Bromley Forced Back To Port After Vain Fight With Fogs Over Pacific

SPUDDERS EVEN CAT SERIES IN 5-4 THRILLER

Forced to Abandon Flight

Engulfed by dense fogs and apparently in distress, Harold Bromley, shown above, was forced to turn back toward Tokyo after he had battled through 1,200 miles of his attempt to span the Pacific.

Flowing Well Opens New Oil Pool In North Young Shallow District

Hamilton and Maer No. 1 Jeffers, Southwest of Orth, Finds 14 Feet of Rich Sand at 812 Feet

A new shallow field promising to equal in production the north Newcastle pool was opened in north Young county late Sunday when the W. B. Hamilton, Newton Maer et al, No. 1 Jeffers well was drilled in with an estimated daily production of 750 barrels flowing. The well is two miles southwest of Orth.

The oil was coming out of the hole in a solid stream through a two-inch line and some estimates ran the possible production as high as 1,000 barrels daily.

Owners of the well reported Sunday night that the heavy flow had started after a rich sand was drilled from 812 to 826 feet, 14 feet of pay.

The new producer was purely a wildcat venture, being located seven miles northwest of the prolific wells on the Larimore tracts near Newcastle and about two miles northwest of the production owned by McKanna, Texas company and others. While producing from the same stratum as the latter wells, the Hamilton-Maer test found considerably more sand and has a much greater yield.

This important shallow discovery is located in the center of a 320-acre block in section 53, Jeffers ranch. The lease will be developed as quickly as pipe line connections for the new production are available.

WICHITA BOY HURT IN CRASH

Police Seek Hit-and-Run Driver

A hit-run driver was being sought by local police Sunday night after W. H. Fogle, 13, residing on Route 2, had been taken to the General hospital suffering serious injuries from an automobile accident. Hospital attaches reported that the youth was hurt about his right shoulder and lung, but that injuries are not expected to prove fatal.

Police reported that the car in which Fogle and several companions were riding Sunday afternoon was struck by another machine, the driver of which speeded away from the scene of the accident immediately. Fogle's car swerved, hitting a telephone post and injuring him. Others in the car were unharmed.

An intoxicated Mexican was picked up later by police as the driver who struck the bicycle of Edward Allbright, 213 Flood street. The boy was not injured in the fall from his wheel. Officers are questioning the suspect also in connection with the accident in which the Fogle boy was hurt.

French Fliers Starting Month's Good Will Tour

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (UP)—The goodwill tour of Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, which will last a month, will start tomorrow at 11 a. m. when the two transatlantic aviators take off from Curtiss field in their plane, Question Mark.

They will fly to Hartford, Conn., where they will have lunch. They will continue to Boston, flying over the Yacht race course off Newport. They plan to spend tomorrow night in Boston.

AIRMEN QUIT BLIND BATTLE THROUGH MIST

Bromley Abandons Flight After 1,200-Mile Struggle

WEATHER ADVERSE

Plane Lands in Safety Twenty-Four Hours After Take-Off

TOKYO, Sept. 15. (Monday) (AP)—The fourth attempt of Harold Bromley, American aviator, and his co-pilot Harold Gatty, to span the Pacific ocean without a stop, ended in failure today with the grounding of their airplane near the village of Shiritsuka, on Cape Shiriya, Aomori Prefecture, at 6 a. m. (1 p. m. Sunday, Pacific standard time.)

The flight ended within a few miles of Samishiro beach, near Sambongi, where at 5:08 a. m. Sunday (12:08 p. m. Saturday Pacific standard time) the huge monoplane "City of Tacoma" heavy with 1,020 gallons of gasoline, roared down a ramp and swooped gracefully along a sandy runway until it rose into the air and disappeared into the rising sun. The fliers had hoped to fly to Tacoma, Wash.

In Air 24 Hours

The plane was in the air 24 hours and 52 minutes, and during much of the time the fate of its two occupants was cloaked in a silence deepened by fog and adverse weather conditions. Although the plane carried a wireless set, there was an almost total absence of reports while it was in the air. Rumors and conflicting reports were many, but not until the news of the landing was flashed to Tokyo was the fliers' safety definitely established.

Although reports from the village near which they landed were meager, it was learned neither aviator was injured. Whether the plane was damaged in landing was not established.

Weather Bad

It was presumed, however, the fliers were forced to turn back because of adverse weather conditions. Previous to the take-off yesterday the two airmen were promised excellent weather along almost the entire route they chose to follow. Soon after the City of Tacoma left the sandy runway of Samishiro beach, however, it was learned the plane encountered heavy fog and headwinds in addition to rain over the Kurile Island chain northeast of Japan.

The first intimation the plane was returning to Japan was given by the radio operator of the Dollar line President Taft, which docked at Yokohama at 7 a. m. today (2 p. m. Sunday, Pacific standard time). He said he intercepted a message indicating the plane passed over Cape Lopatka, the southernmost point of the Kamchatka peninsula late Sunday afternoon.

Toss of Bottle Leads To Arrest of Slayer

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 14. (US)—Because a traffic officer saw him throw a bottle into the street today, Pete Kowe, alias Pete Kallos, is being held as an alleged murderer.

In checking records while Kowe was being detained on a misdemeanor charge, according to police, they found he was wanted in Salt Lake City, Utah, for the asserted murder last May of William Agentos over a $40 debt.

Uriburu Pledges Amity To New World Nations

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 14. (AP)—Speaking over a huge radio telephone-radio hookup to the people of the United States tonight, Provisional President Jose Francisco Uriburu pledged his administration to the friendliest of relations with all nations of the western hemisphere. He declared his earnest desire to turn over the power of government to legally elected authorities at the earliest possible moment.

Goat Gland Specialist To Demonstrate Operations

MILFORD, Kan., Sept. 14. (UP)—Dr. John R. Brinkley, goat gland specialist and radio physician, tomorrow will demonstrate his three "health and youth restoring" operations to members of the Kansas State Medical board, seeking to revoke his license because of alleged quackery.

German Fascists Score Sweeping Victories In New Reichstag Election

BERLIN, Sept. 15. (Monday) (UP)—The German Fascist party, an extreme nationalistic political group which had only a dozen seats in the old reichstag, made enormous gains Sunday in the election of a new parliament.

Although the powerful Socialist party maintained its first place ranking in the reichstag, the Fascists (National socialist party) swept the election in various parts of the country and were believed certain to have the second largest number of seats, with the Communist party third.

Riots Break Out

When two-thirds of the nationwide returns were in early today the Socialists had a total of 4,507,942 votes, and the Fascists a total of 3,269,689.

The election was marked by the heaviest vote in the history of the republic and by sporadic outbursts of violence.

Despite reinforced police guards throughout the country there were clashes between Communists, and supporters of the Fascist or National Socialist party. An uninterested passerby was shot dead at Wittenau, North Berlin, during a fight between political factions. Three Communists were injured at Neukolenn when police charged a crowd of demonstrators, swinging their batons to disperse the gathering.

Communist Stabbed

Election riots and street fights were reported today from various provincial regions. A Communist was stabbed fatally by the leader of the Farmers' Political league at Braunstein, in Bavaria. Fighting was reported from other towns in the region.

More than 500 persons were arrested for various minor disturbances connected with the election, including the first outbreak of fighting last night when eight Communists and several Fascists were injured in street fighting near Communist party headquarters.

The vote in Berlin was estimated at more than 80 per cent of the qualified voters, which was higher than previous elections and the provincial balloting was expected to be as heavy.

The National Socialist, or German Fascist, party represents the extreme Pan-German ideal of a purely German state.

It advocates a dictatorship and has constantly struggled for the overthrow of the republic. Its leader, Adolf Hitler, was the leader of the notorious Bavarian "Putsch" of November 1923.

This revolt broke out on November 8 and was quelled on the following day. Next April Hitler was sentenced to five years imprisonment, but was released in December 1924.

The Fascists have a program that is mostly negative. They are against the peace treaties and against the League of Nations. Anti-semitic tendencies are very strong in the party.

Rangers Watch As Circus Takes On Water and Leaves

Special to The Record News

SHAMROCK, Texas, Sept. 14.—Five stalwart Texas rangers went down to the depot here early today to see the circus trains come in—and leave.

Sergeant M. T. (Lone Wolf) Gonzaullas and four other state rangers arrived late Saturday night after citizens had protested to Gov. Dan Moody that the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey shows were to stage a performance here on Sunday as a part of an American Legion festival. Other citizens had told the governor the rangers were not needed.

The circus cancelled its date here after the dispute arose and as a result the rangers saw three gaily colored trains pull into the yards, take on water and then proceed to Amarillo. The rangers left shortly after the last show train pulled out.

RAIN, HAIL AND SAND COOL AIR

Temperature Lowered By Light Precipitation

Wichita Falls and vincinity passed a cool Sunday night after a sandstorm late in the evening which broke moderate heat prevailing throughout the day. Maximum temperature registered was 97 and light rainfall early in the morning cooled the air to fall briskness.

Lightning accompanied the wind and sand storm which began locally about 6:30 p. m. Sand storms generally were reported from Woodward, Okla., to Wichita Falls, and fairly heavy rain and hail fell at Quanah, beginning at 5:10 p. m., lasting until 5:30.

Electra also experienced a light sand storm late Sunday evening, which spent itself with no indications of rain.

GIRL QUIZZED IN DEATH OF JOHN T. JOYCE

Foster Daughter Questioned As Poison Probe Re-Opens

WIDOW BARES 'PLOT'

Friendship Hinted Between Slain Senator And Young Woman

CHICAGO, Sept. 14. (AP)—Inquiry into state Senator John T. Joyce's recent mysterious death took a sensational turn today as police held the former legislator's attractive 20-year-old foster daughter, Miss Isabelle Daly, for questioning.

Seizure of Miss Daly came after the investigation of Joyce's death supposedly had been dropped. State's Attorney John A. Swanson had announced he would make no further inquiry after a coroner's jury held that death, which occurred Aug. 16, was due to poisoning.

The young woman was held incommunicado at an undisclosed police station and questioned throughout the night.

Charges 'Plot'

Mrs. Joyce, the widow, termed the interrogation of Miss Daly a plot by her political enemies to hinder her campaign to succeed her husband in the state senate. She was quoted by the Herald and Examiner as accusing the state's attorney's office of trying to show she had poisoned her husband because of jealousy of Miss Daly.

"I'm not afraid of anything Isabelle may tell them," the Herald and Examiner quoted Mrs. Joyce as saying. "They are trying to make out that I poisoned John Joyce be-

Man Kills Estranged Wife, Then Himself

M'CAMEY, Texas, Sept. 14. (AP)—Leon Euckert, 33, and his estranged wife, Dorothy, were killed in a double shooting here this afternoon.

Euckert fired three shots, one piercing Mrs. Euckert's breast. He then turned the gun on himself, fired one shot just above his heart and the second into his head. Both died almost instantly.

Euckert left a note on his person advising that in case of accident, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Euckert of Fletcher, Okla., be notified. Mrs. Euckert is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Matoon of Lawton, Okla.

Ship Battles Way Through Hurricane

ABOARD THE S. S. COMMERCIAL Bostonian, at Sea, Sept. 14. (UP)—(Via radio to the United Press)—The steamship Commercial Bostonian passed through the center of a hurricane at 11 a. m., Sept. 12, while 40 miles southwest of Cape Lookout.

The ships battled for three hours with mountainous seas and terrific winds.

No lives were lost but lifeboats and the bridge were stove up and the radio antenna carried away. The radio has now been temporarily repaired and a warning broadcast to all vessels and naval coast stations. One hour required to repair the engines.

Proceeding to New Orleans.

(Signed) Master S. S. Commercial Bostonian.

Hoover Address Is On Church Congress Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. (US)—Speakers of international note will share the speakers' platform with President Hoover here on Armistice day in the 15th annual goodwill congress of the world alliance of international friendship through the churches.

Forty speeches are scheduled for the three-day conference.

It is expected that about 500 leaders in the international field from various parts of the United States will attend.

Utah Man Appointed To Federal Market Position

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. (US)—Albertus Willardson today was appointed marketing specialist in charge of the poultry section of the division of co-operative marketing of the federal farm board.

Willardson's home is in Utah, and for the past seven years he has been managing the Utah Poultry Producers' association. He will be in charge, in his new capacity, of assisting in the organization of an overhead association of turkey producers' co-operative associations in the intermountain states.

Hoovers Spend Sunday Enjoying Rest at Camp

ORANGE, Va., Sept. 14. (US)—President Hoover spent an entire day in rest and relaxation this Sabbath, the first in many weeks.

With Mrs. Hoover and Herbert Hoover Jr., the president enjoyed a warm September day at his Rapidan camp in the Blue Ridge. The only other members of the party were Capt. Joel T. Boone, White House physician and George Barr Baker of New York.

Welcome Sign Out For Hearst

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (US)—William Randolph Hearst returns from Europe tomorrow morning and will be greeted by distinguished delegations consisting of government officials and executives of war veteran's organizations and of city civic groups.

The edict of the French government, ordering the publisher to leave France is responsible for the demonstration here that will welcome Mr. Hearst to his native land. Delegations from Washington, Pittsburgh and Albany reached New York tonight.

The plan to welcome Mr. Hearst back to his own country originated with the Disabled War Veterans' association. Daniel J. Manning, national liaison representative of the organization, chartered the steamer Hook Mountain to go down the bay tomorrow morning and opened headquarters at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Simultaneously Representative Thomas Cullen, leader of the New York delegation named a committee, consisting of Representatives Loring M. Black Jr., Sol Bloom, Fiorello H. LaGuardia and Dr. William I. Sirovich to arrange for a congressional committee to join in the welcome.

SUPPORT FOR SPUDS URGED

C.-C. Officials Strive For Big Delegation

A strong plea for Wichitans to attend the final Fort Worth-Wichita Falls game at Fort Worth Monday was made Sunday night by W. S. Bridwell, president, and John Boswell, manager, of the chamber of commerce.

"The Spudders by their splendid record during the season and their strong fight in this final series merit the full support of Wichita Falls citizens," Mr. Bridwell declared. "Every person who possibly can should be in the grand stand at Fort Worth Monday pulling for the Wichita team to win the right to represent Texas in the Dixie series."

The vast amount of publicity given Wichita Falls by the Spudders was cited by Mr. Boswell as another reason a record number of Wichitans should attend the final game.

Dudley B. Foy, traffic manager of the chamber of commerce, announced tickets for the Wichita Falls reserved section will be available at his office here until 11 a. m. Monday. The Wichita Falls headquarters in Fort Worth are in the Texas hotel.

Police Trace Criminal Record of Man Killed

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 14. (UP)—Police tonight attempted to trace to Sioux City, Iowa, the criminal records of John Williams, shot and killed here last night when he resisted arrest, and Frank Wilson, his companion, who was captured.

Police said Williams and Wilson, alias Frank Pelisher, an ex-convict, were believed to have participated in several Sioux City robberies. They were wanted here for allegedly forging and raising money orders.

Police arrested Wilson at a rooming house and hid in his room to capture Williams. When Williams resisted arrest, officers were forced to shoot him. He died almost instantly.

BETTENCOURT'S HOMER SPELLS FELINES' DOOM

Hal Wiltse Pitches Great Ball to Square Up Play-Off Count

STEENGRAFE TODAY

Scores of Wichitans View Sensational Battle At LaGrave Field

By FRED D. THOMPSON
Record News Sports Editor

FORT WORTH, Sept. 14.—The great Larry Bettencourt slammed out a double against the center field fence in the ninth inning to score Fitzgerald from second with the winning run here today as the Wichita Falls Spudders, piloted by smiling Hal Wiltse, came back into their own and defeated the Fort Worth Cats, 5 to 4.

Bettencourt's great blow, coming as it did just after the Cats had gone on a rampage in the eighth, was greeted by gloomy groans from some 13,500 Fort Worth fans assembled, but roused the scores of Wichita Falls rooters to a screaming ecstasy.

The victory once again squared the championship series, with each team having two victories to its credit, and necessitates a fifth and deciding game, which will be played here Monday. In this battle of battles, the banner of Spudder hopes will be borne by Milton Steengrafe, and there was every indication today that he would be opposed by Lil Stoner, Cat hurler who won the decision from Steengrafe in the second game of the series at Wichita Falls, last Thursday.

The attendance was officially placed by Milton Price, secretary of the Texas league, at 12,388. The crowd swarmed over the lot in front of the right field bleachers, making ground rules covering a large part of right field and right center field necessary. A ball hit into the crowd was to count for a double, it was agreed.

Spudder fans made merry before and during the game to the music of Paul Seeds Playground band of Wichita Falls, which arrived here Sunday morning. The band paid its own expenses here. Each member was attired in flaming red Spanish costume. Before the game the musicians grouped around the Spudder dugout and played marches and when the game began, retired to a special section and continued its fanfares during the contest.

McCabe Bumped

While the Spudders once again bounced the mighty McCabe out of the box with a three-run barrage in the second and third, and scored again in the eighth on Bettencourt's home run, the Cats were being calcimined by Wiltse, who in addition to blanking the Cowtowners for seven innings, allowed them only seven scattered hits. In the last of the eighth, however, Wiltse showed his only weakness, and the Cats responded promptly by tying the count. Moore doubled, and scored on a force out and a single. Another force out and another single got two men on base, and then Stuart Clarke, pinch hitting for Roberts, who had relieved McCabe, slammed a home run over the left field boards to score his two mates and himself and deadlocked the game.

Things looked sad. It was reminiful of Saturday's gloomy bat the which the Spudders failed to in the ninth. Things grew merrier however, when Fitzgerald singled Kloza and Burns were retired More gloom. Then Bettencourt came up to swat out the winning blow It saved Wiltse, and it saved the game. If the Spudders lose the Texas league championship Monday it certainly won't be the fault of Harold C. Wiltse, or Larry Bettencourt.

He's Terror for Kitties

Wiltse was a terror to the Cats for those first seven innings. And behind him the hard-hitting outfield and the sluggers in the infield gave him perfect support. Every now and then he would get into a pinch. Eddie Brown was a hard man to get out. But Wiltse mastered every situation until last half of the eighth.

That barrage of Cat runs of Wiltse sent Fort Worth into heights of confidence. Howling Cowtowners yelled in their loudest voice that "Hal at last is weakening." Even after Bettencourt had put the Spudders ahead in the first of the ninth they figured Wiltse would exhibit the same weakness in the ninth. But Hal had weakened all he was going to. O'Connell grounded out Fuller to Burns. Then they sent h

Blazing Gasoline Cars Run Wild, Burn Depo

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 14. (UP)—Forty-six loaded gasoline tank cars attached to a Burlington freight train, were derailed and destroyed by fire near here early today.

Damage was estimated at between $125,000 and $150,000. No one was killed.

Flames from the exploding gasoline shot 300 feet in the air, witnesses said. The depot, valued at $10,000, was destroyed. Houses, situated 300 yards away, were endangered. Emrald residents and merchants carted furniture and stock from their homes and stores.

Murderer Steals in Dead Of Night to Slash Throat of Girl

SOUTH BEND, Ind., (US)—Murder stalked a sleeping family here, and relatives awoke to find their 17-year-old Alice Woltman, student at a Parochial school, dead, her throat slashed either with a razor or a particularly sharp knife. There had been no outcry in the night.

Beside Alice slept her 8-year-old brother, Richard, in the same room, in another bed, slept the slain girl's two sisters, Henrietta, 20 and Evelyn, 19.

No Sound Heard

Not one heard a sound as the murderer, stealth in his footsteps, crept through an adjoining bedroom in which slept two brothers, Harry 14, and Henry Jr., 15, entered the girls' bedroom, and killed the sleeping girl.

Police tonight are convinced that the slayer left exactly as he entered. There are tell-tale fingerprints—dusty ones made in entering; bloody ones, on leaving, on the window sill. One neighbor saw the shadow outlines of a man leaving the Woltmans' house. A moment later, the gruesome crime was climaxed by the dull thud of a falling body.

Alice, made speechless by the sharp weapon which had severed

Sunday Afternoon Ride Ends In Death for Four of Family

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Sept. 14. (AP)—Four persons were killed and a fifth believed fatally injured late today when a southbound Missouri-Kansas-Texas passenger train struck a light sedan at a grade crossing near here.

The dead:

J. B. COUSINS, 34.

MRS. COUSINS, 32.

ARCHIE, 6.

HAROLD, 2.

J. B. JR., was believed fatally injured and was brought here to a hospital.

Cousins, a farmer of Taipa, Runnels county, had left his home there because of drouth conditions and brought his family to South Texas to pick cotton.

They had started out for a Sunday afternoon ride when the car came upon a grade crossing of the railroad, on an unfrequented country road. The train approached through a cut between the sides of a hill and Cousins was not believed to have seen it approach. The four persons met death instantly.

Louis Pendleton, Couins' brother-in-law, and his family were preceding the Cousins family in another automobile.

The engineer halted the train and backed it to Georgetown to bring the dead and the injured child here.

MANGUM BOND VOTE ON OCT. 14

City Will Cast Ballot On $105,000 Issue

Special to The Record News

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 14.—A bond issue of $105,000 will be voted on here Oct. 14 for improvement of Mangum's water system. City Manager Harvey T. Lawrence and the city commissioners expect to double the number of wells if the bonds carry. The six wells which now furnish the city's water supply have a maximum capacity of 700,000 gallons per day. It is estimated that the labor on the new wells would approximate $25,000, and by letting no contract this sum could be expended locally to relieve the unemployment situation here.

The bonds could be issued with no change in the present tax rate, since profits from utility operation will cover liquidation and interest.

Uncle Sam's Navy to Be 'At Home' on October 27

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. (US)—Uncle Sam's navy will be "at home" Oct. 27. The secretary of the navy today instructed all officers and ships that on that date—navy day—all ships are to be open to the public for inspection.

DEATHS

J. P. NEIVILLE

The body of J. P. Neiville, 82, who died Saturday morning at the home of his daughter, 903 Virginia street, was forwarded to Richmond Springs for burial Sunday by Albert's Funeral home.

Death came from natural causes of old age. Mr. Neiville had resided in Wichita Falls for about six months.

JAMES H. WATTS

James Henry Watts, 60, succumbed to lengthy illness early Sunday morning at a local hospital. No relatives survive in Wichita Falls and his body was sent Sunday to Granbury by Hines mortuary for burial near there.

Luncheon Program to Inaugurate Observance of 'Constitution Week'

Observance of "Constitution week" by the Kiwanis club of this city will be inaugurated Monday noon at the weekly luncheon when a talk on that document by J. T. Montgomery will feature the program, according to the club's bulletin.

Study of the federal constitution by members of the club and promotion of its closer study by other groups within the city will be carried on under a nationwide plan of Kiwanis International, it was announced. All over the country, special programs on the constitution will be presented before members of Kiwanis clubs, and other organizations will hear speakers in pleas for greater understanding of the constitution.

Commemorating the signing of the constitution on Sept. 17, 1787, the week of Sept. 14-20 was selected by the international organization for calling upon the public of the United States for its close study as a means of promoting intelligent, aggressive, and serviceable citizenship, according to Dr. R. H. Peterson, president of the local club.

A musical program arranged by W. E. Young, it was announced, will be included in Monday's program. Speakers will appear at local schools Friday, according to the plan, to speak on the fundamentals of law contained in the constitution.

her throat, had groped her way out of the bedroom, only to fall at the stairway. The girl's mother, Mrs. Kate Woltman heard the sound, rushed out and beheld the body of her daughter. She fainted, Evelyn also awakened.

Letters Offer Clue

Authorities hope, soon to lay hands on the murderer. For there were revelatory letters in the slain girl's bureau. One contained a paragraph held of utmost significance. It reads:

"You could have struck me dead when I heard you were engaged to be married."

Police could only vaguely identify the man who wrote this letter. There were other letters, in different handwriting.

Tonight, Alex Pietrozak, sweetheart of the slain girl, was released after being questioned for several hours.

Petrolia P.-T. A. to Hold First Meeting Tuesday

Special to The Record News

PETROLIA, Sept. 14.—The first meeting of the Petrolia High school P.-T. A. is announced for Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the high school auditorium.

All patrons of the school are urged to attend the meeting, at which the acquaintance of teachers will be made and plans formulated for the year's work.

Pastors at Memphis To Take New Posts

MEMPHIS, Texas, Sept. 14.—The Rev. A. H. Shaw, who has for the past year been pastor of the First Christian church of this city, has tendered his resignation as pastor, and will return to his former work with the First Christian church of Amarillo.

Before taking up his work in Amarillo, Reverend Shaw will be in charge of the singing and personal work in an evangelistic campaign that will begin in Lubbock Sept. 21, to be conducted by Dr. Arthur Long at the First Christian church of that city.

Rev. Lester W. Fisher, pastor of the Seventh and Brice streets Church of Christ, of this city, has also tendered his resignation to his congregation, which will take effect Oct. 26 of this year. Reverend Fisher has been with this congregation for one year, and was instrumental in helping the congregation to erect a new $25,000 church edifice, and did a wonderful work otherwise. He has announced that he has several places in view to locate, but has not decided definitely just where he will go.

Evangelist Fisher has been engaged in evangelistic work during the summer months, leaving Memphis the last of June.

MARKET WEEK ENTRIES GROW

Many Merchants Sign For Show at Lubbock

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 14—With new names of wholesalers coming in daily, prospects for a big showing of merchandise at the West Texas Market week and style show, Oct. 5 to 8, looms better each day.

From 150 to 200 wholesalers, including some of the largest concerns in the Southwest are expected. Quite a large number have already sent in entrance fees for the style show which is to be held Monday evening, Oct. 6.

Two thousand West Texas and eastern New Mexico retail clothing merchants are expected here for the marketing event. These retailers will find a display of stocks here equal to some of the best markets in the Southwest which will save them much time away from their businesses and in traveling and other expenses incurred in going to distant markets.

The latest in styles will be displayed by those entering the style show. Among the articles to be shown are: men's clothing, suits, overcoats, hats and shoes, ladies' ready to wear, shoes, millinery and jewelry and novelties, hosiery, and other clothing articles and accessories.

The marketing event is being staged by Southwestern wholesalers, assisted by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. It is the second of its kind held here. Last March a similar event was held and was highly successful. Due to the unusual success, the wholesalers voted to make the event a semi-annual affair in Lubbock to serve West Texas and eastern New Mexico retailers.

Wichita Accountants Get King County Job

Allred, Lambert & Nichols, local firm of public accountants, were awarded Saturday a contract for auditing all books and records of King county, it was announced Sunday.

Work will begin on the King county books during the ensuing week, members of the firm stated. Auditing of the books and other records of Baylor county by representatives of the same concern is now under way, according to the information given.

Bronko Nagurski, Minnesota's line crushing back of last year, will play with the Chicago Bears, professional team, this year.

Floyd County Names Dates for Exhibits

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Sept. 14.—Dates for the annual exhibit of the Floyd county home demonstration clubs and the 4-H Girls clubs have been announced by Miss Marie Strange, county home demonstration agent, as Oct. 3 and 4.

There are 14 home demonstration clubs and nine 4-H girls' clubs in Floyd county and the two-day fair and exhibit is expected to attract wide attention throughout the county. Competition is expected to be keen among the clubs in every department. In addition to the exhibits of rugs, clothing, fancy work and canning, there will also be an exhibit of fresh vegetables showing how and what varieties of garden truck can be raised in Floyd county during the summer and autumn months.

Miss Myrtle Murray, district home demonstration agent, from College Station will judge the exhibits. All judging will be finished on the first day of the fair and the exhibits will be thrown open to the public on the second day.

Tear Gas and Grenades Figure in Polish Riot

WARSAW, Sept. 15. (US)—Tear gas, rifle fire, and hand grenades were brought into play on the streets of the Polish capital today when political opponents of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski clashed with police and soldiers. One of the demonstrators was killed and nine wounded, while the police and soldiery suffered seven casualties, all wounded.

The street battle was the result of a demonstration staged by supporters of the opposition parties against the arrest last week of over 100 of their leaders, including some 30 members of the Polish Sejm, (parliament).

Girl Questioned In Joyce Death

cause he had been too friendly with Isabel. That's not true. If John Joyce was anything more than a kind foster father to the girl, I had no knowledge of it."

Women Quarrel

Mrs. Joyce said she and Miss Daly had quarreled last fall but that the dispute had nothing to do with Joyce and that they continued to correspond as friends, according to the paper.

Mrs. Joyce previously had expressed dissatisfaction with State's Attorney Swanson's announcement that he would drop the case. She had employed a former coroner's toxicologist to conduct a private inquiry for her.

Before his death, Joyce had charged that terrorism had been employed by his political opponents in his ward during the last primary. He was to have appeared before the grand jury in connection with these charges and a theory of his death was that political foes had caused it. Mrs. Joyce holds to this theory.

Miss Erma Nala Voss Given Lovely Farewell Luncheon

Miss Erma Nala Voss was guest of honor at one of the most beautiful luncheons of the autumn season Saturday when Mrs. F. R. Collard entertained close friends and admirers of the talented musician before her departure from the city on a year's leave of absence for special studies.

Great golden baskets of zinnias and golden rod flanked the footlights in the auditorium, while roses in every rich color decorated the stage and one lovely bowl of sea lavender and petunias and pink roses was a study in mauves. The tables were rich with splendid specimens of zinnias in all the rich colors of autumn and the place cards were a pretty addition to the pastel doilies and crystal used with the flowers.

Program of Toasts

A pretty program of toasts followed the luncehon. Mrs. W. W. Cook was introduced as toastmistress and in a few graceful words introduced Mrs. Silk, the woman who added to the school board and who also had an outlook on life that made all she touched beautiful. Mrs. Silk toasted Miss Voss as "Our Supervisor of Music." Stating that the school board would have never given her a year's leave of absence had they not been sure she would return, Mrs. Silk spoke beautifully of the mosaic life that had been built by Miss Voss, saying that her work with the children of the city, her building with them the appreciation of music had made the colors of their lives, even the monotones, a beautiful mosaic which had been brightened by Miss Voss' personality and cemented by her love.

Mrs. Cook introduced next Mrs. J. E. Hall, who accompanied by Mrs. Lucile Brooks Huff, gave two lovely violin numbers. "Romance" by Rubenstein was the first; the second, which Mrs. Hall particularly dedicated to her friend Miss Voss was "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," and her perfect rendition brought tears to many eyes.

Mrs. Charles William Wallace was introduced to give the toast to Miss Voss, "The Musician." Mrs. Cook stressed the fact that a woman by nature and inheritance and wonderful university training who had been able to travel and see all the beauties of European countries and whose soul was attuned to all the beauties of nature, could best toast a real musician.

Most Universal Art

Speaking of music as the most ephemeral of all the arts, Mrs. Wallace handled her subject beautifully. She quoted Browning on music, spoke of music as compared with painting, sculpture and architecture and said that in the last five years, she had admired the remarkable manner in which children had been directed in work in Wichita Falls. Mrs. Wallace's closing words were that as music was the most ephemeral of arts, it was also the most emotional and the most universal. Her moments of rare enjoyment of artistic performances given by Mrs. Collard and Miss Voss were highly complimented.

Miss Florence Sammons was the next artist on the program and after the beautiful "Liebestraume," was encored into giving Chopin's "Nocturne," which she played with the most expuisite interpretation.

Mrs. J. E. H. Railey closed the program of toasts with one to "Our Friend," which toasted the qualities of the woman she had grown to know and love in obviously sweet and sincere words.

Probably no musician in the city has more sincere admirers and friends than Miss Erma Nala Voss. She has occupied the post of supervisor of music for five years and for the last two summers, she has been on the faculty of the North Texas State Teacher's College. Preceding that her summer work was teaching musical appreciation in Mercer university, Macon, Ga. She is a prominent member and an officer in the State Federation of Music. Miss Voss and Mrs. Collard have given some of the finest two piano numbers ever heard in the Woman's Forum clubhouse.

Covers were laid for Miss Erma Nala Voss, Mesdames J. E. H. Railey, J. E. Hall, W. W. Silk, Wayne J. Holmes, Charles William Wallace, C. P. Burton, J. C. Mytinger, Lucille Brooks Huff, J. T. Abbott, Edwin A. Bebb, Kenneth Bebb, Fred Barron, Charles Bourland, W. C. Hamilton, J. M. Baber, O. E. Nichols, Flora Greenwood, William E. Young, H. B. Patterson, C. E. Beavers, A. N. Lummus, A. H. Mahaffey, W. M. Cason, W. W. Cook, Misses Florence Sammons, Jennie Roberson, Lucy Huggins, Kate Burgess and Dorothy Greathouse with the hostess, Mrs. F. R. Collard.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Probably the bravest thing of which we have recently heard was a real story concerning a little boy who was to be separated temporarily from his dearly beloved mother. He knew she had a wonderful opportunity in the trip she was making and he knew she dreaded leaving him. So he strolled out to kiss her goodbye with his eyes running over with tears and at the same time a broad, steadfast smile on his face. Our own eyes filled with tears when we heard it.

The more we hear of things like that the more we like people in general. They are the most interesting things on earth. If we live to be as old as Zaro Agha, the 156-year-old Turk, we hope we may be able to say as he did, "I am not bored yet."

It has been rather the mode of late to pretend sophistication—particularly among the younger set. One sees and hears this crowd yawning disdainfully at the cultural talkies, and they really poke a deal of fun at those things that in their inmost hearts are sacred. No one could make us feel that our younger generation does not have ideals just as the younger generation of every generation has had them. There may not be many girls dreaming of fairies; boys probably do not start out with the idea of being president. Youth is set on having youth while it lasts and that is really the way in which to build a big and generous age.

Thursday morning as we passed Reagan Junior high we stopped long enough to hear the sweet, fresh young voices singing clearly one of the minor rhythms in "Volga Boatmen." Youth chanting a labor song of hard pressed people.

At one time, there was a division between youth and age. Girls and boys were girls and boys up to a certain age; then they were young ladies and young men to another point and finally they were either married people or they were old maids and old bachelors.

That time has passed. Youth isn't afraid to tackle anything that older people undertake and in the sports and even in the schools of this age, it is a self evident fact that age is no drawback to undertaking youth's games and studies.

The difference is that each generation steps a generation farther down from the pioneers and does not foster the pioneer spirit. The little boys who in pioneer days helped cut trees, hew logs and build houses, look at the telephone, the telegraph, the cars and airplanes and thought as well as body has a chance to move faster. The accumulation of problems studied out has developed a broader field for youth.

At that, we read the other day that Gamaliel Bradford, the biographer of America, reads a mystery story for half an hour every evening before going to bed. "When the half hour strikes, I stop," he said, "no matter if the assassin has his knife poised over the heart of the victim."

Well he learned patience and unruffled poise in his youth, we do not doubt, and being born in 1863, he had the opportunity. But we can't imagine a young gent of 67 putting a thriller away at so crucial a moment.

One can't set a pattern. Here are we fighting with some members of our family each week over who shall be first to read "Chan Carries On," the just finished thriller of the Saturday Evening Post. And as to laying it down in the middle of the story—pshaw! We wouldn't even hear the half hour strike.

Pretty Luncheon Tells of Graham Girl's Engagement

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 13.—Announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Gladys Fowler daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Fowler of Graham to William M. Lacy of Waco, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. Y. Lacy of Pittsburg, Texas, and honoring also Mrs. W. J. Gruby and Mrs. Charles Harris of Marion, N. C., Miss Annie Lucile Morrison was hostess Saturday at her home on Elm street at a lovely buffet luncheon. The wedding of Miss Fowler and Mr. Lacy will take place on the evening of Oct. 22, 1930 at the First Presbyterian church in Graham.

As the guests arrived they were served punch on the veranda. A three course luncheon followed at seven tables decorated in yellow. In the dining room the table was decorated with cluny lace cover, yellow tapers in crystal holders and a miniature bridal party. The color of yellow was also carried out in decorations of cut flowers in several tall baskets over the rooms. Favors were miniature pot plants of yellow gum drops standing on a chocolate mint base in yellow paper shells. The ice course, as the unique announcement feature, was decorated with a yellow question mark standing in the center, on which hung a novelty diamond engagement ring.

Approximately 40 guests were present.

MAKE THIS MODEL AT HOME
May Be Made With or Without the Peplum
Pattern 1951
By ANNE ADAMS

A stunning model for early fall retains gracefully flared capelets and adds a harmonizing peplum, which may, of course, be omitted. The skirt has just enough flare to be graceful, yet practical for the heavy silks in vogue. The deep, pointed vestee is flattering and decidedly slenderizing.

Pattern 1951 may be made of flat or canton crepe, dull satin, chiffon velvet, faille silk or marocain. In black and white it is stunning; if you prefer a color, brown, navy, dark green and the wine shades are very good. The vestee with these colors may be ecru, ruse or beige.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coin carefully wrapped, or stamps for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size wanted.

Our book of patterns for adults and children including transfer patterns is fifteen cents. Book with pattern, 25c. Address all mail and orders to The Record News Pattern department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

Floral Heights Methodist Group Resumes Meetings

Autumn activities of the Floral Heights Methodist Epworth Young People began with the meeting Sunday evening when 22 young people heard an interesting program beginning with the devotional songs and sentence prayers which were led by Leon Deaton and closed by Mildred Johnson.

Mary Frances Bingham gave "Polish Dance" as a piano number. Estelle McPhail told a Bible story from the book "Old Stories Told in a New Way."

As there had been no meeting for the past month of hot weather, there was a discussion of dues and pledges and a report of social service work, showing splendid activity in this line.

A business meeting and a prayer by Mrs. F. Billingsly brought the meeting to a close.

Members present were Phil Wilkinson, Leon Deaton, Noreta Sims, J. I. Staley, Mabel Rowe, Lenora Walker, Jonnie Green Hawkins, Helen Simpson, Helen Ruth Connelly, Phoebe Jane Filgo, Dorothy Cline, Emmaline Lewis, Betty Jane Sehmann, Margaret Bone, Mildred Johnson, Estelle McPhail and Mrs. Austin Leach, with Mrs. F. Billingsly, Lela Ann Leach, Ruth Billingsly, Virginia Mitchell and Mary Frances Billingsley as visitors.

'Substance' Subject Of Scientist Lesson-Sermon

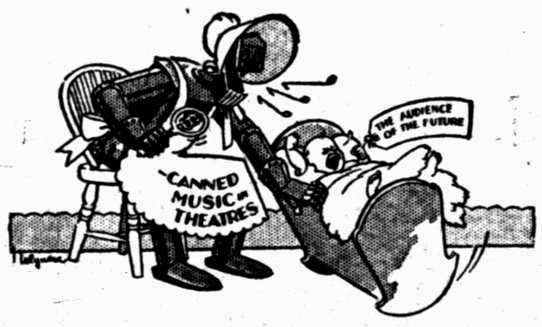

"Substance" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Sept. 14.

Romans 8:25 furnished the golden text: "If we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it."

The service included the following passage from the Bible: "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal" (II Corinthians 4: 18).

Comprised in the lesson-sermon was the following citation from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The objects cognized by physical senses have not the reality of substance. They are only what mortal belief calls them. Matter, sin, and mortality lose all supposed consciousness or claim to life or existence, as mortals lay off a false sense of life, substance, and intelligence. But the spiritual, eternal man is not touched by these phases of mortality" (p. 311).

After Nervous Breakdown

"I had a nervous breakdown and could not do the work I have to do around the house. Through one of your booklets I found how Lydia E. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Texas Boy Amazes Mother

"J. C., Jr.'s stomach was often upset and he had very little appetite," says Mrs. J. C. Bradley, Mesquite, Dallas County, Texas. "He was feverish and his breath was bad. I found he was constipated.

"My mother always used California Fig Syrup, so I decided to give my boy some. It surely surprised me to see how quickly it stopped his feverishness, cleared his breath and tongue, regulated his bowels; made him a strong and energetic boy again."

The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headachy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Give it at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness or feverishness. Every child loves its rich, fruity flavor and it acts without griping or discomfort. Appetite is increased by its use; digestion is assisted; weak stomach and bowels are given tone and strength.

For fifty years, doctors have endorsed this pure vegetable product. The genuine is always marked by the word California. Look for that when buying or you may get an imitation.

Columbus' Curse Many Will Believe It Science and Nature

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Santo Domingo, capital of the Dominican republic, lies in ruins. Nature, in a moment of anger, destroys what it has taken man centuries to build up. Almost a thousand humans lie dead in the streets of the city through the havoc of the storm that swept the island.

The insane have escaped from their asylums. Criminals are loose from the prisons and looting the ruins. The cup of woe of this little republic is full to overflowing.

Jack Lait, journalist who writes stories of modern life, and whose hobby is history, tells this writer that the superstitious will blame Columbus for the Dominican disaster. In 1500, Columbus was governor of San Domingo, which he had discovered. A gentleman named Bobadilla was sent to succeed him. He arrested Columbus and his brothers and sent the discoverer back to Spain in chains.

Columbus pleaded to return and was permitted to go to Hispaniola, his "own" island which he had discovered on a random sail. He was forbidden to touch at San Domingo, but he sailed into that harbor and was stoned and jeered at and turned away. Now, according to Mr. Lait's timely historical research, Columbus, seeing his beloved city fading in the distance, raised his hands aloft and called down upon it a malediction—a hurricane that would destroy it.

The superstitious will believe it. Others will say that if vengeance of a divine order were to be wreaked upon wicked cities, Chicago and New York would come first. Santo Domingo is not especially sinful. Death and dole come to it because of the same chance that kills innocent bystanders who happen to be in the path of gunmen's bullets.

Science has not yet reached the point where such cataclysms as earthquakes, hurricanes, cloudbursts, tornadoes and other natural disturbances, can be predicted. But, in the slang of the day, it won't be long now. A hurricane is the effect of a cause. As there is nothing miraculous about a cause, there is nothing unpredictable about its effect. In time, the one will be ascertained and the other checkmated. These days science is the miracle, not nature.

"We have been hiding our head in the sand," declares S. Stanwood Menken, chairman of the National Security league, on his return from Europe, referring to our Russian policy. "The American people have no true conception of what is going on in Russia, the extent of the internal program that Russia is carrying out . . . I was bitterly opposed to recognition, but now I believe we should take the step."

Recognition of the Soviet is inevitable. The American people will awaken to that fact when all the plums in the Russian pudding have been picked by England, France and Germany. Senator Burton K. Wheeler puts the situation pat: "Everywhere, abroad, I found the argument that America should not recognize Russia, while everywhere abroad Russia is recognized and the European countries are getting all the business."

Slavery, it seems, is not yet dead. In Angola, West Africa, according to the statements of two Englishmen, Henry W. Nevinson, journalist, and W. A. Cadbury, manufacturer, Portugal is carrying on a lively traffic in slave labor there.

Twenty years ago this condition of slavery was exposed by the same two men. Yet nothing has been done about it. There is a League of Nations which might coerce Portugal into action. But the wish has to be father to the deed. In this case, the deed seems to be without father or mother.

"I may change my mind an' stick to the Republican party," said Farmer Jake Bentley, today, after he'd jest made $3 towin' a lame car. I kin recall when a game called "Pigs in Clover" swept the country, but then there wus no other diversion 'cept croquet an' bumbly peg in them da

The commerce department declares that miniature golf courses have helped relieve the unemployment situation. Our impression, on the contrary, was that they were putting the country in a hole.

The Idols of Boyhood

IT was impossible for any American brought up in the old traditions of the national game to keep from feeling a reminiscent thrill the other day when Boston lined up two teams of old-time baseball players and put them through a regulation nine-inning game.

The great, almost legendary names of the old days were there. Cy Young and Joe Wood were among the pitchers. Honus Wagner, with his bandy legs, was at shortstop. Ty Cobb, greatest of them all, crouched over the plate in his old, familiar style. Baseball's most famous infield, in the persons of McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker, held a reunion; so did its greatest outfield, with Lewis, Speaker and Hooper coming back to revive old memories. Lou Criger was there, and Dode Paskert, and Johnny Evers, and Roger Bresnahan, and Bill Carrigan, and Hugh Bedient, and Fred Tenney—a regular roll call of baseball's immortals.

The old timers themselves undoubtedly had a good time of it, and the 30,000 Bostonians who gathered to watch them must have had one too. And, on the whole, even those of us who didn't see the game, and had to take it at second-hand, through the newspapers, can be glad that the game was played.

For these men were the boyhood idols of millions of men. They had, in their day, fame comparable to the present-day fame of Babe Ruth and Hack Wilson. No one knows how many small boys used to enshrine these men on boyhood's highest pedestals; and the adults that those small boys have, by now, become look fondly back to remark, wistfully, that there were giants on the earth in those days.

This idealization of the professional ball player has been an integral part of American life for a good many years now; and, on the whole, it has been a healthful thing, and it still is. Small boys—and older boys as well—are bound to have their heroes, and too often they pick out men who don't deserve the honor. The nation, unfortunately, has a wealth of notorious characters at all times, from Jesse James to Al Capone, whom uncritical boyhood is willing to accept into its academy of immortals without question. The cult of athlete-worship has gone a long way to counteract this.

Perhaps the baseball hero is not quite as universal a luminary as he once was. There are rival heroes now; golfers like Bobby Jones, football players like Albie Booth, decent and gentlemanly boxers like Gene Tunney. Still, the Ruths and the Wilsons and the Groves and the Cochranes have their followings, and who can say that they are not equal to the followings once enlisted by Cobb, Speaker and Collins?

At all events, it has been good to have the old-timers get together. A great many of us looked upon them as demi-gods, once upon a time, and they didn't play us false. They are part of the legends of our national game, and it has been a good, healthful game.

Voice of the People in the Elections

DEMOCRATS of the Palmetto state appear to have relegated Senator Coleman L. Blease in the September run-off and nominated in his stead former Congressman James J. Byrnes. Blease hails from the upper country; Byrnes hails from the lower country. Blease is and has been the idol of the hill billies. Byrnes represents what is known as the conservative democracy of South Carolina. He is a regular stalwart and never spectacular. Barry Miller and James J. Byrnes were born in the same district in South Carolina and have been friends for years. Now the liquor sellers in the households of foreign embassies will go unrebuked unless Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa renews the bombardment.

Senator James Couzens of Michigan won a renomination by a majority of 100,000 over his Republican rival. He is a Republican independent, he has been a thorn in the side of the administration and the so-called big interests. He speaks for a personal fortune of $50,000,000. He proclaims his friendship for the dog in the ditch. He has never met defeat in a race for public office and his renomination is regarded as a victory for the wine and beer advocates of his commonwealth. A very remarkable man is this James Couzens, a former employe and then partner of Henry Ford. His political enemies in the Republican party denounced him as a radical and a visionary and false to platform pledges and the principle of party regularity. He won in a walk.

A political upheaval took place under the skies of Louisiana. Senator Ransdell after 37 years in the congressional life of the nation was retired by the Democratic voters for Gov. Huey P. Long who opened his eyes just six years before Ransdell became a member of the American congress. Ransdell expected a majority of 20,000 in the parish of Olreans. It fell below 5,000 and then his political doom was sealed. In his campaigning Long promised to network Louisiana with public highways and to furnish work to all the unemployed. He will be a greater sensation when he enters the senate than Blease of South Carolina, Brookhart of Iowa or Heflin of Alabama.

It's Painful, but Necessary

HENRY FORD, remarking that our recovery from business depression will be rather long-drawn-out, asserts that this is going to be a good thing for us.

"Otherwise," he says, "the people wouldn't profit by the illness. And when it's all over we'll know things we didn't know before. I'm inclined to view the matter optimistically because I can see that people are thinking now. And that's something they didn't do last year, or even two years ago. Very few people thought then. That is, they thought of only one thing. They thought of buying and selling stock."

There is a good deal of sense in that. Unquestionably the inflation that preceded last autumn's market crash bred some bad business practices and was responsible for an unhealthy business attitude. The cure is painful, but in the long run it is apt to put us in a better position than we occupied before.

The AGE of YOUTH

A New Serial by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Randolph Granby—distinguished, wealthy, one of the most sought-after bachelors in New York, looks over his mail and finds the following letter:

"My dear Mr. Granby: I have tried the stage, but have no talent. I have tried stenography and being a salesgirl. I hate work. I can't write or paint or sing. But I could get a rich husband if I had the proper setting. It would cost a thousand a month and I'd need two years to get the proper man. Will you give it to me? Yours truly, Donna Raynor."

Granby notes the address, tears the letter up, throws it away . . . but he doesn't forget Donna Raynor. Acting on impulse a few days later, he is shown to Miss Raynor's room. Ran is amazed. The girl is adorable.

Frankly they discuss Donna's idea and make a bargain. Merely to test the girl, Ran takes her in his arms and kisses her. She is furious and asks him to "please leave." Granby replies: "I shall give you a thousand a month for two years. And I shall never make any effort to see you unless you send for me."

Now Continue the Story

Details in Their Bargain

Half an hour ago, when the girl Jinny had fled indignantly from the shabby room, and the girl Donna Raynor had been surprised into permitting an utter stranger to view her as she vigorously rubbed her just-washed hair, the latter young lady had met the double embarrassment with a gay giggle, and embarrassment had faded from the situation.

She had surprised Granby then, but she surprised him more now. She had been utterly calm during his embrace; the voice with which she had said that she didn't blame him, and with which she had asked him to leave and never come back, had been perfectly level and emotionless. Perhaps there had been in it the least shade of contempt, but Granby might have read into her tones something of his own self-contempt.

Later on he was on fire with righteous indignation because of his own and her scorn of himself. Why shouldn't he—he would ask himself—kiss a girl who begged for money? Why should he treat her as though she were something finer than her own request indicated?

But just now he felt wholly in the wrong, was sumberged in a remorse whose magnitude was absurdly out of proportion to the offense. And the cause for his attitude, an attitude which he would later deride, lay in her almost placid reception of his gift. She had—although he did not fully realize this—an amazing ability to dominate a situation, to take complete charge of it.

He expected sudden reaction from her calm; he expected hysteria, tears, incoherent murmurs of gratitude. These things would help restore that self-respect which vaguely he felt that he had forfeited by forcing a caress upon a girl whose walls of defense had been breached by the assault of poverty.

But she met the situation with none of the expected things. Beyond the faintest dilation of her pupils—the eyes seemed more gray than hazel now—she gave no outward manifestation of whatever might be seething within her.

She tapped a cigaret gently upon the arm of her chair, assured herself that the tobacco was not loose in the end which she put in her mouth, lighted it and stared speculatively at Granby.

"Other men have kissed me," she said.

He stammered slightly, and blushed furiously at this evidence of his perturbation.

"W-what do you mean?" he asked.

"I mean that they didn't feel it necessary to pay $24,000 for the kiss."

"I'm not paying for it," he cried. He was surprised at his own indignant reception of the imputation.

"I want you to be sure of that," she said.

"What do you care—about my attitude, I mean? As long as I give you the money—never see you—"

"I care a great deal," she surprisingly interrupted.

"Why?" he demanded.

"Impulsive gifts are never permanent," she answered.

He was pleased to find something in her at which he could be contentious. The transfer of scorn made his lips curl slightly.

"I won't stop payment of my check," he said.

"I hadn't thought of the possibility," she said.

"Then what are you driving at?" he asked.

"Men can't give money to girls with the same impersonality with which they can give it to men," she stated.

"Can girls accept it with the same impersonality with which they accept it from women?" he shrewdly inquired.

"That's exactly the point I'm making," she replied. "They can't. Of course they can't. But the reason lies not in the girl, but in the man. The girl could take it all right if she knew—knew that there were—well, no strings tied to the gift."

"I've assured you," he said stiffly, "that I'll make no effort to see you unless—"

"Can I accept that assurance?" she asked.

"You have my word," he replied.

"Your word of the moment. But what about tomorrow? What about next week?"

"You have only to refuse to see me," he reminded her. "Or are you perhaps afraid that I will tell people—"

She cut him short with a gesture of wearied impatience, exactly as though she were debating a matter with a child not too quick of comprehension.

"I'm afraid of nothing you'll do, nothing you'll say," she said.

"Then what are you afraid of?" He laughed. "It seems to me that you're trying to make me force you to accept a gift that you asked for."

"I think that's what I am doing," she admitted. "You see— I said I wasn't afraid of what you might do or say. I'm afraid of what you may think."

"If I didn't think you were—er—good, I wouldn't give—"

"Good? What's good?" she cried. "It's not what you may think of me. You may think me anything you like, good, bad — you'll make me neither by your thoughts. It's what you'll think about yourself. Your attitude toward me. That I owe you something."

"I'll not try to collect payment. I've already promised—"

"You'll keep your promise," she said. "I feel that. But—can you look at the matter as—well, as one of your friends might view a horse race? His entry is running well, has a chance to win—I mean, is this a sporting proposition to you, or isn't it? Am I, Donna Raynor, simply your entry in a—well, call it a race of life. Or am I a girl, a feminine thing, a thing of sex, who ought to be grateful to you, who, by ignoring your very existence, convicts herself of ingratitude? Because, if that's to be your thought—I don't want your money and I won't take it."

"Horse owners are permitted to watch their horses run," he ventured.

"You are not," she said.

"But, a while ago, you said that you would meet me at any table I might name—"

"I meant that," she cut in. "Only, when I meet you there, will I be the girl who owes you everything and pays nothing or will you be the man who owes a great deal to me because I gave you a new interest?"

"What difference does it make? If I never remind you of today; if I never by look or word or act—"

"Or thought?" she asked.

"How can I help my thoughts?" he demanded.

"I won't permit any one, no matter what he may have done for me, to think of me possessively. Because you will have given me $24,000, I won't think of you possessively. And the one who receives has as much right to feel that way as the one who gives."

"More, I think," said Ran, with an acumen that surprised himself.

"Then you see what I mean?" she asked.

"I think I do," he replied.

"And you'll feel, always, that I've done as much for you as you have for me? I couldn't exist if I felt that somewhere in the world there was a man—or a woman for that matter—who, every time he thought of me, said to himself, 'I made her what she is; she owes all this to me.' I couldn't endure it."

"In other words," said Granby. "I'm to pass, physically, out of your life. But more than that: you're to pass from my thoughts. Is that it?"

"Except as an interesting experiment, yes," she said.

"And you want honesty from me, don't you?" he went on.

"Of course," she said.

"Well, then, I'll give it to you," he said. "I shall keep my word about the look, word or deed. But as to my thoughts—I shall think of you, always, as a most entrancing young woman. I shall remember, until I die, I think, the sweetness of your lips. And I shall live in the hope that one day I may taste that sweetness again. Now—do we go ahead or not?"

Once again she surprised him. Again with a giggle.

"If I thought that you could kiss me, and forget it," she said, "I'd be seriously annoyed with myself and very, very contemptuous of you. But," she went on hurriedly. "I'll forget it."

"Then you didn't mean — what you said about my thoughts?" he asked bewildered.

"Of course I did," she exclaimed. "But—because you're human and honest, shall I refuse my opportunity? If you'd lied—said you could agree to all I demanded then I'd accept nothing from you, because a liar—well, a liar is a liar," she finished.

"But because I'm honest you think I'll keep my word about—the others?"

"I know you will," she said.

He always carried a check book, a slim leather affair with four checks in it. He took it from his pocket now and tore out a leaf.

She shook her head quickly.

"Not that way," she said.

He looked up in surprise.

"You didn't expect me to bring $24,000 in cash, did you?" he asked.

"I couldn't take it even in cash," she said.

"Why not?"

She reached for a cigarette. He forestalled her and offered her one from his own case, and felt a little thrill of gratification when she accepted it.

"Did you have any idea, when you came here, that you'd actually accede to the request in my letter?"

He shook his head.

"N-o, I don't think I had."

"But even now, while we've been — debating — certain ideas must have been running through your mind."

"Such as what?" he inquired.

"Such as the possibility of blackmail," she said.

He had blushed once before, but now his face was vividly crimson.

She smiled at him.

"Your blush is flattering," she said. "It means that you're ashamed of holding such a thought about me. Well, you had the thought, though. Don't you suppose I, too, have done a lot of figuring since

Q.—Can Alaskan reindeer be produced successfully in this country?—B. K.

A.—The production of reindeer, although a promising industry in Alaska, is not suited to conditions in any part of the United States. Reindeer grazing is limited to the arctic and subarctic regions. The bureau of biological survey is making detailed investigations regarding the food resources of Alaska suited to these animals; also of the management practices that are most successful; and of the diseases and parasites of reindeer.

Q.—What kind of an airplane was Quentin Roosevelt flying when he was killed?—A. F.

A.—The machine was a Nieuport 28 with a 150 horsepower Gnome engine. The plane's number was 14, and it bore the insignia of the 95th aero squadron—a bucking bronco.

Q.—Has the London bridge ever fallen down?—P. T.

A.—London bridge has never actually fallen down. Old London bridge, begun about 1170, was completed in 1209. It carried a row of timber houses, which were frequently burned down, but the main structure existed until the beginning of the 19th century. The old bridge was the center for booksellers and other tradesmen. On it stood the chapel of St. Thomas of Canterbury, and a tower on which the heads of traitors were exposed to view. The present London bridge was begun in 1824, and completed in 1831. It is borne on 5 granite arches; is 928 feet long; 65 feet wide; and 56 feet above the river.

Q.—Just what are Minie balls, and why so called?—E. W. A.

A.—A Minie ball is a conical rifle bullet with a cavity in its base plugged with a metal cup, which, by the explosion of the charge, is driven farther in, expanding the sides to fit closely the rifling. Such balls were much used in the middle of the 19th century and are named after the inventor, Capt. C. E. Minie of France.

Q.—How tall does a person have to be to be termed a giant?—C. W.

A.—The word is conventionally limited to persons over seven feet in height.

Q.—Do the stars in the flag represent, particular states?—B. V.

A.—The stars are numbered from left to right, beginning with top row, and are assigned to states in the order that they entered the union. The last star is for Arizona.

Q.—Why isn't the Hudson bay used much as a waterway?—R. G. D.

A.—The Hudson bay is not an importan waterway because of the proximity of its entrance to the arctic regions. Past the mouth of the strait flows a stream often over 100 miles wide of berg and floe ice caused by the arctic current. This makes navigation difficult and almost impossible in the winter season. The proximity of the entrance to the magnetic pole also causes the compass needle to become unreliable. The only good harbor is at Fort Churchill.

Q.—What is included in home economics?—A. K.

A.—Home economics represents a coordination of several kinds of special knowledge and skill in their application to the common needs of daily life. These are: A knowledge of nutrition and food preparation; a knowledge of textiles and the hygiene and art of clothing; a knowledge of sanitation; of the principles of house decoration; of household and institutional management; a knowledge of child care.

Q.—Who invented logarithms?—M. S. W.

A.—John Napier, a Scotchman who lived in the early 17th century, is usually regarded as their inventor.

Q.—We have had a discussion whether or not the Mona Lisa has eyebrows. Can you give definite information?—C. B. B.

A.—Da Vinci's Mona Lisa has no eyebrows. During the early Renaissance some ladies followed the custom of having their eyebrows plucked or cut. There are many instances in the sculpture and painting of the period. It is not known whether Mona Lisa had eyebrows in real life, but the picture shows none.

Q.—Why is iron colder than wood?—S. G.

A.—Iron feels colder than wood because metals are good conductors of heat, whereas wood is a poor

The Record News Offers A Booklet on House Cleaning

The general rules for easy cleaning as laid down by the expert who prepared this booklet are: Keep dirt out of the house; lessen the number of dirt-collecting places; remove dirt frequently and systematically; clean by taking the dirt away, not by scattering it to settle again elsewhere; do heavy cleaning a little at a time to avoid the hard work and discomforts of the old-fashioned spring and fall house cleaning; have a supply of good cleaning tools; use water and cleaning agents sparingly; be on the lookout for troublesome insects and animals and take prompt measures to get rid of them if they appear, and, make all the family help.

The Involuntary Muscles

Why has no one ever been able to hold his breath until he died? Why do you blush when you do not want to? Can you stop blushing? Why turn pale? Can you make goose flesh by putting your mind to it? Why do the pupils of your eye contract? Can you stop the beat of your heart?

The reason that you cannot easily order these actions around is that they are performed by involuntary muscles or muscles which are not under the control of the will.

When you study these involuntary muscles you will find that they form the layers which make up the vital organs, such as the heart and digestive organs. These muscles also line the blood vessels and control the flow of blood. They are laid in flat sheets rather than in bundles, and have smaller cells than the voluntary muscles, but they both work in the same way: by shortening and thickening, they cause movement.

It is the important work of the involuntary muscles to force the food and feces along the 30 feet of alimentary canal. In the digestive tract such muscles squeeze the food materials, thoroughly churn them with the digestive juices, and in the end push the waste products out of the body. (They cause the blood to flow, pushing it along the vessels.) Your heart is made entirely of this kind of fiber and for this reason you cannot easily control its beat by an effort of the will.

The action of the involuntary muscles of the stomach is important to your life. A stomach has a coat of three layers of involuntary muscles. One layer runs around it, another layer runs up and down and the third runs slantwise or obliquely. When food is being digested, the three muscle layers contract in such a way as to churn it with the digestive juices. After a meal the stomach starts churning and keeps up the motion until all the food leaves it, sometimes working for as long as seven hours. When food is ready to leave, it is shoved out of the stomach by the same muscular action.

This churning and contracting is called peristalsis, which means that the muscles contract to form ridges or waves which travel over the surface of the stomach and intestines, one wave following another. This action seems to be inherent, but there are certain nervous impulses arising from the central nervous system which regulate the speed of the waves. While an effort of the will does not have much effect on the involuntary muscles, it is certain that various emotions and desires do influence these muscles. The heart will beat faster with sudden fright. The stomach may cease to work entirely for even hours when one is in great pain or in sorrow. Likewise, intestinal peristalsis becomes very sluggish with one who is made very sad by the death of a dear friend.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Heart Murmurs in Children

Question—Mrs. W. M. writes: "The doctors tell me that my little girl has heart murmur. Is it dangerous? Will she outgrow it? What causes it?"

Answer—Many young children through childhood and even adolescence will be found to have heart murmurs if a careful examination is made. In many cases such functional defects will disappear as the child's muscular system becomes more completely developed. Most cases can be cured within a short time by a treatment through dieting and exercising. The diet should consist of those foods and food combinations which do not produce excessive gas. The exercises should be with calisthenics carefully regulated by a physical culture instructor.

Pickles

Question—J. K. G. asks: "Are pickles harmful to one's health?"

Answer—You will notice I do not recommend pickles in my menus. They must be classed as condiments and not as food. If used at all they should be used with a meal containing no starches.

Gas in Ear

Question—N. L. H. asks: "Is there such a thing as gas in the inner ear, and how would it affect a person, and what are the symptoms? Is there a cure?"

Answer—There is an air passage from the throat to the inner ear so that an equal pressure of air should exist on both sides of the ear drum. Sometimes this eustachian tube becomes blocked and discharges form in the inner ear, making a pressure against the drum which is caused by a combination of the discharges and the air in the inner ear. This makes the feeling of pressure and often causes pain. Any ear specialist can temporarily open this tube and let out the air, and even the discharges will drain. Of course, a permanent cure depends upon removing the causes which produce the excessive discharge.

Harmon County's School Heads Organize for Year

Special to The Record News

HOLLIS, Okla., Sept. 14.—The superintendents and principals of Harmon county's 25 or more schools met Saturday in the office of County Superintendent Mrs. Era Bridge, and organized for the year. The following officers were elected: President, W. B. Hurst; vice president, Loran A. Wells; secretary, Miss Anna Davis. An executive committee, composed of L. W. Rupple, chairman; Edgar L. Vaughan, Joe Bailey Metcalf, Loran A. Wells and Ira Sumrall, was selected.

There was a report of last year's activities, including a report of the financial affairs of the organization, and plans were discussed for the work this year.

Poultry Specialists On Tour of County Farms

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Sept. 14.—A tour conducted for the benefit of poultry raisers of Floyd county was made recently by E. N. Holmgreen, state extension specialist on poultry and his assistant, Paul Cunyus.

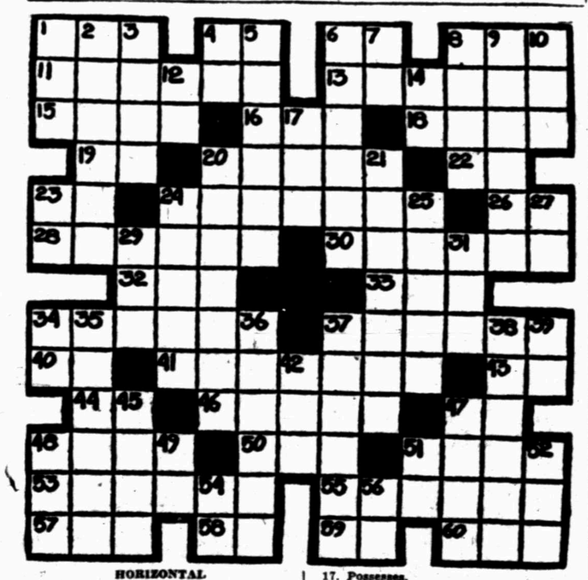

Several farms were visited during the day and a demonstration was put on in two communities of the county. Problems of the poultry raiser were discussed with several of the demonstrators. The two specialists were accompanied on the tour over Floyd county by Miss Marie Strange, county home demonstration agent of Floyd county.

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

FORT WORTH, Sept. 14.—Bases on balls—that dreaded phrase! May the future pitchers of the Wichita Falls Spudders kindly take warning and steer away—from bases on balls. Or passes—or free tickets to first—whatever you may call 'em. Dern 'em and drat 'em forevermore.

Bases on balls lost a game for the Spudders Saturday and it wasn't just an ordinary ball game, either. So much was at stake the very thought of bases on balls was enough to send shudders through the Spudder fans assembled. But Cyclonic Vincent was his usual stormy self, and walked five men, four of whom scored.

B. O. B.—bases on balls. What's the use of walking hard hitters like Brown and Fowler if you're going to let the next man hit and ruin things—as Vincent did in the fourth inning. And what's the use of letting hard swatters like Pinch Hitter Gribble and Moore walk if you're going to let the next two men get a double and a triple, respectively. That's what old B. O. B. Vincent did in the seventh inning. Yes sir, that's a good name. Bases-On-Balls Vincent. The cyclonic boy from the New York-Penn.

It's cruel, maybe, to be hard on Stormy. If the ball game had already been lost, if the Cats had held a three, four, or five run lead and if our fielding had been terrible and it appeared there was utterly no use in counting on a victory—then it would have been different. But we were in the lead! Furthermore, we had the lead by a margin of three runs, enough to win most any championship baseball game.

When the game entered the last half of the seventh, with our gang so much in front it looked rosy, indeed for the Spudders. Vincent had gone haywire in the fourth, had allowed the two men he walked to score. The Spudders scored two in the first half of the seventh to push ahead. The fifth and sixth Vincent turned in a sweet job of pitching. It looked as if he had overcome his wildness. Instead of him being wild, the Spudder rooting section was wild with joy. The last of the seventh opened. O'Connell popped out to Storti. A great beginning. Then Manager Snyder of the Cats put in that demon hitter, Gribble. Vincent paled and walked him. Still unnerved, he walked Moore . . . and you know the rest.

Bases on balls lost that game. It was one of the most heart-breaking things I ever expect to see.

And it was more than heart-breaking to watch the valiant slugging members of the team try to remedy the situation. To see the Spudders come back desperately in the ninth inning, pound out two doubles in succession to come within one run of tying the score, and then to watch three heavy hitters leave the tying run stranded on second—ah, alas, and also dern. It's a tough life, mates.

Incidentally, there was much arguing over that matter of leaving Burns, with the tying run, on second. Do you remember the details of that inning clearly. Well, then I'll go over it with you. Kloza was the first man up. He doubled beautifully to left. Burns turned the same trick, scoring Kloza. One more run would have squared accounts, and two more would have won the game. Bettencourt was the next man up. Immediately there shot into the minds of hundreds of Wichitans, why doesn't he bunt and get Burns to third? No. Bettencourt tried to slam it out. The best he could do was pop out to second right behind the bag, and of course Burns couldn't advance on that. If he had bunted, without hitting into a double play, it is a certainty Burns would have scored sooner or later, for Euller, next man up, flied out to center. Burns could easily have scored from third after the catch. But Bettencourt didn't bunt. He tried to hit, and "pooped up," as we say.

Well, why didn't Bettencourt bunt they wanted to know. What did he mean by even trying to hit, when there were two more men coming up after him, either of whom could have sacrificed?

The answer is that Bettencourt stood more of a chance of getting a hit, than he did of putting over a successful bunt. Bettencourt can't bunt. He is a slugger. When he tries to bunt he's like a horny-handed cement worker trying to thread a needle.

Carl Williams could have won that game Saturday—could have won it easily by a simple nod of the head in the direction of Hal Wiltse—by a nod of the head meant to warm up and perpare to go to work. That is, if the nod had been given him immediately after Vincent had walked that second man in the seventh inning. Wiltse would have prevented a large majority of those five runs from being scored and maybe he would have blanked them. Wiltse was sent in, in the ninth inning, but it was too late to do much good then.

BUT—if Manager Williams had sent Wiltse in in the seventh inning, he wouldn't have had Wiltse in proper shape to pitch Sunday. No—it wasn't Wiltse's turn to win that game. It was a battle of second string pitchers. By Wiltse and McCabe going in at the last minute, the score was kept from being much larger than it was. The veterans were sent in only after the lesser ones—Vincent, White, Whitworth, and Roberts, had failed.

Bases on balls—aw shut up!

This La Grave field, or whatever these Cowtowners call their baseball park, is considerably wider than a grave and you can count on that some! But it's the derned truth that to a stranger it looks no wider than one. At first glance it looks much the smaller than Spudder park, but watch how those sluggers have to pound the ball to get a double! Crouch and several other Spudders hit high flies Saturday that would have gone out of Athletic park for home runs. To hit a home run in the Panther park is considered a great deed. Fowler, the Cat, was the only one to officially get a home run Saturday. His went over the boards behind Kloza. But Burns made four bases on a blazer out to center, even if the scorers call it a three base hit and an error. Moore, Fort Worth center fielder, got his hands on it, but let it go by; and the ball was so hard hit it rolled and rolled, and Burns came on home. It was a very beautiful hit. Bettencourt's triple in the fourth was one of the same calibre.

Well, speaking for myself, I wouldn't live in this hole, but they have got some of the best drinkin' water I ever tasted in my life! Boy it tastes grand! I started swilling it as soon as I got to the cheapest hotel I could find. And then after the game Saturday (it being Saturday, you know) I climbed in a bathtub and—

Boy that refreshed feelin' after you've bathed in water that doesn't rake the skin off!

Aside from the good water, the old Rambler was trying to figure out the quickest way to get back home. For one thing, the baseball park has the press box right in the middle of the grandstand, where it is surrounded by howling cowboys, or whatever these guys are down here. Try to work in an atmosphere like that. I moaned for Athletic park, with its press box atop the grandstand, far from the madding crowd. And the Fort Worth folks hurl cushions around, and a lot of 'em come sailing down on the heads of the scribes, and if you ask me that's no way to treat a writer. We may not be eligible for the social register, but we've got some feelings, and you can feel it a aitch of a lot when a Cowtown cushion slaps you up the side of the head.

Well, that's about all I know now, folks. Except this one thing more: the girls down here ARE pretty.

STEENGRAFE TO TOIL IN FINAL

Lil Stoner Due to Attempt To Halt Spudders

another pinch hitter, Meyers, the injured catcher. But the great Meyers flied out to Kloza. Moore walked. Fort Worth fans rolled in cheers. Here was their break. They howled anew when Carl Williams sent Steengrafe to the bullpen. But Wiltse, never faltering, made Mallon ground one, and Storti, making a sensational back-hand catch of the ball after it had hit the ground, threw the runner out at first. The game was over.

Wiltse Due to Lose

All things considered, Wiltse was due to lose today and McCabe was due to win. Wiltse mastered McCabe in no uncertain fashion at Athletic park last Wednesday, and Fort Worth expected him to overhaul Wiltse today and even matters up with the blond southpaw, and there were indications of fear in some Wichitans. Only a miracle, they figured, could give Wiltse a victory today. And indeed, a miracle in the form of Bettencourt's swat did save him.

It is the hope of Spudderland that the fates are not so inclined Monday, when Steengrafe faces Stoner. Stoner whipped Steengrafe last Thursday in Wichita Falls. The only hope of the Spudders for a championship rest in Steengrafe. If the fates decree that Stoner shall again whip Steengrafe, our pennant hopes are at an end. But if they relent, and let Steengrafe win, we will carry our Texas league pennant into the Dixie series Wednesday.

The baseball fates in a championship series are indeed queer. Today the Spudders bounced 14 hits off McCabe and Red Roberts, the latter of whom, incidentally, pitched well as a relief hurler today in contrast to his lamentable showing Saturday. And Saturday the Spudders got the same number of hits off Whitworth, Roberts and McCabe. Saturday Jack Burns got five of those Spudder hits in five times up, the first sacker rapping out a triple, two doubles and two singles. Today he went to bat five times and got not a hit.

The game in detail:

First Inning

Wichita Falls—McCabe's first ball pitched was a high inside ball to Levey. Levey grounded out, third to first. Storti flied out to center. Fitzgerald popped out to short in shallow left. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fort Worth—Wiltse's first ball pitched was hit by Moore, who flied out to Fitzgerald. Mallon grounded out. Storti to Burns. Bonowitz grounded out, Euller to Burns. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning

Wichita Falls—With the count two strikes and one ball, Jack Kloza sailed one over the left field fence for a home run. The Wichita Falls delegation went wild. Burns flied out to center. Bettencourt hit an infield fly which sailed foul over the first base line. Bettencourt, in running to first, bumped into Eddie Brown, Cat first baseman, knocking the latter's glove from his hand but Brown caught the foul barehanded. Crouch singled through second. Euller singled to center, advancing Crouch to third. Wiltse was called out on strikes. One run, three hits, no errors.

Fort Worth—Brown grounded out, Levey to Burns. Fowler flied out to Kloza. Cox singled to right. Tavener grounded out Storti to Burns. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Inning

Wichita Falls—Levey singled to left. Storti lifted one up to the infield attempting to sacrifice and beat out Brown's throw to the second baseman covering first, for a base hit, Levey took second. Fitzgerald bunted out, third to first, advancing Levey and Storti. Kloza sent a hot one through short for a single, scoring Levey and Storti. Burns forced Kloza at second, second to short. Mallon threw himself flat on the ground to stop Bettencourt's blazer between first and second, and raised up in time to throw Larry out at first. It was a great play. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning

Wichita Falls—Roberts now pitching for Fort Worth. Crouch flied out to right. Euller lined out to short. Wiltse singled over Robert's head. Levey forced Wiltse at second, third to second. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fort Worth—Bonowitz flied out to Kloza. Brown doubled to left. Fowler grounded out, Wiltse to Burns, Brown taking third. Cox grounded out, Levey to Burns. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Inning

Wichita Falls—Storti lifted a high one to right and Cox ploughed through spectators next to the right field bleachers to make a sensational catch. Fitzgerald drew a pass. Kloza forced Fitzgerald at second short to second. Kloza stole second. Burns grounded out second to first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fort Worth—Tavener singled to right. O'Connell lifted one in shallow left for a hit, Tavener taking second. Roberts was automatically out on an infield fly. Storti caught the ball. Moore forced O'Connell at second, Storti to Levey. Tavener taking third. Mallon flied out to Fitzgerald. Wiltse was out of a great hole and Wichitans tore the grandstand to pieces with yells. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning

Wichita Falls—Bettencourt walked. Crouch bunted out, pitcher to first, Bettencourt taking second on the sacrifice. Euller sacrificed to center, Bettencourt taking third. Wiltse grounded out, short to first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fort Worth—Bonowitz flied out to Bettencourt. Brown singled to left. Fowler singled to center, Brown taking third. Cox lined out to Burns, who doubled Fowler off first. Wichitans knocked the roof off again. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning

Wichita Falls—Levey grounded out, third to first. Storti flied out to right center, the center fielder making the catch. Fitzgerald dropped a Texas leaguer behind third for a single and continued to second when Bonowitz, left fielder, muffed it. Kloza grounded one past first for a single, but Fitzgerald was thrown out at the plate on a nice play, right field to catcher. It was Cowtown's time to whoop. No runs, two hits, one error.

Fort Worth—Tavener singled to center. O'Connell flied out to Fitzgerald. Roberts hit into a double play. He hit the ball to Storti, who tagged Tavener out as the latter ran to second and then caught Roberts at first, Storti to Burns. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Eighth Inning

Wichita Falls—Burns grounded out, short to first. Bettencourt, with the count two strikes and one ball, smashed a terrific driver over the left field fence for a home run. Crouch singled off the third baseman's glove. Euller singled to left and Crouch slid in safe at third. Euller took second on the throw-in. Wiltse walked, filling the bases. Levey hit to short, who threw Crouch out at the plate, short to catcher. Euller went to third and Wiltse to second. Storti grounded out short to first. One run, three hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning

Wichita Falls—Fitzgerald singled to right. Kloza sacrificed out first to second, who covered first. Fitzgerald going to second. Burns grounded out third to first. Bettencourt doubled against the center field fence, scoring Fitzgerald and putting the Spudders in the lead. Crouch popped out to first. One run two hits, no errors.

Fort Worth—O'Connell grounded out, Euller to Burns. Meyers hitting for Roberts. Meyers flied out to Kloza. Moore walked. Storti made a sensational backhanded catch of Mallon's liner between first and second and threw the runner out, Storti to Burns, for the third out, retiring the side with no runs, no hits, no errors and giving the first half champion Wichita Falls Spudders the victory five to four.

Six Clubs Muddle Major League Races

Men in a large measure responsible for keeping their clubs in the race for the big league pennants this year are Lefty Grove, Philadelphia left-hander, and Joe Cronin, Washington shortstop in the American league, and Gabby Street, St. Louis manager; Glenn Wright, Brooklyn shortstop; Bill Terry, New York first baseman, and Hack Wilson, Chicago center fielder, in the National league.

MACKS DRUB INDIANS, 7 TO 1

Philadelphia Makes It Two Over Tribesmen

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14. (AP)—The league leading Athletics blanked the Cleveland Indians in their two-game series when they won the second game today, 7 to 1. The Indians failed to score until the eighth, when Averill made the run after he, Morgan and Hodapp had singled.

Earnshaw, who started the game yesterday for Philadelphia, pitched the whole route today, while Wesley Ferrell, whom the Indians had intended to place against Lefty Grove, the Philadelphia ace, weakened in the seventh and was replaced in the eighth by Beleve Bean. This was the third game lost by Ferrell in a row after he had won 13 straight victories: Score:

NEW YORK 10, DERTOIT 3

DETROIT, Sept. 14. (AP)—Charlie Ruffing pitched and batted the Yankees to a 10 to 3 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the fourth game of their five series here. Detroit had won the first three games. Ruffing drove in four runs with a triple and two doubles and also scored twice. He kept seven Detroit hits scattered, while New York collected 15 safeties off Whitehill, Hogsett, Sullivan and Cantrell. Byrd hit a home run with none on base in the seventh inning. Score:

SHAMROCK MAY DO BATTLE YET

Better Weather Forecast For Yacht Races

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 14.—The billion dollar spectacle of the sea furnishing background for the America's cup yacht racing duel, will be resumed tomorrow with indications pointing to better weather conditions and high hopes held out that Shamrock V will yet make a fight of it against the defender, Enterprise.

A fair day with a breeze from the Southwest was forecast tonight for the second race of the series, to be run off around a 30-mile triangular course, with the first leg a beat to winward and two 10-mile reeches for the remaining legs home.

Heavy showers early today were followed by clearing weather and an eight-knot breeze. A rising barometer tonight indicated continued clear weather.

The second race well may be a decisive test and show whether Enterprise was the better, faster boat that she seemed to be yesterday in leading Shamrock to the finish by two minutes, 52 seconds in the opening race to leeward and windward. It takes four victories to clinch the series.

So far, with only one race in somewhat flukey winds on which to base their opinions and conjecture, yachts-racing experts have discovered nothing whatever on which to alter their previous belief that Enterprise would walk off with the series and to keep the cup where it has been since the yachting war of 1851.

There was no little debate today over whether Shamrock was as expertly handled as she might have been under conditions that resulted in a very monotonous parade out to sea and back again. Some thought the challenger's skipper, Capt. Ernest Heard, allowed himself to be seriously outsmarted on the getaway, furthermore that Shamrock's sails were too heavy for light weather and that she failed to capitalize her advantage when Enterprise was all but overhauled an hour out on the leeward run.

Others figured that the outcome was strictly the result of Enterprise being the better boat, sail for sail, and that tactics had little or nothing to do with it on the whole, because of the extremely simplified conditions which called for no more than two or three tacks throughout the last 15 miles to windward. The race tomorrow is scheduled for 10:40 a. m., eastern standard time, depending on wind and weather.

West Texas Coaches To Win Affiliation

Special to The Record News

LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 14.—Full details of making the West Texas Coaches and Officials association a unit of the Southwestern Board of Officials have been worked out, R. T. (Dutchy) Smith, coach of the freshmen squad at the Texas Technological college announced here today, after receiving a letter from Joe Utay of Dallas, secretary of the Southwestern organization.

An arrangement has been made whereby members of the West Texas organization may be fully recognized as members of the Southwestern organization.

Frederick Youth New School Athletic Official

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 14.—John A. Wessel, 20, who has been appointed an approved official of the Oklahoma High School Athletic association for the current school year, is probably the youngest person in the state appointed to this position. He is authorized to officiate in football, basket ball, both boys' and girls' wrestling and track. He took a great interest in all athletics from the time he was in the fifth grade until his graduation, and lettered in several of these sports. He was also one of the organizers and first president of the Frederick F club, which has charge of athletics in the local high school.

He took a course in physical education at the University of Nebraska last term.

The other approved officials in this locality are J. T. Martin and Harry Chambers of Grandfield, Dewey Beeson and O. E. Bradey of Hobart, Penn O. Dickson, Bryan J. Griffin and Ralph Poolaw of Lawton, J. Forrest Mayfield, E. G. Doolan and Homer S. Reese of Mangum.

PIRATES 8-7, GIANTS 6-3

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates reduced the Giants' chances of taking the National league pennant to almost nothing today by winning both games of a double-header, 8 to 6 and 7 to 3. The first game went 10 innings while the second was called at the end of the seventh because of darkness. The double defeat put the Giants 5½ games behind the Brooklyn Robins, today's league leaders, with only 12 games to go. Scores:

Young Net Champ Looks to Future

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (AP)—John Hope Doeg of Santa Monica, Calif., the youngest American singles champion since "Little Bill" Johnston won in 1915, looked forward to many things today as he spent the first 24 hours of his reign at the seaside home of his fiancee, Miss Dorothea Scudder, at Rumson, N. J., but Davis cup tennis was not of them.

Marriage and an early entry into business in New York were foremost in the plans of the bronzed young giant who succeeded Big Bill Tilden as king of American courts on Saturday.

Our courteous ad taker will receive your Classified Ad and help you to word it, then our collector will call the next day. These accounts are "accommodation accounts" for the convenience of our patrons in transacting business over the telephone.

Classified Ad patrons desiring to have ads charged must have a telephone listed in their own name. No book record is made by the publishers on account of the great number of transactions, hence the necessity of collecting promptly.

Correction of errors in Classified Ads must be made before the second insertion. No allowance will be made for more than one incorrect insertion.

Cancellations and adjustments regarding errors should be telephoned to the Classified Ad department between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

Ads accepted for afternoon paper up until 11 a. m. same day.

Morning paper up to 6 p. m. for the following morning.

Sunday paper up to 7 o'clock Saturday night.

Same copy in both papers.

THE CLASSIFIED DEPARTMENT IS OPEN ON SUNDAYS from 4 to 6 p. m. and telephone orders for classified ads to be inserted or to be discontinued will be accepted.

Exceptions: Want ads will be accepted over the telephone for all accepting the following classifications: Situations Wanted and Wanted to Rent. Ads for these classifications are cash with the order and will not be accepted over the telephone.

The Times reserves the right to classify all Classified Ads under the appropriate headlines and to revise or to withhold from publication any ads deemed objectionable.

The AGE of YOUTH

I wrote that note to you yesterday?"

She had been so full of surprises that he could not anticipate what was in her mind now. Mutely he waited for her to go on.

"Questions will be asked," she continued. "Who is she? Where did she come from? And more vital than these two—where does she get her money? A girl alone, Mr. Granby, must be able to answer the first two quickly. But the third she must be able to answer instantly. And the answer may be checked. What man, about to marry me, would believe that you gave me $24,000 with no quid pro quo?"

"You expect to lie to your husband?" He couldn't help asking the question. Somehow she had managed to stand upon higher plane and he took sudden delight in the insecurity of her stance.

"I expect so to manage myself and the man whom I hope to love that no direct question will ever be asked of me. And just before we're married I'll tell him everything. But his family—they might investigate. Checks even cash, can be traced. Mr. Granby, I own a thousand shares of common stock in the Amenia Smelting corporation of Sandusky, Ohio.

"Is Sandusky your home?" he asked quickly.

She shook her head.

"I've never even been there. But when my father died I found the stock certificate in his effects. I deposited it with a broker in New York. He has never had an offer for it. He says that the shares are worthless. But the company exists, even though it makes no money. If you bought those shares—"

"Give me the broker's name," he said.

"Callum & Rignaud," she said.

He picked up the telephone and got his lawyers on the wire. He spoke tersely to Magruder. Somehow, in this comparatively trifling matter, he knew that Magruder, having won a major victory this morning, would not oppose him, and it gratified his sore vanity to give the lawyer an order.

"Pick up 1,000 shares of Amenia Smelting, Magruder," he said. "Offer $25,000 for them. Callum & Rignaud have some, I know. No, don't offer less." At Magruder's icy tones, he weakened slightly, hating himself that the girl should hear him become conciliatory. "No, I know it's not good business, Magruder. But—I'm doing a favor. Much obliged."

"Twenty-five thousand?" said the girl.

"Brokerage commissions amount to something," he explained.

"But I asked for $1,000 a month and you're giving me two years in advance," she objected. "The interest on such a deposit would offset—"

"Great careers mustn't depend on pennies," he said.

INDIVIDUALITY FACING DANGER

Martin Sees Peril in New Organization

Declaration that the past 300 years has witnessed the type of individuality extolled by the prophet Jeremiah, but that there is danger of its being lost in the present epidemic of mergers featured the lecture given by Judge P. A. Martin Sunday morning before the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church.

During the past centuries, the speaker said, it has become possible for the individual to think as he chooses, to worship according to his own beliefs, and to hew his own career with little restriction from society. That the individual's initiative may be sunk under the weight of system and organization is a danger facing the present generation, he added.

Judge Martin's address follows:

"The Prophet Jeremiah was the prophet of an era of individual responsibility as well as the prophet of a new covenant with God's people. We have today the story of his call to his ministry and his great prophesy of a new dispensation; of a time when men would no longer use the familiar proverb that 'the fathers ate sour grapes and the children's teeth were set on edge' but in that new dispensation the man 'who eateth the sour grape, his teeth should be set on edge.' This does away with the alibi of heredity as an excuse for sin and places the entire responsibility for individual character and actions right upon the shoulders of the individual where it rightfully belongs.

Like King, Like People

"You well remember that he was preaching to a people who had been in the habit first of following the patriarchs and then their kings; if the king was wicked so were the people; if he worshipped Baal and Astarte, so did they; like king, like people. Further back in history the tribe of Jacob followed Jacob while that of Ishmael and of Esau followed their patriarchal head; like father like son and so on and at a very early day it was taught that 'the sins of the fathers should be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation.'

"Jeremiah was the first of the great men of the past who looked far ahead and caught a vision of an era of individualism, the thing we are to study today. He has been called the 'weeping prophet' and we have caught a false idea of him from the saying; he did weep some but it was over the sins of his people and not through any sort of feminisms or weakness. He was the most courageous man of his time and for many years he stood, solitary and alone, so far as the record shows against kings and priests and against the traditions and the delusions the nations round about him; many of his years were spent in prison, on account of his utterances against the public policies of his kings and rulers of his people. His ministry dated from before the Babylonish captivity and he remained in and about Jerusalem until his people came back to the Holy City under Hehemiah much of which time he spent in a gloomy dungeon on account of his teaching and preaching.

"It is fitting at this time to say that here, right here in America, is to be found the brightest example of real individuality ever set up in the world and this week the people of the United States are called upon to celebrate the real beginning of this freedom as on the 17th of this month we will pass the 143rd anniversary of the signing of the document which has meant so much, not only to us, as a people but to other peoples who have followed our example. Thousands of good men and true men had for centuries believed in the new dispensation of individualism ushered in by the Christ but the nations, as such, had been slow to adopt it. Kings and princesses still ruled, regardless of the public will or public weal and nobility of blood was a governmental feature of the strong nations of the world. Attainder of blood forever disgraced the family of the man who met with royal disapproval, the father's sins against established authority were visited upon his children and a part of the royal title of our last sovereign was 'protector of the faith.' 'Like king, like people.' And the 'sour grapes' of George III and of Louis XVI set the teeth of insurrection on edge in America and in the sunny land of France.

Era of Individuality

"The past century has been the era of individuality in this old earth. It has witnessed the coming of the time when all men everywhere had the right to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences and no man could say them nay or make them afraid.

"It heralded the coming of the time when a man could be just what he wanted to be and do just what he wanted to do, so long as he did not interfere with the welfare of his neighbors round about; it marked a day when any man could aspire to the highest office, attain the greatest wealth, rise to the highest heights of usefulness or, if he preferred could sink to the lowest depths; he 'could eat his own sour grapes and set his own teeth on edge' if he wanted to do so; the responsibility was his and his alone.

"And, under the influence of this spirit our country produced some of its greatest men. Many of them came from the humblest surroundings. Some of them actually shook off the influences of both heredity and environment and rose like giants, shaking off the dust of the gutter and leading the nation onward to higher heights and brighter goals. With all of its hardships and its drawbacks, its poverty, its wars and its misery, I am not sure that posterity will 'not call it the 'golden age' of American civilization on account of the men and the women it produced, the plans it made for the future and the history it wrote.

"I am not a prophet of evil or an alarmist, but I cannot restrain the fear that we are entering an age in which the individual will be lost in the vast merger of the interests of the classes and the masses of men; when initiative will be sunk under the weight of system and organization and a man will become merely a cogwheel in the vast machine we call civilization—a mere thing, doing its appointed work. God help us to maintain our independence of thought and action!

Look Into the Future

"Unless our changing problems of production, of distribution and consumption of material things are properly solved, the time may come when the man in the airplane may look back with envy upon the pioneer in the ox-cart and the man in the gilded palace may wish that he were a frontier settler building his cabin with axe and hand-saw in the primeval forest; poor in this world's goods, but monarch of all he surveyed and happy in the realization that he is his own man, working out his own destiny after his own fashion and in his own good way and his own good time; responsible to no system, no combination, no class, to no one but God and his own conscience and his own wife and little ones.

"It was out of this sort of surroundings that there sprang the men who framed the constitution of the United States and it was out of just such surroundings that Wesley and Asbury and dozens of other of the world's greatest preachers came also and spread the gospel in this new world. And they were men of individuality. Their sermons were never directed by any central board or combination of 'higher-ups' in the Kingdom, except by the Spirit of the Most High, whom they worshipped.

"'And there were giants in those days'—giants in statesmanship, in law, in the pulpit, in literature, in art and in all the activities of the land. Men were men. They were men of individual opportunity and responsibility; not the constituent part of a vast machine."

SEARS, ROEBUCK PLANS EVENT

44th Anniversary to Be Observed Sept. 18-27

The 340 retail stores of Sears, Roebuck and Co., located in all parts of the country will celebrate from Sept. 18 to 27 the 44th anniversary of the company's founding, H. J. Mitchell, manager of the local store announced.

Demonstrations of merchandise manufacture, style shows and other attractions will be featured in conjunction with a nine-day selling event. In preparation for this event, the company has taken advantage of the commodity market slump to purchase hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of special items.

The Wichita Falls store will participate in the event, Mr. Mitchell said. Most of the arrangements for the anniversary celebration here have already been completed.

Retail Unit New

The huge retail organization of Sears, Roebuck and Co., has come into existence since the first of 1925. On Feb. 2 of that year, the company opened in the headquarters plant in Chicago, its first retail establishment, a retail department store carrying about 36,000 articles of merchandise.

This store was largely an experiment in the retail idea at first. Through it, the company tentatively applied its tremendous buying power, developed during 39 years of mail order experience, to retail merchandising. The object was to ascertain if it would not be possible to sustain substantially lower price levels in a nation-wide group of retail stores through the exercise and extension of this buying power. The store succeeded almost immediately and led the way to the development of the 340 retail units now in operation.

Continue Mail Order

Until the last half decade, the fame of Sears, Roebuck and Co., had rested entirely upon its record as a great mail order system whose spectacular rise since the early years of the century had been virtually the rise of mail order itself as a distinct entity and force in national distribution.

Gradually, Sears, Roebuck and Co., was covering the whole nation with a network of mail order houses, each of which was erected in a city considered the commercial capital of an arbitrary economic division termed by the company a "region." These mail order houses were located in respect to distances between each other and to transportation facilities with the goal of making nearly possible 24-hour mail order service for customers in every section of the country. That goal was approximated in 1928 with the completion of the 10th and last mail order plant at Boston.

The event to be commemorated by the anniversary celebration is the founding of the company by Richard W. Sears at North Redwood, Minn., in 1886. The company originated in a little railway station at North Redwood where young Sears, the station agent, scribbled letters to prospective customers and sold watches by mail in an effort to trade his spare time for spare money.

During the next seven years, many things happened: The Sears Watch company became Sears, Roebuck and Co. The handwritten letters became a catalog which offered for sale not only watches but diamonds, bicycles, sporting goods, clothing, harness and many other general merchandise items. The headquarters of the business was not the tiny railway station at North Redwood but a five-story building on Adams street near Halsted, in Chicago.

Roebuck Retires

In 1895 Mr. Roebuck, the vice president retired and was succeeded by Julius Rosenwald who ever since has been a vital factor in the affairs of the company. Between 1895 and the turn of the century, sales jumped from $500,000 to $11,000,000.

In 1906, the mammoth plant at Arthington and Homan on Chicago's west side was built, launching the program of national expansion that brought the company to its present system of 340 retail stores and 10 mail order houses that comprise the "world's largest store."

The company now has 38,400 employes, 12,000,000 customers and last year did a total gross sales business of $443,452,640.

And then along comes Ann Harding and "Holiday" . . . and away go Ruth Chatterton and Claudette Colbert and four-star pictures and 100 per cent ratings to the four winds! Ann Harding is as completely out of the up-to-now talkie universe as if a more brilliant and gigantic sun had loomed . . . and she is a new sun, promising a new day for the world whose glimpse of Broadway is from a 50-cent seat on Main street.

"Holiday" is Ann Harding's picture, just as all her plays are hers. She sets the tempo and creates the spirit, just as if she were an imaginative child teaching her playmates a new game. She fairly breathes a sort of faery atmosphere and yet is cynical, hard-boiled, modern youth, by a strange paradox.

The supporting cast catches the spirit and it finally bubbles over and permeates the audience—a Wichita Falls audience, mind you, just one step behind daring Ann Harding! In fact, they were so permeated that they actually joined in on the screen song, making history for this era in this city.

"Holiday" is for all the grown-up world—grown-ups who have forgotten pleasure in the toil for security. It is a 1930 Peter Pan, and there isn't a person who has seen it who wouldn't swear that Ann Harding could fly out the window if that was what she wanted to do.

Thirteen minutes? Ann will get there in 12 and a half!

Sunday Schools In Attendance Gains

Attendance at 31 local Sunday schools picked up an increase of 395 Sunday over the mark of Sept. 7, with the First Baptist church school leading the way with 1081 present.

One of the largest boosts given the attendance Sunday was contributed by the Church of the Nazarene, which had a total of 395 pupils present at the opening of the class period.

BIBLE CLASS HEARS BARRON

Prophet Jeremiah Subject Of Sunday Address

Presenting the religion of the prophet Jeremiah from several different angles, John Daniel Barron addressed the Kay Bible class Sunday morning. He discussed the message of Jeremiah as a prophet with a religion that could suffer its forms to change without losing its power, and made a general Biblical survey of the times and conditions under which Jeremiah lived.

The address follows:

"Let us briefly note the general historical background of our prophet. For over half a century Assyria had held her firm heel on the bleeding neck of proud-hearted, religious-minded Israel. The gods of Assyria had marched over her defenseless borders and enthroned themselves in the temple at Jerusalem and at all the local sanctuaries. The nation staggered with idolatry. The moral and spiritual life of the people, as a result, was rotten. The hearts of the prophets bled. Jehovah was grieved. Israel was headed toward eternal night.

Religious Reforms

"Then the affairs of Israel fell into the hands of a king by the name of Josiah, who, you will recall, had prophetic ideals and the prophetic point of view. In 621 B. C. he initiated his memorable religious reform by which he aimed to wipe out all idolatry and restore purity of worship. His hands were free to proceed thus because at this time the ruthless hands of Assyria were busy keeping Babylon from her doors. His reform, as we noted last Sunday, failed to produce the desired results because it failed to touch the inner lives of the people and it failed to touch the inner lives of the people because it was founded on wrong principles. It did not touch the heart of the trouble. It was external, and when the good king left the bloody stage the old gods resumed the drama of idolatry in Israel.

"Not only did the reformation fail to restore purity of worship, it turned Judaism toward legalism. Josiah's reform seemed a way unto life but the end thereof was religious death. Here are the steps taken to legalism: In his attempt to wipe out the last trace of idolatry Josiah made Jerusalem the only place where worship could be carried on rightly. This was to guard against idolatrous worship in the country. It was an attempt to put religious worship under official supervision for the purpose of keeping it pure. The next step in this direction was to make the Jerusalem priests the only official priests. This was to insure the correct forms of worship. One can see at once that this feature of the reform made Jerusalem and the Jerusalem priesthood not only useful but also essential to right worship. This put an obstacle in the people's way thereto to God. The road to God, so the idea came to be, ran through the city of Jerusalem. It was a return to the old conception of God as localized, a conception on which the prophets of the eighth century had waged war. Needless to say, this result of the reformation was most undesirable. Then the next, and final, step to legalism was a great emphasis on the correct method of worship. Since Jerusalem was the only place to worship and since the officials at Jerusalem were the only ones that could officiate rightly, it was of prime importance that the methods of worship should be observed to the letter. The method of worship and the ceremonial law which prescribed conditions of worship, as a result, were over-emphasized. The outcome of which was that the priests and the people became so engrossed in the machinery of religion that they were blinded to its essence. They became sticklers for rules and forms, to the exclusion of real, vital religion.

Jeremiah's Regime

"It was into this situation that Jeremiah came with mystic eyes and a grip on the essentials of religion. He had a sense of the heart things. And in the third year of the reign of King Josiah he began to tell the world what he saw.

"The first thing he saw was the need of religious reform. He preached against idolatry with all his might. He warned the nation that if it did not turn from idolatry its fate was sealed. He was as much in favor of the destruction of this evil at the throat of Israel as was the king. But he had a better eye than the king; he saw deeper, and further, and judged more accurately than did the king. He had the rare ability to stand in the midst of the reform and see its retrograde tendency. He could see that such a reform as that being effected by Josiah would eventuate in the substitution of legalism for religious faith. He was for reform, but against centralization, for centralization meant in the long run the limitation of the grace of God.

"The reform which the prophet sought to effect was aimed at the source of the trouble; namely, the inner lives of the people. So he opened his ministry with the message with which John the Baptist and Jesus opened theirs: Repent, repent, repent! Through the long, eventful, and trying years the burning message was ever on his lips. As he saw it there were only two essentials to reform. The first one was the penitent, and the second one was God; all else was secondary. He preached the sublime truth that religion does not have to have temples and priesthoods; these are accessories not essentials to real religion. His was a message to all men and to each individual man. It was the glad and fearful message that each man stood individually accountable to God, and directly in touch with Him. This is an old truth now, but it was a new one then.

Freedom for Exiles

"What did it mean? It meant that those who were now in exile in Babylon could worship God there. They could be loyal to the government under which they lived and at the same time worship Jehovah. Jehovah did not require that they come to Jerusalem to worship. Indeed, he foresaw the time when Jerusalem and the temple would be destroyed. But he never saw the time when the religion of Jehovah could not be practiced. That is to say, the prophet did not believe the forms of religion were necessary to its power; that its forms may be changed and its power retained. That was heresy then, for the Jewish people thought the religion of Jehovah was bound up with the church and state. Destroy the church and the state and you destroy religion, so they reasoned. Not so with Jeremiah. Destroyed the temple and the state, as he predicted would be done, and you still have man and God and that is all that is absolutely necessary to worship. This was a long leap forward in religion. It involves a principle which touches our modern lives and to a discussion of that principle I now direct your attention.

"Religion naturally expresses itself in institutions, forms of worship, and systems of thought, or doctrines. This is true of Christianity, as it is of Judaism. We associate our religion with these expressions of itself. Indeed, it is no uncommon thing for us to confuse the forms with the thing itself; as was the case with the Jewish people in the time of Jeremiah. Or, we may feel that the particular forms of religion which we know are inseparable from religion; that is to say, we have the tendency of feeling that if the forms of religion as we know them were changed, then religion for us would be destroyed. This was the attitude of the people in Jeremiah's day. Destroy the temple, the priesthood, the religious state, the forms of worship, and you destroy true religion. But Jeremiah saw better. He saw that these forms could be changed and true religion still flow in other channels and into others forms. The same is true of our religion. It can change its forms without destroying its power.

"This point of view is highly important just now. Many men's religious faith go on the rock at this point. They see that a certain form of religion is untenable any longer, and since they associate religion with that form they throw religion overboard. And many forms are going down before the onrush of science and open-mindedness. How important it is for us to see that religion is one thing and its forms an entirely different thing. The fate of religion and its forms are not the same. The essentials of true religion persist, though the forms through which they have been expressed be abandoned. Do not ever think that the religion of Jesus is bound up with any particular doctrine concerning Him or His teaching, or any form of worship He has inspired, or any institution which has given expression to His life. These are valuable, but not indispensable. They may have served well their day and now have to give way to better things.

Disbelief Countered

"Suppose, for instance, that you find your forms of thought concerning God no longer satisfying to your mind. Suppose the facts of life and experience have driven the God of your childhood from His throne in Heaven? Are you to say that because your childhood form of thought concerning God is inadequate for the facts you encounter in later years, you no longer believe in God? That is exactly what many men do. They find the Sunday school idea of God which was given to them 20 or 30 years ago inadequate for the facts of life now; so they disbelieve in God at all. Is God so small as to be confined to some one form of thought? Of course the right course of procedure under these circumstances is to enlarge your conception of God, and there are conceptions which will be adequate for your facts and experiences. When the prophets had their 'Sunday school' conception of Jehovah destroyed by the marching armies of Assyria and Babylon, they enlarged and enriched their conception of Him instead of turning to disbelief. That is what we have to do in this marvelous age of change which is sweeping the field of religion as well as all other fields of human activity.

"The same method of approach should be taken to all our religious forms which for one reason or another threaten to lose their significance for us today. Let religion break over the old forms if it will, and house itself in larger and better ones. We have seen little, shabby towns destroyed by fire or storm. We have never seen them built back as they were, but always much better. The buildings are now in line and all of brick. The streets are now wide and usually paved. The towns have the air of freshness. That is what religious faith ought to do: build back better and stronger than it was before the storm.

Faith Crumbles

"May I give you a chapter from my own life which illustrates the truth of the thing I am talking about. When I went to the university six years ago, I had all my frail religious forms dashed to pieces on the hard rocks of fact which I encountered from the first. It does not know what I am talking about who has never stood helplessly and watched all the foundations of his religious faith crumble away without anything to take their place. The clock was striking midnight in my religious experience. I did not see that my religion could persist on any other conceptions than those which I was daily being forced to abandon. I stood where many laid prostrate under the pagan hands of Jews stood when their church and state Babylon. But just at this time there fell into my hands a little book called 'The Social Teachings of Jesus' by that sainted Christian prophet, Walter Rauschenbusch. The book cleared a place for me to stand and fight my way back from chaos to Christ. It opened up to me Jesus of the Gospels, Jesus of history, and to one lost in complicated theology this was a great discovery. Jesus of the Gospels, as He went about doing good, warmed my heart and started me back to intellectual peace. My whole nature responded to this Person. There were a thousand things I could not explain about Him and about God, but there was one thing of which I was sure; namely, here was One that lifted me up, spoke peace to my heart, led me on and on, deeper and still deeper into life! Finally, the religious problems that had loomed so large in my intellectual world were either solved or given places of unimportance. Out of this experience and during the succeeding years, was born a religious faith which far excels in every detail that which was formerly cast in the old molds of my childhood. It found new and better forms. Now it welcomes all the facts that science and history can bring to it, for facts are part of the materials with which it builds a grander life. My religion not only retained but gained its power by changing its forms."

Stephens County Looks to Dairy Program to Meet Drouth Problem

Special to The Record News.

DUNCAN, Okla., Sept. 14.—Just what 8,000 dairy cattle mean to Stephens county will be demonstrated convincingly when the winter pinch caused by a long drouth and cheap cotton sets in, backers of the five-year dairy improvement program in this country believe.

There are more than 16,000 cattle in the county today, compared with 13,000 when the dairy program was inaugurated four years ago. Of these, more than 8,000 are dairy cattle, while more than 6,500 are grade cattle.

Cotton Crop Cut

Feeding these cattle is a major problem for farmers now, but the presence of two or three milk cows on the farm this winter will mean a great deal to families which might otherwise have depended on a cotton crop to get them through the winter.

The drouth has cut the cotton crop 25 or 35 per cent of normal, it is estimated. Families which depend entirely on cotton may feel the effect of the short crop and low drouth relief committee for aid before this winter. They may be forced to call upon the county fore another crop is made. Already some land owners have been forced to aid tenants in this class.

Feed Problem

The most serious threat to the dairy cattle owners is the shortage of winter feed. Already great strides have been made in remedying this situation.

Approximately 2,000 acres of wheat have been planted in the county for winter pasture. The county Red Cross chapter has bought approximately 500 bushels of wheat for farmers who lost crops in a recent hailstorm.

Other farmers, without credit, are making application to the federal government for loans to buy seed wheat.

Predictions have been made that the feed shortage will result in a 20 per cent reduction of livestock in the county before spring. But backers of the dairy program are not alarmed at this. Grade cattle will be sold first and the producing animals saved, they say.

As they survey scorched cotton fields, county bankers are congratulating themselves on initiating the dairy program, even though it has cost them more than $15,000 to date. The program was launched when boll weevil threatened to put the county out of the running as a cotton area, but it remained for the drouth to add the final, convincing argument.

Sales Grow

In initiating the program, the bankers brought E. R. Thompson here as assistant county agent and dairy specialist. His was a two-fold task to improve the quality of dairy cattle and to increase the number of dairy animals on the farms.

At the time the program was started, the tax rolls listed 13,071 cattle. Butterfat sales amounted to $75,000 a year. Now the butterfat sales reach $250,000 annually.

"Four years ago there were only a few purebred and registered cattle in the county. Now some of the best dairy animals in the state are to be found in this territory and their value is revealed in the increased butterfat production per cow.

State Convention Delegates Chosen

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 14.—At the Democratic county convention held at the courtroom Saturday afternoon resolutions were adopted reaffirming faith in the principles enunciated by Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson and denouncing the policy of the present Hoover administration as favoring the eastern manufacturer in the present high protective tariff.

Delegates to the state convention at Tulsa, Sept. 17, are urged to stand solidly behind T. P. Gore and W. H. Murray, Democratic nominees for United States senator and governor, respectively in formulating a Democratic platform.

John B. Wilson, county chairman, presided. Speeches were made by W. H. Hussey, Cecil Chamberlin, Democratic nominee for state senator, and H. P. Warhurst, nominee for state representative.

These delegates were selected for the state convention: H. R. King, Dr. H. H. Wilson, Harry McConnell, C. R. Chamberlin, H. P. Warhurst, F. G. Patterson, J. D. Jones, W. P. Conley, E. H. Shelton, T. A. Raley, F. L. Hood, John H. McClure, W. T. Webb, W. H. Hussey, J. C. Johnson, J. S. Brown, John W. Williams, J. B. Wilson, A. L. Schrimsher, E. E. Wilson.

The delegates attending authorized to cast the full strength of the delegation. Any other Democrats from this county in attendance at the convention are to be seated.

Frederick Families To Move to New Homes

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McInnes will move to Tipton about Oct. 1 where Mrs. McInnes will look after clerical work in the office of Farrington & McInnes, who have formed a partnership to practice law. Mr. McInnes, present assistant county attorney, will remain in his present office until the close of the year, the end of the term of P. V. Ruch, county attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Farrington and daughter, June Marie, will leave for Washington, D. C., the 20th of this month where Farrington will enroll in the National university. Upon the completion of the term next spring he and his family will return to Tipton when he will again engage actively in his law profession.

Barry Holton Talks Before Boys Club

Members of the Wichita Falls Boys club were urged Sunday morning by Barry Holton, coach of the high school football team, to exercise the privilege of talking with men about their troubles as well as their successes.

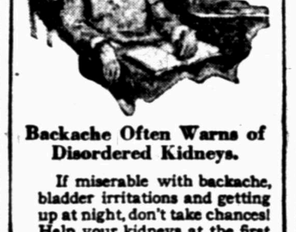

"Most boys not only feel free to talk with a man when everything is running smoothly for them," the speaker said, "but are really anxious to do so. When they get in trouble, however, often it's another matter. Now that is the time when a fellow should seek out his friend among the men, and unburden himself."

Examples of boys who made good despite great handicaps were given by Fred T. Couper.

Short talks also were made by E. H. Eddleman, W. W. Brown and R. S. Didley of the Rotary club. Musical numbers by George Taylor opened the session.

Announcement was made that a representative of the Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey circus will talk to the boys of the club Thursday night at the club rooms on wild animal life.

Announcing a Display of the
New Ford De Luxe Bodies

We will have on display this week several of the new De Luxe Bodies that have been especially designed for the Ford car.

The Ford Motor Company has made available to the public a complete line of De Luxe Bodies that have been designed for those who desire something different in appearance—appointments and colors—and yet who want the outstanding performance, reliability and economy of the Ford car. The De Luxe types are in addition to the Standard line and consist of Town Sedan, De Luxe Sedan, De Luxe Coupe, Cabriolet, De Luxe Phaeton and De Luxe Roadster.

These cars, while luxuriously appointed, are still kept low in price in accordance with the usual Ford policy.

Visit our showrooms any time this week between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m. and see the beautiful new De Luxe bodies on display.
