Burroughs homered for the A's.

Tigers 5-2, Angels 1-3

Reggie Jackson doubled and scored a run in the second inning, then singled home the decisive run in the fifth as the Angels earned a split with the visiting Tigers.

Red Sox 14, Mariners 13

The Seattle Mariners couldn't find much to smile about after what Boston did to them — but at least the Red Sox left the Kingdome intact.

The Red Sox were in the process of squandering a nine-run lead Thursday night when John Henry Johnson came out of the bullpen to preserve — for the time being, at least — Boston's lead.

American League

Three years later, after 14 consecutive complete games for the Angels, he developed an inflamed tendon in his pitching arm.

In his last two years, Tanana was 11-28 with Boston and Texas.

It was also Larry Parrish's night. The Texas rightfielder, who entered the game fifth in slugging percentage (.542) in the A.L., went 4-for-4 and drove in the game-winning run.

Parrish now has 11 game-winning RBIs, one behind league-leader Dave Winfield of New York.

The Blue Jays lost their third consecutive game — only the second time this year they have lost three straight.

Toronto scored two runs in the sixth after loading the bases without hitting a ball past second base.

Astros falter, 9-4

MONTREAL (AP) — In the fifth inning of their game against the Houston Astros, the slumbering Montreal Expos answered a wake-up call.

Trailing 4-1, the Expos, with a little help from a leaky Houston defense, scored six runs after two were out and went on to a 9-4 triumph behind Bill Gullickson's seven-hitter.

"We haven't come from behind too much," said Gullickson, 8-10. "We could have given up right there. But we played relaxed baseball and overcame some of our earlier mistakes with clutch hitting."

The victory left the Expos one game behind the first-place Pittsburgh Pirates in the Eastern Division, where four teams are separated by one game or less.

The Expos' come-from-behind triumph produced a few rarities. It was the first time they had overcome a deficit of three or more runs since May 24. It was also the first time they have won two games in a row since July 4.

Before the Expos' rally, Virdon could have been second-guessed for allowing Gullickson to pitch to George Bjorkman, the eighth-place hitter, in the fourth. The Astros already had taken a 1-0 lead in the inning on Ray Knight's sacrifice fly.

With two outs and Jose Cruz at third, the Expos could have intentionally walked Bjorkman to face pitcher Nolan Ryan, who had a .028 batting average.

Bjorkman, after falling behind 0-2, drilled a 3-2 pitch by Gullickson over the left field fence for his second home run.

Terry Puhl also connected against Gullickson, cracking his fourth homer with one out in the fifth to extend the lead to 4-1.

Ryan, 9-3, had allowed only two hits until the Astros' fifth-inning collapse.

Gullickson walked only one batter and struck out five in earning his first victory since June 23.

Ryan, who lasted five innings, struck out two, raising his career total to 3,585, two fewer than Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies, the all-time leader.

Cubs 3, Giants 2

In Chicago, Tom Veryzer and Jody Davis hit home runs and Dick Ruthven and Lee Smith combined n a five-hitter, leading the Cubs over San Francisco.

Ruthven, 7-7, tired in the 93-degree heat and gave way in the eighth to Smith, who notched his 13th save.Atlee Hammaker, 10-5, was the loser, although he gave up only five hits.

Phillies 10, Braves 6

In Atlanta, Bobby Dernier had five singles and drove in three runs and Pete Rose knocked in three runs with three singles as Philadelphia unleashed an 18-hit attack to beat the Braves.

Mike Schmidt put the Phillies ahead to stay at 4-3 in the fifth when he hit his 19th homer off Rick Camp, 7-8. Rose's three singles lifted his career total to 3,953 hits.

Padres 4, Cardinals 2

In St. Louis, Terry Kennedy drove in three runs and rookie Mark Thurmond and Luis DeLeon combined on a four-hitter to lead the Padres over the Cardinals.

Pirates 5, Dodgers 4

In Pittsburgh, Jim Morrison hit a two-run, two-out single in the ninth inning as the surging Pirates rallied to defeat Los Angeles and win their 11th game in the last 12.

Reds 6, Mets 1

On a night when Mike Torrez couldn't find the plate, the New Yor Mets' pitcher was appropriately hurt by a player named Walker.

"I've been through a few of those games in (Class) A ball," said Cincinnati's rookie catcher Dann Bilardello after Torrez walked 10 batters in 3 1-3 innings Thursday night.

Division III all-stars win

ODESSA — One of three Big Spring United Girls Softball all-stars team won in tournament play Thursday.

Jancy Cunningham got a complete game win and Tonya Gilstrap and Sheri Myrick had two hits each as the Division III (ages 14-16) all-stars nipped the Odessa Maroon 5-4.

In other games, Midland Red crushed the Division I (ages 8-10) all-stars 18-3 while the Odessa Gray downed Big Spring's Division II (ages 11-13) team 14-6.

The Division III team plays Odessa Black at 8 p.m. tonight. Earlier today, the Division I and II teams played in the loser's bracket of the double-elimination tournament.

Seniors in tourney finals

Both Big Spring Senior League all-star teams are aiming for championship honors tonight in the District IV tournament.

The 13-year-old team plays San Angelo West at 7 p.m. at Mathis Field in that division's championship game. In Ozona, Big Spring faces the host team, also at 7 p.m.

The 13-year-old team outscored San Angelo West 12-11 and nipped San Angelo South 5-3 in the tournament. The Seniors blasted San Angelo Western 18-2 in their opener.

Chippers practices slated

In preparation for the state fast-pitch softball tournament, Cotton's Chippers are working out at three times this weekend at Johnny Stone Park.

The first sessions are scheduled from 1-3 and 8-10 p.m. Saturday with a wrap-up workout set from 9-11 a.m. Sunday. The Chips will be one of 36 teams vying for state honors in Brenham

Pirates down Red Sox, 8-4

ABILENE — The Big Spring Red Sox dropped an 8-4 decision to the Abilene Pirates last weekend.

Steve Hedges led Big Spring with two hits. Beef Armendariz was tagged with the loss.

The Sox are now 20-7 overall and host the Pirates in a 1:30 p.m. doubleheader Sunday at the Roy Anderson Complex.

Coahoma sets tourney

COAHOMA — A softball tournament for church teams is scheduled here July 22-23.

Roster limit is 18 players per team and must be signed by the pastor of that particular church. Entry fee is $90.

Contact Noel Hull at 263-3108 or Rocky Vierra at 267-7773 to enter.

USFL team talking with Aggie

MEMPHIS, Ten. (AP) — Logan Young Jr. says he wants Charles Thornton of Texas A&M as general manager of the new United States Football League team in Memphis.

Thornton was scheduled to arrive in Memphis today to discuss the job with Young.

"It would be a big, big upset if we don't accomplish what I want to happen," Young said Thursday. "Charlie is one of the best known college administrators in the country, and I think he can move smoothly from college work to professional football. He's the one man I want to run my football team."

Thornton, 46, has been associate athletic director at Texas A&M since January 1982 when he moved from the University of Alabama where he held a similar position for 18 years.

Thornton was unavailable for comment about the USFL job.

"I don't think he would be coming here if he had any other thoughts than joining me," Young said.

Thornton's first job with the USFL would be to help select a coach for the Memphis team, but Young said he already had his own top choice.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to pretty much confine yourself to whatever worldly tasks and obligations or responsibilities face you so that you can build up your good name and credit.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Fine day to find out what your position is in the business world and how you can best improve it. Seek assistance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into the practical details of any new outlets you are contemplating to get into so that you know what you are doing.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Do only those practical things that are important and then get busy trying to please your loved one more.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A fine weekend to find out what allies expect of you and make a list of them. Handle these tasks with alacrity.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day for catching up on Saturday routines that you have been neglecting lately as well as other practical affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do only those things that are necessary and then out for recreation that you need to relieve tensions. Watch your money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get your home fixed up more as you want it to be and feel happier there in the future. Entertain tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get your shopping done more efficiently today and save time and money. Later enjoy the company of good friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your property for possible needed repairs and make any changes around the house you like.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to do whatever will improve your personal appearance and make you feel more sure of yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget about being gregarious now and study your finances and property and know how you stand.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk to a good friend who can assist you in gaining benefits you desire and should have. See long-lost friends tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to go ahead with a practical plan once every angle of it is well studied and understood. Be sure to give an academic education and then you can be sure your progeny will become successful.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Minister wants permanent home for church

By RHONDA WITT
Church Editor

Hoping to have his own church building some day, Arlie Knight, pastor of Faith Tabernacle, is temporarily holding services at 1200 W. 4th. Faith Tabernacle, a nondenominational church, is borrowing a building from Calvary Baptist Church.

Knight wants to see this church grow. "It's small starting out right now," he said. "Other ministers have had the church, but they never made a go of it. I'm the only one who has stayed around and tried to make a go of it." Since Knight has become pastor, the church has held four revivals in the last six months.

The church needs more members before it gets a building, but the Lord will lead him to get a building when it is time, Knight said.

"I was going to the Church of God but wasn't fulfilled," he said about making his decision to become a minister. "The Lord led me out of the Church of God, and I started running around with ministers. The Lord led me into the ministry."

...pastor of Faith Tabernacle

O.D. Robertson, a Church of God minister, was influential in Knight's decision as were Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Manuel, he said. The Manuels helped Knight study the Bible in preparation for his ministry.

Knight was ordained by Bob and Delores Williams of Kansas City, Kan. of Revival Crusades Corp.

"You really don't need much education when you get to trusting God," he said.

Special experiences in Knight's ministry occurs when people come to him for prayer, he said. Last week while in a store, a woman tapped Knight on the shoulder and asked him to pray for her husband, who was outside. Knight went outside and prayed with the man.

Having souls saved and praying for the sick is an important part of Knight's ministry, he said. "I like to help people and to work with children. It gets to my heart to see people on crutches and in wheelchairs."

Knight, who has lived in Big Spring since 1965, starting preaching three years ago. He has worked for Steer Tank Line, Berkley Homes, and as a school bus driver. He enjoys fishing and bowling.

Knight's family includes wife, Donna Marie, son, Arlie Jr., and stepsons, Michael and Daniel Sizn-bach. The Knights have six grandchildren.

Assembly criticized as it gathers

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Christians running that international visionary ship, Oikumene, moved into this western Canadian city beside the Pacific late this week, facing a storm of criticism.

They came for the sixth assembly of the World Council of Churches which opens Sunday, the first such gathering in eight years and the first one on the American continent in 19 years.

It comes amid sharpened attacks on the council, whose emblem is a ship with a cross as a masthead and the Greek word, "oikumene," meaning the whole inhabited earth symbolizing the journey toward Christian unity.

"There is evidence that grass-roots pressure for unity is growing stronger in many parts of the world," says the Rev. Michael Kinnamon, a U.S. Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) theologian and on the council's doctrinal commission staff.

He expressed hope the assembly, besides celebrating interchurch ties already achieved, "will renew the call for obedience to Christ's prayer that we may all be one."

More than 4,000 people, 900 of them official delegates of 303 denominations around the world totaling nearly 500 million believers, are expected for the 18-day assembly, July 24 through Aug. 10.

WORLD COUNCIL — The Rev. Arie R. Brouwer, new deputy general secretary of the World Council of Churches, is expected to attend the sixth assembly of the World Councils of Churches in Vancouver, British Columbia, July 24-Aug. 10.

But even before it started, criticisms rolled from the sidelines. A Switzerland-based evangelical group, Christian Solidarity International, began meeting, challenging the council to deal more strongly with religious repression.

"Our persecuted brothers and sisters are excluded from this major meeting," said the Rev. Hans Stuckelberger, president of the organization, which launched a series of meetings focused on victims of religious oppression.

The group readied a petition to the assembly, demanding attention to that issue in communist and other areas.

Other anti-council demonstrations and meetings were scheduled, featuring Northern Ireland's fiery preacher-politician Ian Paisley and fundamentalist Bob Jones Jr. of Bob Jones University in South Carolina, recently denied tax exemption in a U.S. Supreme Court decision because of racist policies.

The criticisms were heighted by recent magazine articles and a CBS TV show, claiming the council was pro-Marxist and funded armed black revolutionaries against minority white regimes.

The council denies the charges, calling them misleading or false, saying its aid to end racism goes only for humanitarian purposes and that it explicitly rejects communism.

The assembly, the council's supreme legislative body, has met every seven or eight years since the council's founding assembly in Amsterdam, the Netherlands in 1948.

The organization has more than doubled in size since then, growing from 147 mostly Western European and American Protestant denominations to 303 of them in 100 countries on every continent.

They include not just most of the world's major Protestant bodies but Eastern Orthodox, Anglican, Old Catholic, Pentecostal and independent denominations.

Third World churches as well as Eastern Orthodoxy, both in the West and communist orbit, have become strongly represented. Roman Catholicism, while not a full member, participates influentially in various aspects of the council.

Scores of special programs were planned to supplement the official assembly events including a film festival, public forums, coffee houses and a liturgical art exhibit provided by the Canadian Roman Catholic bishops.

Most assembly events, including the opening worships services and an afternoon of celebrative festivities Sunday, are on the campus of the University of British Columbia.

Houseparents needed for Rainbow Project

The Rainbow Project needs social workers, houseparents and relief houseparents to implement the program developed for each child placed in the Rainbow Project.

From the placement of an abused and neglect child to the time of the child's release from the Rainbow Project, he will be under the care of different individuals.

The first person the child will encounter is the social worker. The social worker is responsible for overseeing the placement of the child and the paperwork that accompanies placement and release. He also must work with the Department of Human Resources or other placement agency. While the child is under the social worker's supervision, a long term plan of care is developed.

Houseparents are responsible for working with children while they are placed at the Rainbow Project. Their duties include supervising the children in daily chores and carrying out the program devised by the social worker. They are responsible for the day to day operation of the household.

The houseparents ongoing contact with the children is important during the time they are placed at the Rainbow Project. Due to the demand on the houseparents, they are off duty for two days a week, during which relief houseparents take over the responsibility of overseeing the facility. Like the houseparents, the relief houseparents live on the premises.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed proposals addressed to the Honorable Mayor and City Council of the City of Big Spring, Texas, will be received at the office of the City Secretary, until 2:00 P.M., August 8, 1983, for the widening of Birdwell Street and repairs to certain streets which were cut for the construction of Water Works Improvements.
The project consists of widening Birdwell Street from Alabama Street to Purdue Street. The width of Birdwell Street will be increased from 40 feet to 50 feet back of curb. Widening will be on the east side. The west curb and gutter will remain in place. The widening project will comprise approximately 25,000 square yards of paving.
Existing streets which were open cut for water line replacement will be repaired by reconstructing the pavement between the curbs. The curb and gutter will remain in place. Four projects are included in the proposal as additive alternates. Any combination or none of these may be awarded with the base bid. The first project is for pavement reconstruction on Goliad Street. This work will be performed in the same manner as the street repairs and will comprise approximately 42,000 square yards of pavement.
Included for reconstruction with new base and pavement are the 11th Place — Settles Street intersection, and the 15th Street — Main Street intersection. These two projects will comprise approximately 2,500 square yards and 900 square yards of pavement, respectively.
The fourth project is the repair of pavement failures on Oak Glen Drive. These will be repaired by removing the failed pavement, constructing a stable foundation, and reconstructing the removed pavement. This project will comprise approximately 750 square yards of pavement.
Bidders must submit a Cashier's of Certified Check issued by a bank satisfactory to the Owner, or a Proposal Bond from a reliable Surety Company, payable without recourse to the order of the City of Big Spring, Texas, in an amount not less than five percent (5%) of the largest possible bid submitted as a guaranty that the Bidder will enter into a contract and execute bonds and guaranty in the forms provided within ten (10) days after notice of award of contract to him. Bids without the required check or Proposal Bonds will not be considered.
The successful Bidder will be required to furnish a Performance Bond and Payment Bond, each in the amount of the contract, written by a responsible Surety Company, authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and satisfactory to the Owner, as required by Article 5160, V.A.T.C.S., as amended by H.B. 344, passed by the 56th Legislature, Regular Session, 1959.

Cops enjoy 'Hill Street Blues'

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether they're on the beat, under cover or pushing paper, every Thursday night cops across America happily bring their work home with them — they watch "Hill Street Blues."

In interviews with several men and women in blue, the consensus was that NBC's award-winning police serial is so realistic it's like raising a mirror to their own jobs, experiences and feelings.

That contrasts with what Officer Ed Hagerty calls "the superman shows, such as 'Starsky & Hutch.' If guys ever busted into apartments and did things like they did, they'd be in trouble with Internal Affairs."

"I think 'Hill Street' is entirely authentic, even the internal-affairs investigations, corruption and brutal cops," said Bill Genet, a New York City policeman for 12 years and now financial secretary of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

You mean Sal Benedetto, the sadistic detective whose slimy hands were caught in the till, exists outside Hollywood? "Oh, yes. Oh, yes," said Genet.

Hagerty, a veteran New York City cop and now the PBA's recording secretary, said he knows everybody on "Hill Street."

"It shows things basically as they are — the human side, the humor, the banter about sex and sports," he said. "Doesn't everybody talk about sex and sports?"

Chris Sweeney, a policewoman in Madison, Wis., and now the department's media liaison, sees herself in Lucy Bates (Betty Thomas), the no-nonsense street cop. "She's the real thing," Ms. Sweeney said. "Angie Dickinson (who starred in 'Police Woman') was so off base."

Ms. Sweeney likes the way Lucy is human and, almost, one of the boys. "She's not a pin-up Miss America. She wears the same uniform as the men and even wears her equipment correctly.

"I also like the way she deals with her alleged ineffectiveness. She takes that and gives it right back. She can take a joke, but didn't like it when they presented her with a belly-dancer on her birthday."

Ms. Sweeney knows from the inside the part about women, by sexual definition, being incapable of handling a so-called man's job. When she was hired in 1975, she was one of four women officers.

"I once went to a domestic dispute," Ms. Sweeney said, "and the wife answered the door by saying: 'Yes dear, but I asked for an officer.' I've also been identified as a meter maid and a crossing monitor. Can you imagine, a crossing monitor who carries a gun?"

Lucy doesn't do too much rough-and-tumble stuff, leaving that for her male colleagues. That also rings true.

"What she lacks in physical size, she makes up in negotiating skill," Ms. Sweeney said. "You learn to be a very good talker. She represents that fairly."

Ms. Sweeney's favorite character is the grungy-but-cuddly Mick Belker (Bruce Weitz), who is known for his flying tackles and colorful language. "He behaves like a lot of us wish we could on the street," she said. "We wish we could say 'dirtbag' and 'dogbreath,' but we have to say 'ma'am' and 'sir.'"

Ms. Sweeney also remembers the emotion of Belker celebrating Christmas alone with his TV set.

"They see people as humans, who have families, divorces and drinking problems," she said, comparing "Hill Street" with fantasy police shows such as "CHiPs," "where the Greek gods are swinging singles who go out and play, without a care in the world, after duty hours."

Hagerty's favorites are Andy Renko (Charles Haid) and Detective Henry Goldblume (Joe Spano). Genet appreciates the accurate depiction of Capt. Frank Furillo (Daniel Travanti), "who understands the problems of his people and doesn't play politics with the higher-ups. Because he doesn't play that game, he's stayed where he is, and hasn't moved up. He's a real pro."

Being Furillo has its benefits — his wife, Joyce Davenport (Veronica Hamel). "But I like the sergeant's girlfriend (played by Barbara Babcock) better," Genet said.
