Chicago Detectives Grilled In Investigation Of Massacre

MEN ON DUTY DURING DEATH ACT SUMMONED

State's Attorney and Chief Of Police Issue Call For Sleuths

SUSPECT IS NAMED

'Jew' Bates, Known as Killer Hunted in Connection With Slayings

CHICAGO, Feb. 18. (UP)—All detective squads which were on duty last Thursday morning when seven men were slain in a beer war massacree, were summoned before Chief of Detectives John Egan for questioning tonight.

The nature of the summons was not disclosed by Egan's secretary, who said the chief and Assistant State's Attorney Stansbury were conducting the questioning.

The report that an automobile resembling a detective squad car was used by the killers of the Moran gangsters was believed to have some connection with Egan's desire to interrogate his men.

This information was linked up with the statement of a woman who said that two of the murderers who fled from a North Clark street garage after seven men had been lined up against a brick wall and shot down, were police uniforms.

Men Ordered Quizzed

More than 100 detectives were questioned. Each was asked to explain his movements during the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock of St. Valentine's day when the garage massacre took place.

Federal, city and county officials joined in the investigation of the murders and search for the slayers which was extended to other cities today. The county board voted to authorize State's Attorney John Swanson to offer a reward of $20,000 for the capture of the killers.

A heated discussion arose at a session of the city council at which the proposal to offer a reward of $10,000 was referred to the finance committee. During the discussion some of the councilmen blamed prohibition and resultant graft and corruption among officials as responsible for conditions that led to the beer war massacre.

Suspect Named

As gangland and relatives paid final respects to six of the seven victims of the massacre, police extended their search for the slayers to other cities today.

Woman Stoutly Denies She Poisoned Husband

BEAUMONT, Feb. 18. (AP)—Mrs. Earl Bridgeman, whom the state charges with poisoning her first husband, E. T. Carille, in Port Arthur last October, tonight resolutely denied guilt.

"I didn't kill him and I don't know who did," she cried to Sheriff W. W. Covington as he questioned her.

The state is working up its case on two theories—one, that she killed Carille to marry Bridgeman, two, that she killed him for his insurance.

LOST SCRIBE'S CORPSE FOUND

Harry Williams' Body Discovered in River

LAREDO, Texas, Feb. 18. (AP)—An international hunt for Harry Williams, Laredo reporter, ended here today when a body found in the Rio Grande was identified as that of the 24-year-old man.

American Consul Stephen Aguirre at Nuevo Laredo immediately telegraphed Washington for permission to allow officers and secret service men to enter Mexico and search for Williams' assailants. Although the body was so badly decomposed it was difficult to establish that Williams had been slain, officers said they inclined toward that theory since there were no indications of suicide.

Williams' body was found by Marcus Wermser, prominent onion grower. Investigation revealed a letter in a coat pocket, from Los Angeles, addressed to Williams. Two watches, a wrist watch and a pocket watch, the former stopped at 1:10 and the latter at 1:20, bore Williams' initials.

When Williams disappeared from Laredo several weeks ago, it was thought at first that he had started toward Muncie, Ind., his former home, but his failure to arrive there led to a search along the border.

Coatless, hatless, and with but 30 cents in his pocket, Williams walked out of the Hamilton hotel here at 1 a. m. on Jan. 19, a few hours before he would have drawn his weekly pay check. He was not seen alive afterward.

Williams had been across the Rio Grande to Nuevo Laredo with a friend, and they had returned to the United States side of the river before the international bridge closed at midnight. Williams was supposed to return to his hotel, but investigation showed he had not gone to bed, and his clothing had not been disturbed. The clerk saw him enter the hotel and leave a few minutes later.

About six weeks before his disappearance Williams had come to Laredo from Muncie, where he was employed on the Muncie Press for nearly two years and a half.

CLUB ESTATES RESIDENTS TO EMPLOY PATROL

Numerous Burglaries Cause Suburban Home Owners To Organize

HIRE SPECIAL MEN

Citizens Hope to End Depredations of Prowlers By New Protection

Recent burglaries and frequent prowlings about homes in the Country Club estates led residents of the addition to take steps toward self protection Monday night in a mass meeting when they voted to employ special police to patrol the section, according to Harry Hines, oil operator and one of the residents of the Country Club estates.

Committees to hire the special policemen and to organize the Country Club estates residents into a permanent association were appointed at the meeting, Mr. Hines asserted.

$2,000 Losses Reported

Four burglaries, netting the loss of property valued at nearly $2,000, none of which has been reported to be recovered by the police, have been committed in the section during the last two weeks. No persons have been arrested in connection with any of the robberies, according to police reports.

Police have received almost daily calls from residents in the Country Club estates section, investigating suspicious characters who have roved the addition since the burglaries in that district started, it was learned.

Three homes were entered on the night of Feb. 10. Burglars stole a diamond hat pin, a fur neckpiece, and other articles, all of which were valued between $600 and $700 from the home of Carter McGregor, 2025 Berkley Drive, and two valuable fur coats and other property from Mr. Hines' home at 2100 Berkley Drive.

Burglar Thwarted

The man was disturbed in the act of burglarizing the home of W. P. Ferguson and ran from the house after obtaining $1.50 in cash.

Several articles of valuable clothing were stolen when the home of Frank P. Timberlake, 2107 Miramar avenue, was entered three nights later.

The special patrol will assume its duties as soon as it is possible, Mr. Hines said.

The committee appointed to hire the special police is composed of Luke McCrory, L. H. Cullum, L. P. Hammond, and Luther Hoffman.

A committee composed of Luther Hoffman, Frank Timberlake, C. E. McCutchen, Walter Cline, J. D. Bright, James McKinna, and Dr. W. A. Parker was appointed to organize the Country Club estates residents into a permanent body.

COURT DENIES M'CLOSKEY PLEA

Congressman - Elect Must Face Criminal Trial

AUSTIN, Feb. 18 (AP)—Augustus J. McCloskey of San Antonio, congressman-elect from the 14th Texas district, was forced to criminal trial on an indictment charging he altered returns from the Nov. 6 election when Judge J. D. Moore today overruled a motion to dismiss the indictments because of technical flaws. Both prosecution and defense announced ready for trial and an effort to obtain a jury was begun.

The trial was brought here on a change of venue from Bexar county (San Antonio). At the time of the election, McCloskey was county judge and the returns which on their face will send him to Washington to replace Tom Connally, resigned, to become junior senator to Harry M. Wurzbach, passed through the congressman-elect's hands.

The defense contended that "congressman" was not a legal term and since the indictments, five of them, mentioned McCloskey as a candidate for that office, they had no legal standing.

Indications late today were that the first testimony might be delayed a day or so, because of time necessary to empanel a jury.

HIGHER POWER TO COMMITTEE ON PATRONAGE

Probe of Office Awards To Be Widened by Senate's Resolution

TEXAN ASKS HEARING

Creager Says Texas Leaders Of G. O. P. Can Refute Booze Charges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—Authority to investigate appointments to all federal offices, including postmasterships, was granted the senate committee in a resolution adopted today by the senate.

Extension of the authority of this committee was asked by Chairman Brookhart after Representative Wurzbach, Republican, Texas, had sought a hearing for witnesses who wanted to deny charges that liquor had been sold openly in Texas hotels after dry agents had been bribed.

The resolution was introduced by Senator George, Democrat, Georgia.

CREAGER ASKS TO TESTIFY

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Feb. 18. (AP)—A group of Texas Republicans will ask that they be allowed to testify before the senate election investigations committee, R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for Texas, said today.

Creager sent a telegram to Chairman Brookhart of the committee advising the Iowa senator that the Texas delegation would visit Brookhart on March 2. The Texans at that time will request that they be permitted to testify before the committee, Creager said. In justice to the Republican leaders of Texas, the delegation should be heard, Creager told Chairman Brookhart.

20 May Appear

Creager, in his telegram, said that from 10 to 20 responsible leaders of the Republican party would appear in Washington on March 2, asking to be heard not only on dry charges but on money raised by the contributions committee.

His telegram: "You have seen fit to permit a disappointed office-seeker to testify before your committee, and his testimony to be given publicity through the press that a former prohibition agent had told him that a negro bellboy in the Adolphus hotel had told the prohibition agent that the hotel was under my protection against dry raiders.

Wurzbach Heard

"You have summoned and heard the testimony of Congressman Wurzbach, bitter political and personal enemy of mine. . . . Wurzbach's testimony was grossly misleading and untrue. The money that has been raised by the Republican organization in Texas during the last seven years was raised by voluntary contributions.

"The majority of that raised has been contributed by men who were not office-holders and were not office-seekers. The largest contributors during the last seven years have been such men as T. P. Lee of Houston, Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, Eugene Nolte of Seguin, F. L. Thomas of San Antonio and myself, none of whom are office-holders or have sought office. Wurzbach's statement that office-holders have been compelled to contribute is unsupported by evidence and false. You have not summoned a single responsible head of the Republican organization in this state, which is being slandered and libeled.

"I, accompanied by the gentlemen above named, and from 10 to 20 other responsible leaders of our party organization in Texas, in the absence of a summons of any character or invitation from you to be heard, will voluntarily go to Washington, arriving at the 1st or 2nd of March. We shall ask the privilege of appearing and testifying before your committee."

Oklahoma Farm Girl's Dream of Being Princess Leads to $50,000 Balm Suit

Amarillo's Leading Shuck and Chile Man Entangled in Pretty Maid's Demand for Balm

AMARILLO, Texas, Feb. 18 (UP)—Habib Khan, Amarillo's wealthiest hot tamale vendor and alleged prince of a royal Arghanistan family, will be the defendant in a $50,000 breach of promise suit, if a petition filed in district civil court here is granted.

Miss Imogene Smith, pretty 17-year-old Oklahoma farm girl, believes that she suffered $50,000 worth of humiliation and embarrassment last week when Khan broke off the engagement which would have made her a princess—maybe.

First to Naturalize

Khan is said to have been the first Afghan to take out naturalization papers in this country. He left his native land 30 years ago and enlisted as a soldier in the British army. Later, he claims, he gave up military life and exported silks from Japan, selling them in the Alaskan gold mining country.

A profitable side line for the erstwhile prince has been selling the fiery hot tamale. His two-brass containers have been a familiar sight on downtown Amarillo streets for the past nine years, and he is reputed to have amassed a fortune of $300,000 at this business.

Recently Khan announced he planned to leave this country about March 1 to return to his native land to join forces with his boyhood friend, King Amanullah, in the latter's drive to modernize Afghanistan. He was said already to have prospects for himself and his bride-to-be.

Girl Claims Proposal

In her petition, Miss Smith charges that she met Khan in an oriental rug shop in which she was working. Two months after they met, she says, he proposed to her and was accepted.

The girl's father, W. Smith, is a farm tenant in Greer county, Oklahoma. Part of the wedding agreement, she says she had with Khan was that the father was to have a farm of his own and that her sister, in high school at Lawton, Okla., would receive financial assistance to continue her education.

BORAH REPLIES TO JIM REED'S 'CRIME' SHAFT

Oratorical Giants Present Respective Views on U. S. Liquor Problems

HANDCLASP ENDS IT

Jammed Gallery and Chamber Witness Reed's Gesture of Friendship

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—Two masters of oratory—Jim Reed of Missouri, and William E. Borah of Idaho—took opposing sides in the senate today and for three and a half hours spoke to a listening chamber on the problems of prohibition.

Reed denounced the law in a continuation of the speech he began Saturday. Borah made a thundering appeal for enforcement. Neither was interrupted and the promise of thrust and counter-thrust which had filled the galleries faded as the Missourian walked over to the seat of the senator from Idaho at the end of the discussion and grasped his hand.

Borah Takes Floor

Reed began his speech today by again describing the law as a "hideous crime." After two hours he took his seat and Borah claimed the floor. Reed was on his feet again when the Idahoan had concluded but Senator Heflin, of Alabama was ahead of him. What he ever Reed had intended to say went unsaid.

The silver-haired Missourian retires from the senate March 4 by his own dictate, and, as is to express an eulogy on behalf of the senate, Senator Borah at the outset of his remarks expressed regret at the passing of the man "whose industry, courage and genius have placed him among the foremost men in his day."

Reed Shakes Hands

Sitting as usual beside Sheppard, of Texas, father of the 18th amendment, Reed, his face flushed, listened to his colleague on the Republican side of the aisle and when he was unable to get in a reply he walked over to shake hands with Borah at the finish.

There was nothing personal in their discussion. Reed in his measured words pleaded for state control as the answer to law violation and as a means of ridding America of its "snoopers and spies, its sneaks and criminals, who have been employed with our money to haunt our doors."

Borah, in thundering tones, his hair dishevelled as he shook his head and pounded home his points, pleaded for observance of the constitution.

Prohibition is not a problem of 10 days or of 10 years, he said, and, "possibly we can not prevent the use of alcohol entirely, but shall we surrender or shall we fight?" He answered: "Fight."

State Control Opposed

He said state control would multiply the problems of national prohibition 48 times. Later Caraway,

First Task of Debt Parley Appears To Be Enabling Germans to Pay Off

By GEORGE W. HINMAN Jr.
Record News Special Cable

PARIS, Feb. 18. (US)—Necessity for stimulating Germany's productivity so that the Reich may be able to meet the heavy burden of reparations payments, loomed today as a primary problem to be considered by the experts committee.

Obviously impressed by the German presentation of the difficult economic situation involved in the present adverse trade balance, the experts resolved as business men to first concentrate their attention on the matter of eliminating obstacles to the Reich's economic improvement.

Greater production of raw materials within Germany, including the rehabilitation of agriculture, is regarded as essential to wiping out the apparently adverse trade balance by reducing imports for manufacturing purposes, and at the same time increasing exports.

Comparatively simple measures are believed capable of reversing the present unfavorable trend of German trade so as to eliminate the greatest difficulty now confronting the Reich.

There is also hope that consideration of the question of German productivity may lead smoothly and inevitably to a decision on the controversial problem of reparations Annuities.

Wichita Falls Remains Near Top In Fire Rating Despite Small Slash

Wichita Falls was given a 12 per cent "good fire record" credit for the year 1929 by an order of the State Fire Insurance commission received by Fire Chief J. E. McClure.

The credit percentage is 9 per cent below that awarded the city for 1928, Chief McClure said, the city having been given the maximum rating of 15 per cent in 1928. Increased fire losses during the past year are responsible for the lowered credit, he explained, but the 12 per cent given remained among the highest in the state.

The award governs the rates of fire insurance on all Wichita Falls property except automobiles, Chief McClure explained. He expressed the hope that additional care would reduce losses during the year and give the city the maximum credit again for 1930.

MASTERS TALK ON DRY LAWS

Reed and Borah Present Prohibition Views

Democrat, Arkansas, called attention to a statement given out by Reed at Houston at the time the Missourian was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"The same senator," Caraway declared, "who has for the last two days been denouncing hypocrites, gave out an interview at Houston in which he himself offered to lead the drys to victory."

The floor was crowded with house members who had deserted their side of the capitol. Steps leading down to the seats in the gallery were jammed with men and women. More stood in the doorways in defiance of senate rules. Outside long lines waited with a forlorn hope that perhaps some would leave before the oratorical display was over.

Crowd Held Rapt

Disappointment was their lot, however, for scarcely a soul stirred throughout the nearly four hours that Reed and Borah held the floor. The air in the poorly ventilated chamber became heavy but still the crowd, listening closely and with rapt attention, stayed on until the final word had been spoken.

At the outset, Reed informed the senate he was jesting Saturday when he threatened to make public the names of men who "vote dry apd drink wet." He assured his colleagues with a smile, "I would not violate the confidence of my friends or the hospitality of my neighbors by ever telling anything about them when they were merely trying to get a bit of sunshine out of life."

Missourian Fiery

And then the Missourian, with biting sarcasm tore into the prohibition law; accused the Anti-Saloon league with substituting the doctrine of force for that of reason; declared that the "great races" had been addicted to use of stimulants; denounced corruption in government as an outgrowth of the liquor law and finally pleaded for state control.

Borah agreed with his colleague in denunciation of those who vote for the prohibition law and "live in violation of the law;" he denied, though, that this law was "the crime of crimes;" he insisted that the liquor interests were seeking to break down this law as they have "every other law aimed at controlling liquor," and he belittled the argument for state control, declaring it had been tested and failed.

Penalty Bill Basis

The bill of Jones, Republican, Washington, to increase penalties for violation of the dry law was the vehicle that served to bring the discussion before the senate and although debate was scheduled to be limited after 4 p. m., it went over until tomorrow.

Answering Reed's contention that the dry law was a crime against the people Borah declared "it may have been a mistake; the people of the United States may have erred in their judgment—time and experience alone will demonstrate that fact, but it was not a crime.

"The people of the United States," he continued, "were in sincerity struggling with that which was deemed to be one of the great evils of modern civilization. The object was an exalted one; the purpose embodied something of the ideal—possibly in the end it was impracticable.

". . . But this much I will venture to say—the 18th amendment will stand in our constitution until the moral forces of the United States decide that there is something better presented to control the liquor question."

ILLNESS KEPT HER IN THE HOUSE FOR 6 DREARY MONTHS

"I had just about given up hope of ever being well again when I heard about Sargon. It is just wonderful what it has done for me.

MRS. J. W. MANESS

"I was in a dreadfully rundown condition as a result of stomach trouble, an inactive liver and constipation. I became so weak I was confined to the house for six months and for four months was on a milk diet. My food would not digest and I suffered terribly with gas and cramping pains. Awful sick headaches forced me to bed for hours at a time. I lost weight and strength and my color was unhealthy. I was so nervous that life was a misery. I simply couldn't sleep well at nights. I'd roll and toss so, and by morning I felt worse than when I went to bed. I lacked energy and my vitality was low. I couldn't even make up beds or do the other housework.

"After the first few doses of Sargon I felt better. My appetite returned and I eat anything I want. I don't suffer with gas or cramping pains any more, nor do I have those dreadful headaches. My nervousness is entirely gone and I sleep just fine, getting up fully refreshed and full of energy. Doing the housework now seems just like play compared to what it used to. My liver seems to be in fine shape and I'm rid of constipation. My color is good and I've gained six pounds.

"Sargon did more for me in a few weeks than all the other medicines and treatments put together did in years."

The above statement was made recently by Mrs. J. W. Maness, 1510 Pearson street, Houston, Texas.

Sargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co., Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 main store, and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; and in Electra from Lough's Drug store.—Adv.

Oklahoma Legislature Forgets Duty In Impeachment Zeal, Says Faulk

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 18 (UP)—Claiming the 12th legislature is making "an unholy and unwise waste of public funds," Representative Dave Faulk of Marshall county, last vestige of militant Johnston strength in the house, issued a biting statement to the United Press today.

Unyielding faith in Henry S. Johnston was expressed in Faulk's dynamic message, addressed to the "people of Marshall county and Oklahoma."

Believes Johnston Honest

"I never before saw anything to compare with the action of this general assembly in its unholy and unwise waste of public funds while trying to destroy Johnston's character," Faulk said.

"If I believed that a single dishonest dollar ever rested in the palm of Henry Johnston I would be the first man in the house of representatives to act for impeachment."

"The chief executive has been true to his trust. He lives in an atmosphere of honesty and integrity and his every official act disclosing a theory of patriotism and devotion to duty calculated to win the commendation of the God-serving, law loving citizenship."

Faulk said the "designing" Democrats desiring the governor's political elimination "cared nothing about the welfare of the Democratic party."

Nothing Done Yet

"They proved that when the speaker gave out most of the committee assignments to the 47 Republican members and it now looks like they are going to carry out their 'trade' still further by allowing this Republican minority to draft and pass a new law under which the county and state election will be held in Oklahoma.

"We have been in session now more than 40 days and not a thing worth a dime to the people of Oklahoma has been accomplished.

"The house of representatives stays in session only about 30 minutes, just long enough to hear the chaplain say his prayer, then it adjourns until the following day so everybody may go over to the senate chamber where the governor is being tried by the court of impeachment.

"The charges brought against him by a handful of political enemies are not serious enough to convict a nigger for stealing a watermelon.

"But the 'bunch' has passed the word down the line 'get Henry Johnston at any cost.'

"Legislation can wait, they say. Holloway can call an extra session, 'get Johnston' is the cry from morning 'til night."

"Tattle-Tale" Example

"As a sample of the minds of men who are fighting Governor Johnston I call your attention to the fellow who swore on the witness stand the other day that he was once a guest at the home of one of the supreme court judges—and this fellow told a great big 'secret.' He said the judge furnished his guests with excellent home brew."

Faulk said this "tattle-tale" ought to have been the only one to suffer the terrible effects of the home brew.

"Any man who is small enough to break bread with a supposed bosom friend and expose the home secrets of that friend is so all-fired small that God almighty himself will fail to see him when finally he appears before the judgment bar.

"Do you want such cattle as that to take charge of our state government?"

ditions existing in the air service branch of the regular army. Rank should be commensurate with control.

"It is certainly a manifest injustice that promotions in the flying branch of the service should be compelled to follow the advancement ratio of other branches. Hazards are greater and promotions should be proportionately swifter.

"Stagnation now exists in the aviation promotions. This should be remedied and I am in favor of any measure which will supply the remedy."

The colonel declined to indicate his own personal ideas for improving the promotion rate in the air corps. He added:

"This should come from the authorized source. The authorities that have made a study of the conditions certainly know more about the remedies than I do. Every aviator knows the ills of the service The remedies have been studied and are known also."

While the "flying colonel" withheld his endorsement of the Furlow bill by name, he expressed his reasons for so doing.

During his overnight stay in Washington, Lindbergh spent some time in conference with William P. MacCracken Jr., assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics. Neither would discuss the subject of their talk. "Lindy" also slipped in with his customary simplicity on the capital. He called on Representative Furlow, Republican, of Minnesota, a warm personal friend and an advocate of the measure which Lindbergh has vigorously supported.

CITY DEFERS TRACTION VOTE

Change in Rate Raise Brings Week's Delay

The third reading of the proposed ordinance to raise the fare of electrical vehicles operated by the Wichita Falls Traction company was deferred at the meeting of the city council Monday night until its next meeting.

The original measure, asking for a fare of 7 cents for all persons except school children for six months or thereafter until repealed, passed its first reading but was amended on the second reading so that the 7-cent fare would last for six months. Unless established in a new franchise or renewed at the end of six months the ordinance would automatically become void.

The delay of the measure came after a split between members of the council for retaining the original form of the measure and the strong urge of officials of the traction company for passage of the bill in its original form. The council voted in favor of carrying the matter over until the next meeing for further discussion and until all of its members could be present.

A permit to establish a grocery store at 2305 Preston street was denied H. E. Collier on a petition from the residents of that section of the city asking its refusal.

Woman of Slender Hips and Shapely Legs Can Write Her Own Fashions

PARIS, Feb. 18. (US)—The woman of slender hips and well shaped legs may write her own fashion ticket for the summer of 1929.

This, in a few words, summarizes the final impression of one who during the last month has seen the best the Paris fashion monarchs had to offer at the series of bewilderingly attractive showings which reached a climax this week in a massed presentation at "Li Grand Bal De La Couture," at the historic Paris opera.

In brief, while hips must be slender and skirts short, for the rest the true fashion artist is free to design a costume to meet the personality and fancy of the individual. The general atmosphere is one of great freedom.

Junior Safety Councils Teach Lessons of Caution to Students

School Pupils Have Own Organizations and Meetings Under Plan Sponsored by Leaders Here

Basing their program upon the premise that the number of future accidents will best be reduced by teaching children in the public schools to exercise caution, the members of the junior division committee of the Wichita Falls Safety council are organizing councils as rapidly as possible in all schools of the city lower than high school classification.

Buttons Presented

Representatives of the commitee already have visited a number of schools here, it was said, and have met with enthusiasm on the part of the students. A sustained interest and substantial efforts to carry out the purpose of the organization have featured the junior councils thus far formed, leaders stated.

Officers for the Junior Safety councils are chosen from the student body, and meetings are held weekly for the study of safety and accident prevention from a course of instruction furnished by the National Safety council and approved by local school authorities. Members of the councils are given buttons certifying membership in the organization, and upon satisfactory completion of the course of study, are given a second button so designed as to constitute a diploma. The course is planned to teach care in the home, fire and traffic accident prevention, and ability to care for one's self in an emergency.

Variety in Program

Officers of the parent organization who have visited the schools for the purpose of organizing the junior councils have presented the matter in student assemblies. Efforts have been made to include humorous and musical entertainment in the first meetings. Following the discussion of "The Penalty of Carelessness," pupils were asked to pledge themselves to use greater care, especially in crossing streets.

The Junior Safety council committee is composed of Frank B. Creighton, Leon Deaton and W. S. Abbott. Others who have assisted in the formation of councils in various schools include Julian Bobo, Harry Hines, P. A. Martin, Lester Jones, president of the council, and P. M. Cordell.

Is your health record as good as the Martin's?

"Every family could save a lot of sickness by using LIFEBUOY," says Mr. A. V. Martin "Its antiseptic lather removes germs"

"I LIKE Lifebuoy first because of what it is—a real health soap," says this enthusiastic father, Mr. A. V. Martin.

"We haven't had a day of sickness in our home for years. Then, too, if I get a cut or scratch, the first thing I do is see that it's washed out clean with Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather. My wife says that as a complexion soap, nothing compares with it—her clear skin is the best proof of that.

"As for the youngsters, I'm sure that both of them, playing with other playmates, touching toys, games, etc., are bound to pick up germs and they really need an antiseptic soap to help keep them safe.

"I think every family could save a lot of sickness by following our health rule—a sudsy washup with Lifebuoy right after work or play and always before eating."—Mr. A. Victor Martin, 3803 Gwynn Oak Avenue, Baltimore, Md.

A real health habit

Mr. Martin's letter is typical of thousands written us. Millions of parents know there's greater safety in Lifebuoy's germ-removing lather.

Your own family, too, needs health protection. Germs constantly get on hands from many things we must touch daily in common with others, such as books, money, telephones. But Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather removes germs. It guards against the 27 germ diseases that the famous Life Extension Institute and other health authorities tell us hands may spread.

Your family has to wash with some toilet soap anyway, so why not use Lifebuoy which gives added health protection—at no extra cost? You'll quickly learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant extra-clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Adopt the Lifebuoy health habit today.

REPORT RAPS JAILS IN U. S.

State Care of Prisoners Is Recommended

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Severely criticising jails and other local penal institutions throughout the country, a committee of the national crime commission, in a report made public today, recommended that the "individual states take over the care of all their convicted prisoners."

The subcommittee, headed by Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, reported that nearly nine-tenths of all commitments are made to local institutions such as county and municipal jails, workhouses farms, chain gangs and camps, and charged that these constitute "a penal institution hoary with the age of centuries, an institution which England abandoned over 50 years ago."

The report listed the "distinguished features" of the ordinary jail as: "Filth, the herding together of convicted criminals and persons awaiting trial, the mingling of well and foully diseased individuals, the close association of young and old offenders, the prevalence of bedbugs and lice, universal idleness, the prevailing practice of subjecting women prisoners to the oversight of male attendants, and the scheme which one finds in many states of paying the jailer a per diem sum for boarding each prisoner without specifying how much, or shall we say how little, food is given to him."

In support of its claims the committee cited testimony of individuals and excerpts from official reports from several states and declared "we have been informed by many reliable persons that they represent a fair picture of at least 85 per cent of the jails and other local institutions as they are today."

"The plan we offer for the remedying of this evil situation," the report continued, "is of a twofold character involving, on the one hand, a strengthening of state control and on the other a building up of county and municipal machinery."

Paving Contractors' Hold Upon Johnston Explained at Probe

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 18. (UP)—Paving contractors as early as January, 1927, boasted they controlled Gov. Henry S. Johnston, B. B. Wyatt, Shawnee oil man, testified today before the house general investigation committee. Wyatt, who claimed to be a friend of Governor Johnston for 20 years, also testified concerning the domination of Johnston by Mrs. Hammonds.

The contractors' boast was made at a banquet in the Skirvin hotel, Wyatt testified. The contractors said they had control of Johnston and would switch concrete paving to asphalt Wyatt testified.

Wyatt testified Harr Canady, Vic Gray, Tulsa contractors, and Ed Seamans were sponsors of the affair.

Wyatt in testifying about Mrs. Hammonds, said he was forced to use an assumed name to get in touch with the governor by telephone, although he was doing special investigating work for Johnston at that time.

Roy West, chief clerk of the board of affairs, and Adjutant General Charles F. Barrett testified about the removal of a box of records from the governor's office at the time of his suspension.

F. M. Dudley, county attorney of Carter county, explained his indosement of the Crosthwaite pardon. He said he would not have recommended the pardon had he been informed of the true facts. He was told Crosthwaite was a paroled convict who had made good with an oil company. He did not know the convict was a fugitive.

RENO EXPOSED IN NEW BOOK

Vanderbilt Jr., Writes of Divorce Seekers

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (US)—Intimate details of the fashionable Reno divorce colony are given in Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.'s book, "Reno," which will be released by the Macaulay company Wednesday.

Discussing his book today, Mr. Vanderbilt said:

"Having gone through the divorce colony myself and being tagged with one of those names that everyone seems to consider news, no matter what the bearer of it does, I probably was able to see things and learn more than the ordinary reporter.

"I have come to like the colony very much. Its people are not all as inhuman and selfish as others seem to think they are. Everyone of them I have found is a sincere searcher after love and happiness. I am borne out in this contention by Judge George A. Bartlett, the famous "divorce master" of Reno.

"The divorcees have their own customs and traditions. For instance, the Truckee river is supposed to wash away one's martial past. When a woman is granted her final decree of freedom she hurries to the river with her friends—and often with the man she is to marry on the morrow—and, standing on the bank, throws her wedding ring into the waters.

"Another custom is the famous Reno Blarney stone. This is on one of the white columns of the courthouse facade. It is one of the fixed customs that when a lady gets her decree she stops and kisses the old courthouse that gave her her freedom. There is a pink smudge that gets redder every year."

Ugly Lass Will be Transformed Into Modern 'Cleo' at Beauty Show

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (UP)—One ugly girl is going to have the time of her life and will be more beautiful than she ever dreamed of being when the national beauty exhibition is held in Grand Central palace March 27.

The plan to make an ugly woman beautiful has resulted from a claim made by Heywood Broun, columnist, who declared that looks or lack of them were a matter of accident and that beauty aids could not make a woman beautiful.

The exposition plans to make a demonstration a feature incident of their display, and has started looking for the girl. No girl who has any claim to beauty will be accepted. The contest is open to the world, with red heads only barred. The exposition did not explain the clause against the titians.

Marriage Laws 'Abuses' Scored

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Nine recommendations designed to correct what were termed "startling abuses" of marriage laws and practices were made today by the Russell Sage foundation.

The foundation said that while the recommendations do not refer to divorce, the adoption of the steps would "avoid many of the tragic results which courts of domestic relations and divorce courts record."

In urging enforcement of statutes and closer scrutiny of candidates for marriage, the foundation recommended establishment of a marriage supervision bureau, a five-day notice of intention to marry before the license be issued, a requirement that the candidate obtain the license where the woman lived and abolition of the fee system for payment of persons who issue licenses.

The foundation also urged that states now permitting girls of 12 years of age to marry with their parents' consent, raise the minimum age to 16.

Adults Contract Children's Diseases

Adults can, and do, contract many children's diseases. And, usually, they suffer from them much more than children do. For instance, many adult contract worms, an ailment usually associated with children. Sometimes they suffer intensely and take expensive medical treatments, without realizing that worms are the cause of the troubles. Yet, the symptoms are the same as in children, loss of appetite and weight, grinding the teeth and restless sleep, itching of the nose and anus and abdominal pains. And, the same medicine that surely and harmlessly expels round and pin worms from children will do the same for adults — White's Cream Vermifuge, which you can get at Miller Drug Store.

EXTRA SESSION SHIFT OPPOSED

Miller Is Against Holding Meet at Houston

AUSTIN, Feb. 18. (AP)—Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller said he would hold out of order a resolution introduced in the senate today asking for the holding of the first called session of the legislature in Houston.

The concurrent resolution was offered by Senator W. R. Cousins of Beaumont. It was laid on the table.

Cousins asserted that transfer of the legislative scene of action would enable the legislators to get away from capitol lobbyists and would give them an opportunity to become acquainted with the gulf coastal region.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

Dr. B. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 83

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practic, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, billiousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Many is the family today that makes it a rule always to have a bottle of this perfect preparation in the house. Keep it handy and observe these three simple rules of health; keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open.

Why not try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin today?—Adv.

At 3 in the morning, IRVIN COBB finally said: "I'll Do It!"

IT was at the Crowley Club, down on the Gulf, in Louisiana, and we were getting up at 3 A.M. to shoot ducks.

From the time we boarded our train at New York, Irvin and I had been discussing a novel in which Irvin might tell of a phase of American life which had passed. It was a phase of life so rich in color and romance that I pleaded with him to write that novel, because he was the only writer capable of treating the subject with knowledge, understanding and feeling . . .

A novel which would tell the story of Bourbon whisky, and which would give a picture of the Bourbon aristocracy of Kentucky. An aristocracy composed of the proudest, yet the most hospitable people this country ever produced. An aristocracy which made Kentucky famous for its fair women, its fast horses, its fine whisky.

Irvin was afraid of it. "Some will think it's an argument in favor of liquor and condemn me," he said; "others will be as positive it's an argument against prohibition."

"If it's as impartial as that," said I, "it will be a great novel."

It is a great novel. There's humor. And there's tenderness. And there's that intangible something which Mark Twain got into his writings.

You'll like it. It's just the sort of story—and story-telling—which makes Cosmopolitan different from any other magazine in the world, a magazine so distinctive that people all over America are glad to pay 35 cents for it. [R. L.]

Bosdari Romance Comes to an End

(Copyright 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Talulah Bankhead, who is now engaged in film work in Berlin, has definitely severed her engagement to wed Count Anthony di Bosdari, Universal Service learned tonight from close friends of the two.

When the engagement was announced in November Talulah set the date of the wedding as immediately after the closing of "Her Cardboard Lover," in which the American actress was appearing at the Lyric theater here.

The show closed, and it was then said the wedding would be at Christmas. Just before the new year Talulah accompanied Count Anthony to Berlin, and it was understood they would be married in the German capital.

who said that SUGAR spoils the complexion?

Good food promotes good health

WHERE do all the food and dieting fads come from? As an eminent medical specialist says, "Of all the fads which have afflicted mankind, none seems more difficult to explain than the desire of American women for the barber pole figure."

There's another prejudice that to us seems equally wrong. It is that sugar in the diet ruins the complexion.

That isn't true. Overeating of any food might easily impair the health and the complexion. And so might undereating. Girls, women and men should not starve themselves in order to reduce weight. A study of the workers in 25 eastern department stores revealed that much of the illness was due to poor nutrition, especially to the neglect of a suitable noon lunch. You cannot starve yourself and keep well, or keep your good looks.

Eat a variety of foods, regularly, and remember that nothing takes the place of sugar for making other foods enjoyable. Sweetness is nature's perfect flavor. Eat cereals, grapefruit, and all kinds of raw, fresh and canned vegetables and fruits, sweetened for enjoyment. Complexion is a question of health and healthful eating. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute. —Adv.

MRS. HOOVER IS TALKED ABOUT

How She Will Take Her Social Duties Is Discussed

By CORINNE RICH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (US)—As "moving day" into the White House draws near for the Hoovers, speculation is current as to how Mrs. Hoover will take her many new intricate and arduous social duties.

Well educated and cultured, a cosmopolite used to all forms of foreign and domestic social etiquette, and accustomed to the specific duties of a Washington "official hostess," Mrs. Hoover can of course be counted on to do the perfect thing always.

Real Individual

But those who know her say that she is a very direct person, valuing many things above social rounds, and that she has never permitted her husband's position in public life to force her into doing things which she finds boring. So she may weed out a lot of customs that other first ladies have felt they must follow.

Mrs. Hoover like Mrs. Coolidge really enjoys meeting people and the new first lady undoubtedly will have her days chock full.

Aside from acting hostess at the four state dinners, the four state receptions, and the innumerable other dinners, luncheons, and teas that are on the White House calendar every season, Mrs. Hoover will be called upon to lend her presence and her name to countless enterprises and movements.

Many Duties Await

In addition Mrs. Hoover will be asked to meet many small groups of women "by appointment." She also will receive thousands of women and men gathered in the capital for this convention or that. She will be called upon to dispense Christmas baskets for the Salvation Army, buy the first Christmas seals and the first "buddy poppy" on veterans' tag day.

She will be invited to plant memorial trees, lay, goodness knows, how many cornerstones, pop in and out of this charity ball and that, open flower shows, auto shows, radio shows, christen airplanes, and ships, attend first performances of circuses, opera, baseball games, autograph photographs for trade unions, and shake hands and shake hands and shake hands.

With so many duties of this nature faithfully performed, Mrs. Coolidge has had but little time for the things that she may have wanted to do. Little time like reading or shopping or going to the theater, little things like writing personal letters or digging in the garden. Mrs. Hoover will face the same problems.

Enjoys People

The present first lady is known for a characteristic spontaneous graciousness that seems to emanate from her very real pleasure in social contacts. One feels that whatever her duties, they have not been onerous.

Mrs. Hoover may change a number of White House social customs, and with the skill and efficiency for which she is noted will probably reserve as much time for herself as is possible for the first lady of the land. For one thing, there will undoubtedly be an unusual number of "house guests." The Hoovers have a world-wide acquaintance due to the president-elect's many activities in foreign lands.

W. C. Pitts was named to succeed Mr. Montgomery in charge of the office. Alvin Lange, formerly clerk at the Marchman hotel, has accepted a similar position at the Holt, and Mrs. U. V. Curlee has been engaged as assistant clerk.

Future business plans have not been announced by Mr. Holt, it was stated.

Kiwanis Members Tried For 'Ignorance of Rules'

Education in the laws of the Kiwanis club was applied to several members by Julian Bobo, chairman of the laws and regulations committee, in the form of mock trials at the regular weekly meeting held Monday noon at the Kemp hotel.

Mayor J. W. Akin occupied the bench to hear Mr. Bobo's prosecution, which involved the examination of prominent local Kiwanians. All were found guilty of ignorance of the by-laws and regulations as charged.

Rex Watland, who will soon move to Florida, was extended a rising vote of thanks for his service to the Kiwanis club since its organization.

Announcement was made of an inter-city meeting next Thursday noon in Henrietta. About 35 local members expressed their intention of attending.

Quick Relief From Stomach Disturbances

Indigestion Stopped by Stomach Antiseptic

G. M. GORDON
Discoverer of Gordon's

You cannot enjoy sound health unless your digestive organs function naturally, for it is the food, properly digested and prepared for assimilation, that builds tissue and makes for normal health and strength.

When the system becomes foul from the presence of poisonous substances, which the body is unable to throw off, the nerves, brain, muscles and vital organs become deranged. Constipation, weak nerves, headaches and a general feeling of exhaustion result.

The underlying object of Gordon's—an internal antiseptic combined with effective digestants—is to stop fermentation (souring of food matter), which is the greatest obstacle to the successful treatment of digestive troubles, and thus prevent the absorption of poisons from the food mass.

Being an internal antiseptic, this remedy goes right to the seat of the trouble. It will bring quick relief in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, gas, bloating, heartburn, sour stomach, "that tired feeling," excess acid, bad breath, sick headache, and nervousness, when caused by faulty digestion. The first dose will convince you.

Gordon's is made in liquid form. A large 8-ounce bottle, price $1.50—less than 2 cents a dose. At druggists.

If Romance Is Only Illusion, Then It's All Over With Marriage

Why a Pre-Nuptial Contract Would Help Make Marriage a Success—Danger of Marrying a Man Who Is a Critic and a Flirt—Orders Is Orders.

Dear Miss Dix—I have just read the article in which you suggest a pre-nuptial contract setting forth in detail the duties, obligations, prohibitions, and restrictions which marriage is to impose upon each party to the agreement. You advance this as a cure for evils arising from a lack of definite agreement on points which may provoke marital discord. You have started something. Your idea is so good that I would like to see it made into a law, but if it were I fear the immediate effect would be a complete abandonment of marriage, because I doubt whether any man and woman would be willing to surrender their impulsive romance to the guidance of the courts.

After all, isn't marriage the end of romance and the beginning of something wholly foreign to the romantic impulse? Isn't every unhappiness of married life an inevitable chafing at the bonds, which a pre-nuptial agreement would only make more irritating?

—AN AVERAGE HUSBAND.

Answer: If romance is only illusion and delusion, then certainly marriage is the end of it. The familiar inevitably becomes commonplace. The expected loses its magic. You can't make a continuous performance of thrills. You can't keep yourself emotionally keyed up to the top register.

No man can live with a woman and see her with cold cream on her face, and when she is tired, and half sick, and nervous and cross, and still believe that she is similar inevitably becomes commonplace. The expected loses its magic. You can't make a continuous performance of thrills. You can't keep yourself emotionally keyed up to the top register.

No man can live with a woman and see her with cold cream on her face, and when she is tired, and half sick, and nervous and cross, and still believe that she is a angel. No woman can live with a man and see him with a three days' stubble of beard on his face, and hear him swear when his collar button rolls under the chiffonier, and behold him lose his temper over dinner being five minutes late, or the soup having a little too much salt in it, and still regard him as a godling.

If romance consists in a couple palpitating at the sound of each other's footsteps, and regarding each other as creatures of impossible perfection, and always being to each other a wonder and a desire, then romance is slain by marriage.

For passion is dulled by satiety, and in the fierce light that beats upon the home a man and woman see each other as they are with all their faults thick upon them. More, they find out that men and women are human beings first, and husbands and wives afterward, and that their dispositions and tastes and temperments are bound to clash, and that no man and no woman can ever possibly be all-in-all to another. Each of us has some need, or rather so many needs, of body and soul, that no one person can ever supply them all. We must always go a little hungry, a little unsatisfied.

So the little romance dies with marriage. The thrills and the palpitations are over. The billing and the cooing ceases, which is not to be regretted, for no sane person can imagine a more horrible life than a perpetual courtship. It would me as nauseating as having to subsist on a diet of chocolate creams. One would go mad if one was asked continually if "'oo was sure 'oo loved 'oose duckie daddie?" or if one had to listen to unending protestations of undying love, and summon up a sickly sentimental smile to one's lips and unutterable look in one's eyes. Give us for a standby, medium roast beef rare, and boiled potatoes, and rational conversation about the Hoover policies, and the League of Nations, and the Babe's batting average, and the stock market.

That, to my thinking, is marriage. Something different from the froth of romance, and something as much better than romance as roast beef is than syllabub. It is the settling down of a man and woman who are going about the business of life together, who have all interests in common, and who can make a success of their venture 99 times out of 100 if they will bring to it as much intelligence, as much tact, as much good will, and as much determination in making a go of it as they do making a success of any other undertaking.

That is why I think that a pre-nuptial contract would do a lot toward helping to make marriage a success, because it would show both the husband and the wife exactly where they stood, and what responsibilities and duties they were undertaking, and where and how they would have to make good to come up to the requirements of the other party. I think a lot of the tragic blunders that wreck marriage come through husbands and wives not knowing what is demanded of them.

No man, for instance, would marry a woman if he knew beforehand that she would refuse to bear children, or to make a comfortable home for him, and that her idea of wifehood was to waste all a man made, and keep the house filled with her family, and spend her time playing bridge.

Nor would any woman marry a man if she knew beforehand that he would be stingy to her about money, and that he would expect her to be nothing but an unpaid servant.

Most of us have had experiences of going into business with people on what is called "a gentleman's agreement," and we have found out to our sorrow that it left us with the bag to hold. Therefore, we have ascertained that the wise thing is to have all the provisions of our contract duly set down ... detail in black and white. That keeps us reminded of our obligations to others, and impresses on others their obligations to us.

I do not see how a marriage contract would dim romance. Men and women would still pick out each other because of the color of their eyes, or because of the way their hair curled on their necks, or because they had some mysterious sex attraction for each other. And after marriage, it seems to me, they would have something to fall back upon, when romance was exhausted, if they had a good working agreement about what each was to do. For marriage is not just a legalized liasion. It is a binding contract.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Why do girls starve themselves in order to get thin? I belong to a club of boys who have vowed to be old bachelors unless girls fatten up. We have pledged ourselves not to marry until we can get girls who are an armful.—BUB.

Answer: You tell 'em, Bub. They won't listen to me, but the only reason girls are living skeletons is because they think boys like them that way.

Let them find out that the young men are going in for the Oriental standards where fat is considered an evidence of beauty instead of a disgrace, and where the more there is of a girl the better they like her, and we will have some more curves and dimples in the feminine form instead of angles you can hang your hat on.

More power to your organization. May its numbers increase. It will save a lot of young women from T. B.—DOROTHY DIX.

BOARD'S EDICT IS EXPLAINED

Factors in Federal Reserve Warning Outlined

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—Some factors which led to the recent warning of the federal reserve board that use of federal reserve funds for speculation must be restrained were outlined today in the board's monthly bulletin.

Citing that during the past six years the United States has experienced a "most remarkable run of economic activity and productivity," the board in its bulletin said: "During the last year or more, however, the functioning of the federal reserve system has encountered interference by reason of the excessive amount of the country's credit absorbed in speculative security loans."

"Coming at a time when the country has lost some $500,000,000 of gold, the effect of the great and growing volume of speculative credit already has produced some strain, which has reflected itself in advances of from one to one and one-half per cent in the cost of credit for commercial uses.

"The federal reserve board neither assumes the right nor has it any disposition to set itself up as an arbiter of security speculation or values. It is however, its business to see to it that the Federal Reserve banks function as effectively as conditions will permit."

The volume of reserve credit outstanding at the end of 1928 showed an increase for the year of $252,000,000, the bulletin said, while the demand for currency showed an increase of $13,000,000.

Splendid Recipe To Stop A Cough That "Hangs On"

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be made at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this home-made remedy loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which usually follow the "flu", are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

Too Busy for Beauty!

The automobile, sliding along the highways at any rate that its driver wishes, symbolizes the pace of our lives. We have an enormous amount of energy, and we must use most of it in the effort to get everything done in the shortest time possible. Few of us ever relax before evening; as long as there is anything for us to do, we force ourselves to do it at top speed.

None of this, of course, is especially new. But now and then one is compelled to wonder if we aren't traveling just a wee bit faster than we really need to.

In a certain city in the northern part of the country a man was driving downtown to go to work the other day. There had been a heavy windless snow all the night before. The suburb through which he drove was transformed by it. Perfectly ordinary-looking houses covered with white blankets, took on a beauty and grace they did not usually have. Trees held clusters of white blossoms on every branch. There was a simple peace and dignity on every street that was not there the night before. The suburb had ceased to be commonplace and had become mystic, unreal and beautiful.

As this man sped on to get to his office, he glanced out of his car window, noticed the beauty of snow-covered houses, trees and lawns, and murmured, "Uh-huh—pretty." He wanted to take a longer look; but traffic was getting heavy, he was in a hurry, and he had to devote all of his attention to driving. So he sped on, and in a few minutes he had left the strange new beauty behind him and was driving through the meaner business streets, where the snow had only intensified the prevailing ugliness.

Now that sort of thing is perfectly ordinary, to be sure. Something similar happens every day, and it is hardly worth noticing except for this one point; it emphasizes how much our desire for speed causes us to miss.

To get things done quickly is a fine thing. The sluggard is, and always has been, an unlovely creature. We have so many jobs on hand that it's only natural for us to wear ourselves out trying to get them out of the way speedily.

But all of this hurry makes us miss a lot of things that could mean a great deal to us. We drive so fast that we don't have the time to enjoy anything along the way. There is more to life than the simple accomplishment of routine tasks. There are countless little, unexciting things by the way that can give it color and warmth and depth.

Most of us hurry so fast that we can't stop to enjoy them. That is our big mistake. Our lives would be a lot richer if we had the sense to stop along the way once in a while.

Our Foolishness

THE PRESENT AGE, according to Congressman Huddleston of Alabama, is the most foolish age in history.

We have been indulging in so loud a chorus of self-praise lately that this is a rather jarring note. Surely, we must be wiser than the Alabama gentleman thinks. Let's look into the matter.

A little more than 10 years ago the nations of the world finished fighting a war that nearly wrecked all but a few of them—a war fought to end war. Today all of them are preparing for a new war more energetically than ever before.

The United States has more money than any other country on earth, and enjoys a greater prosperity; yet a useful statesman like the late Senator Oscar Underwood dies with an estate of but $50,000, while an Arnold Rothstein—gambler, dope purveyor and racketeer—leaves about $3,000,000.

Our largest city, New York, tied into a knot by traffic congestion and unbearable crowding, continues to erect 50-story skyscrapers that will make the congestion and crowding infinitely worse.

Our second city, Chicago, elects a mayor whose chief qualification is that he hates the British, and then wonders why it gets a rotten city government.

Our congress appropriates precisely one-tenth of the sum that the prohibition director says is needed to enforce prohibition, and then wonders why there is so much booze in the country.

We send our young people to college where football coaches are more highly paid than presidents and where social life is infinitely more important than scholarship, and then wonder why there is so much "materialism" in the land.

We let politics and graft infect our police departments, and we bind up our courts in a mass of red tape and archaic procedure, and yet we are puzzled because so few criminals are caught and convicted.

We send a Michigan man to prison for life because he had a pint of gin, let an Albert B. Fall give away several hundred million dollars' worth of government property without punishment, and are surprised that the ordinary man is losing his respect for law.

Three of our largest basic industries—agriculture, coal mining and the textile manufacturing trade—are depressed as seldom before; but any man who dares hint that we are not enjoying unparalleled universal prosperity is hooted at as an enemy of the nation.

And, last but not least, we sign a treaty that outlaws war, and immediately rush to build 15 new 10,000-ton cruisers.

You could go on like that for an hour if you cared to. It must be that Mr. Huddleston isn't so far wrong, after all.

PROHIBITION AND EDUCATION

President Elect Hoover is going to try to make the country dryer. His proposed plan is said in part to be based on the education of the public. A splendid idea. It seems to us one of the best ways to enforce prohibition.

It was this method that of educating the public as to the evils and bad effects of alcoholic stimulants, that was making America the most sober country in the world before the adoption of the prohibitory laws.

FOR THE LEGISLATORS TO SMELL ABOUT

Our Senator W. D. McFarlane's prison investigation bill was sat down upon quite heavily, but we don't know that was anything to lose a tear over coming on the heels of the calendar already being cluttered up with "investigations." If we are to judge the prison condition as found and related in a recent joint session of the legislature by a committee appointed to investigate, the stench was sufficient to hold the noses of the members for a spell, and it might be well the smell stopped at the nostrils of the law-makers.

The Golden Fleece!

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Mike Callahan was for many years a notorious figure in chinatown because he owned the saloon on which a policeman made a raid and was later promoted to a captaincy in the department by Theodore Roosevelt. This cop was named Bourke and left the department only a short time ago.

But the Bourke case was not the only episode in Mike's life that brought him into prominence. At one time he owned three saloons and had been in the state assembly from the old Fourth ward, where he was born and died. His most famous place was on Chatham square—No. 12. It was just removed from the corner of Doyers street. It was this entrance that got Mike into a heap of trouble. It was through this doorway and long hall that the known men and women of the section could be taken care of after hours. In the back room was the regulation piano and dancing was the pastime along with plenty of drinking.

Bourke got a warrant for Mike and went around to serve it. Just what happened always has been a subject of controversy. Mike's explanation of it was that the policeman had been rude toward him and for that reason he had used force to put him out of his saloon. Bourke's version was that Mike had used undue force and in consequence he went before the grand jury and two indictments were found against Mike for assault. They hung fire for a long time and finally some district attorney decided he could not convict Mike on the evidence available and threw the cases out.

The day the judge approved of this action Mike had open house in all three of his places. He had a restaurant and buffet bar in Lafayette street, back of the Criminal Courts building. He relied on most of his trade from judges, district attorneys and employes in this building. Down on Park Row at 105 he had another place.

As soon as Mike learned of the action of the court in lifting the indictments he sent word to the manager of each of his places to give the boys all the champaign they would drink. He said later that he got rid of more than 400 quarts.

The indictment of Mike had a sobering effect on him, however, and for many years after he lived quite peaceably with the law. He let go the Park Row and Lafayette street places long before he died, but he would not part with the Chatham square place. He had run it so long that he said he could not willingly sell it. So he had it when he died in his home in Pearl street.

Despite the surroundings and the class of trade he got out of the Chinatown zone Mike was a stickler for honesty. A good part of his trade was made up of sightseers as well as Chinese and Japanese chefs, valets, etc. If a waiter was found short-changing any person he was summarily fired, and often took with him a black eye providing he dared argue the right of the boss to let him go.

Besides making money in his business, Mike had two outstanding hobbies. One was fishing and the other horses. At one time he owned and drove one of the smartest turnouts that could be seen on the drive to Coney Island. It was his boast that he would not let anyone beat him either in the quality of his horseflesh or his equipment. He dearly loved a harness and sulky horse race.

So fond was he of fishing that he kept a locker filled with all the necessary paraphernalia in a small hotel at Princess Bay. There he would go every Wednesday morning for a few hours with his old friend Ike Smith. Three hours' fishing was all he wanted. Then back to New York and his night life until the next week.

After Mike passed along a number of persons attempted to make a go of the Chatham square place, but they failed one after another until it was on its last legs when prohibition came along and made some of these spots bone dry.

Benjamin Franklin, that versatile genius, did many interesting things besides harnessing the lightning. He invented the broom—or at least discovered it and introduced it into this country.

More than 150 years ago a woman he had met while he was ambassador to France sent him a whisk-broom which had been made in India, a crude little affair, a mere bundle of twigs. Always interested in the new thing, Franklin scrutinized the novelty and noticed that seeds were clinging to some of the whisks of the broom corn. He carefully preserved them and planted them and thus started the growing of broom corn in this country.

Later the Shakers developed the trade in their community at Watervliet, in New York, and then the industry spread to New England and to the Mohawk valley. Subsequently it passed to the west. But every man and woman who uses whisk broom or house broom may thank old Ben for that useful foe of dust and dirt.

BANK FAILURES SHOW DECLINE

Sound Business Reflected In Reserve Report

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (INS)—The increasing stability of the American banking structure, both within and without the federal reserve system, was disclosed today by the announcement of the reserve board that bank failures declined heavily in 1928.

During the past year 491 banks closed their doors as compared to 662 in 1927. These banks had deposits of $156,000,000 at the time of failure.

Only 73 banks in the federal reserve system collapsed in the year, a drop of 51 from 1927. These institutions had deposits of but $52,000,000, also a decided decline.

Non-member bank failures numbered 418, compared to 588 the year before, and had deposits of $104,000,000, a decrease of $13,000,000.

The year was characterized by an increasing tendency toward consolidation of banks, particularly in the national system. This, officials pointed out, is bringing about a concentration of the banking power, although not to an alarming degree. It was pointed out that many more consolidations could be made to good advantage, that this tendency is strengthening the banking system and is a contributory cause to the steadily declining number of failures.

SOLONS WRITE FOR 'WHO'S WHO'

Blanton, Texas, Fills Page About Himself

By JOSEPH S. WASNEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (UP)—The new congressional directory, official who's who in the house and senate, revealed tonight that the nation's highest legislative body boasts of men of many nationalities.

Representative William Hastings, Democrat, Nebraska, is the only genuine American in congress. He is a full blooded Cherokee Indian.

At least eight members were born in foreign countries. Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, was born in Germany, and Representative Carley, Republican, New York, came from Ireland. Senator Cousens, Republican, Michigan, migrated from Canada; Representative Sabath, Democrat, Chicago, was born in Czechoslovakia, Representative Michaelson, Republican, Chicago, was born in Norway; Representative Eaton, Republican, New Jersey, was born in Nova Scotia, and Representative Palmisano, Democrat, Maryland, was born in Italy.

Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, was born in Honolulu. Many other members failed to cite their birthplaces.

Senators and representatives boast in the record of having been "born on a farm." A large majority of the 513 members were born in rural sections of the country.

Representative La Guardia, Republican, New York, occupies the smallest space in inserting only his name in the biographical section. Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas, has written more about himself than any other member contributed for the book. His record fills an entire page.

Of the five women members in the house only three gave the dates of their birth. From the official document it was learned Mrs. Katherine Langley, Republican, Kentucky, is 41 years old; Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican, Massachusetts, is 48 and Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, is 54. Mrs. Florence P. Kahan, Republican, California, and Mrs. Pearl P. Oldfield did not volunteer their ages.

BANISHED KING WANT FREEDOM

Fallen War Lord Stands Little Chance, However

LONDON, Feb. 18. (UP)—The world's colony of ex-monarchs—scattered from Ione Reunion island in the Indian ocean to Paris and Tientsin, China—is watching with indifference the efforts of one of its members to escape from exile and the efforts of a beaten monarch to keep his name from the colony's rolls.

Abdel Krim, once a monarch in all but name, probably will be refused his plea to return from Reunion island, according to advices from Fez, Morocco. The fallen war lord's second letter to French officials, asking permission to leave his exile, was announced Saturday at Fez. Krim promised to keep away from such things as revolts if permitted to return, but General Petin, French commander in the Fez area, indicated the appeal would be refused.

At the same time, the ex-monarch's colony is watching revolt and counter-revolt in Afghanistan in anticipation of having one—if not two—fallen kings added to their number.

These men who once were rulers, from Abdel Krim, on Reunion island, to the boy emperor of China at Tientsin, may not know that Inayatullah, who for three days was amir of Afghanistan, will be added to their ranks and possibly his brother, former King Amanullah, who is desperately attempting to rally his forces to depose Bacha Sakao, brigand ruler at Kabul, will at last be forced into exile.

Counting the ex-kaiser Wilhelm at Doorn, Holland, there are eight rulers now in banishment, including two former queens, the ex-Empress Zita of Austria and the ex-Queen Elizabeth of Greece. Zita, in quiet retreat near Bilbao, Spain, is training her 16-year-old son, Otto, in the rules of kingship in the hope that some day he will be called to the Hungarian throne.

Probably exile has come most easily to the former shah of Persia, who in his early twenties has found more pleasure in Paris and on the Riviera than in his backward capital of Teheran. Since his overthrow by the present shah—a former palace sentry guard—the deposed monarch has made his headquarters at one of the most exclusive hotels of Paris, living in luxury.

DEAD MASCOT CAUSES SEARCH

But Armory Caretaker Had Slept in Barn

DALLAS, Feb. 18. (UP)—A soldier's abhorrence of sleeping with a dead mascot early today caused an anxious search by police and national guardsmen who feared the man had met with foul play.

Officers were called to the national guard armory to investigate the disappearance of Private Howard Mathis, armory caretaker. They found a shattered pane of glass, the body of a dog—the mascot of troop B, 112th cavalry. From such evidence, police derived the theory that Private Mathis had met with foul play and they searched fruitlessly until morning.

At dawn, Private Mathis, his uniform crumpled and covered with hay, returned to the armory to tell the officers of a nice unbroken slumber he had had in a haystack in the cavalry barn. He explained that the mascot seemed to have gone mad and was frothing at the mouth. He secured a step ladder and a gun, broke the window pane and shot the dog. Not wishing to sleep near the dead animal, he "hit the hay."

Kansas to Hear Of Spur Station

Special to The Record News

SPUR, Texas, Feb. 18.—Superintendent R. E. Dickson of the state experiment station at Spur has been called to Manhattan, Kan., to explain the work of his station to the authorities of the Kansas State Agricultural college of Manhattan. The Kansas station is making plans to duplicate the work done at Spur relative to the soil and moisture problems that have proved so beneficial in this locality. Mr. Dickson has had many visitors to study the work done here, and it takes but little time to convince the most skeptical farmer or business man of the merits of the level terrace and papperly contoured rows.

Mr. Dickson will stop at Abilene on his return trip to address the Texas Bankers association which convenes in Abilene Feb. 22. He will try to impress the bankers of the needs of the proper conservation of soil and moisture, that all farm paper will become more stable rather than depreciating in value. Mr. Dickson's experiments confirm the ideas that are being fostered by A. K. Short of the Federal Land bank of Houston, and this idea once in the minds of the people of West Texas will help to maintain their good soils, and build up the soil that has lost much of its fertility.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (UP)—The Church Temperance society, which asserts it expresses the views of the majority of members of the Episcopal church—including 1,500 clergymen—has demanded modification of the prohibition laws.

The demand will be published this week in "The Churchman," an independent religious publication.

Admitting that the Church Temperance society is not an official organization of the Episcopal church, the statement adds that it is "nevertheless an important Episcopal institution."

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritations.—Adv.

TREATY MIGHT AFFECT TROOPS

Status of Pope's Swiss Guards Discussed

GENEVA, Feb. 18. (UP)—Possibility that the status of the famous Swiss guards might be affected by the Italo-Vatican treaty developed into an interesting and intricate question today.

The new Swiss military code prohibits citizens of Switzerland from enlisting in foreign armed forces without the consent of the Swiss federal council.

Restoration of the pope's temporal power, even on a nominal basis, raises the question whether the pope may continue to recruit his Swiss guard, one of the most picturesque military units in the world. Also, the question is raised whether the presence of this Swiss corps, serving another state, constitutes a violation of Switzerland's neutrality.

These combined problems will be considered by the Swiss federal council as soon as the text of the Italian-Vitacan treaties is received. Should the terms of the treaty and concordat signed last week by Premier Mussolini and Cardinal Gasparri, bear out the idea that the Swiss guard constitutes foreign armed service, prospective recruits hereafter will be obliged to ask permission of the federal council before enlisting.

It is considered unlikely that such permission would be refused unless it should develop that service in the guard by a Swiss citizen constitutes violation of Switzerland's neutrality.

However, even this problem might be overcome by a reorganization of the corps on a less belligerent basis.

Although the Swiss guards have always constituted the vatican's "shock troops," they were, until the reign of Pope Pious X armed with the antiquated halberd, and garbed in the picturesque costumes designed for them by Michel Angelo.

Under the reign of Piux X, however, the Swiss Colonel Repond, commander of the corps, armed them with modern rifles, and imposed modern military training and rules.

Coolidge to Write Magazine Articles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (UP)—President Coolidge was reported in what appeared to be entirely authentic quarters today to have agreed to write a series of articles for the Cosmopolitan magazine after leaving office.

The price to be paid Mr. Coolidge was not mentioned in these reports which added that money was not the prime consideration in the president's reported decision.

On the other hand, it was said he had been moved primarily by the consideration that this would enable him to have his work appear in a magazine rather than in newspapers.

At the White House, there was no comment or verification of this news and representatives of the magazine likewise were silent, declining to verify or deny.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

SPUDDERS TO OPEN LEAGUE SEASON APRIL 17 AT SHREVEPORT

LID PRIED OFF HERE APRIL 23

164-Game Schedule to End Sept. 15 in Wichita

DALLAS, Feb. 18. (AP)—A schedule calling for the opening of the Texas league baseball season on April 17 was adopted by loop club owners here today. The season will close Sept. 15.

President J. Doak Roberts, who has been ill for seven weeks, had prepared about half of the schedule and the remainder of it was completed in sessions which began here yesterday and lasted until late last night.

The first games will see Houston at Beaumont, Waco at San Antonio, Fort Worth at Dallas and Wichita Falls at Shreveport. The following day Dallas will open the season at Fort Worth. Waco, playing host to San Antonio, and Houston, receiving Beaumont, will see the first games on April 19.

On April 23, Wichita Falls will begin play at home with Shreveport.

Dallas, Shreveport, Wichita Falls and Fort Worth draw the closing games on Sept. 15, playing respectively, Waco, San Antonio, Beaumont and Houston.

Labor Day and July 4 games, when receipts are pooled and divided, will see Beaumont at Houston, Waco at San Antonio, Shreveport at Dallas and Wichita Falls at Fort Worth.

The schedule, covering 152 days, provides for 164 games.

Here's a Versatile Boxer

Mickey Riley, junior lightweight of Dallas, is a clever fellow. In addition to being a mighty fast scrapper, he is a singer and dancer and one of the featured comedians in the company now playing at the Olympic theater. Riley may box here during his four weeks' stand at the Olympic if a suitable opponent can be found for him at his weight.

Mickey is shown here strumming the ukelele. The other chap in the picture is Bobby Burns, a foremost bantam of 15 years ago and who has been Riley's manager for more than 10 years.

DALLAS WINS 1929 PENNANT

Steers Cop Annual Texas Title—In Winter

By JERE R. HAYES
Times Herald Sports Editor
(Written for The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 18. (AP)—Concentrating their efforts on building up a ball club that can hammer in runs, Dallas moguls believe they have added enough power offensively to make the Steers a real threat in the 1929 baseball derby.

Assuming the Houston Buffs, Wichita Falls Spudders and Fort Worth Cats are up to "war time" strength, the mavericks of this city look like the best bet in the league on paper. Unfortunately, these "paper champions" don't mean anything.

The Steer inner cordon will be made up of Wilbur Davis on first, Manager Milt Stock or Hap Morse at second, Bill Huber at third, and Ray Flaskamper at short. This department has been strengthened a hundredfold—the addition of Flaskamper taking care of that.

Tere Is Optimistic

Davis is unquestionably a better hitter than last year's first-sack guardian. Oglesby may be better defensively, but Davis has the edge in hitting. Stock, if he is an improvement on Morse, will play second. Otherwise, Hap will be back at the mid-station. And Hap's no slouch at the job. Huber outhit Tate something like 75 points in the same class of baseball last year, so it is reasonable to presume the hot corner will be protected by a better hitter. Huber isn't a Tate at fielding, but he'll do very well. At short, Flaskamper will be an improvement in every way over the 1928 performers. Flash is about the best in the league at short.

Behind the willow, Jack Mealey is tabbed for the first-string job. He should be better this year, his second in class A baseball. And he was regarded as a star last season. His assistant will be selected from Josh Billings, holdover; Don Benn, purchased from Akron with a .355 clubbing record, and Lynn Boggess, a utilityman who will try his luck at catching. There should be a slight improvement in this department—but it still seems to be one of the weak spots.

In the outfield, is Rosenthal, who hit .356 and is a holdover; Jim Moore, who clubbed .302 at Kansas City, and Randy Moore, expected from the White Sox, likely will hold sway to provide the Mavs with one of the best fly-shagging combinations in the league. Then there is another man to come from the White Sox. Likely it will be Watwood, 1928 Shreveport star, who will be a big help. The Steers are not worrying about outfield talent.

Several Vet Hurlers

The pitching staff finds Charlie Barnabe and Joe Martina, two experienced men, added as almost "sure things." Barnabe was with Waco last year; Martina with New Orleans. Then Dickie Schuman, Ray Pierce, and Vic Fraser will be back from the '28 crew. Bill Harris, purchased from Minneapolis, won 25 games in the South Atlantic last season and is regarded as a real hurler. So is Phil Hensick, Cotton States product, who grabbed off 17 wins. Bray and Windsor, sent here by the White Sox, may show something. Then there's the usual allotment of semi-pro's and amateurs, as well as small loop boys.

The Mavs also have a flock of youngsters from the small leagues to try for the infield and outfield, so something may develop along that line.

As things now stand, the herd looks pretty strong. Give them one more experienced pitcher, a dependable maskman who can hit, and they'll be listed among the favorites.

Bill Muldoon Thinks Schmeling Has Chance to Win Heavy Crown

The Old Roman Says Herr Max Has Intelligence and Vitality, In Contrast to Average Big Fighter

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—William Muldoon, the old Roman, who has forgotten more about boxing than the average man will ever learn, likes Herr Max Schmeling, the young fellow from Germany. Mr. Muldoon thinks Schmeling has a better chance of winning the heavyweight title than any other fighter now before the pugilistic public.

"He has one thing most of the others haven't got, and that is real INTELLIGENCE," said Mr. Muldoon to me the other day. "I had the opportunity of talking with him at some length recently, and he impresses me as a most intelligent youngster. Also he has vitality. He is alive. On his toes. The average heavyweight of today is just a big, loggy fellow of dull intellect, inside and outside the ring. They act dully and think not at all.

"Schmeling has the spark. Moreover, he is just about the right size—six feet tall, and 185 pounds in weight. Below that a heavyweight is apt to be too small. Beyond that too big. It is the size of Dempsey when Dempsey was at his best. It is about the size of Tunney. I shall be greatly surprised if the young German fails to go on to greater things. His chief handicap is calling him the German Dempsey, and associating his style and individuality too closely with Dempsey."

The old Roman has seen them all, back to the bare knuckle days. Sullivan, Corbett, Kilrain, Peter Jackson, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Johnson, Willard. All of them. He is paying young Herr Max a rare compliment when he says he likes him.

Big Fellows A Hobby

Mr. Muldoon's bug, or hobby, in connection with the sour science is the big fellows. In that respect I am one of his disciples. I will walk 10 miles just to look at a heavyweight prospect, where I wouldn't go around the corner to see a fierce battle between two little fellows.

And I know scores of followers of the sour science whose idea of a grand time is just the reverse. They care not at all for the big 'uns, deeming them clumsy, and inept at best, but they get all heated up over the midgets. Entire communities are that way, in fact. You can scarcely give heavyweight battles away in Philadelphia or Montreal, or Detroit, while little men pack the premises with clients.

I am unable to explain the fascination of big fellows for me, as opposed to my scant interest in the little ones. But it seems to me that something generally happens in a heavyweight struggle. Somebody falls over with a loud thud, whereas in battles between small men they usually flit about with much motion and little execution. True, I have seen some awful things happen with big men in the ring, but even so I seem to get more bang out of the spectacle of them squaring than I do out of the gyrations of the wee ones.

I have seen old experienced managers, such as Mr. Leo Fisenous Flynn, and Mr. James J. Johnston, and Dr. J. Leo McKernan, otherwise Kearns, and Mr. Harry Lenny, sit back with impassive pans while watching little men of their stables in action. Little men who may be top liners, and good money getters. But the managers watch them with but slight interest.

There's A Reason

I have seen these same managers laboring under intense excitement when some greenhorn of a giant of their management was struggling in a four round preliminary. You might think from the emotional exertion of the managers that they had a champion of the world under way instead of some raw hand two or three years off real competition. Perhaps the managers themselves cannot explain their interest.

But I suppose much of the managerial interest in the heavyweight division is due to the fact that this is the bonanza division of the sour science, the field of rare discovery. An old time prospector who has spent years plugging along picking up bits of gold here and there, gets more excited than anyone else when he hears of a real big strike.

Though he has seen a whole army of fighters march across the stage of human events and on into obscurity during his lifetime, Mr. Muldoon has never lost his interest in the big 'uns. He may miss a lot of boxing shows at Madison Square Gardner, but he is rarely absent when the heavies hold the boards.

William A. Brady, who managed two heavyweight champions of the world, James J. Corbett and James J. Jeffries, is another old timer, who keeps up with the heavyweight parade. Mr. Brady is still picker of prospects. He thought Senor Luis Angel Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas, should have been a much greater fighter than he was. Mr. Brady thought systematic training would have made Firpo champion.

As a matter of fact, many citizens think Firpo should have been champion at that. If the Wild Bull hadn't been skimated by the patriotic motive of having only his countrymen in his corner the night he fought Dempsey, he might be holding the title to this day.

Max Greatest Prospect

I agree with Mr. Muldoon that Herr Max is the likeliest of the present day mob of heavies. He can beat just about two more of the outstanding contenders and get recognition as Mr. Tunney's successor. The winner of the Sharkey-Stribbling fight, and the winner of the Paolino-Christner battle.

Who else is there for him to beat? Possibly some youngsters may bob up on us overnight as Schmeling himself bobbed up, and command attention, but right now that youngster isn't in sight, unless it be the mighty hitter from Norway, Otto Von Porat. He is the one young fellow around just at present that I figure might prove a very dangerous opponent for Herr Max.

Otto may not be the most graceful figure in the ring, nor the most imposing—but he can hit!

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Covenants, openly arrived at, announce that the Prince of Wales intends to give up hoss-back riding.

For Sale—One saddle. Practically new.

This news is startling to everybody but the hoss.

Especially so because it arrives just after Eddie had won his last steeplechase on foot.

His delayed decision is due to confusion in military circles.

The prince is a colonel in the cavalry.

But only a captain in the infantry.

He was losing rank with every steeplechase.

His riding was making conversation difficult. Going over the Liverpool jump, Lord Tillinghast would say;

"Colonel—I mean captain—"

It is not financial stress that is causing Eddie to give up his hosses.

He has plenty of money.

In fact, the last time we saw Eddie ride a hoss, he was very well off.

While this may sound peculiar to the English, the prince's popularity in America was due to his Morse code style of riding.

First there was a dash, then a dot, then a dash. We loved the dots because they indicated where Eddie climbed on again.

Dempsey's popularity dates from the time he was knocked out of the ring by Firpo and crawled in again. Phil Scott was knocked out by Knute Hansen but won his other fights later on. Scott can fight in America any time he desires.

Even though Eddie may have studied hoss-back riding in the lost and found columns, we hope that he keeps on riding.

A prince is a prince, whether he inherits the crown or a paper hoop.

Combining hoss-backing with setting-up exercises may be an excess of athletics.

The next time Eddie visits America the Niagara of cheering will drown the trickle of neighing.

ACTOR-FIGHTER MAY BOX HERE,

Mickey Riley Is Clever On Stage and in Ring

Mickey Riley, the "fighting, singing, dancing" boxer, is in Wichita Falls. Before proceeding further with this yarn it should be explained that Mickey confines his dancing to the stage.

Here for a four-weeks engagement at the Olympic theater as a featured comedian with the "Blue Ribbon Girls" company, the clever Riley may box in one or two of Ross' shows if a suitable opponent can be found for him. Mickey is a junior lightweight and fights at 130 pounds.

Riley has been boxing for more than 10 years. He has met some mighty tough foes in the feather and lightweight divisions and his manager, Bobby Burns, claims Mickey has never been floored or lost a referee's decision. Among the boys Riley has boxed are Arlos Fanning, Wildcat Monte and Frankie Nurdin.

Mickey is a fast boxer and a two-fisted puncher. He has a pleasing tenor voice and is a clever hoofer.

Burns was a foremost bantam back a decade and a half ago. He fought some of the best banties of that era, including Pal Moore and Nat Jackson. Incidentally, it is of interest to note that Burns and Riley have been together for more than 10 years, which just about sets a record for manager-boxer partnership.

Two of the classiest young featherweight boxers of the Southwest will go the wars here tomorrow night when Howard Scott of Electra meets Bobby Calmes of Duncan, Okla., in the first 10-round bout of a double windup. Calmes and Scott boxed twice recently at Fort Sill, Okla. On both occasions they fought on even terms and corking bouts they were, too.

Calmes is the most formidable adversary Scott has faced in a ring here and boxing enthusiasts of this section are awaiting the go tomorrow night with great interest.

Cubs' Vanguard Arrives at Camp

Bruins Ready to Start Work at Catalina Isle

By JOHN CONNOLLY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18. (US)—Headed by Joe McCarthy and reinforced with seven Los Angeles performers who met them as they tumbled out of the pullman sleepers this morning, 38 members of the Chicago Cubs, hailed as the 1929 champions of the National league, are safely encamped at Catalina island ready to uncork themselves Tuesday in the initial spring workout of the season.

Twenty ball players, constituting the batterymen of the Cubs, and 18 guests, including newspapermen, photographers and wives made up the contingent.

On Feb. 26 another batch of ball players consisting of infielders and outfielders check in and from that time on the more serious phase of spring conditioning will commence. Rogers Hornsby, second sacker and a national league commutter for the past several seasons, will be the distinguished arrival at Avalon on the 26th.

It is around Hornsby and his hitting that a great deal of the hopeful enthusiasm for a 1929 pennant is centered. The "Rajah," who led the parade in clouting last year, is expected to give to the cubs that punch which they needed so badly last year to cinch the gonfalon.

Judge Landis, high commissioner of baseball was not among those arriving with the Cubs, his plans to accompany the team being halted at the eleventh hour because of business pressure. Landis, in a wire to William Wrigley postponed his trip indefinitely. He expects, however, to make the jump here before the training season ends.

YANKEES BEGIN TRAINING SOON

Huggins Faces Many Problems This Spring

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (UP)—The task of getting a world championship baseball machine ready for the defense of its laurels after four months of idleness will be begun shortly at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The first squad of New York Yankees, headed by Lou Gehrig, will depart for the southern training camp Saturday. Others in the party will be Herb Pennock, star southpaw, Fred Heimach, another southpaw, Benny Bengough, first-string catcher, George Burns, veteran first baseman purchased from Cleveland late last season, Leo Durocher, utility infielder, and Roy Sherid, 20-year-old pitcher who won 15 games and lost seven for Montreal last season.

"Can the Yankees repeat?" is a topic of conversation among baseball fans throughout the country as the major league teams gather for spring training. The first practice will be held a week from today.

Tradition Against Yanks

There is an evil foreboding in the fact that no American league club ever won four straight pennants. The Yankees have twice won three pennants in a row, but faltered in the drive for the fourth in 1924 after finishing in front in 1921, 1922 and 1923. Now again with three consecutive pennants in 1926, 1927 and 1928 to their credit the Yanks have another opportunity to crash one of baseball's traditions.

Miller Huggins' problems promise to be many the coming campaign. When the mite manager wrinkles up his brow and draws deep on his briar pipe, these may be some of the things occupying his mind:

"Will the Babe's legs stand up and allow him to play regularly?

"Who will take Pennock's place if his sore pitching arm isn't well?

"If Lyn Lary fails to make good at shortstop, can Durocher make good at that position or will Koenig have to be moved back from third base?

"Will Lazzeri's shoulder permit him to play regularly and in his 1926 form?

"Will there be a regular among the recruit pitchers?"

Ruth Is Question

That Ruth will not be able to play at top speed the coming season is the opinion of more than one baseball man. Clark Griffith, a keen judge of players, is quoted as having said that he would not trade Goose Goslin, the American league batting champion, for Ruth. Interesting, if true.

Pennock's inability to take his regular turn on the mound during the final weeks of the 1928 season contributed largely to the Yankees' slump which almost permitted the Athletics to win the pennant. The lean southpaw won 17 games and lost only six last season and is one of the really great pitchers of all times. Art Nehf staged a successful comeback after neuritis had temporarily rendered his pitching arm useless and Pennock may be able to do likewise.

Huggins' infield plans will be shot to pieces if Lary, the high-priced Oakland recruit, should fail. If Lary fits in at short and Koenig is a success at third, the Yanks' infield will be airtight unless Lazzeri's shoulder springs another kink.

THERE IS an old saw in the effect that good things come in small packages. Wichita Falls is one of the smallest cities in the Texas league in population. But it is a leader in affairs of our classy baseball loop. And that goes for play on the field and in executive affairs of the circuit. And the reason?

J. ALVIN GARDNER

For the past several seasons, the Spudders have been champions, or contenders for Texas league pennants. And now Gardner has been honored by his fellow magnates as being named on a committee of three to direct affairs of the league, a move made necessary by the severe and lingering illness of J. Doak Roberts, president of the loop.

MORE HONORS have been won for Wichita Falls by its polo team. The Bluejackets of this city Sunday won the annual southwestern high goal championship by defeating the San Antonio Shorthorns. This victory followed that of a few weeks ago, when the Wichita Falls team captured the low goal championship of the southwest. To those unfamiliar with polo, it is explained that high and low goal mean the handicap rating of the teams. For a team to win both tournaments is indication of great class.

Horace Robbins and C. H. Featherstone of Wichita Falls and Captain Boyle, Lieutenant Borden and Lieutenant Cullins of Fort Sill, Okla., comprised the Bluejackets squad which won the two blue ribbon events of southwestern polo.

WILLIE-JACK WORKING HARD

Heavies Start Last Week Of Intensive Training

By FRANK GETTY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 18. (UP)—The contenders in the forthcoming heavyweight fight, who have been all but overlooked in the excitement attendant upon the picturesque promotion of the affair, both began a final week of intensive training today.

Up to the present both Sharkey and Young Stribling have taken their training lightly, particularly the Georgian, who has been fearful of losing precious pounds in the Florida sun. For the next week, however, the rival fight camps both promise to bristle with activity.

Fighters Seek Seclusion

While the workouts are public—both fighters taking in from $250 to $300 daily at the box offices of their respective training quarters—Sharkey and Stribling now are seeking that privacy which is considered so essential to a boxer preparing for an important bout.

"Pa" Stribling has taken his husky young son to a secluded Miami Beach hotel, cancelling the public appearances at Coral Gables and elsewhere which drew admiring crowds of southerners around the Georgia contender.

"I want to give the boy a chance to have a little peace and quiet," the elder Stribling explained.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars at even money that Sharkey defeats Stribling."

Jack 6 to 5 Choice

At the first appearance of real southern money, however, odds of 6 to 5 on the Bostonian can be obtained.

Probably the price will lengthen to 7 to 5 before the fight. The difference in size between the contenders impresses the observer in Sharkey's favor. At the moment he is some dozen pounds heavier than Stribling and has the advantage of being able to work off weight comfortably, while the Georgian is pursued by the bug-bear of working down to too fine a point.

Grid Code Board Rules Fumbled Ball Dead at Point of Recovery

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (UP)—Four important changes in the football rules for the 1929 season were announced today by the football rules committee after a three-day conference at the Seaview Country club, Absecon, N. J. The changes follow:

1—Fumbled balls recovered by the opposing side are dead at point of recovery. This rule does not apply to forward passes, backward passes or blocked kicks.

2—All kicks legally recovered by the kicking side may be advanced in accordance with the uniform rules. The rule now applies to free kicks and kick-offs, whereas it formerly applied only to kicks from scrimmage.

3—No player of the offensive side, who has crossed the line of scrimmage, shall interfere with an opponent until the ball has been touched except in an actual attempt to catch the ball.

4—The try for point after touchdown has been moved from the three to the two-yard line.

It's then that you are safest in a street car. It's then that you are actually unsafe in any other form of public or private conveyance.

Slippery pavements are treacherous even to the pedestrian. The most careful driver is at the mercy of the careless one.

A street car on smooth tracks of its own, exclusive right of way is a real security of which you should avail yourself.

Hot and Cold Sitz Baths

At various times in my health articles I have recommended the use of hydrotherapy or the applications of water in relieving pain and treating chronic diseases. One of the most effective hydrotherapeutic treatments is the sitz bath. Only the hips and abdomen are immersed in the water for this treatment. A number of different therapeutic effects may be created by varying the temperature of the water or the length of time of the immersion. The cold sitz bath is used chiefly for its tonic, strengthening effects upon the muscles of the pelvic region and for lessening the amount of blood. The hot sitz bath, on the contrary, is used for engorging the pelvis with blood and for relieving pain and softening tightened muscles.

The cold sitz bath is very effective in many of the chronic diseases such as constipation, prolapsed organs and long continued inflammations. It is also useful in overcoming hemorrhages from any of the pelvic organs. The hot sitz bath is useful in cases of acute indigestion, abdominal cramps and in restoring the menstrual function.

There are some special appliances manufactured for taking sitz baths which are sometimes installed in the more expensive homes. However, a sitz bath can be taken in an ordinary tub. Tall people may sit sidewise with the feet over the edge and resting on a chair, but short folks would have to sit with the feet elevated upon a box or stool placed within the tub. A comfortable rest should also be arranged for the back.

To secure the best effect, the other parts of the body should not be wet, if you wish to secure the local effect through the pelvis.

For the hot sitz bath, the water should be as warm as it is possible to endure, and the bath should last from five to ten minutes or until the skin becomes quite pink. The feet may be kept in the hot water at the same time as the hips if desired. The bath may be repeated every few minutes if pain is severe but in this case, it is usually advisable to follow each hot immersion with a quick cold shower.

In using the cold sitz bath, particular care must be exercised in preventing a general chill. The bath is most effective after exercising. The bathroom should be warm and all portions of the patient's body not under water should be well covered with blankets or clothing. If the patient does not react properly and feel chilly, it is sometimes wise to place the feet in hot water while the pelvis is seated in the cold water. The water should be as cold as possible since less time is required with very cold water than with moderately cold water, and the patient should be removed when there is an inclination toward general chilliness. If the patient is properly wrapped there is scarcely any discomfort and many people feel so much rejuvenated after a cold sitz bath that they really enjoy them.

To secure the best effect from cold sitz baths, they should be used for a few minutes daily, both morning and evening, over a period of time. At first, the sitz baths should be short, say from one to five minutes, and the time gradually increased as the patient's strength permits. Every doctor should be familiar with these two methods of applying water as they actually seem to work miracles in many cases.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Always Hungry

Question—Mrs. J. W. R. writes: "I am a woman 43 years old and am getting stouter all the time. I am always hungry a few minutes after meals, for I do not eat all I want for fear of gaining. It has been suggested that I take salts and cream of tartar each morning. Would you advise that?"

Answer—One of the best ways for you to control your appetite is to see to it that you have plenty of green vegetables at every meal. Take several dishes if necessary to "fill up," thus avoid the starches and proteins which are more fat producing. If you stuff on the greens you will find that it will control your appetite and make the remedies which you have suggested unnecessary.

Buttermilk Fast

Question—R. J. asks: "Would buttermilk be suitable on a fast, or to use buttermilk one day and then tomato soup the next. What would be the proper quantity of buttermilk to use each day?"

Answer—I often prescribe the buttermilk fast and when doing so usually keep the patient limited to not over two quarts a day. A good schedule to use is to take an 8-ounce glass of buttermilk every two hours until two quarts are taken. In this way, if you take your first glass at 6 o'clock in the morning you would take your last glassful at 8 o'clock in the evening. It would be all right to alternate one day with buttermilk and the next with unthickened tomato soup.

X-Rays and Sterility

Question—Mrs. R. S. writes: "I understand that x-rays produce sterility. Is this danger present when one has x-ray examinations?"

Answer—The amount of x-ray used in making photographs in examinations is not injurious, for a much longer exposure is necessary to produce sterility.

TAKE EXAMINATIONS

LAWTON, Okla., Feb. 18.—Fifty-six persons took civil service examinations for clerk-carrier positions in the federal building here Saturday. With but three exceptions all applicants were men.

MACK: Remember that old lady what wus in last week?

MORAN: I does.

MACK: "Well, she ain't beautiful no more.

MORAN: What's happened now?

MACK: Th' putty come out of her wrinkles.

MORAN: Is yo' goin' to give her a new face?

MACK: Nope. I is goin' to buy some more putty.

MORAN: What's th' needle an' thread for?

MACK: Wrinkles.

MORAN: What's needle an' thread got to do with wrinkles?

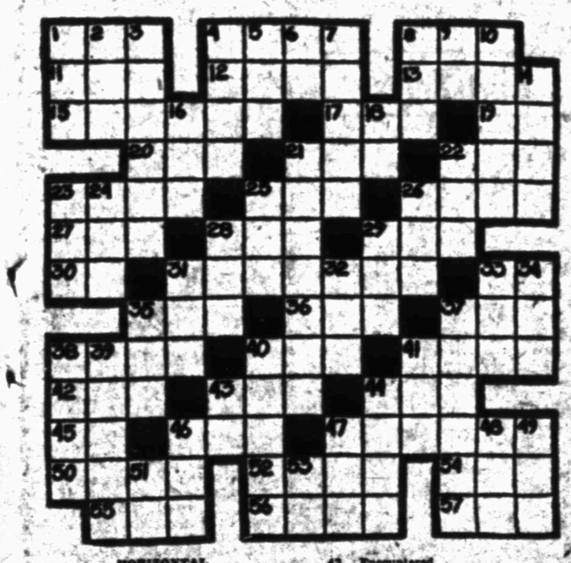

MACK: There's only one sure way to get rid of a wrinkle.

MORAN: How's that?

MACK: Yo' takes th' needle an' thread an' sews th' wrinkle up.

Darktown is all excited about Moran and Mack's beauty parlor, which is in the most exclusive section of the livery stable district. All the sealskin browns and the high yellows are patronizing their shop.

PANDEM SETS ACTIVE PACE

Five Operations Place Firm Among Leaders

With two wells drilling, another spudding in and two other tests rigging up, the Pandem Oil corporation is looking forward to become in the next two weeks one of the most active in the Wichita Falls district.

Of the wells drilling the most important is the Pandem No. 1 Burch located in section 477, T. E. L. survey, northwest of Graham in south Young county. This well, which has reached a depth of 2965 feet is in wildcat territory and about one mile due south of the Panhandle Refining company's No. 1 Morrison in section 465, T. E. L. survey, which is flowing 240 barrels per day from the deep lime at 4100 feet. In the event of a well by the Pandem it will mean practically a new producing area in this portion of the county.

Today's gauge of the greater Seminole field, including the Sunday production, was 288,499 barrels, as compared to 270,114 barrels gauged Sunday morning. Wells of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, the Barnsdall corporation and Thomas B. NEW ROW OVER GRAF ZEPPELIN

Eckener Wants to Fly Over Egypt; Britain Sulks

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Record News Special Wireless

BERLIN, Feb. 18. (US)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, declared from Friedrichshafen today that he has made a formal request to his government to get him the necessary permission to fly the airship over Egypt and Palestine. He said that he would insist on formal application being made to the Egyptian or British government.

Britain's informal veto of the Graf Zeppelin's flight over Egypt and Palestine has stirred up a political hornet's nest in Germany. In their nervous eagerness and anxiety to avoid anything and everything that might annoy or irritate other governments as the reparations experts sit in Paris, the German government succeeded in not only bringing a storm of criticism on their own heads but has more or less made Britain appear in the light of a poor sport in the air, where, in spite of healthy rivalry, international courtesy, cooperation and chivalry have been the general rule.

Opposes Airship

On the other hand, Britain's unofficial attitude toward not only Germany's, but the world's only passenger airship, creates the impression that the British foreign office is as much against Germany's solitary, peaceful airline as against America's naval cruisers.

The Boersen Zeitung, tonight with a big headline, "England afraid of the Graf Zeppelin," after criticizing the German government for the manner in which it has handled the matter, says:

"Always assuming that the information the German foreign office got from London is authentic, we must say that we did not expect such smallness, even for Sir Austen Chamberlain. We are convinced that the nation whose language is spoken by a Fitzmaurice thinks differently about the Graf Zeppelin flight than does its government.

France Willing

"Not even the France of Poincare had any objection to Eckener repeatedly flying his airship over that country. Has England's government completely sunk in the sticky abyss of business and competition?"

The Lokal Anzeiger declares that the Berlin foreign office went at it in the right way to get a refusal.

The situation for the Egyptian government is particularly embarrassing, too, firstly because the German government did not apply to Cairo, and secondly because King Faud has just accepted an invitation to visit Germany in June.

A portion of the German press asserts that the British veto is based on fear for its own prestige in the Orient. Some of the radical Democratic press, notably the Berlinger Tageblatt, has ignored the incident thus far.

Embarrasses England

The incident is embarrassing, also, to the so-called British wing in the foreign office, since it is well known that Dr. Eckener has been very courteous and hospitable to members of the British air ministry, whom he invited to Friedrichshafen, allowed them to study the ship and fly in it, and gave to the English Lady Drummond Hay the distinction of being the first woman to fly from Europe to America.

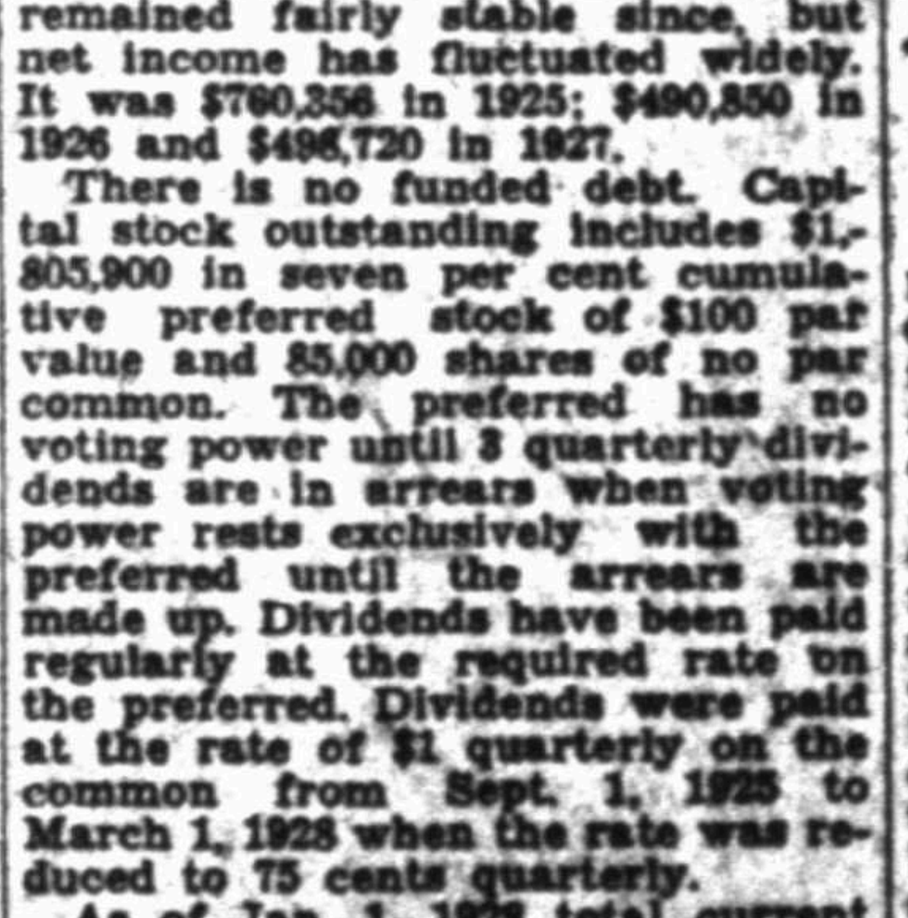

There seems no other way out of a situation that is equally disagreeable to Berlin, London and Cairo, but for the British government to disavow the Berlin foreign office's alleged unofficial veto, or let the Cairo government grant the permit.

The Graf Zeppelin, Dr. Eckener told me, would visit America again in May and start on its round the world flight in August. It will be used by Dr. Nansen for his extensive polar expedition next year.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Early advances on relatively steady Liverpool cables, which promoted some covering and trade buying, were followed by rather irregular fluctuations and partial reactions in cotton today. After selling up to 20.13 at the start, May contracts eased off to 20.06 under liquidation or realizing, and closed at that figure. The general market closed steady net 1 point lower to 6 higher.

The market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 6 points and sold about 4 to 8 points net higher in the early trading. The market apparently was influenced by better Liverpool cables than expected and reports that sales of cotton goods last week had exceeded production in one of the leading local houses.

The early advance was accompanied by reports of a steady spot situation in the south but there was not a great deal of support after the initial buying orders had been supplied. Much of the trading consisted of switching from March to later months and trade interests were credited with taking the near month contracts against sales of later deliveries.

The first notice day for March contracts in the local market will be Feb. 26. Some local brokers say a considerable interest remains to be evened-up.

Reports that fertilizer sales in the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi to the end of January amounted to 315,000 tons against 512,000 last year may have contributed to the early advance.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18. (AP)—The cotton market was only moderately active today with prices fluctuating within a comparatively narrow range. Values were sustained by varied bullish influences including a private report making fertilizer sales in eastern belt states to the end of January smaller than last year. Some realizing and liquidation developed on the advance and May contracts after trading up to 19.52 eased off and closed at 19.48, or 4 points net higher. The general market closed steady at net gains of 1 to 5 points.

Liverpool cables were better than due at the start here and were reflecting in an opening gain of 1 to 4 points. Prices continued to advance after the start on buying promoted by the bullish fertilizer report and prospects for unsettled weather in the belt. At the end of the first hour May sold at 19.51, July 19.53 and October 19.33, or 7 points above Saturday's close.

After easing off a few points from these levels on some liquidation the market steadied later in the morning and on renewed buying active positions showed net gains of 8 points at noon.

Offerings increased, however, and operators liquidated the March option in advance of the first notice day for that month, February 22. On the subsequent decline March traded off 11 points under the previous close while later positions dropped 4 to 5 points.

During the afternoon the market was steady and fluctuated within the early range.

Three Named in Death Of Greenville Capitalist

GREENVILLE, Texas, Feb. 18. (AP)—Three complaints charging murder were filed here today by officers investigating the slaying of Glen A. Coulson, prominent Greenville capitalist, shot to death in his hotel apartment here Friday.

The 61-year-old retired jewelry merchant was found dead in his bedroom after other guests had heard a series of shots. In his hand was a pistol, three chambers discharged. Three bullet holes were found in the woodwork. A money bag, a pocketbook and a cash box, in the room, had been rifled.

Garrett's Nomination Is Quickly Affirmed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—The senate judiciary committee gave quick assent today to the nomination of Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, retiring Democratic leader of the house, to be a judge of the court of customs appeals. Two other judgeship nominations, however, were held up for further consideration. Irvine Lenroot, former Republican senator from Wisconsin, and Henry Glassie, former Democratic member of the tariff commission are those affected in the two held over.

Texas Reservoir Survey Approved by Committee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—A bill to authorize expenditure of $25,000 for a survey looking to selection of a site for construction of a proposed $2,000,000 storage reservoir at Red Bluff on the Pecos river in Texas was approved today by the house irrigation committee. The sum of $2,000,000 was authorized in 1926 for construction of the dam, but the secretary of the interior and the reclamation commissioner informed the committee that an insufficient amount had been appropriated for the survey and tests.

Kidnaper of Cudahy's Son Kills Himself

Stocks Enjoy Comeback but None Can Satisfactorily Explain Cause

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (US)—Stock prices today enjoyed a comeback of several points on the average. Considerable dispute existed as to the proper characterization of the advance: Whether to describe it as a rally on technical conditions incident to an oversold position in the market, or as the result of substantial new buying. Both probably contributed to the advance.

Bears had become encouraged by their recent success, but their offerings met support in various pivotal stocks and the bears ran to cover. Short covering undoubtedly was hurried by renewal of reports that Secretary Mellon, who has frequently aided the market in times of unsettlement, would issue another "bullish" statement, but this statement never materialized. These reports linking Mellon with public propaganda for the bullish contingent have become so frequent and unconfirmed that it is stated Washington is much mystified by their persistence.

Origin of the reports is difficult to trace in Wall Street, but a Mellon statement report is almost a daily occurrence. Virtually no attention was paid to the Federal Reserve bank's executive committee meeting, scheduled after the market closed. In view of the recent attitude of the local bank to disclose nothing of their directors' discussions, the market's contempt of the meeting was warranted, for nothing developed from the session.

In a few stocks high-grade buying was noticeable, particularly in Westinghouse Electric. Its friends assert this stock is entitled to sell much closer in price to General Electric. Earnings of Westinghouse on a per-share basis may exceed General Electric this year, it is declared.

With the company's expansion program virtually completed the heavy expenditures which have been made in recent years for such purposes no longer will be taken from annual income. Westinghouse is certain to share in the bright outlook for the electrical industry and the stockholders will share in the prosperity through enlarged dividends. Westinghouse is one of the few stocks concerning which there is almost universal bullishness, which ignores temporary fluctuations in price.

Copper stocks were outstanding features. Andes, which is mentioned in merger discussions, advanced over six points to a new high, while Anaconda, Chile, Kennecott and the others in the group likewise were heavily bought. There is said to be a very big public long interest in the copper shares which is contributing heavily to the loan total, but against this is the expectation that the leaders of the industry have accomplished such stabilization of production that even further price increase is possible.

Oil shares were dull generally. Mariand was the subject of considerable optimism which has not yet been reflected in the price of its shares. Nevertheless interests which have investigated its position have been impressed by the management's ambitious program for development and expansion. Mariand has just taken over another company which will give it entry into the eastern markets, an innovation in its affairs. It should be remembered that some of the strongest banking interests are identified with Mariand.

American and foreign power continued to soar, attaining a record high. Supply of this stock available for trading purposes probably represents less than 10 per cent of the outstanding amount, the remainder being in the hands of Electric Bond & Share and its executives. Foreign Power is the enterprise which is being used by the Electric Bond & Share interests for expansion of their activities in public utilities in foreign lands.

Other utilities were also in demand. Patino Mines, which has won the support of one of the best-known mining executives, had a sharp advance of over four points. St. Joseph lead gained over three points on buying attributed to long-pull investors.

Motor shares enjoyed a rally which failed, however, of impressiveness. Chrysler, for example, climbed 2⅝ points from a price which represented a decline of over 40 points from its highest level. General Motors was up a point. Steel shares displayed strength under leadership of U. S. Steel and Bethlehem. The latter meets support on every setback. It was stated that a surprising amount of odd-lot buying for cash has come into the market the last few days.

MID-WESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 18. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—More activity was in evidence around the 11-market circuit of fed steers and yearlings. Matured steers showed slight strength at some markets, while lightweight steers and yearlings ruled steady to 25 cents higher. Other killing classes were little changed. Stocker and feeder classes were on a steady to weak basis demand centering upon thin lightweight stockers. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 49,600 a decrease of 4,000 from a week ago and 5,000 short of the corresponding day last year.

Hogs found a fairly active outlet to shippers at prices 10 to 25 cents higher than Saturday, but packers were bearish and at several points made their purchases at steady to easier rates. Total offerings were around 130,700 as compared with 153,392 last Monday and 152,658 a year ago.

The sheep supply approximated 65,000 a decrease of 2,000 from a week ago but 3,500 heavier than a year ago. Fat lambs were tendered an uneven decline of 15 to 50 cents, the river markets showing the most loss. Aged stock was on a steady 25 cent lower basis.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Feb. 18. (AP)—Right-about-face quick changes in weather, freezes alternating with thaws, made crop conditions more ominous for domestic winter wheat today, and promptly hoisted values. Much notice was also taken that wheat supplies on ocean passage showed a decided falling-off and are 7,240,000 bushels less than at this time last year.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1c to ⅛@1⅛c net higher. Corn finished unchanged to ⅛c off, oats at ⅛@⅛c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions varying from 37c setback to a rise of 5c.

Kansas and Nebraska advices especially were apprehensive today as to wheat crop damage. Some messages said the latest sudden change in weather 60 degrees fall in temperature in various places, had brought about the worst crop condition yet this winter.

Corn was firmer at times, sympathizing with wheat, but an increase of 3,702,000 bushels in the corn visible supply total tended to enlarge selling in the corn market. Oats were relatively firm, owing to talk of delayed seeding in the Southwest.

Provisions averaged lower, influenced by declines in the value of hogs.

Sanford is scheduled to be arraigned Tuesday before the United States commissioner at Beaumont.

EGGS SHORT ON LOCAL MARKET

Poultry Prices Show Small Advance Here

The increased deliveries of live poultry from the territory surrounding Wichita Falls during the last week has been accompanied by a pronounced dearth of eggs, according to local produce dealers. It was stated that no relief from the present shortage is anticipated until warmer weather becomes established.

Express and truck shipments of poultry continued Monday to arrive in good numbers. The price on cocks advanced from 8 to 10 cents.

SEWAGE SUIT GOES TO TRIAL

Jury Hears Whitney Plea For $27,000 Damages

Testimony for the plaintiff in the suit of D. G. Whitney, asking $27,000 damages from the city because of alleged noxious odors from the river and the city dump, was opened in the 89th district court Monday afternoon after Judge P. A. Martin had overruled a motion for continuance.

The plaintiff alleges that he is the owner of 750 acres of land bordering the river and that the pollution of the river waters from sewage and the spread of unpleasant odors from the dump have damaged him in the sum named during the last two years. His petition asks that the temporary injunction restraining the city from polluting the river or dumping organic matter along its borders be made permanent. Joe B. Hatchitt is representing Mr. Whitney.

George D. Fairtrace, city manager, was the first witness called to the stand after the impaneling of the jury Monday afternoon. He was asked to explain the city's system of sewage disposal and of the use made of the 40 acres of dumping ground owned by the city.

J. A. Wright, a farmer who testified that his home was within two miles of the dump, was also called to the stand for the plaintiff. He said that noxious odors often disturbed his household and had been known to cause the resignation of hired labor. Mora C. Clark, pecan grower, was the third witness for the plaintiff.

Completion of the testimony is not expected before late Tuesday afternoon. Harvey Harris is associated with Thelbert Martin, city attorney, in the conduct of the defense of the city.

Detective Captain Shoemaker, who issued the order, said (Jew) was reported to be connected with hi-jacking exploits and in some instances had employed the disguise of a policeman, which link perfectly with the circumstantial evidence gathered by investigators.

Seven Men Slain

The seven memebrs of "Bugs" Moran's beer running gang were killed in reprisal for the hi-jacking of liquor trucks running between Detroit and Chicago, police are convinced. Witnesses reported that two of the slayers, who were seen leaving the garage after the shooting, wore police uniforms.

Two men who pointed a machine gun from a blue sedan at Traffic Policeman Peter Hanson were sought tonight. Hanson said he drew his pistol and fired at the occupants and believed he wounded one of them.

Auto Deserted

The men in the car deserted their car in a nearby garage shortly after the incident. They leaned from their car, pointed a machine gun and revolver at garage employes and departed hurriedly. The automobile was similar to the description of the one in which the Moran slayers escaped last Thursday.

The funerals of the Gusenberg brothers, Peter and Frank, two of the slain members of Moran's gang, had a touch of the spendior and pretention afforded Dion O'Banion and other colorful figures of gangland who paid the price of power with their lives.

Other Rites Simple

In striking contrast to the Gusenberg funerals, Dr. R. H. Schwimmer who lived the double role of doctor by day and gang associate at night, was buried in a $75 casket after simple services were held in an undertaker's chapel Only a few relatives and friends were present.

Only a few gangster associates gathered at the services for Al Weinshank, Adam Heyer and John May.

The quality of the sleep we enjoy is more important than the quantity; slumber disturbed by dreams is a sign that the brain is still active.

Wichita Locomotive Machinist Makes Statement

"Orgatone Has Not Only Helped My Stomach But Relieved Me Of Other Troubles—Derived Benefits"

"Since taking Orgatone I feel better than I have in a long time," said M. L. Langford, a locomotive machinist, residing at 2116 Yale, Wichita Falls, Texas.

"I would get up in the morning and go to work without eating any breakfast for the food I did eat did not agree with me. I had a very bad case of indigestion and gas would bloat me up and I was very uncomfortable at times. I never ate any meat of any kind and always followed a very light diet. I was not what you might call a sick man, that is down in bed, but there were many days that I felt like I had better be in bed. I was in a very run-down condition and never took anything that seemed to help me very much.

"I heard so many people talking about the good they had received from Orgatone and at last I decided to give it a trial. My appetite began to improve at once and I eat things now that I never could before, with no ill effects afterward. The gas does not form on my stomach and I'm not as nervous as I was. I feel better in every way and wake up in the morning ready for my day's work. I have also persuaded my wife to take it and she, too, is getting good results. I think Orgatone is just the right medicine for anyone suffering as I did."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug store, under the personal direction of the special Orgatone representative. Out-of-town customers are being supplied promptly upon receipt of price, one bottle for $1.25 or six bottles for $6.25.—Adv.

JANNINGS AND GAYNOR OUTSTANDING PLAYERS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18. (UP)—Emil Jannings, the continental star, and Janet Gaynor, who rose to fame in "Seventh Heaven," were named the outstanding film players of the last year by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences today.

The Paramount production, "Wings," was selected as the outstanding picture of the film production year ending Aug. 1, 1928.

Twelve awards for achievement during the year included:

Actor—Emil Jannings, for his performances in "The Way of All Flesh" and "The Last Command."

Actress—Janet Gaynor for her performance in "Seventh Heaven," "Sunrise" and "Street Angel."

Directors—Frank Borzage for directing the dramatic picture, "Seventh Heaven," and Lewis Milestone for directing the comedy picture, "Two Arabian Nights."

Writer — Ben Hecht for writing the original story, "Underworld."

Adaption—Benjamin Glazer for adaptation of "Seventh Heaven."

Picture—Wings, the paramount epic of war in the air.

"Sunrise" was voted the most unique and artistic picture. A special award was given "The Jazz Singer" as the pioneer outstanding talking film. Charles Chaplin was given a special award for acting, writing, directing and producing "The Circus."

Richard Barthelmess was given honorable mention for his work in "The Noose" and "The Patent Leather Kid." Gloria Swanson was mentioned for "Sadie Thompson" and Louise Dresser for "A Ship Comes In."

There are several phases of redemption brought to mind by contemplation of "The Redeeming Sin," now showing at the Strand. A few bits of redeeming that remained to be accomplished when the story ended.

The beauty of the fiery Fleurette, as portrayed by Dolores Costello, and the handsome manliness of Conrad Nagel's Dr. de Boise, together with some exquisite scenic effects obtained by masterful photography, bear the chief burden of redeeming the entire story.

The musical score accompanying the picture also contributes nobly to the work of redeeming phases of the production which have great trouble in standing alone.

Certain derelictions of plot as noticeable as brother out of step were left hanging out with a downright shortage of redemption. For instance, how could little Petite's brutal assassination, which drove Fleurette into such a wild fury, be so completely forgotten within the week that she and her gang, experts in the ways of criminals, make no effort whatever to find out who bumped off the little shaver?

Certain redemptive measures should be provided to compensate for such capable artists as Miss Costello and Mr. Nagel for the burden of carrying on with a plot, which, like undone bread, gummed up badly in spots.

Doheny Recovering From Collapse Which Followed Murder of His Son

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18 (UP)—E. L. Doheny Sr., struck an unnerving blow by the murder of his only son, E. L. Doheny Jr., whom he had expected to carry on the oil interests that brought a fortune to the family, tonight was reported much improved after his collapse.

The 73-yer-old multimillionaire's physicians said that he "seems much better." He probably will be able to attend his son's funeral Tuesday, they said.

The shock of the tragedy early Sunday, when young Doheny was shot to death by his private secretary, Hugh Plunkett, who committed suicide a few minutes later, told on the aged man.

The father collapsed a short time after he had been summoned to the room where his son's body lay. For the next 24 hours his condition was pronounced grave. Then, physicians said, his condition took a turn for the better.

The sheriff's investigation of the shooting was closed today with a murder and suicide report. An autopsy showed clearly that Plunkett had placed the gun to his forehead and committed suicide.

JOHNSTON WINS NEEDED GROUND

Senate Court Throws Out Portion of Testimony

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 18. (AP)—Opinions as to the competency of Gov. Henry S. Johnston were excluded today by the senate court of impeachment, which is trying him, after it had permitted H. E. Sullivan, Johnston's private secretary, to express the conclusion that his chief was incompetent under circumstances prevailing during his term.

The ruling was expected to exclude considerable testimony projected by the house board of managers, prosecuting the governor, and consequently to shorten the trial, which entered its second week today.

Competency Attacked

Much of today's session was devoted to testimony intended to support the board's contention that Johnston is incompetent. The ruling, made by vote of members, reversed a former holding which permitted Sullivan to venture the opinion that the governor was under the domination of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, who resigned recently as confidential secretary; her uncle, J. R. Armstrong and George D. Key, Democratic state chairman, and for that reason was incapable of acting for himself.

Previously the court had ruled inadmissable a reply of Mark Sexson, past grand master of the Oklahoma Masonic grand lodge and long-time friend of the governor, himself a former grand master, to a question similar to that propounded to Sullivan, but based on Sexson's observation of Johnston's conduct of the affairs of the Masonic organization. The ruling sustained an objection of defense counsel that Johnston was not on trial for his record as a Masonic official, but as governor, and prevented Sexson, from replying.

Moral Issue Revived

Dr. E. C. Mobley, pastor of an Oklahoma City church which Johnston attended, revived, under questioning of Johnston's prosecutors, imputations of "moral turpitude" involving Mrs. Hammonds and the suspended governor, responsible for the drafting of a purported impeachment charge by an attempted special session of legislators in December 1927. The pastor related that such reports were discussed at a meeting of eight of the governor's friends with the governor in an attempt to prevail on him to discharge Mrs. Hammonds.

Johnston, Dr. Mobley said, made a speech defending Mrs. Hammonds. The meeting, which previously had been described by Mose Anderson, secretary of the grand lodge, broke up at 3 a. m. Mobley said, after the governor finally had promised to accept Mrs. Hammonds' resignation if Key could persuade her to tender it.

County Authorizes Construction Of Brick Home for Farm Superintendent

Wichita county will build a new brick home on the grounds of the county farm during the next two months the building to serve as headquarters and home for the superintendent, according to plans completed by members of the commissioners court Monday afternoon. The building now used as the superintendent's home will be adapted for housing women inmates, it was explained. Present conditions are so crowded that several women must be quartered in the hospital, Judge John P. Marrs, county judge, told the court.

The commissioners heard a request for the building of seven miles of road connecting the Electra and the Burkburnett highways by way of Clara at the meeting Monday. Although no action was taken it was the sense of the court that the $80,000 thought necessary to complete the work is not at present available.

The commissioners were all formally served with citations in the suits of Guy C. Raley and L. M. Tittle, seeking $32,000 claimed on back delinquent tax commissions.

The January report of E. P. Walsh, county auditor, was presented to the court. It showed a balance of $769,886.55 on Feb. 1. Receipts totaling $214,474.21 had been added to a balance of $606,782.32 on the first of the year, the report showed.

All the commissioners expressed their intention of attending the district meeting of the county judges and county commissioners to be held in Bowie next Friday, M. A. Bundy, from precinct 1 and Judge John P. Marrs are both on the program. Judge Marrs is to discuss "Lateral Roads, Their Structure and Maintenance."

Consolidation of School Districts May Follow Burning of Building

The first Methodist church at County Line will serve as an emergency school house following the fire which destroyed the school building Saturday night, according to Burl Bryant, county superintendent. Another two story building will be moved onto a neighboring lot and will also be used, the superintendent said.

The students at County Line will enjoy only one week's vacation after the fire, the regular school work to start again next Monday morning. Plans for meeting the emergency were completed at a meeting Monday of the board of trustees with Will Brumbalow, principal of the school.

H. H. Haynes, county commissioner for the precinct, said Monday afternoon that the school would probably not be rebuilt. Plans for consolidation will probably develop out of the existing situation, he indicated. The consolidation would not be effected before the opening of the next school term in September, the commissioner added.

Four Take Serum For Rabies After Cow Is Infected

Four workers on a farm near Henrietta are receiving the anti-rabies serum following the discovery Monday that a cow which had been under treatment was infected with hydrophobia.

The diagnosis was made by Dr C. M. Gardner, Wichita Falls veterinarian, who was called to treat the infected animal. The disease may have come from a dog bite, the veterinarian said.

Dr. L. I. Lucey, associated with Dr. Gardner, Monday night issued a warning to owners of stock and of pets, calling attention to the fact that horses and cattle may be afflicted with the disease, and advising vaccination.

Visit to Jail Here Costs Negro Three Years

When Frank Kelly, negro youth known here as "Louisiana," arrived in Wichita Falls Monday morning he was on his way to spend two years in the state penitentiary for theft.

When he leaves Tuesday he will be on his way to serve a five-year term. It happened this way:

Last fall "Louisiana" was convicted here on burglary charges. The jury gave him a three-year suspended sentence. A few weeks ago another jury in Childress found him guilty of the theft of some jewelry and clothing and gave him two years.

When Bud Russell, penitentiary agent, stopped by at Childress he picked up "Louisiana" with the rest, starting him down for two years. As soon as the 19 prisoners marched into the Wichita county jail, where they were to spend Monday night, somebody recognized "Louisiana" and his term jumped three years in that one glance.

Late Monday afternoon Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, took the negro before Judge W. W. Cook where his suspended sentence was revoked.

There are said to be two "danger periods" in the day when factory accidents are most liable to happen—between 9:30 a. m. and 10 a. m., and between 4:30 p. m. and 5 p. m.
