THE OUTLAW OF CALICO DRAW

By Jolene Moses

(Editor's note: Ms. Moses lives south of Farwell and has an office at the Beauty Box in Farwell.)

Calico Draw is a small stretch of land between Here and There.

Here is a small town in Western Texas, just across the border from There, a small town in Eastern New Mexico.

Calico Draw got its name from the multitude of wild flowers that bloom there in the spring. Someone once said it looked like a pretty patch of calico material, and thus it became known as Calico Draw.

Now the draw isn't anything spectacular -- except when it blooms in the spring. In the spring, there is no prettier place in all of West Texas. But, as soon as the flowers begin to fade, the summer sun bakes it into a brownish-green place that matches every other place on the Texas plains.

Since there is little color on the Texas plains, the flowers of Calico Draw soon became a sight that every person for miles around would travel to see. That is, until all of the pretty flowers were stolen one spring by the Outlaw of Calico Draw. People waited all year to see the sun rise over Calico Draw, and then, one bright spring day, there were no . . . well, that's where my story begins. That's when the Outlaw of Calico Draw became so famous.

The story begins back around May of 1884. The draw was in full bloom, and, like I said, people (what there were of them) from miles around came to admire the view from the porch of Old Man Jones's cabin.

Now, Old Jonesy, as folks called him, didn't mind the people coming to look at the beautiful patches of scattered flowers, but he did mind them picking the flowers. Those flowers were the only reason he had company at all -- except maybe when a stranger lost his way and stumbled onto the Jones Ranch.

Jonesy was just not the sociable type. Folks thought him a bit too peculiar, so they stayed away -- except in the spring. In the springtime, no one could resist the chance to go out to the draw and look at the beautiful patterns of orange, yellow, white, blue, purple, pink, and red flowers that bloomed in the draw.

Well, as I said, it was May 15, 1884, and the usual group of 10 or 12 settlers, along with a few newcomers, came out to see the draw. No one could believe that such beauty could be found in a remote section of what looked to be miles and miles of grassland and rock. But, there it was in all its splendor for them to see.

Visitors camped all around the yard and in the barn at Jonesy's ranch and went to sleep, fully expecting to see an even more beautiful sight when the sun rose over the draw next morning. This was not to be, however. On May 16th, when the sun was just beginning to peep over the horizon, Jonesy's cook, Pedro, rang the bell to call all visitors and the two ranch hands to breakfast.

Everyone was already up and awaiting the sun's light to display the beauty of the draw. Moments passed as they all waited, but, with the sun already a fourth of the way up, there was no color -- only the usual green of the prairie and the reddish-colored rocks. Still, they waited. Nothing! By the time the sun was halfway up above the horizon, it was clear that no flowers would be seen. What had happened to the flowers that were in the draw the night before?

Angered at the fact that his flowers were gone, Old Man Jones ran shouting out into the draw. "My flowers! My beautiful flowers! What has happened to my flowers?"

He ran up and down, stomped his feet, ran back and forth, but there were no flowers. He then bent to examine several plants. Upon inspection of the stems of many plants, Jonesy found that his flowers had been -- of all things --picked! One lone bluebonnet stood in the field. Jonesy exploded! He ran back to the ranch yard and yelled orders to the ranch hands and all of the visitors.

"Unload your wagons! Every last one of you! I'll find the man who picked all of my flowers and, by jimminy, he'll pay for his crime!"

The two ranch hands locked the barn so that no one could get to the horses. They all knew the rules. No one was to pick the flowers. Until now, no one had picked even one of the flowers in the draw, except old Mazy, the pet mule of Doc Severs. She'd gotten into the draw a few years back and ate more than two dozen buttercups. From then on, Doc put Mazy in the barn, and no one else had picked a flower. Mazy protested this treatment by kicking holes in the stalls and barn walls, but Doc didn't let her out.

Well, it took all day to search through the wagons and gear piled around -- mainly because Old Jonesy had all the wagons and gear searched three times. Not one petal from a flower could be found. Not one powdery trace of pollen, not one leaf was in any of the wagons or the gear. Jonesy was confused. He ordered everyone off of his land, and hired two more men to ride the fence-line looking for clues.

After two months, he let the extra men go, and did what he knew he should have done to begin with. He hired the Tinkertown Detective Agency to track down the Outlaw of Calico Draw. Until the outlaw was caught -- no matter if it took years -- no one was allowed back to see the draw.

Years passed, and the Tinkertown man seemed to make little headway. Then, one hot day in July, while sipping on a cold drink, he, Bartholomew Xavier Woodson, the Tinkertown detective, overheard a young man bragging about how he finally got his girl to say she'd marry him. It seems that Anna Sue Hoblett was playing hard to get. She had been seeing Billy-Bob Bartlett for over three years, but she refused to marry him.

Then, one day in March 1884, Anna Sue had given Billy-Bob her own proposal. She told Billy-Bob if he picked her the biggest bouquet of flowers ever seen on the West Texas plains, that she would marry him. Billy-Bob would not have told the story, except for the fact that he was celebrating the birth of his twin boys. It seems that after four years of marriage, Anna Sue had finally decided that a family was in order, and shortly after, Billy-Bob, Jr., and Bobby-Lee were born. Billy-Bob was the proudest father around, and he just had to brag about something, so he bragged about how he got Anna Sue to marry him.

Seems that Billy-Bob had heard about Calico Draw and all of the flowers that bloomed there. Wanting to marry Anna Sue, before she changed her mind, Billy-Bob drove out to Calico Draw. Seeing all of the people at the Jones Ranch, Billy-Bob had pulled his wagon to a halt under an old elm tree. There, he waited. As soon as all was quiet on the ranch, Billy-Bob ran out into the draw and began to pick flowers.

He carried a small, dimly lit lantern to help in his search, and to keep from disturbing the sleeping folks at Jonesy's house. He knew how protective Old Jonesy was about the flowers in the draw.

Hour after hour he worked, picking arm loads of flowers and placing them in the back of the wagon. When the wagon was full, Billy-Bob, not knowing that he had taken all but one lonely bluebonnet, drove back to town and presented Anna Sue with the wagonload of flowers. Anna Sue was so impressed that she agreed to marry Billy-Bob the very next week. Billy-Bob was so happy that he never seemed to hear the stories of the Outlaw of Calico Draw.

However, upon hearing Billy-Bob's story, the Tinkertown man, Mr. Bartholomew Xavier Woodson, arrested Billy-Bob.

The trial was set for a month from Tuesday, and Billy-Bob was scared. Anna Sue, busy with the twins, could not get down to see Billy-Bob more than once a week and that made the weeks in jail, until the trial, very lonely. As the trial date approached, the town of Here filled to the brim. Folks from as far away as Denver and Austin had driven in to see what would happen. A man from an eastern newspaper -- somewhere in Delaware , I think -- had even made the journey. With the Tinkertown detective involved, there was sure to be a news story in this.

The day of the trial dawned bright and warm. It was May 15, 1889. Old Man Jones was sitting up front with the prosecutor. Across from him, at the next table, were Billy-Bob's lawyer and Billy-Bob. There was no room to sit, and the aisles and halls were packed with people wanting to see, or at least hear, the trial.

Tension filled the room, as the court was called to order and the judge entered. Of all the luck! Billy-Bob had drawn a judge who was known to hate anyone who might have broken the law, who judged all men guilty from the outset, and who seldom gave a prisoner a fair chance. Judge Wilbert Frost, who was as cold-natured as his last name, would be hearing the case. Billy-Bob's heart sank. He knew that his case was lost for sure.

Witnesses for the prosecution were called. Each one was a reliable witness, since each had been there in 1884 when the flowers disappeared. Every witness gave an account of his or her disappointment at not seeing the flowers as the sun came up. Finally, the most damaging witness of all was called-Old man Jones, himself!

Jonesy was forced to swear on the Bible, and it was obvious that he did not like to do that. But, then, Jonesy did not like to do anything if he was made to do it. He was a stubborn man, who liked to make all of the decisions concerning his life. However, since it was he who brought this case to bear, he reluctantly swore his oath. (I think he did some other swearing, but that is only hearsay.) Jonesy answered only three questions.

Prosecutor Henry Proctor: "Now, Mr. Jones . . . [he paused for effect] . . . on the day in question, did you awake to discover that all . . . of your flowers . . . had, indeed, been picked?"

Jonesy: "Yes."

Proctor: "And was it customary for people visiting the draw to pick the flow-

The Parmer County Commissioners on Monday decided to leave the way subsidies are provided to the county's volunteer fire departments as is.

Questions had arisen at the previous commissioners' meeting over the method of payment.

The need for the departments to be more specific in their reports, especially when vehicle accidents and other non-fire calls are made, was expressed.

So no changes will be made for the coming year.

In other business, the commissioners named county treasurer Altha Herington as the county's investment officer as usual.

Jonesy: "No! I forbade anyone to pick even a single flower!"

Proctor: "What gives you the right to forbid the picking of flowers in this particular draw?"

Jonesy: "I own the draw, and keep it from being picked to allow everyone to enjoy the beauty that it unveils each spring."

Proctor: "Nothing further. Thank you, Mr. Jones. The prosecution rests."

Jonesy liked being called Mr. and stood just a little taller as he walked back to his place in the courtroom. A hush fell over the court. Then, just as things looked their bleakest for Billy-Bob, a commotion was heard in the back of the room.

"Excuse me. Please allow me to pass through. I have information for the defense. Excuse me, please."

A flushed and anxious Anna Sue Bartlett squeezed her way into the courtroom carrying one of the twins, and right behind her came a large lady carrying the second twin.

"What is the meaning of this ruckus?" shouted Judge Frost. "I hope you have something very important to say, young woman, or I shall find you in contempt of court!"

"Y-y-yes, sir." Anna Sue stammered. "I think I can clear up this whole mess. You see, I am the reason that Billy-Bob picked all of the flowers in the draw."

"You!" Judge Frost shouted. "Are you out of your mind, girl?"

"No, Uncle Wilbert. I told Billy-Bob . . . "

"Swear in this young lady, bailiff!"

With that, Anna Sue was taken to the witness chair. A woman from the jury took Billy-Bob, Jr., and Anna Sue was sworn in.

"This is most unusual, your Honor," protested Henry Proctor.

"It may be unusual, Henry, but I want to hear what she has to say. Any objections from the defense?" This last question sounded vaguely like a threat, so the defense attorney, Marvin Rodent, shook his head no, and the Judge continued.

"Now, young lady, tell us your story -- and don't call me 'uncle' in my courtroom!"

"Yes, sir. Well, you see, I wanted proof that Billy-Bob really loved me, so I told him to pick . . ." And Anna Sue told the same story that Billy-Bob had told before his arrest. "I never thought that he would get into serious trouble, or I would not have given him such an ultimatum. I apologize for any problems, Mr. Jones."

"Your Honor, may I say a few words?"

"It's quite irregular, Mr. Jones, but go ahead. This whole trial has been a bit irregular."

"I believe the girl. I might not have believed Billy-Bob, but I believe her. Seeing her and these two babies warmed my heart. I would like to drop all charges against Billy-Bob, with only one condition."

"And what would that condition be?" Judge Frost asked icily.

"That, if they have a baby girl, they name her after my draw."

"You want a child to be called 'Calico Draw'?" Judge Frost shouted.

"No, Judge, just 'Calico.'"

"Does the defense wish to argue this point?"

"A moment with my client and his wife, please, Your Honor," whispered Marvin Rodent, the defense attorney.

"We'll take a fifteen-minute recess. Clear the courtroom!" Judge Frost banged his gavel and rose to leave.

Fifteen minutes later, the court resumed session. However, it took an hour before all persons were inside or seated, and another ten minutes to call the court to order. Judge Frost entered; all stood; and when he sat, he banged his gavel signifying that all could sit.

"Well, what is your answer, Mr. Rodent?"

"My clients choose to accept Mr. Jones' offer."

"Good! Let the record show that all charges against the Outlaw of Calico Draw are hereby dropped but will be reinstated if the Bartletts fail to comply with Mr. Jones' request. I don't know why this case ever came to court when it could have been settled without all of this bother; however, I understand that the ladies of the town have prepared a feast in the event of a guilty verdict. I hate to see good food go to waste, so let's all go out and enjoy it. Court is adjourned!"

With that, Judge Frost banged his gavel, and the Outlaw of Calico Draw was set free.

Border Banter

--Mike Pomper

This is my annual prediction column.

But here's my quandary:

On one hand, I have written about the vast coalition of voters the Democrat Party has put together (a polite way of saying the Republican Party has thrown away).

BUT...

Obamacare has made a lot of folks angry. And I mean really angry at losing their policies or having to pay through the nose for the same policies, and being told to use different physicians and/or hospitals.

My wife's policy just skyrocketed and I am angry.

This will get worse when many big businesses drop insurance policies for employees next fall (the extension for big businesses to avoid Obamacare will end next October).

That deadline is just before the next election -- not the best planning, White House staff.

When folks are angry, they have a tendency to vote. Thus, the Republicans will get a lot more votes at the November 2014 elections than was expected.

While I still expect the Democrats to control the White House in the next presidential election, I think the GOP is gonna kick butt in next year's elections.

There are a whole lot of folks getting very angry out there, and they cross all demographic lines.

If Republican candidates were smart next fall, all their ads would say the same thing:

"A vote for XXXX (their Democrat opponent) is a vote to keep and expand Obamacare."

Talk about being out of sync with your community. That's the case for me and Farwell.

Me? I favor lower taxes.

I have written a couple of times about the need for the Farwell City Council to seek grants for a new well and sanitation plant repairs in order to keep our utility rates down.

As far as I know, the subject has never come up at a City Council meeting this year.

Yes, there are grants available (15 percent matching) and competition is stiff in the Panhandle for them.

Could Farwell get any? You can't know unless you apply.

And Farwell hasn't.

In fact, not one Farwell resident has come to a city council meeting to suggest it. Not one.

That says it all. I'm simply alone in Farwell in this endeavor. Silly me.

P.S. Congratulations to the Lazbuddie School Board for seeking a grant for a new water well and storage tanks.

The Tribune got a "Dear Santa" letter that was unusual but very nice.

The writer, a boy, asked Santa to give his sister what she wanted despite her professing that she had been naughty and not nice.

The boy writer says he doesn't want anything for himself and he is responsible for his sister being bad.

"We are mainly just asking for forgiveness," the boy wrote.

I hope his sister gets her wish.

Deanna Curtis' mother, Julia Salinas, received a phone call that she had won millions of dollars in a drawing she never entered. She was told to Western Union $450 to pay for the transaction fees. She was also told that if she told anyone, the deal was off.

When Mrs. Salinas said no they told her they would send someone to her home to explain it to her. Needless to say, that terrified her.

Please do not fall for this scam. There are others who have been contacted lately. Hang up the phone;do not speak with them.

Dear Santa letter is full of the Christmas spirit

The following letter was written by 5th grader Emily Cano and forwarded to the Tribune by Elementary School Principal Dawn Watson.

We thought it extremely special and full of the Christmas spirit:

Dear Santa,

"One of my wishes is peace on earth and for families to be healthy and be all together. I want all family members to be happy. I want it to snow on Christmas Eve so all the kids could build a lot of snowmen.

What I want for Christmas is to have a lot of toys and money so I could give it to all kinds of charities and to kids that don't have anything and need help.

I want to help many people but I need to have a lot of money so I could help all kinds of people. I want $1 million so I could buy homes for people who don't have them and clothes and shoes they could wear. I want a lot of people to live happy."

'I think I should get a puppy because I love you, Santa'

Dear Santa,

Thank you for the holiday. I really want a toy. How do you make toys? Is here a bed in the sled? Is Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer real? Do the other reindeer really fight with Rudolph? I like Christmas more.

Emely Vaquera

Dear Santa,

I want a tablet and a baby dog. You are my best friend. Santa, your reindeer are beautiful.

Emily Sanchez

Dear Santa,

I want a game.

J-Angel Gomez

Dear Santa,

I want a toy and a skateboard.

Enrique Lara

Dear Santa,

I want a pink sabre and a candle.

Monique Tamez

Dear Santa,

Dear Santa,

I want a big TV, I phone, water bed, board, a number cart.

Rodrigo Sanchez

Dear Santa,

I have been good. I help my dad fix the cars and trucks. I would like remote control cars, a new bike, Lego packs, video games for my Play Station 2, and a tablet.

Alejandro Cecenas

Dear Santa,

I would really gane a new bike and a ferbie boom, and X box 1.

Cassie

Dear Santa,

I would like a mini bike and some video games.

Michael

Dear Santa,

I think I should get a puppy because I love you Santa and I believe in you. I even believe in your elfs. I believe in Spurkle and Sprinkle.

Ayliyah Garcia

Dear Santa,

I would like a bike, a doll house with dolls in it, a designing book, the game of Candy Land Monopoly, some food, a trampoline and a pool, and some clothes for me and my family.

Nasha Campos

Dear Santa,

Do you have a toy reader today?

Jairo

Dear Santa,

I want to get an X Box 1 and a Wii. Santa, how many elves do you have and who do you like the most?

David

Dear Santa,

You are the best Santa ever. I do not want anything but you Santa. How many elves do you have?

Luis

Dear Santa,

Santa lives in the North Pole and Santa's elves make toys for all the kids so they can play with them. Santa likes to eat cookies so much. His reindeer help Santa to fly. I would like to go with him to the North Pole to see the elves that make toys.

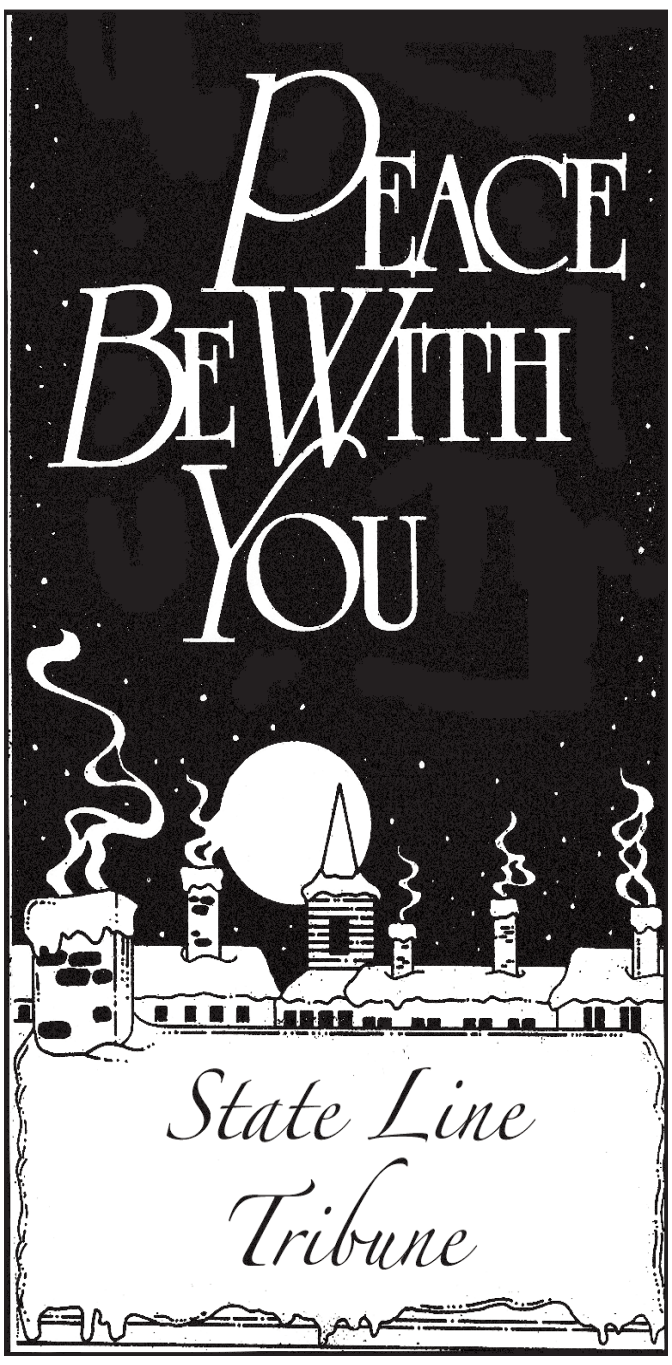

Matthew

Dear Santa,

I want a crayon marker and a white pup and an Ipad.

Alcohol sales in Bovina to be on spring ballot

The Bovina City Council on Dec. 17 voted to place a petition that would allow alcoholic sales in the city on the spring ballot.

City Councilman Radford Venable, who has been promoting this, abstained from the vote.

The council's approval is contingent on a check of the signatures on Venable's petition to make sure that legal requirements are met, i.e., enough signatures on the petition are by city residents that the law calls for.

In other business, the council:

-- Discussed at length ways to attract, and retain, police officers. Currently, the city has a police chief and two officers. Two more officers are sought.

Discussion included ways to get local residents to apply as police officers.

Persons without police training need to attend a police academy, such as in Amarillo. The academy has fees, and if a person attends it, travel expenses have to be met.

If a local person is interested in attending the police academy, the council would consider paying part of the costs involved if the person signed a contract to serve in Bovina after academy training is completed.

Local residents interested in serving as a police officer are asked to contact the Bovina police chief.

-- Approved an "Agreement for Professional Services" with Brandy Engineers for the 2013-2014 CDBG grants. Plans will be made to replace and update the ground storage water tanks.

-- Announced the usual holiday hours for City Hall. City hall will close at noon on Dec. 24, and be closed Dec. 25, 26 and 27.

-- Received a report on a successful city-sponsored pancake breakfast on Dec. 14. The turnout was so great that they ran out of some food.

-- Again discussed the need for folks to become members of the Bovina Economic Development Corporation. Four new members are sought. If you are interested in becoming a member, contact City Hall.

The matter was tabled until January.

-- Discussed repairs and costs to bringing well No. 9 back into service.

Due to a cash flow situation, it was decided to table this until at least February.

Tax money starts arriving then and improves the cash flow. Since water usage is light until summer time, it was felt to rush to get this well repaired.

-- The City Council meets the 3rd Tuesday of every month. The next scheduled meet is for Jan. 21.

Farwell utility bills discussed

The Farwell City Council on Dec. 17 discussed the recent increases in water, sewer and garbage bills.

Farwell residents now pay at least $97 per month for utilities.

Councilwoman Ysletta Kittrell said some residents who live on limited budgets are having difficult time meeting the monthly bills.

Street Supt. Gerald Porter said some residents can apply for state assistance online.

In other news, the council:

- Heard that Farwell EMS will be increase its fees on Jan. 1.

Farwell EMS director Craig Giesbrecht said the service billing company pointed out that Farwell's EMS service was charging well below average for their services.

Medicare pays around half of the claims entered, and with the changes to ObamaCare, it is expected that in the future they will pay less than ever, and deny many claims from the EMS service.

Giesbrecht said Farwell EMS took 118 calls this year.

- Heard that the water department has been fighting broken water lines around the city after the last freeze.

- Approved sending a letter in support of the proposed Clovis Veterans Cemetery.

- Heard that XCel Energy has filed an application to raise its rates. This is the first step in the process that leads to higher rates.

- Approved a building permit for a roof for Lisa Sanders.

- Discussed folks working on a house on 5th Street without a building permit. They were asked to stop work and file for a permit.

- Approved the annual $100 Christmas bonus for city employees.

- Thanked all the city volunteers and workers. Mayor Jimmie Mace said, "We are fortunate to have the people we have and they have been doing a great job for Farwell and we appreciate it."

Lazbuddie reports on school goals

Lazbuddie School Supt. Joanna Martinez announced her District goals for 2013-2014 and actions taken thus far to accomplish them:

Goal No. 1: Employ effective strategies to improve student attendance.

-- Drawings are held per six weeks for perfect attendance ($50 Walmart gift card – 1 for elementary; 1 for JH/HS).

-- Perfect attendance students paint ceiling tiles at the end of each semester.

-- End of year drawings are held for an I Pad in JH/HS and Elementary from perfect attendance students. Students' names are entered for each six weeks they had perfect attendance.

--- Parents of students absent more than two days are called.

-- Detailed record of doctor/parent notes is kept and unexcused absence policy is enforced. (After 3 parent notes, JH/HS students must have a doctor's note or absence is unexcused. Elementary students may have up to 5 parent notes.)

-- Longhorn Pride eligibility criteria encourage good attendance. (More than 2 excused absences or 1 unexcused absence exempts a student from Longhorn Pride for the six weeks.)

-- Students who exceed absence limits by semester are required to make up absences in after school detention.

-- Students who meet certain criteria are exempted from certain semester exams, and are allowed to participate in special activities while other students take their exams.

Goal No. 2: Increase outreach to parents and improve the parent-school relationship.

-- Parent meetings are held before school started to provide orientation to district expectations and procedures. Power Point handouts are provided to attendees and parents unable to attend.

-- "Parents and Teachers Care" PTO Organization is supporting students and teachers by raising money for planned purchases to benefit students.

-- Blackboard Connect voice and SMS messages provide parents with information in a timely manner.

-- The school webpage is operational, and is much more modern and user-friendly than the old one. It makes the senior composite pictures available to alumni 24/7.

-- Senior composites will soon be available to visitors via a touchscreen television in the foyer of the building.

-- Parent contact is the focus of fall Open House, and a Parent/Teacher Conference day in the fall and spring.

-- Yearly special events for community and school family include: Fall Festival, the elementary Christmas play, Thanksgiving lunch, "Muffins with Moms and Donuts with Dads", Water Day and ho tdogs, and the back to school community cookout.

-- Lazbuddie faculty and staff participate in a Christmas mission project to buy clothing and gifts for needy families in the community.

-- Mrs. Martinez's cell phone number is provided all parents, and is posted on the front window of the building, school stationery, and the school website.

-- Elementary parents are kept informed with classroom newsletters, notes home, homework text messages, teacher pages on the school website, and classroom Facebook pages.

-- Parents are informed weekly via voice and text messages if their child has a missing assignment or a zero in any class.

-- Monthly event calendars are posted on the website.

-- Billboard in Muleshoe showcases our students.

-- Student Health Advisory Council and District Advisory Team include parents,, and meet on a regular basis.

-- Multiple parent meetings are held for parents of students taking STAAR and STAAR End of Course. Individual and phone contacts are made in advance of testing opportunities.

-- Student Advisor Angela Lutz makes parent contact on a regular basis for students experiencing difficulties, and visits the homes of these students as necessary.

-- Special Programs Coordinator Dianne Hernandez keeps parents informed with Title I and Migrant newsletters.

-- Work is under way to form a student "task force" available to senior and widowed members of the community to perform chores and tasks on request, and afford companionship visits.

Goal No. 3: Represent and facilitate success equally and consistently in all academic and co-curricular programs.

-- Budget allocation is distributed equally among programs.

-- Superintendent facilitates cooperation between programs to ensure that sponsors work together to share students.

-- District Advisory Team and School Health Advisory Council consist of members from all programs and grade levels and help guide decision-making for the district.

-- Administrative Procedures Manual and District Improvement Plan ensure proper allocation of funds in alignment with District Goals and Objectives.

Goal No. 4: Provide students a variety of avenues to increase college readiness and create a college-bound culture.

-- Senior Seminar is a local graduation requirement for seniors, and is taught by FCS teacher Angie Robertson. Students are required to fill out college admission applications, scholarship applications, and complete the FAFSA, among other tasks designed for preparedness post high school.

-- Angela Lutz maintains "Counselor's Corner" on the school webpage, with college and scholarship application deadlines, ACT testing dates, TSI testing dates, dual-credit resources, and other information important to students nearing graduation.

-- Angela Lutz keeps parents informed of impending deadlines via Blackboard text and voice messages.

-- Lazbuddie and the Parmer County Extension Office co-hosted a career fair, dealing with career fields and colleges and universities.

-- College recruiters visit the campus several times a year to help students with the college and financial aid application process.

-- Mrs. Lutz took students to Snyder for an ACT workshop, where they learned tips and "tricks" for raising their score on the ACT.

-- In January, Mrs. Lutz will begin ACT study groups that will meet once a week at 7 a.m. to help students prepare for the ACT.

-- Lazbuddie is now a testing site for the Testing Student Initiative (TSI) test, which replaced the Accuplacer. Students from Lazbuddie and surrounding schools will be able to take the test for a minimal fee at Lazbuddie.

-- Administration has planned spring field trips for 5th to 8th graders to attend a different local college or university every year. By the time Lazbuddie students enter high school, they will have been on four different college campuses to see what college life is like.

-- Kindergartners will start attending "SPC Day" at South Plains College in Levelland, where they tour the campus and participate in activities geared for them.

-- Lazbuddie Seniors participate in the yearly "Amazing Chase," where they are divided into groups, given a list of tasks, and compete against other groups to race across Lubbock on a limited budget. Students are required to use public transportation and use their wits to outsmart their classmates, with no assistance from their chaperones.

Goal No. 5: Implement strategies to improve staff morale, increase conflict resolution, and facilitate communication among faculty.

-- Faculty meetings are held weekly to keep staff informed of activities, to appraise them of issues or concerns, to communicate expectations and to solicit input from staff.

-- Teachers are not required to submit lesson plans, as all core area teachers are using CSCOPE curriculum.

-- Zero tolerance policy for missing assignments is in place to minimize teachers' efforts to collect late or missing assignments.

-- Teachers are given a duty-free day to finalize grading the day before Christmas break, as well as the day before summer vacation begins.

-- Teacher absences are accrued on a 1/6 increment, instead of full or half day increments.

-- Teachers who schedule appointments and leave after 2 p.m. are not docked for an absence at all.

-- A massage therapist visits the school once a month and offers low-cost neck and shoulder massages for teachers who schedule an appointment. The District pays for one massage per year per staff member.

-- Rachelle Atkinson, a certified yoga therapist, will be coming to campus twice a month to teach yoga sessions for those who want to participate.

-- The office staff hosts a yearly Christmas breakfast and luncheon for faculty and staff.

-- Staff members are given the opportunity to accrue personal leave days by working gate duty and for monitoring detention students after school.

-- Staff members are paid $17.50/hour on weekdays to teach tutorials, and $20 per day on Saturdays.

-- Mrs. Lutz is available to all employees who need help with stress management and conflict resolution.

Goal No. 6: Research and employ innovative instructional strategies to improve student performance on state assessments.

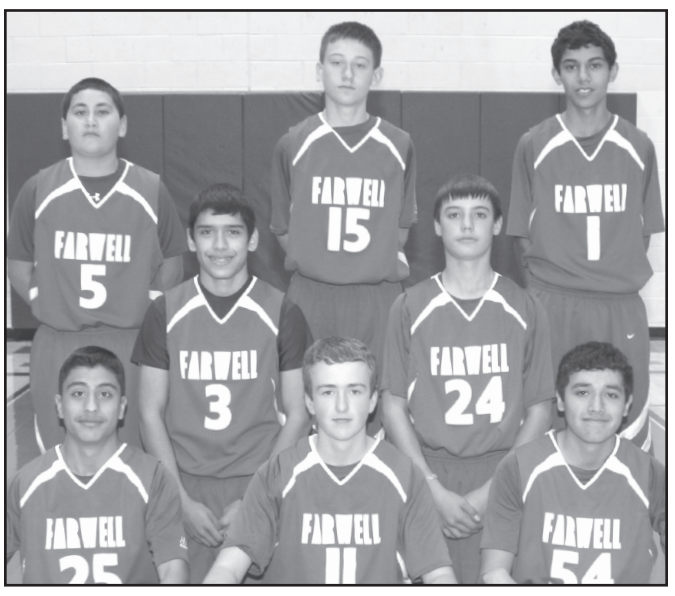

-- Core area teachers in high school, and several in elementary, are working to incorporate the "Flipped Classroom" concept into their instruction. Teachers have attended training, done personal reading and research into the "flipped" concept, and are currently working out technological and logistical obstacles in implementing the approach. Work to fully achieve the "flipped classroom" is ongoing.

-- Lazbuddie is now using HelpMath and MindPlay Virtual Reading Coach, which are innovative learning software programs that seek to fill in learning gaps and increase achievement in students struggling in reading and math.

-- Junior high and high school students are receiving Spanish instruction via MyLanguage360, a hybrid online and face-to-face program, where students attend class virtually via a program similar to Skype, and receive instruction from a licensed Spanish instructor at a remote location two days per week. The other three days of the week, the students complete coursework and homework, and attend virtual field trips.

-- Lazbuddie is using DMAC, a web-based software program that disaggregates testing data, illuminates weak performance areas, and provides a test bank of test questions to help prepare students for state assessments.

During the spring semester, Lazbuddie will be using iStation, Think Through Math, and Study Island, which are web-based test preparation programs that help diagnose students' weak areas and remediate them prior to taking state assessments.

From the Old Geezer
Butch Tharp

Here's a continuation on last week's column about pain:

Most women go through births willingly and some of them give birth to more than one child.

Some women complain about bearing children more than others and do not mind letting their husbands, and anyone else who might be within hearing range, know about their discomforts. But most women just go along and put up with the weight gains and kicks from the forming infant within.

Awhile ago, some doctor came up with the idea that women cannot remember the intense pains of pregnancy and birthing. Therefore, they willingly go through it more than once.

Being man, I have a good bit of trouble swallowing that bit of information because I can remember with great detail the very first time that I felt the pain and its intensity when my very first fall came while learning to walk.

Now it is true that there are some women who let the world know when they suffer any malady. Some women in my circle of acquaintances have made it known that they suffer from so many illnesses, aches and pains, and can never find relief from their agony.

Also, I have known a man or two who fit the designation of hypochondriac.

Listening in to some conversations of men and women about aches, illnesses, diseases and hurtful disruptions of life, men in general put a little more emphases on their complaints as though they may be proud of them.

Most women relay their complaints with a little less importance. I have heard some women say sometime or another while being with child that if their husband wanted another child adoption would be the only way!

Some women while in labor were not so kind while discussing another child, and their husband just might meet up with a not too mild tragedy.

I do not know what other men think or feel while sitting in the labor room with their wives while preparing to introduce a new member to the population and observing the pain and agony and the indignities that she is going through.

But I can just about guarantee that if men had to live through the same amount of suffering and indignities as women in pregnancy and giving birth there would be very few homes with more than one child.

As soon as men recovered from that experience, they would see to it that they would never bring that on themselves again and would make an appointment with their urologist and "get fixed."

Well, here is another egress point on the road of life. See you in a few miles.

Just Passing Through

WILL ANDERSON

The 18th Amendment prohibiting the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors went into effect in 1920.

Termed "the Great Experiment," the U.S. joined the brief attempts at Prohibition by Norway and a few provinces in Canada, Australia, and New Zealand – the only ones by non-Islamic governments on more than a municipal or county level.

Prohibition movements began in the young U.S. immediately after the Revolutionary War and gathered support and strength throughout the 19th Century.

Prohibitionists decried the crime, ruin, and domestic violence fueled by excess consumption of alcohol. They cited Scripture condemning drunkenness but they went one step beyond the Bible, outlawing not just drunkenness but all alcoholic beverages other than those for medicinal uses and sacramental wine.

The national government had historically left lawmaking about alcohol to the states which. in turn. delegated authority to their city and county governments.

Parmer County, for instance, was created as a "dry county" based on the vote of its earliest settlers and has remained so to this day, although there may be a referendum on this for the Bovina area on next year's election ballot.

Things changed in 1913, however, with the passage of the 16th and 17th Amendments. The federal government had demolished the role the Founders had created for states in national governance, and taking control on this issue was just the next step.

The manufacture of alcoholic beverages had also been outlawed in 1917 and 1918 to conserve grains to feed thousands of soldiers overseas. Crime rates had fallen in the same period, probably because so many young men were swept up into the Army who might have run afoul of the law in one way or another had they remained in cities and small towns.

Prohibitionists were quick to attribute the drop in crime to less alcohol, however, and began a campaign for ratification of the 18th Amendment.

Prohibition was a scandalous failure and was repealed in 1933 by the 21st Amendment. But here's what Prohibition caused:

-- Increased crime by more than 25 percent in just its first two years and it spiraled higher than that year after year. The Mafia crime syndicate became a national organization in large part to the proceeds it made from Prohibition.

-- Wealthy Americans who filled their cellars with cases of wine and spirits before Prohibition continued to drink as much as they wished. Police ignored alcohol in wealthier neighborhoods, compromised by the payment of bribes to look the other way. Drinkers who lacked the prestige and bribe-money that came with wealth took their own chances.

-- "Bathtub gin" and "white lightning" were risky and thousands died of tainted drinks. The government actually ordered additions of poison to alcohols used for lighting, medicinal procedures, and other uses – which killed an additional 100,000 Americans.

-- The majority of Americans held Prohibition in contempt and grew accustomed to breaking the law on a regular basis. By 1933, fewer than 11 percent of Americans supported Prohibition in any way. By the time it was repeated, there were over 500,000 "speak-easy" saloons throughout the nation.

The only vestiges of Prohibition that remain to this day are the Mafia it enriched and the NASCAR racing it created. (Prohibition's repeal deprived bootlegger drivers of their income delivering illegal booze so in 1933 they began charging admission to watch their races on country roads.)

The main lesson to be learned from Prohibition is that there are things a national government should leave at the level of the states and the people. Whether it is the state's control of alcoholic beverages or an individual's one-to-one relationship with a doctor, the federal government only makes a mess.

O Holy Night

On a starry night almost two thousand years ago, the first Christmas started with a child. Since that time, Christmas has had a special meaning for young and old alike, all over the world. For Christmas is a time of great love, great happiness and great hope.

As we celebrate again that magical moment, let us pray that the true spirit of Christmas be reflected in the hearts of all men. And may the special promise of the first Christmas child bring us all to a new and glorious morn.

Farwell EMS seeks volunteers

Farwell EMS director Craig Giesbrecht said the EMS service is looking for new volunteers.

A basic EMS class will be offered in Muleshoe in January and residents who pass the class and help the Farwell EMS service will not have to pay their utility bills.

Giesbrecht said volunteers will have to go on EMS runs to get the credit, but it is a way to save money.

Farwell Fire Department volunteers will also have their utility bills waived for their service.

Headlines from the past

Texico-Farwell plans for 'Illinois Picnic'

Here's another in the series of articles from the Texico-Farwell News, which was published in 1917 to 1919.

A major Page 1 story in the July 2, 1919, issue of the Texico-Farwell News dealt with arrangements for the upcoming "Illinois Picnic."

Even though it's known for former Illinois residents who moved here, all are invited.

Committee members were:

Location -- L.F. Fluss, J.J. Miller, M.M. Craig.

Shade -- O.N. Robison. Rudolph Miller, Fred Geries.

Vocal music - S.C. Hunter, Mrs. C. Lyons, Mrs. L.F. Fluss.

Instrumental music - Jamie McDowell, Edith Morse, Walter Miller.

Athletics - Fred Maxwell, Chester Lyon, H. Geries.

Literary -- Avice McDowell, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Geries.

Refreshments - Mrs. M.M. Craig, Mrs. C.S. Hunter, Mrs. O.N. Robison, Dorene McDowell, Girlie Geries.

Another article noted that Mrs. G.A. Foote hosted the Whist Club. Winner was Mrs. C.K. Briggs at this contest. Meanwhile, music and "42" were the main features at a party of young people at the Habers home. And there was a slumber party at the home of Gladys Coltharp.

The big 4th of July celebration was scheduled at Ranchvale.

Other Page 1 articles featured non-local events, such as a feature on Viola Dana, a movie star, and an article on bandits in Mexico.

Page 2 had columns on tidbits from Pleasant Hill, Locust Grove and Hurley.

In the Hurley notes, a car load of wool was marketed from Bailey County bringing 45 1/2 cents per pound.

Pleasant Hill notes said K.K. Runnels was a visitor; the Colwell family motored to Hereford; and Luzia Jones was home from school.

And at Locust Grove, Ebb Randol was a visitor; a "singing" was organized; and Dovie Randol visited her sister, Mrs. Jennings.

There were large ads for the Western Tire Co., which was "prepared to make deliveries about July 10th"; and the growth of the C.A. Roberson Brokerage Co. which was seeking sales reps for nine western states. Neither came to fruition as the Cannonball Motor Co. and its subsidiaries turned out to be a scam.

Town Topics was featured on Page 3. Notes included:

-- J.P. McDonald, of Bovina, was here on business.

-- 960 acres, 7 miles northwest, was available for $30 an acre.

-- 160 acres within 4 miles of Farwell was offered for $2,500.

-- 280 acres 5 miles north of Texico was priced at $28 an acres.

-- J.C. Norton sold his farm south of town and moved into the Hudson house in Farwell.

-- Ida Vinyard has taken charge of the Roberson telephone exchange.

-- Ophelia, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Osborn, has been quite sick.

-- B.O. Faville has returned from Iowa, where he had been at the bedside of his father, who died June 12.

-- Virgil Davis purchased the Brand property just south of the Congregational Church.

An ad on Page 4 said A.E. Swadley is the new proprietor of the Highway Garage. His motto is "Clean and Fair Dealing" and he has "The Best Gasoline and Oil For Sale." He formerly operated the Texico Garage.

At the Texico village board meeting, a petition was presented by residents of the Heberd Smith Addition seeking to be annexed. An election was scheduled for July 22. The Texico mayor was J.F. McGrew, and the clerk was J.B. Coltharp.

Also at the Texico village board meeting, petitions for annexation were presented by residents of the G. Clark Smith Addition and S. A. Temple Addition with same results as above.

Application of Southwestern Public Service Company to Amend a Certificate of Convenience and Necessity for a Proposed 115-kV Transmission Line within Bailey and Parmer Counties, Texas

PUBLIC UTILITY COMMISSION OF TEXAS
DOCKET NO. 41921

Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS), a subsidiary of Xcel Energy Inc., intends to amend its Certificate of Convenience and Necessity (CCN) in order to construct and operate a new 115-kilovolt (kV) transmission line within Bailey and Parmer Counties, Texas. Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission or PUC) (Docket No. 41921 - Application of Southwestern Public Service Company to Amend a Certificate of Convenience and Necessity for a Proposed 115-kV Transmission Line within Bailey and Parmer Counties, Texas) and is requesting the approval of the Commission for this project. This transmission line is needed for reliability purposes.

SPS, a subsidiary of Xcel Energy Inc., is proposing to construct and operate a single circuit, 115-kilovolt (kV) electric transmission line between the existing Bailey County Substation located in Bailey County, Texas and the existing Curry County Substation located in Curry County, New Mexico. This application addresses the project area from the Bailey County Substation in Bailey County Texas, to the Texas/New Mexico state line. The proposed transmission line was identified by the Southwest Power Pool (SPP) as needed for reliability to address low voltage violations at the Bailey County Substation during system intact conditions.

The transmission line will be constructed utilizing primarily single-pole steel structures requiring a smaller surface area than H-frame structures and eliminating the need for guy wires for corner structures. The proposed transmission line will be constructed entirely on new right-of-way (ROW) with a proposed easement width of 70 feet. The proposed transmission line is presented with eight alternative routes consisting of a combined 79 segments and is estimated to be approximately 23-28 miles in length depending on which route is selected. All routes begin at the existing Bailey County Substation located in Bailey County, Texas, approximately 0.2 miles south of Muleshoe, Texas on County Road 214. The Bailey County Substation will be expanded to include the new 115-kV bus upgrade. Up to five acres of property may be purchased to accommodate the expansion. All routes addressed in the application end at the Texas/New Mexico state line.

Depending on the route chosen, the total cost of the project in Texas, including the transmission line and substation costs, is estimated to be between approximately $17.7 million and $21.8 million.

Persons with questions about the transmission line may contact SPS's representatives Elizabeth Kirkpatrick at 303-571-7088 or James Bagley at 806-378-2868. Enclosed are a copy of a written description of the segments to be used for the alternative routes and a map of the proposed project. The same detailed routing map may be reviewed at SPS's offices at Chase Tower, 600 S. Tyler Street, Suite 2700, Amarillo, Texas, 79101. Information about the proposed project is also accessible on Xcel Energy's website Power for the Plains at http://www.powerforthep-lains.com

All routes and route segments included in this notice are available for selection and approval by the Commission.

Persons who are affected by the proposed transmission line and wish to intervene in the docket or comment on the applicant's application should mail the original and 10 copies of their request to intervene or their comments to:

Public Utility Commission of Texas
Central Records
Attn: Filing Clerk
1701 N. Congress Ave.
P.O. Box 13326
Austin, Texas 78711-3326

Persons who wish to intervene in the docket must also mail a copy of their request for intervention to all parties in the docket and all persons that have pending motions to intervene, at or before the time the request for intervention is mailed to the PUC. The only way to fully participate in the PUC's decision on where to locate the transmission line is to intervene in the docket. It is important for an affected person to intervene because the utility is not obligated to keep affected persons informed of the PUC's proceedings and cannot predict which route may or may not be approved by the PUC.

The deadline for intervention in the proceeding is January 27, 2014, and the PUC should receive a letter from anyone requesting intervention by that date.

The PUC has a brochure titled "Landowners and Transmission Line Cases at the PUC." Copies of the brochure are available from Elizabeth Kirkpatrick 303-571-7088 or may be downloaded from the PUC's website at www.puc.state.tx.us. To obtain additional information about this docket, you may contact the PUC's Customer Assistance Hotline at 512-936-7120 or 888-782-8477. Hearing-and speech-impaired individuals with text telephones (TTY) may contact the PUC's Customer Assistance Hotline at 512-936-7136 or toll free at 800-735-2989. In addition to the intervention deadline, other important deadlines may already exist that affect your participation in this docket. You should review the orders and other filings already made in the docket.

BAILEY-CURRY 115-KV TRANSMISSION LINE PROJECT SEGMENT DESCRIPTIONS

Y

Segment Y originates in Parmer County at the intersection of Segment AD on the north side of CR DD. Segment Y extends directly west approximately 710 feet, paralleling the north side of CR DD, crossing the non-irrigated field south of a center-pivot irrigated field and an electric distribution line. Segment Y terminates at the state line of Texas and New Mexico. The total length of Segment Y is approximately 710 feet.

AD

Segment AD originates in Parmer County at the intersection with Segment AI, northwest of the intersection of CR 1 and CR DD. Segment AD extends directly west approximately 4,750 feet, paralleling the north side of CR DD, offset approximately 40 feet north of the road to avoid two center-pivot irrigated fields. The offset of approximately 40 feet from CR DD also avoids irrigation wells. Segment AD terminates at the intersection with Segment Y on the north side of CR DD. The total length of Segment AD is approximately 4,750 feet.
