Livestock Fair To Be Held At Comanche

NEW YORK, June 30.—David Hirschfield, commissioner of accounts, who was delegated by Mayor Hylan, in December, 1921, to investigate charges that American history text books used in the public schools contained anti-American propaganda and besmirched American traditions tonight made public his report in which he specifically condemned eight histories selected by the superintendent of schools and took to task a number of well known persons and societies.

It would seem said the commissioner, "as if these authors wanted to convey the impression that our history, our government and everything else American, is all wrong and that the sole hope for American progress lies in our renouncing our American traditions, surrendering our American spirit and becoming again an integral part of the British Empire, as Cecil Rhodes directed in the first draft of his will."

Chaumont, which during the war, was general headquarters of the American expeditionary forces, is situated on the bank of the river Marne.

It was here that Marshal Joffre in 1914 stayed the onslaught of the invaders and from this place General Pershing in 1918 sent forth his American legions to dislodge th enemy. The American ambassador Myron T. Herrick and General Wright, represented General Pershing as honored guests today.

M. Poincare, in the course of his address, said:

"America, which was not bound by the pact of September, 1914, and had the right to conclude a separate peace, did not adopt the Versailles treaty; It judged the having thrown its sword into the European balance and making it swing towards the right, it could no longer mix too intimately with the agitated policies of the old world, and withdrew within itself, without, however, depriving us of its ancient and faithful friendship."

HARDING SUGAR POLICY IS FLAYED

Cordell Hull Charges That Interests Dominate President

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 3.—President Hardings decision not to consider modification of the tariff rates on sugar was characterized today by Chairman Hull of the democratic national committee, as an "utterly indefensible course."

The president's stand, which was made known at the White House Friday, revealed, Mr. Hull declared, "the extent of the absolute domination of republican national leaders and the Harding administration by the sugar tariff beneficiaries and price-fixers."

No Relief.

"The American people," the committee chairman said, "will be amazed at the cool and complacent announcement of President Harding that they are to be denied relief from extortionate sugar prices through a 50 per cent tariff reduction.

"Every present sugar trade fact and every economic law offers convincing evidence that a 50 per cent tariff reduction would result in immediately substantial reductions of existing exorbitant sugar prices as was recently effected in Canada, thereby relieving the people at the rates of hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

LIQUOR BARRED IN U. S. WATERS AFTER JUNE 10

Department Ruling Causes Consternation To Foreign Offices

NO LOOP HOLES

Only Medicinal Booze To Be Permitted On Inbound Ships

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 3. — The treasury tossed a bomb on the international doorstep tonight in its new regulations carrying out the supreme court barring all beverage liquors from territorial waters of the United States after 12:01, a. m. June 10. No loop holes have been left, according to a treasury spokesman, and the court's recent construction of the dry law will be rigidly enforced.

Having failed to find any way by which conflict with foreign laws could be avoided, the treasury based its new ship liquor rules on a literal reading of the court's opinion and prepered to let come what may. Its only hope of alleviating a situation which most officials agree will be embarrassing to international commerce, was said to lie in remedial legislation from the next congress.

Medicine Exempt

Except for the exemption granted medicinal liquor, the usual immunity accorded diplomats and the privileges allowed foreign vessels of war, the regulations permit of no inbound passage of alcoholic beverage. Consideration is given, however, to ships forced by the extremity of distress to put into an American harbor. But even such vessels, if they have liquor aboard, must show that the necessity was grave, and "the proof must be convincing," after which they will be required to give bond for faithful observance of the American dry law.

Drastic Ruling

Concerning the hope among foreign maritime powers or relief from what is regarded as one of the most drastic interpretations ever given by the supreme court, some treasury officials felt tonight that congress might find a way of circumventing the import deadline. Others were convinced that the barred zone was due to remain until a change was made in the eighteenth amendment. In this connection it was pointed out by the latter that the decision of the supreme court was based fundamentally on the sweeping provisions of the amendment rather than on the enforcement act and that the act and that the court held regardless of whether liquor for beverage uses was being imported, its being carried for any such purpose within the three mile limit constituted transportation, which is specifically forbidden by the amendment. Legislation to relieve the situation from the foreign viewpoint, it was contended, could scarcely be other than in contravention of the constitution and therefore invalid.

Mahon, international president of the street car employes union issued an open letter instructing the men to allow their officers to continue negotiations with street car officials and with Mayor William E. Dever, acting as intermediary. President Mahon asked the men to wait a reasonable length of time before taking action that would result in a strike.

Republican Chairman Puts Hull On Carpet Over League of Nations Issue

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Reviewing various statements with reference to the league of natons by prominent democrats, Chairman Adams of the republican national committee, in a statement issued today, called upon Chairman Hull of the democratic national committee, to "set forth accurately and positively" his organization's position on the question.

"The chairman of the democratic national committee," said Mr. Adams, "has been expressing great solicitude regarding the attitude of the republican party organization toward the league of nations.

"Where does the democratic national organization line up in th league of nations fight? Does it hold the view of former President Wilson or has it been converted to the view point of Senator James Reed of Missouri?"

The republican chairman's statement asserted that former Governor Cox of Ohio, democratic candidate for president in 1920, was "muzzled" by a meeting at democratic national headquartees after he had announced his intention upon returning from Europe to tour the country on behalf of the United States membership in the leag

BANDIT CHIEFS STILL ARGUING

Prospects For Release Of Captives Growing Brighter

TSAO CHWANG, June 3.—Prospects for the release of the remaining eight captives now held in the hands of the Suchow train bandits continue bright, the only difficulty being a possible split among the bandit chiefs. The foremost leaders of the brigands, Sun Mei-Yao, Kuo Chit-Sai and others of the faction which is for aligning with the army, tried to persuade Bobo Liu and the recalcitrants to agree that those wishing to enlist may do so and those who do not may go their own way on their own responsibility.

He'd Kill President

Bobo, said to be the leader of the outlaws, who would continue the brigandage trade, is declared in the argument which ensued to have threatened the life of General Chen of the Chinese government negotiating for the release of the prisoners.

The bandit chieftain was quieted, however, and the conference continued. It finally was agreed to resume the registration of the bandits in the army.

Recovery Is Doubtful, Physicians Declare; Assailant Also Hurt

With a gapping knife wound in the neck and severe slashes across the face and chest, John Skaggs, local truck driver, lies in a serious condition at the general hospital as the result of a Sunday afternoon fight at Seventh and Travis streets. C. T. Holcomb is being held in the city jail in connection with the case.

It was reported from the hospital early Monday morning that Skaggs stood a chance for recovery despite the fact that he had lost a tremendous amount of blood. Unless complications set in, it was stated, he might pull through. The outer jugular vein on the right side of the neck was severed, his face was slashed in three different places and a deep but superficial wound was inflicted in the right side of the breast.

Started Early.

The trouble that ended in the near fatality, had its inception earlier Sunday afternoon. According to Roy Wilemon, 1713 N. Ninth, who witnessed the entire affair, the fight started when Skaggs and Holcomb got into an argument over a rumpus the latter had had with another man. In a statement made to Sheriff Pat Murphy immediately after the cutting, Wilemon declared that Holcomb and a man known as Bud Tucker had come to blows Sunday afternoon while driving through the country.

Later, Wilemon asserted, the party came to town and after alighting in front of the court house, the argument between Skaggs and Holcomb began.

Tried to Separate Them.

"They wrestled around a minute while we tried to separate them," Wilemon told the sheriff, "and then carl (Holcomb) pulled a knife and began cutting on John. I grabbed him and tried to hold him, but he sliced at me and cut a hole in the seat of my trousers. I turned him loose, then he started to chase John.

"They ran out into the street, between a couple of cars, and then when John turned around Carl lunged at him and cut him."

Story Substantiated.

Other witnesses substantiated, in substance, Wilemon's story and told how Skaggs, with blood spurting far out from the wound in his neck, ran to the rear of the house at 700 Travis street where he sank to the ground. All those who witnessed the affair declared Skaggs had no weapon of any kind.

An ambulance was called and he was rushed to the hospital where Dr. M. M. Walker gave him medical attention. It was stated that had attention been delayed 5 minutes longer the man would have bled to death.

Immediately after the fight, Holcomb disappeared and was not found until about a half hour later. He was arrested at the home of Sid Ireland, 1010 Seventh street, after Plainclothesman Scott of the city police department had followed him by a trail of blood. A deep gash extended across Holcomb's left wrist, it having been sustained, it was said, during the fight.

Skaggs has been a resident of Wichita Falls for several years, it was said, and has been employed by the J. W. Clemons Trucking company. His home is at 1408 Sixth street, where he has a wife and three small children. He is about 25 years of age.

Holcomb is unmarried and is said to have been making his home at rooming houses here.

OKLAHOMA A&M TAKEN OVER BY WALTON FACTION

Wilson Steps In President's Chair With Officers At Side

RED FLAG HOISTED

Political Rumpus Comes To Head With Fight On Eskridge

Associated Press Dispatch

STILLWATER, Okla., June 3.—Accompanied by the adjutant general of the Oklahoma national guard and four other officers, all in civilian clothes, George Wilson, former farmer-labor leader and non-partisan league organizer, tonight took possession of the keys of Oklahoma A. & M. college. Wilson was chosen head of the college by the state board of agriculture, two weeks after the board had been reorganized by Governor J. C. Walton.

Accompanied by his national guard escort, Wilson arrived here at 11 o'clock this morning from Oklahoma City.

Red Flag Run-Up

President J. B. Eskridge capitulated and handed the keys to Adjutant General B. H. Markham at 6 o'clock this evening, through his secretary, E. C. Albright.

A red flag, which was run to the top of the flagpole on the campus about the time Wilson arrived, with the college colors floating below it, was hauled down by one of the military escort. He crammed it into his pocket and hoisted the college flag, orange and black, to the top of the pole.

Eskridge Talks

"Sending this military escort with George Wilson to take over the college is like using a cannon to shoot a jay bird," said President J. B. Eskridge. Before he consented to relinquish his authority, he telephoned John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture at Oklahoma City, and announced that in turning over the keys he followed Whitehurst's advice.

Whitehurst, standing with one other member of the board, stood three to two against Wilson's appointment, against the three members of the board named by the governor, it was said, at the May 19 meeting, at which Wilson was elected.

Condemns Legion

Wilson was one of the chief supporters of the governor in the primary campaign in the state a year ago, and was only dropped from prominence in farm-labor ranks when he was alleged to have said in conversation:

"Every time I see an American legion button, I would like to shoot a hole in it."

Eskridge brought suit last week in district court at Oklahoma City to prevent Wilson from taking charge of the college until July 1, when Eskridge's contract exnires. He lost in a decision handed down late yesterday.

In his suit, Eskridge alleged that Wilson was concerned in a conspiracy to halt the audit of the books of the college, now under way, following the suspension of the financial secretary, M. J. Otey. Eskridge charged Otey's books would be found $100,000 short.

National guard officers accompanying Wilson were Adjutant General B. H. Markham, Major Charles Pellax, Major Joe Campbell, Major Abe Herskowitz, and Captain A. H. Ferguson, they submitted to a search to prove that they were unarmed.

General Markham announced that he was acting only under orders from the governor.

When to Get Up.

A delegation of nearly 1,000 students of the college and residents of this city, which called at the governor's office at the capitol a week ago was met with the remark by the executive:

"If I must, I will take charge up there at Stillwater and tell you when to go to bed and when to get up."

This was commented upon here at the time as a threat of martial law. The governor made the remark after he said he had heard reports that if Wilson went to Stillwater he would not be allowed to remain and would be tarred and feathered.

Dallas Drops Second To Spudders, 8 to 5

STEERS REGISTER ERRORS AND FAIL TO STOP LOCAL SCORING BUT BEAT SPUDDERS HITTING

Meine Lets Dallas Down With Ten Hits But Keeps Them Scattered; Home Runs By Vache and Hamilton Count Three.

The Spuds got right again yesterday afternoon and by making their seven hits count when they were needed, gave the Dallas Steers lesson number two, trimming the Southerners 8 to 5. Meine pitched a good game and although he allowed 10 hits they were scattered and came at times when they were of no avail, the Steers being lucky to count the five that they did.

A large Sunday crowd saw the game, probably 3000 people entering the gates The cars were lined up for blocks and a half hour after the game the stream of vehicles leading from the park was still steady.

Bryan and Morris were both used by the visitors in an attempt to stem the tide of scores that kept swelling, but neither seemed able to keep the Spudders away from the bags, and each let a few runs across. Bryan took the mound in the first and got rattled for enough hits, that with the assistance of a few errors on the part of the Steers scored three of the local gang. That first stanza was enough to get any pitcher's goat and as a result four more were counted in the next two.

Steers Make Errors

Errors were counted right and left by the Steers, five in all being made by the visitors who seemed to have unusual trouble in handling batted balls. Grounders hit at Vache seemed to be good for a base at any stage of the game, and some of the fielders were almost as unlucky in stopping the ball.

Bescher Started things popping when he went to first after receiving the ball on his shoulder. Coombs hit an easy one to Mathes, which should have been handled easily, but the shortstop juggled it for a few moments and then let it roll on past him while Bescher went to third and Coombs took second. Buddy Tanner leaned into the second ball sent over and Vache had to back up to get it on the bounce, letting Bescher and Coombs come across for the first two.

Two was not enough, so Bryan walked Cotter, who went to second on Grigsby's sacrifice, Tanner taking second and third, with no outs. White sent a hot one past second and Buddy beat the throw in, finishing the counting for the first stanza.

The Steers got Wano on in the first with one out, but that was the best they could do, for White, Berger and Cotter completed a fast double play that ended the attempt to score before it was well begun.

Four More Scores

The story of the second and third innings was about like the first, with Wichita counting twice in each, bringing the score up enough that the one made in the sixth was not necessary. Bischoff smacked one of his two base hits rattling against the green wall in left center field, and then went to third when Meine sacrificed past second. Bescher walked, stole second and came in behind Bischoff when Coombs sent a high one to deep center field, where Vache received it. Tanner went out to left field.

Mathes error in the third, allowed a couple of counters, after one was out, when Grigsby, who ogt on second with a hard two bagger to the left field fence, scored when Mathes let a ball hit by Berger get past him. Another double by Bischoff let him step on the plate before the massacre stopped. The last one was hung up in the sixth when a motly bit of playing on the part of the entire Dallas infield allowed Bischoff to count again.

Vache Hits Homer

Vache made up for his poor fielding, to an extent, in the second when he lifted the ball over the left field barrier with a wallop that gave it a ride well beyond the fence. However it was the only hit that he got in the entire contest, and when it is considered that at least three of the local scores were directly due to his blunders, his day can not be counted as much of a success. He did not seem to be able to hold the ball whether it was fast or slow, and did a great deal toward losing the game.

A couple more came in the sixth when Mathes gave one a ride for a round trip, driving in Wano ahead of him. His homer went over the right field fence, and when last seen was traveling in the general direction of Jolly. The homers counted three of the scores, and the Steers were unable to get very far after the sixth. In the ninth, Adams, who relieved Lingle catching, hit for a couple of bases, but stayed there. Allen got to third with an awful wallop, but was thrown out at the plate when he tried to make home on an overthrow, which Bischoff recovered in time to relay to Meine.

The game showed clearly that the Spuds are very able to take care of the Steers, both at batting and in the field, for they had things all their own way, getting hits when they were needed and holding the visitors in the tights.

THE HOMER WILLIAMS

Ken Williams, left, and Cy Williams, in battle array.

..Two years ago the word Ruth was synonymous with Home Run. Last year several gentry tried to link theih names with the word. Ken Williams of the Browns, Long George Kelly, Tilly Walker and others stepped into the limelight as circuit clouters. This season, however, the two Williams boys, Kenneth of the Browns and Cy of the Phillies, are hogging the spotlight.

Criqui Receives Congratulations

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 3.—In the new York home of a war comrade, Eugene Criqui, who yesterday plucked the world featherweight boxing crown from the platinum grey head of John Patrick Kilbane in the sixth round of a 15-round match at the Polo grounds, received the congratulations of men in all parts of the world.

Seated in an easy chair, he read the congratulations of men high in French officialdom, of boxing men of Australia, England, France.

There was one from Georges Carpentier; it said:

"Carry on Gene."

"I intend to keep my promise to box Johnny Dundee in a match for the title," said Criqui, "in New York within 60 days and then I want to go back to France, whatever happens."

"I want to say this for Kilbane; he is as gallant ring foe as I ever met. I only hope that I can be as clever a title holder."

"It's a wise Irishman who knows when he's got enough," said Kilbane today through his smile, "and I'm not foolish. Maybe six years ago I could have taken such a crack as Criqui crashed to my jaw with his right yesterday and returned for more. But surely not now."

Wheezes From The Press Coop

By Don Weldon

Eight to five!

* * *

That's number two—now for the third!

* * *

"I came, I saw, I conquered"
Said some ancient Roman guy;
The Steers like the quotation
And thought they'd have a try.
So they all came up to Spudland,
To duplicate the feat,
They came, they saw—but conquered?
—say!
The whole darn gang got beat!

* * *

Nine little Spudders took 12 Dallas Steers to a drubbing yesterday. They used two pitchers again against the local batters, and a couple of other substitutes in an attempt to stop Walter Salms' gang, but even that failed to help them any. The Spudders were just naturally too fast for them.

* * *

The Dallas infielders handled the ball like a hot potato yesterday afternoon, and juggled it around long enough for three runs to get across on errors. They might have had a chance if they had tightened up their fielding, for they were hitting fairly well, although their hits were pretty scattered.

* * *

Vache knocked a homer,
Just to show what he could do;
Hamilton watched it take a ride,
Then promptly hit one, too!

* * *

Buddy Tanner's long drive in the fourth gave him three bases and hit the fence. A few inches more and it would have been over. Buddy has been hitting the old apple for some time, and looks mighty good in there.

* * *

There were seven two-base hits knocked in the meelee yesterday, four of them being poled by the Spudders. There were not so many hits during the battle, but those that did go were for extra innings a good part of the time. They were all leaning into it.

* * *

It looks like Wichita Falls is getting back into things again. They passed the Steers in standings when they took another win yesterday. If the game goes to the Spuds this afternoon they will be in a position to give the Southerners the laugh—for the time being, at least. The lead now amounts to exactly two points, and a game won or lost would change positions again. The steers and Spuds have two more battles scheduled here today and tomorrow, and then they will journey to Dallas for a couple of days. It looks like the local gang is going to be well ahead when the fight is over, unless they spring some surprises within the next few days.

* * *

Miene's in there pitching,
And three Steers come to bat;
They all go out a-fannin'—
Now what do you think of that!

* * *

Three up—three down. That's one way of getting rid of batters! Meine duplicated Stauffer's feat of Saturday.

RUEL THREATS TO PASS HARRY

Heilmann Suffers Slump And Senator Catcher Gains On Him

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, June 3.—Harold "Muddy" Ruel, catcher for the Washington Senators, is challenging Harry Heilmann, the Detroit veteran, for batting honors of the American league. Ruel gained 46 points during the week, and is runner-up to the Tiger slugger with an average of .403. Heilmann sufered a slight batting slump, but still tops the players who have participated in 25 or more games with a mark of .425. Dick Reichle of the Red Sox is third with .382.

The figures include games of last Wednesday.

Eddie Collins of the White Sox continues to play brilliantly. From present figures it would appear that Collins is going to have one of his best years. He is leading all major league players in stolen bases with 16 thefts. Only four less than be pilfered all last season. He also is bobnobbing with the leading batters.

Numerous fans and critics predict that Babe Ruth will pass the veteran Philadelphian Cy Williams in home-run hitting before Independence day. Williams has made 18 four-baggers, and Ruth 11. Ruth is leading in total bases with 95, his hits besides the circuit drives including 10 doubles and four triplets. Ruth also leads as a run-getter with 37.

Other leading batters: Cobb, Detroit, .355; Miller, Philadelphia, .352; E. Collins, Chicago, .349; Jamieson, Cleveland, .342; S. Rice, Washington, .339; Burns, Boston, .336; Welch, Philadelphia, .336; Ruth, New York, .333; Witt, New York, .329; Williams, St. Louis, .329.

Johnny Mokan of the Phillies and Clyde Barnhart of the Pirates are making rapid strides toward the top among the batters of the National league. Far down in the list a week ago, they are smashing out base hits regularly. Mokan got 19 blows in his last 10 games, and Barnhart poled 10 hits in six games. Mokan's mark went from .333 to .373, and Barnhart's rose from .311 to .353.

Zack Wheat, Dodger outfielder, increased his lead among the regulars from .417 to .424. He obtained 13 hits in his last six games. His nearest rival is Charley Grimm of the Pirates, who has .400.

Frankie Frisch of the Giants leads the run-getters with 38, and Sammy Bohne of Cincinnati is showing the way to the base-stealers with 11.

"Cy" Williams of the Phillies is in front among the major league home-run hitters with 18.

Williams, besides leading in four-baggers, has made nine doubles and three triplets.

Other leading batters: Southworth, Boston, .379; Bottomley, St. Louis, .376; Mokan, Philadelphia, .373; Hornsby, St. Louis, .370; Frisch, New York, .367; Young, New York, .367; Barnhart, Pittsburgh, .353; Williams, Philadelphia, .351; Neis, Brooklyn, .345; Flack, St. Louis, .345; Bagwell, Boston, .345.

House Frock For Vacation Days

When one summers in the country or at the seashore pretty housefrocks are wanted which may be worn at any hour of the day. There is always the problem of comfort and laundry to consider and busy mothers do not care nearly as much about dressing in the newest pleated styles or the white lace creations offered for summer as they do about being cool, comfortable, rested and free from as much work as possible. House frocks like this one shown help them to look smart and yet dress simply and economically.

Flowered chintz makes the chemise top to this frock. The long sleeves are a protection against the sun but may be cut short if one desires the elbow style. A deep band of navy blue percale makes a border on the chemise and the underskirt is also of the navy blue. The only trimming is a triangular pocket of the navy blue with an organdy rose in colors to match the chintz poised daintly in the center.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. M'PHERSON
Kahn Bldg., 8th and Indiana

Are They Going to Irrigate Any More Land Than Is Now Included in the Two Irrigation Districts?

As far as we know nothing has been decided about taking in additional land. There are too many factors that enter into such a discussion that we will not attempt to answer the question in one issue but will give it attention in further issues.

The first matter to look into is whether there is more land available for irrigation, where it is located, and what kind of land it is.

Surveys have been made for canal lines on both sides of the Wichita river extending into Clay county. The survey of the north side of the river extends beyond Charlie and on the south side one branch extends beyond Dean and another goes out beyond Jolly.

The land in Clay county on the north side of the river is good but lies in a long narrow strip along the river. This means a long ditch to irrigate a comparatively small amount of land.

The land on the south side of the river covered by the line toward Dean, and which drains into the Wichita river is rather rough and is considered by many people as less desirable than on the north side of the river.

The land covered by the line towards Jolly is not so rough but the drainage is all towards the Little Wichita. We will explain what this difference in drainage means later on.

To irrigate the land on either side of the river in Clay county means the formation of a new district or districts and also means long ditch lines. Long ditches are not generally desirable either from the standpoint of the builder or the water user. The builder does not like them as there is so much expense involved for the amount of land covered and the farmer does not like them as there are too many opportunities for the canal to break and too many opportunities for the farmers above to take the water.

Other phases of this important question of additional land to be covered will be considered in further articles.

SOMETHING FOR BABY

(Copyright, 1923, by The Record News. Published by arrangement with the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

There's nothing but a slight jar in the happy holiday of music; a minor note struck by the finger of Fate, slipping upon the keys, as anthems of rejoicing and Christmas carols make the yuletide merry.

A reporter stood yesterday in one of the largest fancy and dry goods stores on Main street, watching the throng of well-dressed buyers, mostly ladies, who were turning over the exquisite stock of Christmas notions and holiday goods.

Presently a little slim, white-faced girl crept timidly through the crowd to the counter. She was dressed in thin calico, and her shoes were patched and clumsy.

She looked about her with a manner half mournful, half scared.

A clerk saw her and came forward.

"Well, what is it?" he asked, rather shortly.

"Please, sir," she answered in a weak voice, "mamma gave me this dime to get something for baby."

"Something for baby, for a dime? Want to buy a Christmas present, eh? Well, now, don't you think you had better run around to a toy shop? We don't keep such things here. You want a tin horse, or a ball, or a jumping jack, now, don't you?"

"Please, sir, mamma said I was to come here. Baby isn't with us now. Mamma told me to get 10 cents worth of crepe, sir, if you please."

ELECTRA POLICE SEIZE WHISKEY

45 Gallons Captured In Raid By City And County Officials

Special Dispatch to Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, June 3.—One of the biggest whiskey hauls made here in a long time was staged late Saturday when city and county officers raided a house two and a half miles northeast of the city and confiscated 45 gallons of corn liquor. The booze was declared to have been of exceptionally high quality.

It was discovered in the loft of a barn and was contained in 4 10-gallon kegs, 3 one-gallon jugs and 1 two-gallon jug.

A man arrested in connection with the find was taken to Wichita Falls Sunday where charges of violating the state prohibition laws will be filed.

Those conducting the raid were City Officers Tom Shook and Horace Massey, Constable P. L. McDonald and Deputy Constable Tom Johnson.

GOVERNMENT TO LOSE REVENUE

Customs Frauds Will Total 150 Millions Officials Say

International News Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Government loss of revenue from customs frauds this year will range around $150,000,000, because congress neglected to provide an adequate force of inspecfors at American ports, revenue officials declared Saturday.

The treasury department, already faced with a large deficit because of the new tariff law, must go to congress and ask for an appropriation far exceeding the present appropriation of $10,000,000, officials assert.

An additional appropriation of $5,000,000 to provide skilled men at principal ports probably will be requested. At New York, principal gateway for imported merchandise, an inadequate force of agents is literally swamped. Import business has risen with the growth of Europe's productive activity.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Moss Saturday ordered all collectors of customs to hold intact the forces of temporary employes and retain their personnel strength at maximum to insure collection of revenues and thorough inspection of imported cargoes.

Treasury reports Saturday indicated that the government has increased its revenues by $200,000,000 in one year under the new tariff law. Total customs collections in the 11 months ended with May amounted to $510,000,000. By the end of the fiscal year, June 30, budget officers estimate that the customs revenues will be more than $550,000,000.

Iroquois Peace Pipe Unlighted As Land Dispute Starts Trouble

Associated Press Dispatch

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 3.—The pipe of peace remained unlighted at today's meeting of the Iroquis confederacy, called to discuss claims of the Six Nations of Indians to lands valued at billions of dollars and which has resulted thus far in a dispute over policy and a clash between pagan and Christian Indians.

Chief Jess Lyon of the Pagan Onondagas, today delivered an ultimatum to the visiting braves. He said: "The doors of the long house will be opened for the pow-wow on two conditions:

"First, that the chiefs of the other five nations take oath that their people have not changed their old form of government. Second, that similar oath be taken that there has been no change in religion since the day our people were found on this continent. Any nation fulfilling these conditions will be admitted to the pow-wow."

The ultimatum brought consternation to the ranks of the visitors. To them it meant the Onondagas were firm in maintaining they alone as keepers of the council fires, had power to call a conference of the six nations.

New Okla. A. & M. Head Can Now Act

Associated Press Dispatch

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 3.—District Judge William H. Zwick dissolved the temporary injunction obtained last Wednesday by J. B. Eckridge, retiring president of Oklahoma A. and M. college, restraining President-elect George Wilson from taking office at Stillwater before July 1. The restraining order was vacated on motion of Attorney General George Short, after lengthy argument. Wilson was preparing to take control of the college. He took the oath of office Friday before Judge Thomas Doyle of the criminal court of appeals and today delivered the notification to the secretary of state and John A. Whitehurst, secretary of the state board of agriculture.

Attorney General Short, who acted at the direction of Governor Walton, attacked the injunction on the ground that the jurisdiction of a court of equity did not extend to such a case; that the plaintiff was not the proper plaintiff; and that charges were made by Eskridge in his petition for the injunction which did not make out a prima facie case.

ACTRESS M. P. NOT KILL-JOY

Woman Elected To Commons Says She Also Represents Men

International News Dispatch

LONDON, June 3.—"I represent men as well as women, and shall resent attempts to impose kill-joy restrictions upon their pleasure."

This was the policy announced by Mrs. Hilton Philipson of Berwick-on-Tweed, who has just been elected as the third active woman member of the house of commons. She will take her seat at once, a seat vacated by her husband as the results of an election dispute.

She outlined her position as follows for International News Service:

"I do not want the impression to go out that I won a feminist election.

"I think all the talk about sex prejudice was exaggerated, and all nonsense."

It was at this point she declared she would not support any "kill-joy" legislation. She continued:

"Women have shown they can trust fellow men and women, and men proved they realize that woman is not barred by her sex from upholding British traditions.

"I am the first member of the theatrical profession who dared to face a critical audience upon the political platform. It has not been easy for me to listen to some of the remarks about the women of my profession who won success through sheer hard work in one of the hardest callings in the world."

Mrs. Philipson, whose stage name was Mabel Russell, appeared in "Half Past Eight," "Within the Law," and other musical comedies before she married Philipson in 1910. She is a Tory in politics.

CANADA

Fifty-two per cent of the farmers of Texas are tenants, and the percentage of tenants is large in many American states. A canadian newspaper says that there are approximately one million people in Canada who were born in the United States, or about 12 per cent of the population of the dominion.

Most of these are to be found on farms in the western provinces. Nearly a hundred million acres of western Canadian lands has been settled by homesteading, and citizens of the United States have accounted for 30 per cent of that settling, as against 20 per cent on the part of the British. In addition, United States citizens are each year the heaviest purchasers of privately held and improved lands and farms.

Movement of American farmers to Canada, according to the Canadian Pacific railway, was in the ascendant when the World war broke out, and the pinnacle was reached in the year 1913 when some 139,000 American citizens crossed the border into the dominion. Since the war, the annual contribution has ranged around 50,000 per year, until the year 1922, when only some 24,000 arrived.

Farmers sell their high-priced land in the middlewest and the northwest all the way from $150 to $200 per acre, and then move to Canada, where they buy farms at an acreage price of less than half of what they sold any of their American land.

It is pointed out that any Aerican renters, facing discouraging conditions and dropping behind with their payments, go to Canada, where they soon hope to be landowners outright, and where the government and the railways hold out very flattering inducements.

Why shouldn't these farmers come to Texas? Why should they prefer the Union Jack to the Stars and Stripes? Why should a million American farmers desert the United States for the dominion? Why should land tenancy be ever on the increase in Texas and other American states?

FORD AND HEARST

Henry Ford will have the backing of William Randolph Hearst for the presidency if Ford will run only as an independent. Moreover, if the presidency of the United States were to be settled by popular vote today, the publisher says that Henry Ford would be president, and that Ford is the man who should have all the people's support. Moreover, again, the publisher says that the political machinery of both the national parties is in the hands of the old line reactionaries, and they control the delegates and the parties.

To clench the argument, the publisher says that he is unalterably opposed to the entry of the United States into the league of nations or the world court, and he believes that the republican party will go down to one of the most decisive defeats in its history in the coming presidential elections, and that the so-called foreign policy of the republican party will be responsible for its defeat.

Thus it will be seen that the country is in a bad way; the party of Lincoln is controlled by reactionaries; the party of Wilson is controlled by reactionaries; Ford's only hope is to make the race as an independent, and Warren G. Harding is to lead the elephant through the slaughter house in 1924.

Meanwhile the mystery man of Michigan continues to walk in the middle of the road. He is not taking the advice of publishers. He is not taking the advice of politicians. He is nut sputtering about the league of nations or an international world court.

He is buying railroads, glass factories and coal fields. He is buying timbered lands. He is loaning the city of Detroit 4 per cent money, millions of it. He is harnessing the waterpower of Michigan and Minnesota and Wisconsin.

He is telling the representatives of the press that productive industry should be increased, that there should be no idle labor in America, that the minimum wage for a worker should be above the dead line of a living wage, and everywhere the country over the politicians are holding conferences, and the farmers and the wage workers are enjoying the play.

Lafellette does not know which way to turn; Borah does not know which way to turn; Hiram Johnson is in Europe studying Egyptian lore; Senator Capper is pounding the life out of the so-called sugar trust; Senator Brookhart is gathering statistics to show that the American railways have a value of $10,000,000,000 less than the experts claim; Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi is wondering if the 1920 program can be repeated in 1924; and the farm producers and wage workers are wondering if prosperity is to occupy the throne next year, and, if so, would a change in national administration benefit the great mass of American wealth producers.

Individuals are nothing; a brisk foreign demand for the surplus products of the farm and the surplus of finished products of the factory and mill is everything.

Isn't it queer that the mystery man of American politics can keep all the people talking while he is saying nothing? It never happened before. What is the psychology of the thing? How long will it last, and how will it end?

Senator Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona called at the White House and told President Harding that the people of the West are not interested in foreign politics. All they need is $350,000,000,000 for reclamation purposes. How modest!

COTTON

"Two things have become impressed on the cotton trade here during the last week," says the New York Times trade reviewer. "One is that the crop is not only late in making its start but that outside of Texas and parts of Oklahoma, it is doing poorly, owing to the excessive rains and unseasonably cold weather for the month of may. The other is that the supply of cotton available until the new crop come in on the market is inadequate to meet spinners needs without considerable curtailment of the activities of the mills. Texas alone of the whole tier of cotton states has recently sent in encouraging reports as to the progress of the crop. It is true that Texas produces a third of the crop but in every other state outside of Texas the report is unfavorable." If there is a famine crop coming there should be velvet for the producer this fall.

—o—

REASON WHY

American rail officials are going to invest $1,400,000,000 in improvements this year. It is said that all of the new equipment has gone to a few powerful railroads. One locomotive concern has $70,000,000 in orders on its books with plants operatnig almost at capacity and billing out $2,000,000 in locomotives and parts weekly. This is one of the reasons why there is a demand for skilled and unskilled labor the country over.

A Paris cablogram says the French harvest now gives promise of being much better than last year and if the weather continues faverable, France will have to import very little grain the coming season. She imported more than $125,000,000 of wheat last year.

A German historian predicts that Germany will lead in Europe in 20 years and that a Romanoff czar again will be ruling in Russia in the course of the next three years. All things are possible in this vale of tears but it is a safe betting proposition that Mr. William Hohenzollern will never return to a throne.

—o—

TELL IT TO THE JURORS

"We murder three a day in grand old Texas," remarked the governor in a recent speech, "and there are 200 homicides annually in Texas to each one million in population. In Italy there are 95 to one million. France has 17 homicides to one million and bear in mind that we have 200 in Texas. Germany has only 12 and Canada has 5. In Texas, with 5,000,000 people, we have more than 1,000 murders a year." Where should the blame be placed? Not upon the law. Texas has fat statute books and there are new leafs added fo it at every session of the legislature.

Not on the leading newspapers. They clamor for conviction of red-handed murderers. Why not blame the jurors, the men who turn loose upon society the slayers of their fellows? It is a bloody record but the jurors who are responsible for blocking justice, who are responsible for mistrials, who hang verdicts instead of hanging the criminals, are the men who should be denounced by the press and the pulpit.

UNDER DOGS MUST PAY

Germany owes the United States government and citizens of the United States one and a half billion. That is America's bill for war claims and a Texan, Judge Edwin B. Parker, is the official referee or umpire. It must be admitted without argument that the distinguished Texan has tackled a man's job. Roger B. McMullan has the largest claim. He asks $100,000,000 for alleged patent infringements. Germany is the under dog now. Germany was the top dog in 1918. It is the under dog that pays. There is no other way out of it.

—o—

FORD AND TEXAS

More than a year ago Henry Ford asserted that there was sufficient water power east of the Mississippi river to furnish light and heat and power for all the people of the United States and then a large surplus for reserve purposes. Now the wizard of Michigan is acquiring water power in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and some day he may operate large barge lines on the Mississippi river from the upper waters to New Orleans. Official Washington says that the billionaire manufacturer is seeking to round up a large amount of undeveloped water power in the country and his plan is to establish factories at water power sites. Has the Ford eye overlooked the undeveloped water power of Texas?

UNCOMMON SENSE

PLAYING FAVORITES

The spoiled child is never popular. What is more important, he seldom amounts to anything.

What is almost as important—to himself—he is never happy.

Parents spoil children with the best motives. They love them so much they can deny them nothing.

Soon the child is petulant and peevish if he cannot have everything he wants—even the moon.

He cannot understand why parents who have always been willing to please him should suddenly cease to comply with his demands, even if he asks the impossible.

But it is well to remember, when we are considering the question of selfishness—which comes up in any discussion of spoiled children, that it is not always parents who do the spoiling.

Many a man, and many a woman, long after they have left homes where they have not been spoiled, have proceeded to spoil themselves.

The person whose favorite is himself—who considers himself first, ministers foolishly to all his own desires and who pets himself as the teachers sometimes pet a favored pupil—can spoil himself just as effectively in middle life as parents can spoil children infancy and adoscence.

It is easy to make a favorite of one's self—easier than it is to practice self-denial.

A great number of people with fairly good intelligence and reasonably sound dispositions—in the beginning — have so indulged themselves that in time they have become extremely irritating to every one around them.

In prosperity the results of this self-spoiling does not show plainly.

But let adversity come, when there must be competition for what few good things are to be had, and the man or woman who has spoiled himself stands out unpleasantly in any company.

It is for this reason that outing trips, where people accustomed to luxury must go through what seems like hardship, brings out the selfishness in human nature.

A man with whom you can live for a week in a camp where everyone must do his share of the work, will stand up as a friend for life.

The man who has spoiled himself is usually avoided by his camp mates after such an experience.

It is necessary to look out for one-self and to provide for one-self but consideration for other is equally important. This is something the self-spoiled men never possess.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU
BY MARY BLAKE

GEMINI

Today is one of splendid outlook for business and mechanical pursuits as well as for domestic and progressive matters. Artistic, literary and metaphysical affairs should also meet with marked success.

A child born on this date will be imaginative and extremely successful in finance.

A person born on this date will be active and strong, but restless and crafty; quick tempered and probably secretive.

If you were born in the evening of this day, you will have more chance of success and realization of hopes, for the sun was then out of the way and much depends upon the major planets.

You are dominant and determined, and no matter what your vocation is you will lead in the field or know the reason why. You have the inborn desire for competitive excellence. Your mind is active, supple and eager, but must be confronted with difficult problems to show its true mettle.

You are both imaginative and creative and although you have artistic talent you lack the fiery emotional sensitiveness of the genius. Your tastes are apt to be cold and classic.

You are extremely touchy and the opinions of your friends and even chance acquaintances assume unnecessary importance. You are easily crushed by unkindness and you will go to almost any lengths to make yourself loved and appreciated.

You are so fond of society and mingling with people that your whole life will probably be given over to an occupation in which in some way, you come into contact with the public.

You are vain in your personal appearance, and rather extreme in your tastes for clothes and jewelry. You like to live in luxurious surroundings and you could easily be a spendthrift if you had the money.

You should be robust and as good as you are fond of them. But after all you prefer a mild exercise in which you can think while you are doing it as in walking and riding.

You are amorous but not affectionate and not in any sense the ideal matrimonial type.

Well known people born on this date are: Paul E. Archinard, physician and educator; Walter L. Dean, artist; O. C. Auringer, clergyman, poet and author.

The BLOOD SHIP

By NORMAN SPRINGER

THE ACTION UP TO THIS POINT

Captain John Shreve, a commander of sailing ships, tells the story. It is the tale of a voyage, his first as an able seaman in the clipper ship The Golden Bough. Shreve, just come to sea manhood, becomes a lodger at the "Knitting Swede's" one of the lowest sailors' resorts in San Francisco. He notes one lodger of quite austere manner with a scar on his face. Young Shreve defeats the Swede's runner and wins his girl, but determines to go back to sea. He and the mysterious man, known as Newman, sign for a voyage in The Golden Bough, in spite of the ship's reputation for cruelty. Shreve encounters a wreck named Beasley and Newman sees him. Beasley confesses to Newman his part in many dirty plots against Newman. He speaks of a Mary and sin unprincipled man who is master of a ship. Taken aboard the Golden Bough by the Swede, Shreve and Newman learn that there is a lady aboard.

Captain Swope lives up to his reputation as a brutal master by beating Nils, a young sailor. Swope's wife appears on deck. The men learn that she is the angel of the floating prison.

When the watches are told off Newman appears on deck for the first time during the voyage. Captain Swope is shocked at the man who calls him Angus. The lady greets Newman as Roy.

The Lady warns Newman, by means of a lote, to be on his guard. By order of Swope she is restricted to her cabin. "Boston" and Blackie," two tough members of the crew, are rebuffed by Newman and hint that he has been a convict.

"Boston" and "Blackie" fan the hatred among the crews for the officers over the ill treatment of Nils, the boy beaten by Swope, and other cruelties. An apparent attempt by the captain on Newman's life nearly ends Shreve's. "The Lady" acts as nurse to the abused members of the crew. "Boston" hints that Newman is being "double crossed." Shreve goes in search of him.

What Duty Meant to Holy Joe.

I heard boots clumping on the poop deck. There wasn't time for me to escape forward. So I darted aft and flattened myself against the cabin wall. I was not a second too soon. "Sails" and "Chips" paused almost within arm's reach of me, waiting for the mate to join them.

Said Chips, "But what's the game? He's working up trouble, that's plain. But what's he after this time?"

Said Sails, "He's after that big fellow or I'm a damn bad guesser. But his game—well, ask me something easy. Did you ever know anybody to fathom his game?"

As I passed the still locked door I heard:

"Oh Mary—little love— it doesn't seem to matter any more. When I am with you it is just a hideous dream from which I have awakened."

It was Newman speaking, in a voice so tender, so vibrant with feeling, it was hard to believe the words came out of the mouth of the foc'sle's iron man. "But now I wish to live again. Ah, little love, I have been dead too long. Dead to everything except pain and hate! But now that I know, now that we both know— oh, Mary, surely we have earned the right to live and love. God will not hold it against us if I take you from that mad beast. God—I am beginning to believe in God again Mary, when I am with you!"

"I, too, wish to live—and in clean air," came in The Lady's voice. Oh, Roy—five years—and the piling up of horrors—oh, I could not have stood it very much longer, Roy. But now —we can forget."

"Five years! My God, how have you been able to stand it, Mary?" said Newman. "Five years—and most of them spent at sea in this blood ship!"

"It has been my penance, Roy. It has seemed to me that in sailing with him, in lessening even a little bit the misery he causes those poor men, I have been atoning, in a little measure, for my lack of faith in you. It was not so hard, except at first," said the lady. "To much horror numbs, you know. And one thing made it endurable—he has spared me the intimacy of marriage. It is true, dearest; I am as much a maid as I was five years ago. He is that kind of a man, Roy. It is not women he lusts for, it is—oh, it is blood."

It was tuch-and-go with discovery a second time as Mister Fitzgibbon stamped down the ladder. But he went forward. Then I called softly: "Newman! Come out of that at once; you are spied upon!"

I heard the lady gasp, and I knew my message was received and understood.

I dodged across the deck and around the starboard side of the deck house, and thus came upon the scene of mutiny among the Swedes.

Over on the port side of the deck A royal shindy seemed to be preparing.

Aye, the mate had at last struck fire from his squareheads! They were on the verage of open rebellion.

Fitzgibbon was swearing over their heads. He throw his words into foc'sle. He was calling upon Holy Joe, the parson, to come out of it blasted quick and be skinned alive, b'Gawd! Broken bopes were being promised to poor Holy Joe.

That was why the squareheads were showing fight —not to protect their own skins, but to save the shanghaied parson from the mate's wrath.

For their little Nils was dying, and Holy Joe was by his side, praying for his passing soul.

Suddenly Mister Fitzgibbon stopped cursing, and in a voice that meant business, ordered the watch aft to the braces. The "stiffs" tumbled over themselves in their eagerness to obey; but not a squarehead budged.

They still stood between the mate and his victim. So he drew his revolver and pointed it at Lindquist.

"Lay aft—or I'll splatter lead among you!" he said.

He meant it. But the threat to shoot into the men who were shielding him had the effect of drawing the parson out of the foc'sle. He suddenly appeared in the doorway.

"Oh, that brought you out of it hey—you shivelling fool!" hailed Fitzgibbon. He brought the weapon to bear upon Holy Joe. "Step aft, here, or I'll drill you through, s'help me!"

The words brought a menacing growl from the squareheads. But Holy Joe checked the movement with a word.

"Steady, lads," said he. "No violence; obey your orders. Spread out, there, boys, and let me through; I will speak with him."

That was what he said, but it was how he said it that really mattered. Aye, Holy Joe might have been the skipper, himself, from his air!

Up to Fitzgibbon he walked, and stopped, and said to the Bucko's face.

"Put away that weapon! Would you add another murder to your crimes?"

To me, to the mate and his henchmen, indeed, to all hands, it was a most astounding situation.

It was the "stiff," not the officer, who commanded the deck that moment. There he stood, a full head shorter than his antagonist, with his head tiled back to meet the larger man's eyes, and Bully Fitzgibbon quailed before his gaze.

I watched the little man, awe-stricken. I had been bred to worship force, it was the only diet I knew, and Holy Joe was in my eyes the symbol of force. He radiated force —and it was a strange and wonderful force!

"Put down that weapon!" Holy Joe repeated.

Slowly, the mate lowered his arm.

The parson turned to the square heads; aye, he turned his back full upon the bucko, and the latter made no move against him.

"Obey your orders, men," Holy Joe said to the sailors. "Go to your work as he commands. I will stay with the boy."

The squareheads obeyed without question.

"I ordered you aft with the rest," the mate began. "What d'ye mean"—

"I have other work to do this watch —as you know," interrupted the parson.

"You —you refuse duty?"

Holy Joe was silent for an instant. All of us were silent. One could have heard a pin drop upon the deck.

Then, out of the port foc'sle, a dreadful sound came to our ears, a low, strangled moan. It stabbed the vitals of the most hardened of us; with my own eyes I saw the mate tremble. Aye, in some way Holy Joe had sent a fear into the brute soul of Fitzgibbon.

"You speak of my duty, sir," said Holy Joe. "I see it—and do it!"

With that he turned on his heel and walked into the foc'sle.

Mister Fitzgibbon seemed to come out of a trance; he shook himmself, and started at Sails and then at Chips. He glared across the deck at us of the starboard watch. He even swore. But there was no life to his curse.

At four bells I relieved the wheel I found Captain Swope and the mate with their heads together. As I took over the wheel, Newman whispered to me: "Keep your weather eye lifted for squalls, Jack!"

The second mate was seldom aft during the two hours I stood at the wheel. The times he did appear he engaged in conversation with the Old Man, beyond my hearing. But near midnight he clumped aft hurriedly, bringing the tradesmen with him.

"Well, sir—he's gone," he said.

So I knew that Nils was dead.

"Very good," said Swope. "And the hands?"

"All quiet, sir."

Mr. Lynch's voice was quite respectful, but I fancied I detected in it a note of contempt.

"There was danger of trouble, even before the boy went out," he went on. "'Sails' Morton stood by the door and heard it all. The squareheads were willing; they want revenge. But Newman squelched the scheme."

A black curse slid out o fthe skipper's mouth. Aye, the man breathed fury!

"So—he commands for-ard, eh?" he said. "Well, I command aft!"

It looked wicked to me, this secretive conversation. My excited mind saw evil in it.

Somehow I knew that Newman's long grace was ended. This black villain had prepared a net to trap my friend and was even now casting it.

Presently the second mate returned aft. "You may have your trouble now, Captain, if you wish," he said.

The Captain appeared pleased with the news. "Oh, let the dogs dispose of their own offal, Mister," he said carelessly.

I found Newman later in the port foc'sle, talking to Holy Joe, saying: "They are good, simple lads—use your authority as a minister. Tell them they will be the ones to suffer in case of trouble."

"I will do my best," the parson answered and went out on deck.

Newman observed my questioning face, and said, "Swope knows we have talked together, she and I! He knows he must extinguish us both if he would robury for good and all the truth he thought was already buried."

"His wife—his own wife!", I exclaimed.

The words probed the quick. For a minute Newman's reserve was gone, and the tormented soul of the man plainly visible.

"It is a lie, a legal lie!" he cried. He calmed immediately.

"The squareheads may be kept quiet," I said, "but how about Boston and Blackie?"

"I will attend to them if they try any of their tricks," he said.

"But they are trying their tricks," I persisted, "and for some reason they are eager to have you know what they are up to. Boston told me to tell you. He knew about the spy," I said.

He nodded. "I know; I have had any upon them. What Boston told you about treasure is true; the ship is carrying specie! It is loot they are after, and there will be trouble from them before the ship makes port; but now we are in mid-sea and they realize they would be helpless with a ship on their hands and no navigator. That is what they want of me! A pair of poisonous rats, Jack! But they will keep quiet, and if Swope does not interfere with the decent burial of that poor boy, there will be no outbreak."

"He will not interfere," I was able to assure him. I repeated the skipper's words to Mr. Lynch. "Let the dogs dispose of their own offal," is what he said."

To my surprise Newman was disturbed by this news. He stared at me, frowning.

"Swope said that?" he exclaimed. "Now what is he up to?"

Nils was put away, in the dead of night, by the light of one lantern and many stars. The hum of the wind aloft and the purr and slap of the waters against the bows were his requiem.

Silently we listened to the dull splash. It was over. The parson fell into step with Newman, and the two paced up and down, conversing in low tones. The crowd dispersed.

More Truth Than Poetry
—By James J. Montague—

A DANGEROUS GAME

(A big business man has declared that American industry is being ruined because of the addiction to golf by employers.)

Let captains of industry think at least twice,
Before they spend six days a week
Improving their putting, correcting a slice,
Or trying trick shots with the cleek.
These things are both pleasant and good for the health
But the braw Caledonian sport
Has brought many persons of fabulous wealth
To the doors of the bankruptcy court.

As soon as a man becomes able to poke
The ball with processional skill,
The habit takes hold like the stuff they call "coke"
And plays the blue duce with his will.
He means to go down to the office each day
And note what the cash register shows.
But—a trio of addicts invites him to play,
So he shoulders his golf clubs and goes.

And the minute the help learns the boss won't be there
They do not cry out; "What a shame!"
But organize foursomes and promptly repair
To the links for an afternoon game.
Let customers wait, and let business go smash
They pull down their desks for the day,
And out to the country they merrily dash—
If the boss can play golf, so can they!

In time the best business that ever was built
Thous it stands at the uttermost top
Of industry's index will wither and wilt,
If no one is left round the shop.
Play golf if you will, but remember, my friend,
It may cost you a terrible price,
For pursuing the pellet becomes in the end
Not only a sport but a vice!

HOW TO BUILD, FINANCE BETTER HOMES AND FURNISH A HOME

HAPPINESS

Copyright, 1923

Housewives Ask Their Due In World Of Today

If the work of the housewives of America had to be paid for it would total nearly ten billion dollars a year, labor experts have figured. But because, with all its labor, the work of the home worker is still more important from a spiritual point of view than from an economic point of view, it asks no payment in wages.

It does, however, ask recognition in order that it may be dignified in its own eyes and in the eyes of men, and that it may be given the training and backing that the fundamental industry of the nation deserves: It asks also its proper share in the family income.

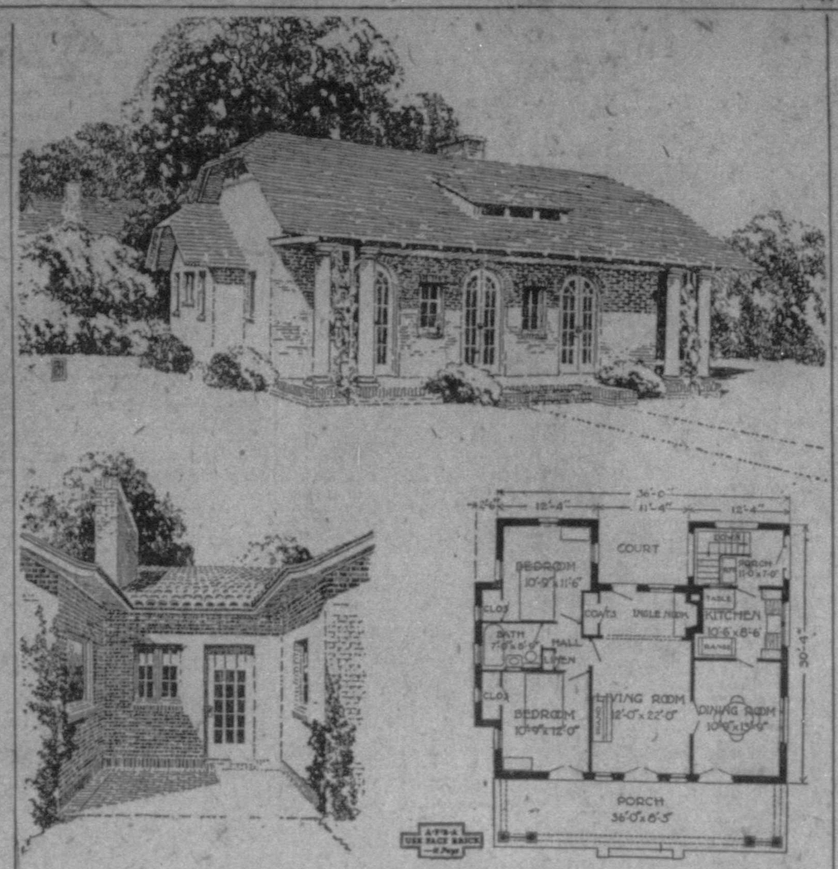

For this reason thousands of club women of America are participating in the better homes demonstration week, June 4 to 10, which will be observed in hundreds of cities and towns in all parts of the country. Here is a campaign for women by women; designed to bring into emphasis all phases of the woman's work and influence in the home.

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president general federation of woman clubs, says, "Home work can not be taught in a week, we study it year in and year out. But the need of improvement, the value of standards in home practice developed by experts and the possibilities by which labor-saving methods and devices can release the time of the women home-maker."

Eventually we hope to see permanent homes models in all communities where invaluable experiments can be continuously conducted.

PAINT UP!

The paint man with brush in hand,
Is standing on the ladder,
He's waiting for the word to go,
To make the town look gladder.
'Twas fine of him to fix his price,
To help us all make things look nice.
So get a man—put him to work,
Before the town looks sadder.

In this attractive colonial design the living room has both front and rear exposure, thereby permitting the house to face north without losing the cheerful sunlight in the living room.

Welcomed by the wide expanse of porch, one enters the living room of this attractive house and is greeted by a view of the cheerful ingle-nook and the garden beyond.

The living room, centrally located, separates the bedrooms and bath from the kitchen and dining room. The bedrooms are well arranged as to furniture and have well-lighted closets. They are connected with the living room by a small hall from which opens the bathroom and a linen closet. There is a fine coat closet off the living room, adjacent to the garden entrance where children's wraps, overshoes and umbrellas may be deposited.

The dining room opens from the living room with a pair of French doors. The kitchen is very compact and convenient. Cupboards are built in at both sides of the well-lighted sink. The enclosed rear porch accommodates the ice box, saving the kitchen from the iceman's tracks.

DINING ROOM IMPORTANT

The dining room should be one of the most cheerful and inspiring rooms of the house. It is the place where the family gathers to enjoy meals together, and nothing insures a better start than having breakfast in a bright, cheerful room.

If the dining room and living room are connected by wide doorways, have the walls of both rooms alike. If they are connected by a small door, the walls may be in some light cloudy landscape paper, or in a small all-over pattern in light cream, buff, gray, tan, or putty color. Because there is so much blue china, persons feel that they want blue dining rooms. This is a mistake, as blue in large quantities in either walls, china, or hanging absorbs the light and makes a room gloomy. A built-in corner cupboard, or a small mahogany or rosewood cabinet, which might hold rare bits of pottery and china, is permissible. It is far better to use the pantry shelves for china than to crowd it into a china closet.

It is best to use a rug with small figures. The hangings should be in plain colors, taken from the predominating colors in the wall covering; or if the walls are the same as the living room, the hangings should be chosen from the predominating color in the living room. This will bring the rooms into perfect harmony, without having them just alike.

WOMEN REAL FINANCIERS

When we hear the word financier, we think of a capable, thrifty energetic man, but somewhere in the background behind that efficient man, there is a skillful little woman managing the money. You know how your mother managed, and how lots of other clever women have managed. The husband turns his pay over to his wife; except that she probably lets him have a little spending money for tobacco or something like that. Then she pays the bills. She has done a deal of figuring and planning and scrapping to keep these bills down, so that she can put aside something as savings. These women are the real financiers, and deserve the profound respect and admiration of every citizen.

Color Schemes

QUESTION—Will you be good enough to tell me how I can improve the appearance of my bedroom at little expense? It has dark blue paper on the walls and white curtains. My furniture is brown.

ANSWER—Your color scheme is not a good one for a bedroom.

If you can afford to have your room repapered, or painted, I suggest a light cream or tan color. If the room is sunny, you might use grey or light blue. Gray cretonne should be used on the windows with these walls.

If you cannot have the room redone immediately, take down your white curtains and dye them a soft yellow. This will give warmth, and the appearance of sunshine in your room. Use yellow candlesticks, bureau scarf and bedspread and you will be surprised at the difference this color note will make.

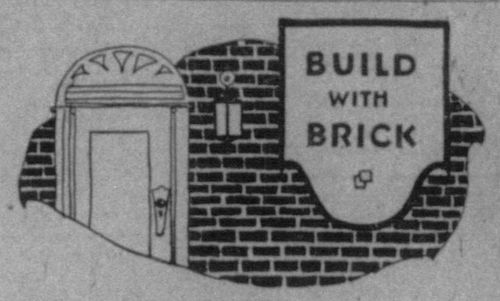

There are twenty millions of housekeepers in America. For them, the home is their industrial center as well as their place of abode, and it is felt that altogether too little attention has been paid to lightening the labors and bettering the working conditions of these women.

Cover heavy winter curtains with cool cretonne bags and you will not need to remove them during warm days.

Especially during the summer must the garbage can be lined with paper. It will facilitate cleaning and keep the metal in a sanitary condition.

Hang garments in camphorized bags rather than pack them away in trunks. They will require no pressing when taken out.

Gasoline is an excellent germicide. Brushed on mattresses and pillows, it will make them sanitary without staining the material.

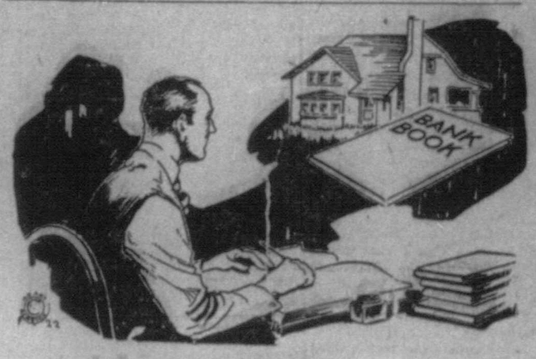

BUILD WITH BRICK—

It means money saved. Brick houses endure. Brick houses resist fire, wear, cold in winter and heat in summer.

Brick houses are most attractive. Buy your bricks here—they are of a quality which is being vouched for by every builder who uses them.

Complete Wiring

—Complete wiring is nothing more than making provision in your home for all the electric lights and appliances that you or a future occupant may some day want to use. The value of complete electrical convenience to a future owner is really its value to you—that is, he will be more likely to buy and pay your price for a house that meets his electrical requirements.

—If you expect to rent part or all of your house, you know that its attractiveness will determine the amount of rent it will command. If you provide now for the electrical appliances that your tenants will very likely use and for the lights they may want to use, your house will rent more easily when vacant houses are plentiful and for a larger amount when there is a demand for rented homes, as there is now. In other words, if you install complete wiring you are putting into your house a value far in excess of the small sum that wiring costs you—value that will be returned to you in full if you should ever sell, and that will bring its own annual interest if you rent the house.

—If you are going to live in this house yourself, you can realize perfect satisfaction only as you are able to make convenient use of electrical appliances—only as you can change the arrangements of the lamps as often as you desire—only as you make electricity a servant who follows you from room to room ready at every point to save you labor and afford you a hundred comforts.

COTTON TRADE LOSES HEAVILY

176 to 196 Points Under A Close Of Weeks' Downward Session

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—Trading in cotton last week was done on a long decline, highest prices being made in the opening session while lowest prices were fixed on the closing session. At the highest the trading positions were 95 to 31 points over the close of the preceding week, while at the lowest they were 176 to 196 points under, the range being 201 to 226 points. The close was 253 to 157 points net lower on the week. July, after trading to 27.03, fell off to 25.81, finally closing at 26.14. October rose to 24.15; fell off to 22.19 and closed at 22.58.

Spots Lose.

The spot department price lost fifty points on middling, which closed at 27.50 cents a pound against 20.50 on the close of this week last year.

For the decline a somewhat more favorable opinion of crop prospects than had been maintained were mainly responsible, this opinion being strengthened the government's first condition figure for the season, 71.0 per cent of normal, issued late in the week. While this compared with 73.6 as the ten-year average for May 25, it also compared with 69.6 as the condition a year ago and it was somewhat above the average of expectations and well above some estimates on the long side, private condition reports ranging as low as 67.0 per cent.

WEDDING HELD AT LEAGUE SERVICE

Myrtle Bowman and Murrell Hooper Married At Church Sunday

Quite unique was the lovely wedding solemnized Sunday evening at 6:45 in the Epworth league room of the First Methodist church, South, when Miss Myrtle Bowman became the bride of Murrell Hooper. The young couple met each other first in the Epworth league, and since have been actively engaged in league work, holding responsible offices, so they fittingly decided to hold an Epworth league wedding at the usual time and place. Rev C. M. Simpson performed the ceremony.

The league rooms were elaborately decorated in gold and white, the league colors, and under softly shaded lights the improvised altar was arranged beneath an arched rose trellis flanked by tall baskets of American Beauties, and banked with ferns.

Preceding the ceremony "I Love You Truly" was played as a violin duet by Misses Julia and Beulah Ross, with Miss Jessie May Lawler at the piano. Mrs. E. C. Huckabee sang the pre-nuptial solo, Cadman's "At Dawning," accompanied by Miss Ila Cook.

Leading the wedding procession came the flower girls, little Misses Jernie V. Shaw and Ethel May Kinkleman, neice of the bride, dressed in white organdie frocks scattering rose petals from tiny French baskets. Then came the bridesmaid, Miss Bonnie Rhodes, wearing pale green chiffon with white cut beads and hat to match draped with Spanish lace, carrying an arm bouquet of pink carnations. She was accompanied by Roy Carter, groomsman.

Preceding the ring-bearer, Master W. C. Cole, Jr., who carried the ring in a lily bell, came Mrs. W. C. Cole, matron of honor, and sister of the bride, who wore a gown of rose flat crepe with accessories to match, and carried white carnations.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, J. J. Bowman, to Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Ila Cook. Her gown was white canton and Irish lace with a bridal veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

The groom entered with his best man Clifford Deaton and during the ceremony, "I Love You Truly" was played very softly.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hooper left for a three weeks' motor trip over the state. Their destination is Rio Trio, Texas, but they will visit en route with relatives and friends.

In passing, the speaker touched on the responsibilities of men at the present time and pictured the work of some of history's famous characters, showing how they had accepted their responsibilities.

Judge Kay's address is full was as follows:

It would be a fine thing if the state could take care of us. It would be a fine thing if the nation could save us. It would be a fine thing if the law and the statutes could make us virtuous and clean, and high-minded. It would be a fine thing if we could just drop in with the crowd and be saved because the crowd was saved. If a mere shouting, and the waving of banners, and a political cry could save men or make men, that would be an easy world to live in. But these things are not true.

Believe Truth.

Now, there is a thing about the truth that some of you might not think about, and that is this: When you come to a truth, you must believe it. Not believe it in a historical sense, but build your life upon it, if it be an important and a great truth.

Now, it is a truth that men are in the world as individuals, with individual responsibility, and by this I mean responsibility to God and to our fellowmen. It is not enough to say that I am an American, or a Methodist. It is not enough to say that belong to this, that or the other lodge, or political organization, but it is proper to say that I am an individual soul, marching down the road of life, under my own banner; responsible for my own conduct and charged with the duty of preserving my own character.

Don't Make Character.

Now, we have our legislatures meet, we have our church conferences and synods and councils, and these make rules, and laws, and regulations, and declarations of intention, and declarations of belief, but the law can never make character, and the declarations of the church don't make it, but it is an individual thing.

Last week, I looked on the mossy marbles that rest over my father and mother, and I thought about the precepts, and the teachings and the example that they set before me, and I said: "That has strengthened me more than all the laws of Texas. That has preserved me where the statute would have failed."

That's what Jermiah is talking about here—individual character and individual responsibility. How are these things to be had? You have got an example of it right now in New York state. There is an example in New York of an Ephraim that is wedded to his idols. You hear the drop about the governor doing away with the state prohibition law. Now, that isn't important. They had already done away with it, whether the governor vetoed it or did not veto it is not important, because the soul of that people was not fitted for the law. I think his veto is an honest expression of the views of his people, and I say: God help his soul.

The World Slipping.

Jeremiah lived in an age when the world was what we call slipping. Now, it has been said in hundreds of magazines, and thousands of periodicals, and from many a pulpit, and many a platform, that the world has been slipping back since our war, since the great war. Has it? If so, what form is it taking? I don't think it is the old evil. All evil is one, but I don't think it is the old forms of evil that are trying to seize the world. I don't believe it is the passion for gambling, or drinking, or lying, or some of the other vices, but I believe that, as far as the United States is concerned, that during that war, and since that war, our people have been stricken with an insane passion to get rich; and, the cry of the human heart in America today, and in Texas today, and at least in Wichita Falls today, is: Let me have an abundance of this world's goods!

Want Too Much.

That's what is the matter with us. We are not a bunch of gamblers, or drunkards, or sots. We are not seating in so many of the oldtime vices, but, we want more than we need. Am I talking to other men, or does that apply to me? Why, there never comes a week that there doesn't come into my heart a sinister whisper: Old boy, the reason you don't amount to anything, the reason you don't cut any ice, is because you haven't got enough money to do some great thing.

Most of you remember the story of that rich young man that went to see the Savior, and turned away sorrowful and rejected the Gospel. Now, there's a tradition about that that some of you might not know. Away long further than that in the New Testament, there is a story where the Savior had a crowd assembled about Him, and there came somebody, that nobody seems to know, and took only one cloak from around himself and threw it at the Savior, and fled naked. And, the tradition is that this fellow who gave up even the clothes that he was wearing at last, was the same fellow who had been told to go and tion is true, it is a pitiful story.

Many Doctrines.

Now, what did these Jews believe in? You know there are a lot of religious doctrines that I wish I believed in, because they are so comfortable. I wish that through some ceremony I could wash myself as it. Not only my soul, but my intellect balks at the idea that a mere ceremony will do these things for me, and I am in sympathy with that statement of St. Paul where he said: "It is impossible that the blood of bulls and of goats shall cleanse you from unrighteousness." I say, there are some of those doctrines that I would like to believe. They believed that religion was the nation's business. Now, wouldn't that be a jolly thing if Mr. Harding and his cabinet could tend to all of these religious matters, and leave us to struggle, and sweat, and cheat, and steal, as we saw fit, and only the government responsible?

What is a prophet? We have been reading about prophets all our lives. Is it just a man who foretells the future? A true prophet, and there have been many in many ages, and we need one in the United States now as badly as any people ever needed one, a prophet, I say, is one who will strip the tinsel and the gloss from a false civilization, from an unnatural civilization, and express in all its nakedness the weaknesses and the shortcomings of the system which the people have adopted and point out for them a better system, a better government, a better religion, a better way of thinking, and a better way of living. It takes all that to be a prophet.

Popularity Easy.

You know, there is nothing easier than to get along with people and to be popular, if you are a 'hail fellow well met' with everybody. You remember how that old king, who was so much afraid of the prophet, that when the prophet bobs up on him at an unexpected moment, he said: "Lo, hast thou found me, mine enemy?"

I can be one of the best fellows in town if I will just go out here and cuss a little, and say nothing about it when other people cuss; take a drink on special occasions; gamble a little, not much, but just enough to show which side I am on. I can be, then, with multiplied thousands, considered a mighty good scout. But I reject that and I despise it, as you must do if you would remain as this book would have you remain. That makes you a little unpopular with lots of folks.

We were talking about a certain institution yesterday, not this institution, but another one, and a fellow says: We can't make a Sunday school out of this. I didn't answer that, because I wanted to answer it here. That's the only time I remember to have saved up anything for you fellows. It is enough for me to say here that there is not enough power in heaven to have made a Sunday school out of that institution. So what is the use in talking about making a Sunday school out of a thing like that? You talk about miracles, there would be one that even the prophets wouldn't believe in.

Man Believed To Have Been Shot In Making Escape

Special Dispatch to Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, June 3.—Officers here are searching for a man who, it is believed, was injured late last week when he escaped from police after being run down in a stolen automobile. Several shots were fired at the supposed thief as he leaped from the machine and officers reported that he was seen to stagger as he disappeared.

The machine was stolen from D. C. Trainer, of Electra, and was located soon after. City Officers Shook and Massey approached the machine to question the driver, whereupon it was driven rapidly away. The officers followed in another car and after pursuing it for several blocks, the two occupants of the stolen machine jumped out and ran.

During the chase, several shots were fired at the machine and it now has two bullet holes in the rear end. One shot is thought to have struck one of the men.

Social At Burk

BURKBURNETT, June 3.—The ladies of the Presbyterian church entertained with an ice cream supper Friday evening on the lawn of the new church property where about 300 friends and members of the congregation were in attendance.

A splendid social time was enoyed informally, and the proceeds of the evening will be used on the piano fund for the newly organized church.

THINGS YOU SAY, DO AND SEE AND SOME YOU DON'T

It was a fairly dull day around the city hall and sheriff's departments Sunday. Arrests were few and far between.

Lake Wichita, by the way, was a rendezvous for a goodly portion of the city's populace yesterday.

Ye city council faces a busy session tonight with its new traffic laws and various other matters to be considered.

Cecil O'Hara, Associated Press operator at the Record News, returned Sunday from Sherman where he had been called by the serious illness of his father.

Plans were being made Sunday for the Automotive Dealers Association Banquet to be held Tuesday with auto men from all north Texas attending. A big time is being expected.

In view of the entertaining program arranged, a man's sized crowd is expected today at the Kiwanis club luncheon. Prexy Robbins and Ewing Claggett to be the speakers.

Those Sunday evening band concerts at the lake aren't a bit hard to listen to, according to some of the fortunates who were on hand last night when the boys tuned up.

Despite the fact that the water was not as warm as it might be, quite a few venturesome ones took a dip in the various pools Sunday. And of course, they all declared it was "fine."

The usual crowd of motorists was on the road all day yesterday, despite the fact that there was a ball game. They started early and stayed late. Town Stuff came in from Electra about 1:30 A. M. and met three carloads of picnickers with baskets and bags bound for an all day outing.

LARGE CROWD HEARS CONCERT

Community Band Program At Lake Greatly Enjoyed

A crowd that was gratifyingly large for the first out door concert of the evening was at the lake Sunday night to listen to the program given by the Wichita Falls Community band.

Directors of the band and officials of the lake amusement concessions expressed deep pleasure at the way in which the concert was supported.

Program Pleases

The program itself made a distinct hit and insistent encores were frequent throughout the evening. The solo numbers were well received but the ensembles drew the major share of the glory.

It was intimated last night that more concerts might be given throughout the summer months if the demand was such as to justify them.

Auto Accident Victims Condition Satisfactory

The condition of W. E. Harding, Burkburnett man who was hurt Sunday morning in an automobile crash on the Burkburnett road, was reported yesterday to be quite satisfactory. Aside from a compound fracture of the right leg, he was not injured to any extent, it was stated.

A. H. Fleming, also in the car at the time Harding was injured, was found to have escaped with only a severe shaking up.

ARREST IN THEFT CASE

ELECTRA, June 3.—One arrest has been made in connection with the recent theft of 32 joints of pipe from an oil company operating in the local fields. The stolen loot was recovered in a junk yard, the owner of which declared he had purchased it from a party unknown to him.

City officers went to work on the case as soon as it was reported and after running down several clues, finally located the pipe. It was identified by the loser and the arrest followed soon after.
