

Hereford Merchants Set Special Sales Days

Fun Breakfast to Launch Crazy Days

If you think the chamber of commerce Fun Breakfasts have been "wild" in the past, you'll sure want to attend the Crazy-Days breakfast set Thursday morning at the Community Center.

The C of C event will launch the "Crazy Days" Sales promotions of Hereford merchants, which includes a contest for the "craziest-dressed" people. The annual Crazy Days Sales are slated Thursday through Saturday at many Hereford stores.

The breakfast, sponsored this month by Plains Insurance Agency, will include the usual cash prizes, fun and games, and the presentation of the Bull Chip Award, according to co-emcees Doug Manning and Lynton Allred. Cash drawings of $75 and $25 will be made, with everyone in attendance eligible to win. A drawing for chamber members only will be for $100, and the member has to be attending the breakfast.

A special award will be made to the business which has the most crazy-dressed employees at the breakfast. C of C executive vice-president Mike Carr reports that another award will be made to a small business in the same category.

All interested persons are invited to attend the breakfast, and invited to dress crazy and compete for a prize. You don't have to dress crazy," announced Carr, and "you don't have to be crazy to attend, but it helps!"

The breakfast gets underway at 6:30 a.m. Thursday in the Community Center, and coffee will start being served as folks get in the breakfast line.

Carr urged all citizens who plan to attend the breakfast to call the chamber office and make reservations. This is necessary to assure that enough food is on hand for the event. Cost for the breakfast is $3.25 a plate.

The Crazy Days Sales promotion is being sponsored by the business committee of the chamber, and Danny Boyer is chairman. He reports that a Tug of War is scheduled in Dameron Park, across the street from the chamber office, Friday at 2 p.m.

Purpose of the contest is to determine which business area has "the most pull." There will be eight teams—four men's and four ladies—From four business areas—Downtown Variety Park, Sugarland Mall, Park Avenue, and Hwy. 60 & 385.

Men's teams will have a weight limit of 1,500 pounds, while the ladies' teams will be limited to 1,000 pounds. Businesses who want their employees to participate in this event should contact the chamber office, or Boyer.

As part of the Crazy Days promotion, merchants at Sugarland Mall are sponsoring a carnival in the Mall parking lot this week. Saturday, all stores will have special in-store surprises and bargains as part of the promotion.

New Lemonade Business

The Hereford Hustlers, goodwill ambassadors for Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, have a custom of welcoming new businesses to Hereford, and a couple of the Hustlers welcomed a unique operation to the community Friday. The lemonade-stand firm was being operated by Jason Gearn, Jennifer Smith, Marcie Smith and Dustin Gearn. The young business operators are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Gearn and Mr. and Mrs. Barry Smith. Gladys Cavness and Lathan Garnett represented the Hustlers in welcoming the new business.

Reagan Told Demos May Delay Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, actively campaigning for congressional approval of his three-year tax-cut plan, is being told nevertheless that Democrats may delay action on it until this fall.

The president, after conferring Monday with Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee and with conservative Senate Democrats, invited GOP congressional leaders to the White House today.

The president also set aside time at the start of his nationally televised and broadcast news conference this afternoon to complain that the Democrats are not helping meet his Aug. 1 target date for enacting a tax cut, although they are committed to that deadline.

Reagan heard Republican concerns Monday that the Democrats would drag their feet and force consideration of the tax plan after the August congressional recess.

But shortly afterward, conservative Democrats, most of them supporters of the president's plan to cut income tax rates by 25 percent, predicted the Senate would approve the legislation.

Asked after Monday's meeting whether the Aug. 1 deadline would be met, Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York, the ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, said: "Frankly, we're beginning to doubt it, and that's one concern that we talked about some."

But there is always the option of applying pressure, he hinted strongly.

The House Ways and Means Committee was beginning discussions today about the business side of the tax cut.

Local Man Injured In Flash Butane Fire

A fire from a 3,000 gallon liquid propane gas tank filler line sent one man to the emergency room at Deaf Smith County Hospital this morning.

Victor Carbajal, 35, is in stable condition and is being treated for burns on his face and arms.

The accident occurred on Fraser Farms, located six miles west of Hereford and about another one and one-half miles south of Farm-to-Market road 1058. According to Fire Marshall Jay Spain, the line extending from the tank was blowing propane back onto the tank and causing a "flash-type" fire. The tank did not explode as had been reported earlier.

Spain said he thought Carbajal, who is an employee on the farm, might have been cleaning the motor of a pickup with the propane. When firemen arrived, the hood of the pickup was up, but Carbajal had managed to move the vehicle away from the flame.

Tornadoes, Floods Hit Six States; 20 Dead

A storm packing 100-mph winds slashed through a Missouri suburb, injuring seven people, as shell-shocked survivors of deadly spring floods and tornadoes surveyed wreckage in six states today.

The death toll from three days of violent weather rose to 20 by Monday. Hundreds of homes and business were damaged or destroyed, and thousands of people were evacuated as storms pummeled the central and eastern parts of the nation.

A Kansas airport was open only to seaplanes, and flood victims in Texas found snake-infested waters surging through their homes. A Florida heat wave, meanwhile, killed thousands of chickens.

States of emergency were declared in Kansas and Ohio as rivers and creeks heaved over their banks and surged into homes.

Thousands of Texans forced to flee flood waters that killed at least nine people were returning to their homes and businesses today to assess damages from the latest wave of torrential rains.

In San Marcos, where 2,000 people were forced to evacuate when almost 14 inches of rain fell over the weekend, residents began clearing snakes and debris from their flooded homes.

George Vay, 35, said a creek flooded his San Marcos home when a dam on a private fishing lake broke and trapped him in the house.

Vay said he killed more than a dozen snakes that were "just floating through the house. I couldn't find anything to kill them with, so I just started squishing them with my boots. I thought about going to the beach this weekend, but the beach came to me."

The weekend deaths in Texas brought to 22 the known fatalities there since Memorial Day, when heavy thunderstorms caused at least $35 million in property damage in Austin.

The death toll rose Monday afternoon when 15-year-old Cordale Beck of Fort Worth slipped off a moss-covered dam on the Trinity River. His body was recovered from about 10 feet of water, officials said.

Two Dallas youths were struck by lightning during a baseball game. They were reported in fair to stable condition at an area hospital.

Pitman Moving to Chicago

Commodity Office Is Sold

By JULIE SMILEY
Staff Writer

Hereford and Chicago cannot be compared by size or number of inhabitants, but the two locations do have commodities and agriculture in common.

Marsh Pitman will be involved with those two concerns as he moves to Chicago the first week of July to begin trading commodities in the windy city.

After four and a half years of operating Pitman Commodities in Hereford, Pitman has sold the commodities office to Ron Weishaar, Hereford.

"I've been in the process of getting out of the cattle business for the last three years, and I reached a point where I could leave Hereford," Pitman said.

Weishaar, associated with Barrett and Crofoot since 1976, said Pitman called him about a month ago and asked him if he wanted to buy the commodities firm. He bought the building and commodities office from Pitman for an undisclosed amount.

Weishaar said he has been trading and working with futures for about five years and will begin full-time in the commodities office the first week of July.

"We'll try to run the firm similar to Marsh Pitman, and give the best service we can give. We want to serve the local agricultural community and take part of the risk away from themselves and give it to the futures," said Weishaar. He is associated with RB&H Commodities as is Pitman.

When asked why he is getting out of the cattle business, Pitman said, "I read a study that said if you had bought and sold cattle every week since 1964, you would have lost $11.34 per head before interest. For the past 17 years the cattle business has not been profitable."

He said he didn't think consumers' lack of interest in red meat had much to do with poor beef prices. "Feeding cattle is not economically feasible, it is a luxury item. It takes too much grain to convert to one pound of beef. Over the next 10 years thunderstorms caused at least $35 million in property damage in Austin."

He also said he foresees a trend away from small cattle feeders to five or six large cattle feeders who will control the beef industry much the same as Cargill, Continental, Garvey, Bunge and Farmland control grain markets today.

Traveling between Hereford and Chicago for the last five years, Pitman said he has made lots of friends there. "I want to answer to myself and be in small business," he said.

Haig Says China Visit 'Going Well'

PEKING (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. met today with China's top leaders and said the success of his visit here "exceeded our hopes."

Haig met for two hours with Deng Xiaoping, Communist Party vice chairman. He then conferred with Premier Zhao Ziyang in an ornate reception room once used by emperors to give examinations to officers.

Soviets Think U.S. Knew Of Israeli Strike

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union told the United Nations Monday it was "difficult to imagine" that the United States had no advance word that Israel planned to bomb an Iraqi nuclear reactor.

The Reagan administration has insisted that Washington did not learn until afterward of the June 7 Israeli air strike that destroyed the reactor near Baghdad.

But Soviet Ambassador Oleg A. Troyanovski, speaking in the third day of a Security Council debate on the said, said that despite U.S. statements to the contrary, "it's difficult to imagine that it did not know in advance" about the attack.

Troyanovski demanded U.N. sanctions against Israel, joining calls by Arab and other Third World delegates who have urged the council to order an economic boycott or similar penalties against Israel as punishment for the attack.

Designer-Builder

Rites Held For Swayze

Funeral services for Julian Harvey (Jay) Swayze, 57, were held here Monday afternoon in First Baptist Church with the Rev. Doug Manning officiating.

Burial followed at Restlawn Memorial Cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

The owner of Geobuilding Systems, Inc. of Hereford, Swayze died Friday in an Amarillo hospital. He had been felled by an apparent heart attack Thursday.

A professional designer and homebuilder, Swayze created the concept for the modern underground home and garden when he constructed a luxury, underground home for his own family in Plainview in 1961.

More than 35,000 visitors toured the unique home in the next few years, and Swayze took his concept to the New York World's Fair in 1964-65. His exhibit there was viewed by 1.6 million people.

Swayze recently published a book, "Underground Gardens & Homes," which outlined his concept of "living in harmony with nature" and contained the experience Mr. Swayze had gained through 20 years of actual construction.

"The only way that reality happens is for someone to have a dream and then to figure out how to make it work. This was the dream I had, and it works," Swayze wrote in his book.

A native of Archer City, Swayze was born Oct. 27, 1923. He served with the U.S.

Singer Wynette

Undergoes Surgery

RED BAY, Ala. (AP) — Country music singer Tammy Wynette was in stable condition today after undergoing her sixth operation for abdominal surgery.

Miss Wynette's husband, George Richey, said his wife had the operation Monday after falling ill over the weekend while attending her uncle's funeral.

"She had no warning. It just happened, and they had to go in immediately," said Richey, Miss Wynette's fifth husband.

Miss Wynette, who has won the Country Music Association's female vocalist of the year award four times, has suffered from chronic abdominal problems and has undergone surgery five times before, Richey said.

Foul Play Suspected

In Derailment

YAZOO CITY, Miss. (AP) — Authorities say foul play is suspected in a freight train derailment that sent two people to the hospital and forced brief evacuation of up to 750 residents.

Four engines and 33 cars of a 109-car Illinois Central Gulf train bound for Chicago with a cargo of cooking oil and methyl alcohol derailed early Monday. Fire broke out among a small cluster of cars, and fumes sent two people to the hospital.

Jim Paul, assistant superintendent of the railroad's Mississippi division, said the derailment apparently was caused by a tripped switch at a little-used junction about three miles southwest of here.

He said foul play was suspected because the switch must be tripped manually.

Nun Opens Home

For Prostitutes

MIAMI (AP) — Mother Theresa, who won the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize for her work, has opened a center in Miami for prostitutes and homeless women.

The opening of the mission Monday fulfilled a promise that the 70-year-old Roman Catholic nun made in 1974 to help women of Miami's streets. Her order operates about 190 such missions around the world, including seven in the United States.

The two-story shelter is for "any woman who has nothing, who needs tender love and care. It doesn't matter what color, what religion," Mother Theresa said at the dedication.

Brooke Shields

Vows 'No Sex'

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooke Shields, the movie actress who portrayed sexually active teen-agers in two films, says she will wait until she is married before having a sexual relationship.

"I would feel very guilty" about pre-marital sex, the 16-year-old Miss Shields said in an interview in the July issue of the Ladies' Home Journal.

She portrayed a young prostitute in the film "Pretty Baby" and played a girl stranded on an island with a boy in "The Blue Lagoon."

But Miss Shields also said she might change her mind about having sex before she is married if, "when I get older, in my twenties, I am really, really in love with just the right person."

Pilot Held For Drug Smuggling

LAKE WALES, Fla. (AP) — A California pilot was being held on drug smuggling charges and authorities were seeking two other men after seizing 569 pounds of high-grade cocaine worth up to $140 million.

Donald Peterson, 50, of Irvine, Calif., was being held without bond Monday in Tampa after federal agents arrested him following an air and land chase as his small plane returned from the Bahamas Saturday, authorities said.

The case was the U.S. Customs Service's second largest cocaine seizure.

Jimmy Carter

'Head of House'

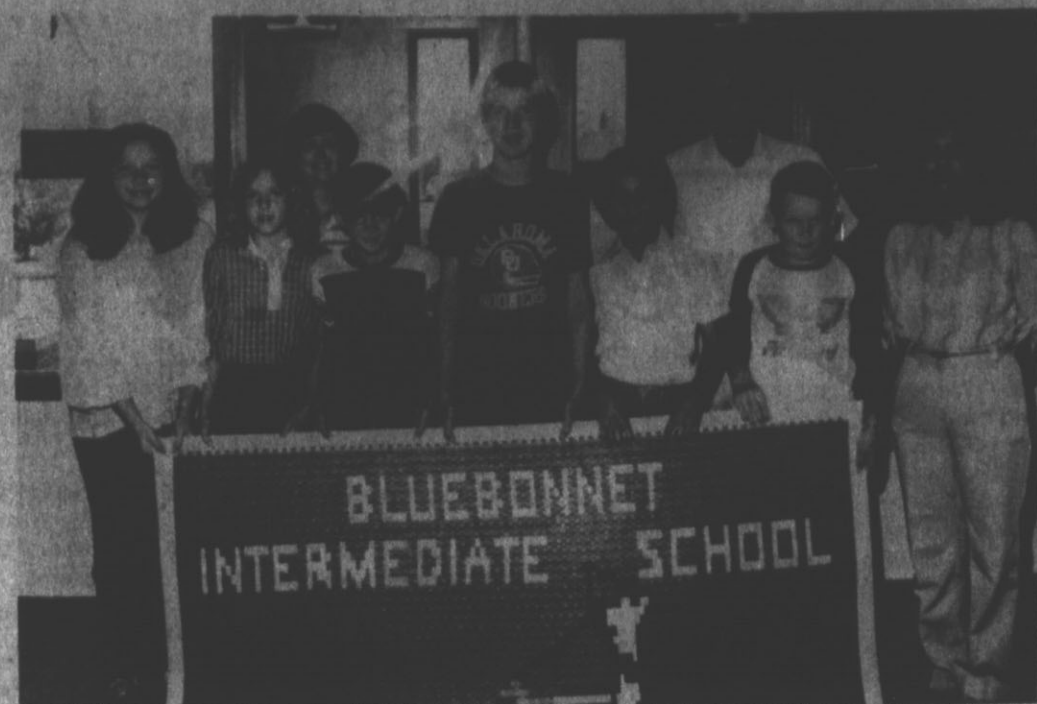

NEW YORK (AP) — It's taken only about six months for former President Jimmy Carter to slip from head of state to head of the house.

Rosalynn Carter told the Ladies' Home Journal that her husband "helps me with everything around the house. I think he is a better cook than I am, but he won't agree."

Mrs. Carter says the former president also does the shopping and is making the beds around their Plains, Ga., house.

$37.1 Billion in Reductions To Go to House for Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Senate Budget Committee, tying President Reagan's budget cuts into one package, is lining up to send $37.1 billion in proposed spending reductions to the floor for almost certain approval.

But in the Democratic-controlled House, administration allies face a likely floor fight if they expect to enact a series of cuts following the president's detailed recommendations.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., arranged to call the Senate Budget Committee into session today to package together the cuts that 14 other panels have recommended in programs under their control. More than 200 programs would be affected, with the bulk coming in social programs such as welfare, food stamps and unemployment compensation.

The budget panel's action is a mere formality, and debate is expected to begin on the Senate floor in about a week. With the Republicans holding a majority, full Senate approval seems likely before Congress begins a recess June 26.

Meanwhile, the House Budget Committee scheduled a tentative meeting for later in the day to consider a different series of proposed cuts.

These reductions, crafted by the 15 Democratic-controlled committees of the House, total $37.5 billion — $400 million more than the Senate package.

But the House proposals differ markedly from Reagan's recommendations — restoring $1 billion to the public service jobs programs Reagan wants eliminated and rejecting virtually the entire administration program of block grants with few strings attached.

House GOP leader Robert Michel told reporters Monday that he still hoped the Democrats would alter their proposals, and Democrats on the House Education and Labor Committee set up a meeting to consider possible changes.

But, speaking of the Democratic leadership, Michel added: "If they refuse, then, shoot, we've got no alternative but to do our own thing." Republicans are drafting a comprehensive alternative to the Democratic package that would give Reagan almost everything he wants.

A Republican attempt to shelve the Democratic plan in favor of their own would hinge on the president's ability to win the support of conservative Democrats.

Reagan won a budget victory earlier this year when 63 conservative Democrats deserted their leadership and sided with the administration.

Obituaries

JOE GARCIA

Services for Joe Garcia, 18, of 127 Ave. B were yesterday at Primera Iglesia Bautista Church. Rev. Henry Amar officiated. Burial was in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Garcia died Friday night following a motorcycle accident Thursday in Harlingen. Garcia had been living in San Benito for the last two weeks. He was born Aug. 22, 1962 in Hereford and was a resident of the city all his life.

Surviving are his father, Primitivo; three brothers, Robert, Enrique and Thomas, and one sister, Agie.

IRENE TRAWEEK

A memorial service for Mrs. Mary Irene Traweek will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. in St. Thomas Episcopal Church. Rev. Charles Threewit will officiate. The family requests that memorials be made to the building fund of St. Thomas Episcopal.

Mrs. Traweek died June 11 in Clovis, New Mexico. She was born March 4, 1892 in Commerce and married Edward Traweek October 12, 1909 in Altus, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Traweek taught Sunday School for 25 years and was an accomplished pianist, organist and pianist. She was a member of the Abilene Women's Club, the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and state treasurer several years for the Federation of Music Clubs.

Surviving her are a son, Curtis Traweek of Hereford, and a granddaughter, Sabra Whalley.

'Ma' Bell Wants More Pay For Local Phone Service

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell wants you and your neighbors to pay $5.45 more per month for local telephone service.

The request is part of a record $469.8 million rate hike package filed Monday with the Public Utility Commission. It's the request that Bell officials said would be needed because PUC only approved a $114 million increase the last time around, when the company said it needed $325 million.

Monday's rate hike request is aimed directly at residential customers. Eighty-seven percent of the $469.8 million would come from the $5.45 monthly increase in one-party home service.

"The time is here for local service to begin standing on its own," said Paul Roth, Bell vice president for revenues and public affairs in Texas.

The commission set a July 2 prehearing on the Bell request.

Bell also wants increases in basic business service, up to $14.40 per month. Overall, the company wants a 15.8 percent increase in rates.

No increases are sought for long distance, pay phones, WATS, directory assistance, equipment charges, connections or telephone answering services.

Roth said local service would cost about $16 more per month if not for the revenues generated by long distance. Bell now faces competition in the long distance field, and Roth predicted that could lead to decreases in long distance rates.

The rate hike request brought quick and angry reaction from a group that has fought Bell in the past.

"They don't need it," said Alberta Powell, spokeswoman for the Association of Community Organizations for reform now. "Low and moderate income families rely heavily on their telephones, and with such a steep increase as Bell wants, and in so short a period, they will leave us no way to adjust budgets to include a telephone in our daily lives."

"We've never asked for more than we needed," Roth said. The commission only once has given Bell more than half of what the company said it needed.

Roth said the company needs the additional money to attract the massive investment needed to keep up with growth in Texas. Bell now is authorized to get a 10.82 percent return on its investment. However, Roth said the return now is only 8.49 percent.

Under the proposal, customers not happy with the $5.45 increase could choose an alternative Roth said could be a glimpse of the phone future — "local measured service."

Under local measured service, a residential customer would pay a monthly fee of $9.10 to $6.85. All local calls then would be billed according to duration, time of day and distance, similar to long distance billing. No customer would have to pay more than $5 above the monthly fee.

The measured service would replace a "call allowance plan" now offered, in which customers pay a basic monthly rate for 25 local calls, with eight cents charged for additional calls. Customers now using the call allowance plan would be allowed to keep it.

in Bristow were evacuated Monday when 5.4 inches of rain fell in less than an hour.

Meanwhile, poultry producers said thousands of chickens died as temperatures in parts of North Florida soared past 100 degrees, making it the hottest day of a heat wave that came on the heels of the state's worst drought in a decade.

The mercury hit 105 in Cross City, making the small city west of Gainesville the nation's hottest Monday, the National Weather Service said.

Storm-churned winds slashed through a two-mile stretch of suburban Ruskin Heights near Kansas City, Mo., Monday, damaging homes and businesses and knocking down trees. Seven people were injured, mostly from flying glass. One man was hospitalized for observation; the others were treated and released.

Property owners and businessmen estimated storm damage at between $500,000 and $750,000. A tornado later touched down at a farm one mile north of Smithton, causing more than $75,000 in damage and killing at least two animals.

Working in the shadow of flood warnings, Ohio residents today were trying to pick up and scrub away the harsh reminders of some of the state's most widespread tornado and water damage.

In central Ohio, a tornado on Saturday churned through the old mill town of Cardington, causing four deaths, more than 60 injuries and nearly $1 million in damage.

Gov. James A. Rhodes asked the federal government to declare Cardington and nearby areas of Morrow County a major disaster. The request listed 164 residences destroyed or damaged and 28 businesses destroyed or sustaining major damage at Cardington.

A gigantic lake developed in the central Kansas town of Great Bend Monday, but at least a few of the residents appeared to be taking the calamity in good spirits.

A Great Bend golf course was transformed into one huge water hazard with only the greens above the flood, but two golfers were spotted hitting ball after ball into the water near one of the submerged tees. Others joked about suddenly having lakefront property.

Officials estimated damage Monday of well over $30 million to the Minneapolis-St. Paul area after inspecting smashed houses, apartments and commercial buildings ripped apart by a tornado Sunday. Two people were killed and nearly 100 others were injured as the twister whirled across a 20-mile stretch of the Twin Cities area.

Nearly 100 National Guardsmen were stationed along with local police officers to prevent looting in the Roseville, Minn., area. Two arrests were reported, but Roseville Police Chief James Zellinsky said early reports of extensive looting were exaggerated and that many apparent looters turned out to be homeowners looking for belongings swept away by the storm.

Paul Harvey News Who's Doing Your Thinking For You

Who is doing your thinking for you?

Is your opinion on social issues, economic issues or foreign policy your own?

Or are you a parrot for some people you never knew — newspaper people based in Washington, D.C. — doing your thinking for you?

Energy Secretary Edwards complains that the Washington, D.C., news media people are holdovers from previous administrations, are mostly liberal, that what they write or recite gets picked up and reprinted and repeated across the nation — indeed, around the world — thus this handful has much too much influence on American thought.

He has a point. Gene Jankowski of CBS affiliates says media people "should never attempt consciously to shape your thoughts, opinions, mores..." But consciously or unconsciously, they sure enough do.

Our traditional tri-partite government can be prodded, pressured and more-or-less manipulated by two newspapers: The New York Times and The Washington Post.

These publications will insist that they have earned their following among power-people and that other media "people parrot them out of deserved respect."

However that may be, it does not contradict Secretary Edwards' complaint that "a handful have too much influence."

Director Jonathan Moore of Harvard's Institute of Politics says, "The press has itself become a major political institution."

Joe Califano, former cabinet officer, says, "Most members of Congress never read even a partial text of a presidential message; they read 'about it' in The Washington Post."

To the extent that I can stay out of Washington, D.C., I am highly impressionable. Within weeks I could become so preoccupied with machinations at the two ends of Pennsylvania Avenue that I would lose touch completely with the nine-tenths of this country that's still country.

NEWSWEEK, commenting on the capital cocktail circuit, said: "You can get on a first-name basis with people at the heart of policy-making—but risk ending up protecting your sources."

I remember and subscribe to the alter Lippman admonition that a newspaper should always keep a little air space between himself and the newsmaker."

Also, selectively, the media can create mountainous mole-hills which may conceal more significant news: Billy Carter's overplayed Libyan connection. Mike Reagan's limelighted letter soliciting business for a 35-man machine shop.

Publisher Eugene Patterson of the St. Petersburg, Fla., Times says such stories "need to be covered—not assaulted!"

What to do about it? None of us wants any segment of the media throttled, muzzled, subjected to anything more than this kind of critical surveillance.

But "government of the people" does demand intelligent skepticism.

What "the paper says..." Or "what you heard on the air..."

Or "what they say..." May be less than the whole truth.

Elm Courts Reports Several Burglaries

Elm Courts, 801 W. First, is even more vacant than it was before. Hereford Police received a report Friday that 11 air conditioners, 13 t.v. sets, one water heater, two dining tables and chairs, 16 lawn chairs, one swing set, 68 blankets, 68 bedspreads, two refrigerators, one lawn mower, a complete bedroom set and one vacuum cleaner were taken from the Courts.

Also, sometime between Sunday and yesterday, someone entered the main office of Elm Courts and took a swivel type desk chair, another green chair, one refrigerator and one water cooler fan.

TG&Y reported the theft of a box of pampers, five cans of spray paint, one can of motor oil and one 12 volt car battery. Police have a suspect.

Ray Cole of 840 Blevins reported to police a theft at One Stop Auto on N. 385. A steering wheel from a car and bucket seats from a pick-up were taken.

Police received three reports of criminal mischief.

Don Shaw, 127 Ranger, told police that someone punctured two tires on his car while it was parked at Charlie Brown's private club. Police have two suspects.

Rickey Scoggins, 226 Beach, reported that someone broke the head-light off his bike at St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Also, someone broke the yard light out at the Community Center at 300 E. Park.

One harassing phone call was reported. Police issued four traffic citations yesterday.

4-H Firsthand Home Economics Projects Offer Information, Skills

By PENNY CRIBBS
County Extension Agent
Youngsters enrolled in the 4-H home economics projects learn practical information and develop useful skills in a variety of projects, including home environment, consumer education, child care, home management, clothing, and food and nutrition.

These project activities help members learn more about their roles as members of families, points out Penny Cribbs, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. They develop a better understanding of parenthood, too.

Those in the home environment project learn to make their homes attractive, comfortable and convenient places to live. This has become a real challenge for many 4-H'ers with limited family resources. Members also become more aware of the values of old furniture as they learn to refinish and reupholster pieces for their homes.

Participating in the 4-H home management project teaches members to set realistic goals based on family values and needs. They also learn to take advantage of available resources to help them reach their goals.

Young people make consumer decisions every day, says Cribbs. They select items for personal use and influence family decisions on household purchases.

Spending their dollars wisely is the goal of boys and girls enrolled in the 4-H consumer education program. 4-H members learn to distinguish wants from basic needs, prepare budgets and set short- and long-range spending goals.

Practical consumer education activities help 4-H'ers shop discriminantly, points out Cribbs. They begin to look critically at advertisements and commercials, examine hangtags and care labels, study warranties and time-payment contracts, and compare features and prices of products.

As they become aware of consumer rights, young people find they are entitled to truthfully advertised products that meet certain health and safety standards.

As informed consumers, 4-H'ers realize their responsibilities of following instructions on products and using, not abusing, credit, notes Cribbs. They learn about exchange and refund privileges, too.

The 4-H food-nutrition program teaches that an adequate diet should contain a variety of foods daily. The greater the variety of foods, the less likely a person is to develop a nutrient deficiency. Food alone does not assure good health, but good eating habits of moderation and food variety contribute to improving nutrition and health, explains Cribbs.

The 4-H food-nutrition program also helps young people develop skills in planning, purchasing, preparing and serving tasty, attractive and nutritious meals and snacks. The program urges boys and girls to learn by doing and to become familiar with the principles of nutrition as they relate to good health, physical fitness and an attractive appearance.

Sewing can be educational and fun for young people in the 4-H clothing program. These 4-H members plan and create attractive garments that express their individual lifestyles.

4-H clothing projects and activities are geared to different age and skill levels, says Cribbs. They emphasize basic fabric selection and clothing construction that ensure wearable finished garments.

4-H members also develop consumer skills in purchasing ready-to-wear clothing, accessories, and sewing equipment and supplies. They learn how to evaluate and care for their wardrobes. They also try practical needle-craft arts like crocheting and knitting, adds Cribbs.

Information on any of these 4-H home economics projects is available at the County Extension Office.

Carla Greenway Honoree

The Friendship Room at the First National Bank was the scene for a shower honoring Miss Carla Greenway, bride-elect of Jack McKnight, on Saturday.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Tex McKnight, mother of the prospective groom, the honoree, and Mrs. Ancil Greenway, mother of the honoree. Refreshments were served by Kerry Hagemier and Connie Cole. Hostesses for the occasion were Sunny Brush, Joyce Landers, Jerrine Mickler, Joan Culp, Mrs. A.G. Grisham, Mrs. Ann Bell, Mrs. Dorman Duggan, Mrs. Bob Clark, Mrs. Leta Kaul, Mrs. Morris Means, Mrs. Helen Watts, and Mrs. Vera Betts. The couple plan a June 20 wedding.

Classic Beauty

Bert Jacks, owner of the Merle Norman studio at Sugarland Mall, Hereford, has just returned from a Golden Anniversary Convention in Anaheim, Cal. She is shown here beside a 1912 Premier, one of the elaborately restored automobiles in Merle Norman's Classic Beauty Collection. More than 2,000 studio owners and their guests from all across the United States and Canada spent five days at the Disneyland Hotel.

Plummer A&M Honor Inductee

Ronald Edwin Plummer is among 247 Texas A&M

University students inducted into the national freshman honor society, Phi Eta Sigma, for the spring semester. He was named to the prestigious group for maintaining a 3.5 or better grade point average during his first year of university work.

Plummer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben R. Plummer and was a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School.

Rudd Given Music Award

Elizabeth Rudd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hether Rudd of Route 5, Hereford, was one of only 31 high school students selected by judges for the "outstanding performer" award at the Texas State Solo-Ensemble Contest at The University of Texas, May 30 and June 1.

About 13,000 of the state's best high school musicians participated in the contest. Miss Rudd plays the violin.

For a nation that has the most sophisticated form of communication ever devised, it is ironic that people still don't know what to say on an elevator.

No one is denying it's tough. The subject matter has to be concise, have universal appeal, subject to interruption, and hold everyone's attention. You are also playing a unique audience that faces in the same direction and stares spellbound at the ceiling while little red lights flick on and off. It's not your basic New Year's eve revelers.

Most elevators have the excitement of a recovery room. They're sterile little cubicles of silence where people talk in whispers (if they talk at all) and attract attention if they so much as clear their throats.

To relieve the awkwardness, music was added a few years ago, but does anyone dance? Hum? Sing along? Nope. They just stand there like prisoners awaiting liberation.

Conversational Elevator is rather new, but there are some innovators in the medium. I saw one man employ the name-dropping theory. He got on the elevator wearing a ribbon marked HOSPITALITY and a convention button, "NATIONAL PAPER CLIP ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA," and said, "Do I have this straight? Reagan draws the ticket for the winning car and THEN I introduce the keynote."

The mystery approach is becoming quite effective. Just before a woman is to get off the elevator, she turns to her companion and says, "Are you saying I'm just another one-night stand?" (I've seen the entire elevator empty out on that one.)

A little ice-breaker that never fails to get a rise out of the passengers is the Decadence Diet where the man or woman announces, "I ate everything, I drank everything and didn't move a muscle. Lost 38 pounds in four days. I know I look terrific. Three people asked me if I was sick!"

Other elevator teasers are still in the experimental stage: The E.F. Hutton Approach, where someone announces they know where you can get gas for 78 cents a gallon, and the Confidence Trick, where you whisper just loud enough for everyone to hear that you just heard the U.S. is being sold to a group of Canadians for summer condos.

I don't speak Elevator well at all. All I want to do is to get on and off without my stomach growling or suffering an attack of hiccups. I honestly tried. The other day I was coming from the 28th to the lobby. There were two of us on the elevator. I turned to him and said, "You come here often?" He got off at the 27th floor.

Planting Trees

The first summer workshop of Amarillo Council of Nationally Accredited Flower Show Judges, District One, was held recently in the E.B. Black House. The district project of Past-District Director, Mrs. Carroll Anderson, was to plant a tree in each zone, on the grounds of public buildings to assure that the trees would receive proper care and water. The E.B.

Black House grounds were selected as a site in the Northern Zone. The trees planted included a Bradford Pear and a Cottonless Cottonwood. Present for the planting were, left to right, Ersalee Jacobsen, Lois Ethridge, Bessie Hill, Patricia Robinson, Sue James, Mrs. Carroll Anderson and Mrs. A.H. Parker.

Nationally Accredited Flower Judges Hold Workshop Here

The first summer workshop of Amarillo Council of Nationally Accredited Flower Show Judges, District One, was held recently in the E.B. Black House. Hostesses for the brunch were Hereford judges Mrs. O.G. Hill, Sr., Mrs. R.L. Ethridge, Mrs. John Jacobsen, Jr., and Mrs. Jess Robinson.

Business was conducted by President Mrs. Jacobsen, Jr. Mrs. Robinson presented the program, with the distribution of yearbooks and literature on wildflowers of Texas. A quiz on the botanical and common names of flowers was studied by all members.

The district project of Past-

District Director, Mrs. Carroll Anderson, was to plant a tree in each of zone, Northern (Amarillo area), Central (Lubbock area) and Southern (Midland-Odessa area), on the grounds of public buildings to assure that the trees would receive proper care and water.

The E.B. Black House grounds were selected as a site in the Northern Zone. Mrs. Robinson, past northern zone chairman led in the dedication of two trees, a Bradford Pear tree and a Cottonless Cottonwood, as district project, symbolic of Mrs. Anderson's theme, "Plan, Plant, and Protect."

Mrs. Sue James conducted a tour of the E.B. Black House and gardens. All members were very thrilled to see the Garden Gazebo, and continued tours of the gardens of Mrs. L.W. Norvell, 203 Elm and Mrs. Jack Wilcox, 206 Ranger.

Guests present were Mrs. Carroll Anderson, Mrs. Bene-dean Hammock of Lubbock and Mrs. G.L. White, president of Bud to Blossom Garden Club.

Judges present included Mrs. Joe Deason, Opal Carr, Mrs. A.R. Hurlock, Mrs. T.A. Hollar, Mrs. R.L. Jenkins, Mrs. Robert Bothwell, Mrs. Ray Robbins Bothwell, Mrs. Mrs. Kenneth Parker of Canyon, Mrs. A.D. Parker and Mrs. Bayard Sadler, both of Tulsa, and hostesses Mrs. Hill, Etheridge, Jacobsen and Robinson.

STRATEGIC METALS— THE FUTURISTIC INVESTMENT

We are presently recommending the outright purchase of Cobalt, Titanium, Mercury, Vanadium, Beryllium, and Silicone.

By the year 2000 our natural resources of these strategic metals may be totally depleted. The government is presently stockpiling these metals.

CRUSTY BOHEMIAN RYE BREAD

4 1/4 to 4 cups Bohemian rye and wheat flour
One-third cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon caraway seed
2 packages active dry yeast
1 cup milk
1 cup water
2 tablespoons butter
Butter
Coarse salt
Combine 1 1/2 cups flour, sugar, salt, caraway seed and yeast in large mixing bowl. Combine milk, water and butter; heat over low temperature to 120 degrees to 130 degrees. Gradually add to dry ingredients; beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally.

Add 1/4 cup flour mixture. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping occasionally. Stir in enough flour to make stiff dough. Cover; let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Stir dough down. Cover; let rise again until doubled in bulk, about 20 minutes. Stir down. Place dough in well-buttered 2 1/2-quart round casserole. Place on bottom rack of oven. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven, 35 to 40 minutes or until done. Remove from pan. Brush with butter; sprinkle with coarse salt. Cool. Serve with butter.

Carter, Regent, conducted a called business meeting.

Cabbage, Apple Casserole Takes Best of Both Worlds

Around the world, cabbage is a favorite with those who know good food. The cabbage patch even has a place in the literature and folklore of many countries. Many nationalities, Danish, Russian, Polish, Chinese, Hungarian and German, have contributed their bit to cabbage cookery.

Cabbage arrives at the table in many ways, such as cole slaw, soup, sauerkraut, stuffed in individual leaves or in the whole cabbage head. A German-style casserole, with apples and dairy sour cream, combines the best of the old and new worlds.

Old-world-style recipes usually call for cooking this mixture longer than current ones. After you saute the onion and add the cabbage, give it about 10 minutes, then another five minutes for cooking with the apple. Short cooking time preserves nutrients and flavor; it also keeps the bright colors fresher looking. One-half cup of red wine vinegar helps the cabbage stay red and provides a tangy taste with the dairy sour cream.

Dairy Council home economists advise that cabbage and apples are usually available year-round and go well with ribs, other pork cuts and spicy sausage. If you're in the mood to bake bread, make it a dark, crusty Bohemian rye with its caraway seed flavor to complement the cabbage and apples.

CABBAGE AND APPLES, GERMAN STYLE

Makes 8 servings
2 tablespoons butter
One-third cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons sugar
6 cups shredded red cabbage
1/2 cup red wine vinegar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 cup dried cooking apples (approximately 1 large apple)
2 tablespoons sugar

1 1/2 cups dairy sour cream, at room temperature
Apple slices, if desired
Melt butter in a large skillet; saute onion with 2 tablespoons sugar for 5 minutes. Stir in cabbage, vinegar and salt; cover and simmer 20 minutes. Stir in apples and 2 tablespoons sugar; cover and simmer about 5 minutes. Transfer to heated serving platter, using a slotted spoon. Spoon sour cream down center of cabbage. Garnish with apple slices. Serve immediately.

First slaves

The English shipped the first blacks from Africa to Virginia in 1619, 12 years after the founding of the Jamestown settlement. In the first 40 years there were no more than 300 black slaves. But by the 1680s, with the need for many more workers in the tobacco fields, blacks were brought in to the colonies at the rate of 40,000 a decade.

Ann Landers

Censoring The Mail

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girlfriend and I, both seniors in high school, work together part-time at a business establishment in a rather small town.

Our boss is a married woman in her 50s. Mrs. X has a nice family and is a prominent figure in the community. She only works a few days a week, so we open all the mail when she is not here. Usually there is nothing but bills, invoices and advertisements.

Today we ran across an unsigned note to her which said, "You are being made a fool of. Everyone in town knows your husband is having an affair."

We don't know if it's true or not, and it is really none of our business. But we can't decide if we should give her this letter or tear it up. So, Ann, we are saving it until we get an answer from you. Please hurry your answer.--Worried And Waiting

DEAR W. AND W.: I'm typing as fast as I can. My advice is as follows: Your job is to open the mail. You have no right to censor or withhold anything. Give Mrs. X all the mail and keep your mouths shut. The anonymous "informant" is hoping to make trouble. Don't help by passing the gossip along.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Tim and I are very much in love, but we are having a serious problem.

He dated a girl for five years before we met. When the relationship went sour, they broke up. Ann moved out of state. They agreed to remain friends and keep in touch by telephone.

When Ann visited her family here recently, she and Tim had lunch together. This upset me, even though I'm sure their relationship is platonic. We discussed it in advance and I told him I didn't like the idea but he took her to lunch anyway.

I recently saw a valentine Ann sent to Tim. It was signed, "Love, Ann." I became upset again. We talked things over (loudly) and nothing was resolved.

Now Ann has asked Tim to visit her ALONE. When he explained that he couldn't do it because I would not understand, she replied, "Can't you make her understand?"

Tim feels he is doing nothing wrong by continuing to communicate with Ann, even though he knows it upsets me. The question: Am I justified in asking him to put an end to the relationship, or should I bite my tongue and keep quiet?—Churning in R.I.

DEAR R.I.: You have assumed the role of "jailer." It is killing Tim's love for you and destroying your trust in him.

Tell Tim he is free to see Ann whenever he feels like it. Make it clear you expect the same freedom. Start to have lunch and dinner with old flames or new sparks. This will either make or break your relationship. In any case, the present set-up is no bargain.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you won't think this is too foolish to print because it means a lot to me. I am a 22-year-old male who lives at home. I am presently without a steady girl so my social life is very quiet.

My favorite fun is to go to the park and swing. I want to put a swing up in our back yard but my folks say it is childish and the neighbors will think I'm nuts.

I find swinging invigorating, joyful and great for the circulation. Please give me your honest opinion.--Irvine, Calif., Reader

DEAR IRV: Be a swinger. I'll bet the neighbors will ask if they can use your new recreational facility. Maybe you ought to put up two!

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers' guide to "Necking and Petting—What Are the Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Employees Cited

137 'Wreckless' Years

Representing 137 years of driving Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative's vehicles without an accident, 19 employees were honored with a breakfast at the Thompson House Restaurant in Hereford recently.

Calvin Stevens of Lubbock, USF&G Insurance Co. representative, Bill Johnson and Bud Eades of Plains Inurance, here, presented commemorative pins to the drivers.

Total miles driven on all the Cooperative's vehicles from April 1, 1980 to March 31, 1981 were 578,429 miles.

James Hull, manager of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative stated that safety is the number one concern of the Cooperative. Whenever employees are exposed to accident causing situations each day, it is important that safety practices be applied to transportation as well and the record of these drivers indicate this.

Boyd Collins, Line Superintendent, was cited for 20 years of safe driving and Tommie Weemes, Staking

Commissioner Admits Kickback

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A former road and bridge equipment supply company owner was poised today to detail his payment of $1,870 in kickbacks to Blaine County Commissioner Orville Pratt as Pratt's federal court trial entered its second day.

Guy Moore, who owned a Midwest City supply company for 28 years before he began cooperating with federal officials in a statewide investigation of alleged county commissioner corruption, testified Monday that he had to pay kickbacks to stay in business.

He did not discuss his meeting with Pratt during his testimony Monday because he was put on the stand late in the day and talked only in general terms about kickbacks and the way he did business.

Paul Ferguson, Pratt's attorney, said during his opening remarks to the jury Monday that Pratt will admit taking the kickbacks from Moore, but will contend he was "playing along" with other corrupt commissioners to "find out what they were doing."

Ferguson dropped a bombshell during his opening statement by saying the other two Blaine County commissioners and a former Blaine County commissioner have agreed to plead guilty to federal charges of accepting kickbacks.

Ferguson said Pratt, who is on trial on a two-count indictment alleging he accepted two kickbacks totaling $1,870 kickback on Feb. 16, had been involved in a feud with fellow

Blaine County Commissioners Robert E. Petticrew and Monte Compton and former commissioner Cecil Parker and felt they were "out to get him."

Ferguson said Pratt will admit taking the kickback, "but he was playing along... he knew he was being taped and he wanted to find out what they were doing, what they were up to."

He said the other commissioners and Parker were involved in a conspiracy "to get Mr. Pratt" because "Mr. Petticrew, Mr. Compton and Mr. Parker have agreed to plead guilty — they've been taking kickbacks since 1975."

Petticrew, contacted at his home in Geary, said, "I've been told not to discuss this until it's all over." He declined to say whether federal agents told him not to discuss it. Asked if he could deny that he had agreed to plead guilty, he replied, "I just can't discuss it — they've told me not to."

Compton was not immediately available for comment, and his wife, contacted at the family home in Watonga, said, "I'd rather you wait and talk to him. I can't say anything about what he has agreed to do or not to do." She said, however, that Compton "has only been in office three years, so I don't know how he can accuse him of doing something back in 1975."

Parker, contacted at his home in Watonga, also said he has "been told not to discuss it," but, like Petticrew, refused to say who told him not to discuss it.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William Price said in his opening statement that the government will prove, through testimony by former equipment salesman Moore and through tape-recorded conversations between Moore and Pratt, that Pratt accepted the kickbacks from Moore after giving Moore contracts for culvert pipe and grade blades.

Testimony barely got under way in Pratt's trial Monday because selection of a jury took most of the day.

Moore, during his brief appearance Monday, repeated testimony he gave at an evidentiary hearing earlier this month about kickbacks being "a standard practice" in making sales to county commissioners.

He said he knew of only three current commissioners who declined to take kickbacks, "and over the 28 years" he has been in business, "there may have been two others."

Gilliland Goes To New York City

B.J. Gilliland of Hereford, a Southland Life Insurance agent, will be among an anticipated 5,500 members of the Million Dollar Round Table (MDRT) gathering in New York City June 21 to 25.

Members of this exclusive life insurance sales association will be attending the organization's 54th Annual Meeting. Thirty-nine countries around the world will be represented, making the

During the five-day meeting, more than 75 professional speakers will be discussing subjects of vital concern to those in the life insurance field. Experts in such areas as estate planning, taxes, inflation and law will be sharing their knowledge in the series of intense seminars.

Tower's 20th Anniversary in Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower of Texas was honored by his colleagues Monday on the 20th anniversary of the day he was sworn into the U.S. Senate.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Arizona, led off the tribute for the Texas Republican, who began his duties on June 15, 1961, after winning a special election called to name a successor to Lyndon B. Johnson.

"He has made a great contribution to the Senate, to his state of Texas and to our great country," Goldwater said.

For almost 20 years, Tower has been a senator after senator stood to add to the praise.

"It has been my pleasure for more than a decade to work with him. He's been a friend," said Texas' other senator, Lloyd Bentsen.

The fact he is a Democrat and Tower is a Republican hasn't kept them from working together, Bentsen said.

"We have attempted and generally succeeded in reaching across party lines to serve the best interests of our country. To me that's the type of accomplishment that's needed and that we can be proud of," Bentsen said.

"We've been able to foster that sort of relationship and make it work so well for so long. I thank him for the many courtesies he's extended to me over the years."

After the tribute had ended, Tower rose to thank his colleagues for their "kind words."

"Now I know what it feels like to be present and listen to your own funeral ceremony," Tower said.

"At occasions like this, you rarely say anything disparaging about the party in question, and my colleagues avoided saying a lot of things that they might have said. I thank them as much for what they did not say as for what they did," he chuckled.

Tower said he has had the opportunity "to serve with men of such caliber in the world's greatest deliberative body."

When he was sworn in, Tower became Texas' first Republican in the U.S. Senate since 1870. His election "has been enormously important in setting the stage for Republican victories around the nation," one colleague said.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said much had been said over the years about Tower's short stature, "but in determination and in courage, he's 10 feet tall... I congratulate him on the anniversary of his FIRST 20 years in the Senate, and I hope his next 20 years will be equally as rewarding."

Tower got 43 percent of the votes but lost to Johnson in the 1960 General Election, when LBJ ran simultaneously for the Senate and for vice president.

In the special election that was required a few months later, Tower led a 71-candidate field, then won a runoff.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Round Two of the 67th Texas Legislature.

Governor Bill Clements last week announced his plans for a July 13 special session of the Legislature to consider five issues left unresolved during the regular session.

Topics for the 30-day session will be limited to 1) repeal of the state ad valorem tax, 2) creation of a Texas water trust fund, 3) revision of the property tax code, 4) congressional redistricting, and 5) licensing and regulation of the state's physicians.

Of the five items, only two are of emergency nature: congressional redistricting and extension of the Medical Practice Act.

The Legislature succeeded in regular session in redrawing political boundary lines for legislative districts, but failed to reach a compromise on a congressional plan. And present law regulating the state's medical doctors will expire at the end of the summer.

Although not an emergency, revision of the property tax code is pressing. The Legislature wants to tune up tax reforms passed in 1979 in order to keep down property taxes across the state.

The remaining two items are political favorites of Clements and House Speaker Bill Clayton. Clements wants to make repeal of the ad valorem tax his baby, and Clayton, from arid West Texas, has an avid interest in water development.

Both issues, if resolved in the special session, will make political hay for the sponsors.

Redistricting

The sticky point in redistricting is how to divide up Dallas, particularly the city's 250,000 blacks.

Clements wants a plan which will provide for a minority district, and has threatened to veto any different plan.

The problem for some legislators is that plan would endanger two Democrat incumbents, Jim Mattox and Martin Frost, and might result in two new Republican congressmen.

On this point of contention the entire special session might well be balanced.

Perhaps more than any recent issue, this one might well polarize the Legislature into partisan camps.

Three-Legged Campstool

Like a three-legged campstool, the Legislature, particularly the House, is composed of three basic factions: liberal Democrats, conservative Democrats and Republicans. Playing one end against the other, conservative Democrats have maintained the upper hand and managed a semblance of political law and order. Those who go along with the leadership are rewarded. It's an age-old game.

But with the legislative seats safely decided and reelection campaigns just a year away, most of the political goodies of the season have already been given away.

Add to that the facts that Clayton has already declared he will not be coming back to the House, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, thought to be stepping down as head of the Senate, has not issued any statement to the contrary.

Clements

Whenever the Legislature adjourns and goes home, the most visible official left in Austin is the Governor. Since the lawmakers' departure June 2, Clements has been involved in political snipings on several fronts.

He has tangled with:

—Attorney General Mark White over a recent district judge's ruling that the state cannot regulate church-operated children's homes, the latest event in the ongoing case of evangelist Lester Roloff. Clements, who was supported by Roloff in the '78 campaign, has said he is pleased with the decision and wants Mark White to leave it alone. White will probably appeal the ruling as overbroad, saying it is not right "to put the word church on a corporate charter and be exempt from the law."

—Tyler State Sen. Peyton McKnight over the busted deal to trade state land in West Texas for Big Bend acreage to create a state park. Clements accused McKnight of spoiling the swap, and McKnight retorted the swap needed spoiling. McKnight is also thinking about running for governor against Clements in 1982.

—Austin State Sen. Lloyd Doggett over Doggett's blockage of one of Clements' appointees to the Texas Real Estate Commission. Dr. Richard E. Box, Clements accused Doggett of violating his word. Doggett denies it and expects a realtor opponent in the primaries.

—LULAC national president Ruben Bonilla of Corpus Christi over President Ronald Reagan's proposed "guest worker program." The Reagan plan is actually the Clements plan. Bonilla criticized it as cheap exploitation of both American and Mexican workers as a means of gaining Mexican oil and gas.

Rain Forecast For Flood Area

By The Associated Press

Thousands of Texans forced from their homes by flood waters that killed at least nine people have started returning to their residences and businesses to assess damages from the latest wave of torrential rains.

Heavy thunderstorms continued across Central Texas Monday night, forcing delays averaging an hour for almost all flights at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, a spokesman said.

The weekend deaths brought to 22 the known fatalities since Memorial Day, when heavy thunderstorms caused at least $5 million in property damage in Austin.

Another cloudburst snarled rush-hour traffic in rain-soaked San Antonio today, sending water rushing over low-water crossings again.

Shortly before 8 a.m., park rangers at the San Antonio River Walk began searching for a man reportedly seen "bobbing up and down" in the rain-swollen river near the Houston Street Bridge. A witness described the man as a "hobo" who usually slept beneath bridges in the downtown area.

Thunderstorms were predicted to continue in the San Antonio area and Hill Country throughout the day.

The death toll rose Monday afternoon when 15-year-old Cordale Beck of Fort Worth slipped off a moss-covered dam on the Trinity River. His body was recovered from about 10 feet of water, officials said.

Beck and three friends were crossing the slippery concrete dam when Beck fell into the water, surfaced once and then went under, witnesses said.

Ernest Williams, 16, said he had just crossed the dam when he turned and saw Beck fall in.

"He just slipped in," Jessie said. "When he fell in he started swimming backwards, then he started going under. We tried to get him to grab a stick but he went under. Then he came back up and went back up and his hand came," Jessie said.

Two Dallas youths were struck by lightning during a baseball game, and were reported in fair to stable condition at an area hospital.

Federal experts should arrive Monday to re-evaluate the Memorial Day flooding at the request of Austin Mayor Carole McClellan and Gov. Bill Clements. President Reagan refused to grant a disaster declaration after the first Austin flood.

About 300 families were evacuated in the Austin area over the weekend, but police said most were returning home by late Monday night.

San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros Monday ordered an investigation into why flood gates at Elmendorf Lake, south of the city, were not opened to prevent flooding in nearby homes.

Several houses in the area were inundated with flood waters and vehicles were washed away.

"I can't imagine how we can build a multimillion-dollar facility and for sheer failure to assure proper workings of it, poor people are suffering with four feet of water in their homes," Cisneros said.

At San Marcos, where 2,000 people were forced to flee when almost 14 inches of rain fell over the weekend, residents began clearing snakes and debris from their flooded houses.

George Vay, 35, said a creek flooded his San Marcos home when a dam on a private fishing lake broke and trapped him in the house.

Vay said he killed more than a dozen snakes that were

"just floating through the house. I couldn't find anything to kill them with, so I just started quibbling them with my boots. I thought about going to the beach this weekend, but the beach came to me."

Four people died when their vehicles were overwhelmed by floodwaters, including a 4-year-old girl whose body was found Monday in Nolan Creek in Bell County.

Rosalee Hawkins of Harker Heights was in a car that was washed off a bridge in Nolanville Sunday night. Her mother managed to escape.

The body of 13-year-old Mario Zamora, missing since Sunday afternoon when he fell into Six Mile Creek in south San Antonio, was recovered Monday.

Two men and two women were sightseeing at Pedernales Falls State Park at Johnson City, just west of Austin, Sunday when they were swept from a rocky ledge into the swift waters of the Pedernales River and drowned, witnesses said.

The victims were identified as identified as Guy Cooper, 25, a University of Texas law student; his father, George Cooper, 54, academic dean at Hutchinson Community College, Kan.; his mother, Wilma, 46; and sister, Leslie Lehman, 21.

The four had been on a family outing and climbed on a rocky ledge about six feet above the upper falls. The river came up suddenly. The four resisted the current for four hours then were washed off the ledge.

Guy Cooper's wife, Patty, and his younger brother, David Cooper, a Hutchinson High School student, jumped to safety just as the high waters approached the ledge.

National Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new drug for treating internal fungus diseases without serious side effects has been approved as a new therapeutic by the Food and Drug Administration.

The orally administered drug carries the generic name ketoconazole and will be manufactured and distributed by Janssen Pharmaceutica Inc. of New Brunswick, N.J., under the brand name Nizoral.

It will be used to combat diseases that meted when body resistance is low, as during cancer chemotherapy or antibiotic therapy, and as treatment for such internal fungus diseases as histoplasmosis and coccidioidomycosis.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police have filed unlawful entry and destruction of government property charges against a man who attempted to crash his car through a reinforced steel gate at the White House.

Special Agent Laurie Davis of the Secret Service said Marlan Edmund Ray, about 40, of Yorktown, Va., was arrested Monday after his 1977 Chevrolet car caused "minimal damage" to the gate but failed to break through it.

KIEL, West Germany (AP) — The prosecution has asked a 12-year jail sentence for a former officer in the SS, the Nazi Elite Guard, who is on trial on charges of sending 10,000 Belgian Jews to their death at the Auschwitz camp in Poland.

Kurt Asche, 71, is accused of being a "Jew consultant" in occupied Brussels from August 1942 to late 1943. A verdict in the seven-month trial is expected in July.

LONDON (AP) — Plans for a British attack on the Soviet Union just after World War II, using atomic bombs and germ warfare, have been found in documents at the Public Record Office, the Times of London reported.

The newspaper said technical memoranda concerning the attack, submitted to the chiefs of staff between January and July 1946, included a list of Russian cities with populations of more than 100,000 that were within bombing range of bases in England, Cyprus and India.

The Times said the main report, titled "Future Developments in Weapons and Methods of War," was based on the work of a committee headed by Sir Henry Tizard, a distinguished scientist and government adviser.

The newspaper said the report was unearthed in the Public Record Office by the Church of Scientology, which is campaigning for multilateral disarmament.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A Danish wine importer has been convicted of adulterating vintage wines from prestigious French growing regions with cheaper wine to increase his profits.

The court decision Monday upheld the government's contention that the name of a wine-growing region on a bottle is a brand name protected under brand-fraud laws of Denmark and the Common Market.

The court in suburban Gentofte fined the firm, Erik Troels-Smith, $13,350, confiscated nearly $145,000 in illegal profits, sentenced the firm's manager to six months in jail and fined the supervisor of the wine cellar $400. The supervisor also received a suspended three-month jail sentence.

Erik Troels-Smith admitted it had mixed cheaper wines with 1978 and 1979 vintages from the Pomerol and St. Emilion districts and marketed them in Denmark as wines of those regions. It claimed the French system is a private arrangement not binding on distributors outside France.

YOU AUTO KNOW

By Don Henslee

Q. My wife has a 1979 Corvair that she has driven since the car was driven off the showroom floor last summer. Even though it is used only to town, it has always used more oil than it should. I find no signs of leaks and wonder if you might have any suggestions?

A. Your wife may have "babied" her car too much. The cylinder walls in a new engine are smooth, and about 1,000 miles of driving are needed before piston rings seat sufficiently to effectively prevent oil from seeping past. "Babying" the engine could cause glaze to build up between cylinder walls and rings, preventing effective sealing. Have your wife drive on the highway for 10 minutes every time she starts the car for the next several days. If the oil loss does not stop, you'll have to hone the cylinder walls and replace the piston rings.

Nicklaus Admits Better Outlook

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — There is a different feeling, a different outlook, for Jack Nicklaus in the U.S. Open this year.

"Last year I wasn't sure. I wasn't sure where I was or where I was going. This year I am," Nicklaus said before a practice round on the Merion Golf Club, where he will defend his American national championship beginning Thursday.

Last year, there were doubts.

This year, there are none.

Last year, coming into the U.S. Open, Nicklaus' matchless career appeared to be nearing an end. His game was, at best, questionable. At age 40, he hadn't won in two years. He was, he later admitted, considering retirement from the game he had dominated so long.

There were doubts and self-doubts.

All were erased by his record-setting triumph at Baltusrol and a subsequent victory in the PGA, pushing his record collection of major professional titles to 17. And they re-confirmed Nicklaus' stature as the dominant force in golf, at least insofar as the showcase Big Four events are concerned.

He has not won this season. But that is not significant.

"I changed my priorities several years ago," said Nicklaus, generally considered the finest player the game has known. "If I had not, I would be gone from golf now. I would not be playing."

"Between the ages 25 to 35, I expected to win every time I played. I prepared for every tournament like I prepare for the majors now."

"I simply couldn't continue like that. If I had, I'd have burned myself out and be out of the game. I didn't want to do that. I still enjoy golf. I enjoy playing golf. I enjoy the competition, the work that's required to get ready for competition. I want to continue to enjoy it."

So he backed off on his schedule, cut down to "the majors and those tournaments I feel it's necessary to play to prepare for the majors," he said.

With that restricted schedule, "I can't expect to win (the routine events) as frequently as before. I can't expect to compete for leading money-winner because I don't play enough. But that is no longer among my priorities."

His priorities now are the majors — the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA. His goal is in those alone. And his only disappointment for the year was in the Masters, where he finished second to Tom Watson.

Reflecting on Summer Without Baseball

By HAL BOCK

AP Sports Writer

Some idle reflections on a summer without baseball.

Weren't you impressed with the urgency with which both sides approached negotiations once the players' strike began?

After a fruitless 30-minute session Friday, they took the weekend off. Who wants to work on Saturday and Sunday, anyway?

Monday also was ignored, perhaps in observance of a three-day baseball-less weekend.

The two sides were to get around to talking again today. Now we understand negotiating tactics include cooling off periods but it seems a strike that affects the economies of whole cities and thousands of persons above and beyond the striking players deserves a bit more effort than that.

Three days with no talks seems a bit too casual, doesn't it? We know baseball is a laid-back, relaxed pastime, but this is no time for that approach.

The calendar is an important part of this strike. Once nine days go by — that's next Saturday — if the players are still on strike, their free agent rights could be delayed for one full year.

That means the players who would complete six years of major league service this season, might not be able to enter the market this November and other players could have their six-year free agent timetables delayed by one full year.

The same thing is true for salary arbitration rights. To qualify for that benefit, players must have two full years of service. Anything less doesn't count.

Why nine days? The reason is that for purposes of measuring major league service, 172 days is considered a full season. But the calendar season from opening day in

Another Meeting Set On Baseball Strike

NEW YORK (AP) —

Management and players were set to meet at the bargaining table today for the first time since the baseball strike began, and it was learned that another high-level meeting would take place in New York.

Baltimore Orioles owner Edward Bennett Williams, George Steinbrenner, owner of the New York Yankees, and perhaps Texas Rangers owner Eddie Chiles planned to meet today with baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in an effort to get talks moving.

There was a possibility that still more owners would join the summit.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said negotiations would begin at 2 p.m. at the Doral Inn in New York.

The two sides have not met since Friday, the first-day games were cancelled because of the strike.

Chiles told a Dallas radio station Monday that he no longer was content to take a passive role in the strike. He said "somebody has to do something to make things happen. I'm not content to sit back in Fort Worth and wait for something to happen in New York."

A source with the Rangers said Chiles would travel to New York to meet with other owners and was expected in the city by Monday night.

Williams, Steinbrenner, Houston Astros owner John McMillen and Peter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers played key roles in avoiding a regular-season strike last year after a spring-training walkout over a new collective bargaining agreement wiped out 92 exhibition games.

Players Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies, Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos and Mark Belanger of the Baltimore Orioles were named to conduct the players' side of the negotiations. Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, removed himself from the bargaining team after negotiations stalled.

Friday.

In a statement released Monday, management negotiator Ray Grebey said he would remain at the bargaining table despite suggestions that he, too, replace himself. The statement did not say who made the suggestions.

The board of directors of the Major League Player Relations Committee, which negotiates for the owners, said its bargaining team "is in place and will remain in place," the statement said.

Management bargainers also include American League President Lee MacPhail; his National League counterpart, Chub Feeney, and attorneys.

The only issue remains that of compensation to teams losing free agents. Both sides have offered variations on the owners' original proposal that would have compensated a team losing a "premium" free agent through the re-entry draft with a player of major league caliber. Previously, compensation had been a pick in the amateur draft.

The New York Times quoted one owner, who requested anonymity, as saying, "The thing is so set in concrete I don't see any resolution. We won't be back soon. Positions will harden. There's no turning back."

Through today, 64 games have been cancelled by the strike, 30 in the National League and 34 in the American League. Thus far, owners have shared in a mutual assistance fund set up more than a year ago to handle such a contingency. The fund provides about $100,000 per game to be shared by the two clubs.

After 153 playing dates have been cancelled, or on June 24, the owners have a $50 million insurance plan that will pay the club $100,000 per date for 500 dates, or until Aug. 8.

According to Donald Fehr, general counsel for the players association, players stand to lose about $4 million a week in salaries. Some players on at least one club, the Montreal Expos, found themselves in the curious situation of owing the club money. Since some of the Expos have received bimonthly installments on their salaries, they actually have been overpaid, the club said.

"It becomes a fairly complicated payroll procedure," Expos President and General Manager John McHale said. "Some of the players are ahead of us so far as their pay is concerned."

"We aren't about to make things unduly tough for anyone, but this is hardball they are playing now. We will pay everything that we are contracted for, and we expect to be paid what is due us," McHale said.

At the same time, the Expos said they lost about $900,000 in gate receipts and concessions because they did not play their weekend series with Cincinnati. Cancellation of Philadelphia's series with Atlanta cost the Phillies $750,000, the club said.

Steinbrenner, Williams Determine Strike Fate

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

The men to watch in the backroom wheeling and dealing efforts to end the present baseball strike are George Steinbrenner and Edward Bennett Williams.

They were instrumental in cracking the impasse before. They are apt to do it again, sooner than most people expect. They are not sitting around counting their insurance payments while ballparks decay. They are pressing for immediate action.

Williams, eminent Washington, D.C., lawyer and sole owner of the Baltimore Orioles, flew into New York overnight. The first man he looked up was Steinbrenner, the shipbuilding tycoon who signs those million-dollar contracts with the New York Yankees.

They had a Tuesday date with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in the latter's 16th floor Rockefeller Plaza offices.

Their mission: Get the strike off the track. Get the ball players back in the parks. Get those turnstiles clicking, those hot dogs, peanuts and team pennants moving again, players out of multi and into the dugouts.

Play ball!

Neither would admit it or even comment on their roles but they are spearheads of the game's "New Breed" — a corps of bright, forward-looking owners anxious to pull the sport out of its musty, archaic wedlock with tradition and transplant it into the reality of the 20th Century.

"The owners are sticking together," insisted Williams. "We are working through the committee — we are 100 per cent behind the committee (Player Relations Committee)," said Steinbrenner, "but there is no reason the owners shouldn't have some input. We are the ones involved."

The story of strike developments cannot be found in newspaper headlines nor in the communiques from negotiating sessions. It's taking place behind the scenes between a few adamant traditionalists, still looking for Kenesaw Mountain Landis to poke his craggy-haired head over the box seat railing, and the progressives who realize baseball has changed and can never be the same again.

It's now big business — live TV, Madison Avenue marketing, conglomerate financing, tax writeoffs, million-dollar-a-year salaries and players who come to the ballpark with an agent on one side and a lawyer on the other, laden with briefcases.

It's a game that Steinbrenner, boss of the giant American Shipbuilding Company, knows well. The same for Williams, former owner of the Washington Redskins, one of the keenest legal minds in the country.

They are buttressed by other enterprising club owners who feel baseball needs fresh, new vision and better understanding of modern conditions — men such as Peter O'Malley of the Dodgers, John McMullen of the Astros and Eddie Chiles of the Rangers.

Despite protestations of unity among the owners, it's well-known that there is a sharp schism in the ranks.

TENNIS

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Kathy Rinaldi advanced to the second round of the $125,000 BMW women's grass court tennis championships, despite a loss in the qualifying competition.

Rinaldi was defeated in the weekend prequalifying by Australian Debi Freeman, but she was given a last-minute place in the main draw when sixth-seeded Sylvia Hanika of West Germany withdrew due to an ankle injury. Rinaldi responded with a clear-cut 6-0, 6-2 victory over fellow American Terry Holladay.

In other matches, Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia, the No. 7 seed, was defeated 6-4, 6-4 by West Germany's Claudia Kohde; eighth-seeded Dianne Fromholtz of Australia bowed 6-4, 6-2 to Ivanna Madruga of Argentina; Andrea Jaeger, the No. 3 seed, downed Sherry Acker, 6-3, 6-0; 10th-seeded Bettina Bunge ousted Susan Leo of Australia 6-2, 6-2; Tracy Austin defeated Betsy Nagelsen 6-3, 6-3; Martina Navratilova downed British junior champion Kate Brasher 6-1, 6-0; fourth-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia scored a 6-2, 7-5 victory over Lindsay Morse.

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Patrick McEnroe was eliminated in the second round of a tennis tournament for juniors at the Ambrosiano Club.

John McEnroe's younger brother lost 6-1, 6-4 to Czechoslovakia's Brano Strankovic after ousting Italy's Stefano Scotti 6-0, 6-3 in a first-round match.

In other matches, Strankovic defeated Paolo Zoli of Italy 6-3, 6-2 and Michael Westpahl of West Germany downed Antonio Padovani of Italy 6-3, 6-0 in the second round.

In the first round of women's singles, Myriam Schropp of West Germany, defeated Linda Ferrando of Italy, 6-2, 6-3, and Barbara Romano of Italy beat Andrea Ritez of Hungary 7-5, 6-2.

Monterey Seizes 5A Schoolboy Baseball Title

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The teacher taught the pupils how to play baseball as Lubbock Monterey's swift base stealers ran past defending champion Pearland 7-3 for the Class 5A state schoolboy baseball title.

In the other championship game Monday night at the rain-delayed state tournament, South San Antonio West responded to the cheers of its noisy fans by nipping Lubbock Estacado 3-2 in Class 4A.

The state championship games in Class A, 2A and 3A were set for today — the sixth day of a tournament that would have been over Friday except for postponements brought on by heavy rains. The tournament was the longest since play began in 1949.

Monterey stole four bases in squeezing seven runs out of three of its five singles against Pearland. The thefts gave the Plainsmen 13 for the two-game tournament, breaking the record of 10 set by Austin High School 23 years ago. Monterey had nine stolen bases in its semifinal victory over Nacogdoches Friday for a single game record.

Two key Monterey plays came on sacrifice bunts in the first and third innings. Both times with a runner on first and no outs, Pearland starting pitcher Doug Kneupper grabbed the bunts and threw to second too late to get the lead runner.

This helped Monterey score three runs on a lone single in the first and two runs on a single in the third. Monterey scored in the sixth without a hit as Doug Hatch walked, stole second, went to third on a bad throw by catcher Jeff DeWitt and scored on a sacrifice fly.

Pearland's last chance at getting back in the game fizzled in the sixth when pinchhitter Ron Coker lined to second baseman Darrell Kitten with two out and the bases loaded.

The championship was the third for Monterey Coach Bobby Moegle, whose teams also won in 1972 and 1974. A member of Moegle's 1971 state finalist team, Bill Bratcher, coached Pearland to the title in 1980 over San Antonio Roosevelt, but he could not beat his former mentor.

South San Antonio trailed 2-0 until the fifth when two walks, a sacrifice bunt, Floyd Haman's two-out, two-run single and a passed ball by Estacado catcher Dewayne Slaughter allowed South San to score three runs on one hit for the 4A championship.

Slaughter appeared to have pounced on the loose ball in time to throw out pinchrunner Adam Trevino at the plate, but he hurried his throw — perhaps because of the screaming South San crowd — and it went wild.

Joe Williamson struck out four in 2-23 innings of no-hit relief for the South San victory, his 13th without a loss and the team's 22nd in a row in a 30-2 season. Williamson also won the semifinal game on a three hitter over McKinney, 10-2.

Two lucky bounces helped South's cause. One came in the second inning on a wild throw that bounced and hit an Estacado coach, preventing an Estacado runner from scoring from third. The other was a smash by Joe Benavides in the fourth that bounced off first base into the hands of South San second baseman Pito Garcia, who threw Benavides out with lead runner Danny Griffin stopping at third.

The Class 3A championship pairings were completed when Bowie dealt Brownsboro its first shutout of the season, 2-0, on Nathan Dunson's three-hitter, and Somerset went eight innings to defeat Pflugerville 6-4 in the other semifinal contest.

Defending champion Waskom resumed a game suspended from Saturday after one scoreless inning and edged Pottsboro 9-7 in the 2A semifinals. In that game Waskom broke its own 2A record by scoring seven runs in a single inning. It also broke its own base-stealing record of five for a single game and six for the tournament by swiping eight.

That puts Waskom within reach of Monterey's new record.

The defending champions will play Shiner for the title. Shiner defeated Gladewater Union Grove 13-6 on Saturday. Dunson got great defensive play from third baseman Scott Weber in beating Brownsboro. Weber made four fine stops and throws to get Brownsboro runners at first.

Brownsboro pitcher Billy Ferguson only allowed two bloop singles, but they both came in the fourth inning when Bowie scored its two runs. The second by Vince Carr bounced past leftfielder

Steve Lockwood for two RBIs.

Somerset and Pflugerville were tied 4-4 at the end of the seventh inning, but Somerset pitcher Ricky Cruz walked with a 3-2 count and the bases loaded to drive in the winning run in the first extra inning. Mark Mares drove in an insurance run with a single.

Cruz extended his record to 16-0, allowing only three hits, striking out nine and walking one.

SPORTS TALK: JOE CHARBONEAU

Interviewed by Howard Siner

Joe Charboneau, 25, an outfielder for the Cleveland Indians, became the 1980 AL Rookie of the Year by hitting .289 with 23 home runs and 87 RBIs. His flake image quickly made "Super Joe" a sort of folk hero. He was even the subject of a popular song.

Do you worry about a "sophomore jinx"?

No, there's no such thing. No jinx. Really, there's no such thing. It's really how hard you work. What you put into it.

Have you set any personal goals for this season?

No. Just first place. That would be nice. That's probably the only thing. We're winning. That's all that counts, really. That's what we want to do. So if we keep winning, I guess we'll do OK.

At this point how does Cleveland shape up? Do the Indians really believe they can be a contender?

We've always felt we had a chance. We've had some good acquisitions in the off-season. And we've got a good hitting team. We weren't hitting real good early. But I just think we've got a good chance. We've got as good a chance as the Yankees (the defending AL East champs).

Are you concerned about duplicating your big stats from the 1980 season?

No, not really. Because it's too hard. There's too much pressure. Hopefully, yes. It doesn't look good the way I've been swinging lately. But hopefully someday I'll get hot. And I'd like to reach what I did last year — even better it.

Did you worry a lot about your hitting during the early part of the season when you were in a slump?

No. I've always been a slow starter. I'm just trying to swing the bat, and hopefully they'll fall in. Lately they haven't been falling in too often. But that's all I can hope to do.... Usually June's my best month.

Did you do much in the off-season to stay in good condition going into your second year?

That's the best shape I've ever been in — this year. I was running five miles a day. During the season, I swing a weighted bat, lift some weights, stretch. I just lift once a week during the season and do my stretching. And just hope for the best.

What kind of baseball skills are you working on now?

Everything. Seriously. Outfielding, base running, hitting. Really. I've got a long way to go before I'll be happy.

As a righty hitter, you platoon a lot, don't you?

Oh, yeah. I usually play against left-handers. If right-handers start, I don't usually play because I platoon. It's me and George Orta. We trade off.

Are there certain teams you like to face? Personal favorites?

I think my best stats were against the Orioles last year. For home runs and RBIs. I like playing against the Yankees, the Orioles, Brewers. I like to play the tougher teams.

Have particular coaches or players on the Indians helped you a lot as a newcomer? Who has helped the most?

Everybody. The whole team, the whole coaching staff. They've just been super. It's a great team to play for because everybody gets along with each other. That's really something that's hard to do for a team. This team really gets along good.

Cleveland has a lot of guys who haven't played on a winner. What's the spirit like on the club?

I think everybody on this team is a winner. It's really the way they conduct themselves. And act. So I really think this team was meant to win.
