Bus Driver School To Be Held Here

Muleshoe Independent School District will offer a bus driving workshop July 26-30 for anyone interested in becoming certified to drive a school bus for the Muleshoe Independent School District, or any other Texas school district for the school year 1993-94.

Both the 20 hour course and the eight hour refresher course are being given. Class will begin July 26 at 1 p.m. in Room 16 of the Muleshoe High School, and continue until July 30.

The length of the class day will be four to five hours each day. Sessions will include class work and actual driving of a school bus. Topics to be covered include: Unloading Passengers, First Aid, Exceptional Children, Dugs and Alcohol, plus five other chapters in the state provided manual.

If interested in attending, call David Gray at 272-4412, Buck Johnson at 272-3911, or Elmer Smith at 272-4710.

"We have an opportunity to have roping and rodeo during Mule Days," said David Tipps in speaking to the Rotarians during the Rotary meeting. "If we are going to do some of the things we want to do, we need a money making project."

He then asked Thurman Myers to speak to the group about the events. "I think we should stick to the roping, we have already had two rodeos," Myers said. "Our expected expense is approximately $1,000 and a prominent businessman here in Muleshoe has agreed to underwrite us."

The group voted to sponsor roping, which they hope to make an annual event. Mule Days will be held August 12, 13 and 14.

Curtis Shelburne presented the dinner music and Sam Harlan gave the invocation.

David Tipps called the meeting to order and visitors were recognized. Visitors included: Julie Cage, James Cox, Judy Puckett, Joe Dan Ortiz and Russell Bailey.

Terry Hutto led the group in singing "Smile-Sing A Song," and "Battle Hymn Of The Republic."

Tipps reminded the group of the upcoming Black Magic Show on Tuesday, August 24. Rotarians will be selling tickets. You may also purchase tickets at the door.

Ted Barnhill was in charge of the program and he introduced Brooke Sinclair, Donna Puckett, and Andy Wilson, who attended RYLA (Rotary Youth Leadership Award) Camp July 11 through 16 at Vadito, New Mexico, along with 67 other youth from West Texas and the Panhandle. This is a youth program of Rotary International, sponsored by the 57 Rotary Clubs in District 5730.

They each gave a brief summary of the things they enjoyed the most about the camp.

Gage Angeley also attended the camp, but was unable to attend the Rotary Meeting.

Final Plea Issued For Host Families For Muleshoe Area

Foreign high school students will be arriving soon into the Muleshoe area for homestays, and the sponsoring organization urgently needs a few more local host families for their upcoming academic programs.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange (P.I.E.) Executive Director, John Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15 and 18 years, have their own spending money, are fully insured and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. P.I.E. currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

P.I.E. representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the "perfect match". As there are no "typical" host families, P.I.E. can fit a student into just about any situation, whether it be a single parent a childless couple, a retired couple or a large family.

Families who host for P.I.E. are also eligible to claim a $50.00 per month charitable contribution deduction on their itemized tax returns for each month they host a sponsored student.

For the upcoming programs, P.I.E. has students from Spain, Germany, Poland, Russia, Italy, Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Australia, New Zealand, France and many other countries. P.I.E. is a non-profit educational organization that has sponsored more than 18,000 students from 18 countries since its funding in 1975.

Muleshoe area families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting may call P.I.E., toll-free, at 1-800-Cont. from Page 1

Texas Food Market Watch: July Outstanding For Fruit, Veggie Lovers

Many fruits and vegetables will be marked down during peak harvest periods in July, making produce a great buy next month, a food marketing expert said.

"July will be an outstanding month for those who love fresh fruits and vegetables," said Dr. Richard Edwards, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Except for a brief cold snap in March and a bit too much rain in early May in some parts of the country, the spring growing season has been exceptionally kind.

"The results of favorable weather patterns will be seen in the produce section during the entire month," Edwards said. "There will be a veritable cornucopia from which to choose, and prices will be at a 3-year low."

Peaches will headline produce ads the entire month. The March cold snap that damaged some of the early varieties did not harm the later maturing crop, he said.

Prices should settle into the 49- to 59 cents-per-pound range as soon as the producing areas reach their peak harvest the last couple of weeks in July.

The cantaloupe crop also reaches highest production during the month. Prices for the smaller size will likely drop to 49 cents each, he said.

Consumers also will see watermelon prices drop during the month. Prices on July 4 will be about 15 cents per pound and will drop to 10 cents a pound as the month closes. Seedless varieties will be offered at special prices, but still at about twice the cost of those with seeds.

Other produce that will be reaching peak production in July are blueberries, cherries, plums, grapes, nectarines, honeydew melons, apricots and mangos.

Vegetables flooding the market during the month will include tomatoes, reduced to about 30 cents per pound. Green beans, green peas, okra, yellow squash, and cucumbers will be cut 10 percent to 25 percent below prices posted in previous months, Edwards said.

Sweet corn harvested in late July will be at its peak of tenderness and at its lowest prices, of $1 and $1.25 per dozen.

Most specials in the grocery section will be related to the shift in eating habits caused by hot weather. The hottest specials will be on nationally branded soft drinks. Six-pack prices will drop as low as 89 cents, he said.

"Pricing pressure is coming not only from private label soft drinks which will be priced at least 20 cents less, but from all other drink categories," he said. Flavored water is competing well, and private label prices likely will drop below 60 cents per liter.

Specials on canned vegetables will be frequent as manufacturers attempt to lower inventories. Best buys will be on private label products priced at three cans for $1. Applesauce and apple juice also will be reduced to make room for the 1993 crop. One-half gallons of apple juice could be as low as $1.59.

Pork specials will feature out door cuts. Ribs will be marked down to $1.49 per pound. Center-cut pork chops will be discounted to $1.75 per pound, and chops cut from the ends of the loin will be cut by 25 cents per pound. Smoked sausage will be about $1.50 per pound.

"Demand for bacon declines during the summer, and prices will be reduced to stimulate sales. Look for 12-ounce packages for $1 to $1.19 per package."

Hot dogs, always a summer favorite, will be offered for less than $1 per package.

Beef specials will be led by ground beef. The price for 70 percent lean will be at about 1.15 per pound. Chubs in 3-to 5-pound packages will run less than $1 per pound.

Round and sirloin steak will be about $1.50 per pound, with T-bone and rib steak between $3 and $3.25 per pound. Two other favorites of outdoor chefs will be reduced. Briskets will be offered at $1.70 per pound and fajitas may be marked down to $1.49 per pound.

The most heavily advertised poultry special will be the leg and thigh combination cut. Ten-pound bags will sell for 29 cents per pound. Boneless breasts will be marked at $2.29 per pound, Edwards said.

During July, turkey processors are expected to put whole birds on special at 69 to 79 cents per pound.

"This may seem like a strange time to promote turkey, but processors are trying to sell as many as possible at prices slightly

U.S. House Passes Strike Bill By Lopsided Margin

The U. S. House of Representatives voted 239 to 190 to pass the so-called "Striker Replacement" bill (H.R. 5/S. 55), despite mounting evidence of public opposition.

"The House action is a slap in the face of millions of independent workers who now will face the grim prospect of forced strikes and union-boss compulsory dues demands," said Reed Larson, president of the 1.7 million-member National Right to Work Committee, which is leading opposition to the Strike bill.

The legislation now moves to the U.S. Senate where a filibuster is being organized, a technique that killed similar legislation in 1992.

The National Right to Work Committee called the House action a payoff to Organized Labor and cited the results of a new national survey showing a clear majority of Americans opposed the Strike bill.

Larson said a nationwide opinion poll of 1,000 registered voters commissioned by his organization reveals that Americans oppose the legislation by nearly a 2 to 1 margin. 57 percent oppose the Strike bill, which would force employers to deny raises to employees who work during a strike and would prohibit employers from offering new workers permanent employment during a strike.

The survey, conducted by the Marketing Research Institute April 8-10, showed that American across the political spectrum and in every geographic region oppose the strike which showed 60 percent of Americans opposed to the Strike bill.

Larson called the survey results "clear evidence that the only people who want the Strike bill are the bosses of Organized Labor—because they alone benefit from this legislation."

Larson said his organization plans to mount a nationwide media campaign, including targeted television ads, to organize opposition to S. 55. His group has already delivered more than 600,000 petitions to Congress from Americans opposing the Strike bill.

higher than they will get in August, when they must cut prices to sell their inventory to retailers for Thanksgiving," he said.

Ground turkey will be bargain priced at about $1 per pound.

Shrimp and catfish again will headline the seafood specials. The best buy on shrimp will be on the larger sizes (21-36 count) for $4.89 per pound. Medium sizes (51-60 count) will be a dollar a pound cheaper. Whole catfish, ready for the grill, will sell for $1.99 per pound. Fillets will be priced about $2.75 per pound. Perch fillets will be on special for about $2 per pound.

Woodchuckery and Peacemakers

Down through the centuries some of the worst and most effective persecutors of Christ's people have been others who claimed to be Christ's people. C.S. Lewis is right on the mark when he says that men never do evil so completely and with such abandon as when they do it in the name of religion.

Shelburne

I thought of that some time ago as I listened to radio show host and story-teller deluxe Garrison Keillor talk about the church he supposedly grew up attending in his fictional home town, Lake Wobegon, Minnesota.

His family, he says, were members of the Sanctified Brethren Church, a small remnant, they felt, of Christ's true church. Many of them, he recalls, were dear, sweet people basically, but they could have used a few more peacemakers. Their leaders seemed morbidly anxious to squabble and split and declare "holy" wars over almost any issue. And he illustrates....

"If you had said, 'How much wood could a woodchuck chuck if a woodchuck could chuck wood, dearly beloved?' some of the beloved would have gone back to the Second Book of Chronicles and found the place where God had givenIsrael some instruction as to woodchucks!"

Others, he opined, would find another obscure biblical text they were sure put the matter in a completely different light, and they would have fought over the whole issue to the bitter end! If you dared mention that God might not be concerned with the issue of woodchuckery, people on both sides would have assured you that the issue was somehow pivotal to the whole Christian faith. They needed more peacemakers.

Maybe they also needed to read one verse that really is pivotal to the Christian faith, the word of the Holy Spirit through John: "This is the message you heard from the beginning: We should love one another" (1 John 3:11).

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Jennings, Brockman

In a candlelight ceremony at the Lazbuddie United Methodist Church, Jonessa Jennings and Guy Brockman were united in marriage on Saturday, June 26 at 7:00 p.m. Parents of the couple are Derrell and Glenda Jennings and Phil and Judy Brockman, all of Lazbuddie. Grandparents are Mrs. Sallie Robinson of Lazbuddie, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bates Jennings of Muleshoe, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Schulte and Mrs. Agnes Brockman, all of Nazareth. Rev. Al Jennings of Lazbuddie and Father Tim Dran of St. Ann's Catholic Church in Bovina officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Garlands of ivy intertwined with tiny lights were draped along each side of the center aisle of the church with accents of bows and streamers in the bride's chosen colors of hot pink, purple, and teal at each pew. Family pews were marked by large white bows and flowers and ribbons in the three colors. The ceremony took place before three arched candelabra with white tapers, azaleas, bouganvillea, agapanthea, daffodils, delphinium, iris, and pepper grass. Strands of tiny lights, in two silk ficus trees and woven in ivy garland on the altar rail completed the decorations at the front of the church. Each windowsill on the side held small arrangements of silk ivy with bows and streamers of pink, purple, and teal. The registry table was covered with a white lace cloth over teal organza, and decorated with a floral arrangement and white bride and groom music box. All flowers and decorations were done by Donna Glover of Lazbuddie.

Escorted and presented by her father, Jonessa wore a traditional gown of white Italian satin and tulle, fashioned with a fitted bodice and layers of tulle in the full skirt. Lace encrusted with sequins and bridal pearls enhanced the bodice, off-the-shoulder sweetheart neckline, and long, tapered sleeves. Eight panels of the same lace covered the top of the skirt and tapered to points partway down the skirt. Medallions of sequined lacedotted the cathedral train made of layers of tulle. The bridal veil was waist-length tulle, with a wreath headpiece decorated with lace, sequins and pearls, all accented by a double pouf cloud of tulle. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of white lilacs, pink azaleas, purple delphinium and neelepoint ivy. It contained a picture of Jonessa's brother, Derren, and special momentos of his; a picture of her late maternal grandfather, James Robinson, and his wedding ring; a senior class ring belonging to her paternal grandmother, Cora Belle Jennings, who graduated from Lazbuddie High School fifty years before Jonessa; and a silver charm engraved with her parents' wedding date. "Something old" was her grandmother's class ring, "something new" was her wedding gown and veil. "Something borrowed" was a diamond tennis bracelet belonging to Sheryl Engelking, and "something blue" was a blue garter, made by her great-great-aunt, Esther Sheffield of Lubbock.

Maid of honor was Mia Jennings, cousin of the bride from Lazbuddie. Bridesmaids were Traci Elliott of Lubbock, Ginger Agee of Muleshoe, Misty Maxfield of Lubbock, Holley Morris, cousin of the bride from Lazbuddie, and Susan Cage of Muleshoe. They wore dresses of taffeta and sparkle organza, designed with a fitted bodice, off the shoulder neckline, and tea length full skirts. Mia's dress was hot pink, and the bridesmaids wore alternating colors of purple, teal, and pink. Matching shoes and flower-shaped Austrian crystal earrings, a gift from the bride, completed the ensemble. They carried bouquets of wisteria, lilac, azaleas, and ivy.

Best man was Leland Brockman, brother of the groom from Lazbuddie. Groomsmen were Jason Schilling and Todd Schilling of Farwell, Scott Holt and Kurt Miller of Lazbuddie, and Craig Wuensche of Wilson. They wore black tuxedos with ties and cummerbunds in colors coordinating with bridesmaids dresses.

Flower girl was Montana Steinbock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charleson Steinbock of Lazbuddie. Her dress of hot pink taffeta and sparkle organza had a fitted bodice with puff sleeves and self fabric-roses at the shoulders, and a full skirt. She wore hot pink bows in her hair and carried a white basket with silk petals. Ring bearer was Roper Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Lazbuddie. He wore a black tuxedo, and carried a white satin pillow edged with lace. Brian Glover of Lazbuddie, and Lance King of Lubbock served as ushers and candlelighters. Bobby Ford of Lubbock also served as usher.

Music was provided by Jeremy Bruns (organ), cousin of the bride from Muleshoe, Alan Finney (trumpet) from Muleshoe, Mia Jennings, (piano), cousin of the bride from Lazbuddie, Tania Gonzales Ortega, (violin) cousin of the bride from Livermore, CA. Vocalists were Lee Ann Williamson and Lori Smith from Starkville, MS., and Corey Rogers of Lubbock.

Launa Hawkins sister of the groom, from Mesquite, TX, registered the guests, and Shayla Klobner of Lubbock handed out wedding programs.

Prelude music was provided by Jeremy Bruns, organist, and Alan Finney, trumpeter. Also, Mia Jennings, pianist, played "Everything I Do I Do It For You" and "Unchained Melody", and a piano-violin duet of "Ava Maria" by Mia and Tania Gonzales Ortega completed pre-wedding selections. Music for seating of the parents and grandparents was Franck's "Panis Angelicus", (O Lord Most Holy) played by Jeremy Bruns and sung by Lee Ann Williamson. Jeremy played Pachelbel's "Canon in D" for the lighting of the candles, and "Jesus, Joy Of Man's Desiring" by Bach for the entrance of the wedding party. The bride's processional was Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary", performed by Jeremy Bruns and Alan Finney. Before the wedding party entered, Lee Ann Williamson and Lori Smith sang "Seekers of Your Heart", and between the commitment and exchange of vows, Lee Ann Williamson and Corey Rogers sang "Only God Could Love You More". "Two Hearts, One Love" a duet by Lee Ann Williamson and Corey Rogers accompanied the lighting of the unity candle. The recessional was "Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee", performed by Lee Ann Williamson.

A reception in the fellowship hall followed the wedding ceremony. The bride's table was covered by a cloth of white sparkle organza, caught up at the corner by clusters of flowers and white bows. Floating tiers of individual cakes, center cake topped with a white bride and groom ornament nestled in a cloud of white tulle and pearl accents, pink punch in a crystal bowl, crystal candlesticks with white tapers, and a Precious Moments figurine, a gift from the groom, graced the bride's table. The groom's table featured a cake in the shape of a double T, an "armadillo" cake, a brass coffee service, and a large bouquet of anemone and hydrangea in an openwork vase. Centerpiece for the gift table was a picture of the bride and groom--their engagement portrait, matted with a poem in calligraphy by Sheryl Engelking, brass framed and mounted on a brass easel. It was Jonessa's wedding gift to Guy. A wedding portrait of the bride, a gift to her parents, was displayed on a wooden easel. A white bird cage with floral decorations, silk ficus trees, and silk wisteria on a wooden trellis also decorated the hall. Servers were Amy Dent, Robbi Fly, Tiffany Simpson, Becky Schacher, and Cathy Schacher. Serving in the house party were Kirby and Vicki Burch, Donna Cozby, Lyndon and Stephanie Foster, Robert and Ellen Gallman, Greg and Sandra Gregory, Glenn and Barbara Lust, and Robert and Cheryl Smith. Reception assistants were Holly Engelking, Shelbi Robinson, cousin of the bride, and Meghan Hawkins, niece of the groom.

The wedding celebration concluded with a buffet and dance in the Garden Room of the Holiday Inn in Clovis, NM. After a wedding trip to Tapatio Springs, TX, the couple will reside in New Braunfels, TX.

The bride is a 1993 graduate of Texas Tech University, and the groom, a 1992 graduate of Tech, is employed by Wilbur-Ellis Co. in the San Antonio-Austin area.

Phil and Judy Brockman hosted a steak dinner in the fellowship hall following the wedding rehearsal on Friday night. Walter Hughes of Farwell prepared the steak, and Judy was assisted by Pam Miller of Lazbuddie and Sharon Hughes.

A bridal brunch was given by Mia Jennings in the home of her parents. Hoppy and Marsella Jennings, on Saturday morning. The bride was also honored with a lingerie shower given by Traci Elliott in Lubbock.

The organization started out with about a dozen members, but has grown to include over 3400 members nationally and national meets not only include a car show, but also parts and memorabilia tables, text sessions on paint jobs and electrical rebuilding, and a "Wrap It Up" banquet with awards and prizes.

The car show is open to the public and will be held in the parking lot of the Harvey Hotel, 4545 W. Carpenter Freeway off Highway 114 in Irving. For more information call Kelly Hinegardner at 214-245-4482.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN --- Texas Democratic and Republican leaders disagreed last week over the effects of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that the Constitution does not permit racial gerrymandering for the purpose of electing minority candidates.

In Shaw v. Reno, a North Carolina case, the Supreme Court broke its precedent of defending race-conscious districting — a trend that grew out of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Republican Party Chairman Fred Meyer said the Supreme Court ruling gives Texans the right to challenge racially gerrymandered district lines.

Republicans have filed challenges to the 1992 reapportionment which created three new congressional districts with large minority populations represented by U.S. Reps. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas; Frank Tejeda, D-San Antonio; and Gene Green, D-Houston.

Democratic Party executive director Ed Martin said the ruling would not apply to Texas because the state's new minority districts, while not compact or geographically consistent, do not resemble North Carolina's 160-mile-long, snakelike 12th District, which winds through 12 counties to group much of the state's black population.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, writing for the majority, said a voter isolated in an district created for members of a different race could be deprived of political representation.

According to a copyright story in the New York Times, the ruling could be "a potentially far-reaching setback for blacks and Hispanics."

In-State Processing Pushed

Texas farmers and businessmen need to concentrate on processing agricultural products within state lines, state Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry told Texas Press Association members at the group's 114th Annual Summer Convention last week in San Antonio.

With only 8 percent of processing, or "value-adding" of Texas products currently taking place in Texas, if Texas businesses would do 5 percent more of the processing, it would have a $2.5 billion economic impact, Perry said.

Since Perry was elected in 1991, the state Agriculture Department has lent $25 million for value-added processing plants, including pinto beans, cotton and aquaculture. He urged TPA members to support a state ballot issue in November that would finance loans to businesses in value-added industries.

Perry said the Agriculture Department's "Naturally Texas" program promotes products that are at least 60 percent produced or processed in Texas. More than 80 counties have joined the program, he said.

Guerrero to Speak at Schools

Former Texas Railroad Commissioner Lena Guerrero is expected to resurface this fall as speaker in Southwestern Bell's campaign urging students to stay in school.

Guerrero was picked by Gov. Ann Richards to serve the unexpired term of John Sharp, who was elected state comptroller. In a 1992 bid for election to her appointed post, Guerrero was forced to acknowledge that she had not graduated from the University of Texas at Austin, as she had publicly alleged. The acknowledgment sent her into a political tailspin.

A Bell spokesman said Guerrero will talk to students across the state in effort to persuade them to stay in school and graduate.

Minority Scores Lag

Test scores of minority students who took the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills for the first time lag behind white students who took the exam, according to a report in the Austin American-Statesman.

Fifty-one percent of 208,000 high school sophomores failed at least one portion of the exit-level exam this spring. Students have six chances to pass the three-part exam, which tests reading, writing and mathematics skills. Students must pass all three portions of the exam in order to receive high school diplomas.

In May, 13,377 or 7.4 percent of the state's 180,206 seniors did not graduate because they failed to pass at least one portion of TAAS.

Failure rates were highest among black and Hispanic students, with about two-thirds of minorities failing the exam.

prove a proposal that would require auto insurance companies to make available copies of policies printed in Spanish.

Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, said he favored the proposal, but added that U.S. residents should be fluent and proficient in the use of English.

Under the proposal, the Spanish version of the auto policies would contain a disclaimer stating that the English version every policyholder receives is the legally binding version.

Barrientos and Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said insurance companies should be willing to provide the Spanish version if they wish to compete for Spanish-speaking customers' dollars.

John Marshall Eyes AG Race

BTU Tax: The Sequel?

by: James E. (Jim) Nugent
Chairman, Railroad Commission of Texas

If the BTU Texas were a movie, it would already be on the shelves of your local video store. The reviews came in quickly and so overwhelmingly "Thumbs Down" that the senate pulled it from public screen. That is an encouraging sign.

Yet, in politics, as in the movies and sports, "It isn't over, until it is over."

Now is the time to pay close attention to what happens with the Clinton Administration's $500 billion budget deficit reduction package. It is time to make certain that the "BTU Tax: The Sequel" does not make it to a wallet near you. The sequel could be more frightening than the original.

Texans were hit hard by the recent recession, but we are steadily climbing our way out of the economic ditch. For example, the 139 new factories built in Texas last year led the nation according to Site Selection magazine. In addition, the 405 new or expanded corporate facilities built in Texas last year tied us for first in the nation.

The Department of Commerce announced earlier this year that between 1991 and 1992 Texas added 95,700 new non-farm related jobs. This was 75.4 percent of all the new jobs created in the United States during this time frame. Furthermore, San Antonio, Dallas-Fort Worth, and Austin were in the top 10 job growth markets in 1992.

A BTU Tax would wipe out more than half of the recent job gains. The State Comptroller's Office estimates almost 49,000 Texans would lose their job if the BTU Tax is adopted. Other studies have shown an estimated 400,000 to 600,000 jobs would be lost nationwide.

Consumers would be hit where it hurts the most -- their pocketbooks. A typical family of four would spend $475 more per year on higher energy costs. In addition, the poorest among us, who already spend roughly 22 percent of their income on energy costs, would end up paying the most.

Whatever emerges from the House-Senate Conference must not be just another version of the BTU Tax -- The old movie with a few scene changes and new title.

Whatever you call it, this type of tax destroys jobs, slows economic growth, singles out the lower- and middle-income families, falls unfairly on certain regions of the country and make American products less competitive in the trading world.

The conference committee will iron out the differences between the two versions of the deficit reduction package. Several powerful house leaders went out on a limb to support the BTU Tax, and they have indicated they are not going to hand the Senate a chainsaw to cut the limb out from under them. They will fight to preserve the BTU Tax in the conference committee.

Everyone agrees that reducing the federal deficit is vital to the nation's economic well being. All of us will be required to share in the sacrifice to achieve this goal. Moreover, President Clinton should be commended for forcing this national debate.

However, the best way to cut the deficit is not through an unfairly and unequally applied BTU Tax. Responsible spending cuts that fall evenly and fairly are better. That should be the top priority for Congress and the administration -- not the last resort.

News From Congressman Larry Combest

A select few in Congress are meeting behind closed doors right now to decide how to tax and spend and try to reduce the deficit. While House members are looking for a "better Btu" tax, the Senate proposes a 4.3 cent-a-gallon gasoline "transportation" tax. Either tax will cost more than 600,000 jobs over the next five years. The Btu tax would cost a Texas family of four $620 a year for 8 to 12 cents a gallon on gasoline plus tax electricity and natural gas. The really disturbing point is that House Speaker Tom Foley speaks of the final budget version as deciding what type of an energy tax Americans will pay -- instead of listening to Americans' opposition to any type of energy tax.

The haggling over your money will take weeks, presumably to finalize one compromise tax-and-spend-deficit plan that then would have to be approved by the entire Congress and President Clinton. In the budget bean-counting business, increasing the taxes paid by Social Security recipients will be counted as a "savings" to the government.

Almost one-fourth of Social Security retirees who are now paying tax on a portion of their benefits would see more of their benefits subject to tax, increasing from 50 percent to 85 percent. Using an unprecedented sleight-of-hand, the $32 billion in these new Social Security taxes collected over five years will be diverted into the general revenue fund. Instead of paying into the Social Security Trust Fund, those new Social Security taxes will go toward more government spending. I strongly oppose these plans to misuse monies that are entrusted for the security of Social Security. Actions like this are why the public distrusts Congress!

You are going to get a hard-sell from Bill Clinton about the ratio of taxes to spending cuts and how much it will reduce the deficit. He will count those Social Security taxes as spending cuts, along with user fees and spending cuts already in place since 1990. He will say individuals with income of $115,000 will pay the heavier tax burden, but 80 percent of small businesses would be directly hit because they pay taxes as individuals, not as corporations.

America does not need more taxes that will stifle small business hiring nor lower retirement incomes so that government can reduce some of the deficit and spend more money. America does not need class warfare or partisan bickering. Americans demand that government stop spending first.

I have cosponsored legislation to give taxpayers control by directing that a portion of their tax liability be matched dollar-for-dollar with spending cuts. I have supported efforts to slow the growth of spending across the board to match the rate of inflation, which is currently 3.2 percent. Instead of everyone truly sharing the job of deficit-reduction, a few congressmen will argue for weeks on a compromise that will not make anyone happy. Because no one will be happy, they will call their compromise a success.

Congressman Larry Combest (R-Texas) announced that the Department of Agronomy, Horticulture, and Entomology at Texas Tech University will receive a $175,300 grant from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Combest noted that this new project entitled, "Tagging Drought Tolerance Traits in Grain Sorghum Using Molecular Markers," will be led by Dr. Henry T. Nguyen of Texas Tech University and Dr. Darrell T. Rosenow of the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station at Lubbock. This high technology genetic engineering will allow researchers to dramatically speed the natural selection plant breeding process used to identify grain sorghum lines with traits contributing to drought tolerance. Dr. Nguyen indicated that this project will ultimately improve sorghum productivity in semi-arid, drought-prone environments, such as West Texas.

"This grant is in recognition of the true quality of research and development conducted at Texas Tech University," said Combest.

"It was awarded out of a competitive process, which proves the high priority that USDA places on this research project. A vital project such as this brings about significant discoveries in which we all will benefit, and it is good to see resources coming home to West Texas to advance agricultural research."

Teacher Retirement Benefits Restored For Re-married Spouses

The Teacher Retirement System of Texas is looking for former annuitants--widows or widowers of deceased members or retirees--whose survivor benefits stopped when they remarried prior to 1980. A new Texas law has now restored their benefits.

State law previously required that benefits stop when a surviving spouse remarried. That law was changed in September 1980 permitting benefits, in future years, to continue for surviving spouses who remarried; however, those who had already lost benefits before that date were not included.

The 73rd Texas Legislature this spring rectified that inequity and passed House Bill 2711 restoring payments to those beneficiaries whose benefits stopped when they remarried.

TRS, however, does not have record of these individuals since their names were dropped from the system database when their benefits ended 13 or more years ago. The retirement system is looking for these individuals so that benefits can be restored to them.

Persons who believe they qualify to have survivor benefits restored should contact the Claims Department of the Teacher Retirement System for information on how to apply. The new law will be effective September 1, 1993. Payments can begin after that date and within one month after an application is filed and approved.

TRS can be reached by calling toll free 1-800-223-8778 or, Austin-area calls, 397-6400.

WRESTLING

Our fears seem as big and as terrible as this alligator sometimes, don't they? Fear about this thing and that can paralyze us and prevent us from doing our daily work.

Many of our fears are real. A great many of our fears, however, are unfounded — a result of thinking and worrying about ourselves. Sir John Denham phrased it this way:

"My fears are causeless and ungrounded, Fantastic dreams and melancholy fumes."

There is only one thing that will dispel fear of this type. We must do something to get out of ourselves. That means loving and helping others.

The Bible puts it so well in I John 4:18. "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear; because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love."

The Church is God's Agency designed to help you. We invite you to attend this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Speaking of quality programming, the fall drive will feature programs that are sure to appeal to all. Beginning with Fri., Aug. 13, KENW-TV will present The 50's: Moments to Remember. A Peter, Paul and Mary marathon is on schedule for Sat., Aug. 14 beginning at 8 p.m.

WIC Program Offers Children's Immunizations

Texas ranks highest among all the states in case numbers of vaccine-preventable diseases. That is a distinction which the Texas Department of Health (TDH) plans to change.

Citing as "intolerable" the fact that 14 Texas children younger than 5 have died from measles complications since 1988, Dr. David R. Smith, Texas Commissioner of Health, said.

"We're better at vaccinating our cattle in Texas than immunizing our children."

This month, TDH has begun a new tactic to improve immunization rates among children. The statewide WIC program (Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children) now offers free immunizations at most of its locations, to children of any age, regardless of whether they participate in WIC.

"Mothers already are bringing infants into our clinics for WIC benefits," explained Debra Staben, Chief of the Bureau of WIC Nutrition. "In the past, we've referred these children to other health care providers for their shots," she said. "Now we'll directly supply the shots. We expect to save our clients time while ensuring more kids' vaccinations. At least 400,000 children younger than 5 come through the state's WIC clinics each year."

The WIC effort is part of Commissioner Smith's "no more excuses" plan to immunize all Texas children before age 2. According to Dr. Smith, only about 30 percent of 2-year olds in Texas' urban areas are fully immunized. "In addition to the preventable toll in human suffering, illness and death, the costs endured by Texas families are enormous," he said.

He added that hospital cost for each of the recent measles

Viewers do not have to make a pledge to the station to be eligible for the drawings. They may bring by or mail a 3"x5" card with their name and address appearing on it to KENW-

KENW-TV, a Public Television station located on the campus of Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, New Mexico, hosts three membership drives annually. outbreaks in South Texas, Houston and Dallas have exceeded $2.5 million. "We could have immunized these thousands of children for a fraction of that cost." Facts on Texas Immunization Information: *Texas ranks highest nationally in cases of vaccine-preventable diseases.

*A recent survey of kindergarten records revealed that only 10 percent of the children in Houston, 30 percent in Dallas, and 40 percent in El Paso had received the recommended number of doses of vaccine by the time they were two years old. Average immunization levels for inner-city preschool children are as low as 30 percent statewide.

*In 1989, Texas reported the most measles cases in the United States (3,313). In 1990, Texas reported the second highest number of cases, 4,409 (California was first).

*Measles surged from a low of 37 cases in 1982, to over 8,302 cases in the last four years.

*In the last five years, 3,717 children younger than 5 developed measles and 12 died.

*In addition to the death and suffering they cause, preventable diseases are economic burdens to the health care delivery system. During the Dallas measles outbreak in 1990, 238 children and adults were hospitalized at a total cost of $3.4 million. The cost of vaccine for these same 238 people would have been less than 3,700.

*Hospital costs for uncomplicated measles averaged $850 per day. Complicated cases requiring intensive care cost 20 times that much.

*For each dollar spent on vaccine, $10 are saved.

Teens Learn To Start Smart To Have Healthier Babies

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service has a new program to help teen mothers raise healthy infants.

The StartSmart program teaches mothers of high risk infants the importance of prenatal care, breastfeeding, and proper use of commercial formulas and other foods.

"The problem is that pregnant teens are at a nutritional risk," said Dr. Bethann Sitcher-Byers, Extension nutrition specialist and professor at Texas A&M University, who developed the program with assistance from the Allen Foundation in Michigan. "Young mothers are just not getting enough calories and nutrients when their bodies need them the most."

The result of inadequate diets is often low birth-weight babies--a frequent outcome of adolescent pregnancies and a major contributor to infant mortality in the United States, she said. The home care of such high-risk infants is a critical factor for their survival.

During 1990, the most recent annual figures provided by the National Center for Health Statistics, 533,000 babies were born to women under 20 years of age in the United States. Texas ranked second with 49,000 births to California's 71,000. In Texas, teens account for about one-sixth of the babies born each year.

TEXAS ASSOCIATION OF DAIRYMEN MEET

The Texas Association of Dairymen recently held their Semi-Annual Meeting. The meeting was held at the Texas A&M Experiment Station in Stephenville, TX.

Keynote speaker, Mr. David Witts, is an expert on private property rights. The Dallas lawyer rose to national prominence in 1977 when he testified before a Congressional committee on federal land-use legislation. He remains committed to the idea that farmers and ranchers need less, not more, government and that the rights of private property owners are quickly vanishing. Witts has authored two books on the subject, Power of Parity and Theft.

Mr. Witts has served as legal counsel for the Texas Department of Agriculture and various state and federal agencies. He has been a member of several governmental committees and commissions. He

Last year, the StartSmart program was piloted in seven Texas counties--Potter, Tarrant, Ellis, Travis, Harris, Midland and Jasper. Home economics Extension agents implemented the educational program within other special projects for teen parents in schools, teaching basic prenatal and infant nutrition principles to the young mothers of high-risk infants.

"Although the program focuses on the minority population with the greatest potential for producing high-risk infants, the video vignettes are cross-generational and broad enough in scope to be adapted for use with other audiences," Witcher-Byers said.

A pre and post knowledge test administered to participants revealed a slight increase in test scores, she said. These results indicated the pregnant teens enrolled in special programs have a strong knowledge base regarding optimal practices in prenatal and infant nutrition.

"However, the discrepancies exist between knowledge and knowledge application," Witcher-Byers said. On completion of the course, many teens indicated they would take better care of themselves and their babies. This included such practices as eating more fruit, avoiding mixing cereal with milk in the babies bottle, and paying closer attention to food safety by not leaving bottles of milk out at room temperature.

In Tarrant County, home economics Extension agent, Joyce Foulds has implemented the StartSmart program in three additional high schools, reaching mothers in their upper teens.

Ft. Worth, with 92 deaths, led the state in infant mortality rates for urban areas during 1990-91, Witcher-Byers said. In 1988, Tarrant County teen deliveries numbered 2,927. Of these, 266 delivered infants weighing 5 pound 8 ounces or less. In addition, 851 Tarrant County teens delivered babies at a cost of more than $1.1 million in Medicaid in-patient hospital expenses.

"There's a critical need in the county to reduce both the incidence and the cost of teen pregnancies and low birth-weight babies," Foulds said. "But the number one purpose of StartSmart is nutrition education. I think that any improvement we make will help teens have healthier babies."

The majority of teen mothers in the four schools where Foulds has conducted the program have deficient diets.

"It's appalling because we're not talking about junk food such as chips and donuts being eaten," she said. "They're just not eating enough."

Data collected from 77 participants in several of the plot counties revealed that this program is teaching a critical minority audience both during pregnancy and shortly after childbirth, Witcher-Byers said. It also shows that most teen parents being reached through school programs are those in their late teens.

While continuing to reach minority female adolescents facing early parenting responsibilities, the program is also helpful to others, she said. In a Tarrant County school where 66 percent of participants were white, young women who had lower pretest scores like those in the pilot program showed an increase in their knowledge following StartSmart.

"The most significant impact of this program continues to be the change in attitude among teen parents. There is a willingness to face responsibility, and an understanding of the importance of breast feeding and the proper methods for infant feeding," Witcher-Byers said. "They are very concerned about the well-being of their children."
