Goal set at $145,300

United Way campaign kicks off

Approximately 190 tickets were sold for Wednesday morning's kickoff community breakfast which starts this year's United Way drive.

The goal for the two months drive has been set at last year's goal, $145,300.

Despite this figure, the United Way reached a total of $133,000 last year, according to Johnnie Lou Avery, head of public relations.

The money will be distributed to 13 area agencies who have submitted approved budgets.

Charles Hays, campaign chairman and Daryle Hoertz, United Way president thought up the idea of a kickoff breakfast as a way of attracting attention to the kick off event and as a way of letting the community show support and appreciation for what the United Way means to this community," Ms. Avery said.

Representatives of the 13 agencies spoke at the breakfast, explaining the contributions being made by their organizations to the community.

Mike McCracken represented the YMCA which has requested $20,000 for the main branch and $7,900 for the Lakeview branch. The Boys Club, which has requested $10,000, was represented by Bert Andries. Other speakers were Bob Hurt, Boy Scouts ($12,000); Jane Thomas, West Side Community Center ($1,000) and Howard County Family Services ($5,000); Lt. William Thrasher, Salvation Army, ($20,000); Donna Kothmann, Planned Parenthood, ($4,100); Larry Bristow, Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center ($20,000); Pat Lawlis, West Side Day Care Center ($8,000); Peggy Sturrock, district director of the Girl Scouts ($10,000); Tim Winn, Howard County Foster Parents ($1,800); Alice Bauchman, American Red Cross ($6,000).

A collection losses fund of $7,500 and $12,000 for campaign and operating expenses has also been budgeted.

Champ Rainwater is serving as executive director for this year's campaign. President of the drive is Daryle Hohertz and campaign chairman is Dr. Charles Hays. Other officers are David Keller, vice chairman; Joy Boyd, treasurer; Curt Mullins, secretary; Johnnie Lou Avery, public relations and Tommy Franklin, labor representative.

Appointed Division Chairman were, Jimmy Taylor and R.H. Weaver, pace setter; Bob Hurt and Jack Redding, loaned executive; Dearl Pittman and Earl Archer, special; Ken Perry and Ron Medley, out of town; Dr. J.W. Cowan and Ben Bancroft, professional; Danna Moore and Edna Womack, residential; Tito Arenibia and Frank Hardesty, metropolitan; James Lee, rural.

The United Way office is located on the third floor of the Permian Building, 113 W. 2nd.

Who can get medicare?

By WILLIAM STEIF

The 1965 Medicare law providing health insurance for Americans 65 or older (as well as for many younger disabled people) may have been the greatest improvement in Social Security since the system went into the books in 1935.

Medicare has two main parts: + Hospital insurance, which helps pay for inpatient hospital care and some followup care when you leave the hospital.

+ Medicare insurance, which helps pay for doctor's fees, out-patient hospital services and numerous other medical items and services not covered by hospital insurance. (Recipients are charged a small fee—$8.20 a month for the year ending June 30, 1979—for this part of Medicare.)

You do NOT have to retire to get Medicare. Even if you keep working beyond age 65, you can have this protection as long as you've worked enough to be under Social Security (or railroad retirement).

To find out all the rules on Medicare coverage, consult my book "What You've Got Coming in Social Security and Medicare."

Two categories of people qualify for Medicare even if they haven't reached 65:

+ Disabled people who have been entitled to Social Security disability (or railroad disability) benefits for two straight years or more.

+ People insured under Social Security (or railroad retirement) who need dialysis treatments for kidney disease or kidney transplants because of permanent kidney failure.

Even if neither you nor your spouse earned enough to qualify for Social Security, you can still get both the hospital and medical insurance for a fairly modest price. (The charge was $63 a month plus the small medical-insurance fee for the year ending June 30, 1979.)

But more likely you'll be covered by Social Security as you approach your 65th birthday. About three months before that birthday, check with your Social Security office to find out exactly what you have to do to apply for Medicare.

If you receive Social Security (or railroad retirement) checks before turning 65, you'll receive information about Medicare several months before your 65th birthday. Most such beneficiaries are enrolled automatically for medical insurance; you have to tell Social Security you don't want the medical insurance if you qualify for automatic enrollment.

If you turn down this insurance and decide you want it after the initial enrollment period expires, you must sign up between the next January 1 and March 31. Your protection doesn't start until the following July. And your premium will be 10 percent higher for each 12-month period you could have been enrolled but weren't.

You can cancel the medical insurance by giving notice but can re-enroll only once after canceling.

Sadat, Begin agree to Sinai withdrawal

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — President Anwar Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin announced agreement today on a speeded-up withdrawal and joint patrols in the Sinai Peninsula, but the Egyptian and Israeli leaders sparred publicly over the tough question of Jerusalem's future.

Sadat arrived Tuesday for his third visit to Israel and his eighth summit meeting with Begin.

At a joint news conference today after their second session of talks, the Egyptian president said the Arab sector of Jerusalem, occupied by Israel since the 1967 Mideast War, should be included in the Palestinian autonomy scheme for the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

To this, Begin replied: "Jerusalem is the capital of Israel. It's an indivisible city."

As expected, however, the leaders made progress on three issues related to Israel's phased return of the occupied Sinai to Egypt:

—The Santa Katarina Monastery area near Mount Sinai will be returned to Egyptian control before Nov. 19, two months ahead of schedule. That is the second anniversary of Sadat's precedent-setting trip to Jerusalem, which launched the peace process, and the Egyptian leader has made tentative plans for a celebration at Santa Katarina to mark the anniversary. It was not immediately clear whether Mount Sinai itself would be covered by the early summit meeting, which began Tuesday and ends Thursday, would result in any progress on the key issue in the peace process, the amount of autonomy Israel is willing to concede to the 1.1 million Palestinians living in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Joint patrols to police Israel's withdrawal over the next 2½ years as a "temporary arrangement," Sadat said, "until we meet with our friends in America." A U.N. peacekeeping force is being withdrawn from the Sinai. President Carter had promised to help establish an international unit to replace the U.N. force if necessary.

In principle, Begin said, there was agreement on the amount of oil Israel will sell Israel after Israel's withdrawal in November from Sinai oilfields.

There was no indication, however, that the eighth Egyptian-Israeli summit meeting, which began Tuesday and ends Thursday, would result in any progress on the key issue in the peace process, the amount of autonomy Israel is willing to concede to the 1.1 million Palestinians living in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Putting public pressure on his hosts, Sadat told the Israelis in a banquet speech Tuesday night that "realization of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people is not incompatible with Israeli interests." He warned that recognition of Palestinian rights is the "only guarantee for coexistence" of Jews and Arabs in the Middle East.

U.S. charges generate heat during summit

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — U.S. charges that the Kremlin controls Fidel Castro's foreign policy and that he is trying to extend this control to the Non-Aligned Movement are generating heated debate at the movement's sixth summit meeting.

Mozambique's Marxist president, Samora Michel, ridiculed the notion that the Cuban president is not his own man in a speech Tuesday. Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley also defended Castro, the movement's president for the next three years, and attacked the United States.

Addressing the Cuban leader directly as he sat nearby in the Palace of Congresses, Manley said:

"Those among the developed countries who seek to malign you and your country as a surrogate acting upon foreign orders mistake the Cuban revolution, mistake the Non-Aligned Movement and mistake the man Fidel Castro."

His speech amounted to a rebuff of the Carter Administration's concerted effort to improve U.S. relations with Jamaica.

"No other area of the world has had more extended exposure to, experience with and more proximity to imperialism than Latin America and the Caribbean," said Manley.

Meanwhile, 67-year-old President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia, the last surviving founder of the Non-Aligned Movement, made a veiled attack on the draft declaration Cuba is sponsoring to condemn the United States on numerous counts and align the movement with Soviet foreign policy.

Fund collections total $10,674

A total of $434 was collected for the Bible Fund for the 24-hour period ending at noon today.

The sum collected through free-will offerings has now reached $10,674.54, which means the sponsoring organization, the Howard County Ministerial Alliance, is within $1,326 of its $12,000 objective.

The campaign has formally ended but donations are still being accepted by the alliance.

Construction in city drops

Total construction in the city so far this year has dropped to just over half of the total for the same period last year.

Construction so far in 1979 totals $2,813,262, compared to $5,480,576.25 for the year-to-date in 1978. Construction in August totaled $303,638, compared to $496,628 for the same month last year.

The August total was boosted considerably by a commercial addition project at Citizens Federal Credit Union, 701 E. FM 700. That project had an estimated cost of $209,000.

Another project topping $10,000 was the proposed construction of a new Family Medical Rental Center at 1710 E. FM 700. Its cost is estimated at $30,000.

The only other project costing over $10,000 was an addition to a home belonging to Jimmy Stewart at 2717 Ann. Cost is estimated at $15,233.

'Housekeeper' ad sparks calls

A woman who advertised for a "housekeeper" for three days in the Herald got so many calls she decided to withdraw the ad.

"Mature woman wanted to stay with elderly woman approximately 6 hours a day. $300 a month," the ad read.

The purchaser of the ad had a wide selection of applicants from whom to choose and had no trouble finding the type of person she needed.

For best results, call 263-7331 and ask for help in wording an ad, whether you want to buy or sell something or advertise for services.

Action/reaction: Personalized plates

Q. What is the procedure for getting a personalized license plate in Texas?

A. Applications are available at the county tax collector-assessor's office. The requirements are these: No more than six characters on a plate; no duplication of an already assigned plate; and the word or message cannot be 'objectionable.' A personalized plate costs only $10 extra in Texas. In New Jersey and Tennessee the surcharge is $50. In Hawaii it's $100. There are 100,000 such plates in Texas, including one on a Toyota that says "AHHH SO."

Calendar: Weekend classes

TODAY
Registration continues at Howard College for weekend classes at the Registrar's office from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m.

Spring City Dance Club will meet at the Eagles Lodge at 7:30 p.m. Alvin Whitaker will be providing the music.

THURSDAY
UTPB Registration scheduled at 7-9 p.m. Horace Garrett Library Howard College.

Girl Scout Registration will be at the Pioneer Natural Gas Building from 7 until 9 p.m. All girls from grades one through five from the Moss, Washington, College Heights and Kentwood schools are eligible.

The American Legion Voture 1529 will meet at 7 p.m. with a regular meeting immediately following.

FRIDAY
Evening Lions' Club annual football barbecue, 5 to 8 p.m., High School Cafeteria. Tickets, $3.50 each. Public invited.

Tops on TV: Breaking up is traumatic

It's repeat city again on the small screen tonight. Fortunately one repeat goes back a long way. John Wayne and Claire Trevor star in the high-flying soap opera "The High and the Mighty," airing at 7 o'clock on CBS. Made in 1954, this was the precursor of all the later "Airport" flicks. The lone new entry in the tube sweepstakes is ABC's two-part, "Breaking Up Is Hard To Do," airing at 8 o'clock. Although it features a number of able actors, early reports say that it rarely rises above the soap formula level.

Inside: Cheerleaders in action

FOOTBALL IS AN emotional game and cheerleaders are the proof as Danny Valdes captures the young lovelies in action. See the picture page on 6A.

Mullins completes year at banking school

Some 650 bankers from throughout the United States have completed the 1979 session of Banking at the University of Colorado.

Chavarria arrested

Jesse Chavarria, 1965 Bluebird, was arrested Tuesday on a probation violation warrant. He is being held without bond. He entered a guilty plea in 1978 District Court Jan. 4, 1978 to burglary for 18 years. A motion to revoke the probation was filed July 18 because he was delinquent in payment of probation fees, court costs and restitution. He was arrested at the sheriff's office.

Shinn placed on probation

Pete Shinn, no address, entered a guilty plea to auto theft Tuesday in 118th District Court. He received a five-year probation sentence. He had been free on bond set at $5,000 by City Judge John Collins. After Shinn's plea, bond was set by Justice

University of Colorado, Boulder, one of five graduate banking schools in the country.

One of those who took part in the 1979 school and completed a first year of study is Curtis Mullins, vice president, First National Bank, Big Spring.

Primary goal of the banking school is to prepare banking personnel for rapid advancement to senior management positions within the banking industry.

Participating bankers receive two weeks of formal classroom instruction in the summers of each of three years and augment this learning with written assignments during the year. A diploma is awarded at the end of the program.

SUDDEN FIRE — The tug White Face, owned by Tidewater Marine of Morgan City, La., is swallowed by flames after its propeller chopped into a submerged natural gas pipeline, setting off a blast of fire. Two of the four men aboard disappeared. It happened Tuesday as the tug was moving the small barge at right out into Lake Verret, near Napoleonville, La.

Dr. McGonagill elected state optometrist veeep

Three Big Spring optometrists have recently returned from the Texas Association of Optometrists' Sixth Annual Convention in Austin.

One of them, Dr. Don H. McGonagill, returned to Big Spring as vice president of the state organization.

The convention is a continuing education program for Texas optometrists, required by the State Board of Optometry, according to McGonagill.

Also attending the Sept. 1-3 convention at the Austin Marriott Hotel were Dr. Marshall Causey and Dr. Harold Smith. The convention was family oriented with special programs for accompanying wives and children.

Police beat Motorcycle recovered, three juveniles seized

Big Spring Police recovered a stolen motorcycle belonging to Michael Bowersox, 1706 Johnson, late Tuesday night.

Bowersox called officers at 11:10 p.m. Tuesday to report that his Yamaha Dirt Bike had been stolen from in front of his residence. Shortly thereafter, patrolmen found the bike at 1001 N.W. Fourth, and arrested three male juveniles on charges of theft of a motor vehicle.

A 1974 Chevrolet parked on Buzbee's Auto Sales lot, 3301 West Highway 80, was stripped by thieves sometime over the weekend. The strippers made off with the car's four tires and wheels, the transmission, the radiator, the battery, the air conditioner compressor and a cassette tape player. Loss was estimated at $855.

Eddie Garza, 1401 W. 5th, lent his car to some friends, Monday night, who drove it until it ran out of gas on the 100 block of N. Goliad. When Garza went to pick up the car the next day, he found that three headlights, both windshields and two side windows had been smashed. Cost of the damage has not been estimated.

Four wire hubcaps were lifted from a Buick LTD on the lot of the Jack Lewis Dealership, 403 Scurry, sometime between Saturday and Tuesday. The hubs were valued at $230.

A vehicle driven by Delia G. Aguilar, 1201 Lamar, struck two parked vehicles, which in turn rammed another at 1800 E. 11th, noon Tuesday. The parked cars belonged to Lester Williams, 805 N. Gregg, Hosea Young, 807 N.W. 4th and Willie Williams, 1504 E. Cherokee.

Two other mishaps were reported Tuesday. Vehicles driven by Cheryl Sparks, 1514 E. 17th, and Isabel Mata, 503 N.E. 10th, collided at Fifth and Lancaster, 3:18 p.m.

A vehicle belonging to Rodger Rhotan, 706 Johnson, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene at 1400 E. 3rd, 6:15 p.m.

Waylon Jennings Show tickets go to 1,200

Ticket sales have picked up for the Waylon Jennings Show, which will be held at 8 o'clock Saturday night in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the Howard College campus.

Carl McMillen, manager of the coliseum said 1,200 tickets had been sold for the country-western music program and another 200 tickets had been placed 'on hold.'

"If the demand for tickets remains constant," McMillen said, "we could have upwards to 4,000 in the house Saturday night. In fact, it's not inconceivable we could sell out."

Tickets for the program, which Jennings will dedicate to the memory of the late Lubbock songwriter and musician, Buddy Holly, cost $7.50 and $6.50 each. They are available at the coliseum box office, at radio station KBST, Cleveland Athletics store and the Radio Shack.

McMillen said he had ticket orders from as far away as Junction, Menard and Odessa.

Midland voters reject six of nine bond issues

MIDLAND — Most Midland voters apparently were in a grim mood when they went to the polls here Tuesday to decide the fate of a $16.83 million bond issue.

The electorate approved three of the issues but defeated six others. Two of the three proposals that passed—accounting for about half of the total money involved in the election—will update and expand the city's water and sewer system.

These improvements will be paid off with revenues produced from these services and did not actually require voter approval.

Cap Rock Coop to hold annual meet Saturday

The 40th annual meeting of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative membership will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday on the Stanton High School football field.

The event traditionally draws a large crowd for a barbecue supper, and annual business meeting, with lots of prizes given away. Co-op members and their families are urged to attend.

The Pierce family, well known for their Blue Grass music, will be back this year to entertain the membership before the business meeting begins.

Dr. W.C. Newberry, Ed. D., known as the "Sage of Southwest Texas," Martindale, will be the speaker for the event. Dr. Newberry will share his hobby, observing people in their natural behavior patterns.

Also, there will be a full-length movie and snowcones for the kids.

Directors will be elected for Districts 4, 5 and 9. Carlos J. Dusek, incumbent, will be opposed by Bob Pyleat in District 4. In District 5, Loyd Robinson will oppose A. D. Reed, the incumbent, and Russell E. Jones will oppose D.W. McDonald, incumbent, in District 9.

New tenants law might pose problems for renter

By JACKIE CALMES
Austin Staff Writer

AUSTIN — Renters, know the law. That's the message of Texas tenants groups as a new state law took effect Saturday that spells out for the first time rights and duties of landlords and tenants.

Publicly, the groups express satisfaction with the law. Privately, they agree with Tom Weathered of the Central Texas Legal Aid Society: "The law has real problems from the point of view of tenants."

The major problem, he said, is the complexity of procedures a tenant must follow for forcing a landlord to make repairs, or for suing an uncooperative landlord. For the law to be effective, tenants must be aware of those procedures.

In support of the law, Weathered said the mandatory penalties it provides are good. Ultimately they may keep landlords and tenants out of court by intimidating landlords to make repairs, he said.

Larry Niemann, legal counsel for 3,600 landlord-members of the Texas Apartment Association, agreed: "The real value of the law is going to be preventative."

"If the tenant shows knowledge that the law is on the books, the landlord will take action to make repairs," Jennifer Burgess of the Austin Tenants Council said.

What are a Texas tenant's rights? Under the law, known as the Warrant of Habitability Act, a person can expect housing free of "any condition which materially affects the physical health or safety of an ordinary tenant."

Wary tenants groups question what repairs fall under this definition. Attorney Weathered said a tenant who rents a dwelling with air conditioned, garbage disposal of dishwasher should reasonably expect those things to be repaired although none, arguably, are health or safety hazards as is, for instance, raw sewage from backed-up pipes.

The landlord group's Niemann said, "If the problem is purely one of aesthetics, or of the tenant's convenience or comfort, those kinds of things are not covered by the statute."

But if a tenant thinks a repair qualifies under the law, and the landlord does not respond, the tenant can terminate the rental agreement and demand both the security deposit and return of the balance of that month's rent.

By taking this non-judicial route, a tenant waives a right to court action. If, however, a tenant sues and wins, the court will order the landlord to make repairs, rebate rent, reimburse the tenant for any actual damages and pay a civil penalty of one month's rent plus $300.

Most important, spokespersons for both landlords and tenants say, a landlord will have to pay court costs and attorneys fees for the successful tenant.

The value of this, Weathered said, is that tenants with good cases will not be scared off by legal costs, and lawyers will be more receptive knowing they'll be paid if a case is won.

Better yet, he said, court cases may be avoided if landlords are likely to be intimidated into making repairs before the dispute gets to court.

If a court finds a landlord retaliated by eviction, increased rent or reduced services within six months after a tenant's complaint, the tenant will get a month's rent, $300, moving expenses, court costs and attorneys fees.

Tenants also have duties under the law, and their duties, in turn, are the landlord's rights. Faced with a condition that threatens health or safety, a tenant must inform the landlord of it orally, or in writing if required by the rental agreement.

A tenant must be up to date in rent payments, and cannot withhold rent pending repairs.

The tenant must allow "reasonable time" for the landlord to remedy the condition, considering the nature of the problem and the availability of material, labor, and utilities.

When a tenant assumes such time as elapsed, he or she can either terminate the rental agreement or sue. But first a tenant must notify the landlord in writing of what he or she intends to do and allow an additional week for response.

Ron Shortes, of the University of Texas student attorneys' office said he has already seen examples of rental agreements with broad non-specific waiver clauses that negate the entire law.

Niemann said such an agreement "is not worth the paper it's written on and the landlord and his attorney are going to be in for a rude awakening in court."

While landlords are responsible for certain repairs, including damage from "normal wear and tear," they are not required to fix damage caused by tenants.

Like their tenants, landlords, too, have a right to a day in court. If a tenant withholds rent, a landlord can file suit after notifying the tenant in writing. The successful landlord gets a month's rent, $100, and attorneys fees.

A harassment clause in the law protects both parties from "bad faith" suits. The penalty for a frivolous lawsuit is a month's rent, $100 and the defendant's attorneys fees.

This clause, Niemann said, will prevent "a helter-skelter rush to sue landlords."

Suits must be heard in the county where the rental unit is located, so tenants with out-of-town landlords won't have to travel to distant courts.

The Warrant of Habitability Act is the product of three legislative battles. Landlords defeated similar bills in the 1975 and 1977 sessions. A state Supreme Court decision this year finally spurred passage by defining habitability so vaguely ("unfit for living") that landlords, rather than tenants, felt threatened.

Still, a tenant could forfeit the new-law rights by signing a rental agreement with a waiver clause, thereby exempting the landlord from performing certain duties.

Such a clause must be in writing, underlined or in bold print, and it must specify what duties the landlord will not perform.

Finally, "such waiver must be made knowingly, voluntarily, and for consideration," Burgess said.

Burgess said tenants groups want a clearer definition of "for consideration." Niemann, speaking for landlords, said it means the tenant "got something for something"—such as lower rent in exchange for a waiver.

Deaths

Digest

More rapes in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The number of reported rapes in Chicago is 20 percent higher than last year, and police have more than doubled the full-time squad assigned to investigate the crimes.

Police statistics show that 950 women reported rapes through Aug. 15, a 20 percent increase over the same period in 1978. Police believe the increase is due to a greater reporting rate, rather than an increase in the number of incidents.

To deal with the increase, police have increased from 14 to 30 the number of officers in the homicide division assigned full-time to investigate rapes.

University library closed

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Falling brick chips from the facade of the 28-story University of Massachusetts library tower have prompted officials to close the building for pedestrian safety.

The closing Friday, recommended by a consulting engineer, will present significant problems at the 24,000-student university, where fall semester classes begin today, said UMass spokesman Rick Shuter.

No one has been hit by the falling chips, a recurring problem since the red brick library tower was completed seven years ago, Shuter said. It was not known how long the library would remain closed.

New London charter flight

MIAMI (AP) — Officials of Laker Airways, famous for its curate transatlantic "norrills" flights, say Sir Freddie Laker plans to begin charter service between Miami and London next spring.

Only National Airlines and British Airways currently operate between London and Miami. If given Civil Aeronautics Board approval, Laker Airways would begin one roundtrip DC-10 flight daily by mid-April, a spokesman said Tuesday.

The flights will be conducted through Intersun, a large British charter service, said Don Coppinger, Laker's U.S. sales manager. Under a U.S.-British agreement, only one airline from each country can have regular flights between the two cities, he said.

Relatives have it easier

BOSTON (AP) — Relatives of legal aliens will have an easier time becoming a United States resident under a new, one-step program announced by immigration officials in Boston.

Currently the process takes six months or more. But the program, part of a Carter Administration effort to cut red tape, will reduce the process to 60 days or less, Charles Pappas, spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Boston said Tuesday.

The program will allow a foreign visitor to be interviewed immediately, instead of waiting for two scheduled interviews, sometimes months apart. It applies to immediate relatives of aliens who have been granted permanent resident status.

MISSING DIVER—As an artist watches a unidentified 29-year-old Herndon, Va. man dives 25 feet into the Potomac River at Great Falls, Va. Monday. A U.S. Park Police spokesman said that there was no indication that the man intended to commit suicide and that currents in the river has made it difficult to search for the body. The photo was made by a photographer who was taking a scenic shot of the river when he caught the incident on film.

A gift from the weather

Mountain climbers rescued

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — A disc jockey who climbed Mount Rainier for charity and his two guides got a gift from the weather after being stranded on the storm-bound peak for three days.

A helicopter low on fuel found a hole in the clouds, swept through to the 14,410-foot summit and picked up the three men Tuesday.

Terry MacDonald, 31, of KYYX-FM radio in Seattle, and his guides, Dave Bishop and Rob Newsome of the North Cascades Alpine School in Bellingham, were described as in good condition and elated, though tired.

Until the last moment, the rescue operation was "extremely hazardous and uncertain," said Larry Henderson, Mount Rainier National Park spokesman. Because of the long ascent to the summit and a prolonged search, the aircraft was running short on fuel.

As it hovered, the three climbers, blinded by swirling snow, had to grope their way toward the roar of the rotor blades.

The copter made it to the men shortly after 9 a.m. after being turned back by fog and wind at about daybreak, Henderson said.

The trio began their mountain climb as part of a muscular dystrophy fundraising event one week ago and MacDonald was filing regular radio reports to his station.

They became stranded over the weekend after an accumulation of eight feet of snow destroyed their tent and forced them to take refuge in sleeping bags nestled in a crevasse.

The charity climb netted pledges of about $27,000, said KYYX general manager Bob Bingham.

Texans singing same tune, Stenholm says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The August work period allowed congressmen the most time to spend in their districts since the session started in January.

"I guess the two major areas (of concern) are clearly inflation and energy," Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, said he learned in his district that stretches from Bryan to Dallas. "They're tired of all the government pep talks; they're tired about discussions of programs and they want to see positive results."

Rep. Tom Loeffler traveled through his sprawling San Antonio to the Big Bend district and found energy and leadership at the top of the residents' list of worries.

"There is basic concern with the lack of leadership coming out of the White House," the Republican from Hunt said. "I see now a greater frustration with Washington than I saw even at the end of the campaign in '78."

Loeffler said his constituents were willing to do whatever is necessary to combat national woes.

"They're willing to bite the bullet in all areas—to do their thing on the energy crisis; to conserve," he said. "The people certainly have confidence in themselves."

Rep. Charles Stenholm said his constituents in West Texas gave him the same message during his campaign last year when they said an overgrown government was the culprit.

"I didn't denote any change in ideas or thoughts or philosophies expressed," the Democrat from Stamford said.

Congressmen said their constituents also are worried about the national leadership.

President Carter might be in low esteem, but Congress needs to remember polls show the public thinks even less of it, Stenholm said.

Rep. Jim Collins said his constituents placed the blame for energy problems squarely on the White House.

"The subject that keeps cropping up in Texas is Carter, who is about as popular as the plague," the Dallas Republican said. "They blame it all on Carter. They don't think Carter has a

Weather Typical late-summer weather continues

By The Associated Press

Typical late-summer weather continued in Texas today, with a few scattered thundershowers peppering the Panhandle, West Texas and the upper Gulf Coast before dawn.

However, Dalhart was the only reporting station with rainfall amounts of any significance, and the collection there was but .03 inch.

As the sun rose, the only precipitation reports indicated very light drizzle in San Antonio and brief showers along the lower Texas Gulf Coast.

Skies generally were clear early today, except for South and Southwest Texas which were partly cloudy, and East Texas which reported the buildup of some light, patchy fog in places.

Forecasters said Texas skies were to remain fair in the north and west, partly cloudy in the south today, with scattered evening thundershowers over North, South and extreme West Texas, and in the Panhandle late tonight.

High temperatures today were expected to hit the upper 80s to 90s in most sections, with triple-digit readings predicted along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend.

Japanese throw down the gauntlet

The Japanese didn't get where they are by being stupid. The Japanese have some of their best minds at work, trying to find ways of reducing their dependency on imported oil.

The island republic has a far greater need for fuel than does the United States. Whereas our country has a lot of domestic oil and abundant coal, Japan is one of the most energy-poor of the industrial nations.

CONSIDER THE plight of the Japanese: They have virtually no oil of their own, yet deprive three-fourths of their energy from oil.

Last year, they imported about $24 billion dollars worth, 99.7 percent of all the oil they used. That makes for keen reaction to the huge OPEC price increases, which will boost oil imports by an estimated $7 billion this year.

Stories emanating from Japan is that the government is undertaking a massive solar energy program. That is a sensible response to a tough problem, a response that would make sense in our country even through our fossil fuel resources are still very considerable.

Tokyo's focus, for the present, is mainly on the use of solar energy to heat and cool living quarters and provide their hot water. The country is starting almost from scratch — there are only about 3,000 solar-energy homes in all of Japan.

THE GOVERNMENT plans a great leap, and has said that by the mid-1980s a million such homes will have been constructed.

Achievement of this goal is far from assured. Various pitfalls lie in the path of any such ambitious program. Among them, in this case, are the problems of devising and maintaining solar installations that make economic sense.

Thus far, experience has not been encouraging on this score. The Japanese are to be applauded, though, for throwing down the gauntlet to the OPEC. In this, they are setting an example for all countries, including our own, which increasingly feel the energy crunch.

Departure of Lyudmila

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Are we the dumbest people in the world? It is inconceivable that there aren't millions who reached that conclusion on hearing from the executive director of the American tour organized for the Bolshoi Ballet that she viewed with "great regret" the defection of Godunov. It is impossible to understand this as meaning anything less than that we view with great regret any decision by an important Russian figure to choose freedom. The strangest things embarrass the United States. If the entire presidium of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics were tomorrow to announce the renunciation of imperialism, autonomy for the Soviet states and unilateral disarmament, one has the feeling that our leaders would huddle in the situation room in utter panic at an event so...dis-equilibrating, is perhaps the word Jody Powell would vouchsafe us.

THEN THERE WAS the episode involving Lyudmila Vlasova, the wife of Godunov. At least U.S. Immigration, no doubt on the authority of the White House itself, refused to permit her airplane to depart right away. But consider the circumstances. Over a period of 72 hours, Madame Vlasova was detained, by force, by Russian agents on U.S. soil, and not permitted to consult with U.S. authorities. By the time she was finally exposed to our negotiator, the Russians had had enough time to extract from her virtually any commitment they wanted.

Imagine a United States court of law accepting as valid a plea of guilty or not guilty uttered by an individual who had been held 72 hours incommunicado by authorities who exercised total authority over that person's family and friends? Why did no one in New York, that mecca of civil rights litigators, do the obvious thing? What was the obvious thing?

In 1948, in the month of August, a Soviet school teacher called Madame Kosenkina, attached to the Soviet legation, was visiting with Countess Tolstoy, an American citizen. There Kosenkina confessed her intention of defecting. The Soviet authorities got wind of this and swooped down on Kosenkina and spirited her away to their consulate on 61st Street and Park Avenue, planning to fly her out in the morning to Gulag. The press got wind of it and there was an uproar.

AT DINNER THAT evening, a retiring gentleman named Christopher Emmett much concerned with the plight of captive peoples, dined with a distinguished lawyer, C. Dickerman Williams, and a young businessman, Peter Hoguet. Their thoughts were on Kosenkina and what might be done for her.

In a matter of hours, Williams appeared before Judge Dickstein of the federal district court, Countess Tolstoy at his side, and asked for a writ of habeas corpus in the name of Madame Kosenkina. Now under the law of the United States, any "friend" who appears before a court and alleges with any plausibility that someone is being "wrongfully held in custody" can get such a writ. The ensuing events were dramatic. Hoguet, sitting in hand, took on the role of process server and knocked on the door of the consulate where Kosenkina was detained. He thrust the writ at the consul general, one Lomakin, who declined to accept it — but that declination had no meaning in law.

By this time the crowds had gathered. Kosenkina, locked in a third-floor bedroom, knew no English, but, the radio turned on, she heard repeated mention of name, giving her hope that there were exertions on her behalf. She was emboldened then to make her famous leap out the window, breaking her leg. An ambulance took her to the hospital, rendering moot the writ of habeas corpus, because she was no longer in custody.

"There has to be a solution to this bloody problem and we must find it before the next millennium!"

Distant cousins want to marry

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I recently met a very nice young man at college and would like to marry him. Much to our surprise we found out our grandmothers (on our mothers' side) are first cousins. As far as we know there are no special diseases or defects in either of our families, but some say we should never marry because of a weakness that might be in our families' genes. Others say grandmothers are too distant to have their genes show up in the bloodstream of our children. We both love children, so we need an answer on this. — M.O.

This is the type of question that cannot be answered from current medical knowledge. Close relatives who have offspring do increase the chances of passing on bad as well as good genes of the family. Since there is no hemophilia, inherited anemias, or other hereditary diseases in your family tree you have some assurance that your children would not have those problems. If there are both boys and girls in the ancestry, any of the so-called sex-linked problems would have appeared in them, so there is some further assurance there, too.

Apparently no diseases of these kinds have appeared in the offspring on your grandmothers' sides. They are more closely related to each other than you are to your fiancé. On this basis it's possible for you to marry someone else with worse genes than his or yours. However, recessive genes can be present in any family ancestry and not be transmitted for generations.

Intermarriage was a much greater concern hundreds of years ago when people in small communities rarely traveled more than a few miles from where they were born. Transportation, from the bicycle, the automobile and jet travel, has lessened such concerns as whole families are uprooted and replanted in communities far away from their original family trees.

Genetic counseling is available in most large city hospital complexes. You can get a detailed assessment of your specific situation there.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am very frightened and upset. I made a meal of and, not realizing it, I sprayed the pan with Easy Off oven cleaner instead of a cooking spray. Is there anything to be concerned about? — G.R.

If there were no immediate effects there is no reason for concern about the future. The heat of the oven, the small amount of the cleaner and the protein in the meat all help to neutralize the harmful materials. But don't, for heaven's sake, take this as an endorsement for using oven cleaners for meatloafs or anything else. They contain harmful ingredients. Try not to substitute Bon Ami for baking soda. Keep your harmful substances separated from your cooking materials. I wonder what the dinner-table comments were about "spiced up" meatloaf.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have gout and have been taking Zylprim and Colbenemid for six years. Can this raise my blood sugar level? — P.E.

A number of drugs may elevate blood sugar, but the two you are taking won't. The chief ones that will are cortisone, thiazide diuretics (water pills), synthetic estrogens (as in birth control pills), and nicotinic acid (niacin) in large doses. Other less common causes of blood sugar rises are Adrenalin (epinephrine); Dilantin (phenytoin); LSD; and psysostigmine, a drug used to counteract drug poisoning.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 78 years old, 6 feet tall and weigh 170 pounds. I am told by a urologist that my prostate is crooked. He wants to watch it and asked me to come back in eight months. He said it might lead to cancer. I generally go all night without having to get up to urinate. If I do, it's only once in a night. I was wondering why a crooked prostate might lead to cancer. — C.A.N.

By the term "crooked prostate" your doctor means there is some irregularity of the surface. When the doctor examines the prostate with his finger he usually feels a smooth surface. Any irregularity, especially a hard lump, would make him suspicious of cancer. In further examinations your doctor will be able to note any new changes and tell whether treatment is necessary.

Troubled with gout? To learn about new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Editor: I am a sophomore at B.S.H.S. I'm very concerned about school spirit at my alma mater. It appears that there will not be a pep squad this year due to lack of interest by the girls of the student body.

I am very disappointed, because I was a member of the pep squad and I enjoyed it very much; it was fun learning new cheers and meeting new friends. We also had a wonderful leader who did a great job. (Ms. Barron). In my opinion, pep squads add more charisma to our spirit. But getting back to the heart of the subject, since we are starting a new year, let's get some spirit rolling! This, of course, can be done with the help of the students at BSHS and their parents. (We really need everyone's support).

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What did Jesus mean when He said, "Whoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die?" Does this mean that if we really had enough faith we would not experience death? — F.R.

DEAR F.R.: No, that is not what Jesus meant. What He meant is that death no longer is an enemy to be feared if you are a believer in Christ. The reason is because death, for the believer, is the entrance to eternal life.

The words you quote are found in John 11:26 and are part of a sentence Jesus spoke. It is important to look at the whole sentence: "I am the resurrection and the life. He who believes in me will live, even though he dies; and whoever lives and believes in me will never die" (John 11:25-26, New International Version). Note carefully that the first part of the sentence teaches that we are not exempt from death. But Jesus goes on to say that death does not harm us.

because we will "never die" — we "will live" and have life forever.

This is a precious truth. The Bible tells us that death is an enemy. Death came into the world because of sin, and because we are all sinners we all will some day die. Furthermore, the Bible tells us that we are cut off from God because of our sin, and some day we will die and spend eternity alone, apart from the presence of God. But the Bible also tells us that we do not need to fear death or judgment, because God loves us and sent His Son into the world to take away the sting of death. He died for us on the cross. He took our judgment and our hell upon Himself, because He loves us. By faith and trust in Him we can be saved. We need not fear the future; we know that if we belong to Christ we have a sure hope of heaven.

Have you ever trusted Christ as your Savior and Lord? If not, I urge you to turn to Him in repentance and faith. Then you too can know the joy of facing death not with fear, but with hope and faith.

"He's at the 20, the 10, the 5... TOUCHDOWN!"

Watching the tension-filled Dallas Cowboy and Pittsburgh Steeler football pre-season game a few nights back made me aware of just how anxious I was for the football season to resume again.

In my opinion, unbiased of course, few things compare with professional football. However, nothing compares with the Dallas Cowboys and the welcomed excitement they bring to an ordinary Sunday afternoon.

I feel sorry for the women, or men for that matter, who don't or won't at least try to like pro football.

THE EXCUSE "I don't understand anything that's going on," is just that — an excuse.

It might take all of 5 minutes to learn the basics of this boisterous game.

All you need to know is which team to cheer for (Dallas), what touchdowns, field goals and extra points are; what downs are; and why most men spend more time watching the Cowboy cheerleaders than they do the Cowboy football players.

Another frequently used excuse is "I don't like football because it's boring."

If you're one of these type of persons, you're attention span is zero. If you can sit still long enough, picture this:

It's the final two-minute warning. Dallas trails by one point. Anxiety fills the room. All heads are glued to the television set.

Following a series of uneventful downs, only 37 seconds remain in the game. It's up to quarterback Roger Staubach to utilize his unlimited capabilities and lead Dallas to within field goal range.

He does. Dallas is now at the Pittsburgh 32-yard line.

Only six seconds left. Out comes Dallas Cowboy field goal kicker Rafael Septien. The entire game rests on his shoulders. It is because of his missed extra point earlier in the game that Dallas is on the short end of a 14-13 score.

Tension mounts.

The sports announcer reveals statistics relating to Septien's past conversions from over 40 yards out to the living room fans. The statistics are anything but reassuring.

MOST FANS station their eyes on Septien. Others close them, unable to witness what could be a missed 47-yard field goal attempt and another loss to the highly unlikely (by Dallas fans, anyway) Pittsburgh Steelers.

Those with their eyes shut, however, rely totally on the words of the television sports caster to guide them, step by step, through the outcome.

"The ball is snapped...the kick is up...IT'S GOOD! Dallas has won 16-14!"

If that's boring to you, it would take nothing short of the end of the world to arise your interest. (Then it would be too late.)

Take it from me. I've been watching Dallas since I was in junior high. I know for a fact that most of their games end every bit as exciting as the Dallas and Pittsburgh game did.

Just in case you haven't caught on yet, I'm a devoted Dallas Cowboy fan and Pittsburgh is my least favorite team, to put it mildly.

I hope Super Bowl XIV is a rematch of Super Bowl XIII.

Look out Pittsburgh!

WASHINGTON — Morale at the Federal Maritime Commission is at rock-bottom low two years after Jimmy Carter appointed Richard J. Daschbach as chairman. As one commission official graphically put it, "People are vomiting in the halls."

Naming Daschbach chairman seemed like a good idea at the time for a new president with no clout on Capitol Hill. Daschbach was the former staff counsel of the Senate Merchant Marine and Tourism Subcommittee, and a protégé of Sen. Russell Long, D-La., one of the most powerful men in Congress.

But doubts about the gangly, 42-year-old redbird began bubbling up soon after he took over in August 1977. At first his colleagues thought he was just a bit eccentric.

HE WOULD ASTONISH commission officials by flying a balsawood model airplane or whacking a paddle ball during business meetings. On occasion, shipping executives would show up for appointments and be greeted by their top government regulator sporting a railroad engineer's hat.

Such small-boy antics were unsettling enough. What really disturbed commission officials and industry representatives was Daschbach's apparent intention to make the maritime commission his own personal plaything. Though by law the chairman is supposed to be only first among equals on the five-member commission, numerous agency officials say Daschbach pursues his own plans and policies with little regard for his fellow commissioners, top staff officials or regulations.

They say he insists on supervising the smallest housekeeping details personally, like parking assignments and the library's cancellation of a magazine subscription. One commission source complained that Daschbach "personalizes everything," and interprets any opposition as a sign of disloyalty.

"He sees the other commissioners as an interference to what he wants to do," a high-level agency official told our associate Peter Grant. Policy decisions require the involvement of the other four commissioners, but Daschbach has used the chairman's authority over hiring and firing, travel and other administrative matters, to ramrod his policies through the commission, sources say.

His exercise of staffing power is arbitrary and vindictive, sources told us. He reportedly has told subordinates, in apparent jest, that "you might not be here next year." According to internal memos, he has criticized staff members behind their backs, only to deny the remarks when confronted by the aggrieved parties. Top officials told us they fear that their telephones are tapped and their desks are rifled.

Their fears are not groundless. Daschbach's close personal adviser, Margaret Pepe, was caught red-handed going through one desk. She was observed by an official who described the incident in an internal memorandum.

Pepe's strange career at the commission has been the source of much bad feeling among agency staffers. She said Daschbach first met a year ago when she applied for a job at the commission. Then 27 and fresh out of law school, Pepe was hired by Daschbach as a $16,000-a-year law clerk in the general counsel's office — against the advice of the general counsel.

Pepe didn't stay long in that relatively humble post. She complained to Daschbach that her work wasn't challenging enough, and nine months after landing her first post-graduation job, she was named Daschbach's $27,000-a-year "adviser."

PEPE'S RAPID rise, and the major role she assumed in running the commission, infuriated other agency employees who considered it flagrant favoritism. Daschbach and Pepe frequently worked late at the agency. Though there is no evidence of any personal impropriety in their relationship — Pepe is married and a mother — Pepe admitted to us that her ties to the chairman were "more than professional," like a father-daughter relationship.

Pepe's meteoric career burned out as abruptly as it started. A few weeks ago she was unceremoniously asked to resign by Daschbach, just days after an Office of Personnel Management investigator began looking into charges that she had received "special preference."

Daschbach denies any connection between the resignation and the OFM investigation. He told us Pepe wanted to go back to Harrisburg, Pa. Pepe, however, said that she hopes to work in Washington.

Daschbach also denies there are any morale problems at the maritime agency. He says his relations with the other commissioners are "fantastic," and any unhappiness among the staff is because he works them harder.

SYNFUEL WINDFALL: The billions of dollars earmarked for Jimmy Carter's synthetic fuel development program will go mainly to banks, insurance companies, engineering firms and equipment manufacturers, according to a secret White House memorandum.

The memo was prepared by the Department of Energy for use by White House aide Anne Wexler in her briefings of industry and labor representatives on the energy program. It has been kept secret because it names the companies that stand to profit most from the synfuel program.

Among the firms named in the memo are manufacturers of mining and earth-moving equipment, like Caterpillar, Bucyrus-Erie and Joy Manufacturing, and such engineering giants as Bechtel and Kaiser Engineers, "who will be called upon to manage the construction of the large synfuels projects."

Others that will benefit include bankers, raw materials suppliers and the transport industry, the memo says.

Storms that have changed the course of history

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mangled bodies, smashed homes and ruined crops are the products of Hurricane David, now clawing at the Atlantic Coast. But it is only the latest chapter in a chronicle of violent storms that have altered American history.

The United States has been relatively lucky so far this year, but in the past the tragedy visited on the Dominican Republic by David has been equaled or eclipsed in this country.

The worst occurred on Sept. 9, 1900, when waters from the Gulf of Mexico, driven by a hurricane, swept over the city of Galveston, Texas, taking an estimated 6,000 lives.

That storm reduced Galveston to "a city of wrecked homes and streets choked with debris sandwiched with six thousand corpses, a city...with the slime of the ocean on every spot and in every house," according to Clarence Osley of the Galveston Tribune.

The hurricane that swept away much of that gracious southern city, like David and others, originated over the Atlantic, swept through the Caribbean then, unlike David, turned west to Texas instead of north.

That doesn't mean Florida is immune from the deadly storms, as 1928 was to show.

That year an early September hurricane swept out of the Atlantic, turned north and crashed into Florida northwest of Palm Beach.

The National Weather Service says 1,836 Americans died in the Lake Okechobee hurricane as it was christened in the days before such storms were given the names of women and men — and throughout the Caribbean the death toll has been estimated as high as 5,000.

A decade later, New England lost 600 lives as a hurricane swept north. Other hurricanes have taken a heavy toll throughout the eastern United States.

Indeed, Don Sarreals, a weather service meteorologist in Washington, expressed fear Tuesday that residents of the Appalachian mountains may not be sufficiently wary of David.

While coastal residents have heeded warnings and taken shelter, he said, David will also bring heavy rains and possible flash flooding along the Appalachian chain and a severe hazard may exist there.

The effects of hurricanes, nature's greatest storms, have reached beyond their immediate tragedy in the past.

For example, a hurricane in 1766 crushed the farms on the Caribbean island of Martinique, ruining the once-wealthy planter Joseph-Gaspard Tascher. His daughter returned to France to seek her fortune and met and married an ambitious young military officer.

So a hurricane led one young woman to leave colonial life and become Empress Josephine, wife of Napoleon Bonaparte.

It was also a hurricane that brought Alexander Hamilton into history. His description of such a storm in a letter to his father so impressed local planters in the Caribbean that they collected money to send the young man to America for an education.

And in the late 1770s and early 1780s a series of storms devastated British warships operating along the coast of the rebellious colonies. Some historians have suggested the final British surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown was in part due to British navy's reluctance to engage the French fleet off Yorktown during the fall hurricane season.

It was a hurricane in 1837 that led Congress to pass a law requiring that passenger ships carry a life preserver for each person aboard. A storm had demolished the steamer Home off Cape Hatteras, and there were only two life preservers aboard. Ninety persons died.

At least one other case of benefit can be traced to the tragedy of a hurricane: a storm that kept the United States out of a war.

In 1888, Germany was trying to establish a protectorate over Samoa in the Pacific and in the fighting some American property was damaged.

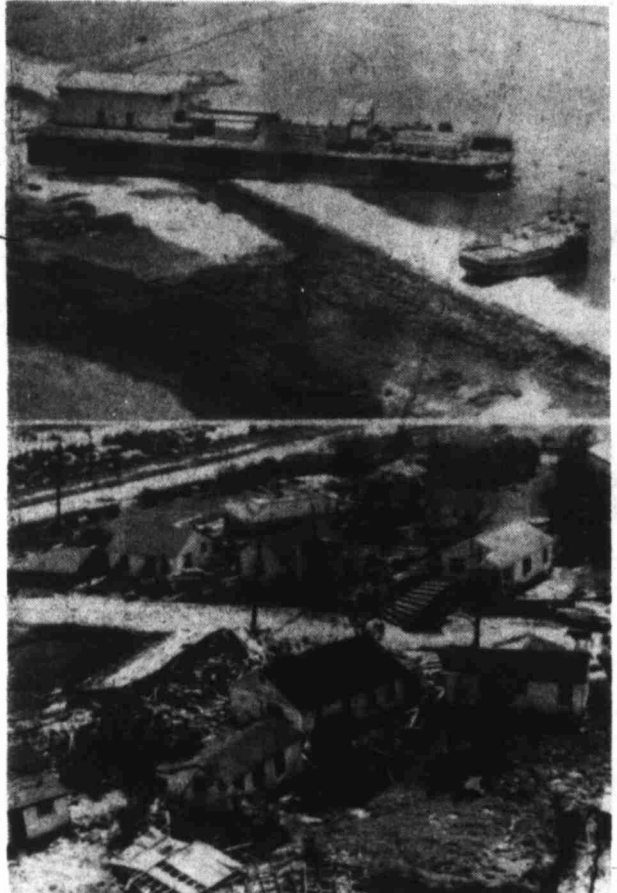

American warships sped to the scene and battle fleets from the two nations faced each other over loaded guns when a savage hurricane swept down upon them.

Ships were sunk, wrecked or driven aground and more than 150 sailors died. But in the face of the tragedy, the survivors from both nations struggled to help one another and the differences were resolved. A treaty settled matters without gunfire.

In that area of the Pacific, incidentally, the storms are called hurricanes, as they are in the United States. In the Western Pacific, however, they are called typhoons, and in Australia they are known as willy-willies.

Adult basic education at HC keyed to demand

The Howard College Adult Education Co-Op will be offering classes in G.E.D. preparation, adult basic education, and English as a Second Language in the Big Spring area early this fall if demand for the classes are shown. Classes are free to persons at least 17-years-old who do not have a high school diploma or G.E.D. certificate. Persons with a high school diploma may qualify if they are working at a lower level than the twelfth grade.

All materials are prescribed on individual needs. Each student is encouraged to work at his or her own speed and progress as rapidly as his or her own abilities will allow.

The major objectives of adult education are to provide basic reading, writing, speaking, and math skills, and general knowledge through the eighth grade level or preparation for a desirable job. Adult education's goal is to help prepare the student for competitive and successful results in the G.E.D. test and enable the student to meet life skills.

A person who successfully completes their G.E.D. or high school diploma equivalent will have the opportunity to participate in traditional G.E.D. graduation ceremonies in October or May at Howard College in Big Spring.

Students who have made significant progress during the semester will also be recognized during the graduation ceremonies. G.E.D. graduate class rings are now available to students for purchase at the Howard College Bookstore.

Classes will be held at Howard College on Sept. 11 Tuesday and Thursday 6:00-9:00 p.m. Monday-Friday 8:00-12:00, Monday-Thursday 8:00-3:00.

If you do not have your high school diploma, or lack desirable skills in reading or writing, or have a desire to improve your English-speaking ability, call 267-6311 ext. 70 for more information.

226,000 firms, individuals paid $2.5 billion by state

AUSTIN — Private business laid state employees in the shade when it came to taking home state money this year, State Comptroller Bob Bullock reported recently.

"Private businesses got nearly every third dollar we spent," Bullock said as the state closed its books on this budget year.

Bullock said 226,000 private firms and individuals were paid $2.5 billion for goods and services they sold the state — "everything from lead pencils to trucks."

He said that 170,000 state employees took home a total of $1.9 billion in salary and benefits or almost 10 percent less than was paid to businesses.

"These hard dollar figures just don't bear out any idea that state employees are our biggest expense," Bullock said.

In other state spending, grants to other levels of government — mostly school districts — accounted for $3.2 billion or 37 percent of the $8.6 billion budget.

Bullock said that "we don't know how much of this total money was spent in the private sector and how much went to salaries."

Confederate and Ranger pensions, Social Security payments, insurance company premiums, welfare and retirement payments amounted to nearly $900 million or 11 percent of the budget.

Bullock said that a detailed accounting of the budget for the year will be issued shortly.

Two women were slightly injured when their automobile skidded and crashed during a rainstorm Monday.

A Red Cross ambulance picked them up, skidded and also crashed, injuring a Red Cross volunteer.

A police helicopter rushed to the scene, picked up the three victims, got caught in a 35 mph downdraft and also crashed. The pilot was not injured.

A police official identified the injured as the driver of the car, Zelma Meyer Chined, 72; her 23-year-old maid; and Red Cross volunteer Celso Garcia Lopez, 20.

Gasoline prices to speed up switch

Switch to metric slow

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The United States is still crawling along the road to the metric system, but the soaring price of gasoline may speed up the switch.

Authorities say it is easier and cheaper to convert fuel pumps to liters than it is to adjust them to register prices of more than $1 a gallon.

Bill DeReuter, a spokesman for the U.S. Metric Board, said a growing number of service station operators — particularly independents — are starting to sell gasoline by the liter. DeReuter said that $100 million could be saved by converting to liters instead of changing price-recording mechanisms.

It has been almost four years since the passage of the Metric Conversion Act, designed to encourage Americans to voluntarily adopt the measuring system used by most of the rest of the world.

Thus far, however, there have been few changes for the average consumer. The Metric Board itself did not get completely organized until last year; a proposal to convert road signs from miles to kilometers was abandoned because of negative comments.

In a report late last year, the General Accounting Office said that the alcoholic beverage industry had done more to convert than anyone else. But the GAO also said: "Most wines and distilled spirits that were converted to metric sizes experienced unit price increases greater than those that did not convert."

Supporters of the switch to metrics concede that there has been strong public opposition to abandoning the traditional system of feet and inches, pounds and ounces. But they also say that a lot of the ill-will is due to unfamiliarity and a lack of understanding.

"The 'anti-' feeling will disappear," said DeReuter, noting that virtually every state has some kind of metric education program for youngsters.

The non-profit American National Metric Council, including businesses and trade and technical organizations, also is trying to ease confusion.

The council has prepared a Metric Consumer Information Kit, including a wallet-size conversion card and two pamphlets, "The Metric System Day-to-Day" and "A Metric Reference for Consumers." There is a $1.30 charge to cover postage and handling. It is available from: MCIK-ANMC, 1625 Massachusetts Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036. Enclose a self-addressed label with your order.

The U.S. Metric Association, a volunteer, non-profit group in Boulder, Colo., which has been promoting the use of the metric system for more than 50 years, says the easiest way to learn the new measurements is to forget the old ones. Don't try to convert back and forth. Find a familiar object that is about the size of the metric measurement you want to learn. A millimeter, for example, is about the thickness of a dime. Whenever you hear or see the word millimeter, think of a dime. In a short while, you'll find yourself thinking metric.

Sew and Chatter Club holds annual picnic

The Sew and Chatter Club held their Annual Picnic Aug. 31, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Porter. Husbands of members were guests.

The birthdays of Mrs. Lewis Murdock and Mrs. Ruby Rowe were celebrated. Mrs. Porter presided at the business meeting.

It was voted to give donations to the Bible Fund, the Salvation Army, and the Christmas Cheer Fund. Donations have already been given this year to the YMCA, Arthritis Foundation, March of Dimes and Muscular Dystrophy Foundation. Cookies are taken twice a year to the Big Spring State Hospital.

New officers for 1979-1980 were elected including Mrs. Bill McIlvain, president; Mrs. Ervin Daniel, vice president; Mrs. S.R. Nobles, treasurer; Mrs. Lee Porter, secretary-reporter; Mrs. H.V. Crocker, project chairman; Twila Lomax, card chairman; Mrs. A.C. Moore, scrapbook chairman and Mrs. Manley Cook yearbook chairman.

The next meeting will be Sept. 12 with Mrs. Lawrence Robinson.

Abby's Informed — And Reformed

DEAR ABBY: You stated in your column that in order for a man to convert to Judaism without circumcision he should find a "reformed" Rabbi.

Abby, correction, please. We are not "reformed" rabbis. We are known as "Reform Rabbis". We in no way had to be reformed. OK?

RABBI YAVITZ IN L.A.

DEAR RABBI: OK. Oy veh! I stand corrected, which makes me a reformed columnist.

DEAR ABBY: I will try to make this short, but I have so much to tell that I could write a book.

I've been married 11 years. We have three wonderful kids. My husband has beaten me several times. Sometimes I had it coming, but most of the time I didn't.

The first time, he blacked my eyes and busted my jaw, which kept me home from work. I got out a warrant for his arrest, so he quit messing up my face. Then he started in on my stomach and breasts where the bruises wouldn't show.

Once he twisted my arm so hard that he broke it.

Finally, I filed for divorce. Then you never saw a sweeter guy. He begged and pleaded and laid his paycheck at my feet, so I took him back. He was so nice I was beginning to love him all over again.

Two weeks later he was accusing me of seeing other men. He pulled me all over the house by my hair trying to get me to confess. I had nothing to confess, but I yelled so loud the neighbors called the police, and now he's in the slammer again.

Should I let him rot there? His people tell me that my kids need a father, that Jesus forgave seven times seven and all that jazz, but I can't take any more of this. What should I do?

HAD IT IN DALLAS

DEAR HAD IT: Your children may need a father, but they also need a living mother. If there is no hotline for battered wives, call your Family Service Association and ask where a battered wife and her children can get shelter and counseling. And please write again and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is between my husband (I'll call him Harold) and my father. Harold is 29 and Dad is 70. Six weeks ago they got into a heated argument over politics. A lot of angry words were exchanged and Dad told Harold never to set foot in his house again. I'm sure Dad didn't mean it, but he's too proud to apologize.

Dad is very bull-headed, and I can't see him calling Harold. Harold is very stubborn, and he won't make the first move either.

My mother and I are both heartsick over this but we don't know how to get the two of them together. Any suggestions?

ME AND MOM

DEAR ME: Tell Harold that out of respect for your father's age, the younger man should give in.

And ask your mother to keep working on your father, telling him that since HE told Harold never to set foot in his house again it's up to HIM to tell him he didn't mean it. And may the bigger man extend his hand first.

Dr. Wallace: I am 16 and my mother introduced me to Glenda who is 24. I care very much for her and I know she likes me. The problem is Glenda is afraid that if we are seen in public that people will laugh because of our age difference, but I read somewhere that the woman should be older by eight years because women live that much longer than men.

I don't get along with girls my own age because I am mentally ahead of them.

Can you offer any help? — Bryan, Elizabethtown, Ky.

Bryan: It's true that women outlive men and I see nothing wrong with men dating older women, but wait until you are a man.

There surely must be a girl or two in your school who can challenge your mentality. You should be smart enough to find one, but don't ask for Mother's help!

stay home and clean the house while my sister got to go to the hospital to pick up my mom with my dad and my grandma. When they got home, my sister was carrying my new baby sister and she wouldn't let me see or hold her.

I can't ever go anywhere by myself without my sister tagging along. I've talked to my mom and she is sympathetic, but that's all. Help. — Nancy, Michigan City, Ind.

Nancy: Usually the oldest child is given the most responsibility when it comes to helping out. Add this to the fact that younger sisters enjoy copying older sisters and you have your situation.

It's nice to know that as you both grow older, your sister will be given new responsibility and she will develop her own friends.

I know it doesn't seem fair, but just have patience. It will only get better.

give me a little freedom.

My parents never allow me to socialize and meet new people. I'm always in my room or baby-sitting my brother and sister.

Please tell me how I can get my parents to bend a little. I've tried talking to them but to no avail. — Cleo, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Cleo: The next time a friend's mother is driving to the beach or chaperoning a party, have the mother call your parents and invite you. If your parents are ever going to allow you to socialize in the near future, this phone call should get your parents bending a little bit.

Koosman's 18th win keeps Twins in torrid AL West race

By The Associated Press

Veteran Jerry Koosman didn't feel too good warming up prior to the game. The Kansas City Royals didn't feel good at all afterwards.

"It's funny, when I warmed up I was wild and my rhythm was really off," Koosman said Tuesday night. "I told outfielder Glenn Adams when I got to the dugout that this was the worst I've felt in a long time."

"But I just started concentrating, and after the last hitter in the third inning, I found my fast ball and things fell into place after that."

Koosman gave up only two hits as he hurled the Minnesota Twins to a 5-1 victory over the Royals and raised his record to 18-11.

Indians nip Tigers

Bobby Bonds chased home four runs with a home run and a single and Sid Monge hurled 21-3 innings of scoreless relief to lead Cleveland to its victory and hand Detroit its fifth straight loss.

Bonds slammed a three-run homer in the first inning, then increased the Indians' lead to 5-0 in the second when he singled home Mike Hargrove.

Error propels Yankees

Willie Randolph raced home from second on an error by Boston second baseman Ted Sizemore to give New York its victory over the Red Sox.

With Randolph on second and Oscar Gamble on first, Reggie Jackson sliced a grounder to shortstop Rick Burleson. Burleson threw to Sizemore at second, forcing Gamble, but Sizemore's relay to first was in the dirt and Randolph streaked home when first baseman Bob Watson couldn't come up with the ball.

Chris Chambliss slammed a two-run homer for the Yankees and Butch Hobson had a solo shot for Boston.

Expos explode past Mets

Montreal broke a scoreless game with three runs in the fifth inning on Larry Parrish's double, Chris Speier's single and Dave Cash's sacrifice fly. Rusty Staub added a two-run pinch single in the seventh while Rudy May, Dale Murray and Bill Atkinson held the Mets to six hits.

"The atmosphere here is fantastic," said Atkinson, who was recalled from the minors last week and recorded his first victory Monday and his first save Tuesday. "Everybody here is just one big family. Everybody wants to win and is going after it. It makes you feel good and it's great to be a part of it."

Bell, Comer lead Rangers

Buddy Bell drove in three runs with two singles as Texas downed Seattle. Bell ripped a two-run single in the first inning and added a run-scoring hit in the seventh to back Ranger right-hander Steve Comer, 14-10.

Comer scattered four hits, including Willie Horton's two-run triple in the fifth. He retired the final 13 Mariners in a row after Horton's triple. The right hander struck out three and walked three in notching his fifth complete game.

Cardinals stayin' alive

The St. Louis Cardinals, winners of five games in a row and 14 of their last 17, have a chance to horn in on what seems to be a two-way scrap between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Montreal Expos. They open a two-game series with the Pirates in St. Louis tonight, trailing by seven games — six in the loss column — following Tuesday's 6-4 victory over the reeling Chicago Cubs.

White Sox outscore Angels

Greg Pryor's run-scoring single in the eighth inning snapped a 7-7 tie and Chet Lemon added a two-run homer in the ninth to give Chicago its victory over California.

Lemon's 17th homer of the season came with Mike Squires on base.

Frank Tanana, making his first appearance since tendinitis in his left shoulder forced him out of a June 10th start against Detroit, pitched the first four innings for California. He gave up six hits, one walk and two runs while striking out two.

Tanana left the game with a 7-2 lead but Chicago got to reliever Don Aase for five runs in the sixth inning to tie the score.

Astros topple Dodgers

Resume lead in NL West

Luis Pujols, just recalled from the minors last week, led a 16-hit attack with a double, triple and two RBIs as Houston moved back into first place in the NL West. The Astros, who hadn't scored nine runs since May 26, erupted for four runs on five consecutive hits — four singles and Pujols' triple — in the third inning.

Giants snap losing streak

Rob Andrews' tie-breaking two-run single in the seventh inning enabled San Francisco to snap a five-game losing streak. John Curtis allowed four hits, struck out eight and retired 16 batters in a row at one stretch before needing relief following a leadoff single in the bottom of the ninth.

Horner leads Braves by Reds

Bob Horner keyed a three-run seventh inning with a two-run double as the Braves broke a five-game losing streak. Atlanta trailed by a run when Eddie Miller and Gary Matthews opened the seventh with singles against Doug Bair and Horner doubled them home.

CHRISSE SLAMS — Chrissie Evert Lloyd returns a shot against Sherry Acker in the US Open yesterday. Evert dropped her first set in over four years in the Open, but then rallied for a 4-6, 6-0, 6-2 victory. Lloyd will now meet fifth seeded Evonne Goolagong Cawley today. In other quarterfinal action, Tracie Austin meets Sylvia Hanika and Martina Navratilova faces Kerry Reid.

Connors, Lloyd advance in US Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert Lloyd advanced to the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

Connors, the defending champion, defeated 11th seeded Brian Gottfried 6-2, 1-6, 6-4, 7-5 while Lloyd, the defending women's chamption, came from behind to defeat Sherry Acker 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

In other matches, Roscoe Tanner defeated Tim Gullikson 6-3, 6-4, 7-5; Pat DuPre upset seventh seeded Harold Solomon 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, and third seeded John McEnroe topped unseeded

Tom Gorman 6-2, 6-4, 6-1.

In other women's matches, Tracy Austin outlasted Kathy Jordan 4-6, 6-1, 7-6; Sylvia Hanika of West Germany surprised Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, and Australian Kerry Reid edged Anne Smith 4-6, 7-5, 7-6.

Mota, McGregor weekly honorees

NEW YORK (AP) — Manny Mota of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Scott McGregor of the Baltimore Orioles were named players of the week for their respective leagues.

Mota, 41, set an all-time major league record for career pinch hits when he connected with number 145 against the Chicago Cubs. It was his 13th pinch hit of the season and broke the record held by Smoky Burgess.

McGregor pitched two complete game victories over the Minnesota Twins, allowing only one earned run over that span. He is 8-1 since the All-Star break.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGNER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's Full Moon brings considerable activity in many areas but is best where sudden, surprising opportunities arise. Do nothing that is not worthwhile. Accept changes taking place by accepting new conditions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Stop worrying about what you can do little about and make your life more interesting by meeting new personalities and getting into new activities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good friend could be of assistance in gaining a special aim you have. Rising above disappointment is easy now. Relax and rest tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use your intellect and improve home condition and the position you have within your community. Show that you are alert to everything around you. Take no risks with reputation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) adopt more worthwhile principles so that your life becomes more ideal, happy and prosperous. Do something kind for friends and gain their goodwill.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find the best method for handling monetary and property matters. Add to present assets. Take no risks in driving.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Concentrate on how to best gain personal aims and follow through with best ideas. Join with congenial persons and have a good time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with experts and gain the expertise you need to make your work more efficient and profitable. Be more understanding of kin.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to improve the relationship between your mate and close ties. Perfect some talent you possess that will give you added prestige.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 11 to Dec. 21) Bring your finest talents to the attention of higher-ups you know and gain their support. Get involved in community work that could help you succeed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Off to new places early and meet those who can help to make your future brighter and more enviable. You get ideas from the most unexpected sources. Follow the best of these.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) With the Full Moon you are now able to handle responsibilities well. Make sure your activity with loved ones is in the right direction.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contact the right associates for any plan you have in mind, whether of a personal or a business nature. Show you get along well with everyone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will benefit right ahead at work needed for any project. Give the benefit of healthful sports to build up the body. Some musical talent here, also, that should be trained.

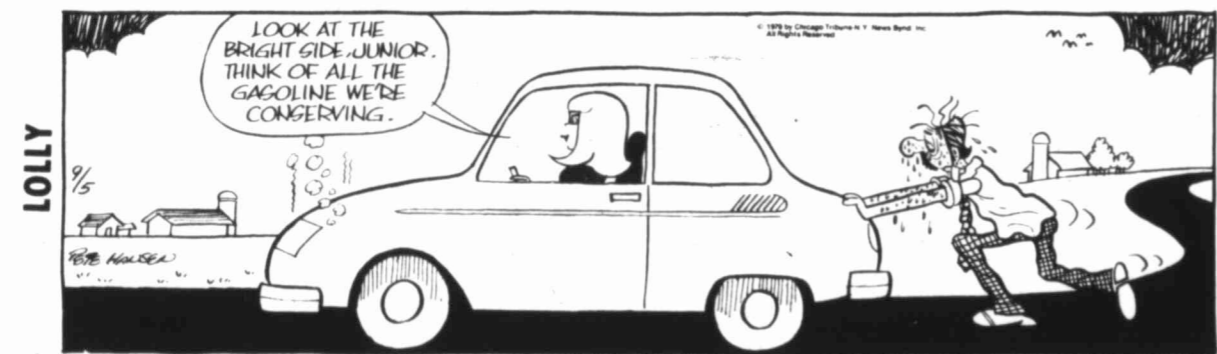

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Tourist business owners line up for SBA loans

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) - When Mexican crude oil began hitting South Texas beaches last month, it stopped Keith Stephens' business in its tracks.

Stephens leases four-wheel drive and recreational vehicles to tourists eager for a spin on the sand beyond where a paved road ends.

City, state and federal rules allow automobiles along only a narrow strip of sand near the water's edge, the same slender path stained by the heaviest coating of messy brown oil.

"When the oil got there we were out of business," he said Tuesday while waiting to see a Small Business Administration official about a low-interest loan.

The four-wheel drive vehicles could not travel easily on heavily oiled sand. "Our business went down almost 100 percent," he said.

Stephens estimates peak daily revenues declined from between $1,500 to $600.

He was one of about 65 merchants who applied for the 7 1/2 percent interest loans Tuesday at offices in Corpus Christi and Harlingen. The money was made available last week after seven Texas counties were declared oil spill disaster areas.

The counties were Cameron, Willacy, Kenedy, Kleberg, Nueces, San Patricio and Aransas.

Other offices will be opened Thursday in Aransas Pass and South Padre Island for the hundreds of businesses hard hit by the dramatic slump in tourism after oil spill publicity.

As businessmen began thinking about aid, oil-watchers found a new finger of oil about 80 miles long lurking some 30 miles south of Brownsville. Government scientists speculated the patch formed from loose globules of crude that reformed into a patch because dispersing winds in the area had died down considerably.

On the first day of loan applications Tuesday, a wide variety of merchants sought aid.

Tuna war shifts front to court in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — The tuna war between the United States and Canada has shifted from the waters of British Columbia to a courtroom in Vancouver and the capitals of both nations.

The skippers of 11 American tuna boats seized off the British Columbia coast appeared in court Tuesday and were ordered to stand trial Nov. 20 on charges of illegal fishing and unlawful entry into Canadian waters. No pleas were entered.

Each skipper also was ordered by a provincial court to post $5,000 bond for the release of his vessel.

Canadian patrol vessels have seized 19 American boats during the past 11 days, since the U.S. skippers followed a school of albacore tuna into British Columbia waters.

Canada claims jurisdiction over all fish within 200 miles of its shores, but the United States does not recognize Canada's authority over highly migratory fish, such as tuna. The United States does not restrict albacore fishing beyond 12 miles from its shores.

Meanwhile, in Washington D.C., the U.S. government on Tuesday accused Canada of "exacerbating the conflict" over tuna fishing in the Pacific Northwest and threatened to expand its tuna import ban to other fish from its northern neighbor.

"The tuna import prohibition is now in place," Carter said. "We are going to continue to pursue the matter."

TV newsman arrested

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A raid on an office of the Irish Republican Army's political front netted among others ABC-TV's Paris correspondent Pierre Salinger and a French television crew, according to official sources.

A network spokesman in London said Tuesday following news of the arrests that ABC understood Salinger, former press secretary to President Kennedy, and four crew members could face unspecified charges. "They can be held for 72 hours under special provisions, we understand." The spokesman said the American consul was trying to obtain their release.

Suspended sentence given

ASHVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Joyce McKinney, the ex-beauty queen charged in England last year with kidnapping a young Mormon missionary, received a two-year suspended sentence and a $2,000 fine for using a false name to obtain a passport.

Her co-defendant, Keith May of Los Angeles, received an indefinite suspended sentence and a $2,000 fine. Both pleaded guilty to the same charge and were placed on probation for three years.

May and the former Miss Wyoming-USA jumped bail last year. Her ex-boyfriend, Kirk Anderson, said Miss McKinney abducted him and shackled him to a bed where she forced him to have sex with her. However, the British say they will not request her extradition to face charges in that episode.

Miss McKinney, 29, said she plans to move to Avery, N.C. near her parents and work on her book, "A Very Special Love Affair: The Memoirs of Joyce McKinney."

Rome's mayor resigns

ROME (AP) — Giulio Carlo Argan, citing his age and failing health, has announced his resignation as Rome's first Marxist mayor.

"It's not political, but I am advanced in years and in failing health," the 70-year-old Argan told reporters Tuesday. He said he would submit his resignation to the City Council in the next few days.

Argan, a noted art historian, became mayor three years ago as a candidate of the Communist Party. Argan is known for his Marxist views but is not an official party member.

A staunch Communist Party activist, 47-year-old Luigi Petroselli, is being mentioned as a leading candidate to succeed Argan. The mayor is chosen by city council members.

Robertson named Aggie scholar

COLLEGE STATION — Sammie Dayton Robertson, son of Sam Robertson, P.O. Box 701, Forsan, has been named a President's Scholar at Texas A&M University.

The honor is presented annually to about 60 Texas high school seniors with outstanding scholastic, civic and leadership abilities. The award includes a $6,000, four-year scholarship upon enrollment at Texas A&M.

Students are chosen for the prestigious award at the beginning of their high school senior year to give additional recognition to their exceptional talents.

Recipients are selected by Texas A&M's Scholarships Committee from nominations by Texas high school principals.

The President's Scholar program, started in 1967, is designed to keep Texas' brightest high school graduates in the state for their university educations.

UTPB continues registration

There will be another chance for Big Spring area residents to register for fall courses from UTPB. Registration will be Thursday, 7-9 p.m. at the Horace Garrett Library, Howard College, but a special time can also be arranged by calling 263-UTPB. The last day to register is Sept. 21.

A generous offer has been made by a local citizen. He will pay the tuition for up to 10 people who are eligible to take Management 310 for credit or for auditing. For information, call 263-UTPB or come at the registration date, Thursday night. Offered on the Big Spring campus, Howard College for this fall will be:

Ped 619 Monday 6-9, Methods, Materials and Media in Reading.

Ped 630, Wednesday 6-9, Theories of Curriculum and Instruction.

Ped 667, Tuesday 6-9, Fundamentals of Public School Administration, Marketing 310, Tuesday 6-9, Market Management.

Classes begin in Big Spring next Monday, Sept. 10th. All classes will meet in the Horace Garrett Building, Howard College.

Hearing impaired Texans need financial support too

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The man selected to chair the red vamped Texas Commission for the Deaf says the new commission's first task is to gain the support of hearing impaired Texans.

"I think we can restore the confidence of the deaf community in this commission and continue to increase the quality of services to the deaf people," said Ralph White of Austin.

White, a programs specialist for the Texas Rehabilitation Commission here, Tuesday was elected chairman at the new commission's first meeting. The nine-member panel replaces a six-member commission that was abolished by the last session of the legislature.

The previous commission had drawn the ire of some deaf Texans who claimed it was insensitive to their needs. Only one member of the six-member commission was appointed to the new panel.

While White predicted the commissioners will be able to avoid some of the problems their predecessors faced, he said there was one problem that has not been solved — money.

"It is very negligible to say the most," White, himself deaf, said. "We'll have to spend very carefully."

The chairman agreed with other commissioners who complained that the legislature's $216,000 appropriation for hearing impaired Texans is inadequate.

Stan Neely of Dallas, the only carryover member from the previous commission, said increased appropriations are needed to serve the state's 860,000 citizens with hearing problems — including 120,000 who are legally deaf.

Commission member Gayle Lindsey of Austin, who called herself "one of the troublemakers" who complained about the old commission, said it is unfair that the commission gets only $216,000 while the Texas Commission for the Blind works under a $14 million annual budget.

"There are three times more hearing impaired than blind in Texas. It would make sense that you would triple what the blind commission gets," Mrs. Lindsey said after Tuesday's meeting.

She also said the blind commission benefits from some $10 million in federal funds. The state allocation for the hearing impaired is too low to draw similar federal funds for the Texas Commission for the Deaf, she said.

"The problem is all the other handicaps are visible to people. Deafness is not. The general public does not realize it is the most devastating handicap of all," Mrs. Lindsey said. "Most people think if you hang a hearing aid on a deaf person he walks out and can hear and talk. That's just not so."

Several commission members said the budget will restrict the availability of sign language interpreters.

Howard County Educators Association meets Monday

Members of the Howard County Educators Association will gather in the Cactus Room of the Student Union Building at Howard College at 7 p.m., Monday for a business meeting.

All members of the association are being urged to be in attendance. This is the first of three such meetings planned during the school year.

Eight killed in Houston over weekend

HOUSTON (AP) — Eight people were murdered in Houston during the Labor Day weekend, increasing the city's total for the year to 414, compared with 296 at the same time last year.

Police identified the eight victims, all of Houston, as Lloyd Daniels, 34; Pedro Martinez Diaz, 46; Eddie Leon Moultry, 60; Christopher Davis Smith, 16; Lloyd Lee Scott, 50; Nina L. Yonley, 22; Nathan Hensley, age unknown; and Ebbie Christine Johnson, 57.

Daniels, Diaz and Moultry were shot to death, police said, while Smith and Scott were stabbed.

Ms. Yonley's partially nude body was found in a wooded area near the San Jacinto River in east Harris County. Police said she had been struck on the head with a blunt object.

Officers said Hensley was killed after he got into an argument over back wages with a 43-year-old man, and Ms. Johnson died in an apparent purse snatching incident as she waited for a bus.
