The greenbugs produce living young and a greenbug is ready to produce at the age of seven days, he said. In the past, greenbugs have not been a serious threat because they are killed off during winter months and are eaten by their natural insect enemies in warm weather. The mild winters for the past two years have had a lot to do in increasing the greenbug population he said.

The cutworms are causing much more damage in Kansas to the wheat, Gates said. In one field inspected last week, he said he gathered 50 cutworms in a square foot of soil in one Kansas field.

Mosiac Disease

King spoke mainly on the Mosaic disease which is gradually spreading to fields in the midwestern wheat belt. This disease strikes the wheat in the spring, around April, after the wheat has looked pretty and green all fall and winter. At harvest, there is no grain in the head and the stalks are short.

Experiments have been made to determine if the Mosiac disease is carried by insects, but

County Election On Tax Question Set Next Month

Ochiltree county citizens will be called upon next month to decide whether or not to levy a 30 cent per $100 valuation ad valorum tax, the money to be earmarked for road fund use. Tentative date for the county wide election has been set for Saturday, May 5.

This would not mean an increase in taxes, it would mean replacing the 30 cent tax that has been levied by the state with one levied by the county. Under terms of the 1948 constitutional amendment, the state ad valorem tax went out of effect with the 1951 assessments.

The amendment provided that each county could levy the tax, provided the citizens approved it.

April Snowstorm Strikes Tuesday

What started out as a regular blizzard wound up as a light snow storm in the Perryton area Tuesday. Wind estimated at 30-40 miles per hour whipped down from the north all day, along with a snow which started about 10 o'clock that morning. The temperature hovered around the freezing mark, but the storm was not heavy enough to cause the severe ice damage that the March 28 storm did. Moisture received from the snow was .08 inch in Perryton, according to Judge Jack Allen.

Cancer Drive Quota $575

The annual Cancer Crusade for Ochiltree county was opened this week, with a quota of $575 to be met by the end of April. The Jennie June Club is sponsoring the campaign again this year.

The state goal is $500,000 to carry on the American Cancer Society's program of research, education and service and to educate all Texans to the early warning signs of cancer.

Albert (Red) Schoendiest, infield ace with the St. Louis Cardinals, was the only member of the team to play in all the club's 1950 games.

The word "tumbler" for a drinking glass resulted from the fact that early glasses had round or pointed bottoms which could not stand on a table.

Twenty-one players in the National Football League gained 100 yards or better in single games during the 1950 football season.

College Draft Test Bulletins Are Available

Bulletins explaining the provisions of the Selective Service college qualification test are available at the office of board No. 99 in the couthouse, Mrs. Norma G. Phelps, clerk, has reported.

Results of the test will provide local boards with "evidence of registrants' aptitude for continued college work," and those students who make a qualifying grade are to be placed in a 2-A classification, exempting them from the draft for one year.

The tests will be given on May 26, June 16 and June 20 to those who have begun their college work. High school students or graduates are not eligible to take the tests unless already enrolled in college.

Post card applications are available at the local board. The application is to be filled out and returned at once and then the registrant will be assigned to the center requested.

The test will be given at examination centers throughout the U. S. The testing centers nearest Perryton are West Texas College, Plainview; Texas Tech Lubbock; and Panhandle A & M State College at Canyon; Amarillo College, Amarillo; Wayland College, Goodwell.

One strand of her web is run some distance to a special hideaway that the spider uses as a bedroom. The strand is pulled to a special tension and then the spider goes to sleep. When an insect gets caught in the web, that strand vibrates. The vibration wakes up the spider for dinner.

community support of the school program, as evidenced by a high percentage of tax collections and the building of the plant, especially the new auditorium and gymnasium. The board of education was commended on their policy of allowing the superintendent the freedom of exercising his duties in administering school policies.

The business office was found in good hands and the bookkeeping and auditing system was found highly efficient.

Supt. Gilbert Mize and high school principal O. L. Anderson were commended for excellent administrative planning. The committee found the administration to be absolutely democratic in their procedures and to exhibit a profound interest in children.

The committee recommended clerical help for the high school and junior high principal's offices in order that they may have more time available for supervision.

It was also recommended that a program of in-service teacher training be stressed and that more audio-visual aids be made available in some departments.

Because of certain economic factors and decrease in scholastic population, we recommend that serious consideration be given toward reduction of the high school staff, keeping in mind that the present standard of instructional program not be lowered.

The committee also recommended the gradual purchase of school buses over a period of years.

Program of Studies

The library was found to be very adequate but recommendations were made to increase the reading material in certain departments. The class room teaching in all departments was commended highly. There was especially good cooperation between teachers and students and excellent learning atmosphere prevailed, the committee found. They recommended the addition of some teaching aids in some departments, such as audio-visual equipment, laundry facilities, and additional shop equipment for the farm shop and the industrial arts department.

Members of the evaluation committee were Emmitt Smith, WTSC, chairman; Mrs. Gladys Phillips, Darrouzett; D. V. Biggers, Skellytown; Mrs. Van Bibber, Dumas; Mrs. Tom Muse, Pahnadle; Mrs. Truitt, Canadian; Mrs. Ray Showalter, Shamrock.

County Breeders Rank High In PanTech Tests

Ochiltree county breeders ranked high in the Beef Cattle Improvement Investigations held at PanTech Farms at Panhandle since last fall. The conclusion of the feeding tests was last Saturday, and was observed with the PanTech Field Day when the animals were displayed.

Local breeders had six pens of bulls entered in the experiment. The animals were taken to Pan Tech last fall and all have been fed with the same ration. The test of how much each animal gains and how much each pen gained in weight was an indication of the beef producing characteristics of the sire of the bulls in each pen.

C. A. Hoover had three Hereford bulls which placed third, with an average gain of 367.0 lbs. during the period. Sire was Doctor Don Domino.

C. J. Frantz, Jr., placed fourth with these Hereford bulls showing an average gain of 365.6 lbs. Sire of these bulls was OJR Seth Domino 6th. Another pen of Frantz bulls, sired by OJR Royal Prince 5th, showed an average gain of 350.3 lbs., ranking ninth.

Percy Powers had five Angus bulls showing an average gain of 355 lbs., from the sire Coquette's Bandolier 2nd. He also had three bulls which gained an average of 308.1 lbs., placing 17th. Sire of these bulls was Revemere of Wheatland.

R. H. Holland placed seventh with a pen of Hereford bulls sired by Royal Domino Lad 5th. These bulls gained an average of 351.6 lbs.

nothing conclusive has been proved, King said. In fact, he tried 56 times to transmit the disease from a sick plant to a healthy one and failed to do it with greenbugs. Leaf hoppers, another insect, did transmit the disease two times, he said.

The disease is not of serious consequence in this part of the wheat area at present, he said.

Grain Sorghums

R. E. Karper of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock spoke on grain sorghums, his specialty. He said that the production of grain sorghums in 1950 was 148,000,000 bushels, more than all other small grains combined. Approximately 90 per cent of all grain sorghums grown are combine varieties, he said.

He mentioned several good varieties of grain sorghums for this area, including Morton, Plainsman, Caprock, Early Hegari, Midland and Westland. The latter two varieties mature and dry out for harvest before frost, giving the farmer a chance to sow another crop on the land.

The earlier varieties of course can be harvested earlier but they do not yield as well, he said. They take less moisture, though.

Combine Kaffir 60, Redbine 60 and Redbine 66 are two good early maturing varieties, he said.

Karper illustrated his talk with colored slides, using crops grown at the Lubbock station for illustration.

Karper told about the work being done toward developing a new kind of grain sorghum—one that will grow and be harvested like wheat. The only objection to the present varieties of grain sorghums for this area is that they pump out lots of water from the soil in making big stalks and broad leaves. In July and August, when the rainfall is ordinarily light, the plants use tremendous quantities of water and unless more rain comes when the plants are heading, the grain fails to make, he said.

The new varieties look like wheat. They have a small, slender stalk and a few narrow leaves. The head is long and narrow, like wheat or oats, and is harvested the same way. This kind of plant may never develop, but Karper said that work thus far was very encouraging. In three or four years, he said, they might plant some in the Perryton area.

Ladybugs

George Quick, the ladybug man from Phoenix, Ariz., said that when he first entered the airplane crop dusting field years ago, he noticed that when the bad insects were killed off, the good ones died too, thus throwing nature out of balance.

After much thought about this he entered the unusual profession of furnishing ladybug beetles to farmers to replace the insects that had been killed by spraying. Widespread spraying of fields may be doing more harm than good in the long run, although successful in the immediate results, he said.

The ladybugs eat 50 greenbugs a day in the adult stage and the larvae eat about 25 per day. The ladybug lays about 350 eggs per season, he added.

Ladybugs will perform their job in greenbug infested fields, he said, although the time to put them out is in the fall, not the spring. In fact, Quick said, five gallons of ladybugs put in fields in October or November will do more good than 50 gallons in March and April.

Visitors were present from Alva, Okla., Lipscomb, Hansford, Sherman and Beaver counties, in addition to the large crowd from Ochiltree county.

J. H. Woodward opened the meeting with the invocation, and Lawrence Elizey sang several songs and led group singing before the speakers opened the program.

Barber poles started when barbers were also surgeons and wrapped bloody rags around a pole in front of the shop to dry.

Seek Calves for Girls Ranch Cattle Program

Local ranchers are being asked to contribute calves to Girls Ranch by the Jennie June club and Beta Phi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority. A state-wide cattle stocking program is under way for Girls Ranch at Whiteface, Texas, which will have a 1,400 acre grass lease on the ranch on May 1.

The ranch is to be eventually stocked with Angus cattle, but any kind of cattle will be appreciated now, stated Mrs. H. C. Brillhart, Jr., president of the Jennie June Club. The Texas Angus Assn. is backing the project.

Cash donations as well as calves are gladly accepted, Mrs. Brillhart said. There will be jars placed in business houses for this purpose.

Those who have given Angus calves for delivery now or in the fall are Percy Powers, Daniel Newman, Roger Pearson, Roy Stinson, H. C. Brillhart and Son. Harlan Hawk has given a Hereford calf and L. R. Conner has made a cash donation. R. H. Holland and Dan Archer have promised donations.

Charles Price will take the calves to Whiteface around May 1.

Pigs and chickens are also needed at Girls Ranch and anyone who desires to contribute these may contact any member of the two clubs.

EA Brings Better Living On Farm

During the past few years, life on the farm has become much more enjoyable through the introduction of REA power and the many labor-saving appliances brought about through the use of electricity. Now, with the electrification of the five-county area served by the North Plains Electric Cooperative practically completed, the use of electricity is becoming more and more common on the farm, not only in the house, but outside where farm chores are performed easily and cheaply.

The modern farm home has an electric washer, dryer, ironer, toaster, roaster, iron, stove, radio, clock, lights, coffee maker, sweeper, blankets, refrigerator, home freezer, and other appliances.

The farm shop has a welder, drill, grinder, saw, lathe, soldering iron.

The dairy barn has electric water pumps, pressure system, grain loader, feed mill.

The poultry house has a water warmer, brooder, and lights.

What rural electrification means to the farm homes of this area is shown in the pictures on this page.

PENER—H. L. Wilbanks, who lives three miles southeast of Spearman, has a radio-controlled or which opens by electricity. He drives up to the garage, pushes a button inside his car, and pens. Once inside the garage, he pushes the button and the door closes.

CTRIC KITCHEN—This kitchen in the W. R. Greever home in the southwest corner of Ochil- is an all-electric one. It has an electric dishwasher, refrigerator, home freezer and range, plus r appliances.

North Plains Electric Coop Shows Five Years of Progress

The North Plains Electric Cooperative, organized in 1945 with an initial loan of $158,000, can now look back on five years of progress which has seen electricity brought to approximately 95 per cent of the farms in a five-county area.

In its advance, the cooperative has battled material shortages, tornadoes, wind and lightning storms, competitive building and an ice storm.

In the beginning, it was believed by some REA officials that rural electrification was impractical in this county because of the scattered farm homes. Although the average is less than one farm home per mile of line, the North Plains Cooperative is paying off the loan, as the members are quite willing to pay for electricity.

The first 80 miles of REA lines were energized on February 5, 1946 and served 60 members. The first home energized was the George Robbins home in the Locust Grove community in Hemphill county. Manager Earl Waide still has the first light bulb that was lighted in this home.

Now, five years later, the cooperative has 1,462 miles of line in service delivering electric energy to 1,041 members in Hansford, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Roberts and Wheeler counties. This is an average of 244 miles per year since the beginning of construction, or three-fourths of a mile per working day.

In 1946, the A section was built with 218 miles; the D section of 200 miles was built in 1947; the E section of 287 miles was built in 1948; the F section of 407 miles was built in 1949; and the G-2 section of 151 miles was completed during 1950. Construction is in progress on 66 miles of transmission line to serve the area.

When the cooperative was organized in 1944 the only source of power available was from the municipal plant at Canadian. This plant could not furnish enough power so an additional 750 KW unit was added and approximately 50 per cent of the power is being purchased from Canadian at the present time. The cooperative is also buying power from the Southwestern Public Service Corporation with a metering plant north of Spearman, which will be moved to old Hansford when the 66 miles of transmission line is completed.

At the present time some of the lines are many miles from the source of power and service is hard to maintain, but when the transmission line is completed, all of the distribution lines will be shortened and service will be greatly improved.

Power will then be furnished from four substations. One will be at Spearman, a 1000 KVA station, located one mile north and one mile west of Spearman. This line will serve all of Hansford county and the north part of Hutchinson county.

Station No. 2 is located five miles south of Perryton on highway 3. It is a 1000 KVA station and will serve lines in Ochiltree county. Station No. 3 is also a 1000 KVA station and is located six miles north of Lipscomb on highway 305 and will serve all of Lipscomb county. Station No. 4 is located in Canadian and at present is a 300 KVA station but may be increased to a 600 KVA station.

This station serves all of Hemphill county and lines in Roberts and Wheeler counties.

The cooperative now has lines and equipment valued at $1,473,575.40 and other items, including land, transportation equipment, office furniture and equipment, tools, material and cash amounting to $386,968.57 or total assets of $1,860,543.97.

The cooperative has a board of directors composed of nine members who are elected for a term of three years and are selected as follows: two each from Hansford, Hemphill, Ochiltree and Lipscomb counties and one from Hutchinson county. Each year three directors are elected for a three year term and are nominated at county meetings held in the county they represent at least ten days prior to the annual meeting. At the annual meeting the members thus nominated are elected, or others nominated from the floor.

These nine men are the governing body who formulate the plans, fix the policies and direct the manager in the operation of the cooperative.

There are 12 regular employees working for the cooperative. There are six outside employees, including line forman, linemen and helpers. The six inside employees include the manager, bookkeeper, cashier, stenographer, warehouseman and home economist. In addition to these twelve there are six men available as part time employees who work from the Cook Electric office in Canadian. This crew does all maintenance work in Hemphill, Lipscomb and Roberts counties and also build new lines as time and material permits.

In February, 1951, the average farm used 177 KWH and the average farm bill was $11.95. The average bill, including farms, town residences, schools and churches was 172 KWH and cost $11.65.

In addition to the farms on the REA lines, the cooperative also furnishes electricity to 12 schools, 7 churches, two community centers, Boy Scout headquarters at Lake Marvin, the clubhouse at Lake Marvin and Lake Fryer, post offices at Lipscomb and Gem City, the Canadian Airport, the CAA beacon light, a drive-in theatre, commercial elevators and several farm elevators.

Six Directors Have Served Since Beginning

Officers for the North Plains Electric Cooperative are elected annually and six of the nine directors have been members of the board since the cooperative was organized in 1945.

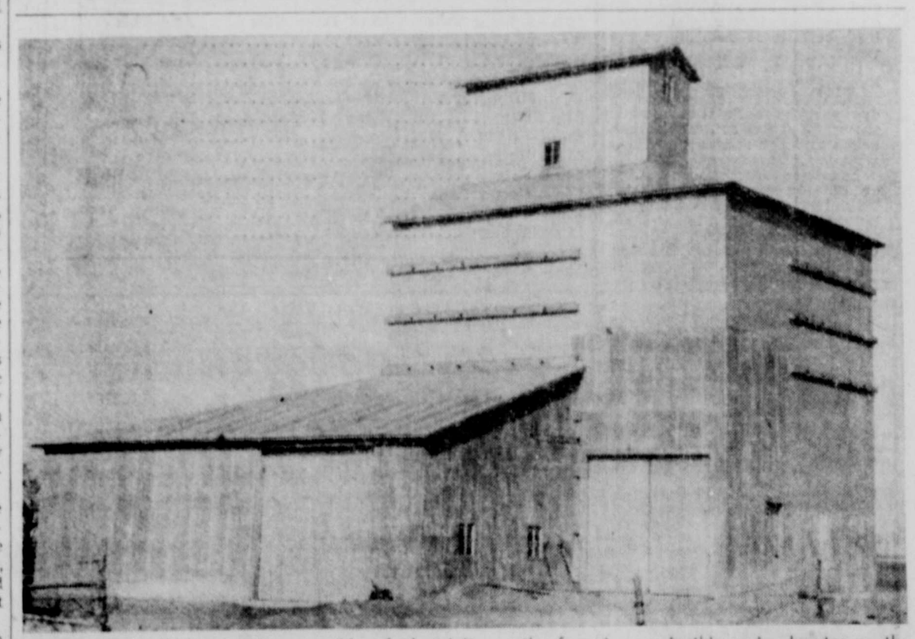

President of the cooperative is W. M. Good of Perryton. Ira Harbour of Hutchinson county is vice president and J. H. Kershaw of Perryton is secretary-treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are R. D. Tomlinson and W. E. Davis, Hansford county; Charles Imke and J. E. Shahan, Lipscomb county; Jack Lawrence and Oscar Forgey, Hemphill county.

Earl Waide of Perryton is the manager of the cooperative.

FARM SHOP—Paul Harbaugh, 25 miles south of Perryton, is shown in his farm shop, which is equipped with practically every electrical appliance known. He has an electric welder, drill, grinder, air compressor and even an electric gasoline pump for machinery.

FARM ELEVATOR—Another example of electricity on the farm is seen in this grain elevator on the John Luthi farm three miles south of Farnsworth. Completed last summer, the elevator has a capacity of 10,000 bushels. It is powered by a 5-horsepower electric motor on the REA line.

FEED RACK—D. P. Unruh and Allison Unruh (pictured above) built this steel feed rack of pipe, using an electric welder. They estimated that the total cost of welding on the metal rack was only $4.

THE first room modernized in most homes is the kitchen.

This forms one of the most satisfying projects and also can be one of the most painless as far as the family budget is concerned.

You don't have to buy a lot of new equipment all at once and pay for the moving of windows and doors and tackle a major redecorating job at the same time. You can do the work a step at a time.

In fact, kitchen planning experts of the General Electric home bureau in Bridgeport, Conn., who design thousands of kitchens every year, point out that you can achieve the same results in remodeling a kitchen over a period of years buying new equipment as you go.

THe main thing is to have a detailed plan of what you want your kitchen to be.

The most efficient layout for a kitchen has been found to be one where work flows smoothly over a work surface from refrigerator to sink to cooking area around the range. Each work surface should have ample storage space in the form of base and wall cabinets.

Many old-fashioned kitchens were unconsciously arranged in a workable order with the exception of work surfaces and storage space. A kitchen table usually provided the only work surface and a pantry, many steps from sink or stove, contained all dishes and condiments.

Nowadays it is not enough to have a rough idea of where you want each of the important departments of your kitchen. You should know down to the last inch where every appliance and piece of furniture will fit in your finished plan. Then when you buy any appliance, you can have in mind both your present kitchen and the place that appliance will occupy in the kitchen you hope to wind up with.

FOR example, if your plan calls for placing the refrigerator at the far left of your layout, you will want a left hand door. Otherwise you will have to walk around the open door on your way to sink or range.

When you buy cabinets, buy them for permanence, so others can be added to give complete unity.

If you have any doubts about planning your kitchen — and there is much skill and experience to be involved—your best bet is to consult your local appliance dealer, who can have your kitchen planned for you in miniature, according to scale. He can help you to measure your space and plan an attractive, efficient kitchen. Appliance manufacturers maintain such service.

STEP-BY-STEP an old-fashioned kitchen can be transformed if you plan your program. Here is how you can budget the modernization. The steps shown here can be divided into more. Lower picture shows the result.

White Kitchen Is Giving Way To Warm Colors

THE spreading use of color, in the home and out, is bringing striking changes in bathrooms and kitchens.

Both of these rooms, formerly sterile white, are beginning to blossom in bright hues.

Tile manufacturers are working closely with the makers of bathroom fixtures to give home owners exactly matching colors, as well as pleasantly blending or contrasting shades.

Cheerful wallpapers have been developed incorporating deep-sea and floral designs for bathrooms, still life and barnyard patterns for kitchens.

Kitchen cabinets made of steel, wood or composition products are available in wide varieties of colors. Apple green, jade green, powder blue, jonquil yellow, being among them.

Manufacturers of refrigerators and ranges are now following the parade. A two-year survey of color preferences was made by the Chambers Corp., of Shelbyville, Ind., before it changed its all-white finish on gas ranges. It found that 31 per cent of its customers were waiting for special tints.

A short cut in this trend is open to householders who would like to change the color of their present white fixtures. The most satisfactory way to do it is to remove the fixture and take it to an automobile spray painting firm where you can select the exact shade you want. This finish dries quickly and gives you a result like that of a new car.

Free and Clear Ownership Is The Best Goal

HOW much of a mortgage should you carry?

Ordinarily this depends on how the monthly carrying charges fit your budget.

But there are times when a home buyer is prepared to invest more than a minimum equity. Sometimes he has a nest egg of bonds and other securities he can liquidate and thereby reduce the amount of debt on his house.

Some people will argue that to do this would be bad business. They will tell you that you can get a greater return on your money in investments than the amount of interest you can save on your mortgage.

They also argue that if you want to resell your house it will be easier to find a buyer if you have a sizable mortgage. The buyer will not need so much cash to meet your price and merely takes over the remaining payments on the mortgage.

Whether this is good or bad business depends on various factors and ultimately on you. For the average person it is easy to find bugs in those arguments.

1. Can you be sure that securities will remain as stable in value as residential real estate?

2. Will any net profits between dividends and mortgage interest amount to more than chicken feed?

3. Will you expect to resell your house, or like most homes will it be your permanent dwelling?

4. With money subject to depreciation in value under inflationary trends, while desirable real estate usually rises in value, which will you choose?

5. What price can you put on the security of your family and your own peace of mind in later years?

And there are many other factors you can think of.

The time-tested rule is to pay all you can in cash, carry as small a mortgage as possible, and pay it off as soon as you can. Free and clear home ownership, with no fixed expenses beyond taxes, maintenance and operation has always been considered the ideal goal for the average family.

TEETER-PROOF LEG

An adjustable furniture leg has been developed to stop teetering on uneven floors. It can be used to change the height of chairs to comfortable positions as well as to vary the pitch of the seat. It works on a fine thread which provides for easy tightening and reduces chances of loosening.

CLUES TO HUES FOR YOU

IF YOU want a guide in choosing colors for a paint job or interior decoration, it's easy to make a color wheel. It will show complimentary colors and also how to mix colors.

Draw a circle. At the point where 12 would appear on a clock, write "Red." At the 4 o'clock point write "Yellow." For 8 o'clock write "Blue."

These are the primary colors. Mixing them produces the secondary colors. Red and yellow make orange, so at the 2 o'clock point write "Orange." Red and blue make purple, which falls at 10 o'clock on this dial. Blue and yellow make green, which is labeled at the 6 o'clock point.

Draw arrows to connect colors which are opposite on the dial: From red to green, blue to orange, and purple to yellow. The arrows will show the complimentary colors—hues that are pleasing when used together.

For tertiary colors draw another circle around this wheel and extend only the secondary colors, orange, green and purple to the outer edge. Since mixing orange and green produces "Citron," that label is placed on the outer edge beyond yellow. Green and purple make "Olive," which is written out beyond blue. Purple and orange produce "Russet," at the point above red.

Citron, being a greenish yellow, or yellowish green, embraces the variations commonly known as chartreuse, lime, pistachio, olive yellow and apple green.

Olive embraces the deep neutral greens often termed evergreens.

Russet, a reddish yellow brown, includes henna and rust.

In mixing paint try small samples first.

Here are some tips on getting other shades:

If You Want This	And Have This	Add This
Brown	Red	Green
Brown	Orange	Blue
Olive	Green	Blue and Red
Dark Blue	Blue	Black
Light Blue	Blue	White
Dark Red	Red	Black
Light Red	Red	Orange
Deep Green	Green	Blue or Black
Light Green	Green	Yellow or White
Dark Yellow	Yellow	Orange
Light Yellow	Yellow	White

Bright Colors Pep Up Basements

When turning a basement into a family recreation center, make full use of gay color and bright light. Bright yellow walls put sunlight into a dark basement. Ivory or white cabinets and shelves with interiors painted in salmon tints add light and contrast.

An asphalt tile floor in gray and salmon red squares with pictorial insets can give such a room added distinction.

Bright draperies in bold, contrasting colors, plus brilliant-hued chairs and comfortable furniture, contribute to enjoyment.

Taking Music Out Of Squeaking Floors

A squeaking floor often can be fixed easily if it is over a basement that has no ceiling.

While someone steps on the squeaking board find the location on the subflooring between joists in the basement. Drive a thin wooden wedge between the joist and subfloor. A piece of shingle will do. Then drive a finishing nail through the floor from above to hold the wedge on the joist. Counter-sink the nail.

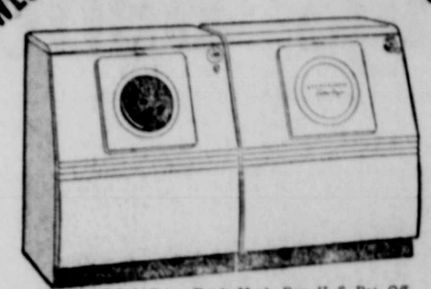

SMOKING FIREPLACE

If your fireplace smokes and you know it is properly constructed and has no obstruction in the flue, such as a swallows' nest or fallen brick, hold a board across the top of the opening to see if that corrects it. If so, a permanent metal hood can be installed to reduce the height of the opening.

started. And reality e place of dreams. By e site was ready, the had worked for seven

The front of the property was nearly denuded of trees. The bulldozer had to have elbow room and trucks and a concrete mixer had to get in.

Leveling the house site gouged out the hillside to a point where the large picture windows on the rear would face a sandbank some twenty feet high—instead of the forest primeval the owners had bargained for.

Grading had buried the trunks of the few remaining big trees in front to a depth of three to four feet. This meant tree wells had to be built.

Water in the basement before the house was entirely completed called for more grading. When this was finished heavy rains demonstrated that much of the hillside water would flow nicely down on a neighbor's yard. This meant an elaborate system of drainage tiles.

The driveway turned out to be so steep that a costly hard surface became a must.

The story turned out to have a happy ending, but it took close to $2,000 to achieve it—half of that going into landscaping a property chosen for its natural beauty.

DIRT CHEAP—Real estate with rock outcroppings offers a bargain for the home planner with ideas. Unusual homes can be planned to exploit the natural beauties of land.

Fitting Plans to a Lot Opens Way for Bargains

TOUGH plots to build on sometimes offer bargains as homesites if you can figure out ways to build economically.

Many desirable properties near large cities are standing idle today because they are generally believed to be too expensive to build on. These include lots in hilly or rocky locations.

One couple spent more than a year looking for a homesite in one of the most picturesque residential areas in an eastern state. Every plot they found on level land turned out to be too expensive for them, or too far from schools, markets, church, transportation and work.

Finally they found a large wooded lot, an acre and a quarter, in size, on a corner of paved streets with sewers and all utilities, convenient to everything —and it was cheap! The only drawback was a 25-foot rock ledge rising through the middle.

The real estate man who showed them the property told them frankly it was undesirable from the standpoint of the builder.

"You'd have to blast out that ledge to get a Cape Cod or Early American house in there," he said.

BUT it was a beautiful spot with 55 large oaks rising 60 to 75 feet in height. The price of the acre and a quarter was $2,000. Smaller lots across the street were selling for $7,500 because they were flat. The young couple saw possibilities of building without a basement. They would perch their house on top of the ledge and watch the world go by.

Before buying they consulted architects and builders. Some tried to discourage them. Finally they turned up in the office of Edgar Tafel, a New York architect specializing in problem sites. Tafel, who had been a student of Frank Lloyd Wright, famed functionalist, saw the same advantages in the rocky cliff that the young couple saw. He took the job.

"Today's generation of architects has a more difficult time earning a living than their predecessors," Tafel said. "Most of the level land around cities has been built on. We are called upon to design homes for lots that have not been built up for the very reason that they are hard to build on."

BUT there are definite advantages in building on a hill, he contends. The home owner gets better air and ventilation, a better view, and more privacy. Usually, except in southern California where hillside lots are considered the choicest locations, he can get his lot for less money. If he is lucky he can save on excavation costs, using the natural slope as part of his excavation.

So Tafel's clients fitted their house to the land. He designed a completely functional house of the solar type, exploiting the hilltop's southern exposure with vast window walls to capture the heat of the sun in winter and shading them with wide roof overhangs for summer months.

The garage entrance was placed on the lower level, where enough basement space could be provided for a recreation room, heating plant and laundry. Almost all of the house was unexcavated. Walls facing toward the bleak northwest were solid masonry. Walls favored with sunlight were devoted to windows — doubleglazed with sealed interspaces to provide insulation.

Because the house was situated on high ground, a flat roof was especially becoming and saved considerable cubage that might have been involved in gabled construction.

However, this architect warns that hilly or rocky sites should be studied carefully before being purchased. They may require more excavation costs, more landscaping and filling to suit individual whim than conventional lots.

THE first step a prospective cliff dweller should take on finding his lot is to get the viewpoints of architects and builders. If they say building will be feasible and not too costly, and the lot has good location, good drainage and utilities—buy it.

But be sure to get information from the town engineer or local building officials on setback lines and zoning requirements. A setback line may compel you to build your house over the cliff.

When the lot is acquired have a civil engineer make a topographical survey. This may cost around $70 or so. From this, the architect will be able to make a contour map of the property. The contour map is necessary for locating the house, not only in relation to setback lines, but also in accordance with the slope of the land. It helps in orienting the house to take advantage of the best sun and the best view, as well as to avoid exposure to chill north winds.

Building jobs on odd lots call for courage on the part of the owners and ingenuity on the part of the architect.

GOT A SCREW LOOSE?

Loose screws, such as on hinges, that cannot be tightened because the holes are too worn, can be reset in a wood plug, plastic wood, or steel wool.

WHY NO ONE REALLY OWNS LAND

A LAWYER will tell you that no one really owns land.

What you own is a title to a certain piece of land.

This title is passed by deed from seller to buyer, by will from testator to legatee, by foreclosure from mortgagor to mortgagee, and so on.

When you buy real estate you have this title searched. This involves tracing the chain of ownership to its origin, or to an unquestioned good source of title, to make sure that no claim is likely to turn up against your right to that land.

If your land was first acquired from the Indians by right of conquest and granted by a king of England, Spain or France to an early settler—or if it was part of the Louisiana Purchase, or a tract homesteaded from the public domain—that is the beginning in your chain of title.

A slip-up or error at some point in this long and complicated chain can cause trouble. Among such possibilities are a rightful heir not mentioned in a will, an abandoned wife deprived of her dower rights, a deed that was lost, forged, or signed by a minor or insane person, an incorrect description of boundaries and plain human mistakes.

YOUR lawyer can make a careful title search for you. And in some states you can obtain a state certificate showing that your title is clear. But if a claim arises and the court finds that the claimant is entitled to some part interest in your land, you must settle. Even if the claim is invalid, you are faced with the nuisance and expense of fighting it in court.

Because of this, title insurance has developed.

Under this system a title guaranty company searches the chain of ownership. It states any objections or flaws that may be found. It issues a policy insuring your title for as long as you hold the property. This is paid for in one single premium.

Any claim that may arise is then fought by the company and any loss that may occur is paid by the company.

AN INTERESTING example of how this works turned up recently when an owner, who held a title policy, was about to sell his property. It was then discovered that before he bought the property there had been a foreclosure action that was not properly carried out.

A process server had served the wrong man in that foreclosure case. The man served had the same name as the rightful owner at that time.

When the process server asked him if he was John Doe, he said he was. That was his name all right. Upon being served, he apparently saw a chance to make some money. He said it would not be necessary to go through the expense of completing the foreclosure, that he would give a deed to the property in return for a certain sum. This offer was accepted, the deed was given in lieu of foreclosure—a common procedure—and the man was paid off.

The result was that the subsequent owner, about to resell, did not have a clear right to the land. But his title to it was insured.

To clear the matter up—to perfect the title, as lawyers say—the title company reopened the old case, reforeclosed, and of course, paid all costs.

BUT in the meantime the prospective buyer for the property got tired of waiting and the pending sale fell through. The owner, now holding a clear title, had lost an opportunity to make a profit he might have made had his title been clear in the first place, as guaranteed by his title policy.

So the title company paid him the difference between the price he had originally paid for the property and the price he was ready to sell for when the flaw was found. It amounted to several thousand dollars.

FUN FOR A DUB WITH A HAMMER

By JOHN L. SPRINGER

"THE average man does not know his own strength with a hammer."

This is the candid comment of a professional wood craftsman who has watched rank amateurs fashion furniture of genuine professional quality after only the simplest instructions.

One man, described by his wife as an absolute dub in all matters pertaining to household repairs, put together in a few hours a pair of bookcases, which were indistinguishable from those made by a professional carpenter.

Secret of the dub's success? He used pre-cut lumber.

Most local lumber yards and millwork firms are equipped to make all the cuts necessary in carpentry—jig saw cuts, cross cuts, bevels, mortises, etc.

This dub merely brought his plans to a nearby wood-working shop. There, a carpenter cut each piece of wood to the exact requirements. Then the amateur picked up all the wood, carried it home, and erected his bookcases—at a saving of one-third over the cost quoted him by a cabinet maker.

Anyone can drive nails, and by driving nails himself the amateur saved the labor costs of a professional. Then he saved himself the additional transportation costs of delivering the bulky bookcases from the carpentry shop to his home—all because he assembled the pieces in a place only a few feet from where they would be installed.

More and more persons are learning the fascination that lies in putting together prefabricated pieces at home. A lawyer, who had never considered himself capable of even the most elemental household repairs, spent a week-end assembling an elaborate bed headboard with side cabinets. A carpenter had quoted him a price of $300. By using lumber cut at a nearby wood-working shop to his own specifications and nailing together the pieces himself, the lawyer saved $125.

An accountant in one evening pieced together a radio-phonograph combination cabinet and pocketed $45 in savings.

If no wood-working shop is nearby you can also have lumber cut to your specifications by mail. Al Grossman, owner of the Wood Market of Mount Vernon, N. Y., says that amateurs in all parts of the country have turned out high-quality pieces through "mail-order" millwork. He estimates the cost of prefabricating lumber from drawings sent in by amateurs and even from illustrations clipped from newspapers and magazines.

Whether it be tables, wall cabinets, bookcases, breakfronts or movable closets, it is likely that you can save considerable amounts by doing some of the work—the simplest parts—yourself. Remember that the professionals often must spend the same amount of time as you do on these simplest of chores, and that, in addition, you save yourself the high shipping charges that often are involved when a bulky piece of furniture is transported.

The next time you have a wood job to do, at least get an estimate on prefabricated parts from a wood-working shop. You may be surprised at the savings—and satisfaction—that come from doing some of the job yourself.

Build It Yourself But Watch That Door

WATCH your ambition when building your own furniture. Figure carefully on whether you can get the finished product through the door and around hall corners.

Many a triumphant Make-It-Yourselfer has discovered after sanding, staining and polishing his masterpiece that he could not move it from his basement workshop to the bedroom it was planned for.

One amateur had to saw his bookcase in half. Another had to cut the legs off a desk and dowel them back on again, leaving telltale blemishes.

Bridging Lets Entire Floor Share Weight

THE cross pieces you will notice between joists, when looking up at floor construction from a basement, are now often made of steel.

The function of such bridging is to make floors more rigid and to distribute weight, so that a grand piano or other heavy pieces of furniture are not supported solely by the part of the floor they occupy.

Without bridging, a floor can spring when you walk across it. Wood braces arranged in criss-cross fashion between the joists transfer the weight horizontally as well as vertically. Such wood braces are sufficient, but it takes time to install them.

A new form of steel bracing is said to cut bridging costs in half. These steel pieces, rust-proofed and ribbed for extra strength, have prongs that are driven into the joists and are countersunk with one hammer blow. Each bridge involves only two nails—saving six nails in the average installation.

Ends of the steel braces are doubled back over the opposite side of the joist to cleat them and reinforce their hold. The manufacturer claims a strength in tension of 2,000 pounds considerably stronger than wood bridging.

Prefabricated Chimneys Cut Down Costly Masonry

PREFABRICATED chimneys have won wide use in modern home building and remodeling.

They eliminate the expense of masonry work, can be installed in midwinter when bricklaying is impossible, and they introduce new speed in construction.

Sectional, they can be set up by two men in about an hour and a half in contrast to three to four man-days required to build the average brick chimney. Complete cost is quoted from 20 to 50 per cent less than that of a conventional masonry chimney.

KNOWN as package-type chimneys, they have been approved by the Underwriters Laboratories, the FHA and by building officials in more than 1,000 communities.

Sections are 14½ inches in diameter and of two lengths—12 and 24 inches. They weigh about 27 pounds per foot, which is approximately a tenth of the weight of a masonry chimney.

These sections are aluminum-encased and contain a 7-inch fire-clay flue surrounded by 3 inches of expanded vermiculite, a lightweight mica product, for insulation.

IN INSTALLING the sections, carpenters or sheet metal workers, depending on which trades decide on jurisdiction, cement the sections together permanently with acid-proof cement to form gas-tight, fireproof joints. The chimney can be suspended from ceiling or floor, or supported on a basement foundation of concrete block, brick or steel post.

Since this type of chimney is round, the part that protrudes above the roof is enclosed in a square roof housing, flashed according to roof pitch and equipped with fire clay chimney pot and rain cap.

According to Chester A. Pynn, vice-president of the Van Packer Corp., more than 10,000 of these pre-cast chimneys are now in use in the New York area alone.

Working Plans For the Handy Man

If you're handy with tools and like to make things yourself you can get working plans for various useful accessories by writing to the Western Pine Association, 510 Yeon Building, Portland 4, Ore.

Among instruction sheets available is one for a rod and gun cabinet. Another that fills many household needs shows how to build a knotty pine chest for storing sweaters, T-shirts, blankets and swimming trunks out of season.

A colonial bookcase and cabinet for living or den that can serve for dishes and table linen in a dining room, or for books, clothing and knicknacks in a bedroom, is among other plans available without charge.

Small Lifts Change House To Apartments

THE remodeling of large old houses into apartments, residence clubs and rooming houses has stimulated the installation of personal service elevators.

Simplification in the design and safety of automatic elevators has brought the installation of this convenience down below the cost of the average automobile.

Many private home elevators are installed in stairwells. Others are placed where closets are directly in line. A two-passenger car for a private home requires a clear space of 4 ft., 2 in., by 3 ft., 11 in.

Fred Kuehl, Otis elevator engineer, points out that new designs for hoistways require no special construction for vertical supports. Penthouses, previously required for elevator machinery, have been eliminated by installing such mechanism in the basement.

Cars are automatic, operating by push-buttons. Doors swing on hinges like other doors of a house, and they cannot be opened unless the elevator is at the landing.

ASSURANCE IN INSURANCE

THE right kind of insurance is one of the most important requirements in a new house project.

If you are having your house built, you will want protection even before the structure begins to take shape. If you are not certain about the financial status and past experience of your builder or contractor, you can require him to post a performance bond. This will assure you that an insurance company will supply funds to complete your home if the builder goes bankrupt and cannot finish the job.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters points out that there are several broad coverages to protect the new home owner. For example, "building-in-course-of-construction" insurance covers fire, supplemental perils, liability and vandalism.

THE average small house buyer, carrying a maximum mortgage, seldom needs additional fire insurance on his house aside from that required by his bank or other mortgage lender. If you borrow $8,000 to finance the purchase of a $10,000 house, the mortgage will require an $8,000 fire insurance policy to protect his loan. Your $2,000 equity will be covered by the land and foundation. But keep reproduction costs in mind.

This policy need not be purchased as part of the mortgage transaction. If it is bought separately, the home owner saves a little money by not having to pay mortgage interest on his fire insurance premiums.

In any case where the amount of a mortgage is proportionately less than the sound value of a house, the owner should carry additional insurance. In some places if insurance does not equal at least 80 per cent of the sound value, a penalty develops in the case of partial loss. Insurance adjusters can hold that because of the lack of full coverage the owner was carrying part of the risk and therefore bears part of the loss.

FOR a small additional cost, extended coverage or supplemental endorsement will protect a home owner against windstorm, hail, tornado, aircraft, vehicles, riots, smoke damage and explosion (other than boiler or steam piping).

The importance of extended coverage is constantly demonstrated. In the one month of May, 1950, for instance, insurance companies paid nearly 330,000 claims under such endorsements. Most of them were the result of violent windstorms in the midwest and southwest, and 15,000 were from the South Amboy, N. J., munitions blast.

Personal property fire insurance to cover furniture, clothing and all the other contents of your house is highly important. Where personal property has a larger than normal value, a personal property floater is carried to protect all items whether in the house or away from home. Otherwise, it is prudent to have burglary, theft and larceny insurance.

Boiler explosion insurance and water damage coverage are among other forms advisable. Rental value insurance will pay for temporary quarters during reconstruction if your house becomes uninhabitable in whole or in part. A liability policy will protect you in the event of lawsuit by any person injured on your property.

Your Building Inspector Fills an Important Role

MANY thousands of persons throughout the country owe the safety and workability of their homes to an individual they have never seen or, possibly, never even heard about. He is the unsung public servant—the building inspector.

To guard against the erection of homes which are structurally unsound or unsanitary, most communities have set up building codes—a set of rules covering what materials must be used, and how. The job of administering the code falls to the building inspector.

Often he is your only protection against an unscrupulous builder. For example, he will make certain that the concrete footings upon which the house will rest are placed on solid earth, and that the foundations will be strong enough to carry the weight that will be placed upon them.

He also examines such structural factors as the floor beams and joists, and how they are nailed; the electrical wiring, to make sure that it conforms to safety standards; the interior wall covering (usually plaster or plaster-board) to see that it is properly fire retardant.

Without the services of the building inspector, disease probably would run rampant in modern cities. For example, he guarantees against pollution of the water supply and checks against sewage which may contaminate. In houses he also makes sure that the plumbing fixtures are properly trapped and vented, so that they will not cause possible disease-breeding backflows.

Most building codes specify that the inspector must also be consulted when home owners plan major repairs. To cut corners, some home repairmen decide to do things in a way the inspector would not approve and they neglect to notify him of their plans. This is unwise. The inspector's seal of approval is your almost-certain guarantee that you have a home that is safe and sound.

Aluminum Frame For Screen or Storm

A combination storm and screen door, made of aluminum and window panels, is manufactured hung in an aluminum frame which fits into a door-frame and insures trouble free action without planing or refitting.

Designed for both front and rear doors, this equipment is left in place the year-round, with panels changed for the seasons. Its makers claim that although it is lightweight, it is strong enough to resist the abuse of growing children.

Red-Brown Finish For Pine Paneling

A red-brown finish for pine paneling will liven up a colorless, cheerless room.

Sponge the wood with clean, clear water, allow to dry and sand the raised grain with fine sandpaper or steel wool. Stain the wood with chloride of iron in water. Sand when dry. Shadow glaze with burnt sienna. Follow with pure white shellac and then wax.

The Western Pine Association in recommending this finish says it's fine for overly-large or high ceiling rooms, or areas where the sun doesn't often reach.

IMPREGNATED WOOD

Wood for use near or in contact with the ground, such as porch columns, sills, sheathing, studs and subflooring, can now be obtained treated with chromated zinc chloride to resist decay and termites and also to retard fire. This chemical is said to prevent the growth of fungi and also to render the wood difficult to ignite. It is paintable and odorless.

Director Howard Hawks was so charmed by the early-American house in "Bringing Up Baby," the Katharine Hepburn-Cary Grant comedy he directed in 1938, that he had a virtual duplicate built to live in.

The stylized early-American home seen in "The Bachelor and the Bobby Soxer" brought numerous inquiries. So did the Colonial cottage in "Every Girl Should Be Married." Fans also liked the dude ranch house, with stone fireplaces and rawhide lampshades, where Jack Carson and Dennie Morgan cavorted in "Two Guys From Texas."

Studios generally prefer not to bother sending out plans and photos, though frequently they do. Architecture, they point out, is not their business.

WALTER HAGEDOHM of the California Council of Architects says: "We're not influenced so much by pictures as by people being educated to want better things. One of our jobs is to make them see what they're going to get. Most of them can't visualize this; movies help them to do so.

"Pictures also have done damage by overemphasizing certain things that are not always possible to put in a home. Extremely modern things, for example. Pictures also give the appearance in a lot of cases of a sumptuousness that's difficult to obtain on the average family's budget.

"No trends have been introduced by the movies. But they have augmented trends started by architects."

Curtain Elevators Offer Easy Way to Hang Drapes

CURTAIN rods seem to be on their way out, and along with them the hazards of teetering on stepladder or chair while hanging drapes and valances.

A new contrivance being distributed through decorators offers an easy way to hang curtains from the floor. It comprises rails along the window frame on which the cross bar holding the curtains slides up and down. This makes it possible to lower drapes, valance and glass curtains, to change them or adjust them, raise them again, or swing them open for window cleaning and ventilation, while both feet are planted firmly on the floor.

The entire device is easily put up with two screws on each side, top and bottom. Shrinkage or stretching of curtains after cleaning can be compensated for by lowering the support bar a fraction of an inch.

Where to Place Your Food Freezer

Some architects contend that food freezers, unlike refrigerators, are opened so seldom that they might as well be located in the cellar, thereby saving that space in a kitchen.

One advantage of having the food freezer in the kitchen, however, is the proximity of the sink and range, both of which are needed in the freezing process.

By planning work surfaces next to the freezer you can prepare foods and store them in the unit with a minimum of steps.

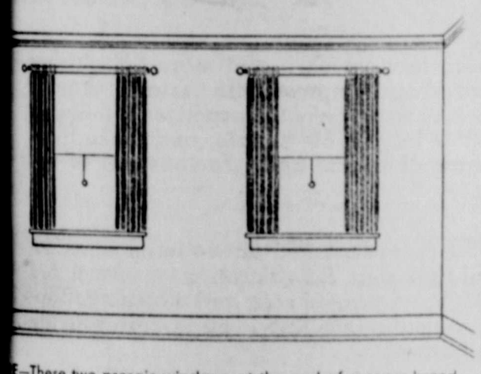

Why People Have Wide Windows

WINDOWS are no longer merely a means of providing light and ventilation. In both the new and remodeled house they form dramatic decorative focal points blending the outdoorks and indoors.

Today's trend toward wide, floor-to-ceiling window walls is dictated by a variety of factors. The sweeping view that gives a picture window its name is one of these. The capturing of breezes through French doors and awning type upper panes that siphon off ceiling heat is another advantage. But the decorative appeal through light, color and draperies is not to be disparaged.

A smart California idea that is gaining popularity in every state is a big window made up of mullions and muntins of 2x4 construction. Sturdy and functional, this design offers several attractions. It simplifies the use of insulating panes in smaller sizes. It forms a picture window with upper panes that can be opened for ventilation. And its framework provides nifty shelf space for the display of American glassware, potted plants and other bric-a-brac.

LINDS AND DRAPES CAN DO TRICKS WITH WINDOWS

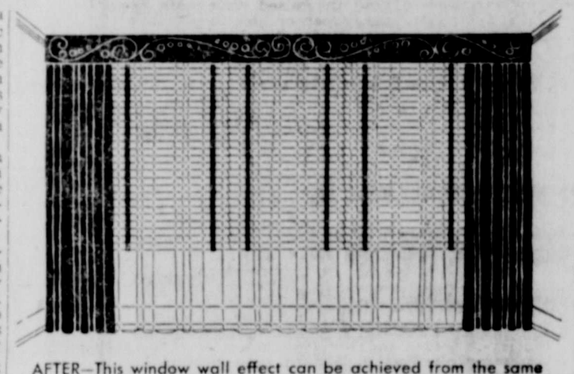

E—These two prosaic windows at the end of a room breed headaches if you don't know what to do.

IN MODERNIZING interiors, a slick bit of decorating magic can be achieved with Venetian blinds. To all appearances the shape and size of windows can be changed and the proportions of a room can be altered merely by the way in which Venetian blinds and draperies are used.

A lonely single window can take on all the grace and charm of a full length French style window, a broad picture window, or even a set of three windows by using dummy blinds.

For the illusion of a floor-length window, merely hang an oversize blind over the window frame and let it fall to the floor. Drapes to the floor are hung so they cover only wall spaces with their center edges merely covering the edges of the blind. The result is the appearance of a tall, wide, handsome window.

AFTER—This window wall effect can be achieved from the same two windows with Venetian blinds and drapes.

SPEAKING OF Furniture

By A. P. McELVEY

Picture Window

Did you ever stop to consider what a tremendous part windows play in your decorative scheme? Aside from being a structural part of the room and having architectural significance, when treated with distinctiveness and taste they can do more toward establishing the type and atmosphere of a room than almost any other factor.

Today the trend is toward having more and more light in our rooms. We no longer shroud our windows with curtains, draperies and over-draperies which was one of the practices of the past. We now keep our window treatments simple, and make them contribute their full share of charm and graciousness to the room's background.

The picture window in the room sketched above forms a perfect setting for the provincial-type sofa. Pale citron color on painted walls was picked up from floral print of sofa and matching draperies. Ceiling has been painted a soft blue to harmonize with the deeper blue broadloom carpet.

These background colors are a complimentary foil for the rich burnished tones of the maple chairs, tables and writing desk. Glass shelves in picture window form repository for treasured glass collection.

We choose our furniture to suit your needs. And for this reason, whether you want to invest in a houseful of furniture, or whether it's just an occasional piece you need, we have it. Come in to see our quality-right, budget-right furniture. We'll be glad to arrange term payments.

KEEPING TRIM CLEAN

WIRE finishing nails often make a carpenter's fingers dirty when he is nailing trim. The smudges are transferred to the trim and take time to sand off. One way to prevent this is to put a handful of sawdust with the nails in the pocket of the carpenter's apron. The sawdust keeps the nails and fingers clean.

KITCHEN CONVENIENCE

PULL-OUT boards under the kitchen counter are very useful. A bread board is the most common. But other needs can be filled. For instance, a pull-out board to hold a mixing bowl firmly while ingredients are being stirred is easily contrived. An 8-inch hole cut in the center of such a board will hold a bowl. It can be made smaller or larger if desired and alternate boards can be inserted. Saturate the board with paraffin so it can be cleaned easily

WHEN WINDOWS BIND

A FREQUENT cause of sticking windows is at the sill. The window stool swells and holds the sash from moving.

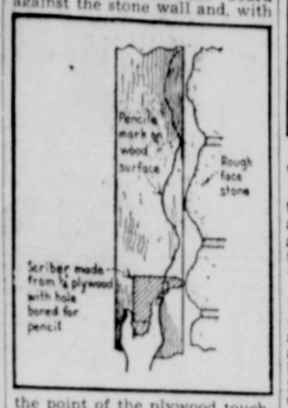

A Waco, Tex., handyman passed the following remedy on to other householders through the American Builder's "How-to-Do-It" roundup: Remove the stool and plane the edge that adjoins the sash on a diagonal, leaving a sharp edge at the top surface of the stool and space at the bottom as shown in this diagram.

BOARD AGAINST STONE

TO FIT the edge of a board to the irregular surface of a stone wall is tricky. Accurate scribing of the board is called for. Take a piece of ¼-inch plywood, as shown in this sketch, and make a hole for a pencil near the top and close to the pointed end. Hold the board against the stone wall and, with the point of the plywood touching the stone work, draw it downward for a perfect parallel copy. Saw the board accordingly. A Kansas City, Mo., carpenter devised this method and finds the scriber works from either left or right side, top or bottom.

ROT-PROOF POSTS

THE rotting of fence posts or mail box posts can be forestalled by charring the end that will be buried. A Grand Rapids, Mich., craftsman finds this a convenient stopgap when creosote and other impregnations are not available. He builds a small bon fire and burns the ends of each post until well charred by the flames. He says this method is effective against insects as well as against natural decomposition.

SANDING NARROW SLOTS

PLACE two blades in a hack-saw with the teeth facing upward. Wrap a strip of sandpaper lightly around the blades and staple the upper ends of the sandpaper together. For a wider slot, use double or triple thicknesses of sandpaper.

...T KIND OF ROOF

...h of a roof determines ...ht kind of roofing ma- ...withstand the weather. ...alt shingle industry ...ds any kind of this ...ingle for roofs with a ...nches or more for each ...foot. The lowest pitch ...ded for asphalt roll roofing applied with exposed nails is 3 inches per foot. If nails are concealed, roll roofing is satisfactory with a 1½-inch to 2-inch rise, depending on the amount of overlap. Nineteen-inch selvage edge asphalt roll roofing has been found suitable for pitches as low as 1-inch per foot. For lesser rises built-up roofing is required.

A JOINT FOR GLUE

WHEN two boards are to be glued together it is necessary to have the edges smoothed for a tight fit. If a jointer is not available, place the two boards together and fasten them temporarily with strap pieces nailed to their undersides. Put this assembly on a saw table and set the saw fence so the saw will cut through the joint. The saw will take a little off each edge. If done carefully, the edges will be smooth for glueing.

GARAGE STORAGE SPACE

IF YOUR garage is small and you need more storage space, a cabinet built high enough to allow the hood of your automobile to drive under it may solve your problem. It is handy for dead storage, since it cannot be opened conveniently when the car is in the garage.

KITCHEN CORNERED?

THE difficulty of reaching into the extra depth of corners under kitchen counters often reduces the efficiency of kitchen planning. One way to make use of the corner space under counters is to install double hinged doors that afford easy access to shelves.

SAW DEPTH GAUGE

TO SAW a cut to an even depth in a board, clamp a wood strip to the saw as shown in this sketch, placing it so the bottom edge will measure from the edge of the saw teeth to the desired distance to be cut. The strip will stop the saw from cutting at the depth required.

TO REPLACE SIDING

WHEN clapboards must be removed it is advisable to replace them in their original positions. To do this easily, without numbering, fasten a strip of cellulose tape diagonally across the face of the boards and cut the tape between the boards. When the boards are replaced it is easy to match up the tape.

TO WIDEN SHELVES

TO MAKE a wide board out of two narrow boards, drive nails into the edge of one board. Remove the nail heads and file the ends to points. Then lay both boards flat on the floor so the nails are between them and with one board against the wall, drive the two boards together. This is easier and quicker than trying to make dowel joints by getting holes bored evenly.

EMERGENCY DRILL

WHEN a drill bit breaks, a nail approximately the size of the bit may make a temporary replacement. Hammer the point of the nail flat and file beveled edges on two sides. Cut off the head of the nail and fit it tightly into the chuck of the drill.

Perryton Man Home on Leave After Combat Duty in Korea

Darrell Cook, Korean combat veteran who saw service both on board a Navy destroyer and as a rifle-totin' foot soldier, arrived in Perryton Monday to spend a 30-day furlough in the home of his mother, Mrs. Charles Helton of 521 Eton street.

Cook, who is a Navy electricians mate 3rd class was a member of the landing force on the U. S. S. Ozborn and became a temporary doughfoot last July when Army ground forces became desperately short of personnel. The Perryton serviceman spent more than six weeks with the infantry receiving two weeks training and more than four weeks in the line where he served as a communications man.

He was emphatic in stating that he preferred duty on ship board to the life of a foot soldier in combat. He added, however, that relations between the Navy men and the infantry were quite satisfactory—"We had to be there and they were awfully glad to see us," he said.

The youthful combat veteran verified newspaper reports that one of the chief tactical difficulties in the early phase of the fighting was distinguishing North Koreans from the South Koreans. "It was about like distinguishing a Yankee from a rebel by appearance alone," he related.

In evaluating the North Koreans and their equipment he pointed out that about all they had were hordes of men. He added, however, that Russian training was evident in the troops as well as in their arms and equipment.

Cook declined to discuss his own accomplishments with the ground troops, but said that the Navy landing force operated together as a unit under Army command doing demolition work and serving as riflemen and BAR men. The supply situation was extremely critical at the time Cook served with the Army, but none of his group ever went hungry, and the weather was warm and their clothing was adequate.

"We had our own Navy cooks and received one or two hot meals a day," he said.

After more than four weeks ashore with the ground troops

DARRELL COOK

Cook was returned to his destroyer, the U.S.S. Ozborn, which was engaged in picketing and shore bombardment in Korean waters. The most active period for the destroyer was during February and March, he said. The destroyer carried out shore bombardment along the east coast of Korea bombarding bridges, troop concentrations and any other targets which would disrupt the flow of supplies to the enemy.

Cook said the destroyer operated as close as 2,000 yards off shore and that their fire was frequently returned by shore batteries.

Propaganda reports from the enemy are a source of entertainment for troops in the Korean conflict just as they were for service men in World War II, according to Cook. He recalled an English speaking broadcast from Vladivostok in which the Communist commentator bemoaned the fact that while Russia engaged in the peaceful production of canals and heavy trucks the U. S. is building military aircraft and tanks. Apparently no popular radio voices such as that of Axis Sally and Tokyo Rose have been developed by the Russians.

Cook joined the Navy in November 1947 and received his boot training at San Diego followed by six months in electricians school also in San Diego. Following his electricians training he was assigned to the U. S. S. Ozborn. He made his first trip to the Pacific in 1948 going to China. He has visited on Formosa, Hong Kong and has seen a great deal of Japan.

Although Cook has had little personal contact with Army personnel since his duty ashore last summer, he says Navy morale is high and is being improved by the rotation of personnel for furloughs in the U. S.

In commenting on his impression of the civilian response to the war, Cook said, "If it weren't for the newspapers you wouldn't know there is a war going on."

The local Navy man flew from Tokyo arriving in the United States Friday.

Allen Wins In Western Drama

Rex Allen, the Arizona Cowboy, wins out over a new kind of crook in his latest Western, "Silver City Bonanza." This time he fights under water to rid the range of badmen. The picture comes to the Pertex on Friday and Saturday.

In this picture, Allen tracks down the murderer of his best friend, Pete, a blind cowboy who has been knifed to death while riding the range with his seeing-eye dog. Rex tracks the killer to the ranch of pretty Katie McIntosh and the trail leads to a Spanish Silver Lode, and it is under the surface that Rex tangles with a diver and brings him to justice.

Injections Cut Disease

TEL AVIV (AP)—During the past two years, skin diseases and eye infections have dropped by 70 per cent among the 50,000 Bedouins of the Southern Israel desert Negev due to modern medical methods, local newspapers report.

"Health injections" as they are called here, include also vaccinations against tuberculosis, successfully introduced in Israel by Danish volunteers of "Intucam" (International Tuberculosis Campaign) and now taken over by local medical teams.

South Sea Island Love Story Told In 'Bird of Paradise'

The enchantment of the islands, the spectacle of volcanic eruption and the beauty of Technicolor in the tropics are combined in "Bird of Paradise," the picture which comes to the Ellis on Tuesday-Thursday.

Jeff Chandler, who played an Indian chief in "Broken Arrow," is a Polynesian chief in this one, along with Debra Paget as a native girl and Louis Jourdan as the white visitor to the islands.

It is a story of native manners customs and culture, along with the love story between the white adventurer and island adventurer.

The story, briefly, concerns a Polynesian islander, Chandler, who, after a brief visit to civilization, returns to the islands, bringing friend Jourdan with him. Once there, Jourdan is smitten with the island maiden, and they work up quite a courtship amid the hazards of native taboos, a hostile witch doctor and a volcano which erupts.

The picture was photographed in the coral, cocoanuts, volcanoes and lush vegetation of Hawaii, with hundreds of natives employed to give an air of realism.

Barbary Coast Tale Related In 'Belle Le Grand'

"Belle Le Grand," the Peter B. Kyne story about the Barbary Coast before the turn of the century, comes to the Ellis on Friday and Saturday. Vera Ralston has the title role and John Carroll is seen as Lucky John Kilton, mine owner.

Belle has been led to her life of gambling by circumstances. Once married to a scoundrel card-sharp, she went to prison for a murder he committed. Upon her release, she turns to the only trade left her by a prejudiced society, and amasses a fortune operating a luxurious gambling house.

She buys a large block of shares in a silver mine operated by John Kilton. He holds back news of a rich strike at the mine and is able to buy up substantial shares of stock in the property owned by Montgomery Crane (Stephen Chase). Kilton and Belle make staggering profits in the transaction, and find each other extremely attractive.

Crane attempts a romance with Nan Henshaw, pretty young singer, portrayed by talented Muriel Lawrence. Unknown to Nan, she is Belle's sister, and Belle is able to cut off Crane's attentions to Nan, for he is the scroundel to whom she was married. But then Kilton falls in love with Nan, and this is a matter of green-eyed concern to Belle.

When Crane sets out to ruin Kilton in revenge for his own financial defeat, exciting drama results. Scenes of a deliberately-set fire in the mine are particularly breath-taking.

TWO-WAY RADIO—A recent innovation at the local REA office, greatly facilitated repair work on local REA lines during the recent ice storm according to Earl Waide, North Plains Electrical Coop manager. The local net includes the base station in the Perryton office, four mobile units here and two at Canadian. N. R. Hutton, line foreman, is pictured above at the local base station. He estimates that use of the radio reduced cost of recent repairs by fifty per cent in addition to providing invaluable as a safety measure. Using the radio, line crews in the field could be notified where to expect hot wires reducing the hazard to workmen in making repairs.

(Herald Staff Photo Engraving)

Two-Way Radio System Speeds Trouble Calls On REA Lines

For fast service on rural lines, the North Plains Electric Cooperative has installed a two-way communications system with a range of 45 miles.

The system consists of a 60-watt FM radio system with six mobile units on company trucks. It operates on 158.25 megacycles. To further increase efficiency on trouble and service calls, the cooperative is installing a similar system at Canadian where the crews can have this modern equipment in their territory.

Cost of the unit is approximately $10,000. The one in Perryton was installed in May, 1950, and was in operation for 26 days when it was put out of commission. The cooperative's transmitter is located on top of the Equity elevator in Perryton and when the explosion occurred there, the equipment was wrecked. It was put back into operation in October last year.

All operators of the radio are licensed radio operators possessing a "Restricted Radio-Telephone Operator Permit" from the Federal Communications Commission. These licenses are invalid for any other than business use.

There are four operators in the office, two at Canadian and one for each of the six trucks. The trucks can communicate with eath other for a radius of 10-12 miles.

During the repair of the lines after the recent blizzard, the radio proved its worth. Maintaining around-the-clock vigil, operators at the central station kept constant contact with the trucks in the field and saved valuable time in getting the lines back in operation.

Air Force Has Beauty Plan for Lady Recruits

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Join the Air Force, Lady, and learn about poise, confidence, and personal appearance. Experts will teach you.

Classes in personal appearance have been added to the training schedules for women of the Air Force—WAFs—at sprawling Lackland Air Force base here.

"Women, especially those in uniform, can be just as dainty, feminine, and carefully groomed as ever," explained Robert L. Detchemendy, head of the personal appearance course at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo.

Detchemendy and his pretty assistant, Ann LaRue, spent a week at Lackland lecturing, demonstrating and organizing the courses.

"Women in uniform are like women in any walk of life in matters concerned with grooming," Detchemendy told the WAFs who in turn will instruct women recruits.

"When they're well turned out, the knowledge is all powerful with respect to the psychological approach to their jobs."

Individual styling of hair and skin grooming are part of the course. Cleanliness, wholesomeness and neatness are stressed. Posture and etiquette are treated extensively. Points are given on diet, as an aid to a naturally attractive complexion, and to sports and exercise as aids to maintaining a trim figure.

Jock Gerard was in Amarillo Friday on business.

Roaring Ranger History Told In New Book

RANGER, Texas (AP)—"An atmosphere of mud, murder, and madness," characterized the great Ranger oil rush of more than 30 years ago.

It is described in Boyce House's book "Roaring Ranger, The World's Biggest Boom," to be published April 6 by Naylor Company of San Antonio.

Corn liquor was a dollar a drink. A hotel cot in a hallway cost $5 a night. The field's biggest well, the Norwood gusher, produced $35,000 worth of oil in one day on a farm which had been bought for $5 an acre 11 years before. A mule drowned in the mud of main street.

Celebrities such as Tex Rickard, Rex Beach, Jess Willard, and John Ringling played a part in the boom.

House, author of twelve books, was a newspaperman in Ranger and nearby Eastland and Cisco for ten years and writes from first-hand experience.

The ancients believed the topaz would relieve insanity, asthma, insomnia and anger and would cool boiling water.

Buzz And The Off-Key Baritones

Reverend Lester of the church out on Hillsboro Road coaches his Young Peoples' Choir late Thursday afternoons—after high school basketball practice lets out.

Buzz Ellis pastures cows next to that church. Around 5 o'clock they used to make a lot of racket about wanting to go home. That made it kind of rough on the choir.

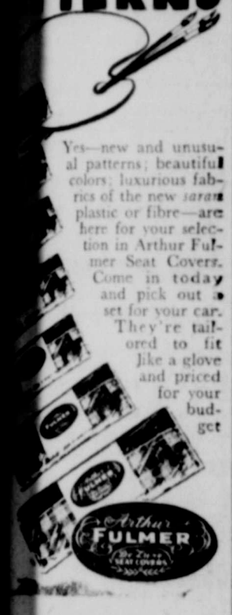

When Buzz learned what was going on he said to Reverend Lester: "I never yet heard of a cow that could moo on key. So, I'll just move 'em in a little earlier...." This started me to thinking. Buzz doesn't go to that church. And he's so tone-deaf he couldn't carry a tune in a bucket!

From where I sit, you might say that Buzz didn't have much in common with those singers. But he doesn't divide folks into groups he's "with" or "agin." Your politics, your personal preferences—or the fact that you like a moderate glass of beer—mean nothing either way to Buzz. He's a real neighbor to everybody!

The Army Needs Them, Too

It seems we are going to have now a poor man's war, a draft in which the college man is mainly exempt from military service, and a brand new caste system in the country.

President Truman has directed that young men in college who can make a certain grade on an aptitude test will be deferred from military service. This leaves out in the cold any young man who hasn't the funds to attend college or who can't score a high mark on the test.

This proposal places a high value on scholarship and will undoubtedly be a strong stimulant toward hard study and library work on the campus. It will be a windfall to higher education in permitting more students to attend college at a time of declining enrollments, which is probably the big reason why the proposal has the endorsement of the colleges.

It is true that education is important, but not that important. Many successful men never went to college, and there are probably a good many bums who did. Then, too, there are quite a good many young men who interrupted their college careers to take a hitch in the service and are making out all right, not harmed in the least by their service.

Strange to say, hardly anyone likes to be drafted. Especially now, when we are not in what they call an "all-out" war. Likewise, very few men are eager to die. A man without a college education is just as important to the home folks as a man with a PhD.

President Harry and the draft officials take the attitude apparently, that the service doesn't need men with brains. However, men who can pass this aptitude test can think, and those who can think are the ones in great demand as non-coms and officers in the service.

Far better than this latest proposal would be universal military training, spaced between high school and college, where every male of eligible age be trained according to their aptitude for the military specialties.

The caste system has no place in America.

Lay It On, Zweifel

A news release received this week from Rpublican National Committeeman Henry Zweifel of Texas, says the Republicans are preparing to launch an all-out fight to restore to the state and people of Texas their valuable tidelands. The Spureme Court, you'll remember, took them away from Texas in a split decision, in spite of a clear-cut treaty to the contrary.

We're not quite sure whether the Republicans of Texas can do the job or whether they are seeking to make political hay out of their proposal, but we're with them on the fight.

Attorney General Price Daniel battled long and hard to get the tidelands retained, but was defeated. A movement is under way to get Congress to pass a bill quick-claiming the Fedeарl Government's claim to all state tidelands. The 80th Congress passed such a bill, but President Truman vetoed it.

The Supreme Court's decision on the Texas tidelands was the most flagrant violation of state's rights ever perpetrated on the American people. The time to call a halt to this socialistic encroachment is now and it should be a job not only for Texas, but for all U. S. citizens.

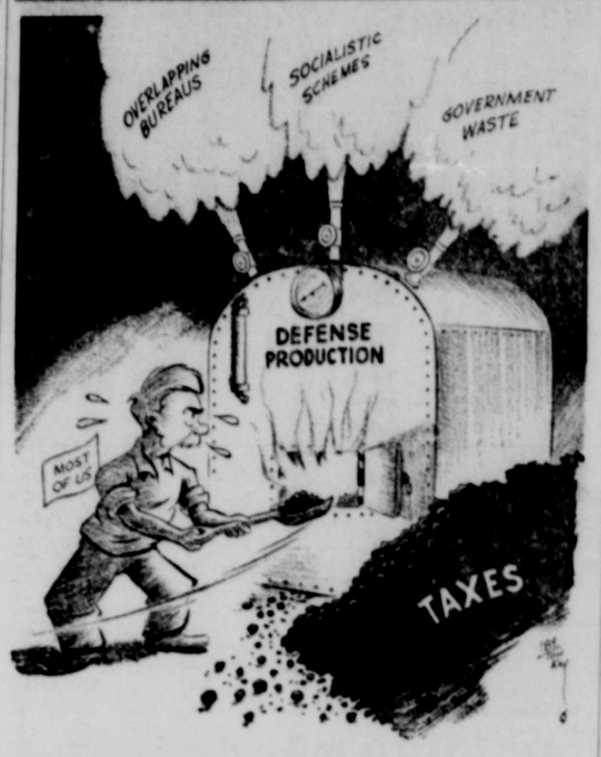

Isn't it peculiar that the human brain begins to function from the moment you are born, improves as you grow older, then stops completely when you stand up to talk?

For 52 years it was entitled "An Act to Establish a Uniform System of Bankruptcy Throughout the United States." Recently Congress changed the name to the "Bankruptcy Act." It's encouraging to learn that the government really isn't intent on bankrupting all business.

The stronger sex is usually the weaker sex because of the strength the weaker sex has over the stronger sex; or is it because of the weakness of the stronger sex for the weaker sex?

One thig can be said for people who live in the past. They can do it cheaper.

Heavy Damage To REA Lines During Storm

The North Plains Electric Cooperative has had its share of difficulties in getting electricity to the farms of the seven county area which it serves. In the first years of its existence, material shortages plagued every move to build lines and since then it has fought tornadoes, wind and lightning storms, competitive building and an ice storm.

Latest in the list of obstacles was the March 28 snow storm which leveled over 100 poles and put 600 miles of line out of commission.

The storm was disrupted early Wednesday morning over a 600-mile front, but by 9 o'clock that night service had been restored on 250 miles and work was being rushed on main feeder lines. On Friday the main feeder line east of Spearman was rebuilt and service restored to an additional 100 miles.

The W. J. Thomas Construction Co. and the B-Line Construction Co. and the cooperative personnel worked night and day to restore service, and all lines were back in operation eight days later.

IN THE SERVICE

Playing the role of "the man behind the man behind the gun" isn't always glamorous—but it is vital, as the party played by Billy E. Murry, ship's serviceman, third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Murry of 113 South Date St. helps keep the guns "up front."

He is serving aboard the fleet oiler USS Ashtabula, aptly termer the "floating oasis" for the ships of the Seventh Fleet in the Far East.

The Ashtabula is capable of refueling ships at sea regardless of weather conditions or choppy seas.

Mrs. A. D. Genuchi of Bennett, Neb., is visiting in the home of her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Genuci. She plans to remain for two weeks.

Shark Fins Cost More

SINGAPORE (AP)—All food costs are steadily going up in Singapore—even shark's fins.

A Chinese restaurateur said the price had risen 30 per cent in the last few months. He added: "Chinese diners do not mind the extra cost. They love good food and are willing to pay for it."

Wolf Creek Philosopher

Would Like Job As Farm Expert

(Ed. note: The Wolf Creek Philosopher is off on another tangent this week and we would recommend that if he is serious about pesing as a farm expert, he'd better forget it or he'll starve to death faster as an expert than a farmer.)

Dear editar:

I went to this farm meeting at the schoolhouse Friday night, not because I figured I could learn much at my age, but one of my neighbors insisted that I go to town and see what a bunch of real live experts looked like in the flesh, so to speak, and my curiosity got the best of me and I rode into town with the neighbor and had my worst suspicions confirmed.

What I want to know is do them experts get paid money for comin down from Kansas and up from Lubbock and over from Amarillo to pass out the kind of advice they did at this meetin? If so, I would appreciate you puttin my name on the list with the booking agency or whatever it is they book experts at for speakin engagements. It looks like easy money to me.

This one man got up and plumb jolted me out of my seat when he said the greenbugs "pose no serious threat to the wheat at the present time." Down here on my patch of wheat they ain't "posin" no threat, they've done ate it up and moved on to greener fields and while they might not have threatened it much, it's just as dead as if they did.

Then another expert got up and said there ain't no danger of disease gettin the wheat now. Both men acted like there wasn't nothing wrong with the wheat but a optical illusion and if they're right the eye doctors ought to have a boomin business in Perryton.

Another expert said what was the matter with the wheat was that there wasn't enough moisture last fall and there was too much cold weather durin the winter, and hinted that the bugs might have had some part in it after that. He even said we had some good lookin wheat here, which proves that Kansas is worse off than I thought.

Shucks, if that's the kind of expertin that folks make a livin off of, I've been wasting my time down here on Wolf Creek. I could haul off and expert with that kind of advice on week ends and have the rest of the week free to meditate.

The man from Lubbock who talked on grain sorghums had more good advice than anyone, but he stopped short of offerin my kind of farmer any real encouragement after he talked about the new kind of sorghum that looked like wheat. If he had said he was workin on some kind of grain sorghum that would seed itself and figure out some way to get itself to market year after year without me bein called on for any assistance other than furnishing the ground to grow on, then he would have had something.

Anyway, you tell Bill Lance and Hood Wills that the meetin was pretty good but when they want some first class expertin done at a reasonable fee, they've got farmers right here in this county that they can do business with.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Says City Crumbles

KUALA LUMPUR (AP)—This capital city of the Federation of Malaya is "crumbling." So says C. O. Jennings, municipal architect. He said Kuala Lumpur in a few years would be a "rotten, filthy, overcrowded town, scourged by tuberculosis" unless something radical is done.

Jennings asserted foundations of buildings were crumbling and would eventually collapse.

OE BELDEN
The Texas Poll

Texas—Congress was ised by civil defense big cities in the of the country face danger of A-bomb ig across the polar Russia.

twenty cities may to atomic bombard- ngle air raid launch- ut war, warned Civ- dministrator Millard Cities were mention- al target areas," but ty residents in this vertheless that their be in real danger in with Russia.

statewide survey by oll indicates:
s of 50,000 or more, e-fourth of the adult would say there is danger" their com- ll be bombed. More d think their homes at danger" and an- feel "some danger." in smaller towns and farm areas feel considerably more secure. Yet, even there, about one-half of the population thinks there is at least some danger. And an overwhelming majority says other parts of the state are in more than just a little danger.

Twice since the outbreak of the Korean war, The Texas Poll has had its interviewers ask this question of a representative cross section of adults:

"In case of war with Russia, do you think there is great danger, some danger, or very little danger that people in this community will be bombed?"

Opinion in cities of 50,000 or more people:

	Aug. 1950	Now
Great danger	34%	37%
Some danger	32	36
Little danger	27	23
No opinion	7	4
	100%	100%

Opinion in towns of less than 50,000 people:

	Aug. 1950	Now
Great danger	15%	11%
Some danger	27	29
Little danger	54	57
No opinion	4	3
	100%	100%

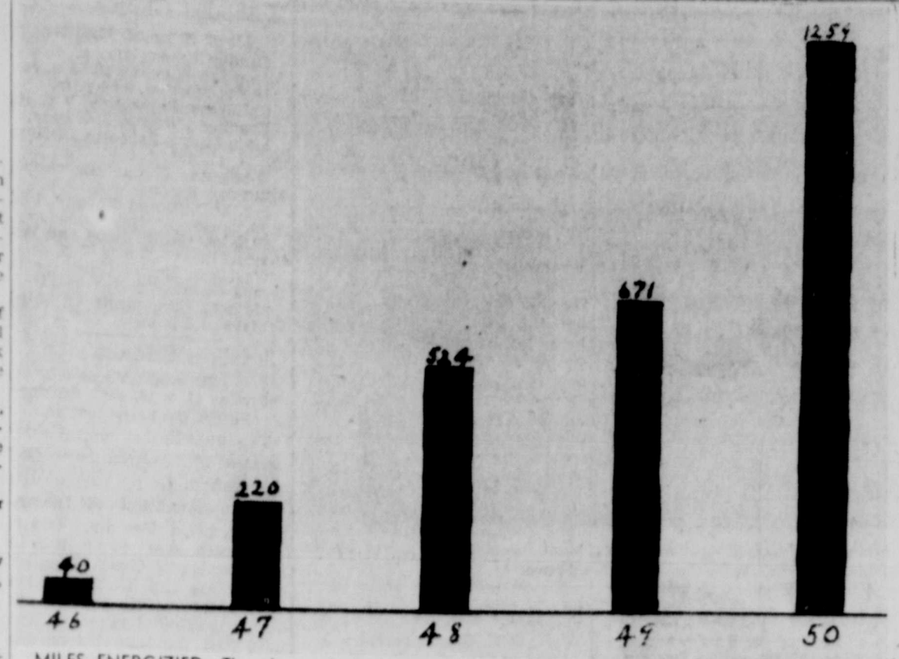

Opinion among farm and ranch residents:

	Aug. 1950	Now
Great danger	15%	15%
Some danger	30	37
Little danger	50	46
No opinion	5	2
	100%	100%

In the latest survey, the following question was also asked: "What about other parts of Texas (besides your own community)—do you believe they would be faced with great danger of air bombardment, some danger, or very little danger?"

By their answers to this question, an overwhelming majority indicated they felt really concerned about aerial bombardment of some part of Texas in case of war with Russia.

In cities of 50,000 or more people, only 20 per cent said other parts of Texas would face "very little danger" from Russian planes; in towns of less than 50,000, only 17 per cent lightly passed off the danger; on farms and ranches, only 19 per cent.

MILES ENERGIZIED—The above chart shows how the North Plains Electric Cooperative has grown since its organization in 1946. Starting with 40 miles of line in 1946, the cooperative had 1,259 miles energized in 1951 and will add to that figure during 1951.

The tragedies of mortal existence so often attributed to God are seen to be no part of His creation according to the Lesson-Sermon titled "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real" to be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 15. The Golden Text observes, "He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death" (Psalms 68: 20).

Also from Psalms is this Bible citation, "For the word of the Lord is right; and all his works are done in truth." A more detailed explanation that God's plan for His children is not both good and bad is seen in this statement taken from page 474 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "If sin, sickness, and death are as real as Life, Truth, and Love, then they must all be from the same source; God must be their author. Now Jesus came to destroy sin, sickness, and death; yet the Scriptures aver, 'I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.' Is it possible, then, to believe that the evils which Jesus lived to destroy are real or the offspring of the divine will?"

Zeb Williams was the master of ceremonies for the opening program, presented by the teachers and children of the first, second, third and fourth grades. Miss Perla Dudley presented the first three grades in Rhythm Band performances, with J. D. Davis' "Dixie-Cats" giving between acts numbers.

The audience was led in a short community sing, with Bill Burton directing and Joe Erickson at the piano.

In addition to these chairmen, there were many helpers who labored hard to make the evening a success.

Approximately $240 was raised at the Family Fun Night for furthering the work of the PTA in the community. The PTA officers expressed their appreciation to all those who helped make the event such an outstanding success.

Reds Assail Anti-Semitism

VIENNA (AP) — Anti-Semitic hooliganism still exists in Communist Romania. The Bucharest newspaper "Biata Noua" said: 'In Galatzi, a gang of seven anti-Semitic hooligans attacked some citizens, most of whom were Jewish workers. Although they succeeded in getting away, the Fascist hooligans were identified and sent before the courts."

The report said the seven men were sentenced to prison terms ranging from 18 months to three months.

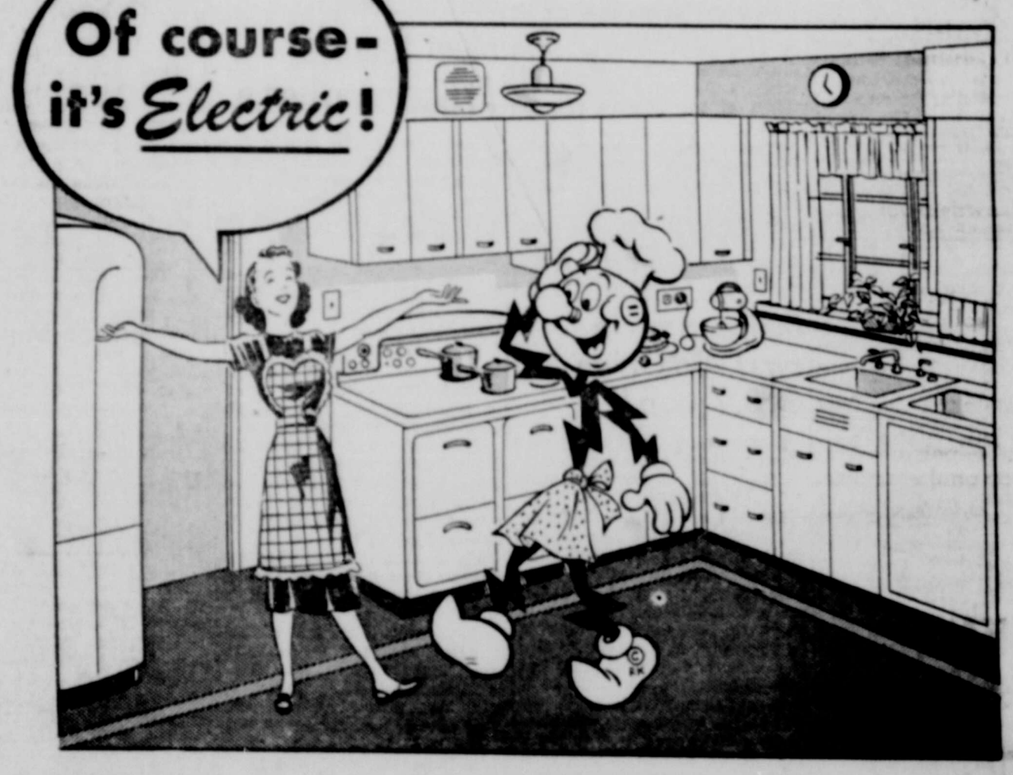

The Romans introduced glass-making into France, then known as Gaul.

TEXANS IN WASHINGTON

By TEX EASLEY

(AP) Special Washington Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Events such as "Texas chili night" at the National Press Club are the kind of affairs which officials here welcome as relief from serious problems.

The Press Club provides some outstanding events of this kind, for its functions are planned without an axe to grind or cause to espouse.

Texas chili night (March 31) was a colorful affair. The Lone Star flag and cow-country trimmings—cactus, bear grass, high-heeled boots, sombreros and plain old dungarees were much in evidence. Chili, tamales, and beverages, all shipped from Texas, were featured on the menu.

Some semi-social affairs, sponsored annually by trade organizations also are enjoyed by weary congressmen and their wives.

In this category is the National Cotton Council's annual style and fashion show-cocktail party, where the leading model is a pretty girl from a cotton-growing state.

"Miss Maid of Cotton for 1951" to be presented to Washington April 4, is Miss Jeannine Holland of Houston. Miss Holland, 21, is a senior at Texas State College for Women at Denton.

Another group which holds an annual meeting in Washington and stages an above-average dinner without business talk, is the Gulf Ports Association.

In charge of this affair is the local representative of the Galveston chamber of commerce Robert A. Nesbitt, a former Galveston newspaperman.

Port officials in Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas comprise the association. The dinners are good will gestures fo the congressmen from Gulf coast states, who would do whatever they could to stimulate commerce through their respective states, regardless of such social affairs.

If a congressman went to all the dinners to which he is invited, he would have few nights a home, so he turns down many invitations.

There were 11 disasters in the United States during 1950 that took more than 25 lives each for a total of more than 500.

Childbirth deaths have been reduced in the United States to less than one per 1,000 births.

News From ANTHONY

By Mrs. Carl Carter

The Anthony community has sure missed the Jim Wallace family this winter. They have the gad-about fever. They left last Sunday to go to Crescent and other parts of Oklahoma on a short visit this time. Their other trips this winter were of 3 and 4 weeks time, but they were only gone a week to Oklahoma. They returned Saturday night and report a nice visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davis attended the farmers meeting at Liberal Wednesday. Leslie Bobbitt also attended.

* * *

The Anthony HD club met at the Center Thursday morning to learn some new handicraft ideas. The training leader for the month was Mrs. Leon Morris. She had attended a training meeting in March and secured material and instructions on hand tooling copper, etching aluminum and new methods of textile painting.

Each lady brought her own lunch.

After lunch, Miss Reynolds helped those who were taking tailoring, in fitting their pattern. Much work was accomplished.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Pyle served refreshments of cake and punch to Mrs. Ralph Bobbitt, Mrs. Johnnie Davis, Mrs. Glen Myers, Mrs. J. L. Bobbitt, Mrs. Hoffman, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. Leon Morris, Mrs. Carl Carter and the president, Mrs. Pyle.

Those of the Beaver county HD clubs who were interested in being able to do a professional job of tailoring were fortunate to have Miss Ola Armstrong, Extension clothing specialist from Stillwater meet with them in the Fellowship Hall of the Methodist church on Friday of last week. Portable sewing machines and other equipment needed was taken and a very busy day was completed in the later afternoon. Mrs. Ralph Bobbitt, Mrs. Glen Myers, Mrs. Carl Carter, Mrs. R. C. Pyle, Mrs. Leon Morris, Mrs. J. L. Bobbitt and Mrs. Johnnie Davis are making either suits or coats for the Anthony club.

Glen Myers and other members of the Turpin school board drove to Scott City, Kansas on business Friday.

Several of the community have been assisting the family of Mrs. Hayden with sitting up and waiting on her during her serious illness. The Floyd Myers, Glen Myers and John Davis families have been there several times this week.

* * *

Mrs. Davis was unable to sing with the Beaver county Ladies Chorus at the Perryton radio station Saturday. Mrs. Carl Carter and Mrs. Glen Myers were among those singers. They enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Williams at the station.

Miss Carolyn Hyatt and her mother helped Miss Mona Russell and Mrs. LeRoy Hibbs with a bridal shower for Mrs. Aaron Gregg at the Hibbs home Saturday afternoon. Fifty ladies called between 2 and 4 o'clock.

* * *

J. L. and Leslie Bobbitt and Carl and Howard Carter, went to Clovis, N. M., Sunday to see the championship calf roping contest presented by the Clovis Mounted Patrol.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Morris and family visited in the John Morris home Sunday. They also called on the Jim Wallace family Sunday evening.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Don Venable visited with Mr. and Mrs. Fiddie Vandeburg Sunday.

* * *

Little Judy Vandeburg has just recovered from a case of measles. Suppose the next one will be Nina Beth too. Swift recovery, you two.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Morris and Jack went to Hutchinson, Kansas to the registered Hereford Sale Monday.

* * *

We were sorry to see the Joel Foglemans move to Liberal for the remainder of the winter, if it is only a little way from home.

LeRoy Hibbs of Beaver and Carl Carter drove to Weatherford, Okla., Tuesday to get a load of Brahma calves for roping this summer. The Gate and Beaver roping clubs were to get calves as well as Carl. Look out for lots of roping fun this summer. They were caught in the storm and stayed in Woodward Tuesday night.

Our school bus slipped off the road and turned over this morning but thank goodness, no one was hurt.

raised cattle and ars operated the old Range store. They settled in the "strip" before Oklahoma attained statehood, and at that time it was not possible to homestead the land. Settlers exercised "squatters rights" and later secured title to the land.

Prairie fire constituted a constant dread in the early days according to Mr. Shorb. He recalls that he and another boy almost lost their lives during one of the early-day fires. All of the men were gone to fight the fire, and he and a young companion decided to see the fire for themselves. A sudden wind change placed them directly in the path of the flames and only the fact that they were found by men who were rushing home to plow fireguards following the wind change prevented their perishing in the flames.

One of the worst prairie fires occurred in 1903 when a blaze swept across the prairie all the way from New Mexico, Mr. Shorb says.

Only federal law prevailed in Oklahoma during the early days, and a few federal marshals were the only enforcement officers. Among Mr. Shorb's exciting recollections of the early days are visits to his home by the desperado, Pen Hill. The outlaw stopped a number of times at the family home for meals. He was always armed with two revolvers and carried a winchester rifle on his saddle, Mr. Shorb says. He remembered that the outlaws conduct in their home was above reproach, but that he always sat where he could see anyone approaching the house and was constantly on the alert.

Another exciting episode in Mr. Shorb's youth occurred during his courtship when he started in a buggy to a party at the home of Mrs. Shorb's family.

He became lost in a blinding snowstorm and wandered in circles. Finally, when the horse stopped and refused to move, Mr. Shorb got out to investigate and fell down an embankment into the creek. He soon got his bearings and arrived at the party soaked to the skin.

"I believe people used to plan on permanent marriages more than they do now," Mrs. Shorb says in accounting for their successful marriage. Mr. Shorb believes that trying to live a Christian life is one of the important factors in a successful marriage.

The Shorb's have six living children, all of whom were present for the anniversary open house Sunday. They are Ray of Hardesty, Glen of Hermosa, N. D., Gene of Grants Pass, Oregon, Mrs. Leoni BeBord of Kewanee, Ill., Mrs. Emily Brown of Hardesty and Mrs. Eva Love of Perryton.

They have seventeen grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Tin Action Hits Malaya

SINGAPORE (AP)—Tin brokers here say Malaya would suffer a staggering financial loss if the United States government attempts to depress the price of tin for as long as a year. They estimate this loss would total $43,300,000 in that period of time.

The United States has taken over as sole buyer of tin for Americans and suspended purchases for stockpiling until prices reached what is considered a "reasonable level."

Kisses Way to Jail

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—A police official was sentenced to four weeks imprisonment here because "kissing does not belong to the sphere of duty of a policeman." The official had interviewed a housemaid on the suspicious actions of one of the boarders. When the interview was finished he threw her on the couch and kissed her.

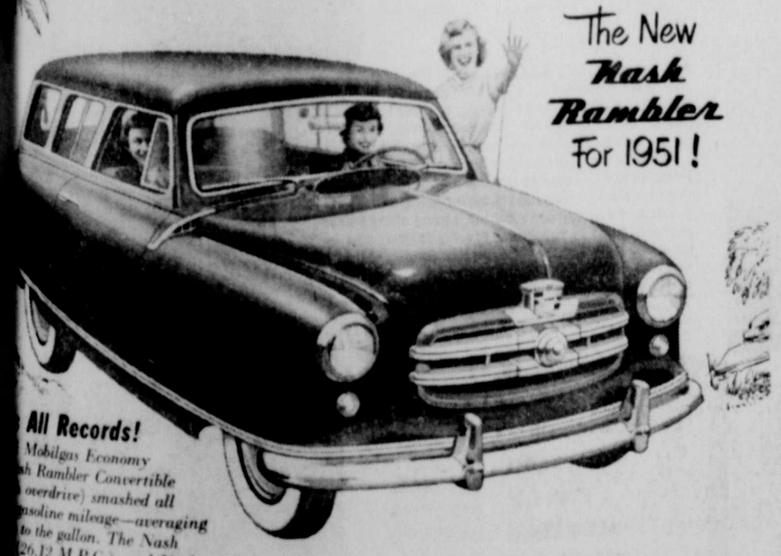

"I had closed my notebook and so my duty was finished," the young policeman told the judge.

The maid did not notify the prosecutor, her fiance did.

Czechs Told to Hate America

PRAGUE (AP) — People were told to hate the "American imperialists" in an editorial front paged by the Prague cultural newspaper, "Lidove Noviny."

"The Americans are even more barbaric than the Germans," said the editorial, by Jaroslav Putik. "In Korea, they are using gas and other kinds of prohibited weapons. The American Fascist will not attack us only because he is afraid of us, of the Soviet Union and of the peace movement in his own country.

"The murderer is too cowardly to commit suicide. But this does not mean that we should hate him any the less."

Tourists for Ethiopia Sought

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Ethiopia has great tourist attractions, says Ralph S. Damon, President of TransWorld Airlines. On a visit here recently Damon said he intended to explore the possibilities of having American tourists visit the country.

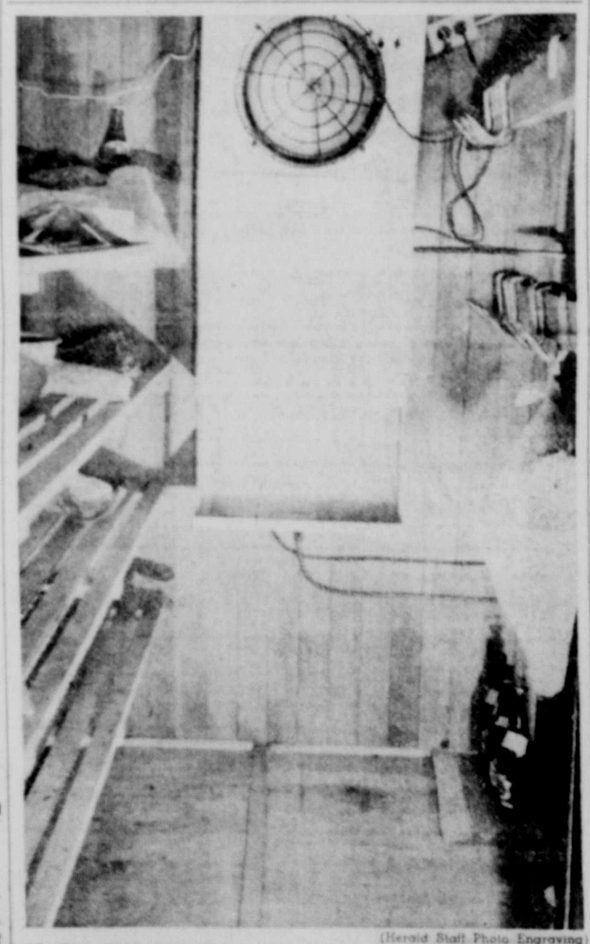

The main reason for Damon's trip to Ethiopia, he said, is that TWA has a seven-year contract for supplying Ethiopian Airlines with managerial, technical and flying personnel.
